A Christmas File Of Needy Families

Mrs. Peggy M. Evans, left, and Mrs. Elizabeth Avery, caseworkers, look over the Welfare department's Christmas file on needy families. Mrs. Evans, who is in charge of the project this year, reports that there are still 72 families on file who will need help at Christmas time and more are coming in every day. Any individual or organization wishing to help one of these families out may call Mrs. Evans at the welfare department. (Reflector Photo by Edwina Haymes).

Eludes Communist Cordon; Bolted To Reds In July 1954

Otto John Returns To W. Germany

By BRACK CURRY
BONN, Germany (AP) — Dr. Otto John, the notorious German turncoat security chief, has returned to the West.
The West German government announced today that the defector "man of a thousand secrets" who deserted to Communist East Germany 16 months ago had surrendered to West German security police.
German sources said he crossed into West Berlin yesterday and was flown secretly to West Germany the same afternoon.
He is being questioned by the prosecutor of the West German Supreme Court, a terse announcement added.

Educational 'Swap' Shaping Up

Where he is being held and how he eluded the Communist police was not revealed. It was known here that the East Germans suspected he might be planning to flee back to the West and had put him under constant surveillance. His escape westward therefore may have involved considerable ingenuity on his part.
When Chancellor Konrad Adenauer told a meeting of his coalition government's parliamentary leaders that John was back in West Germany, they roared with laughter.
He bolted to the Communists on July 20, 1954, the 10th anniversary of the bomb plot against Hitler in which he and his brother played prominent parts.
John's flight was postwar Germany's greatest security scandal. Rudeft allied officials admitted that he had turned out to be Russia's master German spy.
Two months before he crossed by night into East Berlin he had signed in Washington with Allen Dulles, director of the United States' top-secret Central Intelligence Agency. For 10 years he had curried favor with the British secret service.
John had been director of West Germany's Office for Protection of Constitution. Its mission was to ferret out and expose Communist and Nazi plotters inside the Bonn republic, work directly connected not only with the security of the West German republic but also of the 400,000 Allied troops in the country.
After he joined the Communists publicly, John charged that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government was redividing Nazism and militarism. He said the "only forum" he had found to combat this trend was in the Communist East.
Before today's sensational announcement he had been reported living in Potsdam, writing his memoirs and editorials for Communist publications.

List Of Christmas Needy Is Growing

A lot of Pitt County homes will not be joyous this Christmas Day unless some generous individuals and organizations help out.
Although the county Public Welfare Department reports that 190 of the 271 families they presently have on file as needing help at Christmas time have been taken by local and county organizations, "more names are coming in every day." In addition, there are 49 charity patients from Pitt county in sanatoriums who will need to be remembered by others this Yuletide season.
Any person or group who is interested in helping a needy family or sanatorium patient have a merry Christmas may call Mrs. Peggy M. Evans, caseworker in charge of the project this year, at the Welfare office, 2948.
Mrs. Evans also urges individuals or groups who are selecting families on their own to call and let her know who these families are to avoid duplication from the Welfare department. She emphasized that all Christmas help for needy families must come from local citizens as the Welfare department has no funds for this purpose.
The caseworker pointed out that it is a good idea for persons interested in taking a needy family to call and get the name of a family

Cites Result Of Fluoridation Of Drinking Water

NEW YORK (AP) — A New York health official says a 10-year comparison test in two New York communities showed that fluoridation of drinking water helps reduce tooth decay and loss in children without causing any physical harm.
Results of the test were made public last night by Dr. Herman R. Hilleboe, New York state health commissioner, who described fluoridation as "safe and effective."
Such fluoridation means adding one part of sodium fluoride to drinking water for every million parts of water. It has been a controversial subject in health and scientific circles.
The findings were based on the Newburgh-Kingston study. The town of Newburgh, N. Y., 10 years ago began adding sodium fluoride to its public water while nearby Kingston did not. The towns have a population of some 30,000 each.
A similar test conducted in the town of Branford in Canada also showed that fluoridation of water appears harmless and beneficial.
At a conference of the New York Institute of Clinical Oral Pathology here last night, Hilleboe and other health experts gave the following highlights of the New York test:
Children in Newburgh aged 6 to 9 have 58 per cent less tooth decay and missing teeth than youngsters in the same age group in Kingston.
The 10 to 12 age group in Newburgh has 52 to 53 per cent less decay while children aged 13 to 14 show 48 per cent. Sixteen-year-olds in Newburgh, whose first permanent molars were erupting when fluoridation began, have 41 per cent less tooth decay than their Kingston counterparts.
There was no evidence that fluoridated water contributed to gum inflammation or gingivitis; there was no effect on children's growth, weight and height; no changes in their bones, in blood composition, urinalysis, vision or hearing.
Hilleboe said 1,115 communities in the United States are now fluoridating water for more than 22 million persons.

Gifts For Privately Supported Colleges, Universities, Hospitals Foundation Gives Away $500 Millions

NEW YORK (AP) — The Ford Foundation has showered half a billion dollars on the nation's privately supported colleges, universities and hospitals in history's greatest giveaway.
The huge gift, announced yesterday, was divided as follows:
To 615 regionally accredited, private colleges and universities, primarily to help raise teachers' pay — $210 million dollars;
To 3,500 privately supported hospitals located in all 48 states, plus Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico — $200 million dollars;
To privately supported medical schools — $90 million dollars.
The grant to colleges and universities is in addition to 50 million dollars which the foundation announced last spring it would distribute to help raise teaching salaries.
Thirty-six colleges and universities received more than one million dollars each. The largest gift — five million — went to New York University.
Other top gifts went to Harvard — $4,510,000; University of Chicago — $4,324,000; and Yale — $4,000,000. The smallest college grant was $31,900 for the California School of Fine Arts, San Francisco.
For hospitals, the gifts ranged from $25,000 — University of Chicago — $4,324,000; and Yale — $4,000,000. The smallest college grant was $31,900 for the California School of Fine Arts, San Francisco.

The foundation parceled its funds among colleges roughly in sums equal to their 1954-55 payrolls for instruction in the liberal arts and sciences. At least half of each grant is to be paid next July 1 and the remainder a year later.
The Advisory Committee which determined the gifts said it did not want to disrupt "the carefully evolved patterns of our system of high education."
The college grants were given in the form of 10-year endowments, the interest in that period to be used solely for increasing teachers' salaries. After 10 years the college may use the money as it sees fit.
The 50-million-dollar grant of last spring, which was not then distributed, will be allotted to 126 colleges as supplemental grants. The foundation said these will go to institutions that have "led the way in their regions in improving the status and compensation of American college teachers."
The hospital grants are for improvement and expansion of service and not to be used for operating expenses. Final approval of individual hospital grants was held up pending submission of certain information.
The foundation's total gift was 150 million dollars more than all the money given away in its previous 19 years.
Henry Ford, a pioneering giant of the motor industry, started the foundation in 1936 for "the advancement of human welfare."
At present some three million shares of nonvoting Ford stock make up the foundation's assets. Sixteen years ago this was valued at $135 a share for estate tax purposes, putting the foundation's worth at about half a billion dollars.
However, the foundation recently announced plans to sell a portion of the stock. Financial experts figure the market price to be brought by this stock will boost the foundation's worth to 2 1/2 to 3 billion dollars.

Turncoat GI Still Believes Red Charge

HONG KONG (AP) — Richard Roger Tenneson 22 turned GI former war prisoner, arrived here today from Red China. He said he was neither for nor against communism but that he believed the Red charges that the United States used germ warfare in Korea.
Tenneson, who comes from Alden, Minn., was among 21 Americans who refused repatriation after the Korean War. In September he said he wanted to go home and the Communists gave him permission to leave.
American consular officials who met him at the border drove him to Kowloon, this British crown colony's mainland city opposite Hong Kong Island. He held a new passport in a hotel room provided by the Red Cross, the same room occupied by three other turncoats who came home last summer.
Tenneson was quite nervous as he spoke, talking rapidly in a high-pitched voice and gesturing constantly. He said he had been permitted to read both American and Chinese newspapers and concluded conditions in the United States were "favorable" for his return. "I know definitely about communism today, more than in 1951," he said. "I am not fighting for communism, nor am I against it."
He said he believed the Chinese charges that the Americans had used germ warfare in Korea because of the "evidence" the Communists had assembled. He declared there "things that have been collected could not have been collected. There are all kinds of evidence apart from statements — different kinds of bombs and so forth."
He added that he expected "some hostility when I arrive home because of my views on American germ warfare."
The United States has repeatedly denied the germ warfare accusations and in turn has charged that the Chinese made fake photographs.
Tenneson termed his stay in China "a worked in a paper factory — something like attending school and now my decision to return to the United States is something like a postgraduate course."
WANT ATOMIC CENTER
TOKYO (AP) — Three government party members of the Diet (Parliament) today called on U. S. Ambassador John M. Allison and urged that the projected Asia atomic energy center be established in Japan. The center is to study peaceful uses of atomic energy. There have been reports it may be established in the Philippines or Ceylon.

N. C. Units Will Get $5 Millions

NEW YORK (AP) — Privately-supported colleges and universities of North Carolina will receive Ford Foundation grants totaling more than $5,200,000.
The foundation said yesterday Duke University at Durham received the largest grant, $2,380,000.
Size of grants to Atlantic Christian College at Wilson and Barber-Scott College at Concord have not been decided. Further information is needed from those schools, the foundation added.
Because Duke, Davidson College, Wake Forest College and Johnson C. Smith University have been leaders in raising teachers' salaries, the foundation said, their grants were increased.
Grants to North Carolina schools, except for Duke, include:
Belmont Abbey College, Belmont, $89,800; Bennett College, Greensboro, $106,400; C. A. W. B. College, Salisbury, $121,400; Davidson College, Davidson, $411,400; Elon College, $125,700; Flora Macdonald College, Red Springs, $53,500; Greensboro College, Greensboro, $103,100; Guilford College, Guilford, $112,100; High Point College, High Point, $135,500; Johnson C. Smith University, Charlotte, $185,900; Lenoir Rhyne College, Hickory, $147,700; Livingston College, Salisbury, $99,400; Meredith College, Raleigh, $161,200; Queens College, Charlotte, $124,200; St. Augustine's College, Raleigh, $99,000; Salem College, Winston-Salem, $84,200; Shaw University, Raleigh, $117,900; Wake Forest College, Wake Forest, $515,300.

