Three Weeks Of Sharp Debate Presaged Today's Voting

Day Of Decision For Senate's Farm Bill

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate's day of decision on an election year farm bill arrived today with critics accusing the Eisenhower administration of "pressure" and "political maneuvering."

I am confident that we will win. Chairman Ellender (D-La.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee, floor manager for the bill which floors scrap the administration price supports in favor of a return to rigid props, countered that "I still believe we have the votes."

Effective today, the Senate has agreed to limit debate to two hours on each amendment of which more than 70 have been offered. Ellender has been pushing for final action by the week-end.

Under the present system, these prices are supported at between 75 and 90 per cent of parity, depending upon the size of available stocks.

Ellender and most other Democrats are urging restoration of 80 per cent support, the World War II level.

He voiced surprise that Holland should make such a comparison. Holland described high price supports as "crutches," and said demands for complete government farm price protection are "the essence of socialism... a red flag of warning."

More Cigarettes, Less Tobacco Used

RALEIGH (AP)—Although U.S. cigarette manufacturers upped their production three per cent last year, they used about 44 million pounds less tobacco.

Raleigh Police Search For Bandit Wounded In Holdup

RALEIGH (AP)—Raleigh police searched today for a gunman believed to have been wounded in a holdup last night in which an accomplice was killed by a sharp-shooting grocer who formerly was a policeman.

Police Detective E. W. Rhodes said every available policeman was working on the case. E. E. Newton, cool-tempered operator of a neighborhood supermarket, fired at the two gunmen as the thugs scurried out the front door after robbing him of around $600.

Newton, 44, who has been a grocer 11 years, was back on the job as usual this morning. He and three employees were closing up for the night about 7 o'clock last night when the two men gained entrance on the pretext of buying some cigarettes. Newton said he was at one cash register and Woodrow Massengill at the other. The two men pulled out pistols and told them to "stick 'em up."

Eden also turned aside Laborite demands that Britain ship Israeli arms to match those Communist Czechoslovakia is supplying Egypt. He said Israel should find the three-power 1950 declaration "infinitely more valuable than an agreement to be allowed to buy a certain number more tanks and airplanes, and infinitely better in the case of peace than an arms race."

Eden told Commons that if Egypt wants friendly relations with the West, she can have them, "but not at any price."

Greenville Service League To Participate In Red Cross Drive

Dr. L. W. Jenkins and Dr. G. E. Trevathan were guest speakers at the Service League monthly meeting held on March 5th at the recreation center. Mrs. George Lautes in her introduction said that both men were well qualified to be heads of the Red Cross Drive. Dr. Jenkins gave a few very good pointers on the approach to the house-to-house canvass in which the Service League members will participate. Dr. Trevathan told about visiting some towns very close by where the Red Cross work was so deeply appreciated last fall when the hurricane hit the North Carolina coast. This year there is a very good goal to be reached and he urged that everyone give generously and hope that Greenville will not need relief money. Following these talks, Mrs. Annie Lee Hardee, chairman of Red Cross for the Service League, secured volunteer workers.

Mrs. Ercell Webb reported that every other Thursday would be the day the Service League would be responsible for at the ground observation tower. Mrs. S. E. "Set like a chain of emeralds in the sapphire blue of the Pacific, these lovely islands promise warm sunny days, cool starlit nights, and the gaiety of a carefree existence," said the speaker. "Of course, you want to go to Hawaii," continued the speaker, "and this you can do any month of the year because these islands are always in season with their beautiful flowers, shrubs, trees and beaches."
Having stayed nine months on the Islands, Miss Wilson was able to point out the most interesting customs of the people. At the close of her talk she showed a variety of clothing worn by the natives and also a good many souvenirs typical of Hawaii.

Guests and members were invited into the dining room where the hostess carried out the Hawaiian motif in the flower arrangements and refreshments. On the buffet she used an arrangement of leaves, fruits and flowers centered with a pineapple. In Hawaii the pineapple is a symbol of hospitality.
On the dining table was a centerpiece of different shades of pink flowers flanked with a variety of sea shells, accented with a piece of pink coral. A Hawaiian pineapple salad and other tasty Hawaiian treats were served with coffee.

Cross-Purpose Taxation Threatens

Unless some changes are made in projects advocated by various segments of the federal administration, taxpayers are going to find themselves paying out billions of dollars to take lands out of agricultural production, and at the same time paying billions of dollars to add more productive acres of farm and to the growing surplus. It just doesn't make sense.

The soil bank plan is almost sure to be adopted in some form to take millions of acres of land out of production. Such a program is needed to stabilize the agricultural situation. The nation does not need at the same time to spend more money putting new land into agricultural production.

Yet, the way things are shaping up in Washington, that very thing may well happen.

Already in five Southern States alone there are nearly nine million acres of rich farm land lying idle, almost half of them in North Carolina. The proposed federal soil bank plan would take additional millions of acres of land out of agricultural production and place them in grass lands.

While this is going on, the Federal Bureau of Reclamation is pressing Congress to approve its Upper Colorado River Project entailing a four billion dollar outlay to "irrigate" 583,000 acres of arid mountain land in Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming.

Is there any real reason for the federal government to spend billions to take land out of production, and at the same time spend additional billions to irrigate hundreds of thousands more acres of land so they can likewise be taken out of production?

Five-Day Week Sounds Like Good Idea For Pitt

Changing the office hours of Pitt County offices from a five and one-half day week to a five day week should not adversely affect county operations or prove too great an inconvenience to citizens having business in the offices.

Certainly there should be no objection to the county's trying the five-day week system from May through the summer months. If the system does not prove satisfactory the county can revert to the present system at any time. If it does prove satisfactory, the new system will be adopted on a permanent basis.

At the present time county offices are open from 9 o'clock until noon on Saturdays. Work accomplished during the three hour period on Saturdays could be done in the extra half hour daily the offices will be open during the other five days of the week under the new plan.

State and federal offices have been on a five-day week for some time, and apparently the plan has not hampered work carried on by these offices. Other counties which have themselves changed to the five-day week report satisfactory results from the new system. By adoption of a similar system the county will make more uniform the office hours observed by local offices of the various levels of government.

It will take a little time for Pitt Countians to get used to county offices not being open on Saturday, but after a month or so, it probably would not make any difference.

In our opinion the plan adopted by the County Commissioners on a trial basis has sufficient merit to warrant the trial period designated.

Laurinburg College Site Appears Logical Action

Location of the new Presbyterian College at Laurinburg will place an institution of higher learning in a major geographical area which is now without a major college.

The selection of Laurinburg as the site for the new four-year college did not come as too great a surprise. Naturally it came as a disappointment to Rocky Mount, Wilmington and Fayetteville which were among the finalists. Yet the Scotland County city is in the geographic Presbyterian center of North and South Carolina.

At Laurinburg the college will not only draw students from within North Carolina, but the location puts the college in a better position to draw students from South Carolina than any of the other five finalist cities would have. That consideration doubtlessly played a part in the choice of the site selection committee for the new institution.

Location of the new college as Laurinburg will bring immeasurable benefits to the community selected as the site. The people of Laurinburg, even in their elation over the committee's choice, cannot imagine what the college will mean in future years. The new college will likewise be an important addition to North Carolina's system of institutions of higher learning. To a great extent the contribution which the new college is able to make to the state's youth will depend not only upon the support it receives from the community in which it is located, but also upon the support it receives from North Carolinians as a whole.

There are plenty of essential items pressing for a share of the taxpayer's dollar without adding another four billion dollar expenditure for the fabulous Upper Colorado River Project. Taxpayers are having a hard enough time meeting the high cost of government now without adding an uneeded four billion dollar tax burden on top of the existing load.

$5 Million Extra Because Dander Up

By LYNN NISBET
RESENTMENT — Governor Hodges has outspokenly resented alleged favoritism shown New England in the distribution of disaster relief funds at expense of North Carolina. Val Peterson, U.S. director of civil defense, revealed the Governor's charges of discrimination. Members of Congress, especially Reps. Herbert Bonner, Grant Barden and Eriel Carlyle, whose districts were chiefly affected, resented implications by the Governor they were not prosecuting the State's claim as vigorously as they should. He was displaced at the sentence in this correspondence to the effect that the principal "opponent" to the program presented to the state delegation last week by Hodges came from them. Bonner explained that the questions asked and impediments suggested were not in any sense evidence of "opposition" but were necessary to get a realistic picture.

Looks now like North Carolina will get some $5 million additional civil defense allocation largely because everybody involved got their dander up. That's about $15 million less than the Governor wanted, but $5 million more than has been made available so far. Rep. Bonner says he might have gotten more if the Governor had not made Peterson's Gov. Hodges said he didn't mind making a man mad for five million.

REALISTIC — Everybody involved seems to be approaching the problem from the realistic angle—as each understands realism. Governor Hodges has no obligation to the State of North Carolina. Peterson has equal obligation to every section of the country. Members of the Congress have joint obligations to their State and the whole United States.

Despite protestations to the contrary practical politics influence decisions. The realistic approach requires recognition of the wheel which squeaks the loudest. Everybody has a voice.

LEGISLATION — Casual conversations with some two dozen farmers and other business men from Gaston County, who are attending the Tobacco Associates meeting here Tuesday leads to conclusion that a special session of the General Assembly will be called for the late summer. But not very many of those interviewed have any definite ideas about why or what can be accomplished.

Opinion was almost unanimous that if conditions developing later should require amendments to the constitution, the session should be postponed until the latest possible time to get ballots printed and distributed prior to the November election. It has been several times pointed out that special sessions in irregular or special sessions is the business of its own conduct, and that no restrictions can be placed upon the subject matter of legislation.

UNLIMITED — It has been several times pointed out that special sessions in irregular or special sessions is the business of its own conduct, and that no restrictions can be placed upon the subject matter of legislation.

proposed or enacted. Most folks think of the proposed extra session solely in terms of dealing with the school segregation issue. There are some who are wary of spending money for other reasons. Mainly taxes, and appropriations of tax money.

It is apparent from reports of the Revenue Department that general fund revenues coming in faster than was contemplated at the regular 1955 session. Some of the new taxes levied by extending coverage in establishment brackets were not needed to balance the budget. Prospects are there will be a surplus at end of the current year.

