Candidacies Of Harriman And Symington Get Boosts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Sen. Start Symington and Gov. Averell Harriman gained new support yesterday as possible candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination.
Neither is now an active candidate.
Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who is followed by a slightly less strenuous campaign trail yesterday in California, where he is campaigning for votes in the June 5 primary.
He will clash there with the other currently active candidate, Adlai Stevenson, the party's unsuccessful standard bearer in 1952.
Kefauver won his first direct test, in Minnesota a week ago.
The boost for Symington, a Missourian, came in the form of an endorsement by that state's Democratic committee. Adopted unanimously, the resolution made no reference to Symington as a "favorite son." The resolution is subject to approval by the Democratic State Convention.
Harriman, governor of New York, was boosted by Frank E.

McKinney of Indianapolis, a former chairman of the Democratic National Committee during the Truman administration.
"If and when he announces," McKinney told newsmen at Indianapolis, "he will find that he has quite a militant group backing him in the states west of the Appalachians."
Harriman, vacationing at Hobe Sound, Fla., declined comment.
An aide to the New York governor said at Albany there has been no change in Harriman's status as a "not active" candidate. Harriman had been quoted Saturday as saying he is "unavailable" for the nomination, but the spokesman said the governor denied using the word "available."
McKinney said he had presided at a March 4 meeting in Denver, at which people from some 14 states were represented.
"It was a conference solely in the interest of Gov. Harriman," McKinney said. "Now, there has been talk in the papers that this was a somewhat tied up with stopping Stevenson in Minnesota."

That is not true," McKinney said also that former President Truman, a personal friend, asked him several weeks ago to "spike... any movement for me for president." He quoted Truman as saying he would not be a candidate under any circumstances.
"In Washington, Symington said, "I am not a candidate," and expressed himself as "humbly grateful for the confidence expressed in me" by the Missouri Democratic committee.
Kefauver made several appearances in the Los Angeles area yesterday, but described several of his chances in the state's primary, he said, "it is an uphill pull, but it is going good now."
Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota rapped the Eisenhower administration at a Los Angeles meeting arranged by Stevenson backers. He said the Eisenhower "team is not doing well" and "the only way you're going to get a good team to run this government is to get a new coach."

Eisenhower To Give Full Outline Of U.S. Policies

Western Neighbors Confer

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—Canadian and Mexican leaders looked to President Eisenhower today for a full exposition of U.S. world policies, including a discussion of the war-threatened Middle East.
Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles were understood to have prepared such a report for the only scheduled business session of the good neighbor conference which opened here last night.
Eisenhower took part in the informal round of talks apparently not aware that three persons were stricken last week after drinking ginger ale aboard the private railroad car in which he traveled from Washington to White Sulphur Springs Sunday night.
Both the U.S. Secret Service, which guards the President, and the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad were investigating the affair.

"We don't think there has been any plot aimed at the President," said Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman, "but we do want to find out all there is to know about the situation."
As the round today's business session, the conference schedule included a luncheon meeting and a closing dinner tonight with Eisenhower playing host to Canadian Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and Mexican President Adolfo Ruiz Cortines.
The North American Big Three opened their unprecedented meeting with a dinner last night. Ruiz Cortines sat on the President's right; St. Laurent at his left. Their foreign ministers and other advisers were ranged around the long table in the Greenbrier Hotel.
The talk was entirely informal and the atmosphere cordial and friendly, said White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty.

Although no formal toasts were proposed, Eisenhower raised his wine glass at one point and declared his "hope and desire for closer friendship and friendship among us."
Ruiz Cortines toasted the "continuation of the greatest cordiality between us," then broadened his sentiment to cover the "American continent."
Lester B. Pearson, Canada's minister for external affairs, spoke of continued friendly relations of the three countries and toasted "the United States, surrounded by the oceans and by Mexico and Canada."
Robert Farquharson, press officer for the Canadian delegation, told reporters, "The President was in great form and carried the conversation, and everybody enjoyed himself."

Gina Objects To Photo Censorship

ROME (AP)—Gina Lollobrigida angrily charged today that Hollywood censorship has retouched still pictures of her famous curves until "my figure looks like Gary Cooper."
She notified United Artists Film Corp. through her lawyer that the retouched pictures of her must not be released. Her contract gives her control of all stills.
The photos show the bosomy Italian star in circus costumes and low-cut dresses in "Trapeze," in which she costarred with Burt Lancaster and Tony Curtis.
Trade sources said the retouching was ordered by the Johnston office, which enforces Hollywood's production code of self-censorship. The reason: "Too much cleavage."
Miss Lollobrigida recently won an action against a magazine which said she wore nothing under a translucent raincoat during filming of a scene. She also sued a photo agency for releasing photos she said showed too much of her figure and too little of her costume.
Today, however, she was hoping that her public might be shown a little more of her figure.
"It's rather ridiculous," she said. "I don't understand why they did it and it is not right to have done it. I have notified United Artists through my lawyer that the pictures cannot be released. It is my face and the body of Gary Cooper."

Manifesto To Be Campaign Issue

RALEIGH (AP)—The Southern Manifesto, which segregationists promised to be an important issue in campaigns in which three Tar Heel members of Congress are seeking re-election.
Three North Carolina representatives declined to sign the manifesto in which more than 100 Southern representatives and senators promised to use all legal means to try to reverse the Supreme Court school segregation decision.
Those who did not sign the document included Reps. Harold D. Cooley of the 4th District, Thurmond Chatham of the 5th, and C. B. Deane of the 8th. All three are opposed to the Democratic nomination in their races for re-election.
W. E. DeBam, Raleigh radio commentator and former City Council member, says he regards the Southern Manifesto as "the one all-important issue" in his campaign for Congress.
Opposing Deane for the nomination is A. Paul Kitchin, former FBI agent who now practices law at Winston-Salem, and continuing with Chatham is Solicitor Ralph Scott of Danbury.
Kitchin said at the time he filed for the primary he had no intention of making the manifesto an issue in his campaign and probably would have been a candidate regardless of the manifesto.
Deane said in explaining why he did not sign the manifesto that he had tried to reach "a God-given decision on this matter."
Eisenhower said in a public statement on the issue but Chatham is under fire from the Rockingham County chapter of the Patriots for the Cause, a pro-segregation organization.

Cooley said in explaining his refusal to sign the manifesto that he favors segregated schools but he is not a segregationist. He said he considers it expresses "the sentiment of a tremendous majority of our people." He accused Cooley of attempting to "run" the bounds of NAACP in Washington and the bare of those who oppose racial mixing back home in North Carolina.
Cooley, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said he felt DeBam's attack was calculated to arouse feeling, and would do more harm to good. In regard to the NAACP, Cooley said no member of that organization has ever contacted him, nor does he know of anyone associated with it.
Cooley reiterated that he has always been in favor of segregated public schools, but felt the manifesto was not the approach to the problem.
The Rockingham pro-segregation group submitted six questions to Chatham, a millionaire manufacturer.
Chatham's answer said the Patriots of North Carolina "are hurtling rather than helping" the segregation issue. "We should forget it," he said, "it's already law."

Probe Poisoned Soft Drinks On President's Train

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—Secret Service agents and railroad investigators joined today in trying to find out whether "poisoned" soft drinks were put aboard a private car later used by President Eisenhower.
Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman said in an interview, "It may take another three or four days to run the train to each of the railroads that carry it." A spokesman for the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad said its investigators are working with Baughman's agents.
Howard Ekman, C&O public relations officer, said a statement last night saying three persons who drank from the car aboard the train, "one of them became ill. Two were hospitalized."
Baughman said he wanted to emphasize that the soft drinks in question were not aboard the train when Eisenhower rode it from Washington to this resort town. Interference with the leaders of Canada and Mexico, Eisenhower boarded the train Sunday night and arrived here yesterday morning.

"We don't think there has been any plot aimed at the President," Baughman said. "But we do want to find out all there is to know about the situation."
"We want to find out whether the soft drinks were poisoned, or whether someone had food before they ever came aboard the car."
Skidmore's statement said "C&O office car, Chesapeake & Ohio, was in the C&O shop at Huntington, W. Va., last week for a routine mechanical inspection. On Thursday night it was taken on a test run to Washington, with three mechanical service people and one of two crew members—the chief aboard—left it was visited briefly by the wife of one of the mechanical men, Mrs. 11-year-old son, two women, cousins of his wife and one of their young sons, also 11. In all, nine people were on the car.

"The family group, plus the other two mechanical men, had a dinner together at a home and the women and children came down to see the men off."
"Ginger ale was served but no drink at all. Some of those who did drink it commented on its unpleasant taste, and the women went home without untoward incident. Later that night three persons who had taken ginger ale suffered upset stomachs."
"One of the mechanical men left the train at Washington and went to a hospital. His condition was critical. One woman was ill at home in Huntington but has recovered. The second woman went to a hospital in Huntington where she is recovering."
"The three persons who fell ill were identified as Mrs. Idell Scott, 46, a schoolteacher; Mrs. Charles Ross, 40, one of the mechanical service employees; and Charles Hertig, Mrs. Ross was not hospitalized. All are Huntington residents."

"The empty bottles from which they had drunk were thrown out the train on the way to Washington, but one bottle was found in Washington all the bottled beverage

Hero's Death For 4-Year-Old

BOSTON (AP)—Two-year-old Susan Galvin and her heroic 4-year-old brother William perished yesterday while their mother was out buying medicine.
The little boy ran out of the smoke-filled apartment when a neighbor broke down the door, but he ran back inside in an effort to save his baby sister.
John Carlinos, 60, who smashed down the door, said he heard young William shout "I have my sister" before he ran back inside.
Their mother, Mrs. Mary Galvin, 30, had left the house only a short time earlier with two other children, Judy, 6, and Phillips, 6 months. She collapsed on returning home as firefighters were carrying out the bodies of her children.

Kefauver Calls For School Aid

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sen. Estes Kefauver has called for 500 million dollars annually in federal grants in aid to local school programs to help catch up on nationwide classroom shortage.
"The Tennesseean criticized the Eisenhower administration last night for what he called a lack of action to provide federal aid to schools. After 2 1/2 years of talk about it, he said, 'there hasn't been one little red schoolhouse built.'"
Kefauver winds up five days of Southern California campaigning today, leaving the field to his rival, Adlai Stevenson, who is due tomorrow.
The Tennessee senator speaking last night in Buena Park at a meeting sponsored by the Optimists Club, also recommended establishment of a position of cabinet rank devoted to youth, including juvenile delinquency problems.
"Show me a town with good schools and well paid teachers," he said, and I'll show you a town where there is no juvenile delinquency problem."
Asked if federal aid would not lead to federal control of schools, Kefauver replied there can be no federal control unless Congress gives it to the federal government.
"No other group is more anxious to leave control with the states than the Congress," he said. But a national problem, he added, is the inequality of opportunity for education and federal aid is a problem to see that the minimum in school building is provided.
Importance of California's 68 delegate votes at the Democratic National Convention is pointed up by the concentration on the state this week by the two leading candidates for the presidential nomination of their party.
Stevenson canceled a Florida vacation to arrive hurriedly for his trip West, presumably as a result of the thumping he took from Kefauver in Minnesota last week. The 1952 Democratic nominee will appear on television in Los Angeles tomorrow night and in San Francisco Thursday night, also meeting with campaign workers and the public in both cities. He returns to Chicago Friday.
"Mr. Stevenson will meet a good welcome I am sure," Kefauver told reporters yesterday. "I can imagine a better place for a vacation."