Wake Forest Faculty Called To Special Meeting By Probers

WAKE FOREST, N. C. (AP) — The chairman of a special committee investigating the "over-all situation" at Wake Forest has called the college's faculty to a private meeting today.
Andrew J. Buchanan, investigating committee chairman, has promised he would hold hearings here and at Winston-Salem where the college will move next year before submitting his report to the board of trustees for its Dec. 27 meeting.
The faculty was told of the special meeting at a routine faculty meeting yesterday in which the teachers expressed confidence in

Youngville Bank Held Up Today By Two Gunmen

YOUNGVILLE, N. C. (AP) — Two armed white men robbed the Youngville branch of the Durham Bank & Trust Co. today and fled north reportedly in a gray 1949 four-door Ford automobile. The car was believed to be around $2,000.
Watts Hill, vice president of the Durham bank, set the loss at about $1,400.
The Charlotte FBI office said it was told that the unmasked men entered the bank shortly before noon, took the money and left without harming anyone.
The FBI said the license number of their car had been reported as North Carolina N-19096 or N-19098. The car was seen headed north toward Franklinton, on U. S. 1A.
Youngville is a small community about 25 miles north of Raleigh, and near Wake Forest.
It was the third time the bank had been robbed, and the second time within six months. A bandit robbed the bank of about $3,000 last Aug. 12.
About four years ago a robber escaped with $5,000, but he was captured within 30 minutes and the money was recovered.

Mayor Liberace Ties Up Traffic

SHERMAN OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The honorary mayor of Sherman Oaks is causing some of the worst traffic jams ever in this San Fernando Valley community.
The mayor is pianist Liberace, who went all out in decorating his $100,000 home for the Christmas season. The result is a steady stream of automobiles that has brought traffic police out the past two nights.
Personal appearances by the smiling pianist to greet some of the onlookers isn't helping to slow down things any.
A top modernistic showplace is a bamboo Santa Claus playing a baby grand piano. On the piano is the inevitable candelabra reindeer and sleigh.
The whole creation, in modern design, was the brain child of Liberace.
From the piano comes high fidelity recordings of Liberace's Christmas album entitled "Christmas at the Liberaces."
Last night when children were among the viewers, Liberace signed autographs for them told them to wait and brought them candy from the house.
"I just love Christmas," he said.

Dixon-Yates Suit Faces Government

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Dixon-Yates power group has sued the government for $3,534,775 for expenses in connection with the now-cancelled contract for a private power plant in the Tennessee Valley Authority area.
The suit was filed by the Mississippi Valley Generating Co. in the U. S. Court of Claims.
E. H. Dixon, president of Mississippi Valley Generating, said in a statement:
"We commenced this litigation with every confidence in its result."
Dixon also is president of Middle South Utilities Inc., which together with the Southern Co. set up Mississippi Valley Generating to build a 107-million-dollar generating plant at West Memphis, Ark.
The purpose was to supply power to the TVA system to replace power used elsewhere by the Atomic Energy Commission. The controversial contract was cancelled last summer and on Nov. 23 the Atomic Energy Commission announced that it would not pay Mississippi Valley Generating for money already expended.
AEC, in taking this stand said Adolphe H. Wenzell "while having a conflicting private interest acted as one of the principal advisers to the government in the negotiation of the contract."
Wenzell, New York investment banker, acted as a Budget Bureau consultant and the Democratic critics of the Dixon-Yates contract contended he played a dual role. His firm, the First Boston Corp., later served Dixon-Yates as financial agent.
In his statement today, Dixon said the contract with the government was in full force for more than six months and during that time his company proceeded with the performance "of all our obligations under it." Dixon added:
"The decision of the government to repudiate its contract presumably was based upon legal opinion which rests upon important mistakes of facts and we disagree with its conclusions. We will prosecute our rightful claims with the same vigor which characterized our efforts to fulfill our part of the contract."

Burley Growers See Top Prices

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Christmas money flowed into the pockets of Tennessee's burley tobacco growers at record levels yesterday.
Official figures from 16 markets reporting sales indicated a new season high in prices. Eleven of the auction centers gave averages higher than those of the previous record day, Dec. 5, when the official statewide average was $57.87 a hundredweight.
Three markets reported averages above 60 cents a pound — Carthage with $60.98 a hundred, Hartsville with $59.33 and Greenville with $60.05.
Athens turned in the lowest average still at $54.45, at the third week of burley sales, opened

Would Pave Way For Presbyterian College Project Settle In Raleigh

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — An educational "swap" which would bring Meredith College from Raleigh to Winston-Salem and pave the way for a new four-year educational Presbyterian college in Raleigh was under consideration today.
The proposal was instigated several months ago by Charles H. Babcock of Winston-Salem, who has offered the woman's college a homestead and 165 acres here in Meredith for a new campus. Babcock is a son-in-law of the late R. J. Reynolds, tobacco magnate.
J. Fredrick Larson and his son Nils F. Larson, architects for the new Wake Forest College campus now nearing completion here, already have begun work on plans for converting the Reynolds residence into a college administrative building.
If Meredith accepts the Babcock offer, dormitories would be built to accommodate the approximately 600 Meredith students. They would use the classrooms and library at Wake Forest.
It would be a cooperative educational effort under which Meredith dormitories would be built to accommodate the approximately 600 Meredith students. They would use the classrooms and library at Wake Forest.
The plans hinge on the reaction of two groups: the board of trustees of Meredith, who would have to accept the Babcock offer, and the Presbyterian board which is seeking a new site in eastern North Carolina for a new four-year educational college.
A part of Babcock's plan is bringing Meredith here, including offering the present Meredith campus to the Presbyterians.
Reached in New York City by telephone, Babcock, a stock broker, said that something would have to be done with the Meredith campus and that he might be "to work up an offer."

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER
"Korea is sad beyond any describing and poor beyond imagining," says Mrs. Sherwood Eddy, after a visit with her author-eva-gelist husband to that land. "Property destroyed by the war still lies in ruins, refugees have crowded into every empty space, merchants are crying on their businesses with a pushcart where a store used to be, or a seller carries merchandise over his arm in lieu of a shop. The country is beginning to recover, but it will be a very long and very costly process. The people, under the heavy burden of loss and taxes for defense, can do little for themselves, though the desire is strong among them."
The Rev. Ruth S. East, of Binger, Okla., is the new president of the American Association of Women Ministers, succeeding the Rev. Clara Wood of Berkeley, Cal. The general secretary is the Rev. Olive Knapp of Free Soil, Michigan. The Association includes 250 women ministers of some 25 denominations.
Miss Alice Green, of Denver, Colo., has been named to a newly-created post of "coordinator-director of hospital ministries" for service in Alaska under the Division of Home Missions, National Council of Churches. S. Public Health Service for the Alaskan people, combining functions of a religious education director and chaplain, with personal services for the ill. As a missionary, she has been preacher, counsellor, Sunday school worker, traveller on dog sleds, radio operator, nurse, and religious chaplain on walrus hunts and trapping expeditions.

Heath, Washington, D. C., corresponding secretary, and Mrs. E. R. Corman, Pittsburgh, Pa., treasurer.

Legends, Tradition, Theme For U. D. C. Christmas Program

Everetts School To Present Christmas Program
The George B. Singletary Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy met at the home of Mrs. H. T. Smith with Mrs. V. C. Fleming as assistant hostess Thursday afternoon, December 8. The president, Mrs. E. W. Harvey, presided over the meeting.
The meeting opened with the Ritual followed by the salute to the flags. Officers gave their reports. The historian asked the members to write essays for some of the historical prizes. The corresponding secretary was asked to send get well cards to the sick members and Christmas cards to the five widows of Confederate soldiers who live in Pitt County. Each member was asked to send Christmas cards to the UDC patients in the four tuberculosis hospitals in North Carolina. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. P. E. Wells read the minutes of the last meeting.
Mrs. T. T. Hollingsworth presented Miss Mary Thomas Smith who gave the program on "Legends and Traditions of Christmas in Many Countries." She closed her program by reading Peter Marshall's "Let's Keep Christmas." All present enjoyed this fine program.
Mrs. Smith invited the members into the dining room where from a beautifully appointed table she and her daughter served dainty and delicious refreshments carrying out the Christmas motif.

ROBERSONVILLE—The Everetts Grammar School students, under the direction of Mrs. Irving Smith of Robersonville, will present their annual Christmas program in the school auditorium on Wednesday, Dec. 14, at 7:30.
The Glee Club, composed of 60 boys and girls from the fifth, sixth and seventh grades, will depict episodes in the Nativity Story. Pupils in costume will present tableaux to portray the traditional personages of the story — angels, shepherds, and the Three Kings their pages, and Mary and Joseph. This program is built around 12 or more familiar carols. The background scenery for this was painted by Brenda Ayers and Celia Clark, pupils of the seventh grade.
"The Missing Factor" is a short play to be given by the fourth grade with appropriate music.
The third grade will contribute a group of Christmas songs and carols. "Santa's Lunch" is a pantomime to be acted by the second grade.
The children in the first grade will dramatize a story, "Archie the Snowman."
Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Young Moderns

BY VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures
Dear Santa:

Here's hoping all young moderns get a special wink from you this year and that you find enough of what they want to go around. Although rumor has it that young people are developing their own personalities, it seems region by region that they like the same things.

