Demo Higher Support Levels Get Setback; 'Deals' Charged More Re-Writing For Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—An election-year farm bill already strangled of rigid price supports for cotton, corn and peanuts faced further re-writing in the Senate today.

The Democrats sought to restore price supports on basic crops at 90 per cent of parity, and to support Eisenhower's plan, adopted in 1954, for a flexible system ranging from 75 to 90 per cent.

The Democrats sought to restore price supports on basic crops at 90 per cent of parity, and to support Eisenhower's plan, adopted in 1954, for a flexible system ranging from 75 to 90 per cent.

He contended the action would tend to increase, rather than decrease, the surplus of corn.

On the House side, Rep. Hays said "it looks like grounds for impeachment" of Benson.

Lost Tot Safe After Long Hunt

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Three-year-old Dennis Bustle was back home today apparently as well as ever after leading searchers from two counties over some of the roughest terrain in this part of the state.

Some 200 deputies, police and volunteers found Dennis and his two dogs early yesterday morning, nine hours after he had wandered away from his home near the Edinboro, Pa., border.

Fire Marshal Robert Brown said the victims apparently aslept peacefully in their beds when the blaze broke out.

He said the home was heated by both a coal and wood stove and by a kerosene heater.

Three dogs owned by the Twymans were out of the house. One of them ran back in and burned to death.

Christian Science Society
How faith advanced to spiritual understanding of God provides the answer to sin, lack, and other disorders will be brought out in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Substance" at Christian Science services Sunday.

From the King James Version of the Bible will be read the following (Romans 14:22): "Hast thou faith? have it to thyself before God."
Among the passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy is the following (23:16): "Faith, if it be mere belief, is as a pendulum swinging between nothing and something, having no fixity. Faith, advanced to spiritual understanding, is the evidence gained from Spirit, which rebukes sin of every kind and establishes the claims of God."

The Golden Text is from Hebrews (11:1): "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

Mrs. Hollingsworth Gives Program For U. D. C. Meeting

The George B. Singletary Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy met at the home of Mrs. E. W. Harvey with Mrs. T. Gaylord as assistant hostess Thursday afternoon, March 8. The home was lavishly decorated with attractive arrangements of spring flowers.
The hostesses welcomed each member and the guests, Mrs. Alice Keel and Mrs. Sallie Irons.
The president, Mrs. Harvey, presided over a brief business session during which time Mrs. T. T. Hollingsworth and Mrs. J. G. Laulaire, of the yearbook committee, passed out the new yearbooks. Mrs. Laulaire was especially complimented for the attractive covers.
Mrs. Harvey presented Mrs. Hollingsworth with a very informative and instructive talk on "Is the War Between the States Dead?" "Historians would have you believe that the War Between the States ended in 1865. There is mounting evidence the report was premature. True it is no longer a war of battles and bloodshed. Today's casualties are buried in books, not hero's graves. There has never been anything like the current fever of the War Between the States enthusiasm. The North-South conflict of 1861-65 has caught the imagination of any other war, before or since or by any other phase of the national history. The war long ago became the best documented of all history—with an unequalled outpouring of memoirs, biographies, diaries, letters pamphlets. Not only within book covers is the fever evidenced. One of 1956's biggest song hits was "The Yellow Rose of Texas," a revival of a War Between the States minstrel song that sold 1 1/4 million copies one recording. It adds another point: How many wars have accomplished their purpose? The War Between the States was fought to preserve the Union, and it did this so perfectly that the question will never come up again."
During the social hour which followed delicious "Heavenly Hash," home-made cake, fruit bars, and cookies were served by the hostesses.
As much as 50 pages of printed material can be photographed on a pocket-sized card and read by viewing apparatuses.

Missionary To South Brazil Will Speak At Church Services Sunday

Mrs. A. R. Crabtree, Southern Baptist Missionary to South Brazil, will be guest speaker for the morning worship service Sunday at Emmanuel Baptist Church.
The service will begin at 11 a.m. and will mark the beginning of the church's participation in the School of Missions, along with 21 other Baptist churches in the South-Roanoke Association.
Dr. Paul Bard, Southern Baptist home missionary to the rural people of Hyattsville, Md., will speak at the Sunday evening service at 7:30. Other speakers during the week, beginning at 8:15 p.m., will be the Rev. Abraham Wright, home missionary to the Italians of Bend, Ill. on Monday; the Rev. Guthrie Colvard, Atlantic Association missionary, on Tuesday; the Rev. Wroth Grant, missionary to Japan, on Wednesday; Mrs. L. F. Maynard, home missionary of Mobile, Ala., on Thursday; and Dr. J. D. Franks of Wake Forest who has served as missionary in Europe, on Friday.
Preceding the special talks each evening the School of Missions will feature 45-minute studies, beginning at 7:30. Adults will be led by Miss Lelia Higgs, Mrs. A. A. Hines and Dr. Robert Wilfong. Young people will be led by Mrs. R. H. Evans and Mrs. Robert Gilbert. The intermediates will study under Mrs. J. D. McGlohon Jr. and Mrs. J. A. Taylor, and the primary children will be taught by Mrs. Leonard Bloxam and Mrs. William Cannon.
To encourage larger attendance, Sunday night has been designated Family Night, and the family with the greatest number of representatives will be recognized. Monday and Wednesday nights will be Brotherhood nights, Tuesday and Thursday Woman's Missionary Society nights; and Friday will be Sunday School and Training Union night. Each of the organizations will promote attendance on the specific nights.
The Church School of Missions replaces the annual emphasis of Home Missions Season of Prayer, and missionary prayer lists will be distributed each evening. Friday will be observed as a day of continuous prayer from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m.

Changes In Grown-Up Shoes Shown In Kids' Footwear

The great changes which have taken place in shoes for grownups during the last few seasons are now clearly reflected in children's shoe fashions for spring.

The lighter look and feel, the more flexible soles, the softer tan-edges which have introduced a new era in shoe fashions for men and women are now just as important in shoes for tots and teen-agers.

It is going to make a child's life a happier one. The old theory was that the heavier the shoe, the longer it would last and the more economical it was. Small heed was paid to the discomforts of breaking the shoe in. And by the time that job was completed, the shoe was usually too shabby for anything but playtime wear.

Easy on the Feet

Not so any longer. In all price ranges, the new shoes for children aim for ease on the foot. Developments in soles have done much to advance trend. Soles, regardless of material, all make much of comfort and flexibility. And they're built to last just as long as the heavy clumping soles that used to be a trial to active youngsters.

The same feeling — more lightness — goes into design. Slimmer lines, more restrained treatments, delicacy of detail put children's shoes into the real high fashion bracket this season.

There is also much more variety in children's shoe patterns than we have had in the past.

There is the dress shoe, the semi-dress which will do duty for school or party wear, the casual and the real out-and-out play shoe. To say nothing of slippers, beach sandals, sneakers and other appendances to the active child's spring and summer shoe wardrobe.

Feature Colored Soles

Colors, leathers and fabrics reflect fashion trends as much in children's footwear as they do in grown-ups. Colored soles are a big feature... whether of crepe, rubber or meslite. Not only do they add to comfort but they supply a smart note of contrast which has already become a fashion in sport and casual shoes for men and women.

