Eisenhower Gets Medical Green Light; Flies South

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower left by plane today for a Georgia vacation. He took off in his plane Columbia III at 10:35 a.m. less than 24 hours after his doctors reported to him and to the nation that there is no medical barrier to his running again and serving another term if elected.

His decision as to whether to run again. From physicians who examined him, the verdict was that he appeared fit for "another 5 to 10 years" in the presidency. But the doctors offered no advice as to whether he should run again.

enhower will bid for another four years in the White House if he is physically able. Sen. Carlson (R-Kan), one of the original Eisenhower-for-president boosters, summed it up in saying: "It's the best news the people of the United States and the world have had since the President was stricken. This gives added hope and assurance he will serve for another four years."

Health Director Plans Recommend Step To City Council Will Suggest Water Fluoridation

"Critics of the program have admitted sodium fluoride in the water will prevent tooth decay in children," he pointed out, "but they have said it causes damage in later years to adults' kidneys and hearts, and makes bones brittle. Exhaustive tests have shown this is not so, and I am now ready to make my recommendation to the City Council."

that one to one and one-half parts sodium fluoride per million parts of drinking water will prevent dental cavities in children, if given over a period of years. "Further, it costs only a few cents a year per person after the first year of installation. The overall cost, after the first year, will run about five to fourteen cents per person."

Eighteen Communities Asked Contribute To Task Map Financing Of Airport

Eighteen Eastern North Carolina municipalities have been asked to contribute to an operation fund for the group seeking to establish a joint air facility for this section of the state. Representatives of the towns met yesterday in Raleigh with William P. Saunders, director of the Department of Conservation and Development, to further plans for the facility which were initiated at a meeting in Farmville last month.

Both Kingston and Rocky Mount now have air service, but at the meeting yesterday Charles McCullers, manager of Kingston's Charles McCullers, told the group, "I don't think we can afford to go along with anything that will help develop Eastern North Carolina. We must look at this matter from the area instead of a local standpoint."

Just prior to the adjournment, at the request of the committee, C. D. director Saunders agreed to conduct a survey to establish economic justification and need for an adequate air facility in the area. He called on governing bodies and chambers of commerce to aid in furnishing information and statistics to complete the survey. He added that the survey information will be available in time for the next meeting of the group set for the Tarboro Country Club on March 20.

Surprise birthday parties are in vogue. Thursday night while Nancy Harris was industriously working on her source theme (which happens to be on jazz music) at the library her mother and several friends planned the surprise.

Nancy got many nice gifts, and everyone enjoyed the punch and the cake, but they missed Memrie Mosier who couldn't make it. "Cara Mia" was dedicated to the girls over "Starlight Serenade."

That same Thursday night Marietta Northrop's mother had a surprise dinner party to celebrate Marietta's sixteenth birthday. Stuart Best helped keep Nancy from finding out any secrets during the afternoon.

About 6:30 Margaret Ruffin, Ginger Lang, Martha Corbett and Carol Ann Tadlock went over to the Northrop home for dinner.
Later a few invited guests, Edmund Ruffin, Hugh Duncan, Coleman Ruffin, Mickey West and Jack Calhoun, crashed the party.

Mrs. Spilman Speaks To Club

Mrs. J. C. Lanier was hostess to the Chatham Book Club Tuesday afternoon at her home in Rock Springs.

The home was attractively decorated throughout with camellias. Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. J. B. Spilman, Mrs. Percy Upchurch and Mrs. W. T. Kyzer.

Mrs. Carl Adams, president, presided over a routine business meeting. Mrs. W. P. Moore gave several interesting current events.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. Adams turned the meeting over to Mrs. Leonard Topping who had charge of the program for the afternoon. Mrs. Topping introduced her guest speaker, Mrs. J. B. Spilman.

Mrs. Spilman centered her program on two outstanding women, Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest, our United States Treasurer, and Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit of India.

Madame Pandit has recently been appointed as co-chairman of World Brotherhood, said Mrs. Spilman. She told of her effective work with the United Nations, stressing especially a world free from hatreds, fears and coming catastrophes.

Madame Pandit's career of public service began when she became an active participant in Gandhi's efforts to free her homeland from British domination through a campaign of civil disobedience and non-violent resistance. Her burning desire is that India may achieve true democracy.

Mrs. Spilman then gave a resume of the life of Mrs. Priest. She spoke of her political career, her youth and the obstacles that had to be overcome during childhood. Mrs. Priest is a Mormon and says she took her Bible and the fourteen Articles of Faith of the Mormon Church to Washington with her and stated, "In these I find inner fortification."

After this most interesting and informative program, Mrs. Lanier invited her guests into the dining room, where from a decorated table, Mrs. Carl Adams and Mrs. N. E. Beard assisted in serving a salad course, cake and coffee.

Books were exchanged and the club adjourned.

Robersonville PTA Holds Meet

ROBERSONVILLE—The Parent-Teachers Association held its regular meeting in the Robersonville High School auditorium Thursday evening at 7:30.

The Rev. J. B. Hurley gave the invocation. Mr. C. B. Martin then introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Woodrow Flannery, head of the Reading Clinic at East Carolina College, who made a very informative talk on reading problems in the schools.

This was followed by a short skill in commemoration of Founder's Day.

All past presidents were then honored by Mrs. Phillip Keel and Mrs. Hassell Worsley who pinned red carnations on each one. Mr. Martin spoke of their untiring service to the community and concluded his praise by sincere thanks for their willing help.

Mr. Whitehurst's eighth grade received the attendance prize for the evening.

At the close of the interesting program, Mrs. Joe Brake Roberson invited the audience to a social in the school cafeteria where the Valentine motif was used. A pretty white cake decorated in red and centered with a large red candle was served by Mrs. Oscar Burch while Mrs. Paul Roberson poured the cranberry punch.

Candidate Finds Office Filled

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A lawyer here finds he has been running for an office which won't be vacant for two years. George P. Roney announced last week he would be a candidate for state Democratic executive committeeman from Hillsborough County.

Checking elections laws later, he discovered committeemen now are elected for four years and the term of incumbent C. J. Hardee Jr. runs until 1958 to run. Until 1942 the term was two years.

Roney said his announcement still holds good—it will just give him a little longer to get his campaign organized.

Ready To Give Up School Autonomy?