The Tennessee senator said his California campaign "is a uphill pull, but it is going good now." He added that he feels Stevenson "is still strong here, but my organization will appear on television now. However, I think he is in the stronger position."

Agriculture Secretary Urges Swifter Action In Congress

Farm Delay Costs: Benson

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson said today that each day's delay in congressional enactment of the administration's proposed $1,200,000,000 soil bank program is costing farmers "badly needed income."
"Time is running short," he said. "Already it is so late that it would be difficult to put the soil bank fully into operation so as to help farmers this year."
Benson made his remarks in a statement submitted to the House Agriculture Committee. That group is studying the Senate's farm bill while a Senate House conference committee tries to iron out differences between the measures passed by the two branches of Congress. The conferees called two sessions today in a drive to send a compromise bill to President Eisenhower this weekend.
The omnibus bill passed by the Senate last week carries provisions for the soil bank and as NOC a 20-cents per acre provision which would boost against administration opposition—price support levels for a number of crops and dairy products.

Under the soil bank, farmers would be paid to hold some land out of production until farm surpluses are reduced. The House bill, based on a return to high level fixed price supports for basic crops contains no such plan, but the House is generally expected to accept the idea.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate-House conference committee agreed today on a one-year extension of rigid mandatory price supports on basic crops.
The group also accepted a "dual parity" method for using the higher of two price support formulas.
Benson had been invited to appear before the House committee but Chairman Cooley D. Cooley said he did not wish to give the secretary opportunity to use the committee as a forum for doing additional "missionary work" in behalf of administration proposals.

The House committee is sharply at odds with Benson over his insistence that the present flexible price support system be continued after his release.
Conceding Cooley's right to cancel his appearance before the committee, Benson sent copies of his statement to the group and made it public.
"Remedial farm legislation has been placed high on this administration's priority list," Benson told the committee.
He reminded the congressmen they have had the Eisenhower recommendation since Jan. 9, reviewed the proposals in the White House message, and restated administration objections to price support features of the Senate bill.
From that he went on: "There remains very much to be done," the secretary said, "to shape the bill into the kind of legislation now required to deal effectively with agriculture's difficult problem. That is the challenge which confronts the House and Senate conferees as they work on the bill, already too long delayed."

Benson denied—as some congressmen have argued—that the administration already has authority to set up the soil bank program.
"This has been carefully reviewed by our legal staff and the answer is that there are definite legal reasons for the necessity of new legislation. In order that there may be no misunderstanding, I wish to make clear that if Congress had provided the authority this soil bank program would be in operation right now."
After a two-hour session, the first session of the 10 conferees yesterday afternoon, Sen. Ellender (D-La.) reported good progress. Ellender, Senate Agriculture Committee chairman, said he was confident compromise bill could be hammered out by tomorrow night. Two children, both born in New York City.

Private Water Line Doesn't Pay But Can't Quit

MOKANE, Mo. (AP)—For nearly 40 years people have been casually hooking onto Mrs. Ruby Bonham's private water line. Now she has a public utility that doesn't pay, but they won't let her quit.
It wasn't her line to begin with. It belonged to her father, Dr. W. H. Williamson. About 1919 he permitted some neighbors to hook the pipe that ran from his well to the house. Later he laid a pipe from the well to his office in this eastern Missouri hamlet, and folks started connecting to that line.
Mrs. Bonham, wife of a Denver, Colo., physician, inherited the line when her father retired five years ago. Since then she's been trying to get the line hooked up to the city water system. She said she figures she's netted just about $750.
"I never knew anyone was connected until after it was done," she said yesterday. Even the high school was connected without her knowledge. Since then the school and a locker plant have been put on meters, she said, but nobody pays the meters. And when she raised her rate from $2 to $250 a month she got a lot of squawks.
She tried to sell out to the town of Mokane, population 500. But the city fathers said they weren't interested in her price: $8,000.
In despair, she asked the Missouri Public Service Commission to let her just quit. Then 43 residents of Mokane filed a protest.
That was the eye-opener, she said as the commission opened a hearing in nearby Jefferson City today. She'd had only 39 people on her list of customers.
Those other four, she let it be known, are going to have to pay up.

Wall Pulled Down

EDENTON, N. C. (AP)—The boom on a city truck hooked onto a cable stretched between two downtown buildings here today, and pulled down the second story front wall of a department store.
No one was injured. The time was about 9:45 a.m., but no one was on the sidewalk before the building, and two automobiles parked nearby were undamaged.
The damage was estimated at about $10,000. Officials said it would be covered by city insurance.
Workmen on the truck were putting up a traffic signal for the city. The cable, put up between the two buildings some 10 years ago, had been used for Christmas decorations. The building whose front wall fell, housed the Cutler department store and was about 20 years old.

Hermann Field Returns To U. S. After Long Absence

NEW YORK (AP)—Hermann Field, former Cleveland architect who spent five years as a Polish prisoner, returned unannounced on the liner Queen Mary today after an absence of nearly seven years.
Field, 46, is a "disappearing man" in Budapest, Hungary.
Asked if Noel still is a prisoner, Field replied "that's anybody's guess." He said he writes to his brother occasionally to "keep the lines open."
Field, 46, was accompanied by his London-born wife, Kate, and two sons, Hugh, 12, and Allen, 10.
Noel Field, a former U.S. State Department official, and his wife dropped out of sight in May 1949 in Communist Czechoslovakia. Hermann was arrested three months later in Poland while searching for his brother.

The Poles released Hermann in October 1954 after, he said, he spent five years as a Polish prisoner of the Polish security police. Noel and his wife, Herta, were freed by the Hungarians a month later, but they decided to stay in Hungary and requested political asylum.
Hermann Field received $50,000 from the Polish government as compensation for his imprisonment, and $1,500 more for medical treatment during convalescence after his release.
"I was never officially charged with anything," said Field, Swiss-born of American parents and a one-time architectural planner for Western Reserve University in Cleveland.
"The more they investigated, the less they found out," he said of Polish officials. He said the State Department, urged by his wife and a sister, Dr. Elsie Doob, N.J.

a physician of Urbana, Ill., protested frequently, but the "Poles" claimed they knew nothing about me."
He said the mystery of his whereabouts finally was uncovered when a Polish colonel named Swiatko, a defector, informed U.S. authorities he had been instrumental in kidnapping Field.
Mrs. Field, meantime was in London with her parents and the two children, both born in New York City.
"There were times I didn't think it was too hopeful," Mrs. Field said. "But I was prepared to go on hoping he would be found. Hermann is alive, thanks to the perseverance of the State department."
The Fields were met by his sister, Dr. Doob, and a cousin, Henry C. Field Jr., of Glenwood, N.J.

Delaying Action Faces U.S. Plan

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Egypt has urged the United States to speed up action on a "significant gesture of friendship" for this pivotal Middle East nation.
Mustafa, director of the Finance Ministry's cotton department, indicated that recent Agriculture Department decisions regarding U.S. surplus cotton, which will flow to Egypt to turn to "other countries" for relief.
Mustafa commented in an interview on the recent announcement by Secretary Ezra Benson that the United States would sell cotton surpluses on the world market "dumping."
He added such policies, if carried out, would be bound to have a deep and shocking economic effect in Egypt, and a political effect as well. For some time, Mustafaa said, worry over U.S. cotton policy has made both producers and consumers in Egypt hesitant, waiting for indications which direction Washington would take.
"We were haunted by the idea of subsidies in the United States last year," Mustafaa said. "A subsidy of 10 cents a pound could mean a loss of 30 million Egyptian pounds (nearly 90 million dollars) for Egypt. This is not large by U.S. standards, but very large by Egyptian standards."
For a time, he said, cotton trade had slackened and a hand to mouth policy had prevailed while countries waited to learn which direction the United States would take.
"Then we received another blow," Mustafaa said. "The United States would put five million bales on the export market by Aug. 1. The United States was offering a cotton of 15-16ths of an inch, which is close to our staple. This meant U. S. cotton would be competing directly with about a third of Egypt's export cotton."
"Once again demand slowed up. Everybody was waiting again. There was an immediate decline in Egyptian cotton," Mustafaa said.
"We do not think these stocks should be disposed of at the expense of a friendly nation which depends on cotton," Mustafaa said.
He suggested the United States might find other ways out of the surplus cotton problem, but does not want to be in a position of criticizing U. S. policy of trying to regain a normal share of cotton trade, but cannot approve the means undertaken to achieve this.

Advise Congress State TVA Rules

WASHINGTON (AP)—The comptroller general recommended today that Congress "clearly state" how Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) revenues may be used.
The recommendation was made public by Rep. Taber (R-N.Y.), an opponent of the big power agency, as TVA officials went before the Senate Appropriations Committee to discuss TVA's financial future.
Taber was a member of a minority which opposed a House Appropriations Committee finding that TVA should finance some construction from its revenues.
Comptroller General Joseph Campbell wrote to Taber that the existing laws should "be amended to clearly state the intent of Congress with respect to its control over TVA's capital expenditures for power facilities."
"We believe such legislation is necessary at this time because, in our opinion, the present law is not clear in this respect," the letter added. "There has been a substantial change in the nature of TVA's capital expenditures for power facilities between 1948 and 1955, and the present law, as currently applied, does not give the Congress effective control over TVA's expenditures."
Taber, in making public the letter from Campbell, said it showed "the utter disregard the Tennessee Valley Authority holds for the Congress. It exposes the deliberate withholding of important information on the actions of TVA."
Taber referred to a statement by the comptroller general that on

Jan. 17 the TVA board authorized letters of intent for construction of seven generating units at a cost of 178 million dollars.
He said witnesses before the House Appropriations Committee referred to plans and letters of intent for only three units—one at John Senter and two at the Johnsonville plant.
A majority of the House committee slashed from the pending supplemental appropriations bill $1.2 million dollars asked to start work on the new generating unit at John Senter.

They will study educational facilities from an over all viewpoint, figure how to cope with the teacher shortage, and inventory programs planned by private colleges.

Mr. and Mrs. Forney Give Buffet Supper

On Friday night Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Forney entertained at their home in Lakewood Pines with a buffet supper. Guests were received at 7:15 in rooms decorated with spring flowers.

The buffet table was covered with a white damask cloth and held a bowl of yellow daffodils flanked by tall green candles in silver holders. A turkey supper was followed by homemade cake and coffee.

After supper, bridge was enjoyed. Prizes went to Mrs. Brown Hodges and Mr. L. L. Mewborn for high scores and the consolation went to Mr. Hodges. Other guests were Mrs. Mewborn, Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cobb of Grifton, and Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Glenn of Buchanan, Michigan, parents of Mrs. Forney, who have been guests in their home enroute from a winter in Florida.