Long experience has shown that a surplus, even a questionable contemplated surplus, has the same irresistible attraction for legislators that a handle has for a moth. Or perhaps a more accurate simile would be the attraction of a live body for a school of bass.

Some of those who are most anxious to have something done about school segregation are afraid that what might be done with anticipated general fund money.

BUDGETING — The personnel of the extra session will be the same that voted on the revenue and appropriations and government reorganization bills last year—with about a dozen exceptions of strong men who have taken other offices. If they feel they made some mistakes they will also feel obligation to correct them. The corrections of necessity would lack the basis of adequate experience or the advice of the advisory budget commission.

At approximately the same time a special session will be in action. The advisory budget commission will be working on the biennial bills for the regular session applicable to the 1957-59 period. Changes made in the laws and the special session would have to be considered by the budgeters.

EDUCATION — Again it is emphasized that the Legislature cannot be restricted to considering the public school situation. In view of the uncertainty in public opinion about the place of the Board of Higher Education in the scheme of things, the questionable relationship of trustees of the Consolidated University and other State supported colleges to this board, the problem of further consolidation or decentralization of the system certainly get attention at an extra session.

If the Governor or the Council of State or the Pearsall Commission could limit the scope of legislative action a special session would be advantageous. Since no such limitation is possible an extra session could mess up the situation no end and confront the regular session, members of which will have to take all intents and purposes elected to the extra session meets but will have no authority over its deliberations, with problems harder to solve than those anticipated when they were nominated.

To the Editor:
Former State Senator John Sprunt Hill of Durham has proposed fluoridation of water supplies. Not in Raleigh and said sodium fluoride is "commonly known as rat poison."

"I feel sure that if the city of Raleigh fluoridates the drinking water, the City of Raleigh will prohibit the use of rat poison in the drinking water in the whole State of North Carolina," he said. Hill served in the State Senate from 1933 to 1939. Hill, also a former member of the State Highway Commission and at present a member of the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina, declared in a letter to the News and Observer, "I can think of nothing that would injure the City of Raleigh more than the addition of rat poison to the water for thousands and thousands of visitors who come to Raleigh and for the people of Raleigh generally."

Hill underscores his protest by citing an article by him, "Against Fluoridation of Water at the University," and also excerpts from the annual Conference State Dental Director's with the Public Health Service and the Children's Bureau at Federal Security Building, Washington D.C. June 6, 1951.

Mrs. B.W. Moseley
To the Editor:
I am definitely in favor of water fluoridation in Greenville. I sincerely hope that the recommendation of the Health Department will be accepted by the City Council.

Mrs. F.D. Duncan
To the Editor:
Though we are relative newcomers to Greenville, we have been impressed by the efforts to obtain the addition of sodium fluoride to our city water supply. We heartily endorse this project, which will mean so much in the future to the young people of our community.

Other Editors Are Saying ... A Prisoner Attacks Officer

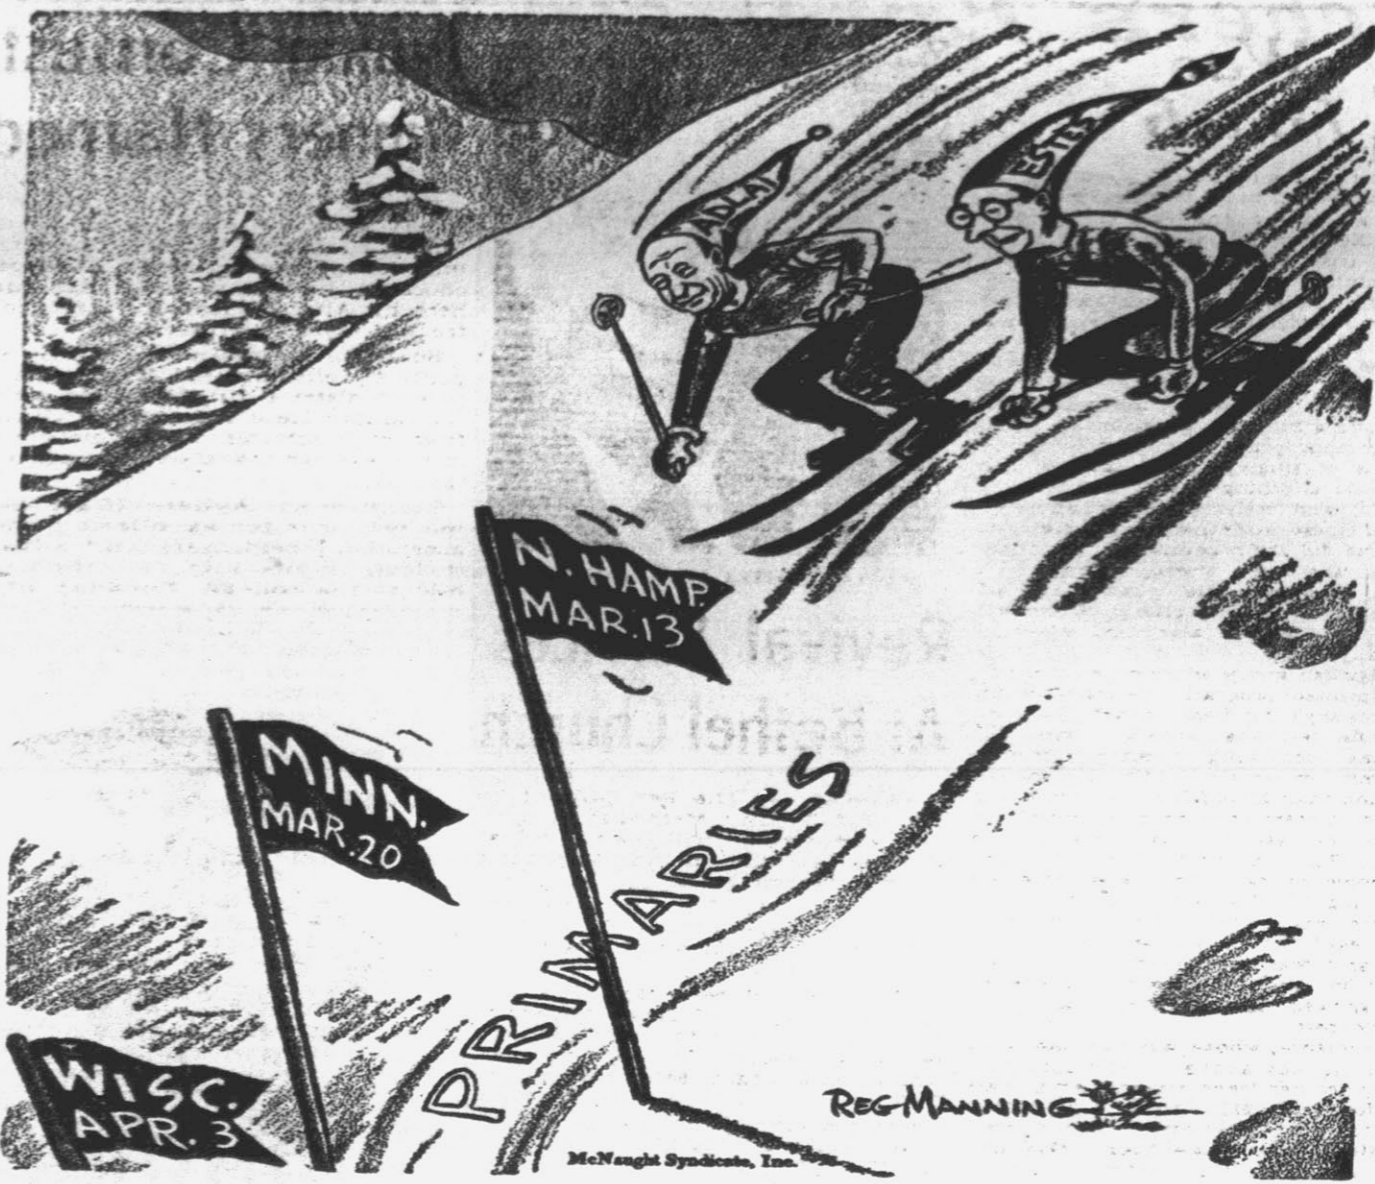

(Washington Daily News)
In Scotland county recently a prisoner attacked an officer with a razor and the gash required 28 stitches.

The newspapers, it seems to us, did not do justice to the incident. We are of the opinion that the officer beat up the prisoner and 28 stitches required to close the gash, the officer today would be the object of severe criticism and indictment in the minds of the people of our state. But the fact that the prisoner cut the officer badly passes almost unnoticed. We take it that the officer "got hurt in the line of duty." Had the prisoner been hurt, the charge no doubt would be brutality.

What is the difference? The officer might have provoked the prisoner. In this case the officer was attacked suddenly and without warning.

Do we have any general condemnation of the prisoner or any real sympathy for the officer? We have heard of none. But we ought to have a great deal. We are falling down in our protection which we should give those whose duty it is to enforce the law and to guard those who have broken the laws. This officer is the victim of a vicious attack. We should recognize it as such and give the prisoner the same condemnation that we would give the officer had the tables been turned.

REASONS FOR OPPOSITION TO NIXON Here is an attempt to summarize impartially, objectively and only reportorially, the reasons which so many influential GOP-ers, including Cabinet members and close friends from Army days, have advanced against Nixon in quiet talks with Ike:

In the first place, they consider him to be too young—43 years old. In addition to the calendar recording, they point out, he looks and acts his age. He has many of the qualities admirable in a normal youngster—cockiness, confidence, rashness, bravado. But in a possible Presidential

The 'Elite' Have A Tax Angle

By ELMER ROESSNER
If you haven't got a tax angle, it looks more and more as if you are a sucker.

IT'S LEGAL AND PROPER
There is no reason to doubt the legality, effectiveness or fairness of any of these cases. Each one may be assumed to conform to the Internal Revenue Code or, perhaps, conform to the shape of a loophole in the Code.

At the same time the current issue of Fortune describes a young man growing industry in the United States—that of estate planning. John P. Allison told how many new businesses have sprung up to help the wealthy arrange their estates to save taxes.

