Radio, Lights Out; Airline Pilot Defeats Snow, Fog

Flew Blind To Field

NEW YORK (AP)—An airline pilot, flying through a snowstorm without radio or lights and with only a compass to guide him, brought his plane in to a safe landing at LaGuardia Field last night. There were 24 people aboard. Pilot Robert Francis, 37, had to use a flashlight to see the compass. Behind him in the darkened cabin his passengers sat through the ordeal in prayerful quiet. There was no panic, even though the plane landed two hours late. The electrical system of the twin-engine Northeast Airlines Convair failed about seven minutes after it left Boston at 4:56 p.m. The plane was plunged in darkness and there was no way for it to contact ground stations or receive guiding signals. Francis, a flier for nearly 20 years, landed with less than an hour's gasoline supply at 8:12 p.m., 2 hours and 22 minutes late. "It wasn't very pleasant," he commented later. "Thank God we're here." He said he had considered re-

Dulles In Center Of Political Gale

By JACK BELL WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Bridges (R-NH) said today Secretary of State Dulles deserves praise for policies designed to "keep us out of war." New criticism of Dulles came yesterday from Asst. E. Stevenson, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. Stevenson said President Eisenhower should repudiate Dulles' views or fire him in the wake of a controversial article in Life magazine. Bridges said in an interview he agrees with Dulles the United States must take a "calculated risk for peace" when its vital interests are challenged by a potential aggressor. The senator, head of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, doesn't always support Dulles on international affairs, but he said: "Rather than being criticized for 'brink of war' policies the secretary should be commended that his policy is to keep us out of war." Dulles refrained at a news conference yesterday from giving full endorsement to the Life magazine article. He did not dispute the statement it attributed to him that

Inspector General Here For Meet At Hospital

Dr. Jose J. Moreno, center, who is Inspector General of Hospitals with the Ministry of Health and Welfare of Honduras, visited Greenville yesterday, making a tour of Pitt Memorial Hospital and the Pitt County Health Department. Above, he discusses local facilities and programs with C. D. Ward, left, hospital administrator; and Dr. Walter C. Humbert, Pitt County Health Director. (Reflector Photo by Edwina Haymes).

Cargo Of Gasoline, Kerosene, Fuel Oil Explodes Many Die In Fiery Tanker

By STANLEY MEISLER LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)—Cities Service Oil Co. workers today wearily battled swirling flames and choking smoke that may conceal the bodies of at least 16 seamen in a blazing tanker. Loaded with a full cargo of 130,000 barrels of gasoline, kerosene and fuel oil, the tanker Salem Maritime exploded late last night. A crew of 41 was believed assigned to the vessel. Cities Service officials did not know how many were on board at the time. Firefighters picked up pieces of three bodies this morning. St. Patrick's Hospital here treated eight seamen, one in serious condition. A Cities Service worker also was burned seriously. A spokesman for Cities Service, which owned the tanker, estimated the missing at 20. A seaman, who had been on board before the explosion, put the figure at 16. The Salem Maritime's blast set two loading docks afire at the Cities Service plant in Lake Charles, about six miles from this city in southwest Louisiana. The ship and the docks, according to the company, were a complete loss. No damage estimate was given. About 1,500 workers attempted to douse the fire and succeeded in containing the flames to the ship and docks, away from the huge adjoining oil refinery. Cities Service headquarters in New York identified the ship's master as Capt. John Rugman of Milton, Mass., and said the vessel carried a crew of 41 including the captain when it sailed from Boston for Lake Charles Jan. 11. Information reaching New York this morning was that 13 of the crew had been accounted for, five of whom were hospitalized. New

FTC Hearing Set On Asheville Case

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Federal Trade Commission (FTC) hearing for 20 Asheville, N.C. men accused of monopolizing the area's tobacco auction warehouse industry will get underway March 13 in Asheville. The 20, all members of the Asheville Tobacco Board of Trade, were accused in an FTC complaint yesterday of practices that deprived farmers of the privilege of selling in Asheville. The complaint must be answered within 30 days. Named in the restraint of trade charges were the Asheville Tobacco Board of Trade, Inc., and its officers and directors: J. Carlie Adams, vice president and director; Fred D. Cockfield, secretary-treasurer and director; Jeter P. Ramsey, ex officio assistant to the secretary, supervisor of sales and general director of the Asheville market; L. C. Hill, director; James W. Stewart, director, and James E. Walker Jr., director. Also named in the complaint were: James E. Walker Jr., and John Ramsey, part owners, co-managers and operators of Bernard Walker warehouses; J. Carlie Adams and Luther Hill, partners trading as Adams & Hill warehouses; Farmers Federation Cooperative, Inc.; Fred D. Cockfield and James W. Stewart, partners trading as Planters warehouses; Henry B. Duncan, A. R. Johnson Jr., Sherrod N. Landon, J. W. Moore, E. G. Anderson, J. E. Goldwin, Beverly G. Connor, W. G. Adams, members of Asheville Tobacco Board of Trade, Inc. The commission alleged the group violated the FTC act through control of the board by foreclosing or attempting to foreclose competition in the market; either through expansion of existing warehouse facilities or the building of new ones to handle the sale of tobacco at auction. The complaint also said the group obstructed freedom of trade on the market for farmers and independent dealers. The commission alleged that the group has "prevented firms from erecting new warehouses or expanding existing facilities; adopted a resolution changing the method of allocating selling time in order to retain it themselves, to the exclusion of other members of the selling time available; adopted a resolution providing that for the years 1954 to 1956 no warehouse member can rent other warehouses in order to secure more selling time." The complaint said the board was organized to set up regulations for a "more efficient, honest, economic and orderly marketing of tobacco." However, the complaint declared, the group followed "a planned common course of action" to maintain "an undue and unreasonable hindrance, restriction, suppression and prevention of the establishment and operation of market facilities and market opportunities and competition."

Train Engineer Ruled Blameless In Fatal Mishap

By BOB HILLDRUP Reflector Staff Writer John W. Hines, Atlantic Coast Line engineer, was found blameless here last night in the death of Dr. John Hoyt French, killed December 23 when his car struck Hines' train in Stokes. A coroner's jury deliberated only 13 minutes before returning its verdict—the second time in six months that it has cleared Hines as a result of fatal train-car wrecks in Stokes. Hines, and another trainman, Connie Preat, were crewmen on a train involved in an August wreck which took two other lives in Stokes. Three Stokes residents testified last night—as did Hines, Preat and a third trainman, J. F. Bishop—before the jury. Hines was blowing as it approached the grade crossing just prior to the accident. French, a naval dentist enroute to his Elizabethtown home, died of a crushed skull when his car slammed into the engine at a grade crossing on NC 903 in Stokes. Investigating State Highway Patrolman D. E. Perry said French's 1955 sedan rammed the nine-car freight 17 and a half feet from the front of the engine. The sedan fell 50 feet of skid marks prior to the crash Perry said. All three trainmen said the Atlantic Coast Line freight was traveling between 30 and 35 miles per hour at the time of the accident. The speed limit for trains passing through Stokes is 40, Hines said. John Briley and E. Whitehurst testified they were standing in a supermarket near the tracks when they heard the train's whistle. Both said they turned to look and saw French's car just before it struck the freight. W. R. Tripp, who was seated at a filling station near the scene, told practically the same story. All three said the train's whistle was blowing prior to the crash. French's death was the fourth traffic fatality of 1955 in the tiny Stokes community. In July a Mrs. Mabel F. French, no relation to Dr. French, was killed at a highway intersection less than a hundred yards away. In August two traveling salesmen were killed at another grade crossing in the same community when a train operated by Hines Preat and H. G. Barrow was struck by their car. The crossing where Dr. French was killed is marked by warning signs but no blinking lights or warning bells. DISCUSS PARLEYS GENEVA—India's roving ambassador Krishna Menon, met yesterday with Wang Ping Nan, Red China's ambassador to Poland and chief delegate in the 21-week-old negotiations here with the United States. After the meeting, Menon said he discussed with Wang the stalemate talks here between the Reds and U. S. Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson.

Honduras Official Is Visitor In City

Inspector General of Hospitals with the Ministry of Health and Welfare of Honduras was in Greenville yesterday. Dr. Jose J. Moreno, who has supervision of all government hospitals in his native country, came to this city with members of the Duke Endowment staff for a meeting at Pitt Memorial Hospital. He is making a four-month visit to the United States, inspecting hospitals and public health services. Presently, he is spending two months with the Duke Endowment committee and making a tour with them through North and South Carolina. The 42-year old inspector general arrived in this state after spending some time in hospitals around New York and with the Public Health Service in Washington, D. C. From here his itinerary, which is being worked out through the cooperation of Dr. Clement C. Clay, associate professor of administrative medicine, Columbia University, will take him to Boston and Michigan. His visit to this country is sponsored by the Pan American Sanitary Bureau. Yesterday Dr. Moreno's local visit included a tour of Pitt Memorial Hospital and the Pitt County Health Department, and for both he offered praise. Of the hospital, the Central American doctor said it is "the best equipped and best kept" of any he has visited thus far. This was his first tour of an eastern North Carolina hospital. Dr. Moreno seemed particularly impressed with the new health department building and the extent of the program carried on there. He noted with special interest the new mental health program, the tuberculosis case finding program and the Salk vaccine proceedings, asking many notes of local methods of operation to take back to his country. He remarked that even in the capital city of Honduras, Tegucigalpa, which has a population of 150,000, there is no mental health program like the one underway here in Pitt County. He was particularly interested in the Salk anti-polio vaccine program, because such a program will be initiated in his native country this summer. The inspector general is married and has one son, five years old. His wife and child are presently located in Charlotte. Dr. Moreno, who has a good command of English in reading, writing and speaking, has made one previous visit to the United States, spending one month here in 1950.

AFL-CIO Wants More School Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—AFL-CIO President George Meany today rejected President Eisenhower's school aid plan. He proposed that Congress vote four times the amount the administration has asked. Meany called on Congress to provide at least a billion dollars a year for the next five years. Eisenhower wants 250 million dollars a year for five years, with the money to be used to help states and local school districts build needed facilities. The chief of the newly combined AFL-CIO outlined organized labor's legislative aims in an article in the American Federationist, his organization's monthly magazine. Meany said education aid should be "the first order of business" in this session of Congress. He said Eisenhower's plan is inadequate. "The administration's program, while making a significant concession to the need for federal aid, adds up to another manifestation of the 'too little, too late' policy," Meany said. "Labor believes that stinting the schools is the height of false

Tenant House Is Damaged By Fire

One room of a tenant house in the Bell Arthur section was damaged by fire around 9 o'clock this morning. The dwelling is occupied by Linwood O. Taff, Negro, and it is located on the M. K. Blount farm. Greenville firemen, who were called to the blaze, said occupants of the four-room house had the fire virtually under control when the fire truck arrived. Individuals had torn weather boarding from the side of the house and were extinguishing the blaze with buckets of water. Local firemen completed the job by wetting down the smoldering attic when they arrived at the scene. Firemen said the ceiling and attic over the room in which the fire originated was heavily damaged by the blaze, which was believed to have started from a heater in the room. Occupants of the dwelling moved all the furniture from the house. Fire fighters said the house was insured. Fire department records show.

