Pastor And Legislator Win Farmville Service Tributes

FARMVILLE — The Rev. Mr. LaFone C. Vereen and Representative Walter B. Jones last night were honored as Farmville's two outstanding men of the past year. Rev. Vereen, pastor of the Farmville Methodist Church, received the Distinguished Service Award presented by the Farmville Jaycees annually to the outstanding man between 21 and 35 years of age, and Rep. Jones received the annual award presented by Farmville to an outstanding citizen over 35.

President Handed 'Friendly Letter' From Bulganin

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today received a "friendly letter" from Soviet Premier Bulganin setting forth what the White House called "certain ideas" respecting world peace. Soviet Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin read Bulganin's letter in Russian to Eisenhower and to Secretary of State Dulles who received him in the President's office. An interpreter translated it into English as he read.

Eisenhower Plans Another Checkup Prior To Feb. 15

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he plans another full-scale medical examination before mid-February. But he declined to say whether that will speed up his decision on whether to seek a second term. The President told a news conference he has asked his doctors to arrange for an examination earlier than the middle of next month because he is planning a little trip to the South.

Four Will Ask For 'Interposition'

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Governors of four Southern states have agreed to ask their legislatures to protest by "interposition"—the U.S. Supreme Court's decision that outlawed segregation in public schools. The degree of protest that would be incorporated in the various interposition resolutions was left to the individual states, but there were indications three states would stop short of defying the high court.

The 22 members present were delightfully entertained by Miss Janet Watson at the piano. The several selections she played were beautifully presented and thoroughly enjoyed by all. Her mother, Mrs. T. M. Watson, was a special guest.

Mrs. M. W. Maxwell, the president, presided over the meeting. Mrs. H. A. Hudson gave the devotional, using as her topic "Looking Forward to the New Year." Both the scripture and the story she read were in keeping with the subject. She closed with a prayer by Peter Marshall.

Dues were collected and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. James Fiver, treasurer.

The roll was called and the minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Annie Carter, secretary. She also read several "thank you" notes.

Plans were made for a luncheon to be served by the class at the church on February 3rd. Mrs. J. W. Tyndall and Mrs. W. G. Garner are in charge of this. Donations of food, helpers to prepare and serve the luncheon were obtained.

The president announced that the class would have charge of the devotions in the sanctuary during the month of February and the class was urged to support the members in charge: Mesdames W. G. Garner, J. L. Simmons, Clara Moye Shackell and Helene H. Kirkpatrick.

Further improvements in the class room were noted and favorably commented upon.

Mrs. Carl Simmons was welcomed as a new member.

During the social period, the hostesses served delicious homemade coconut cake with coffee and nuts.

Directive Might Mean Something

On the surface at least, the Civil Service Commission has made an about face in its policy governing information which will be given to the public from that federal agency.

Whether the turn-about in policy is genuine or superficial depends upon two factors: 1. The previous real attitude of the commission, its old directive notwithstanding; and 2. the new attitude of the commission, its new directive notwithstanding.

The Civil Service Commission for months has been prodded by a House Government Operations subcommittee to unplug the flow of information from the agency to the public. Last week the Commission issued a new directive to its employees asserting they have a responsibility "to assist in the task of keeping the public informed."

The new directive of the commission replaced a previous one which advised employees that information about the commission affairs is "the property of the government" and must not be disclosed without authorization.

The old directive was used to cover up a great many things higher ups in the commission did not wish the public to know. We believe too, in addition to keeping back information of a security nature, it likewise put a curtain around information which the public should have had, but which officials did not want publicized.

Whether the new directive issued by the commission will make any difference in the amount and kind of information which can be obtained from the commission remains to be seen. It should make a difference. It should set the stage for easier access to information from the commission to which the public is entitled and has not been getting.

At the same time the new directive should prompt other federal agencies which have clamped the lip on public information without good reason to re-examine their policies toward public information.

If officials of the Civil Service Commission believe in their directive, that it is their duty to assist in the task of keeping the public informed, the obstruction in the free flow of information should gradually disappear. If the new directive is merely an attempt to quiet criticism directed at the commission for withholding information, the new directive is now worth to the people of the nation the paper on which it is written.

We Can All Share In Campaign To Help N. C.

Every citizen of North Carolina has a share in the industrial progress of the state.

Certainly most citizens can afford a $10 share of stock in the North Carolina Business Development Corporation which was formed by Governor Hodges as a major instrument through which the state can finance its own small industry expansion.

This week Jaycees throughout North Carolina begin selling $10 shares of stock sale, and thus bring the capital of the new corporation to $1,000,000 which can be used to help finance new small industries throughout the state.

Progressive businessmen of the state as well as some of the state's largest corporations have invested in this new Business Development Corporation, realizing it will fill a two-fold purpose. It will give a good return on their investment, and at the same time it will be an instrument through which home-grown industries which cannot find sufficient capital elsewhere can receive financial backing. Through these new small industries which will be developed, more jobs will be created throughout the state and the economy of the state raised.

While the corporation is organized on the state level, it will benefit every community in the state. For that reason, if for no other, every community should be well represented among the stockholders. The Reflector urges the people of Greenville and Pitt County to purchase at least one share of stock each in the North Carolina Business Development Corporation. Local Jaycees are taking subscriptions for the stock and during the next several days will be calling on people throughout the community in an effort to sell the stock.

This is one concrete way in which anyone who desires can have a direct and vital part in furthering the home-grown industrial development not only of his own community, but the entire state.

We trust the people of Pitt County will indicate their interest in North Carolina's industrial development by responding to the plea to purchase stock in the North Carolina Business Development Corporation.

Traffic Toll Reflects The Careless Moments

With the new year less than a month old, Pitt already has recorded its first highway fatality of the year. There are more to come, there's no doubt about it. The question is, how many more?

It has been almost two decades since Pitt County went a year without a traffic death. With the age of automobiles becoming more advanced, there is no hope that ever again will Pitt County be able to go through 12 months without recording a traffic death. The best we can hope for is to keep the highway slaughter at a minimum. And what the minimum is to be, no one knows.

Last year Pitt County registered 18 highway deaths. The year before there were only seven killed in traffic accidents in Pitt. The year before that 15 people lost their lives in traffic accidents in the county.

How many will it be in 1956?

One guess is as good as another. There is one thing sure, however. The number of deaths will be directly proportional to the number of times drivers violate the fundamental rules of highway safety and common sense behind the wheel.

CHALLENGE - North Carolina boosters were surprised - not alarmed - by reports of the Census Bureau that Virginia and South Carolina have gained population more rapidly during the past five years. Mid-decade estimates credit this state with a gain of 5.5 per cent while our neighbors to the north and south have gained 7.8 per cent above the official count in 1950.