Fortune presents a little table showing that if an estate is $250,000 net and the owner claims the normal $60,000 exemption, the tax will be $45,300. If he takes a $10,000 capital deduction and presents 20 per cent of the estate to his heirs before he dies, the tax will be only $4,800, a saving of $40,500. If the estate is $1,000,000, the same method will reduce the tax from $270,300 to $108,490, a saving to the heirs of $161,810. On a $10,000,000 estate the saving can be $3,095,370.

A TWO-CASTE SYSTEM
The drive to avoid taxes has given wide currency to such terms as "tax-sheltered investments," "tax-loss corporations," "tax-exempt," and "stock option salary plans." And it is helping to make many publishers, tax consultants and attorneys wealthy.

Others Say . . .
COVINGTON, TENN., LEADER: "We feel that for all the good it has served useful purposes in the past. However, if they are to continue to serve the best interests of the people, labor leaders must realize that restrictive actions and 'feather-bedding' produce net more jobs, but fewer jobs in this age of mass-production, prefabrication and automation."

PLAINFIELD, IND., MESSENGER: "We do not need to look to the federal government for help. Let's learn again the fine art of taking care of ourselves and our own."
Nixon's voting record in the House stamps him an ultraconservative, although he may have changed "under Ike's benign influence. But many consider his new liberalism to be synthetic and artificial."

Musical Artistry Was From Start To Finish

By GEORGE E. PERRY
It was truly a rewarding pleasure to hear a concert which was musical artistry from start to finish, and this is exactly what Nan Merriman's was last evening. She has a magnificent voice which she handles superbly: a voice rich, mellow, and filled with a myriad of tonal color; a voice at times like the texture of lush velvet and at others as sheer as crepe, but at all times wonderfully liquid. Here is an artist who exemplifies the finest attributes of her art, and does so because she is so obviously dedicated to this art. As she sings, her whole body seems to become alive and vibrant with song, and as a result each number is a living presentation, sung with an earnest sincerity and great musicianship. She feels everything she sings, and because of this can transmit this feeling to an audience with remarkable intimacy.

Besides a great voice, Miss Merriman has the ability to put forth a song in such a way that even in a foreign tongue, her audience seems to know what she is singing about. Furthermore, she has a stage presence which is engaging from the moment she makes her entrance; it shows command, authority, poise, and a quality which only can be termed as regal. Yet, for all of this, she is never stiff, cold, nor austere, but rather warm, friendly and emitting a feeling which the Germans call "gemutlichkeit." Her dramatic consciousness is something to really take note of.

Because Miss Merriman is the musician she is, she does not permit her choice of program to degenerate to the level of what is sometimes called "public taste." She sang a concert which showed extremely good judgement in program-building, the numbers showing off her voice to its best advantage, and at the same time demonstrating that a recital can be composed of the best of selections and yet wholly enjoyed and appreciated.

The first group, five German folk songs, was vocal simplicity at its best—folksy in a way, yet refined in another. The French group which followed showed her voice in all of its colors from the dark quality of "La Cloche" of Saint-Saens (which contained an unbelievable crescendo), to the intimate of Chausson's "Le temps des lilas," and finally to the dramatic of "Ballade des femmes de Paris" by Debussy.

Concluding the first half of the program was the dramatic and compelling "Mon coeur s'ouvre a ta voix" from "Samson et Dalila," which was so convincingly sung that Miss Merriman was brought back to the stage several times, finally singing as an encore the well-known "Seguedille" from "Carmen." In both of these arias, Miss Merriman WAS the feminine character—firstly a pleadingly passionate Dalila, and secondly a seductive and tempting Carmen.

In the Spanish numbers which opened the second portion of the concert, Miss Merriman seemed to have found a medium which is particularly appropriate to her voice and style of singing. Not that she couldn't do anything—any style she chose to, and well—but that her grasp of these and the manner in which she did them seemed to convey that she loved them dearly. I couldn't possibly single out any of these four as the best; they were all Spanish to the core and most authentically sung.

The English group which concluded the printed program began with Tschakowsky's timeless and pathetic "None but the lonely heart." This has been sung many, many times, but I'm certain with no more conviction than Miss Merriman sang it. It would seem as if she saved the best for the last, for in the three songs by Rachmaninoff she climaxed a noble recital. "In the silence of the night," the best known of the three, was a vocal triumph; the rarely heard but exquisite gem, "Lilacs" was entrancing; and the powerful "Oh thou billowy harvest field" showed the singer at her dramatic best.

The audience, whose applause was consistently above enthusiastic, wouldn't let her leave until she had given four encores: the capricious "Gavotte" from "Mignon," the dynamic "Mirande" by Hageman, the intimate and plaintive "Bid Adieu," and the well-loved "Annie Laurie." Some may question Miss Merriman's choice of voice placement or tone production, but so far as I am concerned it matters very little when she can sing as she does.

Ralph Linsley was the discreet, unostentatious, but very capable accompanist. His playing never detracted one from the singer, and yet he supported her fully at all times. Miss Merriman's gracious treatment of her accompanist was another noticeable feature of the evening. But this merely bears out what I have already said; that she is a sympathetic musician, a great singer, and unquestionably the climax of the current Entertainment Series.

One of the best stories to come out of the baseball camps so far has been this one which involves Chuck Comiskey and Jim Rivera:

Comiskey, vice-president of the White Sox, has retired as personal banker of his free-spending outfielder, Rivera, for cause.

Last spring, Comiskey lectured Rivera on his spending habits and announced he was arbitrarily banking a part of each of the fellow's paychecks for rainy-day use. At the end of the season it added up to $7,000 in savings for the grateful Rivera.

The other day, though, Rivera pleaded he "needed some money to pay for the car I just bought." Comiskey made ready to parcel out a couple of grand and accompany it with a lecture on the advantages of having saved the money.

"But I need $6800," said Rivera. "The Cadillac people told me the two-tone was extra."

Whereupon Comiskey wrote him a check for the whole seven grand, saying "you may need the extra $200 for tipping money. This taps us out."

Bill Werber, Jr., former Duke star first baseman who has turned down several bonus offers from major league clubs, is in the Cincinnati Reds' camp on a curious sort of arrangement.

Young Werber, whose dad played for the Yankees, Red Sox and two Cincinnati pennant-winners, will sign a contract with the Reds that gives him his release at the end of one year. He has asked for no bonus, merely wants to learn if he is talented enough to make baseball a career.

Already it has been established, however, that Werber is a bit nimble-minded in one respect. Aware that Ted Kluszewski (47 home runs and league leader in RBI's last year) is also a candidate for the Red's first base job, Werber has decided to try out for the outfield, where the competition isn't quite so rugged.

There is one former college football player (name withheld) with the Yankees who vows it is true that "all of us varsity football players got the answers to the tests before we went into the exams. Trouble was, some of the guys couldn't understand the answers, leave along the questions."

Those major leaguers who are supposed to be leading the lives of Rileys in spring training would prefer to be leading their own lives in one respect.

The Yankees, Red and White Sox, who train in Florida, hear their hotel room phones ring at 7:30 every morning with the operators telling them not so sweetly, "That's what the manager ordered."

Picking over a NASCAR bulletin brings to light the following hilites of the recent speed week at Daytona Beach: Top mark was set by Tim Flock's speed runs in the International Safety trials when he averaged 139.373 mph on two whirled in a '56 Chrysler 300B, followed by 135.747 mph in the 152-mile Grand National.

John Fitch of Stamford, Conn., driving a '56 Chevy Corvette, averaged 145.543 mph for the flying mile run for U. S. sports cars. He had one 154.972 flash on the northbound run.

In acceleration runs on a measured mile from a standing start, Danny Eames of California did 81.786 in a '56 Dodge D-500. Ford won the Pure Oil trophy for the best performance record in all passenger car events. Chevrolet was second, Chrysler third. Ford secured many of its points in the convertible competition.

Tourney Berth Will Be Settled

The Associated Press Morehead Ky. State has an NCAA Tournament berth and a major-college scoring record on the line tonight in a final showdown with Western Kentucky's Hilltoppers, who should still be puffin' from last night's squeaker. Western opened the three-way playoff for the Ohio Valley Conference crown at Louisville by eliminating Tennessee Tech 84-80 on a pair of field goals by Monty Holland and Forest Able with just 11 seconds remaining in the game. Tech had come from 13 points back to knot it at 80-all with 21 seconds left before Holland and Able went to work.

Morehead tops the major colleges with a 96.5-point game average improving on the record set last season by Furman at 95.3.

The winner of tonight's game will complete the 25-team NCAA field and then jump into the first-round eliminations against Marshall, Mid-American Conference champ, at Fort Wayne, Ind., next Monday.

First-round play also gets under way at New York and in Seattle the same night with the Wichita, Kan., eliminations beginning Tuesday.

Temple, one of the eight teams involved in the New York regional warmed up with a 71-66 decision over St. John's of Brooklyn last night with Hal Lear scoring 31 points. Temple, now 22-3, faces Holy Cross in Madison Square Garden Monday.

The NIT announced the draw in its 12-team scrap with Dayton Joseph's of Philadelphia (21-4) and Niagara (20-4) seeded in that order and drawing first-round byes.

St. Francis of Brooklyn (19-2) plays Lafayette (19-6) and defending champion Duquesne (16-9) in the opening afternoon double-header at Madison Square Garden Saturday, March 17.

St. Louis (18-9)-Xavier of Ohio (16-9) and Seton Hall (19-4)-Marquette (13-10) round out the first round in an evening double-header.

The final is set for March 24.

Mathis, coach of Elon College's North State Conference and National Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics District 26 basketball champions, is the district's "Basketball Coach of the Year." The district includes the Carolinas.

Mathis' selection was announced yesterday by Francis Hoover of Appalachian State Teachers College, a member of the NAAIA district committee, who conducted the voting. Casting ballots were coaches from the nine North State Conference schools, South Carolina's Little Four and the College of Charleston.

Mathis, who also is Elon athletic director, is competing his seventh year at the Christian basketball helm.

A former Davidson College athlete, Mathis guided his club to a 20-6 overall record this year, including an 11-5 conference record.

He then directed the Christians to the North State tournament title and the NAAIA district win over Presbyterian last night.

Elon's 84-79 victory last night earned it a place in the NAAIA tournament at Kansas City March 12-17.

Other coaches receiving votes in the balloting included Gene Alexander of Erskine, Jim Hamilton of Lenoir Rhyne and Jim Gudger of Western Carolina.