Hospital Accounting Is Discussed At Meeting

A group of 31 hospital administrators, business office personnel and computer accountants were here yesterday to attend a meeting at Pitt Memorial Hospital at which members of the Duke Endowment staff explained the new accounting system for hospitals. A series of ten meetings pertaining to statistics and the new accounting system are being held in the two Carolinas for all hospitals assisted financially by the Duke Endowment. Conducting the all day session were endowment staff members George P. Harris, director of field service; H. Carl Rowland, field representative; B. G. McCall, field representative; and Erving Barnett, administrative intern at Duke hospital. Also present for the meeting was Dr. Jose J. Moreno, Inspector General of Hospitals, Ministry of Health and Welfare, Honduras. Dr. Moreno is making a four-month visit to this country inspecting hospitals and public health services. Yesterday's meeting was primarily concerned with application for financial assistance for 1955 covering certified days of charity care rendered. C. D. Ward, administrator, represented Pitt Memorial Hospital, along with Miss Mary E. Bell, office manager. Other hospitals represented were Wayne County Memorial Hospital, Goldsboro; Our Community Hospital, Scotland Neck; Park View Hospital, Rocky Mount; Chowan Hospital, Edenton; Edgecombe General Hospital, Tarboro; Martin General Hospital, Williamston; Roanoke Chowan, Ahoskie; Carolina General, Wilson; Lenoir Memorial, Kinston; Tayloe, Washington; Parrott, Kinston; Bertie County Memorial, Windsor; Morehead City, and Pungo District, Belhaven.

Higher Education Board Here This Week

East Carolina College was visited Monday evening and Tuesday by members of the North Carolina Board of Higher Education. Seated at the conference table in the administration building on the college campus are board members W. J. Kennedy, Jr., of Durham, Dr. J. Harris Purks, executive secretary of the board, Chapel Hill; Mrs. T. R. Easterling of Rocky Mount, Chairman D. Hiden Ramsey of Asheville, Major L. P. McLaughlin of Greensboro, and William F. Womble of Winston-Salem. Standing are Dr. O. L. Phillips, President, Vice President F. D. Duncan, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, Vice president of faculty and curriculum, and Dr. J. D. Meisiek, President, all of the college administration. (Daily Reflector Photo).

Doesn't Want $100,000 Estate

PROVIDENCE R. I. (AP)—Earl S. Jenckes of Wyoming, Pa., says he has enough money and doesn't want $100,000 left him by his late sister Miss Clara H. Jenckes. Miss Jenckes' will was filed yesterday in Probate Court at Woonsocket. The Providence Journal talked with Jenckes by telephone and quoted him as saying he turned down the inheritance because he had enough without it. He described himself as a manufacturer of goods and about 80 years of age. As a result, the money will go to Jenckes' two children, George A. Jenckes and Mrs. Louise Fay, both of Wyoming.

Ten-Year-Old Drove Off In A Switch Engine

CLEVELAND (AP)—Ten-year-old Richard Wynn, who said he "just wanted to go," drove off in a Pennsylvania railroad switch engine last night while its two operators were eating in a nearby shanty. Crewmen A. J. Frecko and William S. Richards saw their 225-ton diesel engine rumberling off with the 80-pound boy at the throttle and gave chase. The pursuit ended in about 1,000 feet when the engine ran into a parked locomotive and stopped with no damage to either engine. The boy tried to flee but was caught after he lost a shoe and fell. The crewmen said Richard apparently had pulled everything in sight on the engine until he found the throttle.

Home Building And Loan Ass'n Shareholders Hold Annual Meet

The Home Building and Loan Association of Greenville during 1955 had the best year in its history. Shareholders of the association were told at the annual meeting last night. W. W. Lee, executive vice president and secretary and treasurer of the association, reported to shareholders that assets of the association increased 697,322.88 during the year bringing the total assets of the association to 4,338,241.46 at the end of the year. The stock account during the year increased by $22,405.97. Lee reported that there was an increase of the association's mortgage loans in the amount of $597,305.11. Lee also reported to shareholders that new loans made by the association in 1955 amounted to $1,162,850 and new deposits with the association amounted to $1,505,306.71. There was a net increase of approximately 350 shareholders in the association during the year. Lee said that dividends paid to shareholders during 1955 came to $111,653.82, a record high for the association. The shareholders of the association re-elected the board of directors consisting of: K. W. Cobb, D. A. Evans, J. S. Ficklen, Jr., C. Heber Forbes, R. M. Garrett, Jr., J. B. James, W. W. Lee, H. W. Lee, James T. Little, N. O. VanNortwick, Jr. and William H. Taft. Immediately following the shareholders meeting, the directors met and re-elected the following officers: C. Heber Forbes, president; James T. Little, vice president; W. W. Lee, executive vice president and secretary and treasurer; H. W. Lee, assistant executive vice president; Mary Dell Seymour, assistant secretary and treasurer; and J. B. James and W. W. Speight, attorneys.

Vote So Far

Early returns from the straw vote being taken among Pitt farmers indicate over 90 per cent favor only a 12 per cent reduction in the 1956 tobacco acreage allotments. Slightly more than 100 ballots had been returned to The Daily Reflector by this morning, and only nine of those votes were marked in favor of the proposed 20 per cent acreage reduction now pending before Congress. All the others were marked in favor of the 12 per cent reduction in tobacco acreage. Ballots to be included in the final tally of the straw vote must be received not later than 9 o'clock Saturday morning. Final tally on the straw vote among Pitt farmers will be announced in Saturday's edition of The Daily Reflector. The state of siege was proclaimed originally to prevent the Supreme Court from considering President Joao Cafe Filho's petition that he be returned to office.

Merchant Ass'n Board Makes Appointments To Committees

Appointment of committees for 1956 was the major business transacted at the first meeting of the new Merchants Association board of directors last night. In addition, yearly reports were heard. President Howard L. Hodges Jr. made the following committee appointments: Trade promotion—J. D. McGlohon Jr., chairman; C. E. Blair, V. C. Fleming Jr., Daniel Saied, Larry Avedette, John Collins Jr., C. H. Edwards Jr. and J. A. Taylor. Finance—L. S. Garris, chairman; J. T. Marston Jr. and Bancroft Mosley. Membership—Joseph S. Moye, chairman; W. Reid Perkins, Dr. M.

Book Club Meets With Mrs. Wolverton

The members of the End of the Century Book Club enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. Wallace Wolverton on Tuesday, January 17.

The president, Mrs. J. H. Thomas, read an inspiring poem for the New Year. During a short business session it was announced that classes in sewing and gymnastics would be started at the Recreation Center.

It was also noted that there is still a need for homes for those participating in the all-state orchestra meeting here on January 26, 27 and 28.

Mrs. J. B. Spilman gave a most delightful review of the current Broadway comedy, "The Solid Gold Cadillac," which chief character is portrayed by the well-known actress, Josephine Hull.

Visitors were Mrs. Charles Horne Jr., Mrs. Clayton Tebeau, Mrs. Erskine Duff, Mrs. O. L. Joyner Jr. and Miss Hennie Long.

Red Banks Club To Hold A Benefit Party

A tacky party for the benefit of the March of Dimes will be held at the Eastern Pines Community Building tomorrow night at 7:00 o'clock.

The party is being sponsored by the Red Banks Home Demonstration Club.

The public is invited to attend "in any type of tacky attire."

Beach-Smith Vows Pledged

ROBERSONVILLE—The First Baptist Church of Fort Miss, Ark. was the setting when Miss Zona Smith and Russell Beach were united in marriage on Thursday, December 29, 1955, at 7:30. The Reverend J. Harold Smith, the bride's pastor, officiated in the double ring candlelight ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. B. F. Smith and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Beach of Robersonville.

Mrs. J. H. Smith, organist, and Miss Kay Kolb, vocalist, presented a prelude of nuptial music.

The bride was attired in a ballerina length dress of white antique taffeta designed with a lace yolk and lace sleeves. Her fingertip veil was attached to a matching headpiece. She carried a white Bible topped with an orchid.

Miss Patricia Allen was the maid of honor and Miss Janie Smith was the junior bridesmaid. Garland Brackett served as best man with Bobby Craig, groomsmen. The ushers were Dansford Davis and John Kolb. Miss Betty Jackson and Miss Shirley Craig acted as the candle-lighters.

Mr. Beach, a graduate of Robersonville High School in the class of 1954, is serving in the U. S. Army at Fort Chaffee, Arkansas.

Following a short wedding trip, the young couple will be at home in Fort Miss.

P. T. A. Meets; Discuss Federal Aid

ROBERSONVILLE—The regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association was held Thursday, Jan. 12, at 7:30 in the Robersonville High School auditorium.

Following the invocation by the Rev. Sam Whitchard there was a panel discussion on the subject "Federal Aid to Education." The members of the panel included Superintendent James C. Manning of Williamston, board member; Mr. Oscar Ayers, teacher; Mrs. Wiley B. Rogerson and Mrs. John Tyler.

Mr. C. B. Martin, principal of the local schools, acted as moderator.

Mrs. James Harvey Highsmith, president of the P.T.A., and Mrs. Hassell Worsley, program chairman, urged everyone to be present explaining "It is your school, your child and your P. T. A."

Stonewall Night Held

ROBERSONVILLE—Stonewall night was observed Thursday, January 12, at 7 o'clock in the Robersonville Masonic Hall. Each member of the Eastern Star had her husband or a friend as her guest.

Mr. John Gray Taylor gave the invocation.

The covered dish supper consisted of fried chicken, potato salad, deviled eggs, pimento-cheese sandwiches, pickles, biscuits, coffee and four kinds of cake. Sixty people were present.

During the social hour which followed, the members of the Masonic Lodge and the O. E. S. were delightfully entertained with "I've Got A Secret." The panel included Mrs. Martha Dell Gray, Mrs. Wilson Wynne, Mr. Horce Fulcher and Mr. Charlie Gray.

Midweek Services
The Greenville Free Will Baptist Church will meet tonight at 7:30 for prayer services. Mr. Charles D. Dose Jr. will bring the message. Classes in Evangelism will be held the same hour. At 8:15 p. m. the choir will meet for a rehearsal.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
January 18, 1926

The rousing meeting with which the American Legion started their year last night indicates that 1926 will be a banner year for the Pitt County Post. The meeting held at the Rotary Club was presided over by Commander Karl Pace and was well attended. Manley Sellers introduced the newly-formed Legion Quartette. This quartette, composed of E. E. Williams, P. T. Watson, W. W. Lee and Manley Sellers, has been adopted as the official quartette of the local Post and will furnish music at the future meetings.

J. B. Kittrell spoke briefly on the Boy Scout work being carried on in Greenville. Action was taken whereby Troop No. 1 of the local Boy Scouts was officially adopted by the Legion Post.

Miss Rawls, Mr. Barden Marry

ROBERSONVILLE—The marriage of Miss Nancy Carol Rawls of Robersonville and Howard Travis Barden of Murfreesboro was solemnized Friday afternoon, December 23, at 4 o'clock in the First Baptist Church with the Reverend Ralph E. Ferguson officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin D. Rawls of Robersonville. Mr. Barden is the son of Mrs. Howard L. Barden of New Bern and the late Mr. Barden.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Robert E. Adkins, organist, and Miss Phyllis Ward of Whaleyville, Va., soloist. The selections included "Because," "I'll Walk With God" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white street-length princess dress and she carried a satin covered prayer book topped with a white purple-throated orchid with ribbon streamers.