Charles Parker, director of state advertising, said the Department of conservation and development had recognized for a long time that the neighbors were outdoing us in population growth, although exact percentages were not known. That was why Governor Unstead two years insisted upon emphasizing industrial development. The industrial development program has three major objectives: To bring new people into North Carolina, to keep those we have and furnish both newcomers and oldtimers with productive employment, and to the end of raising per capita income and spreading the burden of financing government services.

The State folks regard this situation as a challenge and say that they have no time for alibis or explanations. Their aim is to see that the last half of the decade reverses the trend.

There is a seldom mentioned factor that might have had considerable influence on the percentage slow-down here. It takes three to five years to locate a big industrial plant. There seems no doubt that North Carolina has suffered during the past two or three years from widely publicized statements by top officials earlier that there was an imminent power shortage in this area.

REDUCTION - Consensus among Tarheel tax specialists seems to be that, despite the attitude of President Eisenhower, there will be a cut in federal taxes this year.

There is further belief that the reductions will be based on political expediency rather than consideration of sound taxing policy. This thought was expressed by a high ranking official who, for obvious reasons, asked not to be quoted by name.

He said it will depend upon whether the politicians in the Congress direct their appeal to the relatively few who "feed the kitty" in the party campaign funds, or to the mass of voters. If they decide that a well-regarded campaign machine can deliver the votes, the cuts will be given to big taxpayers in order to encourage contributions. If the decision is that purely campaign propaganda will be less effective with the mass voters than direct relief to them, the cut will be in the low bracket taxing classes. He based his observation on long study of taxation history. In his opinion every tax bill enacted by the Congress or the General Assembly in the past ten years has been influenced more by political considerations than by sound economic policy.

A commission authorized by the last Legislature is studying the State tax structure with a view to recommending improvements. Composed of nine successful business men headed by Brandon Hodges, former treasurer and with James S. Currie, director of tax research as its executive secretary is collecting data on how North Carolina's taxes compare with other States and with sound policy.

GAS BILL - Neither of North Carolina's members in the United States Senate is certain how he will vote in the Fulbright bill to exempt production of natural gas from control by the Federal Power Commission, or some other governmental agency.

Senator Ervin says he can make a speech on either side of the question. Ethical and philosophical arguments, are all in favor of no control, because if natural gas can be controlled at its source so can coal and lumber and cotton and tobacco. Economic and political arguments are all for control, because every other segment of the transportation and distribution of gas is controlled, by some Federal or State agency, or both.

Senator Scott was originally strongly in favor of control, which means he was opposed to the Fulbright bill, a companion measure to the Harris bill already passed in the House by a narrow margin. Now he is not sure his first position was right, because of the precedent that would be established for control of other products at the source.

Both men are faced with conflicting attitudes among their constituents. Senator Scott is in a tougher position than he is. He has conflict within his own political inner circle. The fuel oil people want no regulation of natural gas prices at the source, because if fuel gas rates go up the oil will be in better competition with the gas. The transportation and distributing companies, under strict regulations themselves, want the producers regulated.

Ben Roney, Senator Scott's administrative assistant, is in the wholesale fuel oil business. Sanford, his campaign manager and confidential adviser, is attorney for a gas distributing company.

What Other People Are Saying

TO THE EDITOR: Learned educators tell us what no one will deny. The public school is a handy tool to teach our children why they must be progressive and see the world is freed. But some stand by and wonder why Johnnie cannot read.

Learned educators tell us the private school is damned. Why do they fear the private schools when public schools are jammed? Is it because the private school cannot be made as great. Or is it because they really want all to integrate?

If public schools cannot endure some private competition. What holds them up is simply this—their tax-paid situation.

To many a private college public funds are paid. And the educator looks on this calm and undismayed.

It's true you can tear a system down but it can be rebuilt. But if you destroy an entire race, who can bear such guilt? When black and white are firmly mixed and turned to brown and gray.

Who is going to rally round upon that fateful day? Will the educator hear us in his crumbling tomb? And come leaping back to save us from extinction in the womb? Best to rebuild a system and then not have to beg.

Some ghostly educator to undo a scrambled egg.

Strength for the Day

TRUE CRUSE OF SOUL

Robinson Crusoe! Do you remember reading about him? He was the delight of many of us during childhood. Furthermore, this story by Defoe is one of the great classics of all time.

And do you remember that Robinson Crusoe found a copy of the Bible in a chest when he went hunting for medicine to cure his fever? Of course the fever he cured was something vastly more serious than a mere physical ailment. Crusoe in that Bible found Christ and new life.

Whether Defoe meant this scene to be symbolic or not, no one, of course, knows. But certainly it is symbolic. We go hunting for medicine to cure our earthly ills and if by chance we come upon the Bible—behold, the ailment which lies behind all our ills is cured.

People sometimes wonder why Jesus healed certain people and apparently passed over other people. Evidently he healed those who had faith to be healed. Furthermore, he usually appears to be healing a physical ailment but on healing the sufferer's soul.

The Bible is still the world's best medicine. Robinson Crusoe went hunting for a remedy and found redemption. He expected to get relief from a nostrum; he got a basic cure out of the New Testament.

Recalling A Noisy Neighbor

Want to tell you about a neighbor I won't forget in a hurry. He stood just a shadow over knee-high when I first met him. Not exactly a heavyweight, but sturdy and of sound mind.

A low-head, with glints of red in his hair, he wore gold-flecked freckles and a grin that was contagious.

Mickey (as he was known as) moved into my own tight little orbit with a yell that could be heard for blocks. A vocal display so impressive one's first thought might well be the Indians were rising. . . and the sight of a very small boy running around the corner of a house across the street would strengthen those suspicions but for another shrill squall of sound as he raced back to the rear of his home.

Mick had a shouting voice and loved to let forth with a whoop just for his own amusement, to denote pleasure, alarm, hurt, and . . . I suspect often for no reason at all.

Don't misunderstand me, he had some quiet moments; and he slept his allotted hours at night and briefly napped each afternoon. He could, and did, walk instead of run; but the latter was apparently his normal gait.

Being a friendly chub, our neighbor would occasionally come over to entertain and be entertained while I was cutting grass or watering the lawn. A couple of times he wore his bathing trunks which invited a hosing. . . always good for much prancing, grimacing, squealing, shrieking and laughter.

For months, on hearing a shrill shout in the distance, the words

"that's Mickey" were silently framed in the back of my mind. Of course he has been gone for years, now, but a good enthusiastic holler will still recall him to mind.

Mick's family moved to Beaufort, and being very closely attached to his daddy and mother, he went too. That was in '51. Two summers after they moved we accidentally met at the beach for a couple of minutes. It was very plain our ex-neighbor was growing up. He appeared a bit self-conscious, but you could recognize something of his old roguish swagger.

