Farm Bill Heads Into Battle

Bitter Floor Fight Certain; Benson Contends Inconsistencies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Describing as "inconsistent" a farm bill combining the soil bank with high, rigid price supports...

He contended in a statement yesterday the higher price supports would spur new farm production offsetting the cuts the soil bank is designed to bring about by taking land out of production.

The Senate Agriculture Committee included both provisions in an election year farm bill it completed early yesterday.

Some of his criticisms were voiced also by Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.) who predicted that President Eisenhower will veto the bill if it is passed by both Houses without substantial change.

But Chairman Ellender (D-La.) of the Agriculture Committee, although conceding a bitter floor battle, predicted the measure will pass the Senate "pretty much as it came out of our committee."

Ellender described the committee's plan to restore higher supports for wheat, corn, cotton, rice and peanuts as "about the only thing in the bill that would bring farmers some real relief this election year."

Benson contended one provision in the bill would force the government to pay "well over $1" a bushel to subsidize wheat exports, compared with the present 80 cents.

Provisions for export sale of surplus cotton and for a two-price system for rice, he said, could bring adverse international reactions. He said his department already is preparing a long-range plan to promote cotton sales abroad.

Benson contended also that corn farmers should be made eligible for soil bank payments without a requirement that they observe acreage allotments. Fewer than half the growers now observe the allotments, he said, and the sharp reductions which would be required of them would discourage them from joining the program.

Grifton Raises $712.34 In Drive

GRIFTON — This Pitt community raised $712.34 for the current March of Dimes campaign.

In their final report, chairman Mrs. Clifton Baldwin and Co-Chairman Mrs. Joan Groat, announced the final sum for the 1956 drive was $51.09 more than received last year.

The Mothers' March netted $285.78; school drive, $217; merchants, $118.50; Blue Crutch sale and coin collectors, $91.09.

Pitt Scouts Gather, Launch 4-Year Program

Ceremonies launching the four-year program of Scouting on the theme, "Onward for God and My Country," were conducted by the Pitt District of the East Carolina Council in the Pitt county courthouse here today.

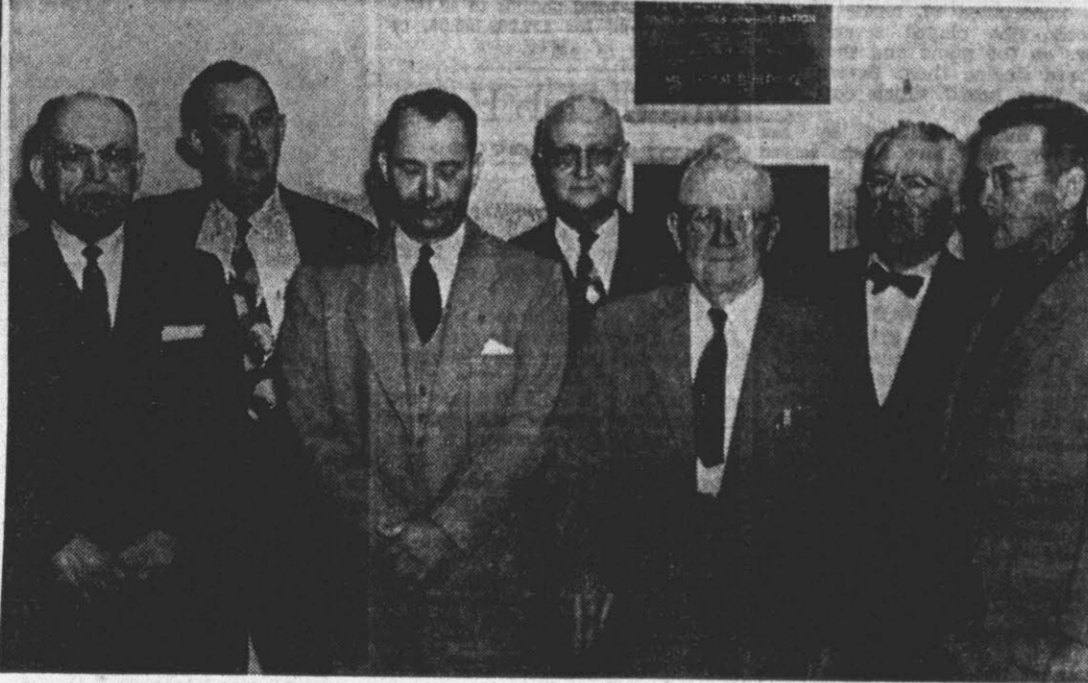

Dr. J. D. Messick was introduced, and opened the meeting with a prayer. The pledge of re-dedication to the Scout oath and service to God and country was led at the conclusion of the formal program, accompanied by presentation of scrolls signed by Scouts and Cubs. These were presented to Council officials in a 29-county rally at Bath during Saturday afternoon.

History is a mirror of the past and a beacon light to the path of the future, declared Judge Dink James of Greenville in an address highlighting Pitt County's history from the days of Indian settlement to early colonization, and the pre-Revolutionary War period when 88 citizens joined at the old courthouse, east of the present city to protest the decisions of the British Parliament, as early as 1774.

The early declarations of protest made a "grass-roots" approach to the plea for independence ahead of the Philadelphia resolutions of 1775, Judge James said. He cited the founding of the county of Pitt in 1761 and its name honoring William Pitt, the Earl of Chatham.

Pitt County citizens have always stood out in times of crisis, and their descendants today have a great heritage to preserve, James pointed out.

Intra-Party Struggle Shapes Up In New Hampshire Vote

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—The possibility loomed today of an intra-party struggle for control of New Hampshire's delegation to the Republican National Convention if President Eisenhower does not run.

The New Hampshire presidential primary March 13 is the first in the nation and tonight is the deadline for filing intentions of candidacy.

Sen. Bridges (R-NH) was expected to file as a delegate candidate favorable to President Eisenhower before tonight's deadline.

His entry was interpreted in some quarters as confirmation of reports that if Eisenhower does not seek re-election, there will be a struggle between the so-called liberal and conservative wings of the GOP in New Hampshire.

Bridges is generally regarded as more conservative in his political outlook than Republican Gov. Lane Dimesell and some other leading Eisenhower backers.

He already has served notice he would fight any attempt to "corner" the 14-member Republican delegation and would oppose any slate previously committed to any alternative candidate Eisenhower might designate.

Several of Bridges' political associates, including former supporters of the late Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), have entered the primary delegate contest as favorable to Eisenhower.

Only the names of President Eisenhower on the Republican side and Sen. Kefauver of Tennessee on the Democratic side are entered on the presidential preference phase of the primary.

The battles exist in the phase of the primary in which delegates to the respective national conventions will be chosen.

On the Republican ballot, 27 delegate candidates have filed for Eisenhower, six for Sen. Knowland of California and one for Chief Justice Earl Warren. Two candidates are uncommitted.

All are running as "favorable" to their respective choices. As such, they did not need the consent of the men they are backing.

The consent of a presidential candidate is required in New Hampshire, only if the delegate candidate runs as "pledged" to him.

On the Democratic ballot both Kefauver, the 1952 New Hampshire primary winner, and Adlai Stevenson, the 1952 nominee, each have 12-member slates. Gov. Averell Harriman of New York and Gov. C. Mennen Williams of Michigan each are represented by one delegate candidate. Four are uncommitted.

Kefauver, an active campaigner in New Hampshire, gave his blessing to the slate of delegate candidates backing him. They are "pledged" candidates and their names at the convention must go to Kefauver.

Another factor that puzzled officials was Maxey's apparent desire to be seen in Arlington earlier in the day. He had been away some time, they said, and had spent much of his time looking up old friends.

Will Also Serve In Utilities Post

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor

Greenville Utilities Superintendent Leonard P. Bloxam today was employed by the City Council as Greenville's new city manager.

In a brief joint meeting with the Utilities Commission at City Hall this morning, the councilmen voted unanimously to hire Bloxam for the city's top appointive position. The job has been vacant since Dec. 31 when former city manager James S. Hughes left to accept a similar position in Florida.

Bloxam will continue to serve as utilities superintendent in addition to his duties as city manager.

This today's action on the part of the council marks an innovation in the administering of the affairs of the city government and the Utilities Commission.

Bloxam will be the first man in the city's history to serve in the dual capacity as city manager and utilities superintendent.

At this morning's meeting Mayor W. L. Whedbee announced that Bloxam had indicated his willingness to accept the position. The mayor said the entire membership of the Utilities Commission had indicated their willingness for Bloxam to accept the position as city manager.

Mayor Confident "I want to express appreciation to the Utilities Commission for letting me employ Mr. Bloxam in this dual capacity," Mayor Whedbee declared. "He has proven himself as utilities superintendent and I believe he will make an able city manager."

"I do not know of any man in my whole acquaintance that I think could more capably fill both positions. His ability has already been recognized by the people of the City of Greenville and he is well-liked by the entire community."

"I think that Greenville is fortunate in having him as a citizen and more fortunate in having him to occupy the dual role."

Utilities Commission View Speaking for the Utilities Commission, Chairman J. Roy Martin told the group, "We are delighted to cooperate with the council" on the matter. He expressed the appreciation of the commission for the cooperation that has been received from the City Council.

Martin said the commission is "proud" of Bloxam. "He has proven himself," he declared. "We are satisfied that he will do a good job as city manager and we are confident of his cooperation."

In accepting the additional duties, Bloxam expressed his appreciation for "the confidence the people of the City of Greenville, the mayor and the council have placed in me."

He noted that he was accepting the city manager job on a trial basis "until we can see where we are going."

Bloxam said there is "no doubt in my mind that it will work." However, he said there are "always things which can arise."

He emphasized that he did not seek the job. "I sort of find myself in the position of the fellow who received his draft notice," he declared. "It's the first time in my life that I've ever had anyone come to me and say, or almost say, you've got to do it."

However, he said: "When I came to Greenville I came with plans to become a citizen of Greenville and I bought my home with the idea of staying the rest of my life."

"I accepted because I believe it's the best thing for Greenville as a whole," Bloxam said of the dual role which he will fill.

After the meeting Mayor Whedbee said Bloxam is assuming his duties, effective immediately. New Salary $14,000

The new city manager will continue to receive his present $9,000 salary from the Utilities Commission and in addition the city will pay him a salary of $5,000 making an over-all $14,000 annual salary.

Naming 5 Ships For N.C. Cities

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Five submarine chasers, now identified by numbers, will be named after North Carolina cities next Wednesday.

Asheboro, Edenton, Beaufort, Lenoir and Laurinburg will be the North Carolina cities honored. The Navy will substitute names for numbers on 141 submarine chasers, escorts and rescue escorts. The ships are being named for towns with populations between 2,500 and 10,000.

The Beaufort now operates out of Key West, Fla. The Edenton is out of commission at Green Cove Springs, Fla., while the Asheboro, Lenoir and Laurinburg are in the Norfolk reserve fleet.

NEEDED KNOWLEDGE "DENVER" — A murder trial was halted briefly when a woman juror asked permission to write Det. Judge H. Joe Rawlinson a note. It read: "What is a six-pack?"

That is in line with several surrounding towns where the city manager also supervises the utilities operation. Rocky Mount pays its city manager $14,500 annually. Kinston $14,500, and Wilson $14,000. City Manager Hughes was receiving a salary of $7,875 at the time he resigned.

In an interview this morning, Bloxam said that under the new set-up, he will be answerable to the Utilities Commission for things pertaining to the Utilities Commission and to the council for things pertaining to the city.

"Go-Slow" Policy He indicated that he would follow a go-slow policy in making changes affecting the city government.

"I never believe in a new broom sweeping clean," Bloxam declared. He said there will be no changes whatsoever in the city's activities in the immediate future.

"I believe we should analyze and come up with changes that are good for all concerned," he declared. "People, employees and policies must be considered in everything you do."

To Study Operations However, the new city manager said plans are to make a thorough study of all the city's operations. He indicated that it might be six or eight months before changes, if any, are made.

"The coordination between the city and the Utilities Commission has been very good," Bloxam declared. "There's been a wonderful spirit. I've never enjoyed a better spirit."

Bloxam paid tribute to the city and its citizens. "I want the people to understand that I have never lived in a community where I have learned to love the people anymore than I have in Greenville," he declared. "The citizens have been very kind in bestowing their confidence in me in the way that they have."

He pledged that "anything that is done will be done to make a bigger and better and finer Greenville."

The employment of Bloxam has been under consideration by the councilmen for some time and resulted from considerable negotiations between the city fathers and the Utilities Commission.

Councilmen have also studied a large number of applications from others seeking the position since Hughes' departure.

Prisoner Fails Suicide Attempt

DENVER (AP)—John Gilbert Graham, 24, accused of killing his mother and 43 others by dynamiting an airliner, failed last night in an attempt to choke himself to death.

Quick action by James E. Martin, 34, Denver County jail guard, restored Graham to consciousness after he had been "out cold" in jail physician said Graham was in good condition and would suffer no ill effects. Graham was not taken to a hospital.

Warden Gordon Dolliver said Graham fashioned a noose by knotting together a pair of lightweight socks he had been wearing. Graham twisted the knot against his throat with the cardboard core from a roll of toilet paper.

Martin, who was stationed outside Graham's solitary cell, sounded the alarm when he noticed Graham breathing irregularly — "spasmed up, you know, like a scared rabbit's."

Deputy Warden Dave Kiebach and Capt. Jack Pincus responded to Martin's shouted alarm. The three entered the cell and placed the unconscious Graham on the floor. Martin and Kiebach administered artificial respiration to revive Graham.

Representatives got into the controversy again yesterday by voting 100-9 in favor of a resolution praising school officials for quickly accepting resignations tendered by two professors in earlier protests against action taken in the Kershaw case.

The Rev. Mr. Kershaw, a jazz expert who won $32,000 on the television quiz show "The $64,000 Question," became the center of a campus controversy when he let it be known he might contribute part of the money to the NAACP. He later said he would discuss segregation if it came up in the question period of his scheduled address.

Seek $1 Million Court Building

WASHINGTON (AP)—A one-million dollar federal building would be provided Bryson City, N.C., under a bill introduced yesterday by Sen. Ervin (D-NC).

Rep. Shuford (D-NC) who previously introduced an identical bill, said the U.S. court for the six-county district needs a building. The building would house other federal offices including a post office.

The counties in the district are Jackson, Graham, Macon, Swain, Clay and Cherokee.

LEONARD BLOXAM, Greenville's new City Manager, is an Englishman by birth. Born at Walton on the Naze, he came to the U.S. in 1920 when his father became chief engineer for Anderson Motor Co. in Rock Hill, S.C.

From there the family moved to Salisbury where Bloxam, now 43, received his early schooling.

From Salisbury, he went to N.C. State at Raleigh, graduating with a degree in electrical engineering. He served as assistant plant supervisor with the Duke Power Co. and the Buck Steam Plant in Salisbury.

Bloxam, his wife and two children, a boy and a girl, live at 102 N. Elm Street.

Four Clergymen Drop Mississippi U. Talks

UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP)—The University of Mississippi today pondered the future of Religious Emphasis Week after clergymen from three major faiths withdrew because of the "Kershaw incident."

Two Protestant ministers and a rabbi yesterday joined a Catholic priest in cancelling speaking engagements because the university revoked its invitation to the Rev. Alvin Kershaw of Oxford, Ohio, Episcopal minister and member of the National Assn. for Advancement of Colored People.

The committee sponsoring Religious Emphasis Week will meet Monday to decide whether the program will be held on the campus Feb. 19-22.

The new cancellations wiped the slate of all out-of-state speakers. Joseph Fichter, S. J., sociologist at Loyola University of the South at New Orleans.

Joining him yesterday were: The Rev. George Chauncey, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Monticello, Ark.

The Rev. Joe Earl Elmore of New York City, former director of Methodist student work at the University of Mississippi.

Rabbi Milton Graiman, Temple Emanuel at Birmingham, Ala. The Mississippi House of Representatives got into the controversy again yesterday by voting 100-9 in favor of a resolution praising school officials for quickly accepting resignations tendered by two professors in earlier protests against action taken in the Kershaw case.

Find Embezzlement Wiped Out $2 Millions In Firm's Reserves

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A Norfolk court has placed the troubled Commonwealth Building & Loan Assn. in receivership after finding that embezzlements had wiped out the firm's reserves, in excess of two million dollars, and impaired its capital.

Commonwealth's books have undergone intensive scrutiny since Dec. 29, when its former assistant secretary treasurer, 52-year-old Miss Minnie Mangum, was charged with grand larceny of $100,000 from the firm during the previous 12 months.

The state prosecutor said at the time he was advised additional defalcations covering five or more years would total at least $800,000. Commonwealth had assets of 23 million dollars.

Miss Mangum, a spinster with a penchant for gift-giving, is free under $25,000 bond pending a police court hearing March 6.

Connected with the firm 28 years and controller of its records, she was arrested after a battery of bank examiners uncovered irregularities in Commonwealth's accounts.

Judge J. Hume Taylor of Court of Law and Chancery placed Commonwealth in receivership last night to prevent its closing.

He named John M. Sink Jr. of Greensboro, N.C., as temporary receiver. Sink, president of the District Federal Home Loan Bank Board, explained he is just a receiver appointed in conformity with the statute, but I do not take possession of the assets of the association.

Taylor ordered Commonwealth assets distributed in a decree under which the Home Federal Savings & Loan Assn. of Norfolk took over Commonwealth's major assets and obligations.

Walter W. McAllister, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, announced approval of the purchase of Commonwealth by the Home Federal association. He said the transaction, effective Friday midnight, will assure Commonwealth shareholders their investments are safe and they will receive their regular dividends.

Miss Mangum, a $9,000-a-year employee, started at the bottom and worked her way up to the hiring and firing position of assistant secretary-treasurer.

She was known for generosity to church and charity and as a kindly soul with a lavish hand for a needy friend or relative.

