Impact Heavily Damaged Car

DEATH CAR—This is the car in which Mrs. Martha James was riding when she was killed in an accident Saturday afternoon. The 85-year-old woman had been brought to Bethel by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Katie James for treatment at a Bethel Clinic. The pair were returning to their home on U. S. 64 east when the accident ocgurred. Theodore Roosevelt Jenkins, Negro operator of the second vehicle involved in the accident, has been released under $1,000 bond. Truck-Auto Collision Kills 85-Year-Old Pitt Woman

BETHEL—The driver of a truck which was involved in a collision that resulted in the death of an 85-year-old woman Saturday afternoon has been released under $1,000 bond.

He is Theodore Roosevelt Jenkins, 46-year-old Negro, of Greenville Route 6.

The truck he was driving was involved in a collision with a car operated by Mrs. Katie James, Killed in the accident was Mrs. James' mother-in-alw, Mrs. Martha James, 85. The two women, both of near Bethel, were the only occupants of the car.

2 Jenkins told investigating patrolman D. E. Perry that he was making a left turn off U.S. 64 into a paved road west of Bethel when the collision occurred.

Jenkins was headed east on U S. 64 and Mrs. James west.

Patrolman Perry said that Mrs. James apparently turned to the left when she saw the truck crossing the highway and the right side of her car, the side on which the elder Mrs. James was riding, was torn away in the collision.

Jenkins, who received a badly cut right hand in the accident, said it was raining at the time the crash occurred.

Mrs. Katie James also received minor injuries in the accident and she was treated at Bethel Clinic.

Doctors said that Mrs. Martha James received multiple fractures of the neck, spine and hips. Death was due to multiple fractures plus age.

A number of girls riding in the truck with Jenkins were uninjured in the accident.

Perry said that Jenkins' driver's license expired in February, 1955.

The Jameses had left the Bethel Clinic only a short time before the accident occurred. The elderly woman had been brought to the medical center for treatment by her daughter-in-law and the pair were returning to their home west of Bethel when the accident occurred.

One of the first to reach the scene of the accident was Mrs. Katie James' son, who was headed toward Bethel only a short distance behind Jenkins' pick-up truck.

Jenkins said he was going to Bethel to purchase clothes for his three children. His wife is an inmate of the State Mental Hospital in Goldsboro.

Jenkins lives on the H. L. Lewis Sr. farm and Lewis is the owner of the truck which Jenkins was operating.

Speculation On 3 Governors As Party Bosses Clash In Debate

Seek Alternate Demo Candidates

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some Democrats casting about for alternates to the two active seekers of the party's presidential nomination speculated yesterday about three governors — A. B. (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky, Averell Harriman of New York and Frank Lausche of Ohio

The active candidates, Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Adlai Stevenson, focused their attention on California's June 5 primary, their last direct clash. Kefauver is campaigning there. Stevenson plans to fly there later in the week to talk with campaign workers.

Republicans were generally quiet on political matters over the weekend, but GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall took on his Democratic counterpart Paul M. Butler in a sometimes noisy CBS television debate from Philadelphia.

When Butler asked whethere the people can hope for successful guidance of foreign affairs if President Eisenhower delegates duties to others, Hall retorted that "the President has not asked that any powers be delegated at all."

Hall accused the Democrats in Congress of "stalling" on new farm legislation, and said this might cost farmers a billion dollars this year.

Butler pointed to a big gain in the proportion of Democratic to Republican votes in last week's Minnesota primary, and said this indicated dissatisfaction with administration policies, including its farm program.

"Republicans weren't in the Minnesota primary," Hall replied "We were on the sidewalk watching."

Since Kefauver upset Stevenson in Minnesota, there has been increased talk among some party members about other possible candidates.

Several have boomed Sen Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, who says he is not a candidate. A weekend report from Chicago indicated that the Stevenson camp regards Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri as a dark horse contender of growing strength.

Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas declined to say yesterday whether he would back Johnson for the nomination. Asked on an NBC television interview to name persons he would support, Shivers mentioned only Lausche.

Shivers bolted the Democratic ticket in 1952 and supported Eisenhower, who carried Texas. As to what he will do this year, Shivers said, "That all depends on the conditions, the nominees and the platforms."

Sen. Allen Ellender (D-La) said he welcomes reports that Chandler may seek the nomination. Chandler has not commented. "Happy is a mighty fine fellow," Ellender said, "and he certainly would be more acceptable to most Southern Democrats than either Kefauver or Harriman."

Ellender, who previously had endorsed Johnson, said he thinks the South would develop a third party if the Democrats nominated either Kefauver or Hariman.

Harriman, arriving in West Palm Beach for a Florida vacation, said Saturday night that "New York political forces have decreed that I should be available" for the presidential nomination. He added he would not accept the vice presidential nomination.

Both Kefauver and his campaign manager, F. Joseph Donohue, said they think Kefauver would be acceptable to the South. Kefauver, speaking on an NBC-TV program from Los Angeles yesterday, said he doesn't think his stand on racial integration will hurt him in the South.

Donohue, in a CBS-TV interview from Washington, declared: "I say without equivocation that Sen. Kefauver can and will carry the South."

Here are some of the things other political figures were saying:

Former President Harry S. Truman told a gathering of young Kansas Democrats he is "very fond" of Eisenhower, "but he doesn't know any more about how to run the government of the United States than any one of you."

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz): "The farm situation is not good . . . I'm afraid of an apathetic attitude among farmers who might not vote for either party." Goldwater told a meeting of Indiana Associated Press members at French Lick that if such a "sitdown vote" should develop, the election in November could be very close.

Democratic Chairman Butler, speaking at the same meeting, renewed his accusation that much of the nation's press is "strictly one-party," favorable to the Republicans.

An Associated Press poll of Maine's 24 delegates having 14 votes at the Democratic National Convention showed a slight leaning toward Stevenson, but many of them indicated they expect the nomination to go to a dark horse.

Challenge

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Russia with a big new twin-jet airliner reported in mass production ahead of Britain and the United States has launched a bold challenge for air routes in Europe and Asia.

The airliner is the TU104, the sleek plane which carried Soviet security chief Ivan Serov to London last week and created a sensation among Western aviation experts.

Marshal S. F. Zhavorankov, chief of the Soviet civil airline Aeroflot, said the plane is in mass production and will be put into international rather than domestic service.

Negotiations already are under way with Norway, Sweden and Denmark on behalf of Scandinavian Airlines for reciprocal direct flights between Moscow and Stockholm and Copenhagen.

Other projected international Soviet routes would link Moscow with Peiping, New Delhi and Kabul, Afghanistan. Zhavornokov said Russia plans a direct Moscow-to-London jet service "if the traffic warrants it."

Stevenson Going Into California For Campaign

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Adlai Stevenson is coming galloping into California this week on the heels of rapid-running Estes Kefauver in their race for the state's 68 Democratic presidential delegate votes.

Sen. Kefauver arrived in San Francisco last Thursday and today enters the fourth day of strenuous campaigning in southern California. He'll be in these parts until tomorrow night.

Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic nominee who last week lost resoundingly to Kefauver in Minnesota, evidently decided it was high time he visited California again. His Chicago headquarters announced unexpectedly that he will fly here for conferences with campaign workers and appearances Wednesday and Thursday in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

A spokesman for Kefauver said the senator was aware of the Stevenson-California plans but was not commenting.

Kefauver has been hot-footing it around Los Angeles, Orange and Riverside counties to women's breakfasts, club luncheons, party workers assemblies, garden parties, a postal workers meeting, labor group sessions and dedication of a high school.

He said yesterday on the NBC TV program Youth Wants to Know that he believes "everyone will have a chance" at a "fair, open convention."

He said "there were some influential people who used their power against me" in 1952 but he has been assured these pressures wouldn't be used this time.

He said he would welcome former President Truman's backing, adding, "It is certainly easier to win with President Truman's support."

In Washington, Kefauver's national campaign manager, F. Joseph Donohue, said on the CBS Face the Nation TV show: "I say without equivocation that Sen. Kefauver can and will carry the South." Donohue said Kefauver is "getting substantial financial help from the South."

Kefauver plans to fly back to Washington tomorrow night.

Churchman Raps 'Black Magic'

LONDON (AP)—A leading Anglican churchman has condemned "black magic" after a newspaper reported orgies in the pagan rites were rife in Britain.

Canon Bryan Green, rector of Birmingham, warned his parishioners to "keep clear of black magic," the rites which seek to enlist spirits for evil purposes.

A Scotland Yard officer said, "The police do not dismiss black magic lightly. Any fresh evidence will be thoroughly investigated."

The Sunday Reynolds News, reporting the cult was widespread in Britain, said some members were "well known publicly."

"They claim to be practicising an ancient pre-Christian religion," the newspaper said; "but this is merely a cover for obscene, degrading practices."

A man who claimed to have been in touch with leaders of the cult was quoted as saying:

"The ritual demands the sacrifice of human blood. This may seem fantastic to ordinary, decent people. But to the followers of the 'black arts' the danger attached to such sacrifice is symbolic of their determination to match, for their pagan beliefs, the sufferings of early Christians for their beliefs. This is the way their warped minds work."

Reynolds News said there were 400 active cult members in the English Midlands alone.

Canon Green, a well known evangelist who has preached in the United States, said:

"I understand there has been a revival of black magic practices in Birmingham. I want to utter a condemnation and a warning.

"Nothing can be worse or more depraved than the deliberate dissortion of the beautiful and natural gift of sex for sensations and perverted feelings of gratification. And this is what black magic does.

Security Council Gathering Today

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U. N. Security Council gathered today to take up a U. S. proposal that would send Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold on a peace mission to the Middle East.

Chief U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. was expected to introduce such a resolution formally soon after the 11-nation council convened this afternoon at his request to discuss the potentially explosive situation along Israel's borders with her Arab neighbors—Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon and Syria.

The American resolution asks Hammarskjold to undertake urgent discussion with all parties concerned and with the U. N. Palestine truce chief in Jerusalem Canadian Maj. Gen. Edson L. M. Burns. It asks him to arrange adoption of measures to "reduce existing tensions" along the armistice lines.

The big Western Powers had hoped that the resolution could be approved today. Hammarskjold had intended to leave right after Easter for London, Paris and the Middle Eastern capitals. But Arab maneuvers over the weekend put this timetable in doubt.

Delegate Rafik Asha of Syria and Edward Rizk of Lebanon first informally requested postponement of today's meeting. Later, instead of following through with formal requests for postponement, they said they would ask permission to participate in the council debate without a vote. It the Arabs do so, Israel, and this will prolong the debate considerably.

One-Killing Reported During 24-Hour Restriction

Stern Cyprus Curfew Ends

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—The population of Cyprus went back to work as usual today after the British ended their unprecedented 24-hour curfew on the east Mediterranean island colony.

One killing and some minor violence were reported during the 4 a.m.-to-4 a.m. restriction the British ordered to prevent an outbreak yesterday on Greek Independence Day.

But with Cypriots free to roam the streets and countryside again, there was a fresh threat of violence from pro-Greek islanders seeking to get rid of their British colonial government. There were recurring reports, also, that another general strike might break out later this week.

British intelligence agents pressed a search during the curfew for the mysterious chieftain of the Cypriot rebels. They had been tipped off that the shadowy rebel leader, known only as "Dighennis" after a legendary Greek hero, was disguised as a black-robed Greek Orthodox priest.

The British governor, Field Marshal Sir John Harding, ordered an absolute curfew in 15 cities and a limited curfew elsewhere to avoid possible violence on the 135th anniversary of Greece's independence from Turkey.

More than 160,000 Cypriots were sealed in their homes in the 15 cities during the curfew. Outside the cities, the rest of the island's 500,000 Cypriots were restricted to the immediate vicinity of their homes. Virtually the entire 18,000-man British garrison and the entire police force moved about on the alert to throttle any violence.

Masked men shot and killed a Turkish Cypriot in a coffee shop near Limassol. The assassins escaped.

A bomb was tossed at a military patrol in Paphos port, 60 miles southwest of Nicosia. A Greek woman was injured slightly. Other bombings were reported in a village near Paphos and at a police station near Kyrenia. There were no casualties and damage was slight.

Greek-origin Cypriots are seeking union with Greece. Harding deported their leader Archbishop Makarios March 9 on charges he had sponsored violence which has cost the lives of 22 British soldiers.

During the curfew, only government authorities, police, troops and newsmen generally were permitted to move about.

In Athens, Independence Day also passed quietly. Riot police guarded the British and Turkish embassies during the annual military parade. A small group of students broke windows on some British-owned buses during the chief attempt at anti-British demonstration. Police scattered the students with their clubs, injuring four of them.