Mick was four or five years old when he lived across the street, and it's probably just as well he won't be reading about himself today. I wouldn't want to embarrass him, for my 9-year-old likes to be reminded of the follies of his youth.

Notebook On Life

Things One Learns By Mail

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Some things a columnist might never know if he didn't read his mail:

That there are more than 1,500,000 people named Smith in the United States, and the number increases by about 100 every day. This doesn't include the Smyth, Smythes, Schmitts, Schmids or Psmiths.

That if you pick up a handful of good soil you hold more living organisms in your fist than there are human beings in the entire world.

That American industry in the next 10 years will spend 56 1/2 billion dollars on research and development, more than 1 1/2 times the total expended since the birth of the nation.

That in 1941 only about a million American families owned two or more cars, but now 4 1/2 million do. But do they fit in a 1941 garage?

That in autopsies performed on 192 cats killed in highway accidents not one was found to have consumed a wild bird. The stomach contents consisted mostly of mice, young rabbits and rats.

That perhaps the most crime-ridden community in the world is Karakelle, a Turkish village with a population of 450. In the last 90 years not one of its inhabitants has been arrested.

That you may not be able to teach an old dog new tricks, but Joseph W. Lippincott, a Philadelphia bird authority, found 60 crows learned to speak more readily than younger ones. That the coffee percolator was invented by James H. Nason of Franklin, Mass., in 1865.

That 50 per cent of the nation's annual 1,200 to 1,400 poison deaths in the home arise from fatal gases occur among children 4 years of age or less.

That 60 per cent of the successful parlor games now popular in America were invented by amateurs. But please don't send your ideas for new games to me; all I play is "Post Office."

That physicians for Cesare Borgia, Italian Renaissance prince, treated him for malaria by sewing him up for two days inside the carcass of a disembowelled mule. He survived, too, and emerged feeling better. Or so the doctors claimed.

That it is safer to drive in the city than in the country. Of the 36,000 fatal car accidents in 1954, some 27,000 occurred in rural areas, only 9,000 in urban centers.

That woman's place is now in the business office as well as in the home. In 1890 men clerical workers outnumbered women eight to one, but today women hold a three-to-one edge.

That a "whynnyburger" is a hamburger made from horse meat.

That a survey made during a heat wave in Chicago showed stenographic errors increased 1,000 per cent when the office temperature rose from 78 to 96 degrees.

That a well-dressed man permits his shirt cuff to extend eye-to-eye one-half inch beyond his coat sleeve. Our motto: "Every day another lifelong problem solved."

That four of 10 American men now smoke cigars, either regularly or occasionally.

That the half billion common colds caught in America each year cost five billion dollars—an average of $10 a cold—in lost wages, lost production and medical expenses. Can virus "X" match this record?

That some scientists believe the world's climate is getting warmer because of a gradual increase of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere. Now, if everybody will just start breathing faster, maybe we can get rid of this cold wave.

That TV actress Betty White of "Life with Elizabeth" says, "Men are bigger dreamers, better story-tellers and finer cooks than women." Well, thank you, Betty.

Opinions In Brief

TRAER, IOWA, STAR-CLIPPER: "The American principle of freedom of opportunity is related to Jesus' parable of the talents. You remember the story of the three men who were given one, two and five talents. The man with but one talent buried his. The other two worked hard and increased their holdings twofold."

Lowered Selling Costs For Buyers' Era

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON - A sharp reduction of prices with maximum savings to buyers of all kinds of goods will be the 1956 contribution to our high-level economy, in the opinion of public and private experts in the retail field. They regard lower selling costs as the only solution to our unexampled system of mass production, employment and investment. Otherwise, it may crack up.

It will be a buyers' era because of the fierce competition that will be required to move commodities from the factories, warehouses and retail shelves to homes. In 1955, the best selling year in economic annals, well-paid consumers supplied their wants to great degree. They stocked up, regardless of prices.

Many fulfilled Herbert Hoover's forecast not only of "two cars in every garage," but two of many other things—refrigerators, television and radio sets, electrical appliances. In fact, the former President, once ridiculed by F.D.R.'s politicians and economists for his 1928 prediction, was recently praised by Senate Committee members for his foresight. They called him the "Churchill of America" in the economic field.

HANDLE SOME $30 BILLION The maligned and prosecuted discount houses have contributed heavily to this trend, and they will continue to do so. They are apparently here to stay, willingly. There are now more than 10,000 in the United States, and they handle more than $30 billion worth of trading. Their ability to lower costs and to survive arouses customers' suspicions of the economic justification for conventional prices in all lines.

As a matter of fact, a Department of Justice Advisory Committee has recommended repeal of the Federal Fair Trade Act, which permits fixing of prices within a state by the manufacturer if only a single retailer agrees to his minimum lists. However it is doubtful if Congress wants to act or even discuss this controversial question in a re-election year.

CUTTING PRICES Although several states have resumed or failed to enact a supplementary Fair Trade Act, the Supreme Court and many state bodies uphold the Federal statute whenever questions reach them. But the dry law in the 20's. Bootlegging is rampant from coast to coast.

Both manufacturers and retailers have abandoned attempts to enforce them. Where products have not announced the termination of minimum price lists, like Westinghouse Electric and the Sheaffer Pen Company, the retailers themselves disregard them. They're cutting prices for standard goods from 20 to 50 per cent.

PSYCHOLOGICAL EFFECT These strange developments have had a psychological effect on customers. The reductions have led them to ask whether previous markups at retail were justified. As a result, they are shopping around, becoming more selective as to price and quality, and, although it is an unorganized movement, forcing down the price

Survival Rates Are Very Low

By ELMER ROESSNER

The couple that opened that store on the avenue today are such nice people. The young man isn't long out of college and he looks you straight in the eye when he answers your question. His little wife has a smile for everyone and no chore is too menial for her. She hums as she sweeps the floor.

And what excitement! Paper banners are everywhere. All the relatives are there to help. Aunt Angie is passing out lollipops to customers' children. Windows and awnings shine. There's no speak of dust anywhere.

You want this young couple to succeed so much you buy something you didn't want anyhow. "Come on!" you say under your breath. "Make this a success! Make lots of money! Build up a stake for that baby who all can guess is on the way! Succeed, succeed, succeed!"

And their chances?

THE GRIM FACTS

It is less than even money the business will survive for two years, according to a new study by the Department of Commerce. Of all businesses started from 1946 through 1952, barely half survived that long. Survival rates in retailing were lowest of all. Wholesale businesses did best, with 69 per cent surviving perhaps because few people enter this field unless they have experience. Financial, real estate, construction and manufacturing businesses did better than average, but service trades and retailing were below.