Printed and bright colored linings are another very appealing style not in children's shoes. In pastels or bright shades, in polka dots, stripes or tiny flower prints they're both eye-catching and practical.

Grained, textured and buffed leathers are important in shoes for slippers and oxfords. Starting with the school age in softie types of older girls and boys, this type of shoe is now being made for the small fry as well. Shoes of this description go well with spring coats or suits of tweed and flannel.

Boys' shoes ape the men's in more use of ventilated leathers and meshes, lower cut, and two-tone effects. The very popular tassel moc is giving place to simpler treatments with higher vamps in Continental style.

They Follow Dad

As in the case of the color story shows much more variety this year. In picking new shoes for spring and summer, there's lots to choose from.

Boys, even little boys, like their fathers go for black for dress wear. Then come browns and cordovan shades, plus new very light browns and beiges, often in buffed leather for casual and play wear.

Little girls have a wide choice. In addition to the basic spring colors, there is a whole range of clear bright luscious fruit and flower pastels in leathers and fabrics for wear with their prettiest summer frocks.

All the wonderful changes for the better in adult shoes are now reflected in footwear for children too, as seen in the above sturdy shoes for school and play wear. His and hers both, by Poll Parrot

Trim tailored new two strap strappers of supple leather in red or white are for school or for dress. By Lazy Bones Juniors.

Little girls now can have star mesh U wing oxfords for summer comfort just like dad's in brown or black. By Five Star.

The Kind Of Drive That Will Pay Off

The determination Rocky Mount is exhibiting to make itself a college town is the spirit which is bound to pay dividends for the city and at the same time benefit higher education in North Carolina.

Reverberations of the Presbyterian announcement that its new four-year school has hardly died away when Rocky Mount, one of the five finalists in the Presbyterian competition, announced it would investigate the possibilities of relocating Louisburg College in Rocky Mount.

While the announcement probably didn't make the people of Louisburg happy, it is indicative of the determination of Rocky Mount to add an institution of higher learning to its other assets if possible.

Should the Methodists decide to relocate their junior college now located at Louisburg, a procedure similar to that used by the Presbyterians for locating their new college probably will be used. Obviously Rocky Mount would have a head start on other communities in such competition.

In viewing the position of small denominational schools within the state, one cannot overlook the contrast in secondary action which has been taken by Goldsboro and that now being launched by Rocky Mount.

Both these cities were in competition for the Presbyterian college. Goldsboro, upon its elimination in the first round of the competition immediately set in motion a campaign to raise $1 million for Mount Olive College, a two-year Free Will Baptist College in Wayne County. Plans do not call for the college to be moved to Goldsboro, but it is obvious that the capital seat of Wayne County will benefit by the growth and enlargement of the small college within that county.

Eisenhower Statement Open To Interpretation

The President's message to Vice President Nixon to make his own decision about seeking the Republican vice presidential nomination for a second term may be interpreted two ways.

It could either be an invitation to remain as Eisenhower's running mate; or an invitation to step aside and make room for another man.

At best, the statement by the President doesn't assure Nixon that he will have the full and forthright support of President Eisenhower as he has had in the past. At worst, the statement assures the vice president that Eisenhower will not oppose his renomination.

Every amateur political observer will draw his own conclusion.

This is ours. The President's statement hurt Nixon's chances of being nominated for a second term as vice president.

There is little in recent political history to indicate it is necessary for a winning team to remain a team in order for the party to win elections. Neither does the change of the vice presidential candidate make a losing team a winning team in a subsequent election.

President Roosevelt was elected to four terms in the White House and for those four terms had three different vice presidents: J. Nance Garner, Henry A. Wallace and Harry S. Truman. The Republicans in 1945 picked Thomas E. Dewey to head the ticket with John W. Bricker as his running mate. Four years later when Dewey again received the nomination, it was California's Earl Warren who was picked for his running mate.

To go one step further, the Democrats last time named Stevenson and John Sparkman as their ticket, and although Stevenson is conceded to be the leading contender for another nomination, Sparkman has yet to be prominently mentioned for the vice-presidential nomination in '56.

If It Would Help Road Safety We'd See Them

If coonskin caps and forest green automobiles will help North Carolina's highway patrolmen apprehend more violators of highway regulations, we're all for them.

The Asheville resident who suggested the new dress for highway patrolmen obviously is burned up because some of the tactics used by the officers in catching violators. State officials in the past few years, however, have found that the war of nerves waged against traffic violators by the Highway Patrol has done about as much to encourage safer driving as the actual arrests.

Whether it be by means of hiding behind bushes in green autos, using whammies, speed traps or riding the roads, the goal of making North Carolina's highways safer has certainly justified all the means so far employed by the Highway Patrol.

Some motorists have been irritated by the tactics employed. For the most part they have been motorists caught violating the law by use of a particular method. Certainly the monthly mileage reports of individual patrolmen would not justify the Asheville writer's implication that actual patrol of the roads is being neglected in favor of other methods of apprehending violators.

If it would help the state's patrolmen in catching more traffic violators and thus reducing the state's highway accident toll, we'd go along with the coonskin cap as an official headgear of the patrolmen. We think the state's safety officials and patrolmen would also.

It will not be surprising to see Wilmington, Fayetteville and other cities which showed great interest in the four-year Presbyterian college seek by some means to acquire an institution of higher education in their own communities.

Such interest in institutions of higher education by those cities which do not have them should make the people of Greenville, Wilson and other cities which now have colleges appreciate more fully what their colleges mean to them.

A Tenseness Around Incumbent Officials

By LYNN NISBET
TENSENESS There is an atmosphere of tenseness and unease among incumbent State officials seeking re-election. That condition is not surprising in the next Friday, when Chairman Hampton Price of the State Board of Elections will officially declare the clock started for filing notice of candidacy.

After that the incumbents without opposition, or who face only token opposition in the candidacies of little known and completely hopeless aspirants, can take it easy. Those in real contests will have the elements of uncertainty removed. They will know where and against whom they must work to hold their jobs.

All the officers are putting up a good front. They do not admit the slightest doubt about their re-election. The bright smiles cannot quite hide the concern. Already there has been one filing from out of a clear blue sky that of H.D. Lambeth Jr. for Commissioner of Labor. There were several other candidates for Lieutenant Governor, but in that case no incumbent is at stake. Neither is there any reason to disturb the fore-ordained scheme of things.

Hood is well known throughout the state. He has had national recognition in banking and fraternal circles. Lambeth, a Guilford county school principal, has been known for years in the circles of the Department of Public Instruction. Commissioner Frank Crane is not worried, thinking he will be re-elected in a primary. What does worry him and all the others is that late entries may not be limited to unknown names.

Governor Luther Hodges, Attorney General William Rodman and Carroll have their fingers crossed. They are all in the three offices where the segregation question might become a flaming issue.

ISSUES — They do not want opposition of any kind, of course. They would not object to a contest in which the traditional rivalry of conservative and liberal thinking is the main issue. Certainly they do not want to do the preponderant majority of the people of North Carolina want a campaign featuring the explosive issue of social progress in November.