Farm Bill Before Joint Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate-House conference committee takes over today the task of rewriting the election year farm bill.

Subject to later approval by both the Senate and the House, the five senators and five representatives will decide between rigid and flexible price supports, means of determining parity prices, provision of the soil bank plan and other regulations governing farmers' actions this year.

Sen. Ellender (D-La), chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee and head of the Senate conferees, still talked hopefully of an agreement before Congress begins a 10-day Easter recess Thursday. Major differences between the two bills made that appear unlikely.

Rep. Cooley D-NC), chairman of the House Agriculture Committee called off a scheduled appearance tomorrow by Secretary of Agriculture Benson before his committee. Benson was to have discussed various provisions of the Senate bill with committee members, but Cooley said he wanted to head off "any more propagandizing" by Benson.

Instead, Cooley said, he would ask for Benson's views in writing.

Cooley said he acted after a news story quoted Benson that his meeting with the House group would give him a chance for further "missionary work" on the farm bill.

"It's too late to do any missionary work," Cooley said in an interview. "We're facing the facts. We don't want Mr. Benson to use our committee room as a forum."

The Senate bill includes provisions for a new $1,200,000,000 soil bank plan, 500 million dollars additional funds for price support buying of perishable farm products, new "domestic parity" plans for wheat and rice, and a variety of other proposals. None of these has been formally considered by the House.

By contrast the House version is simple. It calls for restoration of mandatory 90 per cent of parity supports on cotton wheat, corn, rice and peanuts and an increase in the minimum level of dairy supports from 75 to 80 per cent of parity.

Moderates Win Tunisia Election

TUNIS (AP)—Tunisia's moderate National Front today appeared to have won all 98 seats in the Constituent Assembly.

Only 7 per cent of the North African country's 750,000 registered voters heeded a call from the extremist wing of the Neo-Destour (Independence) party to boycott the legislative elections yesterday. It was the first vote since France promised Tunisia independence.

Unofficial incomplete returns gave 597,813 of the 616,989 votes tallied thus far to the front led by Habib Bourguiba's moderate faction of the Neo-Destour. The Communists, who put up only about 20 candidates, had polled only 7,353 votes.

The rest of the ballots were voided by mistakes in voting.

Other opposition groups refused to offer slates.

Abstentions were heaviest in Tunis, the capital, and in Djerba, native town of the extremist Neo-Destour leader, Salah Ben Youssef. Only about 55 per cent of those eligible voted in Tunis and about 30 per cent in Djerba.

Eisenhower And Neighbors Meet

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — President Eisenhower meets here today with the leaders of Canada and Mexico for talks aimed at building good will with the United States' next door neighbors.

Both President Adolfo Ruiz Cortines of Mexico and Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent of Canada arranged to fly to Charleston, W. Va., and ferry here in light planes suitable for landing at the smaller Greenbrier airport.

Diplomatic officials said the sole purpose of the gathering, which was Eisenhower's idea is to afford neighborly talks among the three North American powers. No one could recall a precedent for such a three-way conference. The United States has many common interests with each of the other countries, but aside from a general interest in peace and hemispheric security there are no important issues of common concern to all three.

The series of talks will begin this evening. Other sessions are scheduled for tomorrow, winding up with dinner tomorrow evening. All three principals will leave Wednesday morning.

Peach Crop Still In Good Shape

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Moderating weather spread over the major peach-producing areas of the Carolinas last night and spared the crop from further damage.

There was no freeze, no frost, in the big commercial orchards of North Carolina's Sandhills section or in the South Carolina Ridge section or in the rolling, blossom-pinked hills of Spartanburg, Greenville and Cherokee counties.

Frost in many sections Saturday night apparently wrought damage in several areas, but orchardists said it might be several davs before the loss could be assessed.

One year ago tomorrow a killing freeze left Carolinas peach orchards bare of fruit. The two-state loss was estimated at 26 million dollars.

Last night's minimum temperatures ranged in the 40s. Early Sunday afternoon weather forecasts had given fruit growers a fright with a warning that frost and freeze might be on the way.

The Saturday night cold had left spotty results. A few orchards escaped entirely, while damage was heavy in a few.

"The majority of peach growers are still in good shape," said Clarence Black, superintendent of the Sandhills Research Station at Candor.

Clouds and warm air which moved into the area last night were a moderating factor. The Asheville - Hendersonville airport had the lowest reading, 25 degrees. Other low temperatures included Wilmington 43, Raleigh-Durham airport 42, Charlotte 43, Cherry Point and Hatteras 40, Elizabeth City and New Bern 39, Winston-Salem 38 Greensboro 37, and Hickory 36.

It will take a few days yet to assess the full damage, but even in the two richest sections there were some growers who faced another black year. O. W. Lanier of Spartanburg said he had about lost his $70,000 crop.

"Banks carried most of us over last year," he said. "They won't be able to afford it again if we haven't got security."

His case was not typical.

Horticulturist Roy J. Ferree of the Clemson College Farm Extension Service said his survey of Spartanburg, Greenville, Lexing-

Violence In Florida, Georgia Highlights Segregation Scene

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Scattered violence and a declaration that the South is not bluffing in its determination to win a legal reversal of the U.S. Supreme Court decisions highlighted the tense segregation scene yesterday.

At Pensacola, Fla., about 100 Negroes attacked and beat two white men after a Negro was shot, and in Atlanta five Negroes escaped injury when an explosion damaged a home in the northwest section into which they moved last Friday.

The Pensacola incident developed in a predominantly Negro section while two Pensacola white men, Johnnie J. Maloy, 50, and Hillary Calhoun, 41, were selling oranges from a truck.

Sheriff's deputies said Maloy accused a Negro of stealing a crate of oranges, drew a gun and fired twice. A bullet struck Foster King, a 34-year-old Negro, in the leg.

Deputies said Love Andrews, 29-year-old Negro, took the gun away from Maloy and then other Negroes swarmed over both men. Maloy suffered a brain concussion and a compound fracture of the leg. Andrews was held without bond on a charge of affray. Calhoun was arrested on the same charge and then freed under $100 bond.

The Atlanta explosion occurred in a predominantly white section where some homes have been sold to Negroes. A similar blast was reported Feb. 25 in the same area.

Police did not determine what caused the blast which shattered part of the foundation of the frame structure and tore a hole in the living room floor. A white neighbor whose home suffered minor damage told police three Negro adults and two children moved out of the house with their belongings about five hours after the explosion.

In Washington, Sen. Stennis (D-Miss) said one purpose of a manifesto signed by 101 Southern senators and House members was to alert all sections of the nation to what he called Southern determination to win a legal reversal of the Supreme Court decrees outlawing segregation in the schools.

"People in other sections of the nation think we are bluffing about this," he said in a TV interview. "We are not bluffing."

Find More Emphasis On Film Violence, Sadism

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Juvenile Delinquency subcommittee said today it had found increasing emphasis on "sadism, brutality and violence" in the movies.

In a report on "Motion Pictures and Juvenile Delinquency," the subcommittee said the movies along with comic books and television "have a tremendous influence on the young child in his early development."

"While once again, as with the comic books and television, no wealth of scientific data can be given as to cause and relationship between delinquent behavior and the mass media," the report said, "it is quite clear that professional people generally view the presentation of brutality and violence in these media as definitely deleterious to the personality development of normal, predelinquent and delinquent children."

The subcommittee said it was advised that motion pictures "could provide the many so-called trigger mechanisms that may initiate and provide the content for anti-social behavior on the part of emotionally disturbed children."

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn), the subcommittee chairman, said in a statement the report "culminates a year of intensive study" by the group.

"Once the industry realized that we were not concerned with the entire motion picture output, but only those pictures that dwelled on brutality, violence, sadism and crime, they quickly joined with us in taking a critical look at a certain portion of their product," Kefauver said.

The report said, "It is honestly believed that the majority of the people in the film-making business, the great majority, are sincere in their efforts to make good products."

Nevertheless, it went on, the production of Western and crime movies "has remained constant or increased slightly" while "the production of noncrime movies has decreased greatly."

The report said the subcommittee definitely was opposed to censorship of movies and felt "the industry generally does a fine job in regulating itself."

However, it said it had found many difficulties in administering the industry's motion picture production code among them that the administrators can only recommend, but not force, changes in a script.

In addition to an overhaul of the motion picture production code the subcommittee recommended that administrators of the code consult with "professional people from the behavioral sciences that research projects be initiated in universities to study the effects of all phases of the mass media, particularly on juveniles, and that studios producing films for television submit them to the production code administrators for approval.

The report singled out several pictures for criticism because of emphasis on crime and violence. Among them were "Big House, USA," "Crashout," "Kiss Me Deadly," "Black Tuesday" and "Ten Wanted Men."

Mental Health Ass'n Sponsors Special Showing

A dramatic film heralding the fight against mental illness will be shown Saturday, from three until 4:30 p. m. over WNCT-TV.

Under the sponsorship of the Pitt County Mental Health Association, the film—"Out Of Darkness"—was produced in consultation with the American Psychiatric Assn. and the National Association of Mental Health.

Dr. William C. Menniger, a nationally known psychiatrist, will serve as medical narrator for the story depicting a young married woman's struggle against mental illness and her subsequent recovery.

Dramatic narration for the film will be provided by Orson Welles who will read portions of an anonymous book written almost 100 years ago by a patient in a European mental hospital.

The story, filmed at Metropolitan State Hospital in Norwalk, California, describes the causes and treatment of mental illness and the scientific advancement being made.

Special Designs For Monaco Bridesmaids Revealed In Dallas

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The eight bridesmaids at the wedding of movie star Grace Kelly and Prince Rainier of Monaco will wear identical gowns of sunlight yellow silk organdie over taffeta.

The gowns have full and fluid wide skirts and bell-shaped sleeves caught to a tiny cuff below, designers at Neiman-Marcus, Dallas specialty store, announced.

Tiny covered buttons extend from simple, small collar to a high obi sash that ties in the back with three separate bows. Flowing streamers extend from the bows.

The hats of misty hairbraid in petal-like layers repeat the pale yellow of the dresses. A small butterfly bow hovers at the back.

The four flower girls will wear white Swiss organdy embroidered with yellow and white daisies and worn over soft yellow organdie petticoats.

Book Club Elects Officers

Officers for next year were elected for the Inter Se Book Club when it met at the home of Mrs. M. P. Hoot on Tuesday.

During the business session the nominating committee presented the following slate which was unanimously accepted: Mrs. David Evans, president; Mrs. T. H. Henderson, vice president; Mrs. Plato Evans, secretary; Mrs. W. W. Smiley, treasurer; Mrs. L. M. Buchanan, librarian; Mrs. A. B. Stallworth, custodian.

The program for the afternoon was given by Mrs. M. P. Hoot. Her subject was "National Parks."

She told how the United States' system of national parks came into existence some 83 years ago through the unique idea that a group of average citizens had of relinquishing their legal and moral rights to profit through private ownership of the area now included in Yellowstone National Park.

Their efforts behind this project were rewarded when Congress established the Yellowstone National Park "as a pleasuring ground for the benefit and enjoyment of the people" in 1872. Here was centered a new conception of land use.

She told of the many phases of interesting work in the United States Park Service and then gave vivid descriptions and locations of each of the 26 national parks.

Her listeners expressed a desire to someday visit some of those located in different parts of the country.

Mrs. Hoot passed folders on all these parks and further created an interest in their spectacular national beauties.

At the close of the program, Mrs. Hoot presented her guest, Mrs. Earl Trevathan, who added some pertinent facts about these parks and the National Park Service.

Mrs. Trevathan was unusually familiar with this subject since her father has been a park superintendent for nearly 30 years in some part of the far west, the Mesa Verde, Bryce, Zion.

Mrs. David Evans, vice president, conducted the business session in the absence of the president.

Spring flowers were used in arrangements throughout the Hoot home.

Refreshments were served from the dining room table which was centered with an Easter motif arrangement of hand painted glass Easter eggs and tiny yellow narcissi and snow drops.

Mrs. Hoot was assisted in the dining room by Mrs. William H. Taft, Mrs. David Evans and Mrs. Lindsay Wilkerson.

Industrialists Question Claim Issue Hurts N. C.

RALEIGH (AP)—Is the segregation controversy checking the flow of Northern industry into North Carolina?

A number of Tar Heel industrial development leaders don't think so. The idea has been expressed in several nationally published newspapers and newsmagazines and currently by economic affairs columnist Sylvia Porter.

She wrote in a column appearing yesterday: "The increasingly violent conflict over integration... will, if it continues, seriously set back the plans of industries all over America to expand in and move to the Southeast."

William P. Saunders, head of the State Department of Conservation and Development, said he had heard rumors "to that effect from some of our Northern friends." However, he said no concrete effects of the issue were evident in North Corolina.