Summarizing the study in the latest "Survey of Current Business," Betty C. Churchill said, "Half of the concerns which were newly established or acquired by transfer during the years 1946 through 1954 were out of liquidated within two years." In other words, in postwar experience, there was an even chance that a newly acquired firm would last about two years under the same management. The chances drop to about one out of three that a firm would live to the age of four, and to about one out of five that an age of 10 years would be attained. "Attained," in government language, means "reached."

MILLIONS-OF SHUTTERS

In numbers, the figures should be even more frightening to the young couple on the avenue. The Commerce study shows that from 1944 to 1954 inclusive, approximately 12,000,000 business concerns were in operation for some time or another.

During that period, 7,800,000 were disposed of. Sixty per cent were sold, reorganized or transferred to new owners and 40 per cent were liquidated.

There is one flaw, if no, in the Department's figures: at least in conclusions that might be drawn from them.

The 4,680,000 businesses sold, reorganized or transferred included some lousy successes. A business started with a few dollars were sold, reorganized or transferred for thousands of dollars, of course. "Sold," a firm that grew so fast that additional partners were brought in was "reorganized." And a business that got so big that partners decided to incorporate was "transferred to new owners."

Furthermore of the 3,120,000 businesses that were liquidated, some were wound up because the venture was completed and the profits put to bed; some were closed because the owners died or decided Federal taxes were so high the worry wasn't worth the net. And if the figures are accurate, they include some enterprises that were liquidated because revenue agents or members of vice squads put them out of business.

Nevertheless, the rate of sale and closure is high. Starting new businesses is nothing for people with weak hearts, thin purses or glass chins.

GOSH! HOW WE CONFUSE THE RUSSIANS!

One of the things we lucky taxpayers are getting for our money is weekly reports on the change in the rate of sales of winter pears by grade and size, in 60 self-service stores in the Pennsylvania market area. "The purpose of these reports," states the Department of Agriculture, "is to arrive at an estimate of changes in the rate of movement of winter pears as indicated by retail sales per 100 customers."

General Electric was the first to respond to this pressure. Instead of trying to police its thousands of retailers, it reduced prices on many small electrical appliances by 30 per cent. Rivals will have to follow suit. G.E. and its outlets expect to recoup through a larger volume of sales with '56 as the year. Items which have not yet lowered selling costs are observing this experiment for future guidance.

BUYERS' VEAR Other factors should make 1956 a buyers' year. Automobile firms, for instance, gave huge discounts, or turn in values in 1955 despite relatively large increases in wages and fringe benefits. But it is not expected that the wage scale will skyrocket so sharply in 1956 or that change-over in styles will be so costly. More stable labor costs should permit reductions.

Moreover, automation is producing many labor-saving devices in production, transportation, storage, distribution and retailing—all for the buyers' benefit.

UDC Chapter Hears Program On Lives Of Famous Confederates

An account of three famous men of the Confederacy whose birthdays occur in January provided the program when the George B. Singletary Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy met on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. S. T. White.

Robert E. Lee, Stonewall Jackson and Commodore Maury, the "Pathfinder of the Sea," all settled in Lexington, Va. for their last home. Mrs. White pointed out that it was as president of Washington College after the Civil War that Robert E. Lee enlarged the school and inaugurated the honor system which still exists today. After his death, his name was added to the title of that school.

In a sketch of the life of Stonewall Jackson, Mrs. White noted it was at Virginia Military Institute that he taught for ten years prior to the Civil War. "Today his tactics and professional knowledge in the art of war are recognized as being far ahead of his time; he was elect-

Friends Give Housewarming

ROBERSONVILLE—Mrs. I. E. Medlin, Mrs. Irving Coburn, Mrs. Hugh Roberson and Mrs. Willie B. Everett were hostesses at a housewarming honoring Mrs. John Henry Roberson in her new brick home on South Broad Street. At 7 o'clock Monday evening, four friends called. A little later two more came, then four joined the group. Although the assembly continued to gradually grow; Mrs. J. H. Roberson had no idea of the plans until a neighbor walked in with a basket of potato chips.

The many pretty packages were carried to the house. The honoree received a complete setting service of six in china, also the matching sugar, creamer, a platter, a bowl and the vegetable dishes. Her other gifts included towels, pillow cases and a rubber mat for the sink.

After the many useful presents were admired, the refreshments brought by the guests were served.

Miss Hooper Instructs Club Class In Reading Course

Members of the Greenville Credit Women's Breakfast Club assembled in Miss Emma Hooper's class which at East Carolina College last Friday night for the first lesson of their Reading Course.

The Dixie Council project for this year is a study of the book "How to Become a Better Reader" by Dr. Paul Witty and is designed to aid adults increase their reading rates, improve their comprehension, and build their vocabularies. While this is a self-help book, assistance is needed from an instructor to know how to properly study the book and make more rapid progress.

Miss Hooper has had many years of experience in teaching this course and the club members are most appreciative of her cooperation and interest in helping the club with this project.

After giving a preliminary test to the members, she gave instructions on how to study the book, pointing out the many advantages to be gained from the course. The book helps develop reading skills and habits needed for better jobs and for greater enjoyment and progress made will enable members to do their own jobs better. She emphasized that in taking this course, members compete only with themselves.

Miss Hooper will visit the club in February to give additional assistance and check on progress made. The next regular club meeting will be held Saturday morning, Jan. 28, at 7:30 at the Olde Towne Inn.

Bishop Right In The Middle . . .

By this time we assume everyone has read something about the hullabaloo they're having up at Chapel Hill.

Well, what you probably don't know is that a Greenville boy is right in the middle. Wayne Bishop, formerly with the REFLECTOR, is sports editor of the Daily Tar Heel and is wholeheartedly behind Tatum's coming to North Carolina.

Bishop has been writing for the change while the co-editors of the paper have been editorializing against it. Many Bishop supporters are crusading to have the co-editors thrown out and vote Bishop in as editor-in-chief.

The practical people, the workaday world, disagrees with the Daily Tar Heel on Tatum and football. Most of the alumni and most of the members of the Board of Trustees are among these.

They have to be contrasted to a segment of the faculty which presumably gives its blessing to their proteges of the student newspaper. But even the pedagogues are made happy by winning Saturday afternoons.

We agree with Bishop and the others with the same line of thought. Subsidization of athletics, as we see it, cannot encourage education, only retard it. Right now in colleges, athletics are prominent stimuli for would-be college students.

If Tatum builds another football empire at Chapel Hill, and its likely that he will, the student intake at the institution will be overwhelming.

Phants Won Under Boards . . .

"Go state champs, go" roared Kinston supporters last night. "That was last year," retorted Greenville fans. And the Greenville team did a lot to back up the yell.

The defending state AA champions wanted to run and the Green Panthoms obliged them. Then when the race got underway good it was Greenville in the role of the tortoise, Kinston the hare.

