President Drops Political Cares

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH THOMASVILLE, Ga. (AP)—Vacationing President Eisenhower put bird hunting ahead of politics today and hoped for better luck in a new quest for elusive quail. With the nation waiting for his answer on a second-term bid, the President for the time being is intent on relaxing in this piney woods area of south Georgia. It's his first hunting trip since suffering a heart attack Sept. 24. He arrived from Washington yesterday afternoon for about a week of rest and outdoor exercise at the plantation estate of Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, who accompanied him. Within 15 minutes after getting to the Humphrey place, the President and the Cabinet officials had changed to hunting togs and were off to the fields aboard a green-wheeled roadster drawn by two white mules. Behind was another hunting roadster with red wheels carrying the bird dogs and some of the Negro beaters whose job it is to flush the quail. Eisenhower and Humphrey rode around the big estate for two hours but sighted birds only twice. And neither brought down any quail. Tuesday, physicians told the President he had a good recovery and concluding that he is physically able to seek and serve a second term. The cheering medical report has convinced political supporters of the President that he will run again. If he has not already made his decision, he quite likely will do so here. He has indicated he will announce his plans around March 1. Before the doctors spoke on Tuesday, a majority of newsmen who cover the White House regularly felt the President would not run again. Now the majority has swung heavily the other way. Both the President and Humphrey were accompanied from Washington by their wives. Also along are Mrs. Eisenhower's mother Mrs. John S. Doud of Denver and the President's personal physician Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder. It was a happy Eisenhower who rode 43 miles by automobile from Spence air base at Moultrie, Ga., to the Humphrey plantation. Enthusiastic crowds gave him a warm welcome along the way, and he responded with repeated waves. The White House Limousine in which he traveled has a top which slides back so he can stand and be seen by the crowds. On the trip yesterday he stood a good third of the way without any outward sign of tiring. Electrical Expert Claims 'Good Job' By Local Utilities

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor NEW BERN—An electrical expert told the State Utilities Commission in hearings on Vanceboro charges of poor electrical service that Greenville had done "a good job" of furnishing power to its customers. L. A. Blackburn, of the Richmond Consulting Engineering firm of Slaughter, Seville and Blackburn made the statement on the stand late yesterday afternoon after he had been qualified as an expert witness. Blackburn testified that the voltage variations in the Vanceboro area are "well within the requirements" necessary for the operation of home appliances, according to voltage chart readings. The consulting engineer also said he made a rate study for Greenville Utilities some years ago and found the rate system "antiquated." He said the old rates were based on coal selling for five dollars per ton and coal was then $10 per ton. He added that the rate of return on Greenville's investment was only 2.94 per cent and that recommended rate increases were accepted by the Greenville Utilities Commissioners. He said the rates now compare favorably with other companies although they were a "little higher in some cases and in other spots they were low." Certain industrial schedules compare favorably with Virginia Electric and Power Co. rates, he said. "Don't you think those rates penalize the small consumer and lean a little bit toward the big consumer?" asked commissioner Ralph Moody. "I don't think so," Blackburn replied.

Wholesale Arrests Follow Weeks Of Investigative Work Bootleg Round-Up Nets 35

By Bob Hilldrup Reflector Staff Writer At least 35 Negroes were arrested last night and charged with the illegal sale of whiskey. The arrests came during a series of well-organized raids by federal, state and local law enforcement officers. Beginning shortly after sundown, Pitt County ABC officers, assisted by Sheriff's deputies, ATU agents and Greenville police, swooped down on Negro residences. Practically all of the arrests were made in Greenville. A few however, were made in and near Ayden by Ayden police later in the night. Last night's roundup of local Negroes on charges of illegal liquor sales resulted in a distinct surprise for one young man. The young man, hearing that a lady friend had been picked up by officers, headed for police headquarters to secure her release. The lady in question gained her release all right, but the young man found himself in a similar plight. Seems ABC officer J. M. Ward was holding a warrant for his arrest also and promptly served it on him as he walked in the door. Minimum bond for the defendants was set at $200 and all were reported free today. The raids, which came after several weeks' work by state investigators for the ABC, were the first of their type conducted here in approximately two years. More than 60 warrants were issued for the defendants, some of whom are charged on more than one count. Additional warrants were to be served today. Several Negroes, ABC officer J. M. Ward said, came to police headquarters and gave themselves up once the word had been passed that the raids were in progress. Trial for practically all of the defendants is scheduled next month. Several of those arrested have lengthy court records for whiskey violations and currently are on probation from previous convictions. Those taken into custody include Roosevelt Hardy, Ardella Williams, Margaret Sessomes, Queen Howard, Norman Garris, Julia Mae Collins, Magnolia Huges, 42 of 1507 W. Fifth Street; Julia Taft, of 618 Ford Street; Rena Mae Anderson, 28, of 621-A Allens Alley; Letha Taylor Sanders, 53, of 1313 Mill Street. Almona Williams, 49, of 615 Pamlico Avenue; Ida Mae Williams, his wife; Sara Randolph, 63, of 1308 Short Street; Willie L. Fleming, 35, of 409-A Deck Street; Mack Harris, 34, of 1308 Short Street; Willie Hines, 31, of 115 Cotanche Street; James Lang, 38, of 313 Wade Street; Walter Vines, 54, of 604 Pitt Street. Mary Elizabeth Payton, 35, of 40 Bonner's Lane; Gladys Randolph, 30, of 1118-B Clark Street; You Jenkins, 38, of 216 Center Street; Addie Little, 43, of 1505 Pitt Street; Beatrice Payton, 33, of 613 McKinley Street; Bessie House, 34, of 1308 Clark Street; James Langley, 46, of 1610 S. Pitt Street. Lucille Acklin, 61, of 1198-A Third Street; Ella Ruth Blount, 31, of 1119 Clark Street; Mildred Atkinson, 60, of 1202 Greene Street; John Henry Stator, 52; Everne Lane, 26; John D. Payton, 36, Charlie Atkinson, 47 and Raymond Joyner, 35.

ONE OF MANY—City police officer M. E. Buck (right) fills out an arrest sheet last night for Almona Williams, 49, of 612 Pamlico Avenue. Williams was one of some 35 Negroes arrested for illegally selling whiskey. Alcohol Tax Unit agents, who participated in the widespread raids last night currently are driving a car seized from Williams several months ago when it was found to be carrying illegal liquor.

Floods, New Cold Wave Hit Europe

LONDON (AP)—Raging floods and a new cold wave struck much of Europe and parts of the Middle East today, piling misery on misery in a 17-day freeze-up which already has cost 858 lives. Torrential rains and melting snows brought Turkey new disasters of the worst winter on record. The known dead there totaled 72. Ice jams and a brief thaw sent the Rhine and scores of rivers rampaging over their banks in central Europe. Yugoslavia estimated its flood damage at a million dollars. The Netherlands reported the coldest night since 1942, with temperatures down to 13 below zero. Even sunny Spain froze up again after warmer weather yesterday. Behind the cold wave lurked the specter of famine. Crop losses already ran into millions of dollars. Known deaths attributed to the weather were: France 124, Turkey 72, Italy 67, Yugoslavia 67, Britain 47, Denmark 31, Germany 26, Austria 19, Holland 16, Portugal 15, Spain 15, Switzerland 12, Belgium 7, Sweden 6, Berlin and East Germany 5, Poland 4, Norway 3 and Libya 2. Scores more were feared lost in villages still snowbound across the Continent. And nine men were aboard the 350-ton Norwegian ship Sagvaya, missing since Sunday off Norway's icebound south coast. Relief organizations rushed food and clothing to more than 250 persons left homeless by floods in Turkish Thrace. The raging waters swept away bridges and railroad lines. Thousands of acres of rich farmlands were inundated. Delayed reports from the Turkish mountain hamlet of Aga Kumus said 20 persons were killed and six were missing after a huge avalanche, have ins caused by floods in the Zonguldak region killed nine miners. Central and southern Italy with scores of villages still snowbound, shivered in temperatures down to 5 below zero. Fuel shortages and rising food prices were reported across the country. Three boys drowned after falling through thin ice at Skorpen, Norway. A fourth was rescued by his mother. Some German cities reported their coldest night of the freeze-up. Bonn had 8 below zero and Nurnberg 13 below. Floods from the Whisper River isolated the town of Lorch. Communist East Germany reported snowballing troubles in transport and industry. Some plants went on to night work to ease the day's burden on power resources. Fog covered Berlin, with a temperature just over zero.

Mayors Briefed On Civil Defense

WASHINGTON (AP)—The third annual Washington Conference of Mayors, held under White House auspices, opened today with the emphasis on civil defense. About 200 chief executives of American cities took part in the conference, Civil Defense Administrator Val Peterson, directing it, said they will be in the front line of defense if another war comes. Peterson told a news conference it is likely a number of American cities would be hit simultaneously by atomic weapons in such a war. So, he said, the mayors must be given the fullest possible information to guide them. This includes, Peterson said, such things as the latest information on the foreign situation and latest enemy weapons. A number of top officials are briefing the mayors. Some sessions are held behind closed doors in order Peterson said, to permit complete freedom of discussion. Mayors Robert F. Wagner of New York, and John B. Hynes of Boston, took part in the news conference with Peterson. Wagner said civil defense is being studied increasingly as a regional rather than a municipal problem. Hynes said the mayors want to talk over such problems as urban redevelopment in addition to civil defense and related matters. Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. told the mayors the United States will persevere in efforts to settle disputes with Russia "despite the disappointing results so far." Hoover also spoke of the possibility of a "tragic outbreak of hostilities" in the Middle East and said current talks with the British and French governments are designed to find ways to avert Middle East war. The acting secretary of state—John Foster Dulles—is on vacation in the Soviet Union has not been willing to agree to the safeguards essential for the security of all.

Carolinas In Line For $200 Million Defense Outlays

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy is asking for more than 200 million dollars to spend on bases in the Carolinas within a few years, including a 48 million dollar sea-plane base at Harvey Point near Hertford, N.C. The base would be used by heavy jet bombers. Initial construction would begin with funds requested in the military budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The initial request was for six million dollars. Other programs without definite timing include: Camp Lejeune $49,820,000 plus $5,920,000 starting July 1; Cherry Point, $40,312,000 plus $170,000 this year; Edenton (to become Naval auxiliary air station) $6,736,000 plus $13,926,000. South Carolina—Beaufort, where Marine Air Station is being expanded to house the 3rd Marine Air Wing now at Miami, Fla. $17,384,000 plus $37,872,000. The South Carolina projects and the Navy's 1957 program also include the Marine Recruit Station at Parris Island, $4,266,000; Charleston Naval Shipyard $148,000 and Charleston Minecraft Base, $7,902,000.

Senate Subcommittee To Make Influence Study Broad Election Inquiry Set

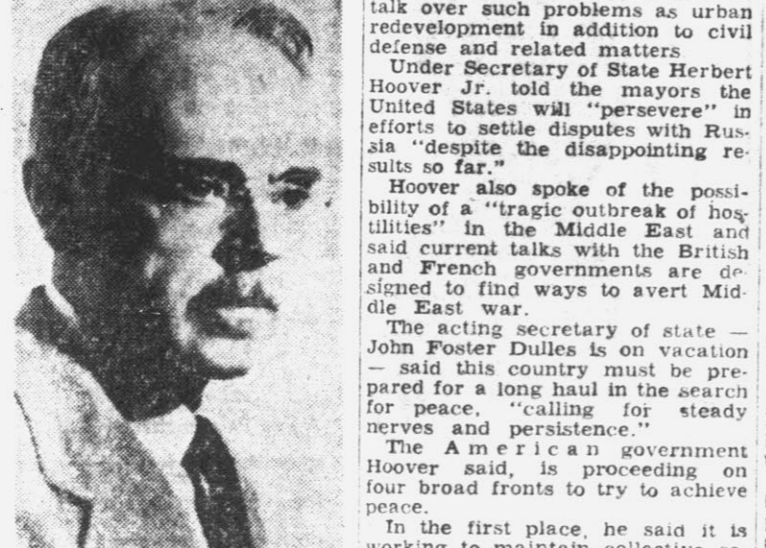

WASHINGTON (AP)—A three-member Senate Elections subcommittee decided today to undertake a broad investigation into any efforts by "selfish interests" to influence federal elections or legislative campaigns. The subcommittee intends to explore this matter fully to the end that the American people may be advised of the facts. Chairman Gore (D-Tenn.) said in a statement he read to newsmen. He added the subcommittee had determined to conduct a study of contributions to elections campaigns, federal elections and such evidence of corrupt practices as may be revealed. Gore said the statement had been unanimously adopted by the subcommittee. The other members are Sens. Mansfield (D-Mont) and Curtis (R-Neb). Gore said the inquiry he had in mind would be "far wider" than any contributed by the pressures involved in the natural gas bill and would "run throughout the year." The gas bill, to exempt producers of natural gas from direct federal controls, was passed by the Senate last week amid complaints of pressure from both sides. It is now awaiting action by President Eisenhower. A special committee, set up under the chairmanship of Sen. George (D-Ga.), spent the week end investigating whether a $2,500 campaign contribution rejected by Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.) was designed to influence his vote on the gas bill. Case voted against the bill after telling the Senate about the contribution offer. George told newsmen he felt the special committee already had developed all the essential facts about this incident and added he knew of nothing at this time to justify asking the Senate to continue its inquiry or to enlarge its authority. He said he had told Gore that "unless something of a startling nature occurs which I do not now foresee, I hope we can make a report to the Senate next week and ask to be discharged." Earlier however, Sen. Bridges (R-NH) said in a statement he thought the special committee should seek Senate authority to inquire into what he called "a great deal of pressure" on senators in connection with the gas bill. The other Republican member of the committee, Sen. Thye of Minnesota, similarly has advocated that its scope be broadened to cover all contributions "having any possible relationship" to the gas bill. But Sen. Hayden (D-Ariz.), the fourth member of the group, indicated he agreed with George that it ought not to go beyond the Case incident. Hayden voted for the bill, George against it.