"If the Northern people understood us, it wouldn't be so bad. And I think when they do, they'll see we're not so bad after all," Saunders commented.

Said Ben Douglas, chairman of the C&D Department until succeeded by Saunders several months ago, "I'm surprised at the tone of her column...I don't 'hink that problem has affected the move of industry to the South, particularly North Carolina."

Douglas said, "The segregation issue is one that has been here all the time. And I don't see how it has affected the attraction of industry thusfar."

Miss Porter quoted an official of the Fantus Factory Locating Service as saying, "at least 20 corporation moving projects" are being reconsidered "in the light of the situation in the South."

A number of major corporations are contributors to the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), and have a tremendous market among Negroes for their products, which are some of the reasons they are hesitating moving into segregation conflict areas at this time, some writers have pointed out.

Robert M. Hanes, chairman of the C&D Board's commerce and industry committee, said the segregation issue "has had nothing to do with industry in the South."

He said what industrial planners "are looking for are water, electric power, climate and workers. We have all those—and everyone knows North Carolina's workers are the best in the world."

Charles Grant, chief engineer of the C&D Department, said the matter "hasn't come up at all in our work." He said his division's last report indicated a decline in industrial expansion and attraction, but he added that the racial issue ws not considered the cause of that dip.

Rat Poison Kills Two Children

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Two young children died yesterday after apparently eating rat poison they found while rummaging through a kitchen cupboard in their home.

Coroner Loren Bates ordered an autopsy to fix the exact cause of death of Daniel Robb, 5 and his sister Judy, 3, children of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Robb.

Police said the youngsters found the poison while their parents were sleeping.

When Robb and his wife awoke, they found Daniel's clothing smeared with the gooey mixture.

Robb, thinking Daniel only had eaten the poison, rushed him to a hospital. The boy died there.

The father returned home and learned Judy had become ill. She too was taken to the hospital. She died a few hours later.

About 73 per cent of U.S. farms were run by full or part owners in 1950.

Chason of Rocky Mount, public information officer; and Cadet M-Sgt. Marion Laverne Strickland of Battleboro, sergeant major.

Orson Welles Refutes Old Tax-Trouble Story

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Orson Welles is back in town, tubbier but as full of vinegar as ever. He dispels such Wellesian legends as:

1. He exiled himself from the United States because of tax debts;

2. He ever cut his ex-wife, Rita Hayworth, in half in a magic show.

After a long absence, the overage (40) boy wonder is once more in Hollywood, this time to costar with Betty Grable in a CBS-TV spectacular of "20th Century" April 7. But he's not here to stay.

"I never have lived here," he remarked between rehearsals.

"It's nothing particularly against Hollywood. I just don't go for the Southern California life. I don't golf and I don't garden, so there is little for me to do here.

"If I have to live in a city, I want it to be a big city. I am not a suburb dweller."

Despite the loss of 30 pounds during his recent Las Vegas engagement, Welles cuts a bulky figure. His face is as boyish as ever, and his comments are still as pointed as when I saw him here last, six years ago.

He attacked what he called the legend concerning his exile in Europe—that he couldn't return because of tax arrears.

"Utterly ridiculous," he snorted. "That story was printed so many times that people accepted it as fact. Nothing could have been sillier."

His tax troubles were all a misunderstanding, he explained. He said that the government filed a claim against him for deductions which he said were legal.

"They can't do it in England, but in this country it seems possible for them to change the laws to apply to things that happened two or three years before," he said. "I fought the claim and eventually I won. During the suit, I didn't pay taxes, so I had to pay them up afterwards, plus the interest. I've just about finished now; there'll be a small interest payment from this TV show and that will be all.

Concerning another legend: "It is not true that I ever sawed my former wife in half. Rita never appeared in a magic show with me. It was Marlene Dietrich."

The actor said he might do another TV show for CBS, but he has no plans to resume his Hollywood career.

Tri-Jet Bomber Crashes, Burns

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—An XB-51 three-engine jet bomber, the only one of its type in existance, crashed and burned yesterday, killing one man and seriously injuring another.

A 28-year-old staff sergeant whose name is being withheld pending notification of next of kin, was killed and the pilot, Maj. James O. Rudolph, one of the air force's top test pilots, was severely burned when the plane crashed on takeoff.

The plane, based at Edwards Air Force Base in Muroc, Calif., was being flown to Eglin AFB, Fla., where it was to be used in the filming of a motion picture.

Only two XB-51s were constructed and the other crashed in 1952

Moonlight Still Most Romantic

VENICE, Italy (AP)—After eight years of experimenting, scientists have finally found out what lovers knew all along:

You can't beat moonlight on the Grand Canal.

City engineers rather reluctantly have shelved all plans for red and green reflector lighting of Venice's picturesque palaces, and for underwater light effects in the canal itself.

This summer instead, the famed waterway for gondolas will be lighted a soft blue-white, as close as possible to the effect of natural moonlight.

Capacity Crowd At Passion Play

A capacity audience of more than 2,800 viewed the first performance of "The Passion Play" last night in Wright auditorium at East Carolina College.

A religious production depicting the last days of Christ on earth, the play will be presented again this evening and tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. There is no admission charge.

Sponsored by local churches, the production's cast is composed of local citizens. Dr. Joseph A. Withy of the college English Department is directing the play, and Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert of the music faculty is directing the chorus, which is also made up of local talent.

Bill Watson, general chairman for the play, said today, "We are very pleased at the turnout for last night's performance. It was the largest crowd we have ever had for a single performance in the three years we have been producing the play." He noted that large groups from New Bern, Williamston and other points in Eastern North Carolina were on hand.

Hot Water Due Short Circuit

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. Marie Accardi's well suddenly began giving hot water and all kinds of theories were advanced, including one that her house was located over a hot spring.

But Henry Teare, the man who installed the well pump, was called in and quickly discovered a short in the pump motor was sending electricity through the water and heating it, sometimes to a temperature as high as 105 degrees

Women In The Church

"Easter without Good Friday would be unreality; Good Friday without Easter would be unrelieved tragedy," says the Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, D.D., Presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, in an Easter message. "In the providence of God we have both. Sorrow and joy, defeat and victory, death and life are so inextricably intertwined. . . . Holy Week and Eastertide give the enternal answer not in terms of our own success or worthiness but in those of God's mercy and love. Him God raised up. He is risen. With a sense of awe we meet the Christ who has overcome Death and more than Death for us. With renewed hope and courage, with uplifted hearts, we march on through the chances and changes of this mortal life on our pilgrimage to that eternal city whose builder and founder is God."

The United Christian Youth Movement in Evansville, Indiana, polled 1500 of the city's high school youth recently—and learned, among other things, some of the changes churches can make to 'make youth go to church more often." The leading suggestions were "Sermons with more meaning for young people," 'Better youth activities," "Discussion of youth problem," "More opportunities for youth participation," "Better explanation of meaning of religion," "More understanding of youth by church," "Better trained and more interesting leaders," "Less criticism of youth," "Young people should fel more welcome."

"I haven't time" is said to be the most common answer of women who refuse to become active in church organizations today. To this answer the Woman's Society of Christian Service, Methodist Church, makes this reply: "You have all the time there is, twenty-four hours a day. It just depends upon what seem the most important uses to make of it. Personally, we think there aren't many things so well worth putting your time into as the Woman's Society of Christian Service. You can help make the Lord Jesus Christ known to all peoples everywhere and give opportunities for spiritual and social betterment in countries overseas and in our own land through active membership in the Society. Ever keep a record for a week of where every hour of your time goes? It's quite revealing!"

Says TV To Open Ocean Depths

SAN DIEGO Calif. (AP)—Television promises to open the ocean depths for science, a speaker at an international meeting on marine biology said today.

Dr. Harold Barnes of the marine biological station, Millport, Isle of Cumbrae, Scotland, told scientists from 17 nations that television cameras lowered into the ocean could give a continuing motion picture of submarine life.

Non-pictorial use, he said, could be in such studies as making counts of plankton—the minute organisms that form dense populations over wide areas and furnish the food base for other sea life.

The meeting is sponsored by the U.S. Office of Naval Research and the University of California's Scripps Institution of Oceanography.

Middle Ground Has Need Of A Leader

The only road which will lead to a solution of the many problems laid open by the Supreme Court anti-segregation decisions is the road marked by patience and understanding.

Many people not only in the South but in other parts of the nation realize this. Many others, who apparently are much more vocal than the aforementioned group, have shown little indication of tolerance, patience or understanding in dealing with the problems involved.

Unless capable moderate leadership is forthcoming at the local levels, to steer a moderate course, the situation is bound to deteriorate further and develop into an infinitely more difficult and complicated matter to resolve.

Although extremists at both ends of the line have contributed to the difficulty of finding a workable solution, the NAACP and those who are promoting its cause have contributed a great deal in recent months to making matters worse rather than following a course which will help the members of either the white or Negro race.

As the pro-integrationists seek to force their will upon the millions of people involved in the issue, they are setting the stage for a situation in which there will be no ground for moderate views. All the people will take sides with either one extreme or the other. Shouts for federal coercion in the South must expect to be met by cries of defiance. If coercion is attempted, the defiance will be demonstrated in like terms.

The cause of patience and understanding for which President Eisenhower and leaders in Southern states have called for is not being furthered by the NAACP when it threatens, and its leaders come forth with such name-calling as terming Sen. Eastland of Mississippi as "a stinking albatross around the neck of the Democratic party."

Neither is the cause of patience and understanding being furthered by words like those of Sen. McNamara of Michigan who denounced the Southern Manifesto by saying, "This may not be outright sedition, but it certainly is subversive in its intent to undermine the integrity of this nation."

Those words were and will be resented not only by the people of the South who are as loyal to the foundations of American democracy as people anywhere in the nation. The resentment is compounded when one stops to realize that those words were directed at Congressmen from individual districts in many states and at such dedicated leaders as Senators Russell of Georgia, Harry Byrd of Virginia, Walter George, and many others.

Neither will the situation be improved by such assertions as those by a member of the Georgia State Board of Regents who pictured the Supreme Court as "nine buzzards sitting on a bench." Attempts by Georgia's Attorney General to tag the NAACP with the charges of "communist-infiltrated" will do little to help in solving the difficulties.

If patience and understanding is to be fostered in these troubled times, it must receive capable leadership from capable men who share the views of the vast majority rather than the small minority at either extreme of the situation.

Blanket Charges Can't Do Butler Any Good

We're afraid Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler said the wrong thing when he told a newspaper audience that much of the nation's press is strictly one-party, favorable to the Republicans. He would have done better to have emphasized instead the dangers of "blind partisanship" by news media.

As in any field, newspapers have their share of bitter partisans who serve as ventriloquist dummies for their political heroes or credos; this is human, and the trait is understandable because despite their goal of objective news-reporting, the presentation of that news is in human hands.

Impartiality can be strained, however, when blanket charges of viewing the Eisenhower administration through rose-colored glasses and magnifying Democratic party's shortcomings are heard.

The brotherhood of the press does not make news. It reports. And, should newspapers serving predominately Democratic areas find shortcomings within the Democratic party, it behooves those papers to report such and perhaps discuss them editorially. A political party's policies and standards are not based on whims of a few, but at the grassroots . . . . at least this is presumed in our country. The ironing out of intra-party differences is part of the political game.

Democrats have their problem in the civil rights field; the Republicans are split, too, with agriculture as the vote-winning or vote-losing headache.

In this part of the country Democratic party prestige is undimmed at the state level, and we trust it stays that way. But you can count on it that if and when anything debatable arises (on the party level) there will be newspapers to argue it pro and con. It's "their" party hereabouts, too.

Male's Last Vestige Of Dominance Under Fire

Men beware! We are about to be stripped of the last vestige of our long glorified role as the stronger sex.

Step by step the dainty, fragile female has pushed her way into the man's world in the factory, in business and in the professions. She spends more money than the male. She saves more money than the male. She owns more property than the male. And though it may be controversial, she probably wields more influence than the male.

Now the crowning blow has come.

She's decided the old custom of a wife taking her husband's last name is so much hogwash. There's gotta be a change.

A Lt. Colonel of the Nurses Corps is to be married. Prior to the marriage however, her husband-to-be will have his last name legally changed to hers so she won't be bothered with the change.

If the males quietly acquiesce to this frontal attack on their last semblence of the stronger sex, little Johnnie, when he marries little Sue will become Mr. Sue So-and-So.

To arms men, to arms!

An Object Lesson For Towns Going Into Debt

The people of little Walnut Cove up in Stokes County will breathe easier now that the town has pulled itself out of the mire of bankruptcy.

They'll still feel the pressure on their purse for a few more years, but after two decades their town is finally out of bankruptcy. Now they can get into business as a town.

