U.S. Offers Open Area To Test Arms Check Proposal

LONDON (AP)—Seeking to replace years of talk about disarmament with concrete action, the United States wants 40,000 to 60,000 square miles of Russian and American territory opened to international arms inspection teams.

The U. S. proposal for a preliminary test of disarmament controls was made last night at a meeting of the five-power U. N. subcommittee on disarmament.

The U. S. proposal was a new one between the two top military powers. It is aimed at paving the way to a comprehensive program of controlled arms reduction. Britain and France earlier this week submitted an arms control plan linked to a general disarmament pact.

Subcommittee delegates referred the American plan to their governments. It may not be taken up again here for a week.

The U. S. proposal came a few hours before officials here and in Washington disclosed that the Soviet Union has launched a new series of nuclear tests. There were no details as to what type tests were carried out, but presumably they were held in Siberia.

Information presumably was obtained through checks of radioactive material in the atmosphere. Western observatories in northern Japan recorded increased radioactivity in rain and snow which fell this week.

Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, said in Washington the Russians had exploded a nuclear device "within the past few days."

He said it was the fifth Soviet weapons test announced by the United States in the past eight months.

Soviet demands for an immediate ban on nuclear weapons have long been a stumbling block in East-West disarmament negotiations.

The U. S. plan for testing disarmament controls was presented by Harold Stassen, special assistant on disarmament to President Eisenhower, to the subcommittee.

It calls for the United States and the Soviet Union each to open up 20,000 to 30,000 square miles of their territory to inspection teams representing the five U. N. powers, Canada, Russia and the United States.

The inspection teams would carry out various forms of ground and aerial photography, make tests of port control and then report back to the subcommittee with their findings.

Stassen suggested the demonstration areas should include non-secret military installations, facilities and units; at least one port; an airfield; and a railroad terminal.

Russia's subcommittee representative, Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, had no immediate comment on the U. S. proposal. Britain, France and Canada were reported to have expressed agreement in informal talks outside the subcommittee sessions.

Stassen also proposed an exchange of technical missions by the five countries to study disarmament control and inspection methods.

J. S. Asks For Tag Hammaraskjold To Middle East Job

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The United States is asking the U. N. Security Council to assign Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold to a peace mission aimed at keeping Israel and her Arab neighbors from each others' throats.

U. S. Chief Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. put in a resolution last night calling on Hammarskjold to find out whether Israel and the Arabs are complying with both sides and secure adoption of measures to reduce tensions along the Holy Land armistice lines.

The resolution specifically proposed:

1. A general pullback of forces from the frontiers.
2. Full freedom of movement for U. N. observers in border areas.
3. Local arrangements between Israeli and Arab commanders to prevent incidents and detect armistice violations.

Hammarskjold was asked to report back to the council within a month after adoption of the resolution.

Lodge entered the resolution only a day after he had called for the Middle East to be taken out of the Israeli-Arab crisis. The council is expected to meet early next week.

The New York Times in a dispatch from London said Britain has completed a plan for "effective" military action within 24 hours should an Arab-Israeli war break out. The object of the plan would be to keep the conflict from spreading throughout the Middle East.

The Times said Britain reportedly would use her army, navy and air forces now concentrated on Cyprus and elsewhere in the Eastern Mediterranean area.

The British would act under the three-power declaration of 1950 pledging the United States, Britain and France to maintain Israel's existing frontiers and try to prevent the outbreak of war in the Middle East.

The U. S. resolution to the council—reportedly backed by Britain and France—also asks Hammarskjold to find out whether Israel and the Arabs are complying with Israel's four 1949 armistice agreements with Egypt, Syria, Jordan and Lebanon.

On a Middle East visit last winter, Hammarskjold got Egyptian-Israeli agreement to his proposals for pacifying the El Auga demilitarized strip. He later said all concerned in the area had promised to settle conflicts peacefully.

He said the Middle East, meanwhile, Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett renewed Israel's plea to buy arms from the West. He declared that Premier Golda Meir and Nasser would not be impressed by warnings of U. N. action.

Stevenson Forces Regroup For All-Or-Nothing Effort

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Supporters of Adlai Stevenson, rebounding from the initial shock of his surprise loss to Sen. Estes Kefauver in the Minnesota presidential primary, regrouped today for an all-or-nothing drive to regain lost ground.

Admitting he was no longer a "front runner," Stevenson said last night in Chicago he has no intention of withdrawing from the presidential race and will "go to the Democratic convention seeking the nomination."

But he disavowed any interest in the vice presidency—an idea bandied by Kefauver backers in the flush of their lopsided Minnesota victory.

"I am now prepared to work harder than ever... and ask my kind friends everywhere to redouble their efforts too," Stevenson said at a news conference.

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.), holder of 36 of 30 Minnesota delegate votes at the Democratic August convention, reiterated at Great Falls, Mont., his belief that the primary outcome represented a revolt against the administration's farm program.

The Tennessee senator, moving on to San Francisco today, said he would discuss there the possibility of his entering the Indiana presidential primary, whose filing deadline is a week away.

Stevenson won only the 5th Congressional District (Minneapolis) and, with 60 remote precincts still missing, was ahead of Kefauver, 30,859 to 29,889, in the 8th Duluth range county. This put Stevenson into an 870-vote lead there.

If his lead holds, he would claim four delegates all told.

The Duluth News-Tribune said the missing precincts were mostly in the St. Louis area, which voted preponderantly for Stevenson, and that it did not expect the few missing ballots to affect the end result.

Stephen A. Mitchell, a leader of the "rebound" forces, said the Minnesota outcome should "wake up" Stevenson supporters who had thought the Democratic presidential campaign was "in the bag" for him.

Mr. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said in Washington that Stevenson himself as well as his supporters are "unwavering." The high point of the Minnesota voting was a Democratic turnout, "that swamped the Eisenhower-Kefauver totals" on the Republican side.

With 3,640 of 3,888 precincts reported, the Democrats had rolled up 419,016, 238,009 of them for Kefauver. The Republicans had 189,621, of which President Eisenhower held 182,482. Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) had the 3,139 balance.

Humphrey and Gov. Orville Freeman, leaders of Minnesota's Democratic-Farmer-Labor Party, which had endorsed Stevenson, both called Kefauver's victory a "stunning repudiation" of the Republican administration.

From New York, two leaders in the Gov. Averell Harriman camp said they were adopting a policy of "wait and see" in the primary wake. The governor himself said the Kefauver triumph would not affect his status as a self-designated "not active" aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Michael H. Prendergrast, New York Democratic state chairman, and Carmine DeSapio were understood to be privately taking heart over the upset with the view that the Stevenson loss would enhance Harriman's chances. The two previously were said to look for a Kefauver-Stevenson deadlock that could smooth the path of Harriman.

On the Republican side, secretary of Commerce Weeks said in St. Louis that the Minnesota primary result was "repudiation of the radical leadership of Sen. Humphrey." That more Democratic voters turned out he attributed to the fact that Republicans had no contest in Minnesota.

"A tough fight always gets out more votes," Weeks said.

Protest Erupts Over Visit Of Russian Security Boss

LONDON (AP)—Ivan A. Serov, the Soviet police chief flew into London today to double check security plans for the Khrushchev-Bulgarian visit.

A howl of protest in the British press and elsewhere preceded the arrival of the hard-eyed successor to the executed Lavrenty P. Beria.

Serov showed up in a Soviet jet airplane and was not seen to be not been disclosed to the West.

The British press has dubbed Serov "Ivan the Terrible." He has been pictured as responsible for mass murders and deportations throughout Eastern Europe in World War II.

"Serov the Thug is here today," blazoned the Conservative Daily Mail.

The Liberal Manchester Guardian termed the tight-lipped policeman, "the odious Gen. Ivan Serov," and the Daily Sketch called him "the most sinister man in Russia."

The Foreign Office announced Serov and a party of his top lieutenants will fly to the United States to guard Prime Minister Bulganin and party chief Nikita Khrushchev during their 10-day visit beginning April 18.

The choice was made by the Soviet government who were no doubt aware of the kind of reaction which might be expected to this selection, a Foreign Office spokesman told newsmen a few minutes after Serov's plane landed.

The current visit of former Premier Georgi Malenkov and the coming state tour by Bulganin and Khrushchev aroused only mild opposition here compared with the trip by Serov.

Serov guarded Bulganin and Khrushchev during their tour of India and Burma.

Russian Ambassador Jakob Malik and Cmdr. Leonard Burt, head of Scotland Yard's special branch, escorted him to the airport to receive Serov.

Serov flew here from Moscow in a gleaming silver white civilian version of a Russian jet, a four-jet warplane, the TU104.

Little is known of the plane's performance in the West. The current edition of "Jane's All The World's Aircraft" says it is capable of carrying an atom bomb from Moscow to London at speeds in excess of 500 miles an hour.

The sleek plane, with distinctive sweptback wings, flew slowly over London airport before turning to land, taking less than 100 yards to pull up.

As Serov clambered down from the plane he turned and pointed proudly to the red hammer and sickle painted on the fuselage.

Later, while he chatted with the reception committee he frequently turned to point at the aircraft and make signs with his hands as if describing its performance.

Officials said the plane flew from Moscow to London in about four hours including a stop in Berlin.

Serov plans to remain five days in Britain checking routes and places to be visited by Khrushchev and Bulganin.

He is said to be concerned about emigre groups in Britain, including the Russian émigré of East European refugees. Many are victims of his own deportations.

The Daily Mail devoted the whole of its front page editorial to the man they called "The Russian Jackal."

Let No Contract On School Work

No contracts were awarded by the Pitt County Board of Education yesterday for construction of gymnasium and additional classrooms at Bethel and Grimesland Negro schools, as low bids exceeded by $100,000 the $200,000 previously estimated cost of the projects.

The board opened and tabulated bids, then instructed architect James W. Griffith Jr. to check with the architect to determine what adjustments "can be made without materially reducing the quality of work."

Superintendent D. H. Conley said a conference will probably be held by the board next week "to see if the bids can be brought within the money available."

Total low bid for the projects, which include construction of gymnasium and four additional classrooms at Bethel Union School, and a gymnasium and 12 more classrooms at Grimesland Training School, was figured at $229,550.

Low bidder for the general contract on the total construction was W. G. Dunn of Greenville with $282,000.

However, in bidding on each part of the construction separately, P. S. West was low for the Bethel classrooms with $30,900, and East Carolina Construction Co. was low for the Grimesland classrooms with $169,300.

Thompson Electric Co. submitted the low combination bid of $11,882. C. E. Williams Plumbing Co. was low with $12,500; and Henry Baker of Wilson bid $34,000 for the heating and air conditioning.

A number of alternates were offered for each project.

Moderate View

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles today gave Democratic and Republican congressional leaders a "moderately optimistic" report on his just-completed tour of the Far East.

President Eisenhower set in as Dulles made his report to 22 leaders of Congress at the White House.

"Our Marco Polo secretary made some jaunt," said Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.) in reference to Dulles' 19-day journey to 10 Asian nations.

The keynote sounded by several Congress members after today's session was that Dulles had painted a temperate optimistic picture of conditions in the Middle East and Far East.

Sen. Bridges (R-NH), chairman of the GOP Policy Committee in the Senate, said Dulles' report "was on the moderately optimistic side."

Bridges said the report "pointed up some of the serious aspects" of the situation, but that the emphasis was on "the improvement" Dulles regards as having come about.

To Get Farm Bill After Easter Rest

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Cooley (D-NC) said today a compromise farm bill may be ready for final action shortly after Congress returns from its Easter recess April 8.

Cooley, as chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, will head House conferees who will meet with representatives of the Senate in an effort to compromise a farm bill that would be a compromise of the two different farm bills.

"We're not going to stall," Cooley told newsmen. "I'm going to try to get the conferees to work over the recess. We're going to try our best to compromise our differences with the senate and get out a good bill."

In a broad hint that he might veto a measure which resembled that passed Monday night by the Senate, President Eisenhower said his news conference yesterday it is unworkable and not a good bill.

He voiced hope that the Senate House conferees "may write a good bill, and one which can really be helpful to the farmer."

Conferees are not free to start from scratch. Their assignment is to recommend compromises or the scrapping of provisions which are in disagreement between the two branches.

The administration opposes the only two major provisions of the bill.

The Senate bill contains authority for the administration's sell-back program designed to take surplus production of crops now in surplus but the Senate added features of its own. Other provisions include a measure to give a similar boost in dairy price supports, and rice, surplus set-asides and two-price support programs for other proposals the administration opposed.

On a related issue, the House voted 215-195 yesterday to reject the recommendation of a committee and approved a Senate bill calling for a two-year, 180-million-dollar school milk program.