By BEN OLAN The Associated Press Willie Eyrns of the New York Giants, Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati's Wally Post accounted for 135 National League home runs last season and they're picking up right where they left off.

Mays, who led the league with 81 circuit blows in 1955, walloped a 400-foot homer in the first inning of an intrasquad game yesterday. It was his second home run in three games.

Banks, a 44-homer man in '55, connected with the bases loaded in a camp game in Mesa, Ariz. And Post, who had 40 a year ago, hit one in a Redlegs' game in Tampa, Fla.

While this veteran trio was having itself a time, rookies stole the show in other camp tilts.

Second baseman Don Leppert belted a triple and two singles, stole a base and drove in a run in Baltimore's intrasquad contest.

First sacker Julio Becquer belted three hits, including a game-winning double in Washington's Orlando, Fla., quarters, and outfielder Gino Cimoli cracked an important two-run double in the Brooklyn Dodgers' camp. It wasn't a particularly good day for the pitchers. Some of the hurlers, however, were optimistic.

Russ Meyer of the Cubs who was acquired from Brooklyn during the winter, believes he's set "for a fine season."

"I've never been so strong so early in the spring," he said. "I've been able to run more in Arizona than in Florida — it's the difference in the turf."

Relief pitcher Ray Narleski expressed the hope that Cleveland Manager Al Lopez will give him a chance to start this season.

The St. Louis Cardinals were busy trying to correct a flaw in the pitching form of Vinger Bend Mizell. The big left-hander has difficulty holding runners on first base.

Mizell, who is returning after a two-year hitch in the Army, confessed he never picked a runner off first. "I doggone near had one last year," he drawled. "I had him way off the bag, but shucks if I didn't throw over the first baseman's head."

Marino (Chick) Pieretti, who at 34 is getting an opportunity to pitch for the Philadelphia Phillies, said he's out to prove he's completely recovered from a chipped elbow that nearly ended his career.

Pieretti sustained the elbow injury with Washington several years ago and after being sent to the White Sox and Indians he underwent surgery. He recovered sufficiently to win 19 games for Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League last season.

In other news, Mickey McDermott, acquired from Washington, was named to pitch in the New York Yankees' first exhibition game against the Cards Saturday.

...rookie infielder Rance Pless continued to make a favorable impression on Kansas City Manager Lou Boudreau. ...shortstop Luis Aparicio was tabbed to be the Chicago White Sox leadoff batter.

Greason Named ACC Coach Of The Year

RALEIGH (AP)—Murray Greason, whose Wake Forest team surprised experts and opponents alike today was named basketball "Coach of the Year" in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The veteran coach of the Deacons, completing his 22nd year at the same old stand, was a solid choice as he collected 33 of 48 votes cast by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Assn.

Everett Case, whose state Wolfpack defeated Wake Forest in the ACC tournament finals, was runner-up in the poll with 11 votes. Banks McFadden of Clemson, North Carolina's Frank McGuire and Bus Male of Virginia received the other votes.

Greason's Wake Forest team provided some of the top surprises of the year in the tough Atlantic Coast Conference. Generally regarded as the "weak sister" in the Big Four at the start of the season, the battling Baptists jelled into a smooth and powerful unit under Greason's guidance, and by tournament time they stacked up as a solid championship contender.

Wake defeated South Carolina in the tourney's opening round then poured it on North Carolina in the semifinals.

Only a State jinx kept it from being a banner year for Greason, and his Deacons. They met the Wolfpack four times during the season and were beaten on each occasion.

Some of the experts had figured the loss of Dickie Hemric, an All America center who graduated after last season, would be too much of a blow for the Deacons to overcome, but they surprised with a 19-9 record, one of their best in recent years.

Wilson and Kinston will kick off the tourney in the Junior bracket at 10 a.m. In the senior competition, Wilson and Greenville get things started at 11 a.m.

The Goldsboro-Greenville juniors play at 12 noon and Kinston and Goldsboro seniors at 1 p.m. The junior championship game will go at 2 p.m. and the senior finale at 3.

Admission is 10 and 15 cents.

"Couldn't Get Started," Says LaBua Sullivan Sorry About Eye

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—"I say, old chap, sorry about that eye, but look at my nose!"

"The eye's okay, won't need any stitches. I'm sorry about your nose."

That's dressing room—not drawing room—chitchat between England's John L. Sullivan, the victor on a split decision, and Jackie LaBua, the gracious loser, shortly after they had battered each other for 10 slug-and-clinch rounds in a nationally televised fight last night.

LaBua had dropped into Sullivan's dressing room to pay his respects.

"I just couldn't get started," remarked LaBua. "I was ashamed of myself. I didn't feel like I should have been in there at all. I know I just can't get mad in the ring. In a street fight I could go crazy, but I just can't get mad in the ring."

Sullivan, every bit the gentleman grinned and said: "You sure take a good punch."

And that was the fight in a nutshell.

Sullivan knocked LaBua down in the fifth round with a sharp right to the jaw. LaBua bobbed right back up, but had to take an automatic 8-count.

The handsome youngster from East Meadow, N. Y., took every punch. He would throw a few counter punches, then clinch.

"It was the clinches that bothered me," said Sullivan, who thought he won comfortably. "I took it easy the first two rounds. Then my trainer told me to go out and throw leather. So I threw leather. But he clinched too much. I couldn't get at him."

Sullivan weighed 160½, LaBua 159.

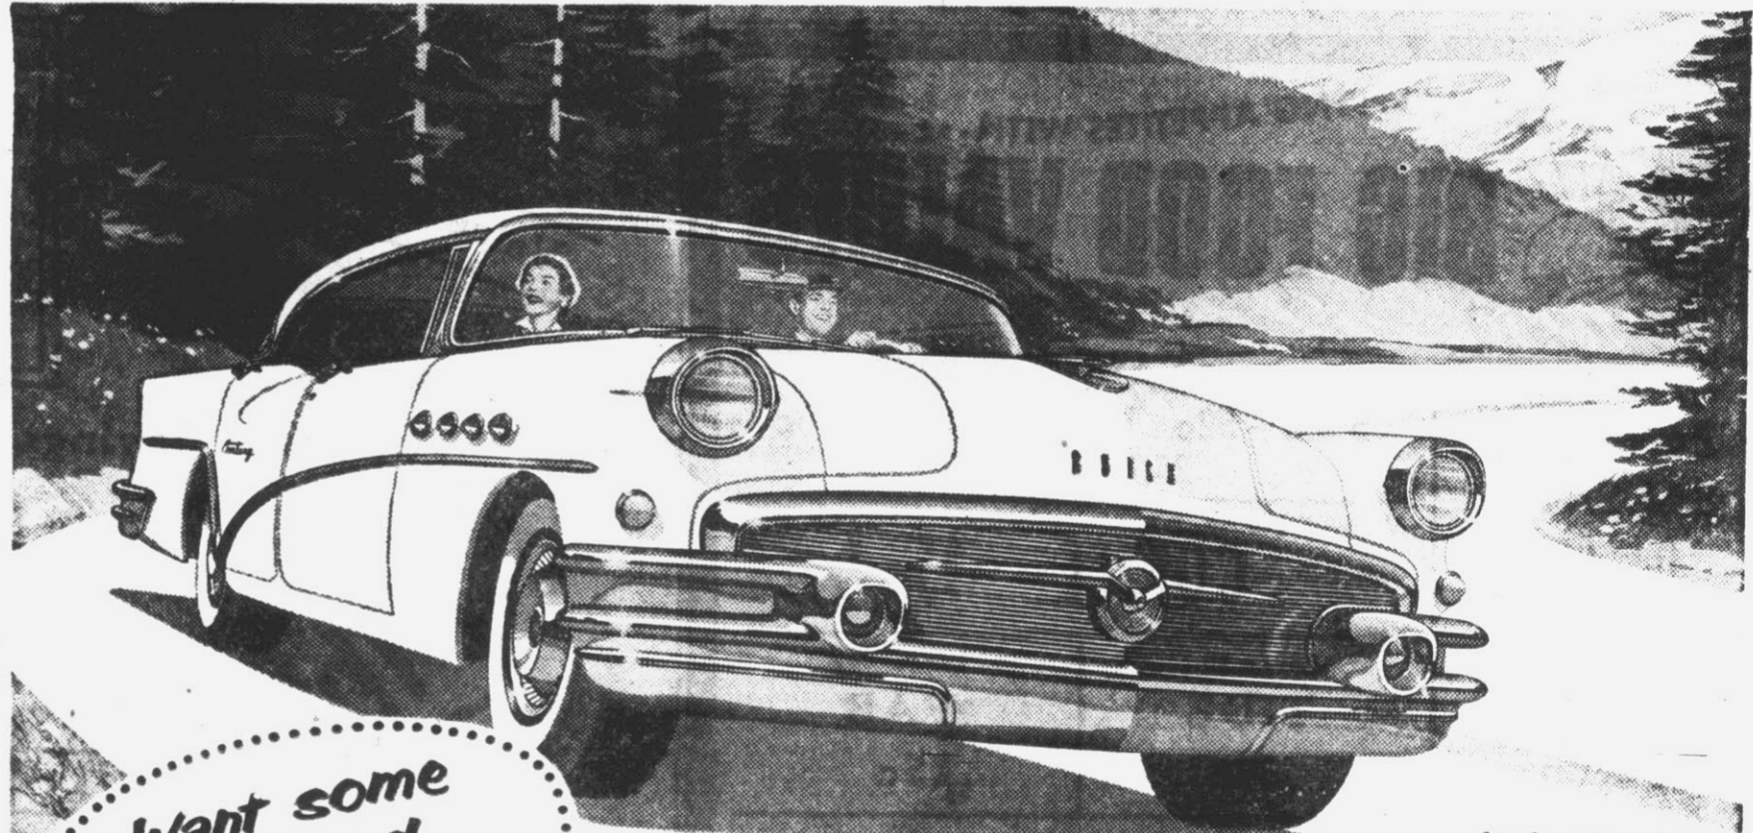

The fight was decided by a single point. Judge Dick Albino's card had it 5-4-1 for Sullivan. Judge Ted Shells called it LaBua 5-3-2, while Referee Joe Palmer gave it to Sullivan 5-4-1.