Before her arrest, she transferred eight homes, including her own modest bungalow, to the company.

The firm disclosed this $50,000 in real estate and other unnamed items recovered from her totaled about $200,000.

John F. Harrison, chief examiner conducting the audit of Commonwealth's books, said at the time of her arrest that there was "a complete absence of internal control." He said that was a term used when it was evident one person had too much access to books and records.

Baptist Circles Meet On Monday

BETHEL—Mrs. Dal Baker was the hostess for the members of the Gladys Keith Circle of the Baptist Church. Thirteen members were present.

Mrs. Alton Carson called the meeting to order and Mrs. R. I. Taylor Jr., secretary, called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting.

The scripture was taken from several books of the Bible and Mrs. John Mayo's talk pertained to home missions.

"To Give the Indians an Even Chance" was the title of the program and presented by Mrs. Carson. Her talk was taken from the Reader's Digest and facts about the accomplishments and potentialities of America's first citizens were discussed.

Mrs. R. L. Barnhill closed the meeting with a prayer. The ladies were served fruit cake and coffee during the social hour.

Monday afternoon, Mrs. F. E. Price was hostess to the Alda Grayson Circle. Watchwords were given by each member.

Mrs. T. N. Cooper opened with the devotion and after bringing out some very inspirational thoughts she closed with a prayer.

Mrs. J. C. Smith, leader, presided over the business meeting. Mrs. W. G. Barnhill read the minutes for the last meeting and called the roll with ten members answering.

The community mission chairman made her report and then plans were made for the Masonic supper. Due to the long business transactions, the program was not given.

The Business Woman's Circle met with Miss Irene White in the church on Monday night. Due to the absence of the president, Miss Joanna Abeyounis called the meeting to order and presided.

Mrs. Ruth Thomas opened the program by reading a few verses from Matthew. The topic discussed was "The Indians of Mexico." Alternately, Mrs. Thomas read a story of how missionaries chose their friends and the work they did and Mrs. Willard Andrews gave an illustration.

Miss White served cherry tarts, Valentine and Coca-Colas to ten members and two visitors, Mrs. T. N. Cooper and Mrs. Carey Brown.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
February 11, 1926

Ensign N. S. Fulford Jr. of this city, commander of the 75 foot patrol boat of the C-126, is in a hospital in New London, Conn. suffering from exposure which he suffered from Narraquasset Pier Wednesday night. Ensign Fulford is suffering a frozen arm, a frozen ear and is in a serious condition.

Yesterday marked the close of the greatest season in the 34-year history of the Greenville tobacco market. Yesterday's sales brought the season's total pounds to 46,162,602 that sold for $12,009,798.55, or an average of $26.02.

Music Club Has Joint Hostesses

BETHEL—Mrs. Irvin Taylor, Mrs. John Mayo and Mrs. T. N. Cooper were joint hostesses to the Music Club in the home of the former on Tuesday night.

Mrs. W. R. Hunnicutt presided and Mrs. Taylor, secretary, read the minutes for the January meeting. It was announced that "The International Encyclopedia of Music and Musicians" was the book to be placed in the public library and to be used for reference.

Mrs. Cooper and Mrs. Mayo gave an account of the life of Albert Schweitzer. He is the man who is often referred to as "A Tyrant with a Heart of Gold" and is the interpreter of Bach's organ compositions. Mrs. Cooper then played the records, "Tocata and Fugue in D Minor" and "Prelude and Fugue in C Major."

The 17 members enjoyed light refreshments and coffee during the social hour.

Mrs. Whitehurst Is Hostess At Club Meet

BETHEL—Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst entertained members of her bridge club and invited guests at her home on Tuesday afternoon.

The decorations carried out the Valentine motif and a bouquet of red carnations was used. A salad plate and coffee were enjoyed between the progressions.

Those who played were Mesdames J. C. Wynn, Jr., Mrs. C. Whitehurst, Clayton Carson, Alton Carson, Van Taylor Jr., Leighton Blount, Jr., F. F. Pollard and R. P. Michaels Jr.

At the end of play, Mrs. Pollard was the recipient of the high score prize and the consolation prize went to Mrs. Clayton Carson.

Sewing Class Has Large Enrollment

The adult sewing class for beginners had a capacity enrollment on Tuesday, February 7. The members are being visited by the instructor, Rebecca M. Smith, at their homes to help them with their own machines and personal sewing problems. Other people not in the class may have this private instruction by calling Greenville High School and making an appointment with Mrs. Smith. This is free and is sponsored by the Vocational Home Economics Program.

The members of the class are Mrs. Hinton Best, Mrs. Nellie White, Mrs. D. L. Sharin, Mrs. E. W. Hirschberg, Mrs. H. Kelly Crockett, Miss Novell Exum, Mrs. A. Bernard Goodson, and Mrs. W. E. Cain.

United Lutheran Mission

The United Lutheran Mission will hold services in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 401 East 4th Street, beginning Sunday night. Services will be held there each Sunday evening at 7:30 until summer. The sermon Sunday will be entitled "The Greatest Thing in the World," love, as described in the 13th chapter of First Corinthians. The Rev. Frank C. Perry, pastor of Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, Kinston, is in charge of these services.

The United Lutheran Mission began services two weeks ago in the chapel of Clark's Greenville Funeral Home. Attendance last Sunday was 35. All persons in Greenville without a church home in the city are kindly urged to attend these services and to become charter members of this new congregation when it is organized.

On Sunday evening, February 19, the first Sunday in Lent, the mission will celebrate its first Holy Communion.

Past 5 Years Have Seen Progress At Pitt Memorial

By EDWINA HAYMES
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt Memorial Hospital was five years old this week.

On Wednesday, its birthday, open house was held at the hospital for its owners, the people of Pitt County.

On that day the public visited its property and viewed the work, facilities and progress there.

And there has been progress in the few short years since the new million-and-a-half dollar building was opened on February 8, 1951.

Five years ago Pitt Memorial Hospital began operation with a staff of 25 physicians and 122 other employees, including 66 members of the nursing corps.

Today there are 33 physicians on the active hospital staff including 18 general practitioners, 14 specialists in obstetrics and gynecology, general surgery, orthopedics, radiology, pediatrics, and eye, ear nose and throat disorders. There are nine physicians on the courtesy staff.

Nursing service is now rendered by 79 persons, including 32 registered nurses, nurses aides, practical nurses and orderlies. When the hospital opened there were 24 registered nurses on duty.

Hospital Employs Many
Still, it takes more than doctors and nurses to adequately run a 120-bed institution like Pitt Memorial. Contributing to the efficiency of the hospital are an administrator, bookkeepers, clerks, a record librarian, an admitting officer and a telephone operator, on the clerical staff.

Elsewhere in the hospital dietitians, anesthetists, x-ray and laboratory technicians are at work.

Then there are the janitors, cooks, firemen, yardmen, housekeepers, floor maids, maintenance men, waiters, engineers and helpers.

Even a seamstress is employed to patch all torn linen and to convert that beyond repair into some useful article.

And in the summertime Pitt Memorial has third year medical students serving internships here.

Yes, the operating staff at the hospital has increased since its "birth" five years ago. But why?

Increased Services
Logically, because the services have increased.

In 1951 a total of 4,537 patients was discharged from the hospital. Last year the hospital served 6,400 patients. Average number of patients at the hospital per day five years ago was 64. Today the figure is 81.

With the increase in the number of patients has also come an increase in the total number of days of care, from 22,220 in 1951 to 31,966 in 1955. Of this number 3,247 were free days in 1951, while there were 5,140 free days last year.

However, the average stay of each patient has decreased from 5.1 days in 1951 to 4.6 in 1955. In 1952 average length of hospitalization was 5 days, in 1953 it was 5.4 days and in 1954, 5.3 days.

Though this decrease is fortunate from the medical standpoint it calls for more concentrated nursing service than is necessary during longer convalescent periods, consequently increasing the need for more members of the hospital's nursing staff.

Steps forward have also been taken in x-ray treatment. A program of x-ray therapy is now in progress, and a full-time radiologist has become a member of the hospital staff.

Hospital 'Ten Years Old'
Though all these figures cite the progress of the hospital since its opening five years ago, the institution was actually born ten years ago, in 1946. That is, the idea for a publicly owned hospital in the county was born then and it took five years of nurture and hard work by some civic-minded individuals and organizations before the dream became a reality.

It was in the early days of 1946 that John G. Clark, Sr., a leader in Pitt County affairs, returning from a business trip brought with him the idea of a Pitt County hospital built from county, federal and state funds.

In Greenville Clark discussed the idea of a county-owned hospital with officials of the local Chamber of Commerce, and that business organization appointed a committee to confer with the trustees of Pitt General Hospital on the matter.

The matter was also discussed with medical leaders throughout the state and later with other interested persons and organizations throughout the county.

Movement Gains Impetus
So the movement began, slowly but under the direction of Clark, Stuart Carr and others it steadily gained momentum until in September, 1947, a $352,000 bond issue was passed by the people of Pitt County for the construction of a new hospital. Later, due to rising costs, an additional $201,886 was appropriated by the County Commissioners. The remaining two-thirds of the funds came from state and federal sources.

Land for the hospital was donated as a gift to the county by the heirs of Jesse Rountree Moye, and on March 21, 1949, a small number of interested citizens gathered at the site for simple ground breaking ceremonies. Almost two years later, the modern building was completed, dedicated and opened for business.

Modern Institution
At that time Pitt Memorial Hospital was the most modern medical institution in the eastern part of the state, and the largest hospital in North Carolina to be built under the county-federal-state hospital construction program.

The people of the county, through their dreams and their efforts to forge a reality from those dreams, had dedicated it to themselves and to the better health of future generations. They had set themselves up as leaders in this section in medicine as well as in education and agriculture.

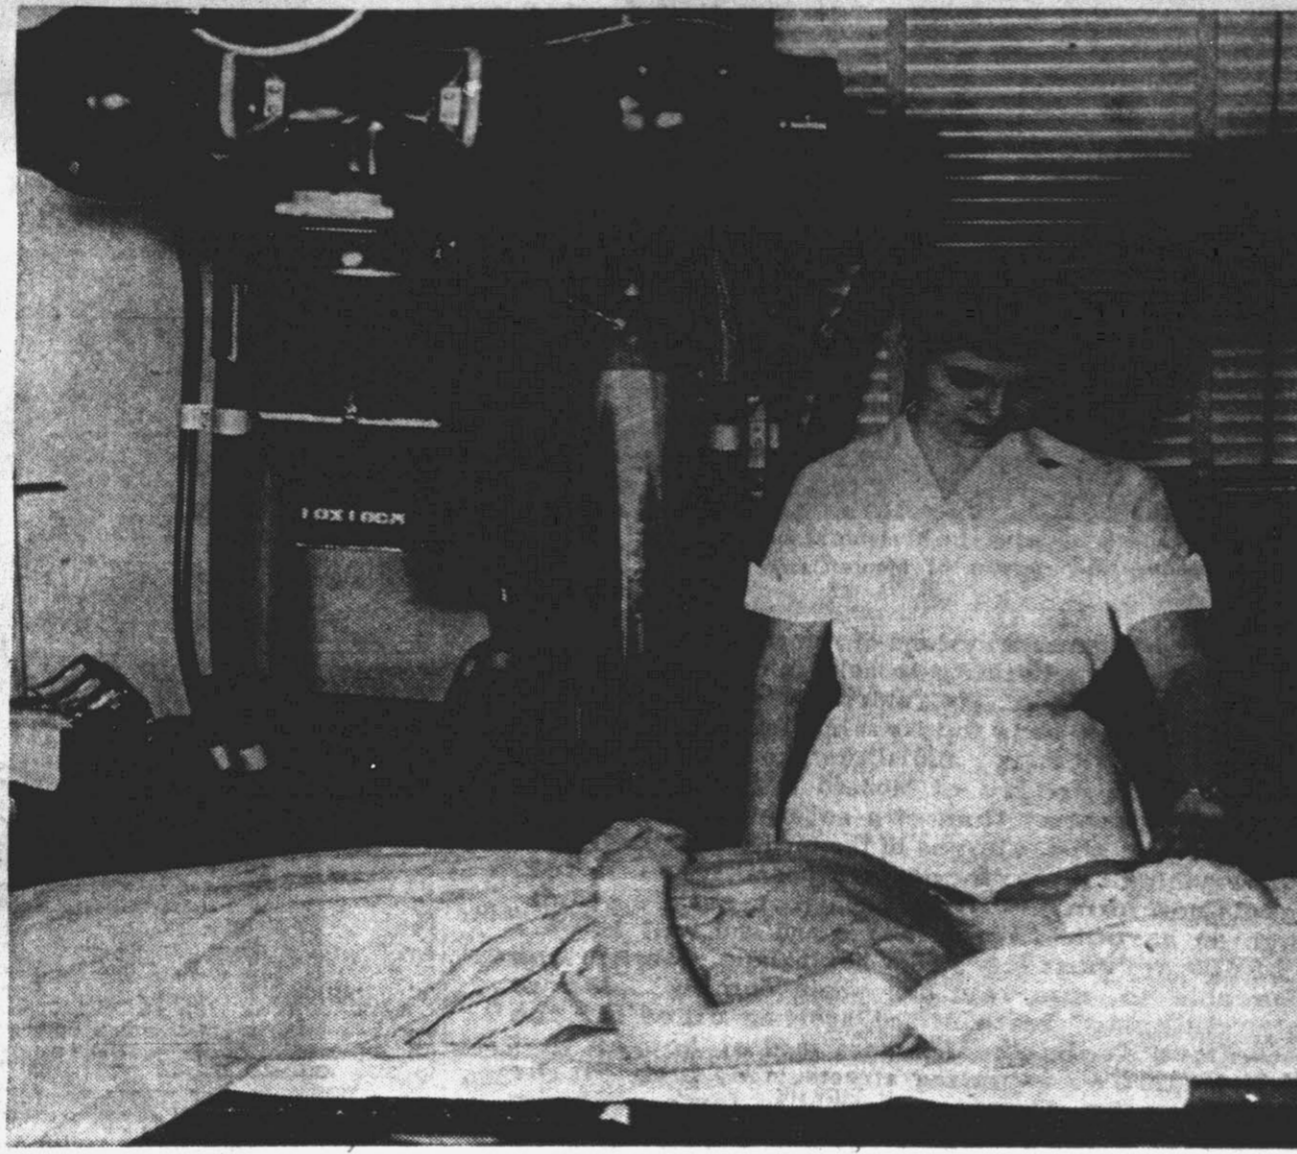

Today the hospital stands as a memorial to the men of the county who offered their lives in the service of this nation during World War II. But, in the words of a Reflector editorial in 1951: "By the same token Pitt County Memorial Hospital stands as a living monument to the people of the county who themselves have sought to create a better way of life for those of this generation and the generations to come. It is a fitting tribute to the living and to the dead."

NURSING SERVICES—Since the average stay of a patient in the hospital has dropped to 4.6 days—it was 5.1 days in 1951 and 5.4 days in 1953—nursing services have increased. The nursing staff has also increased from 66 to 79 in the past five years.

LABORATORY TESTS—More and different types of laboratory tests are being made every day at the hospital. Since 1951 the number of tests has increased from 19,113 to 38,004.

X-RAY THERAPY—X-ray therapy facilities are an important addition to the hospital in the past few years. A full time radiologist has been added to the staff to conduct this work.

