Immigration Law Overhaul Urged

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today urged Congress to overhaul the nation's immigration laws to wipe out "inequities" and ease the way for 230,000 foreigners to come to this country as permanent residents each year.

Eisenhower said he thought this rise of about 65,000 over the present annual quota of 154,657 immigrants is justified by the country's past growth and current economic conditions.

He said too it would be a recognition of "our responsibilities of world leadership."

In a special message, Eisenhower also told the lawmakers there is need to speed up the process of deporting unworthy aliens — persons who have "been found to be criminals of the lesser character, trafficking in murder, narcotics and subversion."

He said Atty. Gen. Brownell will submit a proposal in this field later.

The President's message dealt to a great extent with recommendations for revision of the 1952 McCarran-Walter Act, which became law over the veto of former President Truman.

But it also made recommendations in these other principal fields:

1. Granting discretion to the attorney general to waive technicalities in special cases where aliens seek entry to the United States.

At present Congress must pass individual bills in such cases and the President is required to act separately on each measure.

Eisenhower said granting the attorney general the requested discretion "would substantially eliminate the need for private legislative redress in this area."

Eisenhower said the discretionary powers should be limited to aliens with close relatives in this country, to veterans and to functionaries of religious organizations.

For example, he said South Americans going to and from Europe by air often pass through the United States.

As for the over-all picture, Eisenhower said this: "Throughout our history, immigration to this land has contributed greatly to the strength and character of our republic."

He said he probably will give his answer to the big question at a news conference.

He said he probably will want to make a long explanation of his decision, and that this explanation likely will be given elsewhere than at a news conference.

This seemed to indicate the possibility of his making a nationwide TV and radio broadcast, although Eisenhower did not elaborate on this suggestion.

Also in the political field, Eisenhower said he would have no objection to Chief Justice Earl Warren's running for President on the Republican ticket, if he (Eisenhower) decides against running again.

He said, however, he doubts very much that it would be within his proper sphere to ask Warren to run.

Eisenhower's remarks today regarding Warren were in response to a request that he clarify what he said in response to questions two weeks ago about Warren. He said at that time that he felt politics and the Supreme Court should not get mixed up together.

Eisenhower's statement then was interpreted in some quarters as meaning he was against the idea of Warren's bidding for the presidency.

Warren said last year that, under no circumstances would he leave the court to seek any political office. There has been talk among some Republicans, however, of drafting the chief justice as presidential nominee if Eisenhower does not run again.

Asked if his youngest brother, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, has any ambition to run for president, Eisenhower smiled broadly and said that's something he has no information about.

Eisenhower Hints Decision Coming Soon After Mar. 1

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he thinks he should have enough information by March 1 to decide whether to seek re-election.

Eisenhower strongly indicated at a news conference that an announcement of his decision will come shortly after that date if he actually does have at that time the information he feels he needs.

With a smile and some times a hearty chuckle, he parried all questions seeking to find out what he thinks his decision may be.

He did say he probably will give his answer to the big question at a news conference.

He said he probably will want to make a long explanation of his decision, and that this explanation likely will be given elsewhere than at a news conference.

Sen. George Says Senate Will Have To Resolve Dispute Feud Over Probe Priority

By JACK BELL WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. George (D-Ga.) said today the Senate itself will have to resolve any further dispute over who is to investigate a $2,500 campaign contribution offered Sen. Francis Case (D-Ind.).

George said a special four-man committee set up by a 90-0 Senate vote yesterday expects Case and six subpoenaed witnesses to testify only at public hearings the group plans to open Friday.

George, who heads the committee, said he hopes it can finish with its witnesses by Saturday, report early next week, and call up its report for Senate action sometime after next Wednesday.

But Sen. Hennings (D-Mo.) said he planned to ask the Senate Rules Committee for its backing in an inquiry by its Elections subcommittee.

Hennings, who heads the subcommittee, sought unsuccessfully to take testimony from Case about the incident yesterday.

There were some indications that Rules Committee Chairman Green (D-Ri.) and others are not happy about Hennings' move to air the matter ahead of the George committee, which had the backing of Senate leaders.

George said if Hennings tries to go ahead with the Case inquiry, the jurisdiction of his subcommittee will be challenged "and the Senate will have to decide the matter."

Hennings and Sen. Gore (D-Tenn.) voted yesterday to subpoena James M. Neff, attorney from Lexington, Neb., who offered the $2,500 to Case. Sen. Curtis (R-Nebr.), the third subcommittee member, protested the action as being "in defiance of the Senate."

Case was asked to appear at the same hour before both the Hennings and George groups. He chose to appear before the latter.

Later he appeared at a closed session of the Hennings subcommittee. He brought with him a letter from the other committee asserting its "exclusive jurisdiction" to investigate the incident.

The letter "respectfully requested" Case not to appear before any other committee and to "make no public statements on this matter" until its hearing Friday.

Court Action Threatens; Dean Summoned In Admittance Case Two Crises Confronting Alabama U.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—Two crises confront the University of Alabama, beset by problems stemming from its removal of racial barriers by court order.

A strained calm ruled today on the campus scene of disorders that erupted in protest against integration, as university officials faced these problems:

1. A Negro coed, excluded from the campus "until further notice" after increasingly violent demonstrations against her presence, threatens court action unless she is admitted to classes by tomorrow.

Autherine Lucy, 26, first of her race to enter the 125-year-old university, said yesterday: "I am still determined to attend the University of Alabama."

2. And William Adams, dean of admissions at the school has been summoned into federal court at Birmingham tomorrow morning to show cause why he should not be held in contempt for the school's refusal to enroll Mrs. Polly Ann Hudson.

The two Birmingham women both won a federal court ruling that the university cannot deny Negroes enrollment because of their race.

The Board of Trustees denied Mrs. Hudson admission on the basis of her "conduct and marital record." She is seeking a divorce.

She charged that the order was a "smear."

The Alabama Legislature endorsed the trustees' action in excluding Miss Lucy as a necessary step, but criticism came from another quarter.

In New York, the National Assn. for Advancement of Colored People said it had sent a telegram to Atty. Gen. Brownell urging him to start criminal proceedings against any and all persons acting in any manner "to prevent the coed from attending classes."

Brownell is out of the country. The Lucy-Hudson cases reached their turbulent climax last week after the university lost the legal battle over racial segregation in U. S. District Court at Birmingham and in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans.

Alton Lennon In 7th District Race

DUNN, N.C. (AP)—Former U. S. Sen. Alton A. Lennon is in the race for the 7th District congressional seat and the charges are flying already.

Lennon's intentions of opposing U. S. Rep. F. Eitel Carlyle got out a little prematurely yesterday when letters Lennon mailed to supporters in this area showed up in the press.

Lennon himself said he would have no formal announcement until Thursday.

The Wilmington attorney's letter to principal supporters charged that Carlyle was not a "full time congressman. It criticized Carlyle for failing to attend a Senate Agriculture Committee hearing at Raleigh Nov. 16.

He also charged Carlyle was absent at a public hearing held in Raleigh Dec. 19 by Sen. Herbert Lehman (D-NY) "which dealt directly with the terrific damage and loss to our homes, crops and farms caused by Hurricane Hazel, Connie, Diane and Jose."

Lennon added that "being a congressman is an important full time job, and since your congressman is on a year-round salary, he should devote 12 months out of the year to his duties."

Carlyle wasted no time in firing back.

He said he had been "too busy" to attend all Senate subcommittee hearings.

"It impresses me," Carlyle declared, "that Lennon is just trying to give me some advice. My response to that is: I prefer to get advice from someone who has been more successful."

As for the hearings, Carlyle declared, "I find it more profitable for me to go before the full committee when it meets in Washington rather than appear before the subcommittee when it meets in a state. I have attended every committee meeting which I thought I could be of any assistance to my constituents."

Carlyle said he attended every one of the meetings called by Gov. Luther Hodges on the hurricane situation.

Raise Threat Of Berlin Blockade

BERLIN (AP)—Communist East Germany raised the threat today of a possible blockade of Western air traffic into isolated West Berlin.

The threat came from the Presidium of the Volkskammer — Lower House — in a protest concerning "spy balloons." A statement asserted the Allies would be "well advised" if they remembered that planes flying through the "sovereign air territory" of East Germany, Berlin is 110 miles inside East Germany.

Western political experts said it was the first time East Germany has ever referred to its air territory in such strong terms.

The Presidium's declaration was reported by the official East German News Agency ADN.

The U. S. mission in Berlin said it would have no comment on the Volkskammer declaration. One top Western official said: "It's a veiled threat, but it's a question whether they will implement it."

The Soviet Union, several of its European satellites and Communist China all have charged in recent days that the United States was sending "military reconnaissance balloons" over their territory. The Soviets declared U. S. military organizations were sending up balloons carrying radio equipment and cameras.

Red China joined in the protests last night with a Peiping radio broadcast saying: "We strongly protest against this and demand that the government of the United States stop this provocative action immediately."

U. S. Secretary of State Dulles told a news conference that thousands of weather balloons have been released by the United States in the Pacific, Western Europe and North America and said they probably have crossed the territory of 20 or 30 countries. U. S. government sources have described the balloons as scientific, not military devices. Dulles said he believed the United States had the right to send up such balloons but that the U. S. government would be disposed to respect protests of violation of air space.

N. C. Fugitives Held In Illinois

STATESVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Iredell Sheriff J. Charles Rumpke says that two youths who crashed out of the county jail here last week are being held in Harrisburg, Ill., on federal car theft charges.

The two 18-year-olds are Kenneth Martin Bishop of Murphysboro, Ill., and James Arnold Trent of Statesville. Sheriff Rumpke said the youths were driving a stolen car that belonged to Mary G. Treash of Mooresville when they were arrested in Illinois.

Tribble-Must-Go Stickers Issued

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (AP)—Many stickers bearing the words "Tribble Must Go" have been handed out on the Wake Forest College campus.

Dr. Harold W. Tribble, college president, expressed surprise last night at the news of the stickers.

Tribble was given a vote of confidence Friday by the college trustees following an investigation of his administration.

Students said some of the stickers have been put up in a few fraternity houses. The stickers are about 2 1/2 inches wide and 5 inches long.

Record Event If Weather Holds

"If the good weather holds," Greenville merchants expect tomorrow's Dollar Day to be a record-breaking event.

J. D. McGlothin, Jr., chairman of the Merchants Association Trade Promotion Committee noted today that "with the extensive planning and advertising for Dollar Day, we think it will break all previous records for sales."

The semi-annual bargain day is sponsored by the city's leading merchants who offer discounts on merchandise. Many merchants make special purchases for the event.

City officials cooperate each Dollar Day by declaring a holiday on parking meters, and this time is no exception. There will be more than 1,000 free parking spaces in Greenville for shoppers tomorrow.

Resurfacing For Bumpy Highway

Bumpy N.C. Highway 43 will receive resurfacing coat from its intersection with N.C. 102 at Calico to the intersection with U.S. 264 by-pass on the outskirts of Greenville.

The project was among 18 highway improvements for which the Highway Commission advertised for bids yesterday.

The bids are to be opened Feb. 21 and reviewed for approval by the Highway Commission Feb. 24 at its regular monthly meeting.

Resurfacing of the busy highway will complete a job begun last year when bids were let for improving the road from its intersection with U.S. 17 in Vanceboro to Calico. The present project involves 14.1 miles of resurfacing.

The highway is presently a concrete construction. However, some years ago a patch strip was added to each side of the concrete to give additional width to the roadway. In spots the asphalt strips have fallen below the level of the concrete creating hazardous driving conditions.

A short section of the highway, from the U.S. 264 by-pass intersection into Greenville, will be left as it is for the present.

Parkway Topped Rest Of System

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Park Service says that the Blue Ridge Parkway in North Carolina and Virginia was by far the most attractive unit in the national park system last year.

The service said the 4,502,215 visitors were counted at the Parkway, topping any other part of the system by 1 1/2 million.

A record 50,007,838 visitors were counted at the 181 parks in the system.

AFL-CIO Leaders Plan Huge Sum For Political Campaigning

By NORMAN WALKER MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Leaders of the AFL-CIO today planned the biggest political war chest in organized labor's history for use in the coming presidential election campaign.

James L. McDevitt, coordinator with Jack Kroll of the organization's political branch, the Committee for Political Education (COPE), proposed a record budget for this year.

Antarctic Rescue Plane Is Down In Venezuela

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—The U. S. Navy announced today a patrol bomber missing on a rescue mission to Antarctica had been found in Venezuela with all aboard safe.

The plane, a Neptune P2V, with seven men aboard, earlier was reported down in a marshy area of northeast Venezuela.

The Navy announcement said it was found 70 miles southwest of Trinidad.

(Dispatches from Caracas, Venezuela, said the twin-engine amphibious plane was sighted on the ground in the Orinoco Delta area. The plane appeared to be without serious damage and there were no signs of fire, the report said.)

Navy officers said the pilot, in his last radio report said he was planning to ditch the long range patrol bomber about 25 miles northeast of Boca de Urao in a clearing alongside a river.

Boca de Urao is in the delta area of the Orinoco River, and is south of Coca de la Sierpe, the strait between Trinidad and Venezuela.

Ballentine Says Too Late Now For Referendum

RALEIGH (AP)—Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine said today that in his opinion "it is impractical at this late date" to hold a referendum on a 20 per cent reduction in the 1956 flue-cured tobacco acreage.

A House Agriculture subcommittee plans to hold a hearing at Nashville Friday to hear the expressions of a 15-member belt-wide tobacco committee. The committee voted at a meeting in December to recommend a 20 per cent cut.

Ballentine said farming arrangements have been made for 1956. He pointed out that fertilizer contracts and credit arrangements have been made by farmers. In addition, tobacco beds already have been set, he added.

The banquet was held Sunday, January 29, and approximately 80 were present for the occasion. Theme for the banquet was "Our Citizenship Under Christ" which was the theme for National Youth Week. Miss Judy Jolly, president of the Christian Youth Fellowship, presided at the banquet table. Entertainment was provided by Leslie Wilkins who sang "Love Is A Many Splendored Thing" and "Without A Song." Guest speaker was Dr. R. B. Cutlip, dean of students at Atlantic Christian College in Wilson. The evening program concluded with a short worship service in the sanctuary led by Miss Nancy Harris and Miss Judy Jolly. The youth of the Eighth Street Christian Church are under the direction of their assistant minister, Richard Ziglar.

Seven Greenville Girl Scouts Take Part In Raleigh Camping Caravan

Seven Greenville Girl Scouts took part in the "Camping Caravan" in Raleigh Saturday when the various necessities of camping were demonstrated. The girls, from senior, Scout troop 9, were Goldis Starling, Ann Green, Millie Overton, Jeanette Taylor, Carole Wilkerson, Ellen Bennett and Bobbie Newnam. More than 200 girls from all parts of the state attended the meeting where instructions on camping were given. The group was divided into small sections, with each assigned work on some aspect of camping. Later, the girls took a tour to survey their handiwork. Instructions were given on the camp kitchen, cooking, tents and sanitation. Demonstrations were on outdoor cooking, fires, making bedrolls, packing a duffel bag, lashing, and making an incinerator. Slides of the national Girl Scout camp in Wyoming were also shown.

30 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
February 8, 1926

On Tuesday evening, at their attractive home on Fifth Street, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. James delightfully entertained at a buffet dinner, having as honor guests Mr. and Mrs. Ed Batchelor, who were married during the holidays, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullan of Washington. The home, ensuite, was decorated with red hearts, red candles and narcissus, suggestive of approaching Valentine day. The dining room was especially attractive with its Valentine decorations. Mrs. S. T. White and Mrs. Fred Forbes, seated at either end of the table, served a tempting dinner. As the guests passed from the table they entered the breakfast room where Mrs. W. E. Hooker and Mrs. Larry James poured coffee. The ice course consisted of nut cream decorated with red cherries, while the cakes were decorated with red hearts. Eighteen guests enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. James.

Book Club Hears Talk On Indians

David Kinlaw, student at East Carolina College, spoke to members of the End of the Century Book Club on the American Indian when it met Tuesday.

A native of New Mexico, Mr. Kinlaw spoke especially of the Indians of that state. He described their needs and the neglect of those needs. "The land remaining to the Indians, most of it of extremely low productivity, is grossly inadequate as a basic resource to support the population; the population, which is tied to it, not by fences or by laws, but by culture, tradition, fear of the unknown, white man's world and unwillingness to lose benefits which are not available off the reservation.

