At a meeting of the First Presbyterian Women of the Church on Monday night, a panel representing the home, church and school discussed "The Christian Family Life." With Mrs. Walter Cox, vice president, acting as moderator, the group defined the areas which the Christian needs to develop and pointed out the results of a failure to develop these areas by citing crime and juvenile delinquency rates. In closing, messages related the implications of this study to the individual church and home.

Serving on the panel were Mrs. Leonard Topping, Mrs. I. B. Koonce, Mrs. M. P. Bailey Jr., Mrs. Robert Elks and Miss Sylvia Satterthwaite. Mrs. William Moore read the Scripture.

During the business session, the yearly budget was approved, reports from the various standing committees heard and delegates to the area meeting in Elizabeth City elected.

'Atoms For Peace' Is Topic For Club Talk By Dr. Helms

The Sans Souci Book Club met Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock with Mrs. W. L. Best at her spacious home on Evans Street.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. C. S. Forbes presided over a short business session. Absent members were greatly missed, others because of vacation trips.

Mrs. Fred Forbes had the program for the afternoon and chose for her speaker Professor Helms of the Science Department of East Carolina College.

The topic, "Atoms For Peace," was ably and informally presented in terms easy for the average layman to understand. By way of introduction, Professor Helms compared our present position in the Atomic Age to that of the world in the "Electric Age" of a hundred years ago.

The applications of atomic science, more properly nuclear science, in industry include the routine use of irradiation of plastics in order to obtain better linkage of molecules for increased toughness.

During the social hour, the hostess, assisted by her sisters, Mrs. S. T. White and Mrs. G. B. W. Hadley, served a delicious supper plate with dessert and coffee.

Mrs. Lottie Butler and Mr. Helms were special guests for the afternoon.

Bethel Plans Heart Drive

BETHEL—Plans for launching Bethel's 1956 Heart Fund were made recently at a meeting of the committee composed of Mrs. Robert T. Davis, chairman, D. E. Perry, Mrs. Dennis Hardy and Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst.

The Heart Fund drive opens on February 1 and continues through February 20. On February 3rd Dr. John G. Smith of Rocky Mount, co-president of the National Heart Association, will speak to the Lions Club at 7:30 p.m. and on February 7th Dr. W. A. Moody, local physician, will speak to the Rotary Club at 7:00 p.m.

The public is invited to attend both of these lectures. Heart and circulatory disease in 1954, the latest year for which vital statistics are available, caused 52.3% of all deaths at all ages.

Some forms of heart disease can be prevented, and a few cured. Almost every heart condition can be helped by proper treatment. The American Heart Association with its affiliated heart clubs, is the only national voluntary heart agency devoted exclusively to combating diseases of the heart and circulation.

Its program is supported entirely by contributions from the public. Citizens of Bethel, please remember these facts and be ready to do your part when on Heart Sunday, February 26th, a heart volunteer will knock on your door between the hours of 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. Soliciting will be done at no other time.

Of the funds raised, the larger portion remains in the area of collection to support the program of the state and local Heart Associations. The remainder goes to advance nationwide research, education and community service programs of the American Heart Association.

Milder Tone On Interposition Is To Be Offered

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A toned-down resolution of interposition that would voice Virginia's protest against the Supreme Court school desegregation decision was scheduled for introduction in the State Legislature today.

It did not contain a controversial clause specifying that Virginia's traditional laws requiring maintenance of segregated facilities remained in "full force."

The new version of the resolution voiced a strong protest of the court's May, 1954 ruling, but stopped short of language spelling out defiance.

State Sen. Harry Stuart of Russell County, leader of the interposition forces, said he planned to introduce the resolution today and hoped to have the backing of 30 to 35 of the 40 senators.

Interposition is the doctrine which holds a state has the right, via constitutional amendment, of overriding federal actions it regards as exceeding constitutional authority.

Interpositionists contend the Supreme Court's ruling was judicial legislation, and as such invalid until it is reinforced through an amendment to the Constitution adopted by three-fourths of the states.

The resolution finally agreed on was milder than the form advocated by some legislators who felt the General Assembly should go on record in favor of outright nullification. The strong version would have declared the court ruling void.

But some legislators had shied away from going this far. They took the view it would be inconsistent for Virginia to be declaring the ruling of no effect, while at the same time trying to implement the Gray Education Commission program which recognizes the decision.

Stuart, however, said he was satisfied the final version still contained teeth in it. He and Editor Jack Kilpatrick of the Richmond News Leader, who has been a strong champion

Show Stopped By Wrong Number

TOKYO (AP)—The TV charades quiz last night was rolling smoothly. A man acted out an old Japanese proverb. The announcer held up a card with a telephone number and urged viewers to phone in the answer. Cameras centered on the telephone. The announcer dawdled in embarrassment for minutes.

But it remained strangely silent. Meanwhile, an innkeeper's phone was deluged with so many calls that the vibration dislodged the receiver hook. The innkeeper got the answers but he didn't know the question. Wrong number!

Some instances have been reported in which a group of several eagles have attacked and killed small deer, but many observers deny that such attacks are often made.

Class Rings Arrive For GHS Juniors

By ROSEMARY EAGLES
Greenville High School

Those lucky juniors are walking around with their hands stuck up in the air. Nothing is wrong physically but who can help but gloat when class rings come! They were given to the juniors Monday.

The ring is gold with a ruby stone. The year and the school are in raised letters on the outside. On the inside of the band are the owner's initials.

Many of the high school set as well as parents and friends were rooting for the Phantoms Friday night at the college gym. The Phantoms and the freshmen members of the Pirates' basketball team played in a benefit game for the March of Dimes campaign. The Phants were losers by eight points but they were ahead for a while. Friday was the 13th anyway.

After the game several people had parties. Martha Branch had a few friends over at her home for talking, dancing, and listening to records before the late show. Ike Riddick, Dee Hux, Ann Rooke, Kathryn Johnson, Hal Edwards, and Fred Nobles were all on hand.

Margaret Nobles had a crowd over at her home after the late movie. Among the boys who came to the party were Tommy Key Norris, Ray Hardee, Charles Smith, Louis Phelps, Mike Riddick, David Garrison, Billy Boyd Cox, Rhett Honeycutt, Roy Martin, Mack Roebuck, and Albert Crawford.

After the boys had gone Frances Moseley, Lois Funnell, Fran Clark, Madge Stancill, Lou Ficklen, and Margaret donned their pajamas but sleep didn't come until about 5:30. Saturday morning everyone ate lunch uptown and went over to Lou's home for the afternoon.

Pat Barlowe and Lou Rogers had a slumber party at Pat's home. Sarah Smiley, Mildred Coleman, Sally Rosa Simpson, Jean Davenport, Jane Blise, Mary Retha Hice, Judy Anthony, Catherine Ratcliff, Doris Harper, Lib Rogers, Betsy Wnebe, Kathryn Oakes, and Katherine Raynor were all over for the pajama party after the game and the late show.

"None of us got very much sleep and we ate practically all night," stated Sarah Smiley. They munched on such things as pop corn, potato chips, cookies, sandwiches, brownies, and nuts, along with soft drinks.

Would Destroy Red Air Bases

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Nationalist China's air force commander says the Communists may attack the offshore islands at any time and if they do he will go after their bases.

Gen. "Tiger" Wang Shu-Ming in an interview likewise expressed doubt that the numerically superior Red air force could maintain air control over the offshore island front.

"Sure the Communists have a lot more planes — good planes — MIG15s, MIG17s and twin-jet IL-28s," said the Tiger.

"But if they attack the islands and we destroy their bases, how will they be able to win air superiority? The most important target will be their bases."

"Some people don't think there is much possibility of an early invasion of the Quemoy and Matsu Island groups. We can't be so optimistic. It is possible for the attack to come at any time."

Matsu Island is 100 miles northwest of Formosa and Quemoy is 120 miles across the strait.

Where Crossing Signals Are Needed

County and municipal officials throughout Pitt County should seek the support of highway officials in attempting to persuade the Atlantic Coastline Railroad and the Norfolk-Southern Railroads to install adequate, up-to-date warning systems at crossings.

In five months last year four people were killed in accidents in Pitt County involving trains and automobiles. All the fatal accidents involved trains of the Atlantic Coastline and occurred at ACL highway crossings. All four fatalities, in three separate accidents occurred in the Stokes community at two different crossings.

There were signs indicating the railroad crossing, but there were not, nor are there now, any mechanical devices at the crossings to warn motorists of approaching trains.

Some positive steps should be taken by local officials to set in motion efforts which will bring about installation of adequate mechanical warning devices which will be more effective in preventing train-and-motor vehicle accidents.

Not only are there dangerous crossings in various places in the County which are not guarded by mechanical warning devices, but there are likewise in Greenville and other towns in Pitt railroad crossings which should be marked with mechanical warning devices for the protection of the public. On various occasions Greenville's governing board has contacted railroad officials about the installation of more adequate warning systems at these crossings, but so far no concrete steps toward that end have been evident.

Certainly four deaths resulting from auto-train accidents in the community of Stokes should be sufficient to convince railroad and highway officials that a better warning system is needed at those two crossings. At the same time the dangers of other crossings in rural areas and in towns of Pitt are evident if officials only take the time to investigate the matter.

If the situation is to be improved and needed warning devices installed, it is going to be up to local government officials to start the ball rolling in that direction. We trust it will not take more deaths at railroad crossings to shake local officials out of their apparent apathetic position in this matter.

Financial Institutions We Can All Rely Upon

It has often been said, and with a great deal of truth, that a community is only as progressive as its financial institutions.

Greenville is indeed fortunate in having at its service the facilities of the four financial institutions of the city. Each of these individually, and all of them collectively, have contributed immeasurably to the progress and economic growth of not only the city, but the surrounding area as well.

There are few businesses and few people who at times do not look to these financial institutions as a source for needed money. Maybe it's for a new home, perhaps for a new stock of goods to be put on the shelves of a store, maybe money for a car, capital to being a business, funds with which to expand a business or a loan to plant and house the year's crop. Whatever the reason, most people look first to local financial institutions.

To be sure these financial institutions are often criticized for not being sufficiently progressive, not being lenient enough with their money or wanting too much security for a loan. Nevertheless, these institutions must consider not only their responsibility as a source from which money can be borrowed, but also as a place where depositors' money is secure and investors receive a reasonable return on their funds.

With its four major financial institutions, the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company, the State Bank and Trust Company, the Home Building and Loan Association and the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Greenville is indeed fortunate. During the past few days, each of these institutions have had their annual stockholders meeting. Without exception, each of the firms has reported considerable progress during the past 12 months. This growth is indicative not only of the strength of these financial institutions, but also of their constantly increasing ability to adequately serve a growing and progressive community.

Greenville is a progressive community, and its progress is due in no small measure to the fact that it has strong, progressive financial institutions.

Big Business Is Acting Like Future Is Sound

A national election year usually brings about a conservative approach to business by big corporations. Most big business is closely tied to the federal government, the nation's largest spender, and with the possibility of a change in control of the administration and Congress big business sort of pulls in its horn in an election year.

The reason, we suppose, is that big business wants to ascertain how much policy change will come about in the government following the election.

Will the case be different this year? Perhaps its too early to tell, but reports from some of the largest industries in the nation indicate that this year big business might be expanding rather than retreating prior to the election.

A survey by the Iron and Steel Institute shows that the steel industry is planning during the next three years the largest expansion program in industry's history. The report says American steel companies are planning the expenditure of some three billion dollars to increase production by 15 million tons.

The disclosure regarding the major expansion of the steel industry came close on the heels of an announcement by General Motors, the country's biggest business, that it intends to spend one billion dollars this year on expansion and improvements.

These expansion programs by the "big boys" indicate a confidence in the continued prosperity of the nation and a continued upward trend in the nation's economy.

