Miss Saieed, Mr. Thorburn Wed In Candlelight Ceremony Here

Miss Shirley Ann Saieed became the bride of Robert William Thorburn V in a candlelight ceremony at four o'clock Sunday afternoon in St. Raphael's Catholic Chapel.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. John Saieed Sr. and the late Mr. Saieed. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thorburn of Akron, Ohio.

Dr. Rev. Mgr. Charles J. Gable, assisted by the Rev. Berkman McHugh performed the double ring rites before altar flowers of white chrysanthemums, stock and gladioli with greenery of jade, emerald and huckleberry, and seven-branched candelabra holding burning candles of white satin bows and candles lighted the chapel windows.

Nuptial music was presented by Miss Janet Watson, organist, and Miss Denyse McLawhorn of Winterville, soprano soloist. Miss McLawhorn sang "Ave Maria" (Arcadente) and "Lord, Who at Cana's Wedding Feast" (Browne and Thrupp).

The bride entered the chapel with her brother, Daniel Ray Saieed, who gave her in marriage. Her gown of white chiffon velvet was designed on princess lines with full skirt sweeping into a chapel train. The bodice featured a portrait neckline appliqued with lace, seed pearls and iridescents. Tiny self-covered buttons extended up the back, and the long sleeves ended in wedding points over the hands. Her double-tiered veil of silk illusion was arranged from a coronet of seed pearls and orange blossoms and she carried a cascade bouquet of stephanotis centered with white orchids.

Mrs. Virgilus Wilkins Haynes was matron of honor, and Miss Helen Stokes was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Helen Terry Flanagan, Miss Martha Emily Moyer Hadley, Mrs. Floyd Fuller Hendrix Jr. of Raleigh, Mrs. Jacob Kirkpatrick Higgs of Asheboro and Mrs. Thomas W. Hester of Lumberton.

The attendants were crowned in identical afternoon dresses of deep American Beauty velvet, designed princess style, with bateau neckline and short sleeves. The bodice was banded with a narrow fold which ended in a bow in the back. They wore matching veils and their headpieces were bandeaux of matching velvet leaves tipped in rhinestones. They carried muffs of the same material sprigged with gardenias and silver glitter leaves tied with silver ribbon.

The honors of bridesmaids, Miss Mary Dunn Beatty, Miss Nancy Proctor, Miss Phyllis Eisele of Statesville, Miss Pat Oliver of Mt. Airy and Miss Barbara Ann Mihm of Baltimore, Md., wore afternoon dresses and white carnation corsages. Miss Watson and Miss McLawhorn were also presented white carnation corsages.

Mr. Thorburn served as best man for his son. Ushers were Lt. Mitchell Lee Saieed, USAF, of Shelby, Ohio, and Thomas Anthony Saieed, brothers of the bride; James Richard Wingham of Winterville, Miss Lyman Mavretic of Havelock, Sidney Smith Bradford of Asheville, John Girardeau Gardner of Rocky Mount, James Carroll Richardson of Marion, Va., Lawrence G. Wilson Jr. of Danville, Va., and Joseph L. Fowler of Akron, Ohio.

Francis Durham, brother of the bride, served as altar boy. Mrs. Toland Boykin directed the wedding.

For her daughter's marriage Mrs. Saieed chose a dusty rose imported silk dress, matching hat and black accessories. She wore a white orchid corsage. Mr. Thorburn was attired in a dress of green gold satin with matching flower hat and toast accessories. Her corsage was of green orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony Mrs. Saieed entertained at a reception at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

For the occasion the clubhouse was decorated with greenery and the mantels were banked with Southern smilax and wedding bells.

Mr. and Mrs. John Saieed Jr. greeted the guests and Mrs. Richard Carter Stokes Jr. introduced the bride to the receiving line composed of Mrs. Saieed, Mr. and Mrs. Thorburn, the bride and bridegroom and her attendants.

Miss Pat Oliver and Miss Mary Dunn Beatty presided at the register and Mrs. Emily Moyer Hadley directed guests to the refreshment table where punch was served from either end by Mrs. Robert Burton Greene and Mrs. James T. Cheatham. Guests served themselves to turkey salad, ham in tiny tea rolls, cheese straws, salted nuts, hors d'oeuvres, dainty bridal cakes and mints.

The table was covered with an imported cutwork cloth and appointed with a silver bowl filled with white snapdragons, pink roses and silver mums. On either side of the centerpiece were placed silver candelabra holding pink tapers. Garlanded of improved smilax and orange blossoms were used to outline the table.

The bride's table was laid with a white cutwork cloth and held a three-tiered wedding cake, laid in white and decorated with blush pink roses. Other appointments included a seven-branched silver candelabra with pink tapers entwined with smilax and pink tulle, and frosted bells filled with decorative mints surrounding the base of the cake. Traceries of smilax outlined the table.

After the bride and bridegroom had cut the first slice, cake was served by Mrs. Thomas M. Watson.

Goodbyes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Geer McMullan.

For a northern wedding trip, the bride changed to a teal blue silk shantung sheath dress with matching jacket. She wore a white satin jeweled hat and black accessories, and pinned the orchid from her bridal bouquet to her fur wrap.

Mrs. Thorburn received her education in the Greenville city schools and attended East Carolina College and the University of North Carolina where she majored in primary education and was a member of Alpha Delta Pi social sorority. She will continue her studies at Akron University, Akron, Ohio, where the couple will make their home.

Mr. Thorburn attended Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio, and graduated from Buchtel High School in Akron. He attended the University of North Carolina and majored in physical education. He will continue study for his degree at Akron University.

The Guild room was decorated with arrangements of white gladioli.

The bride's table was laid with a white cutwork cloth and held a three-tiered wedding cake, laid in white and decorated with blush pink roses. Other appointments included a seven-branched silver candelabra with pink tapers entwined with smilax and pink tulle, and frosted

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

Full clergy rights for women were requested by the Woman's Division of Christian Service of Methodism's (Baptist) to the 1936 General Conference adopted at their annual meeting. This means the women desire not only to be ordained but also admitted as "travelling elders" into the annual conferences. In another memorial the women ask that a special day be set aside annually by the Methodist Church as a "day of recruitment" for full-time Christian service. One of many other actions taken at the meeting was authorization of letters to President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles emphasizing that "understanding and good relations between India and the United States are of vital importance to world peace." The Division also asked Methodist women to work in this election year "to safeguard the right and opportunity of every citizen to vote in complete freedom."

Women's Christian colleges around the world have been hailed as an outstanding force in mankind's age-long quest for learning. "They are the most original, admirable and valuable contribution of the United States to human culture" and have been "carried by Christian missions to the ends of the earth." Dr. Henry P. Van Dusen, president of Union Theological Seminary, New York, told some 1,000 church leaders and educators recently. He addressed a luncheon meeting honoring nine leading Christian women educators from schools in India, Japan, Pakistan and Korea who have been visiting the United States for the past two and a half months as guests of the National Council of Churches' Division of Foreign Missions. Christian women's colleges have not only free women from their historic bondage, Dr. Van Dusen declared, but they "are the seed-plots of the most courageous and noble sense of the sacred term—racial thought and action. Fearless thinking has been bred in these institutions. In Japan during the days of her shameful aggression against China almost the only absolutely fearless and completely honest thinking and redoubtable courage of action were found in the woman's college."

Mr. Lautares Gives Program On Precious Stones

Mr. George Lautares was guest speaker when Mrs. W. C. Taylor Jr. entertained members of the Semi-Cent Book Club at her lovely home in Lakewood Pines last Tuesday evening.

Mr. Lautares gave a very interesting program on precious stones. "Precious stones become gems at the time that they are cut and polished for ornamental use," he stated, and to illustrate this he showed several polished stones along with rough stones of the same type.

Mr. Lautares then passed around several diamonds of different sizes and explained the way that diamonds are cut. He explained that each stone contains 58 facets and carats are measured by points.

After this very interesting program Mr. Lautares answered many questions brought up by the group.

Mrs. Frank C. Dall, president, then presided over a short business meeting.

Mrs. Taylor, assisted by Mrs. Charles T. Hudson, served a delicious dessert course, books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Young Moderns

BY VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Writer Valentine's Day is a lovely excuse for a party, and there is lots of opportunity to toss convention to the winds and invite that boy you've been eager to meet, this being Leap Year and all.

Your invitation can stress that the queens of hearts would like to meet the kings of the community, and in that way you can invite the man of your dreams and no one will be the wiser.

Make the king and queen theme the motif for your party. If you have a big old-fashioned chair you might put a red cloth over it and make it the throne. A queen could be crowned as queen of hearts as the result of being top scorer in a quiz or merely by the kings voting in secret ballot.

If you are having a good size group you might set a buffet table—certainly easier on the hostess. But if you can really spare the time and energy, set a pretty table. It does add to the fun of a party.

Either table can have a delightful centerpiece made out of a round hat box, red and pink shelf paper, gold paper, lace paper doilies, cellophane tape, artificial flowers and a paper plate.