Those naive enough to have thought that the federal government would provide funds for public schools without receiving in return a measure of control over those schools should be coming to their senses by now.

On almost every occasion in which federal aid to education has been discussed there has come out, intentionally or unintentionally, at least an inkling of how Washington bureaucrats would gain some control over the system which traditionally has been autonomous within each state.

This week New York's Gov. Harriman, an "inactive" candidate for the presidential nomination, asserted he favors barring from federal aid educational systems which resist desegregation. He is only one among many who has voiced such a proposal, since New York's Rep. Powell introduced an amendment to that effect to the federal aid to education bill. History has taught the states and indeed local governments that federal aid does not come without federal strings attached. Each federal dollar is attached with government red tape, and likewise explicit instructions concerning the purposes for which it can be spent and how the object which is purchased can be used. There is certainly no reason to hope for an abrupt desertion of past policy in the case of federal aid to education.

Members of Congress—like Sen. Scott of North Carolina—who are asking constituents if they would approve federal aid to education without federal controls are merely whistling in the dark. There is no, and never has been any such thing as federal aid without federal control.

No state can afford to pass into the hand of federal bureaucrats control of its school system in return for a few of Uncle Sam's dollars. Certainly the 48 states collectively can ill afford to pass to the federal government control over the public schools of the country.

The moment a state accepts federal dollars for its school program, however, it will be relinquishing autonomy over its public school system. As in the case of other federal aid programs, the controls will become more pronounced with passing years. Once a state has become addicted to federal dollars for support of its school program, federal demands for more controls will be made and meekly submitted to by the states.

There is no such thing as federal aid to public schools without federal control of public schools. Those who maintain federal aid to schools can be had without federal control are deceiving themselves and others as well.

UNC Standards May Have Broader Impact

Entrance examinations for applicants to the three units of the University of North Carolina is a departure from a long established system adhered to by the institution; but in our estimation it should serve to raise the scholastic level of the school.

Prior to action by trustees of the University, it had been a policy to admit graduates from high schools within the state without entrance examinations. Beginning in September 1957 all applicants will be required to pass an examination before being allowed to enroll at the University at Chapel Hill, Women's College at Greensboro, or N. C. State at Raleigh.

In the past the University has taken the position that any graduate of a North Carolina high school had received sufficient secondary school instructions to be admitted to the University. In spite of the fact that certain minimum standards are set for high schools throughout the state, there is a wide range in the calibre of instruction graduates of individual high schools have received before going to college.

Through entrance examinations the University will be able to determine whether a student is ready, scholastically at least, for the level of instruction offered freshmen. Such a move, in our estimation, will be of value to the University in setting its level of instruction, and at the same time it will be of value to students who might otherwise be admitted to the school and then find themselves totally unprepared for college work.

The executive secretary of the University's board of trustees asserted that the University, through the entrance examination, is making "an effort to improve the scholastic standards of our high schools." While the scholastic standards of a high school cannot be judged by the ability of any one student to pass a given examination, it is quite possible that the entrance examination required at the University may have a bearing on the improvement of scholastic standards in the high schools of the state.

While the requirement of an entrance examination may be a stumbling block to a few students who wish to enter the University, it will in the long run prove beneficial to the University, its student body and to the high schools of North Carolina.

With Public's Support, C-of-C Is Aiming Higher

Greenville's Chamber of Commerce has adopted an ambitious budget for the current year; but its increased budget is sorely needed if the city is to put forth the type industrial development program needed by the community.

The $15,000 budget represents an increase of approximately $4,000 over the Chamber budget for 1955, and practically all the increase is earmarked for industrial development.

In any community, the success of efforts by the Chamber of Commerce is directly dependent upon support given the organization by the people of the community. In the final analysis the people make or break the Chamber of Commerce.

If Greenville's Chamber this year is to put forth the type of comprehensive program to promote industrial development in this community, it must have additional funds with which to work. That means additional funds will have to come from the people of the community upon which the Chamber depends for its finances. Additional funds must be obtained either through more members within the community or more liberal contributions by existing members or through both means.

Although Greenville's Chamber of Commerce has carried on a relatively good industrial development program with the limited funds it had to use for such purposes, it has not been able to do the job which Greenville needs done in this field. With adequate financial support this year the local Chamber of Commerce can greatly increase the scope of its industrial development activities and give the city the calibre program it needs.

This, however, can only be done if the people of the community lend the necessary financial support to the Chamber of Commerce. It is our hope for the sake of Greenville's continued growth and development, that the necessary financial assistance will be forthcoming from the people of the city.

More Emphasis On Vocational Training

By LYNN NISBET

VOCATIONAL training is the next General Assembly will be asked to step up support of vocational training for young men and women who cannot take full college courses. That is for sure.

Who approach the Legislature will be asked to take, or what the lawmakers will decide to do about possible alternate proposals is not so certain. Several proposals have been suggested. One is to integrate more vocational courses into the regular high school curricula. Another is an enlarged system of community junior colleges, with courses designed to serve the major interests of the communities where located. Still another is a system of privately operated "business schools"—the business to include automobile repairing, lawn mowing, pipe fitting, electrician, etc., as well as bookkeeping and clerical services.

It is known that a plan is under study and several regional conferences have been held to consider it, for establishment of a system of technical institutes at strategic points, under control of the State Board of Education, but not integrated into the regular high school program.

These institutes might be similar to the textile school at Belmont, which has a separate board of trustees but is to some extent related to the State Board of Education. They might be more like the technical institute operated at Gastonia, moved some three years ago from Morehead City, by the extension division of the State College. Or the plan is finally adopted may combine the better features of all these existing facilities into a completely new cooperative venture, jointly supported by the State Board of Education, the extension services of the University and State College and the communities.

DEMAND — The need and demand for more vocational training is recognized. The Department of Conservation and Development has often complained that lack of technically trained personnel and, what is more important, lack of facilities for training is a major handicap in locating new industry in North Carolina.

Industries which have come into the state have been uniformly complimentary of the adaptability of raw North Carolina labor to training. Their main gripe is they have to do the training. They would come more quickly if there was a backlog of already trained personnel, or better facilities for community training to meet their requirements.

The CD boys have been pressuring the schools to provide more courses in the traditional three R's in the regular curricula. Concurrently the highway safety folks have insisted upon driver training courses in the high schools. Also there are requests for courses in the menaces of alcoholism and numerous other individually laudable projects. Point is, impact of all these special courses shoots to pieces the curricula in general education—which the schools are designed to afford.