More Attention To Our Travel Industry

By LYNN NISBET
BIG BUSINESS — Travel is big business. It is one of the major "industries" of North Carolina and the United States. More people invest money in travel and more people share in profits than any other type of business. Because it is so big and so wide in scope more attention should be given to cultivating and promoting the business.

These were the main points emphasized at the meeting in Raleigh this week when organization of the Travel Council of North Carolina was completed. The 150 people in attendance came from Boone and Carolina Beach and areas in between, as Robert Nelson, director of the National Association of Travel Organizations, and B.T. Davidson, an official in the All-Year Club of Southern California, discuss details of organization, but place more emphasis on the all-inclusive effect of travel on the local economy.

Governor Hodges and other boosters of Tarheelia have insisted Virginia Travel Council and president of this state's efforts should subordinate communities and regions to the advantages of the state as a whole. Nelson and Davidson expanded that theme beyond state lines.

Nelson had statistics to prove that when aggressive advertising brings people from the New England Middle Atlantic states to Florida all the territory between profits. For every dollar Florida gets out of that particular tourist, Virginia gets a dime. Presumably North Carolina also gets, or can get, another dime. South Carolina and Georgia also get a cut of the dollars spent by travelers between the North and the far South.

ELITE TRAVELERS — To extend North Carolina and Virginia are hitch-hiking rides on the Florida and New England publicity. But it was pointed out that if North Carolina can do a little more on its own account and keep the traveler in this state an extra day, the hitch-hiking dime can be doubled or tripled. And if North Carolina can go a bit farther and keep the traveler for the full term of his vacation time the yield pyramids.

CLASSIFICATION — Folks who travel can be generally divided into three or four classes. There is the thoroughfare traveler, the fellow who is just passing through on his way to a pre-adopted destination. There is the fisherman and the hunter, usually short stay patrons of specialized accommodations. There is the visitor of relatives and friends, somewhat longer stay but not requiring much in the way of public accommodations. There is the vacationist, the man who takes his family for a week or a month to rest up. And finally there is the man who is just going somewhere, the casual traveler, who is susceptible to having his tentative destination changed from day to day. This group constitutes a large part of the total and affords the best opportunity for increasing the hitch-hiker take from the publicity of other areas.

(Rocky Mount Telegram) This is a billion dollar age. World wars and world depressions have made us cautious to expenditures in the billions. President Eisenhower's budget of $55,850,000,000 is not particularly shocking.

Today there are American corporations which earn over a billion dollars a year. There are even some rumored billionaires. It's getting so we don't think too much about a billion dollars— one way or another. After all, a billion dollars is "chicken today and feathers tomorrow" when it comes to Washington spending.

But a billion is still one heck of a lot of money. How much, exactly, is a billion? It's so much the human mind can hardly conceive it. Let's think of it this way: Suppose one of the Wise Men who followed the star at the birth of Christ had been given one billion dollars. Suppose he had been instructed that he and his descendants must spend or give away $1,000 a day until it was all gone. If $1,000 had been spent or given away from the day Christ was born every day, every year, throughout all the centuries until Christmas 1955, let us say, there would still be over $280 million left. That's how much a billion dollars is.

And remember this: Our nation debt at $274,374,000,000 (them's billions, son) is so tremendous that interest alone is seven billion dollars a year or over one tenth of our total national budget.

Every child born in the United States automatically inherits a national debt of $1,700 per capita share. No wonder they all cry! (The child born in 1920 had a per capita share of only $242 and before the Civil War it was only $15). During the past four years, the federal government went $29.6 billion more in debt. In 1955 government spending was $4.2 billion in the red; $3.0 billion in 1954; $9.4 in 1953 and $4.0 in 1952. And it's getting so that wars are almost too expensive to be undertaken. In fact, we don't see how the Communists can think about the distribution of their next year's budget for this next year alone is almost twice what it cost us to fight all of World War I. The Civil War cost $3.9 billions; World War I $39.9 billions; World War II $383.8 billions. Experts figure that World War III, if and when it comes will cost $4,000,000,000. Translated, that means $4 trillion. A trillion is 1,000 billion. Aspirin anybody?

Mark Twain's First Story

Rather than peek over the fence at "greener pastures" this little column today will look backward to November 30 of last year. On that day, the first story written by Mark Twain was released to the public on the 120th anniversary of the humorist's birth. "The Dandy Frightening the Squatter," a short story written by sixteen-year-old Samuel Langhorne Clemens, appeared in a family weekly called the "Carpet-Bag" published at Boston on May 1, 1852. A kind of literary detective job was performed by Franklin J. Meine, editor of the American Peoples Encyclopedia, who first came across the story in 1926. According to Meine, he was browsing through an old file of the "Carpet-Bag" when he noticed a river story about Hannibal in the olden days, signed "S. L. C. Hannibal."

Sixteen-year-old Clemens' story about "The Dandy Frightening the Squatter" isn't hilariously funny, nor especially original. It is a simple account of a dandy stepping ashore from a river boat with intentions of making a hit with the ladies on board by frightening a ragged squatter. Instead of running when the dandy threatens him with pistols, the squatter knocked his antagonist and weapons into the river. But as Meine says, "whether the plot, or the theme, or the motif of the story was original with Mark is not critically important. The important fact is that consciously patterned or not, it foreshadowed the genius of Mark Twain."

No Soup-Soaked Celebrities

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—One of my favorite rebel dreams is to see a waiter at the Ritz spill a plate of soup on a celebrity. "How often does this happen?" I hopefully asked Steve Terzano, the maitre d'hotel there. "Never!" he exclaimed indignantly. "It could not happen. At the very worst a waiter might drop a hot plate on the floor. But spill something on a guest? Never! Never!" To Steve, who can spot a wrinkle in a napkin at 40 paces a thing would be a greater tragedy than the collapse of the leaning tower of Pisa. Particularly if it happened while he was on duty. While he is on the job food is his religion, service is his god. Except for 28 stomach-hearing months in an Austrian prison camp during the first world war Steve, who was born in Italy, has spent the last 47 of his 61 years in Ritz hotels, first in Buenos Aires, then in New York. When the old Ritz was torn down several years ago, he and most of the staff moved up Madison Avenue to the new Ritz restaurant in the plush Carlton House. Steve deplors the hurried habits of today's harried diners, remembers fondly the days when people took their vitamins more leisurely. "No meal should be eaten in less than an hour," he said firmly "and it should be accompanied by a good French wine. Then you will live longer." Many of Steve's longtime guests refuse even to look at the menu. They insist that he select for them, a task he thoroughly enjoys, for to him a good meal is like a table symphony. "What do celebrities like to eat? Here are some favorite dishes of some of the well-known people he has served: Roald Amundsen, the explorer—corned beef hash topped with an egg. Robert Montgomery and Queen Marie of Romania—cold chicken with a liver pate. Former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and George Jessel—baked beef. Gladys Swarthout—lobster thermidor. Kate Smith and Tommy Manville—French lamb chops. Grace Kelly and Wendell Willkie—chicken hash. Ex-President Herbert Hoover—bouillabaisse. I asked Steve, who has selected hundreds of thousands of meals for notables, his idea of a dream meal—"the perfect dinner." His eyes sparkled at the thought. "First, assorted hot canapés a la Ritz with a dry Martini," he began dreamily, "followed by some black caviar and a nip of aquavit. Next, a cup of petite marmite, a soup made of chicken, beef, marrow and fresh vegetables, served with grated cheese and floating pieces of toast. Next, the fish, English sole veronique, cooked with white wine and white grapes and accompanied by a Rhine or moselle wine. Next, tender string beans and tournedos Gaton, a filet mignon with pate, invented by our general manager Gaston Laurysse, and named in his honor. A good French Bordeaux wine with this of course. Next, a vanilla soufflé with grand marnier liqueur, followed by a glass of champagne. Finally, coffee demi-tasse, with creme de menthe for the ladies and a good French brandy for the gentlemen. After a dinner like that, it is to die for. You are in paradise. You will remember the rest of your life." What would it cost? Well, buying a dinner like that is like buying a yacht. If you're going to worry about price, you might as well forget the whole thing and order a hamburger.

The Growing Rift Between Dulles, Eden

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — The British Government has flatly refuted and repudiated Secretary John Foster Dulles' boast that American atomic diplomacy prevented three incipient wars, or that his strong-arm policy in Korea, Formosa and Indo-China ever had London's approval and support. Prime Minister Anthony Eden said any such thing publicly on this controversial and provocative issue, for an official statement by 10 Downing Street would estrange Anglo-American relations even more violently than the Life magazine article has damaged them. But Sir Anthony, under fire as a weakling at home, will undoubtedly burden his protest to President Eisenhower and Dulles when he visits Washington late this month. Beneath his polished exterior, Eden has a stubborn British temper. He does not want to be depicted as a "hot" satellite. DULLES-EDEN CLASH Dulles and Eden have disliked each other heartily since their disagreement over the Indo-China settlement at Geneva early last year. They now disagree on the very problems which were raised at that Conference—Korea, Formosa and Indo-China—and in Dulles' Life interview. London wants to grant Red China a seat in the United Nations. Eden feels that Israel is chiefly responsible for current Middle East turmoil. He thinks that American policy has been responsible for the alienation of India and Egypt, and their orientation toward Moscow. He was stunned by Dulles' earlier statement that Goa, a tiny Portuguese settlement in India, was a "Portuguese province" for it embittered Prime Minister Nehru at the very moment when Salesmen Bevin and Khrushchev were receiving unprecedented ovations in India and neighboring countries. Although Dulles is not wholly at fault, Anglo-American relations are at danger's point. It will require all Ike's patience and diplomacy to act as peacemaker a few weeks hence. EVIDENCE OF EDEN'S DISAGREEMENT WITH DULLES AS AGREEMENT OF EDEN'S utter disagreement with Dulles' version of recent history in the Life article, I think I may be pardoned for reprinting a dispatch which I sent to my newspapers from London for publication on November 5, 1955. It has timeliness because of the Dulles boast. "The British people and their government," I wrote "are far happier today over world and domestic affairs than at any time since what Winston Churchill described as their 'darkest hours.' They have regained both pride and prosperity—the historic sources of the Empire's power. "In the influence which the various Ministries—Churchill, Attlee and now Eden—have exerted on United States policy with respect to Russia, Germany, Korea, the Middle East and Indo-China they feel that they have recovered their erstwhile world eminence. They are rather proud that their counsel of caution and restraint in various crises has been accepted by President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles. "LONDON BLOCKED WARS" A certain high British Intelligence spokesman who may not be quoted or identified publicly thinks that London blocked the outbreak of three wars that might have exploded into global conflicts. He referred to the British demand for patience and understanding with respect to Korea, Indo-China and the current difficulties in the Middle East. "He feels that Britain has forced or persuaded us to keep our shirts on." He also believes that President Eisenhower's conduct at Geneva helped to end the European suspicion that "Americans are warmongers. BRITISH BATTERED BUT UNBOWED "To understand this British attitude it must be remembered that they regard themselves as old and skilled hands at diplomacy. They have survived many world crises since our own 1776 Revolution. A bit battered but unbowed, they expect to emerge with similar success from current and future emergencies. "So when Secretary Dulles talks about 'containment of Russia' and 'liberation of the satellite peoples,' British officials are inclined to scoff and protest. They also note that Washington treated on both policies."

Outlook On Timber Is Not Happy

By ELMER ROESSNER
The measured words of a government report and the reassurances in covering statements fail to conceal the fact that the United States faces a growing problem in its timber supply. The Timber Resource Review, issued late last year by the Department of Agriculture, shows that by the end of the century the population of America will require from 70 to 120 per cent more timber than it needs now. Since there are no many noticeable surpluses now, that indicates a serious deficiency. "I think we can all take much satisfaction in the evidence as presented that, by and large, our timber situation isn't getting worse and in some respects is getting better," comments Richard E. McArdle, chief of the Forest Service, when the report was issued. He did not explain why anybody should get satisfaction from that, but he did add one disturbing statement: "Whether there is time enough to gear up to levels of future demand by the end of the century, and still meet increasing needs in the meantime, is a pretty debatable question."