Through the help of the Local Government Commission, Walnut Cove has managed to work out a plan for issuing $211,300 in bonds in full settlement of some 1920 bonds which the town has been unable to retire.

The bitter experience which Walnut Cove has undergone during the past 20 years should impress other cities and towns, large and small, in North Carolina. In this day and time when so many things need to be done by cities with growing pains, municipalities must take care not to get too deeply in debt.

Pearsall Report Is Slow In Appearing

By LYNN NISBET

REPORT — Governor Hodges told his news conference Thursday he hoped the report of the Pearsall Advisory Committee on Education would be ready for release between April 1 and 10. Sometime ago the hope was that it would be completed soon after the Ides of March.

Small wagers are being laid that the report will not be published until after April 14, when the files close for legislative candidates. Suggestion has been made in some quarters, vigorously resented in others, that the report is being deliberately delayed until the candidates for the General Assembly are determined.

The series of conferences held by Governor Hodges and Chairman Pearsall with members of the General Assembly will not be concluded for several days, presumably the report and recommendations of the advisory committee will be influenced by opinions expressed at these conferences. That is the ostensible purpose of holding them. It will take some time to put the material together, review and revise it. Inherently important, the report has been clothed with greater significance because of the announced fact its subject matter will be the main agenda for an extra session of the General Assembly this summer. Every sentence, almost every word, must be weighed carefully for possible different interpretations. Those who promulgate the report must be ready and able to explain it, not only to members of the Legislature but to all the people of North Carolina, from time of its publication.

It is seriously doubted that the series of legislative conferences can be completed, the ideas codified and text of a statement prepared and adequately reviewed in less than three weeks. And the books for filing notice of candidacy for the General Assembly close in less than three weeks.

LONG TENURE — Decision of Larry I. Moore Jr. of Wilson not to seek re-election to the 1957 General Assembly will present what would have been a record for continuous legislative service. Moore has served nine consecutive terms as Wilson's representative—from 1939 through 1955—capping the record by serving as Speaker for the current term.

Two other members of the present House have longer total tenure. Ed Johnson of Currituck has had eleven terms in the House, preceded by two in the Senate, the continuity was broken several times the first senate session in 1909. George Uzzell of Rowan has eleven terms to credit since 1931, but there breaks in 1933 and 1949.

The all time record for legislative service goes to the late Rufus A. Doughton, who served a total of 14 terms between 1887 and 1933, including an unbroken nine-times stretch from 1907 to 1923. He presidd over the House as Speaker in 1891 and over the Senate as Lieutenant Governor in 1893-95.

FARMER — L.Y. Ballentine, commissioner of agriculture, says he does not expect to make a point of it or challenge his opponent, Kermit U. Gray, on basis of eligibility to hold the office. Fact is, however, there is a little sentence tucked down at the bottom of GS 106-2, the section dealing with qualifications for members of the Board of Agriculture which reads as follows: "The Commissioner of Agriculture and the members of the Board of Agriculture shall be practical farmers engaged in their profession."

Candidate Gray is a retired coast guardsman, presently acting as a justice of the peace in Winston-Salem.

EXPLANATION — Three or four post-election quarterbacks were discussing the Minnesota presidential primary. This and that reason was being assigned for the upset which put Kefauver far ahead of Stevenson. Stevenson advocates blamed it on the Republicans, on inadequate organization, and had other reasons. One chap raised up to ask "Had it ever occurred to you that maybe the Minnesota voters would just rather have Kefauver than Stevenson?" Apparently it was a new thought for most of the little group.

SPEAKERSHIP — One thing an extra session of the 1955 General Assembly might accomplish would be to settle the race for Speaker of the 1957 session. If custom prevails there will be more than half the membership of the 1955 House back for the next regular session. New members will have been nominated and will be around the halls during the special session enough to ascertain prevailing sentiment.

Presently there are two avowed candidates for Speaker—George Uzzell of Rowan and Kemp Doughton of Alleghany. Both claim commitments sufficient to assure election—and several others, including "Bus" Falls of Cleveland, are hopefully standing beside the lightning rods "just in case" of a deadlock.

Although Uzzell was first to announce and is recognized as one of the best parliamentarians and presiding offices in the state, present odds seem to favor Doughton.

One old time legislator, torn between loyalty to both, whimsically suggests revising the rules to have two speakers, Uzzell to preside over the House and Doughton to perform the other duties of the office.

Strength for the Day

"SO START RUNNING

There are certain people who have a degrading effect upon those with whom they come in contact. Sometimes these people are highly educated and cultured. Their bad influence frequently arises from the charm of their personality. They can make bad appear good, and good appear bad. Sometimes their evil influence is so surrounded with commendable qualities such as generosity, good cheer, and a pleasant attitude toward everybody that one would not suspect that there is evil lurking in their lives.

To say this is not to be cynical and certainly not convey the impression that people as a rule are this way. These things are being said only because everybody should be conscious of the fact that sometimes the most powerful temptations of life are subtle. One finds himself involved, tied up, bogged down in trouble before he knows it.

If you discover that some person's influence is not good, get away from that person and influence as quickly as possible. Some situations work themselves out best with the passing of time, but not this situation. Sometimes we confront a temptation which has to be fought. Most temptations are best handled, however, by flight rather than by fight. Few temptations overcome us; most of the time we overtake them—and eagerly.

Some Notes From New York

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Letter from New York:

A lot of nice things have been said about Miss Truman's fiance, Cliff Daniel, and I am going to add to them from a particular point of view. During the big war, he ran the day news desk in the Associated Press London office, and I was on his staff for a spell. He is a quiet type, with an easy way and an off-beat sense of humor. But when necessary, he could be a hard driver, and his famous urbanity disappeared.

Nevertheless, he was unfailingly popular with his staff, a fairly acid test of a newspaperman. Or of any man.

Japanese art has had an amazing impact on this town in the past two or three years. You see the "Japanese look" all over the place.

It has affected the amount of furniture in living rooms and the number of flowers in a vase — — less furniture, fewer flowers. Some new apartments have what the Japanese call "shoji," sliding panels, instead of doors on clothes closets. A type of electric lamp shade that resembles a Japanese lantern in glass is appearing in shop windows. And so on.

This interest was well foreshadowed by the success of the Japanese house, brought here by the Museum of Modern Art. In the four months of 1954 when it was open, the house attracted 121,187 people — at 60 cents a ticket. Last summer, 101,937 went through.

It is a genuine home, shipped in sections and reassembled. The Museum directors surrounded it with a real Japanese garden.

People took off their shoes and shuffled along the highly polished floors. They saw how the Japanese gain a room by concealing their "beds" in the daytime. The simple, austere flower arrangements attracted a lot of attention. People noted how flowers are combined with prints to decorate an alcove. A Japanese room is supremely uncluttered, bare of all but the absolute essentials. New Yorkers liked it, and some are copying it.

Joe Alex Morris has written a honey of a book about the year 1929 called, "What a Year."

What a year, indeed! The book mowed me down like a train because I graduated from college in 1929. The world was a lovely looking oyster then, a whole plate of oysters.

We were all going to sell stocks and bonds and play the market and be millionaires at 25, if not sooner. But October and "Black Thursday" were soon to come, and presently I was working on a newspaper for $12 a week and hugging my job for dear life.

Who can ever forget that year?

Adali Stevenson was here a while back and a theatrical producer gave a cocktail party for him at a restaurant in the theatre district. Most of the guests were actors and actresses accustomed to attracting all the attention themselves. But such is the lure of politics that they crowded around Stevenson ob'ing and ah'ing, and one lady said, "I just want to tell you that I think you're won-der-ful."

Stevenson, a man seldom at a loss for words, could only run his fingers around his collar, murmuring. "Well — — ah — well, I'm sure I — well, thank you very much."

Coming Events In Business

By ELMER ROESSNR

This department's crystal ball is cracked and its hypnotist has gone to Florida. Nevertheless, because there are often clues to business events before they happen (or because news sometimes leaks) it is able to say:

Expect labeled tomatoes, bananas and avocados. A process has been developed by the Meyercord Co., Chicago, to apply decalcomanias to irregular and rounded surfaces, permitting produce to be trademarked in colors.

Prepare to pay more for tuna. One packer has increased wholesale prices $1 a case and others may follow. Or top of that, a new limitation on Japanese imports has been promulgated.

You'll hear about vitamins in red wine. Research at the University of California has shown that anti-anemia vitamins, folic acid, thiamine, riboflavin, niacin and vitamins B—12 and B—6 survive best in sweet red wines. Federal authorities will probably look askance at any attempts to advertise wines for these nutrient supplements but makers of red wine will probably get their story over in publicity and by word of mouth.

NEW PRESSURE—SENSITIVE TAPES

Look for new adhesive tapes. Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co.'s basic patents on "Scotch" tape are to expire in October, permitting others to use them. And while new brands, under other names, may then appear on the market, MMM has a head start of many years—and many patents on various improvements and techniques.

Expect more prescription advertising. A survey by Standard & Poor indicates a potential rise in sales of prescription drugs by 10 per cent and of proprietary drugs by 5 per cent. The findings have been widely publicized in the trade and many druggists will step up their advertisements to get their share.

Count on a spurt in textiles. Orders already on the books indicate good sales and profits in the textile industry in the April-June quarter, according to trade reports. On top of that, new cuts in the price of nylon yarn will stimulate the making of blends, which have been growing in popularity.

Watch for foods-afloat drives this summer. The food industry is discovering that boating is one of the fastest-growing sports in the United States, with $260,000,000 a year being spent on boats, motors and equipment. So many food companies will start working this market, offering frozen and other foods easy to prepare on cruises.

With Help, McKay Has A 50-50 Chance

By RAY TUCKER

FORTLAND, Oregon — Despite the fact that Interior Secretary Douglas McKay has President Eisenhower's support in a contest involving the Administration's power and conservation policies, even Republican politicians here give the Cabinet member only a 50-50 chance against the chameleon of American politics—Senator Wayne Morse. The latter had McKay a slight edge, but not more than a 55-45 break.

McKay's delay in announcing his candidacy for the May 18 primary is largely responsible for his difficulties. The late Governor Paul Patterson was the Administration's original entry against Senator Morse, and all polls indicated that Patterson could have defeated Morse easily. But even after Patterson's death early in February, McKay said that he would not run.

McKay's change of heart, in the popular belief was inspired only by Ike's decision to run again. Thus, he entered the contest as an admitted White House coattail-rider, and the independent-minded voters of Oregon resent that sort of thing. It provides a facile issue for Maverick Morse.

PRIMARY BATTLE IN MAY GOP bosses, who place harmony and victory ahead of McKay, have not been able to persuade Philip S. Hitchcock to withdraw from the Republican primary as an opponent of McKay. So far Hitchcock has refused to give the Cabinet member a clear track.

Hitchcock is a former State Senator. He is a nigh official of Lewis and Clark College here at Portland and he is president of the Oregon Council of Churches. He is a highly respected citizen.

But, unlike McKay, he has never run for or won a statewide election. His vote will be based largely on the circumstances under which McKay was induced to return to the political wars.

The McKay-Hitchcock primary battle on May 18 has national importance.

McKay says that he did not ask Ike to sponsor, promote or back him. But he admits that Sherman Adams, White House Chief of Staff, and Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall urged him to get into the act. No two politicians are closer to the head man than "Sherm" and "Len."

CHAMELEON WAYNE MORSE In short, strange as it may seem, McKay's chief handicap is that he is looked upon as a "White House Carpet-bagger." He is popular in the Great Northwest where business and industry are booming, but whether he can transfer even a portion of his popularity to McKay is a question. Both Morse and Hitchcock think otherwise, and they will campaign on that issue.

The outcome of the Oregon primary may determine how large a role the President will play in the general campaign. It is difficult to analyze Morse's political posture. When he ran as a Republican, he was one of Oregon's best vote-getters. But GOP voters, who rarely go Democratic, resent his chameleon-like colors.

As a deserter, and a twilight zone politician, he cannot obtain favors from the White House for individuals, corporations and communities in Oregon.

IKE MUST BACK McKAY IN BIG WAY In view of these factors and forces Ike must go to the bat for McKay in a big way. He cannot stand by and observe one of his Cabinet members and personal friends repudiated by the voters.

There will be, presumably, several serious attempts to persuade Hitchcock to step aside. Then early in May, or three months before the Republican National Convention, Ike will test his strength by backing McKay in an extremely important politico economic laboratory.

From that standpoint, Oregon's May 18 primary has great significance. After all, McKay is the only Cabinet member [illegible] the Eisenhower colors so far in advance of November.