WASTE — Presently the two vocational studies most generally offered in high schools are in agriculture and home economics. Many thoughtful persons are wondering why in an off-the-record comment that a lot of money and energy could be saved if the vocational education leaders had the "grute" to buck members of the legislature who insist upon abandoning their agricultural and home economics courses in a great many school where they are now entrenched.

MARKERS — Ever wonder why there are some historic markers along the highways which identify points of questionable historic interest while some other points, which you think much more important, are not marked? It is because a group of historians on faculties of the University of North Carolina, Davidson, Duke and Wake Forest have different ideas from yours about historical values.

A new "Guide to North Carolina Highway Historical Markers" has just been published. It lists 755 markers erected in a cooperative program by the Department of Archives and History and the Highway and Public Works Commission, upon recommendation of a special Advisory Committee on Historical Markers, under provisions of a 1935 legislative act. The committee has five members of the faculty of the University at Chapel Hill, two from Duke and one each from State, Davidson and Wake Forest.

This contemplated and the committee has sought to achieve, erection of markers only for points of general statewide interest rather than a purely local. The foremost in the Revolu-tionary period include military, political, cultural and other interests in all the periods of state history, colonial, revolutionary, Confederacy and others.

It is still hard to see why the fact that the marriage of Horace Greeley in Warrenton rates a marker while the settlement of Andrew Jackson's parents and death of his father in Mecklenburg county (now Union) does not.

There are markers showing the site of the Halifax Resolution and others showing where important incidents of the Revolutionary war occurred in the Charlotte-Mecklenburg area, but nothing to indicate there was ever a Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence although date of the alleged "event" is by statute on the State flag.

If You Can't Beat 'em, Join

Jack Wallace, local realtor, tells this one. Some time back two North Carolinians, friends of Jack's, decided they would move to Florida. When the pair arrived in that booming state they began to look around for an occupation. The two found that real estate was the thing. Land was selling like hot cakes. However, they learned they had to pass a rigid examination given by the state to obtain a realtor's license. That meant they must attend a school in order to glean the necessary information. Thus the two looked up a school for prospective real estate agents and enrolled for the expensive course.

Carolina. He came home, got a job paying a respectable salary. Several months later he heard from the friend he had left starving in Florida.

"Man," the Florida friend declared, "I'm making money hands over fist down here." "You are?" said the returnee. "Why, I don't understand. When I left down there neither one of us could make a dime. Nobody wanted real estate and every one was selling it. How are you making money selling land?" "Selling land?" the Floridian replied. "Who's selling land? I opened up a school for real estate agents."

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't read his mail: That nearly four out of five American men over 25 years of age are worried about losing their hair. That while a majority of baldies think it would be a good idea for their bald friends to wear a toupee, they are afraid to do so themselves, mostly because of a fear of being kidded. But for some reason they don't feel President Eisenhower — or Adlai Stevenson, for that matter — should don a toupee. That 76 per cent of the custom-made hairpieces made by a major firm in this growing industry are bought by men under 40—and the biggest demand is for the Ivy League crew-cut style.

That you can be identified by your "brainprint" now as well as by your fingerprints. Medical research has established that the patterns of electrical energy given off by your brain are as individual as the whorls on your fingerprints. That you can make money in the average tavern by betting no one at the bar can name the seven U.S. presidents who died or were assassinated while in office. They were W.H. Harrison, Taylor, Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley, Harding and Franklin D. Roosevelt. That for all his height and great strength Abraham Lincoln was a light eater. For the benefit of the calorie-conscious, here is how "Old Abe" solved his food needs on a typical day: Breakfast, one egg, one cup of coffee, lunch, a biscuit, a glass of milk, an apple; dinner, soup, meat and potatoes. The only dessert he liked was home made apple pie. That although production of the "Tin Goose," Ford's famous trimotor aerial transport, ceased in 1932 many of these distinctive old planes are still in active service, particularly in bush country. That a man who boasts he is "double-jointed" doesn't know what he is bragging about. The ligaments that hold his bones together simply are looser than those of the ordinary person. If he actually had double joints, he would belong in a bottle at Harvard, along with other medical rarities. That Joe Miller never really wrote a joke book. Miller, an English comedian who died in 1738 was just as unorigi-nal as any of today's celebrated comics, who notoriously have to lean on hired gagsters for most of their laugh material. The joke book that bears Miller's name was written by John Motley, a playwright of that day. That Uncle Sam's "revengeons" are no more miffed at moonshiners than licensed distillers, who estimate that more than a fourth of the whiskey consumed in America last year was turned out by tax-ducking illegal stills. That traffic experts predict the nation's highways, jammed with more than 61 million vehicles today, will have to carry 80 million by the end of 1960. Free parking places should become top prizes on TV giveaway programs then. That hearing aids concealed in eyeglasses are becoming commonplace now, but in 1890 many partly deaf men wore ear trumpets built into their hats.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
A HAUGHTY SPIRIT
The medieval Church held that pride is the greatest of all sins. Not only did the Church teach this doctrine—it found this doctrine in the Word of God. A good cast can be made out of the theory that practically all sin goes back to the sin of pride. There is a wholesome type of pride which everyone should have. We are proud of our country, proud of our families, proud of our friends. Mixed in with all the mistakes we have made, there are some achievements in the lives of every one of us in which we can take just pride. The pride which the Bible condemns is not this variety.

The debasing type of pride which separates a man from his fellows is that which tends to lift him in his own esteem above others. Evil pride is the type of thing which often comes in to blast romance, because one of the other party would not admit wrong or ask forgiveness. Ruminous pride often leads parents to set up ideals for their children quite apart from what their children can do or want to do. Pride has driven men to make fortunes by trampling upon their fellows. Pride causes the Pharisee to stand even in the temple of God, and give thanks that he is not as other men. "Pride goeth before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall."