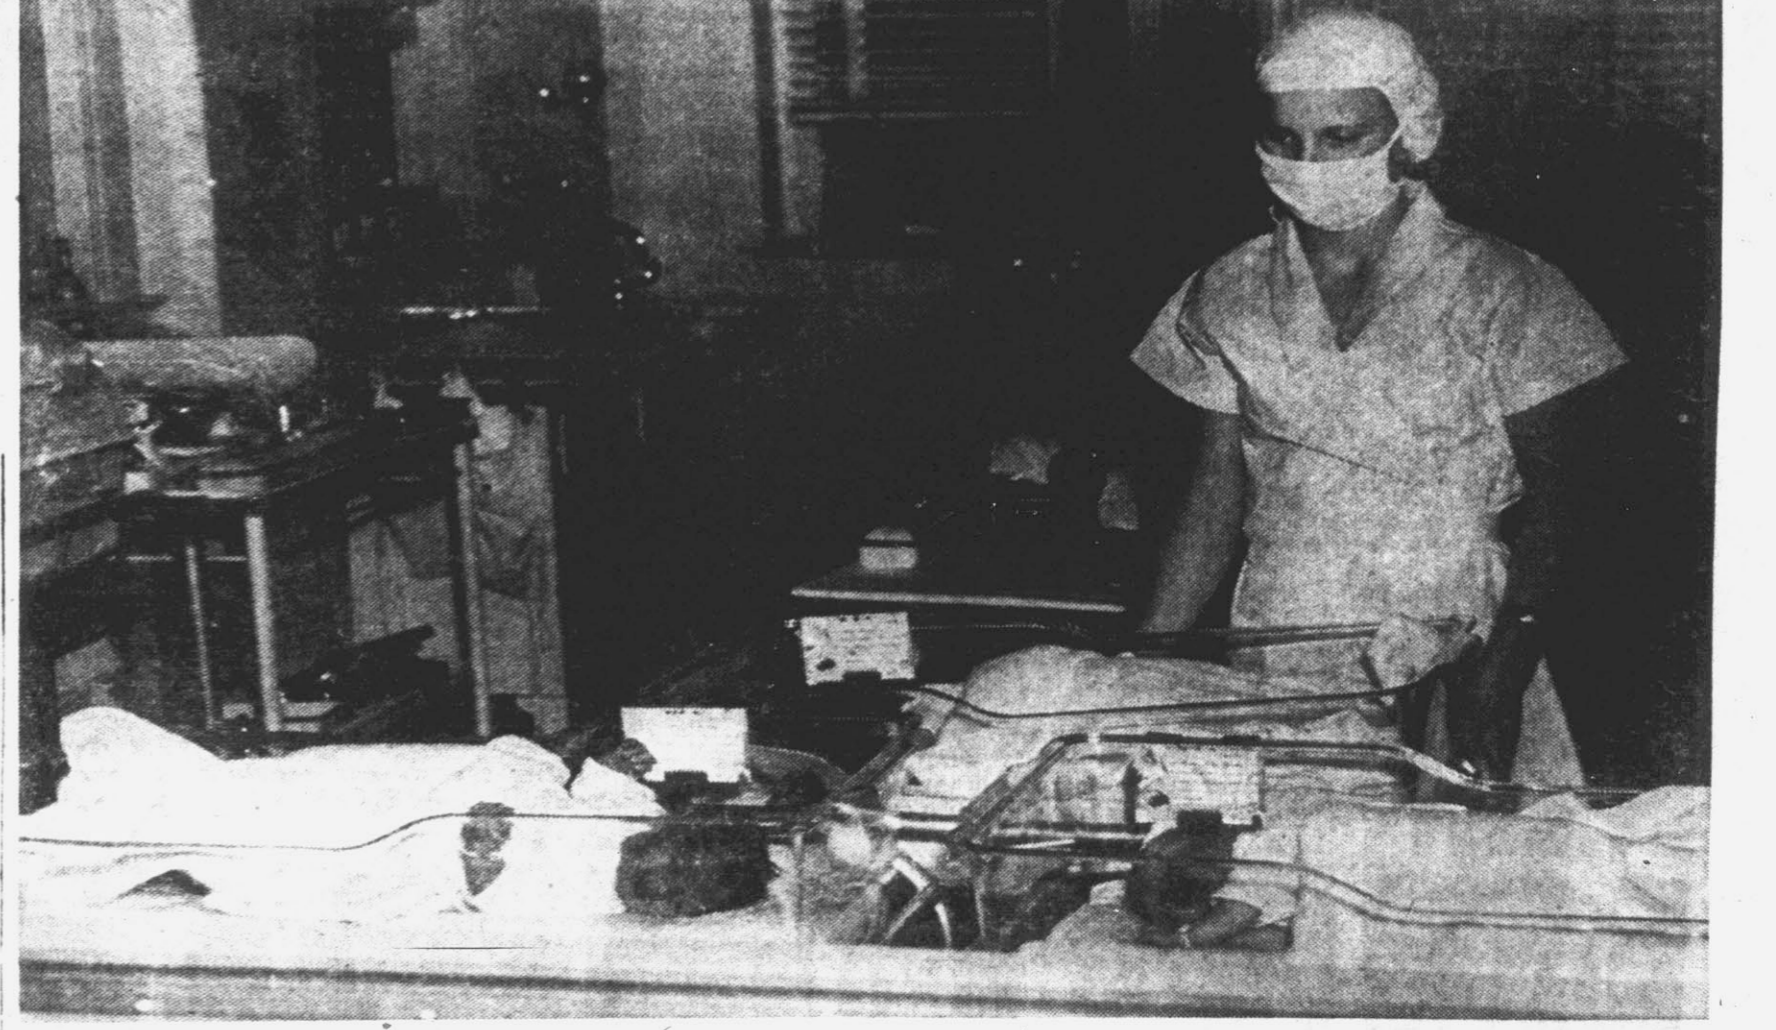

SERVICE LEAGUE SERVES—Members of Greenville's Service League operate a coffee shop at the hospital for the convenience of the staff and visitors. Also twice a day members push a cart through the hall, offering patients magazines, books, candies and other foods, and even birth announcements for new mothers and fathers.

CAST ROOM—Naturally enough, the cast room is the room where casts are put on. This complicated looking device can be set in any number of positions according to the sort of cast to be applied. Since the new hospital opened the services of an orthopedic surgeon have been added to the staff.

PITT MEMORIAL HOSPITAL—Pitt County's publicly owned 120-bed hospital was completed in 1951, after almost two years of construction work. The institution, one of the first built with county-state-federal funds and the largest such medical center in eastern North Carolina at that time, was constructed at a cost of about a million-and-a-half dollars.

NEW BABIES—The nursery is always one of the most interesting places in a hospital. In the past five years the total live births at Pitt Memorial has increased by 256. (Reflector Photos by Edwinna Haymes)

Someone In Royal Family Was Still Smarting Over George IV Scandal

LONDON — The scandalous affair of King George IV and Queen Caroline took place 179 years ago. It is one of the spiciest but apparently forgotten fragments of British history. It is said that the scandal was smarting over it in this century.

It has been disclosed that two boxes of state papers were removed from the royal residence, only a few hours before the wedding. They were the papers of the late King George IV and Queen Caroline, which had been available to anyone willing to pay up to the doings of George V's grandfather, King George IV, and his papers removed to the Tower of London in 1920, when George V took the throne. Caroline burned an offer to stay abroad and renege her claim to the queen's crown.

George immediately filed for divorce on the grounds of her adultery with an Italian nobleman. The matter was hastily dropped when Caroline's counsel brought up the business of the King's girl friends. Caroline was locked out of Westminster Abbey for the coronation and died a fortune later — as Queen of England.

The question was brought up in Parliament, where a government spokesman explained they were private papers—and should not have been in the public records office in the first place.

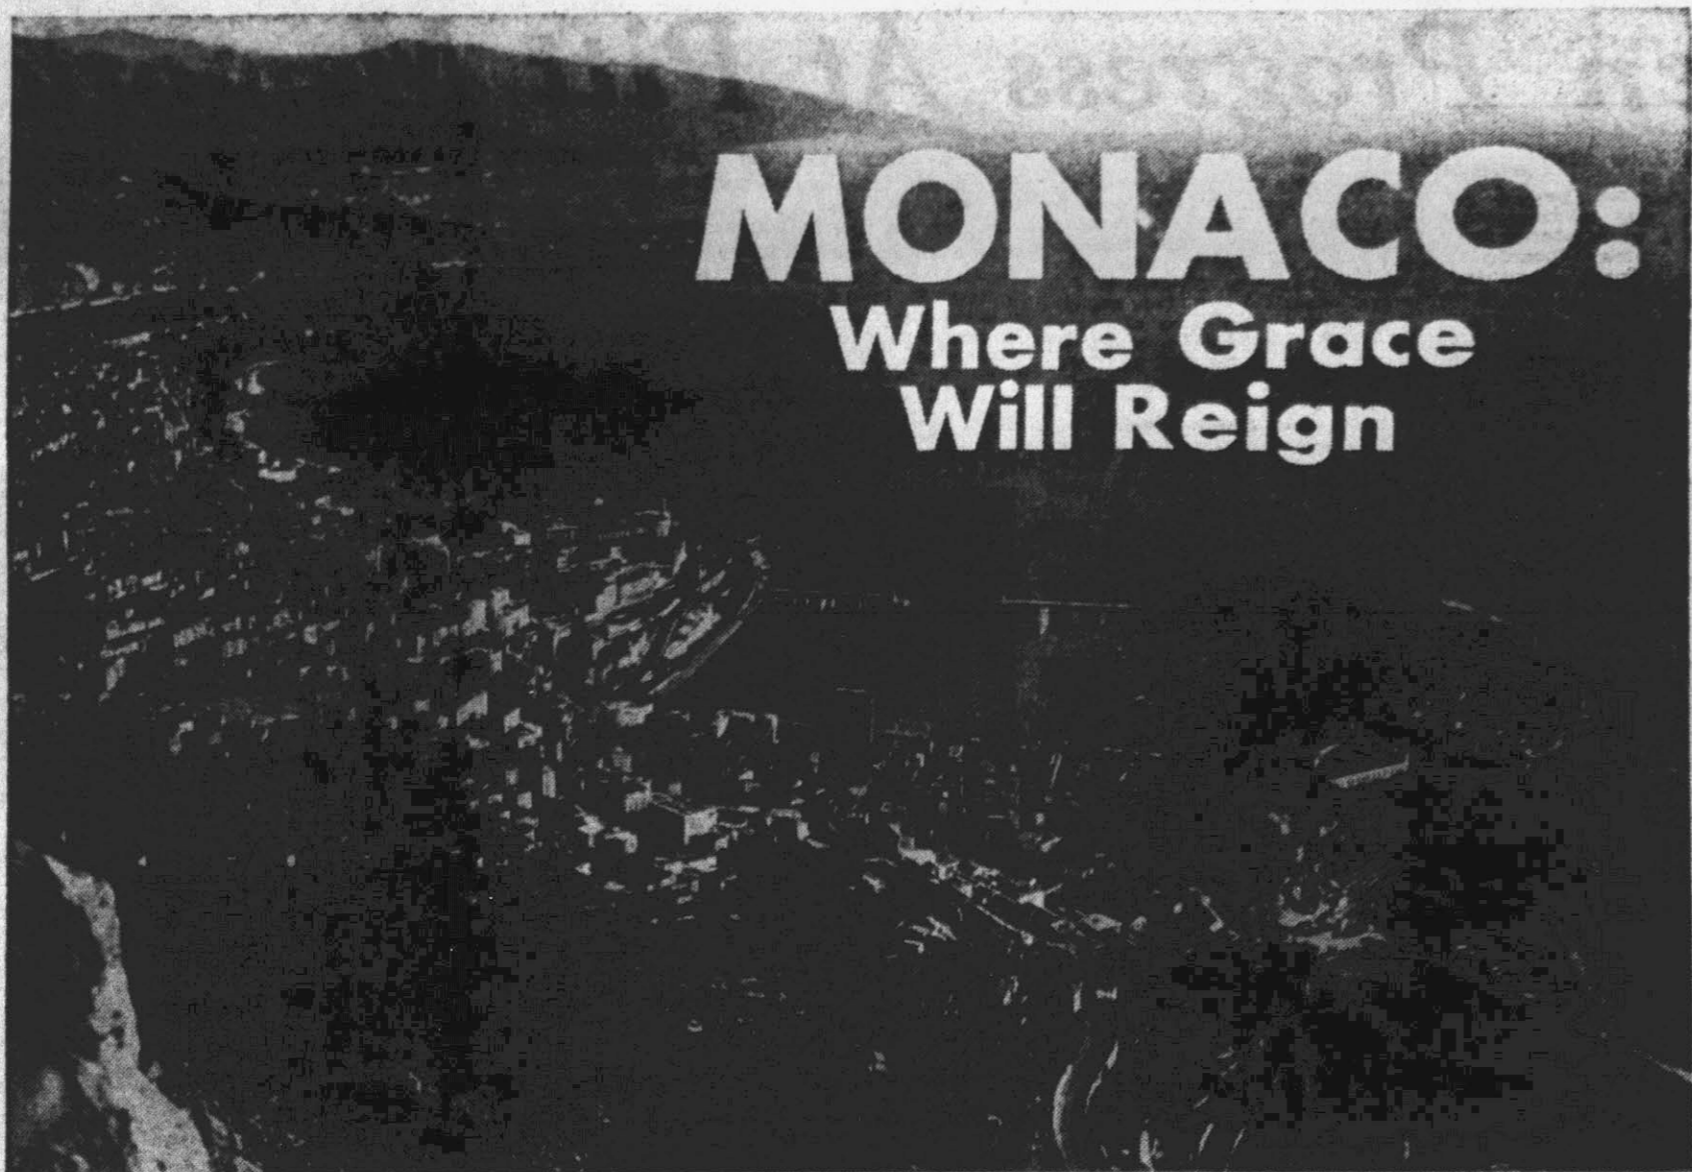

Planted College Scholarships

WINTON — W. T. Charles of Ahoskie "planted a college scholarship for his two small sons."

Hertford County Assistant Agent Baxter G. Dean explains that Charles has about 75 acres of pines and is also in the process of planting more pine seedlings. The pines which are now pulpwood size will be used to send his sons to college.

According to custom two bundles of state papers concerning the royal pair were deposited in the public records.

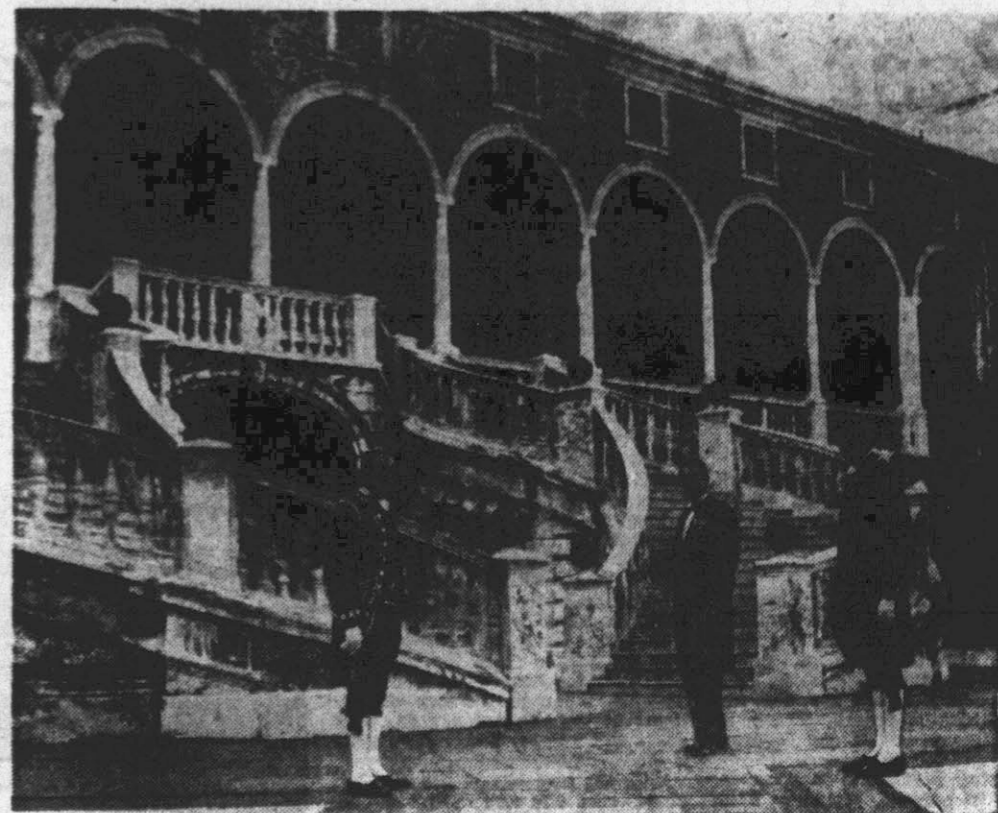

Their removal came to light when historian Hugh Ross Williamson asked to see them. "Sure, sir, they were taken to Windsor (the royal state residence outside London) in 1935," he was told.

MONACO:

Where Grace Will Reign

POCKET-SIZE PRINCIPALITY. At right, the Rock of Monaco, where the Palace, the Cathedral and the Museum stand. Adjoining is town of La Condamine, and in center, jutting out towards the Mediterranean, the town of Monte Carlo.

Palace valets, wearing red velvet costumes, and major-domo, stand at foot of "Staircase of Honor." Steps are carved from same block of Carrara marble.

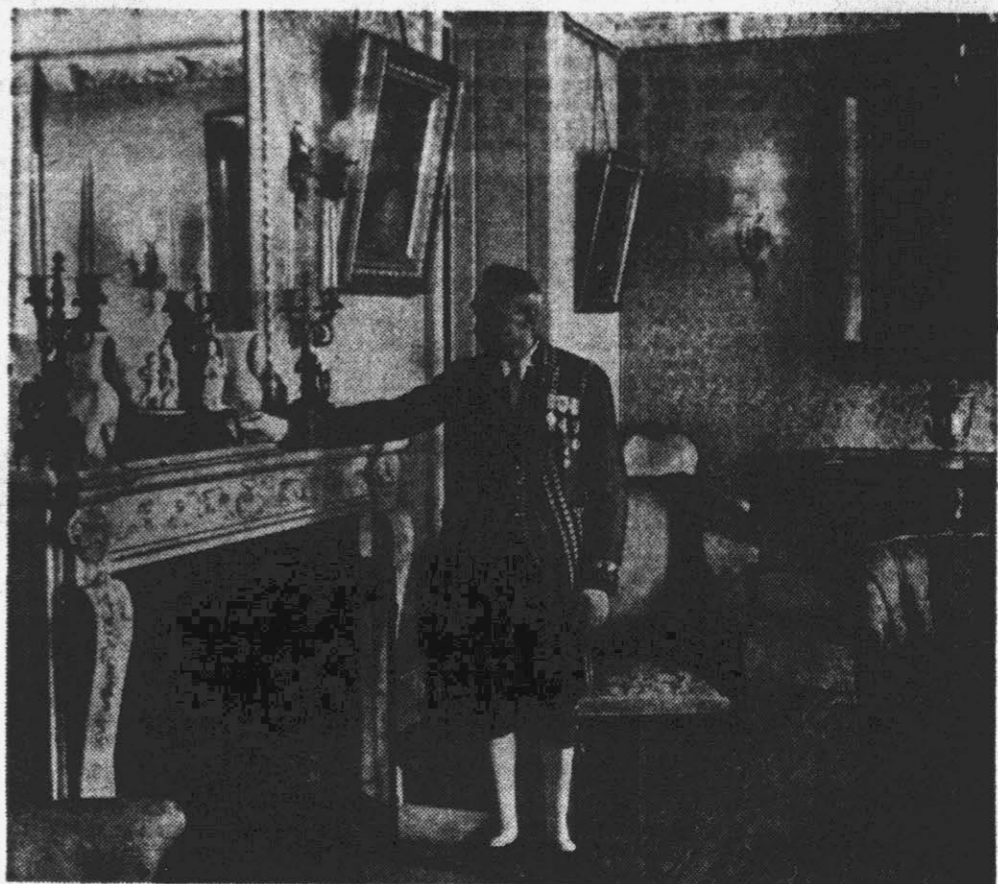

Mandarin trees line Rue Caroline at La Condamine, Monaco.