Anybody Walking?

Brother, if you haven't got your 1956 license plates, you'd better not drive your car until you get 'em. That, in somewhat different language, was the advice being handed out today by Greenville police and the State Highway Patrol. Last midnight was the deadline for attaching the 1956 tags to motor vehicles. Tags are still on sale, but if you haven't bought yours, you'd better walk — not drive—to make your purchase.

Heart Specialist To Talk In N.C.

ROCKY MOUNT—Dr. Paul Dudley White, President Eisenhower's heart specialist, will speak at a medical symposium and a heart forum here February 22. Other speakers will be Dr. Eugene A. Stead, Jr., of Duke Medical School and Dr. Ernest Craigie of the UNC School of Medicine. Dr. White will speak on coronary thrombosis at the forum in the high school auditorium at 8 p. m. The heart symposium will get underway at 3:30 p. m. in the ball room of the New Ricks Hotel. Both sessions are open to the public. Tickets for people in the Greenville area are obtainable from Charles Howard of the Greenville Tobacco Company.

State Commission To Conduct Hearing On Petition By CP & L

The State Utilities Commission will conduct a hearing on a Carolina Power and Light petition requesting permission to purchase the Grimesland Electric system. Commission member Harry T. Wescott, now conducting hearings in New Bern on Vanceboro electric complaints, said yesterday that is the procedure followed on such matters. Wescott said a private utilities, such as Carolina Power and Light Co. has to have permission to buy or sell power lines. Grimesland, however, being publicly owned, does not need the State Utilities Commission's permission to sell its system. Wescott noted. The commissioner who has been in New Bern since Tuesday for the Vanceboro hearings said he could not comment on the petition filed in Raleigh by CP&L because he has not seen the document as yet. However, he noted that Greenville, which now furnishes power to the Grimesland Utilities on a wholesale basis, could ask to intervene in the hearings if it so desired. That is the course Greenville Utilities has followed in the Vanceboro hearing, which is served directly by Greenville, filed its petition. Greenville intervened and the local utilities is now taking part in the hearings. Greenville Utilities Superintendent Leonard Bloxam said yesterday that he had not seen the petition filed by CP&L and he did not know at that time what course Greenville would follow on the matter. Bloxam said, however, that a Greenville Utilities public hearing has been set for Feb. 24 for further discussions of the granting the situation. A public hearing was held some time ago before Greenville Utilities Commissioners at which Grimesland representatives gave their reasons for wanting to be released from the contract. Earlier Greenville had denied a request from the Pitt County town for release from its contract which still has 13 years to run. Grimesland's legal representative has been notified of the public hearing which is set for 7:30 p. m. at the local city hall, Bloxam said. However, as yet no indication has come from the town as to who will be present. Bloxam said Greenville actions will be determined to a large extent by the actual petition. Local attorneys have requested copies of the petition from the State Utilities Commission. Bloxam stated, and more definite plans can be made when the petition is received. Grimesland citizens approved the sale of the municipal electric system last December by a vote of 75 to 50. Voters were actually approving the sale of the system to CP&L.

Fluoridation Of Water To Avert Dental Decay

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles designed to inform the public about fluoridation of city water supplies, a program to be proposed to the City Council by Health Director Walter C. Humbert in the near future.) By EDWINA HAYMES Reflector Staff Writer Main persons reading yesterday that the health director plans to propose fluoridation for Greenville's water may have wondered just what that means. Fluoridation is the adjustment of the fluoride content in a public water supply to a desirable level for the prevention of dental decay. For generation, millions of people have been drinking water that naturally contains fluoride, a compound formed by fluorine combined with other elements. Fluoridation adds nothing that has not been in many water supplies for centuries. Some water supplies have too little, some too much, and others just the right amount. Health Director Humbert reports that in Pitt County there is very little natural fluoride in the water with the exception of the area around Fountain and Falkland where water is obtained from wells more than 100 feet deep. Though the amount of fluoride there varies from 0.5 to 0.75 of one part to one million parts of water. Dr. Humbert said even this small amount has "definitely given children in that area sounder teeth than in other parts of the county." Mechanically fluoridated water contains an extremely small amount of the chemical one to one-hundred million parts of water. These tiny amounts necessary to prevent dental decay are detectable only by delicate chemical tests. According to the American Water Works Association, fluoridation is not an involved procedure, and is similar to other measures used in making drinking water healthful. Fluoridation does not affect the taste, odor or color of water; it does not add hardness to water; and it does not affect the use of water for any domestic or industrial purpose. Tomorrow, who benefits from fluoridation and why.

Wants Back Pay For 10 Years Of Awaiting Orders

W. E. Bird Named WCC President ASHEVILLE (AP)—Dean W. E. Bird has been appointed president of Western Carolina College at Cullowhee. He succeeds Paul A. Reid, who resigned yesterday to become assistant director of the North Carolina Board of Higher Education. Chairman D. Hiden Ramsey of the Board announced the appointments along with Philip Woolcott, WCC board of trustees. PLANTING PLANS RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina farmers plan to plant 2,400 acres of cabbage this spring, according to the State Crop Reporting Service. This would be 14 per cent more than last year's harvested acreage and about 11 per cent above the 10 year average. SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—An attorney for Air Force Pvt. Joe V. Garcia, who has been waiting 10 years for orders to report back to duty, said yesterday his client is entitled to back pay. "I don't think he can be considered absent without leave under any circumstances," the attorney, Fred Semann, said. Semann said Garcia, 30, has never been discharged and was merely following orders when he went home in 1946. Garcia then 19, was injured in a tavern fight and spent two months in Brooke Army Hospital. When he returned to Lackland Air Force Base he found that his outfit had been transferred. A Lieutenant told him to go home and that orders to report to duty would be sent to him in a couple of days.

Lost Little Boy Was Least Upset

CONCORD, N.C. (AP)—More than 1,000 Concord residents tramped through a thickly wooded area here last night for six hours before the object of their search, a three-year-old boy, was found sitting calmly on a creek bank. Donald Carrough did not find his night trek through deep gullies, tangled brush and fallen trees the least bit upsetting. A cup of hot chocolate and some dry clothes fixed him up good as new. His mother and father, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Carrough, may be a long time forgetting the frantic hour that ticked slowly by during the little adventurer's journey. Donald was found by Donald Raborn of Rt. 7, Charlotte. Raborn picked up a set of little boy tracks about a half-mile from the Carrough house. He trailing them to where Donald was sitting, surveying his situation. Donald was last seen at mid-afternoon playing with his dog and riding his tricycle. By 5 p. m. his worried parents started a house-to-house search. No Donald. Two hours later the vanguard of the huge search party started appearing. The National Guard organized crews that were sent by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion and law enforcement officials into "arch parties. Walkie-talkie radios went out with the crews. Said Dr. Carrough: "It was the most wonderful exhibition of community spirit I have ever seen. I'm mighty thankful."

New Ass't Home Agent Is Starting Work In County

A new assistant Home agent began work in Pitt County today. She is Miss Margaret Lee Stevens, a graduate of Woman's College in Greensboro and a former trainee agent with the local home demonstration office. Stevens replaces Mrs. Elizabeth Johnston, who resigned several months ago. Miss Stevens spent two months in Pitt County last summer as a trainee agent, one of six such agents working in the state at that time. Her duties consisted of observing and assisting in the county home demonstration and 4-H programs. Formerly an outstanding 4-Her in her home county of Wayne, Miss Stevens was selected in 1954 as an international farm youth exchange delegate to Japan. There, from June until November, she lived in seven farm homes as a member of the Japanese families. Purpose of her visit was to promote good will and understanding in international relations. Her duties here will be principally with the 4-H clubs, but she will also assist in the home demonstration program.

Trinity Episcopal Church Is Scene Of Nethercutt - Elks Nuptials

Historic Trinity Episcopal Church of Chocowinity was the scene of a lovely wedding Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock when Miss Libby Ann Elks became the bride of Marion Dawson Nethercutt.

The Rev. A. C. D. Nos of Nags Head, former rector of the bride, and the Rev. Fred I. E. Ferris, rector of the church, were the officiating ministers.

Music was furnished by Russell Messer of Tarboro, using in addition to appropriate music selections, the traditional wedding marches for professional and recessional.

Robert L. Elks, uncle of the bride, and O. E. Brown, Chapel Hill, brothers-in-law of the groom, were ushers, and Zeno Wright was acolyte.

Mrs. Leslie Barnhill of Goldsboro, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Miss Rebecca Allgood, Greenville, niece of the bride, was maid of honor. They wore identical dresses of red and white tulle over red satin, with stoles and matching headpieces.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Nancy Elks and the late Walter L. Elks of Grimesland. She was lovely in a bridal gown of white Chantilly lace and tulle over satin. The pointed basque bodice of lace featured a sweetheart neckline edged in pleated tulle and appliqued lace. Her bouffant tulle skirt was designed with a sweep train and two wide rows of lace. She wore a cap of lace and tulle outlined with seed pearls, to which was attached a finger-tip veil, and carried a white prayer book topped with a purple-throated orchid. The bride entered the church with her brother, Walter Robert Elks, by whom she was given in marriage.

Mr. Nethercutt is the son of Mrs. Ines Nethercutt and the late Paul Nethercutt of Greenville. He had as best man his brother, Lyman Nethercutt, of Chapel Hill.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Whitehurst and Mrs. Lillian Engelhaupt, the bridegroom's sister.

The bride's mother wore a gown of navy with navy accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a gown of black with black accessories and a white carnation corsage.

After a honeymoon trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside at 6 Vance St. in Greenville. Mrs. Charles Elks was mistress of ceremonies at the church.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the Allgood home on Eastern Street with Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Allgood and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elks receiving. The home was lovely with arrangements of white and pink gladioli, with carnations, fern and magnolia leaves. Special attention was called to the candlelight table in the dining room, with its centerpiece on the cut-work cloth.

Mrs. Dale Gidley, Mrs. Ashby Jordan, Miss Dorothy Whitehurst and Mrs. Lewlyn Engelhaupt assisted in serving daily refreshments of assorted cakes, cookies, ham biscuits, sandwiches, chicken salad in patty shells, pickles and olives. Mrs. Nelson Bowden poured coffee.

Mrs. Walter Bowen, Mr. Allgood's sister, presided in the den over the bride's book. Goodbyes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Allgood.

Mrs. Nancy Elks and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Barnhill entertained at a cake cutting at the bride's home on Washington highway Saturday evening following the rehearsal.

On February 3, a shower party honoring Miss Elks was given by Misses Dorothy and Pat Whitehurst.

World Day of Prayer Observance A World Day of Prayer Service will be held at Ballard's Presbyterian Church Friday at 7 p.m. The Rev. Edwin S. Coates, pastor, will be in charge of this service sponsored by the women of the church. The public is invited.

Grifton PTA Has Meeting

GRIFTON—The Grifton PTA met on Tuesday night in the school assembly room for the February meeting.

The Rev. D. H. McCollough of the Baptist Church gave the invocation after which Arch Rogers of the program committee presented Mr. Paul Bradley of the Agriculture Department of the school. He spoke informally on gardening and living at home and factors that make this possible. His talk was augmented by a movie on gardening and he also showed slides which he had prepared on projects that his students in the department have completed and are now working on.

Following the program, the president, James Israel, called for reports and business. Howard Kress asked the support of the PTA and all parents for the Small Fry Sports Association. The association will have a meeting on Friday night in the school assembly room; all fathers and interested persons are urged to be on hand at 7:30.

Mr. James Smith announced a dinner to be given in the school cafeteria on March 9th to aid in the school free lunch program.

Mrs. Casey reported on the adult classes and asked all to attend the classes in the future.

Mrs. Clifton Baldwin gave as the final report on the March of Dimes campaign the amount of $112.34. Attendance cakes were awarded Mrs. Quinley's second and Mr. Redfern's eighth grades on the percentage basis.

The closing prayer was said by Rev. McCollough.

Two Pitt Students Are On Dean's List

Two students from Pitt County made Dean's List at Mount Olive College for the first semester grading period, according to the Reverend W. B. Raper, President.

They were Jack Paramore, son of S. A. Paramore, Winterville, and Miss Hilda Grace Kennedy, daughter of the Rev. Rashie Kennedy, 411 Latham Street, Greenville.

To make the Dean's List a student must maintain an average of "B" or better.

World Day of Prayer Service Is Scheduled

FOUNTAIN—The community-wide celebration of the World Day of Prayer will be held in the Fountain Presbyterian Church Friday night, Feb. 17, at 7:30.

Rev. Richard L. West, Baptist minister, will be the speaker. Rev. Philip M. Cory, Presbyterian minister, and Rev. L. B. Manning, Free Will Baptist minister, will also take part in the service.

Everyone is welcomed to this service which is sponsored by the women of the churches.

Inter Se Club Fetes Husbands

The Inter Se Book Club entertained their husbands Tuesday night at the Country Club.

Following dinner, Dr. Keith Holmes, assisted by a group of college students, presented a varied program of entertainment. A toast to the husbands was given by Dr. Malene Irons and a responding toast was given by Jack Edwards for the guests.

The students assisting Dr. Holmes were Laverne Eatman, Hubert Smith, Eddie Nelson, Cynthia James, Jackie Davis, Lou Lewis, Janet MacIntire, Bobbie Wilson and Marjorie Tingen.

Mrs. Keith Holmes, Dr. Holmes and Mrs. Virginia Conova of Cleveland, Ohio were guests. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Stallworth, Dr. and Mrs. C. Fred Irons and Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt Brown. Mrs. E. H. Williford, president of the Inter Se Book Club, presided.

The King's Daughters Hold Meet Tuesday

The Patient Circle of The King's Daughters and Sons met in the Alumni Building Tuesday night with Misses Eunice McGee, Helen Synder, Kathleen Venters and Mrs. L. L. Rives as hostesses.