Long odds at this time is written are that no such situation will develop. It looks now like, as was predicted in this column months ago, that the racial segregation issue will not be vital in any statewide contest, but may figure prominently in a number of counties in the nomination of legislators and school board members. There can be no certainty that the present income tax will be approved. Hence the uneasiness and tenseness generally prevailing.

WIDE OPEN — The only statewide contest that is wide open to all comers is Lieutenant Governor. Three men have formally announced for that office: Luther Barnhardt, Alonzo Edwards and Barney Hood. Two others—Kidd Brewer and Reg Harris—have announced, but have not paid filing fee. Majority opinion among Capitol square is the real race will be waged between Barnhardt and Edwards, but there will be a dark subplot whereby else gets in the running in a big way.

The only wide-open congressional race is in the eleventh district, where Rep. Woodrow Jones and Basil Whitener slated to slug it out for the nomination. The fact that other congressional races are not wide-open does not mean they are sewed up for the incumbents. All of the congressional races are in edge as the State officers and bumper races are underway in at least three districts.

CONGRESSIONAL — Thurmond Chatham in the fifth, Carl DeLoach in the sixth and Ertel Carlyle in the seventh, accustomed to opposition, face the hardest battles of their careers.

Taking them in reverse order, Carlyle is up against Alton Lennon, who lost his seat in the U. S. Senate to Sen. Keren Scott in a close race two years ago.

Durham is challenged by Ralph Scott, State Senator and brother of U. S. Senator Kerr Scott. Chatham also has to contend with a Ralph Scott (no kin by blood or political philosophy with the Hay River Scott) who is in the 21st district comprising the counties of Caswell, Rockingham, Stokes and Surry—approximately half the congressional district which also includes Forsyth, Granville and Person.

Opinion hereabouts is that all these congressional races will be close. Until the campaign gets further along no bets are being placed. In each case the ins are favored, but no reason for complacency.

Rumors are heard of possible opposition to Herbert Bonner in the first, Charles Barden in the third, Harold Cooley in the fourth, No names, just the broad suggestion. No evidence of opposition to Lawrence Fountain in the second, Charlie DeLoach in the fifth, Hugh Alexander in the ninth or George Shuford in the twelfth. Alexander will face a real contest in November as the Republican, as will Ben Douglas in the tenth—seeking to "reclaim" that district from Raper Jonas.

Other Editors Are Saying... T. Coleman Andrews On Taxes

(The Birmingham News)

Recently the former director of the Internal Revenue Service, T. Coleman Andrews, now returned to private affairs, in a talk flatly said that present income taxes are "confiscatory." A lot of business and professional men have been saying that for some time. Andrews said that he heard a professional man saying something like that. "Of course," he said, "I'm making good money. But to tell you the truth, it takes all of it to get along."

Now such a man is living on a very comfortable standard, of course. But our society invites families, of every income level, to live better and better. Indeed, it is this ever-upward trend in material comforts which accounts for the steady expansion of our economy. The result seems to be that many put only a little, or nothing, aside. The aspiration for a handsomer material existence takes X amount of one's income—whether it be $-000 a year or $12,000, or $24,000. Taxes—the many, multiple, seen and unseen—take much of the remainder.

For a former Internal Revenue Service chief to make a statement such as Mr. Andrews' strikes us as important and worth a good deal more consideration than far has been directed toward the issue. From comment we have heard—talk from lower and middle-income earners as well as upper income individuals—there is a consistent view that taxes are definitely too high.

Yet we all know, now, that both Republican leadership and Democratic leadership which is not beckoned by political considerations have advised that taxes cannot now be lowered without risks of inflation, continuation of deficit financing and so on. And we know, too, how great are the needs and responsibilities and obligations which must be met, else see this country weakened in world influence as Reds rise, and freedom itself be threatened.

Perhaps we are a long way, yet, from tax readjustment which will let a man keep more of what he earns. How we can stop the trend toward higher taxes and work toward reduction, we do not know. But we would imagine that demand for such action will grow as time passes and that help come from all levels of income earners.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

NATURE OF EDUCATION Our generation puts an almost naive trust in education. Give every child a college education, we seem to say, and the problems of the world will be settled. This of course is not true. Education is a blessing which many other blessings are built upon. But if we educate a rascal we are only making him more of a menace. Education should improve every person who goes to school or college, but unfortunately it does not do so. It improves only those who want to be improved. Furthermore, it improves a person only if it passes on to that person the best that the race has so far discovered. Much of the difficulty with modern education is that it teaches as well-established truths many things that are still in the doubtful stage of experimentation. It almost appears as if each generation of children is used as guinea pigs to try out some new experiment which has no more than a 50-50 chance of being helpful. Francis Bacon once remarked that education is in effect an early custom. It is building into the life of childhood and youth the things that have been found profitable, morally right, intellectually defensible. And as the child is trained in the early days of custom, so will he become, in all probability, in the years of maturity. "Education... is an early custom."

How Could You Prosecute?

by Bob Hilldrup

There's A Tale Being Told

They tell this story on a Pitt County Highway Patrolman.

Seems that many years ago when this officer was a relative rookie, he was assigned to operate a checking station on a highway in order that he might examine driver's licenses, brakes, headlights and the like.

Business was slow that day and the officer had been unable to find any defects in the vehicles of the few motorists that passed. Discouraged by this situation, he nevertheless took home when a bedraggled old car driven by an equally bedraggled old man puttered to a stop.

The officer checked the driver's license and found it to be in order. Headlights too, were in prescribed condition.

"How're your brakes?" the officer asked.

"Well," said the old gentleman, "sometimes they work and sometimes they don't."

"Hmmm," thought the officer, "this bears investigating."

"You say that part of the time the brakes work and part of the time they don't?"

"That's right," the old man replied. "They work all the time when I'm driving; it's only when I'm driving that they sometimes don't hold."

The puzzled patrolman considered the situation at some length. Then an idea dawned.

"Tell you what," the officer said, "you let me get up on the hood of the car and hold on. Then you start down the road until you get up a right good speed. Next, step of the brakes and I'll be able to tell whether they take hold properly or not."

The driver did as he was told. With the patrolman astride the hood, the old car started down the road. When it had reached about 30 miles an hour, the officer signaled and the old gentleman stepped on the brakes.

The brakes not only held—they locked. Some 20 feet down the road, the patrolman picked himself up, scratched, bleeding and minus not only the elbows from his shirt sleeves but the seat of his trousers as well.

"You hurt?" the old man asked.

"No," said the officer, "but the next time a patrolman asks you about your brakes, just tell him they're all right."

Salute To The Common Bore

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Curbstone reflections of a pavement Plato: The unsung hero of civilization is not the common man but the common bore.

The common man has had so much praise in this generation that everybody wants to be one. Why? Why don't the common bore the credit he deserves?

The truth is that if the common man is the backbone of civilization, the common bore is the glue of civilization. He forces us to stick together to escape him.

I asked a famous hostess once what was the secret of a successful party.

"One secret," she replied, "is to be sure to invite at least one respectable bore."

"Why?" I inquired, surprised.

"Well," she said, "a bore fills that critical gap between the arrival of the guests and the start of the second martini taker. He may not have a single thing to say—but he always has something to say."

"No matter how strange the other guests may have felt at first, by the end of the second martini they know at least they aren't as boring as the one who has done all the talking up until then. He has knit them together—as a common annoyance always does.