Take that V-neck boy's sweater for instance, so popular with the girls today. Did you know that practically all subeds have them on their list for Christmas 1955? And did you know that most girls have it planned so they give the boy one that matches? No? Well perhaps you'd be interested in the new fad of matching bright or red, yellow or high-style plaid are popular favorite for young daters.

Another big item on girl and boy lists are record players. Make it hit if you can and load up your sack with some good records such as the popular "Autumn Leaves" and Jerome Kern's song-book.

Sleepwear is an important favorite because slumber parties are high on the list of Christmas musts. Fun pajamas are what all the girls want, it seems and popular ones include those long knitted night shirts with horizontal stripes in loud colors called "Charlestons." Then there are the flannel pajamas made like football and baseball players' suits with big numbers on the back. The girls are mad for those, too.

Earrings and bracelets are in big demand so you'd better get your super jewel box shined up and bend Dunder and Blitzen for the big ride. Nylons are wanted by all chic daters and all require light beige, the suntan leg color. Must be seamless, too.

Stationery, another favorite, is more popular with printed name or initials. Evening slippers and "hedges" are absolute musts for the era of ladylike daters. "Flats" are still popular but mostly for play, seldom for dating. Jeweled and embroidered flats may be worn at slumber parties. Ditto those Arabian night slippers.

And, oh, yes, Santa, every young miss seems to be engaged in collecting something. You'd better get an extra supply of stuffed animals because that's one of the favorite acquisitions of our busy students. And be prepared for a note from one school ordering scads of stuffed bulldogs. It seems the junior class of Low Haywood school in Stamford, Conn. is presenting each senior with a little bulldog, the mascot of the Junior class, or so Junior Judy Lewis tells us.

You can make your people happy with most anything these days because their minds revolve faster than super turbines. So there are girls who wait expectantly for microscopes and chemistry sets, and some boys enjoy knitting (although they are likely to do it secretly).

Girls away at school would enjoy a basket of snacks to take back after their holiday, and students who live at home would like a gift certificate for a case of their favorite soda pop, they tell us. From where you sit Santa you've probably had to bone up on 1955 tastes so we hope somebody told you this is not the year for reading. If there's anything you can do to encourage the idea though, we're all for it, and perhaps you'll stuff each stocking with some book that will whet junior appetites. Or perhaps the authors are just off the beam. Oh, yes, in case no one has told you, preferred reading for those who still do it are science and travel books.

Baseball Is Good Training For TV Executives

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Leo Durocher's baseball training comes in handy with his new job as TV network executive. Instead of umpires, he can outshoot actors.

The highly vocal ex-pitcher of the New York Giants now occupies an office in the rarified echos of NBC officialdom. He's just as talkative as ever, though in somewhat gentler terms than he used on the diamond. But not always.

What are his duties? That's what many people wondered when the Lip left baseball for the network post at a reported $50,000 a year.

"I'm not quite sure what I'm supposed to do," he replied. "The only way I can define the job is the way (NBC biggie) Bob Banoff put it: I'm an NBC executive."

His functions can include keeping the stars happy. For instance, one of the network's big names asked for a TV set for his new apartment. He was sent one—"the kind that a shop might lend you while you had yours sent out to be repaired," Durocher reported.

The star was incensed. Durocher was sent as peace emissary. When he arrived, the star launched into a tirade. Durocher matched him decible for decible.

"Look—if you want to shout, I can shout with you; I'm an expert at it," said the former big leaguer. "But if you want to talk this thing over sensibly, I'll do that too."

The star aired his beef, and Durocher said he'd fix it. He arranged the gift of a new 21-inch set—after going through company channels, of course.

Aside from memo writing and keeping the actors happy, Durocher has numerous other chores. Not the least is as a performer. Last week he appeared on the Ethel Merman show. Yesterday he donned a baseball uniform—the Cincinnati Reds, no less—to play in a comedy called "O'Toole from Moscow" on matinee. He has been announced as emcee for the new Comedy Hour show.

Does he like performing? "As long as they don't want me to be an actor," he said. "If they give me something in which I can act like Durocher and talk like Durocher, I don't mind it."

He seems to be thriving in his new post and says rumors that he will return to baseball are so much nonsense.

Rites Last Week For Mrs. J. E. Boswell

ROBERSONVILLE—Funeral services for Mrs. J. E. Boswell, 77, of Black Creek, mother of Mrs. Peggy Taylor of Robersonville, were held last Tuesday afternoon at Black Creek Methodist Church. Rev. Surviving are five daughters and four sons and 10 grandchildren.

Schiaparelli Objects To 'Color Mad' America

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

Elsa Schiaparelli, who prefers an unadorned black dress and an understated hat above all other colors, says she is having to wear dark glasses to protect her eyes from the blaze of color that assails her on all sides during her current visit to New York.

"Color is a fine thing, in small doses," says the famous Frenchwoman, who now is designing everything from bathing suits to eyeglass frames for American manufacturers. "But an unrelieved blast of color is like turning up the radio full force in a small tile bathroom."

"I look at the automobiles in a parking lot and it is like looking at a scrambled rainbow. And then I see women who choose their clothes to match a pink car with a purple top, and I can conclude only that they want to be invisible.

"It does seem that this country has gone color mad. When people become color conscious, that's good. But please let's think which color goes with which, and please let's not wear them all at once."

"I am now going to use my Paris salon as a laboratory of design. There I will design everything. And I am going to make it a sort of club for American business people too, where they can come in whenever they like and find out about the latest trends and the newest ideas and how to get things done and save time in Paris."

State Could Use Merit Rating Idea

The removal of a great many state functions from the realm of politics is a desirable thing; but is likewise a particularly difficult feat to accomplish.

State government functions, perhaps to a greater degree than local government functions, are in the thick of politics. And when there are decisions to be made the political factors involved quite often carry more weight with officials than the other more pertinent factors.

The state highway system, for example, is up to its ears in politics although many of the long-time political observers declare the situation is not as bad as it used to be. Commissioners are appointed to their posts as a reward for special favors or special work done usually in behalf of the man in the governor's mansion who appoints them. These highway commissioners control the spending for roads in their respective districts, and collectively determine what highway funds shall be spent where through out the state.

When it comes to a surplus in highway funds, the governor himself authorizes the expenditures and designates the projects to which surplus funds will go. He cannot escape politics when it comes to making these allocations. In many instances surplus highway funds have been allocated with regard to political expediency rather than on the basis of need for improved or additional highway facilities.

At the present time there is a surplus of some six million dollars in the highway fund which will be distributed among specific projects throughout the state. Will politics of actual need for new or improved facilities determine where these funds shall be spent?

Surplus highway funds should be spent where the need for highway facilities are greatest, without regard for the geographical-political aspects involved.

In counties throughout the Second Highway Division of which Pitt County is a part, a "merit system" has been set up by the division headquarters and approved by each of the boards of county commissioners in the district for determining a priority system for allocation of funds. Just how closely this merit system is being followed in the allocation of funds within a county or within the district is of course difficult to determine. We assume, however, that the merit system is being used rather than just politics.

It appears to us that a similar priority system could be set up on the state level to determine to what projects surplus highway funds will go. The merit system used in the Second Division takes in consideration each segment of road which is assigned a priority rating on the basis of the use of the road by school buses and other vehicles, the number of houses, churches, stores and other facilities along the road, its use as a connection link and a number of other factors. The priority rating is based on the number of points the particular segment of road has by considering the above-mentioned items.

Were a similar priority system set up on the state level for determining where surplus highway funds are to be spent, it would be one more step toward removing highway expenditures of surplus funds farther from politics.

Politicians might not be in favor of the idea, but we believe such a system would be in the best interest of the people of the state.

Unusual Uncertainty In Political Circles

By LYNN NISBET
UNCERTAIN—One reason for the eagerness and wariness exhibited by probably candidates, and among other folks in public taking sides in prospective campaigns, is the greater than usual uncertainty in North Carolina political circles.

Confusion in national and international affairs, both economic and political, is perhaps no greater than has prevailed since the end of World War II. Emphasis has changed on economic factors and political trouble points have moved from one part of the world to another without materially alleviating or increasing the total confusion.

In North Carolina the economic situation maintains fairly stable status. Emphasis switches from textile manufacturing to merchandising to farming. Extreme drought one year, hurricanes another, and localized storms all the while with occasional episodes of the labor-management front followed pretty well established pattern.

There are unusual, if not unique, factors in the current political situation which claim attention of prospective candidates and voters alike. At the top of the list of these unprecedented situations is an incumbent Governor eligible to succeed himself, and for the first time in memory of living persons the prospect of a Governor serving more than four years in the highest office.

Probably next in importance among the unusual phases of the total political situation is the fact that decisions of the United States Supreme Court have legally injected the race question. That issue has featured other campaigns and has occasioned bloc voting for or against candidates on emotional or sentimental basis without color of law. The race element is important in considering these matters.

GOVERNOR—Before the 1952 elections William Umstead had been rated a certain candidate for Governor and had been generally accorded far better than even chance to win. He did win. Political strategists had picked several persons from which group the chief executive to succeed Umstead was supposed to come, with definite choice to be determined during the last half of the Umstead administration.

Umstead died a few weeks before the convening of the second General Assembly of his administration period and Luther Hodges—who had been elected Lieutenant Governor—look over the high office. He became the first Governor under the present constitution to serve with a Legislature, the members of which had been elected before he was considered for the office and also the first to be eligible for election for a full term after functioning as a fill-in during a legislative session.

The situation thus created left a number of potential candidates who had expected to enter an open-field race for Governor in the position of facing heavy handicap instead of even odds. Result is that not a single one of the dozen or more original prospects have dared announce for Governor.

SEGREGATION—What the impact of the desegregation decrees of the Supreme Court will be on North Carolina is unpredictable. That is keeping some aspirants for legislative and local offices on the fence.

There is apparent direct conflict between two major ideas. One is that majority of North Carolinians will accept racial integration reluctantly and under protest, and will resist effectuation within all constitutional and legal limits. The other is that North Carolina will not, under circumstances, abandon or abolish its public system.