The meeting was opened with the Prayer of the Order and was presided over by Mrs. C. A. Bowen. Miss Jennie Congleton gave a very timely devotional. Minutes were read by Mrs. E. W. Harvey, secretary and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Hilda Rowlette.

Mrs. J. B. Smith, of the social service committee, read a letter from the Civil Defense office urging members of the group to volunteer for hours of service. Many members responded to this request. Articles of clothing were also solicited for a needy family.

Following the meeting, the hostesses served refreshments carrying out the Valentine motif.

Some countries have one doctor for fewer than 1,000 people, while others have one doctor for more than 30 people, says a United Nations report.

Joan Starnes And Lt. Speir Married In Afternoon Ceremony

An afternoon ceremony at the Trenton Baptist Church, Trenton, Ky., united Miss Joan Martin Starnes and Lt. Montgomery Theodore Speir III of Winterville, N. C. and Fort Campbell, Ky.

R. Bernard Stone, Academic Dean of Martin College in Pulaski, Tenn., officiated and music was presented by William J. Hurt, organist, and Mrs. David Harper, vocalist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alva D. Starnes of Trenton, Ky. and is a graduate of St. Thomas' Hospital School of Nursing in Nashville, Tenn. She is presently staff nurse for Life and Casualty Ins. Co. of Nashville, Tenn. Lt. Speir is the son of Mrs. Montgomery T. Speir II of Winterville, N. C. and the late Mr. Speir. He is a graduate of the United States Military Academy and is presently stationed at Fort Campbell, Ky.

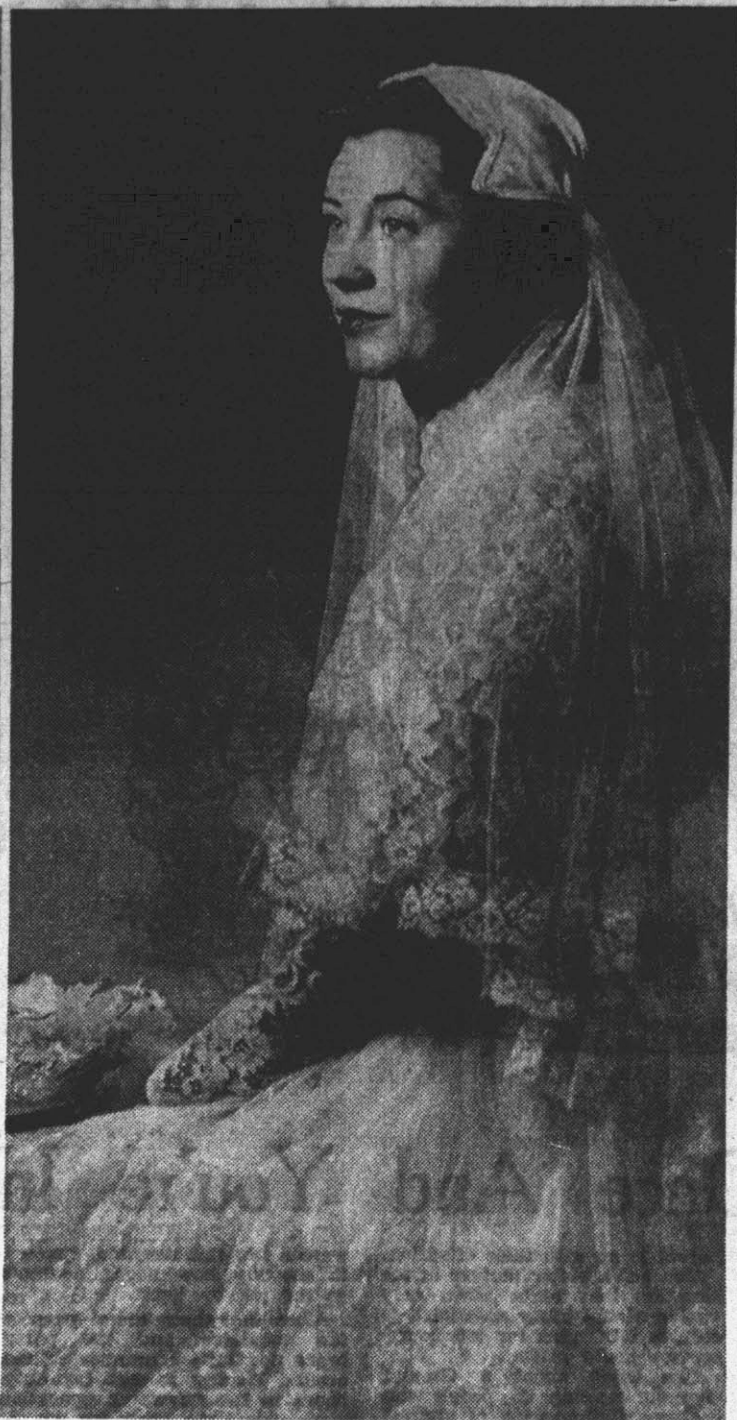

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white lace and nylon tulle made with a mandarin collar and long sleeves ending in points over the hands. The full gathered skirt was accented by a panel of the lace, and her fingertip veil of imported illusions was caught to a shell cap of satin, bordered with seed pearls. She carried a prayer book, marked with white orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Wanda Starnes of Crossville, Tenn. served as her sister's maid of honor. Miss Anne Speir, sister of the groom, served as bridesmaid. They wore dresses of silk shantung styled along princess lines with waltz length skirts. They carried bouquets of roses to match their dresses.

R. Edward Davenport Jr. of Farmville, N. C., cousin of the groom, was best man and Lt. Arthur Wells of Fort Campbell was groomsmen. Ushers were Bedford Starnes and Jerry Starnes, brothers of the bride, and Lt. Sam Allen and Lt. Jack Young, both stationed at Fort Campbell.

Mrs. Starnes, for her daughter's wedding, wore a Dior blue dress with matching hat. The bridegroom's mother wore a wedgewood blue dress with matching hat. Their corsages were white orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Starnes entertained with a reception at their home, Moss Acres. For travel, the bride wore a navy suit with matching accessories, and a white orchid.

Upon their return from a southern wedding trip, they will make their home in Clarksville, Tenn.

W.C.T.U. To Meet
The W.C.T.U. will meet at the home of Mrs. H. L. Andrews, 2409 E. Fifth St., at 7:30 on Friday evening, Feb. 17. Rev. Frederick Jones will be guest speaker. A special announcement will be made at this meeting. It is hoped that a good representation of members will be present. Visitors are always welcome.

Honor Recital Is Set For Sunday

Miss Frances Joyce Smith (above), senior voice major at East Carolina College, will be presented in her Senior Honor Recital by the East Carolina College Department of Music on Sunday at 3:30 p. m. in the McGinnis Auditorium.

Miss Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. Smith of Robertsonville.

She will be accompanied at the piano by Benjamin Franklin Keaton of Belhaven, who is a junior piano major. Some of the numbers to appear on the program are: The Biblical Songs, Op. 99, Vol. 1, by Antonin Dvorak; the aria "Addio" (La Traviata) by Verdi; a group of French songs, including "Si Mes Vers Avalent Des Ailes" by Hahn and "Fleur Jete" by Faure; "A Nun Takes A Veil," "The secrets of The Old," and "Sure On This Shining Night" by Samuel Barber; "Loveliest of Trees" by John Duke; the aria "The Black Swan" (The Medium) by Menotti; "Love Went A-Riding" by Frank Bridge, and "Day's End" with a poem by Franklin Keaton and music by George Perry of the ECC music faculty.

There is no admission charge to the recital and the public is cordially invited.

Miss Topping Named To College Board

RICHMOND, Va. — Ruth Evelyn Topping of Flora Macdonald College has been named to the College Board of the next volume of the "Going-to-College Handbook," annually published here. The book is designed to offer practical help in and looking forward to college. Nominated by college or national youth officials, members of the College Board serve as advisors to the editors in planning and developing the book.

At the present time the College Board is being polled to discover attitudes and opinions on a number of lively campus problems. Scheduled for publication next August in time for home-town going-to-college functions, the Handbook will be used during the remainder of the year by students looking forward to college.

PLASTERED
RICHMOND, Ky. — Deputy Sheriff Claude Williams thought he was being attacked by a prisoner, but actually he was just getting "plastered." He received a hard blow on the head while conducting a group of prisoners through the courthouse, enroute to the jail. He was hit by falling plaster but escaped injury.

Attend Family Life Conference

Three representatives of the Pitt County schools will attend a conference on family life education in Washington, D. C. Saturday and Sunday.

They are Mrs. Edna Earle Baker of Farmville, Pitt County school supervisor; W. C. Berry, Bethel Elementary School principal; and Miss Frances Lamb, social studies teacher at Greenville High School.

With Dr. R. M. Finck, director of mental health for the State Department of Public Instruction, and A. B. Gibson, Laurinburg school superintendent, they will represent North Carolina at the nation-wide meeting.

The delegates plan to meet with local teachers and school officials upon their return to make recommendations from information obtained at the Washington conference.

Encouraging Signs Of Cooperation

A growing appreciation of the urgent need for adequate air service in Eastern North Carolina prompts an increasingly optimistic view for the success of current attempts to establish a joint air facility in this area.

Heretofore there has been skepticism on the part of some people that Kinston and Rocky Mount, both of which already have air service, might balk at entering into the joint project which in effect would mean their giving up the air service they already have. At Tuesday's meeting in Raleigh, however, there was the indication that Kinston, at least, will be willing to give up its present air

Apparent Second Front Seems To Be Opening

Several questions have come to mind in conjunction with the latest development in Carolina Power and Light Company's efforts to acquire Grimesland's municipal power system.

Carolina Power and Light has applied to the State Utilities Commission for permission to purchase Grimesland's system. Grimesland's voters have approved the sale, but CP and L asserted it would not purchase the system as long as the contract between Grimesland and Greenville Utilities for the purchase of electric power remained in effect.

On several occasions before and since the decision to sell to Carolina Power and Light, Grimesland has tried unsuccessfully to get Greenville Utilities to cancel its contract although the contract still has 18 years to run.

There appears no inclination on the Greenville Utilities to depart from its previous decision on the contract. The questions:

What does Carolina Power and Light intend to do? Has the power company altered its original position in which it said it would not purchase the Grimesland system as long as the contract with Greenville remains in effect? Is the company now ready to purchase Grimesland's system the contract notwithstanding?

Or does Carolina Power and Light, through its application to the State Utilities Commission, hope to set up maneuvers through which Greenville Utilities will be forced to cancel its contract with Grimesland?

Carolina Power and Light has received favorable consideration from the State Utilities Commission in severing the Havelock territory from New Bern's municipal power system. The company stands to be the beneficiary if the State Utilities Commission decides in favor of a petition from the Vanceboro section requesting that CP and L replace Greenville Utilities in serving that section.

Greenville Utilities Commission should give careful attention to this move which has opened a second front before the State Utilities Commission in matters in which both Greenville Utilities Commission and Carolina Power and Light Company are involved.

Everybody's Glad Ike Given Favorable Report

The country waits while President Eisenhower makes his personal decision.

For months now the tension has been mounting and speculation on the question of whether or not the President will seek a second term has been on almost every lip. Everyone is sure the hour of decision is close at hand. The tension is at its fever pitch.

This week President Eisenhower's physicians pronounced the country's chief executive physically fit to seek and serve another term in the world's greatest, and most strenuous political office.

They reminded newsmen, however, that the decision on the future is for the President, not them, to make. President Eisenhower, aware of the fact, asserted a week ago that he thought he would "probably trust my own feelings more than I will the doctors' report."

Now that the physicians have said the President is physically fit, the final decision is up to Mr. Eisenhower.

All the nation, Democrats and Republicans alike, are delighted with the favorable medical report the President has received. In the Republican camp many leaders, who realize that the GOP will be lost without Ike at the head of the ticket in November, have taken the medical report as assurance that the President's decision will be in the affirmative.

As we have said before, we believe the President will decline to be a candidate for a second term in office. The Reflector so stated that position several months ago. In spite of increasing pressure from his Republican party leaders, the favorable report of his medical examiners and his deep sense of patriotic duty, it remains our guess that Mr. Eisenhower will elect to retire to his Gettysburg farm at the end of his present term.

If we miss our guess, it will not be the first time, nor will it be the last.

service in order to gain greater benefits the joint air facility and better air service would provide.

Kinston's Chamber of Commerce manager Charles McCullers told the group, "I don't think we can afford not to go along with anything that will help develop Eastern North Carolina. We must look at this matter from an area instead of a local standpoint."

The position taken by Kinston is indicative of the kind of cooperative efforts which must be had from all the municipalities associated with the project if it is to be successful. In addition to giving up the air service it now has on a local basis, Kinston will contribute approximately 14 per cent of the total local government funds which must be raised for the new airport facility. In turn, Kinston, like all the other communities in this section of the state, will share in the benefits which come from having first class commercial air service in this section.

Stated simply the situation boils down to two salient points:

1. Eastern North Carolina must have first class air service if it is to develop industrially in keeping with its potential.
2. The only means by which the section can acquire adequate air service is through combined efforts of the several communities establishing a joint air facility and supporting it.

For their individual welfare as well as for the progress of the entire area, no community can afford to be a stumbling block to this effort to establish a joint air facility. Each individually must put forth every effort in conjunction with the other communities involved for the welfare of the area as a whole. Only through such concerted action will the individual communities derive the anticipated benefits the joint air facility will afford.

Regional Endeavors Helping N. C. Grow

By LYNN NISBET
REGIONAL — Representatives of a dozen or more communities in the middle eastern part of the state have held several informal meetings to discuss development of a regional airport. So far there is no cohesive organization, although common interest is recognized.

Throughout the state a pattern of regional promotional associations is proving successful. Some of the most effective of these groups are found in the four corners of the state.