Brewer's Name On Some Ballots

RALEIGH (AP)—Secretary Raymond Maxwell of the State Board of Elections conferred today with A. G. W. B. Rodman on what to do about Kidd Brewer.

Brewer announced yesterday his withdrawal as a candidate for lieutenant governor. He said his doctor had advised it.

The withdrawal presents a problem to Maxwell because Brewer asked that his name not be placed on the ballot for the May 26 Democratic primary.

Maxwell reported that he could not take Brewer's name off the ballot. Some 1,300,000 of about two million ballots already have been printed, and Maxwell was advised that if Brewer's name appeared on some of the ballots it must appear on all of them.

But, what to do about the votes Brewer will receive? With four candidates in the field even a small number could decide whether one received a majority or not.

Maxwell stressed he was giving a "horseback" opinion, said he thought they would have to be counted.

"I don't see how you are going to avoid counting the votes," he said. "I would certainly think you would have to count them in figuring out a majority."

Club Bans Lawyer Who Defended Alleged Reds

WARRENTON, N.C. (AP)—The Warrenton Lions Club has banned from its ranks the attorney who defended accused communists in a congressional hearing in Charlotte last week.

The ousting of James D. Gilliland was announced last night by Lion President J. Ed Rooker Jr.

In a brief statement following a special meeting of the organization's 12-man board of directors, Rooker said Gilliland was unanimously banned from the organization "solely in the local club."

Rooker said Gilliland was unconstitutionally bounced from the organization "solely in the local club."

On Monday night the Warren County commissioners demanded Gilliland's resignation as solicitor of the Recorder's Court, but he refused.

To resign, he said, "would admit that my actions have been wrong. I don't feel that they have been."

Gilliland, who was secretary of the Lions Club for many years until this year, is also under fire from the local American Legion post, where he is commander.

He also drew the displeasure of the chairman of the House Un-American Activities subcommittee which conducted the Communist hearing in Charlotte.

Rep. Francis Walter (D-Pa) on Tuesday lauded the action of the county commissioner's in seeking Gilliland's removal.

The commissioners had stated they had no criticism of the way in which Gilliland performed his duties. They said they recognized the right of every person to be defended by counsel and the right of free speech.

They said, however, they were of the opinion that his participation in the congressional hearing in Charlotte was inconsistent with his position as prosecuting attorney of this county and was detrimental to his successful discharge of the duties of this office.

See Close Voting On Election Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators on both sides predicted today a close vote on the proposed amendment to the method of electing presidents and vice presidents. They agreed the outcome now is in doubt.

They spoke as the Senate moved into a third day of debate on a proposed constitutional amendment to provide for splitting a state's electoral votes among the candidates. Each state vote as a unit. The test is not due before next Tuesday.

Sen. Mundt (R-S.D.), one of the authors of the proposed amendment, said it was "touch and go" whether the necessary two-thirds majority of those present would be obtained in the Senate.

He told newsmen, however, that in addition to the 54 senators listed as sponsors of the measure, other five or six have said they intend to vote for it. Sixty-four favorable votes would be required if all senators voted.

The proposal would give each state a choice between two methods of casting its electoral votes for president and vice president.

Sees Accord On School Problem

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges said today there seems to be "general agreement" among legislators with whom he has conferred in recent days on the course the state should take in the school segregation issue.

Hodges told his news conference "one of two more" groups of legislators will meet with him at the Executive Mansion between now and the end of next week. For several days groups of legislators and members of the state's Advisory Committee on Education.

The governor said the advisory committee hopes to make a report on its recommendations sometime between April 1 and April 10.

In reply to a question, he said he had not encountered any particular resistance to the holding of a special session of the General Assembly to deal with the segregation issue.

The committee has not disclosed what it is considering, but Hodges has said a plan similar to that in Virginia is under study. That would provide for tuition grants or transfers to students objecting to attending integrated schools.

Hodges said he has no opinion as yet as to when the special session will be held. "There are many angles" to be studied, he commented. He has stated a special session likely will be called sometime during the summer.

Azalea Festival Motorcade Will Be Here Friday

An Azalea Festival Motorcade from Wilmington will arrive in Greenville tomorrow morning at 11:30.

Representatives of the coastal North Carolina city will describe details of the annual festival when the motorcade stops at the Municipal Parking lot across from City Hall.

The mayor of Wilmington will present azalea plants to Greenville's mayor as a part of the ceremony.

A bevy of beauty queens and representatives of the city will ride in the 16 decorated cars making up the motorcade.

Following the 30 minute ceremony Greenville's mayor will move on to Washington, N. C.

Note Progress

Pitt County's Grand Jury, which last month attacked "filthy" conditions in the court house, reported today that this week's inspection revealed "considerable progress toward improving court house condition."

The jury, which extended its appreciation to Judge Malcolm M. Paul, currently presiding at Superior Court, Solicitor Robert D. Rouse Jr. and others, reported that 27 bills of indictment were examined. Twenty-three were returned as true bills, three as not being true bills and one was continued until the next term of court.

One Union Local Staying 'Out' At Westinghouse

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A 6,500-member union local has refused to return to work at the Westinghouse Electric Corp. plant in nearby Sharon, bringing from the company a charge the local was violating a pact that ended the 156-day nationwide strike against Westinghouse.

Local 617 of the AFL-CIO International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) voted last night not to return to work pending a discussion of the status of nine Sharon employees suspended by the company for alleged picket line violence.

The local's action was taken after the company announced it planned to call some 4,500 members back to the Sharon transfer plant today.

Most of the 44,000 IUE members were returning to work gradually in 29 other plants under terms of the five-year contract agreed to Monday night.

Oscars Won By Borgnine, Magnani For Top Acting

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Marty," the movie originally made as a tax loss to offset big losses of two Burt Lancaster Westerns, emerged today as the Oscar-winning picture.

It also won the top male acting Academy Award last night for Ernest Borgnine, an actor who only earned $2,500 in his previous career. He is worth at least $150,000 a picture with Oscar behind him.

Anita Magnani, the fiery Italian neorealist, won the top female acting Oscar for her performance in "The Rose Tattoo."

Roused from sleep to be given the news, she shouted: "It's great! I feel just as if I'd hit the Colosseum—it's all an earthquake inside!"

The supporting actor award went to Jack Lemmon for the comic Esp. Fugler of "Mister Roberts." Jo Van Fleet, the madam mother of James Dean in "East of Eden," was named the best supporting actress.

Besides earning best picture and best actor awards, "Marty" also won an Oscar for the best screen play for playwright Paddy Chayefsky. He wrote the tender story of a lonely butcher first as a television play.

Delbert Mann, who directed "Marty" on TV and then for his movie debut won the best direction award.

"Marty" was produced by the team of Harold Hecht and screen star Burt Lancaster.

Lancaster gave much of the credit for "Marty's" success to newspaper advertising. He told a reporter that the film had a $340,000 to make but that half a million dollars was spent on an advertising campaign, much of it in newspapers seen by Academy voters.

Hollywood thought the two partners were slightly daft when they announced last year that they intended to make a movie about a lonely butcher and a wallflower schoolteacher with no big star names in the cast.

At the time Lancaster said, "We're making it because it's something we want to make."

He added that even if the picture didn't earn a cent it would be profitable as a tax loss against big grosses of "Yankee Doodle" and "Apache," putting the producers in a lower tax bracket.

But "Marty" turned out to be a sleeper that won the Cannes Film Festival and New York Film Critics awards before getting last night's Oscar.

As for financial returns on the expected tax loss, Lancaster disclosed:

"So far the picture has grossed two million dollars and hasn't been put in general release yet."

A happy Borgnine said after receiving his Oscar:

"I feel wonderful, naturally, but I hadn't let my hopes get too high. I figured I didn't start out with anything in this town, so if I lost I still was way ahead of the game."

Four members of Borgnine's family watched the ceremonies on television at New Haven, Conn., and let out a wild cheer when his victory was announced.

"We are just very proud and happy for Ernie," his sister, Mrs. Eugene Velardi, told a reporter.

Others present were actor's father, who works in a New Haven factory; his aunt Louise Borgnine, and Mrs. Velardi's husband.

Borgnine's mother died in 1947. His maternal grandfather was Count Paolo Boselli, longtime financial adviser to King Emanuel of Italy.

"Love" is a Many-Splendored Thing was named the best song of the year.

The star-studded ceremony at Hollywood's Pantages Theatre were brilliantly emceed by comedian Jerry Lewis. Two stars—Maurice Chevalier and Grace Kelly—stole some of the spotlight from the winners.

The straw-hatted, 68-year-old Frenchman proved he still has plenty of charm. It was Miss Kelly's last Hollywood appearance before she leaves for Monaco and marriage to Prince Rainier III.

The program was nationally televised. There were frequent shifts to the NBC Century Theater in New York where some winners received their Oscars.

Actress Claudette Colbert said it was an "Oscar winner for 'It Happened One Night'" and director Joseph L. Mankiewicz presided over the ceremony.

Some disappointment was voiced by stars because no special award was given the late James Dean. An Academy official said it was decided to let Dean's performance stand on its merit with the other nominees for top acting.

Credit Women's Club Observes 7th Anniversary

Greenville Credit Women's Breakfast Club celebrated its seventh birthday last night at a dinner meeting at the Rensselaer Hotel with guests.

Highlight of the evening was an address by John T. Marston Jr., executive vice president of State Bank & Trust Co., who spoke on "A Banker's Responsibility to the Community."

Mrs. Frances Cassick, corresponding secretary, explained the purpose and organization of breakfast clubs, and Mrs. Earline Coghill, educational chairman, gave the history of the local club.

Johnsen Welcomes Group
President Henrietta Johnsen extended the welcome to which club sponsor Dan Saied responded. Mrs. Johnsen also introduced all members and guests including Willard T. Kyzer, manager of the Chamber of Commerce; Howard L. Hodges Jr., president of the Merchants Association; Miss Tillie Wells, Miss Pearl Bullock and Miss Alice Savage from the Rocky Mount Credit Women's Breakfast Club.

Local club sponsors who were present included Lee Folger, W. G. Scott, Robert Greene and Saied. Unable to attend was John T. Barnhill.

In his address Marston told the group that "Money is the life blood of the economic life of individuals and business. The independent banking system of this country provides a simple and convenient method for keeping money flowing. It is up to the individual bankers of this and any other community to see that nothing happens to cause this system to break down.

"Banks have only two products to sell—security and service. It is their duty to provide reasonable credit to the community as well as safeguard the deposits of the community."

He also stressed the importance of small business in the community and in conclusion stated, "We bankers realize our responsibility to the community and we intend to fulfill this responsibility." Marston was introduced by Miss Elizabeth Deed, second vice president of the club.

Purpose of Club
Mrs. Cassick explained the Credit Women's Breakfast Clubs of North America are a division of the National Retail Credit Association and eligibility of members is limited to women actively engaged in credit work.

"Purpose of the club is educational," she said, "and membership of the local club in the international organization depends upon a continued program in practices and procedures of credit. The international program provides specialized credit study courses each year which contain the latest and best information available for credit granting."

She stated that civic activities are an important part of the club's work but are not stressed since the purpose and aim is primarily educational.

Local Club's History
Mrs. Coghill noted that the local club was organized March 26, 1949, with Mrs. Dorothy Copeland as president and Mrs. Cora Powell as adviser. She also recognized past presidents Lettie Bilbro, Margaret Boykin, Eleanor Norris and Mrs. Cassick. Mrs. Coghill has also served as president of the group.

Since the club was organized eight credit educational study courses have been completed, as well as specialized courses in business and collection, letter writing, spelling, sales promotion and salesmanship, financing and banking, commercial law and parliamentary law. Studies have also been made in self-improvement.

Present Credit Course
The present ninth credit course is being taught by City Councilman C. W. Harvey Jr. and City Manager Leonard Bloxam. Mrs. Coghill continued J. D. McGlohon and George Lautares will teach lessons in April. She said the local group is helping organize clubs in Tarboro and Ayden.

Recognized last night were this year's officers, including Mrs. Johnsen, president; Mrs. Callie Rue Williams, first vice president; Miss Deal, second vice president; Mrs. Polly Dail, recording secretary; Mrs. Cassick, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ruth Brady, treasurer; and Mrs. Copeland, parliamentary and historian. Board members are Mrs. Rubelle Crawford, Mrs. Louise Wilson, Mrs. Catharine Walsh and Mrs. Hilda Jones.

Mrs. Williams introduced new members: Miss Margaret Purvis, Mrs. Jean Porter, Mrs. Martha Kate Danford, Miss Barbara Dail, Mrs. Virginia Brady and Mrs. Inez Howe. She also recognized former members who are active again: Mrs. Allie Whitehurst, Mrs. Mary Dell Seymour and Mrs. Ruby Lum.