Shorter Working Hours

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., — Today's news features on automatic factories, cheap atomic power, and political uncertainities are grist for the labor unions. Their leaders are saying these things will cause unemployment and that the only cure for unemployment is a shorter workweek. Talk is of a 30-hour week; but my guess is the first move will be to a 36-hour week,—then a 32-hour week.

WHAT ABOUT AUTOMATIC FACTORIES?

Factories have constantly become more automatic for the past fifty years. The great advance, however, has come with the development of electronics. Some industries, such as the oil-refining industry, have already become eighty per cent automatic; it has had no unemployment and is paying the highest wages ever. Union labor leaders cannot yet show that the automatic factory is causing unemployment.

In the long run, automation may bring a shorter work-week; but the change will be slow. The rebuilding of a manufacturing plant to be self-operating is very expensive. Thousands of consolidations must take place before such revolutionary changes will come about. There, however, will be more opportunities for new companies which can start from the ground up with the very latest automatic machinery. However, my chief purpose this week is to suggest certain industries which would definitely benefit from a shorter work-week.

LEISURE BENEFICIARIES

Best known is Spalding (A.G.) & Bros., one of the largest manufacturers of baseball, basketball, football, golf, tennis, and skiing products. Headquarters in Chicopee, Massachusetts. Last year their stock paid $0.50 (and 5 per cent stock) and now sells at about $19.

Brunswick-Balke-Collender, largest manufacturer of bowling alleys, billiard tables, and gymnasium equipment. Main office in Chicago. Common paid $0.25 (plus 5 per cent stock) last year and sells around $28.

Stanley Warner Corp., one of the best movie theater companies, manufactures latex products. Offices are at 1585 Broadway, New York City. It paid $1.00 last year and sells around $16.

Manhattan Shirt Co., one of the largest manufacturers of shirts, for both men and women, and of other forms of clothing such as pajamas, neckwear, and sportswear. Head office is at 444 Madison Avenue, New York. Stock paid $1.85 last year and sells around $37.

McCall Corp., one of the leading publishers of fashion magazines, also controls REDBOOK. It operates a large dress-pattern business and does a large amount of printing for READER'S DIGEST, NEWSWEEK, U.S. NEWS, etc. McCall should benefit from a shorter work-week for women. It paid $1.20 last year and sells at about $21.

American News Company, large distributor of magazines, newspapers, and paper-covered books. It has valuable concessions at railroad, airplane, and bus terminals, serving tourists. Reading will increase with the shorter work-week. Headquarters are at 131 Varick Street New York City. It paid $1.50 last year and sells at about $32.

THE "DO—IT—YOURSELF" BUSINESS

All companies catering to the "do-it-yourself" trade should benefit from the shorter work-week. I especially have in mind the American Machine & Foundry Company, 261 Madison Avenue, New York City, and the Black & Decker Manufacturing Company, of Towson, Maryland. These have fitted up many of the "tool rooms" which have been built in the basements of houses and farms. Furthermore, American Machine & Foundry makes bowling alley equipment and is becoming an important factor in automation, guided missiles, and atomic-energy reactor equipment.

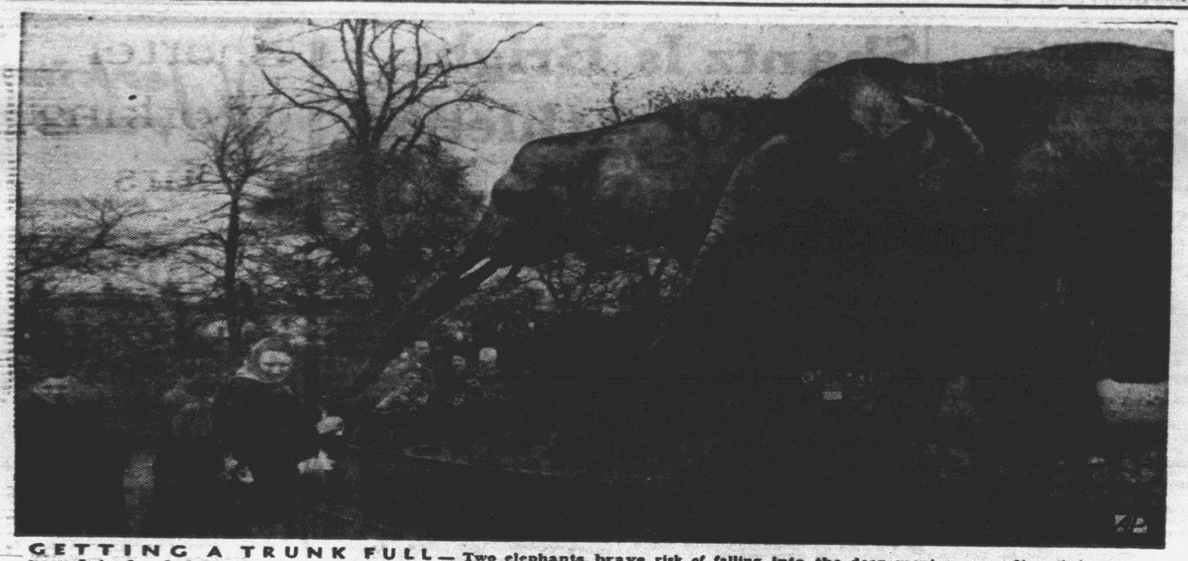

Another group which should benefit are companies which cater to the painting of walls of homes with rollers. My favorite corporation here is the Glidden Company of Cleveland, but there are many others.

If you want to benefit from all phases of the "do-it-yourself" movement, buy the stocks of the United Stores Corporation, having 460 stores retailing, at low prices, most of these products. I

Demo Gains Make Pennsylvania Big Battleground In This Fall's Voting

(Editor's note: This is one in series of stories by the AP's national political reporters who are surveying the situation across the country in the light of President Eisenhower's decision to sek a second term.)

By JAMES DEVLIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Pennsylvania — President Eisenhower's adopted state—gives signs of becoming a major battleground in this fall's presidential election.

That's the impression gained by a reporter talking with politicians and voters in sample communities in the eastern part of the state.

Pennsylvania is a rich political prize. It has 32 electoral votes, the same number as California, and second only to New York's 45.

Eisenhower, now registered to vote at Gettysburg, took the Keystone State by 269,000 votes over Adlai Stevenson in his 1952 landslide.

In 1954, Democratic Gov. George M. Leader was elected by a 279,000 margin.

How will it go in 1956? There are indications of a stiff and possibly close contest.

Republicans note that the 1952 vote was larger than when Leader won. They are counting on Eisenhower's popularity and the GOP's "peace and prosperity" theme to attract voters who apparently stayed home in 1954.

On the other hand, the Democrats have some reasons for optimism. Their capture of the State House at Harrisburg for the first time in 20 years gave them a life—greater incentive and confidence.

Also, it gave them patronage—the distribution of state jobs. That, in turn, has tended to strengthen the Democratic party organization.

Further, the Democrats made gains in county elections last year. They now control 39 of the state's 67 counties.

None of these factors favorable to them existed in 1952, or even in 1954 when they elected Leader, a virtual unknown before the campaign. Whether they can offset the Eisenhower popularity is something that only the voters can decide.

A spirted contest for the U.S. Senate will add interest to the Nov. 6 balloting.

Republican Sen. James H. Duff, a former governor and an original Eisenhower booster, is seeking reelection.

It is regarded as a foregone conclusion that Duff's Democratic opponent will be Joseph S. Clark Jr., former mayor of Philadelphia, a "reform" Democrat who helped break the Republicans' old-time grip on the city.

Duff already has lambasted Clark as a "left winger" because of his connections with Americans for Democratic Action.

Clark has termed Duff a "do nothing" senator who he says sponsored no major legislation and was absent on many roll call votes.

Duff, taking note of Clark's critism, commented in Washington:

"Personally, I worked vigorously all over America for Eisenhower's nomination and election, and since his election I have supported him consistently in the Senate in all key legislation, which apparently Clark would be completely unwilling to do."

Eisenhower and Sen. William F. Knowland of California will be listed on the Republican presidential preference ballot April 24, but Knowland is waging no campaign. His name was entered before Eisenhower's second term announcement and could not be withdrawn. Stevenson is unopposed on the Democratic side.

The nucleus of Democratic strength in Pennsylvania is in Philadelphia, the East's second largest city, which Stevenson carried by 162,000 votes in 1952; in Pittsburgh and the surrounding steel and soft coal areas; and the hard coal areas of the northeast.

The Republicans traditionally count on the rural vote and a heavy turnout in four of Philadelphia's suburban counties — Montgomery, Delaware, Chester and Bucks.

The complexion of Bucks is changing, however, with increased industrialization there.

Last year Bucks went Democratic in local elections. It is on such trends that the Democrats pin their hopes. The Republicans are depending on Eisenhower.

Demo Leaders In Congress Are Advised To Build Party Record

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Democratic National Committee has just told the Democratic leaders in Congress, in effect, they're not doing enough to build a record for the party against the Republicans in this campaign year.

Paul M. Butler, committee chairman and therefore the party's pilot in the campaign, has written to some congressional Democrats a letter which he said reflects the committee's wishes.

It went to the two Texans who are the Democrats' leaders in House and Senate—Speaker Sam Rayburn and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, who has been mentioned as a possible presidential candidate—and to some others.

It was this kind of letter: If you don't put up, we may have to shut up. If this was ever intended to be strictly intraparty, private correspondence it didn't remain so. The letter became public over the weekend.

The Democrats have been accusing the Eisenhower administration of the giveaway of natural resources ever since the middle of 1953 when the Republican-run Congress gave the oil-rich submerged lands to the states.

That was not entirely a Republican performance. And the Democrats don't seem to be saying much about it now although they said plenty at the time. Some of them did, that is. Johnson and Rayburn voted for it. So did many other Democrats.

The Democrats have been running Congress since the beginning if 1955. With the Republicans in control of the White House and the executive branch of the government, the Democrats naturally look to their leaders in Congress to set a party record for the next election and point up, if not create, the issues.

This would be expected in the field of natural resources since the Democrats have been banging away at the Republicans on the "giveaway" theme for years. But in his letter Butler wrote:

"I am fearful that our party and its nominees for president, vice president, the Senate and the House next fall may be in a very weak position on the area of natural resources unless some action is taken to bolster our legislative record in this session of Congress . . ."

Being thus told he's not handling the leadership of the House right may simply anger Rayburn, an old professional in politics. A nudge like this from his own party may pain Johnson, who seems to be growing increasingly sensitive to criticism.

Crippled Wife Aids In Capture

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Mrs. Ethel Clifford, 55, woke in the early morning hours and heard noises in a tavern below her apartment.

But she was unable to walk without the aid of a back brace and her husband was sleeping in another room. She picked up her bedside telephone and it was dead. The wires had been cut.

Mrs. Clifford was afraid to call her husband, but she finally woke him after painstakingly getting into the brace.

The rest was easy for Clifford, with one more assist from his wife. He held the thugs at gunpoint while she called police on another phone.

Astronomer Theorizes Mars Volcanos Active

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Repotrer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Peculiar clouds on the face of Mars could be vast billowings of volcanic dust and steam, a Michigan astronomer said today.

If so, the clouds are added evidence for a theory that Mars is racked by volcanoes. Wind-blown deposits of volcanic ash could cause some of Mars' strange markings, including perhaps some "canals."

By this theory, Mars might still be in early stages of changes such as the earth experienced before life appeared on this planet.

The volcanic theory is advanced by Dr. Dean B. McLaughlin of the University of Michigan. He has proposed that some dark areas—sometimes thought to be vegetation—could be drifts of volcanic ash. Some so-called canals might be pathways of fallen ash, and others might be cracks or faults on Mars' face.

The Earth's oceans are perhaps due to water brought up from its interior by volcanoes. Mars might be in the same process now, with oceans yet to come to spawn life.

Today Dr. McLaughlin told the American Astronomical Society that some observations of Martian clouds are at least consistent with the theory of volcanic activity.

From a check of various astronomers' sightings of clouds, he said that clouds have been observed intermittently for the last 25 years over one particular area.

These clouds therefore seem associated with some mechanism at a fixed spot on the face of Mars. On earth, clouds often rise regularly along mountain chains, but Mars has no large mountain ranges, Dr. McLaughlin said. And apparently there is not much water vapor on Mars to form ordinary clouds.

Within past decades, the shape of some of the dark-colored areas near cloud spots has changed, he added. The way they have changed, with some lines fanning out from them, suggests changes in the way volcanic ash is being deposited or blown about. The dark areas could be near active volcanoes.

"The coincidence of the area of cloud formation and the area of conspicuous surface changes is too close to be dismissed as accidental. Whether correct or not, the hypothesis of volcanic activity at least gives a fully consistent explanation of the observed facts," Dr. McLaughlin said.