"They have a fine time for the rest of the party enjoying each other, and ducking him."

While this may seem like cruelty toward the bore, the saving feature is that if he is a real, true-bore he will go home from the party more satisfied than anybody. He is flattered to have held so many ears for so long.

Naturally, there are different types of bores, and their virtues vary. Here are the two general classes.

The galloping, or strident bore. He is usually an agile, loud-mouthed spokesman for an obscure cause. "Why," he demands, "do freemen buy better Christmas toys for poor children in their own neighborhood? Why don't they ship them to the Mau Mau kiddies as a goodwill gesture?"

He not only wants your attention. He expects you to contribute funds. Very little can be said of this kind of bore. He is a public nuisance.

The sedentary, or slow-moving bore—this is merely a simple-minded fellow on a verbal rocker whose mind is in his vocal cords, and whose nature endlessly craves an audience. He is actually a bore because he knows how to know how it is with said. Enough's enough.

What is the very worst bore of all? His name is the bore who there is really very little difference between male and female bores of the common, or sedentary, or slow-moving variety. They agree that nothing is more impossible than a galloping lady bore under full head of steam and with her throttle open.

Anguish In Freight Rate Boost

By ELMER ROESSNER

Have you awakened in the middle of the night recently and heard a distant cry of anguish? It may not have been your imagination after all. It may have been the groan of some merchant or manufacturer contemplating the new increase in railroad freight rates.

The Interstate Commerce Commission had granted American railroads permission to increase rates approximately 6 per cent. Some rates will be specified for some commodities. Rates on grains and livestock and products thereof, for instance, go up only 5 per cent; rates on a few other commodities are to go up a certain number of cents per weight unit. Unspecified commodities go up 6 per cent.

That will increase railroad revenues $400,000,000 a year.

SQUEEZED BY RISING COSTS There seems little doubt that the railroads were entitled to some increase although, of course, increases on various classifications will be argued endlessly.

The railroads offered figures to show that their labor costs have risen $50,000,000 since last Labor Day. So the groan you heard might have been that of a railroad president.

The railroads made such an effective case that the I.C.C. made the increase permanent, instead of taking the usual step of giving temporary authorization until the effects were studied.

The rise will be passed along in almost every instance. That means that most things manufacturers, retailers and consumers buy will eventually cost more.

The rise won't be large, but it will be noticeable. Manufacturers and merchants will have to put their trucks on the highway.

Increased freight rates because they are as much of a cost as anything else. In fact, it would be better not to add a mark-up for freight charges just as it would be to skip a mark-up on any other outlay.

So, in the end, the rise will cost consumers more. The higher cost of $600,000,000 a year. While that is a lot of money, it is small in comparison with the gross national product of $400 billion a year and a total annual personal income rate of $340 billion.

THERE'S STILL COMPETITION Painful though the increase may be, it is justified for a good reason that railroad freight transportation is confronted with sharp competition.

Half a century ago railroads had almost monopoly on the movement of commodities. Today they are competing with trucks, planes, tankers, barges and pipelines.

Tomorrow may be competing with conveyor belts.

This competition keeps railroad rates under constant review. Freight rates are being raised labor costs, have constantly raised the rate (with government approval) on automobiles. So the railroads are in a tight spot.

They are in a tight spot. They are in a tight spot. They are in a tight spot. They are in a tight spot.

New York City once had almost all the apparel business in the nation. Freight rates rose, giving establishments in Missouri, California, Illinois and other states a fine margin—one that has helped spread the apparel industry across the continent.

In the same way, the new rates will be seadjusting if they make the price of an article too high, the buyer will have it delivered to him some other way, or he'll find a source of supply nearer home. Or the railroads will have to reduce rates.

The railroads can never charge more than it is worth to move any object. They can't charge another—and neither can truckers, air lines or pipe lines. There is no reason to force the railroads to charge more than it is worth.

THREE WEEKS EARLIER New York—which is still a dominant factor in the fashion world—will be the scene of freight rate showings of fall dresses from May 14 to 25.

Southern Lawmakers Solidly Aligned

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Southern members of Congress have finally created a determined and last-ditch organization to reinforce their states' resistance to all attempts to implement and enforce the Supreme Court's edict against school segregation. Not even in John C. Calhoun's day was there such united opposition to the Federal Judiciary, which could also be directed against the Executive Arm of the Government.

Several years ago, they showed their strength when they formed a loose group known as the Committee of 78 in the House. With Representative William M. Colmer of Mississippi as Chairman and Representative Howard W. Smith of Virginia as Floor Leader, it blocked Harry S. Truman's Civil Rights Program, especially his demand for a Fair Employment Practices Act. As now, it had the support of enough Republicans to command a majority.

With President Eisenhower's election, the Colmer-Smith group virtually disbanded, figuring that it had won its major battle. But the anti-segregation decision has led to its reactivation. Moreover, a similar organization had been formed in the Senate under the leadership of two of the South's most influential and respected figures—Senator Walter F. George of Georgia and Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia.

SOUTH'S NEW STRENGTH This Congressional reinforcement contrasts sharply with the prestige to the South's resistance movement. Whereas the fight had been conducted by State Legislatures, state judicial bodies and newspaper editors, it will now be directed and guided by some of Capitol Hill's ablest legislators.

Senator Byrd has called for "massive resistance" in his first formal utterance on the subject. Henceforth, every Thursday will be "Anti-Segregation Day" in the House, with speeches designed to depict certain elements of the opposition as possibly Communist-inspired. The House Committee on Un-American Activities is operating closely.

DIXIE BLOC'S GREATEST AD-

VANCE The selection of Senator James O. Eastland of Mississippi as Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman marks the Dixie bloc's greatest advance. Rarely has a committee change—coming at this particular moment—affected a great national issue so radically.

The late Senator Harley M. Kilgore of West Virginia, former chairman, was pro-labor, anti-monopoly, not too interested in racial problems. He was such an extreme liberal that he voted almost 100 per cent for Roosevelt-Truman legislation on social and economics matters. Eastland and Kilgore rarely agreed on any question.

The Mississippi member has derided the Supreme Court. In his new position, he can hold up all Civil Rights Bills, and give sanction to the anti-segregationists.

He may be able to block confirmation of Simon E. Sobeloff as U.S. District Judge at Richmond, Va. Solicitor General, Sobeloff had declared in favor of school segregation.

UNPRECEDENTED POWER IN

preparing for the next stage in the racial controversy. Southern legislators enjoy unprecedented power on Capitol Hill. Here are the Senate Committees which they control, and it should be noted that almost the same situation exists in the lower chamber.

Agriculture—Eliender of Louisiana; Armed Services—Russell of Georgia; Banking and Currency—Fulbright of Arkansas; Finance—Byrd of Virginia; Foreign Relations—George of Georgia; Government Operations—Eastland of Arkansas; Judiciary—Eastland; Post Office and Civil Service—Johnson of South Carolina; Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas as Majority Leader, and Senator Albert C. Gore of Tennessee will head the Lobby Inquiry.

With their new Senate-House organization, they intend to use their power on and off Capitol Hill, even if it necessitates a break with the Eisenhower Administration and the so-called "radicals" in the Democratic Party. Indeed, a third Presidential ticket is not an impossibility.