Book Reviewed For Sappho Club

On Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Stanley Hathaway was hostess to the Sappho Book Club at her home on Library Street.

The living room and dining rooms of her home were decorated with many arrangements of spring flowers.

Members were greeted at the door by Mrs. Hathaway and introduced to the guests who were Mrs. Gillis Riddick, Mrs. W. G. Gardner, Mrs. Dewey Page and Mrs. Thomas Bentley.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Larry Averette. After a short business meeting Mrs. W. G. Gardner was introduced as the speaker of the afternoon.

She gave a review of the book "God's Psychiatry" by Charles Allen. She described this book as a tonic for everyone who will read it. Mrs. Hathaway, assisted by Mrs. Ben Rouse, served a sweet course and coffee.

Books were exchanged and the meeting was adjourned.

Molecules Spark Fashion Note

ATOMIC STYLES . . . These two gay summer dresses, in festive mood, are of permanently glazed cotton with a schiffli embroidered motif inspired by molecules of chemical benzene rings. The dark dress at left features back panel interest, the white party dress at right has full skirt, strapless top. Both are designed by Lorraine Budny.

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

It's getting so you can't tell a scientist from a fashion designer these days, and vice versa.

In this atomic age, fashion is so mixed up with the higher echelons of chemistry that a dressmaker or textile manufacturer practically has to have a Ph. D. in chemistry that makes the amazing synthetic fibers that go into the new miracle fabrics that have so many labor-saving talents. And it's chemistry that puts those new finishes on cottons and other materials that make them resistant to soil, wrinkling, fading, water and wear.

Pointing up this fact, one of the country's leading chemical companies recently gave a fashion show, featuring dresses made of permanently glazed cotton embroidered in a vari-colored molecule motif suggested by the group-

Lutheran Association Chooses New Officers

Ann Ahrens Tucker of Monroe, sophomore at East Carolina, will head the Lutheran Student Association, religious organization at the college, during the 1956-1957 term. She replaces Jane Lingle of China Grove.

The Lutheran Student Association is completing during 1955-1956 its first year as an active student group on the campus here. Mrs. Charles E. Risher of the East Carolina business education department and Mrs. J. O. Derrick of the Greenville High School faculty are advisors to the organization.

Other officers to serve with Miss Tucker are Mary Lou Wyrick of Gibsonville, vice president; Donald E. Vickstrom of Greenville, secretary-treasurer; and Hilda G. Lowe of Gibsonville, publicity chairman.

Wahl-Coates PTA Elects Officers

The Wahl-Coates PTA met Wednesday, March 21, in McGinnis Auditorium. Mrs. J. W. Overton presided. The pupils of Mrs. Sally Klingenschmitt's first grade sang a group of delightful spring songs.

Seven young ladies from Miss Mildred Pate's third grade gave the devotional. They were Dale Steinmeyer, Anna Sturm, Dolly Overton, Susan Stafford, Janis Jorgensen, Linda Tetterton and Dean Brickhouse.

Mrs. W. C. Hollowell, City PTA Council president, gave a report on the ACE meeting Feb. 29, and the District ACE meeting March 10.

The slate of officers for the coming year was presented to the group by the nominating chairman, Mrs. N. M. Jorgensen. These officers are: Mrs. Lacy Harrell, president; Mrs. George Loutares, recording secretary; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steinmeyer, treasurers, and Mrs. Bill Smith, corresponding secretary. Mrs. Hollowell moved that the slate be accepted as presented and was seconded and approved.

Mrs. D. L. Moore introduced Dr. L'Abati, psychologist with the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic, who gave the program for the afternoon. He explained in a very interesting manner his work as a clinical psychologist.

Mrs. Klingenschmitt's first grade won the attendance award.

ECC Laboratory School's Art Work Is Lauded

Murals designed and executed by seventh-grade pupils in Wahl-Coates Laboratory school at East Carolina College received favorable attention in Arne W. Randall's recently published work "Murals for Schools: Sharing Creative Experiences."

The book, a 1956 publication, is a 110-page slick-paper volume dealing with the mural as an educational device.

James A. Walker, art supervisor in Greenville schools, and Mrs. Ellen Carroll, seventh-grade teacher in the college laboratory school, were pioneers in the use of the "scribble" mural as a child art activity. The Randall volume describes the method used by these teachers, and includes an illustration of one of the murals made by their pupils.

"A scribble mural is lots of fun and the challenge of the free lines and shapes stimulates children's imaginations," says the Randall book of the work carried out by pupils of Mr. Walker and Mrs. Carroll.

With Mr. Walker as author, an article on scribble murals made by children in the Wahl-Coates school appeared in 1953 in "School Arts Magazine" and since that time the methods of art education described in it have attracted favorable comment.

Nell Battle Lewis Guest Speaker For Ex Libris Club Meet

ROBERSONVILLE—Four beautifully set tables added charm to the banquet hall of the Masonic Temple Saturday when the Ex Libris Club gave a 1 o'clock luncheon. Each long table was covered with a lace or with Madeira embroidered linen. Artistic arrangements of flowers formed the centerpiece.

Mrs. Hugh Roberson, a local artist, made large pen and ink sketches for the place cards.

The meal consisted of baked ham, chicken salad, asparagus casserole, Brunswick stew, candied sweet potatoes, crackers, hot biscuits, deviled eggs, congealed salad pickles, coffee and cake.

Mrs. Paul Roberson gave the invocation, then the guests were welcomed by Mrs. Charlie Gray. Mrs. Hugh Roberson, the historian, preceded Mrs. John Tyler who gave Book Sketches of 1937.

Mrs. Claude T. Smith introduced the speaker, Miss Nell Battle Lewis, who writes "Incidentally" for the Sunday News and Observer. All former members were invited. Miss Lewis chose as her topic "True Ghost Stories." She related many incidents to erase the doubt that it is possible for the dead to communicate with the living.

Badges of achievement are to be presented by Carl Knott, district scout executive.

Diplomacy Involves More Than $$$

The President's renewed request for foreign aid, coupled with the report by Secretary of State Dulles on his Asian tour, leaves us cold.

Asking an increase of $2.2 billion over what Congress appropriated last year for mutual security, and authority to make commitments up to ten years in advance (with Congress to appropriate the money later), is not good listening material. Even should such a request be accompanied by a violin playing "Hearts and Flowers", there would be sour notes.

In bygone years it was easier to ask and to get foreign aid appropriations to help restore wrecked economies of our allied abroad. Too, there was a matter of assisting old friends to get some muscle in their military establishments for the sake of mutual defense. Now, the emergency measures of foreign aid are taking on the aspects of a permanent millstone around the American taxpayer's neck.

Secretary Dulles, in reporting on his 10-nation tour, plainly stated money was needed to meet new Russian tactics of economic aid to needy countries in the Middle East and Asia proper. This sort of contest can be dynamic for the United States should we engage in it. Our past economic aid has not endeared America in the hearts of its recipients.

French Premier Guy Mollet told some U. S. editors that American aid often was given in a way to do more harm than good. "You may be frightened by the success the Russians have from the little they give," he said. "But they let people believe they offer it with no conditions. Too often you Americans do it in a way so bad that instead of making friends, you make people dislike you."

It follows that unless there is either a halt to our aid or a basic change in policy for conferring that aid, we're going to have fewer and fewer friends.

Air Service For Every Town Is A Pipe Dream

As Eastern North Carolina ponders its lack of air service and considers the establishment of a joint air facility, it could take a lesson from the Piedmont area.

The Greensboro Daily News recently asserted editorially that the Greensboro, High Point, Winston-Salem area is entitled to air service equal to or better than less populous Charlotte area. It listed statistics which show that the three-city area has a greater population than the area served by the Charlotte airport. Yet, the editorial likewise added that the three-city area is served by two separate airports: Greensboro-High Point and Winston-Salem.

There is no doubt in our mind that the area of Greensboro, High Point and Winston-Salem would have air service comparable to or better than that available at Charlotte in one airport rather than two served the three-city area. Until the three cities cooperate in consolidating their individual air service, they can well expect to have air service inferior to that available in the less populous Charlotte area.

What has all this to do with Eastern North Carolina? Quite a lot, we think.

If Greensboro and High Point combined cannot obtain adequate air service, and neighboring Winston-Salem cannot either, it is foolish to think that individual cities in Eastern North Carolina, much less populous can attract decent air service. As the News and Observer has so aptly pointed out, "The notion that every town could have and should have an airport, just as every town had a railroad depot is ridiculously out of date."

Which brings us back to two fundamentals:
1. Eastern Carolina must have adequate commercial air service if it is to keep pace with industrial development which is going on in other sections of the state and throughout the South. 2. The only way the section can ever hope to have adequate air service is by its several cities and towns pooling their resources, efforts and support for a joint air facility.

Wheels of progress toward a joint airport are beginning to turn in Eastern North Carolina. They will gain momentum only as the individual communities of the area give their wholehearted endorsement to the project.

Opinions In Brief . . .

SANTA ROSA, N.M., NEWS: "A soap pointed out moral. Beware lest you lose the substance by grasping at the shadow." Do we sometimes give away the good things we have for grandiose plans that are nothing more than shadows?"

WEST BEND, WISC., NEWS: "As an example of the progress being made in the United States, . . . the death rate from influenza and pneumonia was 47 per 100,000 population. Ten years later, in 1955, the figure had been reduced by approximately one-half. The death rate from tuberculosis had been reduced by 75 per cent in the same decade."

TALLASSEE ALA., TRIBUNE: "This newspaper has long advocated that man's duty to join or not join union is his God-given privilege."

"The regrettable fact is that the irresponsible parents who neglect their duty continue to do so because they are not being responsible for their dereliction. The startling crime conditions existing today reflect that in America the home is failing in its traditional function as the first and foremost classroom—a place of learning how to live as well as a place of living."—J. Edgar Hoover.

"No public man can be a little crooked. There is no such thing as a 'no man's land' between honesty and dishonesty."—Herbert Hoover.

We've heard no talk of proposed changes in foreign aid policies, and doubt strongly that Congress would tolerate large outlays without some safeguards as to protecting American interests.

The expense of military aid to Israel or the Arab nations has been sidestepped by Anglo-American promises to take military action against the aggressor. The same standard could be applied to other parts of the world, and resultant financial savings to the people involved would be left for developments far more important to them than the expense of conflict or maintaining big military forces.

(On the other hand, that policy leaves us open to the charge of enforcing peace among the "small fry" but unable to enforce it upon the big fellows, the ones who really count insofar as safety of world peace is involved).

America's interests are involved all over the world, and the security of those interests are contingent upon something more than dollars and cents. True, money is a factor . . . and it would be foolish to lose vast stakes abroad for lack of proper application of dollars in the right places, at the right time and in the right atmosphere.

But there is more to the solution of foreign problems than money and we cannot help but think somewhere along the line that fact has been forgotten under duress of many years of dollar diplomacy.