Miss June Tucker of Moyock, the bride's college roommate, was the maid of honor and the only attendant. Her princess styled street-length dress was of ice blue brocade silk. She carried a fan to which red carnations and matching streamers were attached.

Mr. Horace Ballard of Brigetown, N. J. was the best man. The ushers were James Rawls of Robersonville, brother of the bride; Thomas Karris, Washington, N. C.

The mother of the bride wore a teal blue dress with black accessories and a corsage of yellow rose buds.

Mrs. Starling Traces History Of U.N. At Meeting Of A.A.U.W.

Mrs. Robert B. Starling's message was a real challenge as she spoke to members of the Greenville Branch of the AAUW Monday evening on the United Nations, evaluating its accomplishments and stressing the need for continued support of this instrument of world peace.

Mrs. Starling compared the UN to a fire department which purpose is to put out fires. A fire department is not closed when a series of fires occur, but rather, fire prevention is stressed and fire fighting equipment is improved. Therefore, even though there is still trouble, the UN must be continued with improvements and more support if its purpose is to be accomplished.

Mrs. Starling traced briefly the history and growth of the UN before going on to the outstanding work which has been accomplished. There are now 76 member nations. She brought out the fine work the Food and Agriculture Organization is carrying on, pointing out various countries which had been aided, either in taking care of agricultural problems or in giving training to utilize to advantage their products.

One of the highlights of Mrs. Starling's recent trip to the UN was the visit to the meditation room where people of all faiths may go for prayer. Here is found a stump, representing stability, on which there is a plant, representing life. Mrs. Starling's talk was made more effective by the illustrated use of a color chart and in closing when she brought forth a cut-out of clasped hands which she placed around a globe of the world.

Mrs. Starling, who was a recent Home Demonstration official North Carolina delegate to the UN, was presented by Mrs. Daniel R. Taylor, chairman of the Social Studies Committee, which committee was in charge of the program. Mrs. Taylor stated that "at the present time the theme of the Social Studies Committee is 'Individual Liberties,' and our individual liberties are endangered and attached by external and political activity within our own country. In order to understand how individual liberties may be safeguarded it is necessary to understand the UN which aims at recognizing national individual rights."

Mrs. Hugh T. Patterson, president, presided over the business session during which routine matters were taken care of and committee reports were heard. Two replacement chairmen were announced as follows: Fellowship, Mrs. Ruth Garner, and Radio, TV and Films, Mrs. Harry R. Ellis.

Sheets, prepared by the Status of Women Committee with Dr. Lucille Turner as chairman, giving achievements of the UN Status of Women Commission in the form of a quiz were passed.

Mrs. Luther Herring, State Fellowship Chairman, brought greetings from the state board and urged support of fellowships.

Mrs. George Perry, chairman of the Scholarship Fund, gave a brief history and progress report of this fund which will be used by an ECO student some day for study abroad.

Jr. Elizabeth Utterback, program chairman, announced that the February program would be in charge of the Fellowship Committee.

Hostesses for this meeting were Mrs. Howard Mims, Miss Elizabeth Walker, Dr. Kathleen Stokes, and Mrs. C. A. Bowen.

Industries Are Available If Wanted

Home-grown industry. The more we hear about it, the more we are convinced that Pitt County's towns should not delay longer before delving into an endeavor similar to those which have created new jobs in a number of towns and cities throughout the state.

Pitt County's town can grow their own industry to provide new jobs while they are waiting for outside industries to come in and locate manufacturing plants in our midst.

The State Department of Conservation and Development asserts that any community in North Carolina which wants a small industry can get it. Many communities in Pitt have been talking industrial development for several years now, and most of the communities have made progress in that direction. Yet, there is ample room for further development.

According to a representative of the small industries division of the Department of Conservation and Development, the capital required to establish a small industry in a community ranges from $6,000 to half million, depending on the type industry and its size. Maybe there are not any towns in Pitt County which can finance locally an half million dollar home-grown industry. On the other hand, there are few if any towns in the county which should find it difficult to raise somewhere between $10,000 and $50,000 to create a home-grown industry.

As The Man Said, Try First To Sell Tarheels

It is not unusual for a person to overlook vacation possibilities offered by his immediate locale and look for vacation pleasures many miles from home.

There are a good many North Carolinians who are spending their vacations (and vacation dollars) outside the state year after year, passing up the Variety Vacationland at their doorstep. The individual in this category loses the opportunity to enjoy his native state; and at the same time the state's tourist business loses dollars to other areas.

The president of the National Association of Travel Organizations has told the first annual meeting of the North Carolina Travel Council that the biggest job the state organization may face is selling Tar Heels on their own state.

Perhaps the urge to travel makes the attractions of distant vacation spots more appealing than those of resort areas of one's own state. From the mountains to the sea, there is little any other state can offer the vacationer than can't be found in North Carolina. Those who see their own Tar Heel state first often lose the urge to travel to other states for a vacation. North Carolina mountains are as pretty as any along the Atlantic seaboard. Yet literally thousands of Tar Heels who have never seen the mountains of their own state travel annually to the mountain regions of neighboring states. No state offers better beaches than those along the North Carolina coast. Yet year after year Tar Heels spend hundreds of thousands of dollars along the sandy shores in Virginia and South Carolina.

If the new State Travel Council can really sell North Carolinians on North Carolina, there'll be a proverbial pot of gold waiting for the groups which make up the council.

N. C. Civil Defense To Need Additional Recruits

North Carolina's Ground Observer Corps will find its responsibilities greatly increased on February 1 when the state joins 27 others in round-the-clock watches for aircraft.

Heretofore volunteer ground observers have been called on for the most part only during special training sessions which lasted for one or two days. Beginning next month, however, ground observation by these volunteer workers become a continuous operation.

In all probability, North Carolina will need a great many more ground observers than it now has if the many posts scattered throughout the state are to keep their vigil 24 hours a day, month after month. The new operation will not be like a brief exercise which lasts only a day or two. Under the circumstances of a training exercise as the state's ground observers have had in the past, a volunteer could keep watch two or three times his regular two-hour tour of duty. But under continuous operations, there will be few who can give more than their regular allotted time week after week and month after month.

Greenville's Ground Observer Corps apparently is functioning smoothly, but there is still room for many more volunteers who can share the duties of the post when the continuous operation schedule begins on February 1.

within the county in recent years has been pointed toward attracting industry from outside. While these efforts continue, it would not be amiss for Pitt to give more attention to the development of small industries allied with agriculture, food processing, and perhaps even industries which are not directly connected with agriculture.

While a plant to employ 100 to 200 people would indeed be an asset to the county, it would not be as great an asset as a dozen new small industries which employ 10 to a dozen people each. The plant to employ 100 people may be out of the reach of a community. Yet one industry which would employ a dozen people could probably become a reality in any town in Pitt County if the people of that town really wanted the new industry and new jobs.

It will take work and lots of it on the part of people in individual communities which seek to establish home-grown industries. But we agree with the Department of Conservation and Development that communities which really want a new industry can create their home-grown variety.

Should Governors Also Be Consulted?

By LYNN MISBET
DIFFERENT — A good many people, including several newspaper editors, have suggested that Governor Hodges should be consulted and should express an opinion about his choice of a candidate for lieutenant governor. Advocates of the idea cite the fact that the nominee for President is usually accorded substantial influence in selection of his running mate. The situations are by no means analogous. Nominees for President and Vice President are chosen by the same convention which had a few hours before adopted the party platform, and the presidential candidate is named first. Further, the President after his election selects his own cabinet and has power to appoint the judiciary.

In North Carolina all the voters participating in party primaries choose the nominees not only for governor and lieutenant governor, but for attorney general and all members of the Council of State. The people also nominate and elect the judges.

Although the Governor of North Carolina perhaps has more control over State fiscal matters than the President has over national matters, he has nothing like as much control over official personnel. It is unthinkable that a President would continue a member of his cabinet who did not go along with his policies.

It is quite probable, and it has often happened, that a Governor must deal with an independently elected Council of State several members of which—sometimes a majority—were not at all in accord with his ideas. A current illustration is offered by the open differences between Governor Hodges and Commissioner of Agriculture Ballentine over sale of land embraced in the Old Piedmont Tea Farm.

There is more certainty of team work in the national administration. Originally the constitution provided that the man who received the second highest number of electoral votes would be vice president. The fix of the Jefferson-Burr administration brought about, the 12th amendment—the second after adoption of the bill of rights—in 1804. Since that time it has been possible to vote for President and a Vice President of different parties.

Some students of government feel that closer adherence to Federal policies would be better for North Carolina. Majority of voters do not. Every proposal for a shorter ballot, for giving the chief executive more power, the electorate less, in naming administrative officers has been turned down.

Although Tarheel voters know that many times there are alignments and agreements among candidates, they still like the oft repeated declaration that "I am Tourist, an Excursionist; one who travels from place to place." "Travel, N. The act of journeying especially to foreign or distant places; collectively, the number of persons, vehicles, etc., passing over a given place during a given time."

The advocates of "Travel Council" seem to have the edge.

Other Editors Are Saying... A Strange Logic Indeed

(Henderson Dispatch)
Former President Truman fashions a strange pattern of logic indeed in charging that President Eisenhower and Agriculture Secretary Benson have deliberately pushed farm prices down. One can scarcely conceive that even the farmers believe that. The Republican administration may have adopted policies that contributed to such a result but to contend that so suicidal a program was inaugurated for that purpose just doesn't make sense.

This is no defense of activities that have been engaged in, and it is a fact well known that the country's agricultural economy is depressed. But any politician or statesman should, and it is reasonably certain does, know that to bring about these conditions deliberately is as foolhardy as could be imagined, and that they would react in no certain terms upon the perpetrators.

Truman's address to a Farmer Labor group in St. Paul the other night was characteristic of his "give and sell" tactics of 1948 and 1952. Charges he brought with respect to farm prices smacks, however, of headline hunting and a desire to keep himself before the country as the darling of his party.

Future Demolition Experts

My brother, Bill Taylor's twin boys, Donald and Ronald, are probably the world's youngest demolition experts. Now three years old, they exhibited an unusual ability at their chosen profession at an early age.

By the time the little rascals were a year old they were chewing the bars out of their cribs. At two they were removing bricks from the fire place.

Now the boys have graduated to uprooting small trees and removing the wheels from the family automobiles. My brother and his family keep a pretty close watch on the twins because they live out in the woods. Fines and what with the television tower nearby, well, after all it's no telling what they will turn their talents to next.

To help us up all that ingenuity my brother tries to stay a step ahead of them by finding something to keep them busy.

The other night he hit the jackpot by buying two small pairs of scissors. He gave each boy a pair and a newspaper and set them on the den floor. The boys were delighted. They went right to work snipping on the papers and my brother slipped off to engage in other endeavors.

Things went along fine and when bedtime came the twins were still happily chopping at the newspapers. Bill and his wife Rita put the boys to bed and cleaned up the old papers.

That ended the matter. Or did it? The next morning Bill got up and went into the den where he had left a pair of shoes the day before. He started to pull on the shoes when he noticed something just wasn't right.

Yep, each shoe string had been carefully snipped down the middle. The laces fell into a dozen pieces.