Nightclubbers Cheated By French, Says Hilde

By BERNARD GAVZER

CHICAGO (AP)—Hildegard, who casually wraps her shoulders in pink mink, observed today that night clubbers are being gypped by imported chanteuses who sing in sweatsuits and sneakers.

She took time out between shows at a Loop hotel to do a little comparing. She stacked her wardrobe, created by couturiers in the world's fashion centers against those of Paris-imported competitors who she said perform in bargain basement costumes.

She said she was referring to Edith Piaf, Lucienne Boyer, Patachou and Genevieve. These were not available for comment immediately.

"Piaf," said Hildegard, "comes here in a very black, dirty-looking old dress that looks like it cost $9.95. Boyer has a lovely gown, but only a lovely gown, which is like a uniform for her. Patachou has her blouse and skirt, and Genevieve the slacks and striped sweater."

Hildegard, who had her curves encased in a glittering gown made of 24-carat gold fabric, decided to give a reporter a better idea of what she meant about glamorous gowns.

She went into another room of her hotel suite and soon reappeared in a fish-tail dress made of pink faille with pure crystal beads on the smug-fitting bodice. The price tag she said, was $750.

Around her bare shoulders, perhaps to ward off any drafts from panting admirers, she wore a stole—a jasmine mink tinted pink. This heart-warmer, she said, cost $3,000.

Since the days she first began as an entertainer in Milwaukee some 25 years ago, she has spent at least $600,000 for her costumes, she said.

"I wish some of these French singers would spend a fraction of what I've spent and stop bamboozling the American public," she said.

Other projects include insect collections or wood and tree identification.

Anyone interested in joining a 4-H club should contact C. J. Goodman, Cecil Register, assistant Farm agent, or Miss Lois Jones, assistant Home Agent at their offices in the county agricultural building.

Some may ask, "Who has made these trips?"

A few who have enjoyed 4-H trips are Jimmy Hendrix, Phyllis Corbett and I. Jimmy went to Chicago for his gardening project, and in 1954 he attended wildlife camp. I attended the camp in 1955, and also went to Asheville for my farm-home electric project. Phyllis won a scholarship and a trip to Chicago for her Girls Record project.

Many people think that boys and girls who live in the city cannot be 4-H members, but they can. They can take wildlife, home beautification and many small projects.

Boys who have a vacant lot or a small piece of land around the house may take gardening, and girls may take homemaking.

We are always glad to have new members in 4-H work. Anyone between the ages of 10 and 21 is eligible.

Maybe I haven't mentioned your favorite hobby or past-time, so I will list some more projects that may be completed in 4-H work.

Approximately 150 men and women enjoyed the discussion.

MANITOBA, Man. (AP)—A built-in ability to take readings from the sun relative to the time of day and good memories help birds navigate, says H. Albert Hochbaum in a new book, Hochbaum works at the Delta Waterfowl Research station here. He says the widely accepted theory that birds use a sixth sense in migration is false.

Ants and bees use the same ability to read sun positions, Hochbaum says. Human beings traveling in the open also use it, but with far less skill. Scientists believe that ducks have far better distance vision than human beings. Vision, memory and sun positions are the base for bird navigation, Hochbaum says.

Case Incident Spotlights High Cost Of N. C. Campaigns And Old Problem

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The $2,500 in campaign contributions an company lawyer offered U.S. Sen. Francis Case (R-SD) and which Case turned down has turned the spotlight on a problem that is acute in North Carolina as it is in South Dakota.

Campaigns cost a lot of money and probably will cost more. The problem is: How can they be financed without the candidate having to accept contributions which place him under obligation to folks who may come to him later to ask for favors?

In North Carolina, and elsewhere, campaigns are financed by contributions from individuals, some from those who are genuinely interested in the candidate and some from those who desire the candidate's good will, at the very least.

"The system is bad," said a man who has been closely connected with several statewide primary races. "You would be doing a tremendous service if you could figure out a better way to finance campaigns."

Another veteran campaign figure was asked if he considered the present method of financing campaigns a "good system?" He answered with a question, "How else are you going to finance them?"

"If you required the candidates to finance their own campaigns, it would fix it so no one but the very rich could run for office," he added.

"It's a situation that you're up against in a democracy," he said. "It's just up to the candidate to be of such caliber and character he won't let a thing like that influence him."

There have been proposals that the government should be required to pay the necessary expenses of political candidates. This would be expensive and, in addition, there is the problem of persons who file as candidates knowing that they haven't a chance of being elected.

There are plenty of these now. How many would there be if the government was willing to pay the bill?

One of the veteran campaigners pointed out that Great Britain has a system under which the government pays the necessary expenses of campaigning. It requires each candidate to make a deposit of money to enter a race. If he gets a certain percentage of the votes he gets his money back. If he fails to get enough votes the government keeps his money. This is designed to keep out candidates who run just for the fun of it.

But, to get back to the campaign offer made to Sen. Case, would it be legal for a candidate in North Carolina to accept such an offer? The answer is yes, provided it did not come from a corporation. Under North Carolina law, campaign contributions can come from any source except from a domestic corporation or a foreign corporation doing business in the state.

But, in actual practice, is this law evaded? Frequently during campaign rumors are heard in Raleigh that this industry or that is backing a candidate—sometimes it is rumored that an industry has contributed to both candidates in a race.

Our veteran campaigner said he wouldn't know about that, but checks, that is. He added that checks of corporations, personal checks that is. He added that "whether they paid it out of their own pocket or whether they were reimbursed by the corporation, I have no way of knowing."

State law requires all candidates and all campaign committees to keep a detailed and exact amount of all contributions, including the name and address of the donors and the date the money was received. They are also required to keep a detailed account of expenditures, including the name and address of the person to whom the expenditure was made and the date it was made. They are required to make a report listing all contributions and all expenditures.

There used to be a ceiling on the amount of contributions a candidate could receive and the amount of expenditures he could make in his campaign. For a governor or U.S. Senator this ceiling was $12,000 for a primary campaign and an additional $6,000 if he had to wage a runoff campaign.

These limits were so low they were absurd, for it is generally agreed that a hotly contested statewide race for governor or U.S. Senator requires many times $12,000. The Legislature recognized this a few years ago and eliminated the ceiling. Now the law lets a candidate receive and spend as much as he likes but it requires him to report every cent he receives and every cent he spends.

Virginia Demo Vote Hangs On Attitude Of Sen. Byrd

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Most Democrats agreed today that unless U. S. Sen. Harry F. Byrd supports his party's nominee for president this year President Eisenhower probably will carry Virginia again.

Robert Whitehead, a leader of the anti-Byrd faction in the Democratic party, told this reporter that if the rival groups united behind the candidate, "we'd have a good chance of returning the state to the Democratic fold."

Otherwise, he said, "I don't see how we can win." He said Byrd's support is vital to victory.

Byrd refused to support Adlai Stevenson in 1952 because he said he considered Stevenson's views too much the same as former President Truman's on labor, civil rights and other issues. While Byrd did not publicly endorse Eisenhower, the Republican candidate carried the state with a margin of 80,360 votes.

Byrd is keeping silent so far on the newly announced candidacy of Eisenhower and that of Democrat Stevenson, who has Whitehead's open support.