Millionaire-To-Be Is Working His Way

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP)—Edward S. Allen, 29, Southern Illinois University student, still is working his way through college although he'll be a millionaire next year.

He works in a factory at Herrin and his wife, Mary, is a fountain attendant at the University. He is an industrial education major. An aunt at Miami, Fla., left him between $800,000 and $1 million but he cannot claim his inheritance until he is 30.

Home Department Hears Talk On Flowers By Mrs. S. H. Mitchell

Mrs. S. H. Mitchell spoke to the Home Department when it met recently on "Flower Arranging and Preservation."

Mrs. J. C. Galloway opened the business meeting with the reading of the collect. She then welcomed Mrs. W. T. Smith and Mrs. Percy Cox as guests.

The minutes were read and committee reports given. The group was delighted to hear that the master plan of Green Springs Park had been framed and hung in the Woman's Club Building.

It was decided that the Home Department would again sponsor three projects: the baby contest, the senior party and the snack bar for the art show.

A nominating committee was chosen to present a slate of officers for the new year. Mesdames James Laftery, S. L. Daughtridge and Leonard Topping will serve on this committee.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. W. C. Hollowell who introduced Mrs. Mitchell as guest speaker. Mrs. Mitchell chose as her subject "Flower Arranging and Preservation."

The first part of her talk dealt with the drying of flowers. She said that there were four main ways of drying flowers today and that each way was used for different types of flowers.

She also stated that plants should be picked to dry on nice sunny days and stored in a dim dry room.

While talking about drying flowers, Mrs. Mitchell said that "this is the most fascinating thing I have ever learned to do" and urged the group to try it.

The second part of her talk was centered around arranging flowers. A good arranger never puts anything into a container and takes it out. She should cut it right and then put it in.

Mrs. Mitchell showed many lovely dried arrangements she had made and then she showed how to make a lovely arrangement of Forsythia and Jonquils.

Ham biscuits, nuts, congo squares and Russian tea were served by the hostesses, Mesdames J. D. Aman, Frank Brown, George Clapp, Robert May, Howard Mims and W. R. Smith.

Club To Compile Progress Record

RENTON-NOBLES—The Renton-Nobles Home Demonstration Club made plans to meet April 9 and compile records for the Pitt County Progress Program when it met at the Bethany educational building Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Norman Savage presided, and a new member, Mrs. Larry Munford, was welcomed.

Mrs. Roy Stokes gave a talk on health, and Mrs. Wiley Waters gave a report on freezing pies. Five book reports were presented by Mrs. Obed Castelloe.

Mrs. Norman Savage, clothing leader, presented the demonstration on "Well-Dressed at Small Cost."

Mrs. Brantley Speight led the group in singing.

The hostess, Mrs. Stokes, served cake and coffee to the 11 members present.

Young Pitt Typists Win District Contest Honors

Shelba Dawn Wooten, beginning typist from the Belvoir-Falkland school, and Geneva Ann Flake, advanced typist from the Farmville High School, won medals Tuesday of this week for top performance in Northeastern District Typing Contest sponsored at East Carolina by the college chapters of Pi Omega Pi, national business education fraternity, and of the Future Business Leaders of America.

Pitt County received recognition for making the highest average county score among beginning typists and Lenoir County received similar honor for the top average score among advanced typists.

The district contest held here Tuesday culminated preliminary competitions held for business students in schools of Beaufort, Bertie, Gates, Lenoir, Martin, and Pitt counties. Forty-seven beginning typists and twenty-four advanced typists, selected in the county contests, participated in the finals at the college Tuesday night.

Miss Wooten, medalist among beginners, is a student in classes taught by Mrs. Dorothy Hardy of the Belvoir-Falkland school. Runners-up in this competition were Judy Foreman of the Bath High School, second; and Bunny Jernigan of the Washington High School, third.

Miss Flake, medalist in the advanced classification, is a student in classes taught by Mrs. Annie C. Chappell of the Farmville High School. In this event Peggy Powell of Kingston High won second place; and Sally Ann Day of the Washington High School, third.

TYPING TITLE—Shelba Wooten of Falkland was first place winner in the beginners' division of the district typing contest held at East Carolina College Tuesday. A sophomore at Belvoir-Falkland High School, Shelba is instructed in typing by Mrs. Dorothy Hardy, business education teacher.

May Be Only School With Mile Altitude

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Albuquerque claims what may be the only exactly-one-mile-high junior high school in the nation. Principal Glen Borland of Monroe Junior High said a recent survey showed the 5,280-foot mark just outside the front door of the school.

Thirteen Attended Methodist Meeting

There were 13 delegates from the East Carolina Wesleyan Foundation attending the annual Methodist Student Movement Conference at High Point March 16-18.

Hosts for this conference were the Methodist Churches of High Point and High Point College. Approximately 17 colleges were represented at this international conference. Among the 300 delegates were students from foreign countries who are attending schools in North Carolina.

The theme of the conference was "The Student's Struggle for an Intelligent Faith." Dr. Everett Tilton, professor of Theology at Vanderbilt University, was the guest speaker.

Lee Cooper, who has recently returned from Korea doing missionary work, addressed the delegates on Saturday. Mr. Cooper will be the guest of the Wesley Foundation at East Carolina March 21.

Fraternity Chooses Officers For Year

Lloyd E. Treadway of Cramerton, junior at East Carolina College, will serve as president of the Beta Iota Chapter of Gamma Theta Upsilon, geography fraternity, during the school year of 1956-1957.

Other officers chosen as leaders in the campus organization are Wilfred H. Vance of Apex, vice president; Doris M. Bryan of Lumberton, secretary; and Margaret F. Spivey of Tabor City, treasurer.

The Beta Iota Chapter of the fraternity was organized on the campus in March, 1955, and now has a total of 61 members among students and faculty members interested in the field of geography. Out of 62 chapters of Gamma Theta Upsilon in the United States and Mexico, the East Carolina chapter is the only one in North Carolina.

Round Table Meets In Home Of Former Member

On Saturday, March 17, Mrs. C. E. Oakley was a gracious hostess to the Round Table Book Club at a luncheon in the home of a former member, Mrs. J. G. Fleming in Elm City.

Mrs. Oakley and Mrs. Fleming greeted the members on the lawn and each was taken on a tour of the lovely new Fleming home. A delightful three course luncheon was served on card tables placed in the living and dining rooms. Each table was centered with an arrangement of pansies in hand-painted bowls. Early spring flowers decorated auxiliary tables.

After luncheon a short business meeting was held. In the absence of the president, Mrs. H. H. Duncan, the vice president, Mrs. J. E. Winslow, presided.

Continuing the year's study of these United States the program chairman, Mrs. E. R. Browning, presented Mrs. Oakley in a comprehensive study of Utah. This state, known as the Salt Lake State, not only contains the most mysterious body of water in the new world but has many other sources of never-ending wonder. All of these Mrs. Oakley brought out in a most instructive and entertaining manner.

After giving a brief history of the earliest settlers and their Mormon religion Mrs. Oakley read a beautiful story which has grown out of traditions connected with the settlers of this faith.

In appreciation of Mrs. Fleming's hospitality, the Round Table presented her with a house-warming gift.

Adlai Hurt, Estes Weak; Who Else?

Sen. Kefauver's surprise victory in Minnesota's primary shed new light on the race for the Democratic nomination.

While it might suggest more popularity for the Tennessee senator than heretofore had been credited him by political observers, it doesn't indicate that Kefauver will sweep the field and get the nomination.

It is no secret that most Democratic party leaders favor Adlai Stevenson over Sen. Kefauver when it comes to the nomination. It is also true that presidential primaries, while they may have some significance, do not determine who gets the nomination at the convention. Kefauver may go on winning over Stevenson in primaries, but it is unlikely that the Tennessee challenger will overtake Stevenson in support of the two candidates have in party machinery in individual states.

More than anything else, Sen. Kefauver's victory in Minnesota suggests to us a stronger indication of a deadlock between these two principal candidates at the convention. It increases the chances of a dark horse getting the nomination.

Spurred by his victory in Minnesota, Sen. Kefauver probably will give increasing attention to Stevenson in future campaigning for delegates in state primaries.

Rocky Mount Position Is Fully Understandable

Rocky Mount's frank statement of its position with regard to the joint Eastern Carolina airport should not be mistakenly viewed as a deterrent to the proposed air facility.

Indeed, we frankly admire Rocky Mount for laying its cards squarely on the table at the meeting Tuesday in Tarboro. We likewise feel that Rocky Mount, in the final analysis, will be a party to the construction and development of the joint air facility so sorely needed by this area.

It is significant to note that none of the other municipalities involved in the project showed hesitation when Rocky Mount, the largest of the cities involved, said openly it did not know whether it could afford to abandon its own plans for a new airport to join in efforts to establish the joint facility.

Representatives of the 16 municipalities at Tuesday's meeting seemed to say: "We'd like to have Rocky Mount in on the joint project, but if that city elects to establish its own new airport instead, we will have to establish the joint airport for Eastern Carolina without Rocky Mount's help."

Rocky Mount was one of the leaders in efforts to establish a joint airport under the four-county-four-city plan which failed two years ago. When the joint effort was killed, Rocky Mount almost immediately began work to establish its own new airport. Citizens of that city have put a great deal of time and effort into plans for a new Rocky Mount airport. They have gone so far as to take an option on a site for the facility. In all fairness, other cities in this area cannot expect Rocky Mount to abandon what is already done toward a new airport until it is certain that this new attempt to establish a joint facility will be successful.

The joint air facility movement would be greatly strengthened by Rocky Mount's participation. Yet the success of the joint venture is not dependent upon Rocky Mount's participation.

More Basic And Rigid Safety Rules Required

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. The adage applies to practically everything including the staggering toll being taken on the nation's highways.

Most states, try as they may, have had difficulty in formulating adequate programs which would provide the much needed "ounce of prevention". Statute books, however, are loaded with laws aimed at providing the pound of cure.

We read recently that some seven state legislatures now are considering bills which would require safety belts in all new automobiles. Safety belts have proved their worth in lessening the degree of injuries in automobile accidents. Recognition of their value as safety devices in autos is growing daily. If they were used in all the automobiles on the highways, there is every reason to believe the number of injuries—or at least the number of serious injuries—would be appreciably reduced.

Yet the safety belts, like so many other devices aimed at preventing loss of life and limb in case of accidents, only come into play after the accident has taken place. It is another case of placing the emphasis in state legislation on the "cure" rather than the prevention of highway accidents.

While we are pleased with every measure taken to lessen the highway accident toll, safety belts, and the like do not provide the answer. The problem must be attacked boldly at the source. There must be more rigid legislation, backed by vigorous enforcement, to eliminate excessive speed, careless driving and the other basic cause of accidents.

Stevenson, on the other hand, cannot ignore in his future campaigning the definite threat Kefauver is making to his position.

As a result the two principal candidates may wear themselves out fighting each other and leave the way open for one less in the limelight at the present time. New York's Governor Harriman, while he would like to be the dark horse, stands little chance of gaining support of any Southern delegations at the convention. Should a deadlock come, he would be the most controversial of the potential compromise candidates. That in itself would tend to rule him out as a possible choice at the convention.

With the developments of this week pointing to a possible deadlock between Stevenson and Kefauver, the name of Sen. Stuart Symington may figure more prominently in political conversation in the coming months.

This Is A State Of Newspaper-Readers

By LYNN NISBET

NEWSPAPERS. The current edition of the Editor & Publisher Year Book lists 45 daily newspapers in North Carolina, with aggregate circulation of 979,852. This represents a gain of almost 24,000 since the 1955 list was published. It means there is a daily newspaper publisher in this state for every four and a quarter persons counted in the census rolls.

As has been the case for several years, the total circulation of afternoon newspapers exceeds that of morning papers, although by somewhat narrower margin than last year. This is due in part to the entrance of the Gaston Citizen in the morning field with a circulation of 3,138 and suspension of publication by the Catawba News-Enterprise as an afternoon paper since the previous count was made.

The eight morning papers are published at Asheville, Charlotte, Durham, Gastonia, Greensboro, Raleigh, Wilmington and Winston-Salem. These eight papers have aggregate circulation of 487,715. Considerably better than half this total is credited to the Charlotte and Raleigh papers.