Significance In Anti-Trust Campaign

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON The Eisenhower Administration's vigorous enforcement of antitrust laws against great corporations with Republican backgrounds and leanings has vast political significance, whether so designed or not. But Attorney General Herbert B. Brownell, Jr. is no tyro in law or politics or economics. Indeed, his antitrust prosecutions, including those achieved or contemplated by his bulky champion in this field, Assistant Attorney General Stanley N. Barnes of California, shock "Madison Avenue hucksters" and "Pro-Eisenhower men in Wall Street. They are not appreciated by F.D.R.'s "economic royalists" and Truman's "greedy men." Even the Democrats suspect the Brownell-Barnes strategy. By smashing monopolies, or by forcing a more wholesome and orderly form of competition upon industry, the GOP prosecutors may prevent the Democrats from talking about this issue in the Presidential campaign. It may be "old stuff" by November.

Another major issue eliminated the Democrats themselves have eliminated another major issue, and with the blessing of the Rayburn-Johnson leadership on Capitol Hill. They did so when they forced through their northern Democratic protests the bill freeing natural gas producers of maximum Federal regulation. With the Rayburn-Johnson faction also responsible for returning the oil fields to the states, principally California, Texas and Louisiana—the opposition canceled their liberal colleagues' repeated charges that the Administration has "given away" priceless natural resources. In both instances, the more influential Democrats agreed with one of Ike's major tenets—a minimum of Federal controls and a maximum of private enterprise and development. BIPARTISAN ACHIEVEMENT Without the Rayburn-Johnson in "face, which swayed the votes of numerous oil-fence Democrats, neither the release of gas and tideland oil producers from bureaucratic domination could have been accomplished. It was a bipartisan achievement. Liberal Democrats will, of course, raise this issue in the Presidential and Congressional battles, including even the "moderate" Stevenson. The public ownership faction, Truman, Ke-fauver, Lehman, Morse, Humphrey, Neuberger—will hammer it in shrill speeches. But the Republicans can answer them with hot and angry words from the lips of the Democratic Party's elected and ordained leaders on and off Capitol Hill. REMINISCENT OF TR'S ERA Barnes' contribution to the GOP's political welfare has been even more spectacular and solid. His actual and threatened trust-busting activities are reminiscent of TR's era. He obtained a consent decree against the American Telephone & Telegraph Company and International Business Machines, forcing them to open patents to competitors. He broke up a profitable agreement among "Madi-

Why Hike Freight Rates?

By ELMER ROESSNER

That piece here yesterday about railroad freight and express rates brought in a lot of uncomplimentary remarks, and there probably will be many more today.

It seems it said here that coming increases in rates would boost the price of goods to consumers, but that we ought to stop regulating shipping rates anyhow because the competition would keep prices down. Even people in our own office have accused us of advocating higher prices and of turning the country over to the railroad interests.

Let's get one thing straight first. This department does not advocate anything except respect for parents, killing poisonous snakes, stopping for red lights and a few homely virtues. It does believe in examining public and business questions, even the unpopular sides.

RAILROADS TO BLAME Most of the unValentinely remarks about your correspondent were charged with emotion. That's natural when an examining public and business questions, even the unpopular sides. The railroads of this country were not built by a flight of unemployed saints. They were thrown across the nation by a band of roving railroad pirates who bribed legislators, grabbed public land and rooked each other.

The phrase, "all the traffic will bear," was first uttered by a railroad president who had been asked the road's rate policy and "the public be damned" was either the word of another railroad president or of a reporter who misunderstood him.

Railroads had a monopoly and most of them wrung every gold piece they could out of their monopolies. Voters got angry, their wrath was kindled by Frank Norris' "The Octopus," and in 1906 Congress gave the Interstate Commerce Commission authority to regulate rates.

When monopoly existed, regulation was necessary. Perhaps we are punting ourselves by regulating ourselves. They had, in fact, rubbed our faces in the time.

PROFITS HAVE CHANGED There is no longer a monopoly. Railroads have lost most of the price of frankness and a tenth of their freight to competitors.

Regulation now is not a method of controlling monopoly; it is a semi-socialism of a single industry or, perhaps, a group of related industries. However, only a fourth of the nation's trucks and a tenth of its water carriers are regulated.

We do not regulate railroads as monopolies, because they no longer are. Perhaps we are punishing them for past sins, because of tradition or to maintain the jobs of the regulating bureaucracy.

But if we continue to regulate the rates railroads may charge, why shouldn't we regulate charges for doctors' attentions, shoe shines (we do in some government concessions), Turkish baths and lawyers' fees? Or why not the price of frankness (as we did during the war), shoes, television sets and automobiles?

Come to think of it, the government does regulate the price of butter and other farm products through price supports, and the price of money, through the Federal Reserve's control of the discount rate. In fact, a man signing a $10,000 mortgage to buy a home may pay $750 more over 30 years for Federal restrictions, in its wisdom, should exert pressure to push the mortgage interest rate up half of 1 per cent, as it did not long ago. But is regulation without overwhelming reasons truly democratic?

This idea of letting competition instead of bureaucrats, fix the rates railroads should charge wasn't dreamed up as fodder for a column. Richard F. Mitchell, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, recently said "It is hard for me to understand how anyone can say we do not need price supports, and the price of money, through the Federal Reserve's control of the discount rate. In fact, a man signing a $10,000 mortgage to buy a home may pay $750 more over 30 years for Federal restrictions, in its wisdom, should exert pressure to push the mortgage interest rate up half of 1 per cent, as it did not long ago. But is regulation without overwhelming reasons truly democratic?"

Most people regard Japan as a rice-growing country; few would think of it as a rice importer. Nevertheless, Spain is exporting 80,000 metric tons of rice to Japan this season. Of this, 50,000 tons have already been shipped.

THREATENS AUTO 'BIG THREE'

Finally, and most unconventional, he threatens the automobile "big three"—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler. Although they have gained their market supremacy by admittedly legal and legitimate methods, he regards their alleged 95.5 per cent of sales as "undue concentration." Many lawyers doubt Uncle Sam could win such an unprecedented action. But its mere filing before November 6 would make the Republican cause enormously.

Other Editors Are Saying... Let's Regain Our Pride

(The Asheville Citizen)
Unhappily, the "bugle calls from our country's past" are missing from our current history textbooks.
Dick Reddy, teacher-author in This Week Magazine for January 22, makes a stirring plea to "put pride back in our history book."
He makes out a good case. Pre-1920 history texts had these famous sayings from America's past:
"I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country" (Nathan Hale).
"The period between the two World Wars was a golden age for the cynic and debauchee. Patriotism became corny." The bravery of the Minutemen at Lexington was an unimportant fact to historians whose eyes were focused exclusively on greedy New England merchants. The stirring tales that every child once knew had dropped out of the texts. Although they had been worth a thousand brass bands in instilling pride of country, nothing appeared to take their place.