Those close to Byrd say he is not too enthusiastic just now about either Eisenhower or Stevenson in view of developments on the civil rights and racial fronts. But they say he regards Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn) and New York Gov. Averell Harriman with even less favor.

Kefauver is out campaigning for the Democratic nomination. Harriman is an "inactive" candidate.

A check of leading Democrats in Virginia indicates there is little sentiment at this time for a third party.

Developments on racial integration, including platforms of the two major parties and statements of the candidates, ultimately will determine how Byrd takes his stand, his friends say.

The senator is known to have expressed disappointment over Eisenhower's role leading up to the Supreme Court decision against segregation in the public schools.

Byrd reportedly didn't like Vice President Nixon's New York speech praising the Republican stand on civil rights and desegregation.

On the other hand, he was said to have expressed some displeasure with Stevenson's speeches and statements in his campaign for the Democratic nomination. Byrd regards Stevenson as the most "moderate" of the top three party hopefuls, but is far from sure Stevenson is moderate enough either on the racial or labor issues.

Party leaders here say privately that Stevenson is the only one of the three who would have a chance of carrying Virginia.

"But," they told this reporter, "after another, 'Sen. Byrd holds the key to whether Stevenson can win.'"

Virtually every one from Gov.

Thomas B. Stanley on down said Eisenhower will be handicapped in Virginia if Nixon is his running mate again, principally because of the New York speech and its emphasis on civil rights. Many say that Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey would help Eisenhower.

Oliver W. Hill, a Negro lawyer here, and a prominent member of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, estimated the 1952 Negro vote in Virginia at somewhere around 75,000.

"We are mostly Democratic," Hill said, "because we have felt that the national Democratic party has been our friend. I hope the Democratic party takes a stand that we can support this year."

BISSETTES
 PICTURE TALK
 by Charles Bissette

Movie-making is probably one of the most fascinating hobbies anyone can take up. Once you do, you'll find yourself trying more and more frequently to match the professional effects you see at the movies. Some of them, of course, are just the result of skills that come with practice. But some of them you CAN duplicate with the right equipment:
 A wide-angle lens and a telephoto lens will add immeasurable interest to your movies. A normal picture, for instance, of a whole group of children playing; then a closer shot of two or three of them; and finally a real portrait-like close-up. It is certainly more interesting and tells a better story than a single shot. Best of all, with the proper lenses it can be shot from one spot.
 You can buy such lenses for almost any movie camera. Or at least, you can buy slip-on lens elements which do the same thing. Or, with cameras like Kodak's new Brownie Movie Camera, Turret 1-19, you get all this without the necessity for buying an extra lens. All three lenses are built right into the revolving turret. Drop in and talk with us about this feature of movie making. It's getting cheaper and easier to do all the time.

Jesus Interprets History

Pharisees demanded that Jesus tell them when the kingdom of God would come. He said: "The kingdom of God cometh not with observation; neither shall they say, Lo, here! to there! for behold, the kingdom of God is within you."

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Luke 17:20-21; 21:5-38. By Alfred J. Buescher

The disciples who were with Jesus spoke of the temple, how it was adorned with lovely stones and gifts. Jesus said, "The days will come in which there shall not be left one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down."

Jesus was asked when such destruction would occur. He said when they heard of wars, commotions, both of nature and by nation rising against nation, and "signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars and upon the earth."

Jesus said that when the fig tree burst into leaf, all knew that summer was near. So when the things He had spoken of happened, they would know that the kingdom of God was at hand.

MEMORY VERSE—Luke 21:33.

Jesus Interprets History CHRIST PROPHESES THE COURSE AND END OF AN AGE

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. IN A RECENT lesson we studied the prophetic statement about the coming of the kingdom of God in answer to the demand of the Pharisees, ending with the statement that "the kingdom of God is within you." That was a burning question of the day. When would the Messiah come, bringing with him the kingdom of God on earth? However, the Pharisees had already renounced the Messiah sent to them, and would shortly put an end to His life on earth.

MEMORY VERSE "Heaven and earth shall pass away; but My words shall not pass away."—Luke 21:33.

This would be, He replied, warning them not to allow themselves to be deceived, for many would follow Him saying they were Christ, but His disciples should not heed them. When they heard of wars and commotions, nations rising against nations, great natural upheavals such as earthquakes, famines and pestilences, also great signs from heaven, even when they were persecuted in the synagogues and cast into prison, they should "in your patience possess your souls," because "shall not a hair of your head perish?" This discourse of the Lord's on Tuesday of Holy week was the last day on which He spoke to assembled groups, except to the disciples. After all the terrors of this day of judgment, Christ foretold, "And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory."

Bethel Church Circles Meet

The circles of the Woman's Missionary Union of the Bethel Baptist Church met in the Sunday school rooms on Monday prior to a meeting in the auditorium. Approximately 100 attended the meeting. The children gave the program concerning the Week of Prayer. The organizations included were the Sunbeams, Girl's Auxiliary and Royal Ambassadors. The young people told what accomplishments had been done by the home missions and how the money is used. Mrs. T. N. Cooper is Director of Youth and dismissed the group with a prayer.

The regular monthly meeting of the Business Women's Circle met on Monday night with Mrs. W. E. Andrews. The president, Mrs. Ernest Alexander, presided. After the secretary, Mrs. Joe Davis, read the minutes the community mission reports were heard and other plans discussed. Mrs. Reba Harris read a few verses from Luke and then gave an interesting talk on "Make Me a Channel of Blessing." She spoke of the good Samaritan and the deed which he did. Mrs. Irene White sang a solo and Mrs. Andrews and Patsy Harris sang a duet. The hostess served a salad course with Coca-Cola.

Circle No. 1 of the W.S.O.S. met Monday with Mrs. Wade T. Carson and Mrs. Franz Taylor in the home of the former. Twenty members and one visitor were present. After Mrs. W. P. Thigpen, secretary, read her report, Mrs. F. L. Blount Jr. turned the meeting over to Mrs. B. L. Goodall. Her program was on "The Imitation of Christ." She brought out that whoever follows Christ shall have the light of life. "We should study to conform our life to his life," she said. Mrs. J. L. Brown read an article from "The Methodist Woman" concerning the status of women. After the benediction, pecan pie and coffee were served.

The Sarah Whitehurst Circle met in the home of Mrs. Dave Speir with Mrs. W. J. Smith and Mrs. X. E. Manning as joint hostesses. The meeting opened by the group singing "He Leadeth Me." Mrs. S. C. Whitehurst read several verses from the Bible and her topic for the devotion was "Christian Conduct." Her thoughts, taken from Bishop Sheen, told how to overcome bad habits, especially personality and moral habits. "Blessed Assurance" was sung and Mrs. Whitehurst closed with a prayer. Mrs. Speir gave the program taken from "Inspirational Classics." "The Imitation of Christ" is a timeless religious classic which has inspired and comforted all Christian creeds of all ages.

MIXED OIL, WATER CORBIN, Ky. (AP)—Drillers were searching for water on John Crawford farm when they hit oil at a depth of about 170 feet. At 200 feet, they struck gas and, like the oil, it was not enough to be valuable. Finally, at 264 feet, the drillers struck plenty of water.