Naming Streams Is No Simple Chore

By LYNN NISBET

STEAM NAMES — The State Board of Water Commissioners at its recent meeting here named several good customers for salesmen of headwaters. It set up a committee to work with a committee of the Federal government in adopting local names for streams which have no names or "have several names."

On the face of the new item, it would not seem much a chore. But when the jealousy for local nomenclature is remembered, and especially if the new names are to have legal fiat for spelling and pronunciation, somebody is in for trouble.

Many streams have Indian names, the phonetics and meaning of which have long since been confused with Anglo or European tongues. Even in the southwestern corner of the state where TA has operated for 20 years there are streams named North Carolina it is Hiwassee, and across the Georgia line it is Hiwassee. The Tuckasee is interchangeable with the Tuckasee, Tuckasee, and several other variations.

Further east the Uwharrie is sometimes the Uwharrie and sometimes the Uwharrie. But it is the same river. Nobody seems to know for sure where the Yadkin crosses the Uwharrie, but the confluence of the Uwharrie or the latter joining with one of the dozen of Little rivers. But before it crosses into South Carolina it is the Pee Dee.

It is rather generally agreed that when the deep and the Haw run together below Moore the combined stream becomes the Cape Fear. The Tar river becomes the Pamlico when it flows under the highway bridge on US 17 and 264 at Washington.

Why, nobody seems to know. One North Carolina river is named after Onslow county into the Atlantic Ocean; another flows northward through Ashe and Alleghany counties and eventually into the Gulf of Mexico.

DUPLICATIONS — Multiple names for the same streams are perhaps less confusing than duplication of similar names for different streams. Your reporter is acquainted with the dozen Little Rivers and Rocky Rivers in widely separated places, and Buffalo Creeks are scattered all over the map.

Along the state line in Union, Mecklenburg, Lancaster and York counties there are Three-mile, Four-mile, Five-mile, Twelve-mile creeks in such profusion the traveler hardly knows how far he is from somewhere else.

Somewhere near the corner of Moore, Richmond and Scotland counties, a stream is named the Lumber river, according to highway maps, but it is the Lumber according to oldtimers in Robeson county, until it runs over into South Carolina and becomes the Little Pee Dee.

FREE SIMPLE — North Carolina has a free simple title to only one river for sale. The Neuse takes its name where it begins as a small stream north of Durham and retains it until it empties in Pamlico Sound at Oriental, and not a single tributary rises outside the borders of the state.

Not only is the Neuse the sole property of North Carolina, it is also the widest river in the whole United States, with undisputed state territory on both banks. Nearest rival is the Potomac, all of which belongs to Maryland although the southern bank is the Virginia line. There are a few feet difference in width, depending upon flow of current at time of measurement, with the Neuse usually coming to the Neuse.

The "big river" category as created by the state of North Carolina is the Mississippi, the Missouri, the Ohio, the Columbia, the Colorado, the Santa Fe, et cetera. They are all "big" rivers, but the Neuse is first, Maryland's Potomac second, and Onslow county's New River at Camp Lejeune is among the top half dozen.

STATE FLAG — The spot news story didn't say anything about it, but one of the most interesting portions of the keynote address by Gov. Theodore McKeldin of Maryland at the recent Republican state convention in Durham was his prefatory tribute to the flag of his state, and the laws applicable to its display.

He reviewed history to show that while Puritans settled in New England, Quakers in Pennsylvania, Huguenots in South Carolina, Presbyterians in North Carolina and Anglican Episcopalians in Virginia, the early colonists in Maryland were Roman Catholics. However, one of the first ordinances adopted by the Maryland assembly was to assure absolute freedom of religion. Jews and Moslems were granted equal protection. But one other thing was established in the beginning and has been continued in succeeding statutes. The flag of the Free State of Maryland could never be legally displayed with a spear or a sword. Its staff must be topped with the Cross of Christ. He told of one instance when he attended a convocation of Governors of all the states and although he could not see the flag, he felt a pang. He insisted that the spearhead be removed from the flag staff of Maryland and that the flag be replaced by the Cross of Christ.

Unavoidable mental question: How many other chief executives of the United States have been reminded by the flag of their state? He insisted upon appropriate recognition of their State flag in the total protocol arrangement?

On Monday of Holy Week he did two things which through centuries have been remembered by his followers. He passed judgment on the barren fig tree, full of fruitage but having no fruit. The fig tree was his own pathetic nation. It had had its chance of glory and the opportunity to bear the fruit of righteousness, and it had by-passed all its opportunities. But our Lord's other confronting a court charge of seriousness has no money to hire counsel, the court appoints such counsel for him.

People facing investigations are equally entitled to fair and open hearing and to the services of counsel.

If we lose that right in America, if we destroy it in seeking to control some other evil, we also are destroyed.

During World War II when German spies and saboteurs were placed on American shores from U-boats, they were captured and faced trial. It was for all the glory of America that she gave these spies and saboteurs, these guilty ones, a fair and open trial. They got every due process to which the most innocent is entitled. Goldsboro's own Kenneth C. Royall, then brigadier general in the Army, was appointed to defend them. He did it brilliantly.

Be it said to the eternal credit of home folks, and after this trial there was not one bit of criticism directed against Royall for defending in open court and with all the vigor he possessed men who had come to burn and ruin and destroy. This was a man who should be remembered by those of us who criticize Gilliland for appearing as counsel for those at the hearing on Communism.

End Of Cramped Space Seen

The first pieces of equipment for the new Reflector building arrived last week and are standing by for installation very soon. That and the fact that painters have been working inside the building and partitions are being installed, is sure-enough evidence of progress.

Maybe the rate of progress is more evident to me than to some others even more keenly interested in the new building, because my visits to the site are sometimes a week apart.

Surveying the general improvement in the cramped space needs, I'd say the circulation department will benefit (proportionately speaking) on a par with the newsroom. Keziah is the man who handles that part of the newspaper's varied components.

He's been with us over five years, now, and his "office" constitutes what used to be the newsroom when I came on the scene. Actually, though, Keziah's working space is about a quarter of the tiny room because an engraving machine takes up one side and there is a passageway almost through the middle leading from the front office to the pressroom. That leaves him with room for a desk, a small filing cabinet and a chair wedged in between; an arrangement which is getting early training in how to conduct a business, with Keziah to teach, goad and help them.

Recording the rate of each copy of 'The Reflector' that is printed comes under the requirements of the Audit Bureau of Circulation. If the pressman ran off 7,115 copies Monday, Keziah must be able to account for every one of them. This record is regularly audited and offers a guide to advertisers as to just what they're buying when they buy advertising space in newspapers who are members of the ABC.

I suspect some of Keziah's late hours (and sometimes Sunday hours) are devoted to adding long columns of figures, which must balance, because interruptions in regular working hours tie his calculations in knots.

To make a long story shorter, the circulation department's office in the new building will be a triple present space and the location assures less chance for interruptions and distractions.

Instead of having his desk piled high with miscellaneous notes, data, letters and records, the circulation manager is really coming into his own. And, more power to him.

A Bachelor Ripe For Picking

By RYELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP)—This being Leap Year, ladies, I thought you might like to know about a particular bachelor with an unusual story.

His name is Martin Lerman. He is 25, tall, slim, dark and handsome. He is a former resident of Athens, a former resident of Athens, a former resident of Athens. He began talking about and, or a young fellow just getting started, his prospects look pretty bright.

He owns an oil company. Now they tell me it is always a good idea to get a man talking (A) about himself and (B) about his work. And if a girl can come here and there with a knowledgeable comment, so much the better. So here is young Lerman's spacious act on Monday of Holy Week was the cleaning of the temple. Immediately upon entering the city he went to the temple. This he did because then—as now he was a Jew, he was a Jew, he was a Jew. He would cleanse the church, thus symbolically reminding his contemporaries that there is a health to the life of any community unless its churches are beyond reproach and spiritually healthy.

On Monday of Holy Week he did two things which through centuries have been remembered by his followers. He passed judgment on the barren fig tree, full of fruitage but having no fruit. The fig tree was his own pathetic nation. It had had its chance of glory and the opportunity to bear the fruit of righteousness, and it had by-passed all its opportunities. But our Lord's other con-

Be it said to the eternal credit of home folks, and after this trial there was not one bit of criticism directed against Royall for defending in open court and with all the vigor he possessed men who had come to burn and ruin and destroy. This was a man who should be remembered by those of us who criticize Gilliland for appearing as counsel for those at the hearing on Communism.

Tie-In With Wedding Is Risky Deal

By ELMER ROESSNER
Almost every American merchandiser with a touch of Barnum in him is itching to tie the products in with the Grace Kelly-Rainier wedding.

A considerable amount of caution will be wise.

Grace Kelly owns her own brand of Rainier beer. And anyone who borrows them to sell a sweater or a cigar is liable to suit. They have a right to their own faces and anybody using a photograph of them to advertise a product risks litigation and damages.

Of course, if Miss Kelly or Her Highness gives permission—But they won't.

TRADE PUT ON NOTICE
Damage claims for wrongful use of the names, pictures or likenesses of the lovelies can be high. Cause merchants have been put on notice. John Edward Sheridan, attorney for the Kelly family, has taken pains to make it plain that the Kellys do not want their names used in connection with products, as long as the use does not infringe on anybody else's trade mark.

"Any use of the name of Grace Kelly, Prince Rainier III, or their seals, in any manner, directly or indirectly, for commercial purposes to further the sale of merchandise or items of any kind without the prior authority of the undersigned, is prohibited, and any violation thereof shall be vigorously prosecuted."

This notice, according to reports in the trade, torpedoed plans to bring out Rainier chiefs with the seal of Monaco, "Grace Kelly bridal gowns" and "Grace Kelly dolls in wedding finery."

However, there are many ways in which an association with the wedding may be used. The words "Monaco," "Monte Carlo," "Kelly" and "prince" are in the public domain and may be used in connection with products, as long as the use does not infringe on anybody else's trade mark. A "Monte Carlo sandwich" would be legal, if not appetizing, while "Grace Kelly sandwich" could cause trouble, even if made of hummingbirds' tongues.

A business may sponsor a news broadcast or telecast of the wedding and other public events, and a firm or an executive can get into the act by sending Miss Kelly a bucket of zirconos. A salesperson may say, "It is true, that a gown is actually made of silk, not only will wear. But the store had better not put a picture of Miss Kelly on a gown, because it would be a bad idea."

And, of course, the words Monte Carlo and Monaco may not be used to advertise a product, people think that the goods offered are from those places if they are not.

OTHERS HAVE RIGHTS, TOO
There is another barrier to tie-ins—that of good taste. A seller who relates it in an offensive way will harm himself.

The restrictions on exploiting the Kelly-Rainier wedding serves to remind merchants and advertisers that all persons have rights to their own names and faces. Using a person's picture in an advertisement without permission—even in "mild" cases can bring suit for invasion of privacy. There is even some question as to whether a picture may safely be used unless it can be shown that the writer so intended. And there is some question as to whether the picture of a professional model may be safely used without a signed release.