There are 37 afternoon papers, ranging in circulation from 3,000 to 70,000 each, for a total of 491,277. They are published at Asheville, Charlotte, Durham, Gastonia, Greensboro, Raleigh, Winston-Salem, and other cities. The Raleigh News-Sun, with a circulation of 70,000, is the largest. The Charlotte News, with a circulation of 65,000, is second. The Winston-Salem Journal, with a circulation of 45,000, is third. The Durham News, with a circulation of 35,000, is fourth. The Greensboro News, with a circulation of 30,000, is fifth. The Gastonia News, with a circulation of 25,000, is sixth. The Asheville News, with a circulation of 20,000, is seventh. The other 30 papers have circulations ranging from 3,000 to 15,000.

Each community has its own political barometer or thermometer. In Raleigh for many years it has been the Salisbury street entrance to the Wake County courthouse. When weather is balmy enough, and there is time enough to spare, the politicians and dark the precinct workers and minor Warwick's gather on the concrete steps to talk over the situation. In other communities, the barometer is the local newspaper. The Raleigh News-Sun, for example, is a barometer of the city's political pulse. The Winston-Salem Journal, the Durham News, the Greensboro News, the Gastonia News, the Asheville News, and the other 30 papers are all barometers of their respective communities.

The press association listing shows a local newspaper published in every county in North Carolina except five. Currituck, Tyrrell, Clay and Graham. A glance at the map will show that these small counties are adequately served by "local" papers published in nearby communities.

Other Editors Are Saying... Couldn't Find Bridey

(Greensboro News-Argus) Maybe you are one of those who have heard of the strange story of Bridey Murphy. If you haven't heard of Bridey by newspaper, magazine, radio, TV or motion picture, you are in the minority. The Denver Post published three articles on as many Sundays, concerning the talk of a Denver housewife who hypnotized. She babbed of an earlier life in which she had lived in Ireland about the turn of the 19th century. She remembered places, events, things that had happened to her in her existence as a housewife. There was something too of astral wanderings before she came back to earth as a Denver resident.

The Post received 10,000 letters after the series appeared. Bridey's story became a book that sold like hotcakes. Now, there is a sequel. The Post sent a reporter to Ireland to search for any trace or record of Bridey Murphy. He spent three weeks poking around old cemeteries, visiting the places Bridey had mentioned, searching church and school records, visiting libraries. The reporter did find that Irish place names given by the Denver housewife were not mentioned. The reporter did find that Irish place names given by the Denver housewife were not mentioned. The reporter did find that Irish place names given by the Denver housewife were not mentioned.

The reporter did find that Irish place names given by the Denver housewife were not mentioned. The reporter did find that Irish place names given by the Denver housewife were not mentioned. The reporter did find that Irish place names given by the Denver housewife were not mentioned.

At least this search for the transmigration of souls wasn't there should quiet down the fad a bit. Man must look elsewhere to pierce the curtain between body and spirit, mind and matter.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WATCH THE FOUNDATIONS

We had better awake—if we are not already awake—to the crime situation in the United States.

Crime has had an increase of almost 27 per cent since 1940, and during this time the population has increased only 7 per cent. In other words, crime is increasing almost three times as fast as the population. Four offenses chargeable directly to drinking—drunkenness, driving while drunk, disorderly conduct, and violation of the liquor laws—accounted for 60 per cent of the total. Robberies, burglaries, and larcenies are increasing. Arrests of young people 17 years of age and under increased about 212 per cent. The age of our criminals has, through the years, been decreasing.

There are three main causes for this increase going along with the disintegration of family life, the decrease of parental discipline, and a widespread disregard for the value of religious truth. These are the foundations of sound and stable living.

How Was That Again?

by Edwina Haymes

A Bit Of Spring For Inside

It was still cold when I got home after work Tuesday afternoon. I held my head down and my coat tight about me as I hurried from the car through the wind to the warm house.

Suddenly, at the steps, I stopped. My eye had caught at a corner of the house a clump of vibrant violets, stoutly withstanding the chill of the day.

They were the first violets I had seen this year. The shine of the leaves was hidden by the wind-blown soot from the water plant, but the purple blossoms bloomed brightly. They seemed to smile with a promise of better things to come.

I stood there in the chill for a time, looking at the little flowers. I looked at the tiny new shoots of grass peeping through the earth, and at the brown bare bushes brightening with spotty sprigs of green.

I was still cold outwardly, but inside I was warm as I plucked a tiny violet and took Spring into the heated house with me.

Several things emerged. People now have a very good idea of exactly what happens in a "heart attack."

Newspapers published an immense amount of basic information and explanation, along with charts and diagrams, after the President was stricken. In short, the ABCs of this disability are pretty well known now whereas, before, it was a mysterious and terrifying subject to most of us.

Also, business executives discovered that they have more cardiac cases in their organization than they realized. "I was surprised about some in this office," said a New York business leader. "I never would have suspected them."

Another story seems funny now to the man who lived through it. He said that, for years, he had pains in his chest and an occasional flutter, and was convinced he had heart trouble. He told nobody, and said he couldn't bring himself to see his doctor and get the verdict. Instead, he lived in spasms of dread. Then the President's case steered him to have an examination. It showed a spinal dislocation.

At he needed, he said, was a built-up shoe!

Unquestionably, some of the panic and terror about heart disease has been dispelled simply by the publicity the President's attack brought to it.

People know that thousands of others have had attacks, survived them, and gone on to live happy and useful lives. They know the "cardiac" is not an invalid.

Statistics in the United States are sometimes called "alarms." But the odds are still heavily in your favor that you won't have a heart attack. One out of 100 had a number of cases in a given year, discovered they amounted to exactly 1 out of every 100 employees.

It seems certain, too, that more money now will go to research into the causes of heart disease. Heart attack organizations say they have not fared well, comparatively, although the need is great. Finally, there is a school of thought which believes that public discussion of this problem is a built-up shoe!

The Truth Shall Set You Free

By REILMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP)—President Eisenhower's illness has had some interesting and far-reaching effects on the whole story of heart trouble in the United States.

It is as though a curtain had been pulled, letting in a lot of light.

This thought struck me forcibly during some recent political puke-taking along the Atlantic seaboard. I talked with politicians and corporation heads, but most with plain John Smith, the voter, and his wife. The question of the President's physical condition naturally figured in most of these conversations.

Several things emerged. People now have a very good idea of exactly what happens in a "heart attack."

Newspapers published an immense amount of basic information and explanation, along with charts and diagrams, after the President was stricken. In short, the ABCs of this disability are pretty well known now whereas, before, it was a mysterious and terrifying subject to most of us.

Also, business executives discovered that they have more cardiac cases in their organization than they realized. "I was surprised about some in this office," said a New York business leader. "I never would have suspected them."

Another story seems funny now to the man who lived through it. He said that, for years, he had pains in his chest and an occasional flutter, and was convinced he had heart trouble. He told nobody, and said he couldn't bring himself to see his doctor and get the verdict. Instead, he lived in spasms of dread. Then the President's case steered him to have an examination. It showed a spinal dislocation.

At he needed, he said, was a built-up shoe!

Unquestionably, some of the panic and terror about heart disease has been dispelled simply by the publicity the President's attack brought to it.

People know that thousands of others have had attacks, survived them, and gone on to live happy and useful lives. They know the "cardiac" is not an invalid.

Statistics in the United States are sometimes called "alarms." But the odds are still heavily in your favor that you won't have a heart attack. One out of 100 had a number of cases in a given year, discovered they amounted to exactly 1 out of every 100 employees.

It seems certain, too, that more money now will go to research into the causes of heart disease. Heart attack organizations say they have not fared well, comparatively, although the need is great. Colleges Interested In Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

One of the great phenomena of recent decades has been the rising interest in business shown by American colleges and universities. Many conduct courses in business shown by American colleges and universities. Many conduct courses in business administration, marketing and related subjects. Several publish fine journals on business and economics, and some of the most valuable business research today is being done by some of these educational institutions.

But every once in a while they come up with something naive. The New York University School of Business, in its current "Journal," reports on a survey of customers' attitudes toward the discontinuance of "free" services by retailers.

RUNNING BROAD CONCLUSIONS

The survey was based on interviews with 315 shoppers on the main floors of three Manhattan department stores. That's a pretty small percentage of even only New York City shoppers, and the findings would not seem to apply automatically to shoppers in, say, Kansas City. However, sometimes even small polls give clues to big situations.

In conclusion, the researchers said, "One might well conclude that the majority of today's customers are willing to pay a direct charge for certain services for which they have need. One might also conclude, however, that stores cannot be overly conscious of competitive pricing when initiating direct service fees."

The survey suggests the services which stores have long considered as effective customer "bait" may no longer be regarded as particularly effective. The store owner who has been afraid to curtail his rapidly expanding costs by making a charge for such services as alterations, delivery and gift wrapping would probably encounter less protest than he has anticipated.

LET'S LOOK AT THE RECORD

The figures, however, present a somewhat different picture. Accompanying tables show that of those who had paid a fee for C.O.D. deliveries in the past year, 15 per cent no longer continue to trade at the same store. Among those not paying a delivery fee, 17 per cent said they would discontinue trading in the store. If charged a fee.

The tables also show that of those men having paid a clothing alteration fee, 16 per cent had discontinued trading in the store. And of those who had no alteration fee, 41 per cent said they would buy elsewhere if their store charged more for alterations. Women were more nearly reconciled to paying alteration fees; only 13 per cent said they would discontinue purchases at a store which charged them.

Another section shows that of those charged for gift wrapping, 15 per cent discontinued patronage. Of those not charged, 22 per cent said they would discontinue.

Answers people give and what they actually do are often very different things. Almost everyone tends to bristle at the idea of an added charge for a service but after we get used to the idea most of us subside.

Nevertheless, a practical-minded head of a department store would take a long look at charging fees for C.O.D.'s if 15 to 17 per cent of those charged went someplace else to buy, or to charge for alterations or on men's suits if something between 16 and 41 per cent of suit sales were lost.

Department stores and other retailers operate on such a net-profit margin that any reduction in service costs can produce a comparatively large increase in profits. By the same token, any loss in sales can result in comparatively large reductions of profits. For the average department store, loss of 1 per cent of its sales volume could completely eliminate its thin net profit.

SIMPLE NEW TREATMENT PRESERVES FENCE POSTS

Copper sulphate and sodium chromate make hot items for hardware and farm supply stores.

Department of Agriculture research shows that showing rust, green fence post, in water solution of copper sulphate and then a water solution of sodium chromate makes them more durable to fungi and insects, including termites.

A list of companies handling these chemicals can be obtained from the U. S. Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wis.

CAUTION NEEDED: Murray Kempton, the Post's reporter on racial relations, helped to inspire Editor Hall's suggestion for a report on "Change."

Kempton agreed to dip his toes in residential and educational segregation in New York that had been ignored or neglected by the local press.

"Well," commented Hall, "why don't you go after the New York story the same as you do the Montgomery story?"

"Come on up," replied Kempton, "we'll do the story together."

If Wechsler accepts the challenge, Hall's despatches from the "Deep North" to what he calls "Confederate Headquarters" at Montgomery might introduce more intelligent and less headline firework into discussion of the great American racial problem. At least it might teach Northern candidates for Pulitzer prizes and Presidential nominations that they should handle the subject with a little less fear.

They might rebound.

Northern Press Challenged To Compare

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—A unique challenge that the New York Evening Post, an ultra-liberal newspaper, has made him in investigating and reporting on racial prejudices and clashes in New York and the South, Editor Hall believes that such a reportorial exchange would result in a more sensible, balanced and understanding approach to the racial problem.

The Montgomery editor addressed his letter to James A. Wechsler, editor of the Post, and extreme advocates of overnight implementation of the Supreme Court's decision. With Hall's help, Northern newspapers have been covering the Negro boycott of buses and business in Montgomery, and the case of Autherine Lucy at the University of Ala-

Students Of Grifton High Are Entertained

By DAWN SMITH
Grifton High School

Saturday night Jo Anne Bass, Linda Chauncey and Pat Matthews entertained at a dance held in the Grifton gym. The gym was decorated with green lights and green and white crepe paper streamers to carry out the St. Patrick's Day theme.

Delicious refreshments of punch, sandwiches, cookies and crackers were served to the guests.

Chaperoning the affair were Mr. and Mrs. Bass and Mr. and Mrs. J. Chauncey.

Music was provided for by record player and the latest rock and roll, swing and pop recordings by famous artists.

Among those attending were Joyce Koon, Steve Clark, Buddy Clark, and Shirley Flowers of Florence, S.C.; Charles Dail, Herbert Purser, Kenneth Garis, Jimmy McLawhorn, Walter Craft, Floyd Smith, Tommy Bogey, Wayne Ervin, Joyce Batchelor, Alfred Boswell, Connie Dennis, Nancy Smith, Gilbert Quigley, Donald Bennett, Elizabeth Laughton, Esther Hill Coward, Troy Dennis, Gladys Smith, Fred Taylor, Judy Hart, Donald Cannon, Wilma Patrick and Lynda Koon.