True, if there is time for a debate, SOVIETS MOVE AHEAD. Meanwhile the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, in its 1956 Forest Products Research Guide, disclosed that Russia is advancing in its research work in forest products. The Russians are giving considerable attention to research in pulp, paper and pulp-panels by-products. The Guide says, "The Russian Government is working to enlarge and improve supply and quality of rosin and turpentine and to increase mechanization of logging and transport operations. The American timber summary was not a report knocked out by a few government workers; it resulted from a survey in which government, state and private enterprises spent $500,000 in time, equipment and cash. It is regarded as the most comprehensive and objective surveys ever made in the field. And under the calm of the chosen words of the researchers there are causes for alarm. For example, the report indicates that although the U.S. has 100,000,000 acres of growing forest land, there is no surplus and any expansion of farm land would hasten shortages of lumber. SIGNALS OF DANGER The study also shows that of available timber land, a quarter is under stockpiling, a quarter is stocked at all. About 50,000,000 acres require planting if they are to become productive in a reasonable time. Timber growth is increasing but quality is declining. The survey also showed that while the government and forest industries were doing a good job in restocking cut-over lands, the 4,500,000 private owners of more than half the useful forest land were not doing so well. Furthermore, it found, a quarter of the timber now cut is not utilized. And while it is still a good idea to break that match-drawn that fire, insects and diseases are worse enemies of timber than fire. Insects, disease and fire destroy a quarter of the annual growth, the survey found. If the conditions are as good as a job on insects as it does on forest fires, considerably more timber could be produced. Replanting 50,000,000 available acres could increase supplies by 8,000,000 board feet, it concluded. "A rising population and rising demand for wood seriously threaten American life in the future. They portend the greater use of steel, concrete and brick in home construction more plastic and metal in furniture and, consequently, greater demands for these alternate materials."

Dormant Pitt Politics Scheduled To Be Revitalized In Weeks To Come

(First of two articles)
Politics, dormant in Pitt County for some months now, will raise its sleepy head in weeks to come as candidates begin filing for county and state elective positions.

By filing, the candidates will be placing their names on the ballot for the Democratic primary to be held May 28.

Local Democrats must elect two county commissioners, a judge solicitor, register of deeds, two State Legislature representatives and a State senator in the May primary which will kick off a big political year for the county, state and nation.

Earl Long Set To Go Hunting

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Earl Long made plans today to go hog hunting after bagging the Louisiana governorship for an unprecedented third time.

The 60-year-old younger brother of the late Huey P. Long swept to a rare first primary victory Tuesday, bowling over the administration of Gov. Robert Kennon and the mansion dreams of New Orleans Mayor deLesseps Morrison.

Long was governor twice before, from 1948-52, and from 1939 - 40 when he stepped up from lieutenant-governor.

High on his list of plans for the new term beginning May 15 is to rewrite the state's 42-year-old constitution, longest in the land.

With only 148 of the state's 2,039 precincts still unheard from, Long had 387,807 votes; Morrison, 176,453; Fred Preaus, 90,379; Francis Greenberg, 57,851; and James McLemore 44,521.

The defeat was particularly harsh for Kennon, who was banking on the tradition that the governor, unable by law to succeed himself, has the power to get his man in a runoff. Preaus, the administration choice, ran third.

Long attributed part of his success to the campaign he conducted in the back woods and rural communities. Still hoarse from the 500-speech stump tour, he proclaimed: "Like Sophie Tucker, I'm the last of the red hot mamas."

who win the Democratic nominations in May must still appear on the official ballot in November. However, the Democratic nomination is tantamount to election in Pitt and the nominees can, in all probability, expect no Republican opposition in the November election.

Along with other North Carolinians, Pitt Counties will cast their ballots for all elective state offices in May. They must decide who they favor for governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general and secretary of state in addition to other top state jobs.

Also up for re-election this year if they choose to run will be Sen. Sam J. Erwin, Jr., and First Congressional District Rep. Herbert Bonner.

Among other local offices open in this year's elections are all the township constable and justice of the peace offices.

So far none of the present office holders in the county have indicated whether they will run for re-election in May.

Board of Elections Chairman Gilbert Peele said yesterday that no one had filed at that time for any of the open offices.

Only one county elective position is now vacant. S. O. Worthington resigned as one of the county's two legislative representatives at the conclusion of the last session of the General Assembly to take an appointive position on the State Utilities Commission.

The county's other representative in the Legislature is Walter Jones of Farmville, Pitt's senatorial representative is Dr. Paul Jones of Farmville.

Two of the county commissioners will be up for re-election this year if they choose to run. They are W. Jasper Smith representing District Two and Woodrow W. Wooten representing District Three.

Both were elected for two year terms in 1954 under a new system for staggering the terms of county commissioners. Commissioners from Districts One, Four and Five were elected for four-year terms in 1954 and those running for election from Districts Two and Three will be vying for a full four-year term in this year's election.

District Two includes the townships of Belvoir, Bethel, Carolina and Pactolus while District Three includes Arthur, Falkland, Farmville and Fountain.

Candidates for the county commissioners must reside in the district which they represent. However, the election of the commissioners is conducted on a county wide basis.

Mrs. Blair Cox Wheelless now holds the office of register of deeds. County court judge is Dink James and the solicitor for county court is James C. Lanier, Jr.

The sheriff and clerk of court are not facing re-election this year.

Members of the County Board of Education whose terms of office expire in April 1957 are E. W. Fleming of Grifton and W. F. Stokes of Stokes.

However, Board of Election Chairman Peele points out, Board of Education members are not actually elected by the people even though they file as candidates with the Board of Elections.

"They are appointed by the Legislature which usually follows the recommendations of the people in the primary election," Peele noted.

Small Atomic Device Tested

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The first in a series of Atomic Energy Commission tests was conducted yesterday. It was presumed a small atomic device was detonated, but the AEC declined to disclose the nature of the explosion.

No atomic cloud was visible in Las Vegas, 75 miles southeast.

The AEC announcement said only that the "test" resulted in a detonation of low explosive force, creating a small low altitude cloud bearing minute amounts of radioactive debris. No offset radiological problems are expected.

The tests have been delayed several times because of weather. The AEC is trying to determine the sensitivity of atomic devices to accidents during storage or handling.

LANDSLIDE FOR LONG:—Former Gov. Earl K. Long and his wife (top) show their happiness in New Orleans as returns from Tuesday's Louisiana Democratic primary point to a landslide victory for him in his bid for another term as governor. The Democratic nomination means election in Louisiana which few Republicans. At bottom, rival candidate deLesseps S. Morrison, mayor of New Orleans, and his wife vote in their home precinct. Morrison was the candidate in the five-man race who stood any chance of forcing a runoff primary, but he conceded Long's nomination early Wednesday. Long is a brother of the late Sen. Huey P. Long and an uncle of Sen. Russell Long (D-La.). (AP Wirephoto).

Request For One 'Used' Airplane

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Fisher Air Force Base usually has a crew of men who do nothing but dispose of no longer useful airplanes—but a request received yesterday has base personnel stumped.

The request came in a letter addressed simply to "Tinker Oklahoma City," and asked about obtaining one slightly used airplane to "set in my yard to learn how to fly."

The letter was signed by Johnny Smith and Johnny Hernandez, aged 13 and 14, respectively, of McAlester.

JUDGE STOPS LEAP
 BUENOS AIRES (AP)—A 15-year-old girl who tried to jump from a fifth-story courtroom window was felled by the judge hearing her case. Juvenile Judge Hector Sturla was considering her mother's plea that the girl be sent to a mental hospital when she dashed to the window. The judge caught her just as she jumped. She was hospitalized for observation.

ALARM NEEDED
 TUCSON, ARIZ. (AP)—Mrs. June Childs is looking for a modern burglar alarm. Thieves got past 10 watchdogs without making anyone and broke into her house. The loot—more than 1,000 worth of firearms.

New School

Bids for construction of the new Ayden elementary school will be opened "in about 40 days," Pitt County School Superintendent D. H. Conley said this morning that plans and specifications for the new building are "almost ready."

Tuesday funds for construction of the proposed 18-classroom structure were obtained when the Local Government Commission in Raleigh sold $300,000 worth of school building bonds for the Ayden School District.

Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., of Winston-Salem was low bidder for the issue at 3 1/8 per cent. Average maturity of the bonds is 14.46 years.

In addition to the classroom facilities the new school, serving the first through the seventh grades, will contain a utility room, a library and offices. The utility room will also serve as an assembly room.

The fireproof brick building will be located on the edge of town on Highway 102, leading west out of Ayden.

James W. Griffith, Jr., is architect for the project.

Potential Atomic Aircraft Claimed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary Charles S. Thomas said today the Navy may have, in its huge Sea-Master seaplane, an aircraft capable of future atomic flight.

The SeaMaster is an experimental plane now powered by non-atomic jet engines. One test model crashed a few weeks ago in Chesapeake Bay near the mouth of the Potomac River, but a second plane is under construction.

The Navy is reported convinced of the plane's worth once it is perfected. Meanwhile, other experiments are under way to develop an atomic engine for aircraft.

Thomas, in testimony prepared for the House Armed Services Committee supporting a 1 1/2-billion-dollar navy ship construction bill, said:

"The large hull of the new Sea-Master type of jet seaplane may be the airframe which will take aloft the first nuclear power plant."

Thomas also said, "The Navy expects next year to request the funds for a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier."

The bill now before the committee would provide for designing and planning a nuclear power plant for a carrier, but not for actually constructing such a ship. It does contain authorization for a 60,000-ton conventionally driven carrier and for a nuclear-driven light cruiser to serve as a guided missile ship.

HOOPER'S EYES ARE ON EISENHOWER:—Former President Herbert Hoover has his eyes on President Eisenhower—in more ways than one. Hoover looks and listens closely as the President gestures and talks during a conference in the White House. The meeting concerned government reorganization recommendations made by the Hoover Commission. And the former president also looks to Eisenhower with reference to the future. After the conference, Hoover told newsmen he believes the President should seek re-election "provided he considers himself physically able." (AP Wirephoto).

Dropped A Medal And Got Nabbed

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Wesley G. Wallace, 44, dropped a medal portraying St. Dismas, the good thief, and wound up in jail yesterday charged with burglary. Police found the medal on a roof near a window in Wallace's downtown hotel room. They also found clothing in the room reported stolen from a clothing store next door. The place had been entered from the roof via skylight. Det. Carl Blasofel said Wallace, a parolee, admitted the burglary.

Death Asked For Drowning Babies

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—The trial of a 47-year-old woman accused of drowning her two children nearly six years ago continued here today before a state jury.

The state is asking the death penalty for Mrs. Eney Widener Debusk, accused of first-degree murder.

The state contends she drowned Ida Lee Debusk, 6 months, and Charles Franklin, 2, in Salem Creek in March, 1950.

The prosecution rested its case yesterday after Sheriff Ernie Shore testified that Mrs. Debusk told him she had drowned the two children and had intended to drown a third child, Ruby Lee Debusk.

The sheriff quizzed the woman as saying the girl whimpered, and, "I couldn't throw her back in." The sheriff also said that Mrs. Debusk told him she intended to drown herself but "didn't want to finish it."

A psychiatrist from the State Hospital at Raleigh told the Forsyth Superior Court jury that Mrs. Debusk has been sane and able to stand trial since 1951. She was committed to the hospital in May, 1950, and only recently was she pronounced able to cooperate in her own defense.

The defendant's husband, David Debusk, testified that his wife had given birth to nine children. She was 15 at the time of their marriage. He also said she had complained of headaches for three or four months prior to the time the children were drowned.