To be safe, advertisers should get signed permission, in case of doubt, consult their attorneys.

Cigarette-Buying In U. S. Rising Again

W.L. Wheelbee, Supervisor of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade, today called attention to the fact that cigarette consumption in the U.S.A. is now slowly increasing.

Wheelbee stated that according to figures given by J.B. Hutson, President of Tobacco Associates, Inc., that the most favorable development during the year as far as flue-cured producers are concerned is the pronounced recovery in cigarette consumption in the United States. Domestic consumption in 1955 rose slightly more than 3 per cent above the 1954 level — reversing a 2-year downward trend. The health scare which drove away an estimated 1.5 million people from smoking in 1953 and 1954 has definitely subsided.

"U.S. cigarette output increased continuously and substantially from the early 1930's through the calendar year 1952, when production reached a peak of 436 billion cigarettes. During the calendar year 1953, total production dropped to 423 billion and, in 1954, to a 4-year low of 402 billion cigarettes.

"A further increase in cigarette consumption in the United States during the year ahead seems likely. This increase will probably be small, however, since the smoker age group (18 to 54) will increase very little. Most of the increased purchases are expected to come from an increase in consumption by present smokers and from a continuation of the trend of people returning to smoking. The most important factor of all is that smokers seem to have shrugged off their cancer fears.

"Unfortunately, however, there was no increase in the use of flue-cured leaf or of total cigarette leaf accompanying this increase in cigarette output. In fact, the amount of leaf used was lower during the calendar year 1955 than during the calendar year 1954. This decrease in the amount of leaf used per cigarette represents an acceleration of a trend which has been underway for about two years."

Draining Lake In Search For Baby

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Mecklenburg rural police put pumps and hose into action today in an effort to drain four-acre Henderson's Lake in a search for the body of a baby they're now sure is missing.

Police Chief Joe Whitley says the story told by a 13-year-old girl and her 11-year-old brother is solid enough to warrant an investigation, however.

The search got started Sunday when Judy Merritt told this story: "We were in the cattails hunting a hen's nest. This pickup truck drove up. There was a man and a little boy and a woman and a baby in it."

"The woman got out, carrying the baby on her left shoulder. She walked fast toward the lake, where we couldn't see her. She came running back in a couple of minutes."

"The baby was gone. "She said, 'Well, it's killed now. Then she got in the truck and it drove away."

Judy's brother, Steve, told the same story. Dragging operations have turned up only cans, stumps and logs so far.

Light Sentence Given Kluckhohn

RALEIGH (AP)—Richard P. Kluckhohn drew a one-to-two-year sentence yesterday in the slaying of a woman shopper behind a hotel in Raleigh.

Kluckhohn, 21, pleaded nolo contendere (no contest) to a charge of involuntary manslaughter. Last June he was sentenced to 5-to-10 years after a jury convicted him of a similar charge in the May 13 pistol shooting of Miss Bernice Seawell, 48, of Arlington, Va. He appealed to the State Supreme Court, which granted him a new trial because the judge's charge to the jury was faulty.

Miss Seawell was waiting for a parking lot attendant to deliver her car during a rainy day when she was felled by a bullet. Kluckhohn, who described the shooting as a "horrible accident," acknowledged that his German Luger pistol had discharged while he was in a hotel room, but said he did not know it had hit anyone. Kluckhohn was in this area as a representative of a publishing firm. His parents, Dr. and Mrs. Clyde K. Maben Kluckhohn, are on the Harvard University faculty. Judge Hamilton Hobgood of Wake Superior Court could have sentenced Kluckhohn to a maximum of 20 years in prison.

Report Findings On College Site

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—A committee of Methodist Church officials and lay leaders reported its findings in secret session here today on a search for a home for a new Methodist college in North Carolina.

The report was made in a meeting with a long-range planning committee, and sources said an announcement regarding a possible choice might be made after the meeting.

Any findings would be submitted to the Methodist Conference scheduled for June 25-29 at Lake Junaluska for action.

The five-man committee studied sites at Kinston, Rocky Mount, Wilmington, Fayetteville, Lumberton and Louisville, present site of the Methodist junior college. Most of the towns visited also were in contention for the consolidated Presbyterian college awarded earlier this month to Laurinburg.

Members of the study committee are Dr. J. D. Messick, president of East Carolina College at Greenville; Dr. W. C. Ball, Burlington; Gurney P. Hoot, Raleigh; former state banking commissioner; Dr. W. L. Clegg, Durham and Mrs. Frances Pouts, Mount Olive.

Easter Worship On Horseback

COWBOY PREACHER—The Rev. Joe Evans starts services.

WICKENBURG, Ariz. (AP)—When the Easter sunrise breaks over the cactus-studded hills around this cowboy town, worshippers will be singing of the old rugged cross in Western style.

For the past five years, the townsfolk have attended the Eastern sunrise service on horseback. The minister and the choir also mounted.

Last year about 200 riders turned out from this town of about 1,700. Another 1,000 came from 13 states by car. They park several miles away and walk to the service.

All the local churches take part in the inter-denominational services. Pastors take turns conducting each year. The service was started in 1951.

U. S. Information Office To Step Up Propaganda

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. Information Agency proposes to step up its propaganda efforts by more than half in hopes of countering Russia's new political-economic offensive.

USIA Director Theodore C. Streibert asked a House Appropriations subcommittee to recommend 195 million dollars in the fiscal year beginning next July 1, an increase of about 55 per cent over what Congress appropriated for this year.

In closed-door testimony last month, Streibert sought increases for nearly all USIA activities including Voice of America radio broadcasts. His testimony was made public today.

Among other things, he proposed taking an aircraft carrier out of mothballs, fitting it with Cinerama and nonmilitary display items and sending it on a tour of Africa, Near Eastern and Far Eastern ports. He estimated the first year's cost at $4 million dollars. Cinerama is a motion picture technique which gives the viewer a sense of being in the scenes shown.

Streibert proposed also the free distribution of thousands of cheap, hand-powered phonographs, along with records telling America's story to natives in 27 countries in the Near and Far East.

Streibert said U.S. officials now estimate "that in the next few years there will be less likelihood of military action and more reliance on diplomatic, economic and psychological action by both sides."

"The U.S. government must mount an aggressive psychological program backed by adequate resources," he said.

Ask Emergency Rate Increase N.C. Truckers

RALEIGH (AP)—Stating they are in a "desperate plight," North Carolina truckers asked the Utilities Commission yesterday for an immediate emergency increase on their rates.

The truckers asked for a 10-per cent boost in all less than truckload shipments.

They asked that the increase become effective while the commission is hearing and deciding on a request for an increase of 20 per cent in less than truckload shipments and an increase in the minimum charge per shipment.

Attorneys for the Tar Heel truckers said the industry as a whole is barely breaking even and many individual carriers are operating at a loss.

They said increased wages and operating costs make the increase essential.

Delaware Nine Invades Buc Territory To Open Season

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Writer

Delaware invaded the campus of East Carolina College today to open the Pirates' official 1956 baseball season at College Field. The game got underway at three o'clock.

East Carolina Coach Jim Mallory was expected to start right-hander Mack Cherry on the mound against the touring Northerners, and Ralph Zehring behind the plate. Cherry is one of the three left-handers on the ECO pitching staff.

The University of Delaware, currently meeting the top teams in the South, including the State's Big Four schools, is considered by Mallory one of the Pirates' biggest foes of the year. They downed Carolina 3-2 Saturday and were trampled 13-2 yesterday by a powerful Wake Forest club.

Pirate Lineup
Coaches Mallory and Earl Smith expected to use a variety of material today against their strong opposition, however, the set lineup seems to be as follows: Nick Smother, first base; Sandy Sanderson, second base; Jerry Stuart, shortstop; Bucky Reep, third base; Ray Pennington, left field; Gene Turner, centerfield; Burney Stevens, right field.

The above boys turned in excellent performances against Springfield, Mass., and the Camp Lejeune Marines in a series of trial matches during the past weekend.

"Our infield looked awfully good," Mallory commented after the three-day series. He praised Stuart and Sanderson especially on their defensive play. Stuart was the regular shortstop on last year's North State Championship outfit, and Sanderson is now filling very capably the shoes of graduated All-State second sacker Cecil Heath.

Hitters Are Powerful

Bucky Reep and Nick Smothers, the remaining two infielders, were among the three boys named by Mallory as the outstanding Pirate hitters in the Springfield-Lejeune series. Smothers, a gigantic left-handed swatter, poled a 390-foot homer in the final Lejeune battle, and added several long smashes in the other games. Reep and Outfielder Gene Turner also contributed ample belts to the Buccaneer hitting parade.

Probable pitchers expected to aid Cherry on the mound this afternoon were Charlie Russell and freshman Mac McPherson.

Late-Reporting Kluszewski May Be Left Behind

FORT MYERS Fla. (AP)—Manager Birdie Tebbets of the Cincinnati Redlegs threatened today to leave Ted Kluszewski, the club's big slugger, behind when the team begins its northward trek next Monday.

"Klu's just starting spring training right now," Tebbets said. "He is taking light workouts and coming along pretty good. But he says it still hurts him to swing and his thigh is all lapped up. When we break camp, there's a strong probability that Klu will be left either in Tampa or in one of our minor league camps in Douglas, Ga."

Tebbetts tried his best to sound optimistic but there was a definite suggestion of annoyance at the length of time Klu has taken to begin working himself into shape. He expressed confidence that Kluszewski would be in the opening day lineup but said he was prepared if he isn't.

"If he isn't ready by opening day, then I probably will play Frank Robinson, a fine-looking young player, still on the Nashville roster," he said.

Kluszewski was hurt the second day of training, swinging in batting practice. Until March 19 he did not appear in the lineup. On that date he tried it for three innings against the Pirates.

"He was struggling so hard I decided to get some competent medical man to tell him it wouldn't hurt him to keep playing," said Tebbets.

Kluszewski was sent to see Dr. George Bennett of John Hopkins Hospital, who was vacationing in the Florida Keys.

"Dr. Bennett diagnosed the injury as a pulled muscle deep in the hip," Birdie said. "He said it was an injury common to athletes and assured us while it was painful and aggravating, it wasn't serious and certainly not permanent. He prescribed wet packs, massages and light workouts which should be increased gradually."

Almost Raised Olympic Money

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—California has just about guaranteed the four million dollars needed to clinch the 1960 Winter Olympics for Squaw Valley in the High Sierra.

The next-to-the-last step came yesterday when the Senate passed its version of the 1956-57 state budget with the Olympic money in it. The Assembly earlier okayed the sum in its budget.

The two houses will have to meet, probably today, to work out over-all differences on the state spending program before it can go to Gov. Knight.

The International Olympic Committee (IOC) in January gave California backers an ultimatum: Either have the four million by April 3 or the games go to Innsbruck, Austria.

Women Golfers Tee Off In Eastern Tournament Today

Lane Thinks Deal For Doby Helped

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Frank Lane believes his former team, the Chicago White Sox, got the best of the deal which sent shortstop Chico Carrasquel and center fielder Jim Musky to the Cleveland Indians for slugging center fielder Larry Doby.

