City's Building Boom Tops Anything Seen Before Record Now Official

It's all official now. Greenville has seen a building boom during the year, 1955 such as the city has never experienced before. Building Inspector George Gardner's final report for the year showed that value of new construction for which permits were issued during the year totalled $2,739,800...

But the value of the new dwellings authorized during 1955 came to $2,180,800 — more than the total value of all construction during 1950. Twenty-four commercial buildings were authorized during 1955 having a total value of $550,000...

For the past ten years — 1946 through 1955 — new construction in Greenville is valued at $15,043,100. During the period 1955 new dwellings have been authorized and 247 commercial buildings have been approved for construction.

Eden Calls Cabinet To Discuss Mounting Middle East Crisis

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Eden called his Cabinet today to discuss the growing crisis in the Middle East and to consider Laborite demands for parliamentary debate on the government's policy of selling arms to Arabs and Israelis. Eden assembled his ministers after meeting Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell and turning down a Socialist request that he invite the Kremlin to help maintain peace in the explosive Middle East.

Underlining the situation facing the new Assembly, nationalist rebels captured a 13-man garrison within 20 miles of Algiers itself yesterday and killed six of the troops. A few hours earlier French armored patrol killed 16 rebels about 50 miles from the Tunisian border. During the campaign Mendes-France promised to hold free Algerian elections in six months to get things going better there. But he got no clear mandate from the voters to try.

More Years Of Shaky Coalition Gov't In Store For France

PARIS (AP)—France today looked forward to more years of shaky coalition governments as the rival moderate factions of Premier Edgar Faure and ex-Premier Pierre Mendes-France split the majority of returns from the National Assembly elections. The Communists and Pierre Poujade's tax rebels piled up unexpected gains. The Reds actually were running, slightly behind their 1951 popular vote, but the moderate split—breaking up anti-Red alliances successful in 1951—gave the Communists more seats. With returns in for 500 of the 544 seats filled in European France these were the major Assembly standings from the voting yesterday: Faure's right-center coalition—176 seats, less than expected due partly to inroads of the Poujadists. Mendes-France's leftist "Republican Front"—140, including 81 for the Socialists.

Communists — 135, already 36 more than the 99 they held in the last Assembly. Poujadists — 46, a lot more than the 4 to 8 observers had conceded them before the voting. They had jumped to prominence only last year with their leader's campaign against paying taxes. An estimated 25 million voters turned out a record for France. Faure at once called for a reunion of his forces with those of Mendes-France to rebuild the moderate coalitions which have governed France since 1947. But there was no immediate echo from Mendes-France, a close associate of Faure until they split last year. "The first results of the vote," Mendes-France said in a statement, "confirm the discredit into which the outgoing majority has fallen. With no faction anywhere near a majority of the Assembly membership, three possibilities of a coalition seemed likely:

perhaps Faure or one of his friends—perhaps Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay—might lure enough Mendes-France supporters to make up a Cabinet team. 2. Mendes-France might work the same maneuver on the Faure-Pinay forces. 3. Mendes-France might yield to Communist pressure and take them into a "popular front" Cabinet. He has said he would not seek Red support, but some of his friends thought this might become inevitable. Another way out would be for the Assembly to pass a new election law more likely to produce a clear majority and hold new elections in the near future. Much appeared to depend on events in North Africa, one of the main issues in the short but hard-fought campaign. If the revolt in Algeria gets worse, the deputies might call on Mendes-France, who they did to end the Indochinese war.

Underlining the situation facing the new Assembly, nationalist rebels captured a 13-man garrison within 20 miles of Algiers itself yesterday and killed six of the troops. A few hours earlier French armored patrol killed 16 rebels about 50 miles from the Tunisian border. During the campaign Mendes-France promised to hold free Algerian elections in six months to get things going better there. But he got no clear mandate from the voters to try. The new Assembly will total 596 members temporarily, including 50 chosen yesterday in overseas areas and two being picked later this month in the South Pacific Islands. Elections for Algeria's 30 members were postponed indefinitely because of the terrorism there, and the seat for the former French holdings in India has not been reassigned. The new Assembly will have most of the old faces, though some will be missing. Faure Pinay, Mendes-France, former Premiers Paul Reynaud, Edouard Daladier, Georges Bidault, Robert Schuman and the top Communist leaders all were elected easily. Former Socialist Paul Raimard returns to the Assembly after nearly five years' absence. Among the casualties were Pierre Billotte, defense minister in the Faure government and Diomedes Catroux, a member of Mendes-France's Cabinet. The Poujadist faction of small businessmen, making its first race on a "throw the rascals out" slogan, elected such new faces as two cafe proprietors, an upholsterer, a butcher and a traveling salesman. Foujade, a 35-year-old bookstore owner, was not a candidate himself. He stumped the country on behalf of candidates who espoused his call for tax relief for small merchants.

Look Your Best For Leap Year

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

The New Year ushers in the gay round of social events that all women enjoy. These days even the poor housewife gets a chance at some fun with the baby sitter's help.

Every woman can look pretty in her own ballroom, whether it is the country club or church social that inspires her to look chic. She doesn't need a large glamor budget. If she can't afford the beautician she can build her own charm. Do-it-yourself books are available that give expert advice on hair-cutting, pin-curling, styling. Permanent wave directions are given on kits. Books on makeup and skin care show her how to go about that important portion of her looks.

What is the glamor picture for 1956?

Top hairdressers do not even

PERFUME ATOMIZER. Good scent comes in small doses.

agree on hair style, which gives the average woman a great leeway. Long and short styles are popular. Oriental styles are too new to be sensational in a small community, but hairdressers predict that time will have hair styles going East, good news for the woman who still wears long hair or wants to wear it long. Enchanting styles may be accomplished by twisting the bun in unusual fashion and fastening it with Oriental combs. The woman bored with short hair might use a chignon to get the same effect.

Older women might remember that no matter what hair style they choose, it should go up. As the face ages it sags, and all good beauticians prefer the up-do for older women.

Eyeshadow will be more in the limelight this year for those who like it. Emphasis goes to the corner of the eyes with mascara helping to slant the eyes upward.

Mouths remain the way the Lord made them, except if one wants an Oriental lip style, and then the center of the upper lip is filled in with little dip.

Skin is supposed to be "porcelain" or "Dresden" with every woman looking cameo-beautiful.

Perfume is no longer only for the well-heeled. Expensive brands now are available in drug size. One new perfume atomizer designed in France offers a special perfume for purse carrying with a leak-proof atomizer to guarantee that every drop may be used.

Wherever you look women are more charm conscious. It is good to know that if one can't afford outside help, a little patience at the vanity table can achieve very professional results.

Joint Hostesses Honor Mrs. Reis

GRIPTON—Mrs. Norman Reis was the inspiration for a lovely party on a recent evening given by Mesdames R. L. Denton, George Lehman and Kenneth Waltenbaugh at the home of Mrs. Denton on Patrick Street. The home throughout was beautifully decorated with the traditional Christmas tree, greenery, berries and the tables were covered with red cloths and held in the center multicolored candles which were lighted at the refreshment hour. A dessert with coffee was served on arrival of the guests and later in the evening punch and salted nuts were enjoyed.

Bridge was played at three tables with the highest score compiled by Mrs. Doug Boone. The consolation went to Mrs. Tony Harris. Mrs. Reis was remembered with a brass vase paper basket from her hostesses.

Other guests were Mrs. Larry Posey, Mrs. Bill East, Mrs. Walt Hanson, Mrs. Stan Gamble, Mrs. R. L. Miller, Mrs. Harold Burkley and Mrs. Ed Miles of Ayden.

BSU Students Publish Paper At East Carolina

Members of the Baptist Student Union at East Carolina College are issuing during the present school year a monthly newspaper "The Key," which is edited mimeographed, and distributed by members of the organization. The publication is the first venture of the kind for members of the denominational group.

Joyce Smith of Selma is editor of "The Key." A junior at the college, Miss Smith is also serving this year with James Ferrell of Lucca as head of the editorial staff of the "East Carolinian," weekly campus newspaper.

Other members of the staff of "The Key" include Sarah Polunovich of Greenville, circulation manager; M. Har' King of Henderson, Anne Michael King of Henderson, Anne Ballance of Fremont, and Joel Farrar of Gastonia who are in charge of typing and mimeographing the newspaper; and Martha Wilson of Winston-Salem, Barbara Cole of Chapel Hill, Janet Wall of Smithfield, Purvis Boyette of Raleigh, and Gilliam Underwood of Clayton, members of the editorial staff. Gloria H. Stanton, Baptist student secretary, is advisor to the students.

Gold-Plated Gown Started To Melt

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Singer Dinah Shore almost lost her $1,000 gold plated dress during yesterday's Tournament of Roses parade.

As she was taking her place on a float, there was a heater to keep her feet warm before the parade began.

An astonished spectator noticed peculiar things began to happen to the dress. Before the heater could be grabbed away, Dinah had lost nearly two inches of gold from the bottom of the full-length gown.

Humiliation In Form Of Lipstick For Boys

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—It was downright humiliating, partner, what a couple of frontiersmen had to go through to be in the Tournament of Roses parade.

Jimmy Meyers, 8, and Bruce, 6, both of Fresno, Calif., were dressed in the manner of early American explorers. Both laughed as their mother applied make-up to the gal members of the float cast.

They quit laughing, abruptly when Mrs. Meyers beckoned to them. For under the gaze of spectators they had to submit to an application of lipstick.

Boy Scout Training Saved Four Lives

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)—When four fellow skaters plunged through the ice on a farm pond yesterday, 11-year-old Sonny Golden knew what to do.

He obtained a rope and ladder from some men nearby and while adults watched from the sidelines, ran back onto the ice, and helped the skaters out one by one.

Highway patrolmen said only someone as light as 80-pound Sonny could have ventured onto the thin ice.

Said Sonny: "It was my Boy Scout training that did it."

Hague Followers Rally For Funeral

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (AP)—Scores of former followers will pay final respects to Frank Hague, onetime political overlord, as his body goes on public view today.

Messages of sympathy poured in from friends and even former political enemies of the colorful Democrat, who died in New York New Year's Day at the age of 81.

Hague, considered the last of the nation's old-time political bosses, had been ill for several months. His body was returned here from his Park Avenue apartment.

The mayor of Jersey City for eight successive terms, Hague's political influence was felt in the nation's capital. His body will lie in state today and tomorrow at a funeral home here.

Funeral services will be held Thursday.

Sheppard-Perry Speak Yule Vows

WASHINGTON—The marriage of Miss Ernestine Perry and Ellis Sheppard took place in a four-o'clock ceremony Christmas afternoon in the First Christian Church. The single ring vows were pledged before the Rev. Raymond Alexander.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Floyd Perry Sr. and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Millard Sheppard, both of this city.

Prior to and during the ceremony a program of beautiful nuptial music was played by Mrs. Alton Weatherly, organist, who used the traditional Wagner and Mendelssohn Wedding Marches as the processional and recessional, and played Schubert's "Serenade" softly while the vows were exchanged.