Mrs. Debusk's father, Samuel M. Widener, testified that there have been seven cases of insanity in his family.

Mrs. Luckey Was Lucky Yesterday

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Doyce D. Luckey was just that yesterday.

Mrs. Luckey, working mother of three children, won the first holiday shopper vacation award, sponsored by downtown merchants. She accepted a check for $1,000 instead of a two-week expense-paid trip for two to Hawaii.

"I guess we'll just pay bills with it," she said. Mrs. Luckey said neither she nor her husband George, a truck driver, have been lucky before.

Four Victims Of A Waterspout

TSU Japan (AP)—A giant waterspout engulfed a tugboat, and eight dredges yesterday sinking three, badly damaging the rest, and killing four men. Dazed survivors said the waterspout was more than a half mile in diameter and at times sucked water and flying spume 400 yards high. The tugboat and its dredges were seven miles off the Pacific Coast of Central Japan when the spout hit.

'Cousin' Patton Suffers Attack

CROCKETT, Tex. (AP)—Nat Patton the Texas congressman who addressed a King and Queen of England as "Cousin George" and "Cousin Elizabeth" and thereby gained international notice, today was under treatment for a severe heart attack.

He suffered the attack Tuesday night. Doctors say that if no complications develop in the next 10 days to 2 weeks, Patton has a good chance for recovery. He represented the Third Texas District from 1936 to 1946.

Hope For Cure In Prison Tour

BOSTON (AP)—Authorities hope to curb crime and juvenile delinquency in Massachusetts by taking school children on guided tours of the dingy, 150-year-old State Prison at Charlestown, now being abandoned.

Correction Commissioner Russell G. Oswald said yesterday "any youngster, no matter what his background, should be profoundly impressed by what he sees at Charlestown."

The tours will begin in March after all the prisoners are moved to the new nine million dollar prison at Walpole. Some former inmates have offered their services as guides.

Chisholm Trail Is Easier Today

GAINESVILLE, Tex. (AP)—The cattlemen who in the last century used to ride the old Chisholm Trail didn't have the advantage of civic clubs when it came to cooking up a meal.

Tom Hikman, 70, former Texas Ranger, started down the historic trail on horseback Tuesday, complete with bedroll and cooking equipment, for the Fat Stock Show in Fort Worth.

But after a day and night in a driving snow and sleet storm, Hikman declared a two day recess. Yesterday noon he dined with the Gainesville Rotary Club. Last night he attended a banquet here and today he will be driven to Vernon to lunch with the Lions' Club. He plans to resume the horseback ride tomorrow.

A Doctor in the Family

By ELIZABETH SEIFERT

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

It was early, still black dark, when Alan rose and went to the hospital. Deep lines in his face, shadows around his eyes, showed the effect of his sleepless night. He was cross and short-spoken to his assistant in the operating room; they looked at him, and at each other, in wonder. Sometimes he worked without something, but Dr. Thornton was never ugly or even brusque. But this morning, even as Mrs. Dunham was phoning to the floor supervisor that this patient was on the way down, Alan brushed past her, and strode out of the room.

He recognized his mood, and deplored it. Last night he had decided that as a doctor he had neglected his wife. It would be no improvement to let the bad husband be what he was, affect his surgical proficiency.

He stopped at the floor desk, glanced at the supervisor's census and realized that he had talked to one about Fern Blake. And he had meant to.

He jerked his head impatiently and better snap out of this mood and quick! The first thing would be to eat some breakfast. He'd not even had a cup of coffee before going to the operating room. He was hungry. No wonder he was cross!

He dropped down the stairs to the first floor, went swiftly along the hall to his office, asking the floor nurse to have his breakfast sent in. "Lots of bacon!"

"Yes, Doctor."

Laura Adams had just come in; he greeted her absent-mindedly, opened the inner door and almost fell over Ann, who was seated in the chair beside his desk, her red snow suit zipped open in various places, the hood of it slipped back from her head.

"Well, hello!" said her uncle. He cleared his desk for the tray he could hear coming. "Have you had your breakfast?"

"Sure. A long time ago."

He thanked the maid, lifted the metal domes to check on what he had, poured a cup of coffee and picked up the glass of orange juice. "Is there something I can do for you, Ann?" he asked.

"Sure is." She kicked her heels against the chair legs. "We have to go to school tomorrow."

"Vacation'll be over, eh?"

"Yeah. It was only two days."

Miss Adams opened the connecting door to ask if Dr. Thornton would see Dr. Carlson on Medical.

"As soon as I finish my breakfast." After his absence all the personnel would have things to take up with him.

"Now, Ann, tell me, I'm apt to get busy you know."

"Yeah, sure. Well, we thought you know Miss Maggie pretty well, and—"

"Are you in trouble at school?"

"Well, sure! Last week we were late three days running—and Miss Maggie said we'd have to bring a note."

"Why were you late?"

"We didn't know we would be. But Fred—we didn't find out till Saturday that he'd set all our clocks right. Mums always keeps them ten minutes fast so we won't be late, and then he—Our teacher—Miss Heints, you know?—she got madder each day, and Friday she sent us to Miss Maggie and if we don't have our excuse she'll punish us! She got kinda mad when we told her we didn't know why we were late. That's why we want you to explain, Uncle Alan. You'll do it better. Mums'll get flustered, and fuses at us. And we weren't to blame!"

"No of course not."

"Will you write us a note?"

"Well—the note ought to be from your mother. But maybe . . ." He could phone Linda and ask her—No! By George, he'd not put any more on Linda! This he would attend to himself!

"I'll phone to Miss Maggie," he promised. "Or if I can, I'll walk over to her house and explain to her about the clocks. If you want, you can go with me. Will that do?"

"That will be swell!" agreed his niece, settling back into the chair. "Miss Maggie won't argue with you!"

"Well, I'm not so sure about that," laughed Alan.

He ate his breakfast, and Ann looked at a catalogue from medical supply house, chattering busily about last night's party, interspersing the account with a dozen questions.

Then she tipped her head to one side. "Uncle Alan," she said "do you think Mums is going to marry Fred?"

Alan took a little time to answer.

"All the kids at school," Ann continued, "say he'll be our daddy when his wife dies, and Mums marries him. Huh?"

"Would you like it, Ann?"

"It'd be O.K., I guess. They're kinda old to be so mushy—but for hands and stuff. Just the way Silas used to do with Libby Honeycutt. Laughin' and lookin' at each other. Love stuff!" Scorn graced in her voice.

"Wait till your turn comes," laughed her uncle, reaching for the house phone which was buzzing.

"Thornton here," he said into the instrument, listened to the crackling voice at the other end, then—

"I'll be right there." He stood up, glanced down at Ann.

"I have to go to work honey. I'll call Miss Maggie some time today. You run on home now."

And he was gone through the outer office, into the hall, his face grave, his step long—but not running. Carlson seemed excited but Alan had learned that excitement was no way to handle any emergency.

Not even his own. He'd not treat his situation with Linda in a mood of anger, or jealousy, or even hurt. He must think about it, carefully, and then do something sensible. But right now he had Carlson's food poisoning. If it was that.

Carlson was the staff internist, and a reliable man. If he was wrong about food poisoning, Alan could be concerned, too. Last night Alan had made a quick tour of the hospital but this morning he'd not had time.

He found Carlson on Medical, in the room of two seniles. The doctor was supervising the use of a stomach pump on one patient, and the setting up of a continuous gastric suction on the other. He glanced wildly at the Chief. "We've got botulism, I'm afraid," he barked.

Alan frowned.

"Began last midnight," said Carlson, as he could manage a word or two. "Nausea, diarrhea—fever, and shock. Patients added—about ten now, all bad. Soft diets, mainly. Milk perhaps. More likely the eggs."

"Eggs?" questioned Alan, helping with the apparatus.

"Frozen eggs—use 'em in scrambled eggs and custards." Carlson rubbed his bare forearm over his forehead. Both doctors looked anxiously down at the old man on the bed; he was in a bad way.

"You carry on here," Alan decided. "I'll get the Supe and line up the whole situation. Were the eggs used again at breakfast?"

"I'm afraid so."

"Here in the country we should have fresh eggs."

"The farmers are selling them to the Army personnel at premium prices."

"Oh, I suppose so."

Alan had a dozen things to do at once, and did them. He got a report on patients who were ill in this fashion, on ones who might become ill. He called in the emergency staff, members and sent both gastric samples and egg samples to the lab for tests.

Botulism in any case was a serious thing. In a hospital, afflicting people already weakened by illness or surgery the situation was grim. By noon, their old man had died, and by evening a post-operative—and they had twenty three cases on critical.

Tar Heels Whip State In Tightening Grasp On Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS North Carolina's "too young" Tar Heels have two prized possessions today: A victory over the nation's third-ranked team, North Carolina State, and undisputed possession of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball lead.

They'll keep the ACC lead at least until Feb. 4 when they meet second-place Duke at Durham. The slow-down for semester examinations won't permit anybody to overtake North Carolina until then.

The Tar Heels, ninth-ranked nationally in the last Associated Press poll, passed their fourth severe test in six days last night when they tripped State 73-69 in a game that had as exciting a wind-up as any played this year.

State, down as much as 12 points in the first half, came roaring back to close the gap in the final few minutes. The Wolfpack held a momentary one-point lead in the final three minutes. But the Tar Heels was not to be denied. A field goal put them out in front and there they stayed.

The Pack's hard-charging Vic Molodet had a desperation layup shot deflected by Carolina's Jerry Vayda in closing seconds. The basket would have tied the score.

Vayda collected a pair of foul shots in the ensuing scramble for the ball and made both to end the game.

Sharpshooting Lennie Rosenbluth led the Tar Heels with 23 points. High man for the night was State Center Ron Shavlik with 26.

The victory over arch-rival State was all the sweeter for the Tar Heels because of an 82-60 wallding handed them by the Wolfpack in the finals of the Dixie Classic.

Last night's loss was State's second of the year, and gave the Pack a 4-2 loop record.

Carolina is riding the top of the heap with an 8-1 ACC record, with only five more conference games left on its schedule. Duke, seventh-ranked nationally, is 6-1 in conference play.

Coach Frank McGuire's Carolina sophomore studded squad, which he says is "too young to be as high as they are," takes a well-deserved break after successive victories over Clemson, South Carolina, Maryland and N.C. State in a six-day span.

The Tar Heels don't play anyone until the Feb. 4 date with Duke, which will provide another severe test for McGuire's "kids."

South Carolina battled its way out of the ACC cellar last night by beating Clemson 94-79. Clemson dropped into the basement and Virginia was scuttled into seventh place by the Gamecock win.

Center Lee Collins led South Carolina with 28 points. Clemson forward Vince Yockel was high man for the losers with 19 points.

No games are scheduled for conference teams until Saturday when William and Mary is at N.C. State, Maryland is at Georgetown, and Clemson is at Furman.

Patched-Up Pirate Team Plays Eagles

After a rowdy road trip over last weekend, a patched up East Carolina team hopes to find refuge tonight in the friendly confines of Memorial Gymnasium.

McCrory's strongest independent outfits, are opponents. The Eagles are considered big threats to the Pirates' 43-game home court winning streak.

Coach Howard Porter's cagers, still atop the North State Conference despite its first setback Monday night, are certain to play without one of their regulars, and possibly another.

James Out Freddie James, sophomore guard who had just come into his own, suffered a dislocated shoulder in the rough Lenoir Rhyne scrap and will be out for the season, Nick Nichols, who has been nursing a bad shoulder all season, also returned here and may have to sit out tonight's tilt.

Without these two, Porter's team will be decidedly weak, especially on defense. Replacements for either were not known early today but there are candidates for both.

Either Maurice Everett of Robertsonville or Tim Smothers of Bethany will take over James' guard position. Porter has cited both for good relief jobs. Everett against WCC and Smothers against Lenoir Rhyne.