Mrs. Paul Bradley's senior English class is "going strong" with their source themes. The students have picked their topics and are at present, with the assistance of Mrs. Bradley, preparing the note cards. Some of the students, in addition to getting references from the school library, are getting some good information from the Greenville public library and the East Carolina College library.

Recently the high school library received an entire new set of encyclopedias. They have been placed in the study hall part of the library. The shelves in the back part of the library are being rearranged by the staff to hold all the new books and others which are donated to the library.

Friends of Phyllis Dudley are very sorry that she is ill. At present Phyllis is at Watts Hospital in Durham. Hurry and get back to school Phyllis. We all miss you very much!

Those of you who didn't hear the Mt. Olive College Chorus sing Sunday night at Reedy Branch F.W.B. Church surely missed a treat! Although the majority of the program was made up of hymns sung by the entire chorus, there were some scriptural readings and some beautiful solos by different members of the chorus.

Their director is Mrs. Paul Braxton, former member of the OHS faculty.

Work is now rapidly progressing at the Grifton ball park. Some of the high school boys have been working on the pitchers' mound and some other spots on the field to get it ready for play. The field is being dragged at every available time.

Members of the Lions Club have been working on the back stop. Preparations for getting a fence up are being made. Space for signs on this fence is being sold at the present time. The money will go for the support of the park.

A meeting of the Band Booster Club was held recently in the school assembly room. It was announced that through the government surplus division several instruments had been purchased. Plans were discussed for a picnic, which is to be held at Camp Contentnea in May.

The March meeting of the Grifton PTA was held recently in the school assembly room with the president, James Israel presiding.

The annual devotion was led by the Rev. W. E. Link, Presbyterian minister.

Mrs. Tyree Buck's fifth grade presented an entertaining program, including "The Magic Bookcase," a number of songs, Bible reading, prayer and the allegiance to the flag. Linda Hudson and Ronald Garis sang as a duet, "He." Announcer for the program was Betsy Haynes.

At the business session President Israel named Mrs. L. L. Mewborn, Charles Kline and Walter Murphy as a nominating committee for the 1956-57 slate of officers.

Principal E. B. Bright made announcements regarding the free lunch program. He also gave the program topics for the coming April and May meetings of the PTA. These will be on public speaking and a fashion show by the home economics department respectively.

Attendance awards were won by the fifth and the seventh grades.

Miss Fran Smith and Mr. Cecil Boyette of Goldsboro visited Dawn Smith Sunday.

Frances Davis, Argent Tucker, Mrs. Nannie Pearl Tucker, Nannie Davis, Lawrence Tucker and Mr. Jack Tucker went to see Perry Como and company in Durham Monday.

At a recent bridge party at her home Sallie Mewborne had as her guests Elizabeth Lawton, Lou Raye Mewborne and Wilma Patrick.

Recently Frances Davis entertained at a canasta party at her home. Those attending were Marguerite Mewborne, Jo Anne Bass, Linda Chauncey, Lynda Koon, and Esther Hill Coward.

"In spring almost every high-school boy's fancy turns to" baseball. At least that is true at Grifton. Coach A. E. Brown and his boys are beginning to practice this All-American sport. Let's all wish them the best of luck this year! Members of the high school want to see all you Griftonians out supporting the baseball team just as you did the basketball teams. Come on out to the home games, at least. We're sure you'll enjoy seeing your local boys win!

Monday afternoon the Grifton Chapter of the Tri-Hi-Y had a call meeting to discuss the chapel program for Friday. The group decided on the program to be used and will be ready to "perform" Friday at 2:30.

The junior class and its adviser, Mrs. Denver Sasser, is making rapid progress in their preparations for the Junior-Senior Banquet. Theme for the occasion is "Hawaii." They have selected their class flower, colors and motto which are: dogwood blossoms, blue and gold, and "Nothing is gained without work." Wayne Ervin, member of the junior class, has made the colorful prom bids. The class is, at present, preparing the programs entitled "Memories."

Lakewood Pines Club Announces Plans For Spring Garden Fair

The Lakewood Pines Garden Club announces that final plans are being completed for its Spring Garden Fair.

Plants, baked goods, toys, needlework, gifts of all kinds and refreshments will go on sale Friday, April 13, and will be open to the public from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

A merry-go-round, donated by a Raleigh bread company, will lend atmosphere and gaiety to the fair for the youngsters who will be given free rides.

Exhibits will be divided into four groups: the garden center, country store, treasures and costume.

Mrs. Harry Billica is chairman of the garden center. Assisted by Mrs. J. E. Walz, Mrs. Robert C. Forney and Mrs. Michael Lusk, she plans to feature camellia bushes, potted plants, bird houses and feeders and materials for dried flower arrangements.

The country store committee will handle the food—the pies, pickles, jellies, homemade cakes, cupcakes, pies, baked beans and chili—in addition to the usual items found in a country store.

Mrs. Richard G. Culbertson is chairman of this committee and serving with her are Mrs. Floyd Hendrix, Mrs. Norwin Pierce and Mrs. L. T. Carr.

Mrs. K. G. Harris is in charge of the "treasures." This booth will have Mexican hats, decorated tinware, cooperware and hand decorated dishes on display. Mrs. Richard P. Heller, Mrs. T. B. Marshall and Mrs. Raymond W. Lowe are members of this committee.

The costume, fourth in the division, will feature needlework, handmade baby caps, aprons, tablecloths, place mats, decorated eye-glass cases and pillows filled with dacron. Mrs. A. Tyson Bilbo is chairman of this committee with Mrs. William Reading, Mrs. Owen Marshburn and Mrs. R. E. Wilfong working with her.

Mrs. William A. Wright is general chairman of the fair. Mrs. Barnhill is treasurer.

Proceeds will go toward planning and beautification of the new Elmhurst School ground.

Refreshments were served from a table spread with lace and centered with an arrangement of pink and green carnations, from which extended green ribbons inscribed with names of the betrothed couple and their wedding date.

Miss Telles attended Maryville College and Baylor University, where she was a member of Mu Phi Epsilon music sorority. She received her degree from Texas Western College and is now a music teacher at Roosevelt Elementary School.

The prospective bridegroom was graduated from Winterville High School and attended East Carolina College. He is in the anti-aircraft guided missile school at Fort Bliss, Texas, from which he will graduate in April.

Faulkner-Tellez Engagement Announced At Tea In El Paso

Announcement of the forthcoming wedding of Miss Viola Yolanda Tellez and Hyman Leroy Faulkner was announced at a tea given on Sunday afternoon, March 4, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Tellez, aunt and uncle of the bride-elect in El Paso, Texas.

The couple will say vows March 30 in William Herschel Ford Chapel of the First Baptist Church in El Paso.

Miss Tellez is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Braulio M. Tellez of El Paso, and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Faulkner of Winterville.

Guests at the tea were received by the bride-elect, bridegroom-elect, parents of the bride-elect, Miss Maria Garcia, Miss Joan Haggard and the hostess, who are to be bridesmaids in the wedding.

Miss Tellez chose for the occasion a sheath frock of black satin with lace accents at the low, round neckline. Her corsage was of green carnations.

Refreshments were served from a table spread with lace and centered with an arrangement of pink and green carnations, from which extended green ribbons inscribed with names of the betrothed couple and their wedding date.

Phants Open Baseball Play Here Tomorrow Afternoon

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Writer

Greenville high school opens its 1956 baseball season tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 against the AAA Rocky Mount Black Birds, at the East Carolina College field.

Coach Boley Farley stated today that his probable starting lineup will run as follows:

Angus Duf, catcher; Hudson Miller, pitcher; Mike Riddick, first base; Tommy Norris, second base; Ike Riddick, shortstop; Walter Lee, third base; Don Patrick, left field; Joe Wingate, centerfield, and Charles Smith, rightfield.

"We intend," Farley commented, "to play as many of our boys as we can—all of them if possible." He continued, "We have only practiced on the field six times in the past three weeks due to bad weather and I'd like to get a look at as many of these boys in action as I can."

At the present, the Phantom aggregation boasts 30 boys, all seeking first string positions on the regular nine. Only one of the returning 11 veterans is a pitcher, and Coach Farley is anxious to give his new hurriers a trial on the mound. Miller, who is slated to begin tomorrow's match, is the returning veteran from 1955's club.

All but one of the probable starting lineup saw action with the Greenville squad last season.

"It's hard to tell," Farley said, "just how well our boys hit or field or play. Some of the six days we did practice were cold and they didn't really have a good workout." He stated that drills have been predominantly fundamental exercises thus far, and that only after Thursday's match will he have a clear view of his club.

Coach George Staley's Rocky Mount team is reportedly strong at the plate and fast on the defensive. Fred Harris, a senior catcher, is supposedly one of the most powerful sluggers in this section of the state and Jackie Skinner (another catcher) has been strong with the bat.

When rain cancelled the Rocky Mount-Kinston opener for the Black Birds, Coach Staley lost several days of drill and is, like Farley, unsure of his team's abilities.

The contest will take place at approximately 3:30.

Recent Statistics Back Claim NL Is The Stronger Loop

By BEN OLAN
The Associated Press

There may or may not be something in Frank Lane's recent observation that "the National League is a stronger league than the American."

The senior circuit has captured the last two World Series—by the Dodgers last year and the Giants in 1954—and five of the last six All-Star Games.

And the National League has the statistics going for them in the grapefruit-cactus competition this spring. In 53 interleague exhibition games, NL teams are out in front 28-24 with one tie.

Lane, who took over as St. Louis Cardinals' general manager this year after a similar tenure with the Chicago White Sox, said, "If the Cards were in the American League they'd finish ahead of the White Sox." Considering that St. Louis wound up in seventh place and the White Sox in third a year ago, that's quite a statement.

And Mr. Lane's Redbirds are carrying the National League banner in fine style in the exhibition games. They've beaten American League clubs five times and lost only twice.

But it's been the Pittsburgh Pirates who've done best against American League opponents. They're 5-1. The Dodgers are 5-3, the Chicago Cubs 5-4, the Giants 4-4, Cincinnati 2-4, Philadelphia 1-3 and Milwaukee 1-3 with a tie.

The Boston Red Sox have put together the best American League mark. They've won four, lost one with one deadlock. The other records are: New York Yankees 4-2, the White Sox 3-2, Cleveland 5-4, Washington 2-3, Kansas City 2-4, Baltimore 3-6 and Detroit 1-6.

The Red Sox, however, may have lost their No. 1 slugger, Ted Williams, for the remainder of the exhibition season.

The Boston Post reported Ted pulled a leg muscle in a workout and has been advised by team trainer Jack Fadden that at Williams' age, 37, the injury won't heal as quickly as in his younger days.

The National won both interleague skirmishes yesterday. The champion Dodgers edged the Detroit Tigers 3-2 on Randy Jackson's 10th-inning single and Pittsburgh downed Washington 6-3 behind the effective pitching of Vernon Law and Ronnie Kline.

In games involving National League clubs, Cincinnati parlayed four singles and 11 bases on balls into a 5-3 victory over the Phillies. The Cards pounded Chet Nichols and Dave Jolly for 15 hits in handing Milwaukee its fourth straight setback 9-2. And the Giants broke loose for 14 hits including homers by Hank Thompson, pitcher Johnny Antonelli and George Wilson, to nip the Cubs 11-10.

In the American, Larry Doby connected for a 400-foot homer as the White Sox blanked the Red Sox 6-0. Bobby Avila, playing his second game of the spring, drove in four runs with two triples and a single to lead Cleveland to an 11-4 victory over Baltimore. And Mickey Mantle continued his prolific hitting with a homer and a triple as the Yankees tripped Kansas City 9-5.

Wins MVP Award

ECC Teams Are Hitting The Road

East Carolina sports fans had a busy day today, if they kept up with the athletic activity that the school undertook for this afternoon.

The Pirate baseballers traveled to Camp Lejeune to begin a series of four ball games that would open their 1956 season. Coach Jim Mallory's boys tackled tough Springfield, Mass. College this afternoon and will meet the Lejeune Marine nine in a single contest tomorrow and a double-header on Saturday.

Leaving the baseball scene, Pirate fans would have to journey still further to follow the ECC track team. The cindermen, coached by J. O. Miller, invaded the campus of Hampden Sydney, Va., yesterday to open their current campaign, and battled Richmond today.

The Springfield affair this afternoon was the official opening match of the season for both squads. Last year, the Bucs opened their season against the Massachusetts crew and swept both ends of a double-header. The defeated group fought their way back into the win column, and were one of the nation's eight teams to reach the finals of the NCAA baseball tourney.