"The low economic status resulting from an inadequate land base means unsanitary housing, poor diet and insufficient clothing," he said. Following this informative talk, questions were discussed.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. J. E. Thomas, the meeting was presided over by Mrs. Ed Batchelor.

Mrs. Joseph Moye was hostess to the club. Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Hannah Richardson, Mrs. W. E. Woolard, Miss Jessie Moye and Mr. Kinlaw.

Film To Be Shown At PTA Meeting

A film, "The Child from Six to Nine," will be shown to members of the Third Street School Parent-Teacher Association at a meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium. Miss Annie Mae Murray of East Carolina will be narrator.

Enthusiasm For Airport Seen Rising

Since the meeting in Farmville last week enthusiasm over a proposed joint airport for eastern North Carolina has grown by leaps and bounds.

That is not to say there hasn't been a great deal of enthusiasm over the project since it received endorsement by the State Department of Conservation and Development a few months ago. It is apparent, however, that people in many communities are now talking in positive terms about the airport and their respective community's part in the program.

Although Pitt County as a governmental unit will not be involved in the new proposal for creating the airport, the Board of Commissioners went on record this week as endorsing the program and pledging its support to the project. That is the kind of cooperative spirit which will help make the program a success.

Looking at the matter realistically, it will not be surprising if one or two of the 19 municipalities which have indicated an interest in the airport do not come through with financial support for the project. For the most part, however, eastern North Carolinians have come to realize that adequate air service is essential to the continued growth of the section; and that a joint airport for the area is the only means for securing adequate air service.

Loss Of ROTC Would Have Been A Big Blow

ROTC units on college campuses large and small mean a great deal to educational institutions and to male students in this time when military service is looking young men in the face.

The announcement that the Air Force has rescinded its previous order and will maintain units at ECC and other colleges came as good news to all concerned.

For the colleges it will mean the continuance of a facility which has been a drawing card for many men students in the past eight years. For students so inclined it will mean they can get military training and their college education at the same time and go on active duty as an officer when they graduate from college. For the armed forces, the continuation of the ROTC program assures a constant supply of trained young officers.

Had it not been for the work of college officials including those at East Carolina, and for a number of members of Congress, the Air Force program would have been sharply curtailed. The Air Force some weeks ago informed East Carolina and many other colleges that its program at those institutions would be discontinued in 1957 for lack of students in the programs. On the heels of the efforts by college officials and Congressmen, the Air Force issued an announcement it would continue its ROTC program in all institutions which wished continuation of the program.

Although enrollment in the Air Force ROTC program has dropped sharply in most schools since the order a couple of years ago requiring flight training for all graduates, the program still has a place in small colleges as well as larger universities.

For our part, we are delighted the program will be continued at E. C. C.

Inaction Dominates The Scene Of Candidacies

Normally in an election year such as this one, big political news is made by one potential candidate after another announcing formally his intentions to seek office.

This year while scheme of state politics has been turned topsy turvy. The politicians getting the headlines for the most part are those who are announcing they have decided NOT to run. Gov. Hodges' announcement Saturday is the first major exception so far.

Charlie Johnson and several others who were considered possible candidates for governor have bowed out of the picture with announcements they were not going to seek the office. This back peddling caused most eyes to be shifted to the Lieutenant Governor's race. Alonzo Edwards was the first to officially toss his hat in the ring although several other widely known figures were said to be considering the race. Now the first of these others, Edwin Pate of Laurinburg has made the headlines with his announcement that he will not be a candidate.

What about the others? Not only on the state scene, but also on the local scene politics is slow in taking shape this election year. Two years ago there were many hats in the ring for county posts by mid-January. As a matter of fact the official announcements of candidates started about mid-December. Here it is early in February and there hasn't been a single official announcement for a local office.

This year may prove a slow year for politics on the local scene as well as on the state level.

rent project will be carried to completion. The reluctance of one or two governmental units to cooperate with the project will not cause its death as was the case with the defunct Eastern Carolina Airport Authority.

Federal aid will be available for construction and development of the area airport; but that will not exclude the need for local funds from eastern North Carolina municipalities for the airport. While the appointed committee is developing its concrete plans for the facility, individual municipalities involved in the project should be given consideration to the financial obligation they will be expected to shoulder in connection with the airport.

This time when the call goes out for funds which will be used to construct the airport, local government units should have their plans already laid to answer with the needed money.

Schools Are Popular For Rallying Places

By LYNN NISBET

SCHOOL HOUSE USE - 200 or so automobiles which converged on the Tri-City high school building in Leaksville township for the budget rally Saturday didn't do the school drives and grounds any good.

Upwards of a thousand people tracking mud and dripping water into the school building didn't improve conditions. The rally program required use of fuel for heating and electricity for lighting and amplifying systems.

But the rally did not cost the public school funds of the State of North Carolina or Rockingham county or the Tri-City district anything. Supt. John Hough and several members of the faculty were on hand to see that property was not abused, and he told our reporter that the committee sponsoring the rally would reimburse the school fund for all operating expenses, such as fuel and lights, any damage done to the grounds or buildings, and any overtime labor costs.

Similar situations occur in many school districts. The school houses are the only place where community meetings can be held. The school people like to have them used as community centers. It would be interesting to know how many school houses are used on Sunday for church services, pending erection of church buildings. They are often used for citizens' political meetings, and civic club suppers.

Such use is encouraged and is generally regarded as entirely proper. The temporary users reimburse the school fund for all expenses incurred in connection with the meetings. It increases bookkeeping but serves a definite public purpose.

Same thing goes for the use of National Guard armories for civic assemblies, social dances, and other community projects.

LEAKVILLE - The Tri-City schools has perhaps the best amplifying system of any high school in the state, because John Motley Morehead decided his athletic stadium which he has given the school needed some "bells." He had heard the "bells" in the Morehead Tower, which he gave to the Tri-City schools. Hill, sound peons of victory and requiems of defeat after football games in Kenan Stadium. He wanted his stadium in the Draper-Flynnville stadium community to have bells, too.

He authorized Supt. John Hough to shop around and see what he could get for what price and report back to the board of education superintendent; that he did not want to repeat the Chapel Hill experience with the Morehead Tower. The plan was to start out as a half million dollar project and wound up in the three and a half million bracket.

Result is a $10,000 carillon system.

tem, with "bells" for the stadium and gymnasium, record players and an organ console with facility for piping music to every classroom, separately or all together and throughout for loud speaker amplification for announcements and speeches all over the place, controlled by a central panel located in the superintendent's office.

GROUND HOG - Governor Hodges and the Ground Hog did not get together on weather over the past week end. Cold rain all day Saturday interfered with attendance at the Hodges rally at Leaksville, Sunday was as perfect an early February day as anybody could hope for, and Money again there was cold rain-lots of rain and much needed rain.

Even the Governor admitted the rain was more important than any political meeting, maybe even more important than routine business in the executive department of the State. A little better cooperation with the agency that recommends appropriation and tax bills for North Carolina?

BUDGETEERS - Who has had the longest tenure as a member of the advisory budget commission check the records. It recommends appropriation and tax bills for North Carolina?

This commission of six members is composed of two named by the Governor usually for four year terms at the beginning of the administration, and the respective chairmen of the appropriate committees of the House and Senate, named by presiding officers for two year terms at opening of each legislative session.

General records the records indicate that James H. Clark of Bladen county is the daddy rabbit of all budgeteers since the Federal Reserve was established in 1925. By reason of service as chairman of a money committee in the Senate and successive appointments by Governors, he served for twenty years and signed six of the biennial budget reports. Victory Bryant of Durham is credited with eight years, or four biennial reports.

Alonzo Edwards of Greene and Leroy Martin of Wake will match the Bryant tenure if they complete terms to which they were appointed and serve through the 1957 General Assembly. There have been several members who served for six years, and a number with four years.

Honors for longest service and greatest contribution to the sound fiscal policy of North Carolina belong to Jimmie C. Clark who had continued his public service as chairman of the Medical Care Commission since leaving the budget commission.

Other Editors Are Saying... The Issue Is Largely Cash

(Charlotte Observer)

D. Hiden Ramsey, chairman of the State Board of Higher Education, raised some persistent questions as to the future of North Carolina universities and colleges in his Tuesday address to the Charlotte Rotary Club.

He confessed that he did not know the answers. Like many others, he knew what ought to be done, but he had no illusions about the difficulty of finding a way to get it done.

There is probably a slick one-word answer to all of his questions—money. But where and how to get the money is a question that must be answered very soon if the difficulties of higher education in North Carolina and in the rest of the country are to be met.

The development of community colleges, Ramsey believes, will be one way to help the situation because large numbers of young people might never have the opportunity to attend college without such institutions.

We have learned that in our experience with the Charlotte College. This excellent institution has given hundreds of young people the chance to get their first two years of college education at home without giving up their employment. By the time they have finished the first two years many of them can find ways to go on to a senior college.

Charlotte College, however, suffers from the common malady of lack of financial support. Until such institutions are more readily available to more young people and have better financial support from the state, their usefulness will continue to be sharply curtailed.

Ramsey mentioned also the shortage of public school teachers and said that half the college graduates for the next few years will have to go into teaching

On Philosophies To Live By

Many worthy volumes have been written concerning the philosophies by which people should live.

Without these volumes, much would be lost to the world and yet, perhaps one of the best brief philosophy books was scribbled almost a hundred years ago by an anonymous Confederate soldier. I clipped those anonymous lines from some magazine and have carried them around in my wallet until they are ragged and faded. So, before they fade away completely, I'd like to pass them along:

"I asked God for strength, that I might achieve—I was made weak, that I might learn humbly to obey."

"I asked for help that I might do greater things—I was given infirmity that I might do better things."

"I asked for riches, that I might be happy—I was given poverty, that I might be wise."

"I asked for all things, that I might enjoy life—I was given life, that I might enjoy all things."

"I got nothing that I asked for—but everything I had hoped for."

Despite myself, my prayers were answered. I am, among all men, most richly blessed!"

It's too bad we don't know just who the man was who wrote these lines, where he came from, how he lived and how he died.

War, they say, does strange things to people.

Notebook On Life

An Education In The Mailbag

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

That it costs a family with an annual income of $6,500 about $800 to bring a baby into the world, including the cigars the proud papa passes around.

That it costs—according to a Redbook Magazine survey—a pound of round steak here in 1929. Today he does it in half an hour. But don't let your butcher know this—you have enough trouble with him already.

That A. H. Berwald, a 73-year-old pencil manufacturer, tests his pencil leads by leaning out his 10th floor window and dropping them to the sidewalk. Incidentally pencils will not only write under water—they work equally well when submerged in molasses. Try it and see.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
LIFE IS A STRUGGLE

"Rock oysters are delicious but too tender to ship. Protected all their lives by stony walls, no struggle, no labor they become juicy and tender. The sheltered life is just the thing if it is oysters you want. But you would have music, color, beauty, intelligence, however in their own interests, can come only through struggle."

It could hardly be put better than this. We would all like to live in an ivory tower—or we think we would. How marvelous to have a life free of all problems, troubles, and responsibilities, and with sufficient income that one would never have to think about how much anything cost.

Some of the things that are done just for the sake of doing them, like nurses aides in hospitals, perform this extra work that does not require a teacher's certificate. The teacher is left free to teach, and the other duties are done just as well.

Mr. Ramsey's chief point concerned the shortage of technically educated young people. Since industry is the chief sufferer from the shortage of technical graduates, industrialists and educators ought to join forces in meeting the difficulty. Out of such combined action might come the financial help that colleges now lack.

Some laws would no longer set up endowments on a broad scale, because taxes make it almost impossible to accumulate large personal fortunes. Great corporations, however, in their own interest, could see that adequate opportunity is offered to all qualified young people who want a technical education.

Some laws would have to be changed, some stockholders who file suits to prevent such use of corporation funds would have to be convinced that an investment in training personnel is important as an investment in plant and machinery.

women office workers, men still held 354,000 of the 390,000 federal government's clerical posts as recently as 1950.

That Britain has lost its beef-canning tradition to America, where the average citizen ate 160 pounds during 1955.

That it took an industrial worker 49 minutes to earn the price of a pound of round steak here in 1929. Today he does it in half an hour. But don't let your butcher know this—you have enough trouble with him already.

That A. H. Berwald, a 73-year-old pencil manufacturer, tests his pencil leads by leaning out his 10th floor window and dropping them to the sidewalk. Incidentally pencils will not only write under water—they work equally well when submerged in molasses. Try it and see.

That a recent comic book style treatment of "The Story of Jesus" sold half a million copies in two weeks, believed to be an all-time record for any so-called "comic book."

That Hildegard, veteran performer though she is, still recites the prayer of St. Francis of Assisi just before going out to face a new audience.

That while more men than women suffer from heart attacks, fewer men are hospitalized for mental disorders.

That few people can name off-hand the only one of New York City's five boroughs that is actually on the mainland of the United States. It's the Bronx.

That a feeble-minded person can become insane, but a normal person, by advocating things the condition may deteriorate, never actually becomes "feeble-minded."

Benson Attempts A 'Human' Approach

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON - Secretary Ezra Taft Benson's visit to the Chicago stockyards, where he auctioned off a shipment of fine fat hogs at a loss to the producer, marks the opening of the Administration's attempt to appease an angry agricultural electorate. Instead of sitting on his padded office, he means to carry the fight to the farm front henceforth.

main members of the Eisenhower entourage, although not against the President. He still stands aloof from the controversies swirling around him.

Secretary Dulles gave support to this suspicion in his life interview, in which he permitted himself to be eulogized as one of our greatest statesmen and the savior of the West in three crises. Benson's endorsement of the Harper Magazine article, which depicted the farmer as a "selfish tyrant," aggravated a feeling of bitterness. It is hardly necessary to recall Secretary Wilson's remark that "What's good for General Motors is good for the U.S.A."

IMPORTANCE OF POLITICAL TRIVIA These may seem like trivial things, but it is often the human trivia which counts in politics. No recent politician recognized that fact more than Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman. In contrast to the man around like they inspired the belief that there was a warm and human regime, seeking only the betterment of mankind here and abroad.

F.D.R. for instance, obtained enactment of almost all his social and economic reforms in his first term, or before the 1939 outbreak of war. With our entry, he announced that he had switched from "Doctor New Deal" to "Doctor Win the War."

Postwar problems, as well as conservative opposition on Capitol Hill, prevented Truman from putting through any new reforms, or from expanding F.D.R.'s gains. But their legislative failures on behalf of important voting elements—their 15 barren years—did not keep them from talking around, through things the people wanted to hear.

They showed a personal concern for the voters' problems. Eleanor Roosevelt preached the humanitarian gospel from weekly conferences to the deepest coal mines, from Washington to Guadalcanal. Truman owed his 1948 victory over Dewey to his "whistle stop" tour. He talked an understandable political dialect in his "give 'em hell" speeches.

HILLY LANGUAGE Benson's hilly gospel from weekly conferences to the deepest coal mines, from Washington to Guadalcanal. Truman owed his 1948 victory over Dewey to his "whistle stop" tour. He talked an understandable political dialect in his "give 'em hell" speeches.

But it has been told, formal, detached, it has not reflected a real and deep concern for the farmer's present-day plight.

He points out, for instance, that the value of farmland is at a

Imported Goods On Market

By ELMER ROESSNER

If you are a shopper, you'll see more imported goods in stores this year. If you're a wage earner, your company may sell a little more abroad. And if you're in business you may do a little better import or export trade.

In fact, two-way business with people abroad may set a new record. The National Foreign Trade Council has estimated that for the first time in international trade, including services and financial transfers, may top $42 billion this year.

But it is a precarious field. A famine in Washington or a mix-up in a vital industry could lose a million dollars in less time than it would take you to throw 10 the hard way at Las Vegas. INTERNATIONAL... BALANCE SHEET

The Council expects Americans will sell $14.7 billion worth of goods abroad, expect $3.1 billion from foreigners for transportation and travel, and earn $2.5 billion from investments abroad. That's a total international income of $20.3 billion.

On the other side of the ledger, foreign nations are expected to sell us $11.9 billion worth of goods, to spend $1.5 billion for travel and transportation, to collect $500,000,000 on investments here and sell $2.8 billion worth of goods and services to our armed forces overseas. In addition, the U.S. is expected to give economic aid of $3.6 billion, making our total international outgo $11.8 billion.

The inclusion of travel spending in import-export figures puzzles some but a little reflection will make it clear that travel in France, for example, involves the transfer of money from the American to the French economy as much as does the importation of French perfumes.