Notebook On Life

Chief Secretarial Qualities

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Could Marilyn Monroe walk into the average American business office and land a job as a secretary?

No, siree, mister, she could not if you take the word of the nation's businessmen themselves, and I, for one, am not sure that I do.

A survey of leading executives on what they look for in a secretary, made by Carl Ray, research vice president of the Underwood Corp., placed personal charm way down on the list of desirable attributes. As a matter of fact, it ranked seventh.

Forty-six per cent of the bosses indicated they wanted initiative more than anything else in a secretary, Ray said.

Why don't they place a higher premium on glamour in hiring a lady typewriter jockey?

Ray conceded the executives were ruled partly by their own fear of what their wife would say, but that a too-pretty secretary would distract the other office hired hands, but added:

On a more positive basis, however, it's worth noting that secretaries today have to be executive assistants rather than just a plain old-fashioned secretary. What bosses really want is somebody who can mind the store while they're gone."

The sampling showed opinion was divided on the question of whether single married women make the best secretaries.

"Twenty-four per cent of the bosses stated a preference for single girls, 20 per cent preferred married secretaries, and the rest expressed no choice," Ray said.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
CREATIVENESS
Some months ago I visited a historic church in New England.

An elderly woman who traced her descent from the Pilgrim Fathers was the official hostess at this shrine and welcomed visitors.

She told us of a very substantial man about her own age whose farm was a model of neatness. He was particularly interested in his stone fences, and he was truly artistic in the way he built them. The lady in question wasn't too particular about her fences. She declared that the worst blast she ever got from anybody was the quiet declaration of her next neighbor who said one day: "Isabel, you do not keep up your stone fences." That was one notch above slapping her across the mouth.

We hear a great deal about creative work. It is supposed to consist of writing, painting, sculpturing, acting, and dancing. All these things may, or may not, be creative. But of one thing we can be sure, namely, that anything a person does well is creative. A meal well cooked is a creative activity. A sale which overcomes vast sales resistance is a creative accomplishment. A class well taught a room well swept a stone fence well built—these are all creative accomplishments.

Let us get a new conception of creativeness, and let us be assured that we can be creative. Don't let the high-and-mighty fool you—you can be creative too.

One executive wrote, "The married woman is not concerned with whimsy and dating. She does a better job." Another philosophized thusly: "It's really not important. If a girl is single today, she'll get married eventually anyway."

After initiative, the employers rated secretarial virtues in this order: The ability to type quickly and accurately, the ability to file and find information speedily, a winning telephone manner, punctuality and personal neatness.

None of the businessmen came out for bobby-soxers as secretaries. But 48 per cent said they preferred to hire a secretary "somewhere between 20 and 40 years old." Another 27 per cent stipulated she had to be between the ages of 30 and 40.

The magic age for a secretary today therefore would seem to be 30.

"Right now I consider the ideal age to be between 25 and 35," wrote a New York sales executive. "But if I were 80 I might say the ideal age were 60, or"—he added as an afterthought—"maybe 20."

What are the pet peeves of executives against their "favorite girl Friday?"

The chief sins of secretaries, the poll showed, are these: Some take too many coffee breaks, place too many personal phone calls at the office, take part in office gossip, or simply indulge in too much plain old feminine yakky yak.

Reversal Of Long Pro-Palestine Policy

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON The United States demand for United Nations censure of Israel for its attack on Syrian outposts along the shore of Lake Galilee marks a final and complete reversal of the Roosevelt-Truman pro-Palestine policy. Although a bold move, it may cost the GOP millions in votes and contributions in next fall's elections.

The basic reason for Arab hostility toward the United States, which has led to their closer association with Russia, is their belief that Israel is an American ward and protectorate. Truman and Roosevelt fostered this idea, and it paid off plentifully in five Presidential elections.

Although the Eisenhower Administration has pursued a more impartial policy, responding to international needs rather than domestic political considerations, the Arabs refuse to recognize the shift in attitude. The anti-American jobs in Jordan reflect their bitterness toward us, as does the prospective economic entente involving Moscow, Cairo and

New Delhi.

MAIN COMPLAINT OF ARABS is that official United States aid to Israel which provokes the Arabs, for that has been kept to a minimum under the Eisenhower regime. It is the private contributions and the purchase of Tel Aviv's bonds by Zionist sympathizers in the United States.

It is estimated that the total of these financial advances since Israel became a state amounts to more than $500,000,000. The annual United Jewish Appeal drive usually nets more than $40,000,000. Their dinners are frequently addressed by prominent Democratic politicians and Eisenhower aides at Washington.

When the "diplomatic" representatives of the Arab states recently laid their troubles before Secretary Dulles, they cited this financial underwriting as a chief cause of complaint. Emphasizing their resentment, they noted that Internal Revenue grants tax exemptions for these Israeli gifts, which they regard as an unfriendly act.

ANOTHER CHARGE The Arabs also charge that American policy in the Middle East has been influenced by domestic political factors—namely, the large Jewish turnout in cities where the outcome can swing the state's electoral vote to one Party or the other.

Dulles and Eisenhower have tried to demonstrate the contrary in a rare display of courage. The Secretary of State has lectured privately Abba Eban, Israel Ambassador at Washington for his country's pugnacious attitude. He has refused to supply arms to either side lest it lead to war, despite Moscow's sale of weapons to Egypt through Czechoslovakia.

Our association with England and France in condemning the attack on Syria climaxes our effort to prove our neutrality in the Middle East mess. Dulles, of course has no control over private contributions to Tel Aviv's cause.

ON EISENHOWER — EDEN AGENDA This controversy will be one of the most important items at Eisenhower-Roosevelt conferences next week. Britain definitely sides with the Arabs, her historic Allies. Her battered Empire will be weakened further, if

Third Big Prop Of Economy

By ELMER ROESSNER

Automobile sales this year may not reach the record they hit last year. Housing starts may be slightly less.

But that third great prop of the economy—plant and equipment expenditures—appears to be heading to a new high mark.

Outlays for plants and equipment in 1955 were high. A joint estimate by the Department of Commerce and the Securities and Exchange Commission put the total around $28.3 billion, an amount equal to the previous high in 1953. A survey by McGraw-Hill indicates the total was $28.4 billion.

Commerce-SEC experts said business intends to spend at an annual rate of $29.5 billion during the first three months of this year; the McGraw-Hill surveyors expect outlays of $33.4 billion over the full year.

CLEARING UP THE TERMS

Hasty reading of news and government reports on spending for plants and equipment, capital goods, industrial construction and total construction can be very confusing. Each of the terms refers to different groups of items, but the groups overlap considerably. This may help clear up matters:

Plant and equipment expenditures are the sums that business spends for new plants, accessories and machinery.

Capital goods is almost synonymous with plants and equipment, but spending for capital goods and spending for plants and equipment may differ sometimes.

For instance, a firm buying an old plant would be making an investment in capital goods, but that sum would not figure in totals for new plants.

Industrial construction refers to plants and other construction, such as access roads, etc., but does not include machinery.

Total construction includes industrial construction, housing and a number of other categories such as schools, churches, public buildings and highways.

Even then, sources of information and methods of calculating differ considerably. For instance, Commerce-SEC experts put 1955 plants and equipment outlays at $28.3 billion, while Fortune magazine economists put the total at $37.5 billion.

TOTAL CONSTRUCTION PROGRAMMING

Despite the expected decline in housing starts, almost all estimates for construction this year are encouraging. The F.W. Dodge Corp., construction reporting company, says that a rise in nonresidential construction in 37 states east of the Rockies will more than offset any decline in home building.

The Department of Commerce, this time in conjunction with the Department of Labor, estimated that spending for new construction last year was $42.25 billion, a new high record for the ninth consecutive year, and may go on to $48 billion this year.

Commerce-Labor estimators see a drop of only 3 per cent in new dwelling units, and gains such as 10 per cent in public construction, 15 per cent in military facilities, 17 per cent in industrial construction, 45 per cent in religious and 18 per cent in railroad.

Harold R. Berlin, Johns-Manville vice president, also estimates a $44 billion outlay this year and adds that modernization, remodeling, repairing and maintenance of existing structures will call for outlays of $21 billion more.

These increased expenditures will mean more industrial sales, more jobs and larger payrolls. And you can bet that business would not be putting huge sums into plants and equipment unless it believed the long-term outlook is rosy.

PERHAPS A CONSEQUENCE OF NUCLEAR FISSION

Housewives and decorators have gone mad, mad, mad over sunburst effects, judging from displays at the mid-winter Chicago furniture show.

There are planters with sunburst effects, clocks with sunbursts around them, mirrors with sunbursts along the walls and other kinds of decorative accessories sunbursting like crazy.

The difficulty is not settled promptly. She has already lost Suez and the Sudan; and she may have to evacuate Cyprus, her last stronghold in this vital area. Eden also has his grievances against us. American oil companies' royalties to Arab countries, especially Saudi Arabia, are financing anti-American, anti-British and anti-French demonstrations from Jerusalem, to Gibraltar, and all to the advantage of Russian agents and propagandists.

POLITICAL CAPITAL FOR DEMOCRATS The Democratic, of course, will make political capital of this international issue. Jake Arvey of Chicago, Adlai E. Stevenson's political sponsor, is a leader in the Zionist movement for sending money and refugees to Israel.

Governor Averell Harriman and Mayor Wagner of New York visited Palestine last year. Robert R. Nathan, director of Americans for Democratic Action, has served as an economist for Israel. Numerous labor unions have dipped into their treasury to express material sympathy for the embattled Holy Land.

Resident Of Panama Is Speaker For Women's Breakfast Club

Greenville Credit Women's Breakfast Club held a regular meeting on Saturday morning, January 14, at the Old Towne Inn. Mrs. Henrietta Johnson, president, welcomed the members and guests.

Miss Barbara Dail of the Jane Shop was introduced and welcomed as a new member. Two of the club's sponsors, Mr. Robert Greene of Best Jewelry Company, and Mr. Dan Saleed of Saleed's were guests for the meeting.

Mrs. Cassie Sawyer, chairman of the Sunshine Committee, reported that more than 150 articles of clothing were turned over to relief agencies in December.

Mrs. Louise Wilson, chairman of the Finance Committee, reported on the club's Special Gift Fund.

Mrs. Earline Coghill, chairman of Educational Committee, announced that the first lesson of the new Credit Course would be taught at the next regular meeting.

The president announced that the first lesson of the Reading Course would be given Friday night, Jan. 20, at 7:30 in Room 102 of Austin Bldg. at East Carolina College under the supervision of Miss Emma Hooper.

Miss Elizabeth Deal, program chairman, introduced the guest speaker, Mr. R. C. Worsley of Panama, Republic of Panama. Mr. Worsley was born and grew up in Rocky Mount and worked for the Atlantic Coast Line until he went to the Canal Zone in 1911 as a Civil Service employee. In 1914 he left the Canal service and was employed by the Union Oil Company of California, later becoming district manager. Upon his retirement from that company in 1950, he established his present business in Panama City as steamship representative and commission agent. He is active in and a charter member of the Union Church of the Canal Zone, in Scouting, in Rotary, in YMCA-USO and other civic activities. Mr. Worsley gave his listeners a vivid word picture of today's social, business and economic conditions in Panama.