The hat box must be covered with the red paper, held in place with cellophane tape. A large heart cut from pink shelf paper or construction paper for the queen's face may be decorated with features drawn on with crayons or paints. Tape a small bunch of artificial flowers to one side of the face.

Measure the area around the box and cut a strip of cardboard and gold paper to measure. Use the cardboard to back the gold strip. Cut gold strip with pointed edges, taping the crown around the top of the box. Decorate the crown with red hearts and tape half a small lace paper doily at every other point in the crown.

You can use this same idea to make crowns for all the girls. The boys' crowns can be patterned—after—the gold band on the queen's crown.

Decorative place mats may be made with red shelf paper. Cut the paper into rectangles about 14 inches by 10 inches and tape strips cut from doilies to one side and across the top. The name of each guest may be written across the center of the place mat or down in the corner of it with glue. Then sprinkle the glue with bright decorative dust which can be bought in many stores.

If you want to make a base for the centerpiece use a paper plate as the base. Fold 8-inch doilies in half, placing them at the fold. Tape the folded doilies around the edge of the paper plate. Make fluffy bows of saashen ribbon and attach intermittently around the plate.

Your Queen of Hearts quiz could be based on romantic women of history—Cleopatra, Beatrice Helen, Wallis. Make it strictly for queens if you like or include love stories like Elizabeth Browning's.

Refreshments depend on what your crowd likes and what you can afford. But keep it in the spirit of the occasion if possible. Make your sandwiches heart shaped—cream cheese and good red jam is one idea.

Seek Reason For Slaying Family

PARISIPPANY - TROY HILLS, N. J.—Investigators questioned relatives today in a continued effort to learn why William Bauer wiped out six members of his family with a shotgun and then took his own life.

Morris County Prosecutor John D. Collins said that, to all intents and purposes, the shooting rampage by the 46-year-old churchoyer is closed on a verdict of homicide and suicide.

He said, however, that county detectives will question relatives of Bauer's wife in a probe for the motive.

Bauer, a civil engineer described by neighbors as a kindly and devoted family man, used a 12-gauge shotgun Friday to slay his wife, two children, his wife's two parents, his own mother, and finally himself. The family had been preparing to go to Florida for a two-week vacation.

The victims were Bauer's wife Florence, 36, his children Elizabeth, 5, and Peter, 20 months; his mother Emma, 84; and his wife's father Union C. Neuber Sr., 66, and his wife.

Mollet To Ask Approval Of Cabinet Set For Tomorrow

Favors Requiring Paper Dishes

CONGRATULATIONS — Sir William Walton, composer of opera, "Trollius and Cressida," greets tenor David Foleri, of Philadelphia, after premiere at La Scala, Milan, Italy.

By CARL HARTMAN

PARIS (AP) — Socialist Premier-designate Guy Mollet asks the National Assembly tomorrow to approve his government team of 13 Cabinet ministers and 22 under-secretaries. Some observers predicted Mollet would be confirmed in office by nearly 400 of the chamber's 596 deputies. A major factor was believed to be his appointment of ex-Premier Pierre Mendes-France, Radical party leader, as deputy premier without a departmental portfolio, rather than to the Foreign Ministry he wanted.

This was counted on to bring Mollet votes from the Catholic MRP (Popular Republican Movement), which is still bitter against Mendes-France for his refusal to push the ill-fated European army plan while he was in office. If approved by the deputies as expected, Mollet plans to be off soon to Algeria for a try at halting the guerrilla revolt there. He also plans to install 79-year-old Gen. Georges Catroux as resident Cabinet minister for Algeria.

Previously Algerian affairs have been administered by the Interior Ministry because legally the North African territory is considered an integral part of France. Creation of a special department for Algeria could foreshadow a measure of independence for the area plagued by nationalist strife. Catroux once held a similar Algerian post in a government headed by Gen. Charles de Gaulle and authored a decree, never fully implemented, making Algerian Moslems full French citizens. French forces, meanwhile, pushed their campaign against the Algerian guerrillas. Officials reported 50 rebels slain and 50 captured over the weekend. French losses were put at four killed and a dozen wounded.

French troops also fought the biggest battle of their four-month campaign against rebellious Rif tribesmen in the mountains of eastern Morocco. The French reported more than 40 rebels and 18 Foreign Legionnaires were killed in the hand-to-hand engagement Saturday six miles south of the Spanish Moroccan border.

Mollet declined to announce the rest of his Cabinet now but hinted broadly that lists published by Paris newspapers were correct. He allotted the Foreign Ministry to Socialist Christian Pineau.

Russian Treaty Offer Is Obvious Propaganda

By JAMES MARLOW Associated Press News Analyst WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians' treaty of friendship offer to the United States — rejected by President Eisenhower — is a pretty clear propaganda try at turning the tables.

The Russians suffered psychological and propaganda damage when they rejected Eisenhower's sensational "open skies" proposal. It took them six months to think of an equally dramatic way to get even.

At Geneva in July Eisenhower and the United States and Russia agree to aerial inspection of each other's countries as a necessary step toward disarmament and peace against surprise attack by either. With this proposal Eisenhower put the United States in the position of taking the initiative for peace. World reaction was good. Men everywhere could visualize it: airplanes taking pictures from the sky.

The proposal had the appeal of a simple idea easily grasped. And it was bold. Upon examination it was not so simple. It has never been clear whether Eisenhower's plan had been pulled from his hat on the spur of the moment or whether the demand included men's eyes, bases, which the Russians might want to watch as they flew over the nothing inside this country.

It is not known whether Congress ever would have approved Eisenhower's plan world let Russian planes poke around the country. But there was never any need to get into a deep examination.

The Russians had a choice, to accept the offer of saying yes or no. It was almost certain they would say no since their whole regime is based on concealment. They did not make them look good.

The Russians came up with the friendship treaty, however, could not go for it. It was the words used by Premier Bulganin, for the first time, agreeing to an earlier Russian grip on the satellite: "a wedge between the United States and its allies" and "a barrier to peace when there was no peace."

Eisenhower replied that if the Russians really want peace, they can prove it by deeds, such as the unification of Germany and the freeing of the satellite. The Russians can get propaganda mileage out of Eisenhower's no when they broadcast their offer and his rejection. The millions who can't read or who never see a Western paper giving Eisenhower's reasons will be told only that the President refused the offer of a treaty of friendship.

Eisenhower and Bulganin no doubt were highly conscious of what world reaction would be. Eisenhower's aerial inspection and Bulganin's treaty of friendship. Neither rejected the other's offer with the word no but their answers were nevertheless a rejection.

Over $8,000 Is Left In Church CLEVELAND (AP) — It was only money, but whoever put it there must have had a reason. Mostly in bills of small denomination, it counted up to $8,637. It was wrapped in an old newspaper, dated last Veterans' Day.

The Rev. Anthony V. Mechler found it on the bench of the confessional booth at St. Boniface's Roman Catholic church. He took it to the police. If no one puts in a claim, the money eventually will go to the church.

Virginia Solons Nearing Action On Interposition

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia's General Assembly today moved in to its third full week ready to clear the decks of a bit of old business and take up a pressing tax problem.

The old business has to do with the revived doctrine of interposition, which holds that a state may challenge federal authority when it believes that authority has exceeded the bounds of the Constitution.

In this instance, the challenge relates to the Supreme Court's decision outlawing public school segregation.

Committee approval was given Friday to a resolution that would strongly voice Virginia's protest and call for an amendment to the Constitution to settle the question of whether the court overstepped its bounds. An overwhelming majority of the lawmakers have said they will approve the resolution, indicating certain passage this week.

Meantime, the prospect loomed that the House Finance Committee today would give its okay to the administration plan to speed up tax collections to obtain an additional 48½ million dollars in income for building purposes in 1957.

The plan was proposed as an alternative to tax increases of possible new taxes. It would permit advancement of payment dates for individual state income and public service corporation taxes from the fall to the spring.

Thus, in its first year of operation, the state would collect these two classes of taxes twice in the same fiscal year. By so doing, it would reap the 48½ million windfall.

The Finance Committee seemed certain to approve the plan, which would set the stage for floor debate later in the week.

The plan, while not receiving enthusiastic support, seems to be preferred by many lawmakers over a sales tax. Two sales tax measures were introduced last week. One, by Delegate Sam Pope of Southampton would permit the state to assume nearly the entire burden of teacher pay. Pope said yesterday this would mean an additional state sum of some 33 millions for schools. The localities spent approximately 46 millions for instructional costs in 1954-55.

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (AP) — A do-it-yourself session in the kitchen has convinced Rep. T. James Tumulty (D-NJ) that there ought to be a law compelling housewives to use paper dishes.

The 325-pound lawmaker found out the hard way that the little woman has no picnic. Outfitted with a king-size apron, he put in a stint in front of Mrs. Andrew Ford's sink.

It was all done for charity—to give Mrs. Ford a chance to collect funds for the March of Dimes Mothers-March on Folio. She won his services at a recent drawing among 1,000 women.

Resting his aching back after clearing a sinkful of dishes, Tumulty observed: "If husbands helped around the home more there'd be less broken homes' but 'there might be more broken husbands."