The inclusion of travel spending in import-export figures puzzles some but a little reflection will make it clear that travel in France, for example, involves the transfer of money from the American to the French economy as much as does the importation of French perfumes.

Foreign nations will take in $1.5 billion more than we will. That is not a serious imbalance in trade. It simply means that foreign nations will double that much more credit here, which they can use to invest in American business or buy goods and services at some future date.

A GOOD YEAR The $42.1 billion total of two-way trade will be $1.2 billion above the 1955 mark. But there are many sources of trouble that may cut the total. Centers of concern at the moment include:

ARAB NATIONS: Anger at Americans for aid to Israel may reduce demand for American goods. Some exporters are already under boycott because of aid to Israel. Suspicions of American agents.

SOUTH AMERICA: Communist nations are bidding for trade and are likely to offer some goods that would compete with ours. This may lose sales for American exporters.

EUROPE: American restrictions on manufactured imports have caused exports and higher restrictions may lower them further. Barriers against Swiss watches mean fewer sales here, and that means the Swiss have more goods to sell to American markets here in that if they succeed, new barriers will be raised to restrict exports.

ASIA: Our restrictions on Japanese goods are reducing Japan's ability to buy our products. And the Russian aid effort to Japan, Burma, India, Afghanistan, Ceylon, Indonesia and other Asian countries with offers to purchase their surpluses and to sell them needed goods at low prices on long terms.

And in every market in the world American manufacturers are up against competition from other producers, many of whom operate with much cheaper manpower.

Opinions In Brief

record high. He notes that farm debt has fallen to the lowest percentage compared to assets, in many years. He emphasizes that three-fifths of the decline in farm income occurred during Truman's last few years, not on Ike's time.

BENSON IS LEARNING But these arithmetical rebuttals put these accounts. They buy no high-priced tractors, milking machines, fencing and other things that they sympathize. Nor does it appear that the Administration's Nine-Point Program will become law in time to help the farmer before the November election.

But Ezra is learning, as his appearance at the Chicago stockyards in zero weather suggests. He is going out to meet the farm folks, and talk in terms they understand. Most importantly, as foreca; here he is finally attacking the problem of the prices and profits—the "spread" on crops and commodities after they leave the farm.

In short, like F.D.R. and Truman, although he cannot solve the problems outright, he will show that he is not smug, complacent or indifferent. Other Cabinet members may—in fact, should—do likewise.

Lectures Tonight On Old Scrolls

The first of two lectures on the Dead Sea Scrolls is scheduled tonight, 8 p.m. on the second floor of the Joyner Library at East Carolina College.

The scrolls, contents of which have thrown much new light on early biblical events, will be discussed by the Rev. Wallace I. Wolston, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church here.

Discovered in 1947, the scrolls take their name from the area in which they first came to light. They include, among other writings, the earliest copy of the book of Isaiah yet discovered.

The remainder of the scrolls, which some authorities feel may take years to completely decipher, cast much light on the early stages of Christian development.

Tonight's lecture and the one scheduled for Monday at 8 p.m. in the library, are under the sponsorship of the American Association of University Professors. The public is invited.

PORTRAYS MEDIUM:—Margaret Rose Starnes, freshman from Raleigh (above), plays the cheerful, bustling medium Mme. ### Underwriters To Hear E. D. East

David D. East, superintendent of agencies for the Occidental Life Insurance Co.'s Raleigh office, will speak to the Pitt County Life Underwriters' Ass'n. tomorrow at 12:30.

The dinner meeting will be held at the Silo Grill.

East was born in Trinidad, Colorado and first entered the life and general insurance business in 1938. He entered the armed services in 1941 and returned to insurance in 1945.

East assumed his present position in 1952.

Another Firm Is Robbed In Night

Latest in a series of Greenville break-ins was reported to city police today.

Entrance was gained to Quality Cleaners sometime during the night and approximately $20 from a cash register and a March of Dimes container was taken.

Two Injured In Auto Collision

Two persons suffered minor injuries last night in a two-car collision at Colonial Avenue and Davis Street.

Bobby Gene Grubbs, 17, of Route 1, Winterville, the driver of one of the cars, received a cut leg.

Judy Elaine Kovalchick, 3, a passenger in the second vehicle, suffered bruises of the head.

John Andrew Kovalchick, 28, of 904 Colonial Avenue was cited by police for failure to yield the right of way. Damage was estimated at $650.

The United States uses about 130 million tons of iron ore a year.

Bids Asked On Ocracoke Road

RALEIGH (AP)—The first major paved road on the Outer Banks island of Ocracoke is among the list of 18 highway projects on which the Highway Commission asked for bids yesterday.

The road will be 10.68 miles long and run northward from the village of Ocracoke towards Hatteras through an area which is part of the country's newest and only seashore national park.

The road will be 18 feet wide, have a bituminous surface, and run over a number of creosoted timber bridges in sand dune areas. The bridges will permit high ocean and sound waters to go under them instead of washing over the road.

The commission advertised for bids on a total of 18 projects in as many counties. They involve a total of 103 miles of work.

Bids will be opened Feb. 21 and reviewed by the commission Feb. 24.

Other major projects for which bids were asked were:

A new bridge over the inland waterway near Wrightsville Beach on U.S. 74 and 76.

In Cabarrus, the improving of 1 mile of U.S. 29-A from the junction of U.S. 29 east to a point near the Irish Buffalo Creek bridge at Concord.

In Lincoln County, paving on N. C. 150 and U.S. 321 for 5 miles on the Lincolnton bypass.

And a job in Mecklenburg involving a new Seaboard Air Line Railroad underpass and bridge on N.C. 16 over the U.S. 29 bypass in Charlotte.

Predicts Music Lessons By TV

CHICAGO (AP)—Teaching music by television may enable every child in the nation to play a tune, says Dr. John C. Kinkel, of the American Music Conference.

He predicts enrollments will rise 75 to 100 per cent within 10 years when youngsters in small communities are given musical opportunities now available only in metropolitan centers.

The University of Houston, Houston, Tex., offers a class telecourse in piano over its educational station KUHT. The University of Michigan is experimenting in ways to teach wind and string instruments on TV.

Dr. George Stout, professor of music education at Houston, says students taking the course by TV make as much or more progress than those enrolled on the campus.

Legislative Air To Announcement

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—State Rep. Enos Schaffer gave his fellow legislators a birth announcement they could understand when he became the father of a son.

"Announcing a candidate for the Legislature in the year 1960 (25 is the minimum age), Richard Enos Schaffer. Produced through the cooperation of Garnett J. Schaffer, chairwoman, Planning and Development Committee; Enis P. Schaffer, chairman, Ways and Means Committee, and Dr. Brigid and Dr. Scott, Co-chairmen, Labor Committee."

Same Number On His License Tag

KREMLIN, Okla. (AP)—Postmaster J. Carlton Rathmel was more than mildly surprised when he looked at the number on his 1956 automobile license tag. It was the same number as the 1955 tag.

Rathmel said he had made no request for any special number and that it was strictly a coincidence.

Attended Short Dairying Course

Pitt County Negro Farm Agent James M. Goode and two prospective dairy farmers, Arthur Council of the Sallie Branch community and Nelson Hopkins of Bruce, attended the annual Dairy Production Short Course at A. and T. College in Greensboro last week.

Carolina Dairies, Inc., of Greenville provided the scholarships for the short course.

Goode said discussions during the three-day sessions included important subjects and that the demonstrations were convincing. Discussions included: "Keeping Milk Quality High," "The Place of Grade C Milk in North Carolina's Production Program," "How Dairying Fits Into a Good Farm Management Program," "Feeding the Dairy Cow," (roughage and grain), and "Breeding Program for Every Farm."

Dr. V.A. Rice dean of instruction at State College, Raleigh, spoke at Thursday night's banquet on "The Human Being From the Standpoint of Quantities and Qualities."

NO VOTES CAST

MULESHOE, Tex. (AP)—Not a single vote was cast Saturday at Bailey County bond and tax election called to provide funds for improving county roads. The reason was a blizzard that dumped from 16 to 24 inches of snow over the county, blocking all roads.

County commissioners have ordered the election re-set.

Enthusiasm For Airport Seen Rising

Since the meeting in Farmville last week enthusiasm over a proposed joint airport for eastern North Carolina has grown by leaps and bounds.

That is not to say there hasn't been a great deal of enthusiasm over the project since it received endorsement by the State Department of Conservation and Development a few months ago. It is apparent, however, that people in many communities are now talking in positive terms about the airport and their respective community's part in the program.

Although Pitt County as a governmental unit will not be involved in the new proposal for creating the airport, the Board of Commissioners went on record this week as endorsing the program and pledging its support to the project. That is the kind of cooperative spirit which will help make the program a success.

Looking at the matter realistically, it will not be surprising if one or two of the 19 municipalities which have indicated an interest in the airport do not come through with financial support for the project. For the most part, however, eastern North Carolinians have come to realize that adequate air service is essential to the continued growth of the section; and that a joint airport for the area is the only means for securing adequate air service.

For those reasons there is a determination on the part of many municipalities large and small that the cur-

Loss Of ROTC Would Have Been A Big Blow

ROTC units on college campuses large and small mean a great deal to educational institutions and to male students in this time when military service is looking young men in the face.

The announcement that the Air Force has rescinded its previous order and will maintain units at ECC and other colleges came as good news to all concerned.

For the colleges it will mean the continuance of a facility which has been a drawing card for many men students in the past eight years. For students so inclined it will mean they can get military training and their college education at the same time and go on active duty as an officer when they graduate from college. For the armed forces, the continuation of the ROTC program assures a constant supply of trained young officers.

Had it not been for the work of college officials including those at East Carolina, and for a number of members of Congress, the Air Force program would have been sharply curtailed. The Air Force some weeks ago informed East Carolina and many other colleges that its program at those institutions would be discontinued in 1957 for lack of students in the programs. On the heels of the efforts by college officials and Congressmen, the Air Force issued an announcement it would continue its ROTC program in all institutions which wished continuation of the program.

Although enrollment in the Air Force ROTC program has dropped sharply in most schools since the order a couple of years ago requiring flight training for all graduates, the program still has a place in small colleges as well as larger universities.

For our part, we are delighted the program will be continued at E. C. C.

Inaction Dominates The Scene Of Candidacies

Normally in an election year such as this one, big political news is made by one potential candidate after another announcing formally his intentions to seek office.

This year while scheme of state politics has been turned topsy turvy. The politicians getting the headlines for the most part are those who are announcing they have decided NOT to run. Gov. Hodges' announcement Saturday is the first major exception so far.

Charlie Johnson and several others who were considered possible candidates for governor have bowed out of the picture with announcements they were not going to seek the office. This back peddling caused most eyes to be shifted to the Lieutenant Governor's race. Alonzo Edwards was the first to officially toss his hat in the ring although several other widely known figures were said to be considering the race. Now the first of these others, Edwin Pate of Laurinburg has made the headlines with his announcement that he will not be a candidate.

What about the others? Not only on the state scene, but also on the local scene politics is slow in taking shape this election year. Two years ago there were many hats in the ring for county posts by mid-January. As a matter of fact the official announcements of candidates started about mid-December. Here it is early in February and there hasn't been a single official announcement for a local office.

This year may prove a slow year for politics on the local scene as well as on the state level.

rent project will be carried to completion. The reluctance of one or two governmental units to cooperate with the project will not cause its death as was the case with the defunct Eastern Carolina Airport Authority.

Federal aid will be available for construction and development of the area airport; but that will not exclude the need for local funds from eastern North Carolina municipalities for the airport. While the appointed committee is developing its concrete plans for the facility, individual municipalities involved in the project should be given consideration to the financial obligation they will be expected to shoulder in connection with the airport.

This time when the call goes out for funds with which to construct the airport, local government units should have their plans already laid to answer with the needed money.

Schools Are Popular For Rallying Places

By LYNN NISBET

SCHOOL HOUSE USE — 200 or so automobiles which converged on the Tri-City high school building in Leaksville township for the Hodges rally Saturday didn't do the school drives and grounds any good.

Upwards of a thousand people tracking mud and dripping water into the school building didn't improve conditions. The rally program required use of fuel for heating and electricity for lighting and amplifying systems.

But the rally did not cost the public school fund of the State of North Carolina or Rockingham county or the Tri-City district anything. Supt. John Hough and several members of the faculty were on hand to see that property was not abused, and he told a reporter that the committee sponsoring the rally would reimburse the school fund for all operating expenses, such as fuel and lights, any damage done to the grounds or buildings, and any overtime labor costs.

Similar situations occur in many school districts. The school houses are the only places where community meetings can be held. The school people like to have them used as community centers. It would be interesting to know how many school houses are used on Sunday for church services, pending erection of church buildings. They are often used for partisan political meetings and civic club suppers.

Such use is encouraged and is generally regarded as entirely proper when the temporary users reimburse the school fund for all expenses incurred in connection with the meetings. It increases bookkeeping but serves a definite public purpose.

Same thing goes for the use of North Carolina Armories for civic assemblies, social dances, and other community projects.

BELLS — The Tri-City school has perhaps the best amplifying system of any high school in the state, because John Motley Morehead decided the athletic stadium which he had given the school needed some "bells." He had heard the "bells" in the Morehead Tower, which he gave the University at Chapel Hill, sound peons of victory and requiems of defeat after football games in Kenan Stadium. He wanted his stadium in the Draper-Leaksville-Spray community to have bells, too.

He authorized Supt. John Hough to inquire in connection with the school in the Draper-Leaksville-Spray community to have bells, too. He authorized Supt. John Hough to inquire in connection with the school in the Draper-Leaksville-Spray community to have bells, too.

Result is a $10,000 carillon system, with "bells" for the stadium and gymnasium, record players and an organ console with facility for piping music to every classroom, separately or all together and attachment for loud speaker amplification for announcements and speeches all over the place, controlled by a central panel placed to the superintendent's office.

GROUND HOG — Governor Hodges and the Ground Hog did not get together on weather over the past week end. Cold rain all day Saturday interfered with attendance at the Hodges rally at Leaksville, Sunday was as perfect an early February day as anybody could hope for, and Monday again there was cold rain—lots of rain and much needed rain. Even the Governor admitted the rain was more important than any political meeting, maybe even more important than routine business in the executive department of the State. A little better cooperation might have switched the Saturday rally to Sunday and the perfect weather Sunday to Saturday. Suggestion is the Governor consult the ground hog before scheduling another celebration.

BUDGETEERS — Who has had the longest tenure as a member of the advisory budget commission, the agency that recommends appropriation and tax bills for North Carolina? This commission of six members is composed of two named by the Governor, usually for four year terms at the beginning of the administration, and the respective chairmen of the appropriations and finance committees of the House and Senate, named by presiding officers of the two year terms at opening of each legislative session.

Casual check of the records indicates that James T. Clark of Bladen county is the daddy rabbit of all budgeteers since the system was established in 1925. By reason of service as chairman of a money committee in the Senate and presiding officers of the Senate and Governors, he served for twelve years and signed six of the biennial budget reports. Victor Bryant of Durham has credited with eight years, or four budget reports.

Alonzo Edwards of Greene and Leroy Martin of Wake will match Bryant in tenure if they complete terms to which they were appointed and serve through the 1957 General Assembly. There have been several members in the past six years, and a number with four years service records.

Honors for longest service and greatest contribution to the sound fiscal policies of the State apparently belong to Jim Clark, who had continued his public service as chairman of the Medical Care Commission since leaving the budget commission.

Other Editors Are Saying ... The Issue Is Largely Cash

(Charlotte Observer)

D. Hiden Ramsey, chairman of the State Board of Higher Education, raised some persistent questions about the future of North Carolina universities and colleges in his Tuesday address to the Charlotte Rotary Club.

He confessed that he did not know the answer to the questions, but he knew what ought to be done, but he had no illusions about the difficulty of finding a way to get it done.

There is probably a slick one word answer to all of his questions—money. But where and how to get the money is a question that must be answered very soon if the difficulties of higher education in North Carolina and in the rest of the country are to be met.

The development of community colleges, Ramsey believes, will be one way to help the situation, because large numbers of young people might never have the opportunity to attend college without such institutions.

We have learned that in our experience with the Charlotte College. This excellent institution has given hundreds of young people the chance to get their first two years of college education at home without giving up their employment. By the time they have finished the first two years many of them can find ways to go on to a senior college.