Hales Or Ingram Porter will draw from Marion Hales or Harold Ingram for Nichols' spot should the blond sharpshooter be unable to perform. Hales has shown streaks of brilliance in brief assignments and Ingram is a rugged scrapper.

Don Harris, who is leading the club in scoring with 262 points and a 48.7 average, will handle one forward. Captain J. C. Thomas will work one of the guards and 6-5 Guy Mendenhall will open at center.

Mendenhall, the former Cary All-Stater, has improved with each game. The lean cager, amply known among his teammates as "Spider," has been great on defense and scored 148 points. Thomas, of course, has led the floor play. The Raleigh senior has also scored 221 points for a 15.8 mark.

McCrory brings a string of 10 victories, including ones over Elon and High Point, as against two defeats, one to Davidson College and the Phillips Oilers.

The Eagles boast a fine repertoire of players among them Jimmy Jordan and Smith Langdon, two 6-8 men who have established fine names in the state. Jordan was an All-North Conference selection as a freshman at WCC and Langdon was a junior college All-America at Campbell.

Also, there is Bob Shoaf, who led scoring in the NS back in his Guilford days, and Bob Lakin who did a tour with the famed Phillips Oilers.

Over-all, McCrory has height and great scoring potential. They have probably their best balanced team of recent years. Last season they took one game from the locals and gave the home folks a big scare here.

Saddler Keeps Title As Elorde Stopped By Cut

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ringwise Sandy Saddler, his world featherweight crown still intact although somewhat battered, set his sights today on a crack at the lightweight title.

The 32-year-old Saddler, trailing by one point on all three official scorecards after nine rounds, retained his 126-pound championship with a technical knockout of Filipino Flash Elorde at 59 seconds of the 13th round last night. Referee Ray Flores stopped the scrap, a bloody melee in the final rounds because of a long, deep cut over Elorde's left eye.

The game little challenger who weighed 121 pounds to Saddler's 126 suffered the cut in the eighth round and appeared virtually blinded the rest of the way. He insisted, though, that he could have gone on.

The crowd, almost 100 per cent on his side, boomed lustily when Flores' decision to stop it was concurred in by ring physician Dr. Robert Laddon.

"I finish strong," Elorde declared in his dressing room. "The eye was not bothering me. He never did hurt me."

Dr. Laddon disagreed on his third look at the cut. Twice previously—in the 10th and 11th rounds—Flores had stopped the action for an examination and both times Dr. Laddon sent Elorde back in the 13th at the obviously worried Flores' request, he called a halt.

Saddler, whose lightning tactics brought frequent boos from the crowd, took full advantage of the bleeding cut to swing the fight in his favor. Several times in the clinches the crowd thought he was using his thumb to rub across the eye. When he was in the open the champion shot left after left into the Filipino's battered face.

Young Elorde was leading on Flores' card and those of both judges—Eddie James and Johnny Bassinelli—by 40-49 at the end of nine rounds. Saddler was awarded the final three by a 6-5 margin on all cards to finish with a 67-65 bulge. The Associated Press card showed Saddler in front 68-64 when it ended.

Elorde's manager Lope Sarreal declared, "We would like to fight Saddler again but I don't believe he'll agree to it because Elorde is too good."

Elorde was awarded a 10-round non-title decision over Saddler in Manila.

Saddler said he'd like a crack at Wallace (Bud) Smith's lightweight crown and his manager Charley Johnston agreed it was a good idea.

"No featherweight can punch with Sandy," Johnston said. "He's as strong as any welterweight."

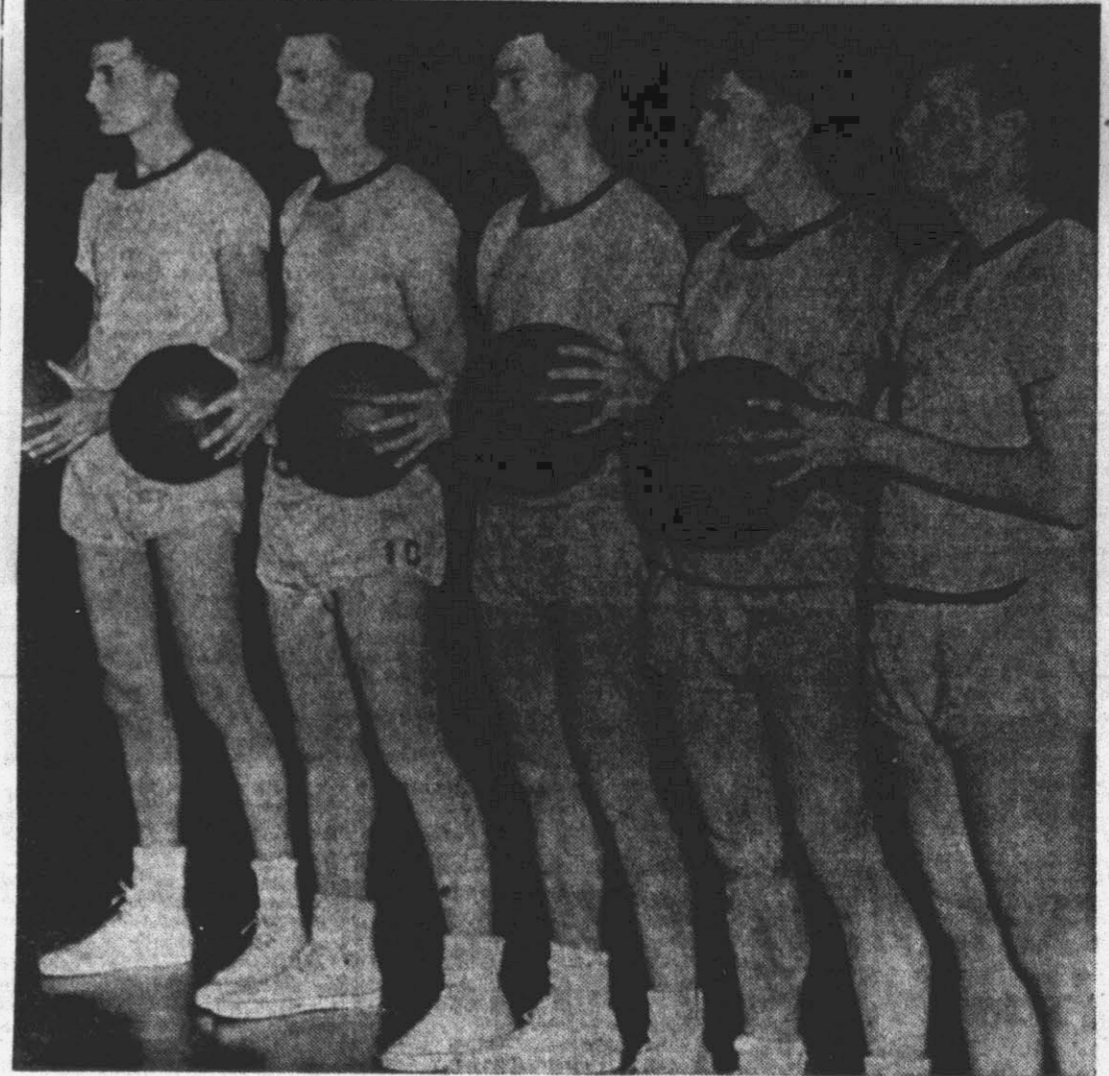

The approximately 5,000 who saw the bout paid $28,273. Saddler had a $28,000 guarantee. Elorde's take was not estimated.

Phants Favored To Stretch Win Streak Friday Night

Greenville's loop-leading Phantom cagers will be favored to extend their Northeastern conference win streak to 5 games without a defeat tomorrow night when they play host to league foe Jacksonville here.

Coach Boley Farley's Green team are currently riding the crest of a 6-game victory streak against high school opponents, and hold a 4-0 conference slate. They are tied with undefeated Kingston for the top Northeastern spot.

Impressive Wins The G-Men boast a list of impressive triumphs thus far this season, that have caused Coach Farley plenty of surprise and satisfaction. "We didn't expect to do this well," the coach said several weeks ago.

Since that statement, the Greenies have dumped two more enemies, one by 17 points and the other by a tremendous 46-point margin. Phantom hopes for a much-deserved conference crown, which were dismal during early-season activity, have now begun to glow.

Ike Riddick, Harold Edwards and company have met and soundly thrashed all but two members of the conference. Of the remaining two, Jacksonville and Kingston, only the latter is expected to threaten Green supremacy in the loop.

Greenville was able to down the Roanoke Rapids quintet by only two points. Greenies slaughtered the same Yellow Jacket crew by a 46-point margin Tuesday night. Even to the most conservative observer, this would indicate an easy win for the G-Men.

Kingston is the big worry for Greenville well-wishers. The vaunted Red Devils hold wins over Washington, Elizabeth City and Roanoke Rapids, as do the locals. Like the locals, Coach Amos Sexton's Red Demons have routed their opponents with high-scoring ease.

Phantom Teamwork Success for the Greenville team has been unexpected and not come without hard work on the part of the players and Coach Farley. Only two veterans returned from last season's club, and though they are outstanding athletes, the 1955-56 basketball crew figured at best to be only mediocre.

Ike Riddick and Harold Edwards, two high scoring seniors, were, according to pre-season predictions, supposed to constitute a two-man team. It was expected that the fortunes of the Green club would rise, and fall with the performances of the two aces. Time and excellent work on the part of other Phantoms proved these theories wrong.

As Coach Farley has stated, "Teamwork has been the thing that has put us ahead." The emergence of Billy Johnson, a rugged 6-1 forward, as a top rebounder and constant scorer has added strength to the outfit. Jerry Drum, Tommy Norris and Ray Hardee have come into the limelight as fine playmakers—and each has proved ability to score in the double figures.

The Jacksonville contest will begin at 8 o'clock, following a preliminary match between Jayvee squads from both schools, which opens action at 6:30.

Goldsboro Tops GHS Grunt-and-Groan Team

Goldsboro's AAA wrestling club scored a 40-32 mat win over Greenville high school last night at the local gymnasium, in the first wrestling contest ever held at GHS.

Greenville's only winners in the event were Alf Forbes and Billy Sermons.

In earlier matches, the G-Men grunt-and-groaners suffered a defeat to Norfolk, Virginia, high school (which boasted several state champions) by the score of 38-0, and to the same Goldsboro team.

Coach Stanley Jones is hoping to establish an annual sport of wrestling at the school and has stated that the present squad is "doing well for a first-year team."

Nat'l Football Loop Taps 360 Collegians

LOS ANGELES (AP)—National Football League coaches and executives have tapped the college ranks for 360 players most of them eligible for service next fall, and some for delivery in 1957.

The UCLA Bruins, who finished second in the Rose Bowl thriller to Michigan State, topped the colleges with 11 players drafted, but three of their top stars, fullback Bob Davenport, end Ronnie Lound, and fullback Doug Peters, have indicated a preference for the Canadian League.

The Cleveland Browns drafted Davenport, described by Coach Red Sande as the best college fullback he ever saw, and Sam Brown, a very shifty and elusive fullback. A spokesman for the Browns said that while the club understood Davenport had signed

Buddy Ebsen Today Has Hit Full Stride

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — "No matter what the experience is, bless it," Buddy Ebsen heard that quote on a religious broadcast over his car radio the other day, and he confirms it as his philosophy. Buddy has had plenty of ups and downs in his 27-year show business career, and now he blesses the lessons he learned in his low periods.

He can afford to. His career is at its peak. He became a well-known figure in most American households as Davy Crockett's sidekick George Russell. He'll soon be seen in another Walt Disney story, "Corky and White Shadow," to be serialized on the Mickey Mouse Club. At present he's doing a dramatic role in a war movie, "Fragile Fox."