Dr. Haney Honored On Anniversary

Under the direction of Mrs. W. H. Woodard Sr. and Mrs. L. S. Garriss, a beautiful dinner was served by the women of the Christian Woman's Fellowship at the Eighth Street Christian Church Sunday, January 15, honoring Dr. H. G. Haney on the thirtieth anniversary of his ministry in Greenville.

The occasion was a complete surprise to the honoree. Immediately preceding the benediction at the morning service the surprise announcement was made and a cordial invitation to all present to remain for the dinner was extended by J. B. Cummings, chairman of the Official Board.

After the invocation was pronounced, Dr. and Mrs. Haney were asked to cut the cake on which were the words "Happy 30th Anniversary" All joined in the singing of "Happy Anniversary."

Dr. Haney was the recipient of many good wishes by the large number of people who thoroughly enjoyed the happy occasion.

Alumni Dinner Planned Tuesday

The annual dinner of the Greenville-Pitt chapter of the East Carolina College Alumni Association will be held at the Alumni-Faculty building on the college campus next Tuesday, January 24. Mrs. Robert W. Fennell, chapter president, has announced. Time of the dinner is 7 o'clock.

Reservations for this event are being made by mail or by telephone through the Alumni Office, 6101, extension 17; Mrs. Dorothy W. Johnson, 2651; Mrs. R. W. Fennell, 3340; James Butler, 5023. Deadline for reservations is Jan. 21.

Mrs. Fennell is being assisted by Mrs. Lily Rouse Carr and Mrs. Margaret Hux in plans for the dinner which will include a musical program. Alumni from over Pitt County are urged to attend. They may make reservations by mail through the Alumni Office at the college.

Two Charged In Soya Bean Theft

WINTERVILLE — Three men were arrested by sheriff's department deputies here yesterday and charged with the theft of soya beans from the R.E. Davenport farm.

Under arrest are Edwin Phillips, Roosevelt Greene and Oliver Crandell. All are Negroes and all reside in Winterville.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said the beans were taken from a pack house on the Davenport farm, Monday night.

The three are to be tried in County Court January 30.

They were arrested by Deputies Duke Andrews and N.H. Byrd.

Local Jaycees Plan Bond-Selling Effort

Business Development Corporation of North Carolina stock will be sold by local Jaycees in an intensive three-day campaign following Governor Luther Hodges' speech here January 25.

The club will be conducting the campaign locally as a part of the state-wide Jaycee project to sell $10,000 of the North Carolina small industries boosting organization stock.

Chairman of the local Jaycee industrial committee, John Lautares, said today that members of the local club will contact all civic organizations in the city to explain the functions of the corporation.

In addition, tentative plans are being made for a meeting at which individuals interested in the corporation may obtain information.

During the three-day drive to sell stock, January 26, 27 and 28, Jaycee members will contact local businessmen and others to sell shares in the corporation.

Purchasers may buy as many shares of stock as they desire at $10 per share, Lautares said.

The committee chairman noted that M.K. Blount, who was appointed by the governor some time ago to sell stock in this area, held a meeting about a month ago attended by prominent local citizens who purchased shares.

Lautares noted that the meeting was a huge success.

The chairman said that originally the instigators of the organization planned to sell $400,000 in stock and they asked the state Jaycees to sell $100,000.

The governor and others have since sold over $800,000 worth of the corporation's stock. The charter limits the sale of stock to $1,000,000.

Bridge Parties Held At Grifton

GRIFTON—Mrs. J. M. Hart was hostess on Thursday night at her home on Queen Street at a dessert bridge. Seasonal decorations were used throughout the home with emphasis on the mantel bouquet of mixed pompoms.

Three tables were placed for the game and bridge was played progressively with Mrs. R. L. Jackson and Mrs. Woodrow Smith scoring high for club members and Mrs. David Parker high among the visitors. Others playing were Mesdames W. E. Rasberry, Edward Hart, Julius Chauncey, Glendel Tucker, Sam Nelson, Ben C. Tucker, Walter Patrick, Claude Hart and Joe Goolsby.

At the refreshment hour a dessert with coffee was enjoyed.

On Friday night Mrs. Bryan Davis entertained members of her contract club at an enjoyable party at her home on Queen Street. Guests were received in the living room where three tables were placed for bridge. On arrival cherry pie a la mode with coffee was served.

During the bridge games Mrs. Albert Tyson and Mrs. David Parker scored high for club members and Mrs. Roger Johnson among the visitors. The consolation prize went to Mrs. Claud Hart. Others playing were Mrs. Becky Worthington, Paul Bradley, Clifton Jackson, Wilbur Murphy, Jack Tucker, Miss Ruth E. Smith and Miss Louise Mewborn.

Mrs. and Mr. J. M. Hart received members of their couples club on Friday night at a delightful party. Seasonal decorations were in evidence. During the evening a sandwich plate with Coca-Colas was passed.

Mrs. Edward Hart and Mr. David Parker received high score prizes. Others playing were Mr. Hart, Mrs. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Jackson and Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Rasberry.

Trade Promotion committee of the merchants Association will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the association office in City Hall. Chairman J. D. McGlohon, Jr. said the main business will be setting a date planning for Dollar Day.

Trial Date Set For Actor's Son

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Trial of Edward G. Robinson Jr., 22, on a charge of plain drunk has been set for Feb. 29 and his bail continued at $20.
The son of the motion picture actor pleaded innocent yesterday. He was arrested last Friday night while waiting to board a plane for New York for a meeting with his father. A policeman said young Robinson tried to punch him.
Although adult bald eagles are heavier than young ones, the immature eagles often have larger dimensions because of longer feathers.

THE PHANTOM

Game Of Darts For Jet Pilots

WENDOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Utah (AP)—American fighter pilots are trying a new game of darts—played at nearly supersonic speed high above the earth—to sharpen their shooting eyes.

In a twist on the old game, the object in this one is to hit the target with bullets and cannon fire from jet fighters. It's a serious and difficult game that for the first time gives pilots a chance to test their aim on a target as hard to hit as enemy aircraft, maybe harder.

The naval ordnance test center at Inyokern, Calif., invented the new target, and both the Navy and Air Force have adopted it.

Air Force sharpshooters from Tactical Air Command are here now working out new techniques and looking for ways to improve the target.

The target is called the Dart because that's what it looks like—a red-painted steel and plywood dart 12 feet long and 4 feet across the rear of its four fins. A jet tow plane hooks on and snatches it off a "cradle" in the same way gliders are launched. But the Dart doesn't glide. It screams across the sky, looking like a comic strip drawing of a ship from outer space, at the end of its 2,000-foot nylon tow rope.

For many years, fighter pilots have practiced on towed targets in the shape of long, rectangular banners. These have too much air resistance for the tow plane to get up much speed. Not until the Dart came along, an Air Force officer said, was there a target that gave jet pilots a chance to practice under conditions close to those of combat.

Timely Address For New Hotel

DALLAS (AP)—Hotelman Conrad N. Hilton yesterday got a timely new address for the plush 16-million-dollar 1,001-room Statler Hilton which is being opened here this week. The entrance of the 20-story structure, which covers almost an entire block, is at 1914 Commerce but Mayor R. L. Thornton officially designated the hotel's address at 1856 Commerce to coincide with the year of the opening.

New Ford Stock Rises Above Scheduled Price

NEW YORK (AP)—The new Ford Motor stock commanded a premium of around $5 a share today, above the full-dress trading had begun.

Limited buying and selling of the stock started late yesterday immediately after clearance by the Securities and Exchange Commission of the huge 10,200,000-share offering at a price of $64.50 a share. Today, the date for the formal offering, Wall Street looks for a big turnover.

In the over-the-counter market here, the shares moved quickly to $70.37 1/2 bid, $70.50 asked. That confirmed Wall Street expectations that the stock would rise because demand so far outstrips supply.

Clearance by the SEC meant that the Ford company had complied with legal requirements by making a full disclosure concerning the stock and the firm's financial position. That was the last step necessary before trading could begin.

Scout Honor For Paralyzed Boy

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—In a special televised Boy Scout court of honor Toby Craddock, 16, who has been a polio victim since he was three received the Eagle Scout badge last night.

Toby, son of Mrs. Betty Craddock, walked 20 miles on crutches to qualify for the badge. Polio left his legs paralyzed.

Toby completed five 10-mile hikes plus the 20-mile hike. He also swam 500 yards instead of the 150 yards required for the badge and doubled up on his water rescue yardage.

NO SUPPRESSION LONDON (AP)—The British Press Council refused last night to suppress the names of persons under 30 who figure in homosexual court cases. The Council of Magistrates Assn. had suggested newspapers omit names to prevent young persons in court cases from being approached by older, confident homosexuals. The press council, which acts as a "conscience" of Britain's newspapers, objected to the idea.

much of the stock they'll get—if any. Thousands have been allotted no more than 10 or 20 shares and many will get less than 10. Blyth & Co., principal underwriter, estimated that Ford will have between 250,000 and 300,000 stockholders when the offering is completed.

The shares will trade in the over-the-counter market until around March 1, when they will move to the New York Stock Exchange. Ford also plans to list them on several regional exchanges and may eventually apply for listing on Canadian and European exchanges.

The sale will bring in $667,000,000. Underwriters and investment dealers will claim $618,300,000—$1.50 a share—in discounts and commissions leaving $448,800,000 for the Ford Foundation, which is selling the stock.

Two Women Are Injured In Auto Collision Here

A two-car collision at Boyd and Dickinson Avenues last night sent two women to Pitt Memorial Hospital. Neither were believed seriously hurt.

Investigating police said the wreck involved cars operated by Jessie Smith, 32, of 1116 Colonial Avenue and Ronald Collins 22, of Lonsburg. Collins was cited for failure to stop for a red light.

Miss Patsy Leonard 18, an East Carolina College student and a passenger in Collins' car, received facial cuts and bruises while Mrs. Margaret Smith, wife was riding with her husband, was treated for shock.

Damage to the vehicles was estimated at $400 each.

OFF THE AIR LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Charles S. Hansborough, 34, saw an empty police cruiser yesterday and decided to use its radio. Detectives Joseph Pirrman and George Kleinhaus said they found him stretched out on the front seat trying to call in a "110-8," police code for "available for duty." The officers told him he was "10-7"—off the air for investigation. They charged him with disorderly conduct.

Takes $32,000 To Avoid Strain

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Mabel Morris, a 75-year-old retired school teacher who has been receiving city financial aid, took her $32,000 winnings and quit the $64,000 Question CBS television quiz show last night.

She said doctors had examined her pulse and told her the excitement of trying for the grand prize would be too great.

Mrs. Morris, an English-born widow, had reached the $32,000 mark in four previous sessions of the show by answering complicated questions about Charles Dickens and his books—her chosen category.

She has been a resident of the Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews for several years.

Mrs. Morris has said she would repay $6,000 or $7,000 to the City Welfare Department, which has contributed to her upkeep at the home. Approximately $14,000 in federal taxes and $2,000 in state taxes will have to be paid.

Even though she will have about $9,000 or $10,000 left for herself, an official at the home said her desire to remain there would be worked out somehow.