The team from the North reportedly has practically the same squad again this year.

Coaches Mallory and Earl Smith have selected a group of nine outstanding boys to face the first Bucs opponents. They are the top choices from a field of 80 candidates. The infield consists of Nick Smothers, James Sanderson, Jerry Stuart, and Bucky Reep; the outfielders will be Gene Turner, Burney Stevens, and Ray Pennington or Bobby Clark. Probable battery for the first contest will be Charlie Russell and Wayne Morris on the mound, and Ralph Zehring behind the plate.

Sophomore Jim Henderson, of Plymouth, Va., is figured to be the top man in the Pirate cinder group.

Coach Miller expects the "Injun" to pace his boys in the 100 yard dash, high and low hurdles, the 220 and 440 yard sprints.

Returning to aid Henderson and the squad, are six other lettermen and a host of Pirate newcomers, who have shown promise. Bobby Perry, Eddie Deans, Bobby Gay, Eddie Hurst, Cliff Buck, Bob Patterson and Bobby Maynard are the veterans.

The Buc tracksters faced Hampden Sydney yesterday afternoon in the season's opener for both schools, and then moved over to Richmond to scrap the Richmond University track and field crew.

Burkemo, Furgol 'Ones To Beat' In Miami Open

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Touring golf professionals teed off today in the $18,000 Miami Beach Open, and Walter Burkemo and Ed Furgol were regarded as the ones to beat.

Burkemo, of Franklin, Mich., and Furgol, from St. Louis, shot five under par 67s yesterday in the pro-am tournament to lead the field.

Gardner Dickinson Jr., Panama City, Fla.; Tommy Bolt, Chattanooga, Tenn.; and Don Finsterwald, Bedford Heights, Ohio, tied with 68s.

Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.; Gene Littler, Palm Springs, Calif.; and Mike Souchak, Grossingers, N.Y., tied with 69s.

The 72-hole tournament will be played over the 6,577-yard Bayshore Golf Club course where par is 36-36-72.

Rhodes May See Day-To-Day Duty

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—James Lamar Rhodes, who is more familiar as plain Dusty of pinch-hitting renown for the New York Giants, just might desert the bench for regular day-to-day duty.

Dusty was a standout hero of the 1954 World Series Giant championship team. He could do no wrong with his large bat, and he did things with it at the most propitious moments.

Last year he was something less than a sensation, and so was the third-finishing Giant team. True, his official average for 187 times at bat in 92 games was a respectable .305. But the dramatic game-winning blow was lacking.

The outlook is different this spring.

He is hitting close to .400, as compared to a minute .095 last spring. And he has whacked out four home runs, where last spring he couldn't buy a home run or a hit.

The man from Montgomery, Ala., reported to camp in excellent shape which was in contrast to a year ago when he was still celebrating the 1954 Giant conquest over Cleveland.

Back of this is a more significant point. Bill Rigney, the new New York manager, promised that Rhodes would be given a chance to play every day, not just as a pinch hitter, and Rigney has played Dusty as often as possible.

In the last two games, Rhodes has hit two home runs, a triple, a double and a single.

Kite Tournament Slated Saturday

Kite tournaments for white and Negro school children will be held Saturday afternoon under the sponsorship of the Recreation Department.

The tournaments, both of which begin at 2:30 p. m., will be held for white at Third Street School and for colored at South Greenville School.

All kites must be handmade and contestants flying the kites must have made them themselves. All contestants must have one assistant, and each must register prior to 2:30.

Six different categories are open to youngsters from eight to 14.

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

THIS is the one that measures BIG — by any yardstick you choose . . .

BIG in solid pounds and honest inches . . .

BIG in high-compression horsepower . . .

BIG, best of all, in the way it makes small money talk.

For, this strapping beauty is the 1956 Buick Special — biggest package of high-fashion luxury and high-stepping performance ever offered in Buick's lowest-priced Series.

What that boils down to is just this:

You can call this brawny Buick your own for only a few dollars more than the price of the well-known smaller cars — for even less than some models of those very same cars. And the price we proudly print here backs up that statement.

But low price, alone, doesn't explain why Buick outsells every other car in America except the two well-known smaller ones.

The big reason, you will find, is because Buick gives you so much more pure automobile for the money.

You'll find it in the bigger thrill you get from commanding the agile might of Buick's big new 322-cubic-inch V8 engine.

You'll find it in the greater smoothness of Buick's superb new ride — in the utter serenity of Buick's new handling ease — in the bigger satisfaction of Buick size and roominess and steadiness and styling.

Free - Wheeling Political Battle Is Shaping Up In Ohio; Stakes Are Big

By JACK BELL
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The ingredients are being assembled in Ohio today for a free-wheeling political battle that may determine control of the senate in the next Congress.

The average voter here is inclined to accept forecasts that president Eisenhower will sweep Ohio again next fall as he did in 1952. Candidates for governor have not yet been chosen in the primaries.

But all Ohio knows that Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche and Republican Sen. George H. Bender are set to throw the political book at each other in the senatorial race. And there is no unanimity of opinion about the outcome.

Lausche, a political leader who ignores both labor leaders and Democratic organization chiefs, is trying out in a new league after five two-year terms as governor—a record in Ohio. He won his fourth term in 1952 by a margin of 425,000 votes while Eisenhower was rolling to a 500,000 majority in the state.

Bender beat Democratic Sen. Thomas A. Burke a Lausche appointee, by only 2,900 votes in 1954 to round out the last two years of Taft's term. Taft died in mid-1953.

Cold statistics fail to take into account the cross-currents of Ohio politics which are likely to find Democratic Representatives Michael J. Kirwan, chairman of the party's congressional campaign committee, and Wayne Hays, 18th District congressman, rolling all possible stumbling blocks in Lausche's path.

Lausche has Democratic enemies in Cleveland. He can expect little aid if any from union leaders. He has lost to Bender some of the financial support he always had from Republican industrialists in his campaigns for governor.

On the other hand, the irrepressible Bender faces a psychological disadvantage born of Lausche's frequent state victories. Not all Ohio Republicans are enthusiastic about Bender and, as he says himself, one of his main jobs is to "keep the regular Republicans in the party" and away from Lausche's camp.

The biggest asset going for Bender appears to be Eisenhower's decision to run again. Bender's voice is raised constantly these days in praise of Eisenhower and in pledges of loyalty to the GOP administration.

But the unorthodox Lausche too praises Eisenhower. This prompts the exasperated Bender to explode:

"Lausche is trying to grab Ike's coattails. Those coattails are already occupied by me and there isn't room for anybody else there."

A finance committee made up of some of Ohio's leading industrialists is out to raise $500,000 for Bender's campaign. Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has written letters soliciting donations. Lausche says he won't spend more than $30,000 and may make an issue of the contrast.

Bender is pitching his campaign on the contention that Eisenhower needs a Republican Senate if he wins a second term. Democrats now outnumber Senate Republicans 49-47 and a net gain of one vote, combined with the vice president's tie-breaker, could give the GOP control in 1957.

Bender contends Ohio farmers are going to vote for "peace" even if their economic condition isn't quite up to what they would like to have it. He said the farmers don't blame Eisenhower for their woes.

Eugene H. Hanhart, Democratic state chairman, agreed with Lausche that it's too early to gauge the unrest among the farmers whose crops are diversified and thus not so widely dependent on government payments. "I wouldn't make the statement that Eisenhower won't carry the state," Hanhart said. But he added he doesn't think even Eisenhower can save Bender from defeat.

John Rooney, secretary treasurer of the Ohio CIO Council, conceded that "the President is more popular generally with labor people than many other Republicans would be." But he said he doesn't believe the president retains as wide appeal as he had in 1952. Rooney thought the Democrats might pick up "a seat or two" in the House. Ohio Republicans now hold 17 and Democrats 6 seats.

Ray Bliss, Republican state chairman, said he is confident the GOP can hold all the House posts it now has and perhaps pick up some.

Republicans apparently are going to put up their strongest fight against Democratic Representatives James G. Folk in the 6th District in southern Ohio and against Thomas L. Ashley in the 9th, the Toledo area.

Paint Industry Looking Forward To Biggest Year

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK, N. Y.—The paint industry hopes this will be its biggest year. Its sales volume is expected to rise by 10 per cent to a new record of $1,667,848,400.

There's no change in retail prices of paint may rise due to recent increases in the cost of linseed oil, soybean oil, some pigments, freight, labor and the hike announced today in the price of cans.

Much of the sales talk now in the paint industry is built around new colors, such as pink, light blue, yellow, and others in collapsible tubes.

Other novelties are being hunted down by radioactive isotopes. These byproducts of an atomic pile widely useful as tracers, are being turned into paint to see what may come of it in the way of new and better spruce-up jobs.

The industry also counts on the psychological impact of a widely enlarged choice of colors on the army of determined do-it-yourselfers. You have all the way up to 1,000 choices—not to mention what a home-owner may accidentally stumble on in spite of himself.

The National Paint, Varnish & Lacquer Assn. estimates almost 50 per cent of homeowners now are brave enough to tackle outdoor painting. Get them inside and out of sight of the neighborhood critics and 71 per cent will wield a brush or roller on interior paint jobs.

The Retail Paint and Wallpaper Distributors of America says, with the deepest disapproval, that some 30 million Americans haven't had a new coat of paint in 10 years. It also turns a critic's eye on all the several million homes built since World War II and asserts—perhaps to no one's surprise—that in its view 70 per cent could stand a new coat right now.

Accidents Pile Up For Youths

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Airman Charles R. Bradshaw already had a cast on his right leg, broken in a traffic accident when his car went out of control on wet pavement and hit a power pole. Bradshaw, 19, wasn't hurt. But his brother, Clyde, was cut around the face and Charles accompanied Clyde in an ambulance to the hospital.

Had A Criminal But No Crime

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Ordinarily police have a crime in hand and go hunting for the criminal—but not this time.

They had the criminal in hand and had to go hunting for the crime. A man came into headquarters and said he'd broken into a confectionary "somewhere" and taken $15.

Police couldn't find the place so booked him on vagrancy charges. INTERURBAN ERA ENDS

... And A Good Time Was Had By All

'AFTER THE BALL'—Among those enjoying a party at Nancy Ann Hoot's following the "Story Book Ball" at Greenville High last Friday night were these evening-garbed lassies: Alice Lee Edwards, Memie Mosier, Doris Davenport, Joanna Hardee, Nancy Harris, Jeanne Moye and Lois Brown. Rosemary Eagles tells of other parties after the dance in her column today.

Fire Warning Device Failed

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—A fire warning device functioned improperly and caused a Continental Air Lines plane with 44 passengers to make an emergency landing yesterday afternoon.

Capt. Ivan Olson of Denver the pilot, said he noticed a fire warning signal in the right engine while flying about 10 miles south of here. He returned the airliner to Peterson Field.

Continental officials said inspection showed no evidence of fire. Passengers completed the Denver-to-Albuquerque flight aboard another plane.

Snow Removal Is A Private Job

BRISTOL, R. I. (AP)—One of the best jobs of snow removal after the blizzards of last Friday and Monday was performed on Fort Hill Road.

Some cynics suggested the superb job there was because Police Chief Anthony J. Ferrara lives on that street, but—

Chief Ferrara pointed out it wasn't even town equipment that cleaned the street.

One of the residents on Fort Hill road building company and he used his own equipment to clear the heavy snow there.

Anatomy Course Taught By TV

BALTIMORE (AP)—A $1,500 closed-circuit television setup including two 21-inch screens, is being installed at the University of Maryland School of Medicine to simplify the teaching of anatomy. As many as 100 students will be able to watch the dissection of a cadaver as if they were looking over the shoulder of their instructor. Under the old setup, the 100 students watched the demonstration in five groups of 20 so that all could see.

Lipstick Query Drew Paddling

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—A housewife obtained a divorce on the ground that when she questioned her husband about lipstick on his shirt he spanked her with a shoe. Mrs. Letha Juanita Lebert testified that Richard Lebert returned home from a party and when she asked him to explain the lipstick marks he said: "If you're going to ask childish questions I'll treat you as a child."

She said he did. He paddled her.

HEARTS IN CHURCH
TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—St. Paul's Lutheran Church has a special alcove where those suffering from heart ailments can attend services. A trained nurse and an usher are kept on duty and the nurse is prepared to get a physician quickly if one is needed.

'Father Of Radio' Is Congratulated

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The "Father of Radio," Dr. Lee de Forest, says he was highly pleased to receive a letter yesterday from President Eisenhower congratulating him on his many scientific contributions. The President noted that 1896 is the 50th anniversary of Dr. de Forest's invention of the three-element radio vacuum tube. Dr. de Forest holds more than 300 patents in the fields of radio, television and pictures and television.