One of the earliest was the Albemarle Association, with an auxiliary Southern Albemarle Association in the Northeastern corner. This group has not been very active in recent years, but it has accomplished much in obtaining roads, bridges and industry for the area.

Jumping nearly 500 miles to the Southwestern corner, the Western North Carolina Associated Communities, comprising most of the 12th congressional district, has an enviable achievement record in developing agriculture, industry, recreation and cultural pursuits.

Another active and effective group in the Southeastern North Carolina Beach Association, concerned with the waterfront between White Oak River at Bogue Sound and Little River on the South Carolina line. In that same area activities of Wrightsville Beach and Carolina Beach chambers of commerce have been coordinated into an efficient Greater Wilmington Chamber of Commerce.

Newest of the regional co-operative efforts is the three-year old Northwest North Carolina Development Association. Originally it embraced ten counties, with boundary lines running approximately north and west from Winston-Salem (Forsyth county.) Last year Caldwell county joined, and last week Claude Armfield, president of the Bank of Lenoir, explained the objectives of the association.

OBJECTIVES — Because the particular objectives of NWNCDA are typical, and in general terms identical, with all the others, Armfield's analysis is used. He described his group as a "voluntary non-profit organization formed for the primary purpose of raising the economic level of the area." This purpose is approached through four main divisions: devoted to agriculture, community development, industrial promotion, recreation and travel.

Nothing new in these objectives. They have been furthered for years through community effort and competitive rivalry. This type of competition was and is both healthy and desirable, but "it could be fully effective only if there could be developed an organized spirit of regional co-operation capable of taking over and presenting a united front." ALL-STATE — Governor Hodges and C&D Director W.P. Saunders join their predecessors in endorsing this idea—and they expand it to embrace the whole state. Primary interest in developing the community, then the surrounding section, and then the whole state is the general prescription for progress.

PUBLICITY — Esso Standard Oil Company has just unveiled a "Portrait of North Carolina," a multi-colored slick paper booklet, portraying in pictures and texts the attractions of the state.

Hugh Morton has produced a color sound movie featuring "Grandfather of the Blue Ridge," which naturally emphasizes his famous mountain but has a lot of other scenic material from Western North Carolina.

The Salem Statesman, newspaper published west out in Salem, Oregon, last week had a full page picture and text story about North Carolina.

And "Monitor," the weekend program of NBC nationwide radio and TV, is beginning a series about the states—leading off with North Carolina and special emphasis on Raleigh next Sunday morning.

PURKS — Dr. Harris Purks, acting president of the Consolidated University who will take over as director of higher education on March 1, is in New York to take part in discussions of the scientific education, personnel and training potentials of the United States as compared with the Soviet Union.

The seminar sponsored by the National Industrial Conference Board, and while not top secret in all phases, the attendants will be carefully screened and limited to approved and qualified persons.

Dr. Purks said it is a fine to realize that in many respects the United States is behind other countries in scientific education and progress.

HEDRICK — Phil Hedrick is going to the U.S. Department of Agriculture as director of the request of the U.S. Department and Leaf Exporters to grant leave of absence to the tobacco expert for the month of April. His services has been requested to set up and supervise a tobacco exhibit at an international industrial fair in Osaka, Japan, second largest city in Japan with two million people.

In granting the leave of absence, Commissioner of Agriculture L.Y. Ballentine said that inasmuch as the federal government and the industry is paying expenses of the exposition, and in view of the stake North Carolina has in the tobacco business, it seemed little enough for the State to do.

QUERY — Will the tobacco exhibit help Japan to compete with American industry to the same extent it is bothering our textiles?

Taste It Once And You're In

The crowd came early Tuesday night for the Ground Observer meeting, and a lot of new faces were to be seen as well as a number of familiar faces missing. All in all, I guess the present of about sixty people was remarkable when you consider all the things going on that night.

Supervisor Jack Hadley has run into the same situation on other occasions he called GOC meetings, but this last time was a whizzer. The AA was meeting; there was a big High Point-East Carolina basketball game; there was a circus in town; the Jaycees were presenting a big musical production; the Stamp Club and the Appliance Dealers Ass'n were holding meetings; a big night on TV, and a Hitchcock movie was showing; the GHS team was playing out of town, and we can assume some parents accompanied them. If it wasn't something to occupy adults it was something that would require a parent to go with their offspring. You get a better picture of the situation that night when only twelve of the thirty scheduled to receive GOC pins for ten hours' service could attend.

One thing about a Ground Observer meeting, the people who go have a glimmering of interest beforehand; and by the time the meeting is ended they are enthusiastic participants.

Be-ribboned (and combat-scarred) Captain Fred Burns, of the Durham Filter Center, didn't speak very long... he didn't have to. The armed forces' sense of urgency in the matter of Continental Defense was vividly underlined by his reminder that the Strategic Air Command felt it necessary to keep a number of its giant bombers aloft and at the ready day and night.

There followed a short film presentation designed primarily to teach procedures for a skywatcher to make a report; but there were a few minutes, too, devoted to showing how radar couldn't do the job by itself.

After the show there were a few questions and the party broke up. Quite a number rallied around Hadley to ask for duty hours in the Skywatch operation. There was time open for everyone, and then some.

One thing about the Ground Observer program is that it's all strictly voluntary. There's no orders, no "must do this, must do that"... either one wants to help or one doesn't. The Greenville unit needs at least 300 more helpers, so that it can follow a no-train no-pain schedule.

Seems to me a town this size could furnish that many twice over. I understand Bethel's Ground Observers have been mending their post twenty-four hours per day ever since the fulltime skywatch began. That is certainly to their credit, in a big way.

Notebook On Life

Visiting A Home In The Past

By HAL BOYLE
COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—I came again to the old white frame house on the hillside of the University of Missouri campus and knocked at a well-remembered door.

The door opened, and I saw before me the same lady who had opened that same door to me when I had first knocked upon it a quarter of a century ago as a brash young student.

The gray lady looked hesitantly for a moment at the gray-haired middle-aged man before her, and then her mind peeled away the ravaging changes time had made in him, and she said in a real pleased voice, "Why, Harold!" and then I put my arms around her and pressed my face against her cheek—and knew myself at home.

Going back to his old college is a spiritual order to any man. So many of the landmarks of his youth have vanished and been replaced by the new landmarks for a new generation that he feels himself a stranger from a lost time.

But Mrs. E.E. Tydings, my foster mother, hadn't changed. "Why, Harold, come right in," she said, and shut the door against the winter chill.

We went into the kitchen, and herself at the stove, I sat in the old straight-back chair she had received as a wedding present around the turn of the century. We talked of old times, and it was almost as if I had never been away.

"My mind often goes back..." said Mrs. Tydings.

Every college campus has its Mrs. Tydings. They are the motherly women who take in lonely college boys and give them a home away from home.

Over the years Mrs. Tydings and her husband, Dr. Tydings, a dentist, now dead, must have sheltered and fed a hundred or more students—and lost a lot of money doing it.

"I just don't know how many boys have stayed with us," she said. "I've never bothered to count them."

"How do the college boys of today compare to those who were in school when I was here?" I asked, rather hoping, I must admit, for a bit of personal recognition.

"Why, Harold," said Mrs. Tydings, "there's been a wonderful change. Maybe I am just getting more tolerant, but I do think the boys today are better behaved."

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
GOSPEL OF WORK

One of the quickest ways to rid one's self of doubt, melancholy, self-pity, and envy of the good fortune of others is to get busy and to keep busy.

The tasks to which we apply ourselves need not be, under such circumstances, of an overwhelming significance. The main thing is that we keep busy. The next day, "give him hell," to use the colloquialism of the day, is to put on your coat and go out somewhere, meet somebody anybody, and talk about anything except your own troubles. All over the world today there are groups of people huddled together telling one another about their symptoms, their aches and pains, their sorrows and disappointments. From such huddles a spirit goes forth which is indeed of the devil. It deepens the miseries of the sufferers who talk about themselves, and it adds to the sum total of the world's pain.

The gospel of work is not the only gospel, or in fact the chief gospel, but it is a gospel. It is good news to those who are inclined to be introverted. Many of life's troubles would disappear if we would just get up and walk away from them. Strange as it may seem, there is something in us which makes us want to embrace them. Then we can pity ourselves all the more and beat our breasts and be miserable. Believe it or not, there are people whose chief delight in life is to be miserable.

Snap out of it. Snap out of it. Get busy, stay busy and compel yourself to be cheerful, whether you feel that way or not.

Other Editors Are Saying... Forum Is Not For The Fearful

(Charlotte Observer)

The Forum? It takes courage. Some of our upper-crust readers tend to disparage letters-to-the-editor. They wouldn't be caught dead, they imply, in The Forum.

They read the stuff, but—well, it's stuff. Suits us. Some of them couldn't even qualify.

The Forum is not formal. Its door is open to the shirt-sleeved, the windburned, even the unwashed. The only requirement for membership is a piece to speak brass enough to speak it, and an evident sincerity.

denouncers. We don't always succeed. Sometimes we even despair of ever succeeding. But we try.

A lot of intelligent people comprise our Forum family. It includes some crackpots. But the feature offers, or attempts to offer, a sort of sample cross-section of comment — absurd or informed — in our neck of the woods. The Forum widely denounced; it is also widely read.

It takes, as we noted, courage. Names must be signed. Retorts are inevitable. Sometimes the authors of Forum essays are victims of abuse — telephone calls, letters, telegrams (all mostly anonymous). But most of the writers (we're grateful, too) are willing to take the risk.

We're proud of The Forum faithful. They labor in conviction and with relative love. There is not an exclusive club, though the entry fee is an interesting essay. Any new applicants?

High Strategy In Early Attack On Nixon

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON Top Democrats' personal, virulent and concerted attack on Vice President Richard M. Nixon is inspired solely by the belief that the Californian will be the Republican Party's 1956 Presidential nominee.

They seek to "tear down" Nixon, "give him hell," to use Trumanesque vernacular, now because the lateness of the conventions will leave so little time for mudslinging.

Even if Ike does run, he has announced that he will do no "barnstorming." While he conducts a White House perch campaign and delivers several carefully planned television speeches, Nixon will tour the countryside with all the publicity and paraphernalia which normally accompany a President or a Presidential candidate. "Dick" will be the on-the-spot target.

DEMOCRATS OUT TO "GET" NIXON Again, if Eisenhower should feel able to make the race his health will inevitably focus unusual attention on the behavior and the qualifications of his running mate, Truman himself, as well as Senators Kerr and Neuberger, assured this strange twist with his statement that the American people will not "elect a regency or a part-time chairman of the board."

So, like a football team under order of the coach to incapacitate the opponent's star halfback, the Democrats are out to "get" Nixon. There is no other explanation of their deliberate depreciation of a man who holds such a normally innocuous and inoffensive office.

This strategy brings them into direct conflict with the President. For, by aggrandizing the V.P.'s role more than any predecessor has been honored, Ike is obviously building up Nixon for a possible political crisis.

VICE PRESIDENT'S MISSIONS Nixon has attended almost every meeting of the Cabinet and the National Security Council, presiding in the absence of the President. He has been sent on extremely important foreign missions, the latest being a successful journey to the inauguration of Brazil's new Chief Executive.

"No Vice President," Ike has said of him, "has been so well versed in the activities of the government."

Ike may not pat the 43-year-old Californian as his heir remaining strictly neutral and permitting an open convention lest there be angry and divisive charges of "dictation." But such an astute veteran as Truman, whose out-of-character rages against Nixon almost match his "I'll punch him in the nose" remark, apparently believes as does Adlai Stevenson, that the Democrats may have to face their 1952 hair-shirt next November.

Besides Ike's partiality, the opposition strategists have come to the conclusion that Nixon is also the favorite of the so-called "Dewey-Adams-Brownell-Hall regency."

Increasing Inventory Worries

By ELMER ROESSNER

There is increasing concern over inventories among top-level economists. There is likely to be more talk about them in months to come.

Inventories are a kind of double-headed problem. First, there's the matter of amount. Inventories tie up capital and run up costs for insurance, warehousing and conservation. In many lines, there is fear that inventoried goods will go out of style. On the other hand, without adequate inventory a merchant may lose sales and a manufacturer be at a disadvantage in buying raw materials.

Second there's the matter of direction. When business firms in general are increasing inventories, times are usually good. When stocks are getting larger, the nation is buying more goods than it is consuming and that bolsters production, employment and income. When inventories are generally being reduced, the nation is making less than it is using and that cuts work, wages and profits.

INVENTORIES AT HIGH POINT The auto industry offers a timely example. Demand was high last year. But production was even higher and the industry began 1956 with about three-quarters of a million cars in inventory—in factories, in dealers' showrooms and in the open instances, stored in the open.

In making more cars than it was selling, the industry kept employment and payrolls high. Now the industry has cut back "to get production in balance with demand," as several manufacturers above the national level are making fewer cars than are being sold and that is reducing both factory and dealer inventories—and cutting employment and wages.

Inventories in almost all lines rose last year; the total increase was above 10 per cent. Retailers and manufacturers are ready to make their share. Thus boom begets more boom.

Now no one is sure about what will happen later on this year. The Bulletin of the National Association of Purchasing Agents (who watch inventories like secretaries watch clocks), sees a further rise in inventories ahead, although the accumulation will not be as large as the 1953-54 rise.

SEES STILL FURTHER RISE A. W. Zelomek, economist, writing in the Bulletin of the National Association of Purchasing Agents (who watch inventories like secretaries watch clocks), sees a further rise in inventories ahead, although the accumulation will not be as large as the 1953-54 rise.

Mr. Zelomek pointed out that rising prices and fear of further advances tend to encourage accumulation, and that wages are an important part of prices. Fear of higher wages, exaggerated by the higher minimum wage, has stimulated the buying of stocks. While the inventory total is not burdensome now, he holds, "a danger signal may occur in the next ninety days."