The young student thus was cheated out of a portion of his birthright.
Our children are entitled to know and to thrill to what Admiral Dewey said at Manila Bay, at General McAuliffe's reply of "nuts" when asked to surrender at "Stogie," the battle cries of "Remember the Alamo" and "Remember the Maine" and other sayings and epigrams and incidents that filled with pride and glory the spirit of the youthful readers of years ago.
Our past is rich in such stories. America needs something to cherish and to live by. It is time for a rebirth of patriotism, a wonderful sentiment that is made stronger by a knowledge of great sayings, the great deeds of our great past.

Winterville FHA Has Annual Banquet

By LINDA NICHOLS
Winterville High School

Thursday night the Future Homemakers of America honored their mothers, teachers, and special guests with a Mother-Daughter banquet. "Lovely" could only partially describe the beautifully decorated school luncheon where tables forming an "M" for mother seated approximately 170 people. The red and white table decorations, place cards, and programs predominated carrying out the theme, "Welcome Mother Dear."

The program began with all the FHA girls and their advisers, Miss Alys Ray Taylor, reciting the club's creed. The Rev. Henry Melvin followed with a prayer. Welcome greeting was extended by the president, Joy Faulkner, and toasts to the mothers, special guests, and Miss Taylor, and their response were heard.

Dinner was served with members of the eighth grade acting as waitresses.

Highlighting the banquet, Margaret Case introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. O. C. Stroud Sr. of Ayden, who gave advice to all the FHA girls, saying "It's not what you say but what you do which will actually make your FHA dreams come true."

In conclusion, Janice Worthington awarded 18 red roses to deserving members of the FHA and outstanding friends of the chapter. Jeanette Mays, Patsy Tripp, and Linda Nichols entertained with a song, skit, and poem.

Another step closer to graduation was how the senior class felt after ordering their invitations, calling cards, etc. Wednesday afternoon.

Nothing can be much more exciting than giving a surprise birthday party, especially if it is in honor of a teacher. This was what occurred Monday night as members of the sophomore class flooded Mrs. Beecher Flanagan, their homeroom teacher, with such a celebration. The party, which was held at Sandra Hunsucker's began with dancing while everyone waited for the guest of honor's arrival. Later, through the cooperative and secret work of friends, Mrs. Flanagan walked in, unaware of anything strange going on at the time. Refreshments followed (punch, pineapple cake, and peanuts) with dancing and talking continuing. One of Mrs. Flanagan's gifts included the record "Sixteen Tons," and she exclaimed that it would "really live."

If You Catch More Than One Cold A Winter

Here's how to relieve suffering fast! Use Vicks VapoRub—the proved medication that works two ways at once.

When you rub it on, VapoRub quickly relieves muscular soreness. At the same time, VapoRub's medicated vapors bring relief with every breath. Soothing medication travels deep into the nose, throat and large bronchial tubes. Congestion starts breaking up. Coughing eases. Warming relief comes, lasts for hours.

So when colds strike, always depend on Vicks VapoRub!

The party ending at 10 o'clock found many energetic sophomores, Ralph Wingate, Lee Ann Newby, Dorothy Evans, Van Jackson, Sandra Hunsucker, Ralph Davenport and Willie E. Beddard and others riding around and congregating at the soda shop.

Trying to prove that they could really cook, Janice Stox and Joy Faulkner invited their dates Ray Overton and Sonny Metts to a home-cooked dinner Thursday night. The menu read fried chicken, mashed potatoes, garden peas, a congealed salad, rolls, coffee, and lemon pie. The meal was prepared by the girls alone at Joy's, but "we did hire a maid to serve us and wash the dishes," Joy commented.

The four scooped off to a movie after eating.

After the game with Chicod Friday night, our basketball players, cheerleaders, and the scorekeeper were invited to the teachers to celebrate Mr. Paul Clark's birthday. Cake, sandwiches, potato chips, pickles and drinks were passed, and the conversation buzzed. Captains, Maggie Castelleo and Patsy Tripp presented Mr. Clark with a gift from both teams.

Regular meeting of the Winterville PTA was held Tuesday night, in the elementary school auditorium. After disposal of regular business matters, the meeting was turned over to Mr. J. H. Mobley, who was in charge of the program for the evening. Mr. Mobley gave a brief summary of the history and development of PTA week. He stated that many boys will be taking part in discussion groups held at this time. The first part of the program was a demonstration of parliamentary procedure. George Jackson, Boyce Cox, Kent Worthington, Moye Waters, J. C. Little, LeRoy Mills and Richard Gorman participated in this demonstration. Following this, Mr. Mobley showed a film which was made at the White Lake FFA camp last summer.

With the Junior-Senior banquet due to take place March 29 members of the junior class have begun making preparations. Friday night Frances Gold, Betty J. Mobley, Janice Boyd, Peggy Craft, and Barbara Evans gathered at Janice Worthington's to work on decorations; however, it seems their work varied a bit as the girls included riding around, sipping cokes, and much talking as part of their plans.

In preparation for the big Ayden-Winterville game Friday night the high school staged a lively "pep rally" Friday p.m. A large number of Winterville rooters are expected to go to the game as it seems W.H.S. and A.H.S. teams have been great rivals since way back.

Talked Himself Into Big Trouble

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A local man who claimed to be a deaf mute was arrested on a vagrancy complaint by officers who said he just talked himself into trouble.

Officers said the man introduced himself to several people who answered their doorbells, giving them a card explaining that he was an unemployed deaf mute and needed help to support his family.

Patrolman V. L. Connell said the scheme worked fine until one woman turned the man away. The officer said the man made the mistake of voicing his indignation at people who would "turn a deaf mute down."

Nonwhite people more than 45 years old make up 7 per cent of that age group in the United States compared to 10 per cent among the total population.

Seek Reports On Unallotted Wheat

Farmers who have planted a 1956 wheat crop and do not have an allotment are being asked to contact the Pitt County office of the ASC.

James Meredith, head of the local ASC, said that the unallotted wheat crops will either be measured or estimated to determine the acreage depending on how large an area has been planted.