BIRD SONG
GOLDSBORO (AP)—Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis Jr., here sometimes think they are hearing things. The sweet song of a mocking bird floats about the living room as if the bird were in the room. Favorite song perch of a mocking bird is the chimney on the Lewis' house. As he sings the music is piped down the chimney and into the living room.

The GOLDEN WITCH

By ZOLA ROSS

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

With the approach of May, Michael ran hard in order, he reflected, to stay in one place. Colonel Wholley, in command of Washington volunteers, drove him with routine and orders.

He used the war as excuse for avoiding the Linden home. Charlotte phoned him a couple of times, and then left him alone. Ryerson was a frequent guest at the Lindens although now there was little heard about snow and ice trains. Apparently this project had fallen victim to the war.

Michael was a block from his office one afternoon when the Linden carriage overtook him and Charlotte leaned precariously from it.

"Get in, Michael. I must talk to you, Norris!" She lifted her voice toward the coachman. "Drive us home, please."

Michael protested but Charlotte hushed him in a forthright manner totally out of character. Her resort to directness fired Michael's curiosity. He got in with no further argument.

Charlotte squashed his tentative conversion. "Wait till we're home."

"I want no eavesdroppers," Michael saw the coachman's ears redden, noted Charlotte's smile of malice. They clattered to Capitol Hill at a brisk pace. What on earth was up with Charlotte? Surely Barclay wasn't enlisting? No a dozen wars wouldn't drag Barclay from his bank. The knowledge was subtly satisfying to Michael. Barclay had money, true; he had Charlotte, regrettable; but he had neither youth nor vigor. Michael's envy, his enduring resentment dwindled sharply.

Ordinarily Charlotte's alighting from a carriage was a pretty picture. Today she barely waited for Michael's aid. She sped up the long steps to the front door.

"Tea in the parlor, Fon." She stripped off her gloves, let Michael take her coat. "Wine, Michael? Bourbon?"

"Why," he said, surprised, "bourbon, please."

What was wrong with Charlotte? In the parlor she leaned against the cold fireplace, her body tense. When Fon appeared with his tray, she dismissed him, asked Michael to pour her a drink. She seldom touched intoxicants. Now she drank there anything of me left in your heart?"

"Lotty," he murmured. She came to him with an abandon she had never shown. Her eagerness burned itself into him. The solitary house closed around them. Michael knew with an assurance to which he was a stranger that he could carry Charlotte up the stairs, could take a memory of long-denied fulfillment away to war with him. Why not? She was his. He had always wanted her and now she acknowledged his right to her.

She was a flame, destroying everything but his need for her. Years vanished. Now her clear, scheming mind did not stand between them. Her desire, her responding body were her only realities.

He murmured to her, swept her into his arms and carried her to the stairs. On the first tread, his feet faltered. Charlotte's hand closed over his. He could feel her yielding and her intensity.

Such a small thing halted the next moment with a scorching shame mixed with pride. A second—a minute—later he would have been beyond sounds restraints. But at the instant he put his foot on the second stair, a pan clattered to the floor in the Linden kitchen. A Chinese voice lifted in anger. Michael's brain cleared. He had a swift vision of Barclay barring the way and he cringed.

He turned and carried Charlotte back to the parlor. He put her down on the sofa, aware of her outrage. He turned away, downed a healthy shot of bourbon, his fingers shaking on the empty glass. When he looked at Charlotte he knew better than to attempt explanation. Visions? Words were never weapons with her. Honor? A quality she neither respected nor understood.

Suddenly anger equal to her own rose in him.

"I'll not cuckold Barclay in his own house!" he shouted. "Leave him, come to me, and I'll take you!" He moved toward her threateningly but she didn't flinch. "This time you'll come on my terms, not yours!"

She was silent. He wanted her to speak, knew instinctively that she should speak. He glanced mockingly at the tea tray.

"Tea, Charlotte?" He poured the cold tea, again laced it with whiskey. With an exaggerated gesture of courtesy he handed it to her.

She took it. She flung its contents at him. It splashed in his face, dripped to his shirt. The cup shattered on the floor. Michael mopped his face without speaking.

"Get out!" Charlotte screamed. "Get out of here!"

Once in the street, Michael battled shame and—yes, regret. A man shouldn't love with his mind ed her glass quickly and sank into a chair. Her fingers drummed at it.

—perhaps not even with his honor.

"What's wrong, Charlotte?" Charlotte was explosive. "Are you really going to war?"

"Any day now," she said, "don't go."

"Michael," she said, "don't go."

"Why, Lotty," he answered gently, "you'll have forgotten me before the ship loses sight of San Francisco."

She trembled, jumped to her feet and came to him her fingers gripping his coat. "No, no, I won't, Michael. Hold me, hold me. I'm scared."

She pressed against him and his arms closed about her.

He spoke to her as he would have soothed a child. "You needn't be afraid, Lotty. Barclay won't go away."

"Barclay!" Her face darkened with anger, then crumpled. She drew away, put her hands over her eyes and wept.

"Lotty!" Genuinely disturbed, Michael drew her close again. She put her head on his chest and continued to cry wretchedly. He held her more tightly. She was limp and warm, and her helplessness stirred an old passion, a new protectiveness in him. "Tell me, Lotty."

Michael found his handkerchief, dried her tears. He guided her to the sofa and sat down beside her. Immediately she turned to him, throwing herself against him, her body close, her mouth lifted.

"Take me away, Michael. I want to go away with you. You love me. Let's leave Seattle—tonight. Now!"

Her breath came quickly; her arms tightened. Four years ago, he would have been impaled upon the moment, now his mind resisted and he broke their embrace.

"Lotty, why are you afraid?"

"Never mind that. Will you take me away with you?"

"Tell me why you are afraid."

Her eyes widened but she finally answered, a child's sulkiness in her. "I'm afraid of—Barclay."

He didn't believe her. The fear he acknowledged, but she was not telling him the real reason for it.

"I can't take you anywhere, Lotty. Today—tomorrow I'll be taking orders from the army."

She tossed her head, throwing the army into the discard. Her expression changed. Again she pressed against him. "Michael, isn't

No Nagging Backache Means a Good Night's Sleep

Now! You can get the fast relief you need from nagging backache, headache and muscular aches and pains that often cause restless nights and miserable tired-out feelings. When these discomforts come on with over-exertion or stress and strain—you want relief—want it fast! Another disturbance may be mild bladder irritation following wrong food and drink—often setting up a restless uncomfortable feeling. To get relief get Doan's Pills at any drug-store. Doan's work fast in 8 separate ways: 1: by speedy pain-relieving action to ease torment of nagging backache, headache, muscular aches and pains; 2: by their soothing effect on bladder irritation; 3: by their mild diuretic action tending to increase output of the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Custom Styling Plus Cool Comfort For Men Assured In This Year's Footwear

No, men! The same pair of shoes doesn't answer for all-season wear anymore. Your house is air-conditioned for the summer months. Maybe your car. Why not your feet which have to cope with blistering pavements during the dog days. One big answer, getting more popular all the time, is the ventilated shoe which now offers custom styling plus the maximum amount of summertime comfort and coolness. Perforated leathers, hand or machine woven leathers are features of some of the smartest shoes of the coming season. They appear in everything from casuals to dress shoes. Easy on Eyes and Feet For country and weekend wear, the Italian type features a straight cut vamp of hand-woven leather, with glove-soft leather quarter and foam rubber sole. In black, red or light tan colors they're the perfect accompaniment to slacks or walking shorts. Easy on the eye—and mighty easy on the foot! Not quite so casual but still a country and knockabout shoe is the low-cut one-eyelid oxford, usually in light tan smooth or grained calf with vamp of wide-open hand-woven leather in matching color. A good shoe in any summer wardrobe.

Slip-ons get the new look with clever use of ventilated leathers, and are shown in patterns from casual to dress. A conventional five-eyelid for the business man gets the new look with perforated vamp and saddle. Strips of perforated leather for the vamp of a 4-eyelid oxford or dress slip-on in polished black calf.

Cool to Wear Cool to look at and to wear is the smart moccasin vamp two-eyelid of black with vamp of perforated white brushed leather. And any man who prides himself on his taste in town footwear would be happy to wear the one-eyelid tassel oxford in black with vamp and flared tongue of gleaming black woven leather. These are just a hint of the high styling which is now going into a fashion which owed its origin to a demand for greater comfort in summer footwear. A pair of air-cooled shoes—and possibly two or three—is now a must in the well-regulated summer wardrobe.

New Black And White Shoes Going To Town

The black and white shoe is going to town. Smart for country and casual wear too. Like all shoe fashions it reflects the Continental influence in lighter weight, slimmer lines and more sophisticated treatments of the staple black and white theme. White touches are important in all shoe categories, the slip-on patterns, the one and two eyelid ties and moccasins for casual wear. The wing tip model, again, a big fashion is particularly smart in black and white for summer town wear. A typical example, on narrow toe Continental last, is made of black polished calf with perforated trim with white buck vamp in a two-eyelid pattern, in two-eyelid design. It's a low-cut but modified, to fit snugly over the instep. The combination of black llama calf with white brushed leather has a new look for both city and weekend wear. Particularly smart

Slippers To Feature Luxury Leathers And Elegance In Design

The head of the house can relax in style in the new slippers designed for spring and summer wear. There's luxury to the nth degree in the new leathers. Soft and supple on the foot, they're slim and elegant in design, with that important Continental air that prevails in all foot wear. Black is the favored color, as is dark brown and the maple and tan shades. Some men still go for the bright red and navy blue slipper, but black and beige-to-brown tones are in the lead. Styles featured in more formal wear have definitely influenced slipper design. Narrower, vamps, lighter soles. And some of these slippers will do double duty with informal weekend costumes. Slip-ons are top favorites. In smooth, grained or woven leathers, either moccasin or plain-toe. The sandal has become a house and casual type, with especial appeal to younger wearers.

Foot Doctor Same, Name May Differ

Is there any difference between a chiropodist and a podiatrist? None at all, except in terminology preference. Both perform the same work, attend the same schools, pass the same state examinations to practice. Chiropodist is the older term, and is used by most foot doctors. It came into use about 150 years ago, whereas "podiatrist" was adopted by some foot doctors about 40 years ago.