Charlotte College, however, suffers from the common malady of lack of financial support. Until such institutions are more readily available to more young people and have better financial support from the state, their usefulness will continue to be sharply curtailed.

Ramsey mentioned also the shortage of public school teachers and said that half the college graduates for the next few years will have to go into teaching if the public schools are to be properly staffed. Not half of them, of course, will go into teaching.

The trouble in this instance may not be solely money. The beginning salary of North Carolina teachers is not lavish, but it would appeal to many graduates. Extraordinary duties that the teacher is expected to perform keep many young people out of the profession.

Some cities have met this problem by recruiting teachers' aides, who, like nurses' aides in hospitals, perform this extra work that does not require a teacher's certificate. The teacher is left free to teach, and the other duties are done just as well.

Mr. Ramsey's chief point concerned the shortage of technically educated young people. Since industry is the chief sufferer from the shortage of technical graduates, industrialists and educators ought to join forces in meeting the difficulty. Out of such combined action might come the financial help that colleges now lack.

Individuals can no longer set up endowment on a broad scale because taxes make it almost impossible to accumulate large personal fortunes. Great corporations, however, in their own interests, are beginning to recognize that opportunity is offered to all qualified young people who want a technical education.

Some laws would have to be changed, some stockholders who file suit to prevent such use of corporation funds would have to be convinced that an investment in trained personnel is as important as investment in plant and machinery.

These problems are not easy to solve, but they are not insuperable. It depends on whether the people want a solution badly enough to exert the necessary effort to find it.

On Philosophies To Live By

Many worthy volumes have been written concerning the philosophies by which people should live. Without these volumes, much would be lost to the world and yet, perhaps one of the best brief philosophies was scribbled almost a hundred years ago by an anonymous Confederate soldier. I clipped those anonymous lines from some magazine and have carried them around in my wallet until they are ragged and faded. So, before they fade away completely, I'd like to pass them along:

"I asked God for strength, that I might achieve—I was made weak that I might learn humbly to obey. I asked for help that I might do greater things—I was given infirmity that I might do better things. I asked for riches, that I might be happy—I was given poverty, that I might be wise. I asked for all things, that I might enjoy life—I was given life, that I might enjoy all things. I got nothing that I asked for—but everything I had hoped for. Despite myself, my prayers were answered. I am, among all men, most richly blessed!"

It's too bad we don't know just who the man was who wrote these lines, where he came from, how he lived and how he died. War, they say, does strange things to people.

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail: That it costs a family with an annual income of $6,500 about $800 to bring a baby into the world, including the cigars the proud papa passes around.

women office workers, men still held 354,000 of the 390,000 federal government's clerical posts as recently as 1950.

That Britain has lost its beef-cating tradition to America, where the average citizen ate 160 pounds during 1955.

That it took an industrial worker 49 minutes to earn the price of a pound of round steak here in 1929. Today he does it in half an hour. But don't let your butcher know this or you have enough trouble with him already.

That A.H. Berwald, a 73-year-old pencil manufacturer, tests his pencil leads by leaning out his 10th floor office window and dropping them to the sidewalk. Incidentally, pencils will not only write under water—they work equally well when submerged in molasses. Try it and see.

That a pencil has been developed that will even write on your eyeglasses. Don't use them.

That despite all the new labor-saving business machines that have been invented, there is still a shortage of 600,000 office workers in the United States.

That many modern roads in France follow the old routes of Napoleon's military campaigns.

That there is no tide in the Mediterranean, I have this on the authority of the French government tourist office, which didn't bother to explain why.

That Jane Froman, the singer, is allergic to ostrich feathers.

That opera star Blanche Thebom believes more American wives learn about culture from their husbands than vice versa. Now if a mere man said a thing like that he'd be denounced as an unbearable male prig.

That a recent comic book style treatment of the "Story of Jesus" cost half a million copies in two weeks, believed to be an all-time record for any so-called "comic book."

That Hildegard, veteran performer through the years, still recites the prayer of St. Francis of Assisi just before going out to face a new audience.

That while more men than women suffer from heart attacks, fewer men are hospitalized for mental disorders.

That few people can name off-hand the only one of New York City's five boroughs that is usually on the mainland of the United States. It's the Bronx.

That a feeble-minded person can become insane, but a normal person, through his mental condition may deteriorate, never actually becomes "feeble-minded."

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

LIFE IS A STRUGGLE

"Rock oysters are delicious but too tender to ship. Protected all their lives by stony walls, no oysters can stand up to the sea's juicy and tender. The sheltered life is just the thing if it is oysters you want. But you would have music, color, beauty, intelligence, power, and love, these can come only through struggle."

It could hardly be put better than this. We would all like to live in an ivory tower—or we think we would. How marvelous to have a life free of all problems, troubles, and responsibilities, and with sufficient income that one would never have to think about how much anything cost.

But would this be marvelous? We wonder sometimes why we have such edgy tempers, such a predilection to eat and drink too much, such a love for money. Wouldn't life be wonderful if all these moral handicaps and weaknesses could be wiped out?

But Robert Browning has written: "Why comes temptation but for man to meet And master and make crouch beneath his feet?"

And so be pedestaled in triumph? Piano manufacturers buy only the best seasoned wood for sounding boards, timber that has stood on the hillsides. It is when trees have battled with wind and storm that there is music in them.

Benson Attempts A 'Human' Approach

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Secretary Ezra Taft Benson's visit to the Chicago stockyards, where he auctioned off a shipment of fine-fat hogs at a loss to the producer, marks the opening of the Administration's attempt to appease an angry agricultural electorate. Instead of sitting in his paneled office, he means to carry the fight to the farm front hereafter.

In addition to pocketbook suffering from the fall in income, farmers resent the apparent indifference toward their difficulties at Washington. They have complained that Benson does not consult down-to-earth hog-raisers about their "squeeze" between low receipts and high prices for what they buy.

The think that he listens only to slide rule theorists. In short, they feel neglected by the agency created to safeguard their interests, as Sinclair Weeks labors for the business community and James P. Mitchell for the employees.

SMUG DEBEANOR Indeed, although Benson is a sincere and conscientious man, they think that they detect a certain smugness in the atmosphere and attitude of the Capital. It is a charge frequently directed against certain members of the Eisenhower entourage, although not against the President. He still stands aloof from the controversies swirling around him.

Secretary Dulles gave support to this suspicion in his Life interview, in which he permitted himself to be eulogized as one of our greatest statesmen, and the salvation of the West in three crises. Benson's endorsement of the Harper Magazine article, which depicted the farmer as a selfish tyrant, aggravated the feeling of bitterness. It is hardly necessary to recall Secretary Wilson's remark that "What's good for General Motors is good for the U.S.A."

IMPORTANCE OF POLITICAL TRIVIA These may seem like trivial things, but it is often the human trivia which counts in politics. No recent politician recognized that fact more than Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman. In contrast to the men around like, they inspired the belief that theirs was a warm and human regime, seeking only the betterment of mankind here and abroad.

F.D.R. for instance, obtained enactment of almost all his social and economic reforms, in his first term, or before the 1939

outbreak of war. With our entry, he announced that he had switched from "Doctor New Deal" to "Doctor Win the War."

Secretary Dulles as well as conservative opposition on Capitol Hill, prevented Truman from putting through any new reforms, or from expanding F.D.R.'s beginnings. But their legislative failures on behalf of important voting elements—their 15 barren years—did not keep them from talking and advocating things the people wanted to hear.

They showed a personal concern for the voters' problems. Eleanor Roosevelt preached the humanitarian gospel from weekly press conferences to the deepest coal mines. From Washington to Guadalcanal, Truman owed his 1948 victory over Dewey to his "whistle stop" tour. He talked an understandable political dialect, in his "give 'em hell" speeches.

HILLY LANGUAGE Benson's language, as well as the retorts of many Cabinet colleagues, has been technically correct in his analysis of the farm problem. But it has been too formal, detached. It has not reflected a real and deep concern for the farmer's present-day plight.

He points out, for instance, that the value of farmland is at a

Imported Goods On Market

By ELMER ROESSNER

If you are a shopper, you'll see more imported goods in stores this year. If you're a wage earner, your company may sell a little more abroad. And if you're in business you may do a little better import or export trade.

In fact, two-way business with people abroad may set a new record. The National Foreign Trade Council has estimated that America's international trade, including services and financial transfers, may top $42 billion this year.

But it is a precarious field. A fumble in Washington or a mix-up in a vital industry could lose a million dollars in less time than it would take you to throw 10 little dice at Las Vegas. INTERNATIONAL BALANCE SHEET

The Council expects Americans will sell $14.7 billion worth of goods abroad, collect $3 billion from foreigners for transportation and travel, and earn $2.5 billion from investments abroad. That's a total international income of $20.2 billion.

On the other side of the ledger, foreign nations are expected to sell us $11.9 billion worth of goods, to spend $5 billion with us for transportation, to collect $500,000 on investments here and sell $2.8 billion worth of goods and services to our Armed Forces overseas. In short, we'll have a trade surplus to give economic aid of $3.6 billion, making our total international outgo $21.8 billion.

The inclusion of travel spending in import-export figures puzzles some but a little reflection will make it clear that travel in France, for example, involves the transfer of money from the American to the French economy as much as does the importation of French perfumes.

The figures indicate that foreign nations will take in $1.5 billion more than we will. That is not a serious imbalance in trade. It simply means that foreign nations will have that much more credit to use, which means they can invest in American business or buy goods and services at some future date. A GOOD MANY IPS

The $42.1 billion total of two-way trade will be $1.2 billion above the 1955 mark. But there are many sources of trouble that may cut the total. Centers of concern are: ostrich feathers; ARAB NATIONS: Anger at Americans for aid to Israel may reduce demands for American goods. Some exporters are already warning of a boycott because aid to Israel. Suspicions of Americans are being incited by Communist agents.

SOUTH AMERICA: Communist nations are bidding to offer some goods below cost to gain footholds. This may lose sales for American exporters.

EUROPE: American restrictions on manufactured imports has cut our exports and higher restrictions may lower them further. Barriers against Swiss watches mean fewer sales here, and that means the Swiss have fewer dollars to buy American goods. Higher tariffs on other items have hurt trade with other nations, notably Britain, Holland, Belgium and France. Businessmen in many countries, notably Sweden, hesitate to try to enlarge markets here in fear that if they succeed they will be raised against their goods.

ASIA: Our restrictions on Japanese goods are reducing Japan's ability to buy our products. And the Russians are warning Japan, Burma, India, Afghanistan, Ceylon, Indonesia and other Asian countries with offers to purchase their surpluses and to sell them necessities at low prices on long terms.

And in every market in the world American manufacturers are up against competition from other countries, many of whom do fine work and most of whom operate with much cheaper manpower.

Opinions In Brief

AZTEC, N.M., INDEPENDENT BELIEVER: "If we could get the politicians as interested in the own welfare we'd have a lot less to worry about."

BENSON IS LEARNING: But these arithmetical rebuttals put no glow in Benson's Nine-point Program will become law in time to help the farmer before the November election.

But Ezra is learning, as his appearance at the Chicago stockyards in zero weather suggests. He is going out to meet the farm folks, and talk in terms they understand. Most importantly, as forecast here he is finally attacking the problem of the prices and profits—the "spread"—on crops and commodities after they leave the farm.

In short, like F.D.R. and Truman, although he cannot solve their problems overnight, he will show that he is not smug or complacent or indifferent. Other Cabinet members may—in fact, should—do likewise.

Lectures Tonight On Old Scrolls

The first of two lectures on the Dead Sea Scrolls is scheduled tonight, 8 p.m. on the second floor of the Joyner Library at East Carolina College.

The scrolls, contents of which have thrown much new light on early biblical events, will be discussed by the Rev. Wallace I. Wolverton, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church here.

Discovered in 1947, the scrolls take their name from the area in which they first came to light. They include, among other writings, the earliest copy of the book of Isaiah yet discovered.

The remainder of the scrolls, which some authorities feel may take years to completely decipher, cast much light on the early stages of Christian development.

Tonight's lecture and the one scheduled for Monday at 8 p.m. in the library, are under the sponsorship of the American Association of University Professors. The public is invited.

PORTRAYS MEDIUM—Margaret Rose Starnes, freshman from Raleigh (above), plays the cheerful, bustling medium Mme. ### Bids Asked On Ocracoke Road

RALEIGH (AP)—The first major paved road on the Outer Banks island of Ocracoke is among the list of 18 highway projects on which the Highway Commission asked for bids yesterday.

The road will be 10.68 miles long and run northward from the village of Ocracoke towards Hatteras through an area which is part of the country's newest and only sea-shore national park.

The road will be 18 feet wide, have a bituminous surface, and run over a number of crescented timber bridges in sand dune areas. The bridges will permit high ocean and sound waters to go under them instead of washing over the road.

The commission advertised for bids on a total of 18 projects in as many counties. They involve a total of 103 miles of work.

Bids will be opened Feb. 21 and reviewed by the commission Feb. 24.

Other major projects for which bids were asked were:

A new bridge over the inland waterway near Wrightsville Beach on U.S. 74 and 76.

In Cabarrus, the improving of 1 mile of U.S. 29-A from the junction of U.S. 29 east to a point near the Irish Buffalo Creek bridge at Concord.

In Lincoln County, paving on N. C. 150 and U.S. 321 for 5 miles on the Lincolnton bypass.

And a job in Mecklenburg involving a new Seaboard Air Line Railroad underpass and bridge on N.C. 16 over the U.S. 29 bypass in Charlotte.

Attended Short Dairying Course

Pitt County Negro Farm Agent James M. Goode and two prospective dairy farmers, Arthur Council of the Sallie Branch community and Nelson Hopkins of Bruce, attended the annual Dairy Production Short Course at A. and T. College in Greensboro last week.

Carolina Dairies, Inc., of Greenville provided the scholarships for the short course.

Goode said discussions during the three-day sessions included important subjects and that the demonstrations were convincing. Discussions included: "Keeping Milk Quality High," "The Place of Grade C Milk in North Carolina's Production Program," "How Dairying Fits Into a Good Farm Management Program," "Feeding the Dairy Cow," (roughage and grain), and "Breeding Program for Every Farm."

Dr. V.A. Rice dean of instruction at State College, Raleigh, spoke at Thursday night's banquet on "The Human Being From the Standpoint of Quantities and Qualities."

Predicts Music Lessons By TV

CHICAGO (AP)—Teaching music by television may enable every child in the nation to play a tune, says Dr. John C. Kendell, of the American Music Conference.

He predicts enrollments will rise 75 to 100 per cent within 10 years when youngsters in small communities are given musical opportunities now available only in metropolitan centers.

The University of Houston, Houston, Tex., offers a class telecourse in piano over its educational station KUHT. The University of Michigan is experimenting in ways to teach wind and string instruments on TV.

Dr. George Stout, professor of music education at Houston, says students taking the course by TV make as much or more progress than those enrolled on the campus.

Entrance was gained to Quality Cleaners sometime during the night and approximately $20 from a cash register and a March of Dimes container was taken.

John Andrew Kovalchick, 28, of 904 Colonial Avenue was cited by police for failure to yield the right of way. Damage was estimated at $650.

NO VOTES CAST

MULESHOE, Tex. (AP)—Not a single vote was cast Saturday at Bailey County bond and tax election called to provide funds for improving county roads. The reason was a blizzard that dumped from 18 to 24 inches of snow over the county, blocking all roads. County commissioners have ordered the election re-set.

Same Number On His License Tag

KREMLIN, Okla. (AP)—Postmaster J. Carlton Rathmel was more than mildly surprised when he looked at the number on his 1956 automobile license tag. It was the same number as the 1955 tag.

Rathmel said he had made no request for any special number and that it was strictly a coincidence.

Admits Severed Hand Was His

HINTON, W.Va. (AP)—A red-faced citizen finally admitted that a severed human hand found along a busy city street the other day belonged to him. A friend had brought him the hand from medical school.

Police wouldn't name the man, but said he planned to play some practical jokes with it and hang it in his garage. The man guessed his dogs must have pulled it down and dragged it into the street.

Governors Want Lost Laureates

DISPUTED PLAY.—Here's tense action accompanying the disputed foul that raised heated controversy in the Auburn-Kentucky game at Montgomery, Ala. Auburn's Brownie Nelson lies on the floor after he was fouled deliberately by Kentucky's Vernon Hixon (40) so Kentucky could get the ball. Auburn trainer Benny Howard bends over Nelson while Auburn coach Joel Eaves holds back angry members of his team. Gaining the ball in the last 30 seconds of play, Kentucky threw a field goal and won 82-81. (AP Wirephoto).