Some vision difficulties are caused by detachment of the retina from the rest of the eye, a condition which should be treated promptly, says the Better Vision Institute.

Applications For Insurance On '56 Tobacco Crop Now Being Received

Applications for insurance on the 1956 tobacco crop are now being received at the Federal Crop Insurance office, H.K. James, district supervisor for Eastern North Carolina announced today.

James said coverage and rates have been received and farmers can make application for insurance at the FCI office in the old hospital building.

Federal Crop Insurance is an agency of the U.S. government. It was created for the purpose of stabilizing farm income through all risk insurance.

James pointed out that the federal insurance covers essentially all unavoidable causes of loss such as disease, hurricane, drought, excessive rain, hail, wind and fire in the curing barn or pack house. The insurance is in effect from the time tobacco is set in the field until it is weighed on the warehouse floor.

James noted that the insurance is being used widely by farmers in tobacco areas as collateral for loans.

Pirates Take Panthers Become Thirteenth Victim Of Porter's Team

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Editor
Coach Howard Porter's East Carolina College Pirates captured their second North State Conference regular season championship in the past three seasons here last night by defeating High Point, 87-76.

The victory, No. 13 against two defeats within the league and No. 17 in 22 starts over-all, automatically gives East Carolina right to the No. 1 seeding in the upcoming conference tournament.

Three East Carolinians were most responsible for the convincing victory over the Purple Panthers. Don Harris, Nick Nichols and Capt. J. C. Thomas all scored 20 points or more. Harris and Thomas had 23 each and Nichols an even 20.

Dull Contest
High Point made the interesting contest close only on occasions. East Carolina ran hot and cold and in the lulls the Panthers pulled within challenging range.

High Point clung right with the Bucs in the early moments in which both teams playing poorly. East Carolina took the lead at 5-4 on Harold Ingram's free throw and was never headed.

The accurate shooting of Harold Crump, who just recently cracked High Point's starting lineup, kept the Panthers never more than two points behind. That is, until midway the half when the Bucs shoved their margin to 10 points, 37-27 as Nichols connected on three straight one-handers from outside.

Wage Battle
The gritty Panthers, however, fought back on the basket busting of Bill Huegele and Jumping Jack Powell. Huegele experienced a hot streak near the end of the first half that brought him four consecutive field goals and two charity tosses.

Just as the buzzer sounded, Phil Crockett, sub center, dropped a field goal and was fouled in the process by Nichols. He sank the free throw and East Carolina's lead was cut to 45-42 as the players went down to rest.

The Pirates quickened the tempo in the early moments of the second half and pulled away to another

G-Men Top Jacksonville, 68-52, Kinston Remains Tiltle Obstacle

JACKSONVILLE — Reaching for the Eastern AA cage title, Greenville now sports an unblemished 11-0 Northeastern mark, having defeated Jacksonville last night 68-52.

Only Kinston now remains as a roadblock in the Phantom quest for the Northeastern crown. Coach Bo Farley's boys have plastered every team in the league twice, with the exception of the Red Devils. They dropped Amos Sexton's crew by seven points on the Devil court several weeks ago and will be favored to top them again this Friday night in Greenville.

Riddick Gets 23
Guard Ike Riddick led the G-Men in scoring over the Jacksonville quartet last night with 23 big buckets most of them coming from outside on jump shots. Harold Edwards, fighting a special box-defense in the final two periods, collected 18. Billy Johnson and Ray Hardee contributed eight tallies each, and Jerry Drum added six.

In the opening quarter of action, Greenville pushed to a lopsided 14-5 score. Harold Edwards and Johnson played havoc with both backboards and kept the winners well supplied with rebounds. Jones of the Cardinals, scored all five Jacksonville points.

Mid-way in the second period, Johnson, having three fouls, was replaced and Coach Farley began a steady dribble of substitutes throughout the remaining game time. Riddick pumped in seven points during the period and was helped by mates Edwards and Hardee, as the Green team chalked up 17 markers. The Cardinals, still led by Jones, roared back with 15. At the half, the score was 37-20 in favor of the Panthers.

Edwards Covered
Upon their return to action in the second half, Jacksonville clamped a tight defense on big Harold Edwards, who had racked up 10 points during the first half.

Taking advantage of the lax in over-all defense, scrappy Ike Riddick began firing away from the deep slot. Ray Hardee also hit from the side and Greenville rolled up 19 points, while the home team managed only 15 points.

The final quarter found reserves in the Green lineup in full force. Little Mack Roebuck, a sophomore, shared the play-making honors with Tommy Key, Norris, Angus Duff, Charlie Smith, Edwin Wilkerson, Joe Wingate, Pete West, Roger Bullock and Wayne Eidson were the others who played. The final score was 68-52.

ACC Basketball Lead At Stake In Game Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Tar Heels of North Carolina, the nation's 10th-ranked team, entertain the dangerous Demon Deacons of Wake Forest tonight in a game that will decide the lead in the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball chase.

Right now the lead is split three ways between the Tar Heels, Wake Forest and North Carolina State, spotted in fifth position in the national rankings.

The Wolfpack romped into the traffic jam at the top of the heap last night by defeating Duke's leading Blue Devils 90-81. The loss dealt Duke's regular season title hopes a severe blow and dumped the Blue Devils from a tie for first place to fourth.

But the Blue Devils are not out of the running. There's still considerable head knocking on the schedule for the front-running teams.

Tonight's tip off at Chapel Hill, N.C., will start the Tar Heels on a string of three games that will decide the conference fate of the sophomore-studded quint.

Frank McGuire's youngsters take on State's snarling Wolfpack next Tuesday and then end the season Feb. 24 against Duke. They meet the class of the conference in a nine-day span.

Wake Forest owns one 76-71 conference victory over the Tar Heels, and the Deacons would like nothing better than to upset their national-ranked neighborhood foe again.

The Deacons tripped Duke twice this season, and both victories were considered major upsets. The last Wake victory over the Blue Devils popped the Deacons into the current snarl at the top of the conference and played a big role in dropping the Dukes from eighth to 11th place in the national rankings.

Murray Gresson's Deacons sport a well-balanced attack that features the scoring punch of Lowell (Lefty) Davis. The Deacs have been especially deadly from the free throw line this year.