"I never thought they Cleveland would go for Chico. He is not the spry fielder he used to be," says Lane, now general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Chicago was playing a game against Cleveland last year and the White Sox had a 3-0 lead. Bob Lemon was up. He hit a ball a few feet from Chico and it went for a hit that helped cost us the game. Apparently Cleveland was so busy watching Lemon hit that someone overlooked Chico's fielding.

"That's why I used to hold bags of gold in front of Chico. You had to pump him up every now and then."

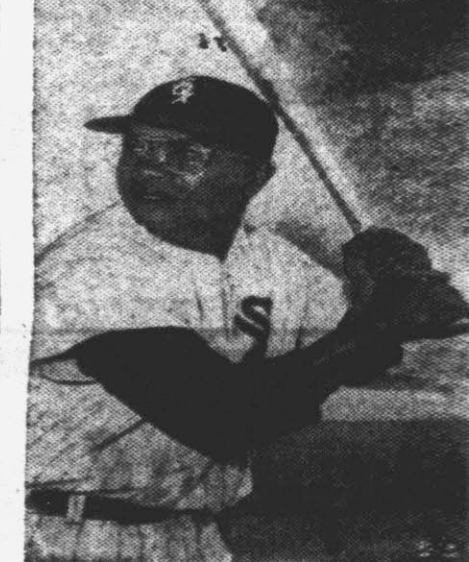

Lane means "pump up" his ego, not his weight. Chico is listed in some books at 173 pounds but it is no secret that on occasion he has scaled around 200 pounds.

So, while Cleveland seems happy out in Tucson, Ariz., the Florida grapefruit grapevine believes that the Indians still have a shortstop problem.

Cleveland used five shortstops last season with George Strickland seeing most action. Strickland hit .209 in 128 games. Carrasquel hit .265 and .267, respectively the last two years for Chicago.

Let Lane be accused of helping the White Sox by his reasoning it must be remembered he left Chicago in a huff.

"I tried to get Doby a long time back but the Indians wouldn't deal him," says Lane. "But let those fellows worry about their own deal. I have enough to worry about trying to get the Cardinals back in the first division of the National League."

LARRY DOBY

NEW center fielder for the Chicago White Sox may try wearing glasses this season after hitting .291 for Cleveland.

Cleveland Cuts Roster By 12

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—The Cleveland Indians cut 12 men from their roster yesterday.

Eleven of the players are being sent to the Cleveland minor league training base at Dayton, Beach, Fla. They are pitchers Don Munnick, Ed Gasque, Marian Murszewski, Dolan Nichols, Stan Pittula, Dick Tomaneck and Henry Aguirre; infielders Bill Harrell and Stan Pawloski; catcher La Verne Grace, and outfielder Carroll Hardy.

Pitcher Duane Pillette is being sent to Buffalo, N.Y.

The cut leaves the Indians with a squad of 34.

Russell Stars In East-West Game

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—San Francisco's fabulous Bill Russell scored 18 points and snagged 10 rebounds last night to lead the West to an expected victory over the East, 74-62, in the fifth annual Shrine all-star basketball game.

The West, which developed well with Russell's San Francisco teammate, K. C. Jones, doing the ball-leading. But teamwork was not conspicuous in the game, played before 9,000 fans. The result widened the West's edge in the series to 4-1. Last year the East won 90-77.

Russell, Art Buntz of Utah and Robin Freeman of Ohio State shot the West to a 14-0 lead before Furman's Darrell Floyd scored for the East on a couple of free throws after five minutes of play. Floyd, who averaged 35.5 points for Furman, was held to 12 points, eight on field goals. Julius McCov, who averaged 27.9 for Michigan State, was held to two points on a field shot. Tom Heinsohn of Holy Cross led the East with 15 points.

Hefty Archie Is Fighting Tonight

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Archie Moore, an overweight light heavyweight champ if ever there was one, goes against Howard King of Reno tonight in a 10-round non-title fight at Memorial Auditorium.

Moore, minus a goatee and with just a sliver of a mustache, said he figures to weigh in at about 195, some 20 pounds more than King. The Reno fighter stayed 10 weeks with Moore last month in San Francisco.

Pony League To Sign Up Boys

Ford McGowan, president of Greenville's Pony League, announced today a meeting Wednesday night for all parents and boys that were on teams as well as for those not on last year's teams. Registration for the 1956 season will be made at this meeting.

Boys are advised to bring at least one of their parents to the City Hall Courtroom at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will last no longer than 9:00 o'clock, says McGowan.

"In order for boys to register, they must attend the Wednesday night meeting," warned the League president. "If parents and other supporters have no interest in this it will be most difficult to operate a successful season."

GHS Trackmen Meet Fayetteville

Greenville high school plays host to a powerful Fayetteville track squad tomorrow afternoon in its first official meet of the 1956 season.

Coach Guy Lewis, who has had his Greenville track team working hard in fundamentals and special exercises, will send a young but highly-trained group of tracksters against the AAA school team.

Leading the pack will be GHS senior Harold Edwards, who last year captured All-State honors with an amazing season of play, during which time he set a new State high jump record.

Pete West and Billy Sermons will be other veterans expected to hold up the Greenville cause with proven talent. Bob Shackelford will strengthen Phantom hopes in the heavy events and Rhett Everette, an outstanding sophomore prospect, is another top Lewis choice.

The battle will begin at 3:30 at the Guy Smith Stadium track.

Tebbetts Hopeful Over His Rookie

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Manager Birdie Tebbets of the Cincinnati Redlegs says rookie Frank Robinson has much to learn, but can develop into another Wally Piker for us.

"I expect Robinson to have a tough time at first," Tebbets said. "He's young and inexperienced. If he hits about 250 this season and hits me around 15 homers, he'll be doing just what I expect of him."

Robinson stepped across the plate with the first score of yesterday's 3-1 Redlegs victory over the St. Louis Cardinals, coming in from third on a solid hit to center by Smoky Burgess.

Exhibition Play Rough On Traders

By ED WILKS

The Associated Press

Spring exhibition games don't count in the races for pennants, but they sure can be tough on general managers waiting for the results of winter trades. Ask Frank Lane.

The first trade Lane put together as general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals—after gaining for Jackie Robinson in a winter deal for the Chicago White Sox—backfired right off the bat.

Pitching has been the big "if" for the Cards for a couple of seasons; they couldn't find anybody who could go nine innings and wind that was worse, they couldn't find anybody to call in from the bullpen.

Lane was aware of the pitching failures when he took over and so he sent a Brooks Lawrence, bothered by an ulcer and a high earned run average, to Cincinnati for Jackie Robinson, a Card of the pre-Lane era.

So what happens? Lawrence ran into his old mates for the first time yesterday. He graciously gave up 10 hits and three walks, but snapped off their six-game hitting streak 3-1 while going nine innings for the first time this spring.

It was Lawrence's second victory without defeat in four exhibition starts.

Collins, by the way, has appeared in three games for the Cards so far—for a 0-1 record.

A bases-loaded, two-out error by Card shortstop Alex Grammas—miffing Lawrence's tap sent two Redlegs across in the seventh.

It might also be noted that Larry Doby, acquired from Cleveland for Chico Carrasquel in a winter deal executed by Chuck Comiskey after Lane's departure, continued to connect with his bat as the White Sox leveled the Boston Red Sox 9-2.

Doby, enjoying one of his finest springs, rapped home his first Chicago run with a triple and added a single to boost his average to .419.

The Brooklyn Dodgers followed the pattern they set in trimming the New York Yankees in last fall's World Series, and clobbered the Bronx Bombers 15-7 after losing the first two games of their spring series. Maury McDermott, involved in the Yanks' winter trade with Washington, was rapped for 11 runs in the second inning.

Ray Crone of the Milwaukee Braves was tagged for four runs in three innings as the Pittsburgh Pirates won 16-9. Dale Long drove in five Buc runs with a double, triple and homer.

Doby developed a grand-slam homer in a five-run fifth that gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 6-2 decision over the Detroit Tigers.

Johnny Antonelli allowed only four hits while going seven innings for the first time this season as the New York Giants poured it on Baltimore 14-1.

The Chicago Cubs dumped the Cleveland Indians 9-5 while Warren Hacker pitching shutout ball for six innings.

Muscle Men by Pap'

The dawn of an Olympic year is the signal for track and field athletes to buckle down in earnest and point for the international contests. The runners start whittling down their times and the young giants who playfully toss around the weights add distance to their throws. The hope of a chance to represent the United States is the big incentive they need to bring out their best performances.

The National A. A. U. indoor championships offered an excellent preview of what can be expected at Melbourne next fall, and the outlook is good. The weight men, with Lt. Parry O'Brien setting the pace, gave evidence that the Russians, and any other contenders, are headed for stiff competition. O'Brien tossed the leather-covered 16-pound shot 61 feet, 5 1/4 inches for a new world record to top his 1954 world standard of 60 feet, 10 inches which he set in June, 1954.

"My original plans called for a throw of 62 feet sometime this year," said O'Brien, "but now with this new record it looks as though I would have to revise my schedule and shoot for a better mark."

Earlier the same day, Bob Backus, the New York A.C. "whale," was forced to a new world record of 63 feet, 10 1/4 inches in the 35-pound weight throw by Albert Hall, a Cornell senior. Hall, the intercollegiate hammer-throw champion, has been improving a steadily and came up with a toss of 63 feet, 3 1/4 inches to win the Heptagonal title and create a new record for an undergraduate. Spring and summer competition should bring him to his peak when the Olympic trials roll around.

Grace Kelly's Future Home Occupies A Mere 370 Acres

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP WRITER

Set like a tiny gem on the mild blue waters of the Mediterranean, with the chilly majesty of the Maritime Alps rising behind it, is Monaco where next month the prince will marry the beautiful commoner in the culmination of a fairy tale romance.

For almost a thousand years, Monaco has managed to remain an independent state. One reason, no doubt, is its size. It occupies 370 acres, could be dropped neatly into Chicago's stockyards with room to spare.

While Monaco is much more than the gambling tables at Monte Carlo, it still is essentially a country of hotels and resorts, thriving on tourists. It exports perfumes and liqueurs, oranges and olive oil, and it imports travelers, preferably with money.

Yet this land, whose ruling

Prince Rainier III will soon marry movie actress Grace Kelly is a nation, even though in miniature. It has a national anthem. It has a standing army—65 men in sky blue uniforms who double as palace guards and the police force. It has a flag of red and white.

It also, of course, has its Victorian gambling palace. But for some years that has been a rather ghostly structure, its gilt flaking, its red plush wearing smooth, its habitués often on the dowdy side.

Monaco's history, also in miniature, is almost as bloody and exciting as its giant neighbors: France, which surrounds it on three sides and Italy, a few kilometers away.

The Grimaldi line, which originated in nearby Genoa, has ruled the principality for more than 600 years, except for 21 years during the French Revolution.

The first Grimaldi gained admission by disguising himself as a Franciscan monk. Inside, he raised a rumpus, diverting the ruling German lords long enough to permit his followers to enter and conquer the fortress.