Meanwhile Roy A. Foulke, Dun & Bradstreet's president, warned businessmen that inventories closely. In no case, he said, should the inventory at the end of a fiscal year be greater than the net working capital.

"More failures, more liquidations, more trials and tribulations, I am convinced from my experience in analyzing thousands of businesses over thirty five years, are caused by heavy inventories than by all other problems put together," he declared.

When a merchant or manufacturer concludes that stocks on hand are too high, he usually takes two steps. He reduces his purchase of production of new goods and he redoubles efforts to sell those on hand. When this takes place and there are some signs it will happen in some lines not too far ahead, there are usually fine bargains for customers.

EASY PAYMENT PLAN PROMOTED FOR CAMERAS A year ago the rug and carpet business was in the doldrums. Then major manufacturers produced easy-payment plans for their dealers. Now one of the largest camera and equipment companies (Graphlex) has announced plans by which its dealers can sell on easy payments. It didn't say where it got the idea.

Candlelight Ceremony Unites Ruth Hazel Rogers, Mr. Perrotta

The marriage of Miss Ruth Hazel Rogers and John Anthony Perrotta Jr. was solemnized in a candlelight ceremony at Saint Lenard's Catholic Church in Chicago, Ill.

Father J. J. Doerhity officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Rogers Sr. of Greenville and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Perrotta Sr. of Chicago.

A program of nuptial music was presented by the church organist. The bride, given in marriage by the father of the groom, wore a gown of white satin and Alencon lace, featuring a portrait neckline and long fitted sleeves ending in points over the wrist. The bridal veil fell from a band of seed pearls. The bridal bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley, showered with white satin ribbons, was attached to a white prayer book.

Miss Genevieve Cammarata was maid of honor. She wore a gown of taffeta green with white orchids. Miss June Perrotta, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and she also wore a gown of taffeta green.

After the wedding reception, the bride changed into a navy blue traveling suit with white accessories. The bride and groom left for a two week honeymoon in the western states.

Their home will be in Greenville for the present time.

Reading Tests Of Credit Women Are Discussed By Miss Hooper

Miss Emma Hooper, English instructor at East Carolina College, was guest teacher at the Credit Women's Breakfast Club Saturday morning, February 11, at the Olde Towne Inn.

President Henrietta Johnson welcomed Miss Hooper who is acting as advisor to the group in their current Reading Course.

Miss Hooper discussed the results of the reading test given members in January, explaining the methods used to compute the scores. She also encouraged members to enjoy their lessons and learn to read for pleasure, emphasizing that there was no competition among members in the course as the sole purpose is to better one's self and this can be done only by individual effort.

Music Workshop To Be Conducted

FOUNTAIN—The Home Demonstration Clubs and Public School Music Departments of North Carolina are conducting a music workshop on February 28th from 10 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. at the Heimer Country Club in Tarboro.

Religious music and music in recreation will be featured. All choir members and accompanists, recreational leaders and song leaders are invited. Lunch will be $1.35. Reservations must be made by February 28th.

To Attend Conference
Thirteen Methodist women in the North Carolina Conference will attend the annual meeting of the Southeastern Jurisdiction Woman's Society of Christian Service, to be held February 21-23 at the Revell Methodist Church, Richmond, Va.

They will officially represent the 33,384 members of the North Carolina Conference. The list includes Mrs. H. L. Glass, Durham; Mrs. Pierce Johnson, Weldon; Mrs. H. A. Davis, Raleigh; Mrs. C. D. Barclift, Durham; Mrs. Norman Wood, Burlington; Mrs. T. E. Newbold, Rocky Mount; Mrs. Harold Braswell, Whitakers; Mrs. Dwight Fouts, Mt. Olive; Mrs. E. L. Hillman, Siler City; Miss Ethelnye Ballance, Roberdel; Miss Alta Nye, Blain; Miss Mamie Chandler, Greenville, and Miss Charlotte Stevenson, Havelock.

A final test will be given in Miss Hooper's classroom Friday night, March 2nd.

During the routine business session, Mrs. Bonnie Singleton, chairman of bulletin committee, distributed first quarterly bulletins of the club year. Project Chairman Frances Cassick invited members to attend a meeting being sponsored by the club in Tarboro Friday night, February 17th. Educational Chairman Earline Coghill announced that the second lesson of Credit Course would be taught at the next meeting. Mrs. Cassie Sawyer reported on activities of the Sunshine Committee.

Members were urged to attend the Spring Board meeting to be held in Charlotte on February 25th and 26th.

President Johnson thanked Mrs. Mildred Hardee and Mrs. Ruby Lum for the Valentine table decorations prepared by the hostess committee. Members sang "Happy Birthday" to Mrs. Mildred Hardee who celebrated her birthday Saturday. Door prizes were won by Mrs. Earline Coghill and Mrs. Jean Clark.

Fountain PTA Holds Meeting

FOUNTAIN—The Fountain Parent-Teacher Association met on Thursday night at 7:30 in the school auditorium with a large crowd attending.

The president, Mrs. Carter G. Smith, presided. The meeting was turned over to Mrs. Emily Mercer and Mrs. William Howard, third and fourth grade teachers, who were in charge of the program. The fourth grade gave the devotional, and also sang songs about the countries it has been studying. The third grade presented a play that it had written entitled "Our Community Helpers."

Mrs. Emily Mercer's third grade won the attendance prize.

The Fountain School principal, Mr. Arthur S. Alford, announced the parents could have their children up to the age of 20 years immunized against polio by taking the children to the Farmville office of the health department from 8:30 to 11:45 a.m. any Saturday to receive the Salk anti-polio shots.

High-Flying Phants And No. 2 Team Of Conference C lash Here Friday

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Writer

Sporting a fine 11-0 record in the Northeastern Conference, Greenville meets the No. 2 squad in the loop in Kinston here at the GHS gymnasium Friday night.

The scrappy Red Devils are the final blockade between the Phants and the coveted loop crown for regular season play. Ike Riddick, Harold Edwards and crew have demolished all other opponents (and by tremendous scoring margins).

Against all opponents, the G-Men boast a 14-5 state. They have defeated every team in their AA conference twice, with the exception of the Red Devils. They stopped Kinston 69-62 in their only meeting. They downed AAA Goldsboro and triumphed over New Bern and Clinton in the Tobaccoland Tourney. Losses came at the hands of AAA Rocky Mount (twice), Goldsboro and the East Carolina College Freshman team.

Scoring
Leading the Greenville scoring parade is lanky All-Conference center Hal Edwards, a 6-4 senior, with an average of 30.7 tallies per contest. The big boy has led the league in this department throughout most of the season and at one time held an average that passed the 24 point mark. Below are listed the scoring totals for the Green regular quintet:

	TP	AVG.
Edwards	228	20.7
Riddick	171	15.0
Johnson	105	10.0
Hardee	90	8.2
Drum	73	6.6

The Kinston match will be Greenville's biggest tilt of the season, due to the tight title race and the natural rivalry that has existed between the two schools for years. Coach Amos Sexton will undoubtedly have his boys fired up and in top shape for the game when they invade the Greenville school gymnasium. Should they pull an upset and top the Green cagers, the league would be deadlocked in a tie between the two teams.

Experts, however, consider the game Greenville's by an approximate 12-point margin; the Green have a homecourt advantage, the record to back up their claims for the titles and a previous win over the Devils.

Pirates Tangle With Abbey Five

East Carolina's Pirates, having clinched the North State Conference regular season championship, are in Belmont tonight meeting the strong Belmont Abbey Crusaders.

Coach Howard Porter's gang expects a rugged argument from the big Crusaders, who are one of the highest scoring outfits in the state.

Belmont Abbey holds several victories over North State schools, among them Guilford, High Point and Catawba. But mostly the Abbey is respected for its surprising win over powerful Richmond of the Southern Conference.

Tar Heels Edge Deacs To 'Surprise' McGuire

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina's Tar Heels held undisputed possession of first place in the bitter Atlantic Coast Conference basketball chase today, and even Coach Frank McGuire admits he's surprised.

The Tar Heels, bolstered by brilliant Lennie Rosenbluth's 33 points, disposed of trouble-maker Wake Forest 77-73 last night to break a three-way log jam that cluttered up the front ranks.

be determined when the two teams meet at Raleigh next Tuesday. The Tar Heels won the first regular season encounter 73-69, in the safe confines of their own Woolen Gymnasium. Next Tuesday's battle will be at high Reynolds Coliseum where the home-standing Wolfpack seldom loses.

If the Tar Heels get by that one their return battle with dangerous Duke at Chapel Hill would be icing on the cake.

East Carolina's first five of Don Harris, Nick Nichols, Guy Mendenhall, Harold Ingram and J. C. Anomas will have its work cut out.

Fred James and Tim Smothers, front line reserves, will see action for the Pirates, along with the likes of Harry Blevins, Marion Hales and Joe Plaster.

McGuire, the Brooklyn prophet, told all and sundry before the current season started that his sophisticated Tar Heels would be a better club this year—maybe near the top at season's end. But he cautiously added that the team was still a year away from their big push.

Now he admits that his club, 10th ranked in the nation in the current Associated Press poll, could end up the season in first place, with top seeding in the conference tournament at Raleigh beginning March 1. That tournament determines the loop's entry in the NCAA playoffs.

There are, however, two big stumbling blocks ahead for the Tar Heels, and one of them is North Carolina State—the nation's No. 5 team. All hands agree that the final loop leadership will with no more than a four-point spread separating the teams at any time from the starting whistle. The Tar Heels went ahead for good with only 2:15 remaining. A two-pointer by Rosenbluth was the telling blow.

Wake Forest, which had been in a three way tie with the Tar Heels and North Carolina State, led 69-68. Two field goals by Rosenbluth made it 72-69 and the iron-men Deacons couldn't catch up in the time left.

Jayvee Tourney Starts Monday

NEW BERN — The first annual Northeastern Conference Junior Varsity basketball tournament will be staged in the New Bern high school gymnasium starting Monday, February 20.

Coach J. F. Hockaday, of New Bern, chairman of the conference jayvee tourney committee, announced Monday afternoon that pairings for the first round of play would have Greenville versus Kinston at 7:30 and New Bern versus Jacksonville in the nightcap.

Winners in the first round will advance to the finals in the championship bracket with losers meeting for the consolation title Tuesday night. Doubleheaders will begin each night of the tourney at 7:30 o'clock.

The tourney was planned at the last meeting of the Northeastern conference coaches and principals in Washington. At that time three schools were unable to give definite commitments and this year's event had to be planned with only four teams.

Trophies will be presented to the winner of the tournament as well as to the consolation champion.

Probable Starting Line-Up For ECC Grid Game Set By Boone

Coach Jack Boone has named his probable starting line-up for East Carolina College's football game with Presbyterian here Saturday afternoon.

The Buc mentor said that Dick Cherry will command the first eleven at quarterback and do a lot of the passing. Cherry will work with a trio of Jim Henderson at left half, Bobby Perry at right half and Bob Maynard at full.

The No. 1 line, according to Boone, appears to be Bill Helms and Ray Pennington at the ends, Bull Overton and Jerry Brooks at the tackles, Bucky Dennis and Charles Smith at the guards, and Waverly Chesson at center.

Boone and assistant coach Jim Mallory have moved more weight in the line by placing Dennis and Smith at guards. Dennis is a Wake Forest transfer while Smith is a rising junior from Fairmont. Both weigh 230.

Boyd Decisions Lausse In 'Marathon' Ring Brawl

CHICAGO (AP) — In a brawl that had the aspects of just about everything — wrestling, football and bull fighting — long-reaching Bobby Boyd won a split 10-round decision over rugged Eduardo Lausse last night.

Boyd, staggered several times by the Argentine's vicious left hooks, pulled up his edge with a harpooning left jab and head work.

In fact, Charlie Johnston, manager of the 28-year-old Lausse implied after the nationally televised scrap in Chicago Stadium that Boyd used his head so well he butted open an angry gash between Eduardo's eyes in the third round.

Each weighed 180 pounds. Judge Spike McAdams scored for Boyd 95-88 under Illinois' 10-point maximum per round. Judge John Bray voted for Boyd 94-91. Referee Frank Sikora favored Lausse 94-93. The Associated Press card had Boyd in front 96-95.

Eppes Rounding Out Home Games

Eppes' high school Bulldogs will round out their home basketball schedule tonight in their school gymnasium as they play host to Wilmington. The contest will be a conference affair.

A Jayvee tilt will begin the night's action at 7:30 and the varsity match will follow immediately.

The GOLDEN WITCH

By ZOLA ROSS

In 1897, Seattle was a bustling, booming gateway to the Klondike gold rush. Tim O'Beirn, with the help of his good friend Michael Dark, a handsome young lawyer, persuades Meg Beaumont, his pretty yellow-haired niece, not to go to Alaska in search of her husband, Kemp Beaumont. Kemp had deserted Meg and their small son, John, for the gold fields of the frozen north. Michael finds Meg a place to stay at Matilda Cox's boarding house, where he lives. Tim thinks Meg should return to her father in Illinois, but Meg refuses, although she hasn't a job or money. Matilda asks Michael to find her a job, and he suggests schoolteaching, but Meg says no. Meanwhile, at the boarding house, Meg meets Jenny Fleur, who has a small hat shop that isn't doing well because she isn't a good saleswoman. Meg is good at designing and selling so they become partners. To help them along, Jason Ten Eyck, a prosperous merchant, offers to let them display hats in his store once a week. Jason also becomes interested in Meg. Meg discovers that Jenny's husband had deserted her, too, bringing them closer together. Although she does not return Jason's affection, Meg plans to capitalize on the situation to make the hat store a success. Because of Meg the hat store thrives. Michael, though he is not a suitor, admired Meg a great deal.

CHAPTER NINE
Michael had other news from the north, by letter and by word of mouth. People sensed his withdrawal from competition and rewarded him with friendly confidence. No other man in Seattle held so many secrets.