Between rehearsals, he recalled days when he wasn't doing as well.

"I was out of pictures for five years," said Buddy, who started in films 20 years ago dancing with his sister Vilma. "I was a year in 'Good Night Ladies,' which set records for long runs in Chicago. Then I was in the service for three years. After that, I toured in the revival of 'Show Boat' for a year."

He came back to Hollywood to try his luck at pictures again. But his agent always met this inquiry from producers: "Why hasn't he been working in pictures?" The agent told about Buddy's five-year stretch, but the question was repeated: "Why hasn't he been working in pictures?"

Said Buddy: "They figured something must have been wrong. If anybody is out of pictures that long, they suspect there is a reason."

At one point a top executive advised Buddy to find another line of work. But at this low period in his career he was fighting mad and wouldn't consider it.

He managed to support his wife and daughters (the now has five) with occasional vaudeville, night clubs and TV. Then he landed a plum role in "Night People" with Gregory Peck.

"I got great reviews," he said. "It was a complete departure for me to do a dramatic role, and I thought it would make me a whole new career. So what happened? I didn't work for a year."

That was the lowest point in his history. He seriously considered ending his career as a performer.

Shortly afterward, his agent landed him a job in a John Steinbeck play on Omnibus. Director Norman Foster saw it, tabbed him as a prospect for Davy Crockett. But Walt Disney found a young Texan named Fess Parker. While Buddy was on a dancing date in Florida, he got a proposal for him to play Davy's pal. The rest is familiar history. Buddy is now under contract to Disney, but has the right to do outside projects.

Misty Alexandra Is Social Leader

LONDON — "Alex" has become the new reigning glamor girl of Mayfair.

Succeeding Princess Margaret, Princess Alexandra has taken over as leader of the gayest young crowd in London's fashionable night life.

Margaret, now 25, has abdicated gracefully in favor of her 19-year-old cousin with the misty blue eyes.

Most of Margaret's escorts and friends of other years have married and settled down to raise families. Though she still goes to parties with them, the tone is more sedate.

For two years Alexandra moved in Margaret's shadow but now the Duchess of Kent's pretty daughter has come out on her own. Society columnists for the past few weeks have heralded her as "The Princess of 1956."

Mayfair has noted differences between the two princesses. Alexandra is easily approachable while Margaret was regal and somewhat aloof.

"If you go to a dance where Princess Margaret is present, you are immediately aware of her," said one Mayfair columnist. "She will be sitting at the best table, with an escort either side and a waiter hovering near."

"If you go to a dance where Princess Alexandra is a guest, you may not even be aware of it. She is a girl likely to get stuck at the bar like anyone else."

Alexandra has a boy friend aplenty. The gossip column rumors are sprouting. A friend said: "She thinks them howlingly funny."

Saved Girl, But Lost Own Life

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A man who saved a girl from being hit by a train was himself killed by a train coming from the opposite direction.

Indalecio Villar, 58, was walking home from work when he noticed Beatriz Ramallo, 14, approaching the railroad tracks apparently oblivious to an oncoming train.

Villar raced toward the girl and pulled her to safety seconds before the train went by. Moments later, however, Villar crossed the double tracks, but a train coming in the opposite direction hit him. He died instantly.

More Power For Region Is Needed

SEATTLE (AP)—In emphasizing the need for more hydroelectric dams in the Pacific Northwest, power company officials cite the growth of the region's peak load from 700,000 kilowatts in 1920 to nearly 8 million in 1955 — an increase of more than tenfold. The estimate the requirements will soar to 11 1/2 million kilowatts by 1961.

OK Character Of Two Canines

ESCONDIDO, Calif. (AP)—The president of Palomar College Dr.

Phil Putnam, and the dean of men, John Dunn, appeared in court as character witnesses for two dogs.

They testified that they did not consider the Kerry Blues of a former neighbor, Mrs. Garnet Helms, were a public nuisance, or disturbed the peace of the neighborhood.

Municipal Judge John Barnett ruled otherwise, however, and fined Mrs. Helms $50.

BATTLE TO SAVE CITY FROM FLOOD:—Soldiers from nearby Beal Air Force Base battle desperately to stem the flooded Feather River threatening Yuba City Calif. The men are spending huge canyases which are being weighted and sunk on the inner edge of the ozy dike at Shanshal Bend just south of Yuba City. Truman Blames It All On Chiang

By ED CREAGH
WASHINGTON (AP)—Ex-President Truman says he is sure China could be a free, unified country today but for Chiang Kai-shek's refusal to accept a peaceful agreement with the Communists.

He says the Chinese generalissimo's "attitudes and actions were those of an old-fashioned warlord, and, as with warlords, there was no love for him among the people."

In a new installment of his memoirs, appearing in Life magazine out today, the former President says perhaps Chiang's greatest mistake was failing to heed Gen. George C. Marshall's advice when Truman sent Marshall on a "peace" mission in 1946.

Truman blames "extremists" on the Communist side as well in the Nationalist camp for the failure to reach an agreement. He adds, however, "There is no doubt in my mind that if Chiang had been only a little more conciliatory, an understanding could have been reached . . . Chiang Kai-shek would not heed the advice of one of the greatest strategists in history and (as a result) lost to the communists."

Marshall's hope was to get a coalition government formed but Truman says Marshall was unable, in the end, to persuade Chiang that (1) military force wasn't the answer to his problem, and (2) he would lose to the Communists if he insisted on waging war against them.

Truman contends that if a coalition had been formed, there was no reason Chiang couldn't have won out over the Reds in the long run just as various non-Communist governments in Western Europe have done—if he "attended to the fundamental needs of the people and the country."

Appreciation Is Voiced For Help

RALEIGH (AP)—The 12 tons of feed and clothing sent Tar Heel hurricane victims have brought expressions of thanks from seven coastal counties.

State Welfare Commissioner Ellen Winston told Gov. Hodges yesterday the supplies, which arrived Oct. 17, have all been distributed following an intended delay.

The supplies were donated by the Bay Ridge section Veterans of Foreign Wars Post of Brooklyn. There had been some question as to why distribution of the supplies took so long.

State Civil Defense Director Edwin Griffin explained that at the time the supplies arrived OD officials were trying to determine exactly what was needed in the nature of emergency aid.

Therefore, he said, it was decided to let the Red Cross take care of immediate needs of the storm victims and temporarily store the goods received from the Brooklyn VFW post.

Dr. Winston said it was felt that the supplies sent by the VFW "would serve a much better purpose if they were distributed as the weather became colder and the needs of the people became more acute after the Red Cross withdrew."

She said the counties expressing thanks for the supplies were Hyde, Washington, Beaufort, Pamlico, Brunswick, Tyrrell and Carteret.

Launch Public Hearing On Abuses In Auto Sales

By JOE HALL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Backed by a poll of retail auto dealers, a Senate subcommittee launches public hearings today on charges of abuses in auto sales.

Sen. Monroney (D-Okla.), chairman of a Commerce subcommittee on automobile marketing, released in advance of the session a poll of retail dealers showing widely held views that "bootlegging," "phantom freight" and other practices must be curbed.

The subcommittee's questionnaire was answered by 19,113 of the nation's 42,000 dealers. Of those who replied, 12,749 endorsed "congressional study or federal legislation with regard to automobile dealers' problems."

Called as the first witness was George Romney, president of American Motors Corp., which makes Hudson and Nash cars. Romney said in a prepared statement he believes "many car customers are developing a 'customer beware' attitude as a result of horsetrading practices that have characterized new car selling in the postwar period."

"I believe the automobile industry as a whole has suffered in public esteem as a result," he continued. "I believe many dealers are disgusted at the methods and ethics of current automobile marketing practices."

He said his company has adopted a new policy designed to give its dealers a bigger voice in car selling problems.

"Bootlegging" was defined by the subcommittee as discount sales of cars by regular dealers to nonfranchised dealers for resale. In the questionnaire, 11,552 dealers said "bootlegging" was seriously detrimental to their business. Most of them blamed overproduction and pressure from the factory to take more cars than needed.

Monroney said "phantom freight" often leads to extra charges of $75 to $125 a car, based on railroad rates charged as if the cars were shipped from Detroit. Actually, he said, most cars are completed and shipped from widely scattered assembly plants, many by truck at much lower than rail rates.

Aged Midwife Is Confident Of Home In Heaven

MANCHESTER, Ky. (AP)—Aunt Josie Sizemore, 100-year-old former midwife, is mighty proud of the more than 1,000 babies she delivered "up and down them hollows and branches."

Even more proudly, she proclaims she has a "home in heaven that nobody can rob me of."

Reared an orphan, the sprightly widow observed her birthday last November at nearby Ashers Fork, where she lives with a daughter.

And though she has outlived her husband by 43 years and is ready for that "home in heaven," she doesn't sit quietly by waiting. She gets plenty of exercise and occasionally visits one of more than 800 direct descendants.

Only once has Aunt Josie left the southeastern Kentucky mountains to visit a doctor in Tennessee. That was her only visit to a doctor because "a doctor or lawyer according to the Good Book has as much chance goin' to heaven as a camel has goin' through the eye of a needle."

Ford Stock Gets Its First Ride On 'Counter' Market

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Ford stock is getting its first ride in the over-the-counter market. Trading there started, in fact, before any of the stock was actually handed out to investors.

The stock was "bought" and "sold" on a "when-issued" basis. The over-the-counter market is much larger than all the nation's formal stock exchanges together. And it extends all over the country. Most of the trading is done over the telephone. Ford stock may not be listed on the New York Stock Exchange until around March 1. But from now until then it will be traded on the over-the-counter market and this trading will set its market value—as distinct from the official value of $94.90 set by the underwriters of the 10,200,000 share issue.

Over-the-counter markets differ in many ways from the formal exchanges. It is policed by the National Assn. of Securities Dealers, with around 3,500 members who are securities dealers and investment banking firms. Many of them are underwriters of the Ford stock issue.

Most of the trading is in stock not listed on the exchanges, for various reasons.

One may be that the stock is closely held—as was Ford stock by the Ford family. Another is that many banks, trust companies and insurance firms dislike the publicity that would attend fluctuations in the price of their stocks if they listed them on the exchanges. Still another is that many stock issues are too small to be listed on the big exchanges.

One big segment of the over-the-counter trading is in government securities, and the trend in yields which this trading sets is closely watched in the financial world as a sign of which way interest rates in general may be heading.

Dealers in this market handle from 70,000 to 100,000 different issues of securities. By comparison, the formal exchanges list a total of around 3,000 security issues. They must keep a record of all transactions—customer's name, time and date of the deal, and the name, number and price of the securities. These records are held for at least two years, under association rules.

They may buy and sell for others, just as stock brokers do on the exchange. But most of the deals are between houses buying and selling for their own account.

On the stock exchanges brokers openly quote their bids and asking prices, and the market takes on something of the flavor of an auction. On the over-the-counter market dealers seek each other out, mostly by phone, and negotiate the most favorable price they can.

This market is often used for secondary distribution of large blocks of stocks listed on the exchanges. The blocks may be too large to unload all at one on the market. But investment trusts or executors of estates may desire quick liquidation, so they turn to the over-the-counter market.

Another function—and the one it is now performing in the case of the Ford stock—is to ease the distribution of new issues. It is presumed that, by the time the Ford stock makes its bow on the big board a fair idea of its going price will have been pounded out in the give and take of the over-the-counter market.

Stricken Hours After Retiring

BONHAM, Tex. (AP)—Cecil Ruark, 70, who resigned as county jailer "to take things easy," turned in his keys yesterday noon and said goodby to fellow officers. To celebrate his retirement he went hunting with his son, Johnny. They were only a few miles south of Bonham yesterday afternoon when the father dropped dead of a heart attack.

Dynasty Of Huey Long Still Major Power In Louisiana

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—The political dynasty set in motion 28 years ago by Louisiana's Sen. Huey P. Long is still formidable instead of fading when he was shot to death in 1935.