Doby, Pierce Are Key Men In Chicago Lineup

By MARTY MARION
CLAYTON, Mo. (AP)—Larry Doby and Billy Pierce are the key men on my ball club.
We had one very bad weakness last year and that was no left-handed power hitting. I believe Doby will do this and he will supply the long ball power we have been needing for years. We have been finishing third because we couldn't get the extra base hits at the right time.
We have a better balanced ball club with the addition of Doby, both from the viewpoint of defense as well as offense. With Doby and Minnie Minoso following one another in the lineup, one hitting from the left side and the other from the right, we should have a real one-two punch for the first time in years.
We gave up a good man in Chico Carrasquel to get Doby and I'm glad we did. I'm not worried at all about shortstop. Luis Aparicio will plug the gap there. Ted Lyons, who managed the Memphis club part of last season, says Luis is one of the greatest fielding shortstops he has ever seen. He can run and he has a rifle arm.

If he comes through defensively, and I think he will, a low batting average won't handicap him. Besides, he has hit wherever he's played.
The only thing I'm worried about is our pitching. This could and should be helped by having Pierce pitch more often. Last year we adopted a system of starting Pierce one a week and the result was that he pitched well but was not in as many games as we would like to have used him.
It's going to be different this year. I'm going to start him every fifth day. This way he will pitch six or eight more games in the normal quota and it could make a difference in our standing at the end of the season.
Last year, for example, we finished five games out of first place. If Pierce had won 20 instead of 15, as he might well have done with any luck at all, we might have won the pennant. At least, we could have finished second, ahead of Cleveland.
I would like just one more starting pitcher. My three best are Pierce, Dick Donovan and Jack Harshman. They can beat anybody. I'll have to find a couple of other starters from the rest of the staff, which includes Connie Johnson, Harry Byrd, Mike Fornieles, Sandy Consuegra, Mike Ferris, a fine looking rookie called Gerry Dahlke, and others.
Our infield should be all right with Walt Dropo at first, Nellie Fox at second, George Kell at third and Aparicio at short. Sherm Lollar will do most of the catching again. He's underrated. I consider him the most valuable catcher in the league next to Yogi Berra. My third outfielder will be among Jim Rivera, Bob Nieman, Cal Abrams and Bob Kennedy, with the latter ready to fill in that whenever Kell may need a rest.
I'm not making any predictions this year but I trust we have a better club than last year. I look for the same type of American League race as we had last season with the New York Yankees again the team to beat.

Floyd's Chances Are Going Down

NEW YORK (AP)—While his price goes up, up, up, Floyd Patterson's chances of getting a fight today were going down, down, down.
And that means any kind of a fight—not just with heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano.
Patterson's manager, Gus D'Amato, who has been feuding with the International Boxing Club, announced that he wanted $50,000 to match his man against Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson.
Countered Harry Markson, managing director of the IBC: "What promoter can guarantee even a Patterson (admittedly a hot drawing card) $50,000. That amounts to 30 per cent of a $150,000 net gate. Who is drawing that kind of money for a non-title fight in these days of television?"
D'Amato, if he is serious about leading Patterson to a title bout with Marciano, is getting himself more and more entangled on the ropes.
He is trying to buck the IBC, which has strings on virtually the entire heavyweight division with the exception of Marciano. The champion's manager, Al Weill, broke with the IBC a couple of months back, but even he doesn't want D'Amato.
"You've got to earn a heavyweight title fight," said Weill. "What has Patterson been doing? If he wants to get a heavyweight title fight, the public must want him. The only way for him to do that is to knock off some names."
"Let him fight Jackson. That would prove something and help clear up the situation."
D'Amato has one ally. He is Jack Hurley of Seattle, the sometimes manager, sometimes promoter. He said last night that he would like to handle the promotions of Patterson's future fights and that he'd be interested in lining one up for the crown with Marciano.

Alleged Washington U. Player Fund Up For New Board Review

SEATTLE (AP)—The University of Washington's football problems, described by investigating legislators as "badly bungled," get another review tonight by a Board of Regents worried by possible damage to the school's academic and athletic reputation.
The regents called the meeting yesterday after John Cherberg, the coach who was fired last month after being hired in December, told of a fund used for payments to football players.

Coastal Conference Champions

1955-56 RED DEVILLETES—This season's regular season Pitt County and Coastal Conference champions are shown above. The Farmville girls have clinched both titles and will be going after the Pitt County tourney soon. Front row (left to right): Faye Baker, Faye Heath, Jackie Nolan, Gladys Beamon, Loretta Oakley, Ruby Flora and Betsy Hobgood. Farmville Trophy Case Now Bulging

By BRUCE PHILLIPS, Reflector Sports Editor. FARMVILLE — The Farmville High trophy case is beginning to bulge. And what's more, no relief is in sight. Last night the Farmville girls basketball team won its second championship of the season.

By defeating Robersonville, Coach Sam Stell's sextet won the Coastal Conference crown for the third straight year, and already had the Pitt County Conference regular season championship on ice.

That makes five championships in the past two years for the Red Devillets. And they'll be heavy favorites to take the 1955-56 Pitt County Conference tourney upcoming.

Froud Of Streak. But the big trophy case isn't the extent of the Farmville team's pride. They have put together the longest win streak of any clubs in the conference—a string of some 26 games.

The skein extends back into last season. Winterville beat them last, a six-point victory in the Farmville gym. So far this year, the Red Devillets have won 14 in a row.

On the basis of their unbeaten mark and the fact that the second place team has lost more than one, Coach Stell's girls have the Pitt Conference race sewed up. They have only one league game left, with Grimesland next Tuesday.

The Coastal Conference crown is determined on the basis of seasonal records. Farmville's marks have been best for the last three years. Stell, who is a good baseball player in his own right, has put out some fine teams in his four years at Farmville. And the 6-4 mentor thinks this is the best aggregation he's ever coached.

Stokes-Pactolus Wins In Belhaven. Stokes-Pactolus cagers rolled through a double-header last night in Belhaven, taking the girls' game 60-58, and the boys' tilt, 30-25.

Little Turner led the girls in triumph with a fine 36-point performance and was helped by the shooting of Nina Perkins, who added 13 tallies.

Bobby Congleton struck up 10 points to lead the Stokes-Pactolus boys.

The boxes: GIRLS. Belhaven Stokes-Pactolus. Garris 25 Perkins 13. Morgan 26 Harris 11. Shavender 2 Turner 36. Griffin Toler. Hall James. Overtown Overton. Sub: Belhaven—Martin 4, Midgett, Stokes-Pactolus—Cherry. Stokes-Pactolus 12 18 16 14—60. Belhaven 12 8 22 16—58.

Pirates On Road For Big Games

East Carolina is in Salisbury tonight meeting eighth-placed Catawba in an important North State Conference game.

Coach Howard Porter's Pirates, currently enjoying a one-game first place lead, have to get by the pesky Indians and defeat Elion there this Saturday night to clinch the regular season flag.

If the tonight's game had been scheduled for a week ago, maybe there wouldn't have been so much fuss. Coach Earl Ruth's Tribe has really been coming.

The Indians walloped High Point's respected five by some seven points and turned back Davidson by four.

This newly-found drive has Porter and assistant Coach Earl Smith giving added attention to the game. East Carolina barely beat the Indians in Greenville, 69-68. It took a last second tip-in by Nick Nichols to do that.

A victory tonight would put the Pirates in good position to sweep the race. Their 11-1 record compares favorably over second place Elion's 9-2.

Even if ECC should get surprised by Elion, the Christians still would have to win the remainder of its games, and one of this is with Lenoir Rhyne in Hickory.

Ruth will field the same five that started off East Carolina's home schedule here back in December. Bob Fleming and Joe Clayton pace the Tribe's scoring. Against ECC they each collected 14 points.

Then there's Pete Hunt, a forward, Pete Stout, a guard, and center Jerry Cline. The latter is the team's best rebounder and stands a good 6-6.

East Carolina will go with its regular starting five which includes Nick Nichols and Don Harris at the forwards, Guy Mendenhall at center, Harold Ingram and Capt. J. C. Thomas at the guards.

Harris is leading the Bucs in scoring with a 19.3 mark. Thomas is second and Nichols' third. Mendenhall is the team's leading rebounder and Ingram the all-around fine team player. The latter can also score when necessary.

Coach Ray Martinez' swimming team, fastly becoming renowned in the state for its power, meets Washington & Lee of the Southern Conference here tomorrow at 3:15 p.m.

The meet will be held in the College Pool and no admission will be charged.

This will be the first meeting of the two teams and Washington & Lee supposedly has one of the better teams in the Southern Conference.

ECC Swimmers Meet Washington & Lee Here

Coach Ray Martinez' swimming team, fastly becoming renowned in the state for its power, meets Washington & Lee of the Southern Conference here tomorrow at 3:15 p.m.

The meet will be held in the College Pool and no admission will be charged.

This will be the first meeting of the two teams and Washington & Lee supposedly has one of the better teams in the Southern Conference.

Martinez' boys, who have already beaten Southern Conference schools Davidson, The Citadel, and William & Mary, will seek their ninth win.

Tatum Has One More Job To Fill. CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Here's a bit of news for the University of Maryland: Jim Tatum, new University of North Carolina head coach, only has one more place on his varsity staff to fill.

Tatum has made four appointments so far. Three came from his old Maryland staff and the latest played in the 1955 Terrapins Orange Bowl team.

Fred Tullai, who played both center and guard under Tatum, at Maryland, was named freshman coach at UNC yesterday. He replaces Ralph Floyd, who is a member of the University of South Carolina coaching staff.

Tullai played three years at Maryland and coached the Terrapin freshmen in 1954. He returned to play in 1955 with the varsity. "He did a fine job for us, and I am glad to get him here," said Tatum.

Ken Midgett and Gene Lusk will carry ECC hopes in the diving. Midgett has been bested only once this year.

Other outstanding swimmers for ECC are Jim Meads, Dickie Denton, Jimmy Crocker and Teddy Gartman.

Farmville Girls Take Loop Title In Straight Wins

Led by sharp-shooting Jane Joyner, the Farmville girls smashed Robersonville 34-14 last night for their 17th consecutive win of the season, to cap the Coastal Conference girls' championship.

Jane Joyner pumped in 15 points and was closely followed by teammate Gardner with 14.

Farmville roared off from the very opening buzzer, racking up a total of 10 points in the first quarter, while holding the visiting Robersonville team to none.

The second period was practically the same, as Jane and her mate dropped in eight more markers. B. Davenport of Robersonville scored her team's first points then, as she added three.

After a similar third quarter, the two teams battled to a draw in the point-per-period duel, both scoring 10 in the final frame. However, Farmville had blasted to a 34-14 triumph, winning by a 20-point margin.

Because of a conference ruling, which states that a team can perform in only one tournament, and because Farmville is tied up in both the Coastal and Pitt County Conferences, their win last night was rated as a game which gave them the loop title in the Coastal league.

Farmville, undefeated all season, are also leading the pack in the Pitt County circle, and will be favored to wind up champions there, too.

Robersonville suffered defeat in the second contest of the evening, also, as the Farmville boys pulled in a close 49-47 victory. Dave Farrior was high man for the winners with 14. Mack Holmes added 13, and teammate N. Wooten collected 11.

F. Roberson claimed top honors for the game with 15 markers.

The boxes: GIRLS. Farmville Robersonville. Joyner 15 B. Davenport 10. Gardner 14 Warren. Moore 3 Whitfield. Oakley J. Davenport. Williams Gurganul. Little Highsmith.

Subs.: Farmville—Beamon 2, Baker, Corbett, Hobgood, Flora, Allen, Heath, Nolan, Robersonville—G. Davenport 4, Williams, Dullock, Keel, Roberson, Everette, Edwards.

Eppes Hoopsters Take 89-74 Loss. Eppes' high school was downed 89-74 by a tough Adkins hoop club (from Kinston) in a conference match at Eppes' gymnasium last night.

James Brewington sunk shots from all over the court, racking up 24 markers for the locals, but the Kinston team was too strong in the attack.

Eppes' Richard Armfield delivered 22 tallies and Fred Outerbridge added 14 to the cause, but Adkins was stronger.

Banks, Rhodes, and Laughton, for the visiting quintet, dumped in 29, 20, and 15 respectively, to lead their team to victory.

The score at halftime stood at 41 for Adkins, 33 for Eppes.

Eppes' next home tilt will be on February 14 in the Eppes' gym, as the Bulldogs face a scrappy Washington team.

The box: Adkins Eppes. Banks 29 Brewington 24. Rhodes 20 Armfield 22. Laughton 15 Outerbridge 14. Miller 14 Edwards 9. Evon 5 Darden 3. Subs.: Adkins—Boyd 2, Ingram 2. Eppes—Streeter 3.

Tar Heels Relying Heavily On All-American Prospect

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. The Atlantic Coast Conference has produced some top-notch basketball players this year, but the University of North Carolina lays claim to one of the best of the lot.

He's a 6-5 junior named Lennie Rosenbluth who conference followers have dubbed as the first red hot All-American candidate UNC has had since John (Hook) Dillon earned the honor in 1946.

Rosenbluth is one of the big reasons that Frank McGuire's sophomores have piled up its surprising successful 8-2 conference record this year and has dropped only three of 17 starts.

"He's an All-American if I ever coached one," says McGuire. "He definitely is the finest player I ever coached. His versatility is what makes him stand out. He scores, he rebounds, he is good in the back court. His improvement on defense has been outstanding and if anyone says Lennie is not good on defense now, he's just plain crazy."

The McGuiremen will be leaning heavily on 22-year-old forward as they head into the closing stages of the rugged conference competition. The lead is still in the balance.

The Tar Heels have four games left on their schedule before the ACC tournament, starts March 1. Their next outing will be against Virginia at Charlottesville Va., Saturday night. Then comes the rugged tail end of the slate.

North Carolina meets Wake Forest, N.C. State and Duke in that order within a nine-day span.

It will take all of Rosenbluth's basketball artistry and the coaching genius of McGuire to pull through that lineup undefeated.

Little Wake Forest, now tied for third place in the loop standings with N.C. State's fourth-ranked Wolfpack, has bumped league-leading Duke and North Carolina this year to earn the title of giant-killer. Duke is No. 5 in the nation and getting better as the season progresses.

Rosenbluth put on his most dazzling display of the year last night in leading the Tar Heels to a 118-83 victory over William and Mary of the Southern Conference.

The Greenville, Tenn. player, who came to Carolina by way of the Bronx, scored 19 field goals and 7 free throws. It was a record-equalling performance in several ways. The 19 field goals matched this school record, held by George Giamack and the 45-point total tied the school's individual point total record held by Rosenbluth and Giamack.

British Decision Drawing Protest. LONDON (AP)—An American boycott of British boxing looked today as Kid Gavilan's manager bitterly denounced last night's decision against his fighter as "deplorable."

"I am going to see the British Boxing Board of Control about this ridiculous decision," said manager Yamil Chade. "We shall ask them to reverse the referee's verdict. I thought Gavilan won nine rounds with one even."

Eleven thousand fans in Harrogate stadium roared their disapproval last night when young Peter Waterman's hand was lifted in triumph after 10 rounds of bruising action during which Gavilan apparently had things his own way. The victory extended the Briton's unbeaten record to 32. He has fought one draw.

Chade had to be restrained by the stewards when the decision was announced. He tried to get into the ring to protest. Almost all the newsmen around ringside thought Gavilan had won. The Associated Press card had 6-2 for the former welterweight titleholder from Cuba.

Lew Burston, a representative of the International Boxing Club, who regularly books foreign bouts for American fighters, said afterwards "If the British commission don't do anything about this, no American fighters will come to England in the future."

Rosenbluth also led both teams in rebounds, grabbing off 23.

The 115-point total shattered North Carolina's team record of 103, set earlier this year against Clemson.

The rangy Tar Heel cager was tied with South Carolina's Grady Wallace at the beginning of the week for the top scoring average (23.8) in the conference. Last night's action put Rosenbluth out in front.

Duke took a tighter hold on first place last night by downing Maryland 82-70. Maryland jumped off to an 11-0 lead, but the Blue Devils led 29-28 at halftime. Forward Ronnie Mayer topped point production with 30.

N.C. State missed national humiliation last night by a scant one-point margin over Virginia, currently in next to last place in the ACC.