Story Book Ball, At GHS Gym, Described As 'Great Success'

By ROSEMARY EAGLES
GREENVILLE HIGH SCHOOL

The high school gym looked like fairyland and "The Dreamers" played the organist of music. The girls in their strapless gowns and the boys in their evening clothes were the picture of elegance. The Story Book Ball was a success from every angle.

The gym was decorated like a story book with Humpty Dumpty on his wall in the foyer to the spider in the web on the ceiling. Alvin Chessom and "The Dreamers" from ECC played for the dance which is sponsored annually by the sophomore class.

The floorshow opened with two teenagers, Stuart Bost and Jane Perkins, crawling into bed and dreaming about their old toys and story books. Judy Ferris was the narrator.

Suddenly six little girls, Lillian Moe, Margaret Ruffin, Judy Joil, Ann Moore, Ruth Young, and Barbara Davis, appeared and sang "The Story Book Ball." Elizabeth White, Ann Parkinson, and Martha Pierce, dressed in white sang "Sincerely." Led by drummer George Saeed, five wooden soldiers, Dick Evans, Lawrence Perkins, Don Wilkerson, Bobby Edwards and Kelly Barnhill, marched through Betty Lane Evans, a pink dream, sang "Meet Me To night In Dreamland" and "Dream." Jean Ann Waters, in a beautiful Egyptian costume, portrayed Schenherzade.

The "spiders," Ginger Lang, Marietta Northrop, and Carol Tadlock, tap danced. Ann Marshall Allen, "Alice in Wonderland," sang to Burke Stanch and Alf Forbes who were dressed as "Tweedle-Dum and Tweedle-Dee."

All at once six painted dolls dressed in blue checks appeared. Cynthia Cranford, Camilla Henderson, Margaret Ann Harrell, Elizabeth White, Martha Moe, and Betty Lane Evans danced to "I've Got Rhythm."

Jeanette Moe wowed the crowd with "Rock n Roll Waltz." Ann Peaden concluded the show with her like rendition of "Rock Around Mother Goose."

Rosemary Eagles and Ike Riddick were proclaimed "Cinderella and Prince Charming" of the Ball. The two seniors were each presented a china slipper. Rosemary also received a corsage of red roses.

During intermission Margaret Moe had several guests at her home for a small party. Betsy Karsnak, Maurice Cutler of Washington, Sylvia Bonner, Charles Smith, Sue Pope, Bob Thompson were there. Lois Simmons, Don Conley, Clara McKeldin, Bill Simmons, Sylvia Satterthwaite, Sammy Woolard of Washington and Mike Riddick were also on hand. Mike played photographer while everyone enjoyed talking and eating.

Nancy Ann Hoot had open house at her home immediately following the Ball for 165 people. It was also Nancy Ann's birthday. Everyone stayed busy discussing the Ball or dancing in the rec room.

The centerpiece on the dining room table was of hand painted glass. Easter eggs and jollies. Nancy Harris served punch while Alice Lee Edwards also helped serve the refreshments. Meanwhile, Dr. Hoot took candid shots of the crowd with his camera.

Helen Forbes had a party for several couples following the Ball. Dee Hux, Pete Curley, Martha Ann Branch, Charles Ballance, Ann Norris, Thad Gaylord, Lib Sutton, Phil Davis, Bryan Rollins and Helen enjoyed delicious refreshments and dancing.

Later in the morning several couples went to Ann and Joanna Rooke's for cocoa, coffee, and dancing. The get-together was in honor of their cousin Mona Jean Graves from Richmond. Mona arrived in Greenville late Thursday night to spend the weekend and attend the Ball.

The girls changed into Bermuda and a few of the more energetic put on pop records. The crowd who went included Ann Hamric, Charles Hollingsworth, Lois Ann Webb, Dick Berryman, Rosemary Eagles, Jimmy Kelly, Joanna Rooke, Billy Dunn, Mona Jean Graves, James Perry, Dornier Jenkins, Harold McKee, Ann Rooke and Gene Lusk.

Alice Lee Edwards had a pajama party for her crowd after the Ball. Doris Davenport, Jeanne Moe, Nancy Ann Hoot, Lois Brown, Memrie Mosier, Nancy Harris and "Leo-ta" naturally talked the night away. The girls even woke Mrs. Edwards for a gab session.

All went well until poor Memrie spilled milk all over herself. The next morning they spent waking up sleepy heads.

Phil Arthur had Ike and Mike Riddick, Jerry Drum, and Charles Smith over at his home for a house-party after the dance.

Ike and Mike's little green Chevy may have been a little muddy the next morning but... The boys ate up the house and as they said it's a good thing the Arthurs don't have next door neighbors.

There was only one letdown. "We had to get up and go to work almost before we got to bed!" laughed Pick.

To climax the full night Ann Hamric had several couples at her home for an early breakfast Saturday morning. Ann, Lois Ann Webb and Jane Berryman headed for the kitchen and whipped up chocolate milk while Charles Hollingsworth, Dick Berryman and Jay Robbins relaxed in the living room.

"It tasted good but we couldn't have eaten it if we hadn't been cross-eyed with sleep!" laughed Ann.

Before the Ball Lois Simmons had a dinner party at her home in Pactolus. Bill Simmons, Clara McKeldin, Margaret Moe, Mike Riddick, Don Conley and Lois' family were present. Bill, her cousin and a student at the Naval Academy, and Clara, a friend from Annapolis, were Lois' house guests over the weekend.

The Ball brought several Campbell College students. James Perry of Williamston, Billy Dunn and Jerry Gaskins to Greenville over the weekend. Billy, who plays baseball, was busy talking about the game between Campbell and ECC Saturday.

Among the out-of-town guests was Camilla Rodman of Washington, Lee Weathers of Wendell, Frances Clark's cousin, was also in town.

Early Saturday morning Kathryn Oakes, Bob Bilbro, Ruth Young, Kelly Barnhill, Jane Perkins headed for Bob's cottage at Resthaven. In keeping with the weather the gang built a fire in the fireplace. Saturday night they cruised up to Bayview.

Stuart Bost, Don Wilkerson, Margaret Ruffin, Dick Evans, Phyllis Dean and Ralph Johnson were bound for Don's cottage at Resthaven early Saturday morning.

Around 2:00, who should drive up but Carol Tadlock, Bob Shackelford, Ginger Lang, Ike Riddick, Marietta Northrop and Jack Calhoun. The poor cottage was like Grand Central Station but nobody seemed to mind. The crew headed back to Greenville late that afternoon.

Phyllis Dean, Don's cousin from Kings Mountain, spent the weekend in Greenville and attended the Ball.

Saturday found Betty Sue Staton and Mickie Sumrell in Raleigh on a "real gone" shopping spree. The girls, like all wise shoppers, found the cutest evening gowns in the first store, but had to look a little more before going back and making their purchases. The girls bought several spring outfits and accessories plus their evening gowns for the Junior-Senior in May.

The Haskett Chapter of the National Honor Society sent four delegates to the State NHS Convention in Salisbury March 15, 16 and 17. Madelyn Coleman, Sharon Wilfong, Ronita Respass, Lelia Davenport, and Miss Frances Smith, adviser, were among the 300 other delegates.

Thursday night the girls attended a dinner at Salisbury's new high school cafeteria Friday afternoon they attended open house at the Salisbury Country Club and that night a banquet and dance. They attended several business sessions and discussion groups.

The girls stayed in private homes and even Sharon, who discovered a board under her mattress, slept well. Lela drove her car so they didn't have any transportation problems.

The Journalism students who went to New York are just bubbling over with news about the big city. Frances Smith, Beth Murray, Nancy Brown, Mrs. Carlos Murray and Mrs. Claude J. Goodman arrived at Penn Station Tuesday night.

They began attending convention sessions at Columbia University Wednesday. They missed hearing Cliff Daniel, Margaret Truman's fiancé, by one hour, but Mrs. Goodman attended a mass interview with actress Pier Angeli and singer Vic Damone. The convention ended with luncheon at the Waldorf Astoria Saturday.

The girls saw three plays, including "No Time For Sergeants" with Andy Griffith of Mount Airy. Saturday night the girls thrilled over Elvis Presley while seeing "Stage Show" while Mrs. Goodman and Mrs. Murray enjoyed Guy Lombardo.

Even the snow didn't hamper the thrill of learning that GREEN LIGHTS won a first place rating. The Durham paper was the only North Carolina high school paper to receive the higher medalist rating.

Monday night Jeanne Moe had several of her friends over for a birthday party. Those attending were Nancy Ann Hoot, Doris Davenport, Alice Lee Edwards, Joanna Rooke, Nancy Harris, Memrie Mosier and Lois Brown. Grayson Waldrop, Frances Smith, Nancy Brown, Madelyn Coleman, Martha Rose Moore and Ginger Sermons also were on hand.

Monday night none other than Patsy Flanagan and Kathryn Johnson played tennis at the park. It was a little cold but, well, some people just like tennis!

Lost Patient To Homesickness

GALESBURG, Ill. (AP)—Homesickness overcame 14-year-old Robert Hatt who was clad only in pajamas and shoes when he sneaked out of St. Mary's Hospital and walked home through snow and freezing temperatures.

Hospital authorities discovered their loss when they were prepared to take X-rays of the boy. They found him fast asleep in his own bed.

Closed Circuit TV For Teaching

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan State University, originator of Michigan's first educational television station, is conducting experiments with closed-circuit TV as a teaching medium. Nearly 500 students, most of them in science courses, attend class at least part of the time by sitting before a TV monitor in classrooms while an instructor presents their study material in the building's auditorium.

The Fountain Junior Women's Club, sponsors of Girl Scouts of Fountain Troop 43, gave a party for the girl scouts and their escorts Friday night at the Community Building.

Thirty guests attended. After several active games and several rounds of Bingo, refreshments were served and the party ended with dancing until ten.

Circle 2 of Fountain Presbyterian Church met with Mrs. J. A. Mercer as hostess Tuesday night with thirteen members and one visitor present. Mrs. E. C. Newton, chairman, opened the meeting with the devotional for the evening on Jacob and his family. Mrs. Eloise Bushman gave a program on "Evangelism" and an article "We must Stop Playing Church" by Charles Templeton, stating that "Ways of Sharing Christ With Others" would be the prayer emphasis for the month of March.

Mrs. Newton read some letters of information on the Fountain Church history and the history of the church circles. Mrs. Newton also read the names of the different committees who took part in serving a Fellowship supper Sunday afternoon at five-thirty o'clock in the Church Fellowship Hall. At the conclusion of the program the hostess served refreshments.

Supper was served in the Fountain Presbyterian Church Fellowship Hall by the Women of the Church Sunday at five thirty o'clock in honor of the Rev. Russell Flemming of Rocky Mount, who is the guest speaker in the Fountain Presbyterian Church revival services being conducted in the church this week.

An unusually light docket of four cases was disposed of in police court here yesterday.

Henry Jones, Negro, of Route 3, paid $10 for being drunk.

William Staton, Negro, of Vanderbilt Lane, was found not guilty of assault on a female. Gertrude Staton and Jessie Mae Staton, Negroes, of Greene Street Alley, were found guilty of assault and paid costs.

The court also placed them on good behavior for 12 months and directed Gertrude to pay a $35 medical bill.

Blind Musician Is Star Witness

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) A blind musician with a Braille watch was a star defense witness yesterday for a Mount Sterling undertaker.

Calvin Reeves, 25, testified he was talking to W. D. Banks at Mount Sterling at the time of a wreck which killed two persons.

Asked to demonstrate his ability to tell time by the Braille watch, Reeves missed by only one minute in agreeing with a courtroom clock.

Banks is accused in damage suits totaling $362,500 of illegally passing a carload of Morehead College coeds, causing their car and another to collide.

Russia, with 50 million bushels annually is the world's leading producer of buckwheat, says the National Geographic Society.

Lots Of Talk, No Action On Changing Electoral College

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, D. C. — For 159 years—ever since 1787—Congress has talked about amending the Constitution to change the Electoral College system of choosing a president and vice president. The Senate, debating it again, is wading in muddy water. Democrats and Republicans are divided among themselves. Neither friends nor foes of the amendment being considered can positively predict its ultimate effect if it became law.

Because delegates to the Constitutional Convention in 1787 didn't trust the wisdom of the average voter in choosing a president and vice president, they put this method into the Constitution: Each state would choose distinguished citizens—equal in number to a state's total number of senators and representatives in Congress—to select a president and vice president. These citizens were called electors.