Mrs. Audrey Hardison was soloist and her selections were "O Perfect Love," Dunlap, and "The Wedding Prayer," Barnby.

For the marriage ceremony the altar was arranged with bouquets of white carnations, flanking the large central brass cross and white altar candles. Elsewhere in the church were effective Christmas decorations used during the season. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a navy blue wool suit marked by white accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Evans of Greenville was only attendant. Mrs. Evans wore a navy blue suit with white accessories and her corsage was of white carnations.

'Landscaping' Topic Of Aries Club At January Meeting Here

The Aries Book Club met on Thursday night with Mrs. J. O. Derrick, Mrs. Marshall Starkey, president, welcomed the following guests: Mrs. James Finkbeiner, Mrs. Phillip Great, Mrs. Charles Risher, Mrs. Roy Martin and Mrs. N. M. Jorgensen.

Mrs. Annie Lee Hardee presented a most interesting paper, "Planning for Year-Round Beauty," which had been prepared by Mrs. Henry L. Rivers, who is an authority on the subject. She stated that the fundamental tenets of landscaping can be applied to land of any size, enhancing the pleasing views one wishes to keep, and concealing the less pleasing views. Mrs. Hardee had a basket filled with prunings from various types of evergreens, which she identified and made suggestions for their use in home decorations during the winter months. The program was both informative and interesting.

Quadruplet Boys For Pennsylvania Family

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—Mrs. Norman C. Hohenwarter, 25-year-old wife of a 95-a-week postal clerk, gave birth yesterday to quadruplet boys. They were reported in "fair" condition early today.

The four babies, born about four weeks prematurely, arrived at Lancaster General Hospital. They were named Norman Charles Carl Conrad, John Phillip and Mark Anthony.

The births gave the father, 25, more than half the football team he says he planned to raise. "It looks like it's well on the way," he grinned.

The Hohenwarters who had expected twins, have two other sons, Stephen, 6, and Donald, 3.

Many Parties Held To Greet New Year

By ROSEMARY EAGLES
 Greenville High School
 Loud noisemakers, crazy hats, lists of resolutions, and shouts of "Happy New Year!" were evidence that the old year was giving into the new Saturday night. There were many parties and a late show in order to start the new year off with a bang.

Susie Pope entertained at a buffet supper at her home early Saturday evening. The hungry girls were Lois Simmons, Margaret Moyer, Olive Morrill, Betsy Karsnak, Sylvia Bonner, Lois Davenport, Sarah Ewell, Sylvia Satterthwaite, Sally Beard, and Terry Tripp.

Later that evening the girls went over to Lois Simmons' home to celebrate the incoming new year. They were joined by Bob Thompson, Billy Johnson, James Hudson, Billy Davenport, Mike Riddick, Maurice Cutler, Don Conley, Ike Riddick, Tom Morris, Charles Smith, Carolyn Evans and Ronnie Morton.

ROSEMARY
 At midnight, in spite of the ringing of noisemakers and shouting, the group enjoyed sandwiches, hot chocolate, candies, chips and nuts.

In the wee hours of the morning the party broke up. The girls went to Margaret Moyer's home in Brookgreen for a slumber party. As usual, however, most of the slumbering was postponed until Sunday afternoon.

Jane Perkins had about 30 people over at her home New Year's Eve. The crowd had fun dancing and listening to the Dixie Classic. A few who went were Ruth Young, Kelly Barnhill, Ann Moore, Ray Hardee, Mary French Hawes, Jimmy Long, Kathryn Oakes, Ralph Johnson, Betty Lane Evans and Lawrence Perkins.

Among those sitting around the television set were Martha Lee Moyer, Lillian Moyer, Judy Jolly, John Ed Arnold, Dick Evans, Margaret Ruffin, Bobby Edwards and, of course, Jane!

Ann Hamric invited several friends to her home Saturday night for a

'Forget Me' Says Killer To Wife

CLEVELAND (AP)—The wife of Navy Yeoman William Miller, 24, visited him yesterday in jail where he is held in the fatal beating of a girl with whom he celebrated New Year's Eve. The visit ended with his wife in tears.

"Forget about me," reporters heard Miller say to pretty 22-year-old Louise Miller of Huntington, W. Va., mother of his year-old daughter and expecting another child in July.

"I can't," sobbed his wife. "I've got to do something if only to protect the names of our babies. Now you know why I'm here. When they grow up people are going to talk about them."

Mrs. Miller suggested that her husband, whose naval career included several weeks in a psychiatric ward, plead insanity.

Miller was not immediately charged.

The yeoman told police he picked up Miss Carol Martin, 21, in a bar here New Year's Eve and later beat her when she refused to submit to his advances. Her body, stripped of clothing, was found Sunday on the ground of an East Side ball park.

It was unidentified until yesterday when her sister read her description in a newspaper. Miller, after an evening of drinking and dancing with the victim, didn't know her name.

To Preach

Rev. R. C. Horrell, pastor of St. Paul's Pentecostal Holiness Church, has announced that a series of evangelistic meetings will be held at the church each night through January 15.

The church is on the Greenville-Washington highway, just beyond the State Highway Patrol building.

Rev. R. L. Horton (above), of Portsmouth, Va., will do the preaching each night at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Horton, the evangelist's wife will conduct a "youth meeting" each night from 7:30 to 8 o'clock.

Rev. Mr. Horton is general evangelist for the North Carolina Conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Church in southeastern states.

The choir will render special programs of Gospel songs at the services.

Young Hoods Are Held For Slaying

BALTIMORE (AP)—Two youths faced murder charges today in the knife slaying of a 19-year-old Western Maryland College honor student who planned to become a Methodist minister.

The two, Richard P. Westcott, 16, and Charles Orem, 17, a store clerk, were scheduled to be arraigned today.

Both affect the extreme style of dress and long hair worn by youths who call themselves "drapes."

The victim was Gailher Lee Fischbach Jr., a college freshman here for the holidays. He was attending Western Maryland on a scholarship.

The youth was stabbed to death early Sunday near his home. He had been attending a family "New Year's Eve party at the home of Lemuel S. Eichner.

Eichner, who drove Fischbach home and let him off about 20 feet from his house, told police he saw three boys on the corner who appeared to go in different directions as the youth got out of the car.

The boy's mother Mrs. Rheba Fischbach heard her son calling after he stumbled inside the house. She found him bleeding from a deep chest wound. He died shortly afterward.

"A boy stabbed me," he told his mother before he lost consciousness.

"Why did they do it?" asked his father, who said he did not want his son's killer to hang.

"I don't believe in capital punishment," he said.

Orem was arrested yesterday afternoon at his home, and Westcott was arrested at Southwestern Police Station, where he went to inquire about Orem.

Airmen Describe Blizzard Survival

KEMMERER, Wyo. (AP)—Two airmen today told how they survived two days in a blizzard raging over the rugged mountains of western Wyoming where they crash-landed their light plane.

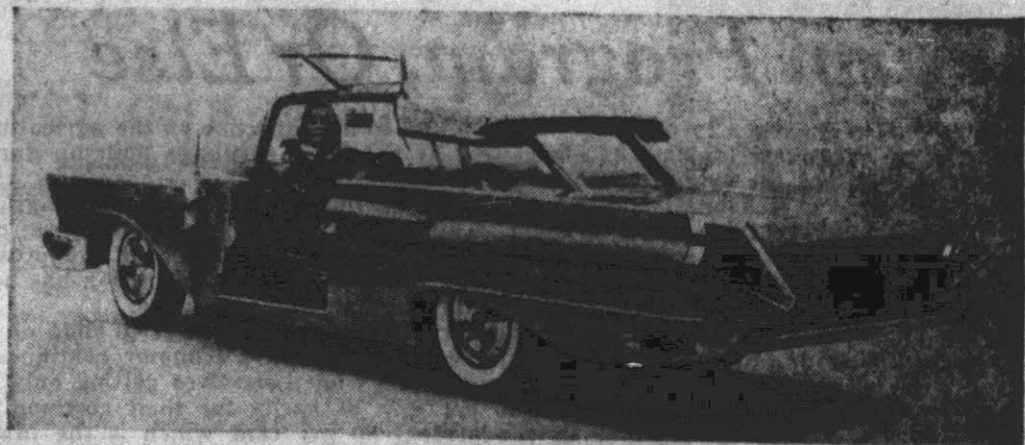

"All I can say is that we were awfully lucky. We're both alive and I guess that's what counts," said the pilot, A. C. Kenneth Kiefer, 27, of Fort Collins, Colo. His passenger was A. C. Delbert Fluty, 32, of Evanston, Ind.

Kiefer said he and Fluty huddled in a snow shelter they built and later located a deserted summer ranch cabin.

They stayed there two days, eating a hardtack made of flour, sugar, salt and oatmeal, and a rabbit Fluty caught with his hands. They doused a haystack with kerosene and lighted a signal fire, but it was not seen.

Finally, after the storm abated yesterday, they set out with a sled made from one of the plane's wings and heard a dog barking in the distance. They headed that way and met a rancher who drove them here. Neither was injured.

They had taken off in Kiefer's

Reds Doing Wrong Things To Make America Relax

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Russians are doing the wrong things if they want the American government to reduce its spending, particularly military spending, in the belief that it will bring on a depression here.

They're reported to be thinking that way but—

They won't agree on disarmament and they talk of developing an intercontinental guided missile. So the United States will step up defenses. The Russians promise economic aid to Asia. The United States will boost its foreign aid.

This isn't the first time the Russians go the opposite of what they may have hoped for. The classic example was in 1950 when Stalin let the North Koreans attack South Korea.

Early that year the Truman administration bent on economy, wanted to cut military spending.

The then secretary of defense, Louis Johnson, said he would ask Congress for only 13 1/2 billion dollars.

The Korean War began, the United States jumped in, American military spending shot up, defense plants have done a land-of-fence business and American prosperity has reached a peak.

This is the total of American military spending since and including 1950: $224,197,000,000. The Eisenhower administration gradually has been cutting down on it.

The Defense Department estimates that in the present fiscal year, ending next June 30, it will spend about 34 1/2 billion dollars. But now Secretary of Defense Wilson figures spending will hit 35 1/2 cause of higher costs.

The United States can't afford to lag behind the Russians, who talk disarmament but are armed to the teeth. And probably this government heard the Soviets are working hard on guided missiles.

Premier Bulganin said as much as one billion dollars would go next year into developing missiles. The United States is spending 750 million on them now.