Once entrenched, the Grimaldis depended on brain and brawn to remain. They made shrewd political alliances, most often with France, and usually turned up on the winning side. Through wise marriages, they allied themselves with some of the richest, most powerful and noble houses in Europe.

In the 16th century in return for favors rendered under Spanish protection, a Grimaldi was given the right to collect tolls from ships passing Monaco's port. This painless means of filling the nation's coffers was unequalled until 1861, when Rainier III's great-grandfather set up a gambling concession in Monte Carlo, one of the principality's three towns.

Eight years after the "Sea Bathers and Foreigners Club of Monaco" was founded, Monaco abolished direct taxes. Ten years later it attracted 180,000 visitors; in 1910, half a million. It was the beginning of the Monaco legend.

Through the Victorian period until World War I, Monte Carlo was the world's most fabulous playground. But after two wars, there were few crowned heads left to disport themselves in the resort. Rival gaming halls in Nice and Cannes, cut into what was left of the gambling business. There was still no direct taxation; but the income was coming from a government monopoly on cigarettes, matches and a brisk business in postage stamps. (Last year, for the benefit of collectors, Monaco put out more varieties of postage stamps than did the United States.)

Prince Rainier ascended the throne in these critical times. Shortly afterward the Sea Bathing Society got a new boss: a slightly mysterious Greek with an Argentine passport and a 300-million-dollar shipping fortune. His name: Aristotle Socrates Onassis.

He announced grand plans for the rebirth of Monaco as a resort.

At the moment, Monaco's prospects do appear great, although not as a result of Onassis' plans. Tourist business has taken a brisk upward turn, due entirely to the forthcoming marriage.

Much of the storied principality's future may depend upon the prince's marriage to the commoner. In the first place it may result in again swilling the innkeepers' purses. And secondly, it may result in the birth of a young Grimaldi to succeed Rainier.

This is extremely important, for under a 1918 treaty with France, the little country will be annexed by its protective neighbor if there is no successor to the throne. That means mandatory military service for the 4,000 Monacans and the 17,000 other residents. It also means direct taxes.

Magazine Sales Help School Debt

ALPINE, Calif. (AP)—Proceeds from the sale of magazine subscriptions by elementary school pupils will go to help pay a school debt, Frank S. Brown, district superintendent, said the district is expected to net $400 to apply to payment of a $1,800 debt incurred in 1953.

The district board ordered work without taking proper legal action, Brown said, and tax money may not be used to pay the debt. He said the magazine subscription drive will be conducted annually until the debt is paid.

Will Decide On Prosecuting Known Communists

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has agreed to decide, probably at its next term, whether the government may prosecute persons who belong to the Communist party while knowing it advocates violent revolution.

The high tribunal yesterday granted hearings to Claude M. Lightfoot, Chicago Negro, and Julius I. Scales, chairman of the Communist party's Carolinas district, the first persons to be convicted under the "informed membership" section of the Smith Act.

Lightfoot, secretary of the Illinois Communist party, was sentenced to five years in prison and a $5,000 fine. Scales was sentenced to six years in prison.

The court deferred hearings on these cases until its new term beginning next Oct. 1.

At the same fall session, the court said it will hear arguments on an appeal by 14 California Communist leaders who were convicted of plotting to advocate violent overthrow of the government. Each was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $10,000.

Another Smith Act case to be heard next fall is that of Sieve Nelson, Communist party leader in western Pennsylvania. Nelson's 1953 conviction in Pittsburgh Federal Court came after he was convicted in a state court under Pennsylvania's antiseditious law.

Nelson got 20 years in prison under the state conviction and five years under the Smith Act conviction. The Supreme Court has heard arguments on Nelson's appeal from the state court conviction but has not yet rendered its decision. Yesterday, the court said it will hear arguments on Nelson's federal case appeal next fall.

Voting 7-2, the Supreme Court yesterday said witnesses before federal grand juries and in federal courts may be compelled to give testimony in cases affecting national security if they are promised immunity from state and federal prosecution.

Justice Frankfurter, author of the majority opinion, said the Fifth Amendment's privilege against self-incrimination does not apply when immunity "replaces danger" of prosecution. Justices Douglas and Black dissented.

The decision upheld the attempt conviction of William Ludwig Ullmann, first person to be prosecuted under the 1954 law designed to compel testimony on promise of immunity from prosecution in any court.

In another action yesterday the high court let stand a lower court decision that upheld the authority of the secretary of labor to fix a nationwide 41-an-hour minimum wage in cotton, silk and synthetic textile plants doing business with the government.

N. J. Democrats Aim To Dispel Idea That Eisenhower Is Above Politics

By JAMES DEVLIN
TRENTON, N. J. (AP)—Democrats seeking to take New Jersey out of President Eisenhower's column say they hope to dispel a feeling he is "above politics" by linking him directly to administration activities that have aroused criticism.

Republican leaders predict Eisenhower will win by a larger margin than his 359,000-vote lead in 1952. They contend efforts to destroy his popularity will get nowhere.

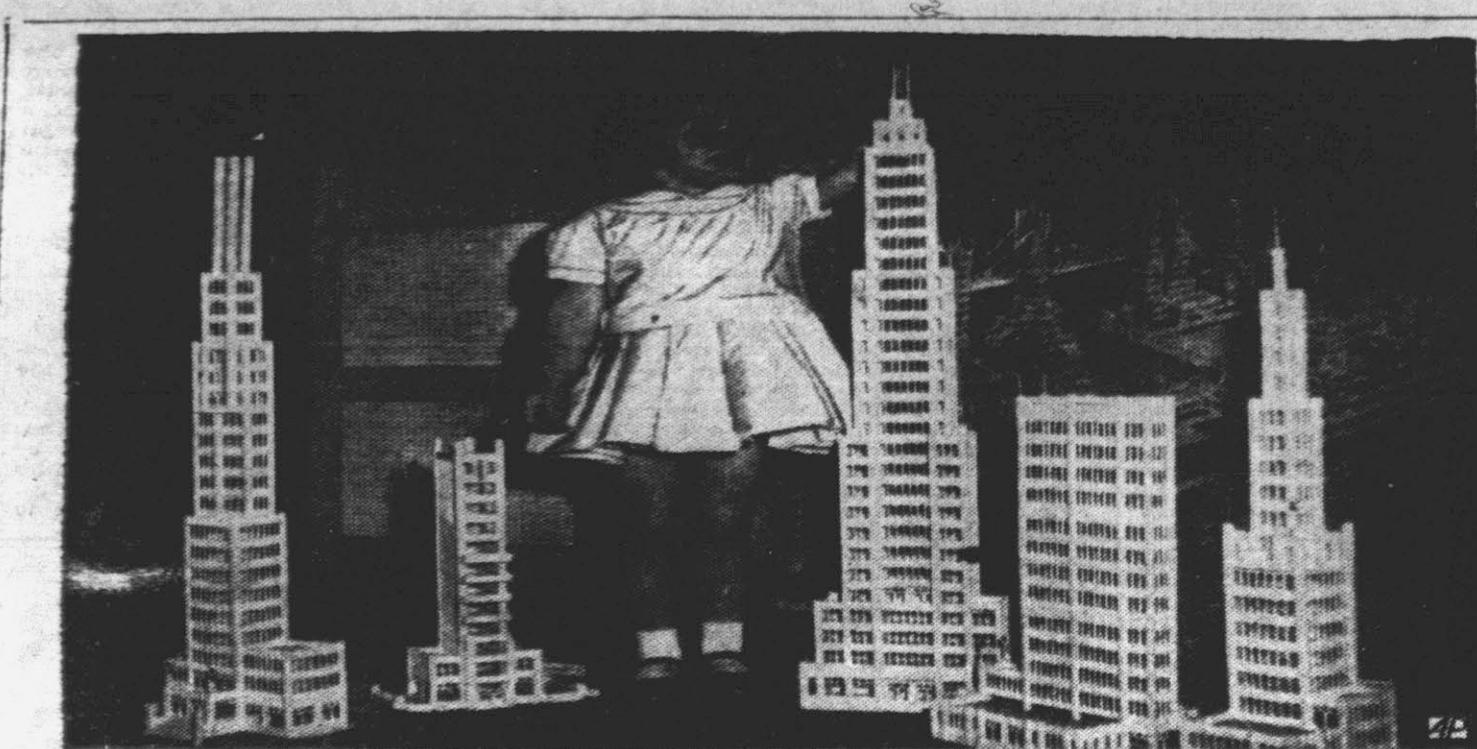

That is the gist of opinion picked up on a reporter's political pulse-taking tour from Jersey City and Newark, through Trenton, to Camden.

Gov. Robert B. Meyner, the state's 47-year-old chief executive, puts the Democratic case this way: "We have a job to acquaint the public with the Eisenhower-Nixon record. Too often, the public have a way of disassociating what Eisenhower says and what his Cabinet or key people in the administration do."

On the other side, Republican State Chairman Samuel Bodine of Flemington says he has found the reaction of the average person to Eisenhower's second-term announcement is "excellent."

"They feel the country is safe in his hands," Bodine said. "They want him to continue on."

How about Eisenhower's health, since he suffered his heart attack? "He made the decision to run," said Bodine. "He wouldn't have MODEL GIRL — Susan Campbell tries hand with latest in plastic building blocks at American Toy Fair in New York. Precision-made bricks can be cemented together for permanency.

unless he felt up to it. We are willing to abide by that decision."

He said the Democrats would make much of the health question "but they won't fool too many people."

Bodine said he and the overwhelming majority of Eisenhower's supporters would back any vice presidential candidate the President favored. He said he has no objections to Vice President Nixon.

Raymond Bateman, executive director of the Republican State committee, said there has been a recent swing of public opinion in favor of Nixon.

A Democratic local office holder said his party's task is to dispel a popular feeling that Eisenhower is a "dispenser of peace and prosperity... above politics."

"How are you going to beat him?" he inquired, asking that he not be named.

But this man saw solace in 1948, when Harry Truman upset predictions by beating out highly favored Thomas E. Dewey.

The Democrats' realization that they have had an uphill fight to carry New Jersey, even though it has a Democratic governor, is given emphasis by Republican Bodine.

He predicts Eisenhower will win by 400,000 votes.

But a sampling of public opinion shows there is strong Democratic sentiment too.

In Camden, workers of the New York Shipbuilding Corp. roundly booed Eisenhower when he visited there on a campaign tour in 1952.

Five or six workers, interviewed at the same intersection where the booing occurred, indicated they don't "like Ike" better now.

Robert Grimmie, a welder of Berwyn, N. J., while not attempting to speak for all the men in the yard, said many believe the Taft-Hartley law — though not changed — is being enforced more strictly under the Eisenhower administration.

He and others pointed to the lengthy Westinghouse strike. They contended mass picketing was banned but that the company was allowed to import busloads of strike-breaking workers.

Grimmie professed no great interest in what candidate the Democrats chose, whether Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, Gov. Averel Harriman of New York or Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

He said the main thing is to elect a man of Democratic philosophy which he described as more favorable to the working man.