Safety hints for kite flying When March winds blow, it's time for kite-flying fun. It's time to think about safety, too, because fun can sometimes be dangerous. Keep in mind these safety tips for kite-flying: • Fly kites only in open fields away from power lines. • Use only dry string—never wire, tinsel, or metallic string. • If your kite catches in a power line, don't try to pull it. Leave it there, for safety's sake. Greenville Utilities Commission "Service Is Our Most Important Product" ELECTRICITY TODAY'S BIGGEST BARGAIN

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT
At steps in the hall, Matilda hurried out, hoping to find Doc Caruthers or Jenny, who had been sitting with Meg since the stinky evening meal. It was only Michael, wearing the uniform that made him a stranger.
"Take it easy, Matilda," he patted her shoulder. "I'll stay at the hotel tonight but I'll be around to say good-by before we leave for Camp Rogers in the morning."
"Meg should have gone to the hospital!" Matilda forgot her horror of talking about birth to men. "Confound that worthless husband of hers! Michael, what's going to happen to her?"
"Nothing," Michael was too heavy. "She'll have a fine baby and be back with her hats in no time." He took a small pouch from his pocket, put it into Matilda's hands. "A few gold pieces for the new baby Matilda, I may not see Meg before I go."
"That's good of you, Michael." A door opened on the second floor. Jenny cried out. "Matilda! Come up here!"
Matilda hit the stairs at a scrambling run. She burst into Meg's room to find her gripping the bedpost.
"Have - you - sent - for - the doctor?"

Meg's face was gray. She released the post, peered up and down the room, her pace quickening.
"I hate waiting!" She bit out the words.
Michael headed for a hotel, spoke to the clerk and got a room. The clerk handed him his key. "I wonder if you found the lady who was looking for you, Mr. Dark."
"No." Wars or no wars, females got into trouble and hunted lawyers. "What was her name?"
"Inez Smith. The clerk was knowing; he gave the impression of licking his lips though his expression was properly correct. "Where did she say she'd be?"
Inez would have left a message; he knew her well enough for that. What in the devil was she doing back in Seattle? Her last letter, a couple of months old, had said her saloon was prospering.
"She didn't, Mr. Dark."
He found her at the Denny Hotel, eating a late supper with one of the wealthiest mining men in the Northwest. He waited until she had said good-by to her host and watching with admiration as Inez came toward him. She was a looker!
"Counselor!" She held out both hands. "Let's find a private corner. I've something to tell you."

BLONDIE
THE PHANTOM

When they were on the farthest right kind to tell Matilda or the kid's wife. Do it for me, will you?
Hurry toward the Cox house, he tried to think of a way Meg would take such news better from a man. He could have done it better than Jason—than Nathan, or Tim. But war waited neither for death nor childbirth. He tried to make a choice. Tim? No. His own grief for Kemp would make him doubly futile. Jason? No. Jason was no actor. He could not help showing Meg that he regarded a barrier happily out of the way. Nathan? He would have to do.
He found Nathan on the docks and told his story baldly. Perhaps this was the right choice after all. There was strength in Nathan, strength that Meg could draw on. A man walked past them, turned. "Hey, Dark, Colonel Wholley's looking for you. He wants you on the double!"
Michael was kept busy until the Volunteers pulled out the next day. Tim was in the crowd that saw them off.
"Meg had her baby yet?"
"Not yet."
He said nothing about Kemp, and Michael knew that Nathan had not given out the news. The train was ready. Michael jumped aboard, glanced back at Seattle. He wondered how long it would be before he saw his town again.
It was hard for Jenny to remember how much Meg had changed in the two months since her baby, Honora Jane, had been born.
Meg had borne her small daughter after long hours of labor, had hemorrhaged and almost died later. She had not been told for two weeks that she was a widow Matilda, Gretchen and Jenny had been worried enough that day, but not one of them had dreamed that Meg would pull herself together. Well, she hadn't. Every time Jenny saw Meg, she felt as if she looked at a stranger.
"Nathan," Jenny said timidly to Matilda one evening. "Nathan says Meg ought to be shaken up. He says if she once got mad she'd pick up in a hurry."
Jenny sighed. "I brought a hat home, I—well, I made it just the way to make Meg have a fit. That is, she would have had a fit two months ago. Nobody—" Jenny eyed the bag with the hat—"nobody could possibly approve of that hat."
"I guess it wouldn't hurt to try."
Jenny slipped into Meg's room, trying vainly to put firmness and cheer into her voice. "It's a wonderful day, Meg."

Meg looked at her. Her eyes were dull, opaque. It was hard to remember how their clear blue had changed shades when she was moved to happiness or anger. A vagrant breeze stirred the starched curtains and briefly shadowed Meg's face. Jenny shivered. For a moment she had seen in Meg's expression something akin to the bleak dourness of Anna Lurkins and it frightened her.
Jenny sat down, clutching the paper bag. Now that the moment was at hand, she lacked the courage to display the hat on which she had labored with such pains. It was no good! Nothing was any good. If Meg had any kin of her own, perhaps they could think of something to jar her from her apathy.
Suppose, Jenny thought, I write to her father? From all accounts, he was a determined and stubborn man. Something had to be done! No matter what Nathan said about Meg's having to solve her own problems, Jenny made up her mind to write to Meg's father this very night. Perhaps only a Stratton could strike the right spark with another Stratton.

Haste Leads To Prison Sentence
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — An impatient hitchhiker who didn't have time for a coffee break was sentenced to 30 months in federal prison for stealing the car of a motorist who gave him a ride.
Court officials said he related that the motorist who picked him up stopped soon afterward at Franklin, Ohio, for coffee.
"I just couldn't wait for him," the culprit explained, so he drove the car to Clinton, Tenn. where he was arrested.

Glass Standard Posed To Class
CHESTERTOWN, Md. (AP) — One question on an economics midterm examination at Washington College here was:
"What would happen if the gold backing of our money supply were abandoned and replaced with a backing of used, empty Coke bottles?"
The Economics Department declined to comment on the answers submitted.

Harry Ignored By Virginia Birds
RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Harry Truman, when he was President, once made a remark that there were "too many Byrds in the Senate."
He ought to see the Virginia state Senate. It has D. Woodrow Bird, Lloyd C. Bird and Harry F. Byrd Jr., the latter the son of U.S. Sen. Harry F. Byrd, the economy advocate of whom the former President was thinking.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK—A strong and active stock market today continued its push into record high ground.

Prices in the early afternoon were neither frequent nor large. Trading was at a fast pace and hit a rate around 3,000,000 shares for the day. That compared with 2,500,000 shares traded yesterday when the market hit a new high.

Most main divisions of the list were up decisively—steels, motors, farm implements, aircrafts, radio-televisions, nonferrous metals, chemicals, airlines, oils, and railroads. There wasn't a seriously backward division in the market. Higher were L. S. Starrett, Du Pont, Yale & Towne, and National Distillers.

Westinghouse Electric still crippled by its strike after quick settlement hopes were dashed, lost 7/8 at 61 1/2 at the start on 2,500 shares, and buyers neglected it thereafter.

At noon the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 90 cents at $184.30. At the close yesterday the average was up 70 cents on the full day at $183.40, the latest in a series of record high marks established this week.