Eight Wounded In Holdup Try UNIONTOWN, Ala. (AP) — A Negro bandit and seven patrons of a night club for Negroes were wounded in a furious gun battle after a holdup attempt.

The Negro gunmen escaped. At least four men were believed to have taken part in the attempted robbery.

Three of the seven wounded night club patrons were seriously hurt. Gene Booker, the night club manager who opened fire on the gunmen, was among those seriously wounded.

The holdup men continued to fire while retreating empty handed, one of them crouched over from a bullet wound, to a getaway car.

One Year Of Grace To Provide Jobs

Some farm interests are still plugging for the proposed 20 per cent reduction in tobacco acreage for the 1956 crop in spite of overwhelming odds which indicate that of matter is now a dead issue.

If these forces continue to persevere, they may yet extract from Congress some action to change the acreage allotments for this year's crop. Time is short, however, and their efforts at this point seem hopeless.

Even so, statistics which have been cited in this latest attempt to persuade the Department of Agriculture and Congress there is a definite need for further acreage reductions should be studied and digested by tobacco farmers. The figures will have an important bearing on the 1956 crop whether it remains as it now is, or is further cut. More significantly, these figures which are being pointed out will play a major role in determining the course to be followed in setting the 1957 tobacco allotments.

Carl T. Hicks, one of the state's agricultural leaders, has told directors of the North Carolina Farm Bureau a 38 per cent acreage reduction would be necessary for the 1956 crop if tobacco supplies were to be brought strictly in line with demands. On the basis of such projected figures, it would follow that any less acreage cut this year will add proportionately to the tobacco surplus which already exists. Such a situation would demand a more drastic acreage reduction for the 1957 crop.

Tobacco areas should realize that conditions may demand a considerably heavier acreage reduction in 1957 than will be in effect this year. If that is the case, many families will be forced from tobacco farms to other forms of employment.

It behooves the tobacco areas—particularly eastern North Carolina—to take advantage of the next 12 months to create new off-the-farm jobs which will serve as a cushion should eventualities dictate a considerable number of families being cut out of farm jobs by further acreage reductions for the 1957 crop.

If the economy of tobacco areas is not to be shocked by these changing conditions, new jobs must be created to provide sources of income for those who will of necessity have to leave the farms in quest of a means of livelihood. If employment is not available here, these people will migrate to other areas and perhaps other states.

This Sort Of Stuff In A Water Reservoir?

We received an interesting little package from Washington the other day from Congressman Craig Hosmer of California.

The package contained two little pieces of what looked like purple rock. An accompanying note in the package read:

"Put this Chinle rock in a clean ash tray and pour water on it. This rock came from the walls of Glen Canyon, where the Bureau of Reclamation wants to build Glen Canyon Dam and Reservoir, the key unit of the proposed gigantic Upper Colorado River Project. You can see what happens. It disintegrates!"

We did.

It did.

Most interesting.

It leads us to the conclusion that Congressmen, following the trend of the times, are trying do-it-yourself methods of getting a point across to the public.

If you want to try this little experiment in your own ash tray, just drop a line to Congressman Hosmer. We're sure he'd be happy to send you a little package just like the one we received.

No One Could Expect Obstacle-Free Channel

No one expected a major street plan for Greenville to go through the necessary legal channels without encountering a number of obstacles. It was clear from the outset this ambitious and necessary project would have to be altered in some cases to take care of conditions already existing on streets for which a wider right-of-way would be sought under the plan.

The Planning Board pointed out at its meeting Thursday night, and rightly so, that the city's Board of Zoning Adjustments has the authority to rule on variance from the standard requirements in individual cases which may arise in connection with the major street plan. The point was raised after it was asserted that requirements in the major street plan would render useless some lots on First and Third Streets which were unusually shallow.

Primary purpose of the major street plan is to assure that necessary right-of-ways will be available for widening particular streets in the city in future years as the pressure of traffic increases. It is a sound plan and one which should be adopted by the City Council and made part of the city code. Only by the adoption of such a long range plan now can the city be assured of obtaining necessary right-of-ways for streets when they are needed.

If a few minor obstacles, which can be taken care of by machinery already set up in city government, are allowed to block this important phase of the city's long range planning it will certainly be a disservice to the city's future growth.

In the interest of Greenville's future, and its citizens, the major street plan is needed and should be adopted with as little delay as possible.

Foot-In-Mouth Game Is Growing Familiar

The Department of Agriculture has gotten into the "foot-in-mouth" game which has become identified with the Eisenhower administration in the past couple of years.

This time it was a letter which went to a magazine congratulating the periodical on what the letter called an "excellent" article which referred to the American farmer as "our pampered tyrant."

Secretary Benson promptly apologized for the "boner" on the part of the Department and announced he accepted full responsibility for the letter which went out over his signature although it was written by a subordinate in the department.

The incident brought to mind Secretary of Defense Wilson's statement that what's good for General Motors is good for the country, which caused such an uproar. It also brought to mind Wilson's bird dog story which sent blistering words flying around the country for a few days.

It seems the foot-in-mouth plague is becoming an occupational hazard of the Eisenhower administration. In each incident such statements have been explained away by officials with well chosen words, but not before they raised the dander of a good portion of the American public. The Eisenhower administration hasn't won any friends by these slips of the lip or the typewriter keys.

Very Skeptical Over Much Highway Aid

By LYNN NISBET

SKEPTICAL — The Highway and Public Works Commission is very skeptical about getting much increase in federal aid for road construction this year. Chairman Graham briefly reviewed the Washington situation at the January commission meeting. He voiced some doubt that any bill will be enacted at this session of the Congress. Even more significant is his idea, in which the commission concurred, that none of the proposed bills—with possible exception of the one sponsored by Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee—all afford aid for North Carolina where it is needed.

North Carolina needs aid on regular primary and secondary, rural and urban roads more than on the super-duper interstate roads requiring matching with State funds. Result will be that so large a part of the State's highway money must be used for such matching there will be further curbing for the roads which mainly serve the people of the state.

Other objections to current proposals are that they call for distribution on basis of need without sufficient consideration of effort on part of the States and certain provisions for Federal fixing far in advance of wage schedules to be applied in road work. There is further vigorous opposition to the proposal that highway funds be used to reimburse power and telephone companies for the cost of removing pole lines from newly acquired highway rights of way. That provision was deleted from the bill which passed the House last year.

Still another grievance voiced by the highway commission is that proposed bills nearly all, except Senator Gore's, set up a special method of financing the road program instead of leaving that job to money committees of the Congress.

POPPING OUT — Cardinals are singing, crocuses are budding and political candidates are popping out all over. Sure signs that although winter is only two-thirds gone, spring is in the offing.

Retirement of Woodrow Jones of the 11th district from Congress immediately brought two candidates into the race—Hugh Wells of Shelby and Basil Whittier of Gastonia. Whittier may come in but political observers in the area have said the race will be between these first entrants.

Ralph Scott of Haw River announced some weeks ago in the sixth district, assuming a contest with incumbent Carl Durham of Chapel Hill. At time this is written these are the only districts in which congressional races are certain.

A meeting is scheduled for Wilmington Monday night at which time Alton Lennon, former United States Senator, will announce his purpose to get in the seventh district race against Congressman Ertel Carle in the race for Lieutenant Governor. Present odds are he will take on the congressman.

Meantime, George Uzell, veteran Rowan legislator concurrently announced his candidacy for re-election also for speaker of the 1957 House of Representatives. Kemp Doughton of Alleghany, also a candidate for re-election and speaker, was in Raleigh when he read Uzell's announcement and remarked: "I will have to do something about that."

Archie Gay of Northampton, several times senator, was in Raleigh Friday and while he did not make a room reservation he said he will be back as senator from the third district, comprising Northampton, Vance and Warren counties, in the next session.

SURPRISES — Some surprise announcements may be forthcoming. It is learned on good authority that Roy Parker of Asheboro, senior member of the publishing firm with a chain of weekly newspapers in the Chowan-Roanoke area, will challenge Gordon Maddrey veteran representative, for Hertford county's seat in the House.

The grapevine telegraph brings word that some of the newly appointed Superior Court judges may have to defend their positions. Arthur Goodman, Mecklenburg representative, may enter the race against Judge Hugh Campbell junior resident of the district.

And whether Alton Lennon runs for Congress or Lieutenant Governor may depend on what Ray Walton of Southport, incumbent senator, from the tenth district decides to go about running for Congress.

There remain seven weeks for statewide and district candidates to make up their minds. Despite formal and informal announcements, no one is actually a candidate until he plunks down the filing fee with Raymond Maxwell, secretary of the State Board of Elections. All potentials have until noon Friday, March 16, to perform that vital chore.

Uprising Against Fair Trade

By ELMER ROESSNER
If sales become slightly harder to make later this year, as some marketing experts expect, the nonstop battle over so-called fair trade laws will become more bitter than ever.

"Fair trade" is the name applied by beneficiaries to legalized systems by which manufacturers can fix the retail price of their products and use the power of the courts to make those prices stick.