This week Huey's brother Earl, 60, was elected governor of the State. Huey's son Russell, 37, is a U.S. senator from Louisiana. Huey's other brother George, 72, is a congressman from Louisiana.

After Huey was assassinated 21 years ago at Baton Rouge, his political heirs ran Earl for lieutenant governor on their ticket. They needed the magic of the Long name.

He became governor in 1959 when Gov. Richard Leche, caught up in the Louisiana scandals, resigned. Leche later went to the penitentiary. None of the scandals touched Earl. But when he ran for a full term in 1940 he lost.

He won in 1948, served until his term was up in 1952 and, because Louisiana governor can't succeed himself had to wait until now to try again. Russell won a Senate seat in a special election

In 1948 for an unexpired two-year term, won a full six-year term in 1950, and this year must face the voters again.

George was elected to Congress in 1952 at the age of 68. He won re-election in 1954 for a term expiring this year.

Huey's political control of the state hasn't been matched by any of his family, nor has any of them come close to matching his national prominence. But none of them has tried to be another Huey.

Huey was daring, ruthless, a rabble-rouser, and brilliant in his particular kind of way. His energy was endless, like his ambition. He had fantastic power in the state. He hungered for more. His minimum goal was the White House.

It is no mystery how he made his name political magic. He did many things for the people in a state which was so shabby and backward when he was elected governor in 1928.

Russell Long looks like his father but isn't in most ways. Huey was feared in the Senate and was himself afraid. He walked surrounded by bodyguards. Russell is liked in the Senate and acts as if he wants to be liked. He doesn't make much noise.

Huey was an enemy of President Roosevelt. His son is pretty much a political conformist. Rep. George Long doesn't try to be a heavy.

weight.

Earl has most of Huey's old fire but apparently only a small part of his ambition. He has seemed content with being governor.

Like Huey, Earl talks in terms of poor people. A record number of Negroes, 154,000, registered to vote in this election. Mrs. Margaret Dixon, managing editor of the Baton Rouge Advocate, told this writer Long got the Negro vote.

Why? Long and his four opponents' all came out for segregation. But Long, in his 1948-52 term as governor, got old age assistance raised and equalized the pay of white and Negro schoolteachers. Earl may not try as hard as some other Southern governors to frustrate the Supreme Court's ruling against segregation in public schools.

War Is 'Ended' By Yankee Kiss

CRESTVIEW, Fla. (AP)—The War Between the States is finally over as far as one of its veterans is concerned. He's been kissed by a Yankee.

William Allen (Uncle Bill) Lundy, 70, a former Confederate soldier, received the kiss from Miss Terry Broderick, 20-year-old Ohio State coed, at his 108th birthday anniversary party yesterday.

"That's the first time that I know of that I was ever kissed by a Yankee woman," he said. "Liked it fine."

Miss Broderick, whose parents recently moved to Crestview, and blonde Lois Davis, 20, who also kissed the Confederate vet didn't seem to mind the kissing either.

Miss Davis presented gifts and telegrams. They included 108 silver dollars from Crestview businessmen, and a message from Gov. Leroy Collins.

After eating his favorite meal of fresh pork ham, turnip greens and corn pone, the "right spry" Rebel showed he has forgiven all Yankees.

"I love everybody," he said. "Glad to be here."

Uncle Bill, one of our survivors of the war which ended almost 91 years ago, repeated his recipe for longevity: "Look after your own business, keep away from doctors and look at every pretty girl you see."

Lundy was a member of the home guard at Elba, Ala., in the closing days of the war.

Other Confederate survivors are John Salling of Slat, Va., and W. W. Williams of Franklin, Tex. Albert Woolson of Duluth, Minn., is the only Yankee soldier still living.

W. Archie Sugg, native of Greenville, has been appointed to the newly created position of manager of Marketing research by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company.

Sugg is now assistant director of corporate marketing for General Foods Corporation in White Plains, having been associated with the firm since 1946. For a year after his graduation he filled an appointment on the research staff of Harvard Business School.

During World War II he served as an officer in the U. S. Naval Reserve, on duty with the Bureau of Personnel in Washington, D. C. Mrs. Sugg is also a native of Greenville. They have three children.

Itinerant Held In Child Assault

MESA, Ariz. (AP)—A 33-year-old itinerant was arrested yesterday shortly after 7-year-old Carla Hixon, kidnapped on her way home from school, was found battered and bleeding in the desert.

County Atty. William P. Mahoney Jr. said in Phoenix he planned to charge the man, Wayne Vance Taylor, with the abduction. The child, who was found unconscious under a bush about eight miles northeast of here, was reported in serious condition.

Mahoney said Taylor admitted he picked the girl up in his car Tuesday afternoon but claimed he could not remember what happened later. The county attorney said Taylor probably would be charged with kidnaping, aggravated assault and grand theft.

A doctor at the hospital where the girl was taken said an examination showed she had been sexually molested.

Taylor told officers he had been living in a car.

Sheriff Cal Boies said Carla regained consciousness shortly before Taylor was arrested and described her assailant.

"He wanted to pick me up and take me home," she said. "I didn't want to get in the car. Then he hit me... and dragged me into the car."

"Then he took me to the desert."

Wrong Language For A Mexican

NOGALES, Mexico (AP)—An overcurious wife touched off a tavern fight and ended up in jail with her husband.

The woman, an American tourist, asked her husband the meaning of a Mexican slang word and a patron at a nearby table took violent exception to its use.

The couple paid $6.25 in fines and $30 for new eyeglasses for a man who tried to break up the fight was hit in the face with a beer bottle.

Heater Repairs Still A Mystery

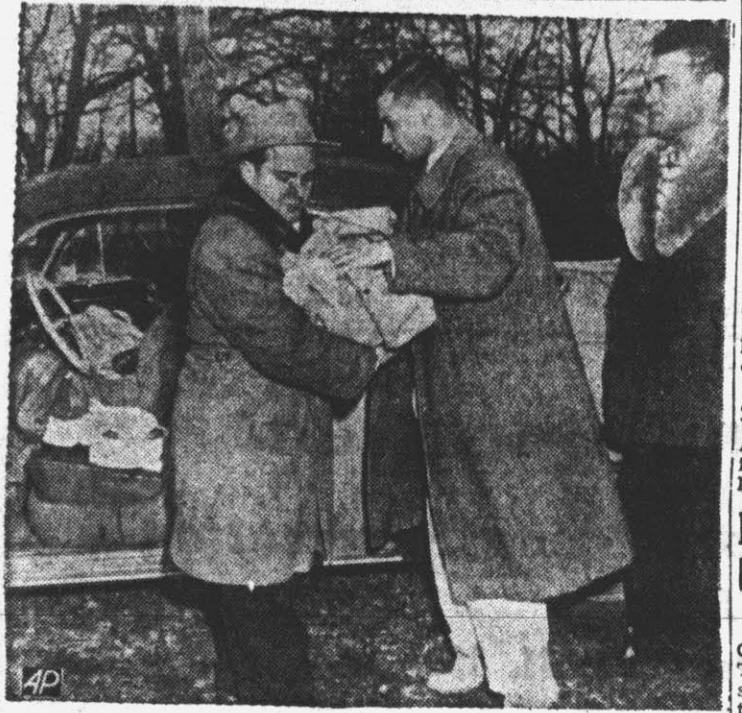

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Walter Grubbenmann, an industrial engineer, says he tried repeatedly to repair the heater in his automobile, but had no success until this happened:

While parked in a restricted area, he saw a policeman approaching. Assuming correctly that he would not be bothered if he pretended to be making repairs, Grubbenmann lifted the hood of the car, unloosened a screw and retightened it after the policeman had passed. The heater has been working fine ever since.

Outraged Cat's Tail In Wringer

MOLINE, Ill. (AP)—A cat got its tail caught in the wringer while Mrs. Pearl Strofahl was doing the laundry.

The outraged feline managed to tug itself loose with the help of Mrs. Strofahl, but in the process her daughter, Janice, was clawed and bitten. A veterinarian said the tail was only slightly injured.

A BUMPY ENTRANCE INTO THIS WORLD:—Seymour Kanarek (right), 28, watches as a doctor and a hospital attendant remove his new-born daughter Jill from his automobile in New York. On the front seat is Kanarek's wife who gave birth to the baby as the car skidded from the road and crashed into a tree. Later, mother and daughter were reported doing fine. (AP Wirephoto).

To honor its greatest son, born here as the seventh child of a court musician, the medieval city is preparing a Mozart week filled with concerts, opera performances, chamber music evenings and matinees, all devoted to his works. The festivities will end with a performance of Mozart's opera "Idomeneo" by the Vienna State Opera company on the birthday night. Earlier that day ceremonies will be staged in the house where the composer was born. Commemorative Masses will follow in several of Salzburg's old churches. Three leading orchestras—the Vienna Philharmonic, the London Philharmonic and the Bamberg Symphony—will play Mozart's compositions.

Electronic Brain Centers Planned To Protect U. S.

By ELTON C. FAY
AP Military Affairs Reporter
The United States is pushing the building of electronic brain-nerve centers to meet the present threat of potential enemy bombers and the future menace of long-range missiles.

Under test at the Lincoln Laboratory here is the prototype of an even-temper chain of units—in which computing machines, radar warning systems and communications networks will provide, automatically and almost instantly, information needed for waging air battles.

Officials of the laboratory, run by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said work on other centers will be carried on, even though operation of the first unit still is in test stage. They told visiting reporters the "critical nature" or defense needs required immediate start on other installations.

The laboratory, under contract with the Air Force, has developed the complex system called "SAGE"—named from the words "semi-automatic ground environment."

It is a system built around a new type of electronic, digital computer which, among other features, can store up statistics in its "memory" tube and feed them out at split-second speed to provide answers.

The computer, operating at a rate termed "hundreds of thousands of times faster than man," receives information flashed from radar stations on the ground, on ships, in the air and on offshore towers.

A commander at SAGE system sector headquarters thus would have before him a constantly changing picture of the course of a battle between invading bombers and interceptor planes, anti-aircraft guns and anti-aircraft missiles like the Army's Nike.

In a command post room, illuminated only by dim blue light, reporters saw the television-like screens of cathode ray tubes. On these black faces blinked green light traceries of maps, of location of defensive forces, or simulated planes bound on "saturation" raids toward Cape Cod and the New England coast.

Symbols and numerals, changing continuously as the "brain" received and produced new information, presented a composite, up-to-the-minute picture of the air situation over scores and hundreds of miles.

The SAGE system, when fully operational, not only will receive information and "recommend" procedure to commanders. It also will steer interceptor planes to approaching enemy bombers, and after the "brain" has decided everything is ready, it will fire the missiles or rockets of the interceptors.

Cost estimates for building a continental system range from laboratory officials' figure of 'more than a billion dollars' to two billions or more, as given in congressional committees.

Copacabana Tied Up With Traffic

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Copacabana is a beautiful beach. It's world-famous. The only trouble is getting to it.

Traffic to the beach is a mess in Rio's current 100-degree heat wave, people in long lines to get aboard buses for the shore. Then the loaded buses wait in long lines to file into the tiny area behind the beach. Coming back the lines are longer and the day hotter and junior tired.

The trouble is that Copacabana is a long, narrow area—three miles long and three blocks deep—jammed in between the mountains and the sea. All traffic has to filter along three streets parallel with the beach.

The heat wave traffic jam touched off complaining editorials in Rio papers. The editorials fired up plans to improve traffic. Buses are barred from the street along the beach. Each of the other streets will be made one way to carry buses and streetcars. (In a town where a Buick costs $12,000 and the average wage is $100 a month streetcars and buses carry most of the traffic.)

No thought has been given to speeding up the beach front traffic. A driver likes to go slow so he can look at that tanned girl in the red bathing suit.