Monaco, the legendary land of romance and beauty, awaits a new beauty to help guide its destiny. Some time this spring, its ruler, handsome, 32-year-old Prince Rainier III is to take as his bride, America's glamorous Grace Kelly, and all Monaco will celebrate.

The tiny principality of Monaco is more the size of a private estate than of a sovereign realm, but its 370 acres on the shores of the Mediterranean will have everything a princess can possibly wish for.

Grace's new home will be a 200-room palace standing high on a rock facing the sea and she will have a staff of 100 servants. From her palace rooms she will be able to survey her whole domain: Monte Carlo's glittering hotels and sporting clubs of the rich, the town's older and more modest homes that crowd the narrow, winding streets, and, high on the water's edge, the Casino of gambling fame and the world-renowned Oceanographic Museum, opened by Rainier's great-grandfather, Albert I.

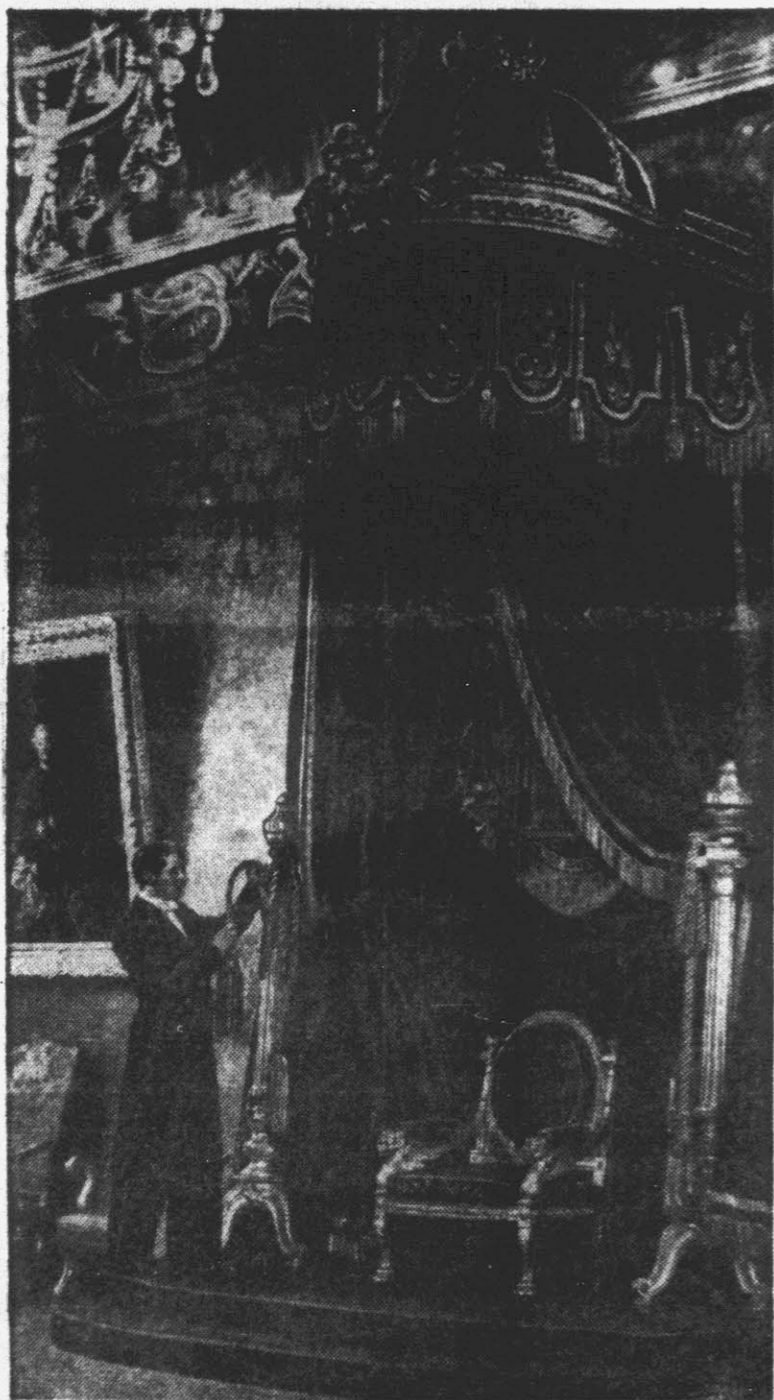

When Grace looks for fun and sport, she will have the choice of any of the Prince's fleet of slick racing cars, and a 300-ton yacht, besides. Wherever she will step, the Prince's subjects will bask in her beauty and smile upon her. What more can a girl wish for?

CHAPTER FIVE Meg entered the dining room after everyone else was seated...

She glanced at Jenny irritation washing through her. No woman should be as mousy as Jenny...

Aware from a brief quiet that someone had spoken to her, Meg caught Michael's polite attention...

When Gretchen's raisin cream pie and fragrant coffee were finished...

With Matilda and Nathan in the rockers, Michael flung himself on the bottom step while Meg and Jenny chose the top one...

As if on cue, the quiet was sliced by fire bells. Horses pounded through the streets...

"Near here," she ran to the fence. "Liz Bennett's rooming house. I'll be bound! That woman's born for trouble..."

"Bad?" "Naw! Mighty near out. 'T'd better get back. Meg said 'Matilda will give me notice for an indiscreet female...'"

"So? Did you attend his college? If you did, you should be able to teach school..."

"Suppose we say I hate seeing anyone trapped in work he doesn't relish. It is a kind of slavery..."

"No. I can't imagine doing anything else." He frowned and she read in his expression the same compulsion toward honesty she had known...

"I hope business is better this month, Jenny," Michael said. Meg heard interest in his tone...

"On I—I don't know. I never thought... the shop's not doing well—you might not like it..."

Future Bottlenecks Can Be Avoided

With the clearance of one more hurdle Greenville's major street plan will become a reality. Certainly no one factor is more important to the future of the city than this proposal which will be weighed at a public hearing March 15.

The major street plan was developed by the City Planning Board after many months of study and careful consideration. It has now received tentative approval of the City Council after that body gave it close scrutiny. It must, however, go through the formality of a public hearing before the Council can take final action on its adoption.

By the adoption of such a plan now the city, in future years, will be assured of necessary right-of-ways to widen major streets which will handle the city's traffic. There are few who will contend that Greenville is not already handicapped by narrow streets in its business district as well as in other sections of the city. It is likewise apparent that as the number of motor vehicles increases major traffic arteries will be needed for cross-town as well as through-town traffic. The adoption of the major street plan now will make possible these major traffic arteries in the future.

If the city adopts no such plan, it cannot be assured of having these traffic arteries when they become a necessity.

While there may be objections raised to the plan, it appears to us the only answer to traffic problems which are sure to develop in the future. It has been pointed out that objections so far raised to the plan can be ironed out through the Board of Zoning adjustments in isolated cases where the major street plan and zoning regulations would work a hardship on individual property owners.

One thing is sure: Without the major street plan Greenville cannot hope to improve its traffic situation as the city continues to grow. In the place of a few traffic bottlenecks now we will find scores in the future and these will definitely prove a drawback to the city's development.

The major street plan is an important part of the city's long range planning. We are confident the City Council realize the overwhelming weight of the merits of the plan and will see to its adoption following the slated public hearing.

Candidate Hodges; Toll Ferry Hopes

By LYNN NISBET
GOVERNOR — Although News- men have been certain for months that Governor Hodges would seek election for a full term in his own right, they discovered a subtle difference in his attitude as a formal candidate. He was fresh from the State Board of Elections office where he paid his filing fee when he met the press at his latest conference.

He was perhaps no more adroit, was somewhat firmer in ducking questions which might have held embarrassing elements. He declined to elaborate on previous statements about segregation and other controversial items, and insisted more upon exact quotes. Those are words coined by reporters for their stories, he said. However, he did not criticize the newsmen nor charge that they were directly misquoting or misrepresented his position.

He opened the conference with the quasi-humorous observation that he had more time during the past few days to devote to State business, having made fewer than usual number of public appearances outside the capital.

POLICY — One objective of his continuing administration will be to have all State agencies and departments to adopt more specific policies and to make them known in writing, and require employees to adhere to them. He suggested that there has been too much inclination to form policy as events developed, with resultant confusion and uncertainty in many instances.

FERRY — The highway commission is in favor of the establishment of a privately operated toll ferry across the Cape Fear between Port Fisher and the Sunny Point ammunition depot area near Southport.

Chairman Sandy Graham said a survey made some months ago indicated the project did not justify State operation, but he hopes the proposed private ferry will be established and that it will succeed. Development of the ammunition depot will bring a lot of people into the Southport section and may eventually justify State maintenance of a ferry. A toll-free bridge, which some of the promoters in the area want, will be a long time in the making, he said. It is ever justified by traffic demands.

The proposed ferry service, whether private or public, is something sponsors of the all-coastal highway have sought for years. It will be a link in the outer belt route to the extension of US-158 from Bodie Island, along Hatteras and Ocracoke, with a ferry to Atlantic, and thence to Wilmington and on east of the Cape Fear to Port Fisher.

The idea does not look as bright as when it was first outlined a decade or so ago.

The Public Forum

To the Editor: We, the people of St. Andrew's Mission, thank you so very much for the editorial you wrote about little Joseph Bernard. He was a lovely child, a bright boy in his neighborhood who was brought up in a slum area.

I hope that the people of Greenville will be a little more interested in us and clean out the slum areas and give us a break. That is where disease, crime and mental delinquency are bred. It would be so nice to have some low income housing projects here.

I knew Joseph and attended his funeral which was in a small church which was packed to the door. The children's choir of which he was a member sang at the service. He was buried in his child vestment. Dr. W.I. Wolverton, St. Paul's R.E. Church, assisted our rector the Rev. Joseph Banks at the service.

Several ladies of St. Paul's Church are busy training our youth. Some of those whose names I know are Mrs. Grace Eaton, Mrs. Stephen D. Bruck, Miss Virginia Cox, Miss F. Water Is An Important Item

(Hertford County Herald)
Water, water everywhere—and not a drop to drink—water, that is. But, who wants a drink of water?

That opening paragraph does not make a lot of sense. As a matter of fact, it faces no intended to make sense. Its purpose was, poor and simple as it is, to attract you to the subject of water.

If the News Letter—a fact sheet put out by the University of North Carolina, is to be believed we have over a period of years found it to be very reliable—water is quite an important item in more ways than the average person would care to figure it.

Industry goes where water is abundant, pure and inexpensive. If you are a citizen of the these United States—there are 160,000,000-odd of us, including the women and children and not counting the young couple down the street who are expecting—and you are average (which, of course you are not, for that would be common) you will use about 145 gallons of water today for washing your face, brushing your teeth, shaving, flushing the washing your hands and taking a bath, along with the other things that you do.

Water, and plenty of it, is a must for human beings. It is also a necessary raw material of industry. If you are a citizen of these United States, you are using up one or two you will drink to quench your thirst. That amounts to 23 billion, 200 million gallons of water every day just for household uses by Americans.

Water is a pretty important item, even if it does cost less than coffee or beer. The size of the figures prove it.

That is not all, according to the University News Letter. It takes 127 gallons of water for each hog that is slaughtered. Nine gallons of water are used for every hide that is tanned. Seven and one-half gallons of water were used with every can of the food that is light in the supermarket. It takes 90 gallons to scour one pound of wool. It also takes from 15 to 50 gallons of water to make a pound of this paper on which these words are printed. That is not all of the list, but it should be enough to illustrate the point that water is important.

Here in Eastern North Carolina industry. The conclusion of all this? Eastern North Carolina is a good place for people and industry. It has plenty of water. Anyone interested in knowing more about the subject—and there is a whole lot more to it—can get information, for free, by inquiring at the following address: Industrial Experiment Program, School of Engineering, North Carolina State College, Raleigh—North Carolina, of course.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
WHY WE OFTEN FAIL
People often ask the question, "Why is it necessary to bring religion into the solution of moral problems? Can't they be solved on the basis of common sense and in the light of human nature?"

Many of them can and are settled in this fashion. Once in a while we encounter a situation where all that is needed is that people use the sense they were born with. Again, we encounter circumstances upon others' problems will cease to be a problem because it will have been solved. But to say all this is not to say that religious faith is not basic to the solving of all problems, because it is.

Religious faith is basic to the solving of all problems because we live in a spiritual universe. No matter how much a problem may appear to be purely a physical or intellectual or economic problem, it has its spiritual aspects, and for the simple reason that we are part of a vast spiritual universe. Further, when it comes to the great problems of life, these demand religious faith on the part of some of us. We frequently fail so lamentably to solve the problems by which we are confronted because we refuse to face the fact that we are basically spiritual beings living in a universe that is primarily spiritual in nature.

New ECC Dormitory Will Mean New Growth

A new men's dormitory at East Carolina College to be financed with a $1,425,000 federal loan will be a major asset to the college and a vital factor in the service the institution can render to the state.

For almost a decade now East Carolina has grown literally by leaps and bounds. At the same time its growth has been handicapped by lack of housing facilities to accommodate all the students who wished to attend the college. Year after year the college has found it necessary to turn away hundreds of applicants for lack of housing facilities. And this has been going on during the period in which expansion of the physical plant of the institution has been at its peak.

Under the self liquidating loan from the federal government East Carolina will now be able to have a new men's dormitory looking directly to the General Assembly for appropriation. Machinery for such a loan was set up by the 1955 General Assembly and East Carolina officials have lost no time in taking advantage of the legislation to provide the college with a much needed addition.

The new dormitory, designed to house 512 students, virtually assures the college of a larger enrollment of men students. In spite of its growth in recent years, lack of housing for students has been a major deterrent to greater growth by the college.

Like other new dormitories built on the campus in recent years, this dorm represents another major step forward for the college. By having facilities to house more students East Carolina will be able to admit more students from this part of the state who annually are applying for admission. Perhaps it will no longer have to say to prospective students "you can come if you can find a place in town to live."

The percentage of eastern Carolina high school student graduates entering college has shown a steady increase over a period of several years. If East Carolina and other institutions of higher learning are going to serve this increasing number who wish a college education their classroom as well as housing facilities must be constantly expanded.

Deadlier Than War, And 1956 Outlook Is Worse

Not long ago millions of people across the United States read that during 1955 American highway slaughter took 38,800 lives. Most readers shrugged their shoulders and turned to another page of their favorite newspaper.

People get killed on the highways every day. We expect it. We accept it. And far too few people give constructive thought and effort to curbing the highway killing.

Few people take time to realize that more of their fellow Americans were killed in highway accidents in 1955 alone than died on Korean battlefields during three years of war. In the more than three years the Korean conflict raged 33,417 Americans lost their lives, but that number is several thousand short of the number of people killed last year in motor vehicle accidents.

While 1955 was not a record year for highway deaths, it was not far below the 1941 peak. Safety officials assert that unless a marked change in driving habits takes place in the United States 1956 will chalk up a new record for motor vehicle deaths.

Is there an answer to the problem? Certainly there is. And it is very simple. Slower speeds on the highways, greater care by drivers, and greater regard for the lethal power an automobile packs. It's as simple as that. Perhaps it's too simple for American motorists to try.

Add This To Postal Rates?

Won't it be thrilling to hear the post office's stamp vending machine say "Thank you" when we feed it our coins?

And for only $4,000 of the taxpayer's money, too! Of course, this price is only for the first seven machines. Assistant Postmaster General Abram says his department realizes the cost is high, "but we have to cover some of the 11 years of research that the inventor has put into this machine." He estimates that later the machines will cost about $1,000 apiece or less, "and maybe considerably less."

It seems to me that nothing would be too much to pay for them, especially with my hard-earned dollars. It further occurs to me that the inventor who spent 11 years conjuring up this "remarkable" device could have put his time to better use. With all this talk about economy in government and especially the President's request to hike the cost of a three-cent stamp to four cents to help post office operations pay their own way, installation of these "Thank you" devices seems too absurd.

In his "Washington Report" newsman Bill Whitley makes some comments on the situation which we would like to quote here, in part. Declaring that at the hearings on the Post Office Department's budget request for the coming year, nobody explained just why the department wants to install these new gadgets, Whitley surmises "It may be to raise the standard of living, or some such thing."

Notebook On Life

How The Other Half Lives

By VIVIAN BROWN
AF Newsfeatures Writer
Do you ever worry about how the other-half lives? One girl didn't. And she was amazed to find out.

The skeptic as she terms herself, is Mary McCaffrey 20, a junior at Mt. St. Vincent's College in Riverdale, New York.

Mary was one of 30 students in "operation classroom" at NBC when the invitation to "find out" presented itself. As an interested member of the class in radio and TV she competed for the chance to go to Europe and see for herself what hardship means. Her prose and TV personality won the trip for her.

So-off she went with the young big winner, Dick Kempin to see how others live in this great big world.

What happened? Mary returned singing the praises of the Foster Parents' Plan for War Children among other things. She explains: "The words are printed that you were wrong, judging from Harry Truman's references to a 'regency' and a 'part-time chairman of the board.' Answer: I wrote exactly the opposite from what M.S. attributes to me. At least a month ago, I said that the Democrats would manage to drag this problem into the campaign, directly or indirectly. I cited Senator Monroney's insinuation that orders affecting Civil Aeronautics personnel had been issued and signed without Ike's knowledge. STEVENSON'S ASSERTION Stevenson hit the nail on the head. A kindly gentleman, he said with extreme forcefulness that he would not use Ike's health against him. Knowing politics and politicians, he added that he could not guarantee what other Democrats might do. His reservation was well taken. With political indecency, Senator Stevenson's first raised the health issue when he said that the Army was preparing a special suite for Eisenhower at the Letterman Hospital in San Francisco for the duration of the Republican Convention. Of course the Army invited that suggestion by announcing its hospital plans without consulting the White House.