The framers of the Constitution

'Good Behavior' Was Very Brief

RUTHERFORDTON, N. C. — Early yesterday afternoon Walter Wilson Jr., 20, was convicted in Rutherford County Recorders Court of assaulting his wife, Judge Forrest Robertson fined him $50 and costs and gave him a two-year sentence, suspended upon good behavior.

An hour later officers arrested him again and charged him with assaulting his wife in a telephone booth. He went back to court again and was convicted and sentenced to four years. He appealed and posted $3,000 bond.

didn't foresee the rise of the big political parties which use the electoral system this way: Each party in each state picks a slate of electors. When a party's candidate wins the popular vote in a state, all that party's electors vote for its candidate although, under the Constitution, they could vote for whom they pleased.

A state's electoral votes all go to the candidate winning a plurality of the popular vote. For example: in a state with 45 electoral votes candidate Smith gets 500,000 popular votes and candidate Jones gets 499,000. By that 1,000-vote margin candidate Smith gets all 45 electoral votes while the 499,000 people who voted for Jones count for nothing.

This has long been criticized as a weak spot in the electoral system. Why not a constitutional amendment to let a president and vice president be chosen directly by popular vote?

It is not being seriously considered now. It seems to have little chance. The Constitution can't be amended unless—in addition to two thirds of the Senate and House—36 of the 48 states approve.

The three-part main proposal for amending the Constitution now being considered in the Senate would retain the electoral system but work this way, with some of the arguments being offered against it:

No. 1. No candidate would automatically get all of a state's elec-

The Old Pros Are Hard At Work On MGM Film

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — Whether they're on a baseball diamond, a tennis court or a movie stage, it's wonderful to watch the old pros at work.

Two of the best pros are working together out at MGM these days. Barbara Stanwyck and James Cagney are playing in "All Our Yesterdays." Together they know just about all there is to know about film acting.

They went through the rehearsal of a long scene with utter precision. Yet despite their familiarity with the scene, they brought their characters alive. There was nothing mechanical about their work. As I watched them, I couldn't help comparing their craftsmanship with the new T-shirt and tantrum school of acting.

Afterwards, I collared Cagney and asked him what he thought about these young actors who believe in scratching their bellies or doing anything that comes naturally.

"Well, it seems to me it's all a difference between the subjective and objective schools of acting," he replied. "These kids believe acting is all subjective. They bury themselves in the character and get so wrapped up that they don't let the audience in on it. I think that's a mistake."

"I still think acting is a matter of projection. You work out a character, then you project it to the audience. That's all there is to it."

Sounds simple, doesn't it? But it becomes an art when practiced by a talent like Cagney. He may well be rewarded for it with another Oscar tonight. He was nominated for his deftly shaded role as the Gimp in "Love Me or Leave Me."

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

It took a few minutes to dispose of Eben Holborn. When he was gone, Michael held Charlotte until her tears subsided, then he spoke warily. "Tell me about it, Lotty."

"You've got to take me away from Seattle, Michael."

"That's impossible, Lotty. I'm Meg Beaumont's counsel, and even if I were not I couldn't take you anywhere."

At the mention of Meg, her mouth tightened. He knew it was a bad sign when she controlled her anger and reached out to him. "Michael, you said you loved me. I need you."

His silence bothered her. Her fingers curled confidently into his; she bent toward him. "Michael, I always thought I could depend on you."

With painful clarity, Michael knew this was true. Anger rose in him.

"Are you asking me to marry you, Lotty?"

He saw swift surprise cross her face, knew she hadn't thought as far as marriage, had wanted him only as an expedient way out of trouble.

"You—you said you loved me, Michael. He knew all her tricks, the sweet submission, the false surrender. Now that love no longer provided illusion, he saw that essentially she was as ruthless as Ryerson or Barclay. The men had a strength she lacked; she possessed only the persistence of a greedy child.

Supremely confident of her own charm, she slipped her arms about his neck, lifted her lips. "Michael, I've been so blind. It was always you."

She must have seen he had no intention of kissing her. Her eyes held his with a concentration she had never shown. She tightened her arms, brought her body against him, gave him a long, full kiss.

Briefly Michael's mouth and body remembered the girl he had loved, had wanted for so long. Instantly the vision blurred.

Charlotte was no novice in the moods of men. She was as angry as Michael. She was as swiftly controlled. "Michael can't you forgive me?" Her voice soared upward. Against her will despair showed. "I need you!"

He sensed her pleading and her fear. Both touched him. He knew with completeness that she would come to him now on any terms. Suddenly he understood Meg's feeling for Kemp. He had been her responsibility; she could not release it. If he had married Charlotte, he would now be bound to her past desire, past love. Thank heaven, she'd jilted him!

Charlotte's voice hardened. "It's that murdering Beaumont woman. You're in love with her. Maybe you killed her husband!"

He welcomed her anger. He was more capable of dealing with Charlotte furious than Charlotte seductive. "Tell me your trouble, Lotty."

She flung away from him, but he brought her back, releasing her wrist only when she stopped struggling. Her right hand worked at the wrist he had held. She was sullen. "Barclay's going to divorce me. He—Clyde Ryerson was in the room."

"Your bedroom, Lotty?"

She glared at him. "Yes."

"I see. And had you had an affair with Ryerson?"

"How dare you!" Charlotte yelled. At the impassive scrutiny with which Michael regarded her, she backed into the nearest chair and lapsed into melancholy silence.

"Did Barclay catch you red-handed, Lotty?"

She began to cry. "No! He—Clyde made love but... but—nothing."

"Nothing happened?"

"No."

Michael believed her. He remembered their own aborted love scene. Charlotte must have sought him out because even then she was infatuated with Ryerson and was afraid.

"You've told Barclay that nothing happened?"

"He—he called me a—liar."

Michael sighed. "Where's your coat, Lotty?" He found it, made her stand up, thrust her arms into the sleeves.

"Where are you taking me?"

"Home. He ignored her protests. When she pulled away from him at the door, he leaned against the jamb and spoke to her with the weary accents of a parent.

"Look, Lotty, you don't have any mistaken notion that Ryerson's going to send for you?"

She tossed her head and refused to answer.

"Listen, Lotty, for I'm not going over this again. Ryerson won't send for you, and if he did, you wouldn't take to hiding in alleys and running from sheriffs." When her lovely mouth pouted, he lifted his voice. "And I'm not taking you on either. Get that out of your head. You've got to get Barclay to take you back."

He glimpsed a fleeting recognition of the truth in her eyes and had sympathy for her. She preceded him down the stairs and did not speak during the hack ride to her home.

Only when the hack was gone and they mounted the steps did she break her silence. Her fingers dug into his arm. "I'm—I'm afraid of Barclay, Michael."

"Good," Michael was casual. "A little fear will be healthy for you, my girl."

The Chinese servant received them with blank courtesy, accepted Michael's hat and coat, told them Barclay was in the parlor.

Charlotte hung back, but Michael, with firm hand, propelled her forward. Barclay, his back to them, stood by the window, looking across the town. He turned when Michael spoke, masked his quick surprise, looked pointedly over his wife's head.

"What can I do for you, Dark?"

"I've brought back your wife."

"It was," said Barclay, "a needless trip. My wife is no longer welcome here."

Charlotte wheeled angrily but Michael caught her arm.

"Don't be a fool, Barclay. You married her; you knew the nature of the woman you married. Isn't there something about better or worse? She tells me it wasn't the worse, I believe her."

"That's your privilege," Barclay resolutely avoided looking at Charlotte. "Allow me my own opinion."

Maybe, Michael decided, Charlotte had some justification. Living with Barclay must be like cuddling up to Mount Rainier's crest! He caught Barclay's eye and read misery.

"Use your head, man! You've lived with Charlotte for years. Does she strike you as a woman who'd throw her cap over a windmill? Do you honestly imagine Charlotte considering the world well lost for love?"

Barclay's expression wavered. "You believe that—Michael, you think that—"

Charlotte married you, Barclay. You can't let her go without regret. You've a chance to hold the reins for a change. Don't forget you own a whip.

Charlotte wept. She always managed to do it more beautifully than other women. Before Michael had closed the door behind him he was pretty sure Barclay had her in his arms.

He walked through a chill wind and a needling rain to the Cox house. His mouth twitched. It had been a ridiculous scene. His part as counselor in matrimony had been the most ludicrous part of it. No matter. He was at last, free of Charlotte. Both Lindens would steer clear of him in the future. Neither would want a reminder of his knowledge.

PAR TIME 28 MIN. AP News Service 3-22

Daylight Saving Time Planned In Nineteen States

NEW YORK, (AP)—Daylight saving time will be observed in all or parts of 19 states and the District of Columbia this year.

A survey showed today that some states have extended it to late October.

Mostly, daylight time will start at 2 a.m., April 29, the last Sunday of the month.

In those areas which have extended it, clocks will be set back to standard time at 2 a.m., Oct. 28. Otherwise it ends at 1 a.m., Sunday, Sept. 30.

Daylight saving time got its big push in World War I when it was used to save power. But lots of people got to like the extra hour of sunshine in the garden, at the beach, on the golf course or tennis court or in the front porch rocker.

Some organized recreation interests apparently don't. A bill to approve "fast time" was introduced in Utah's 1955 Legislature. The House passed it but the Senate killed it. Outdoor movie, night baseball and labor interests opposed it.

Farmers don't like it either. They can't get into the fields before the dew dries anyhow and it doesn't hurry up the livestock for feeding.

Daylight time makes for some confusion. The cross-country railroads generally follow standard time. Commuter lines observe local time. The airlines generally just list arrivals and departures by local time.

It also gives radio and television networks a hard time in programming, but they solve the problem.

Anyhow, this year "fast time" will be observed in whole or in part of California, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Virginia and the District of Columbia.

In Missouri, only St. Louis will observe it. In New Mexico the atomic city of Los Alamos will be the sole observer.

KIM GOING ABROAD

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Kim Novak of the films, headed for the Cannes Film Festival, has applied for a passport. She also will tour the Continent in connection with the "Eddie Duchin Story" in which she costars with Tyrone Power.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rallied today and managed a modest advance in the early afternoon.

The trend was somewhat lower at the start, and then buyers focused their attention on the steel and radio-television stocks.

That started a general buying move throughout the list and prices edged ahead.

Gains weren't very great, between 1 and 2 points at the best, and there were some losses that entered that area.

Trading was relatively moderate at a pace well below the 2,900,000 shares traded in yesterday's lower market.

In addition to the rise in the steel and radio-television stocks, many good plus signs were found in the metals, aircrafts, nonferrous metals, chemicals, railroads and airlines.

At noon, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 20 cents at $188.70. The loss yesterday at the close was $1.30. The average on Tuesday was at a record high mark.

Some Democrats See Repudiation Of Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several Democrats contended today that Sen. Estes Kefauver's upset Minnesota primary victory was a "repudiation" by Republican voters of President Eisenhower's farm program.

A number of Republicans sharply rejected that suggestion, although some of them acknowledged they are concerned over the effect on voters of the long decline in farm income.

Senators of both parties saw the result as a big boost for Kefauver. Several Democrats renewed pledges of support for Adlai Stevenson, whom he defeated, while conceding Stevenson had suffered a bit setback in his campaign to win the Democratic presidential nomination.

Sen. Anderson (D-NM), former secretary of agriculture who has backed major portions of the Eisenhower administration's farm program, said in an interview: "The Minnesota vote with thousands of Republicans entering the Democratic primary indicates the Democrats will carry every state in the farm belt, regardless of who is the nominee."

Mr. Humphrey (D-Minn), who joined with Minnesota's Democratic Gov. Orville Freeman to support Stevenson, said Stevenson's "spirit is high and his determination unwavering," and he added: "His supporters are equally unwavering."

Sen. Lehman (D-NY), saying he was "a little surprised at the great vote" by which Kefauver carried Minnesota, added: "I still believe Adlai Stevenson is the best qualified man for the presidency, and I shall continue to support him as I have in the past."

Miss Marion Burton, a second grade teacher in Lewis School in Kinston, left Thursday to attend the North Carolina Education Association in Asheville. Miss Burton was a delegate from that school to the Democratic primary.

Democratic primary was a "stunning repudiation of the Eisenhower-Benson farm fiasco," Ezra Taft Benson, secretary of agriculture, termed Stevenson the candidate "most feared" by the Republicans.

Humphrey said if Republicans did not invade the Democratic primary to embarrass him the only other possible conclusion is that Republicans flocked to the Democratic banner because they are repudiating their own party.

Sen. Aiken of Vermont, chief Senate backer of the administration in August seeking the nomination, retorted that "the Minnesota vote indicated an uprising against a group, rather than the farm program."