ECC Opens Baseball Slate Tuesday; Split At Legeune

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Writer

East Carolina's baseball club officially opens its season tomorrow afternoon against the University of Delaware, here at the College field at 3 o'clock.

Coach Jim Mallory stated today that "Delaware should be tougher than any team we've met yet," referring to the exhibition contests played this past weekend against Springfield, Mass., and the Camp Lejeune Marines.

Delaware defeated the University of North Carolina baseballers 3-2 Saturday and is reportedly one of the strongest teams in the eastern part of the nation.

Wind-up At Lejeune

The Bucs finished up their three-day series at Lejeune on Saturday, topping the Marines 7-1 in a regulation game, and falling 6-0 in a contest that was finally called because of hail and rain.

In the opening Saturday tilt, Mallory started Pirate newcomer Tom Harkey on the mound. The rangy transfer from Campbell College breezed through six innings, allowing the Marines only four scattered hits, before veteran Bill Loving relieved him. Loving held the Buc foes to a single hit, while his team roared ahead behind the tremendous hitting of firstbaseman Nick Smothers.

Smothers, who had hit well during the first two days of the series, really blasted away on Saturday. The 6-4, 200-pounder clouted a 390-foot homerun and racked up two singles, to account for six of the Pirates' seven scores.

Gene Turner, hard-hitting East Carolina outfielder, slammed a triple and a single to boost his club's attack.

The second contest, which was partly played in the midst of a hail storm, got underway Saturday afternoon, with freshman Bob Miller on the hill of ECC, Leonard Lilley also pitched for the Pirates.

The Marines jumped off to a fast start, pushing across their six runs early. East Carolina couldn't follow through and the contest was finally cancelled when weather became unbearable.

Mallory Praises Club

Coach Mallory commented that the three-day series had been successful and that he was "very pleased with the showing the boys made." He pointed out that the purpose of the games was to give the team conditioning and training against other clubs, and to give the coaches an indication of the strength of the team.

"Our infield looked awfully good," he continued. "We pulled at least 10 double-plays during the series."

The coach praised his pitchers: "Our pitchers did well. We thought (Ben) Baker, (Mac) McPherson, Harkey, and (Charlie) Russell looked particularly good.

"Our hitting against the two teams showed us that we're in pretty good shape at the plate and it is more or less a matter of getting in shape. Nick Smothers, Bucky Reep and Gene Turner were strong for us in the hitting department."

Three Against Delaware

Mallory said that East Carolina would send three pitchers against Delaware tomorrow. "We'll probably start Mack Cherry and use Charlie Russell and Mac McPherson before the game's over."

The contest gets underway at 3:00 o'clock.

Basketball Voted 6 Rules Revisions

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Basketball Committee, rules-making body for colleges and high schools, adopted six rules revisions in winding up a two-day meeting yesterday.

The committee voted to extend the 12-foot free throw lane to high schools in the 1957-58 season and approved proposals on five minor rule changes.

Among these was a rule used by the Western Conference this year where the defensive team assumes both positions under the basket on a free throw instead of the home-and-visiting team setup.

Players in the future will no longer be able to leap into the free throw lane until the ball hits the backboard or cylinder. Previously a player could jump into the lane so long as his foot was not on the floor until the ball made contact.

Another revision was making the free throw line two inches instead of one to make all court lines uniform and to make the boundaries of the three - second rule easier to distinguish.

The committee also placed a restriction on the jump ball and no player may have his foot within the circle until the ball is tapped.

The final revision concerned activity under a team's basket. No offensive player in the future may reach above the cylinder to guide an attempted shot by a teammate into the basket.

This change is similar to the rule under which a defensive player can not reach up and knock a ball out of the basket.

The committee emphasized the new rule has nothing to do with the "dunk" shot—where a player leaps above the cylinder and pushes the ball through. The new rule applies only to guiding a teammate's shot into the basket.

The committee pointed out that if a player is obviously looping a pass to a teammate above the cylinder, the new rule does not apply.

The committee discussed the five-second rule and said if obvious stalling tactics do not cease, the rule will be revised to carry a penalty.

Italian Ferrari Rockets To Win Grand Prix Race

SEBRING, Fla. (AP)—An Italian sports car's great response to canny sprint timing rocketed the fire-engine-red Ferrari to a Grand Prix 12-hour endurance race win Saturday—a solid boost toward international honors.

The Ferrari, manned by Juan Fangio of Argentina and Eugenio Castellotti of Italy, clawed past Mike Hawthorn's leading British Jaguar in the 11th hour. It hit the finish line with record mileage of 1,008.8—10 miles better than any log in the 60-car field. The old record, set last year, was 946.4 miles.

For Fangio the victory was new lustre on his world racing crown.

Shantz Is Bright Hope Of Athletics Pitching Worries

By ED CORRIGAN
The Associated Press

The sad, sad Kansas City pitching staff is looking hopefully to a pint-sized left-hander who has won just 11 games in the past three years to take over as the big winner.

If Bobby Shantz 5 feet 6¼ and 138 pounds, can come back, the A's will throw their weight around the American League. They may not finish any better than their 1955 spot, sixth, but they won't be pushovers either Shantz was the toast of Philadelphia in 1952. He had won 24 games for the A's and had been named Most Valuable Player in the league. But on May 22, 1953, he went to the sidelines with a strained muscle in his pitching arm.

He hasn't been the same since. That year, he pitched only 106 innings. In 1954, he threw just eight innings and won one game. Last season, he began to climb the long road back and compiled a 5-10 record and a far-fom-sensational 4.54 earned run average.

Last December, his arm was declared "sound" by a physician and when he signed his contract in January he said it felt good.

Shantz, now 30, has been in three games this spring. One was a bad one. He was tagged for seven runs by the Chicago White Sox in 4 2-3 innings. The other two were good. He held Milwaukee to one run in three innings, and yesterday at West Palm Beach he took his longest test, handcuffing the Washington Senators for six innings. The A's won the game 13-1.

He was ahead of the hitters most of the way and scattered seven hits while fanning five.

Another big question mark, Saul Rogovin, who has been in and out of the majors for more than a decade, turned in a fine performance for Philadelphia in Clearwater. He tossed four scoreless innings against Boston and the Phillies finally won out in the 10th, 1-0 on Granny Hamner's home run.

At Tampa, the Chicago White Sox licked the Cincinnati Redlegs 6-1 with Jack Harshman giving up just four hits.

Ancient Tommy Byrne, aided by fuzzy-cheeked Ralph Terry shut out the Brooklyn Dodgers 5-0 for the New York Yankees at Miami. Byrne held the Brooks to two hits for six innings, and Terry, up from Denver, doled out two more the rest of the way.

Elsewhere, the Cleveland Indians edged the New York Giants 4-3 at Tucson; the St. Louis Cardinals stopped the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-4 at St. Petersburg; the Chicago Cubs battered the Baltimore Orioles 10-5 at Los Angeles, and the Milwaukee Braves whipped the Detroit Tigers 5-2 at Bradenton.

Hockey Team To Ask Transfer

CHARLOTTE (AP) — President Charles M. Rock Jr., of the Baltimore Clippers announced last night that he will ask the Eastern Hockey League to approve transfer of the franchise to Charlotte.

The Clippers drew 40,000 fans to the new Charlotte Coliseum for five games this winter after fire destroyed their Baltimore rink.

Rock announced at a press meeting that he had transferred part of the club's stock to a group of Charlotte businessmen headed by James B. Whittington. Rock said the Charlotte group has an option to buy all the stock.

Louisville Tops Dayton To Sweep NIT Tourney

NEW YORK (AP) — There are champions with silver cups and champions with tears. The National Invitation Basketball Tournament had both.

The champ with the hardware was Louisville, which after four unsuccessful tries to survive the quarter-finals, finally got the idea and mastered Dayton 93-80 in Saturday's finale at Madison Square Garden.

Charlie (Moose) Tyra, a 6-8 junior with a dandy hook and smart rebounding, was the big man for the Cardinals and an unanimous choice as the NIT's most valuable player.

The champ with the tears was Dayton's Bill Uhl a seven-foot senior and nominee for the U.S. Olympic basketball team whose biggest foe wasn't Louisville or Tyra—but himself. He has performed impressively elsewhere but never has approached his top game in the Garden—the one place he's wanted to look best of all.

Like Dayton, never a champ and four times an NIT runner-up in five chances, Uhl missed again Saturday. It may have been one if his better games in the Garden, but it was hidden in Tyra's shadow. The Louisville pivot time and again got position on Uhl to sink hook shots and get the jump on rebounds.

Tyra outscored Uhl 27-19 and outrebounded him 19-10.

Uhl felt the defeat deeply. After accepting one of the wristwatches awarded to members of both finalists, Bill returned to the bench and wept into the warmup robe he clutched in his hands. He had wanted desperately to prove himself to himself.

"I don't know what it's been," he said. "I've always hoped and tried to play my best here, but. . . ."

Dayton, despite two losses to Louisville during the regular season, had been top-seeded this time with Louisville second.

Slender Floridian Wins Miami Beach Golf Open

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Gardner Dickinson Jr., who surprised even himself by winning the Miami Beach Open, is further proof that brawn is not required in championship golf.

So thin he scarcely casts a shadow standing sideways to the sun, the young Panama City, Fla., pro weighs only "about 125' with a pocketful of change.

But his steady 69 in yesterday's final round edged out by one stroke two husky members of golf's younger set — Billy Maxwell of Odessa, Tex., and Dow Finsterwald of Bedford Heights, Ohio.

Although Dickinson pocketed top money of $2,400 for his 16-under-par 272, the tournament probably will be best remembered as "the one Maxwell lost."

The 26-year-old Texan, never worse than a tie for first, entered the final round with a five-stroke lead over Dickinson, who was second. But a misbehaving putter helped him to a 75 and he wound up in a tie for second with Finsterwald.

The 29 - year - old Finsterwald, starting seven strokes off the pace, shot a course record 29 going out. He led the faltering Maxwell by one stroke and the consistent Dickinson by three strokes after 63 holes. But he soared to a 39 on the back nine for a 68.

Cary Middlecoff of Dallas, who closed with a 69, and Bob Inman of Detroit, who had a 70, tied for fourth at 275. Jimmy Demaret's par-72 was good for sixth at 276 and Le Blagetti of Willoughby, Ohio, was next with 71 and 277.

Flash bulletin from Mobilgas Economy Run

FORD WINS IN ECONOMY TOO!

V-8 WINS CLASS A

In this year's Economy Run a new Ford V-8, with Fordomatic was the official victor over every car in its field, with a winning average of 47.7643 ton-miles per gallon. This means that the sturdier, heavier Ford carried more weight, with greater gas economy per pound, than any car in its field.

This latest Ford victory was scored over a rough and rigorous 1,468.8-mile route running from Los Angeles to Colorado Springs. The winning Ford threaded its way over the tough and twisting course averaging better than 40 mph. Through the heat of Death Valley and over the chilling height of an 11,000-foot mountain peak . . . through the gas-eating stop-and-go of city traffic and over the straight-line open road . . . Ford proved anew its traditional reputation for economical performance.

The winning Ford was a regular-production model taken right from the assembly line and officially impounded until the starter's gun sounded. It was no different than thousands of '56 Fords you see on the road and in dealers' showrooms. This proves that Ford, the Performance, Style and Safety leader, leads in Economy, too! That adds up to four big reasons why the '56 Ford is worth more when you buy it, while you drive it, and when you sell it, too!

The "ton-mile" formula is used by contest officials to assure equal chance for all cars in each class regardless of size or weight. Ton-miles per gallon equals the car weight (load including passengers) in tons, multiplied by the number of miles traveled, divided by number of gallons of gasoline consumed.

THIS '56 FORD V-8 "MAINLINER SPECIAL" with all this equipment for only $56 per month

Price includes a standard Ford V-8 engine—the best-selling eight in the world • Two-tone paint • White sidewall tires • MagicAire Heater • Turn signals • Lifeguard padded control panel and sun visors • Full-flow oil filter • Oil bath air cleaner • Carrying charges • Insurance • If your old car is of average value it should more than cover the down payment • State and local taxes and license extra.

Shivers Ready To Lead Texas Demo Delegation

By GARTH JONES

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) —Gov. Allan Shivers said yesterday he would be happy to head the Texas Democratic delegation to the national convention even if it means competing with Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex) for the chairmanship.

The governor declined to say whether he would back the U.S. Senate majority leader for the Democratic presidential nomination, and named only Gov. Frank Lausche of Ohio as one he could support.

Shivers replied "I am not ready to say" to repeated questions on the national television network program, Meet the Press about whether he would support Johnson.