DILEMMA—This situation confronts politicians with a dilemma in that connection it is interesting to note the definition of a "dilemma" given by the office dictionary: "An argument which presents an antagonist with alternatives, each of which is fatal to the other."

Because no candidate for membership in the General Assembly or for any other office of consequence, will dare to advocate full racial integration in public schools and public parks and recreation centers, and none will dare to sponsor overt defiance of the Supreme Court's latest interpretation of the constitution, very few people have indicated purpose to seek election to the Legislature.

There are rumors that in a few counties the segregation question may be the controlling issue. In most places there will be real effort to side-step that problem, and base the campaign on more normal and traditional issues.

NO PRECEDENT—What confuses all the prospective candidates for public office, from Governor down to township constable, is the lack of precedent for dealing with issues likely to feature the 1956 campaign. Nobody knows how to run against an incumbent Governor, because it has never been done in North Carolina. Nobody knows how to approach the segregation issue without conceding an advantage, because the question has never arisen before this year.

So—everybody seems to be waiting for somebody else to break the ice or chart a course of action. This attitude might result in no candidates announcing for the several offices; or it might bring the largest number of contestants ever entered in a nominating primary. The uncertainty on this point as well as the general confusion about what may be happening in the world, may explain the lack of announced contenders in the several races scheduled for the 1956 primary.

Other Editors Are Saying... The Long Range Prospects

(Washington Daily News)
State supported schools of higher education cannot deny admission to any student purely because of race. That was decided some time ago by the federal courts.

While the decision has been appealed, it might be some time before the final verdict is known. That means that such colleges and universities as UNC, N.C. State College, East Carolina College, WCU, and Western Carolina teachers cannot in the future reject a student on account of race or color.

Right now at the University of North Carolina two colored students have been enrolled in the college. Heretofore graduate schools at the university have accepted colored students, but these two boys are the first ones enrolled in the undergraduate department.

There are many people who take it for granted that only state supported schools will be affected by the ruling. And right now that is the case. But in future years it might not be that way. It is entirely possible that some church or privately supported institutions will admit Negroes on their own accord. Others will not admit them unless they are forced to do so.

But there is room to believe that these private institutions will be the next field where the race barrier will be hauled down. Such institutions as Duke, Wake Forest, Davidson, and many others may not preserve their simon pure status for too long.

The federal government can work upon them in a way which will hurt unless they break down the barrier.

These privately supported colleges and universities get tax considerations from the government. If through the failure of any of these colleges to admit Negroes, the cases are carried to court, then it might well be that the government will say "we'll tax your institutions unless you comply with the same ruling that the state supported schools are doing. In that event privately financed schools turning down any student. And it might well be that these schools will admit some colored students rather than face the prospects of paying taxes on their property.

Very few of our church schools right now can afford to pay taxes on the property they own. A tax on such institutions might well run them. If so, then it could resolve into a question of keeping open the doors or closing them. And few institutions will offer to close doors rather than comply with the ruling.

We offer this line of thinking after talking with people who are familiar with the problems of higher education in North Carolina. The thought of having to comply when a school is not state supported will not set well. But in the final analysis the school might have to make a choice. It won't come right away. But it might come before many years have passed.

The Hole Truth, So Help Me

Ever wonder what happens to the hole in a doughnut? Sure you have!

That lowly hole has been the brunt of many jokes, both good and bad. That's been true ever since the deep fat fried delicacy known as a doughnut tempted the first of the world's coffee addicts to slyly dip one of the devices in his morning cup.

What happens to the hole in a doughnut? You can't eat it. You can't bounce it off the wall. You can't even throw it out to the dogs with evening meal's table scraps.

In short, as long as man and the doughnut have been thrown together for better or worse in this old world the doughnut hole has been getting the short end of the deal.

Now the doughnut itself. That's different. Old Noah Webster has that down pat. A doughnut, according to that old boy is: "a small cake made of dough raised by baking powder or yeast and fried in deep fat; a fried cake; usually cut, before frying with a hole in the center."

Nothing else. Articulate old Noah makes absolutely no attempt to describe that hole. I took it upon myself to do a little investigating since Webster sloughed over the job so miserably.

You think that hole's not there? I've got news for you. Doughnut holes are just as easily obtainable as salted side meat or pickled pigs feet. A local bakery will sell you all the tiny doughnut holes you can eat.

Cheap too. The little delicacies, which presumably taste just like their parents, can be had for a mere penny each.

So instead of three ordinary, everyday doughnuts for a dime, buy ten doughnut holes. Invite your friends around and throw a party.

Notebook On Life

Predictions For The Future

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Year after year Hugo Gernsback probably puts out the most unusual Christmas cards in America.

Each year they contain predictions by Gernsback, publisher of the magazine "Radio-Electronics," on how life will be lived in the future.

Some years his forecasts are pretty eerie. This year they are weirder than weird. If Gernsback is even half-right (and he is convinced time will prove him altogether right), the average man will probably be glad he lives in the present—and that the next century will be up to posterity to endure.

Take the matter of transportation. Glancing into his crystal ball, Dr. Gernsback sees the "airmobile" as the only final answer to today's traffic problem.

Motorists will zoom through the skies in small gravity-resistant cars propelled by compressed air. Back seat drivers will be really out-of-date because—

"All-around radar will make collisions in the air almost an impossibility."

Are you worried about where you will be buried? Gernsback is. He fears the earth soon will be too crowded for cemeteries.

But he has an answer—space burials.

Coffins containing the dead will be taken to outer space by flying funeral ships. At the proper altitude the ships will discharge their cargo in a direction away from the sun. Frozen snugg in your casket, you will soar out of the pattern of the solar system—and sail on forever in space.

Gernsback sees this as the most practical way a man can "go to heaven." "Anybody want to be first? The big advantage to this plan: our relatives won't have to revisit the cemetery. They also save money on flowers. Those you can take with you will last forever—frozen as solid as you are."

Take the question of electronic brains. Gernsback doubts science will be able any time soon to come up with a machine that will actually do its own thinking.

His solution: You take a brilliant living brain, supply it with a food solution that will keep it permanently alive, then wire it to the gigantic electronic machines, and it will do the thinking for them.

These human "electronicized brains," he feels, will be able to write great books and plays, create needed new inventions—and never wear out. The task here, of course, is how to get the right brains. Gernsback feels sure, however, that some outstanding men will be glad to contribute their brains—before death—to benefit mankind. Any volunteers?

But to the ordinary mortal the most dismal innovation envisioned by Gernsback is a gadget he calls the "electronic-perceptor."

Like most people he has pondered the mystery of sex, and has decided, "Sex is a complex electrical phenomenon." Well, it certainly is complex sometimes it does produce sparks and there is no doubt it is quite a phenomenon.

Gernsback feels that as science learns more about sex it will produce the "electronic-perceptor," or sex measurer. By undergoing tests with this machine couples will supposedly be able to determine when they are "Continued on Page Twelve"

Strength for the Day

REASONS FOR OUR FAITH
Why do I believe in Jesus Christ? That is a fair question.

When anyone gets to the place where he resists the questioning of his deepest religious convictions, then fear has begun to take the place of assurance. He is no longer defending his faith but clutching at it lest it get away from him.

We might answer this question by asking three others. Who in all human history has evolved such a plan as Christ has for the development of the individual?

If anyone takes that plan as his plan of daily living and the goals of his life, he will live in peace. Again we ask ourselves the question, Who can so appeal to the universal as this Man whom we call Lord? The European and the American hear his teachings and pronounce them perfect.

The African, the Asiatic, the people who dwell in the islands of the sea hear the gospel and declare Christ must have been like them, else he could not so clearly have understood their needs. Men heard him 2000 years ago and called him King, and today men are declaring their cargo in a direction away from the nations his own.

And last of all, who has so greatly revealed God to us? How could anyone escape the conviction that Jesus Christ and God are one for their wills are one and their purposes the same. And when we ponder this, then do we thrill over the declaration that "now we are the sons of God and it doth not yet appear what we shall be."

30-Day Decision For Next World War

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower and his military advisers have framed a national defense budget and program for 1957 that contemplates a 30-day "sudden death" decision in any World War III. It is the most historic decision in this field ever made.

It represents a victory for the Air Force and Navy over Army spokesmen who insisted—and still do—that the advent of nuclear weapons has not revolutionized or outmoded more classic forms of warfare. Specifically, it is a triumph for Admiral Arthur W. Radford, the aggressive head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and General Curtis LeMay, Chief of the U.S. Strategic Air Command.

They argued at Gettysburg that the two and three-year buildup proved a decisive battlefield force in World Wars I and II is no longer possible. In their opinion, the nation which has initial superiority in air and atomic power will be able to deliver a knockout punch almost overnight. QUICK DECISION IN FUTURE WAR Although there has not been, and will not be any public announcement of the new policy, General LeMay proclaimed it in a recent interview with the editors of David Lawrence's U.S. News and World Report.

Asked if he thought that any future conflict would be "short-lived—a matter of a week or two, or a month at the outside," he replied: "I think that it is entirely possible that the decisive phase of the war will be over in a very short period of time."

"I mean that, within a short period of time, one side or the other in addition to having received a great deal of destruction, will have lost its means of defending itself against further destruction, and its means of launching destruction against the enemy."

fighting may not stop, at least not immediately, but the decision will have been reached, and it is just a matter of time to exploit what has already been done and bring the war to a close."

Not even the conclusive "exploitation" of an initial destructive attack, according to this theory, will require ground troops, or an armory of conventional weapons.

In other words, if steel plants in Pennsylvania, automobile factories in Detroit and airplane centers in California have been pulverized, millions in conventionally equipped armies in the field here and abroad could not save the United States from unconditional surrender. There would be neither the will nor the capacity to fight on.

Kinda Cool To Office Party Idea

By ELMER ROESSNER

Caterers and liquor dealers unanimously approve of office Christmas parties. Now, for the first time, the opinion of those who attend them have been examined.