"Those who don't like it call it 'legalized price fixing.'"

"Fair trade" was born just 25 years ago. It had been talked up long before that. But in 1931 the plug was pulled from our economic bathtub. There were enormous piles of goods for which there was almost no demand.

These stocks were in manufacturers', distributors' and retailers' storage places. Prices were cut, often in desperate panic. Storekeepers who had bought whimpers at 99 cents each saw competitors sell them for 59 and even 19 cents.

A DESPERATE REMEDY
The situation was critical. Bankruptcies rose. Legislators grabbed at remedies and one frequently held out was "fair trade." Federal legislation was enacted permitting states to put umbrellas over prices outside the anti-trust laws. In the next few years, legislatures of 45 states passed laws permitting manufacturers to set retail prices on their products under certain terms.

These laws applied to limited numbers of products. They applied only to trademarked products, which excluded farmers and makers of most raw materials. Price-fixing was not practical in other fields. In the end, it was applied largely to drugs and appliances.

Since then, fair trade has undoubtedly kept hundreds of inefficient merchants in business. It has provided fees for squadrons of lawyers.

Fair trade—we are falling into the jargon—reached a peak during the war and postwar years. Goods were scarce, buying power high and it was a cinch to make "list" prices stick.

At one time fair trade laws were in effect in all states except Missouri, Texas and Vermont. The District of Columbia PRODUCTION TURNS THE TIDE

As production swelled it became increasingly difficult to police prices. Discount houses sprang up. Some resold being sued for undercutting fixed prices. That proved they were selling for less. Discounters and others wishing to undersell fixed prices brought a barrage of suits attacking the constitutionality of the laws. As of today, they are effective in only 40 states.

If there is a slump in sales ahead, manufacturers will pass more of their goods to discount houses and other price cutters, and many retailers will ignore the fixed prices rather than be stuck with goods that won't sell.

On the other hand, defenders of so-called fair trade will point out that they are being hurt by cut prices and they will demand that manufacturers and state governments take stronger steps to maintain the set prices. And once again the legal-political-economic battle over legalized price fixing will get more unpleasant.

OLD PROMOTER SUGGESTS PARITY FOR AUTO MAKERS
"I'm worried over the automobile situation," the Old Promoter remarked after he barged in to kill another of our precious hours. We didn't take him seriously because he's never owned a car or chair of auto stock.

"The companies have cut back production because of slack demand," he went on. "That means unemployment in the auto, steel and parts industries, it means less sales by grocer and clothing stores."

"But the government already has a formula for situation like that. It can start buying up autos to assure the companies 90 per cent of their normal income. It can buy up cars and sell them at bargain prices to the Yugoslavs. It could buy more for the school-lunch program, perhaps to ride cooks to and from schools. The government has already bought $7,000,000 pounds of pork to keep pig raisers prosperous; why can't it buy a few tons of gas buggies?"

With the old fellow wouldn't go around giving politicians ideas like that. He knows this is an election year.

PLAN FOR SAVING AND INVESTING
A study of the average man's financial independence is generally shocking to most people. About 30 per cent of the men 55 years of age and over are supporting. The real tragedy of this situation, as I have seen it, is that the average man made enough money between the ages of thirty and fifty to keep himself and his family in comparative ease for the rest of his life. He just never got around to a definite plan of saving and investing. He just never seemed to get around to getting a few dollars in the bank. Let us hope that $200 dollars of this will go for life insurance premiums. This would leave $325 a year to save and invest otherwise.

Plan For Saving, Investing

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — Most people seem content to live from day to day irrespective of their pocketbook. Governmental "womb-to-tomb" social security has caused people to take lightly problems of unemployment and old-age security. Most young people give little or no sound thought to their financial futures. They, therefore, defer get even the few dollars necessary to get themselves started on the road to successful investment. Surely, the birds who build their nests (houses) before they raise their young set us a good example.

MEN AND MONEY

My father used to tell me that a man who systematically spends less than he gets, automatically becomes an employer; while a man who spends all he earns, automatically remains a wage earner. Father insisted that the business of saving had nothing to do with how much money a person had, or the amount of his salary. "Some people with very large incomes never save anything," he used to say.

It has been my own observation that partners in business and partners in marriage tend to get along well as long as there is plenty of cash in the bank. It is when the bills come in, and there is no money with which to pay them, that trouble begins. The only way to assure financial or marriage success is to tell your dollar where to go instead of asking where it went.

MAIN INVESTMENT PROBLEM: SAVING

Your first step in an investment program is to save some of your income each week. The next step is to make your savings produce some more income. I am a firm believer, however, that it is cheaper to pay the grocer than the doctor; hence a budget should be drawn up which puts "first things first."

Many of my clients tell me that they are handicapped by spending too much on rent, or its equivalent in taxes, repairs, insurance, etc., on property owned. The best thing that can happen in many households today would be to cut down household labor costs by getting the children to help more with household chores.

To start a budget, one ought to determine from experience and from old bank statements and cancelled checks what his probable expenses will be for the year ahead. My observations through the years are that a man with a family of four who has a net income of $4,000 (after income and social security taxes) ought to hold his living expenses to about 75 per cent of the $4,000. About 42 per cent of that man's pay for food and clothing; 33 per cent for housing and transportation. Right here I think many families, especially in the lower-income brackets, will find that they are paying altogether more for their transportation in the form of a new automobile which they cannot afford. If they want to get started on a sound investment program, they better pay more cash and use less credit. Ten per cent is budgeted for benevolence and the church; 6 per cent for personal and miscellaneous items.

This leaves about 13 per cent, $525, for insurance, savings accounts and investments. Let us hope that $220 dollars of this will go for life insurance premiums. This would leave $325 a year to save and invest otherwise.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOLGLESS
MIRACLE OF GLASSNESS
Franz Lenar, unknown young composer, died one evening in an obscure restaurant in Paris when the time came to pay his bill. He discovered to his consternation that he had lost his pocketbook. The owner of the restaurant was so impressed with the boy's sincerity that he tore up the check and even offered to lend him younger money to buy a return ticket to Vienna.

In later years Lenar had an opportunity to repay this kindness for the young musician composed a light opera called "The Merry Widow" which became one of the most popular light operas of modern times. He played the scene of his opera in the restaurant where this kindness had been shown him, and Cafe Maxim became famous throughout Europe and the world. Everybody who visited Paris wanted to go to this restaurant, and generally did. This was bread cast upon the water which to use an expression of O. Henry's came back in the form of cottage pudding and wine sauce.

If we want to be hard in our dealings, we have a perfect right to be so and there can be a good case made out for firmness. But there can be a better case made out for gentleness, and best of all for love. When men love their brothers as themselves, the heart of God is warmed and miracles and great wonders begin to happen.

NOT MAKING A-BOMBS FOR FUN
Ike has sidestepped this question for reasons of military as well as political strategy. He sees no point in informing possible enemies of the kind of war we will wage against them. But by not repudiating the basic idea of this specific warning, he implies that we are not spending billions in making A-bombs just for the fun of it.

The Dulles interview, for the first time, has virtually broken the secrecy with which Admiral Lewis L. Strauss, AEC Chairman has surrounded our atomic advances. It intimated that the United States has unnumbered thousands of small and easily transportable A-bombs for pinpointing a limited and localized target area.

A-BOMB TARGETS The terrain in Korea, in China and in India is obviously not susceptible to the large-scale A-bombs that partments was generally understood at that time, although never publicized until Secretary Dulles spoke out.

The Dulles interview, for the first time, has virtually broken the secrecy with which Admiral Lewis L. Strauss, AEC Chairman has surrounded our atomic advances. It intimated that the United States has unnumbered thousands of small and easily transportable A-bombs for pinpointing a limited and localized target area.

Swiss Miss Wins Women's Slalom Honors Another U. S. Champ Dethroned

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy — Renee Colliard, a pretty, 23-year-old Swiss pharmacy student, made two rapid descents today to win the Winter Olympics women's slalom, dethroning America's Andrea Mead Lawrence. Her times for the two trips down the twisting 466-meter (500 yards) course were 55.4 and 56.7 for a total of one minute, 52.3 seconds.

As usual, the result was unofficial pending the judges' review. That normally takes hours.

The Swiss miss, in her first year of big league competition, was the first to make the two runs over the icy-crustured surface, which favored the early contestants. Oddly enough, the women's giant slalom was won by Germany's Ossi Reichert, who also was the first to start.

Mrs. Lawrence, 23-year-old mother of three from Parshall, Colo., said that on her first run, "I was going so fast that I do not know if I missed the gate or not, but it does not matter now because I am out of the race."

She was timed in 57.5 for that first trip.

Regina Schopf, of Austria, one of the favorites, was timed in 59.4 for her second run, giving her second place with 1:55.4.

Russia came up with a surprising third in Eugeniya Sidorova, who was timed in 1:56.7. She was followed by Giuliana Minuzzo Chena, of Italy, who took the Olympic oath in the opening day ceremonies. Miss Chena had a total of 1:56.8.

Josefine Frandl of Austria, fifth in the giant slalom, was timed in 1:57.9.