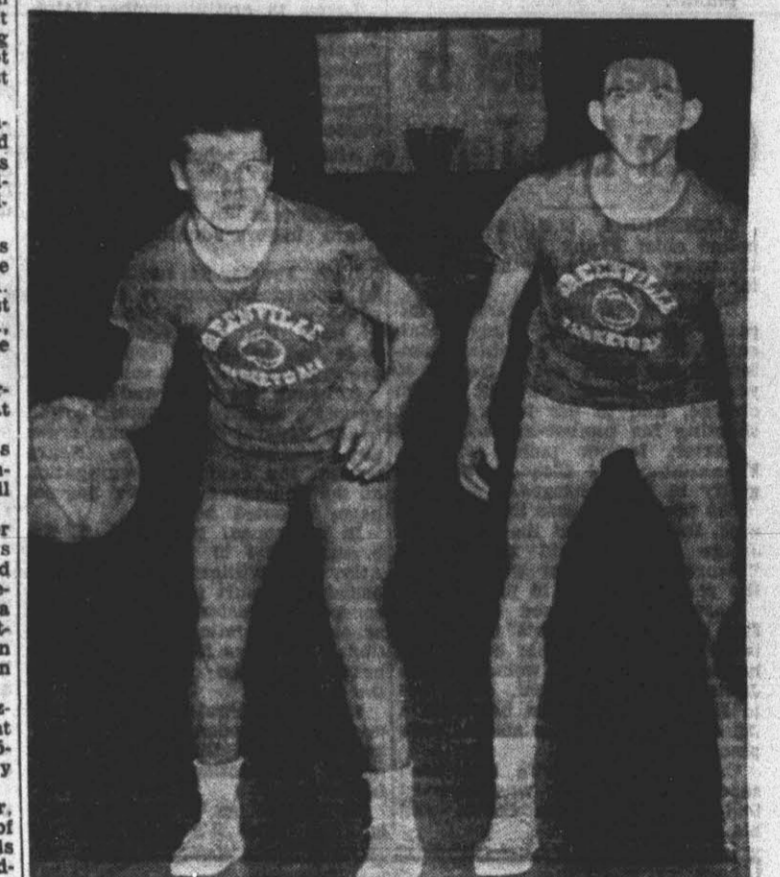

Only the shooting of Cliff Hafer saved the Wolfpack's 77-76 victory. Hafer pumped in 26 points—with 20 of those coming in the second half. Most of his points came on long outside shots.

The Cavaliers threw up a tight zone defense that baffled the Wolfpack most of the night.

Duke meets Virginia at Durham, N.C. tomorrow night in the next scheduled conference affair. There are no games on tap for tonight.

In other action involving North Carolina teams last night, Davidson of the Southern Conference stopped Gullford of the North State Conference 84-79.

Atlantic Christian beat Lenoir Rhyne 112-95 and Western Carolina defeated High Point 97-77.

GREENVILLE GUARDS—Two of the main reasons for Greenville high school's current 9-0 Northeastern conference leading record, have been its top-notch guards, Jerry Drum (left) and Ike Riddick. Both boys are key figures in the Phantom fast-break brand of ball, and will be expected to lead the G-Men against Roanoke Rapids Friday night. (Photo by Phillips).

The GOLDEN WITCH

In 1927, Seattle was a bustling, booming gateway to the Klondike gold rush. Each sailing was a big event. The WILLAMETTE was due to sail for Alaska in an hour, and Tim O'Beirn simply had to find his good friend Michael Dark, a handsome young lawyer, before sailing time.

CHAPTER TWO

Michael Dark was enjoying the dock crowd with his usual relish. He liked people. Man multiplied was more diverting. Seattle, with the spell of the Klondike on it, was extraordinarily so. His feeling for the town had grown with the four years he had lived in it. When he arrived the panic of '93 was at its peak. Michael coming only to claim Charlotte and marry her, wasn't afraid. He had a little capital and an easy confidence that a good lawyer could always make a living.

"It may be a little hard at first," he told Charlotte. "But we'll make out."

Charlotte had shied from "making out." Within a week, she had married Barclay Linden, fifteen years older than she, but independently wealthy and a successful banker.

Remembering, Michael wondered again why he hadn't left Seattle. Perhaps it was a dislike for turning tail and running, perhaps a deliberate biting down on the sore tooth of hurt. Whatever it was, he had stayed.

"Hey, Counselor!" He swung about to see Inez Smith swishing toward him. Though she had ceased to be his client this morning, he had promised to be on the dock.

"I wanted to be sure you made the boat, Inez."

She tossed her head, the purple plumes of her hat bouncing against her dark cloud of hair.

"Promised you didn't I?" "Let you buy my ticket, didn't I?"

"You were always a promising female, Inez."

She laughed, honest, bubbling laughter that was deep-seated. She was tall, high-bosomed and without need for the paint she supplied with lavish hand. Even bemused by the Klondike, men turned to look at her. She preened for them, her twinkling brown eyes sharing the joke with Michael.

"Don't worry, Counselor. I aim to make a strike up north and come home richer'n rice pudding black with raisins."

"And will you share your wealth with your husband?"

"Him! Her full red mouth curled upward. "My husband! Say, he'll divorce me 'fore the boat's in the Rosario Straits! Don't waste no grief on him, Counselor."

Michael suspected she was right. Frank Smith, her husband, was a poor stick. He had Inez arrested on a swindling charge, and Inez had sent for Michael. When she had told her story Michael said frankly she would serve time.

"Short of persuading Smith to drop his charges or marry you, you've got no chance."

Remembering Inez's narrowed eyes, he wasn't too surprised when Smith did marry her. The law, however, refused to clear her and she was sentenced to a jail term. Again she sent for Michael.

"Resign yourself, Inez. Even if you were to have a baby, you'd have it in jail."

Again she fooled them. She convinced the prosecutor she was going to have a baby. Michael, amused and skeptical, provided discreet circulation of the news at his peak. Michael coming only to claim Charlotte and marry her, wasn't afraid. He had a little capital and an easy confidence that a good lawyer could always make a living.

"I don't forget my debts, Counselor. If I hit it rich, I'll cut you in. If the—I'll call it the 'Inez' mine—if it comes through, you get a percentage." She was too intense and it bothered him. "If you don't board that boat you may have to produce that imaginary child right on the dock."

He smiled at her patted her shoulder. "Good luck, Inez."

"And the best to you, Counselor." She looked behind him. "Oh, Lord, here comes Tim O'Beirn. Six will get you ten he's after a touch. Here I go." A big blond man took her hand as she scrambled on deck.

Michael sighed and faced about as Tim plunged through the crowd to his side. "Michael man! I thought I'd never find you. Have you seen my niece, Meg Beaumont?"

"Man," Michael mocked, "I didn't know you had a niece."

"Tim let out a whoosh of breath. "Married to my nephew, my only sister's son. Kemp Beaumont. Maybe you've seen him around?"

Michael shook his head. "Is he in jail?"

Tim was shocked. "No, no, nothing like that. They're new in town. Just up from California. Matter of fact, I sent 'em passage money from Frisco. Kemp's set on Alaska but Meg's against it. Last night Kemp had the offer of a job playing his fiddle. Meg wanted him to take it and a prime row they had. Anyway, Kemp got a chance to work his way north and he was off at daybreak."

The str of departure was heightening. Michael looked puzzled. "How can I help you? It's in my mind that she'll chase Kemp to Alaska and 'tis no place for a young woman with a son little better'n a year old. I want you to convince her to go back to Illinois. Honor—that's my sister, her mother-in-law—would take her in and glad to. Or her own father—"

He halted, doubt clouding his face. Impatience moved through Michael. Why should Tim demand or expect that Michael should straighten out his private affairs? He was about to refuse flatly when he heard a low laugh behind him. He halted, doubt clouding his face, jeering at him.

"I've a riddle for you, Michael." His low, slurred voice could ride roughshod over a shout. "Why is Counselor Dark Seattle's cheapest attorney? Answer—what ever his fee, it is seldom paid."

Color flooded Tim's face. Michael veered. He wanted no part of Tim's kinfolk, but Jason's rudeness forced him into it.

He grinned at Jason. "You sound sour, my friend. I hear there are twelve hundred tons of freight on the Willamette. Is it possible that some interloper edged in a ton that isn't yours?"

Jason's square jaw set but his lips quirked. "I got a reasonable percentage," he admitted.

The lift of satisfaction in his tone made up part of the reason he was an alien in Seattle. Any man who could develop a narrow store on Front Street into the biggest supply firm in town might encounter envy or dislike, but it was the lack of 'give' in Jason that made him unpopular.

"What's on your mind, Tim?" he asked. "I wanted to buy this philanthropic a drink. Join us?"

Michael caught the plea in Tim's glance. "Better wait until the Willamette sails, Tim," he said. "I don't know your niece by sight and—"

"But she might be on it!" Tim wailed. "She's got yellow hair and purple eyes, she has. Her baby's as redheaded as his pa, and I'll warrant she's toting Jezebel."

"Jezebel!" Jason snapped. "You mean the fool woman named her son Jezebel?"

"No no Jezebel's her cat, big as a bull pup." He rocked back and forth on his toes, his eyes darting in every direction. "We've got to keep her off that boat, Michael!"

Could Survive Heart Wounds

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Dr. John P. Stamer of the University of Michigan, says there is a good chance of recovering from a stab wound in the heart.

He said victims who undergo surgery immediately often recover "in 10 to 14 days." He adds: "Some of them have been stabbed twice and survive."

Dr. Stamer says he removes the fourth rib and sews up the wound in the heart.

Soldiers Can't 'Get' The Bugler

FORT LEE, Va. (AP)—"Some day I'm going to murder the bugler some day they're going to find him dead."

The words of the old song don't apply to soldiers here. There is no bugler. "You got to get up, you got to get up" is broadcast by 22 pretty girls telephone operators at the Quartermaster training school, through 35 loudspeakers.

The bugler is a casualty of the mechanical age, reserved now for such solemn occasions as military funerals.

The port of London is 47 miles from the sea.

Canine Diet For A Happier Life

ESTES PARK, Colo. (AP)—Humans aren't the only animals troubled with too much fat, heart disease and kidney ailments. Your dog has 'em too. Veterinarians are prescribing diets to make a dog's life longer and happier.

Dr. Mark Morris, 55, who has been experimenting with dog diets since 1928, says his diets have lengthened the lives of dogs from two to four years. That's the equivalent of adding 15 to 30 years to the human life span.

He noticed startling improvements in dogs whose symptoms indicated special nutrition was necessary. But when the dogs were returned home and the owners disregarded feeding instructions the symptoms recurred.

Home Office Proves A Help To Housekeepers

COZY CRANNY home management center under the stairs is a housewife's dream. Trim desk holds everything from butcher bills to dog's diet. The peg board is a good place for household keys. Cane-back chair and serving cart shown here were designed by Hans Kaufman.

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
EVERY HOUSE needs a quiet, orderly spot to keep bills, house books, recipes, telephone. Such a niche should be off the beaten path so that one can balance the house books, make up the grocery lists and talk on the telephone without interruption.
Houses are smaller and families larger these days, so few houses can devote a spare room to this "personal center". But there are spots that can be utilized for such a purpose if you'll look over your layout.
One family with a large closet built under the roof found it an ideal spot for a desk. The closet was cut in half and the additional space equipped with a desk light to offer a very cozy little cranny. Another good place that few people think of utilizing is the space to such things as new decorating ideas—if and when. Paint color cards, fabric swatches, tile samples might be kept for future reference.

On the wall a rack might hold duplicates of all the family keys—closet, car, garage, house and office keys.
If there is room in the desk one folder might be devoted to road maps. If the family travel another to water charts if you are a boating enthusiast. This is the spot where instruction books should be kept—how to wash Junior's new sweater, run the dishwasher or use the new vacuum cleaner.
It is a good place for schedules—the housecleaning one for occasional helpers baby sitter's instructions. It's a good idea to keep the menu for dog and cat in this spot too so that it will be handy when others take them over in emergencies.

Offer Prayers For Mindszenty

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Prayers were offered today for Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, primate of Hungary, on the sixth anniversary of his sentence to life in prison.
Members of the Hungarian Pontifical College in Rome said no special ceremonies were planned for the prelate.
Hungarian Communist officials arrested the cardinal in 1948 and sentenced him on Feb. 8, 1949, on charges of treason, espionage and illegal financial deals.
Pope Pius XII called an extraordinary consistory of cardinals then to express his sorrow. The Pope called the sentence an effort to disrupt the Roman Catholic Church in Hungary.
The Hungarian Ministry of Justice announced last July 16 on the eve of the Geneva summit conference that Cardinal Mindszenty was being transferred from prison to an "ecclesiastical building."
Two months later the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, noting the absence of Hungarian reports on the cardinal's whereabouts or condition, said the announcement of his release may have been export propaganda.
The cardinal, reported in ill health in the past, will be 64 March 3.

Actor Says Wife In Trial Affairs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Leo Gorcey of the screen's Dead End Kids won a divorce from his third wife, testifying she had trial love affairs with other men including a doctor, a dentist and a film cowboy.
Breaking into sobs, Gorcey, 38, testified yesterday that Amelia Ward Gorcey, 32, was "rather fickle." They were married in 1949.
Superior Judge Samuel Blake gave the actor custody of the children Leo Jr., 8, and Jan, 4. Gorcey gave the former actress $50,000, a Northern California ranch and $750 a month alimony in a property settlement.

Stevenson Concludes His Eight-Day California Tour

By NORMAN BELL
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—An expression of confidence in victory and a promise to leave "agility in tottering on the brink of war" to Republicans ended Adlai Stevenson's eight-day California campaign swing last night.
"I am confident," he said in response to a news conference question as to how he felt about his June 5 Democratic presidential primary contest in California with Tennessee's Sen. Estes Kefauver.
The reference to the "brink of war" statement attributed to Secretary of State Dulles in a magazine article was made by Stevenson in a brief public talk that concluded the campaign.
He told the crowd, estimated by police at between 2,000 and 3,000, that the Democratic party was as eager as the Republican to keep the country from war and give it prosperity.
"Peace and good will on earth," he said, "will be our goal as long as we live, and we will not get it by boasts and bragging. Prosperity will not come by slogans or huckstering, but only when we pursue it with determination and a sense of social justice."
He told Negro leaders at Los Angeles that he was in favor of

Aide Says Eisenhower Testing Self By Tackling Things In 'Old Manner'

By HELMAN MORIN
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower, who stresses the need for higher energy in administering his office, has been "tackling things in the old manner" since he came back to the White House, an aide says.

Max Rabb, secretary of the Cabinet, normally is present whenever it meets. For nearly three years, he has been watching the President in these sessions. Today, Rabb says:

"He's tackling things in the old manner. He doesn't spare himself. And he doesn't want any mush. The agenda for the Cabinet meetings are just as difficult as they ever were, but he takes on the toughest problems. He has been firm and decisive."

Eisenhower recently underlined the importance of physical energy to a man in his job. He listed it as one of the factors in "my problem" of deciding whether to run for a second term. He spoke of the "zip and zest that you can take into conferences." And he added: "Now this morning maybe I feel very selfish, but I do know that I have had an attack."

Eisenhower is working shorter hours, too. Before his heart attack, his appointment schedule often began at 7:30 a.m. Nowdays, 9 is the usual hour. After a light lunch, he rests and returns to his office in the west wing of the White House around 2. He stays there another three hours or so.

To the question of whether he does any work at night, one of his confidantes replies, "he may not take a file home with him—but how can anybody just stop thinking about this job at 5:30?"

Eisenhower also said, on the matter of his physical condition, "it would be idle to pretend that my health can be restored to the excellent state in which the doctors believed it to be in mid-September."

And again, he said he hopes his forthcoming decision "will not unduly reflect concern for self."

Even before his heart attack—in a speech to GOP state chairmen in Denver, Sept. 10—Eisenhower seemed to be hitting at the "indispensable man" doctrine with these words:

"But we don't believe for a minute that the Republican party is so lacking in inspiration. . . . That we are dependent on one man. You can never pin your flag so tightly to one man that if a ship sinks you can not rip it off and nail it to another."

Do all these remarks, taken together, indicate that Eisenhower has decided against running for office? and that he may have been thinking along this line before his illness?

For months, people in Washington have been turning his words over and over, studying them from all angles—and coming up with totally different interpretations. By a process of inverse reasoning, an apparent "no" has come to look to some observers like a concealed "yes," and vice versa.