They like 'em. But not very much.

A study by the National Office Management Association shows that only 40 per cent of office workers really want holiday parties. The rest just don't care for them.

Female workers are slightly more in favor of them than the males. The younger people are, the more they like festivities. Of those under 20, 82 per cent of the girls and 92 per cent of the boys favor them. And it follows, the older people are, the less interested. When men get to be 40, and women 49, the majorities are opposed to office links.

NOMA reports 6,500 responses to its questionnaire—an unusually high number of returns. It took Dr. Kinsey years to get that many answers.

BEHIND THE OPINIONS
Among the reasons given in favor of office holiday parties, with the percentage of those subscribing, were:

"Better contacts with other workers," 40.
"Better contacts with employers and supervisors," 34.
"Better morale in the office," 12.

"Opportunities to bring husbands and wives into the office picture," 4.
"Opportunities for hair-don discussion of problems," 3.
"Opportunities to meet people in other departments," 2.

There were a few franker answers, especially among women, such as, "I just like to dress up," and "I like mimosas." That last one was close, but none apparently, was honest enough to say, "I might get some invitations for dates," or "I am looking for a man."

And no man, it seems, said, "I like to see the boss make an ass of himself," or "It's an opportunity to get friendly with that new secretary."

And no one, male or female, said, "I just like free drinks." WHY SOME DON'T LIKE THEM?
Those who didn't favor parties gave their reasons, too. The answers, and the percentage of those citing them, were:

"Breaks down barriers, allows too much familiarity," 22.
"Creates unpleasant situations," 18.

"Too much alcohol," 15.
"Not in keeping with the Christmas spirit," 11.

"Husbands and wives are not permitted," 6.
"Have nothing in common with other workers or don't like social contacts with others," 6.

"Shouldn't mix business with pleasure," 5.

"Parties are just useless," 5.
"Bad time of the year to have an office party," 4.
"Too expensive," 4.

"Don't like parties at which both men and women are permitted," 3.

Judging from the last answer, every wife ought to have a staff psychiatrist. On the whole, the answers again seem to lack frankness; surely there is some little girl who doesn't like parties because old Baldy from accounts receivable always wants to kiss her after the first drink, or some woman who is just plumb tired of fighting office wolves.

Well, there's the survey. Don't wait dinner, Mom. There's a party at the office tonight!

OVER MAIN HAZARDS
"Here's a new gimmick for building attendance at conventions," the Old Promoter said on his weekly visit today. "Here's a notice from an association that all delegates to its meeting in Atlantic City in February will be covered with a $1,000 accident death policy, with $450 reimbursement for medical care."

"Sounds like a fine promotion," we said.

"Yes," the old one said, "but if they really want wives to encourage husbands to attend, they ought to broaden the policy considerably. My observation is that for every delegate who dies at a convention, thirty-three makes fools of themselves."

Guess the Old Promoter has been around.

Pulled Gun On Popcorn Eaters

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — David Gordon couldn't stand the crunching of three popcorn eaters in a Pasadena theater. In desperation, he pulled a gun on the nibblers. There was some commotion in the theater and police took Gordon to jail and revoked, at least temporarily, his permit to carry a gun. He said he didn't pull the gun until one of the men jumped him and tried to wrestle it from his holster after he asked them to put aside their popcorn so he could hear what the hero and heroine were saying. The show went right on, as if nothing had happened, and a janitor came around and swept up the littered popcorn. The Panama Canal runs north and south instead of east and west as is often popularly supposed.

Draft Objector Wins His Point, Now A Volunteer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Michigan man who won a U.S. Supreme Court decision overturning his conviction as a draft dodger has volunteered for military duty to "defend the Constitution."

Lt. Col. Arthur A. Holmes, state selective director, said today Joe V. Gonzales, 24, of Grosse Pointe Shores, volunteered for service Dec. 7.

Holmes said Gonzales refused to report for induction when he was drafted more than a year ago. He was convicted in Detroit federal court as a draft dodger.

The court, Holmes said, rejected

Gonzales' claim that he was a conscientious objector as a member of a pacifist religious group (Jehovah's Witnesses).

The Supreme Court in November 1954 reversed the conviction and ordered Gonzales' case reprocessed by selective service on the grounds that he had not been given access to a Department of Justice recommendation in his case.

Holmes said that Gonzales had reached the draft appeal board stage in his processing when he decided to volunteer for military duty.

Holmes quoted Gonzales as saying, "When the high court and officials of this land are willing to go so far to protect my rights I am willing to defend the Constitution."

He was reported to be at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

Col. Holmes said Gonzales did not abandon his religious scruples against bearing arms and that he can probably obtain noncombat duty in the Army as a conscientious objector.

Greenies Meet Vengeful Quakes In Goldsboro Tonight

Edwards, Riddick Dubious Starters; Johnson To Lead

Greenville high school's varsity cagers will don their traveling uniforms tonight to meet Goldsboro's AAA Quakes in a non-conference tilt there.

Coach Boley Farley will send the same five starters against the Blue that upset Goldsboro 53-50 in the Phantom opener. It is possible, but unlikely, that forward Ike Riddick will see limited action tonight for the first time this year on the hardwood. Riddick and 6-4 center Harold Edwards, the only two Green repeaters from last campaign's first team, suffered sprained ankles during practice early this season and have not participated in any games.

Johnson Faces Phantoms
Leading the scrappy band of newcomers to the regular varsity lineup, will be Big Billy Johnson, a 6-1 senior center. Johnson, playing his first year of full-time ball for the Phantoms, has become a most dangerous scorer. In the opener against Goldsboro last week, Johnson poured in 23 points to take high scoring honors and many deciding rebounds from his taller Quake opponents. He also captured high place last Friday with 21 tallies, when a powerful Rocky Mount crew dumped the Greenies 73-51.

Guards for Coach Farley's group tonight, will be Tommy Key Norris and Wayne Edson. Both boys are fast and good floormen. Edson is a very effective man on the foul line for Greenville.

Forward posts will be held down by Ray Hardee and Jerry Drum. Hardee, who collected 13 points in the Rocky Mount contest, has shown much improvement in the scoring department with each game and may become one of the outstanding point-getters on the squad as the season develops. Hardee is the top assist man on the aggregation, and is strong on a one-hand-push shot from beyond the circle.

Goldsboro's Fredrick Rugged
Goldsboro will be expected to roar back with a win tonight over Greenville to avenge last week's narrow defeat. Coach Hamilton's boys will be paced by rugged Larry Fredrick, a 185 pound forward. Fredrick was Goldsboro's top rebounder and scorer against the Greenies in the first game and is expected to repeat tonight.

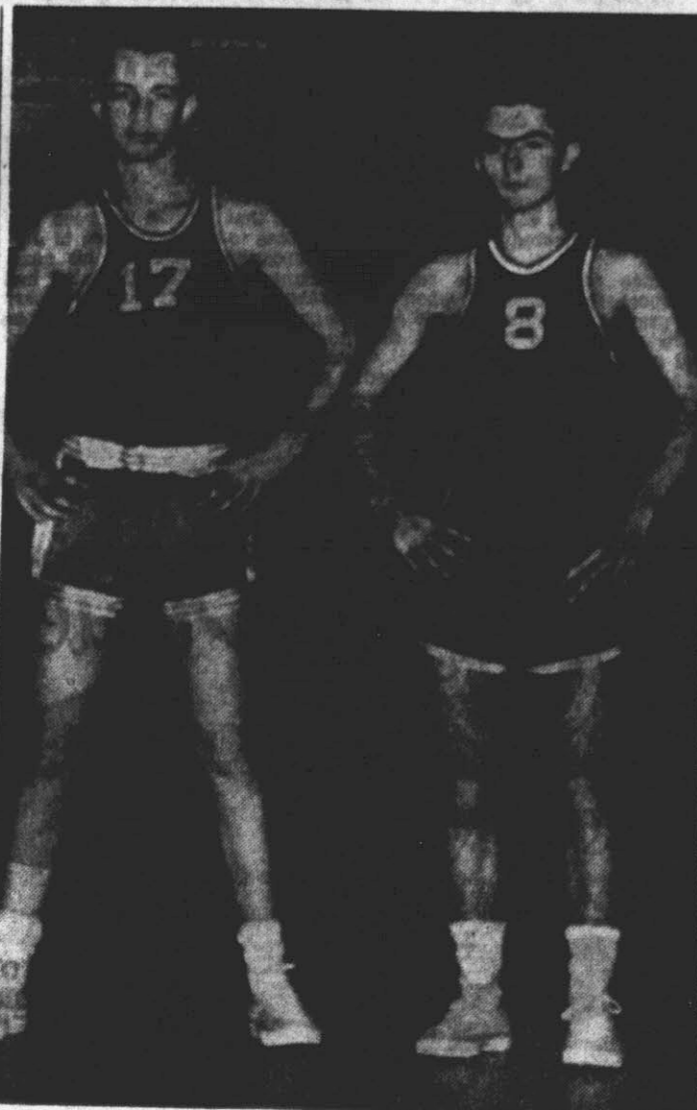

The game will get underway at 8 o'clock at the Goldsboro high school gym.

Tatum Irked Over Rumors Of Move

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Jim Tatum says he's "pretty tired" of "ridiculous" speculation that he will leave Maryland to coach football at another college or for a professional club. Tatum, who has repeatedly been rumored for the coaching spot at his alma mater, North Carolina, was reported in line earlier this week for coach of the Philadelphia Eagles. The National Football League team fired its coach, Joe Trimble, yesterday.

The Maryland coach declared he's said "100 times" that he'll be back coaching Maryland next year. "I don't remember ever saying anything else."

Tatum declared the Maryland coaching job is "one of the easiest in the United States. There is no pressure, no team we have to beat. There is an abundance of material."

GREEN LEADERS—Pacing the Greenville Phantoms tonight as they meet Goldsboro for the second time this season, will be center Billy Johnson (left) and guard Wayne Edson. Johnson is the top Green scorer.