Now and then tag ends worried him. Ryerson's prosperity was one of them. Two weeks after he became hotel clerk, Ryerson was hotel owner. Most people believed he'd cashed in on Eastern property. Michael felt a backer was more likely. When Ryerson acquired a prosperous saloon below the Deadline, this conviction strengthened. He was annoyed because he could not guess the backer.

Reflecting on this petty ego prickler, he ran to Ryerson at an early lunch. Ryerson drifted into the hotel dining room just as a miner from Issaquah was concluding an argument with Michael. The miner was heading north in the spring; he wanted Michael for a partner.

When Michael had convinced him he wasn't interested, he left disgruntled and Ryerson came over to Michael's table.
"So it's true you don't want to go to Alaska. Don't grub-stake either?"
"Not on a percentage basis," Michael was curt.

"Why not?" Ryerson's clear green eyes with their restless gambler's lights, were curious.
Michael had fended the question often. Now he wanted to find an answer, not for Ryerson but for himself. "Maybe I feel the real future is in Seattle."

"Like Ten Eyck." Ryerson lighted a cigar and regarded Michael thoughtfully. "Ten Eyck will cut coupons when the Klondike's an old fairy tale. That's what you think?"
"Perhaps."

Michael reflected that he had seen Ryerson with Barney Linden now and then. Perhaps Barclay was Ryerson's mysterious backer.

The whole town was a patchwork quilt. On First Hill, on Capitol Hill, on Queen Anne, in a dozen subdivisions that were making realtors and speculators rich overnight, the big houses watched the town, drawing away from the luster of the water front, of below the Deadline. No hill's high enough, Michael mused. Often he thought of the Deadline as a tangible thing cutting off the district of swindle and sin. The district had rejoiced in many tags before the 1889 fire, it had been "Lava Beds"; occasionally it was "Skid Road," drawing on its lumber and sawmill heritage.

strangers spoke of it as "the Tenderloin."
When Michael arrived in '93, a reform wave was rampant, but the padlocks on the boxhouses melted with the first heat of gold fever.
Boxhouses, started as "amusement centers," now embraced everything from theater to opium. Michael knew the district well, for many of his clients came from it, attracted by his lack of condemnation or his indifference to prompt payment.
He rarely sent a bill to a man who came from the boxhouses. The huge, bare halls with their intricate piano players, the wall cubbyholes where women waited were so bleak that they aroused Michael's pity. He disliked knowing that a fellow man was driven to them.

Meg Beaumont claimed Seattle was the most arrogant town in the world. "Obsessed with its own importance," she complained to Michael. "To hear people talk, you'd swear it was the only city in the Northwest. Apparently Seattle settled Washington Territory single handedly floated trade to the Orient and personally gave birth to the Klondike!"
"Seattle's on the Sound," Michael said.
"And what's that to do with it?"
"With water in your front and back yards, with ships bearing loot to meek Babs, a piker, you have no truck with meekness." He spoke lightly but he meant it.
Meg tipped back her head. As on many other evenings, she and Jenny were in the dining room. Michael and Nathan had stopped in on their way downtown an hour after dinner.

"Meekness!" Meg sniffed. "I hold no brief for it. Jenny handles the humility for our partnership. And what does it get her?" Her smile robbed the words of malice. "Nathan's meek too. So Jenny works him like three men."
Nathan smiled and said nothing. "Maybe Nathan and Jenny like being meek," Michael said. "Don't the meek inherit the earth?"
"Only when the others don't have any more use for it," Meg retorted.
"Hoo-hoo." Tim O'Beirn called from the door and entered at top speed. "Hello, Michael, Nathan. How're you, Jenny?" He brushed his hair with nervous fingers blew on the brim of his hat. "Meg, did you get a letter from Kemp on last night's boat? Likely to be our last word from Dawson until spring."
"I did not." Meg's expression and tone were frigid.
"No letter since the one about getting over the pass?"
"I've had only one letter." Meg's manner ought to cause discomfort in men more stouthearted than Tim.
"I had a letter from Honora today, Meg."
Meg stood up, scowled openly at Tim. "I hear regularly from her."
Tim squirmed. "The boy may be sick."
"I doubt it."
"Maybe he's having bad luck."
"Perhaps. If so, we won't hear from him until his luck changes."
Michael was surprised when Tim persisted. "You're not going back on the boy, Meg?"

Her face was shadowed. "Doesn't it appear that the shoe is on the other foot, Uncle Tim?"
"But he expects you to be here when he returns. Or in Illinois with his folks or yours."
Meg watched him silently.
"Maybe you'd best go back to Illinois, Meg." Tim was wheedling. "I'll buy your ticket. I was lucky in cards last night."
"I am not going back to Illinois, Uncle Tim."
Tim showed his own temper. "Jason Ten Eyck wouldn't have anything to do with it, would he?"
"Jason?"
Tim took a step toward her. "I'm not blind! Three times in the last three weeks Jason's taken you home in his fancy carriage!"
"It was raining. He was merely courteous."
Meg's brows rushed together. Her eyes were black with anger. "Are you hinting there's anything scandalous between Jason and me?"
"Nothing of the kind! Oh, it's not his intentions I'm worrying about. I'm asking you straight out. Do you figure you could be after takin' your pigs to a better market than Kemp's yet furnished you?"
Jenny gasped. She sprang for the hall. Nathan followed on her heels. Michael balked of his own attempt unless he wanted a collision, found himself alone with Tim and Meg. The room's silence was louder than a thunderclap.

Meditation Will Replace Guests
UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP) With most of the featured speakers canceling out because of a segregation row, the University of Mississippi will substitute 30-minute silent prayer periods for Religious Emphasis Week.
The controversy was touched off when university officials withdrew their speaking invitation to the Rev. Alvin Kershaw, Episcopal minister from Oxford, Ohio.
Kershaw said he is a member of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, which opposes Mississippi's intention of keeping the races segregated despite the U. S. Supreme Court decision.
He was to have discussed religious drama.
After his invitation was dropped, four out-of-state speakers, a Catholic priest, a rabbi and two Protestant ministers, decided to cancel their speaking engagements.
They were joined last night by five ministers from Oxford, Miss., where the campus is located.
Finding itself virtually without speakers, the 100-man executive committee in charge of the Feb. 20-22 program decided to do away with all activities and substitute 30-minute periods of silent prayer and meditation on each of the three days.

Dead Skunk Was His Valentine
JUNCTION, Utah (AP)—While his 8-year-old grandson watched, State Rep. McKinley Morrill began taking the ribbon from a Valentine's Day present the boy had just handed him. Under the ribbon was a large box. Inside was a dead skunk. Proudly grandson Mac Thompson explained he had found it in the woods. Morrill says he finally persuaded Mac to take it back.

Courses On Soviet Union Scheduled By ECC Dept.

Two new courses, Cartography and the Geography of the Soviet Union, have been announced by the department of geography at East Carolina College as additions to its curriculum. Both will be with Dr. Robert E. Cramer as instructor, taught during the spring quarter, beginning February 29.
The course in cartography, Dr. Cramer explains, is the first of its kind to be offered at East Carolina. Objectives are to give the student a general understanding of the many phases involved in analyzing and interpreting different kinds of maps and charts and to provide opportunities for applying information presented in texts and lectures.
Students, in addition to performing laboratory experiments, will complete original maps, charts, and graphs from data obtained in the Greenville area, in Pitt County, and elsewhere.

Though an increasing number of maps is being used today for a variety of purposes, Dr. Cramer says, the number of persons with adequate background and training to prepare or to use them is limited. More systematic training of the general and selected public is needed to increase the quality and quantity of map makers and map users, he explains. Since excellent openings now exist for graduates in geography with training in cartography, he states, the new course offers excellent opportunities for those enrolled.
Dr. Cramer has had cartographic experience with the Geography Division of the Office of Strategic Services, with the U. S. Air Force as an aerial photograph interpreter, and as senior cartographer with Aeronautical Chart Service in both Washington, D.C., and St. Louis, Mo.
The course in the Geography of the Soviet Union will deal with the area, people, resources, industries, and agriculture of the country and provide a basis for understanding much of what is taking place there today.

Segregationists Fighting Church School Integration

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A hot legislative fight loomed today between the Roman Catholic Church and segregation leaders seeking a law that would halt church plans for integration in Catholic schools.

The request came shortly after a special three-judge federal court threw out state laws aimed at retaining segregation under the state's police powers.

The law created a controversy when passed four years ago. The House originally passed a bill banning integration in all schools, but later changed the wording to make the ban apply only to public schools after Archbishop Joseph Rummel of New Orleans intervened.

BLONDIE

THE PHANTOM

The U. S. constitutional guarantee of separation of church and state was involved.

The request last night came from Representatives Cyril Broussard, Joseph Casey and Frank Huerstel of New Orleans and E. W. Gravolet Jr. of adjacent Plaquemines Parish (county). It was made in a letter to State Sen. W. M. Rainach, head of the Legislature's committee on segregation.

They urged the 1954 laws be amended to include private schools.

Their statement said, "It is unthinkable that the State of Louisiana would not afford the same protection to the children in its private schools that it affords to the children in its public schools."

Most Senators Doubt Ike Would Shelve His Veep

WASHINGTON (AP)—A cross-section sampling of Senate Republicans and Democrats showed today most of them think that if President Eisenhower runs again Vice President Nixon will be on the GOP ticket.

Eisenhower has indicated he will give his second-term decision around March 1. If he says then he is available, there is little doubt the vice presidential nominee named at the August convention will be the man he wants.

Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) said he believes Eisenhower will want Nixon to run with him despite what Smith termed "some opposition" within the party.

"I think most of the Republican opposition to Nixon is directed at him as a possible presidential candidate, if the President doesn't run again, rather than as a vice

'Message' From The Dead Says It Was Murder

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The funeral of Mrs. Claudia Benco, 55, will not be held as scheduled today because of a "message from the dead" that charges her death was not accidental, but murder.

Mrs. Benco died Monday of burns suffered in her apartment Feb. 1.

Police Capt. P. R. Smith of Beverly Hills said the following note in her handwriting was found yesterday in her locker at the Beverly Hills Hotel, where she had worked:

"If by any chance I should die, it will not be an accident, but murder; plain, cold blooded murder. Remember, it is murder and nothing else."

The coroner's office ordered a further post-mortem on the body. The fire in her apartment had been attributed to careless smoking. Investigators said Mrs. Benco, cigarette in hand, apparently had fallen asleep in an upholstered chair.

Swansboro, Asheboro, Ramseur Win 'Finer Carolina'

TOP SPOT—This junior league baseball team helped bat Swansboro into a top spot in the Finer Carolina contest. Even after fall hurricanes nearly washed out its program, Swansboro won a first prize in the contest sponsored by Carolina Power & Light Co. The baseball team was one of several recreational projects.

Asheboro, Ramseur and Swansboro have been declared first place winners of the 1956 Finer Carolina contest, it was announced today.

Each of the communities was judged tops on the basis of self-improvement last year in its respective population class. They will receive $1,000 prizes.

It was Asheboro's third consecutive first place. Last year, Ramseur placed second.

Pressing close behind and coping $500 checks for second place were Roxboro and Swannanoa, N.C., and Clio, S.C. Third place prizes of $250 each were awarded Clinton, Weaverville and Harrells, N.C.

Some 906 projects submitted for the annual contest by 184 North and South Carolina communities were judged by Dr. S.H. Hobbs, Jr., professor of rural sociology, University of North Carolina; Gerard Appy, director of communications, University of Georgia Center for Continuing Education; and William P. Corley, manager, advertising division, Georgia Power Co.

They cited for honorable mention and $100 prizes Siler City, Mt. Gilead, Hazelwood, Black Mountain, Fairmont, Wallace, Noxonia, Grifton and Snow Hill, North Carolina; and Manning, Dillon, Lake City, Lakeview, Pinewood and Ruby, South Carolina. The prizes will be presented by Carolina Power & Light Company, sponsor of the community improvement contest. Under contest rules the money is to be used for further community improvements.

Competition was divided into three population classes—communities of 1,000 persons or less, 1,000-2,500 and towns of more than 2,500. Civic-minded residents and clubs joined together under the general supervision of a local steering committee to carry through projects outlined at the beginning of last year.

Asheboro has maintained its dominant position for the past three

Court Evicting His African Lion

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The Animal Regulation Commission has informed John Shinnors he may no longer keep King, 20-month-old African lion, in his apartment.

Shinnors, 26, who plans to become a lion tamer, also was informed that he'll have to stop strolling around the block with the lion on a leash.

"At home he has his own bed, but on cold nights he usually climbs in with me," Shinnors said.

years with a continuing five general-project program. This program consists of (1) community beautification, (2) industrial expansion, (3) educational improvements, (4) recreational improvements and (5) cultural development.

Among 36 individual undertakings under the general program last year, Asheboro secured two new industrial plants, built a new golf course, converted an abandoned airport into industrial sites complete with water main and railroad siding, and organized a high school symphony orchestra.

Neighboring Ramseur completed a 27-point program under the project headings of (1) general development, (2) school improvements, (3) general beautification, (4) planned recreation and (5) development of cultural information and religious activities.

Included in Ramseur's projects were setting up a youth center, a housing project for out-of-town workers, a revised zoning ordinance, street widening and off-street parking. To promote beautification, house-of-the-month awards were presented home owners to encourage landscaping and repairs.

Coastal Swansboro, although its efforts were nearly washed into the Atlantic by three hurricanes in the fall, bounced back to complete 32 projects under the categories of

(1) recreation improvements, (2) civic and commercial improvements, (3) residential improvements, (4) improved educational facilities and (5) improved municipal facilities.

As a result, the town now has a new fire station, a new bank and an active junior league baseball team.

Education Aid In Avoiding Term

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Although Joel Noah White pleaded guilty to the Aug. 7, 1955, burglary of film producer Judson Kinberg's Malibu home, he has escaped a prison sentence—because of his scholarship.