An Air Of Elegance In His Step

The ever popular and traditional five-eyelid wing tip oxford for men is smartly restyled and made cool as a collins for this spring and summer by use of nylon mesh. This model is by Stacy-Adams.

The wonderful comfort of an untied shoe is now available for the new season in the latest fashion, for town and country wear. Light, simple and unadorned this one-eye tie is by British Walkers.

Grifton Seniors Are Planning Class Play

By DAWN SMITH
Grifton High School

The senior class is now making preparations for the senior play. A committee made up of Dawn Smith, Pat Stokes, Linwood Branch, Herbert Purser, Charles Dail, Alice Cannon, Fred Taylor, and Marlene Dudley, was chosen to pick, from four books, several plays. Samples of those selected were ordered. In the very near future the class will make the final decision as to the exact play to be given.

The high school honor roll for this marking period is as follows: Freshmen: Emily Nelson; Sophomores: Phyllis Dudley and Lou Raye Mewborn; Seniors: Dawn Smith, Marlene Dudley, Bette McCotter and Fred Taylor.

Last Friday night parents and interested friends of the GHS basketball teams gave us a big dinner followed by a dance in the gym. The luncheon was beautifully arranged with yellow daffodils decorating the tables.

Fred Taylor said the invocation. After dinner, Mr. John Coward welcomed the group. Dawn Smith thanked the group, coaches and Mr. Coward on behalf of the basketball teams.

DAWN

Mr. Bright and Mr. Brown were presented gifts from the group by Mr. Coward in appreciation for their interest in the teams this past season.

The Rev. Horace Quigley presented Mrs. George Suggs, who prepared the meal, a gift from the group.

Arthur Rouse, former GHS student, is home on leave visiting his parents on Route 3, Ayden. Arthur leaves March 20 to resume his Air Force duties in Ohio.

Sunday afternoon Esther Hill Coward, Pat Matthews and Jo Ann Bass were Ayden visitors.

If you see Linda Chauncey and Linda Koon hopping delicately around high school this week it is because they went "horse-back riding" this past weekend.

Esther Hill Coward had as her overnight guest Friday night, Jo Ann Bass.

The seventh grade went to Williamsburg, Va., Monday morning at 6:00 and returned that night around 12:00. They were accompanied by Mrs. June Carson, teacher, Mrs. Lester Garris, Mrs. Merle Nelson, Emily Nelson and Elizabeth Laughlin.

Barbara Taylor, Bobby Nunn, Patsy Burney, Jimmy Smith Jr., Jerry Ballard and I went to a couple of the ACC games last week. We all had a "wonderful" time!

Sunday Marguerite Mewborn and Esther Hill Coward sang solos at the morning services of their respective churches.

The senior class is staging a bake sale Saturday morning, March 10. Delicious home made goodies will be on display in the front of Don Casey's Shop. Come and buy—you won't be sorry!

Costs Going Up In Varied Fields In Months Ahead

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Costs are on the rise again in a number of business fields. Further hikes are shaping up by summer.

Shippers will pay about 400 million dollar more a year to the railroads. The cost of sending iron ore, coal and limestone over the Great Lakes will rise an average of 6 per cent when these waterways thaw out. And the cost of sending goods over the highways may rise if Congress goes ahead with plans to raise the tax on gasoline, diesel fuel and truck tires to pay for new highways.

The price of things made of steel and copper has tended higher of late — due to excess of demand over supply, as well as to labor costs. Steelworkers and miners are discussing new wage demands for summer.

Some two million workers got a pay hike when the federal minimum wage rose to $1 an hour recently.

Automatic wage increases for perhaps 2 1/2 million others are in the cards this year under existing union-management contracts. The Textile Workers Union is out to thaw a five-year wage freeze for employes in New England mills.

All these wage increases add to the total of consumers' spending money, to the joy of merchants. But they also add to the cost of doing business for many another. When the cost can't be absorbed out of profit margins, or when it can't be offset by more output per man hour, prices go up.

People who think the slackening in automobile output and housing construction has relieved inflationary dangers should take account of these cost-price pressures, the First National City Bank of New York says in its March bank letter.

It sees a danger that wage increases "may force up costs and prices to a point where farmers and other people who do not have equivalent increases in income cannot buy." That could bring a drop in sales and in time an increase in unemployment.

There is an alternative, the bank economists note. Higher prices may be "validated by inflation of demand through excessive credit expansion." The Bankers take a dim view of this "choice of evils."

Makeshift First Aid Saved A Life

DECATUR, Ill. (AP)—Andrew Neureuther Jr., 14, won the National Boy Scout's Court of Honor Medal.

Nancy Brinkoetter, 6, cut an artery in her arm when she stuck it through a window. Andy applied pressure to the artery until an ambulance arrived. His action was credited with saving her life.

Although Andy's merit badge list includes one each for cooking, swimming, life-saving and pioneering, he had none in first aid.

India Attains Much Of Its 5-Year-Plan

By EUGENE LEVIN
NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Indian officials say their country's first five-year plan—which has just a month to run—has, achieved less than its main goals of increased agricultural and industrial production.

In the plan, representing the biggest effort at economic planning by a non-Communist country, provision was made for spending more than a billion rupees ($735,000,000). Twice that amount is provided for in a second plan, starting April 1.

One of the best ways of assessing the success of a five-year plan, economists point out, is to compare actual expenditure with the planned expenditure. With this criterion in mind, India has had "90 per cent success, not a small achievement by any standard."

Listed among the more spectacular successes:

National Income—The target, an 11 per cent increase, was passed by the third year. The increase now is likely to be above 15 per cent bringing the national income to about 96 billion rupees ($20,260,000,000).

Agricultural Production—With India experiencing large food shortages and inflation, the plan sought to raise the annual production of food grains from about 54 million tons to almost 62 million. By last year India was producing more than 65 million tons. Inflation was halted, and this country was able to cease imports of grains except for the building up of emergency reserves.

Industrial production—The index of industrial production (based on 1946 output) stood at 105 when the plan started. It is now approaching 160. Most gains have come in the textile, sugar, cement and chemical industries. Indian officials said while the plan created about five million new jobs it had no impact on unemployment, one of India's greatest problems.

New Delhi sources say another disappointment was the failure to expand basic industries, particularly iron and steel on the scale envisaged.

People Who Like Ike Appear Placid As To His Health And Running Mate

Editor's Note—This is the first in a series of articles by AP's national political reporters who are surveying the situation in the light of President Eisenhower's decision to seek a second term.

NEW YORK POLITICAL

By JAMES DEVLIN

NEW YORK (AP)—The people who "like Ike" appear to be placidly ignoring the hullabaloo over his health and running mate.

That is one of the chief impressions gained by this reporter in a sampling of public opinion in New York state—talks with both political leaders and the man in the street.

Democrats believe their argument that President Eisenhower's heart attack makes him a part-time executive will have its effect by election day.

Also, they believe they have a vulnerable target in controversial Vice President Nixon if he should run again with Eisenhower.

Since 1918

But at this stage, the Eisenhower adherents do not seem to be swayed on these issues.

Republican State Chairman L. Judson Morhouse says Eisenhower even may increase the $50,000 plurality that netted him the state's 46 electoral votes in 1952.

On the other side, Democratic State Chairman Michael Prendergast predicts the state will go Democratic as it did in 1954 when Democrat Averell Harriman was elected governor by 12,000 votes.

This reporter toured the 150-mile area between New York City and Albany, New York, and Albany are Democratic centers; the area between is heavily Republican.

Democrats say they are confident the Eisenhower administration's handling of foreign policy in the Middle East, such as the shipment of tanks to Saudi Arabia, will cut into his vote in New York City, where there is much support for Israel.

On the other hand, Negroes report a Republican trend in normally Democratic Harlem on the segregation issue.

A group of Pullman porters in Grand Central Terminal said segregation is the burning question in Harlem, home of hundreds of thousands of Negroes. They predicted a substantial GOP vote there.

"That's all you hear," said one. "Talk to anybody and you'll find that's the feeling."

The Republicans are doing more for us than the Democrats. Warren (Earl Warren, chief justice of the United States) is a Republican. Some Democrats speak out against segregation but you never see them disown the other Democrats who are segregationists.

Democratic attacks on Nixon, and even some aversion to him within the GOP, appear to puzzle the average Republican who is interviewed.

"He always has been Johnny-on-the-spot to help Ike," said a Hudson businessman. "He's been a hard-working vice president."

He expressed belief that talk of dropping Nixon from the ticket stemmed from a high-level battle for the second spot rather than in any rank-and-file revolt.

The Albany Times-Union inquiring photographer quoted half a dozen persons who said they intended to vote for Eisenhower.

On Eisenhower's health, a New York City Democrat said the public was getting only one side of the picture—emphasis on his activities but little on the rest periods his doctors ordered.

"Every time Ike swings at a golf ball you see a picture of him in the papers," he said. "But you never see a picture of him taking his two-hour nap."

A Hudson Valley filling station operator, an Eisenhower supporter last time and this time, put it this way:

"Ike knows best how he feels and what he can do. If he feels he can carry on, that's good enough for the people around here."

A tour along the Hudson Valley, where fruit and produce growers already are trimming their apple trees for spring, reveals little if any change in its traditional Republican outlook.

The Midwest farm issues do not hit home among these men, except possibly in reverse. They are buyers and consumers of Midwest wheat.

A worker at General Electric's huge Schenectady plant, employing some 33,000 men said he believed there was increased sentiment among his co-workers in favor of a Democratic administration.

"Sure, there is prosperity," he said. "But who gets the profits? The big corporations. A lot of us think Ike hadn't ought to run and that there ought to be a Roosevelt type administration, one more favorable to labor."

Another GE worker, a Republican, insisted Eisenhower had strong support among the men.

Political leaders generally expect Harriman to announce for the Democratic presidential nomination after the current legislative session ends the latter part of this month.

His backers contend he would

Joined Line For Social Drinking

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—A garrulous fellow fell in line with taxpayers waiting to make out their returns at the Internal Revenue Service office.

Joking with those nearest him, he reached the head of the line. Then, he headed to a rest room. In a moment he returned and took his turn at the end.

Again he reached the head of the line. Again he left for the rest room. That kept up for a couple of hours.

Finally a government worker trailed him into the rest room and watched him lift a bottle of liquor from his coat and take a swig.