Miss Reichert had a very slow second run of 1:13.9 for a total of 2:21.7 which placed her well down.

Hallegr. Brenden, a handsome, 27-year-old Norwegian lumberjack, scored a repeat victory in the Winter Olympics today by capturing the 15-kilometer (7 miles, 560 yards) cross-country ski championship in 47 minutes, 39 seconds.

The Norseman from the small town of Tyrsil sped through a thick snow fall which covered the Ampezzo Valley and finished with a tremendous surge to duplicate his 1952 victory in Oslo. Four years ago the race was over 18 kilometers.

It was the first victory of the current games for N-way, which won seven gold medals in 1952 and won the unofficial team championship.

Sixteen Jernberg of Sweden, who finished second in last Friday's 30-kilometer grind, earned another silver medal by taking second in 50:14.

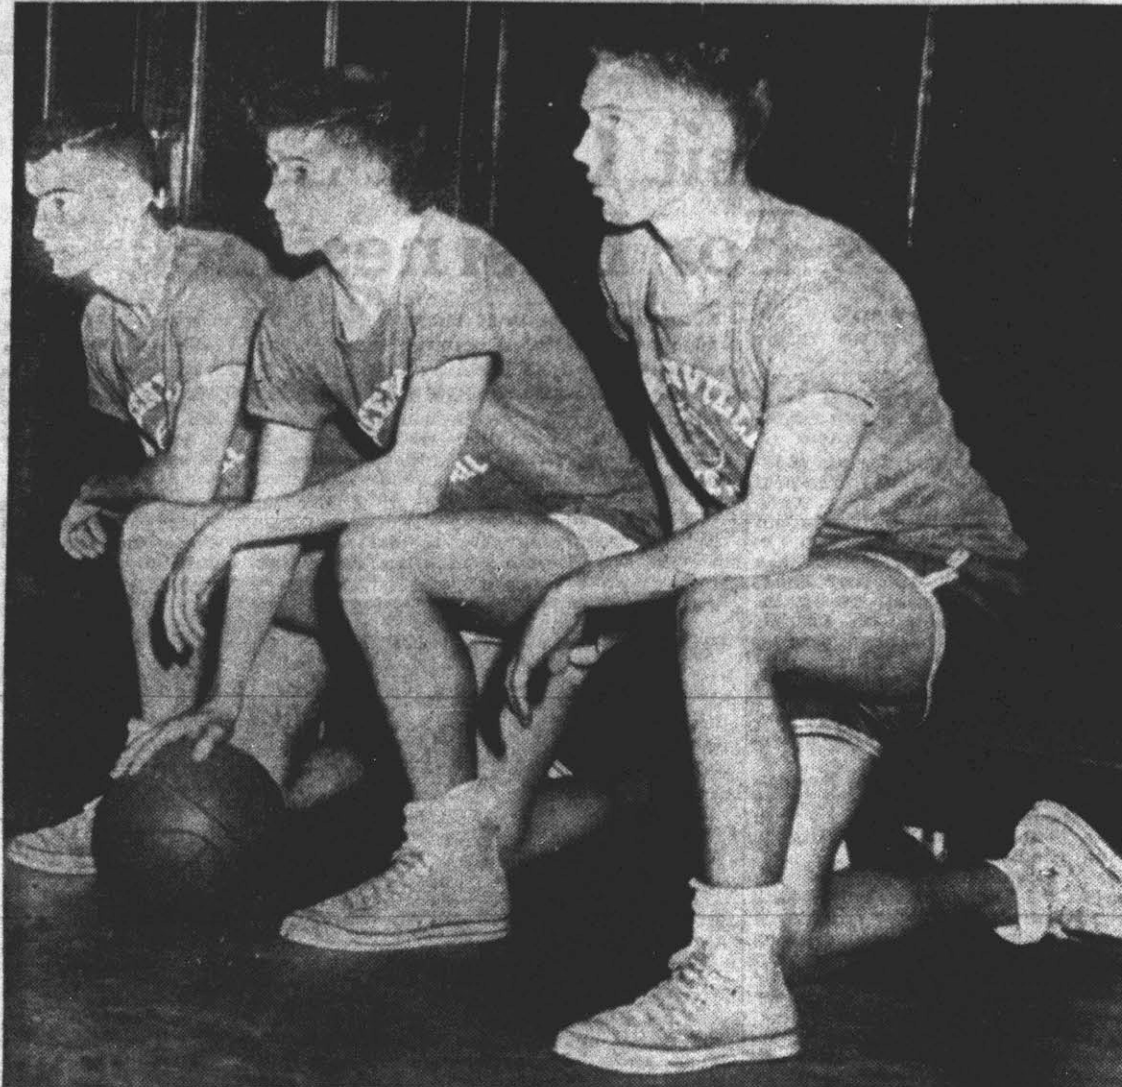

Russia's Pavel Kolchichin took third again today with 54:17.

V. Hakulinen, 31-year old Finnish lumberjack who won the 30-kilometer title, was fourth in 54:17.

Uncle Sam's two entries finished back as expected. Andrew Miller, a 24-year-old soldier from McCall, Idaho, was 41st in 50:08 and Larry Damon, 22-year-old collegian from Burlington, Vt., was 51st with 57:18.

The Russian third place in the cross country was worth four points in the unofficial team standings and upped the formidable Soviet total to 64, more than twice that of the runner-up Austrians, who have 29. The United States is far back with 6 1/2 points, good only for a tie for seventh with Switzerland.

G-Men Host To 4th Place Washington On Tuesday

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Writer

Northeastern Conference-leading Greenville high school, boasting a solid 7-0 record, will play host to the No. 4 team tomorrow night, as Washington visits GHS gymnasium.

In an earlier contest this season, the red-hot Phantoms downed the Pam-Pack by 14 markers, an impressive win on the Big Blue home court. Tomorrow night the G-Men will be favored by approximately the same number of tallies.

Five Good Reasons

There are five good reasons for Phantom success this year. Perhaps the most important single factor has been the terrific one-two scoring punch, composed of Harold Edwards and Ike Riddick, which is responsible for about 40 points per contest. However, these two point-producers could not flourish without the assistance of Ray Hardee, Billy Johnson and Jerry Drum. These five together make up the ingredients that spell success for the Green.

One high-ranking official of the Greenville school system has expressed verbal surprise that most other league observers have felt. He said, "The teamwork of these boys is really amazing! When you realized that only two of the five are varsity veterans and that those two are individual stars, it seems incredible to find them working so smoothly as a team."

Harold Edwards, the towering 6-4 center, is perhaps the most celebrated Phantom of all. Leading the league last season with an 18.4 scoring average per game, he built up a reputation that placed opponents on guard this year. Despite an early-season ankle injury that caused the All-Conference eager to miss Greenville's first seven bouts, he has retained his ability to score. Again, he paces the loop with a 22.4 average at present.

Special Defenses

Several foes this year have seen fit to prepare special defenses for the big fellow, however. In 22.4 average shows no indication of a slow-down on his part. When opposing teams clamp a three-man guard on Edwards, the true value of Greenville teamwork comes into the limelight.

For example, the first Greenville-Washington match saw Coach Bill Swell's Pam-Pack crowding Harold throughout the game. Whenever things became tight under the basket in the pivot-man's area, Ike Riddick, Ray Hardee and Billy Johnson began to unleash their scoring aces. Despite the defense, Edwards collected 21 and Riddick added 13. Johnson contributed 10 to the cause.

This is the Phantom secret. This is the big reason for Greenville's 7-0 record, their spectacular high winning margins. Greenville has its scoring aces, its individual stars—but the G-Men are not a one-man team. In order to stop the Phants, a foe must stop all five.

UNC And Duke Clash Will Highlight Week For ACC

The Atlantic Coast Conference basketball race moves into high gear this week after a midyear exam lull. The big game will come Saturday when North Carolina and Duke clash for the league leadership.

Though the Blue Devils have only two games set during the week, both should be rough. Duke will play its first game since Jan. 14 when it invades Lexington Wednesday for a crack at the ever-tough Kentucky Wildcats. They return to their own court for Saturday's go against the Tar Heels.

Included on the lively 10-game card which sees action every night during the week are five ACC games, third-place Wake Forest,

5-2 in the conference, and North Carolina State, 4-2, have home games against touring Virginia and Clemson clubs.

Despite the fact that Virginia and Clemson are the ACC's bottom two teams, both have proved they are dangerous, particularly Clemson which lost a 103-104 thriller to Wake Forest last Saturday.

Fifth-place Maryland plays Navy Saturday and sixth-place South Carolina invades the Citadel in the only games scheduled for them.

If the last half of the season should be a dog-eat-dog battle among North Carolina, Duke, N.C. State and Wake Forest.

The Tar Heels are 8-1 in the conference and 13-2 over all. Duke's record is 6-1 and 12-2. Wake Forest's 5-2, 10-6, and N.C. State's record is 4-2 and 14-2.