Fight Managers In Showdown Battle

NEW YORK (AP)—Will New York be a ghost town for boxing after Jan. 15? Or will the fight managers yield to Julius Helfand, hard-listed chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission?

The showdown promises to be interesting with a strong possibility of a court battle while the International Boxing Club and the television networks fidget on the sidelines.

Helfand gave the managers who belong to the Boxing Guild of New York a "yes" or "no" choice. His nine-page decision following a seven-month inquiry, in effect, outlawed the local guild, an affiliate of the International Boxing Guild.

Although Helfand phrased it in more legal terms, his message was clear: "Give up your guild membership or lose your license."

If the 81 members of the Boxing Guild of New York refuse to turn in their cards before Jan. 15, Helfand's decision may be dead in New York. One matchmaker said last night it would be impossible to put together more than one or two cards involving fighters whose managers now are non-guild members.

This definitely will be the end of boxing in New York, said one prominent manager who didn't wish to be identified. "Helfand can't put the guild out of business. That would just turn us over to the mercy of the promoters. We fought hard to get the television money up from $212 to $4,000 and

Ted Williams Is Considering '56

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Ted Williams says the chances are good he will play baseball for the Boston Red Sox again next season.

Williams said during an interview yesterday. "If I were traded, I'd quit baseball immediately."

Regarding playing next season, Williams told reporters: "I can't say definitely yet, but I'd say the chances are good I feel good and I can't see any reason why I don't play right now."

Both Bob Porterfield and Mickey Vernon, whom the Red Sox obtained from Washington recently, will help Boston but the club needs "one more good infielder," Williams said.

"I don't think we're improved enough yet," the slugging outfielder added.

Winterville Swaps Pair With Griffon In Pitt Loop

Winterville split a double-header last night with Griffon cagers. The Winterville boys won, 53-44, but the Griffon girls racked up a 63-55 victory.

Leading the parade against the host girls, Dawn Smith collected a total of 39 points, to steal high honors from Winterville's Barbara Evans, who dumped in 34.

The Winterville boys took the second contest, 53-44, as Will Corey made 15 points and was closely followed by teammate Ralph Wingate with 14 for the winners. Lon Jackson took high honors, however, racking up 23 markers for the losers.

State Ranks Second In Cage Poll

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The University of San Francisco Dons head eastward tomorrow to face the nation's No. 1 college basketball team.

In the first regular season poll of The Associated Press, San Francisco grabbed 60 first-place ballots and on the basis of 10 for first, 9 for second, etc., rolled up 910 points.

A total of 100 sports writers and sportscasters turned in ballots, and although North Carolina State received only four firsts, the Wolfpack got heavy support to take over second place with 640 points.

San Francisco, easy winner of the poll, displaced Kentucky second in the preseason balloting. Kentucky, which was defeated by Temple Saturday 73-61, skidded from second to No. 12, while Temple moved into the No. 11 spot.

Utah, winner of two games from Arizona, moved from fifth in the preseason calculations to third place this week.

Alabama is fifth, followed by Duquesne, Dayton, Brigham Young, Vanderbilt and Holy Cross.

Pirates Take Things Easy After A Hard Weekend Of Winning Play

Chicod Girls Win Over Aurora; Boys Are Beaten

Chicod halved a double header last night with a visiting Aurora pair of teams, the hosts taking the girls' game, 73-53, and Aurora winning the boys' contest, 63-38.

Leading the Chicod girls to victory was fancy Pat Mills, who seared the nets for 33 points, to take high scoring honors for the night. O. Hollowell, of Aurora, dumped in 27 to lead her squad.

Aurora came back hard in the second game, smashing their hosts 63-38, in a lop-sided event. Lupton paced the winners with 19 markers.

Saddler Wins By TKO In Seventh

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Featherweight champion Sandy Saddler stopped Dave Gallardo in a rough nontitle fight last night. The battered Los Angeles fighter didn't come out for the seventh round of the scheduled 10.

It goes into the records as a seven round TKO.

The champion scaled 131. Gallardo 132.

The New York boxer twice decked Gallardo for eight-counts, once in the third with a left hook to the head, then in the sixth with a left hook to the body.

Gallardo carried the fight to Saddler in the first two rounds. But by the end of the sixth he was bleeding from the nose and mouth and had a cut under his right eye.

His handlers refused to let him answer the bell for the seventh. "The champion was in control from the start of the third round on. At fight's end his white trunks were badly splattered with Gallardo's blood."

It was a rough fight from the start and Referee Jack Downey cautioned both contestants on their tactics. He warned Saddler in the third for holding and hitting and cautioned both fighters in the sixth for low blows.

Some 3,000 fans paid a gross gate of $9,554. The scrap was not televised.

Only 22, Perez 'All Washed Up'

NEW YORK (AP)—There was a day when Lulu Perez dreamed of becoming featherweight champion of the world. Last night he stood in a shower with head hung low and announced his retirement from the ring.

"Everybody tells me it's time to quit," said the 22-year-old Brooklyn youngster after his 42nd fight. He had taken a bad beating from Italian Paolo Rosti, losing a unanimous decision in 10 rounds at St. Nicholas Arena.

"Everybody tells me," he continued. "What do you think? I guess it's time. I could get hurt. No use going on. Where does it lead?"

In the dressing room, his manager, Andy Grezory, was telling reporters that it was "the kid's last fight."

"He just hasn't got it anymore," said Grezory. "This is the end of the trail. I've got him under control and he'll never fight again."

Dr. Alexander Schiff of the New York State Athletic Commission seconded the motion. He said he would so recommend in his report. For a "kid" of only 22, Perez washed up as a fighter at the age of 22.

A little over a year ago, in June of 1954, he was heading for a shot at Champion Sandy Saddler, but was knocked out by Percy Bassett. Only last January he lost another elimination bout for a promised title bout, dropping a decision to Carmelo Costa.

Starting in October, Perez moved into the lightweight division, winning one, losing to Johnny Gonzales in Madison Square Garden, and now losing to Rosti, a man the commission wouldn't approve as a Dec. 23 opponent for Frankie Ryff.

Perez wasn't on the floor last night but he was rocked and hurt on three different occasions. The punches he used to duck were hitting him on the chin. The punches he used to land were cutting only the air or landing on gloves.

He weighed 133 to Rosti's 134 1-4 pounds. Two judges voted 7-3, Referee Mark Conn 8-2 and the AP the air or landing on gloves.

He weighed 133 to Rosti's 134 1-4 pounds. Two judges voted 7-3, Referee Mark Conn 8-2 and the AP also 8-2 for Rosti.

And that is the story of 1 1/2 years. Perez washed up as a fighter at the age of 22.

Traffic Regulation By School's Council

By ANNE HARRIS
BELVOIR-FALKLAND SCHOOL
 The Student Council Association of Belvoir has begun a new project, which we feel will be of real benefit to the entire school body. Their project is the regulation of traffic in the halls and auditorium. They have made rules which will be enforced by an SCA patrol composed of members of the Association. Violators of these regulations will be summoned before an SCA "court" or receive a personal reprimand from our principal, Mr. Forrest. I might add that Mr. Forrest has given one hundred per cent approval of the new project.

Since this project has begun on Tuesday, December 6, there has already been considerable improvement in the conduct of the students.

The Belvoir community welcomes a newcomer, and congratulations are in order for our principal and his wife who have become the proud parents of an 8 1/2-pound baby girl, Charlotte Ann, born Monday night, December 5. This accounts for the ear-to-ear smiles that have been on Mr. Forrest's face.

Lou Hallow, All-State football player from East Carolina, is now a practice-teacher at our school. He is teaching the freshmen health and physical education.

On Wednesday, the student body enjoyed the antics of a professional merrymaker. Wimpy, the famous English clown, visited our school with all the funny stunts a clown can do. Wit, humor, and pantomime all played their part in making this a professional program. This was a one-man circus with an A-1 priority of fun. This master showman has entertained audiences in Bombay, Calcutta, Paris, London, and other large cities of the world.

Also on Wednesday the seventh grade presented an inspiring Pearl Harbor Day program. The history of America was developed from the beginning of the 13 original colonies to the present, stressing our Four Freedoms: Freedom of Speech, Freedom of Worship, Freedom from Want and Freedom from Fear.

Juanita Jones narrated the program. Special music was rendered by Joyce Everett and Nadine Garris. After the allegiance to the flag, "God Bless America" was sung by the entire group. Nadine Garris offered prayer, blessing especially the Governor of our state and the President of the United States.

The stage was appropriately decorated. On the back drop were large letters placed alternately in red, white and blue, "America Lives On."

The seventh grade teacher, Mrs. Randolph Fleming, was the author of the program presented by her students.

On Wednesday, there will be a PTA meeting in the high school auditorium beginning at 7:30. The high school is in charge of the program "The Christmas Story" will be portrayed in tableaux and the high school glee club will provide the music. A special chorus of elementary students will also have a part in the program.

The senior class has selected its play, "Ready Made Family," and have already ordered the play books. The cast includes six girls and four boys. It will be presented January 31.

The class has taken as a project a needy family for whom to provide Christmas cheer.

The sociology class, accompanied by their teacher, Mrs. Thelma Switzer, and Mr. Forrest, climaxed a study of social problems this week with a visit to Caswell Training School in Kinston. Each student received a special benefit from observing the students and their activities in the school. Classes in handicrafts were of particular interest.

Songs, dances, and pantomime played a part in the talent show Friday. The annual event was the best ever! Highlights of the show included a "Can-Can" performed by nine young lovelies—using the term loosely.

Prizes were awarded to the following: James Simpkins for his rendition of "Nutten for Christmas"; Tommy Harris for his piano solo "Frosty, The Snowman" and "The Musicians"; a quartet of four boys who rendered two selections.