Heading the Tar Heel attack is UNC's scandidate for All-America honors, forward Lennie Rosenbluth. The lanky Rosenbluth is the head man in the ACC scoring race this year, dropping in 79 points in two games last week to push his average to 25.5 per game.

If the Deacons can handout the cool Greenville, Tenn. pointmaker they will go a long way toward polishing off Carolina again.

Wake Forest, UNC and N.C. State have 8-2 ACC records going into tonight's fracas. Duke is the only other serious contender, 9-3.

Winterville Tops Chicod Hoopsters

Winterville took the measure of Chicod's basketball teams in two games last night in Winterville. The home girls won 66-43 and the home boys 81-54 in the final games of the regular season for both teams.

Barbara Evans dumped in 36 points to pace the victorious girls. Wilson had 27 for the losers.

Jack Sawyer had 23 points for the Winterville boys. Jimmy Fornes had 23 for the Chicod boys.

Powerful Lause Favored To Whip Younger Boyd

CHICAGO (AP)—Eduardo Lause, powerful left-hook specialist from South America, is a 2-1 favorite to defeat ransy Bobby Boyd, former Chicago butcher apprentice tonight in his climb to a middle-weight title shot.

Lause, 28-year-old mechanic's son will put an undefeated string of 32 wins on the line in the nationally televised 10 rounder at Chicago Stadium (10 p.m. EST. ABC).

The scrap may not go the distance, for each has impressive knockout records. Lause, world's third-ranked 160-pound contender, has scored 49 kayoes. A victory over Boyd would put him at the head of the line for a crack at the Bobo Olson-Sugar Ray Robinson winner, probably in a summer outdoor show at New York.

His overall record is 61-6-3 and his victories include decisions over Tiger Jones, Kid Gavilan and Gene Fullmer and knockouts of Purk Edwards, George Small and Johnny Sullivan. Lause, making his 13th start in this country, was held to a draw by Milo Savage in his last fight, Jan. 6. Savage floored the Argentine.

SYNOPSIS

In 1897, Seattle was a bustling, booming gateway to the Klondike gold rush. Tim O'Beirn, with the help of his good friend Michael Bara, a handsome young lawyer, persuades Meg Beaumont, his pretty, yellow-haired niece, not to go to Alaska in search of her husband, Kemp Beaumont. Kemp had deserted Meg and their small son, Johnny, for the gold fields of the frozen north. Michael finds Meg a place to stay at Mattila's Cozy boarding house, where he lives. Tim thinks Meg should return to her father in Illinois, but Meg refuses, although she has not a job or money. Mattila asks Michael to find her a job, and he suggests schoolteaching but Meg says no. Meanwhile, at the boarding house, Meg meets Jenny Fleur, who has a small hat shop that isn't doing well because she isn't a good saleswoman. Meg is good at designing and selling so they become partners. To help Jenny's hat shop, Meg designs a new hat for Jenny. Ten Eyck, a prosperous merchant, offers to let them display hats in his store once a week. Jason also becomes interested in Meg. Meg and Jenny work well together. They have a common bond after Meg discovers that Jenny's hat shop has deserted her. Although a she doesn't return Jason's affections, Meg plans to capitalize on the situation to make the hat store a success.

CHAPTER EIGHT

By November the feverish rush of the Alaskan ships to beat the freezing arctic winter had slowed although ships still went to Skagway and Dyea. A few hardy souls boarded the returning vessels with hair-raising accounts of reaching Skagway "over the ice." The Yukon, the claim was, had six feet of ice on her now. "Shipping will slow up from now on I suppose," Michael said to Jason. Jason's look was mullish. "I can get shipments to Dyea and Skagway." Michael, hearing reports of Skagway and Dyea, sympathized with Jason. On the long beach there were no wharves, no docks. The Klondikers were dumped into the sea at the end of Lynn canal and devil take the hindmost! Many outfits had been lost in the tide after they had gained the beach. So far, however, no Ten Eyck goods had been counted out, and Michael was confident they would not be. Horses were swung out over the water and had to swim ashore. The Ten Eyck horses always turned out to be superior swimmers. Because he knew Jason had risked big shipments in order that he might be first in the spring thaws, Michael asked him how he expected to safeguard his possessions. "Remember that thug you depended on an assault case? The big Irishman?" Michael remembered. Keogh, well over six feet and gigantic in build, hadn't known his own strength in a water-front ruckus. Michael had barely saved him from prison. "I'm paying him good wages and keep to watch my stuff," Jason said. Michael nodded. He should have known Jason would be thinking three jumps ahead of the others. He noticed that Meg Beaumont showed very little interest in the tales of the Klondike but was keenly interested in the local Ten Eyck picture. The sale day in the store had proved successful. Michael was sure Jason had originally proposed it because it was good business. Women liked Meg. They relished her earnest consideration of their problems; they liked to talk to her even when they couldn't buy and Meg encouraged it. "If they get used to dropping in, they'll buy our hats when they have the money," she told Michael. Michael, who often "dropped in," too, grinned. "If you served tea, you could have a party." She tossed her head. "That's not silly. If stores served tea or even meals, they'd get extra business." Her gaze drifted upward. Wire baskets carrying cash and parcels hummed on the overhead pulleys. "There was a gold nugget in a basket yesterday," she confided. "Sometimes there's gold dust." "I thought you hated gold." She scowled. "It's chasing after it on a gambler's I don't like." "But once it's acquired, you'll take it?" "Of course." She nodded toward a group of shoppers around a linen display. "Did you know Jason has sixty-nine and ninety-eight-cent sales every week?" she colored under his glance. "I—I've called him Jason for some time. Formally's silly in business." "Of course." He eyed the milling women. "Is it easier to get women to buy at two cents under a dollar?" "It is! Next week Jenny and I are going to copy him. Jason's mighty smart about selling angles. I'm going to learn them too."

She was distracted by a customer and Michael left her. He had no doubt about her learning facility. She was a beautiful woman but her driving ambition made Michael faintly uneasy. Michael strolled leisurely through the streets ignoring his knowledge that Eben had expected him at the office an hour ago. Rain was falling with its usual regularity. There was scant sign of the winter lull. Easterners who expected to go to Alaska on the first spring ship crowded the hotels, the rooming houses, the Tenderloin. Men who had made a strike were eager to return. Some of them had spent their first riches. Others were determined to build the first stake to many times its original stature. Some hopefuls still boarded the Skagway ships. "Dial Michael!" Jason joined him and nodded at the nearest bar. "Why not?" In the crowded warmth of the bar, Michael spoke of the continued boom. The play was centered around a widow and a widower who had known each other before their marriages. They met on a vacation and decided to marry. When their children found out about their marriage plans they were very upset and they contrived many plans to discourage them.