SENATOR NEUBERGER OUT-STEPPED SENATOR NEUBERGER Senator Neuberger of Oregon, outshining Kerr, came along with his charge that Republican politicians and physicians might even prop up Ike with drugs if necessary, to prove that he was physically fit for a second term. Although Washington does not take Neuberger's squirrel quips seriously, it served to permeate voters' minds. Truman was brazen on this subject, as might be expected.

Who held up the American troops from pushing into Berlin and beyond?" asks W.F.I. of Rye, N.Y. "Why did we wait until dollars per sack . . . to have a little gimmick spray perfume on all letters."

The reporter then pertinently points out: "And just think, it's been only a few years since our old run-down, out-of-date post offices had terrible scratchy pens that wrote in fits and starts—almost all post offices had directory service but all that stuff is old hat now. It costs too much to look up a street address."

"It also costs too much money to run a lot of small post offices and rural routes. So many routes are consolidated in the interest of economy. And small post offices are being closed by the thousands. In fact, between January 20, 1955, and December 31, 1955, 3,048 fourth class offices have been closed. All in the name of economy."

"But it's good business, and economical, too, to use stamp vending machines that will give you a lot of lip—so the post office bigwigs say."

How Tax Gobbles Capital

By ELMER ROESSNER

Someone named John A. Malone, of the Curtis Publishing Co., sent us an advance copy of the February 11 issue of the Saturday Evening Post and called our attention to an editorial titled "The Capital-Gains Tax Needs Fixing."

The SEP editors did an excellent job of restating clearly and persuasively the classic arguments against the capital-gains levy. It is actually an approximation of the classic arguments and hard-pressed Britain have never made such a levy; it drives securities into safety-deposit boxes, prevents the accumulation of new capital and fails to produce much revenue anyway.

The editorial notes that one of the most oppressive effects of the tax can be felt by homeowners who sell a house and concede that this has been corrected in part.

HOW TAX CONFISCATES
If a home is sold at a gain, the law does not tax that gain if it is used within certain periods to buy a new home. Let's see how this works. Let's take a mythical character, Homer Q. Malone or, if you wish, a real one: Elmer Roessner. Just before the war he bought a house for $10,000. Today he is offered $20,000 for it. The house isn't any better. It is used, worn and—just among the cracks—there are a few leaks. The increase in price does not represent an increase in value; it's just a measure of how much the war and several Administrations have cheapened the American dollar.

If this character, whether he be Homer or somebody else, sells the house and uses the money to buy another within certain time limits, he escapes a tax on the fancied gain. But if he doesn't because the children are grown or because he is getting too old to prune the quince tree and mow the lawn—he pays a 25 per cent tax on the gain, which is not quite enough to pay the costs of a government stenographer in Saudi Arabia for a year. The sale of the property is taking part of the owner's life savings. That must be Uncle Sam's living in the spare bedroom.

WELL BE ZANUCKED!
By coincidence, the SEP advance came in within a few hours of the announcement that Mr. F. Zanuck was quitting as production head of 20th Century-Fox. The announcement indicated that the studio could make a deal so that Mr. Zanuck would make movies as an independent producer, with the co-operation of 20th Century-Fox.

This highlights an entirely different kind of an inequity in the capital-gains tax.

'Books and Stuff'

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

We were very much interested in the remarks of Dr. Wallace Wolverton, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, on the Dead Sea Scrolls, which, he maintains, are by no means dead. He gave a lecture on them to a surprisingly large audience at the College Library Auditorium last Wednesday evening, and will give another on Monday at the same place at 8 o'clock. Any and all members of the community are invited to attend—we can guarantee an hour of learning and enlightenment, since Rev. Wolverton is both scholarly and exciting, in what he has to say and how he says it.

The Dead Sea Scrolls, as you probably already know, were discovered within the past ten years or so in abandoned caves near the northern tip of the Dead Sea. So significant were their contents that many books and articles have been written about them, including "The Discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls" by Edmund Wilson, subsequently turned into a book. According to Dr. Wolverton, many significant facts have come to light about the origins and meanings of hitherto unexplained parts of the New Testament—both as to the emphasis on elemental problems. One question that arises is what kind of sophistication is necessary to give that impression of simplicity.

The plot is concerned with Katie who has accepted her father's order to marry Ezra when she really loves her brother Peter. The action gives Peter a chance to prove that he really is a solid member of the community. Ezra unfortunately gets drunk and loses the community respect and his promised bride, and the play ends happily.

Today's Review

Dr. James Allison of the College English Department contributes today's comments on "Plain and Fancy," the current selection of The Fireside Theatre. You can become a member by writing Garden City, N. Y. Members get all the best—and recent—Broadway hits, which they can read at least—which is something.

PLAN AND FANCY. A Play by Joseph Stein and Will Glickman. New York: Random House, 1955. The January offering of the "Fireside Theatre" is "Plain and Fancy," the musical comedy by Joseph Stein and Will Glickman. The play opened a year ago at the Mark Hellinger Theatre, New York, to a warm reception. The setting and characters are from the Amish country of Pennsylvania. There is a quality of "gemutlichkeit" about the play, a warmth and sense of simple sincerity that is not to be found in most modern shows.

The obvious similarities are to be found in "Oklahoma!" The simplifications and exaggerations are much alike. The sense of natural joy is common to both as is the emphasis on elemental problems. One question that arises is what kind of sophistication is necessary to give that impression of simplicity.

FFA Sweetheart

Libby Thomas, high school freshman, has been chosen by the Ayden Future Farmers of America as their chapter Sweetheart. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Thomas, Sr., of Ayden Route 2. The Sweetheart was elected from four candidates who were nominated for the honor. Joanne Williams was runner-up.

Carl Sandburg is not exactly local, but he's become a North Carolinian, and lately has been singled out for the unique honor of being selected as a favorite author by Broadcast Music, Inc., which sponsors "The Book Parade" radio program. His "Abraham Lincoln" was selected as one of five books that the judges would rather be marooned with than anything else in the book line, that is, if we also want to remind you that, more or less in connection with this honor, Sandburg will be on Ed Sullivan's show over TV next Sunday. If he stays in New York that long, Local change: Dr. Frank Hoskins' radio interlude, "Music You Want," over WGTC, has been changed from Wednesday evening to Sunday after-

His 'Free Help' Was Expensive

TRENTON—W. J. Jones of Richards, Route 2, had some "volunteer" help to control tobacco hornworms last year. But the "free labor" turned out to be pretty expensive.

Jones County Agent J. R. Frank says that Jones reports that numerous foxes stalked his tobacco patch every night looking for worms. But although they helped keep the worm population down, they destroyed almost a whole curing of tobacco in the process.

Flock Of Geese Controls Weeds In Cotton Crop

RALEIGH—Every try "goosing" cotton? Well it's a perfectly respectable way of controlling weeds, according to W. G. Westmoreland, extension weed control specialist at N.C. State College.

Westmoreland explains that cultivating and chopping costs of cotton can be low if the farmer can use geese for the weeding job. Seemingly the birds will selectively eat the small weeds, particularly grass, and do little damage to the cotton.

It's necessary to properly fence and balance the number of geese to the amount of weeds available as feed. However, a few cotton farmers are finding this method of weeding satisfactory.

Westmoreland says that there's no "best way" to control weeds in cotton. It depends on the situation.

The farmer who has a small cotton acreage and plenty of labor available for cultivating and chopping the cotton will probably find this way best. If this labor can be used to make another crop or enterprise possible, or if there is a shortage of labor, the farmer might consider other weed control methods.

Westmoreland says that in recent years, the rotary hoe has come into vogue in Eastern North Carolina. The proper use of this tool can lead to a savings of hand labor in row crop production. Its use should be started before cultivation begins or when weeds are very small. This means about the time cotton germinates or within a day or so following germination. The rotary hoe should be used every five to seven days for about three weeks and regular cultivation should follow.

In addition, recent research has pretty well proved that chemicals can effectively reduce weed problems in cotton. A sprayer can be mounted on the tractor and applied as the crop is planted. The chemicals control germinating weed seed, particularly grassy weeds, and no cultivation or chopping is usually necessary for four to six weeks afterwards.

Last 2 Bushels Of Corn Came Easiest Of All

RALEIGH—The last two bushels of corn came easy; it was the first 50 bushels on the half-acre plot which required good planning, says Walter Dafford of Faison.

Duplin County Negro Agent Riddick E. Wilkins says that Dafford came up with the highest yield yet reported by Duplin's Negro farmers in the past five years.

Dafford spaced his corn approximately 12 inches in the drill and followed the recommended steps for good corn production. Wilkins says that according to the accepted rule of thumb, the half acre should have yielded 50 bushels. But Dafford says that extra two bushels came easy after he followed all of the best practices.

Wilkins says that Dafford's neighbors had some differences in opinion about Dafford's judgment in spacing and fertilizing his corn. But a 104 bushels per acre yield is a pretty good way to squelch an argument.

POSTAGE TROUBLE

ABERDEEN, Wash. (AP)—Newspapermen chuckled over a piece of mail that reached the Aberdeen Daily World after having been returned to the sender.

It bore the bold, red-lettered stamp: "Returned for Postage."

It was from the National Federation of Post Office Clerks.

'Soil Bank' Plan May Spur Forestry Work

RALEIGH—When and if the "soil bank" proposal being advocated by President Eisenhower and others to the Congress as legislation that will be good for the farmer and at the same time reduce agriculture commodity surpluses, becomes law, it is quite likely to mean a sharply renewed interest in forestry in North Carolina.

The "soil bank" plan would result in the retirement of some 25 or more million acres of land now being used to produce crops. Enrollment into law of the soil bank proposal means something must be done with all this idle land, much of which is in the South.

The North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development is already looking ahead to the passage of this legislation. Through its Division of Forestry and its head, State Forester, Fred H. Claridge, the Department and its Director, William P. Saunders, already are planning what they are doing to meet the demand for tree seedlings.

Claridge recently attended a meeting of State Foresters of Southeastern states at Atlanta, Ga. There the foresters talked at length about the "soil bank" and what can be done with the land that will be made idle if the proposal becomes law.

The foresters, Claridge reported, are unanimous in their opinion that the best use to which much of this land may be put if it is idled is to plant it in trees.

TREES CASH CROP

Trees are becoming more and more of a cash crop for landowners not only in this but in other states as well. Pulpwood for paper is bringing good prices. Lumber sells well. Good use is being made as a result of experiments carried on by the Department's Forestry Division at Bladen Lakes State Forest of scrub wood in the making of charcoal, a new industry for North Carolina.

Some 30 million forest tree seedlings have been grown in 1955-56 and sold at the three nurseries operated by the C&D Department's forestry division at Clayton, Hendersonville and Goldsboro. It is a record-breaking production as well as distribution. No later than three years ago production of seedlings in this state totaled around 12 million.

F. H. Claridge and P. A. Griffiths, Assistant State Forester in charge of forest management and nurseries, are already discussing preparation of plans for stepping up the production of tree seedlings to as much as 55 million annually.

Claridge says this can be done without too much trouble. He foresees a greatly increased demand for tree seedlings and most of them will be grown at the new nursery located on Little River about three miles west of Goldsboro and just off Highway 70. This nursery was authorized by the 1953 General Assembly to help meet the growing demand for tree seedlings.

The value of North Carolina's forests and the products made from such forests cannot be over-emphasized insofar as the part they play in the State's general economy.

BULWARK OF ECONOMY

Forester for fire control, and working under his direction are 12 District Foresters and numerous County Rangers.

GUARD MANY ACRES

More than 15 million acres of forest land are under the watchful care of the personnel of the Conservation and Development's Forestry Division in the cooperative fire control plan it carries on with 87 of the State's 100 counties. Under this plan the counties help the Conservation and Development Department in the control and prevention of forest fires.

One of the most important steps taken in the continuing efforts being made to protect the State's woodlands against fire is the cooperative forest fire control and suppression plan worked out in late 1955.

Under this plan, which had its beginnings under suggestions made by Governor Hodges and others following a series of damaging fires early in 1955 in the State's coastal areas, the C&D Department's Forestry Division will be assisted by numerous State agencies such as the High Commission, the Highway Patrol, the Wildlife Resources Division, Federal agencies, and private landowners in the reporting and suppression of forest fires.

This plan is being hailed as a workable one by those who have agreed to give it their support.

Use Of Coastal Bermuda Grass Said Spreading; Useful On Many Farms

RALEIGH—One of the "hottest" subjects in feed production right now is Coastal Bermuda grass, says S. H. Dobson, State College extension agronomy specialist.

He says that the sterile hybrid, developed in Georgia, is spreading rapidly throughout the Bermuda grass belt.

Dobson adds that, in the Southern Piedmont and Coastal Plain sections of North Carolina, Coastal Bermuda "will produce more tonnage during the summer months than any perennial forage. If it is properly fertilized and managed."

And although it can be quite satisfactory if properly managed, it seems quite certain it will never replace succulent Ladino clover, alfalfa, sudan grass, millet, or other beans with the high-producing cow.

Dobson says many Tar Heel farmers are wondering where Coastal Bermuda fits into their program.

First of all, it does well on many soils where Ladino clover will not grow, where alfalfa is difficult to grow, and where annuals are quite difficult to grow. It can be used very effectively on farms, even where the better forages can be grown, as a forage for young and dry animals to take some of the load off Ladino clover during the summer months. Dobson also believes it can be used effectively with the good dairy cow as a grazing crop for one-half day, using more succulent feed for the other half-day.

However, Coastal Bermuda must not be allowed to get big and coarse, Dobson warns. He says it should be pointed out that Coastal Bermuda comes at a time when most of the animals are near or at the end of their lactation period and where quality of forage might not be as essential, and it's better than the feed given to many animals during the past several summers.

Dobson suggests that a farmer first start with a small amount of the grass and fit it into his feed program. Once he gets his own sprig patch started, he can expand as rapidly as he wants or needs it.

Coastal Bermuda has to be set from sprigs much like tobacco or sweet potatoes, Dobson says. The period of March and early April seems to be the best time to set sprigs although anytime during the spring and summer will be all right if moisture is plentiful.

Dobson says that if the farmer has to buy sprigs, he should prepare the land about like he would for cotton and use around 4,400 sprigs or five bushels to an acre. This is in 3 1/2 foot rows with sprigs three feet apart in the row. They will usually cover over in one year if weeds are controlled.

Row planting allows one or two cultivations. Use 400 pounds of 0-14-14 in the row and topdress with 30 to 40 pounds of nitrogen on the row when the sprigs green up and again in July.

Dobson says make sure you buy certified sprigs so you do not get nutgrass, sandspur, onion, or common Bermuda grass along with your Coastal Bermuda. Certified sprigs are now available in North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia.

Pruning Saw Earns $70 In Single Hour Of Farm Work

RALEIGH—Want to earn $70 in an hour's work? Sure you do! Fred E. Whitfield, extension forestry specialist at State College, says that some North Carolina farmers have earned that kind of money. The $3 tool to collect the money. The $3 tool was a pruning saw and the farmers who are cashing in on this $70-an-hour labor used the saw on their pine trees 12 to 20 years ago.

Although the saw might cost you up to $5 now, it will still make you a big return on the investment. But some farmers still need some convincing that this is true.

Whitfield says that at a pruning demonstration on the farm of John Hensley in the Shelton Laurel section of Madison County, one farmer asked: "Why not set the trees close together so they will prune themselves?"

Whitfield said the answer is that shortleaf pines set eight feet apart will not prune themselves as quickly as it can be done with a saw, and white pines just don't drop their limbs for a long time even if they're dead.

Another farmer asked, "Well, if you have to prune anyway, why not set the trees further apart so they grow faster?" The answer to that one is that if trees are set too far apart, the limbs get too big before they are ready to prune.

As Whitfield explains it, "it's a matter of trying to hit the happy medium and getting trees close enough to get the fastest growth possible, and at the same time, keep the limbs small. If the limbs get much larger than the thumb, there isn't much use in pruning."

Hensley is pruning his 13-year-old stand of white pines because he sees that he can help nature do the job, and make his trees pay dividends faster.

According to figures compiled by the Southeastern Forest Experiment Station, an acre of four inch pine trees pruned and left 40 years will increase in value nearly $700 an acre. That's a good return on an investment of 10 to 16 cents per tree.

Whitfield says that when pruning pines, there are several points to remember. Prune only about 100 to 125 trees per acre spaced approximately 20 feet apart. Prune in two operations in order to keep one-third of the total height of the tree in live crowns. Taking off more than two live whorls in white pines may reduce their growth rate.

Also use a curved pruning saw about 18 inches long with six to eight teeth per inch—never use an axe. Prune only 17 feet high. Pruning should be done in stands that are likely to be thinned when necessary. Thinning should give the trees room to keep a fast growth rate. A good "rule-of-thumb" to thin trees is to add five to the diameter in inches. For example, an eight inch tree may be spaced about 13 feet apart.

STARVING?

If your crops are undernourished, so are your profits. You can increase both income and yield by feeding your plants properly with nitrogen.

And in Nitrolime you have the most effective, low-cost source of this essential plant food you have ever used for top dressing.

Nitrolime does a double-duty job in increasing, and sometimes even doubling, crop yields. A fertilizer compound with a 20.5% nitrogen content, it offers two types of vital nitrogen. Half is nitrate nitrogen, half ammonia nitrogen, and while both are easily dissolved and quick-acting, the ammonia nitrogen is long-lasting and resists leaching out.

Producing top yields is easy when you follow a growing plan that includes extra applications of Nitrolime. Application is easy, too, since Nitrolime comes in handy free-flowing pellet form, can be spread either by machine or hand. There's every other advantage to Nitrolime, the perfectly neutral, non-acid forming nitrogen fertilizer.

Your dealer or county agent will be glad to tell you how you can get up to double your yields through the use of Nitrolime. Ask them about it today.