The Beta Club had its December meeting in the form of a Christmas party in the Falkland community building Thursday night. The building was beautifully decorated. Approximately 30 people attended the party which included some guests and their advisor, Mrs. Dorothy Hardy. For entertainment they had a scavenger hunt.

Upon returning from their hunt, they were served hot chocolate, nuts, and potato chips (which they really needed).

Following the refreshments they danced for awhile, and five of their new members were initiated.

Dulles Departing For Paris Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles leaves for Paris today, on his 23rd official overseas visit, to press for closer cooperation by Atlantic Pact allies to offset Russia's tougher new diplomatic policy.

Dulles is reported ready to urge new moves in pooling economic and cultural resources as well as more military cooperation by the 15 Atlantic Pact members.

Secretary of Defense Wilson and Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey also will attend the Atlantic Pact council meeting, which begins Thursday.

The principal purpose of the meeting is to provide an annual review of progress the Allies have made in building land, sea and air defenses against any surprise Soviet attack.

Dulles also plans to meet privately with British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan to review Middle Eastern problems.

Dulles was reported confident the Paris meetings would succeed in infusing a stronger spirit of cooperation among the Atlantic Pact countries.

The East-West deadlock at Geneva, he believes, will serve as new impetus for the 15 Allies to stick together, reversing what he saw as a growing trend toward isolation prior to the Geneva conference with the Russians.

Cold Trail For Omaha Police

OMAHA (AP)—Police termed the trail cold today and Detective Inspector Ernest Brown said "We're just hoping for a break" in the slaying of Omaha University coed Carolyn Nevins, 20.

Miss Nevins was shot four times at close range last Friday night or early Saturday after working late at the school library, where she had a part-time job. She was buried yesterday.

The Rev. Joe R. Kennedy, her former pastor and now of Des Moines, eulogized her as a girl whose life "was already dedicated to the Lord" through her church work.

A few hours later, police released on $100 appearance bond an ex-taxi driver picked up after he had allegedly been heard to say in a tavern "I killed that broad."

The man agreed to take a lie detector test and Capt. Alvin Clinchard said the test indicated "he was not responsible for the killing."

Police held a second man, arrested after, they said, he gave them several phony tips about hearing shots in the campus neighborhood. They planned a lie detector test for him today.

Accident Results In Dog Bites

REXBURG, Idaho (AP)—An auto accident has resulted in dog bites on the hand and leg for Mrs. Eileen Hunter.

Mrs. Hunter and her dog were riding in the back seat of a car that skidded into another at a traffic light here. The impact pinned the dog beneath the auto seat, and it bit Mrs. Hunter as she tried to calm the frightened pet.

Her injuries required medical treatment.

Fresh Blasts Of Cold Are Coming

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

December's unseasonable cold weather continued today with prospects of fresh blasts of snow and arctic air.

Blizzard conditions were in prospect for the Dakotas and parts of Minnesota.

Below-freezing weather extended southward into the central Gulf states. It was warmer this morning in some Midwest cities than in Raleigh, N. C., and Birmingham, Ala., which reported temperatures of 22 and 25 degrees.

Heavy snow fell in South Dakota during the night and strong winds caused considerable drifting. Nearly one inch of snow fell in an hour in Aberdeen, S. D.

A cold wave was forecast for North Dakota and Minnesota with subzero readings, snow and strong winds.

Severe blizzard conditions were reported over the Canadian prairies, with blowing snow in Alberta and Saskatchewan. The storm needed for Manitoba. At Saskatoon, the blizzard was described the worst in prairie history. Winds up to 70 miles an hour were reported in some areas. Temperatures ranged from zero to 10 below.

Light snow fell in the upper Mississippi Valley and parts of the eastern Great Lakes region. Showers fell in Florida and along the coast in the Pacific Northwest.

'BRIGHTEST' ABSENT

NEW YORK (AP)—A special report by Columbia College says that 200,000 of the nation's brightest high school graduates are not going to college this year.

Over 100,000 Eligible To Vote

RALEIGH (AP)—More than 100,000 North Carolina cotton growers were eligible to vote in today's referendum on whether marketing quotas shall continue in effect on the 1956 crop.

In the 1954 referendum North Carolina farmers voted in favor of cotton quotas by 64.4 per cent out of a total vote of 33,544. Gov. Hodges and virtually every farm leader in the state have urged growers to vote in favor of the quotas.

Life Of George Voskovec 'Too Incredible' For TV

By CHARLES MERCER
 NEW YORK (U.P.)—"Too incredible, couldn't use it," a television producer probably would say if a writer submitted this drama plot:
 Take an actor for the central character. Make him a Czech who was as popular in his country in the 1930s as Bob Hope is here. When the Nazis invade he knows they'll kill him because he's a caustic satirist of Hitler. He escapes to Switzerland and makes his way to the United States.
 Here he goes to work for the Office of War Information, hearing more than 2,000 anti-Nazi broadcasts to his native Czechoslovakia. He applies for American citizenship and falls in love with an American girl and marries her. After the war he returns to Prague to work in the theater there. To the Czechs he's a great hero. Days creep into weeks and weeks into months. There are numerous hearings. Eventually he learns that someone has accused him of being a Communist. He can return to Paris. But he doesn't want to return. He is not and never was a Communist. He loves America; he wants to live here; he can't believe that this can happen here.
 After 10 months of being held he is vindicated. He's freed and reunited with his wife, who has struggled to help him all this time. In the fadeout we see him as a happy, popular American actor.
 Too incredible?
 Well, it's true. The man's name is George Voskovec. Tonight the story of his 10 harrowing months on Ellis Island will be dramatized on NBC's Armstrong Circle Theatre. George Voskovec, 50, now a successful actor on Broadway and television, will play himself.
 End Advance PMs Dec. 13

than the Nazis—the Communists take over Czechoslovakia. "Again the finger is on our guy, who's still a caustic satirist of totalitarianism in all its forms. He tries to leave the country and can't. Then, by a stroke of good fortune, he arranges a job for himself in Paris working for UNESCO. Since it's a United Nations organization, the Communists don't prevent him from leaving. He and his wife fly to Paris.
 In 1950 he flies to New York to obtain his final American citizenship papers. He plans to make America his permanent home and become an actor here. When he steps off the plane in New York, an immigration official taps him on the shoulder. He's locked in a van and taken to Ellis Island.
 "What's the charge?" he asks everyone. Nobody knows. Days creep into weeks and weeks into

Yule Spirit Takes Over Ayden Students

By JEANNETTE WORTHINGTON
 Ayden High School
 The Christmas spirit prevails in every department at Ayden High. Many of the classrooms in the elementary department have already been decorating for the happiest season of all the year. Several classes have drawn names, and many students are planning the Christmas presents they will give their classmates and teachers. Some of the high school classes are making plans to take baskets to needy families instead of planning class parties.
 Goodness, what lovely sounds come from the auditorium these days! Sweet soprano notes, lovely alto notes, and soft bass and tenor notes, then beautiful harmony is heard as the junior and senior choruses put the finishing touches on the Christmas concert to be given Thursday night in the Ayden High auditorium. The program will be made up of Christmas carols, Solos, duets, and quartets will add variety to the program. Rudolph, Santa Claus, the Christmas tree, and the Twelve Days of Christmas will all be present to help entertain on this festive occasion. Everyone is invited. The concert is under the direction of Mrs. Rosa J. Little.

A quartet composed of Bonnie Rutledge, soprano; Anne Yorke, alto; Herb Little, tenor; and Tommy Edwards, bass, all AHS students, entertained at a joint Firemen-Policemen - County Commissioners banquet held in the American Legion Hut Wednesday night.
 The quartet participated in a number of novelty numbers and sang traditional Christmas songs. Anne Yorke also played "Rudolph, the Red-nosed Reindeer" on the violin. Herb Little presented a voice solo entitled, "Sixteen Tons." Bonnie Rutledge, accompanied by her mother, sang "The Sleigh."

Doctor Believes Neutral Sex Is Rapidly Growing

By ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN
 CHICAGO (U.P.)—A St. Louis physician said today he is completely convinced a third sex—the neutral gender—is rapidly increasing in numbers.
 Dr. William H. Masters said members of the third sex are "former males and females" whose sex glands fail to secrete adequate hormones during the aging process.
 Although there is marked variation among individuals, he said, some women reach the stage before they are 50 and some men, not until after 70. Women average 15 years ahead of men, he said.
 Dr. Masters said members of the neutral gender have passed the reproductive age and suffer from senile physical and mental symptoms.
 Other investigators have described them as persons developing a distinct lack of the usual characteristics of their sex. They suffer from a loss of interest in their appearance and in cleanliness.
 Dr. Masters said the injection of a combination of the male and female hormones, testosterone and estrogen, brought significant improvement among 75 per cent of a group treated.
 Dr. Masters, of the department of obstetrics and gynecology of the Washington University School of Medicine, described the therapy in a prepared paper at the annual clinical meeting of the American Academy of Obstetrics and Gynecology.
 He said a controversy exists among doctors whether the artificial administration of sex hormones is desirable as a general thing. He added, however, that the constantly increasing life span is placing more men and women into the third sex category.
 Persons treated for the condition with sex hormones generally reach a plateau of improvement, but evidence of physical and mental senility returns when treatment is stopped, he said.

All 8 Airmen In U.S. Plane Died

TETUAN, Spanish Morocco (U.P.)—Spanish border guards say all eight airmen aboard a U. S. military transport plane were killed when the craft hit a 5,000-foot peak in the rugged Rif Mountains and exploded.
 The plane was a four-engine C54 of the U. S. Air Force's 1700 Air Transport Group, based at Kelly Field, San Antonio, Tex. The transport crashed Sunday night in the Gornora district, near the border between French and Spanish Morocco.
 Flying from Wheelus Field in Tripoli to Casablanca, it was believed en route to the United States.
 Spanish authorities reported the accident to U. S. Air Force officials at Rabat, French Morocco, yesterday. The Spaniards said the eight bodies were being sent to the Sid Sillmane air base near Rabat, French Morocco.
 Spanish technicians, who examined the wreckage said the plane's altimeter must have been out of order.