The Greens' fast break was as sharp as it has been all season . . . maybe just a hair sharper. The game was won, however, under the backboards. Strong Harold Edwards, who'll make somebody a fine college player, overpowered the Red Devil jumpers, picking off 14 rebounds. Greenville's defense was disastrously lax in the early minutes of the contest. Coach Bo Farley had his five in a 2-3 zone with Ray Hardee on Poo Rochelle, the Kinston live wire. After the first quarter, Farley put speedy Jerry Drum on Rochelle and he did a real tidy job.

This Kinston team will have had a lot of luck if it repeats his state championship. Most observers feel that GHS-Kinston game here won't be any contest.

Coach Amos Sexton's aggregation needs a big man who can move. Joe Fountain, who started at center and was the tallest man in the lineup, has difficulty traveling the length of the court in time to be of any advantage on defense.

In the past, the state champ has made it something of a tradition to come from the eastern part of the state. With Kinston halfway down, and Greenville to have the home-court advantage the next time, it's possible that the Northeastern rep in the state tourney would be Greenville . . . but that's just long-range wishful thinking.

THE MAIL-A reader has come up with an interesting deduction: East Carolina has a better basketball team than North Carolina State. The formula is simple: East Carolina beat Belmont Abbey, Belmont Abbey beat Richmond, Richmond beat Furman, Furman beat George Washington, George Washington beat Duke, and Duke beat State. See!

Robinson Promises Fight Of His Life For 3rd Base. BROOKLYN (AP)—Jackie Robinson, who yesterday swallowed his pride and agreed to a $4,500 slash in salary, served notice today he was prepared to make "the fight of my life" to retain his regular third base job with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"This will be my last year," he said, "and I intend to make it one of my best."

The 37-year-old Robinson hastened to add this wasn't meant to cast any reflection upon Jackson, who came to the Dodgers last December in a trade involving Don Hoak, Russ Meyer and others.

"Jackson is a great guy and a fine third baseman," he said. "He'll help the club considerably if Randy beats me out. It will be all right with me because it will make the club stronger. I know Brooklyn didn't get him to sit on the bench. But neither are they paying me that much money ($33,000) just to pinch hit occasionally."

Last year was Robby's worst. He played in parts of 105 games and batted only .256, the first time he had gone under .300 in seven years.

be easy because I have no intention of sitting on the bench. I didn't think I could play regularly. I wouldn't have signed for another year, I'd have quit."

The 37-year-old Robinson hastened to add this wasn't meant to cast any reflection upon Jackson, who came to the Dodgers last December in a trade involving Don Hoak, Russ Meyer and others.

"I know everybody, and maybe that includes the Brooklyn front office too, has already conceded the third base job to Randy Jackson," he said. "But, as far as I'm concerned he's got to take it away from me. And that's not going to

Phantoms Defeat Kinston By 69-62 Score Phants Out-Shot, Out-Ran Kinston

By BILLY ARNOLD, Reflector Sports Writer

KINSTON—Behind the leadership of veterans Ike Riddick and Harold Edwards, the Greenville Phantoms out-fought, out-shot and out-ran defending AA State Champion Kinston, 69-62, last night in the Red Devil gymnasium, to remain undefeated in Northeastern conference play.

Edwards was high scorer for the evening with a total of 24 markers, only a shade above the 22 collected by teammate Riddick.

The big win for the G-Men places them in undisputed first position in the loop with a 6-0 slate. Kinston dropped into second spot with a 5-1 record.

Phants Never Behind Guard Ike Riddick took the opening tip from center in the first play of action, dribbled half the length of the court and sank a field goal before the game was a minute old. From this point on, the favored Red Devils were unable to grab the lead. Kinston tied the tilt four times, but never ahead, and at one point were as much as 11 points behind the red-hot Phantoms.

Coach Boley Farley's league-leading Greensies employed their celebrated fast-break style of play to perfection last night, with guards Riddick and Jerry Drum playing a cool front, while Edwards, Billy Johnson and Ray Hardee kept the pot boiling beneath the basket.

In the first quarter, Greenville jumped to a quick two-point lead, but Red Devil Poo Rochelle tied the score 4-4. Riddick and Edwards began scoring with amazing accuracy from that time on, and kept the visitors out in front throughout the rest of the period. The score was 17-16 at the end of the quarter.

A smooth Phantom defense held the highly-touted Kinston scoring attack to a meager eight points in the second period, while the Green strength continued to search the new Greenville ball-handling was at its best during this section of the contest.

Green Dominated Rebounds Perhaps the most startling single factor of the battle between the two league-pacers, was the Greenville strength beneath the boards. Much of the Phantom lead can be accounted for by their ability to hold the home squad to only one shot practically every time they touched the ball. Harold Edwards used his 6-4 frame to the best advantage and received ample assistance from 6-1 Johnson and Riddick, a 6-footer.

When the buzz sounded the end of the first half, Greenville had run up an 11-point margin, ahead by a 35-24 score.

Between halves, Kinston Coach Amos Sexton revised his defenses, tightened action in the middle to stop Edwards, who had racked up 12 tallies during the first half, and left the outside loose.

The opening minutes of the second portion of the battle showed a new fire among the Kinston ranks. Forwards Poo Rochelle and Bobby Stanley began a fast break that netted the Red six quick points. Little Larry Hart, Kinston's top husher, added two field goals and the host team threatened.

Substitute Tommy Norris, who took over Ray Hardee's position at forward, commanded the team coolly and began to open holes in the tight defense with passes to Edwards in the center slot. Despite the cluttered middle lane, Edwards continued his tremendous scoring effort with deadly accuracy. He and Riddick, assisted by Johnson in the scoring parade, managed to keep the visitors out in front.

Strong Greenie Finish With the score running 52-46 at the end of the third quarter, the Phantoms proceeded to nip the nets at a fast clip, still depending upon their rebounding power to carry them over the rough spots.

Kinston came within two points of tying up the contest several times in the final quarter, but each time, the Farley-men managed to produce tallies that diminished the Big Red threat. The Green quieted pushed ahead to a 65-66 score with only two minutes remaining in the game, and began a slowing down process, in an effort to freeze action. They received several foul shots in the closing moments, due to anxious Devil tactics, and the total to 69. Larry Hart added a final field goal to the Kinston tally and the tilt ended 69-62.

Greenville's defensive play had as much influence on the outcome of the final score as did their tremendous accuracy. Big Elton Faelton, Kinston's 6-3 center, and second highest scorer on the squad, was held to eight points. In the last half, when the blonde pivot man was assigned the task of stopping Hal Edwards, he failed to tally a single point, while Edwards racked up 12.

The 69-62 win over the Red Devils gives Greenville top spot in league standings, with a 6-0 record, and the season half completed. They now hold victories over every club in the conference and have yet to taste defeat.