Moreover, in the past, Eisenhower's on-the-record statements have not always accurately foreshadowed his actions later.

In Europe, before he got out of uniform, he frequently said "I don't want any political office. . . . I don't want anything to do with politics." In 1950, shortly before his appointment as supreme commander of NATO, he said "I have no intention of doing in 1952 anything different from what I am doing now."

In 1951, this reporter had an hour's conversation with Eisenhower at his NATO headquarters and found him less positive about this—but still prepared to say what he would do.

So today, Republican leaders who hope he will run have resolutely refused to admit that anything he has said can be taken as evidence that he has reached a decision not to run.

This is what some of the top GOP leaders say about the situation at this point:

1. They are unanimous in the belief that Eisenhower hasn't yet made up his mind. Most of them expect him to wait for the information from next week's physical checkup, then go South for a short time, and make his decision there.

2. They are not in agreement as to whether his physical condition is the paramount consideration. One said, "he's haunted by the thought of being incapacitated in office." But another took the position: "He's a soldier. He'll do what he thinks is his duty."

3. They are unanimous in saying not the slightest indication has come to them from Eisenhower himself, or anybody in the White House. If you ask any of the White House staff people, they refuse even to venture a guess, "because if I did, you'd take that to mean that I know something about his plans, and I don't."

4. They all say the question of an alternative for Eisenhower has not been discussed. One grinned and said, "the reason is that there probably would be half a dozen men sitting in on such a discussion who hope they would get the nomination."

5. The story that Eisenhower was "bored" while he was away from Washington appears in every conversation with them. One of them said, "that was the first time in many years when he didn't have a desk waiting for him at 9 o'clock in the morning. He knows how that it would mean to retire."

Eisenhower was asked about this at a news conference and he replied, "I have got a thousand things to do in this world, so I don't think I would be bored."

Out of all this, although the reasoning seems somewhat involved to a mere observer, the party leaders concerned here conclude that "unless the doctors give him a very bad report—tell him absolutely that he can't take another four years—he'll run again."

But—there are people in Washington giving five-to-one odds that Eisenhower will say "no." And there are people taking the bet.

Price On Talent Now 'Ridiculous'

By BOB THOMAS
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Last year Las Vegas paid between 15 and 20 million dollars for entertainment that would have cost 3 million in New York or San Francisco or 4 million in another gambling city like Reno.

That's the report of Herb McDonald, manager of the Las Vegas Chamber of Commerce. He is among those who view the booming talent prices as a danger to this boom town's economy.

"The three hotels that closed recently would still be open if they had had a realistic attitude toward entertainment costs," he declared.

He cited the fact that star like Lena Horne would earn $22,500 a week at the Sands here, then open a few days later at the Coconut Grove in Los Angeles at $1,750 weekly.

McDonald, formerly with two local hotels, is a 10-year veteran of Las Vegas (anyone who has been here more than five years is a pioneer). He recalls paying Kay Starr $150 a week to sing in 1946; she now gets $25,000. Peggy Lee left Benny Goodman's band that year and played El Rancho Vegas at $350. She now draws $12,500. Other then-and-now salaries: Sammy Davis Jr., $450-$25,000; Liberace $600-$45,000.

"Salaries for entertainers have become ridiculous," McDonald claims. "The only sensible way to operate is to establish a system like professional football, with a draft system and bonus picks."

"If talent prices were sensible, there would be prosperity for all. But the present system of trying to outbid each other for stars can be ruinous."

However, Jack Entratter, big gun of the Sands, doubts if the hotels will ever band together. "They tried it back in 1950," he says. "It lasted about four months. The established hotels might stick together, but the new ones will bid up prices because they need the talent."

Sahara boss Milton Prell feels that Las Vegas is "getting back to reality."

"I think the events of the last three months did this town a lot of good," he says. "New operators failed because they didn't know the gambling, hotel or entertainment business. I feel salaries will become more reasonable and Las Vegas can look forward to an unlimited future."

The monumental salaries were largely paid to stars who were playing Las Vegas for the first time. Nearly all such possibilities are now exhausted.

"There are only a few big names left who could command stratospheric prices," said one operator. "Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Danny Kaye and Judy Garland are the ones who are most sought after. But for one reason or another they aren't available."

Some of these stars, as well as other holdouts like Arthur Godfrey and Kate Smith, will not play Las Vegas on moral grounds. They feel seven little Indians built up family audiences that would be offended to learn of their favorites appearing at gambling establishments.

Foster Mother Plans Adopt 7 Little Indians

By BOB HOLTON
LEMONT, Pa. (AP)—A young and unmarried woman chiropractor already the foster mother of two children orphaned nine years ago, heads for Idaho soon to collect seven little Indians whom she intends to adopt.

The whole happy brood will be turned loose in Dr. Imogene Barker's five-bedroom house which, she says, "we can fix up here and there to accommodate all nine children and a married couple now living with me."

"We all agree it will be a lot of fun," she said. "They need help, and I can give it to them. That's all there is to it."

"If there is one thing that troubles me, it is that the Indian children will all have to have their names changed from their tribal ones. I frankly admit it's going to be some task to find suitable names for these four girls and three boys."

Nine years ago Dr. Barker, 27, took on the job of rearing two children whose father died in a hospital where she had been training. The children, both boys, are now 11 and 13.

The Indian children, who are of the Shoshone tribe, are from 1 to 11 years old and live on a reservation at Fort Hall, Idaho. Dr. Barker said she became interested in them when she heard a talk by a missionary at a church in nearby State College in this central Pennsylvania region.

She promptly agreed to adopt two children in a family whose difficulties were described as acute. Later, however, she found out there were seven children. Unhesitatingly, she consented to take them all.

"So far," she said, "I haven't told my parents about adopting all seven. I haven't the nerve. But I'm sure they'll be glad to hear the news anyway."

Her parents live in White Plains, Md., where Dr. Barker was born. Dr. Barker said she expects to go to Fort Hall next month.

She will bring the children home in a stationwagon which a car dealer in this town of about 1,000 population supplied at special bargain terms. Other business and professional men in Lemont also have offered to lend a hand with donations of money, clothing, food and household goods.

Why should a young, unmarried woman undertake such great responsibilities?

"They need help, and I can give it to them. They need religious and other training. I can give it to them. Their people need religious training and I intend to send the children to Bible schools that they might return someday and give that training to their people."

Slack Market In Animal World

KANSAS CITY (AP)—If you were planning to dump your rednecked ostrich on the market just now, don't.

The time isn't ripe. Prices are mighty weak too on domestic lions and bison.

If you want to buy a zoo-bred lion, you can pick one up for as little as $50 or $60. They don't market were discussed yesterday they'd be a bit smelly around the house.

African-bred lions are a different matter. A wild pair imported to this country will bring around $1,800.

The ups and downs of the animal market were discussed yesterday by some 30 shrewd bargainers—members of the Midwest Assn. of Zoological Park and Aquariums. They all came ready to buy swap or sell—but the deals were limited.

Frank McGinnis, director of the Detroit Zoo, put two red-necked ostrich yearlings and several timberwolves and chimpanzees up for sale but he couldn't find any takers.

Robert Bean, director of the Brookfield, Ill. zoo, read off a long list of offerings including a black female leopard, Indian tigers, lions, elands, llamas and prairie dogs.

Bean completed a few transactions, but he wasn't too happy.

"I can't sit on these animals forever," he said. "The price of borsemeat has gone up again. And by the way, I've got a pair of American bison I will present to anybody who will take them."

Bean also mentioned a female saouda. That's a wild sheep from Asia.

"We had her in the children's zoo," he said. "She's congenial. She ate only about $100 worth of chifton frocks off little girls last summer."

tioned Copland to write it in 1942 Carl Sandburg, the poet and Lincoln biographer, will speak the narrative sections of the composition.

It's good news when Kostelanetz, an outstanding conductor in radio and the recording field, says "I'd like to do all I can in television." He was quite amazed to learn that many people had the impression he was opposed to participating in the medium.

"Television has the highest priority in my thinking these days," Kostelanetz said. "The great problem in any new medium is to find out just how to do it."

He believes the nation's leading symphonic orchestras should appear regularly on TV—not in long programs, to begin with, but in half-hour concerts. "A viewer must feel he's occupying a fine seat in a concert hall. He must get the musical message of the composition."

Coffee Shop At Memorial Hospital Is Joining 5th Anniversary Celebration

(Editor's Note: Pitt Memorial Hospital today celebrates its fifth anniversary with open house at the hospital until 9 p.m. Refreshments are being served by the Service League, which operates the hospital coffee-shop, also celebrating its fifth year of existence today).

The coffee shop at Pitt Memorial Hospital is five years old today.

The coffee shop is operated by the Greenville Service League as a service to the hospital staff, patients and visitors. Since its beginning there has never been a day except Thanksgiving and Christmas that it has not been open, ready and willing to do everything possible for those who wish to use its facilities.

Its Beginning
When the new hospital was planned, the Service League approached the board of directors and asked that they be allowed to operate a coffee shop in the building since they felt it could render a service there. The hospital board accepted the offer and a workable contract resulted.

The coffee shop carries various drug sundries, candies, chewing gum, soft drinks, sandwiches, magazines, toys for children and also serves breakfast for visitors.

Those in Charge
Mrs. James T. Little has been chairman of the coffee shop committee since its beginning and at present Mrs. Edgar Williford, Mrs. Charles Wilkerson, Mrs. Jesse Moye, Mrs. E.C. Wilkerson and Mrs. F.F. Hendrix are serving with her. Mrs. R.D. Whichard acts as manager.

Mrs. Little says, "The primary aim of the coffee shop is to be of service. Often a patient with a sick child or someone with a relative seriously ill needs to talk with somebody who will listen and try to help them in any way we can. Staying in a sick room for days can be monotonous, and there have been many people who have thanked us for just being there so they can come in and drink a cup of coffee and talk a little. We feel that this is a service that could never be measured in dollars or cents."

Other Services
In addition to the coffee shop itself, there is a cart loaded with items from the shop which is rolled through the hospital morning and afternoon. In this way the patients are able to purchase magazines, drinks or even pick out birth announcements.

The workers are asked to stop long enough to chat and cheer up any patient who is lonesome. Often the cart has to be brought back to the shop to be replenished.

The shop opens at 9 a.m. and closes at 4 p.m. except on Sunday when it opens at 12:30 p.m. and the cart goes around only once.

The Service League has bought and operates the drink box and the nab machine for those people who desire these while the shop is not open.

Members' Service
In connection with the coffee shop, the Service League has its members go out two days a week to visit patients in the hospital. They write cards or letters, do telephoning, read to children or patients who are in bed. In addition, they try to cheer up the patients. This is a project started during the past year.

The hospital activities committee works with the coffee shop committee. They decorate the hospital at Christmas and provide still another service to the hospital.

Special Services
They assist with parties which are held for the staff, especially at Christmas. They decorate the trees both indoor and outdoors and arrange for decorations on each floor with the cooperation of local florists.

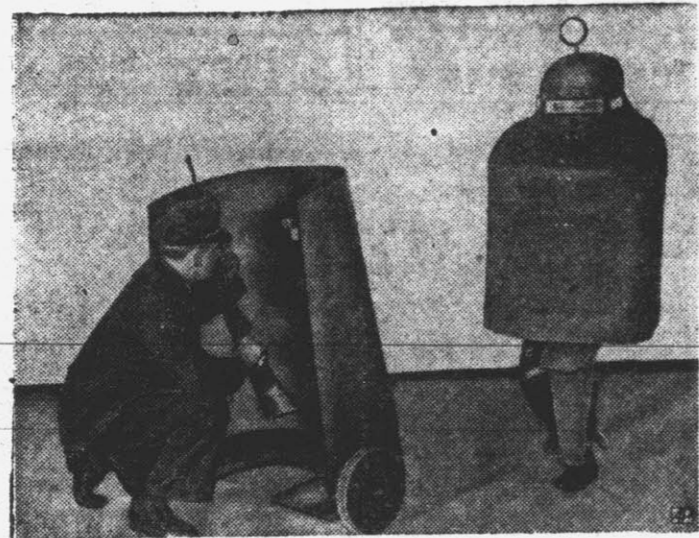

They also provide attractive trays for members of the hospital staff on holidays or all the patients in the hospital. With the hospital staff they plan and assist with hospital day which is held each year in May.

Mrs. L.T. Shotwell is chairman of the hospital activities committee.

COFFEE SHOP—The coffee shop, operated by the Greenville Service League, serves an important function at the hospital. It provides food, magazines and toys not only for visitors, but also for the patients as the ladies tour the hospital twice a day with a cart laden with not only these articles, but even birth announcements for new mothers and fathers.

Police Take Up Armor To Fight Detroit Crime

READY FOR TROUBLE—At least Detroit police will be ready when steel armor replaces these mockup models.

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit police are going to get themselves some armor that will make them look like visitors from another planet. They figure that if they had had such protection one officer would not have been slain and another wounded in police sieges last August.

One of the items resembles the ancient "iron maiden"—a finger-plate coat of quarter-inch armor plate. To go with this there are leg pads resembling those of a hockey goalie.

A bullet-proof glass insert provides visibility and a powerful searchlight adorns the top. Another item is a portable piece of armor plate resembling a Roman chariot. This is mounted on wheels so police officers can crouch behind it and shoot through small portholes.

Democrat Wins Bronx Election

NEW YORK (AP)—A Bronx congressional seat, remained Democratic today after a special election that gave James C. Healey a 3-1 victory over his two opponents.

Only a small portion of registered voters went to the polls, and registration had been light in the first place.

Healey received 9,446 votes. His nearest opponent, Liberal party candidate Sidney Burstein, got 1,941. Republican Barnett Davis trailed with 1,090.

Healey law secretary to Bronx Borough President James J. Lyons and a Democratic district leader for 12 years, will complete the unexpired term of Sidney J. Fine, who vacated the seat upon election to the State Supreme Court bench last November.

The total vote represented only about 16 per cent of those registered in the district.

Healey's share of the ballots, 72 per cent, was an increase over Fine's 67 per cent in 1954. In 1952 Fine got 58 per cent.

The Republican percentages have dropped from 24 in 1952 to 18 in 1954 and 13 in yesterday's election. The Liberal party, whose activities are limited to New York state received the remaining percentages in each of the three years.

Saved Children, Mother Jumped

BALTIMORE (AP)—Mrs. George A. Bausman, who dropped three of her children from a blazing second-floor apartment, into the arms of passers-by yesterday and then jumped from the building with her clothes afire, remained in critical condition today.

One of the children the 27-year-old housewife dropped from a front window, 4-year-old John, died later in Maryland General Hospital, so did John B. Green, 55, Mrs. Bausman's father, who had been carried out by firemen.

Edward, 3, and Joseph, 2, were reported in serious condition at the hospital. A fourth child 4-month-old James, was rescued by Irvin Livik, a neighbor. The two oldest children, George, 3, and William, 7, were in school at the time.

Mrs. Bausman jumped from her row-house apartment to the sidewalk some 20 feet below, suffering injuries as well as burns. A neighbor, Mrs. Estelle Sheerer, said she "looked like a Christmas tree" when she fell.

Witnesses said the three children were caught by two unidentified men, while Mrs. Bausman's fall was broken by the crowd on the sidewalk.

Mrs. Bausman's husband was not home at the time of the fire.

Graham Planning Visit India Again

CALCUTTA (AP)—American evangelist Billy Graham said today he plans to visit India again.

"I have fallen in love with India and I have been overwhelmed with the hospitality, sympathy and friendship shown me everywhere," the American evangelist told a news conference on arrival in Calcutta.

"This is not my last visit to India. I wish to come here again and learn more about India," Graham recommended that foreign-controlled churches in India be integrated under Indian leadership. He said he thought foreign missionaries had a remarkable degree of freedom in India but added that if they meddled in the country's internal politics, the government was justified in taking the sternest action.

Christianity's chief weakness, he continued in answer to a question, is that many persons profess Christianity but are incapable of living up to its ideals.

He said he thought the only answer to the world's cry for peace was Christianity.

Graham came here by train from the Hindu holy city of Benares on the last lap of his Indian tour. He was greeted by a large crowd of Christians and garlanded with flowers.

He told newsmen that the reception he had received in India were the greatest he had experienced "anywhere in the world." He is scheduled to leave for Thailand tomorrow.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—More than 60 pickets paraded outside NBC's Sunset and Vine studio last night during the telecast of Bob Hope's program.