The conference defeats suffered by Duke and North Carolina both came from Wake Forest. The two leaders each have whipped N.C. State once while the ACC defeats handed to the Deacons came from N.C. State and Maryland. North Carolina also whipped Duke during the Dixie Classic and then lost to State in the finals. These games count in the over-all record but not in the conference standings.

With such a long layoff including a full week without practice, Duke's Coach Harold Bradley is facing the Kentucky and North Carolina games with trepidation.

Also bothering Bradley is the fact that guard Jack Kalbfus is having scholastic difficulties and sophomore reserve forward Jim Noycombe has a sprained ankle.

"I hope this layoff period will not affect the boys any," Bradley says. "The fellows know that this (the Kentucky game) is one of the big ones and want to play their best because that is what it will take."

Led by center Ronnie Shavlik, State dropped St. John's of Brooklyn Saturday 82-70. Shavlik with 20 points led the Wolfpack scoring though St. John's Dick Bennett was high with 22.

Vince Yockel bagged 28 points in Clemson's losing cause to Wake Forest. Guard Jackie Murdock collected 25 points, 21 in the second half, to spark the Deacons.

In the other Saturday game Virginia edged VMI 78-77.

Action opens tonight with Clemson at The Citadel.

Seixas Is Easy Florida Winner

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. — Vic Seixas toyed briefly with Eddie Moylan of Trenton, N.J., but won the Hollywood Beach Tennis Tournament about as he pleased yesterday.

The Philadelphia amateur beat Moylan 6-3, 6-3. He took early leads in each set, paused while Moylan brought the score up to 4-3, and then surged ahead again to take the two straight matches.

Seixas and Armando Vieira, Brazil, defeated Bob Howe, Australia, and Moylan 16-14, 6-2 in the men's doubles final.

Shirley Fry, Akron, Ohio, disposed of Marilyn Stock, Miami, 6-0, 6-2 in the women's singles final.

Apps Are Underdog Tuesday

East Carolina will be striving to pad its North State Conference lead against Appalachian State here tonight. Tip-off time is 8 p.m.

Coach Howard Porter's Bucs are way ahead in the race for the regular season championship and the right to the No. 1 seed in the annual tournament.

Appalachian's Mountaineers aren't conceding much chance of snapping the Bucs' brilliant 45-game home-court winning streak. However, the Apps favor underdog roles and are well known for their upsetting ability.

Early Meeting

The two teams have already met once this season. In a game played at Boone, East Carolina had little difficulty pasting them, 77-66.

In that one, the Pirates piled up a 42-29 halftime lead and coasted in. Don Harris and J. C. Thomas collaborated to lead the rout, with 21 points apiece.

Appalachian brings the conference's second leading scorer to town. Dave Abernathy, big 6-6 forward, is averaging close to 22 points a game and trails Lenorh Rhyme's leader, Raeford Wells, by only a couple points.

Abernathy dumped in 20 points against the Bucs at Boone. He dropped 10 field goals and nine free throws for his total. He is also a fine rebounder.

The Mountaineers have a couple of other boys who play a fast game. Bob Campbell, who jumps center, is a fine scorer and has a tendency to play well here. Then there's Hugh Horton, a brilliant newcomer who racked up 10 points in Boone.

Bob Hiatt and Jim Horzer round out the Apps' first five.

Poor Mark

Appalachian's conference record is four wins and four losses. However, its over-all mark isn't so impressive. The Apps haven't been able to get their heads above water all season, losing eight while winning only six.

Coach Howard Porter will start his usual four, plus one newly-found star. Don Harris and Nick Nichols will work the forwards. Guy Mendenhall the pivot post and J. C. Thomas and Harold Ingram the guards.

The latter made his debut as a starter against WCC Friday night and was outstanding. A Lenoirville sophomore who only got the play after one of the regulars got hurt, Ingram exhibited poise and shooting ability that will likely keep him in a starter's role for sometime.

East Carolina has another important North State battle coming up this week. Thursday night Appalachian will come here. Tomorrow night, Appalachian plays these same ACC Bulldogs in Wilson.

Stokes, Griffon Split Double Bill

Stokes-Pactolus and Griffon split a couple of conference matches Friday night in Stokes, as the Griffon girls and home team boys won.

Griffon's girl cagers, sparked by Nina Perkins' 30-point effort, managed to pull a one-point 53-52 win out of the fire in the final minutes.

Bobby Congleton of Stokes-Pactolus, racked up 30 points to take high honors in the hosts' 67-45 triumph. Stokes-Pactolus held a two-quarter lead at the end of the first quarter and never fell behind.

Plans No Probe In Boxing Death

PHILADELPHIA — Chairman James Crowley of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission says he plans no formal inquiry into the death yesterday of middleweight boxer Robert Perry unless a further report from the ring-side doctor indicates that one is needed.

Perry, 20, died in Episcopal Hospital little more than 48 hours after a fight locally televised but at the Cambria to Rudy Watkins of B-I-Core.

Watkins was awarded a TKO decision after Referee Pete Pantaleo stopped the fight in the sixth round Thursday night. Perry had been knocked down in the first and sixth.

THE PHANTOM

A Doctor in the Family

By MARGARET SHORTEN

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

Linda sat in the pew with Seretha and Jasper, and intently studied Alan while he conducted the Sunday service. She thought he seemed not quite so tired this morning as he had been looking lately. That was good—whatever the reason.

He'd had so much to disturb him—his struggle over his obligations in the Blake case, Silas, and Linda was sure that she had hurt him deeply by her withdrawal from him. Alan had used to discuss his cases with her—to talk matters out with her—seemingly to clear his own thinking. He must have missed that, particularly in his consideration of Fern Blake.

Linda missed it, she knew. Now his failure to talk to her was especially noticeable when everyone—literally everyone—was talking about the Blake case. Everyone but Alan. Oh, he had, that one afternoon in his office, but in a discussion—but he'd not finished it, nor had he sought a way to renew it since. Linda sighed deeply.

As they reached the lower vestibule, Jasper asked, "You coming home with us?"

"Oh no, I'll go back to Margaret's. I'd like to walk."

They left. Linda lingered a bit on the church steps speaking to this one, and that, half hoping that Alan would join her. Then someone said he had gone over to the Rectory to see Mr. Clark, who had a cold.

She started briskly down the block to Main Street, and home—

And at the corner, she met Rupert Ernst.

He greeted Linda gallantly, and with pleasure, then asked if she might walk along with her.

"Of course, why not?"

He walked close at her side, his face turned, his head tipped so that always he gazed at her eyes and into her eyes if she glanced his way.

At the corner, Linda paused to wait on an approaching car, and she saw with a sinking heart and rising color that it was Alan's. He slowed a little, then with a look in his hand, gained speed and passed them.

"Swords and pistols at dawn," murmured Dr. Ernst.

"What nonsense!" cried Linda. His hand was firmly warm upon her arm, "Perhaps," he agreed.

"Though she's quite short with me at the hospital these days."

Coldly Linda said nothing. She was exasperated, with herself and with this man's suggestion of intrigue and double-dealing. In fact, she decided, she was weary of Rupert Ernst, of his glossy self-pride and air of confident superiority.

He was still talking. And now, she realized with indignation, he was talking about Alan. Patronizing him, if you please! Saying that he should really not be a doctor!

"Ideally, a doctor—a surgeon—detaches himself completely from family ties emotional complications but—"

"Didn't you have a family, Dr. Ernst?" asked the pretty woman at his side.

He lifted his shoulders in a shrug.

She stiffened her shoulders a little. "I mean, did you leave any one behind in Austria? Are they still alive?"

"I haven't the slightest idea."

"Your parents . . ." cried Linda.

"My dear Linda," he explained coldly. "I had to leave Austria because my mother was a Jew!"

They had reached the gates of the Green, and she stopped now to turn and look at Rupert Ernst.

"But I don't understand," she said in a troubled tone. "Your refusal to mention that you must know that it makes no difference in this country."

"Perhaps not. But I have never before mentioned it." He ran his ped her various parcels, herded the puppy into the kitchen and closed the door, then spoke firmly to the twins. "But Ann, Linda . . ." gulped Ann.

"I'll listen in just a minute, dear." She indicated the chairs where she wanted the children to sit. Then she crossed the room, and knelt beside Margaret, who stretched a hand out to her.

Crumpled in that hand was another telegram—and this time no one had warned anyone.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

It had been determined the telegram told, that Lt. Silas Gidens had been killed in action. A letter would follow.

Linda stared at the words, wanting to find some of her own. Not finding any, she put her cheek against Margaret's, and held the stricken mother close in her arms.

The twins began to whimper, and Margaret stirred. "They're frightened," she said piteously. "Oh, Linda . . ."

"Shhh!" Dry-eyed, her own grief a hard and hurting lump in her chest, Linda cast about her ways to dull the hurt of the children. Because action would be her own best relief, she set them to little tasks. Jim was to bring a box of Kleenex to his mother. Would Ann take the cake out to the kitchen?

They both could let the puppy out, and watch him.

Next a vase for the flowers, and water. She herself moved about, tidying the suddenly disheveled room. Alan had left a sedative to give Margaret, should she need one. Linda decided that this was the time and she administered it, comforting the little dark-eyed woman as she would a child who had suffered a bewildering hurt.