Former Judge Stanley Mosk placed him on five years probation, saying he was reluctant to impose the sentence because of White's "impressive educational background." White, told arresting officers he holds a master's degree from Ohio State University and is a Phi Beta Kappa scholar.

Every Russian Move Packs New Republics Of Asia Propaganda Blow At West Are Short Of Leaders

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Russians must have a new public relations man. Every move packs a propaganda wallop. They walk up to the United States as if to shake hands and then sock with a fast left cross.

Their timing is good, as the dates show. They've got this country wondering where the next punch is coming from.

But there's no mystery about their propaganda which has two aims: to shake loose this country's allies by trying to fill them with misgiving about American intentions; and to win over the people of Asia, Africa and the Middle East with the idea Russia is a big brother, the United States the opposite.

visit had to share top headlines with the message. Secrecy surrounding it added to the interest. Russia didn't spoil the interest by revealing the contents.

Jan. 23. Eisenhower released both Bulganin's message and his own reply. Bulganin had proposed a 20-year friendship treaty. Eisenhower rejected the offer, suggesting Russia show its good intentions by deeds rather than words.

Jan. 29. The Soviet press headlined Bulganin's offer but didn't mention Eisenhower's reply. The Russians let the offer sink in, getting maximum mileage out of it, building up the hopes of people who didn't know Eisenhower's reply.

Jan. 30-Feb. 1. After three days of talks, Eisenhower and Eden issued a joint statement on what they had discussed and decided it was vague. They stressed their wishes for peaceful settlements in the Middle East.

They referred to a 1950 agreement they had with the French to stop a war in the Middle East, if it broke out by acting together inside or outside the United Nations. Did this mean they'd intervene? Or not? They didn't say.

The Russians let this pass momentarily. They had other fish to fry. As if to divert world attention from the Eisenhower-Eden message of the day before, Bulganin did an extraordinary thing.

Feb. 2. He sent a second letter to Eisenhower, urging again a friendship treaty and offered the same kind of treaty to America's friends. He called on this country to show by deeds also that it wanted peace and pointed out that the United States had surrounded Russia with air bases.

Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles decided to wait a while before rejecting this second offer, as they almost certainly will. They haven't answered yet.

Feb. 6. While the world was still pondering this second Soviet offer, the Russians accused the United States of sending balloons equipped with cameras and radios over Russia to do military spying.

This may have been meant to back up Bulganin's complaint the United States was hemming in Russia militarily. The Russians played this tune for days, even after the United States said it would try not to let it happen again although explaining the balloons were not aerial spies but were gathering only scientific information.

Feb. 13. Russia picked up what it had ignored before: the Eisenhower-Eden statement. It warned against use of American-British-French troops in the Middle East, put itself in the position of protecting the Arabs, and accused the West of being more interested in oil investments in the Middle East than in the people there.

By MURRAY FROMSON
SEOUL (AP)—South Korea, like many of the new-risen republics of Asia, suffers from a glaring weakness—a scarcity of leaders.

Faced with the inevitable decision of finding a successor to President Syngman Rhee, Koreans are hard put to name a man who can begin to fill the shoes of the crusty old patriot who has led them since the country's founding in 1948.

Rhee has avoided naming an heir apparent and the opposition clings to the same leaders who have twice failed to oust Rhee at the ballot box. The opposition Democratic party, recently formed from various splinter groups, will try again this summer but even now its leaders seem convinced of Rhee's invincibility and will probably offer only a figurehead candidate for the presidency.

Korea's predicament is not unique. Who follows Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa? Magasaysay in the Philippines? Nehru in India?

Great emphasis is being placed here on the importance of the vice presidency. Under the revised governmental organization, the vice president would take over the chief executive's chair in the event of a vacancy. Previously, national elections would have been called in these circumstances.

Rhee has not declared he will try for the presidency again. But just about everyone says he will. The President will be 81 March 26, and to strangers, it is impossible to fathom the grasp he has on his 20 million people. To most of them, he is the only leader they know, the father of the Korean republic, the outspoken foe of the enemy which destroyed South Korea and the man who fought the Japanese from the first day they occupied Korea at the turn of the 20th century.

Perhaps a successor will be found in the group of military leaders who rank among the brightest—and certainly most powerful—men in South Korea.

Gen. Chung Il Kwon, the chief of staff, and Gen. Sun Yip Paik, the 1st Army commander, have disclaimed interest in the political arena. It seems logical to assume, however, that any candidate for office will have a soft place in his heart for the army.

Monorail Test Line Will Open

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The first monorail system in the Western Hemisphere, a 170-foot pilot test line, will be opened here Saturday. Tests on the specially designed system have been successful, say Murell Goodell, president of Monorail Inc. He said the only other suspended monorail in the world was a 51-year-old system in Germany. Goodell's company plans to manufacture the skyway in Houston and to finance construction on a lease-purchase basis.

California Fails To Lure Cinderella Girl

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Now it's Cinderella girl Shirley Jones who says she has no yen to live in California.

If this trend keeps up, the Chamber of Commerce could end up with an inferiority complex.

Shirley, who looks as packed with vitamins as a glass of orange juice (maybe that'll keep the C of C happy), was here on a whirlwind rip to pick up an award or two. But she planned to hustle right back to New York.

I intercepted her in her hotel suite and asked her about this affair to the Sunshine State. The beautiful blonde batted her eyelashes and replied innocently, "Oh, I'm growing to like California more each time I visit here. But I wouldn't want to live here. I like New York much better."

To add to the blow, she remarked that movies were never her prime ambition.

"I always wanted to be a stage star," she explained. "I never gave much thought to movies."

Paradoxically, she became a movie star first. When she left her home town of Smithton, Pa., to assault the big city, she auditioned for Rodgers and Hammerstein. They were so enraptured with the young doll that they signed her to a seven-year contract, the first time they had ever tied up a talent.

Within two short years, she had done bits in two R&H shows and starred in two movies costing a total of 11 million dollars, "Oklahoma!" and "Carousel."

Her future plans? "I don't know," she replied. "I'd like to do a Broadway show, but Mr. Rodgers and Mr. Hammerstein don't have anything for me right now. So I suppose they will lend me out for more pictures. I would like to do one that isn't a musical, as a change of pace."

No Mistreated Horses Around

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Heirs of Mrs. E. Mary Stevenson stand to gain because this city has no mistreated horses on its streets. Her 1953 will left much of her estate for care of such horses. She proposed hiring an agent to work on the streets aiding "miserable horses allowed to be overworked and mistreated." But Circuit Judge Joseph Bradley ruled yesterday that since no such condition exists, the entire estate should go to heirs.

'Forgotten' Man Spent 18 Months In County Jail

KANSAS CITY (AP)—An admitted narcotics user who was "sort of forgotten" spent 18 months in jail without trial the county prosecutor says.

Charges of possessing marijuana against Melvin John Ecton were dismissed at the request of Prosecutor Richard K. Phelps.

Phelps told the Circuit Court that Ecton's case "in some way got put on the hold docket" rather than a regular docket.

"Ecton has been sort of forgotten," Phelps said. "He used the drug and he tells me he now is cured of addiction."

Ecton's attorney died after his arrest in August 1954. No one at the jail could recall whether Ecton ever asked about his length of stay.

After the case was dismissed today, Ecton was still held pending action in connection with a mental examination for the prisoner.

Chimney Trapped Young Gallant

ALTADENA, Calif. (AP)—The gallantry of 9-year-old Dennis Blittie backfired. He became wedged in a chimney when he tried to go down it and open the front door for his girl friend, who had been locked out.

Dennis says he has climbed down his own chimney several times "but our's is bigger and I never got stuck before." He got just above the damper over the fireplace in Patty Wilson's house and discovered he couldn't go any farther—up or down.

Patty's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wilson, were away from home, but she summoned firemen, who used ropes to pull Dennis up, sooty but unharmed.

Asked about his girl friend, Dennis answered: "She's my second girl friend. I don't think I want any more."

The United Nations says there are 595 medical schools in 85 countries with total graduates between 50,000 and 60,000 a year.

Dog Backed Up Owner In Court

DETROIT (AP)—A black German shepherd dog with a businesslike glint in his eye helped his owner out of a traffic ticket.

Nellie Jane Fancher, 29, brought her pet Fritz to court to back up her claim that she had not left her car unattended with the motor running last Jan. 12.

"I left Fritz in the car while I called a garage," Miss Fancher said. "The engine wasn't running right and I didn't want to turn it off. If anybody had tried to steal the car, Fritz would have chewed his arm off."

Traffic Referee John Wise took one look at Fritz's powerful jaws and agreed. "The car was obviously not unattended. Case dismissed," he said.

DIRTY BUSINESS
 WICKLIFFE, Ky. (AP)—A local citizen climbed on the roof and lowered a chain down the chimney to clear out the flue. His wife stayed in the house, holding a box over her head at the flue's opening to catch the soot. The box overflowed, bathing the woman in soot and spreading it over the walls and floors of all the rooms.

Pactolus Ruritan Hears Patrolman

FACTOLUS—State Highway Patrolman J.B. Surles spoke on highway safety and reviewed Pitt County's safety record at the Pactolus Ruritan Club's supper meeting Monday night.

Following some suggestions for holding down the number of highway accidents, the club adopted a project for erecting safety signs at road intersections in Pactolus township.

President D.R. Rouse, Jr. called on Noel Lee, Jr., for a report of his trip to the Ruritan National Convention in Atlanta last month.

It was announced at the meeting that Pactolus had adopted a project for selling automobile license tags to the motorists of Pactolus township. The tags will be available in about two weeks.

Guilford Lewis, for the Ruritan Utilities Committee, reported that telephone service from Greenville is slated to begin in Pactolus about February 20.

The Ruritan Club is planning a family recreation outing in the Pactolus Community Building April 21.

Members voted to have a "field day" and go to the Lower Coastal Plain Tobacco Research Farm some time in June.

Ruritan Eugene Morris reported a successful "tackey" party recently sponsored by the club.

Marion Nobles of the Stokes Ruritan Club was a guest.

Twenty-three members attended Monday's meeting.

It Took 34 Years To Pay Balance

SAN GABRIEL, Calif. (AP)—Mayor George Smith said he got a letter from a traffic violator whose conscience took 34 years to catch up with his pocketbook.

The letter, signed by Amos Irwin of Pond, Calif., said that in 1922 Irwin was fined $10 for a traffic law violation while riding his motorcycle. He was allowed to pay $5 down on the promise he would pay the other $5 later.

With the letter was a $10 money order "to cover the balance of $5 due and assumed interest of an additional $5."

Has Over 1,950 Pencils At Home

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—There are 1,950 "and a couple extra" pencils in the home of Elmer Churchill. The "extras" are for writing.

Churchill said today he started collecting pencils 24 years ago and has spent only about $5 in gathering his writing tools. This includes 20 cents he spent for two pencils, the rest going for postage, etc.

He said he just traded something else for most of the pencils.

CRIME'S PRICE FALLS
NOGALES, Mexico (AP)—Someone offered a car for sale at this border city—first for $1,800, then $800, and finally $40—but there were no takers. An officer jotted down the license number and found it later on the stolen car list.

'Capital Gains' Paving Pleasant Roads To Riches

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the more pleasant roads to riches is paved with capital gains. That is, it's pleasant until April when it comes time to pay the tax on them. Capital gains are what you have if you sell your house for more than it cost you, or sell stocks for more than you paid for them some time back.

Only nine countries tax short-term capital gains from stock sales, and only three of these tax long-term gains. The United States is one of those doing both. Our capital gains tax is blessed or blasted by different groups of taxpayers. Here are their divergent views: Some aim their investments chiefly at building up capital gains to avoid income. Some hold onto stocks rather than pay the tax on the profits they would show from a sale. Some refrain from investments, saying the tax would just whittle down any profit although they'd still have all the risk.

IT WAS A BIG FLOP — The Victorian Diving Troupe makes it look easy with a comedy bit for the spectators between events of a diving contest at Melbourne, Australia.

At left, the striking effect of Chilean Nitrate side-dressing on corn. Chilean is the only natural combination of nitrate nitrogen, sodium and minor "insurance" elements.

EXTRA GOOD
because it's NATURAL

CHILEAN NITRATE—WORLD'S ONLY NATURAL NITRATE
Whatever the crop—corn, cotton, tobacco, pastures, small grains, fruits, vegetables—Chilean Soda top-dressings and side-dressings give the best results, lowest costs, largest net profits. Natural Chilean works fast. Corn responds bountifully at rates up to 500 pounds per acre or more, 40 to 50 days after planting. The nitrogen in Chilean is 100 per cent fast-acting nitrate—irreplaceable at the critical stage of crop development. Natural Chilean boosts yields. On cotton, side-dressings of 300 pounds or more, 35 to 40 days after planting, produce heavy-yielding, early-maturing plants. On pastures, too, it's a more efficient summer fertilizer than ammonia forms of nitrogen. Natural Chilean contains sodium. Ammonia nitrogen is acid-forming and must be changed to the nitrate form in the soil, but every ton of Chilean contains sodium equivalent to 650 pounds of commercial limestone for destroying soil acidity. Natural Chilean benefits crop and soil. Because it corrects acidity, improves potash, phosphate and minor element availabilities, Chilean is one of the most efficient and economical nitrogen fertilizers for side-dressing summer crops. Ask for Bulldog Soda. Look for the Bulldog on the bag.

Make sure you get de NATCHEL kind!

chilean nitrate of soda

earned" gains than on "earned" returns from labor? The reason some folk deliberately seek capital gains—buying a stock with a chance to increase in market value rather than one paying a good dividend—is this: The capital gains tax on property held more than six months goes as high as 25 per cent. But any of the many stockholders in an income tax bracket higher than 25 per cent would benefit more from having a capital gain than from a dividend that would add to his income. The top individual tax rate is 91 per cent. There are divergent views on how much the capital gain tax discourages stock trading. Most brokers stress that people are disinclined to sell their stock when it means handing a fourth of the profit over to the government—or more if they held the stock less than six months and are in any but a low-income bracket. But some brokers point out that the profit on which people dislike to pay a tax exists only on paper until the stock is sold and the gain taken. At 1 paper profits have been known to blow away, or even to turn into paper loss. The Wall Street maxim is: You don't go broke taking a profit.