NITROLIME

GREEN WINTER PASTURES that can give you beef at 10 cents a pound has been proven a reality by farmers who use Nitrolime, as a top-dressing for their grasses. Whether in live weight or in milk, as pasture or as hay, your Nitrolime more than pays for its way.

Desegregation Fight Endangers Years of Racial Progress

Algerian Patience Paying Dividends

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

Associated Press Foreign News Analyst

FRANCE'S situation in North Africa is going from bad to worse. The attacks by Frenchmen in Algeria on Premier Guy Mollet appear to have given a rude setback to hopes in Paris that a middle way can be found that might satisfy both the Algerian rebels and the French who have made the North African territory their home.

A competent diplomatic observer recently on the scene in North Africa gloomily predicts that the beginning of the end of French power in the area is now in sight. And if that is the case, he adds, it behooves the United States to start making friends with North Africans—particularly those of Morocco and Libya, to safeguard the future of a string of air-bases considered at the moment to be vital to the Strategic Air Command's power to deter aggression.

Ryan

The Algerian rebels did not bother to join the Frenchmen in the attacks on Mollet. They could let the Frenchmen do the rebels' work for them. Able leaders among the Algerian nationalists long have played a patient game of waiting for the inevitable day when France would so weaken herself by her own discords that the victory of the rebel cause would become a foregone conclusion. The day seems to be coming nearer.

The time appears ripe for the MTLD and its allies to strike. France's politics seem to have reduced her to paralysis. It will take something of a miracle to rescue the situation.

Income

15 Billion Higher

The Commerce Department reported this week that the American public earned an unprecedented 203 1/4 billion dollars in personal income in 1955—more than 15 billion dollars and 5 1/2 per cent higher than the previous record set in 1954.

Shoved up by big dividend disbursements in December, the total turned out to be 1 1/2 billion dollars higher than had been expected.

The figures make it appear that in determining the economic basis for the new budget it presented to Congress last month, the administration had been highly conservative.

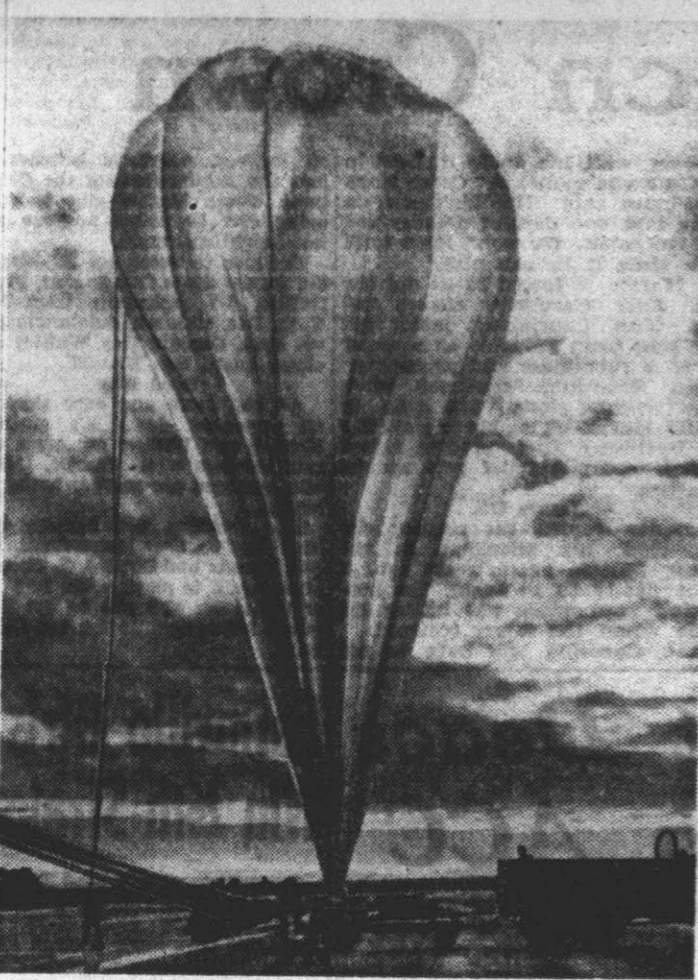

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has said he based his estimates of revenues for the current fiscal year, ending next June 30, on the expectation that personal income would total approximately 302 billion dollars in 1955. Since the actual figure turned out to be higher, the Treasury will be getting more than the 64 1/2 billion dollars in revenues now expected for the current fiscal year and—other things being equal—the government should therefore wind up the year with a surplus considerably higher than the 200 million dollars forecast in the budget message.

Humphrey also estimated revenues for the next fiscal year on the basis of a personal income of about 312 billion in calendar 1956. In view of the new information on 1955, this also appears conservative since it would mean a yearly gain of only 9 1/2 billion.

The new report showed that virtually all segments of the economy paid higher incomes to individuals during 1955 than in 1954, except the farm industry. Agricultural income totalled $14,900,000,000—a decline from $15,400,000,000 in 1954.

Bothering the Reds—Big and Little Balloons

THE COMMUNISTS filled diplomatic channels with protest notes this week, irately claiming the West was filling its air space with "huge fleets" of balloons. Two different types were providing irritation. What apparently stung the Soviets to their new heights of vituperation was the descent in Russia itself of big "Moby Dick" balloons recently perfected by the U.S. Air Force. Pictures on the left show one of these giant plastic spheres just prior to launching after helmeted airmen filled it with hydrogen gas. The "Moby Dicks" carry instruments collecting information on the weather, cosmic rays and other conditions, all of which is radioed automatically to ground stations. In announcing last month that high altitude research with such balloons was being expanded to Europe, the Air Force said the information and experience gained would be of great use in the 1957-58 International Geophysical Year, a world-wide research undertaking in which 40 nations—including Russia—will participate. The other type of aerial invasion bothering the Reds is the vigorous but less scientific propaganda balloon program of the Free Europe Committee, a privately financed American organization. The picture above shows West German youths setting free a typical shipment of anti-Communist leaflets on a farm near the Czech border. Thousands of balloons have been lofted across the Iron Curtain in the postwar years. Communist Albania gave the committee new proof of the effectiveness of its enterprise by damning the airborne literature as "calumnious and provocative" and calling for a halt to this "criminal activity."

School Issue May Be Overshadowed

By J. M. ROBERTS

Associated Press News Analyst

THERE didn't seem to be any doubt that North and South would continue to live together, as Adlai Stevenson said he hoped, but 90 years of progress in racial relations did seem to be taking body punishment this week.

It was more of what has been happening ever since the Supreme Court ruled in 1954 that "separate but equal" schooling does not satisfy the constitution and that segregation must end in the public school systems of the states. Under federal court order, the University of Alabama had admitted a young Negro woman, graduate of a denominational school for Negroes.

Roberts

A mob swept the campus as she arrived for classes. It looked like an organized effort in which students, traditionally attracted by a Roman holiday, joined to give it the face of a spontaneous demonstration. "Autherine Must Go," said the signs, referring to 26-year-old Autherine Lucy. Although she was escorted to classes by car, stones and eggs fell around her, and she said one egg hit her.

Temporary Suspension

The university board of directors said there was too much danger and suspended her temporarily. What temporarily meant, no one would explain. Some faculty members expressed shame at submission to the mob. Autherine said she would be admitted to classes or keep suing.

In California, attempting to match Estes Kefauver, his opponent for the Democratic presidential nomination, Stevenson said he was for desegregation, but not by surgery. It takes time, he said, for improvement in spirit. Kefauver has gone a little farther, despite his Tennessee background, to say that the law must be carried out.

Stevenson ran into heckling by Negro listeners. He denied one implication, that he was trying to appease Southern politicians in his search for the nomination.

He said he wouldn't use force to enforce the court's rule if he was president, and "I hope very much the North and South can live together."

This was not a North-South issue, however, but an issue between segregationists in the South—where sentiment is overwhelming but not unanimous—and the court.

The state leaders seemed to be following two major lines of action—a reversion to locally controlled, state-aided private schools which they hoped could be run to suit local conditions, and interposition, which Stevenson said he didn't quite understand.

Interposition is something thought up by Southern constitutional lawyers under which they claim a state can place its own rights above the exercise of any right by the federal government which has not been specifically allocated to it.

Their claim is that the federal government has never been granted and never heretofore attempted to exercise any control over state schools.

Wherever local groups wish to operate their own schools they may do so, taking over present facilities and receiving grants from the state on the basis of previous per-pupil cost. Virginia voted for it 2 to 1.

Progresses Slowing

As time wears on, and as had been anticipated at the time of the court's ruling, the issue of the fate of the schools is becoming secondary in many minds to the social strains being created. Where Negro voting was becoming a commonplace, the franchise is being restricted by the speed of law. Where property ownership—in segregated districts—had not been questioned for many years, the night riders are now chanting "Nigger, get out of town."

Negroes who try to help their fellows while conducting businesses are being boycotted.

New flames were being coaxed from what had once been dying embers.

Regardless of morals and the law, there is a question whether the negro, at least for the time being, is not losing faster than he is gaining.

President

Target Date

President Eisenhower revealed at his news conference this week that he expects to have enough information by March 1 to decide whether he will be physically capable of seeking reelection.

The President strongly indicated that an announcement of his decision will come shortly after that date, assuming he actually does have at that time the information he feels he needs.

Eisenhower went on that he probably will answer the big question at a news conference. He said he probably will want to make a long explanation of his decision and that this explanation quite likely will be given elsewhere. Some newsmen thought he was referring to a possible nationwide radio and TV broadcast.

Amid reports that Trevor Gardner, assistant secretary of the Air Force, was quitting his job because of dissatisfaction over U.S. guided missile production, Eisenhower told his press conference that the Soviet Union may be ahead of the United States in some phases of research in this field but that the United States holds a lead in other areas.

In Short

Under Way: Consultations at Washington among representatives of France, Britain and the United States on ways to prevent an Arab-Israeli war.

Died: Randolph E. Paul, 65, a chief tax adviser to Franklin D. Roosevelt, of a heart attack suffered while he testified on tax matters before a joint Senate-House committee.

Senate Approves Gas Bill

Bitter Debate Ends

After nearly a month of debate, a bitterly fought bill to free natural gas producers from direct federal price controls gained Senate approval this week.

The bill had passed the House last year and becomes law with President Eisenhower's signature.

Wipes Out Decision

The effect of the measure is to nullify a 1954 decision by the Supreme Court that the Federal Power Commission had a duty to fix wellhead prices for natural gas sold to companies for shipment through interstate pipelines. Before the court action, the commission held that the 1938 Natural Gas Act did not give it regulatory authority at the wellhead.

Sponsors of the bill argued that the measure still gives the federal government sufficient means to prevent price gouging. They maintain it does this by fixing a "reasonable market price" standard for the FPC to use in fixing the rates pipeline companies—which are under direct federal price control—may charge for transporting gas from the wells to the local public utilities which distribute it to householders and other users.

In other words, since the government can put a ceiling on what transporting companies may charge local utilities, it can prevent them from passing on to those utilities any "unreasonable" wellhead price.

Those favoring the bill conceded that passage might result in some slight gas price increase. He said the long-term effect would be beneficial. They

53 For, 38 Against

In the final showdown, 31 Republicans and 22 Democrats lined up in favor of the bill and 14 Republicans and 24 Democrats opposed it.

A disclosure by Sen. Francis Case (R-SD) that he had rejected a proffered $2,500 campaign contribution, which he said seemed to be intended to sway him for the bill, apparently had little effect on the final tally. Case, as he had said he would do, voted against the bill.

John M. Neff of Lexington, Neb., identified himself as "apparently the man" who made the campaign offer Case referred to. He said there were "no strings attached" to his offer of a campaign donation to the South Dakota senator.

Quote

Secretary of State Dulles, in arguing that sending arms to Israel would be no cure-all for troubles in the Middle East: "... It is our belief that the security of states in the Near East cannot rest upon arms alone but rather upon the international rule of law and upon the establishment of friendly relations among neighbors."

Medicine

Distinction Made

The American Medical Assn. released results of a survey this week which indicates that public opinion on the medical profession sharply differentiates between individual doctors and doctors as a group.

Most people, the survey found, have a much higher regard for their own family doctor than they do for doctors generally.

"Mine Is Different"

Eighty-five per cent of the people with a family doctor questioned in the survey maintained that their particular doctor is superior to other doctors. They rated him ahead of his colleagues in personal interest, sympathy, kindness, competence, intelligence, fair fees, friendly personality and manner, frankness and honesty.

Here are three other questions investigators asked, and the public's response:

Do doctors think they are better than most people? Five per cent thought it was true of their doctor, but 25 per cent said it was true of most doctors.

Are doctors hard to reach in emergencies? Ninety per cent said it was true of their doctors, but 51 per cent thought it was true of most doctors.

Are doctors too quick to recommend an operation? Five per cent said it was true of their doctors, but 31 per cent thought it was true of most doctors.

"Since people apparently feel more favorably inclined toward their own doctors than toward other doctors," the AMA concluded, "it is not the public relations of the individual physician which requires increased attention, but the public relations of the medical profession as a whole."

GSA: Mansure Bows Out

Resignation Accepted

In the midst of congressional and administration investigations of his official conduct, Edmund F. Mansure resigned this week as chief of the General Services Administration.

Accepting the resignation, President Eisenhower appointed Franklin G. Floete as acting GSA administrator pending Floete's formal nomination to head the government's vast housekeeping agency.

Iowan Appointed

Floete, 66 and a resident of Des Moines, Iowa, now is assistant secretary of defense in charge of properties and installations.

An exchange of Mansure and Eisenhower letters, made public by the White House, made no mention of charges that Mansure had recommended a Chicago Republican leader for insurance brokerage business in connection with a 43-million-dollar government nickel plant expansion project in Cuba.

Mansure has denied these charges in testimony before a House government operations subcommittee. After the House investigation started, Eisenhower asked for a special report on Mansure's role in the case.

In his resignation letter—signed "Ed"—Mansure told the President that he was impelled by "personal obligations" to return to private life. Eisenhower's reply—addressed to Mr. Mansure—said the President respects "the reasons you have given for wanting to leave government service."

Eisenhower thanked Mansure for the 400 million dollars in savings and for improvements the outgoing GSA head claimed to have made during his tenure.

Departure Voluntary

James Hagerty, White House press secretary, said in response to questions that Eisenhower did not ask for Mansure's resignation. A GSA spokesman described Mansure's departure as "voluntary."

Mansure is the fourth administration official to resign under congressional fire in a little more than six months. The others were former Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbot, former Interstate Commerce Commission Chairman Hugh W. Cross, and former Public Buildings Commissioner Peter A. Strobel.

ATTACKING HIS FIRST PROBLEM

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON

Bobbins, Boston Post

Sports Reflector by Bruce Phillips

The East Carolina Bucs have a lucrative baseball season carded for 1956. Twenty-one games constitute the schedule, 10 of which will be played on the local diamond.

Fresh opposition makes this schedule the best ever for the locals. The University of Delaware, the Camp Lejeune Marines and three new league schools should boast interest in a sport which was beginning to wane here.

For the first time in years, East Carolina will play sister schools of western North Carolina. At the termination of the 1955 season it was decided to ban the division of East and West in the league and all play as one.

This will eliminate the drudgery of having to play all the eastern schools twice and at the same time increase uniformity in the conference. In the past, intercollegiate athletics in the North State were practically nil after football and basketball seasons played out.

Coach Jim Mallory's 1955 champions will be crossing bats in regular season play with Western Carolina, the team they defeated in the conference finals last season. Catawba College and Appalachian State.

The only western club not on the card is Lenior Rhyne. A series with the BeBars just couldn't be arranged, principally because of the conflict of open dates.

The Bucs' schedule does not include games with the national champion Wake Forest Demon Deacons. Mallory had a gentlemen's agreement with Taylor Sanford to play a couple until the Deacon mentor quit.

Mallory said recently, however, that he thinks exhibitions with the NCAA winners can still be arranged. Mallory and Charley Teague apparently know each other intimately.

The lean baseball boss also plans one or two exhibition games with the Class B Kinston Eagles. These games will be held during the training stages of April and should prove interesting.

During the spring holidays, the Bucs will go south at least as far as Camp Lejeune. East Carolina will play two games with the proud Marines on March 23 and 24. The locals will also open their season there, against Springfield, Mass. on the 22nd of the month.

Delaware University will add inter-sectional favor to the first game in Greenville on March 27. Following that one, East Carolina will play a double-header with the Montclair (N. J.) State Teachers April 4.

The Bucs will make one big western swing. They take to the hills to play Elon in Burlington on May 10, and take on Appalachian in a twin-bill in Boone on May 11 and 12. Then it'll be High Point there and Guilford in Greensboro on May 14 and 15 respectively.

East Carolina is expected to get a lot of argument as to who's to be champion this year from Western Carolina and Elon. WCC should be much stronger and Elon still has some good boys.

And Mallory lost four All-Conference players in Cecil Heath, Tommy Pruett, Bill and Gaither Cline. The first two were also All-State. "You can't lose boys like that and not feel it," Mallory said.

But the former major league shortstop has several good boys to supplement the losses. In to take up where Pruett left off when he signed a Giant contract is Tommy Harkey, a 6-3 leftie. Harkey is a transfer student from Campbell where he tossed three no-hitters and averaged something like 17 strikeouts a game. Mallory thinks he's one of the best prospects in college circles.

Several other freshmen baseballers have migrated here but Mallory's team is set as many positions. Spots that will be in contention are catcher, second base and left field.

And the bat and ball season isn't far away as you might think. Yesterday's weather prompted Mallory to give the call to his squad and workouts will begin Monday.

Chicod Girls, Belvoir Boys Take Pitt Games

Patsy Mills dumped in 35 points for the Chicod girl cagers last night to lead her team to a 76-67 win over a scrappy Belvoir sextet. Hazel Wilcox added 25 to her teammate's efforts to tie the Belvoir's B. Parker for second high honors.