She picked up the telegram, smoothed it, glanced at the clock. "I think I'll send this up to Father, dear."

"You take it," urged Margaret. "Or let Alan tell him—Did you phone Alan?"

"Yes, but he was out—Miss Adamant said he'd be back late this afternoon. I thought of sending the twins. It will give them something strong, golden lad.

"The cost is big—too big!" Linda continued. "But you have something—shining memory of Silas—that—that—" She broke down then, and Margaret held out her arms to comfort her.

"You're right, darling," she said against the cloud of red hair on her shoulder. "I'll get so that I can accept that. But just now—Oh, it's hard, Linda! So hard!"

"Then, in a tone of dull acceptance, Margaret continued. "And Fred—I'm going to lose him, too." Linda's heart stopped, and her breath.

"My own brother," mourned Margaret. "My own brother is taking that chance of happiness from me. People may criticize Fred for falling in love with me while his wife—they forget that she isn't his wife, and hasn't been, really—even before she was hurt."

"Many of them think of you," said Linda softly, "and of how his love may hurt you."

Margaret's eyes were dark with protest. "I've never been happier."

"I know, dear. But he came to you, offered his love and that happiness, without either of you being able to know its full expression. So don't blame Alan . . ."

"But, Linda . . . Alan's making dear. You and Fred got into it, both of you old enough to realize that it had small chance of ending any way but in hurt."

Margaret was calm now and thinking. "Does Alan say that?" she asked.

Color swept in a rosy tide across Linda's face, stained her throat. "I don't know what he says," she confessed. "Alan and I—he hasn't talked to me about the matter."

"I begged him not to operate on Fern," said Margaret in a small voice.

"I expect he understood your reasons. What did he say to you?"

"He didn't make any promises. But I suspect he thinks as you do."

"You'll come to see it, too, darling. Just as you'll come to accept Silas' loss. When he said he felt that he had to go to war, you did your part by saying nothing to weight him down. You genuinely did your duty there. And now, with Fern—"

"We women—we love our men, and our children—but there is a way of loving them that is right! Oh, do you know what I'm talking about, Margaret? We get hurt so very deeply, dear—but the hurts do heal in time and if our way of love was right, we are left with pride and a shining memory that will stay with us, and be a golden glow about us down through the years."

Margaret raised herself, leaned forward, and kissed Linda's cheek. Later she was to tell that it was Linda who opened the door for

At the particular minute, all that Linda had said and done helped her to quiet acceptance of this grief which was upon her. Seretha phoned that she was coming down later in the evening. There were other phone calls and finally Jasper came in, with the twins.

His gathering Margaret into his patriarchal embrace burned an image into Linda's mind that would take time to heal, and when they both turned to her, and suggested she go in person to tell Alan . . .

"It's the right thing to do," said Jasper.

"Darling, please!" urged Margaret.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BARETTNER, Real Estate Editor

REMOVABLE double sash windows are easy to wash indoors.

This is the season of window problems. Panes fogged with condensation are dripping moisture on woodwork and wallpaper, leaving streaks on the glass to spoil last week's window washing job. Jack Frost's chilly art work on the glass makes us move our chairs closer to the middle of the room. Drafts whistle in around the edges of sash and frame to remind us that our little shack is neither tight nor snug.

It all makes you wonder how people will live in these new houses that have glass walls two stories high. Well, for one thing, they'll have to live right and keep their houses ventilated enough to get rid of excess humidity from baths and cooking, laundering and indoor house plants. They will use double glazing, or wood framed storm windows to prevent cold surfaces that sweat and chill. Secure weather-stripping and caulking will prevent cold air from being blown in or sucked in around their windows and doors.

New developments have made all of this possible and practicable. In fact, the recent construction of skyscrapers with curtain walls of windows set in metal panels has brought about a new big industry in caulking. The metal panels expand and contract so much that new elastic caulking materials had to be invented.

If your windows rattle and whine in the winter wind, you don't have to change the name on your mail box to "Wuthering Heights." A lot of progress has been made in window design. A snug fit, without having windows stick and bind has become so important that the U.S. Department of Commerce has set up rigid standards. The American Wood Window Institute (AWI) is now issuing a seal of approval on windows that meet these standards.

If you are building a new house or remodeling an old one, you will find this AWI seal on the edges of quality windows and doors. It means they are made from carefully selected and properly kiln dried wood, generally ponderosa pine; that they are defect-free and chemically treated to operate easily under all weather conditions.

Railroad cars and buses are probably not the only places you have wrenched a wrist trying to open a stubborn window. So the millwork people got smart and from now on their best windows not only have to be weatherstripped, but also will have a clearance within 1/32nd of an inch and will have spring, spiral or pulley balances that call for only the amount of energy to match the weight of the sash, plus a friction load of 1.2 pounds per inch.

COMBINED with such snug fitting has been the invention of wood-removable double-hung windows, awning windows and hopper windows.

Each sash of a removable double-hung window can be lifted out by the housewife for washing and painting indoors. No sitting outside on the sill and no risky ladder work is required for the care of these windows. Combination screen and storm windows can be alternated instantly and need never be removed.

Awning windows, hinged at the top, and swinging open from the bottom, are especially advantageous for ventilation on the weather side of a house. They can be opened in a driving rain or snow storm to admit air without water.

Hopper windows are awning types upside down. They are handy under fixed panes, such as picture windows. They open into the room instead of outward. One of their advantages is to deflect air upward instead of across the floor.

All of today's windows are far crisper from Grandma's small paneled sash that had to be held up with a stick.

Gave Justice A Wrong Name

SACRAMENTO (AP)—A prominent Californian took his seat on the Los Angeles-San Francisco airliner.

His seatmate, a neighborly woman, struck up a conversation with him. As the plane approached San Francisco, she asked if she could introduce her grandchildren to him at the airport. Of course he said.

"But I just don't know how to introduce you," the woman said. "Should it be Gov. Knight or Chief Justice Knight?" "Neither," the big, white-haired man replied. "Earl Warren."

Toll Bridge Had To 'Advertise'

DECATUR, Neb. (AP)—For five years the Decatur Bridge was famous as a bridge without a river. Now that the Missouri River has been diverted under the span, it has acquired the new distinction of being a toll bridge which could be traveled free.

The tolls were held off for the first few weeks of operation "so that the word will get around that we are in business," a bridge commission member explained.

Hear Rare Case On 'Barratry'

NEW YORK (AP)—For the first time in nearly 100 years the charge of barratry—excessive grounds litigation—has been heard in a New York court.

A city magistrate ordered the charge drawn up against the head of a tiny church on the fringe of Harlem.

The minister has brought 10 suits in city, state and federal courts over the past five years against the son of the church's founder in a dispute over disposal of the church property.

Barratry has several meanings. One of the better known ones is the crime of wrecking a ship by its crew.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—The U. S. Navy recruiting office here has announced plans to enlist a "16-Ton" company from the coal fields of Southern West Virginia, which will receive recruit training as a unit.

Recruiting Chief Topsy F. Smith said the group would be sworn in at the state capitol and each man would be given an autographed photograph of "Tennessee Ernie" Ford, who wrote the coal field ballad, "16 Tons."

Nixon Heads U.S. Delegation To Inaugural Rites

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—Juscelino Kubitschek, 83-year-old surgeon and former governor of Minas Gerais State, takes office tomorrow as president of Brazil's 45 million people.

Vice President Nixon heads a 14-member U. S. delegation among the scores of foreign dignitaries arriving for the ceremony.

The new chief executive has outlined a broad program for his five-year term. He says he will seek to drive a new nation's economy by developing industry, electric power and transportation and by building new highways.

To attract foreign interest and investments, Kubitschek made a 20-day trip to the United States and European countries this month. He returned last week.

Kubitschek, who supported himself in medical school by working nights as a telegraph operator, was elected president last October.

Soon afterward a political crisis developed and the army took over the government to prevent, it said, a coup designed to prevent Kubitschek from being inaugurated.

Congress voted a state of siege to forestall Kubitschek's political foes. The new President was born in the small mountain city of Diamantina, in Minas Gerais state. He practiced as a country doctor and later joined the Minas Gerais militia as a captain in the medical corps.

His political career began in 1933 when he served as secretary to the state governor. He then was elected a federal deputy.

Becoming more active in the Social Democratic party he was elected governor of Minas Gerais in 1950. He embarked on a development program which attracted the attention of all Brazil.

The social democrats, apparently impressed by his state's economic development, made Kubitschek their presidential candidate.

The new President, married and the father of two daughters, received 3,007,411 votes to 2,610,463 for his nearest opponent, Juarez Tavora.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market advanced today with a few leading divisions displaying marked strength.

The best showing was made by steels, coppers, oils, and aircrafts, while railroads were dotted with fractional losses and the motors were barely steady.

Gains ran to around 1 point while losses usually were no greater than a point.

Trading wasn't especially brisk but hit a pace around two million shares for the day. That compares with 1,950,000 shares traded in Friday's slightly lower market.

At noon, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 80 cents at $173.70.