Dr. Masters said members of the neutral gender have passed the reproductive age and suffer from senile physical and mental symptoms. Other investigators have described them as persons developing a distinct lack of the usual characteristics of their sex. They suffer from a loss of interest in their appearance and in cleanliness. Unusually High Yield Reported In Peanut Crop

A certified seed peanut grower, John E. Smith, of Grifton, has reported a crop which, some farm experts feel is the highest quality ever raised in North Carolina.

Smith, who planted NC 2 certified seed peanuts produced 77 per cent sound mature kernels, 48 per cent extra large, three per cent split sound mature kernels, one per cent immature kernels, 19 per cent hulls and no damage.

Smith made 115 bags that weighed 110 pounds each on eight acres and in addition harvested one ton of peanut hay per acre. About 40 per cent of his crop, however, was lost to heavy rains.

Hugh Winslow and Bill Brannan, of Greenville, Don Langston, of Winterville, and K. R. Wooten and Walter Smith also reported excellent yields of NC 2.

Winslow and Brannan obtained 74 per cent sound mature kernels with 40 per cent extra large; Langston had 75 per cent mature kernels with 43 per cent extra large; Wooten and Walter Smith reported had 76 per cent sound mature kernels with 44 per cent extra large.

A comparatively new variety, NC 2 peanuts have shown up extremely well in other field tests held elsewhere. Of the 1303 acres of peanuts certified for seed, 592 acres were grown in Pitt County—the largest total in the state.

Thirteen cases were sent up to Superior Court on appeal or request for jury trial.

Ten defendants were called and when they failed to answer bringing capias were issued to "bring them into court."

The court gave five defendants time to pay $488 in installments. The report shows that $40 was paid on previous cases in which defendants were given time to pay Disbursements for November were:

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

The scene was one of furious activity by now. More distant neighbors attracted by the blaze, climbed the hill to help. All were pitching in with a will except for the idle volunteers who stood about cracking jokes at the expense of the working company.

But still the flames ate their way upward and the sound of the roaring grew constantly louder. One could feel a pulsing of heat in the air, even at this distance. The wind blew in uncertain bursts and there were moments when it seemed that it might shift to another direction. But always it veered again to the uphill attack.

Now many of the men had stripped to the waist in the warming sun, facing the still fiercer heat of the fire as it blazed up the hill toward them. Lora could not refrain from keeping a nurse's eye out for Adam, who should certainly not be up here doing such work as this when he had been so recently ill. But she did not see him among the groups she visited.

After she had handed around her current serving of coffee she looked for him deliberately and saw that he was working alone at a distance from the others, chopping at scrubby dry brush working toward the lane of a firebreak that had been started immediately back of the servant's quarters. Lora set her tray of empty cups down and picked up the last cup of coffee she had been saving for him. Then she walked behind the buildings to the place where his axe lifted and fell against the brush. It looked as though there would be little time left before the whole fight would become a hand-to-hand matter with only wet gunny sacks and that single weak stream of water to fight the devouring fury.

Adam saw her coming and threw down his axe and drank the coffee dripping sweat from his forehead. He grinned as if he were really enjoying himself. His shirt was streaked with soil and plastered against his body, and he looked the time now to pull it off and toss it in a heap on the grass. His muscular shoulders and stocky torso shone wet in the sunlight.

"Hello, nurse," he said. "You couldn't be more welcome."

He reached for the cup she held out to him and drank the coffee in a few deep draughts. As he drank he stood with his legs braced and his hand shook a little when he gave back the cup.

"She began to feel sorry that she had summoned him to this task. 'You shouldn't be doing this,' she told him. 'Couldn't you work at something less strenuous? You're quite likely to collapse and then the others will have to stop work to come and carry you into the house.'"

"I'm not the collapsing kind," he told her, and weaved a little on his legs.

She put out a hand to steady him and he started her by catching it in his own. There was a daredevil light in his eyes. Before she could pull away he drew her into the circle of his arms and put his mouth hard upon her own. She could feel the damp warmth of his body beneath her hands, taste the salt sweat of his kiss. For a queer, heady moment her pulses quickened in response and her lips were soft beneath his own. Then she pushed away furiously, wiped her palm across her mouth.

As suddenly as he had drawn her to him, he held her at arm's length laughing down at her, recognizing fully her instant surrender.

"Your fever has returned," she cried desperately, hating the tremor in her voice. "I'll send someone here at once."

He had picked up the axe to return to his work, but now he let his hand fall and leaned on the handle. "Wait! I'm suffering from no fever. I kissed you because that was what I've long had in mind. And if you were not a rabbit-but, since you are, you'd better scurry for safety, lest I try again."

She could find no words stinging enough with which to demolish him. She picked up her skirts and fled toward the house with the hateful sound of his laughter ringing behind her.

He was a dreadful person—uncouth, unpredictable, dangerous. Her blood burned with hot anger and her hands trembled. She could only hope that no one had seen what had happened. But now the roar of the fire was frighteningly near and she put no thought of Adam out of her mind.

Tiny, fluttering tongues of the enemy advance reached to the very edge of the cleared space, like the flags of an invading army, and smoke rose blue above the spreading area of fire. Every gust of wind carried drifting wisps of ash. The defenders stood ready with wet sacking to flail at any lighting sparks and the firemen rested a moment at their pumping and held the hose ready to quell such attack as might be made on the roof or wall. If only the wind would cease its irregular blasts the stable might be saved. Long since the horses had been removed and tethered in the lower woods at John Ambrose's direction and the carriage moved to safety. But the servants' quarters were out of the stable and now they were pitching their belongings out the window or carrying them away tied in bed sheets. Now and then Lora glimpsed John Ambrose moving capably and calmly among the excited throng.

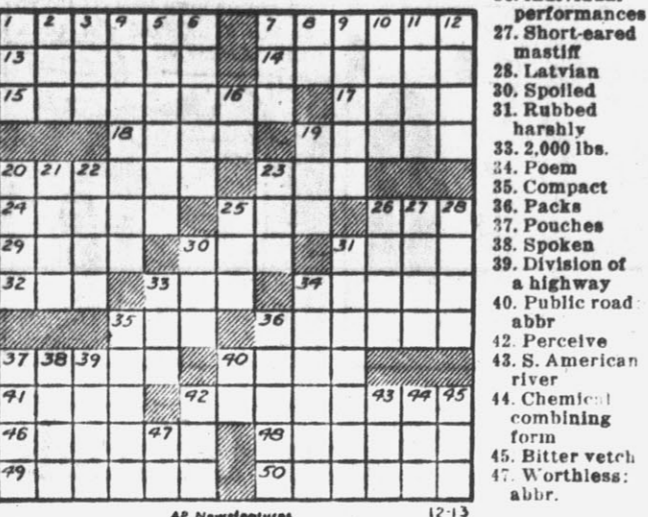

There was no time now for coffee; the real battle was about to be posed. Lora carried her tray of empty cups to the kitchen and set them down with a rattle as the disturbing memory of Adam's kiss swept back. Even more disturbing was her realization of the momentary response she had given him. She dampened her handkerchief and scrubbed her mouth free of his kiss. But there was no time to waste on personal resentments. She must find something else useful to do. Perhaps she could help remove valuables from this house, in case the danger increased.

Most Testimony Completed In Attack On Baby

Virtually all testimony had been completed at 11 a.m. today in the Superior Court case here charging Stephen Paul Ebron, 23, Negro, of 414 Bonner's Lane with attempted rape on his two and a half year old stepdaughter.

The attempt allegedly took place at Ebron's home early on the night of November 16.

A statement signed by Ebron was introduced as evidence this morning in which the defendant admitted peering in the child for the assault.

The attack on the child apparently was not completed, but Dr. E. B. Aycock testified that he examined the victim at Pitt Memorial Hospital about 11 p.m. that night and found her bleeding at two places near the genital area.

Also introduced as evidence were a bloodstained sheet, allegedly taken from the child's bed, and Ebron's underclothes, also bloodstained.

Ebron, who was not represented by counsel but testified in his own behalf, repudiated part of the signed statement when he said he remembered little or nothing of the incident. He said he signed the statement because he was "afraid" not to do so.

Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs testified that Ebron told him he had a ninth grade education and had been wounded in combat in Korea.

In other cases disposed of yesterday, Clarence Tripp, 37, of Route 3, was found not guilty of driving drunk.

William Thomas Hill, of Farmville, pled guilty to two counts of bigamy and was given a three years suspended sentence.

Julian Taylor pled guilty to assault with a deadly weapon and sentence was suspended upon payment of costs and medical expenses.

Robert Joe Carney, 18, Negro, of 1202 Davenport Street, pled guilty to breaking and entering without intent to commit a felony and was sentenced to two years on the roads.

Henry Heath, 38, of 1106 W. Third Street, paid $100 and costs for driving drunk.

Robert Moseley, of Farmville, charged with breaking and entering and larceny, received 12 months on the roads.

Burgess Lee Radford pled guilty to careless and reckless driving and paid $25 and costs.

Elizah Braxton Jr., 24, charged with discharging firearms and issuing a challenge to duel, was given one day in jail due to the fact that he had been imprisoned for 29 days while awaiting trial.

Redmond Anderson, 38, Negro, of 6615 McKinley Ave., pled guilty to assault on a female and received a six months sentence suspended on payment of $25 and costs.

Ben Long Stevenson, 43, of Route 1, Tarboro, paid $100 and costs for driving drunk.

It may well be that Gernsback is right about the bright future of the airborne, space burials, and the electronicized brain. But will any man in his right mind ever come home to a wife who keeps an "electromicro-perceptor" in the house? I doubt it.

Anyway, Dr. Gernsback has done one thing with his moody Noel forecasts. He makes simply being alive in the Christmas season of 1955 seem like a mighty fine privilege.