Belvoir took the boys' contest, 87-84, as Harris and Joyner hit for 21 and 20 markers respectively. G. Cox scored 13 for the losers.

Table with 2 columns: Player Name, Points. Includes Patsy Mills (35), Hazel Wilcox (25), B. Parker (21), G. Cox (13).

Coach Troubled Over Hafer Loss

Phil Reavis has caused quite a stir in track circles this season with his phenomenal high jumping. The Villanova sophomore has cleared 6 feet 19 and is threatening Ken Wiesner's indoor record of 6-10 3/4. The remarkable thing about Reavis' jumping feats is the fact that Phil stands only 5 feet 9 and he clears the crossbar more than a foot above his head.

A fairly careful job of research failed to uncover any other high jumper of championship timber who was able to jump as high as a foot over his head. Wiesner's indoor record holder, stands 6 feet 4 1/2, while Walt Davis, the Olympic champion and holder of the outdoor record of 6-11 1/2, is 6 feet, 8 1/2 inches tall. Les Steers, a 6-11 jumper was 6-1 1/2. The 5 foot, 11 1/2 Walter Marty cleared 6-9 1/2 and Mike Sweeney, 5-8 leaper, cleared 6 feet 5 1/2 before the turn of the century. Could Davis match Phil's feat of jumping a foot over his own head the world record would be at least 7 feet 8 1/2.

Reavis is small by present day standards for high jumpers, but he manages to overcome his lack of height through his amazing spring and efficient jumping style. He has been most consistent in his performances and has developed steadily. His coach, Jumbo Jim Elliott, insists that Reavis will jump even higher off the cinders and should be a serious threat for the Olympic high jump crown by the time the international games roll around. It won't be for lack of trying on Phil's part if he isn't ready.

Phantoms Get 10th Straight League Win

With Victory Over Elon In Burlington Tonight

Bucs Can Clinch Crown

By BRUCE PHILLIPS The East Carolina Pirates can cement the North State Conference regular season championship by defeating Elon College in Burlington tonight.

The race has narrowed down to these two clubs with one week of conference activity left before the annual tournament. The Bucs can coast in should they win tonight, but if they lose it would mean that Elon still had a chance.

East Carolina's first place record is 12-1 as compared with Elon's challenging 11-3.

Coach Doc Mathis' Christians will have the battle flag flying. They hardly remember the 105-69 thrashing handed them by East Carolina in Greenville.

Also they're still smarting over the upset loss to Appalachian last Saturday night. The Christians, slotted by the Mountaineers in Boone, want to take the angry out of somebody.

Elon has proved almost invincible at home this season. Only Lenior Rhyne has been able to overthrow the Christians in the confines of the gymnasium.

The gymnasium is the largest in the conference, with a seating capacity of about 4500. From all reports, every nook in the place is sold out. This is expected to be the biggest home game in Elon basketball history.

Slightly Favored East Carolina will be slightly favored on the basis of its easy win here. However, odds may change before game time because the locals will not be going into the affair at top strength.

Don Harris, ECC's leading scorer and brilliant competitor, is on the doubtful list. "We don't know just yet how well his ankle (injured in the Catawba game) is," Coach Howard Porter said. "He didn't push on it the last two days of practice and it is untested. We won't know until game time if he can play."

If Harris is forced to sit out of the fray, East Carolina's chance will drop. The Laurinburg junior not only has been valuable as a scorer but as a rebounder and playmaker.

Tim Smothers, freshman who's come right along, will step in should Harris be unable to play. The 6-4 Betams' High product tallied 16 points in a relief role against Catawba.

James OK Freddie James the regular who dislocated his shoulder in the Lenior Rhyne game weeks ago, is about ready to go again. The hot-handed sophomore was hitting his stride when the injury occurred.

East Carolina will have to put on its best defensive britches to halt the scoring feats of the Christians. Coach Mathis' club is averaging over 90 points a game and has height all-round.

The men to watch are Ed Juratic, 6-6 former State College star, Frank DeRita, 6-7 sophomore from New York, Dee Atkinson, outstanding pivot man, Captain Ray Whitley and classy guard Ben Kendall.

Good Five All can score and once they get an opponent down it's curtains. Kendall and Whitley are great outside shooters while Juratic, DeRita and Atkinson are murder under the boards.

East Carolina will counter with Nick Nichols, Guy Mendenhall, Harold Ingram and Capt. J. C. Thomas. Mendenhall is playing the best ball of his career and will be the Bucs' tallest hopes against the tall Christians.

Wake Forest tightened the knot among the top four teams last night with an impressive 96-77 victory over South Carolina. The victory pushed the Deacons into a second-place tie with North Carolina. Duke needs tonight's game to stay out in front. The Blue Devils have a 9-1 ACC record while Wake Forest and Williams led the Deacons with 23, followed by Ernie Wiggins with 20, Jim Gilley with 17, Jackie Murdock with 17 and Lowell (Lefty) Davis with 12. All were starters.

South Carolina's ace center Lee Collins was high man of the night with 28 points while forward Gray Wallace was held to 15.

In two other games involving North Carolina teams last night, Washington & Lee upset Davidson 85-75 in Southern Conference contest and Atlantic Christian College dropped the Norfolk Division.

A heavy schedule tonight has the College of Charleston at Davidson, East Carolina at Elon, High Point at Appalachian, Lenior Rhyne at Catawba and Guilford at Western Carolina.

NEW YORK (AP)—If the world indoor half-mile record of 1:50.5 is going to be broken, Arnie Sowell of Pitt should do it.

And if the Patner stringbean is going to do it, tonight is the night in the New York Athletic Club Games at Madison Square Garden.

Sowell, who holds the Pan-American, AAU and ICAA half-mile titles, has been rattling off the likes of 1:48.6 and 1:49.8, well under the late John Borican's 1942 record of 1:50.5.

The mile will produce the same old crew—Ron Delany, Jr. Deady and Len Truex—with New York University's George King an added starter. King is on hand in hopes of making Delany do a little running to win. But the slim Violet never has gone under 4:11.3, a fact with which Delany is quite familiar.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Vic Seixas after quelling an uprising against his dominance of Florida tennis faced Johann Kupferberger of the University of Miami in a scintillating match in the South Florida Tennis Tournament today.

Seixas is undefeated in his winning campaign. But Peter Scholl, German Davis Cup player, came closer than anyone else yesterday. After each had won a set, Scholl ran up a 6-3 count in the deciding third set.

Then he became cautious and Seixas took the offensive. Seixas won five straight games to defeat Scholl 2-6, 6-2, 7-5.

It was the first time Scholl has played Seixas. The German plans to return home after this tournament is completed.

Duke Has To Beat Deacs To Stay On Top In ACC

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Duke's high flying Blue Devils will be out on revenge when they play host to Wake Forest tonight and they had better get it if they want to stay on top of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball race.

The contest highlights a four-game card that finds seven of the eight league teams in action. North Carolina is at Virginia and South Carolina invades North Carolina State in two other conference games while Maryland travels to George Washington, a cross-town rival.

Wake Forest tightened the knot among the top four teams last night with an impressive 96-77 victory over South Carolina. The victory pushed the Deacons into a second-place tie with North Carolina. Duke needs tonight's game to stay out in front.

Ayden-Winterville Halve Pitt County Doubleheader

Ayden and Winterville split a couple of County Conference titles last night, as the Winterville girls and Ayden boys won.

In the first game, Barbara Evans led her visiting Winterville crew to a close 43-41 victory, scoring 26 points with a variety of shots. Sutton for the losers collected 26 markers also.

The second game was a lopsided affair as Ayden rolled to a 50-37 triumph behind the sharp shooting of Bert Tripp. Tripp was high man for both teams with 17 points.

Logart Wins In 'Wrestling' Bout

NEW YORK (AP)—Isaac Logart moaned of Ramon Fuentes "wrestler, wrestler" and Fuentes blasted Logart "he's not so fast, can't even talk." It may be that both were right.

Logart won a split 10-round decision over the 29-year-old veteran from Los Angeles last night at Madison Square Garden. The 200-pounder paid $8,000 to sit on the nationally televised fight but little patience with the two ranking welterweight contenders.

Referee Ruby Goldstein, who voted for Logart 5-4-1, warned both fighters throughout to "give us a little action" and "come on and fight." Judge Bert Grant also had Logart on top 6-4, but Judge Joe Vaccarella gave it to Fuentes on points 6-5 with a 5-3 score in points. The AP saw it 5-5 and would have given Logart an edge on the last round.

The two welterweights crammed most of the action in the 10th round when Logart, 146, pinned Fuentes, 147, against the ropes for two full minutes blasting away while Ramon scored with counter punches.

Fuentes came out of it with a badly puffed right eye.

"Fuentes ought to be said Logart and his manager, Eddie Marfil, said I wanted to fight, he not let me," said the Cuban.

Farmville girls racked up their 26th straight triumph last night by defeating Snow Hill, 45-27. The Farmville boys made a clean sweep of the doubleheader by winning also, 54-38.

Farmville's Gardner pumped in 25 points to pace the victory, the 26th over this season. Moore added 13. Harper had 14 points to lead Snow Hill's sextet.

Wood of Farmville shot his way to 16 points in the boys win. Mack Holmes contributed 12. Jones had 11 for Snow Hill.

Roanoke Rapids Easy G-Men Prey

By BILLY ARNOLD Reflector Sports Writer Paced by the 22-point performance of Harold Edwards, the Greenville Phantoms trounced the Roanoke Rapids basketballers 78-36 last night in a Northeastern Conference match for their 10th consecutive win.

The league-leading Phants ripped into the contest with some of its best playing thus far this year, using the vaunted fast-break attack to its ultimate effectiveness. Every man on the Green team saw action.

Early Green Lead Greenville was favored to take the contest by a big margin, having beaten the Yellow Jackets by 46 points earlier in the season. The visiting Phants made it obvious to all in the first quarter that they intended to live up to their rating, and when the game was over, he had dealt the Jackets a 42-marker loss.

Edwards, Ike Riddick and Jerry Drum rocketed the locals to an early lead in the opening minutes of the fray, pushing the score to 20-4 at one time. Every G-Man was effective in the rebound department and their skill beneath the boards, combined with a sharp one-on-one defense, held their foes to only six points in the first period. When the first buzzer sounded, it was 25-6.

Coach Boley Farley opened the second quarter with a rash of substitutions. Ike Riddick and Ray Hardee were given a rest, as Tommy Norris and Wayne Edson entered the lineup. The Green pumped in 18 tallies during the No. 2 period and the home team was allowed only nine.

Phantoms Pull Away The third quarter found the first team Phantoms back in the ball game. Edwards, who had hit for 13 in the first half, was still throwing in shots from every position on the court. Most of his buckets came from the deep corners on one-hand jump shots. He added nine more tallies to his total before leaving the contest in the final minutes of the quarter.

Riddick and Drum combined on deep shots to score 10 between them in the third period, and Ray Hardee added four more. Billy Johnson concentrated on rebounds and combined with Edwards to give the Phants a monopoly in that department. At the end of the third section, the score stood 62-26.

Farley again substituted in the first minutes of the final period. A whole new Greenie team took to the court as Norris, Edson, Joe Wingate, Mack Roebuck, Angus Duff, Charlie Smith and Roger Bullock saw action.

Both squads tallied 10 points in the last quarter, the contest ended 78-36 and went down in the books as Greenville's 10th victory without a defeat in loop circles.

The regular Green quintet was hitting better as a unit last night than at any time this season. Edwards, who is currently pacing the conference individual scorers, remained in form with a 22-point job. Riddick collected 12, and Billy Johnson scored nine. Shooting well were Ray Hardee and guard Jerry Drum. Drum racked up 13 points, his best effort of the season, and Hardee got 10.

Greenville's defense, which has not been the strongest in the league by any means, was much more powerful than at any time this year. The Jackets were never able to score over 11 points in any quarter while the Phants hit for 25 on two occasions.

The next game for the Farleyers will be held in Jacksonville on Tuesday night and will be a loop affair.

Proclamation

WHEREAS, it is the conviction of the United Council of Church Women, in fellowship with all those who seek the divine guidance of our Creator, that the many problems confronting us today can be solved only with the help of Almighty God; and

WHEREAS, World Day of Prayer has been designated on an international, interdenominational, interracial basis to join the people of the world together in furtherance of the doctrine, "The Lord is Thy Keeper"; and

WHEREAS, in order that the Church may fulfill the important role of exerting practical witness to the fact of God's purpose in human affairs, thereby advancing the international cause of peace on earth, it is necessary that we be ever mindful of the vast power of prayer in furthering his word and his work and in combating the forces of evil that surround us;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, W. L. Whedbee, mayor of Greenville, do hereby proclaim Friday, February 17, 1956 as in the city of Greenville, and call upon the people of our city to observe this day as an individual invitation to attend a specific World Day of Prayer meeting and if the duties of some are such as to make this impossible, I urge the people to take their work for one minute at High Noon, to ask that God give us light to guide us; courage to support us and love to reunite us.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the seal of the city of Greenville, this 10th day of February, A. D. 1956.

W. L. Whedbee
MAYOR

Funeral Sunday For Mrs. R. C. Lancaster

Mrs. Kate Hardesty Lancaster, 56 wife of Russell C. Lancaster, died at 12:10 o'clock Saturday morning at her home in Vanceboro. She suffered a heart attack two hours earlier.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Vanceboro Methodist Church Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by a former pastor, the Rev. Alton Hill, assisted by the Rev. Horace Quigley, Christian Minister of Gardner's Crossroads. Burial will be in the New Bern Memorial Cemetery. The body will be carried to the church one hour prior to the time of services.

Mrs. Lancaster, daughter of the late Jesse W. and Elizabeth Styrton Hardesty, was born and reared in Carteret County. She attended Louisville College and for several years was a teacher in Carteret County schools. She was married to Mr. Lancaster in 1932, and since that time had lived in Craven County, and for the past seven years in Vanceboro. She was a member of the Vanceboro Methodist Church, and a member of the Vanceboro Woman's Club.

Surviving are her husband; a sister, Miss Mable Hardesty of New Bern; and a brother, George D. Hardesty, of New Bern.

Red Oak News

A challenge to "grow more food supplies" on the farm in 1956 was presented to about forty men and women of the Red Oak community last Wednesday evening by County Farm Agent S. C. Winchester and Assistant Home Demonstration Agent Miss Lois Jones.

The occasion was a delightful "covered dish" supper given by the Red Oak Home Demonstration Club members who had as their special guests their husbands and sons, also Mr. and Mrs. Sam Winchester, Mr. and Mrs. Oia S. Kittrell and Miss Lois Jones.

The tables and club building were decorated with Valentines and floral arrangements with red candles. Red place cards were used and Misses Barbara Stocks, Sue Allen, Joandell Evans and Joyce Jackson served coffee and rolls.

Mrs. Charles Jackson led the group in two delightful games.

Liquid air turns to vapor at such a low temperature that it boils when poured on ice.

Rabies Clinics Set Next Week

Pitt County rabies control dog vaccination clinics will be held for the third consecutive week next week.

The clinics will continue through March 10, and all dogs four months of age or older must be vaccinated, according to state law.

A penalty of $1 will be charged for late vaccinations. Immunization fee at the clinics is $1 per dog. All shots are given by licensed veterinarians.

Schedule for next week follows:
Monday—1:00-2:00 p.m.—House's Station; 2:15-3:30, Andrews & Whitehurst; 3:45-5:00, Earl's Service Station.
Tuesday—1:00-2:00, Everett's Service Station; 2:15-4:00, Stokes; 4:15-5:00, Pete's Service Station.
Wednesday—1:00-1:45, M. D. Moeley's Store; 2:00-2:45, Arthur Keel's Store; 3:00-3:45, J. J. Taylor's Store; 4:00-5:00, Roy Simmons' Store.
Thursday—1:00-2:00, Wesley Johnson's Store; 2:15-3:15, Tripp's Crossroads; 3:30-5:00, Pactolus Post Office.
Friday—1:00-2:00, Simpson; 2:15-3:00, D. W. Bailey's Store; 3:15-5:00, Grimesland.
Saturday—9:00 a.m. to 12 noon, New Enterprise Warehouse.

Pitt Ranks 19th In Vehicle List

Only 18 North Carolina counties had more motor vehicles registered in them during 1955 than did Pitt County.

An estimate released yesterday showed 22,605 registrations here.

Leading the list of the state's 100 counties is Mecklenburg, where 99,859 are registered. Guilford County has 93,060 and Wake County 73,000 registrations.

At the other end of the list, Tyrrell County has only 1230 registered motor vehicles. Some 1379 are registered in Clay and 1568 in Hyde.

FELLOW OFFICER
FOR THE SAFETY OF THE OFFICERS IN FRONT OF YOU DO NOT RUN UPSTAIRS WITH A COCKED FIREARM.

JOE PERIOD, WE KNOW YOU'RE HID IN THOSE STEEL GIRDERS SOMEWHERE!

WE'RE GIVING YOU FIVE MINUTES TO SURRENDER.

IF WE DON'T SEE YOU OR HEAR YOUR VOICE WITHIN FIVE MINUTES, WE'RE FILLING THESE PASSAGES WITH TEAR GAS.
MEOW

THERE ARE LOTS OF RATS IN THESE WALLS—I HEARD 'EM. THAT'S WHAT BRINGS YOU HERE, EH, KITTEN?
MEOW

YOU'RE COLD AND WET. THAT MEANS YOU HAVE ACCESS TO THE OUTDOORS.

IF I CAN FOLLOW YOU, I CAN GET OUT OF HERE.