Collect 10 Cents For Each Step

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Two members of a Houston Marine Reserve unit trudged into Austin yesterday and estimated that they had collected nearly 10 cents for the March of Dimes on each of the 36,000 steps they took in their 160-mile hike. Staff Sgt. Nolan G. Henry and Hospital Mate 2.C. Charles R. Blumar left Houston Jan. 7. They collected more than $32,000 for the polio drive and lost 10 to 12 pounds on the hike. They were given heroes' welcome along the route and were escorted by high school bands at a number of towns.

Fire Chief Was Heaviest Loser

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Fire Chief Joe Lobue was the heaviest loser yesterday in a fire that swept through a burlap bag company for a third time in two months. Owners said their loss was not great because most of the material destroyed was salvaged from the two previous fires. But Lobue lost his $8,000 diamond-studded badge while fighting the blaze. The badge was a gift from friends after he became chief in 1953.

Phantoms Pulverize Visiting Roanoke Rapids By 81-35

G-Men Rip Into Visitors With Scoring Attack

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Writer

Greenville high school's Phantoms ripped through a defenseless Roanoke Rapids crew here last night 81-35, pulverizing the visitors by a 46-point margin, to post their fourth Northeastern conference victory in as many games.

The red-hot G-men opened hostilities with a bang last night, as every man of the starting Phantom five sank shots from all over the court. In the first quarter, the sputtering RR attack idled and almost came to a halt, while their hosts were buffeting the nets at a phenomenal 92 percent accuracy clip. At the end of the period, GHS held a 20-4 lead.

Phantom starters who began the tremendous assault were Ike Riddick and Ray Hardee at guards, Billy Johnson and Jerry Drum at forwards, and big Harold Edwards at center. These boys continued to scorch the hoops in the second quarter and at once pushed the score to 28-4.

Harris Caldwell, Roanoke's only man to hit the double figures, helped his squad to throw in 13 points during the second period, but Riddick, Drum and Edwards discounted those points by leading their Green Men in a total of 21 markers. The half ended with the scoreboard registering a 41-17 arrangement.

Best Phantom Effort
The third quarter chalked up the best Phantom effort of the evening as the first stringers ran wild and recklessly over the helpless Yellow Jacket quintet. Big Harold Edwards, Greenville's All-Conference center, dumped in 14 points during this single period, before Coach Boley Farley started flooding the court with reserves. Riddick and Billy Johnson also pumped away with deadly accuracy. Midway in the quarter, Coach Farley drew his top five out and kept them on the bench the rest of the night. Reserves Tommy Norris, Mack Roebuck, Joe Wingate, Angus Duff and Wayne Eldson carried on the attack. When the starters left the game, the score was an unbelievable 63-19.

When the buzzer ended the quarter, Greenville led, 69-23, and Coach Farley was still pouring substitutes into the game. Roger Bulock entered as a guard, and played out the rest of the contest. Others in the lineup were Roebuck, Duff, Norris, Wingate. Roanoke Rapids could muster only 6 points during the period while the home squad pushed across 28.

The final period found the Greenville reserves putting on a good show against the thoroughly thrashed quintet. One of the most colorful ball-handlers on the squad, sophomore Mack Roebuck, revived spectator interest in the lopsided event with occasional deceptive passes that fooled even his teammates. Besides adding a dash of color to the encounter, Roebuck accounted for 6 Phantom points. Every man on the team scored, except two, tallied points for the cause.

Edwards High Scorer Again
High man in the point department (though he played only half the game) was Edwards, who racked up a total of 22. Ike Riddick was second with 17 and Billy Johnson followed with 10.

Roanoke Rapids, who entered the contest with a 2-4 record, had met and fell before three conference foes. They were downed by Jacksonville by a two-point margin, lost to Washington by three, and suffered a 30-point setback at the hands of the Kinston Red Devils. Kinston shares the loop lead with the Phantoms, both being undefeated.

Jacket Coach Bill Miller stated after the contest that the Kinston-Greenville game would be close, but predicted that the Red Devils have a slight edge. "With the big boy rough," Edwards he commented, "Greenville will probably take one of the two games against Kinston."

By way of statistical comparison, it could be noted that the Green trounced Roanoke 16 points more than did Kinston.

Tommy Mont Named Coach For Maryland Footballers

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Tommy Mont has been named to succeed Jim Tatum as football coach at the University of Maryland.

Bill Cobey, a university graduate like Mont, was appointed athletic director.

Tatum, who quit Jan. 8 to go back to his alma mater of North Carolina, had held both jobs.

Dr. Wilson H. Elkins, university president, made it plain he had gone no farther than Maryland itself to pick Mont and Cobey to take over for Tatum, who had built its greatest football teams from 1947-55. Maryland won 71 out of 87 scheduled games and three of six postseason bowls.

"I decided I should look at our own staff and stay within it," said Dr. Elkins yesterday. In future, he said, "we would like to accent as much as we possibly can Maryland boys."

At this point, Tatum interposed somewhat of an objection to the idea that he hadn't accepted as many Maryland high school boys as potentially good football players.

He pointed out the 15 of 46 on last year's undefeated squad were more than on Maryland's 1946 squad and proportionately more than on the North Carolina squad he is inheriting.

Dr. Elkins said the 33-year-old Mont, an assistant to Tatum since 1951, was a "natural" to implement the policy of "Maryland football for Marylanders" since he was a native of Cumberland, Md., and a 1946 graduate of the university, for which he was a quarterback.

At the same time, he sought to assure all that the selection of a "home grown" product didn't mean de-emphasis of football at Maryland.

Pirates Host To McCrary Eagles

East Carolina's cagers, having suffered their first North State Conference defeat over the weekend, entertain the McCrary Eagles in a non-conference contest here tomorrow night.

Coach Howard Porter's Pirates, buffeted by injuries, are expected to have their hands full with the star-studded independents, who have beaten some of the best teams around.

The Eagles handed the locals one of their six setbacks last season and came as close as anybody to snapping the Bucs' home court string.

They hold victories over North State powers, Elon and High Point, and have lost only to the Phillips Oilers and Davidson while recording 10 wins.

Headlining their team are Jim Jordan and Smith Langdon, a couple of 6-6 boys. Jordan is the former Western Carolina whiz and Langdon a Campbell College product.

Other noted personnel are Bob Shoaf, who paced the North State Conference scoring several years ago while at Guilford, and Bob Takin, a former Phillips man.

East Carolina will go into the game way below top strength. Fred James, a starting guard, is out indefinitely with a dislocated shoulder and Nick Nichols, star forward, is plagued with a bad shoulder.

"We're not sure about Nick's condition—whether he'll be able to play or not—and won't know until he works out this afternoon. If he can't play our offense and defense will be weakened badly."

Porter declined to say who he starts in Nichols' place. "We plan to do a little experimenting today. Everett (Maurice) started against WCC and did well and Smothers (Tim) played well in the Lenoir Rhyme game. Still, we're not sure how well they'll work," Porter commented.

Heat Is Still On UNC Cagers As They Play Host To State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The University of North Carolina's basketball team, which vaulted to the top of the Atlantic Coast Conference scramble by the arduous process of winning three games in four nights, finds the heat still very much on tonight as it takes to its home court at Chapel Hill to meet the challenge of defending champion North Carolina State.

The meeting of ranking national powers, State is No. 3 and North Carolina ninth in the country, may result in Duke's interested bystanders moving into first place without having to fire a basket.

North Carolina has a 7-1 conference record against 6-1 for Duke and 4-1 for N.C. State. A State victory tonight would push Duke, No. 7 in the nation and idle until it plays at Kentucky Feb. 1, into the top spot.

North Carolina has shaded South Carolina by two points, outlasted Clemson in double overtime and dumped Maryland since last Friday to move into the lead.

A sellout crowd of 6,000 will jam the Tar Heels' Woolen Gymnasium while the stay-at-homes will be treated to the second of three "broadvision" experiments. The university's education television station, WUNC-TV, will carry only screen coverage of the game. Viewers will have to turn on their radios for an accompanying word picture over commercial radio stations. TV station officials decided on the novel plan to serve their viewers while not competing with radio.

North Carolina State has lost only to Duke in 13 games, while North Carolina has a 12-2 record. The Tar Heels' ACC loss was to Wake Forest, N.C. State walloped North Carolina, 82-60, in the finals of the Dixie Classic tournament last month.

That game saw N.C. State turn in one of its finest efforts in 10 years under coach Everett Case. A scorching attack saw State hit for 34 baskets as all Wolfpack starters scored in double figures. The State zone defense, meanwhile, checked the Tar Heels with 19 baskets.

It was right after that game that Tony Radovich, a senior guard from Hoboken, N.J., began to move back into prominence. Tony, who was a regular last season, had given way to this year's sophomore "youth movement," but Frank McGuire has had to give back the job to him. Tony has averaged 12 points in the last six games, hitting for 16 in Monday's victory over Maryland.

"Tony was so persistent we had to give him a chance," said McGuire, adding, "it's heart-warming to see a senior like Tony fight to regain his job."

Radovich's efforts have helped take some of the scoring load off the shoulders of junior forward Lennie Rosenbluth. No. 1 man in the ACC with a 24.1 average starting the week.

N.C. State has no one scorer to match Rosenbluth, but the Wolfpack has Vic Molodet (18.7) and Ron Shavlik (18.0) as a potent one-two punch.

SIGNED BY TORONTO
TORONTO (AP)—Willie James Little of Goldsboro, N.C., has been signed by the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

The 19-year-old centerfielder and shortstop will be given a spring training trial, general manager Ruel Schaefer said.

Winterville Wins 2 Loop Contests

Winterville took two games from Stokes-Pactolus last night, the boys winning 64-46, the girls racking up a 74-64 triumph.

Barbara Evans got a total of 23 points to lead her team in scoring and her steady field goals were a big factor in the Winterville victory. Nina Perkins scored 30 for Stokes-Pactolus.

Winterville's Sawyer took the honors for the boys' contest, dropping in 19 to pace his team to a 64-46 conference win.

Bethel Boys Win Over Jamesville

Bethel and Jamesville split a double header last night. Bethel took the boys' game 79-56, while Jamesville's girls pulled a 68-43 win over the host girls.

Briley of the Bethel girls took scoring honors for the night with a total of 32 markers.

In the boys' contest, W. White of Bethel collected 18 to pace his boys to triumph. Ellis dumped in 22 to take top honors but that was not enough to stop the roaring Bethel attack.

U. S. Winter Olympic Prospects Are Dubious

By STERLING SLAPPEY
CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—In the cold and snow of Oslo in 1952, the United States sent a chill down the spines of the winter sports countries.

The Yanks took home four Olympic gold medals—and that's four more than anyone thought they could win.

Will the American upstarts do it again this year in the seventh Winter Olympiad, which opens here a week from tomorrow?

The answer in this Alpine village high in the north of Italy is "No," if you care to listen to the experts.

Most folks connected with the games here think the Americans will win two gold medals and maybe a third. But they're sure it won't be four. Many of the Americans themselves admit that the odds are against them winning four.

The first-place finishers in the Oslo games were Mrs. Andrea Mead Lawrence in the women's slalom and giant slalom, Dick Button in figure skating and Ken Henry in the 500-meter speed skating.

Mrs. Lawrence and Henry are back again, but Button has turned professional. Strangely, neither Mrs. Lawrence nor Henry are expected to repeat.

Mrs. Lawrence, who has had three children since the last Olympics, has been coming along slowly and it's doubtful if she'll hit her top form by the time the games get under way.