"The explanation?"

"Well," said the mystery man, "you see I don't like to drink alone, and I saw this line of people, so I just fell in."

Worcester, Mass. claims that the cotton gin, sewing machine, power carpet loom, steam callopper, and street lunch cart were invented there.

Science Commentator Will Be Guest Speaker

Dr. Gerald Wendt, noted American interpreter of science, will be guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Pitt County Executive Club March 16 at East Carolina College.

Regards Leisure Time Wasted

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The more leisure time Americans get, the less they do with it constructively, says a leading industrial designer.

The average worker in this country, Henry Dreyfuss, New York, told a luncheon club, has a thousand hours more spare time each year than his grandfather had.

"I submit that our educators, philosophers, psychologists and social workers have failed to keep pace with our technologists. The latter have created a great wealth of leisure, yet Americans, like King Midas, are near bankruptcy in terms of using that wealth."

Estimated 700,000 Red Troops In North Korea

By ROBERT EUNSON
TOKYO (AP)—Gen. I. D. White says that, although Red China has withdrawn about 550,000 troops to Manchuria, there are still approximately 700,000 Communist soldiers in Korea.

The veteran commander of the U.S. 8th Army and all American ground forces in the Far East gave the figures in an interview.

"The North Korean army accounts for half the total strength of the 700,000-man Communist force in Korea," he said.

White commands Army forces Far East from a headquarters near Tokyo. His 8th Army command post is in Seoul.

White pointed out about 650,000 United Nations ground troops are still in Korea. These include 45,000 Americans and 605,000 South Koreans, plus an unknown understrength division of others.

The Chinese "have the bulk of their forces in the center of the front lines in Korea," White said.

"The North Koreans are disposed on the flanks of the demarcation line drawn across the peninsula in July 1953.

"Since the cease-fire, the Chinese have removed about 550,000 troops from Korea. The North Koreans have increased their army by more than 50,000. However, sizeable Chinese forces are available across the Yalu River for movement back into Korea."

White added he thought the "fire power within Communist units has increased."

"Officers and specialists of the North Korean army have been sent to schools in the U.S.S.R. and China since the cease-fire," White said. "Training in the field has progressed from small unit tactics to regimental maneuvers with supporting arms."

According to the best information, White said, "the combat effectiveness of the Communist forces is good."

Newsprint Prom At GHS Is Coming Up

By ROSEMARY EAGLES
Greenville High School

In the halls of GHS students have been seeing posters for the past week advertising a hypnosis act in the annual Newsprint Prom. Gus Manos, an East Carolina sophomore, is going to perform. Mr. and Miss Newsprint will be crowned during the dance which is Friday night at 8:00 in the high school gym.

The journalism students have been busy making plans. Proceeds will go for the expense of their paper, Green Lights.

Several stylish high school lassies modeled in a fashion show February 29 sponsored by the Women of the Moose and Diana Shops. Proceeds went for a nurse scholarship.

Some of the models were Joanne Eagles, Ruth Jordan, Nancy Berryman, Carolyn Briley, Fay Hardee, Clara Faye Crawford, Martha Pierce, Dora Pierce, Bobbie Newman, Jeannette Taylor, Ellen Bennett, Lou Rogers, Judy Anthony, Jo Ann Godwin, and Annette Smith.

For entertainment Lib Rogers did two hula numbers and one tap dance. Several of the models did a chicken song and dance routine. Bill Moore, Ronnie Finch, Jack Stokes, and Ebern Allen did "Dry Bones." Laverne Estman, Gayle Clapp, Lib Rogers, Ella Grace Stokes, and Patsy Smith did a tap dance.

"I was so surprised and happy that I cried," laughed Priscilla Weeks while talking about the surprise birthday dinner party Ann Ellington had for her Friday night. Camilla Henderson, Cynthia Crawford, Jane Perkins, Lillian Moya, Ruth Young, and Margaret Ann Harrell enjoyed the spaghetti dinner.

ner. They gave Priscilla a stuffed monkey for her animal collection.

Boys came over after dinner and the girls and their dates went to the Glee Club concert.

At the Atlantic Coast Conference weekend were several GHS basketball fans. Bobby Edwards, Dick Evans, and Hal Edwards were busy rooting for their favorite teams.

Saturday afternoon several people had a reunion at Lois Ann Webb's home. Dave Bagwell, a State College senior who worked with the Greenville Recreation Department during the summer, was in town. Jay Robbins, Jane Berryman, Dave, Lois Ann, Ann Rooke, Rosemary Eagles, Martha Branch, and Dee Hux sat around playing bridge and discussing old times.

Saturday morning three excited girls, Olive Morrill, Lois Simmons, and Sylvia Borner, headed for the University of North Carolina for a weekend of fun. Olive's cousin had invited the girls up and they were met in Raleigh by their dates.

That afternoon they spent riding around Chapel Hill. Saturday night the girls and their dates saw a musical arrangement of "Booth Tarkington's 'seventeen'" at Memorial Hall. The play was sponsored by the Carolina playmakers. The girls stayed at a private home.

Sunday after dinner Olive, Sylvia, and their dates walked around the campus and went through some of the buildings. Meanwhile Lois visited Duke University.

Sunday night found the girls homeward bound.

Saturday found Sylvia Satterthwaite in Red Springs getting more enthused by the minute over Flora MacDonald College.

"I talked with the president about entering college there next year and then Ruth Evelyn Topping took me around the campus," stated Sylvia. Ruth Evelyn, who has been at Flora Mac for two years, is the editor of the college paper, The Squirrel.

"I certainly would like to graduate from the new college but I realize it will be much later before that is completed."

Sylvia was talking about the new Presbyterian college which will combine Flora MacDonald, Peace College in Raleigh, and Presbyterian Junior College in Maxton, Laurinburg is the site of the new school.

Sylvia stopped at PJC and saw Dennis Bullock. Sunday she visited Mariah Jane Parker in Rocky Mount.

Special Minister Working With Jehovah's Witnesses In Greenville

H. A. Hunick, a special representative of The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, will be visiting and working with the local congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses in Greenville this week March 6-11. Hunick is visiting the Greenville congregation to assist them in their ministerial training, a training program that is being carried on all over the world in more than 150 different countries.

The local presiding minister, W. E. Manning, said that Hunick would give the talk "The Joy of Spiritual Healing," Saturday evening at 8:00. The highlight of his visit will be Sunday evening at which time Hunick will give to the public the talk, "Attaining Victory in Christian Warfare," which will be advertised throughout the week. Following this talk a continuation of the study, "The Table of Demons" versus "The Table of Jehovah" will be conducted from the pages of the Watchtower, an international magazine, by the presiding W. E. Manning.

Manning also said "that Hunick will be visiting many where Bible studies are being conducted in order to help the ministers conducting them to improve their efficiency, so that they might serve the persons desiring to further their Bible education."

Other meetings scheduled for the week include a Bible study conducted at the home of W. E. Manning Wednesday evening at 8:00, at the home of Raymond Vandford Thursday evening at 8:00, and Steward Joyner's home located at Joyner Crossroads at 8:00.

Hunick is a graduate of Watchtower Bible College of Brooklyn, N. Y. He graduated in July, 1955. Since that time he has been working with the circuit No. 1 of Jehovah's Witnesses in North Carolina.

Th public is invited to attend all these meetings held in the Kingdom Hall located two miles west of Greenville on the Falkland Highway.

CHICAGO (AP)—A husky 16-year-old youth yielded to orders of school officials in suburban Forest Park and shaved off his week-old red beard.

Philip G. Barnes, a 6-foot junior at Proviso township high school who has been shaving for two years, was sent home by school officials with orders not to return until he was clean shaven. They told him "our students must be dressed properly and that beard isn't proper." Barnes started growing the beard a week ago so he could participate in the suburb's centennial celebration in June.

Barnes and his mother, Marie, conferred with mayor William Meyer and Police Chief Joseph Cortino. The mayor and chief questioned the authority of the school officials in the matter but persuaded the bearded youth to shave.

Plumbers Back Do-It-Yourself

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Do-it-yourself devotees are going to learn some of the tricks of plumbing.

A five-year nationwide program to educate home owners on how to fix leaks and make other minor repairs was outlined before the Kentucky State Assn. of Master Plumbers.

C. B. True president, said too many people become panicky when a pipe bursts in the basement. A phase of the program will be to teach householders how to turn off the main water valve.

Major plumbing problems should be left to the experienced professional, however, True emphasized.

Americans consume about 475 million bushels of wheat a year.

Prof Says Expected Punch Line Helps To Make Joke

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP)—Do you always seem to get a few moments of awkward silence after you tell what you figure is a ripping good joke?

The chances are you're telling the wrong kind of joke—or rather, a joke with the wrong kind of ending.

As Dr. Douglas T. Kenny of the University of British Columbia puts it, you probably subscribe or lean unknowingly to the incongruity theory in the art of tall tale spinning.

The discrepancy hypothesis, according to Asst. Professor of Psychology Kenny, is probably the answer to your problem.

Kenny's own theories are set forth in a paper printed in the Journal of Abnormal and Social Psychology entitled: "The Contingency of Humor appreciation on the Stimulus-Confusion of Joke-Ending Expectations."

The title, the professor says, is funnier than any of the 30 jokes he tested in the preparation of his Kenny report.

Dr. Kenny says he's come to the conclusion—within the field explored—that the more predictable the punch line of a joke the funnier it is to the listener.

In other words, the listener gets a bigger charge when he can see the kicker coming.

As Kenny puts it: "The degree of humor appreciation increases with the degree of predictability."

"This theory tends to dispute the idea, held since the days of Aristotle, that the surprise ending is the best."

How did Kenny arrive at his conclusions? He first gathered the 30 jokes from college humor publications, from the works of Dr. Sigmund Freud and from other sources.

"None of the jokes are what you would really call naughty," he said. Next he chose 14 University of British Columbia students and divided them into two groups.

The first group went over the 30 jokes and rated them in three ways—those with predictable endings, those of moderate expectation and those with surprise endings.

The second group of students evaluated the same jokes on a humor rating scale—very funny, funny, slightly funny, neutral, slightly disagreeable, unpleasant and highly unpleasant.