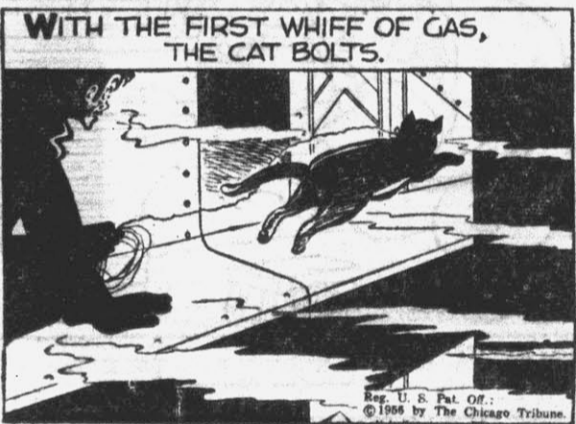

OKAY—SCAT, CAT? SCAT!

GET GOING—BEAT IT!

HERE IT COMES—

WITH THE FIRST WHIFF OF GAS, THE CAT BOLTS.

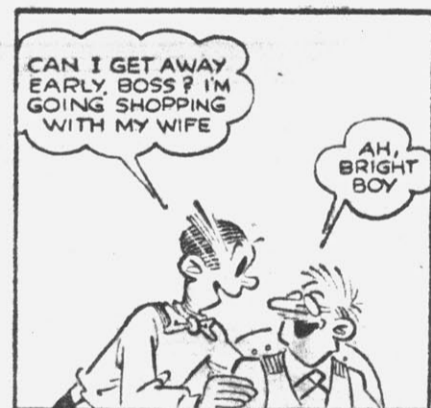

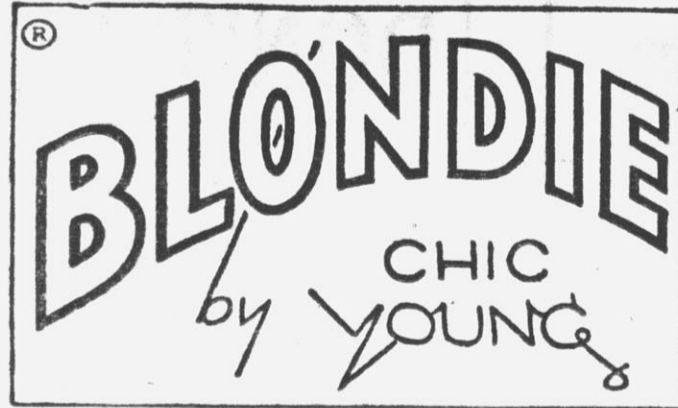

EASY, CAT! YI! DON'T BREAK THAT YARN!

CAN I GET AWAY EARLY, BOSS? I'M GOING SHOPPING WITH MY WIFE
AH, BRIGHT BOY

I FIGURE IF I GO ALONG WITH HER I CAN RESTRAIN HER AND SHE WON'T BUY SO MUCH

YOU'RE SO RIGHT—IN THIS STRUGGLE BETWEEN THE SEXES, WE HUSBANDS HAVE TO USE OUR HEADS

SHE'S LATE—I'LL DUCK IN THE DRUGSTORE AND GET A CUP OF COFFEE WHILE I'M WAITING

OH, GOODIE—HE'S NOT HERE YET—I'LL RUN OVER TO FINNEY'S AND LOOK AT SOME DRESSES WHILE I'M WAITING

IT'S LOVELY—I'LL TAKE IT

AND HOW ABOUT THE MATCHING JACKET TO GO WITH IT?

SHE'S STILL NOT HERE—I'D BETTER PHONE HOME AND SEE WHAT'S HAPPENED TO HER

NOW WHERE CAN HE BE? MY FEET ARE KILLING ME. I'LL GO TO MARIE'S AND LOOK AT SOME HATS

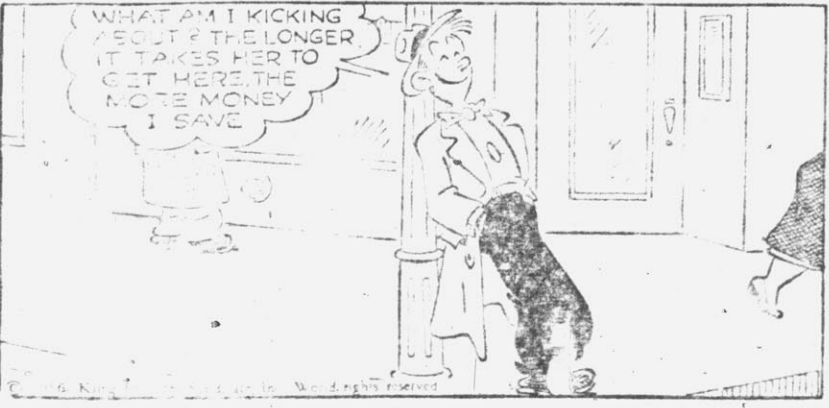

I ALWAYS SAY WHEN YOU CAN'T DECIDE BETWEEN TWO HATS, TAKE BOTH OF THEM

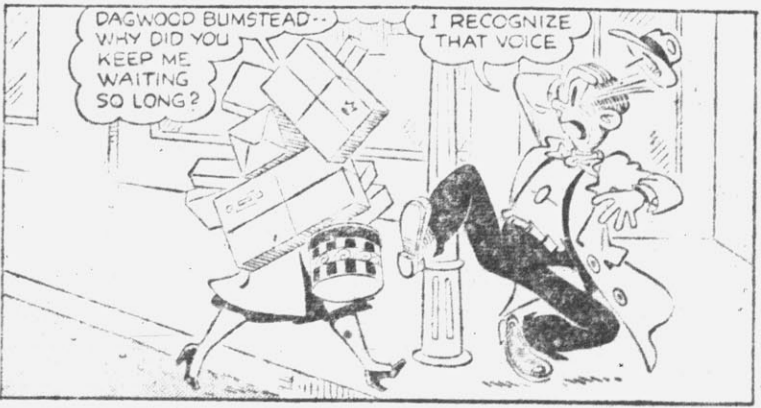

GOOD IDEA, MARIE

NO ANSWER AT HOME? NOW WHERE CAN SHE BE? THIS THING IS TURNING INTO A NIGHTMARE

WHAT AM I KICKING 'BOUT? THE LONGER IT TAKES HER TO GET HERE, THE MORE MONEY I SAVE

DAGWOOD BUMSTEAD—WHY DID YOU KEEP ME WAITING SO LONG?

I RECOGNIZE THAT VOICE

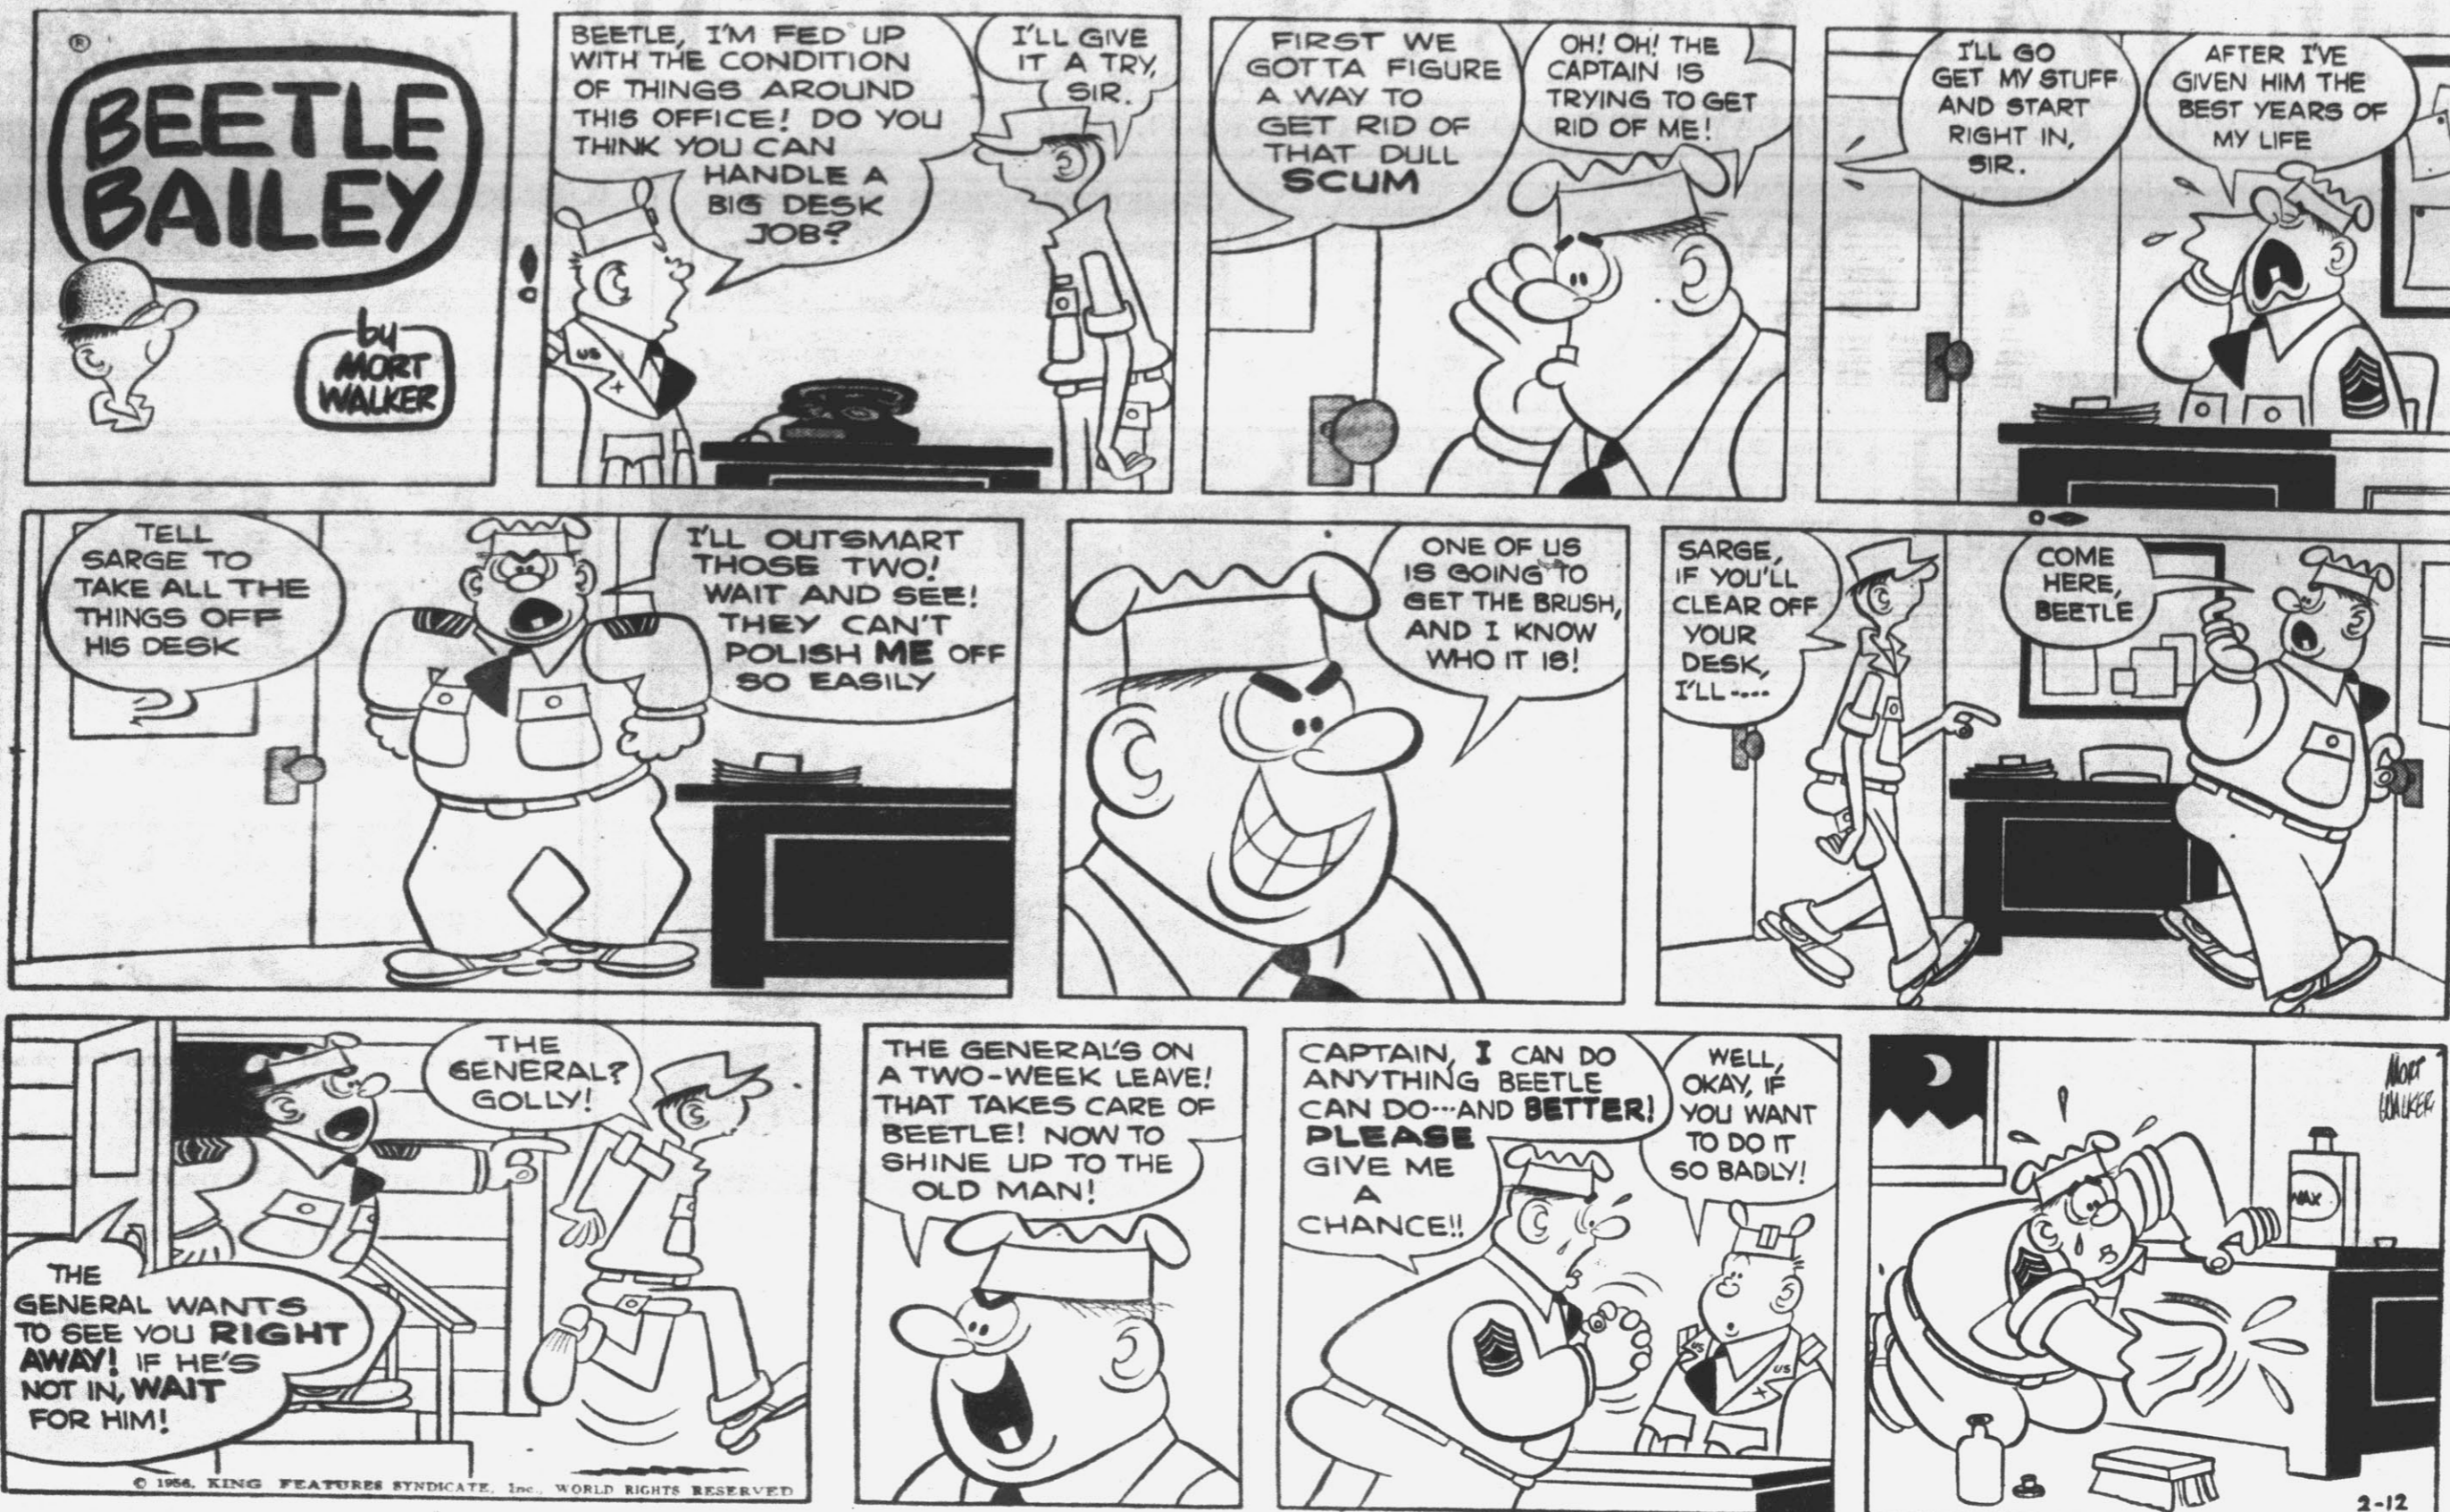

THAT WAS FUN—WHY DON'T YOU COME SHOPPING WITH ME MORE OFTEN, DEAR?