Financial difficulties forced them to treat their step parents courteously in order to have the money both sets of children were used to, but thought they had lost. Their pranks and antics kept everyone in stitches.

The play was presented again at school on to leave on April 12. They will spend one night in Washington, three nights in New York, and then return home on April 16, after five days of touring and good times.

The Junior Class sponsored a Valentine Dance in the Belvoir-Falkland gymnasium on Wednesday evening, February 8. The gym was festively decorated with red and white crepe paper valentines and such traditional reminders as "Be Our Valentine" and "The Junior Class Wants You For Their Valentine." A record player provided soft music for dancing for the approximate sixty people present.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Active trading and gains of 1 to 4 points prevailed in the stock market in early afternoon today.

The market responded with a vigorous upward leap to the encouraging report from President Eisenhower's physicians.

Steel, motors, aircrafts, coppers and most oils were strong following the medical report that the President's health should enable him to carry on actively "for another five to ten years."

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $2.50 at noon to $175.50 with the industrials up $4.30, the rails $1.80 and the utilities 50 cents.

Volume for the day was estimated at about 3,000,000 shares compared with 1,500,000 yesterday.

In the early rush, leading stocks went ahead in heavy trading from 1 to 6 points and the ticker tape, which reports transactions, fell behind as much as three minutes, but it caught up within 40 minutes.

As the session wore on into the afternoon, most of the gains were below their best.

The news about the President's health came after the close of yesterday's slow hesitant session in Wall Street but on the West Coast, where exchanges were still open, there was an immediate and vigorous rise.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem remained ahead around 2 points, shading their original gains of better than 3 points. General Motors was ahead a point, down fractional from its best.

Boeing, Douglas Aircraft and General Dynamics were 2-point gainers, maintaining about the same upward margin as at the start.

On the American Stock Exchange prices went ahead in heavy trading.

Winston-Salem Furniture Plant Near-Demolished

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—A spectacular fire that nearly wiped out the B. F. Huntley Furniture Co. factory here yesterday has thrown an expensive jolt into this city's economy.

Fire Chief E. M. Dixon said the damage would run into hundreds of thousands of dollars. Company officials had no immediate estimate of the loss.

Plant engineer W. E. Burge said that 75 per cent of the company's producing facilities were destroyed.

The blaze, which took one life and injured two firemen, knocked about 500 persons out of work and put out of commission a factory that had an annual payroll of well over one million dollars.

Flames that roared hundreds of feet in the air trapped Carl Everhart, 53. He was burned to death. The injured firemen, Sgt. J. A. Cecil and Sgt. W. J. Carter, were among scores of firemen from Winston-Salem, Greensboro and High Point who battled the fire.

Deaths Laid To Natural Causes

Death of a 30-year old Negro woman last Friday was being attributed to a liver disease, Coroner Griffin H. Rouse said today.

The woman, Lula R. Langley, was found dead at 1606 Railroad Street. An autopsy, Rouse said, discovered the cause of death.

A second death, that of Roland Dixon Sauls, 37, of Farmville, also has been attributed to natural causes. Sauls, Rouse reported, died of a heart attack Monday.

No inquest is planned in either case.

Overly Ardent In Wooing His Wife

CHICAGO (AP)—Frank Saye, 38, was accused by his divorced wife Rose, 36, of being too ardent in attempting to woo her back, she told Municipal Judge Joseph A. Pope.

She said Saye, a truck driver, had telephoned her 343 times in the last month. Last Saturday, she said, he telephoned her 67 times in attempting to effect a reconciliation. She said she doesn't want him back.

Fire Alarm Has Regained Voice

Greenville's fire whistle, silenced by mechanical difficulty for several weeks, blared out its six p. m. call last night as usual.

Fire Chief George Gardner said a newly ordered air compressor was installed yesterday. It replaced one which had served the alarm since 1930.

G. O. C. Supervisor Is Given Service Award

Captain Fred Burns of the Durham Filter Center last night presented Ground Observer Post Supervisor Jake Hadley a Meritorious Service Award for 250 hours of service, in behalf of the Air Defense Command. That, with the presentation of G.O.C. lapel buttons to a dozen unit members who had served a minimum of ten hours, was the highlight of last night's Greenville Ground Observer meeting.

Approximately sixty persons turned out for the briefing on skywatch procedure. Hadley acknowledged many distractions and events understandably reduced hope for attendance.

Mayor W. L. Whedbee and Civil Defense director June Rose briefly addressed the gathering. Whedbee remarked on Hadley's very difficult job in selling preparedness in peacetime, adding "the City Council believes in the importance of Ground Observer work," and assured whatever future support was needed would be supplied.

Rose remarked that "if the Ground Observer Corps isn't necessary, somebody is pulling the biggest poke in the world on the American people."

The team from the Durham Filter Center, Capt. Burns and Sergeant Richard Fast, sketched the reasons behind the need for observers and presented a film displaying procedures for post operations. "The job is not to give the word of bombs overhead," reminded Capt. Burns, "but to provide the warning in advance so they can be stopped."

Greenville's unit is presently operating on about fifteen percent of the full round-the-clock schedule. To serve the post for maximum efficiency and permitting two hours of service at two-week intervals, some 400 volunteers are needed.

Ward Attends Chicago Session

Claude Ward, Pitt County Memorial Hospital administrator and president-elect of the N. C. Hospital Association, attended a conference of the American Hospital Association in Chicago last week.

Approximately 200 officers of state associations and the provinces of Canada were present to discuss disaster planning, mental illness and mental health, hospital accreditation, hospital insurance programs and the development of state-wide public relations programs.

The group also discussed hospital auxiliaries, hospital listings with the American Hospital Association and evaluation of national activities relating to state associations.

Mount Calvary F. W. B. Church Senior Choir will rehearse at the church Thursday night at 7:30.

Sycamore Chapel Baptist Church choir members will meet at the home of Miss E. M. Porteur Friday night at 7:45.

Friends of Mrs. Maude Parker will regret to know that she is confined to Pitt Memorial Hospital.