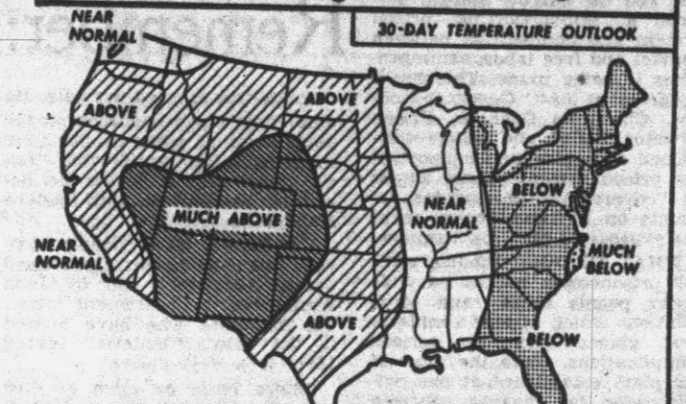

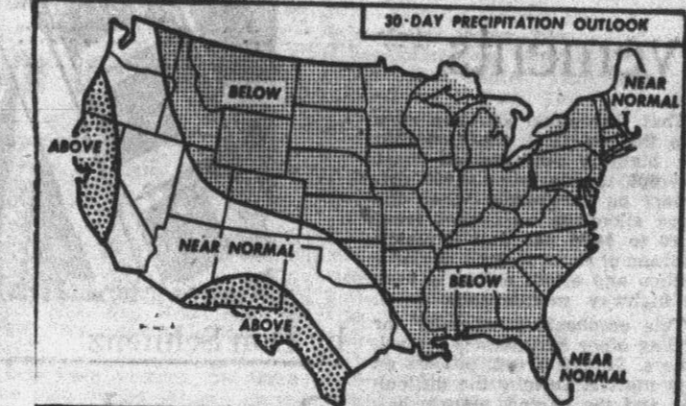

After Bulganin and Communist party chief Khrushchev made their trip to Asia with promises of economic help, Secretary of State Dulles said foreign aid spending by this country would go up from $4,200,000,000 this year to $4,400,000,000 next year.

This news broke at a time when many members of Congress wanted spending reduced. This is an election year and if they could economize they might be able to put through a tax cut. But they have read about the Russians' plans.

They come back to work today, no doubt, with some change of mind. Sen. Wiley of Wisconsin, No. 1 Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said over the weekend:

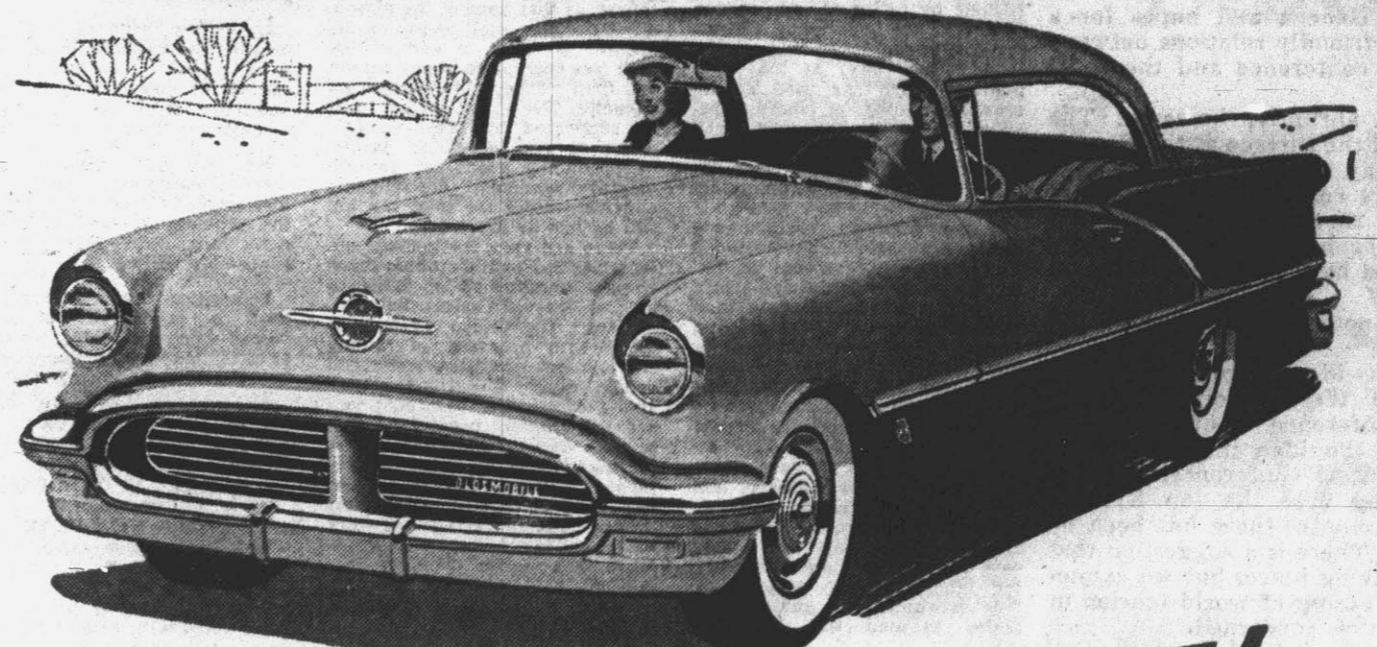

The Bulganin-Khrushchev performance will spur a strengthening of "our over-all military-diplomatic position. . . I do believe there is no reason whatsoever for diminishing our vigilance or preparedness."

A Positive Farm Program, Or Else

People from the agricultural regions of the country have been pointing out for a long time that some definite positive measures must be made to bolster the faltering position of agriculture. Unless something is done, farmers throughout the nation will face a severe crisis. Indeed they are already facing a crisis.

Although appeals for a progressive farm program have fallen on deaf ears, or brought forth only empty promises, perhaps the latest figures on the position of agriculture in the nation's economy will shock the powers that be into action.

Latest government figures for the month which ended December 15 show that prices realized by farmers for their crops and livestock have dropped seven per cent below a year ago and now rest at 80 per cent of parity or the lowest point since 1940.

The farmer's relative position in the national economy has been slipping steadily for the past several years. It began slipping while the Democrats held sway in Washington, and it has continued to slip under the Republican administration. From all sides the GOP administration has been criticized for its lack of a positive, progressive farm policy in keeping with the needs of the country's agricultural interests. The Republicans, in response, have asserted their inability to hold the line on the agricultural markets is caused by the large surpluses built up during the Democratic administration.

From the trend of the relative position of agriculture, however, it appears to us that neither the farm program under the Truman administration nor the present farm program of the Republican administration has been adequate in the face of changing conditions.

If the agricultural economy continues to slide downward while the rest of the nation's economy continues to rise, farmers might well find themselves getting only 75, 70 or even 60 per cent of parity for their commodities instead of the present 80 per cent which is the lowest point in a decade and a half.

It is important too that the people of the nation not directly connected with agriculture realize that the condition of the farmers of the nation has a very real effect upon the whole economy of the country. In the closely knit economy of modern times, the weakening or collapse of one segment sooner or later cause a disastrous effect upon the economy as a whole. Surely we have not so soon forgotten the bitter lessons of the last depression.

In the interest of not only the farmers, but the nation as a whole, it is imperative that a positive, adequate federal program be adopted to bolster the sagging agriculture which in itself is a key part of the nation's economy.

Pitt's Traffic Record Is Off To A Clean Start

Pitt County hasn't had a single highway fatality recorded in 1956.

Remarkable? Well, considering the new year is almost 72 hours old now, and considering the terrible highway record the county wound up with in 1955, we'd say the motorists in Pitt are doing pretty well. The question is how long will it last?

In spite of the fact that Pitt County equalled its record of 18 highway fatalities in 1955, there were more safe-driving days in Pitt—days in which there were no injuries or fatalities—than there were days when death or injuries stalked the highways. That fact alone backs up the theory that when the proper precautions are taken, accidents and abiding by the common rules of highway safety, accidents are kept at a minimum.

The number of motor vehicles being registered in Pitt County every year is increasing as are the number of miles traveled within the county. Percentage-wise, it is necessary for drivers to maintain a greater degree of caution if the rate of accidents, injuries and fatalities is to be decreased, or even kept at the present figures. If there is any one thing Pitt needs in 1956, it is a safe driving year. Perhaps the tragic experience the county had in highway accidents in 1955 will cause a greater degree of safety on the part of drivers during the new year. Perhaps the number of fatalities in 1956 will be kept to less than half the number last year as the case of the comparative figures for 1953 and 1954.

With a little extra effort on the part of many thousand drivers in Pitt County, 1956 could be a year in which the county establishes a comparatively good highway safety record. We hope so.

Another Summit Meet Now Sounds Futile

The Soviet Premier's suggestion that another conference of chief executives of the big powers "can be fruitful" leaves us cold.

Last summer when the conference at the summit was held at Geneva there were high hopes that lasting accomplishments had been realized at the meeting of leaders of East and West. The conference was held in an atmosphere of cordiality between the Russians and Western leaders. There followed flowing reports of the good will which had been generated at Geneva and hopes for a better understanding and more friendly relations between East and West because of the conference and the spirit of Geneva which resulted.

The bubble burst rather abruptly, however. The warmth which at least covered the surface at the Geneva summit conference had given way to coolness by the time the subsequent foreign ministers conference was held at the same site. Since that time, there has been every indication that the freezers had been turned on again and that East and West were headed back to the zero climate of the cold war.

Now Bulganin calls for another conference at the summit. Why?

If the Soviet leaders had any idea of creating a better relationship between East and West, surely the warm handshakes at the summit conference would not have given way so quickly to the cold shoulders that were much in evidence at the foreign ministers conference. What is to be gained by again meeting with the top Kremlin leaders? Surely in a few short months there has been no change of heart in the Kremlin. There is a suggestion that some tactical change may be taking place, but we cannot see what it offers so far as the easing of world tension or making a more substantial peace is concerned.

If the Kremlin lords are sincere in their expression to reach a better understanding with the free nations of the world, perhaps the place to begin again with conferences is on the foreign ministers level. If something worthwhile in the way of progress develops at that level, then there may be some justification for another summit conference. But not until.

Optimistic As To Road Achievements

By LYNN NISBET

HIGHWAYS—Chairman Sandy Graham of the highway commission is right to be optimistic about achievements in road building this year and is optimistic about prospects for 1956. Since last January 1 construction contracts have been let aggregating $61 million—an all time record for primary highway construction. The State has available about $11 million in Federal funds, and when matched on equal basis will amount to $22 million for new construction, which it is hoped to get under contract before July 1.

Weather conditions throughout the year have been favorable for new construction, but there have been severe headwinds in the maintenance program. Alternate freeze and thaw in the mountain last winter and early spring, and havoc of hurricanes and high water in the east during the late summer, have imposed abnormal burden on the maintenance section.

MAINTENANCE—Maintenance allocations have not been exhausted anywhere, but the unusual demands because of freeze and storms has made it necessary for several of the divisions to spend maintenance money faster than they can receive. Favorable weather for the next six months will enable these divisions to get by with minor transfers from other accounts. Unusual damage may require spending so much for maintenance that larger sums still have to be diverted from original purposes.

Several factors other than weather damage have contributed to the prospective shortage of adequate maintenance funds. By no means the least of these is the situation with respect to the prison system.

Prisoners—A major part of the highway maintenance work is done by prisoners. During the past year the bookkeeping allocation for prison labor was raised to $4.50 per day. At that rate highway work has used an increasing number of laborers because prison population has been near if not above the previous all time record of approximately 10,400.