Meyner and most other Democratic leaders in New Jersey lean toward Stevenson. Kefauver has some followers. Harriman is reported to have some latent support, particularly in the Jersey City (Hudson County) area across the Hudson River from New York City.

William Egan, of Newark, peppy former Democratic chairman of Essex County predicts that if it appears Harriman has any chance at all for the nomination he will be supported by 95 per cent of the state's convention delegation — "all except a few eggheads."

"Further," he said, "if a deadlock develops among Stevenson, Harriman and Kefauver, you can expect Truman to get the nomination. He will say he is more than 70 years old but that he will live longer than anybody. That's the way he goes about things."

The people you stop on the street have a variety of views on the election.

A refrigerator salesman in Newark, all out for Eisenhower, said the country is "well off in his hands." He predicted Eisenhower would win by a larger margin than before.

But Ludwig Scapatti, a mechanic of Newark, said, "The Republican party is done. Ike promised too much. The Republicans are doing nothing to help the poor people."

Well, I thought high school basketball was over. But there was a game here Monday night between the alumni and the school team. It was loads of fun and there was a large crowd to enjoy it.

Tuesday afternoon the junior girls took a tour of Pitt Memorial Hospital. After the tour we were all served soft drinks and cookies.

Wednesday night the French class had its French banquet. They had it at the Silo Restaurant. The meal was topped off by some very enjoyable entertainment.

Here Friday wasn't just a triple it was a home run! The Beta Club members went to Bethel to the Beta Club convention.

We left first thing Friday morning. Then after lunch we were entertained by a cartoon movie. Friday night the FFA boys had their Father-Son Banquet. They chose their FFA Sweetheart, Roberta Hathaway.

Then starting at 8:00 Friday night the Student Council sponsored a Sock Hop. The main attraction was dancing and more dancing.

Claims Crying Need For Laughs At California U.

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—An ex-New York English teacher with a hankering for a career in comedy has founded a "Laugh Society" at the University of California. He says there is a crying need.

Harry Lieberman is here to get his Ph. D. degree. Three times a week he talks to some 200 lunch-munching students on the Campanile tower steps. ("Are bag lunches only for bags?")

He invites audience participation and gets some.

His topic may be "Bohemians" (You can spot them by costumes consisting of one earring, sandals and acne) or "Man-Made Satellites" (Will the Moon think it is being followed and develop paranoia?) Or he may try "Why a Dentist's Jacket Buttons on the Shoulders" or "Houseflies Can They Be Trained to Do Housework?"

Do it in a group if possible, he says, but "if this cannot be arranged, try laughing into a mirror."

Swindle Fails, Grabbed Purse

ST. LOUIS (AP)—When a swindling attempt failed, a woman grabbed a purse containing $5,000 from a 75-year-old housekeeper yesterday and escaped.

Mrs. Mae Smith told police two women said they found a package containing $9,000 in a downtown store.

Mrs. Smith agreed to put up some cash of her own as a good faith gesture in return for a share of the money. The two women accompanied her to a bank, where she withdrew $5,000.

Mrs. Smith became suspicious when one of them led her into an alley but as she started to leave the woman snatched her purse and fled.

SLOW FREIGHT

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Officers became suspicious when they saw two men slumped down in the front seat of a car near the railroad tracks on a dark and gloomy night. But the men were only asleep. They said they dozed off after waiting for about 45 minutes for a freight train to pass.

Soviet Industry Grows, But So Too Is America's

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The growing industrial and military strength of Soviet Russia sends shivers down some American spines. But American industry hasn't been exactly standing still either.

And it's newly announced expansion program — while aimed primarily at production of still more civilian goods — isn't without its defense potentialities.

One of the great victories of last war was won in the factories of the United States, as Francis Walton points out today in his book "Miracle of World War II," published by the Macmillan Co. The story of their conversion from peacetime to wartime output, despite many snafus, should buck up many of today's faint hearts.

But many of the peaks of production so miraculously achieved some 10 or more years ago could be dwarfed today if the new industrial capacity of the United States need more be turned in that direction.

This new production potential—except for the spurt of the Korean War period—was accomplished by American industry working on its own, motivated as much, or more, by the civilian demands of a growing and prospering population as by the defense goals of the government.

Take steel, for example. The first year the United States was in the war 1942, Walton says nearly 77 million tons of steel of different kinds was produced. By 1944 the industry had raised production to 90 million tons and brought capacity up to 94 million. Walton's story stops with VJ Day.

But in peacetime 1955 the industry turned out 117 million tons and now the capacity stands at 128,363,000 tons a year. Since the end of the war the industry has added around 40 per cent to its potential for output.

American factories have mushroomed too. In the 35 years before World War II, Walton says, plant building for American manufacturing had totaled 45 billion dollars, and he adds: "The cost of the plants erected in the war years alone was 30 billion dollars."

Industry's spending on new plants and equipment has climbed since the war. This year alone business spending is expected to total 35 billion dollars—although much of this will be for tools and equipment, and only part of it for factories themselves.

Skunk In Helmet Halted Traffic

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—A skunk with a helmet, looking like something from outer space, halted traffic, State Patrolman William Stoker was called and found the skunk struggling to remove a pint jar over its head. Even Stoker's help proved futile. Noting a three inch gap between the skunk's nose and the bottom of the jar, he took careful aim with his revolver and blasted the jar.

The glass shattered. The skunk then skittered away — the glass ring of the jar still around his neck like a collar. No one suffered from the skunk's defense weapons.

CLOGGED BY TURTLES
OKEECHOBEE, Fla. (AP)—Loggerhead turtles clogged pipes bringing water from the Okeechobee Lake into town yesterday. While pumps were temporarily shut down for new pipe installations, the turtles crawled into the system and acted like so many stoppers. Crews worked all night to get the pipes cleared and water flowing again.

U.S. municipalities get about 25 per cent of their water from wells and springs.

Naval Officer Procurement Team Plans East Carolina College Visit

RALEIGH — "Representatives from the Office of Naval Officer Procurement at Raleigh, N.C., and the Naval Air Station, Norfolk Va., will visit East Carolina College on Thursday the twenty ninth of March. Interviews will be conducted in the Student Union.

Openings are available for assignment in Aviation, the General Line, and in numerous specialty categories. In addition, undergraduates who have completed two years of college are eligible for Naval Aviation Cadet training leading to a commission in the Navy or Marine Corps. Applications are also accepted from graduating women students for training leading to a commission in the Waves. These programs are designed to enable those who are educationally qualified to complete their Selective Service obligations as officers in the Navy and at the same time provide the Navy with a trained cadre of Reserve Officers.

In order to avoid delay in being ordered to active duty, applications may be initiated several months prior to attaining the required academic qualifications, but final acceptance will depend upon successfully completing these qualifications. Candidates who meet the required standards may take the qualification tests and make application with the visiting Navy Procurement Officers if they desire.

Captured Taking 'One For Road'

HOBBS, N.M. (AP)—It's that one for the road that does it every time.

The tippler explained he had hidden in the back room when the bar closed. When the place was deserted he took a snifter, another, another, and another.

Finally he decided to leave and smashed the glass in the front door. But he decided to have one more for the road.

That was the one he was hoisting when the police arrived.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — Weakness in the copper shares spread to the rest of the stock market today, and the general trend was lower.

Coppers at the worst were off as much as 5 points. Most of the time losses ranged from 1 to 3 points. The market as a whole was down fractionally. At the same time several individual issues made strong advances.

Trading was swift with many moderate sized blocks on the tape. The pace was around yesterday's level of 2,700,000 shares.

Coppers, quite strong in recent weeks, now are under selling pressures because of declining world prices for the metal.

Aircraft were in demand today at higher prices, and some railroads were higher.

A number of stocks with a hand in development of atomic merchant shipping plans were strong. Bath Ironworks was up between 1 and 2 points and Babcock & Wilcox advanced between 3 and 4 points.

Among stocks losing ground were Kennecott Copper, Phelps Dodge Inspiration Copper, Lukens Steel, General Motors, General Electric, American Telephone, Southern Pacific, and Standard Oil (N.Y.).

Higher were Boeing, General Dynamics, United Aircraft Northrop, and Lockheed. At noon, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down 50 cents at $189.80.

Instead, at 21, he left college, determined to drill for oil on Zante.

The obstacles were enormous, he said. The Greeks themselves were not interested in developing the ancient field. They were not interested, either in agreements with any foreign firms to develop it for them. Lerman said Greece spends about 30 million dollars a year on oil and oil products now. Even so, no Greeks were thinking seriously about Zante.

It took him more than three years, but now he has the agreement with the Greek government and the leases on the land in Zante.

He went to Greece and began knocking on official doors. The American Embassy helped him, he said. He ingratiated himself with Greek government officials and with people Zante. He is learning the language.

Was his youth any handicap? He looks boyish.

"No," he said, "the important thing was to convince them that I was sincere about this, and could raise the money, and that we could work together. Once that was done, the contracts were signed."

He leaves soon for Zante and will stay until the drilling is fully under way.

"I'm all for it," he said, "but I've been too busy the last few years."

Well, there you are, girls. Start up on commercial crudes, asphalt bases specific gravity, and STUs. They tell me Zante is a nice place for a honeymoon.

Olla Ray's Suit Still Not Filed

It's been a week now since Olla Ray Boyd, the Pinetown pig breeder, announced his intentions of filing a $100,000 suit in Beaufort County against the Town of Winterville.

But so far, no suit has been filed.

Boyd said last Tuesday that he would file the suit, which would charge slander, damage to character and conspiracy to close my candidacy for governor of N. C. against the Town of Winterville. Two of the municipality's police officers and two commissioners and Mayor Bernie Tucker.

A regular candidate for Governor, Senator and other legislative posts, Boyd's proposed suit stems from his arrest Feb. 18 by Winterville Chief of Police R. L. Trueheart for failing to stop for a stop sign and peddling shrubbery without a license. Trueheart since has been fired because of bad check charges against him and Boyd, though convicted in Winterville, appealed to Superior Court.

Speaking last Tuesday, Boyd announced that his suit would be filed "in a few days" at the Beaufort County Court House in Washington.

But this morning, an employee at the Clerk's office there said "no record" of any suit filed by Olla Ray existed.

Mayor Tucker could not be reached for comment this morning.

Rotarians Hear City's Special Education Work

Greenville's special education program in public schools was discussed before the local Rotary Club last night by Mrs. Susan Perry, head of special education at Brookgreen School.

Mrs. Perry told her audience that the special education school in Greenville is the only separate school of its kind in the state. The purpose of the program, she said, is to give special help to children who have difficulty in keeping pace with regular classroom work. Particularly, she said, emphasis is placed on helping slow readers and non-readers.

Fifty-one children now attend the school, she said. The children are given a series of tests to determine their weaknesses and capabilities and the work of the school is patterned to meet the needs of the children.

Mrs. Perry was introduced by J. H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville Schools, who also participated in the discussion of the special education school and its operation.