New Air Force contracts from Washington helped to sweeten the aircraft division especially Boeing which got a 50-million-dollar contract for B52 bombers.

Navy contracts boosted Bath Iron Works between 2 and 3 points. American Hawaiian Steamship, under lots of selling pressure recently, continued downward again today.

Avco Mfg, which reported fiscal year earnings of five cents as against 77 cents a year ago, was off a fraction and active at times.

Fairbanks Morse, confronted with a proxy fight by Penn-Texas, was off between 1 and 2 points.

Ford Motor was steady in the over-the-counter market at 64 1/2 bid and 64 3/4 asked. The stock has been bid at its issues price of 64 1/2 for three days.

Federal Civilian Payroll Declines For 4th Month

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal civilian payroll totaled 2,343,688 in December, a decline of 18,470 jobs as compared with November, the Senate-House Committee on non-essential Federal Spending reported today.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va.), committee chairman, said this was the fourth consecutive monthly decrease in U. S. employment and brought the net decline for the first six months of fiscal 1956 to 40,600. The fiscal year began last July 1.

Major employment decreases in December as compared with the previous month were in the Navy Department, 9,287; Army Department, 6,130; Agriculture Department, 1,738; Post Office Department, 1,148; Interior Department, 724; and Veterans Administration, 722.

The Air Force reported a 3,012 increase in civilian jobs. Byrd said this was the eighth consecutive monthly boost in that agency.

No Defense Plea In Girl's Death

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Milton and Rosalie Schwartz in a surprise development pleaded no defense — no defense — today to a charge of "abortion resulting in death" in connection with an illegal operation performed in their apartment on a 22-year-old food chain heiress.

Mrs. Gertrude Silver — mother of the dead girl, Mrs. Doris Jean Silver Ostricher — also pleaded no defense before Judge Vincent A. Carroll to a commonwealth charge that accused her of being an accessory before the fact of abortion.

Mrs. Ostricher, a red-haired beauty who was six weeks pregnant died last Aug. 24 in the Philadelphia apartment of the Schwartzs. Her death came three days before her 23rd birthday and two months after her storybook elopement with a Miami Beach, Fla., motorcycle policeman, Earl M. Ostricher.

The two women were near tears as they stood with bowed heads before Judge Carroll.

Morris Wolf, attorney for Mrs. Silver, said that the decision by Special Dist. Atty. Samuel Dash to bring Mrs. Silver to trial at the same time as the Schwartzs was as a surprise and it is not unlikely that "we would be able to obtain a continuance if we sought it."

However, Wolf told Judge Carroll that "the strain of the tragic situation that confronts Mrs. Silver may be too much for her if we extend this ordeal. She is near the breaking point."

Then Wolf asked the court to permit his client to make a plea of insanity. Judge Carroll permitted Mrs. Silver to plead insanity. William Gray, representing the Schwartzs, made a similar request and Judge Carroll also granted it. The pleas came on only part of the charges that the commonwealth lodged against the three defendants.

Charges in the case include abortion, abortion causing death, and conspiracy. The maximum penalty is 10 years in prison and a fine of $6,000.

Rabies Vaccination Clinic Set To Begin

Anti-rabies vaccination clinics for dogs in Pitt County will begin Wednesday.

The annual program to vaccinate all dogs four months of age or older will continue through March 10.

The program is authorized by the General Statutes of North Carolina and is under the supervision of the Pitt County Health Department and the county Veterinary Association.

All inoculations will be administered by a licensed veterinarian. Vaccination fee at the clinics will be $1 per dog.

This year a new vaccine approved by the State Department of Public Health, will be administered to the dogs. According to Dr. Walter C. Humbert, Pitt County health director, this vaccine is "more pure than the old serum, and causes little or no reaction."

Clinic schedule for this week is as follows:

Wednesday: 1-2 p.m., Red Oak Church; 2:15-3:30, Ballards Crossroads; 3:45-5, Langs Crossroads.

Thursday: 1-2 p.m., Marlboro; 2:15-3:15, Farmville Negro School; 3:30-5, Farmville City Hall.

Friday: 1-1:45, Toddy; 2-3:45, Fountain (J. C. Bryant's Store); 4-5, B. L. Phillips Store.

Saturday: 9-10 a.m., State Highway Patrol Office, Greenville; 10:15-12, Farmers' Warehouse.

Caravan Caught In 'Whiteout'

By SAUL PETT
LITTLE AMERICA V. Antarctica

—America trailblazers have been pinned down for two days by a blinding snowfall a little more than halfway on their journey deep into Marie Byrd Land.

The seven-man team last reported its position as about 330 miles southeast of Little America V, Operation Deepwater's main base on the Ross ice shelf.

The whiteout, an antarctic phenomenon in which the horizon and snow terrain are lost in a white-blue light refraction, also grounded a plane down from the base. The men do reconnaissance work for the ground party.

The small caravan is composed of one Weasel (a tractor-treaded jeep), and two tractor-treaded "Snowcats." It left this base Jan. 14.

The Snowcats which like the Weasel are heated and enclosed, are towing nine sleds loaded with rations and equipment. Their assigned goal is a point where an international Geographical Year base is to be constructed for use by American scientists.

The trial party has been planting red flags every fifth of a mile and is storing fuel every 50 miles for use on the return trip.

Riding in the lead vehicle is the boss man of the party—"Pemican Pack" Bursley, a colorful barbed-cheeked lieutenant commander from Grand Rapids, Mich. He has made two previous expeditions to the antarctic with Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd.

Bursley and his party will winter over at the base here.

His fellow trail blazers are Chief Surveyor George T. St. North Providence, R.I.; Mechanic I.C. Charles H. Wedemeyer, Philadelphia; Radioman I.C. Raymond J. Duba; Taunton, Mass.; Driver E.C. Roland Levesque, Beverly, Mass.; Driver I.C. Alvan G. Edwards, Lakebay, Wash.; and Photographer 2C Chester M. Stevens, Lock Haven Pa.

Crystal-Gazers See Prospect In Governor's Race

WASHINGTON (AP)—The crystal ball gazers here have looked into North Carolina's political future and decided that Rep. Woodrow Wilson Jones (D-NC) is apt to run for governor.

But the Tar Heels-on-the-Potomac say it won't be this year.

"I don't see the American idea merely to look for something safe and easy."

"Business isn't work. It's a baseball game. Maybe we ought to find another word for hard work."

"Nothing you're really interested in is work. What is happiness anyway? When you become so interested in your job you are unconscious of the passing of time you are truly happy."

They ought to knock that spirit out of their heads," he said.

"Nothing you're really interested in is work. What is happiness anyway? When you become so interested in your job you are unconscious of the passing of time you are truly happy."

Atkinson feels opportunity has never been greater in industry, that it has never been easier to get good business training. But it worries him that many young men today prefer the security of a safe job with seniority to the risks, challenges and rewards of management.

"They ought to knock that spirit out of their heads," he said.

Captures Corn Crown For Third Straight Year

Teenage farmer Larry Dilda, of Fountain, has captured the junior championship in corn growing for the third straight year. The contests are sponsored by the North Carolina Crop Improvement Association and the North Carolina Foundation Seed Producers.

Dilda, who harvested 114 bushels a acre, received a $50 savings bond last week as his prize. He had planned assistant county agent Cecil Register said, to harvest 140 bushels before last fall's hurricane struck his crop.

Tug And Barges Struck By Ship

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A merchant vessel ran down a tug with three barges in tow on the fog-bound Mississippi River early today, the Coast Guard reported.

The duty officer said one barge had a hole knocked in it and another was cut loose.

The tug was identified as the Perry N, but the merchant vessel was not identified. No injuries were reported.

Dog Unable To Decide Owner

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A mongrel dog subject of a court suit, couldn't decide who its owner was so the judge put it up to a veterinarian.

The vet found the animal was 2 years old as Mrs. James Lancaster claimed her pet Tippy was. Magistrate Thomas J. Gabbert then ruled in her favor.

Mrs. Sarahlee Rapoport then brought the suit against Mrs. Lancaster her neighbor, claiming the pet was her dog Lassie Gabbert.

Neighbors owned the dog but it turned a friendly nose toward him and wagged its tail.

Mrs. L. B. Brown was guest speaker for the Youth Fellowship of York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church on last evening. Geraldine Moore, acting president, presented the speaker. Mrs. Brown's challenge to the youth was "The Road Ahead Is Open, Begin Where You Are." Some of the highlights of her speech were: "Your future is what you make it; some begin early; others drift year after year without mastering their ambitions. A firm decision is a great asset in mastering your future. The combination of work, play, love and faith are the attributes in succeeding. Where your treasure is there will your heart be." Music was furnished by the Tot Choir. Peggy King sang "God So Loved the World" and Geraldine Pugh sang "Every Day With Jesus."

There will be a call meeting of the Church of God in Christ for the Greenville district Tuesday. Bishop Wyoming Wells will preside. Sessions will begin at 1 p.m. and the evening service will begin at 8:00. Music will be provided by choirs from Plymouth, Washington, Bethel and Greenville.