If the highway maintenance folks could select the workmen they want and can use to full advantage they could well afford to pay much higher rate than $4.50 per day. Under the existing system there is very little other work available for prisoners. And experience has proven that idle prisoners are trouble-makers.

Highway maintenance seeks to use 6,000 to 7,000 of the prisoners, in order to keep them busy when a force of 3,000 or less with modern machinery would do much more efficient job. Some highway folks say they could save money by eliminating prison labor entirely and hiring free workmen at going wage scales to man the machines.

That theoretical situation runs into the practical condition that the highway commission must attempt to use some 6,000 prisoners on the roads. When the wage allocation was upped from $3.60 to $4.50 per day it meant addition of about $5,000 a day or a million and a half dollars a year to highway maintenance costs.

This emphasizes necessity for finding other occupations for prisoners. Studies are in process on that matter. Despite the difficulties and the narrow margin between a self-supporting prison system and competition between convict and free labor, some progress is being made. This much progress, at least: Governor Hodges, Chairman Graham, Prison Director Bailey and others concerned recognize that support of the prison system can no longer be "covered up" in juggling accounts on highway books or at the expense of road maintenance.

WHAT TO DO—Finding work for prisoners is not as easy as many people think, and some solutions which appear simple at first glance turn up serious complications. Take the case of the plant established at one prison camp for making concrete drainage pipes for sale use of the highway commission. Some of the prisoner experts were released and it looked like nobody in the camp could carry on the work, so one or two outsiders were hired, as soon as the top administration found out about that they were ousted.

The ban against outside employees does not extend to supervisory and training duties. But state policy is at no common labor will be hired from outside just to utilize equipment set up inside the prison. Material—whether that material be printing, concrete pipe, overall or shoes. A further condition, of course, is that none of the prisoners produce shall be put on the market. The prison system, with free enterprise to any person or firm except tax-supported agencies. The prison system must be supported by taxes and if prisoners can ease the burden of the state by producing material—whether that material be printing, concrete pipe, overall or shoes. A further condition, of course, is that none of the prisoners produce shall be put on the market.

There are very few private enterprises in North Carolina which employ as many as ten thousand people. They can select their own employees. The prison system is faced with necessity of finding employment for ten thousand people which it did not select, and a substantial part of whom are not entirely normal or reasonably employable. For 25 years the highway commission has absorbed most of this load. The saturation point has been reached in this field. Other types of work must be found or the people must face up to the fact that millions of dollars of highway revenue is being "diverted" to maintain the prisons.

Other Editors Are Saying... Remember - - Not Long Ago?

REMEMBER WHEN—NOT LONG AGO? (Henderson Dispatch)

Everywhere there was an abundance for those who were shopping for holiday gifts and other merchandise. It was not at all that business was slack in any lines but rather that the American productive machine has demonstrated in more convincing manner than ever before that it is capable of turning out everything the people need and want.

Remember when, not long ago, it was all so different? That was during and immediately after the war. There was great scarcity in many commodities. Often the shopper was greeted with the disheartening, but frequent, reply that we just don't have it and can't get it. That wasn't an indication of sloppy or inefficient merchandising. Actually in many instances, they really didn't have it and couldn't get it. Remember the frequent answer "don't you know there is a war on?"

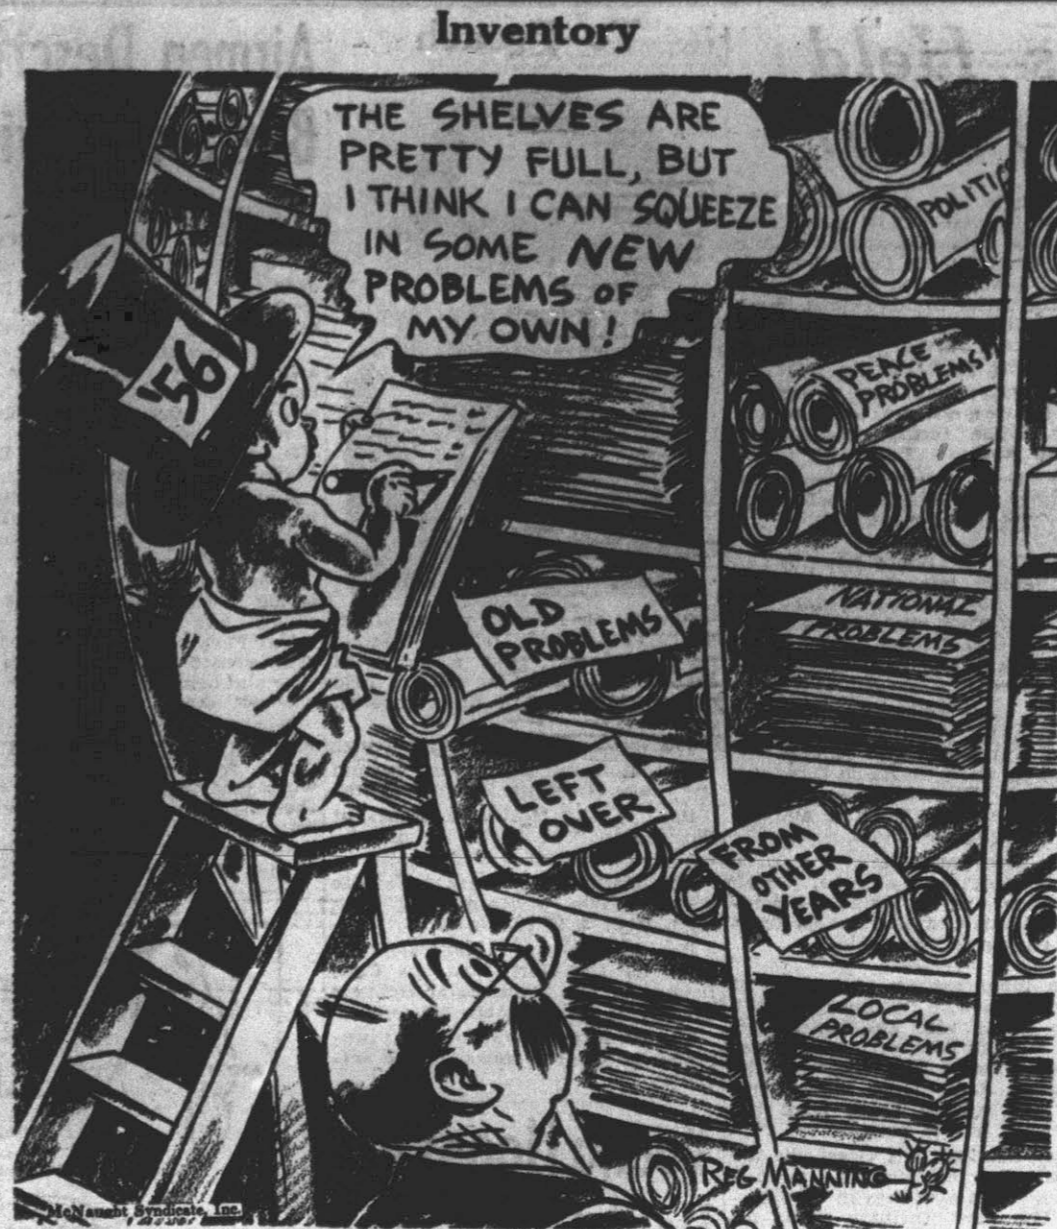

That isn't true any longer. Take candy, for instance. Everybody who at Christmas wanted a pound or two-pound box of almost any brand could get it. And merchants had any quantity desired. What's more, they had plenty of it left over, and supplies are still lavish. Again, it isn't that there is less demand, but that there is so much available.

The same goes for numerous other items of merchandise. Rarely was the customer turned away during the recent Christmas shopping season because an item was not in stock. It was there, and it was ready because of the booming American economy. Production is at peak levels and more money is in hand with which to buy what is wanted. Verily this is a land of plenty. It's a nation with the highest standard of living anywhere in the world—now or ever before. God has been good, exceedingly good beyond our merit. Every day is the purer time for thanking Him. For these things are not of our own creative genius, save that the Almighty has endowed us with such capacity.

This does not mean that every single individual has an abundance. There are those who are lacking. There always have been and always will be that element, no matter to what peaks the economy may rise. Only in a strict socialist state is there anything resembling universal equality. The last is true even in communist states.

The lesson to be learned from this status is that while there should ever be the purpose of assisting those who have not, the fact always exists that you cannot improve society by alone pulling down the fellows at the top, but instead by trying to lift up those who are a little lower, or at the bottom. That is miles from socialism. It is what in this land of the free we recognize as democracy.

by Don Schlienzy

Remember: 'Good Old Days'

Something crossed my path the other day which underscored the point a lot of other people have made from time to time: the "good old days" left a lot to be desired in comparison with modern standards.

I'm sure a lot of people have read this little directive published nearly a century ago by John Wanamaker's department store; but for those who have missed it, the firm's "bulletin" (dated 1861) is a neye-opener:

"Store must be open at 8:00 a.m. and remain open until 9:00 p.m.

"The store must be swept, counters, base shelves and show cases dusted. Lamps trimmed, filled and chimney cleaned pens made, doors and windows opened, a pail of water and a scuttle of coal must be brought in by each clerk before breakfast, if there is time to do so, and attend to customers who call.

"Store must not be open on the Sabbath Day unless absolutely necessary, and then only for a few minutes. Any employee who is in the habit of smoking Spanish cigars, getting shaved at the barber shop, going to dances and other places of amusement, will most surely give his employer reasons to be suspicious of his integrity and all-round honesty.

"Each employee must not play less than $5.00 per year to the church, and must attend Sunday School every Sunday.

"Men employees are given an evening a week for courting purposes, and two if they go to prayer meeting regularly.

"After 14 hours of work in the store, the leisure time must be spent in reading good literature.

The foregoing is no joke. It was not at all unusual for merchants of that time to assume many responsibilities concerning the private lives of their employees; and when one spoke of putting in "a good day's work," they meant that almost literally.

Nostalgia is a common affliction which bestrides us all in recessive moments, abetted by a most wonderful lapse of memory when unpleasant aspects are involved.

Notebook On Life

Cronkite And The TV News

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—What's wrong with television news programs?

In the few years since TV first invaded the nation's living rooms it has made it possible for anyone to sit comfortably at home and learn the proper way to bake a cake or hold up a bank.

But within the industry itself there remains a troubled feeling that television hasn't yet wipped the problem of how to present news effectively. Many viewers share this feeling.

Sometimes they feel a bit lost in the crack of doom-voiced announcer who makes a $2,000 holdup sound like a threat to international peace and the cozy Aunt Martha-type announcer who sees a silver lining in every hurricane.

But one of the veterans in the field, Walter Cronkite, foresees an improvement.

Cronkite, narrator of the CBS network show, "You Are There," first won acclaim for his coverage.

"The big problem in our news shows has been the adjustment between solid news and entertainment," he said. "Sometimes we have tried too hard to hold the attention of people with entertainment gimmicks instead of real information.

"Television is a miraculous medium for transmitting news, but we're still in the Middle Ages in terms of technique of presentation."

Cronkite also believes further spread of the coaxial cable will speed the creation of a nationwide series of TV bureaus which can flash more spot local news features on network shows.