At this point, early predictions, which favored Kinston as the final loop champions, have undergone a switch and the Greensies get the nod. Coach Farley neglected to comment on this, choosing rather to say, "We're just glad we won this game!"

The next Greenville battle will be a conference affair, taking place in New Bern, Friday night. In two previous contests, the Green have pulled out wins of five and 34 points over the Bears.

Grifton Cagers Take Two Wins Against Chicod

Grifton swept to two wins last night in a conference tilt against the Chicod boys and girls, in Grifton. The home team won the girls' bout, 65-60, and plastered the Chicod boys, 72-50.

Leading the girls to victory was a tremendous 41-point effort by 5-7 Dawn Smith, who accounted for over half of her team's total tallies. Lou Rae Mewborn racked up 14 for the Grifton cause. Pat Mills collected 33 for the visitors.

In the boys' contest, the Grifton cagers came from behind in the first quarter to post a 72-50 win, with every man on the squad hitting the scoring column, with the exception of two. Branch led with 18. The boxes:

Farmville, Ayden Split Loop Games Farmville and Ayden halved a couple Pitt County Conference games last night. The Farmville girls won handily, 41-17, and the Ayden boys, 48-27.

Joyner's 20 points led the winning girls. Johnson had six for the losers. Tripp and Stocks canned 12 and 10 respectively to pace the Ayden boys to their 12th straight victory. Holmes had a dozen points for Farmville.

Most of the casualties are skiers and most of the accidents have been caused by the lack of snow. There hasn't been a snowfall in two weeks and the light covering scattered over the ski runs each night hasn't kept the slopes from becoming too icy and dangerous. Keen competition also has contributed to the injury list.

The change was announced yesterday by State Athletic Director Roy Clogston. He said it was made to avoid a conflict with the Duke-North Carolina game at Chapel Hill and to provide a Thanksgiving sports attraction.

The game will resume a series between State and Maryland which was interrupted last year.

Wake Forest's New Coach Begins Building Grid Staff

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (AP)—New head football coach Paul Amen set about the task today of putting together a new coaching staff at Wake Forest.

Amen, former backfield coach and chief scout at Army was hired yesterday by the college board of trustees to replace Tom Rogers who resigned last December. Amen was given the privilege of selecting his staff.

While the college did not reveal terms of Amen's contract it was believed he received a three-year pact calling for $10,000 yearly. Rogers received $7,500.

The trustees did not act yesterday on filling the athletic director's post. Pat Preston resigned this position at the end of last season but agreed to remain until a new football coach was selected. Amen told reporters after his selection yesterday. "We've got work to do. My job starts immediately. We've got to begin recruiting some talent. We're way behind."

The new Deacon mentor is a native of Nebraska and was a three sports star at the University of Nebraska. He had been an Army assistant for 12 years. He plans to move his family to Winston-Salem as soon as a house is available.

Amen's appointment at Wake Forest makes the fifth change in Atlantic Coast Conference coaching ranks since last season. George Barclay was fired at North Carolina and Jim Tatum of Maryland was hired to replace him. Tommy Mont was named Tatum's successor at Maryland.

Rex Enright moved up to the athletic directorship at South Carolina and Warren Giese, Tatum assistant at Maryland, was hired as head coach. Red McDonald resigned at Virginia and a successor is being sought.

Three Carolina Boys Selected NEW YORK (AP)—Three Carolina football players have been selected on the 1956 All American high school team announced by Scholastic Magazine.

The team includes quarterback Harvey White of Greenwood S.C., and tackles Ronnie Boston Boyd, Salisbury, N.C., and Donald Stallings, Rocky Mount, N.C.

Sheltered Walk For Chicod School Pupils

By IVA LOU BRUNSON
Chicod High School

Just about the time everyone and everything has settled down from Christmas and New Year's noise, a new noise is heard around here. The Chicod Ruritan club is having a new covered walk built from the school to the cafeteria. I know it will be a welcome sight around school. No one likes to walk to lunch in the rain.

D-Day has been declared here at Chicod. Wednesday was the important day. Mr. Hodges, our principal, and the teachers of Chicod have derived a demerit system for the students at Chicod.

Arguments, honestly! No one is mad, though; it's only our debate team getting ready for this year's debate.

We certainly do hear a variety of music now. Our band members are playing together now and they sound very good. The band, of course, isn't the only music we hear at school for there is the Glee club which is in full swing now also.

All the students are enjoying a two weeks course on safety under Mr. Charlie Moye. They seem to be practicing what they have learned right here at school in the halls, and we hope they are doing the same when they get on the highway. We were honored by the presence of Cpl. Whitfield who talked to the student body on Thursday about safety. Many of the school members have been watching his program of safety tips and have benefited greatly. His jokes, funny incidents and rules for safety were taken to heart by all.

There's one thing in full swing now that I am sure everyone is enjoying tremendously. That's the basketball games. The cheerleaders ring loud and clear under the leadership of their chief. They have new uniforms and are even more enthusiastic. We are all looking forward to our game with Gritton and also Grimesland next week.

Last Friday night, which was the 13th, many of our students attended and enjoyed the late show in Greenville. I think it was especially enjoyed by members of the ball team after the girls' victory over Belvoir.

There have been two faculty meetings here this week. They enjoyed cokes and refreshments both times.

PTA meeting was Thursday night. It was held at the school and a large number of parents were present. A panel discussion was led by the principal, Mr. Hodges.

Post-Game Parties Are Increasing

After ball game parties are becoming the thing around GHS. The Phantoms are becoming regular winners too. Many fans left the high school gym happy Friday night after the team had beaten Jacksonville 71-42.

Lou Ficklen had a gang over to her home. "Everyone just came over after the ball game and danced," Lou said. Among those who went were Frances Clark, Margaret Nobles, Fred Nobles, Lewis Phelps, Lois Tunnell, Frances Moseley, Tommy Key Norris, Howard Madge Stancill. A few others who came were Ruth Young, Kelly Barnhill, Cynthia Cranford, Billy King Willis, Betty Lane Evans, Lawrence Perkins, Kathryn Oakes and Betsy Whedbee.

After the game about 30 people found their way to Dee Huz's home. The crowd had fun getting together and dancing to everything from "Angels in the Sky" to "Tutti Frutti." Kathryn Johnson, Dee Hux, Jimmy Smith, Wade Jordan, Mickey West, Lois Ann Webb, Martha Branch, and Steve Wilkerson were really hep on some smart pop steps.

After the get-together eight girls stayed over for a pajama party. Ann Rooke, Dornig Jenkins, Ann Hamric, Lois Ann Webb, Rosemary Eagles, Kathryn Johnson, Linda Whitchard, Martha Ann Branch, and of course Dee all got into little huddles eating and talking the night away as usual!