Henry, who is now 27—a grey-beard as speed skaters go—has been erratic recently and has not inspired confidence among his mates. His performance in the Swiss International Championships at Davos today will be watched closely.

America's best bets are two figure skaters—Tenly Albright of Newton Center, Mass., and Hayes Allen Jenkins of Colorado Springs. Miss Albright, once a victim of polio, was the women's world champion in 1953 and Jenkins has captured the men's world crown the past three years. They are regarded as almost sure winners.

The United States bobsled team would be the favorite if it had more chance to practice on the run here. The Yanks have whipped down the treacherous chute only five times while the Italians using their "home" course, have tried it 60 times.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BARUTNER, Real Estate Editor

This is the time of year when we can appreciate a warm house. Isn't it a luxury to have every room around 70 degrees, no matter how the wind howls outside? And wouldn't it be nice to keep the temperature at that point next summer when the mercury outside hits the high 90s or more?

Well, there are now about a quarter of a million homes (out of some 45 million in the U.S.) that already have this year-round temperature control summer and winter heating and fall. It's automatic. You set the thermostat at 70, or whatever you like, and leave it there from New Year's Day to New Year's Eve.

In fact, the home owner or homeowner who wants to hedge against that costly disease called obsolescence, is now going in for year-round air conditioning. Signs today indicate very plainly that within a few years a house that does not have automatic comfort control through all seasons will be as antiquated and hard to sell as any present house lacking a furnace.

LOTS OF US can remember houses that depended on fireplaces or ornate coal stoves in the main rooms to heat the house. But furnaces and boilers won out. It looks like that history story will be repeated by air conditioning.

The industry expects to almost double the number of completely air conditioned homes during 1956—to install 200,000 central air conditioning plants in homes. Ten years from now the goal is to produce 1,200,000 such systems per year. That would equal the total number of new houses that are now being built annually.

We got these figures from Cloud Wampler, head of the Carrier Corp. which is carrying on work pioneered by Dr. Willis H. Carrier, who invented air conditioning in 1902. It took 50 years for Dr. Carrier's idea to really get going, but it took almost a century for the warm air furnace to become widely popular. A do-it-yourself Yankee in Worcester, Mass., started that idea by putting his stove down in the cellar.

YOU CAN'T pooh-pooh air conditioning today. It is much more than a mere summer cooling gadget. It includes both temperature and humidity control. It involves the cleaning, filtering and circulation of air to remove dust, pollen and other pollution. It's ventilation for comfort and a lot of other things that sound like a commercial on the radio.

A number of engineers scratching their heads to keep on perfecting the idea is amazing. They work to convert hot water heating to summer cooling and dehumidifying systems. They ponder the water problem for extracting the heat from the refrigerant used for cooling. They come up with various wind boxes and cascading water towers to cut down operating costs.

And allied industries are pitching in. Because of the importance of insulation in keeping down air conditioning costs, the Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. is now selecting houses in 20 cities to see if an average home anywhere in the country can be heated and cooled the year-round for $10 per month, $120 annually. Five or six houses ranging from $10,000 to $25,000 in price are being used as guinea pigs in each of the 20 cities for this test.

OF COURSE the cost factor is big in air conditioning. That is why so many people start out with individual room air conditioners. "The room air conditioner," Mr. Wampler told us, "is a good first taste of air conditioning and the cheapest, available product of the industry. In 1955, sales of room units jumped to about 1,400,000 at a retail volume of more than $25 million dollars."

And as for central plants in a house, taking the place of the seasonal furnace he predicted: "Virtually all heating installations will be made with complete air conditioning in mind for economical conversion."

Eisenhower And Industry Betting On Good Times

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Both President Eisenhower in his budget and industry in its expansion plans are betting on continuing good times. This stands out against a background of increasing nervousness in financial quarters where a number of observers today sight what they believe to be the cresting of the prosperity wave.

The President's belief that the economy is headed still higher this year is shown in his estimate of government receipts. He expects government revenues to rise by $1.5 billion dollars in the fiscal year starting next July.

The only way this could happen would be for good times to continue and to blossom even more. That would assure increased collections from corporation incomes. It would provide higher totals of salaries and wages from which the government could collect an increased total of individual income taxes. The higher corporate and individual incomes would be made in 1956—because collections on income in booming 1955 will be for the most part complete in this fiscal year ending June 30.

To collect $1.5 billion dollars more next year means, therefore, that this year will have to be even better than last. Many industrial leaders are betting the same way. Businessmen are planning to spend more—at least in the first part of this year, for new plants and better equipment than they did a year ago.

Latest example is General Motors. President Harlow H. Cuffice has assured his fellow business leaders that backing his confidence in continued national prosperity, GM will spend a record one billion dollars this year for plant and machinery.

Curtice also says business in general will see "another record year" in 1956 and a new high in the gross national product—the dollar value of total output of industry and services.

For his own industry he predicts "the second best year in production and sales"—second only to record-breaking 1955.

But in many quarters enthusiasm has been changing to caution, and in such places as the stock market from caution to nervousness. The steel industry notes that auto makers, cutting production and employ lists, are also cutting back on steel orders more than had been expected.

Retailers who were here for their convention last week say they'd like to raise prices on many goods. But many say they fear customer resistance if they do.

SULLIVAN TOO BUSY HOLLYWOOD—"The Ed Sullivan Story" won't be filmed this season, Warner Bros. studio said yesterday. Sullivan, Broadway columnist and star of a television variety show, can't arrange his commitments to absent himself for the eight weeks required to film a story about his life, the studio said.

Tail Is Now Wagging The Hollywood 'Dog'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Now the tail is wagging the dog.

Television used to be a dirty word among the movie studios. Film bosses spoke of the tiny screen only in terms of disdain.

Look at them now! The studios are scrambling to cash in on the TV gold. Most of them are making films for TV, several are selling their features and shorts to the new medium, and all are using it to exploit their new pictures.

The most TV-conscious of the lots is RKO, which has already sold its old pictures to TV under the new ownership of the O'Neils of General Tire. Heading the studio is Daniel O'Shea, former Selznick executive most recently with CBS. His production chief is Bill Dozier, another film veteran who served with CBS.

Dozier is outspoken in his regard for TV as an aid for films. "I believe that television is the greatest developer of talent this country has ever known," said Dozier, who was in charge of CBS dramatic shows in the East and then a Hollywood production boss.

Former Ranger Is Riding Trail

GAINESVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Tom Hickman, 70, one of the most famous of former Texas Rangers, weathered sleet and freezing rain yesterday to start his horseback trek down the old Chisholm Trail to Fort Worth. Shunning all modern conveniences Hickman riding his favorite horse, had bed roll and cooking equipment on a pack horse and is sleeping in the open. He is heading for the Southwestern Exposition and Fair Stock Show which opens the latter part of this month in Fort Worth.

"Even more than vaudeville, which developed mostly entertainers, TV has provided training ground for actors, writers, directors, producers in comedy, drama and all fields.

"Look at the names TV has brought forth already. A few years ago, Audrey Hepburn did a show for me at $600, including a week's rehearsal. Now you'd probably have to give her $250,000 a picture plus a cut of the profits.

"Eva Marie Saint did a show for me at $400—and this was after she did 'On the Waterfront.' Now I see MGM has offered her $100,000 to do a picture. Others who did shows for $500 were Grace Kelly, Paul Newman, Rod Steiger, Ernest Borgnine."

February War On Rabid Foxes

LOUISA, Ky. (AP)—Lawrence County's campaign to rid itself of rabid foxes will be put on a higher scientific level in February. Gas bombs will be fired into the animals' dens. February is the month when most foxes are denning. Rabid foxes have killed about 50 head of livestock recently.

Comedy Hour's Failure Is Attributed To Higher Ups

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—As noted here a week ago, the first NBC Comedy Hour failed to get off the ground. It's sad to report, but neither did the second.

It's sad because a lot of money was spent on a lot of talent in an effort to be entertaining. You may not live by audience rating figures, but the advertising agencies along Madison Avenue often do.

The first Sunday, the 15-city Trendex survey rated the Comedy Hour at 15.8 against Ed Sullivan's 34.6. Last Sunday's figures are even more dismal, 11.8 against 35. Seldom has a show been so belabored by the critics, but before we raise a stick to beat against let's pause and ask: What has happened here?

The man placed in command of this debacle is Sam Fuller, one of the nicest, most intelligent guys I've ever met in television. I bled for him, as I do for all field commanders ordered to hold or take impossible positions by rear area high commands. Fuller is fighting valiantly with all the hastily assembled and inadequate forces at his disposal. But the superior resources of Ed Sullivan on CBS-TV are just too much.

There's not much sense in blaming that old millman, Leo Durocher, a baseball manager in civilian life who never had a baptism of fire as a master of ceremonies before his current role. Rather, let's track the blame to supreme headquarters—to Robert Sarnoff, president of NBC, and Sylvester L. (Pat) Weaver, chairman of the board, where the idea must have been thought up.

Little thorough strategic planning is in evidence there. After Sullivan knocked the Colgate Variety Hour out of the way, they apparently decided the only way to beat Sullivan was to do something much like Sullivan's program—naive as silencing your artillery and saying only your infantry can defeat your opponent's infantry. Then they compounded the error by moving hastily and without adequate preparation.

When the history of this present campaign is written, let's not place all the blame on the guys in the field.

A golden eagle will eat as much as two pounds of meat daily.

A Doctor in the Family

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

For that one brief second, Linda's lips were soft beneath the man's brusque, demanding kiss. For that brief time his cheek knew the silken touch of her hair, his arms held her soft body—but then, as sharp as a knife blade, she stiffened and drew back, her hand brushing across her lips her eyes angry and outraged.

"Don't speak!" she cried. The man rose, stepped back and bowed.

"Just go," said Linda, feeling her strength run out of her. She wanted to keep her dignity—she also wanted to cry like a child, sobbing aloud.

She waited until she heard the front door close behind Rupert. Then she did sob a little as she tidied the room, made the fire safe for the night, turned off the single lamp and went out.

When she reached the upper hall, her head bowed, she started violently to hear Seretha call to her from the door of the green guest room.

"Linda! Will you come in here?" She stood for a minute, more surprised to see Ma'am above stairs than anything else. She went across to the door—Alan was standing against the far windows, his dark face grave.

"Come in, please," said Seretha, "and close the door, Linda."

Alan made a move of some sort. Linda closed the door, and walked a little way into the room, her heart weighted with misery and shame. "Has something happened?" she asked faintly.

"I would say that a great deal has happened," Seretha answered coldly. "You are in the best position to say—or know—how much."

"I don't understand..."

"Well, we understand. But let's stop hedging. If you've come to tell us that you are leaving the house, that you plan to divorce my son and marry Dr. Ernst, I must urge you immediately to consider our position and feelings."

"It's what she wants me to do, thought Linda. She's been edging me to this position all along. In some way she knows that Rupert kissed me tonight, and she's told Alan. Right at the first Ma'am said that another man would make a difference. So deep was she in her thoughts that Linda did not realize her failure to speak. She stood, head down, silent.