Something is needed to simplify TV news programs, which today are a form of organized chaos. It requires 27 men to put on Cronkite's 15-minute show, not to mention the dozens of messengers and laboratory technicians.

Cronkite is what is known as the trade as a "solid" news man. He believes strongly the TV audience prefers to be shown serious news rather than entertaining sideshow features.

Before going before the camera himself he worked on a newspaper and spent 11 years with a press agency, including two years in Moscow. As a war correspondent he covered the Normandy invasion, jumped into Holland with U.S. paratroopers.

Want to be a television news analyst yourself? Here's Cronkite's advice:

"Don't worry about developing a golden voice. The voice isn't that important. Personality is important, but how can you measure that?

"The most important thing is to get a real background in news, preferably on a press association. And you should have a real love for the product itself—news—and the desire to tell people what is really happening."

Basis For Demo Anti-Trust Charges

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Extreme partiality toward major railroads and air lines will form the basis of many anti-trust charges against the Administration by Democrats during the current session of Congress. It will be a key part of their general strategy to depict the Republican regime as neglecting "the little fellows" in favor of "Big Business" interests.

The principal targets are the Interstate Commerce Commission which regulates railroads, motor carriers and other forms of vital transportation and Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks. Besides influencing railroad policy, Weeks exercises considerable authority over the airways. He has been accused of consistently favoring the "big fellows," sometimes contrary to President Eisenhower's expressed philosophy.

In fact, there have been suggestions in high circles, and among GOP political strategists that Eisenhower "unload" Weeks before the Democrats leap on him in next fall's campaign. MEANS TO COUNTERATTACK Ike has other means of countering this Capitol Hill attack, and of weakening the force of the "Big Business" indictment. If his health permits him to give close attention to details, it is expected that he may do so.

In three years, he has been able to remake the ICC so that nine of the 11-member agency are his appointees, and there will be 10 of his men on it within a year. He can, if he wishes, use his influence to change its attitude, which has been denounced by small lines, truckers, shippers and farmers as "too pro-railroad."

AVIATION PROBLEMS Ike can also favor current Congressional proposals to remove the Civil Aeronautics Administration from Weeks' jurisdiction. Although the Civil Aeronautics Board fixes general aviation policy and is an independent agency, CAA falls under Weeks' control. In practice, however, Weeks and the air-line lobbyists try to control both bodies, and frequently do.

Bills to this effect will be offered by Senator Mike Monroney, Oklahoma Democrat, who heads an Aviation Subcommittee. Monroney has frequently assailed Weeks, whom he calls "Weeks' domination."

Since Ike has been embarrassed by having to reverse several major rulings, emanating from Weeks' Department and favoring the great air lines to the detriment of smaller competitors, he may support the Monroney measure to make CAA an independent body responsible only to the President.

RAILROAD POLICY UNDER FIRE Another Weeks' project, which overhauls the general transportation policy in the railroad realm, has fallen under heavy fire. It would eliminate the ICC's power to regulate freight rates, and, between certain minimums

Interesting Year For U.S. Seen

By ELMER ROESSNER

Stick around, folks. FIFTY-six looks like an interesting year.

The large majority of economists and business leaders predict 1956 will be better than 1955, which appears to have been the best year in history.

However, many economists expect the first half of 1956 will be better than the last half; that is, that business will touch new highs early in the year and then level off at some point slightly below the peak.

Here are spotlights on some important areas of the economy: Capital goods: Investment in new plants and equipment will continue high during the first half of 1956. This seems certain from plans and appropriations made by large companies. Plans for the second half are largely tentative. However, construction of steel-making plants is likely to keep total investment high for many years.

Watch that A-power development. It may be the largest single stimulus the American economy has ever experienced.

AUTOS, HOUSING, DEFENSE, TAXES

Autos: Whether the auto industry can match 1955 sales soon again is a matter of considerable doubt. The industry plucked the bloom of two new-model years in 1955. Peak sales of 1955 models came early and peak sales of 1956 models came late in the same year. However, there are still 40,000,000 unfashionable models on the road.

There will be $ million and even 10 million car years in the future, but 1956 may not be one of those years.

Housing: While 1955 was the number two year in housing construction, second only to 1950, there have been some signs of a slow-down. Money has become tighter, the backlog of demand had been burned up and the nation is approaching the era in which the fewer children of the depression will reach home-buying ages. However, an increase in the permanent aid is not an unreasonable expectation in an election year.

Defense spending: The fading away of the Spirit of Geneva will prevent any sharp decline in spending for armaments, and defense will continue to be our major industry serving as a stimulus to all business.

Taxes: While the Administration has declared for a balanced budget before any tax cuts, the pressure for lower rates will be great. Since 1956 is an election year, many Republican Congressmen can be expected to join Democrats in voting for cuts. It is politically reckless to vote against income tax cuts.

Lack of a balanced budget will, of course, mean a little more inflation.

PRICES ASCENDING

Labor: The union of the AFL and CIO—plus the fact that corporate profits set new highs in 1955—will stiffen labor demands. General wage increases will be "round" of demands as contracts expire or are reopened in the next 12 months.

Prices: In recent weeks, there have been some signs of a general rise in prices. Many commodity quotations have stiffened. Steel is in short supply and some is selling at premium rates. Possibilities of another round of pay raises, the increase in minimum wages on March 1, sustained demand for steel, and high levels of income all add up to generally higher prices. And while farm prices have been declining, election-year strategy indicates that Congress, regardless of its political complexion, will move to bolster agricultural income.

However, if auto sales decline, reducing demands for steel, and if other business activity levels off later in the year, the price trend may be halted or reversed.

Recalls Railroad As 'Crookedest'

FAIRVIEW, Ill. (AP)—Charles A. Ekstrand, 83-year-old retired railroad engineer, remembers when the "Peavine Railroad" was an important "slim" gauge link between Galesburg, to West Havana, Ill. The 61-mile Fulton County narrow gauge railway commenced operation in 1878 in the Spoon River Valley. The road was changed to a standard gauge line on Oct. 15, 1905, when 450 workmen converted the tracks on a Sunday.

Farm Mission To India Sought

URBANA, Ill. (AP)—The University of Illinois' committee on Agricultural Foreign Programs wants experts to send to India to carry out an extensive farm program there.

R. W. Jugenheimer, committee chairman, says experts are needed in the fields of extension, farm management, horticulture, plant breeding, plant pathology, soil salinity and micro-nutrition of fruits and vegetables.

College of Agriculture Associate Dean H. W. Hannah already is in India, heading up the self help mission from the University.

New Bern Quint Invades G-Court

By BILLY ARNOLD

Reflector Sports Writer

New Bern's Northeastern Conference Bears invade Greenville tonight, hoping to rack up a revenge win against the G-Man squad that dumped them 70-65 in the second round of the recent Tobacco Road tournament in Kingston.

Probably to the visitors' sorrow, the Phantom team they will encounter tonight will be quite a different aggregation from the one that dropped them in the holiday tourney. Returning to the Green lineup for the first time this season will be All-Conference center Harold Edwards. The 6-4 senior led the leaders in scoring last season with an average of 18.4 points per contest, and was also the top rebounder on his squad.

Edwards will combine forces with another Phantom high scorer, Ike Riddick, also a senior, who dumped in 21 markers in the first Greenville-New Bern encounter. The two veterans are expected to form a powerful one-two punch in the scoring department that will give added strength to the team. Riddick at the present is the high man on the Green club with an average that borders on the 20-point-per-contest mark.

Three Starters Definite

Along with the two named above, will be another senior, Billy Johnson, who has done well in point making. Johnson, a 6-2 handle with no previous varsity first string experience, took over center duties at the first of the season when Edwards injured his ankle. He was top scorer and rebounder for the club until the return of Riddick, who had also suffered ankle troubles.

Coach Farley stated yesterday that Johnson will be shifted to a forward position now that Edwards is ready for action, and that Riddick will hold down a regular guard post. "The other positions aren't set yet," the Green mentor stated.

Tommy Pruetts, Jerry Riddick, and Ray Hendrix, Charlie Drum, Ray Hendrix, and Charlie Drum will be in the starting line-up.

The coach commented that it is probable that all of the above mentioned boys will see action.

A junior varsity contest will precede the varsity match, beginning at 6:30. The Farley-Men will tackle their foes at 8 o'clock.

Oklahoma's Speed Proves Decisive In Orange Bowl

By MERCER BAILEY

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Speed, more speed—Oklahoma had it and Oklahoma used it from the starting whistle to the final gun.

That was the story of the 1956 Orange Bowl football game.

The swift-striding Sooners spotted Maryland a touchdown and then rallied brilliantly for three second-half scores and a convincing 20-6 victory over the frustrated Terrapins yesterday.

Tommy McDonald, the national football player, supplied the spark that started Oklahoma rolling—and thereby fulfilled a prophecy of Maryland Coach Jim Tatum.

Before the game, Tatum remarked: "That McDonald will hurt us more with his punt returns and kickoff returns than anything else."

Tatum was right. Maryland's big line, tops in the nation on rushing defense, was primed for McDonald and limited the Sooners here two years ago when Maryland was top-ranked in the All America halfbacks' touch-down.

But McDonald and his associates were in to compensate. After the All America halfbacks' touch-down, Oklahoma's second stringers moved 51 yards for a second score.

Quarterback Jay O'Neal sneaking over from the one. And late in the game, second string halfback Carr Dod pulled in Lynn Smith on a 10-yard pass for the final TD.

Maryland players readily acknowledged they had been out-hustled by the Sooner swiftness.

"It was the speed with which they came out of the huddle and ran their plays," said tackle Mike Standusky.

"They came out so fast we couldn't adjust our defenses to meet them," agreed Bob Zellgrin, the Terps' All America center who stopped what could have been another Oklahoma scoring drive with a pass interception at the Terp four in the final minute.

The victory extended Oklahoma's winning streak to 30 games. It was Maryland's first loss in 16 games. The Terps, ranked No. 3 nationally, had been hungry for a pass interception at the Terp four in the final minute.

Verbe, Maryland's hard-running halfback, was the game's top ground gainer with 108 yards in 8 carries. He got the biggest chunk of that in the first quarter when he broke over right tackle and dashed 66 yards down the sidelines before O'Neal knocked him down at the 10 with a deflection over the third down.

Verbe's forced Penn's Tom Burrell to fumble and Don Miller recovered—and a terrific Terp opportunity went down the drain.

Wilkinson wouldn't single out an individual, saying the whole squad was "great."

Tatum was lavish in his praise for Oklahoma, labelling the Sooners the best team in the country.

"They did a better job (than Maryland) in every department," he added. "They were in better physical shape. They have height, they have speed. They out-thusted us. They had too much speed. I have never seen any team with better equipment."

Spartans, Uclans Battle To A Draw 'Til Last 7 Seconds, Then.. Boom

By ROBERT E. VOEGES

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Sophomore end Dave Kaiser didn't connect with a field goal for Michigan State before, but with just seven seconds left in the Rose Bowl game yesterday, he boomed one 41 yards to give the Spartans their 14-13 victory over UCLA.