Patsy Moore, a senior, and Mrs. Margaret Farley, librarian, attended the executive board meeting of the North Carolina High School Library Association in Thomasville Saturday. Patsy is treasurer of the state association.

"Mrs. Farley and I went up and spent one night in Raleigh with Miss Celeste Johnson, who is the state library assistant," Patsy said. During their trip they were interested in meeting a man from Cairo, Egypt, who was studying the library and school systems of our country under the Point Four Plan.

Patsy's duties during the year have consisted of keeping up with membership dues, ordering pins for members from different schools, and other business duties. She has kept account of over $1,000 while holding this office.

Lois Ann Webb and Rosemary Eagles were in Raleigh Saturday to attend the North Carolina State-William and Mary basketball game. The two girls bumped into Jack Clifford, a former GHS student who is attending State. Jack is living in Atlanta, Ga. now. Dewey Griffith, who is a freshman, played with a small band unit during the half. Dewey and Ray Gardner have organized a dance band at State.

A Doctor in the Family

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

It seemed to Linda that she had not spoken a dozen words privately to her husband since before Christmas. And when they were together, they'd been at cross-purposes, or swept along on a tide of other people's affairs. . . . Christmas, the fire, his father's illness—poor Uncle Arthur—

She parked the car and went inside the hospital, her red hair blowing about her face, her big coat swinging above her slender ankles.

Miss Adamant said the doctor had "stepped out," she thought he'd be right back. It was Laura who told Linda about Silas.

Linda's eyes were still wide with sorrow and first realization when Alan walked in.

"For Pete's sake," cried Miss Adamant "whose coat is that? And you've still got on your X-ray apron!"

He took off the too-small coat, and the apron. His eyes had touched Linda's face in greeting. He gave the garments to his secretary. "Will you hang the coat in the lobby—I think it must be James'. And then you might take the apron downstairs. I'm glad you're here, Linda. I wanted to locate you." He closed the door upon Miss Adamant, and led Linda through to his inside office, his hand lingering upon her shoulder.

She looked up at him. "I've just heard about Silas."

"Yes." His eyes searched her face. "I went to Margaret—then home."

"Oh, Alan, do you suppose . . . ?" "I don't know, dear. That's the hell of it. We can only hope and pray that he is." Alan went on to tell of his going to Margaret. "She'll take this, of course. Margaret has the required stuff."

"Do you suppose there is a chance he may have escaped alive?"

"Until we hear different, we must believe in that chance."

"You mean when I talk to her—"

Alan nodded. He sat back in his chair, his face stern, but serene, too.

Linda sprang to her feet. "You're taking it aren't you?" she cried. "You're just like her. Oh how I envy you! Your strength and your—your sureness that you have strength! Sometimes I rebel against the family—its—solidity! But I envy it, too, and wish that I had it—that I belonged." She sat down again in the chair.

Alan heard the tone of hysteria; he knew that she was voicing her grief about Silas. But she was also telling him—

"What you rebel against," he and warm. "I've generally found, Linda, that it's better to let these people help themselves as much as possible, and on their own level."

"That sounds a bit snobbish as though they're going to need anything. He shook his head. "It's not snobbish, however. Their level may be better than my own. They live a much simpler life, for one thing. If they are afraid, they run and hide; if they are angry, they show it. If they love . . ." his mobile mouth quirked . . . they bring a half-dozen bastards into the world. And pretty good ones, too. You know, I suppose, that Ma'am's notion of any legitimate child of an old name being better than a bastard of sturdy stock just doesn't stand up with me. Mrs. Fowler's got a couple of mistakes in her brood, but generally she's bred pretty true."

"But that surely was an accident!"

"Oh, no! She'll tell you herself that she likes a fine, upstanding man!"

Linda laughed a little.

"It's the important strain to breed for," Alan assured her. "Ask Father."

"I don't need to ask him. He's often pointed that out to me, and in his own family. He agrees that you and Margaret and Silas . . ." She broke off her eyes darkening with remembering pain. "You say she's taking it, Alan?"

"She has to take it!" he said gruffly. "Fred Blake was with her when I got there." He turned to look out of the window, his hands tightly grasping the chair arms. Then he swung back to face

Linda. "I've been in a bad spot over those two," he blurted. "But this thing about Silas makes it worse than I dreamed it could be."

"About Fern, you mean," said Linda softly.

"I've wanted to talk to you about it. You know that it always helps me to talk a problem out with you. But things have seemed . . . somehow . . ." He looked at her appealingly.

"I know . . ." she said contritely. "I've been in a turmoil over it," he admitted. "Try as I can to define my simple duty as a surgeon to my patient."

"Had you reached a decision, before this word of Silas?"

His eyes clung to her face. "I don't know that I had, really," he said slowly. "Have you ever seen Mrs. Blake?"

"No."

"She—she's alive, except that she breathes and her blood circulates. She is a rather good-looking woman—but that isn't important! Any more than Margaret's big brown eyes and her lovable disposition are significant. Or even the nasty blows which life has dealt her. Or the fact that she's my sister, and I want her to be happy!"

"All those things, however, make this a dreadful decision for you to make, Alan. Why don't you send Mrs. Blake to Dr. Cabler?"

His green eyes flashed. "But even that is a big decision, dear. I can do the operation—he assures me that, I can. Or he'll do it if I ask him to. In either case, the problem is the same."

"Will the operation help her?"

"She survives it, yes. The extent of that help is problematical, of course. So my decision has become one as to whether I should hurt my sister, perhaps disastrously, by helping Mrs. Blake to a few more days, weeks, maybe years, of conscious life."

"If you don't operate . . . ?"

"Cabler says it sounds like complete atrophy within a short time."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (U)—The stock market advanced into the early afternoon today in a continuation of the strong recovery movement initiated yesterday.

The rise today wasn't as vigorous nor as sustained as yesterday's advance. Gains of 1 to 2 points were just about tops. There were only minor losses scattered throughout the list.

Trading hit a pace of around 2,000,000 shares for the day. That compares with 2,160,000 shares traded yesterday.

Steels were out in front of the advance today still enjoying buying enthusiasm based on continued high production.

Motors were steady at best. Railroads were higher. Oils were mixed to higher. Aircrafts made progress. Some coppers were strong.

Yesterday's rally in the stock market was the best in more than two months, although it was accomplished on modest volume. The rise was stimulated by bargain hunters and by the optimistic Eisenhower economic message.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up $2.20, and today at noon the average was ahead $1.00 at $174.80.