"Perhaps the entire family is with Ma'am, and they all want me to leave. Perhaps Ma'am knows this..." Her head tipped up her eyes held a question—and then she all but smiled. Why, I recognize her tactics! I've seen through them from the first! Tonight she has drawn poor Alan into the effort, Ma'am is a jealous woman. She is jealous of the place I have taken in the house, and with Father, I nursed him when he was sick, instead of Ma'am, his wife. She is jealous of my place with Alan... Seretha had deliberately developed this situation! By clever suggestion and sly innuendo about her childishness, the scheming, tyrannical old woman had driven Linda to her foolish declaration to Alan, and her panicky separation from him.

Her methods were so obvious as to be laughable! Linda would laugh at her, and denounce her. Alan would take his wife's side, and—

But, a glance at Alan silenced her. In his face Linda could read only shock. No grim amusement, no anger, nor resentment. Just shock.

Seretha had told him of the kiss, and apparently he was ready to believe anything else his mother might tell him.

Deeply hurt, angry and still not speaking, Linda turned, opened the door, went into the hall and across to her own room. She'd leave if they wanted her to. Of course, she would not with Rupert, of course. He had only been behaving according to his idea that a woman wanted men to act so.

She would not let Ma'am force her into anything! Alan would come to her for an explanation. He must come.

Across the hall in the green room, Alan now was speaking. "Ma'am, I must ask you, again, to let Linda and me alone."

"Let you alone. Permit you to stand back and allow her to leave you?"

"She has not mentioned leaving, has she?"

"That's what she is planning, all right! And she can't do it, Alan!" He looked at her curiously. "I had been deeply shocked by a sudden suspicion that Ma'am was forcing Linda to leave. Linda had thought so too. He knew that she had—he could read Linda's eyes; she was no dissembler.

Nor was Alan, where his mother was concerned. Seretha instantly had recognized the shock in his face and knew that retreat would be her better course; so when he said, curiously, "It sounded as if you wanted her to get out," she could put her hand on his sleeve, and say earnestly, "Of course, I don't want that, Alan. We must not let her do such a thing, Son!"

"Why not?"

Her head snapped up. "But, love was not just physical union. It was a spiritual communion, as well.

In his marriage, Alan had thought himself blessed with such a love. Had Linda's love for him suddenly died? Or gradually faded until...

He couldn't be surprised. There was no good reason why a woman like Linda, warmly pretty, gay and sweet, should love Alan Thornton, a country doctor too busy to attend to the little niceties of marriage so tired when he came home that a warm bath and sleep were his only needs. If he talked to his wife, it was of his work, and its problems.

That sort of companionship was nothing to offer a young woman! It was no competition for the glamour of a man like Ernst with his courtly manners and his well-tailored clothes—his glossy professional manner—and performance!

Besides all that, Alan had dumped Linda down in the midst of his family, and had let them put their hooks into her.

Alan snorted and flopped over, the bed springs grating in protest. For that matter, though, had Rupert Ernst ever spoken to Linda of his family? His father and mother, abandoned in Vienna when Rupert had skipped out to save his own skin. Had he told Linda that story of Vienna?

Agh, that was no argument to justify Alan's weighting the girl with his family while he himself gave so much of his strength and thought to the troubles of other people that he had nothing left for his young wife.

There was no way he could evaluate things so as to blame Linda. Whatever she did—if he'd lost her, it was his own fault. No one else could be blamed.

For one black moment he had thought, Ma'am—but she would not do such a thing to Alan. No mother would so hurt her son...

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (U)— The stock market was quite mixed today with trading attention focused on motors and steels—and Ford stock traded over the counter.

Trading in the newly issued Ford stock was fast, and the price slowly subsided throughout the morning and into the early afternoon.

Ford originally was issued at 64½, and late yesterday in New York the stock was bid at 69 and offered at 70½. Today one of the first quotations was 69½ bid and 69½ offered. At noon the quotation was 68 bid and 68½ offered. The earlier high was 70-70½.

Throughout the stock market most price changes were fractional with only a few wide movers.

General Motors opened on 15,000 shares up ¼ at 45½, and it continued trading actively unchanged or with a slight gain. Chrysler pushed its bid to around a point but also traded at a small loss.

The steels made a little progress and most of the business was at slightly higher prices. Also higher on mixed to higher, were the aircrafts, chemicals, coppers, and oils. The railroads were lower, but the losses never were pronounced.

Earl Long Wins Louisiana Race

NEW ORLEANS (U)—Former Gov. Earl Long stormed down the comeback trail to landslide victory in the Louisiana governor's race today, leaving the administration of pro-Eisenhower Gov. Robert Kennon in the dust.

Mayor deLesseps Morrison of New Orleans, the only candidate in the five-man field in the Democratic primary who could have forced the race into a Feb. 21 runoff, conceded at 2 a.m.

Building his lead constantly as late rural returns trickled in, the 60-year-old Long rolled toward the majority vote needed to avoid a runoff with the second-place candidate.

Unofficial returns from 1,725 of the state's 2,039 precincts showed: Francis Grevenberg 50,710; Earl Long 349,702; James McLemore 38,843; deLesseps Morrison 150,105; Fred Preaus 84,473.

The Republicans did not hold a primary to nominate a governor. Thus Long's victory assured him an unprecedented third year in the 45-room mansion that his brother Huey built.

Morrison, making his first state race after 10 years as mayor of the state's largest city, and Long brushed aside darkhorse candidate Fred Preaus, who was flying the Kennon administration colors. The governor by law cannot succeed himself.

Long showed amazing comeback strength in this the nation's first state primary of the presidential year. After failing to name a successor four years ago, he swept every large city but one and every parish but one.

The exception was Orleans, a county name for New Orleans, where the 43-year-old Morrison found the strength to force the race down to the wire.

With all five candidates in agreement on segregation, law enforcement and industrial development, the race boiled down to the traditional Long vs. anti-Long battle. Morrison's city origins and Preaus' administration backing were unable to change that picture.

Knocked out early in the night were independents Grevenberg, the former state police superintendent who ran on his slot machine-busting record, and Alexandria rancher McLemore, who ran fourth in the nine-man 1952 race and had hoped to improve that rating with a strong segregation stand.

Negro registration shot up to an all-time high of 154,000, up 50 per cent since 1952 in this state where whites outnumber Negroes 2-1.

Republicans, numbering about 5,000 of the more than one million registered voters, bypassed the governor's race to offer two candidates for lieutenant governor and several for the Legislature in their first major primary since Reconstruction. They saw the test primary as a chance to mold a two-party system in this traditionally one-party state.

With voting machines grinding out the returns for the first time in a Louisiana governor's race, Long took an early lead and steadily built it into the landslide.

"This is a great victory not just for Earl Long but for a cause," said the graying political veteran, who put on a whirlwind campaign to convince voters he was completely recuperated from a 1950 heart attack. "It is a victory for the people of all walks of life and the fine colored people."

TRAIN STOPS TO CHEER CHILD.—Four-year-old Michalene Winkle gets the thrill of a life-time as a Texas-New Mexico Railway freight train stops at her lonely home near Hobbs, N. M., and crewmen shower her with gifts in reward for her faithful waving at passing trains. For more than a year the frail child has been waving at trains day and night. Trainmen had come to expect her and so, the other day, a southbound freight halted long enough for crewmen to give her a big doll, and boxes of candy, apples and nuts. (AP Wirephoto).

Antarctic Aircraft Safe In New Zealand

By SAUL PETT

ABOARD USS WYANDOT, McMurdo Sound, Antarctica (U)—The four aerial work horses of U. S. Operation Deepfreeze flew safely back to New Zealand today, en route to the United States.

All hands of the Antarctic expedition breathed easier at the word that the two twin-engine Neptunes and two four-engine Sky-masters had landed safely.

All hands of the Antarctic expedition breathed easier at the word that the two twin-engine Neptunes and two four-engine Sky-masters had landed at Christchurch 11 hours and 2,250 miles after their takeoff from the Ross Sea ice shelf here yesterday.

The same planes had made history's first flight from New Zealand to the Antarctic Dec. 20, proving it could be done. But the return was still considered a worrisome mission, with flight conditions along the way ranging from excellent to poor.

On the way down, the planes had been supported by six ships spaced across the ocean as weather beacons and rescuers if needed. On the flight back they had only the support of the Coast Guard ice breaker Eastwind, stationed about 750 miles north of McMurdo.

The four aircraft will undergo maintenance in New Zealand for about 10 days then will be flown home across the Pacific. They were thoroughly checked out before leaving. They needed it after being flown exclusively over the antarctic from a base which had only limited facilities.

Beginning Jan. 2, these fly boys of the expedition made nine long, tiring flights in 12 days into the unknown interior of the Antarctic continent.

Simpson HD Club Has January Meet; Mrs. Capehart Is Speaker

SIMPSON—Twelve members of the Simpson Negro Home Demonstration Club had their January meeting at Miss T. Gatlin's home with County Home Agent Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart as speaker.

The home agent spoke on "Home and Farm Business" and emphasized the importance of farm women keeping records. She gave a demonstration on keeping farm and home records and discussed home and farm on a business basis. The speaker said dwindling prices for farm products, high prices of life's necessities and Social Security laws make it more necessary now to keep accurate records.

Mrs. E. A. Moore made a report of the January meeting of the Pitt County Negro Home Demonstration Club Council.

Project leaders for 1956 are: Food and nutrition, Mrs. Helen Clennon; garden, Mrs. Viola Boyd; poultry, Mrs. L. Gatlin; house furnishing, Mrs. V. Dixon; family relationship, Mrs. Nicey Williams; home management, Mrs. Queen Hardy; clothing, Mrs. Dora Green; health, Mrs. Hattie Little, and membership, Mrs. Mary Little and Mrs. Josephine Hardy.

Leslie G. Harris Funeral On Thursday

AYDEN—Leslie G. Harris, 63, died at his home here Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock. Funeral services will be held at Britt's Funeral Chapel Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. I. J. Blackwelder, Free Will Baptist minister, will officiate. Burial will be in the Ayden cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Chester Stocks of Ayden; his father, George Harris of Ayden; two brothers, Herman Harris of Grifton and Dempsey Harris of Oxford; three sisters, Mrs. Willie Corbet and Mrs. Ledrew Corbett of Ayden and Mrs. Xenox Stocks of Ayden.

Wilson Concur On Disagreement

WASHINGTON (U)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's contention that he did not join other members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in approving plans to cut Army strength has been verified by Secretary of Defense Wilson.

"I think what he said was correct," Wilson told a news conference yesterday when asked for comment on Ridgway's assertion in a Saturday Evening Post article that he had "most emphatically not concurred" in such plans.

President Eisenhower told Congress in his 1954 State of the Union message that the Joint Chiefs—then including Ridgway—had unanimously recommended a new military program embodying reduced Army strength. Ridgway now retired wrote he was "non-plussed" to read this.

But Wilson said "I don't recall any such business" when news-men mentioned that Ridgway wrote of Wilson cautioning him against voicing publicly his objections to the then proposed Army manpower cuts. Ridgway said at one point in his article he felt he had been put under "pressure," sometimes crudely applied, "to drop his opposition to those cuts."

But the biggest trouble with secretaries was voiced by an unhappy Los Angeles businessman, who said: "They quit."

None of the executives, of course, look a lie detector test or a truth serum. Therefore I rather doubt that if Marilyn Monroe showed up in any of their offices looking for a job she would be turned away empty-handed. The tired businessman isn't that tired.