The last previous time MSU controlled the ball, fullback Jerry Planutis had tried a field goal that failed. Many of the 100,809 spectators thought it was Planutis making another attempt.

But Coach Duffy Daugherty gambled on Kaiser, a 203-pounder who needs to wear contact lenses.

There was 1 minute and 34 seconds to play after Planutis missed his attempt. UCLA had the ball on its 20. Then came a 15-yard penalty for coaching from the sidelines.

Next halfback Ronnie Knox threw a desperation pass and a receiver for an ineligible receiver downfield moved UCLA back to its 1.

MSU, on the 19, sacrificed five yards on a penalty to try in a substitute with the kicking tee. It was Kaiser's third field goal try of the season and the first that connected. The ball was placed down on 31 and had to carry an extra 10 yards to the goal post.

The victory was the Big Ten's ninth in 10 games since the pact with the Pacific Coast Conference was signed.

UCLA had struck early. Jim Decker intercepted a pass by ISU quarterback Earl Morrill and returned it to the 16. Four plays later, fullback Bob Davenport smashed over from the 2.

In the second quarter, State sneaked in from its own 20 to score. Morrill passed 13 yards to halfback Clarence Peay over the goal line to knot it at 7-7.

The third quarter was scoreless. Peaks, who had completed only one other pass during the season, threw from his 33 to end John Lewis, who took it on the run on the 30 and eluded Sam Brown for a score early in the fourth quarter.

Brown was knocked out on the play and Ronnie Knox playing for the first time since breaking an ankle bone Nov. 12, took over at tailback.

Knox hit for a 47-yard strike to Decker, who escaped to the 7 before he was pulled down from behind by Walt Kowalczyk. Knox smashed to the 2, then to the 1, and Doug Peters threw himself over for the score. The conversion made it 14-14.

Mississippi Edges TCU, 14-13, In Thrillingly-Fought Cotton Bowl Tilt

DALLAS (AP)—A jarring tackle on the first play and a 25-yard run by talented Eagle Day, the quarter Cherokee Indian lad, were most important plays in the Cotton Bowl yesterday. They gave Mississippi 14-13 victory over Texas Christian and handed Coach Johnny Vaughn his first major bowl victory in three tries.

The tackle was put on by Dick Goehle, huge Mississippi lineman.

Chuc Curtis, the Texas Christian quarterback who had been the heart of the "fense, to a hospital for repairs. It sorely crippled TCU for its battle with the "rebels.

Day, voted outstanding back of the game, cut loose with the 25-yard run with less than 4 1/2 minutes to go and it set up his touchdown. That one play—a run made his Day had faked a pass—was pointed to as the most decisive of the game.

Officially ruled that Pitt defensive back Bob Grier, the first Negro to play in the Sugar Bowl, pushed Ellis. They penalized Pitt for pass interference and placed the ball in the Pitt 1.

Michael banged over for the touchdown and converted for the winning margin.

Grier, sobbing in the dressing room told newsmen the penalty "should have been called the other way. He pushed me from behind, that's why I felt forward."

Pictures of the final stages of the play show Grier flat on his stomach in front of Ellis, who is in the air reaching over Grier's body for the ball.

Game officials declined comment.

Tech Coach Bobby Dodd said: "I couldn't see the play at all. Ellis told me Grier pushed him, and I guess that was the way it was."

Pitt Coach John Michelosen said: "I could have been called either way."

There was equal disagreement among the 80,175 fans.

Tech's only other threat came in the fourth period on a sustained drive that ended on its 16 to the Pitt 7. At that point Pitt threw Tech for two straight losses before taking over when halfback Ray Dipsquale intercepted a Toppay Van pass and returned it eight yards to the 11.

Guard Franklin Brooks of Tech, who helped stop the drive, was voted the most outstanding player by writers covering the game.

Pitt's spirited power, which made the Panthers the nation's No. 1 team, furnished most of the offense, while holding seventh-ranking Tech's running game largely under control.

Pitt threatened three times, with the Tech defense, an interception and the clock cutting the drives off short.

Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, 81-year-old trainer of Natush, is celebrating his 25th straight year of winter racing in Florida.

However, Day didn't dim the glow of the great Jim Swink, Texas Christian's All America. Swink was just as good as painted. He led the ball carriers with 107 yards and scored both of the Frog touchdowns. He made the first on a one yard plunge and the second on a dippy-do 39-yard dash.

A penalty on a try for extra points lost the game for TCU just as much as Cothen's accuracy in putting the ball between the goal posts won for Mississippi. It was after the second TCU touchdown Frog fullback, kicked the extra point only to see it taken away because the Christians were in an illegal formation.

Day's passing, running and excellent quarterbacking put the Rebels over. The rugged Indian threw for 137 yards, his passing getting the Rebels in position to score each time. He gained 45 yards running with the ball but had 42 of it taken away because he was thrown for losses several times while attempting to pass. He also punted for an average of 42.7 yards.

Day, voted outstanding back of the game, cut loose with the 25-yard run with less than 4 1/2 minutes to go and it set up his touchdown. That one play—a run made his Day had faked a pass—was pointed to as the most decisive of the game.

Michael banged over for the touchdown and converted for the winning margin.

Grier, sobbing in the dressing room told newsmen the penalty "should have been called the other way. He pushed me from behind, that's why I felt forward."

Pictures of the final stages of the play show Grier flat on his stomach in front of Ellis, who is in the air reaching over Grier's body for the ball.

Game officials declined comment.

Tech Coach Bobby Dodd said: "I couldn't see the play at all. Ellis told me Grier pushed him, and I guess that was the way it was."

Pitt Coach John Michelosen said: "I could have been called either way."

There was equal disagreement among the 80,175 fans.

Tech's only other threat came in the fourth period on a sustained drive that ended on its 16 to the Pitt 7. At that point Pitt threw Tech for two straight losses before taking over when halfback Ray Dipsquale intercepted a Toppay Van pass and returned it eight yards to the 11.

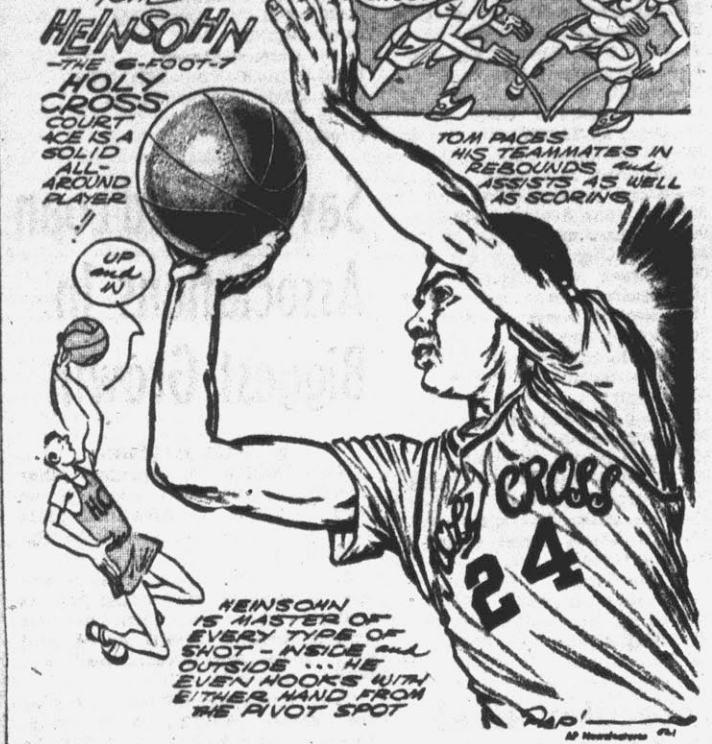

Guard Franklin Brooks of Tech, who helped stop the drive, was voted the most outstanding player by writers covering the game.

Pitt's spirited power, which made the Panthers the nation's No. 1 team, furnished most of the offense, while holding seventh-ranking Tech's running game largely under control.

Pitt threatened three times, with the Tech defense, an interception and the clock cutting the drives off short.

Clever Crusader... by Pap

A group of coaches were discussing Tom Heinsohn, the 6 foot 7 Holy subject basketball ace and the main topic was comparing him with La Salle's great Tom Gola. You'd be surprised how many of the coaches indicated that they'd rather have Heinsohn on their squad—Eavesdropping, here are a few things one learns about the big Crusader—Heinsohn is a fierce competitor—big, strong and fast. He's a deadly shot both inside and outside. He's a great rebounder and a fine ball-handler. A good dribbler who can fake and drive in for a layup. And you can't fault his defensive play.

A great team player, he paces his teammates so that they can perform beyond their own individual capacity, etc."

In two years of varsity play, Heinsohn scored 1,040 points for an average of 23.3 points per game.

He has a great variety of shots and he scores from any spot in the offensive zone, inside or outside. He hooks with either hand from the pivot spot and is equally accurate with one-handed push shots or two-handed overhead fallaway popups. He never gets loosely guarded. His versatility makes him a scoring threat every time he handles the ball. Tom not only leads his team in scoring and rebounding, but he tops his teammates in assists as well. When double-teamed, he manages to outsmart the defenders by passing off to an uncovered teammate, and sometimes scores himself. Most important of all, he never has a bad night on the court. There may be more colorful players on the college scene, but none with more overall court talent than Tom Heinsohn.

1955 WAS BIG SPORTS YEAR FOR PITT COUNTY

Now history, the sports year of 1955 was not too spectacular, but eventful in Pitt County. Probably the biggest single bobblet was East Carolina's capture of its first North State Conference baseball crown. After that, there have been many headline happenings. We have taken the time to list a few below:

JANUARY 1—GHS ushers in the calendar with a 59-58 basketball loss to Rocky Mount; 6—ECC wins its sixes straight game, 81-70 over Presbyterian; 8—ECC hands ECC first loss, 76-64; 12—GHS racks 104 points against Elizabeth City; All-Stars and Tar Heels get Midget and Mite football seasons underway with wins; 16—GHS trims Kingston 71-64.

Dons Remain Atop Weekly Cage Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS San Francisco's mighty Dons, who tacked three games onto their winning streak by breezing through the Holiday Festival last week, remained on top in the weekly Associated Press college basketball poll today. The big battle is for second place.

The Dons, winners of 36 in a row, were listed No. 1 by 113 of the 156 sports writers and sportscasters who participated in the fourth poll of the year. San Francisco has led in each one.

North Carolina State, Dixie Classic champs on the strength of an easy success over North Carolina, took over the runner-up spot from Dayton, which dropped to third.

On a basis of 10 points for first place, 9 for second etc., San Francisco piled up 1,451 points North Carolina State 1,168 and Dayton 1,087. The voting was based on competition through Saturday night.

Vanderbilt, with one victory to show for its efforts last week, moved into fourth place a notch in front of North Carolina which dropped its first decision after seven victories.

Four new teams made their way into the top 10. Kentucky moved from 12th to 8th, George Washington from 12th to 7th, Iowa State, unranked last week, moved to the No. 8 spot and Ohio State climbed from 15th to 10th. Illinois remained 14th.