Panelist Jack Bell of The Associated Press asked Shivers to name a Democrat he could support for the Democratic nomination.

"I probably could name several," Shivers replied. "Lausche, for instance, but I can't name any others at the present time."

Denying that he has any "political ambitions,' Shivers said he would be 'happy to serve' if the state convention names him to head its delegation to the Chicago convention.

He replied "yes, it would" to a question if this would hold true if he were in competition with Johnson for chairman of the delegation.

The program originated from the studios of WBAP-TV at Fort Worth.

Shivers said that Johnson was personally a friend and we agree on many things politically, but if Johnson is sponsored by the DAC (Texas Democratic Advisory Council) I would not support him.'

Panelist Elizabeth Carpenter of the Houston Post asked Shivers what he thought of the proposal by House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex) that Texas Democrats name Johnson a "favorite son" for the nomination.

Shivers said that the proposal actually came from Byron Skelton of Temple," who used Rayburn as his voice."

Skelton is chairman of the Democratic Advisory Council, self-styled liberal wing of the state party.

"Less than two months ago, Sam Rayburn told Lyndon Johnson he was not inclined to support him as a nominee," Shivers said. He replied to questions that he knew this "to be a fact."

This was taken by political professionals in Austin as a sign that Shivers will oppose the idea.

Shivers is the leader of conservative forces fighting for convention control while Rayburn and Skelton lead the liberals.

At Temple, Skelton called it "a ridiculous statement on the part of Mr. Shivers to say that I used Mr. Rayburn as my voice for anything."

Red Buttons In TV Show Tonight After 'Fishing'

NEW YORK (AP)—"For the past 10 months I've been loafing and thinking," says Red Buttons. "I've gone fishing mentally."

What did this comedian who rose fast in television and then finally toppled from his regular show on CBS-TV catch in these months of mental fishing?

"I caught a little peace of mind," he said, "and I caught some clear thinking. I got a better sense of perspective and I could analyze my problems better than I ever could when under duress.

"This mental fishing is the greatest thing in the world. I'd recommend it for everybody. It's what you do when you get a coronary. Well, you can have a coronary of the brain too — and then you've got to rest."

Tonight (Monday) Buttons returns to television to star in a dramatic show, "The Tale of St. Emergency" on "Studio One" (CBS-TV, 10 p.m.). Based on a story by Jackie Gleason, it's a fanciful drama of two saints who arrange a miracle in order to save a wicked town.

"I believe in the script and what it has to say," Buttons said. He emphasized that he's not giving up comedy for straight dramatic roles.

If he has any further television plans he's keeping them under his crew-cut. And if CBS has any further television plans for him it also is maintaining silence.

His long vacation, spent in New York with a junket to Europe, he interrupted twice for night club appearances in Las Vegas and Miami Beach. Next month he opens at the Copacabana here. Anything else?

"I think it's wonderful for an actor to know what he's going to be doing in April," said Buttons.

He professes the greatest admiration for television, the medium that has given him some jolts in times past.

"Among the many fine contributions of television is the fact it's done away with hick towns. Elmer no longer comes to the city. The city comes to Elmer."

Kluckholn Goes On Trial Again

RALEIGH (AP) — Richard Kluckhohn, 21, was scheduled to go on trial today for the second time for the hotel window shooting of a downtown woman shopper last May.

Following his 5-10 year sentence for involuntary manslaughter in his first trial in Wake Superior Court, Kluckholn appealed to the State Supreme Court and won a new trial. He has been free under bond.

The high court said the trial judge committed error in charging the jury.

Kluckholn had been convicted of shooting Miss Bernice Seawell, 43, a Washington government worker who was shopping in Raleigh with her mother, who lives in Sanford.

Miss Seawell was shot in a parking lot behind the Sir Walter Hotel while waiting for a parking lot attendant to deliver her car.

Kluckhohn, who had checked out of the hotel minutes after the shoo'ing, was arrested a few hours later at a friend's house in Chapel Hill. He admitted knowing that a German Luger pistol he carried had discharged while he was in the hotel, but denied knowing he had hit anybody.

Bandit Beats Clerk Aged 68

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A bandit armed with a butcher knife beat a 68-year-old clerk, left him tied to a post for 11 hours and robbed a safe in a bowling alley yesterday.

John W. Higgins, who lives at the bowling alley, told police he was asleep in the office when a man awakened him, forced him to open a safe, took $170 and tied his arms around a post.

Higgins said he broke loose and started to run but the bandit caught him, beat him and bound him to the post again with shoe laces. A pinboy reporting for work found him. He was treated for cuts.

Westinghouse And Top Union Men Adopt Pact

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Top officials of the independent United Electrical Workers and Westinghouse Electric Corp. agreed last night on a five-year contract to end a 153-day strike.

Membership ratification is needed but James J. Matles, UE director of organization, says he is recommending acceptances.

The pact does not settle a local strike of 6,000 UE members at the firm's South Philadelphia plant. They walked out last Oct. 14, protesting a proposed change in wage payment plans.

The contract covers 3,200 at eight Westinghouse plants where the UE has representation. Terms of the agreement also would be applied to workers in Philadelphia once their local dispute is settled.

Westinghouse said economic clauses in the contract are the same as that signed with the 44,000-member AFL-CIO International Union of Electrical Workers last Tuesday. That agreement ended a 156-day strike.

Negotiations aimed at bringing peace to the big turbine-producing plant in Philadelphia will be resumed there today.

The union locals at the eight other plants will vote tomorrow on acceptance of the national agreement. It calls for a minimum hourly wage increase of 25 cents during the pact's life.

The workers formerly averaged $2.10 an hour.

The pact provides wage increases of from 5 to 17 cents an hour the first year and 5 to 12 cents an hour each of the next four years. In addition, skilled workers will get an immediate hourly increase ranging from one half to 12 cents.

A cost of living clause calls for a 1-cent hourly pay increase for each half-point rise in the Department of Labor cost of living index. Improved pensions and vacations also are provided.

Unlike the IUE pact the UE contract does not incorporate any provisions for setting production standards for day workers or salaried workers. No UE employe is subject to discipline for strike action.

Plants affected by the UE agreement are the Nuttall works in Pittsburgh; Derby, Pa; Jersey City, N. J.; Bridgeport, Conn.; Detroit; Chicago; Emeryville, Calif.; and Seattle, Wash.

Father, 3 Boys Drown In Mishap

MARION, Ill. (AP)—A father, his twin sons and a neighbor boy, all of Herrin, Ill., drowned when their boat sank in Crab Orchard Lake late Saturday.

The dead were Prince McSpadden, 44-year-old Herrin coal miner; his 10-year-old twin sons Rex and Lex; and Roy Weddis Jr.

Jerry Sexton, 11, swam 250 feet to shore.

Young Sexton said the five were in a 16-foot boat. Trotlines were piled in the bow and when the elder McSpadden started a motor the front end went under water.

McSpadden yelled, "It looks like we are all going to drown together."

Authorities said the father could swim but apparently decided to stay with his sons, who could not.

Nears Her Goal Of 13 Children

POTEAU, Okla. (AP)—A 44-year-old Cartesville farmer's wife is nearing her goal of 13 children—the same as her mother had.

Mrs. Otis Self gave birth to her 12th child, Sharon Kay, last week. The mother, who was 15 years old when her first child was born, has three other girls and eight boys ranging in age from 3 to 29.

The Oklahoma farm wife said she is "just living like the Bible says and replenishing the earth."

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

It was July before Meg returned. Jason had made the threatened trip to Victoria, returning in a rage.

"She won't set a date until she comes back to Seattle," he told Michael. "She wouldn't even come back for Jenny's and Nathan's wedding."

Well, thought Michael climbing Profanity Hill with his customary resentment, she had come back now. Tonight he would see her. Six would get you ten Jason was at the house this very minute.

Michael found Dan Farmer alone in his office. He welcomed Michael with heartiness. "Hear you're going to Frisco tomorrow, boy. Don't stay away too long."

He asked bluntly about Anna Lurkins. He wanted to leave no tag ends from the Beaumont trial.

"Still in the asylum at Stellacoom," Dan said. "Doctors say she's there for good."

"No trace of Ryerson?"

Dan looked for malice; seeing none, he allowed his discouragement to show. "He's probably in China or South America by now. We'll never catch that cagey—"

Michael agreed and wasn't sorry. Ryerson might be a scoundrel, but they'd been good friends in those trenches. Michael was still amused at Jason's enduring anger. The first victims of the swindle had attempted to hold Jason responsible; though his innocence was quickly established, the effrontery of Ryerson rankled with him.

Michael had not failed to taunt him. "If your boat hadn't sunk off the Alaskan coast, Ryerson might now be a Klondike millionaire instead of a fugitive."

Jason hadn't appreciated the joke, Michael remembered and was aware that Dan was again speaking of his coming trip. "Be in Frisco long, Michael?"

"Perhaps. I'll go to Nome later."

Dan squirmed, hating the Nome scandals. Too many public officials were involved. A month ago, a new law had given civil government to Alaska, made it illegal for aliens to locate mining claims. McKenzie, Washington lobbyist, used the dodge to fatten his own purse. Noyes, the judge, had appointed McKenzie receiver for dozens of disputed claims with powers to seize personal property, even previously mined gold. Michael had been retained by a mining company who was taking the fight to the appellate court in San Francisco.

"It'll be a tough battle, Michael," Dan said. "Well, hurry back to Seattle."

Heading down the hill, Michael acknowledged he would return. Seattle was not his mistress in truth. Anyhow, he wouldn't have to be around when Meg married Jason.

Dropping into a bar, he found Tim O'Beirn, looking glum.

"Did you know Jason's moving to Portland when he opens his new store there? Going to leave Nathan in charge here."

"That light?" Michael's respect for Jason mounted. He must have recognized that living in Seattle would be hard for Meg. Love grafted unexpected insight into the lover.

Tim scowled. "Something's off kilter," he confided. "I met Jason coming out of Matilda's an hour ago. Not a word to throw to a dog, he hadn't. You don't reckon Meg's fought with him, do you? I tell you, that girl's mighty contrary by spells."

The dull lethagy that had invaded him left Michael. He knew a stabbing, revitalizing hope. He turned from the bar, threw money in the general direction of the bartender and bolted into the street, disregarding Tim's anxious shouts. Maybe even a procrastinating idiot had a chance. He had been mad not to be waiting on the steps when Meg came back from Victoria!

In his haste, he almost missed the open door of the Fleur hat shop. Of course! Meg would head for the shop at once. Meg in her normal frame of mind would hate having the shop closed since Jenny's March wedding.

She was standing forlornly before the display table and wheeled about in surprise as he entered. She gave him a quick smile. "The shop's not yet open, Michael. Want to buy a hat?"

He could not answer her in their old light banter. He seized her hands searching her face. "Meg! Are you marrying Jason?"

He felt her withdrawal but held her fast and after a long silence, she shook her head.

"Why not?"

He wanted to take her into his arms, but his mind, in perverse control, refused. He wanted her with a completeness that astounded him, but instinct told him he could not take possession without a clear field.

"Why aren't you marrying him, Meg?" He heard his own voice with contempt. Why couldn't he discard logic? Women wanted aggression, decision. If he reached out and took her, he might win.

"Are you turning him down because he believed you killed Kemp?"

Fool! Let her judge Jason and discard him. You can catch her on the rebound. Yet his mind refused the gambit. Love should enable you to understand the beloved. Without it, you faced only the desert of unsupported passion. With understanding they might find that golden second chance together.

Her brows drew together. Her eyes darkened. "Michael, you were the only one who believed me innocent. Why?"

He brushed it aside. "I saw into your mind."

She flinched as if he had struck her. "That's it. Jason couldn't see into my mind and I didn't see into his."

It had been that way with Charlotte. Leave it, his mind warned. You don't debate about love. Fear swamped him as he continued.

"You loved Kemp and Jason in the same way. Jason was strong and Kemp was weak. They wanted you and you wanted them but you never wanted to see into their minds and they wouldn't have liked understanding yours." He saw anger in her face and raised his voice. "You never like them—just as I never liked Charlotte—but you wanted to possess them!"

Her body stiffened, then her eyes widened and her mouth relaxed. She moved closer to him. He dropped her hands, brought her against him and felt her soften in his arms. Pride swept him. Meg was one woman who could stand the bright light of truth.

"The golden witch, Michael?"

Fear left him. He kissed her gently, then with an urgency and demand. Contentment quieted him. Here was repletion with laughter. There had been no laughter in their former loves. Without it, neither Meg nor he could find fulfillment. Her mouth, her body, all of her were molded against him his eagerness matched by her own.

"Marry me now, Meg. Come with me to California and to Nome."

They looked at each other in mutual possession. Meg's mouth curved in a confident smile.