RALEIGH (U)—(NCDA)—Hog markets today were 50 to 75 higher. Tops of 12.20 at Snow Hill, Beaufort, Farmville, Nahant, Hillsboro, Mount Olive, Mount Gilead, Siler City, Elizabethtown, Micro, Tarboro, Enfield, Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Lumberton, Clinton and Fayetteville. 13.00 at Castle Hayne, Goldsboro, Shallotte, Kenly, Bailey, Tabor City, Whiteville, Clarkton, Dunn, Warsaw, Newton Grove, Rocky Mount, Rich Square and Smithfield.

Bank Messenger Owns A Trolley

DALLAS (U)—Bobby Slinger, 20-year-old bank messenger, is now the owner of a 48-foot streetcar but has no place to put it. He won it in a drawing held by the Dallas Transit Co. which gave the streetcar away when it converted to buses this month.

But Slinger, who has 10 days to move the trolley off the transit company's property, can't say he wasn't warned. In announcing the drawing the transit firm said it would cost at least $100 to move the aged streetcar which is worth about $100.

Another Youth Is Knifed To Death By Gang Of Boys

CHICAGO (U)—A 19-year-old youth was stabbed to death last night in the city's second apparently unprovoked teenage gang violence in three days.

Witnesses told police that the victim, William J. McNeff, and a companion were attacked by a gang of four boys after they stepped from a car on the South-west Side.

One pulled a switchblade knife and stabbed McNeff in the heart. McNeff's companion John Cahier, 20, escaped injury. He said he recognized the slayer but knew of no reason for the attack.

A gang of teenage hoodlums reportedly beat Donald Stevens, 18, South Side Sunday night. One of the four youths reportedly named in grand jury true bills charging assault to kill was quoted as saying the gang "had nothing to do and thought we'd get us a few kicks."

A larger than life-size skeleton with a movable arm will ring the bell automatically every time an electric motor attached to the sign is turned on.

The bell is attached to the upper left hand corner of the sign with a chain extending across the sign's face to the skeleton arm at the right.

Across the sign's top in red letters is the slogan, "Drive Safely." Beneath that are the words, "Bell tolls for 8 hours after each traffic fatality in Pitt Co."

Following that is a summary of wrecks, listing the number killed last year (18), the number killed to date in 1956 (one) and the number injured to date in 1956.

The sign was erected with permission of the County Commissioners. Its ringing is not expected to disturb office workers nearby although, as one person put it, "we hope it'll call attention to the message it carries."

Washing Dishes Will Be Easier

EAST LANSING, Mich. (U)—Dishes will be washed by sound and dried by air in the future, an expert told the Industrial Cafeteria Managers Conference at Michigan State University.

Prof. Donald Greenway, director of the MSU School of Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Management said that, in addition, atomic by-products will help preserve perishable foods.

Centenarian Can Beat Pneumonia

LOS ANGELES (AP)—He's 100 years old and Jonathan D. Voris, retired mining engineer, continues to confound medical men by his ability to survive pneumonia. Voris was discharged from Queen of Angels Hospital yesterday after winning his third bout with pneumonia in two years.

"I'm still pretty tough," said Voris as he took his grip and left for the home of Mrs. Blanche Rigby, his daughter. "Being around young people keeps me young."

Jaycees Hang A Bell They Hope Won't Ring

Greenville Jaycees hung up their bell yesterday but hope they'll have few opportunities to ring it.

The bell was the final touch needed to complete a new safety sign erected on the court house lawn.

Designed under the direction of project chairman James W. Boykin of the State Highway Patrol, the bell will be rung for eight hours after every highway fatality during 1956.

A larger than life-size skeleton with a movable arm will ring the bell automatically every time an electric motor attached to the sign is turned on.

Voters' League Hears Local Govm't Reports

A series of reports on Greenville and Pitt County government and services highlighted a meeting of the Provisional League of Women Voters last night in the Council Room at City Hall.

The reports are part of a city-wide survey being conducted by the local organization.

Remarks were heard from Mrs. B. B. Sugg Jr. on city government, Mrs. M. P. Bailey on fire and police protection, Mrs. Robert S. Moye on education, Mrs. Gentry Mills on city employees and finances, and Mrs. Samuel Sewall on Pitt County health and sanitation.

Mrs. Sugg discussed the city's charter, duties, salaries and tenure of office of the mayor and councilmen, and the duties and responsibilities of the city manager.

Mrs. Bailey reviewed job procedures, equipment, advancements and retirement in the fire and police departments, commending the fire department for the city's fifth class fire insurance rating. She noted that only eight other towns in the state have a higher rating. Mrs. Bailey also described the jail facilities and the lack of separate quarters for juvenile offenders.

A copy of the annual report and audit was circulated by Mrs. Mills, while Mrs. Moye traced the power of educational authority from the State Board of Education through the various city and county school boards. She particularly discussed local schools and other educational facilities in Greenville. Mrs. Moye pointed out the average capital expenditure per student per year in the city schools is 170.76; the comparable figure for the state is $175.25, and for the United States, $244.24.

Mrs. Sewall read a report on health and sanitation prepared by Mrs. W. M. Johnston. The report reviewed services of the local health department, and accorded considerable discussion to the garbage disposal problem and lack of proper facilities.

Mrs. Jake Hadley, publications chairman, displayed a number of booklets on national and state matters. Mrs. Chester Walsh gave a review of election procedures, voter eligibility and elective offices, while Mrs. James Poindexter reviewed items of interest in the "National Voter," national publication of the league.

Mrs. Michael Luskin, president, announced the next meeting will be February 28 when Mrs. Harold Walker, state league president, will address the group. Members of the Kinston chapter have been invited to attend.

Life Was Saved By Tire Pump

TERRACE, B. C. (U)—An automobile tire pump was credited with saving the life of a motorist who had been left for dead in his car.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police reported a passerby though, Graham Whatman, 34, of Prince Rupert, and Mrs. Ann Ezilda, 36, were both dead of carbon monoxide fumes when they found the couple in a car stalled in a snowbank Monday. They hurried to notify authorities and Mr. and Mrs. William McRae, who lived near the scene.

The McRaes revived Whatman by forcing air into his lungs with a tire pump. His woman companion, however, was dead.

Couldn't Stand A Drinking Son

CHICAGO (U)—A mother told a judge she could stand her husband beating her but the sight of their 9-year-old son pouring himself a shot of whisky was "just too much."

Mrs. Kathryn Wdowiak's testimony in Superior Court yesterday won her $25 a week support money for the boy, Edward, and court order barring her husband Matt, 46, a bus driver, from their home, the history of Sudan Shrine Temple G. Hershenson that when she asked her drinking son what he was doing, he asked her for "a wash."

She said the boy told her, "Daddy says it's (whisky) good for me. It'll make a man of me."

During the Berlin blockade in 1949, the Allied air lift carried nearly 8,000 tons of supplies a day to the beleaguered city, says the National Geographic Society.