The leaders, with first-place votes in parentheses:

- 1. San Francisco (113) ... 1,451
- 2. N. C. State (22) ... 1,168
- 3. Dayton (14) ... 1,087
- 4. Vanderbilt ... 634
- 5. North Carolina ... 564
- 6. Kentucky ... 434
- 7. George Washington ... 415
- 8. Iowa State ... 382
- 10. Ohio State ... 260
- The second 10:
- 11. Duke ... 242
- 12. Memphis State (4) ... 201
- 13. Indiana ... 188
- 14. Holy Cross ... 173
- 15. Tulsa ... 166
- 16. Temple ... 150
- 17. Alabama (3) ... 145
- 18. Rice ... 118
- 19. West Virginia ... 107
- 20. Michigan State ... 89

Eppes Playing Pikesville Tonight

The Eppes' high school basketball team faces a strong Pikesville cage squad tonight in the Eppes' symposium in a non-conference contest. It will be the first game of the new year for the high-flying Bulldogs.

Coach Murrell's boys, paced by sharp-shooting James Brewington, have racked up three wins in four starts and will be searching for No. 4 tonight. Pikesville is rated to be a fast-moving aggregation with enough height to make opponents work under the boards and should be a real test for the Eppes' crew.

A javee game will start off the night's action at 7:30 and the varsity match will follow.

EL PASO (AP)—Wyoming, two-touchdown underdog and outweighed 20 pounds to the man on the line, surged from behind in the final quarter to whip Texas Tech 21-14 in the 21st annual Sun Bowl football game yesterday.

The Cowboys rammed over the tying touchdown at the end of a 90-yard march, then turned a Tech fumble into the winning margin moments later.

A crowd of about 14,500 watched Tech grind out a 14-7 lead in the last half before the Cowboys replied to the challenge with brilliant display of determination.

"Tech started tiring late in the game while we were still able to go," said halfback Jim Crawford of Wyoming, rated the game's most valuable player.

Crawford failed to score but turned in a day's performance that included 100 yards gained rushing on 18 carries. Of that, 26 yards came in Wyoming's long drive for the tying marker.

He didn't pull anything else didn't expect, but they were a well-coached team and we just made too many fumbles," Coach DeWitt Weaver of the Border Conference champions said.

Terps Figure Only Quint To Give Big 4 A Run

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Maryland basketball Coach Bud Millikan is feeling something like a hold-up fugitive with the posse closing in.

The reason: Bud's Terps are figured to be the only Atlantic Coast Conference basketball team capable of giving North Carolina's Big Four teams a first division run this season.

Clemson, South Carolina and Virginia, at this stage of the schedule at least, aren't expected to give the compact Big Four—North Carolina, North Carolina State, Duke and Wake Forest—more than a poor game.

Banks McFadden's Clemson Tigers, who currently are on the rebound in winning five of their last six starts, including the Gator Bowl tournament, may figure in the race a little later in the season.

But for the present, it's up to Maryland to crack the Tar Heel state's domination.

And Millikan's deliberate-styled Terps could be the team to do it now. They've already split a pair of home dates with two Tar Heel teams losing to North Carolina and beating Wake Forest. A one-point loss to Kentucky also adds gloss to any talks about this season's Maryland outfit.

Millikan, like any good strategist, also looks for help from the bitter rivalry within the Big Four.

The Tar Heel teams resume head-knocking this week as Duke and Wake Forest having a go at each other in the Deacons' band-box gym Wednesday night. State plays Duke and North Carolina visits the Deacons Saturday night.

That leaves Millikan the opening he figures will get him in solid for a first division berth, and one that

A Doctor in the Family

By ELIZABETH SEIFERT

This is a story of love and conflict, revelatory of both family life and the medical profession. It is the story of Linda Thornton, the doctor, who married, and his kin, Linda's strongest memories date from her tenth wedding anniversary, an occasion for being made sharply aware of the disappointments felt by her parents-in-law because she is childless. The Thorntons—old Jasper, his wife Seretha (Ma'am)—and their clan are dominant in Vahlala, Mo. Their hopes center in Alan, who is surgeon-in-charge at the Thornton built local hospital, because their other son, John, left home under a cloud. Alan and Linda live at the family estate, Fiddlers Green, as do Alan's widowed sister, Margaret; her young twins, Jim and Ann; Seretha's brother, Arthur Merritt; and his wife, Flora. Margaret has an older son, Silas, who is away in the Army.

Among the guests at the anniversary dinner party are Army Captain Fred Blake, who loves Margaret but has a wife (a mentally ill invalid), and Dr. Rupert Ernst (Austrian refugee on the hospital staff), who has been paying conspicuous attention to Linda. Blake tells Alan that his wife, Fern, is getting worse—mentally. They leave the party with Ernst, and Alan—a brain specialist—examines Fern, then suggests she be moved to his hospital for further diagnosis and possible cure by brain surgery.

CHAPTER TWELVE

"I would suggest that you check up on me and my hospital—our ratings," Alan said to Captain Blake. "You'd feel better about my opinion if I'd have after examining your wife. I think time is an element but so is your peace of mind."

There was a little more talk and the doctors elected to walk as far as the hospital. It was about four blocks and the rain had resolved into a mist.

"Poor devil," said Alan, as he and Ernst got on their way.

"Yes, I'd say complete idiocy, wouldn't you?"

"Oh—perhaps it's that bad."

"She knows nothing, feels nothing. Did you notice her hands? The collapsed thumb? She would be better off dead."

"But she is not dead," protested his superior.

"And of course euthanasia . . ."

"I do not practice it!" snapped Alan.

"Can you always avoid its consideration?"

"In a case like this, I find myself more curious to know if Mrs. Blake might be helped."

"You would operate then?"

"If there is any chance of survival and improvement—yes. Certainly."

"But look, Doctor . . ." Still a block from the hospital they had paused before crossing the highway. "In this case, I think a doctor might be excused if he would not—what are the words?—if he would not bother. The husband seems—er—reconciled. Your sister is a lovely woman. And, as you explained to me you would like to see her happy."

"Yes," Alan agreed, "I did say that." Then he looked at his companion, at the fine profile beneath the brim of his smartly dipped black hat. "You know," he said, in the tone of discovery, "I would have said you were a doctor to give little consideration to circumstances surrounding a surgical case, while I would be the one to consider the whole picture. Yet, in this—"

Dr. Ernst shrugged. "I would only prefer to see a romantic picture over one of tragedy. It would perhaps be better for both of us to consider only the medical problem."

"That consideration alone will keep us busy," Alan assented. "Good night, Doctor—I'll go along home."

"Home was at the far end of this same street a broad avenue with tall trees at the hospital end of it. Alan walked along three blocks of business establishments, the bank, the post office the Supermarket and Penney's. He passed the Episcopal Church smothered in ivy, with tall trees again in evidence; another block of homes, and then he was at the gates of the Green. River fog swirled white about the lamps. Alan's own frosted breath rising as if he were propelled by steam.

The mistiness reminded him of his little-boyhood, when ice still had been out from the pond, and stored in the old icehouse. Smiling, the tall dark man walked on up the avenue, his memory letting him fairly smell the old brick building the damp sawdust and wet straw, and see the darkly gleaming ice buried there. He and young Jacob had often been set, the task of getting the ice out.

Chuckling Alan let himself into the big house. The party had disbanded. The main rooms were dark. Only the night lamp burned in the hall. Alan hung his damp coat and his mist-bent hat in the closet, looked down regretfully at the stains upon his fine black shoes. He went over to the console and selected a heavy-headed rose from the vase there. With the flower in his hand, he went up the stairs, two at a time, his long limbs moving like pistons, and put both hand and shoulder against the white panel of the bedroom door.

Linda was seated before the fire, reading, but she rose at once and came toward him.

He gave her the rose, his eyes shining. "I always bring my wife flowers on our wedding anniversary," he told her. She laughed and returned his kiss.

Her hair was brushed loosely about her face, and she wore a quilted satin robe of the same purplish blue as her eyes. Alan held her away, and looked at her, loving his wife and wishing, almost desperately that he was not so damn busy, that he did not, as today, spend two-thirds of his time away from her! He wished, too, that he was not so thick-tongued. If only he had some of Ernst's polish, and could summon a few of his glossy phrases! The best Alan Thornton could do was to draw his wife somewhat roughly into his embrace, rub his cheek into her hair and kiss her again.

With the image of Fern Blake still fresh in his memory, he held her close, murmuring something about life being short, and full of hazards; he sighed. "We have to make each day count," he said wistfully.

Linda winced. The whole day behind her had been spent in realising that she'd been married for ten years, and she had no child. And now—if Alan meant that he too realized and regretted—she looked down at the rose which he had brought her then up into his face. "Has something happened?" she asked.

He frowned. "My life is full of happenings," he reminded her. "But in another sense, nothing has happened. We've been married ten years, of course." He moved over to the upholstered chair, sat down and would have drawn her to his knee—she was a tiny thing.

But to his surprise and dismay, she drew free of his hand, and began to talk, hurriedly, tensely. "You're right," she cried. "We have been married for ten years! and nothing has happened, it's been a waste for you, Alan. Your mother—" She gulped, her hands pressed to her hot cheeks.

Slowly, the tall man drew himself to his feet. He wanted only to make love to Linda, and if they talked at all to speak of Margaret and Fred Blake.

Linda stood upon the hearthrug, confronting him, her face white with her intensity, her pansy eyes dark.

Seeing that her dimpled chin was inclined to quiver, he laughed deeply in his throat, and would have touched her, but she drew back. "Let me say this!" she begged.

"Why, yes," he said softly, "if it must be said."

"I think it must—It seems only honest, Alan. I realize as well as your mother and father that our marriage has been a waste in that I've not been able to give you a child. I don't need them to point out to me that you are the finest of the Thornton line and should have a chance to bring fine sons and daughters into the world. Well, I'll give you that chance. Alan, I've decided that I should step out, and let you be free . . ."

His heart constricted, his face was white. Had he failed her? Did she want a way out? "But, Linda, . . . he protested, "you're my wife . . ."

"I have been your wife," she agreed. "Long enough to know that . . ."

She choked, and tears began to fill her eyes; one nearly drop spilled upon her cheek.

She shook her head impatiently. "Tell me one thing!" she blurted. "Does your brother have children?"

"John?" asked Alan, his tone flat with surprise. "Why—I don't know, Linda."

She took a step toward him, staring.

"In any case," he cried impatiently, "he wouldn't figure . . ."

"Oh, Alan—"

"You're not cruel, Alan," she pleaded. "Not really."

"What I am doesn't signify," he said gruffly. "But I think you must know that it was John's own choice to leave here, to cut him self off."

"Your parents . . ."

"Yes, yes! But he, too, Oh, how did we ever get into this?" He sounded angry. He was—impatient.

And disappointed.

"It seemed the time," said Linda, mournfully. "You're still young—and if John has no children, it is essential that you have them . . ."

Her voice began to rise. "Your mother and father think so. And I do, too. That's why I—"

She sobbed aloud trembling. She regarded him between the hands pressed to her temples. "Oh please don't argue with me, Alan? I only know the way this thing has come to seem to me!"