"If we hunt the golden witch together, Michael, I shan't care if we end up in an igloo."

He kissed her again. The road ahead was clear and always wide enough for dreams. Someday they would come back to Seattle. The highest hill couldn't rise above their happiness.

Safety Lessons For Youngsters

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Louisville youngsters will learn traffic safety early in life if Mayor Andrew Broaddus has his way.

The mayor says he is planning a junior size street system with miniature sidewalks, traffic signals, signs and possibly small motor-driven cars.

It would be used as an outdoor traffic "classroom" for children.

The mayor who saw such a project in Munich, Germany, last summer, commented:

"We not only would be teaching our youngsters traffic safety, but also respect our traffic laws and our policemen."

LONG ANNIVERSARY

DENVER (AP)—Denver plans a year-long celebration of its 100th anniversary. It will open in the summer of 1958 and extend into the fall of 1959. Denver was founded in 1858.

Oil Industry Is To Spend More In Months Ahead

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The American oil industry is planning to increase its spending in the search for more oil and in plant expansion by 20 per cent this year.

It will do this although it already has more facilities for pumping and refining oil than present record high demand calls for and although it now is holding back production to keep stocks from climbing too high.

The industry will look for more petroleum although the cost of finding a barrel of oil is now the highest in history, and although the proved reserves of crude still in the ground in the United States is at a record high—more than 30-billion barrels waiting to be pumped. And American companies have many more billions than that in their Middle East concessions.

The stepped up search for oil—part of the 20 per cent gain in oil industry spending the Department of Commerce sees for this year — is one example, and a good one, of how American industry now depends upon long-range predicting and planning.

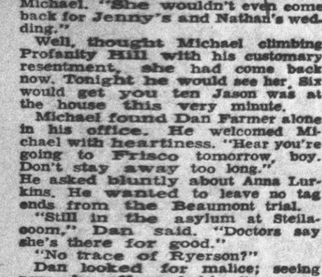

American oil companies in spending more than eight billion dollars this year to look for and refine more oil here and abroad aren't thinking of 1956 demand for petroleum products—which also is expected to set a record. They are getting ready now for what they think will be the world demand for the many products of petroleum 20 years from now.

In the forthcoming issue of its magazine The Lamp, Jersey Standard Oil will point out: "In 1946 the world (exclusive of the Soviet Union and its satellite countries) used a little more than seven million barrels of oil a day. In 1955 it used more than 14 million barrels a day. The indications are that by 1975 it may again have doubled its rate of oil consumption."

Drilling gets the lion's share because the cost of drilling is rising. The American Petroleum Institute, the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America, and the Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Assn. made a special survey of the costs of drilling 49,279 wells in 1953 in this country. It recently made the survey public. It showed that the cost averaged $50,000 a well. Rising costs since then, the API points out, means still costlier drilling today. The industry drilled 56,000 wells last year, a record, and expects to top that this year.

WELCOME BROW

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—A variety of family welcome signs usually greet incoming troopships from the Far East. One was a sign in bold letters: "Hi Brow!" Jack Warren of Seattle knew it was for him, all right. He carried the nickname "The Brow" through school.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Weakness in copper shares weighed the stock market down in the early afternoon today.

Leading coppers were off 1 to around 3 points with Magma Copper off nearly 7 points at times at 129.

The rest of the market displayed losses of 1 to 2 points at the outside and there were gains to around a point.

Trading was active but hit a pace somewhat below Friday's 2,980,000 shares. The market then was slightly higher.

Reports circulated in Wall Street of the softening of world copper prices. Strength in copper stocks has been based on higher world and domestic prices plus continued heavy demand for the metal.

For a time at the start today it looked as though the market would continue its recent strong advance, but prices turned lower within a short time.

Down with the coppers were steels motors, aircrafts, chemicals, electrical equipments, railroads, oils, and utilities.

Long-Bell Lumber was down between 4 and 5 points around 74 as the company published its higher earnings report. The stock had been strong in recent sessions.

At noon, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 20 cents at $190.30. The rise Friday was 30 cents to a close of $190.50, an historic high point.

With the market rising to such peaks, many brokers are urging caution on short-term taders.

Senator Scott Co-Sponsors Bill On Hurricane Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation which would give federal help to private property owners for protection from hurricane damage is being cosponsored by North Carolina Sen. W. Kerr Scott.

Scott said the legislation, which will be introduced this week will set up a partnership program among local, state and federal agencies to reclaim and protect eroded shore land.

Under the measure, he announced the federal government would pay one-third of the total cost of eligible projects, with state and local governments paying two-thirds of the costs.

All projects would have to be approved by the Corps of Engineers as feasible and beneficial on an area basis.

Among its provisions the bill will provide federal funds for construction of sea walls, sand dunes and other protective devices on private as well as public property.

Much Warier Of Travelling Men

WINSTON—SALEM—After an experience recently, T.M. Beech of Winston-Salem, Route 2, is a little wary of "travelling" sawmill operators.

Forsyth County Assistant Agent F.H. Harmon says that the sawmiller offered Beech $400 for four acres of pine trees. But before closing the deal Beech decided to call the county agent's office. Harmon and a district forester went out and checked the tract of timber and found it was worth almost twice as much as Beech has been offered for it.

Top Character Actor Stricken

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—British actor Robert Newton, the wily, gravel-voiced Long John Silver of television and the movies, died at his home yesterday of a heart attack. He was 50.

Although he had had a heart ailment, his death was unexpected. His wife, the former publicist Vera Budnick, sobbed as she told a reporter:

"He was having a glass of water. He just keeled over. There was nothing anyone could do."

Newton returned to Hollywood last June after a year in Australia, where he made a film version of "Long John Silver" and filmed 26 half-hour television shows based on the character.

Only last year he said he intended to take out American citizenship.

The veteran of stage, screen and television was one of the top character actors in the business, excelling in salty, slightly disreputable types. He first appeared in the United States in the mid-1920s. From 1947 through 1951 he was voted one of the top 10 moneymakers in British films.

One of his best recent movie roles was as Androcles in "Androcles and the Lion."

He leaves three children: Kim, 18 months, by his fourth wife, Vera; Nicholas, 5, by his third wife, the former Natalie Newhouse of London, and a daughter, Sally, 24, by his first wife.

Paper Maneuvers Come To Close At Fort Bragg

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—Exercise Lucky Flash—the atomic, chemical and biological weapons map maneuver—is over, and the officer who directed the affair thinks the lessons learned are important.

Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, 3rd Army commander, said, "The lessons learned through Lucky Flash will reduce and save lives in any future conflict."

Hickey's comment came after the 1,000 Army reserve, National Guard and career soldiers completed the maneuver here yesterday.

There were no real troop concentrations, such as the Army uses in routine field training problems. The two-day exercise saw the participants delve into the problems of modern warfare while shifting make believe troops on a map.

The officers and men came from 24 units in the 3rd Army area.

Woman Arrested On Liquor Count

Pitt County ABC officers Saturday night arrested Edna Corbett, 30-year old Negro, and charged her with possession of non-tax paid whisky for sale.

Floyd Cherry, pastor of Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church. Members of the Greenville Masonic Lodge, No. 284, A.F. & A.M., will have charge of the service at the grave.

No Sale

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Pakistani leaders in a reaffirmation of their ties with the West have sounded a ringing "no sale" to the neutrality overtures of Soviet Russia's traveling salesmen.

President Iskandar Mirza told the new republic's National Assembly in its first session that Pakistan stands by the Baghdad and SEATO pacts in the Middle East and Southeast Asia.

Prime Minister Chaudri Mohammed Ali and visiting Premier Adnan Menderes of Turkey in a joint communique praised the Baghdad Pact as "purely defensive and not directed against the national interests of any country."

Soviet Russia recently switched off its tirades against Pakistan and turned on the charm. Premier Nikolai Bulganin said Russia could give economic aid to Pakistan. Soviet publications made it clear that Pakistan to qualify would have to divorce itself from the Baghdad and SEATO pacts.

Marine Corporal Takes Own Life

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP)—The Camp Lejeune provost marshal's office says that 24-year-old Cpl. David Wood of Newhall, W Va., shot himself to death here Saturday while standing security watch.

Post officials said he left a suicide note attached to his body. Wood was a member of the Signal Company Maintenance Battalion of the 2nd Combat Service Group.

Peach Crop . . .

ton, York and Cherokee counties showed that the crop in that upper South Carolina area was still in good shape last night comparatively speaking.

Clarence Black, superintendent of North Carolina State College's Sandhills Research Station at Candor, said many growers felt they still had a chance to make a crop.

He and Ferree agreed on this general summary:

If the crop in their areas was not damaged any futher last night, there will be a light normal crop.

Ferree added:

"Some growers have lost many of their peaches that were in low places and in not too desirable orchard sites. But on the whole, most growers feel that the situation is not as bad as pehaps they feared."

Drunken Driving Charged In Crash

A Route 1 resident was charged following a Sunday night accident here with drunken driving.

James Edward Evans, 21, was arrested after his car and one operated by Mrs. Betty Manning King, 21, of Fayetteville, collided at Greene and Fourth Streets.

Police estimated damage at $400.

Earlier, an estimated $250 damage was done when cars driven by Joseph R. Bland, 31, of Route 1, Ayden and Orman E. Whichard, 16, of Route 6, collided on N. Greene near Moore Street.

No charges were placed.

Week Of Activity At Belvoir-Falkland

By ANNE HARRIS
Belvoir-Falkland School

ANNE

On Tuesday night, March 20 a NFL Practice was held in our school. Both Belvoir and Greenville were represented, with approximately 25 duo members present. Judges for the news script and poem readings were Mr. and Mrs. Willard Finch, Mrs. Paul Davenport, and Mr. R. B. Starling.

After the meeting, delicious refreshments of drinks, cookies, and potato chips were served.

BFHS will be represented in the Beauty Contest held in Farmville in April 11. The pretty girls representing us are Juniors Barbara Baker and Linda Garris and Seniors Barbara Jenkins and Julie Lewis.

On Thursday, March 15, the F.F.A. met with their advisor, Mr. Eugene James, in the Agricultural Building. They discussed plans for attending summer camp and decided they would go to White Lake instead of their other camp, the Tom Brown Camp. Plans were also discussed for the purchase of hybrid corn.

The Monogram Supper will be held on Friday night, April 20. Plans have not yet been completed. The basketball players and cheerleaders are looking forward to this annual event.

On March 15 the F.H.A. held their March meeting during school hours. President Linda Garris called the meeting to order. An appropriate St. Patrick's Day program was given by Shelba Wooten. Secretary Iris Smith called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting which were approved as read. Evonne McLawhorn gave the treasurer's report.

Plans were discussed for a Mother-Daughter Banquet to be held in the Porterhouse Restaurant on May 8. Various committees were appointed to make further plans for the banquet.

The County Rally will be held at Belvoir School on April 20. Barbara Bullock and Mary Jane Gurkins were nominated to run for County Officer for photographer.

On Friday, March 13 the famous coast to coast team, Do-Otty and Fred Smythe, entertained us with their piano duo and CHESS, in grand opera, light opera and classics, and parlor games. This Southeast School Assembly truly a show of excellence, variety and uniqueness.

The Junior Class sponsored a closed Easter Party on Thursday night. The gymnasium was beautifully decorated with Easter bunnies pulling carts of Easter eggs, little dancing bunnies, and many colored streamers. There were approximately seventy-five people present that enjoyed dancing to the soft music provided by a record-player.

Everyone enjoyed delicious refreshments consisting of punch, cookies, cupcakes, potato chips, sea foam and fudge candy.

Chaperons for the dance were Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Forrest, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Woodard, Mrs. Martha Hall, Mrs. Thelma Switzer, and Mrs. Edna Baker.

On March 6 at about 1:30, seven nervous beginner typists and five advanced students, along with their typing instructor, Miss Dorothy Hardy, entered the Flanagan Building at ECC. They were there for the Pitt County Typing Contest. After two hours, both divisions—beginner and advanced—had been given their tests. The students returned to school the next day to find that Gaynell Harris had received the highest rating of the advanced students from Belvoir-Falkland. Shelba Dawn Wooten was the highest of the beginner typists from our school and she was also placed fourth in the county. Mrs. Hardy was notified that the first ten beginner typists in the county would be entered in the District Contest.

So on March 20 Shelba again entered the Flanagan Building. This time she nearly had butterflies in her stomach. The test was given at 3:00 and only lasted for half an hour. Shelba and Mrs. Hardy attended the typing dinner that evening in the college cafeteria, and when the winner from each county was announced Shelba was surprised to find that she had received the highest rating of the Pitt County students. Then as the District winner from each division was announced Shelba heard her name as the winner of the beginner division.