As an example of the jokes rated highest, Dr. Kenny submits this one:

Coed: I'd like to see the captain of this ship.

Coed: That's all right, this is a pleasure trip.

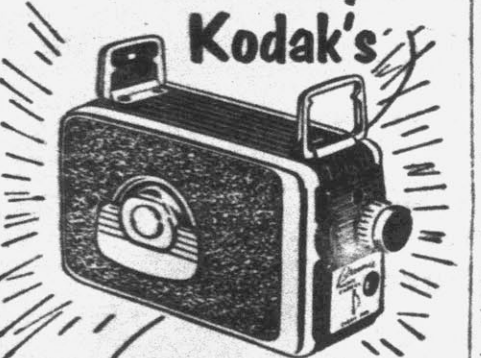

As for the "not so funny" type, Dr. Kenny passes along this gem:

Horse dealer: Mount this horse at 4 a.m. and you'll be in Seattle by 7:30 a.m.

Customer: What would I do in Seattle at 7:30 a.m.?

That, says Kenny, is not a joke, son.

GMC brings you the most impressive improvements of all 1956 trucks

Now we can show you these great new GMC's that are further than ever ahead of all others. Their advances not only clinch power supremacy—but reach into fields still unexplored by other truck makers.

For example, GMC's Road Shock Damper Suspension—plus a unique new stabilizer—produces in half-ton models a ride comparable to the finest passenger car.

An optional new fast-ratio cruising axle in light-duty GMC's gives you an overdrive's pace and economy without its cost.

Sharply increased engine displacement in both sixes and V8's gives you a power family unsurpassed in the light-duty field. Specifically, we offer 14.4% GREATER displacement on 6-cylinder models, 16.2% on V8's than our nearest competitors. And GMC V8's, mind you, match the shortest stroke ratios in the truck industry.

Styling is well into the future—panoramic windshield to sand-tight tail gate. Tubeless tires, of course. And a 12-volt electrical system is standard. These are some of the strides presented in new 1956 Blue Chip trucks we now have on view. The values are even more notable. Come in and get the facts!

*Standard on Suburban; optional at slight extra cost on other 1/2-ton models

RALEIGH — U.S. Park Service and State Highway Commission officials have agreed on plans to erect brush fences along the outer banks to rebuild sand dunes eroded by hurricanes.

The agreement, made yesterday, calls for the state to provide materials for the fences and prisoner labor.

Next week convicts at the Currituck County camp will begin preparing wooden slats and other materials.

The Park Service will move the materials to the Outer Banks, where it will plan the fence system and supervise the erection. All the work will be done along the 70-mile stretch of coast in the National Seashore Park area, which runs roughly from Whitehouse to the village of Ocracoke.

State Highway Chairman A. H. Graham said actual construction of the fences probably will begin this summer. A temporary camp will be set up on the Outer Banks for prisoners to do the work.

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. — A group of Rocky Mount citizens decided today to make a bid for a church - supported college which may be ready to move to a new location.

The school is Lousburg Junior College, a coeducational Methodist institution with an enrollment of about 400.

Rocky Mount was one of several Eastern North Carolina cities considered as the site of a new four-year Presbyterian college which will be established at Laurinburg.

Members of the Rocky Mount Citizens' committee that sponsored the Presbyterian college campaign met here today to discuss the possibility of transferring Lousburg College here. Bandy is president of the Chamber of Commerce and a Methodist layman.

The Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of First Methodist Church here, and a Lousburg trustee, told the group that a transfer of the school had been considered for some time. There also has been some discussion of making it a four-year senior college.

A Rocky Mount delegation will go to Durham Tuesday to talk to Bishop Paul Garber and his cabinet.

Lousburg Junior College was established in 1787 and is the oldest Methodist-supported college in the country.

Costly Damage In City Mishaps

Property damage estimated at $13,387 was done in 24 motor vehicle accidents reported to police in Greenville last month.

Twenty-one persons, a new high for recent months, were injured—most of them coming out of a two-car collision on N. Greene Street in which 13 teenagers were involved.

It's been over 13 months however, since anyone has died from a traffic accident in the city.

The eight hour period from noon until eight p. m. was the most dangerous time to drive. Ten of the 21 reported accidents happened during that time.

Tuesdays were the safest days on which to drive last month. No accidents were reported then but seven of the 21—or one third—took place on Saturdays.

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) says he thinks President Eisenhower can be re-elected through a television campaign but that other Republican office-seekers might be hurt if the President fails to make a more active campaign.

He talks here and in nearby Wilson yesterday the Senate minority leader also made these observations:

1. He is not a candidate for vice president.

2. He assumes the GOP presidential ticket again will be Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon.

3. The Republicans can beat the Democrats again.

Knowland said the administration has made a good record in the last three years. He said the

Authorine Lucy Says She Still Wants Enter Alabama

NEW YORK — Authorine Lucy says she still wants to attend the University of Alabama.

The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People issued this statement yesterday in behalf of the 26-year-old expelled Negro coed.

"Despite all that has happened I continue to hope, wish and work that I may be able to pursue my education at the state university of my home state. But up until the present time I have been thwarted in my effort to do that.

"Therefore, I have got to follow two courses — to persist in my efforts to be admitted to the University of Alabama next fall and also to make applications to other schools — because I am sincerely interested in getting an education in the University of Alabama if I can but, if not, in another school.

"I would hope that there are unsegregated universities in the Southland on whose campuses I may find welcome as a student."

Lucy, who visited here this week, was admitted to the all-white University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa last month after a

Breath Of Spring Suffers Relapse

That breath of spring was fun while it lasted. But it's all over for a while.

Temperatures shot up to the mid-80s over the Carolinas yesterday. But tonight, the Weather Bureau predicts, they will drop well below freezing in many areas.

Snow flurries are expected in the North Carolina mountains tonight, along with lows in the 20s, elsewhere in North Carolina lows will be from 5 to 8 degrees below freezing.

In South Carolina a general frost is due tonight. The low in the extreme northwest will be about 25, and a light freeze may extend as far east as the coast.

Not much relief is in sight for tomorrow.

It wouldn't hurt so much if it hadn't been so pleasant during the premature warm spell.

Columbia had a high of 84 yesterday, and Raleigh was only one degree higher. In the 20s, included 80 at Charlotte, 79 at Wilmington, 78 at Greensboro, 77 at Greenville, S.C., 76 at Asheville, 74 at Charleston and 73 at Myrtle Beach.

TRIO COVERED BY SCRAMBLED EGGS

WAUNETA, Neb. — Gary Doeker started to town with two girl passengers and a number of crates of eggs.

As he braked his car approaching the highway, the bus gave away. He shifted into second gear and the axle broke. He swerved the car to avoid a truck and headed for a bank across the road. The car hit the bank and turned end over end.

Gary and the girls crawled out, covered from head to foot with scrambled eggs. But nary an injury.

Investigating officers said that Mr. and Mrs. Augustine Sierra of Corona, occupants of the other car involved in the crash, were seriously injured. Police said the drivers of the cars had not been determined.

Authorine Lucy Says She Still Wants Enter Alabama

NEW YORK — Authorine Lucy says she still wants to attend the University of Alabama.

The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People issued this statement yesterday in behalf of the 26-year-old expelled Negro coed.

"Despite all that has happened I continue to hope, wish and work that I may be able to pursue my education at the state university of my home state. But up until the present time I have been thwarted in my effort to do that.

"Therefore, I have got to follow two courses — to persist in my efforts to be admitted to the University of Alabama next fall and also to make applications to other schools — because I am sincerely interested in getting an education in the University of Alabama if I can but, if not, in another school.

"I would hope that there are unsegregated universities in the Southland on whose campuses I may find welcome as a student."

Lucy, who visited here this week, was admitted to the all-white University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa last month after a

Brush Fences On The Outer Banks

U.S. Park Service and State Highway Commission officials have agreed on plans to erect brush fences along the outer banks to rebuild sand dunes eroded by hurricanes.

The agreement, made yesterday, calls for the state to provide materials for the fences and prisoner labor.

Next week convicts at the Currituck County camp will begin preparing wooden slats and other materials.

The Park Service will move the materials to the Outer Banks, where it will plan the fence system and supervise the erection. All the work will be done along the 70-mile stretch of coast in the National Seashore Park area, which runs roughly from Whitehouse to the village of Ocracoke.

State Highway Chairman A. H. Graham said actual construction of the fences probably will begin this summer. A temporary camp will be set up on the Outer Banks for prisoners to do the work.

Breath Of Spring Suffers Relapse

That breath of spring was fun while it lasted. But it's all over for a while.

Temperatures shot up to the mid-80s over the Carolinas yesterday. But tonight, the Weather Bureau predicts, they will drop well below freezing in many areas.

Snow flurries are expected in the North Carolina mountains tonight, along with lows in the 20s, elsewhere in North Carolina lows will be from 5 to 8 degrees below freezing.

In South Carolina a general frost is due tonight. The low in the extreme northwest will be about 25, and a light freeze may extend as far east as the coast.

Not much relief is in sight for tomorrow.

It wouldn't hurt so much if it hadn't been so pleasant during the premature warm spell.

Columbia had a high of 84 yesterday, and Raleigh was only one degree higher. In the 20s, included 80 at Charlotte, 79 at Wilmington, 78 at Greensboro, 77 at Greenville, S.C., 76 at Asheville, 74 at Charleston and 73 at Myrtle Beach.

New Target Eyed By Rocky Mount

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. — A group of Rocky Mount citizens decided today to make a bid for a church - supported college which may be ready to move to a new location.

The school is Lousburg Junior College, a coeducational Methodist institution with an enrollment of about 400.

Rocky Mount was one of several Eastern North Carolina cities considered as the site of a new four-year Presbyterian college which will be established at Laurinburg.

Members of the Rocky Mount Citizens' committee that sponsored the Presbyterian college campaign met here today to discuss the possibility of transferring Lousburg College here. Bandy is president of the Chamber of Commerce and a Methodist layman.

The Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of First Methodist Church here, and a Lousburg trustee, told the group that a transfer of the school had been considered for some time. There also has been some discussion of making it a four-year senior college.

A Rocky Mount delegation will go to Durham Tuesday to talk to Bishop Paul Garber and his cabinet.

Lousburg Junior College was established in 1787 and is the oldest Methodist-supported college in the country.