RALEIGH—(NCDA)—Hog prices steady. Tops of 12.00 to 12.75 at Rocky Mount; 12.00 to 12.50 at Kinston, Tarboro, Enfield, and Bethel; 11.75 to 12.25 at New Bern.

Studies of Greenland indicated that the island may be divided into at least three parts by canyons scraped out below sea level by glaciers.

Fuoridation Backed By Medical-Dental Society

Pitt County Medical and Dental Society unanimously re-endorsed fluoridation of water supplies in the county at its meeting Thursday night.

The society previously endorsed the program in 1952. The resolution calls for fluoridation of water supplies in each Pitt County municipality where the supply is deficient in fluorides, and "where such a process could be practically applied."

It was pointed out that Dr. William DeMerritt of the University of North Carolina Dental School, speaking at the January meeting of the society, declared that "40 per cent of all dental problems in adults are directly caused by childhood dental defects."

Dr. DeMerritt further stated that one of every two American children at the age of two can be shown to have a dental defect, and one of every two by the age of 12 has lost a permanent tooth.

He suggested two important steps in the reduction of tooth decay: fluoridation of city water supplies, which he said will reduce cavities by 60 percent; and moderation in the sugar intake by children.

Last night's guest speaker was Dr. John Sessions from Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill who discussed "Liver Disease."

The society voted to recommend to the county commissioners that Pitt County be included in a new coroner's system which has been proposed by the N.C. State Medical Society. The new system would mean more thorough medico-legal examinations in cases where foul play is suspected.

The society also voted to continue its support of the first aid and emergency treatment drills being conducted by the Fire Department, and to try to have a physician constantly available in connection with the operation of the rescue truck.

Plans were made to obtain an extension course in medical education from the University of North Carolina for Pitt County in the spring.

Mrs. Phillips was a member of St. Delight Baptist Church.

Surviving Mrs. Phillips are her husband, Mr. Edd Phillips, and a stepmother, Mrs. Sallie Graham of Route 1, Farmville.

The body will be taken home Saturday afternoon.

Boating Club Organizes At Meet; 35 Members

A boating club was organized in Greenville last night with 35 charter members attending the session in the courtroom at City Hall.

Named the Tau Boating Club—Tau is the Indian name for Tar—the organization will be led by Commodore John Hassell, First Mate Jack Forbes, Second Mate Jack Wallace, and Purser T. J. Morris.

W. A. Forbes, R. E. Rogers and Al Tavasso were appointed as a committee to select a site for construction of a private boat landing for small craft on the Tar River near Greenville. Members hope to have the landing in operation within the next 60 days.

J. B. Smith, Elliot Johnson and Miles Stafford were named to the by-laws and incorporation committee.

Following last night's business session, a technicolor boating film was shown.

A native of Pitt County, he was the son of Mrs. Henrietta Hodges Scott and the late Charles Scott.

Survivors include his widow, the former Irene Jones; his mother; two daughters, Mrs. Arthur Briley of Bethel and Janice Scott of the home; four sons, Roy Jr., Robert, Horace and Jimmy, all of the home; three brothers, Robert of New York City, C. W. of Humarock, Mass., and William of Albany, O.; three sisters, Mrs. Johnny Godley of Greenville, Mrs. Herbert Tugwell of Newport News and Mrs. Annie Meye of Portsmouth, and two grandchildren.

Evangelical Services Planned

AYDEN—Evangelical services will be conducted at the Ayden Methodist Church March 11-16 by the Rev. D. J. Reid of Elizabeth City.

The Rev. Mr. Reid will speak at the 11 a.m. service Sunday at 7:30 each evening through Friday night.

The guest minister is a native of Burlington and received his A.B. degree from Elon College and his B.D. degree from Duke University. He is presently serving as pastor of City Road Methodist Church in Elizabeth City. He is also conference secretary of evangelism of the N.C. Methodist Conference.

The Rev. C. M. Fogleman Jr., Ayden Methodist minister, has extended an invitation to the public to attend the services.

Special music and congregational singing will be featured at each service, he said.

Third Street PTA Elects New Officers

Mrs. David W. Mosler was elected president of the Third Street School Parent-Teachers Association at a meeting yesterday afternoon in the school auditorium.

Other new officers are Mrs. Kenneth Brown, vice president; Mrs. P. W. Harris, secretary; and Mrs. P. O. Allen, treasurer.

The program featured a panel discussion by City Recreation Director Warren Carroll and two of his supervisors, Mrs. Sam White II and W. C. James. They discussed "Recreation Facilities Available to the Public."

Carroll stated there are 37 year-round major activities sponsored by the recreation department. In addition the department assists with the annual Newcomers Party, the Christmas Parade, operation of the Kiwanis Club train at Elm Street park and the planning of school parties. He said the department has placed basketball goals in all sections of the city for public use.

White outlined the activities under her jurisdiction. They include meetings of pre-school age groups on Tuesday and Friday, sewing clubs on Thursday, teen-age groups on Friday, Happy Home-

Funeral On Saturday For Chesley Guss

Mr. Chesley Allen (Charles) Guss, 58, died in Veterans Hospital in Durham at 7:10 o'clock Thursday morning. He had been ill for several years.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel at 11 o'clock Saturday morning by the Rev. W. M. Howard Jr., pastor of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, assisted by the Rev. R. W. Bradshaw of Wilson, a former pastor. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Guss was a native of Fort Meade, Florida, and came to Greenville for a flour company in this area until falling health caused him to retire about three years ago. He was a member of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, a Veteran of World War I and World War II, and a member of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion.

Surviving are his wife, the former Willard Whichard of Greenville to whom he was married in 1943; five sisters: Mrs. Carrie Bowers of St. Petersburg, Florida, Mrs. Rosalie Williams of Lake Placid, Florida, Mrs. O. A. Jones of Deerfield, Florida, Mrs. C. C. Childers of Miami, Florida, and Mrs. Dwight Parker of New York, N. Y.; and three brothers: C. W. Guss of Lake Wales, Florida, H. G. Guss of Pensacola, Florida, and Freeman Guss of Bartow, Florida.

Last Rites For Roy Scott On Saturday

Funeral services for Roy Scott, 49, of near Bethel, will be conducted from the home Saturday at 3:30 p.m. with the Rev. C. F. Womack officiating. Burial will be in Bethel cemetery.

Scott died yesterday at Pitt Memorial Hospital from a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

A native of Pitt County, he was the son of Mrs. Henrietta Hodges Scott and the late Charles Scott.

Survivors include his widow, the former Irene Jones; his mother; two daughters, Mrs. Arthur Briley of Bethel and Janice Scott of the home; four sons, Roy Jr., Robert, Horace and Jimmy, all of the home; three brothers, Robert of New York City, C. W. of Humarock, Mass., and William of Albany, O.; three sisters, Mrs. Johnny Godley of Greenville, Mrs. Herbert Tugwell of Newport News and Mrs. Annie Meye of Portsmouth, and two grandchildren.

Navy Reservists Leave Tomorrow

Fourteen members of the Greenville naval reserve unit will leave tomorrow for the Marine Air Corps Air Station, Miami, where they will participate in group training duty.

Members of the local unit will return to Greenville Sunday.