They marched in protest against what they said was Hope's failure to intervene in an eight-week-old strike at Station KOA, Denver.

Clifford F. Rothery, international president of the union, said picket lines would be at every Hope performance until the strike is settled.

Shock Tactics In Anti-Wine Drive

PARIS (AP)—Any Parisian who rides the subway these days can get a glimpse of what the inside of his stomach may look like if he keeps guzzling wine. Or he can examine a human liver slowly falling to pieces in a bath of alcohol.

These shock tactics are efforts by the French government to get the average Frenchman to leave the cork in his wine bottle for longer stretches.

The stomach and liver display is in the bustling Opera station, which serves hundreds of thousands a day. As he waits for his train, the commuter can find out from a series of advertising panels that:

More than six billion liters of alcoholic drinks are consumed each year in France. (A liter is a little larger than a U. S. quart).

Two million Frenchmen tip more than two liters of wine a day.

Average consumption by adults is equivalent to 28 liters of straight alcohol a year.

Paper Work Is Electronic-ized

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A new electronics processing system which literally feeds on military red tape and paper work has been unveiled at the Western Joint Computer Conference.

Members of the Radio Corp. of America engineering team which helped develop it, said the system, named "Bizmac," may revolutionize military logistics by converting months of military supply paper work into minutes of push-button operations.

Now Lassie is romping again with Buddy and Junior and a hole in the concrete block foundation next door is being plugged up.

Keeps Car Clean Of Bloodstains

MARYVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—When Mrs. Skeets Campbell, 21, skidded her car from an icy road into a bank, she suffered face cuts which required 58 stitches to close.

Bleeding and alone in the car, she stopped a passing woman motorist to ask for a ride to a hospital. The other woman refused, driving off with a terse: "I don't want to get my car bloody."

It is estimated there were once 50 million bison in the United States.

Early Recruiting By Army

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—The Swamp Fox unit at Brady, Tex., has the Army's official go-ahead signal.

The 4th Army also let it be known it had supplied weapons and professional guidance for what it called the "independent Texas military organization."

The Swamp Fox unit is composed of nine boys from 9 to 13 years old, headed by "Acting 1st Sgt." Garry Bob Moore, 15 and Sgt. i. e. James Robert Able.

Lt. Gen. J. H. Collier, 4th Army commander, first became aware of Swamp Fox when he received a letter from the boys. The letter described the after-school training unit, its foxholes, sandbags and use of rocks for grenades.

Would 4th Army please send some dummy grenades, broken guns, "battered helmets, old belts, canteens, torn clothes and anything else you are going to junk and throw away?" the letter asked.

"We will gladly pay postage," the letter added airily.

The next mail brought a hurried note asking the 4th Army to forget the whole thing. Swamp Fox members had received some parental advice about mailing costs.

Gen. Collier, impressed by the boys and their declared intention to join the Army when they were old enough, wasn't willing to forget it all. He wrote Sgts. Moore and Able asking the whole Swamp Fox unit—if parents agreed—to visit Fort Hood.

A quick acceptance, signed by Garry Bob who had meanwhile been promoted to Commandant Moore, arrived.

At Ft. Hood the nine Swamp Fox members and their mascot—9-year-old Elizabeth Ricks—were taken on a tour of the post. They ate C-rations, made dry runs with small arms, swarmed through tanks and helicopters, and were greeted personally by Gen. Collier.

From old equipment that had been gathering dust, they were issued helmet liners, pistol belts, canteens, a pup tent, a first-aid pouch, and—as a result of a lucky find—some wooden training rifles.

It's A Crime If Money Intended To Sway Vote

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—Is it a crime if you give a senator $2,500 for his re-election campaign? Not if your only purpose is to help him get re-elected.

You can, under law, contribute up to $5,000 if that is your purpose and the money is for use in a general election. There's no limit on what an individual can contribute for a primary election campaign.

It would be a crime if your real purpose—which might be very hard to prove—is to influence the senator's vote on some bill in which you are interested. That would be bribery.

And it is a crime for a corporation to contribute directly to a senator's political campaign—in a primary or general election—although it is all right for officials of the company to contribute as individuals.

These questions hover over the disclosure by Sen. Francis Case (R-SD) that a stranger—who later proved to be John M. Neff, small-town Nebraska lawyer—had contributed $2,500 to a campaign fund for Case's re-election this year.

Case, saying he spurned the money, indicated he thought it was intended to influence his vote on the bill to free natural gas producers, including big oil companies, from direct federal control of their prices.

Case said Neff, who had been registered last year in Nebraska as an oil company lobbyist, had made references to Case's stand on the gas bill before turning the money over to a mutual acquaintance. Until that happened, Case said, he had been inclined to vote for the bill which the Senate later passed. He voted against it.

Neff, whose home is in Lexington, Neb., has denied any intention of influencing Case's vote on the gas bill. He said no strings were attached.

He has not disclosed where he got the money to give a senator he had never met, saying a confidential relation with his client is involved.

It is not yet clear whether Case will face a Republican opponent in a primary election or whether he will go into the general election directly against a Democrat next November.

Case's statements have set off at least one, and perhaps two, Senate investigations. The Senate yesterday unanimously voted to set up a special four-man committee to look into the matter.

This committee, headed by Sen. George (D-Ga.), plans to limit its inquiry strictly to the one situation caused by Case's disclosures.

Sen. Hennings (D-Mo), chairman of a regular Elections subcommittee, wants to investigate too. Hennings says he wants to make a broad investigation of oil and gas corporations, perhaps questioning other senators.

The Senate so far has shown little enthusiasm for the direction Hennings wants to take.

Job Pinch Felt By Many Irish

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—The man in the muffer and the man in the cap stand idly on the corner. They've been there two hours now—just as they have stood there every day for a year and more.

They are two of Northern Ireland's 38,000 unemployed.

That figure is 8 per cent of the working population—eight times the unemployment rate in the rest of the United Kingdom.

In Londonderry, with 50,000 population, people talk of old men who have never had a job except in the two world wars. Belfast, despite its booming shipyards, has nearly 11,000 out of work. In the villages even farm workers are idle.

The main reason is the decline of linen, Northern Ireland's biggest industry next to shipbuilding. Irish linen has lost ground to new textiles and to competition from Czechoslovakia and Japan. This decline in turn has hit the farms which grew the flax.

There's some hope for the jobless, however. Britain's wartime minister of production—Oliver Lyttelton, now Lord Chandos—heads a development council trying to bring new industry to these six counties. Soon Chandos will go to the United States to tell American businessmen that Ulster is a fine field for development.

Narcotic May Be Sent In Mails
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—There's good news these days for users of peyote—a narcotic used by some Indian tribes in certain religious rites. The Albuquerque Post Office has announced that the drug may be sent through the mails—unlike opium, marijuana or heroin.

The post office asked for a ruling on the narcotic after a GOD shipment was mailed here last month from Mirando City, Tex.

Peyote is the product of a certain type of cactus bud which is found only in southern Texas and north central Mexico.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market drifted aimlessly in quiet trading early this afternoon.

Prices became thoroughly mixed after an opening which was mostly lower. There was some improvement after the first hour but then prices backed away into general irregularity.

Fluctuations ranged within a point for the most part.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 10 cents at noon to $177 with the industrials advancing 40 cents, the rails down 20 cents and the utilities unchanged.

Volume for the day was estimated at close to 2,000,000 shares compared with 2,060,000 yesterday.

Steels were down as a group but chemicals were chiefly ahead.

Few standouts appeared in the market. Texas & Pacific Railway held on to a two-point gain. American Distilling was off around 2 following news of a 100 per cent stock dividend. The stock has been strong recently, possibly in anticipation of the actual announcement.

Allied Chemical and Amerasia were up a point or more but most other issues showed only fractional changes.

General Motors tumbled unduly. U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Youngstown Sheet & Tube declined slightly.

In the over-the-counter market, Ford Motor stock continued down, but to another new low of 62 1/2, bid 62 3/4, asked.

Rails were irregular in small fractions mostly. An exception was Union Pacific, off around a point.

Among the oils, Standard Oil (N.J.) was off a fraction and Texas Co. was up a fraction.

Mail Rate Hike Appears Doomed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration's hopes for increased mail rates to help curb the huge postal deficit appeared doomed today in the House.

After a closed-door huddle yesterday with Postmaster General Summerfield, influential members of the Republican Policy Committee predicted there would be no rate-boosting action in the House this year.

Democratic leaders have made the same prediction in private. Summerfield outlined to the GOP committee his proposal to increase most postal rates. Included would be a 1-cent boost in the present 3-cent cost of mailing a letter.

Last Wednesday, President Eisenhower urged Congress to approve higher postal rates aggregating 406 1/2 million dollars a year. He sent along a report that the mail service now is losing a $1,000 a minute.

The House Appropriations Committee said last week the postal operating deficit—the mail-handling cost in excess of revenues from postage—will come to about 470 millions this year. The committee called for postal rate increases in approving a $3,618,699,000 bill to finance the Post Office and Treasury departments in the bookkeeping year starting July 1. The House passed the appropriations bill yesterday and sent it to the Senate.

Minor Flooding Of Lowlands Continues Today

RALEIGH (AP)—Minor flooding of lowlands continued today along the Neuse and Cape Fear rivers as a result of last weekend's heavy rains, the U. S. Weather Bureau reported.

The rising Cape at Fayetteville was still rising slowly and was expected to crest this afternoon at 33 feet, two feet below flood stage. It had reached 32.7 feet this morning.

At Elizabethtown, where the Cape Fear's flood stage is 20 feet, the river had reached 24 1/2 feet this morning and was still expected to crest tomorrow around 27 feet.

The Neuse at Neuse was falling after cresting during the night. Flood stage at Neuse is 14 feet and the stream had dropped to 14.8 this morning.

At Smithfield, the Neuse was still rising toward an expected crest of 18 1/2 feet—3 1/4 feet above flood stage—this afternoon. The depth this morning was 16.1 feet.

Ivey said a plain clothes policeman started making purchases two weeks ago in both business and residential areas of Monroe.

Disruptive

PARIS (AP)—The belligerent followers of tax rebel Pierre Poujade have given the French National Assembly a taste of their disruptive tactics, forcing the lower house to adjourn for three days with a filibuster threat.

The Assembly unseated a Poujade disciple yesterday on charges of illegal election maneuvers by the party. Then it started to discuss the election of the second of a group of 12 Poujadists whose right to sit in the Assembly has been challenged.

Jean Le Pen, deputy spokesman for the Poujadists, climbed to the rostrum and began to read the French constitution.

Communist and Socialist deputies set up a clamor but Le Pen read on until Assembly President Andre Le Troquer warned him a second time to stick to the point at issue.

When Le Pen concluded, Le Troquer adjourned the session until Friday to prevent other Poujadists from carrying on the filibuster.

Top Priority To Guided Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today the United States is giving top priority to development of guided missiles and is not complacent about its position with relation to the Soviet Union's missile program.

Eisenhower told a news conference the Soviet Union may be ahead of the United States in some phases of research in this field but that this country holds a lead in other areas.

His comments were made as Trevor Gardner headed back from Miami, Fla., with plans to talk with newsmen this afternoon about persistent reports he is ready to quit as Air Force research chief in dissatisfaction over the missile program.

Gardner is reported to want more money and attention for the research job, and a tighter division of responsibility among the services for carrying it out. He carried his case to Secretary of Defense Wilson, vacationing in Miami.

There was no direct question to the President about the report of Gardner's stand. He did not comment specifically on the Gardner matter.

Eisenhower said he proposed in last month's budget message that funds for missile development that could profitably be spent with the resources and scientists now available. His request was about $1,200,000,000 for the purpose.

As of now, he said, the program is going forward as rapidly as it can with the brains and scientific resources available.

Conciliatory In Reply To Russia

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States advised Russia today it will "seek to avoid" launching weather balloons which might cross Russian territory. Russia had objected that its boundaries were being violated.

A note delivered by the U. S. Embassy in Moscow to the Soviet Foreign Ministry, nevertheless, appealed to the Soviets to cooperate with the weather survey program by returning balloon-carried instruments which may have come down in Russian territory.

The decision to avoid launching balloons which "might transit the U.S.S.R." was described in the note as a provisional step to avoid misunderstandings. It was made plain that the United States would like to get Russian cooperation in carrying on an unlimited weather balloon program in the future.

The Soviet government complained four days ago that its territory was being violated by U. S. balloons carrying cameras to gain intelligence about the Soviet Union.

They also claimed that these lighter than air bags were interfering with airplane traffic and were dropping propaganda.

The State Department in effect denied all these charges by saying that the United States is not "directly" or "indirectly" dispatching propaganda balloons over the Soviet Union and that the balloons which it is launching are intended solely to gather weather information.

NEW YORK (AP)—Wholesale food prices as measured by the Dunn & Bradstreet index dipped this week to $5.90 from $5.95 a week ago. A year ago the figure was $6.77. The index was not far from its recent low of $5.86, touched three weeks ago. That was the low point since May 2, 1950.

The index represents the total cost at wholesale of one pound each of 31 foods in general use. Higher this week were wheat, milk, coffee, cottonseed oil, cocoa, eggs and potatoes. Lower were flour, rye, oats, barley, hams, bellies, lard, cheese, sugar, steers, hogs and lambs.

Begin Survey Of Resources To Keep Mid-East

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—A survey of American, British and French military and political capabilities for dealing with any new Middle Eastern emergency begins today.

The three-nation conference opening at the State Department was initiated by President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Eden at their conferences here last week.

Advance developments indicate that both Israel and the Arab states are becoming concerned over the steps which may be decided on. Both sides appear to be taking the position that proper and effective actions may be taken only within the United Nations Charter.

The task assigned the conferees, whose sessions may go on for several weeks, is to find ways of putting teeth into a 1950 American-British-French declaration. It pledged that steps would be taken in or out of the U.N. against either side which threatened or used force in Palestine.

Open warfare there was ended by truce eight years ago, but there have since been many incidents threatening resumption of general war.

Eisenhower and Eden said the risk of war had been increased in recent months by the sale of Communist arms to Egypt and Russian overtures to other Arab states.

They called the conference to discuss (A) ways of lessening the risk of war and (B) possible steps if fighting threaten or break out.

British and American leaders are said to feel that advance word of specific punitive actions may act to dissuade Israel and the Arab states from precipitating a shooting crisis. Beyond that the hope is to lay the basis for a lasting settlement.

Military, economic and political measures will be considered. American and British officials said the Western Powers hope that whatever they might have to do could be done through the U.N. but they face there the possibility of a Soviet veto in the Security Council and of time-consuming debate in the General Assembly.

Syrian Ambassador Farid Zein-eddine said yesterday that he had told the Secretary of State George Allen his government believes any action outside the U.N. would be "exceedingly dangerous."

Similarly, Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban is reported to have told Allen his government feels there is no legal way the three Western Powers can take any action in the Middle East except through the U.N.

The United States is the only country where almost all the railroads are privately owned, says the Twentieth Century Fund.

Local Firm Is Sold; Expansion Planned

Brown Laboratories of Greenville, manufacturers of H-C headache powder and Topps, a breath sweetener, has been sold to Robert F. Thompson of Greenville.

Thompson said the manufacturing business will be operated by a new corporation named Brown Laboratories, Inc., of which he is president and treasurer and his wife, Mrs. Virginia K. Thompson is vice president and secretary.

Plans have been made for immediate expansion of the manufacture of the headache powder and breath sweetener, Thompson said, and arrangements have been made for distribution of the products in North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia.

H-C is an original formula developed by the late Ernest E. Brown, a registered pharmacist and native of Pitt County. It was trade marked, patented and its retail and wholesale sales begun in 1930. Topps also was originated by Brown and was first put on the market in 1949. Since Mr. Brown's death in 1949 the business has been owned and operated by his widow, the present Mrs. Beulah Wike Staples and his daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Troy B. Dodson.

In formally announcing the purchase of the business today, Thompson said the company will move into a plant on South Evans Street about February 15. The new company will have sales representatives in a four-state area and supply its products to the wholesale and retail trade in that area.

Plans for the expansion for the business likewise call for the manufacture of the H-C formula in tablet form, and the tablets will be marketed in addition to the powders in the near future.

Thompson is a well known businessman in Greenville and throughout the eastern part of the state. He has operated retail stores in Greenville, Washington and other eastern North Carolina cities.

Brown Laboratories was founded by the late Mr. Brown in Elkin, N.C. and moved to Greenville in 1933.