Fortune Awaits Heirs Sought In Carolinas

CHICAGO, Ill. — A will-o'-the-wisp search is under way in North and South Carolina today for, possibly, aged children, but more likely the grandchildren of the late Robert M. Alexander and his wife Martha, nee Hendrix, who are wanted to claim a share in a $100,000 estate of which they are obviously unaware.

This became known here when Walter C. Cox, probate genealogist, 208 S. LaSalle St., Chicago, who specializes in tracing missing relatives to settle estates took over the hunt with but few helpful clues.

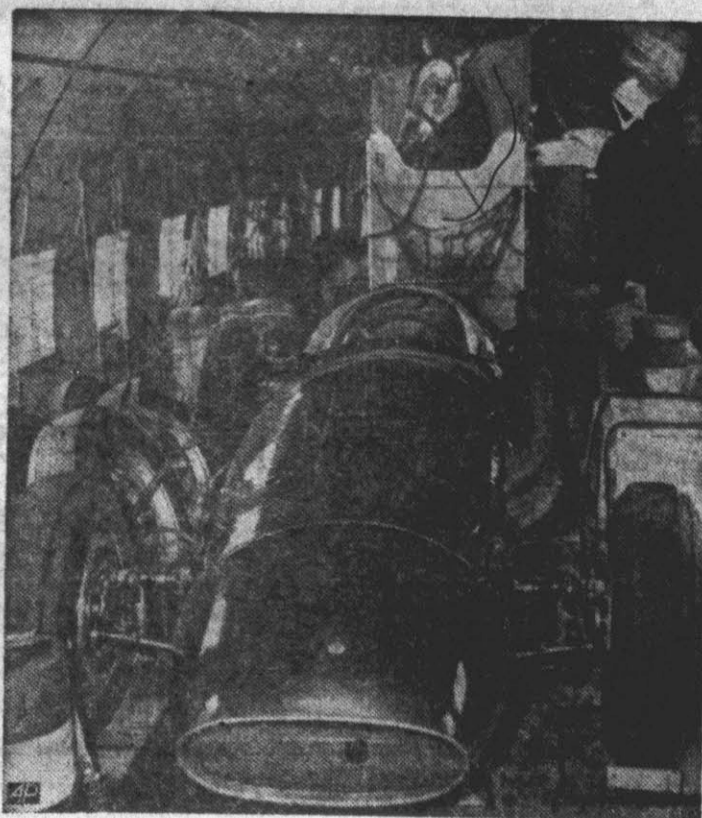

"The estate was left," Mr. Cox said, "by a member of the Alexander-Hendrix family who died recently after having apparently lost touch with all his relatives. Under known circumstances and inheritance laws applying, it reverts back through the couple's lineage to their descendants."

"Search is being conducted over the Carolinas because the family is known to have settled in the two states in the nineteenth century. Robert M. Alexander is reported to have lived in or near Winston-Salem, N.C. in the 1870's, where he engaged in the 'buggy business.'"

"Whether he made, sold or repaired the horse drawn vehicles, however, is unknown. He and his wife, Martha, are said to have had several children who scattered over the two states. These included a son Robert E. Alexander who grew up to become a doctor."

"Living sons or daughters of Robert M. and Martha Alexander would have first claim to share in the state, with the children of any who are dead next in line. More distant relatives could share if it should be proven there are no living descendants."

South Carolina had 22,983 irrigated acres in 1954 compared with 6,408 in 1949.

Lincoln Proved To Be A Big Television Challenge

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)—The character of Abraham Lincoln challenged television on the recent anniversary of his birth. Over a period of dramatic programs, which dealt with various aspects of the life of the man whom history designates as perhaps the greatest American.

Only one was eminently successful. And this, interestingly, was a film and does not qualify as live television art. Yet it was filmed for Omnibus (CBS-TV), and the mass of viewers are more interested in the results seen on the TV set than in what technique achieved it. Furthermore, it was an edited version of a series of films on Lincoln written by the late James Agee, which Omnibus presented last year.

But it was great television because it communicated simply, dramatically and with intellectual acumen, some of the complexity that made Lincoln the man he became. "Mr. Lincoln," as seen on Omnibus, was based on a general premise accepted by his best biographers: Lincoln cannot be separated from his times. The American people, the American earth created him. In a sense the American people destroyed him. Then great was their grief, even to this day. This is a classical form of epic drama. It makes Lincoln our greatest, and perhaps our only, epic hero.

The Omnibus production showed Lincoln, superbly played by Royal Dano, first on the day of his death. His deathbed scene was played with moving restraint. Then came the slow, impressive march of his funeral train back to Springfield. There followed dramatic, revealing flashbacks to his youth and young manhood in which we saw the formation of his later character.

Not an extraordinary concept, but it resulted in revealing insight into Lincoln and his times. For film can do what live TV cannot: it can put us in touch with the feel and the sight of earth. The confinement of walls is probably the greatest confinement of live television drama. In the filmed Omnibus production he went to the frontier. We heard crows, roosters, loons, owls and song sparrows. We saw spring and autumn and the people who lived with Lincoln in those springs and autumns of his youth. In short, we saw the man Lincoln with perspective and not simply as a figure on the stage.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — Prices were irregularly lower in slow trading in the stock market early this afternoon.

Leading issues were down from fractions to a point as profit-taking held sway after yesterday's vigorous rise on the favorable medical report about President Eisenhower.

At noon the Associated Press average of 60 stock was down 30 cents at $174.60 with the industrials off 70 cents, the rails 40 cents and the utilities unchanged.

After a moderately active opening at lower prices, there was some improvement and the market showed a more irregular pattern.

Steels showed some signs of rallying, with Bethlehem up around a point, but the advance faltered. Bethlehem kept only a fraction of its gain while U. S. Steel and Republic Steel showed minus signs.

Volume for the day was estimated at around 1,800,000 shares compared with three million yesterday.

Chrysler, Standard Oil (New Jersey) and Union Pacific were down around a point.

Aircrafts about the only other group to show early strength, softened and became mixed. Boeing and Douglas were behind fractionally while United Aircraft and Bendix Aviation edged upward.

American Export Lines retained an earlier gain of close to a point on news of a higher dividend. Long-Bell Lumber surged ahead 8 points as its strength of the past session continued over merger talk with International Paper.

General Motors and American Telephone slipped fractionally.

Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co picked up in a late burst of strength, rising close to a point.

RALEIGH — (NCDA) — Hog markets were irregular today. Tops of 12.25 to 12.75 at Bethel; 12.00 to 12.75 at Rocky Mount; 12.00 to 12.50 at Tarboro and Kinston; 12.25 at Goldsboro; 12.00 at Hillsboro, Rich Square; 11.75 at Castle Hayne, Rocky Point, Shalotte, Snow Hill New Bern, Ben-

Will Close

The Greenville Merchants Association has announced that all places of business will close between the hours of eleven and twelve on Friday due to the observance of World Day of Prayer. The service will begin at eleven o'clock in the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

son, Beulahville, Farmville, Nahunta, Mount Gilead, Mount Olive, Micro, Elizabethtown, Lumberton, Clinton and Fayetteville; 11.50 at Smithfield, Dunn, Clarkton, Tarboro City, Whiteville, Newton Grove, Warsaw and Bailey.

RALEIGH — (NCDA) — Central North Carolina poultry market, fryers and broilers weak, farm price 20 cents, fob plant 21; Raleigh eggs steady, A large 43 to 45.

Asheville fryers and broilers unsettled and 1 cent lower, farm price 19, fob plant 20; Asheville eggs steady, A large 42 to 45.

Grass And Auto Fires Yesterday

Two calls answered by Greenville firemen yesterday took them to a grass fire at 1606 S. Railroad Street and a burning car on E. 10th Street near East Carolina College. The car, firemen reported, was owned by Bestsan Burris, of Southport. Damage was not believed heavy.

Funeral Set Friday For A. J. Haggan

MAYSVILLE — Addis J. Haggan, 81, retired farmer, died at Kafer Memorial Hospital in New Bern Wednesday about noon after being in declining health five years.

Funeral services will be held at the home Friday at 2:30 p.m. Pastor Moore will officiate. Burial will be in the family cemetery near the home.

Mr. Haggan, a native of Jones county, spent his life there. He was a son of the late Frank and Mary Helen Meadows Haggan. He was a member of Maysville Methodist Church. A niece, Mrs. Nessie Cahoon of New Bern survives.

Salvation Army Advisory Board Holds Meet

Members of The Salvation Army's advisory board in Greenville heard Lt. Col. Robert Rose, Carolinas Divisional commander (third from left in front row) describe The Army's services to meet human and spiritual needs. Others in the picture, seated to right, Lt. B. T. Lewis and Lt. Mrs. Lewis, officers-in-charge of the Greenville corps; Lt. Col. Rose, Lt. Col. Mrs. Rose, both of Charlotte; Mrs. Cora S. Powell and Miss Julia Fisher, Greenville board members. On the second row, standing left to right, are board members; the Rev. J. Malloy Owen, J. Hicks Corey, B. D. Johnston, Elbert H. Bennett, James W. Butler, board chairman, and William H. Watson. (The Daily Reflector Photo by Robert Hildrup.)

Traditions and services of the Salvation Army were reviewed for members of the Advisory Board of the Greenville Corps at a meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Lieutenant Colonel Robert Rose, Carolinas Divisional commander, of Charlotte, addressed the meeting of the board and reviewed the work of the Army, now noting 91 years of spiritual activity and social service.

The Salvation Army has been alert to bring a spiritual message to individuals who have had spiritual and economic needs, Col. Rose declared, and he enumerated the work in religious, recreational, and social service areas as he commented on current trends.

The divisional commander and his wife, also an officer in the Salvation Army, spent Wednesday and Thursday in Greenville. Both made inspiring talks at the advisory board meeting, and also at the Wednesday evening meeting of Greenville corps, at the meeting hall on Dickinson avenue.

Other matters receiving attention at the board meeting, presided over by Chairman James W. Butler included a report on the Salvation Army property made by William H. Watson; the Christmas activities report, indicating receipts of more than $1,100 for Christmas opportunities, made by B. D. Johnston, chairman; and referring to the Executive Committee of the board the arrangements for observance of National Salvation Army Week in May.

Lt. B. T. Lewis, in his annual report, noted 266 religious senior meetings held with an attendance of 6,808; 372 young peoples' activities held with an attendance of 1,743; 101 average attendance in Sunday School for 1955; and 58 decisions made for Christ.

The Home League has a membership of 26, the Men's Fellowship Club has 12 members, the Young People's Legion has 22 members, the Girl Guards 26 members, Sunbeams 12, and the Corps Cadets 13.

In social work and family relief, the Salvation Army last year filled 126 grocery orders, 22 fuel orders, paid rent for four families in emergencies, distributed 3,336 garments and 217 pairs of shoes, had 17 prescriptions filled, gave cash relief to 6 persons, and distributed 82 household items.

Transient relief: 171 applications for aid; 127 lodgings; 288 meals; 15 persons given transportation; 22 transients provided clothing and shoes; and four women transients aided.

The case load has been heavy for January and early February this year, Lt. and Mrs. Lewis reported.

around the house. "They aren't quite so bothersome. They seem to study harder, and I do believe they go to church more often."

Some what crestfallen, I mumbled, "Excuse me," and started for the stairs.

Without glancing up from the sink Mrs. Tydings said, "The bathroom's in the same place, Harold."

But it wasn't the bathroom I was seeking. It was my old room. It had changed less than I. The February sun threw a slanting warmth at the old desk where I had once studied. What a wonderful room it had been, and what wonderful roommates I had known there: Among them were John Keats, Samuel Johnson, Jonathan Swift, Thomas Hardy, and a lady named Emily Dickinson.

I walked back downstairs, slowly leaving their ghosts behind to cheer other boys.

Mrs. Tydings made me stay for an old-fashioned chicken dinner. "I don't make gravy so much anymore now that everyone's on a diet," she said. During the meal she filled me in with what had happened to her foster sons. Some had become well-known lawyers, engineers and farm leaders. One, who used to wash dishes to pay for his meals, had run for governor.

"Many of them write me often," she said gently, and I felt bad. I haven't written her.

Mrs. Tydings, who will be 75 next summer, still rooms six college boys but no longer feels up to the chore of cooking for them. But she has to feed something, so she keeps two feeding stations for

Announces The Completion Of New Home Offices

Claude Tunstall, General Agent of the Occidental Life Insurance Company, has announced completion of Occidental's new $1,500,000 home office building above at the Company headquarters in Raleigh.

Tunstall stated that the building has been under construction since September, 1954, and is currently recognized as one of the nation's best equipped and most modern life insurance home offices. The Company plans a public opening at the building on Sunday afternoon, April 12.

"We sincerely thank our many Occidental policyholders in this area," Tunstall said, "whose confidence and loyalty have helped make these new facilities possible." Local Occidental offices are at 1012 Cotanche Street.

Miss Jordan Speaks At Meeting Of South Ayden PTA Monday

AYDEN — Miss Hazel J. Jordan, Pitt County school supervisor, was guest speaker for the South Ayden Parent-Teacher Association meeting Monday night at the school.

Miss Jordan discussed improving health through school community relationship and pointed out how the home, school and community "must work hand in hand to bring about the success of the child."

A question and answer period followed her talk.

Music for the program was presented by the Choral Club, directed by Mrs. M. L. Armistead.

When the meeting adjourned, refreshments were served to the 200 parents, teachers and guests.