Business Buying Much Insurance As A 'Cushion'

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Business in the last year took out three billion dollars worth of life insurance policies on owners and top executives and key employees. This brought to more than 20 billion dollars the total of such insurance naming as beneficiary a corporation or partner or business associate.

Annual purchases have tripled in the last six years. Good times may have furnished the money to pay the costs, but high taxes and stiff competition that puts a premium on top management ability have helped push the purchases to new heights.

The aims of such insurance are usually to offset the business loss involved in the death of key men, or to ease the transfer of ownership at death, or to insure continuity of business during a turbulent financial period.

The Life Insurance Agency Management Assn. of Hartford, Conn., reports that its quarterly buyers' surveys show that more than 150,000 business life insurance policies were bought in 1955. The association reports that about a tenth of all adult ordinary life insurance purchased in recent months was for business needs.

Similar surveys it made in 1949 showed such purchases came to one billion dollars in that year on some 70,000 policies.

The increasing role that taxes play in encouraging this form of insurance buying is pointed up by the Institute of Life Insurance. It cites the number of cases in recent years when firms have been forced out of business because of the failure of the owners to provide tax funds at death. Heirs sold the firms to get the cash needed for inheritance taxes.

Eva's Building Is Given College

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The building which housed Eva Peron's social aid foundation is to be used for college classrooms.

Education Minister Arturo Dell'Oro Maini announced the former Eva Peron Foundation headquarters in downtown Buenos Aires will be turned over to the science and architecture schools of Argentina's university system. He said present facilities for those schools are crowded.

Eva Peron, wife of Dictator Juan Peron, created the foundation to help the needy. This in turn had political advantages for her and her husband. Forced contributions fed the foundation. Eva Peron died July 26, 1952. Juan Peron was overthrown last September. The revolutionary government has taken over the foundation.

Although marriage of cousins was once supposed to be the main cause of mental deficiency in the children, most students no longer believe this is true.

Reading Hours Treasured Despite Television 'Lure'

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)—The room in our house known as the library contains several hundred books, a typewriter and some comfortable chairs. It also contains a television set.

The other evening a friend who dropped in glanced at the books and remarked "I'll bet you don't have much chance to read any more."

It's true that my job requires that I view a lot of television programs. Yet I also read a lot. I don't read as much as I did before but I read more intensively. This, incidentally, is one of the conclusions reached some time ago in a New York study of television and reading habits.

A couple of years ago book publishers were quite concerned over the effects of television on the book trade. Today they are not. For the book trade has just completed what appears to be its most successful year since World War II.

Many good books were published and widely read. No major publishing house closed its doors and most have made satisfactory profits. The happy year of 1955 in the book trade, remember, occurred at the same time as a happy year in the television industry when sales reached an all-time high.

Let me talk about myself for a moment and so possibly explain what happens with many people. Last weekend when I was in a reading mood, my wife and I spent about six hours looking at television. About half of this time was pleasurable. The rest was duty. Much of the remainder of the weekend I spent reading.

Television has made me jealous of reading hours. Increasingly I want to read something specific instead of "anything."

Television now affords me the "escape" that some reading once did. When I read these days I seek something that television cannot possibly offer.

TRIUMPH OF THE BLENDER'S ART

Everybody's saying it:
CAL-NITRO INCREASES CROP YIELDS

They know now from experience . . . farmers are having their greatest success, their largest profits when they use growing plans that include extra non-acid forming Cal-Nitro.

The best, low-cost nitrogen fertilizer compound for all types of crops, Cal-Nitro is a guaranteed source of 20 1/2 lbs. of top-grade nitrogen for every 100-lb. bag.

Not only that, but Cal-Nitro includes two types of fast-acting, essential nitrogen, half nitrate and half ammonia. And the effects of the ammonia nitrogen are long-lasting; even heavy rains will not leach it out of your soil. Its benefits last from dressing time until it's time to figure your profits.

In every way, Cal-Nitro proves itself by improving your yields. It comes in handy, free-flowing pellet form and is easily applied by hand or machine. Remember, Cal-Nitro is exactly neutral—non-acid forming and not alkaline.

Get the complete Cal-Nitro story today from your dealer or county agent . . . it will be worth your while.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market gradually retreated today after a mixed start.

In the early afternoon, prices spread over a narrow range that didn't very often exceed a point either way.

Trading right at the start was swift and there was some congestion as overnight orders were executed, but the pace of trading was a little lower than yesterday's 2,110,000 shares. The market, yesterday was sharply lower.

Motors were down with General Motors off 1/2 at 44 1/2 on an opening block of 11,000 shares. Chrysler also was off.

Ford over-the-counter at noon was bid at 67 1/2 and offered at 67, a shade lower than yesterday's late quotes. Activity in the stock has died down from yesterday's frantic pace, and some brokers reported dealings were quiet.

While the motors were down, steels were mixed, railroads lower, oils lower, chemicals mostly lower, and aircrafts higher.

President Eisenhower's decision to permit his name to be used in the New Hampshire primary election was coupled with the statement that he hasn't made up his mind whether to run for a second term. The market gave no immediate visible reaction to that stand.

Yesterday's market went along all day in a fairly stable manner, but late in the session there was a concentrated rush of selling that sent prices down all around.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off $1.80. Today's noon the average was down 50 cents at $174.60.

CAMPAIGNS BY DOG SLED—Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) rides in a dog sled through the snow on the final lap of his three-day presidential campaign swing through New Hampshire. The Rev. Keith Bryar, known locally as the "mushing parson," handles the sled for the senator near the town of Lacconia. Two Arrested In ABC Chase

Two young Negroes were arrested by Pitt County ABC officers here last night and charged with possession and transportation of non-tax paid whiskey.

Jimmy Lee Carmon, 22, and Orlando Simpson, 20, were arrested after officers chased their car for several blocks through the "Bama" section of South Greenville.

Carmon and Simpson, ABC chief J. M. Ward said, were placed under $300 bond each.

Their car, a 1955 sedan, was seized as was a gallon jar of bootleg whiskey found in it.

Ward said Carmon and Simpson were parked when he and other officers approached. The two Negroes drove off however, when they spied the officers and the chase ensued.

Participating in the arrests in addition to Ward were ABC men H. B. Lilley, Walter Taylor and James Ross.

Cold And Sloppy Over Carolinas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was cold, sloppy and slippery over most of the Carolinas today, with prospects of more of the same.

Temperatures tumbled as waves of chilled rain, light sleet and snow flurries swept in during the night. The Weather Bureau predicted more liquid and frozen rain and some snow in western North Carolina and rain over much of South Carolina during the day. Clearing and colder is the forecast for tonight and tomorrow.

Some low temperatures for the 24 hours ending at 7 a.m. today: Asheville 34 (with 26 inch precipitation) Charlotte 37 (.13), Columbia 39 (.26), Greensboro 32, Greenville, S.C. 35 (.73), Raleigh 30, Wilmington 29.

In the Asheville area, light snow and sleet last night changed to rain during the morning. Main highways remained open, but Yancey County schools were closed because of icy secondary roads.

Light sleet fell in the Raleigh-Durham area. Rain followed, and was expected to turn to snow by nightfall.

A trace of snow and sleet at Greensboro was expected to be the first phase of a weather barrage that would include up to 50 inch of rain and snow. Roads in the Greensboro area were wet but not frozen over.

A light pre-dawn sleet descended on Charlotte. Later it became a chill drizzle.

Low temperatures in extreme northwestern South Carolina were expected to be about 30 tonight with lows of about 36 in the coastal area.

North Carolina lows were expected to range from 28 to 35.

There was one consolation about the drippy weather. Rain is needed almost everywhere.

Eden Warns Of 'Dry Tinder' In Middle East

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

BRADFORD, England (AP)—Warning that there is "plenty of dry tinder" in the smoldering Middle East to touch off World War III, Prime Minister Eden said last night in a speech before the House of Commons.

Eden said that the chief deterrent to global conflict, "the justifiable fear of world conflict today," he said, "is due to the deterrent of nuclear weapons. Remove the deterrent or take risks in pretending the deterrent is not there, and the world outlook would be terrifying indeed."

"The justification for both atomic and hydrogen bombs is that they are deterrents so awful no country will risk their use against itself."

In an apparent turnaround of Russia's demand for an end to hydrogen bomb tests, Eden said Britain intends to go ahead with the development of its own H-bomb.

"It becomes increasingly unlikely any country possessing hydrogen bombs would deliberately use it against a rival power that owns it also," he said. "We intend to own it also."

Eden's speech had been widely viewed as the opening gun in a campaign to rebuild his government's prestige, which recently has hit a low point at home because of spiraling domestic inflation and Soviet gains in the Middle East.

But the Prime Minister's pledge of alert resistance to rising prices at home and Red aggression abroad aroused only lukewarm enthusiasm in the British press.

Eden assailed Soviet bloc moves to build up influences in the Arab states by sale of arms and other inducements.

"Governments should beware," he warned, "lest in trying to undermine long-established friendships between others, they embroil themselves in graver perils."

Eden, who leaves Jan. 25 for talks with President Eisenhower said East-West relations had changed in recent months — but "not for the better."

He pledged, however, to keep striving for some way for Communist and free world nations to live together "without quarreling over the domination of the world."

Lashing out at when he called "baseless reports of disunity" in his own government, Eden served notice he intends to stay on as prime minister.

"This country is not on its way down and my government is not on the way out," he told cheering constituents.

Named To Board Ayden Clinic Is Continuing Work

AYDEN—This Pitt County town, which lost its new Medical Clinic to a pre-dawn fire last week, has established new medical facilities temporarily at the American Legion Hut.

Dr. Lawrence Alexander and Dr. Clifton Davenport have transferred much of the salvaged equipment to the Legion Hut and patients are being received there.

Among the items salvaged from the building was the $9,000 x-ray machine. Originally thought to be seriously damaged, the x-ray unit apparently was affected only slightly by water which seeped through from the roof.

A report on total damage to medical equipment still is incomplete however.

Both building and equipment were insured.

The building, opened last spring, was constructed as a community product at a cost of about $60,000. The fire, which apparently began in the roof near a heating unit, destroyed much of the interior but left the outside walls standing.

Benny Will Play In Carnegie Hall

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A fellow who claims to be 39 and has been a violinist 47 years reports now that he will play with the New York Symphony Orchestra in Carnegie Hall on Oct. 2.

The man, of course, is comedian Jack Benny who stopped counting his age when he approached 40. He said yesterday that his New York appearance will be under the baton of Alfred Wallenstein and added:

"I shall try to sound like I'm good enough to play with the symphony even though everyone in the audience knows I'm not."

Despite the way he murders "Love in Bloom" in public, Benny has been a violinist since 1909 when his father gave him the instrument he still uses.

Benny said his appearance was part of the "Save Carnegie Hall" program.

A real estate firm owns the 65-year-old auditorium and has been negotiating to sell it to a firm that wants to put up a commercial building.

Boxing Inquiry Resumes Today

NEW YORK (AP)—The next phase of Julius Heffland's investigation into boxing was scheduled to open today when Promoters Tex Sullivan and Willie Gilzenberg of the Monday night fights at St. Nicholas Arena were called to appear before the chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission to show cause why their licenses shouldn't be revoked.

The St. Nick's promoters, who operate as the London Sporting Club with a network television (Dumont) outlet must answer eight charges by the commission at a hearing.

Sullivan and Gilzenberg are charged with "conspiring with persons convicted of crime, bookmaking, gamblers and persons of similar pursuits in connection with their attempt to transfer operations to Baltimore. They also are charged with trying to help members of the Boxing Guild of New York 'sabotage' the commission by contracting to move the club out of the state."

The club announced a move to Baltimore, effective Jan. 23, but didn't move because Gov. McKel-din of Maryland made his commission withdraw its permission.