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTNER, Real Estate Editor

DON'T LAUGH now, but—while we're all concerned with keeping warm this winter, it's the best time to start thinking about keeping cool next summer. Why worry now? Well, perhaps you never tried to buy an electric fan or air conditioner in the first blistering week of July.

The time to get not only bargains, but exactly what you want is off season.

Also one of the most important things that keep a house warm in winter and cool in summer is insulation. So now is the time to crawl up into whatever attic space you have and install an adequate blanket of the stuff that keeps your refrigerator from making your bride want a fur lined apron. Try to get up into that attic when the summer sun boosts the temperature up there to 150 degrees or so. This goes for installing bigger ventilating louvers under the roof, attic fans and finishing rooms in attic. Winter makes these jobs much easier than sweating yourself out like a jockey before the derby.

So many pros and cons surround complete year round air conditioning that there is little doubt about the demand for individual room air conditioners remaining about the same as it has in past years—virtually none to be had when wanted, plenty on the market off season. Furthermore, these individual units seem to be her-to stay.

The president of one of the biggest air conditioning firms—a company vitally interested in complete home air conditioning—recently admitted to us that he lived in a big old house and so he used seven individual room air conditioners.

There's a lot of flexibility in such an arrangement. Since summer cooling usually costs so much more than winter heating, it does seem sort of extravagant to cool rooms that are not occupied during the day. Of course, there are a lot of arguments about the load needed to bring those rooms into line in the evening, but evenings usually are cooler than mid-day.

One objection in the past to room air conditioners has been their appearance. Many have turned out to be ugly weather-beaten boxes sticking out of windows. So the industry has done something about this. Next summer you'll see this eyesore eliminated by a new thin line of air conditioners.

One of these inventions is being piloted in a new skyscraper apartment building on New York's Park Ave. In order to give every apartment tenant complete individual control over the temperature in his apartment, the fabulous builder, Anthony Campagna has installed special units under windows that have no projections in rooms or outside the building.

This system eliminates all-water problems for cooling the refrigerant that cools the air. No costly ducts have to be installed. No special wiring is needed, since the units operate on 115 volts.

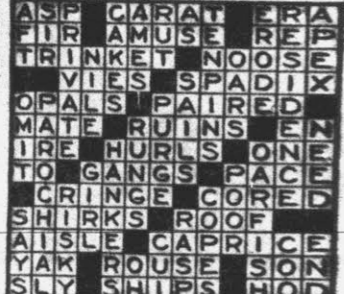

The idea has spread rapidly. You can now get year round heating as well as cooling units in the thin line to fit into the windows of almost any house. These units are only 16½ inches thick, so any projection is negligible.

Ranch Wagon    Custom Ranch Wagon    8-passenger Country Sedan    6-passenger Country Sedan    Parklane    Country Squire

with Thunderbird power

With the introduction of the fabulous new "wall-to-wall carpeted" Parklane model—America's favorite Wagons now are six. 2-door, 4-door, six-passenger, eight-passenger. You name it. Ford's got it! Whichever "hauler of fame" you pick, you get the low-to-the-road lines of the THUNDERBIRD. And you can go like the Thunderbird, too!

You can have the Thunderbird V-8 engine to power you . . . the Thunderbird's very own engine! This power plant gives you the kind of flashing getaways, hill-melting power, and quick passing you've never experienced in any station wagon before. And it's yours at no extra cost, for it's the standard eight for all Ford Station Wagons!

and Lifeguard Design

Like all '56 Fords, Ford Station Wagons give you exclusive, Lifeguard Design. Ford-developed—it's designed to give you protection against the major hazards of accident injuries!

You may never need the added protection of such Lifeguard features as new double-grip door locks, deep-center steering wheel, shatter-resistant rear-view mirror, optional padding for the control panel and sun visors and optional Ford seat belts—but it's mighty nice knowing they're there just in case!

One Dead, Seven Hurt In Picketing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An estimated 100 police moved in to break up mass picketing at the Columbus Westinghouse Electric Corp., plant today and touched the spark to a 12-week-old powder keg at the struck plant. In the brief violence:

One man died, possibly of a heart attack but after a beating, claimed an officer of the International Union of Electrical Workers (AFL-CIO).

At least seven persons were injured.

Eighty-six persons were arrested at each of the plant's five gates. Police cars, were stoned and eluded in the pre-dawn darkness as the long-expected violence finally burst out at 5:30 a.m. during a previously planned "mass demonstration."

The dead man was Troy Tadlock, 34 who was dead on arrival at a hospital. Dr. Robert Evans, coroner, did not report a verdict on the cause of death immediately, but Earl Webb, international representative of the striking union, said of Tadlock's death:

"If he had a heart attack it was because it was given to him by the beating he took."

In addition to the alleged beating Webb said Tadlock was "stepped on." Webb added the union is investigating the death and expects to have a statement later.

The 38 persons taken in custody were charged with violating a Dec. 1 court order limiting pickets to six at each gate. They also were held for "investigation of rioting."

Police Lt. William Carney said the melee started at Gate 1 on West Broad St. on the city's western edge. He reported three cars were upset at the gate. About 20 demonstrators trapped him and rocked his car in an attempt to overturn it before he was rescued by two sheriff's deputies, he added.

Police and deputies said among those placed in jail were union members from Cincinnati and Mansfield as well as other Ohio cities. They quoted some of the arrested persons as saying they came to Columbus for a business meeting.

Funeral Wednesday For William E. Redd

Mr. William E. Redd, 47, died suddenly at his home, 957 E. 10th Street, in Greenville at eight o'clock Monday night following a heart attack.

Funeral services will be held at the Wilkerson Chapel Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock by the Rev. A. Hartwell Campbell, Baptist minister of Greenville. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Redd, son of Mrs. Willie E. Redd of Winston-Salem and the late L. W. Redd, was a native of South Carolina but had lived in Greenville for the past 30 years. He was a tobacconist. He was a member of the Greenville Masonic Lodge No. 284, A.F.A.M.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Helen M. Redd; a son, Steve Redd of the home; his mother; a sister, Mrs. V. A. Powell of Winston-Salem; and a brother, Marion Redd of Charleston, S. C. and a half-brother, Basford Redd of Winter Haven, Fla.

NOW HE'S IN STYLE—Robert W. Griswold, and his father and grandfather before him, have had this Connecticut auto registration number since 1913, and now it's in high style. At right are Griswold's wife, Evelyn, and son Robert Jr., 8. They're from Seymour, Conn.

United Evangelistic Campaign Is Voted

Greenville Ministerial Association voted to conduct a united evangelistic campaign here in early May when it met in regular session yesterday.

The Association authorized its committee on evangelism to extend an invitation to Dr. James T. Johnson to conduct this revival, and to work out the exact date and details with him. Merrill Dunlop, business manager for the Johnson team, met with the local ministers yesterday to discuss business arrangements for the campaign.

Dr. Johnson, popularly known as Jimmy Johnson, is described by Dr. Billy Graham as having "no peer in evangelism today." In August, 1954, Johnson conducted three services in Greenville in Austin auditorium at the college. More recently, he was guest preacher for "The Circuit Rider" program Sunday over WNCN-TV.

The minister is known in evangelistic circles all over the United States, Canada and Great Britain, and has just completed a successful campaign in London Ontario, where the crowds were unexpectedly large. He is in this area now to conduct a revival in Wilson during the first two weeks of January.

Johnson is a native of Alabama, but he now makes his home in Fuquay Springs.

The Rev. Mr. Owen said that "The ministers are hoping that the Christian people of this area will begin praying now for the campaign."

New Strike Call In Italian Unrest

ROME (AP)—A new strike was called today and an old one was extended as Italy's rising wave of antigovernment walkouts went into the new year.

Employees of the Treasury Ministry's provincial offices over Italy quit work for three days in a demand for salary reclassification.

At the same time 80,000 striking secondary and high school teachers announced they will not grade first-term exam papers before Jan. 7.

The teachers walked out demanding up to 70 per cent more pay a week before the Christmas vacation. They say they will be back to the schools when classes resume next week but normally grading of exams starts Dec. 24 and is finished by today.

Terrorists Said To Be In Training

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP)—A high French military source said today a steady stream of arms is reaching rebel forces in Algeria from across the Libyan border.

The informant said in an interview the munitions included British-manufactured grenades which were shown by serial number to have come from Egyptian army depots. Other arms, he said, were among some 300,000 weapons abandoned by German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's army when it surrendered in Tunisia during World War II.

He said the rebels were trying to give themselves the appearance of regular troops by wearing American surplus army uniforms picked up in Tunisia.

The informant said that Algerian rebels were being trained by Mohammed el Khatbi, brother of the famed Lord of the Rif, Abd el Krim.

He said they were receiving commando training at three camps in Egypt.

Rebel forces captured a 13-man French garrison and killed six only 20 miles outside Algiers before dawn yesterday. The remaining seven men were still reported missing.

The daring attack came several hours after a French armored patrol killed 16 rebels in an assault near Meskian, about 80 miles from the Tunisian border.

Funeral Thursday For Mrs. J. Wainwright

FARMVILLE—Mrs. Minnie Southall Wainwright, 77, wife of the late John R. Wainwright, died at the home of her son, Sam Wainwright, on Walnut street, Monday night at 10:30. She had been ill nearly a year as the result of a fall.

No Price Hike Seen Yet By Local Soft Drink Firms

Spokesmen for Greenville's three soft drink companies said today that no immediate plans have been made to raise the price of the drinks in this area.

The city's soft drink companies bottle Coca-Cola, Royal Crown Cola and Pepsi-Cola.

However, the spokesmen agreed that competition in other areas may force them to up the price of the drinks here in the future. Nehi (Royal Crown) manager Doug Souverey declared that "Wherever our competitors raise their prices we will raise ours to meet them."

Coca-Colas have already gone from five cents to ten cents per bottle in Washington, with the wholesale rate upped from 80 cents a crate to $1.30. No official announcement has been made on any other drinks in that area, though the price of Dr. Peppers, Robert's beverages Pepsi-Cola and Royal Crown Colas are expected to be raised from five to six cents a bottle, and the wholesale price from 80 to 90 cents a crate.

Students Return To ECC Studies

East Carolina College students are back at work this week after a two week Christmas holiday. Class work began Monday morning at 8 a.m.

Since East Carolina operates on the quarter system, students now have completed approximately three weeks' work for the winter quarter. They thus returned to college untroubled by thoughts of final examinations, which in schools having the semester system usually follow the holidays.

The present quarter at East Carolina will extend through February 25 at noon.

Voting Today On Merger Of Banks

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP)—Stockholders of the Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. and City Industrial & Savings Bank of Greensboro vote today on a proposed merger.

Directors of the two banks on Dec. 8 approved the merger plans, subject to vote by their stockholders.

Wachovia President Robert M. Hanes said under the merger plan City Industrial will become the Greensboro office of Wachovia, which has its home office here.

He said City Industrial shareholders will exchange their stock for Wachovia stock on a 5 for 4 swap.
