This morning the sun broke through clouds in more ways than one for Julian Manning who operates a farm just off the Falkland Highway.

For as cloudy skies cleared away 14 neighbors had their tractors at work on the ailing Manning's farm. They were in the process of breaking 28 acres of land in preparation for spring planting.

"It was a surprise to me," Manning said as he gazed at the numerous tractors scooting around in his fields. "This was the first I knew of it."

He had heard nothing of the neighbors' plans for assisting him until the tractors began arriving at his farm early this morning.

The farmer, father of two children, was stricken with a heart attack last October. Now he is up and around once again but he is still unable to handle the farm work. And there's no telling how much longer it will be before Manning will be able to assume his farm duties again.

Told To "Take It Easy"

The doctor told me I had to just take it easy," he declared. "The other day I shoveled three shovels of dirt and I thought I was going to fall out."

Manning will have no worries about a crop this year, however. Neighbors said they plan to return to the farm at intervals to plant and harvest his crops for him.

Before the tractors showed up this morning Manning said he had no definite plans for spring planting this year.

"I was going to try to use my daddy's tractor," he stated.

Forty Acre Farm

Manning leases his land from W. W. Whitehurst, has a 7.5 tobacco allotment on the 40 acre farm.

Easter Vacation Holds Up Congress' Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Farm bill conferees headed toward an Easter recess today, postponing at least until late next week final agreement on their recommendations to the House and Senate.

Chairman Ellender (D-La.) called another meeting of the five representatives and five senators who are compromising the major differences between bills passed by the two houses.

Prospects were that by mid-afternoon, however, they would call a halt until sometime next week. Congress adjourned yesterday until April 9 and cannot act on any agreement reached by the conferees.

Major agreements reached yesterday was one that wheat farmers have a choice in 1957 between 90 per cent support at 90 per cent of parity and a Senate-passed "domestic parity" program that sets a price determined to be fair to farmers in relation to their cost.

The "domestic parity" program would guarantee commercial wheat growers 100 per cent of full parity on net price of their crop used for domestic food. The remainder would be sold or supported at a lower level for export or livestock feed.

Ellender first told newsmen that conferees agreed wheat farmers could select between the two programs each year, with a two-thirds vote of the growers required to make one plan mandatory. He said today, however, he was mistaken in that.

"Now I find that if the domestic parity plan is approved, it would operate from then on unless revised by Congress," the senator explained.

Ellender said the conferees agreed to build a Senate provision that would have eliminated penalties for farmers who use all the wheat produced in their farms. As a result, he said, they could grow all the wheat they wished without penalty, only if the domestic parity program goes into operation.

Under both the present and the proposed 90 per cent support plan, a farmer's wheat plantings are limited and he faces penalties if he grows more.

Pilgrims Gathering In Old Jerusalem

By WILTON WYNN

JERUSALEM, Jordan Sector (AP)—Thousands of persons gathered today in the Old City of Jerusalem to retrace the Way of the Cross in the annual Good Friday pilgrimage.

The winding route of the massive procession follows the path from the place of Christ's trial to his tomb. It was another major event in the pre-Easter observance which began Palm Sunday.

Casting ominous overtones over the celebration were the Israeli-Arab tensions starkly represented by the division of this old holy city.

Guns along the frontier dividing the city between Israel and Jordan were silent. But some Holy Week observances were curtailed and residents of Arab Jerusalem complained that war jitters had kept visitors away from facilities through Easter Sunday in the Old City but the extra accommodation required the past years were not needed this Easter season.

The chief Easter sites are on the Arab side of the line dividing Jerusalem, but a ceremony commemorating the Last Supper had to stop short last night because of the division of the city. Normally a procession of Christians goes from St. Saviour's Church inside the old walled city to Cenacle, the site of the upper room where Christ ate his last meal with his disciples. Cenacle is on the Israeli side, however, and the pilgrimage went only as far as St. Mark's Church inside the Arab Christian quarter.

Starting point on the Way of the Cross is the courtyard of a Moslem school, the site where Christ received the cross. Others commemorated his struggle beneath the weight of the cross, the place where tradition holds that his mother watched him pass, and the long ascent to Calvary.

From the place where the body was taken from the cross the route leads to the Holy Sepulcher. A symbolic service tonight will carry out the burial of a statue of Christ in the Holy Sepulcher.

Fired, Missed At Point Blank With Shotgun

ST PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—A 10-year-old boy was shot at point blank with a shotgun by four teenagers, but wasn't hit.

"I don't know how they missed the boy," said Detective W. A. Leakey.

Leakey said the four older boys didn't miss when they switched to a truck as a target. The truck was riddled with more than 10 rounds from the .410 shotgun and a .22 caliber rifle.

The officer said the youths also fired one blast of the shotgun into the two 14-year-old girls as they walked alone and threatened to shoot a woman and her son.

The teenagers, whose names were withheld, have been charged with criminal assault and assault with intent to do bodily harm. Leakey said they admitted the shooting.

C. May Appeal To President

Federal Bureau Refuses Reimburse State For Highway Hurricane Repairs

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina was preparing today to go direct to President Eisenhower if necessary to reverse a Bureau of Public Roads refusal to reimburse the state for a half million dollars spent in repairing federal-aid highways.

Gov. Hodges said the bureau turned down the state because it did not proclaim a state emergency after hurricanes in 1954 and 1955. Hodges termed the bureau's decision "another silly, stupid thing because Eisenhower already had declared the state a disaster area."

Hodges made these comments yesterday at a meeting designed to set in motion his long-range hurricane rehabilitation program and to prepare the state's presentation of projects for the forthcoming federal highway congress meeting in Washington.

Hodges asserted that North Carolina has been "completely asleep" in getting federal aid for hurricane rehabilitation. The state has just been "sitting around" while other states have gotten huge sums for rivers and harbors work, he declared.

What the state has received for rivers and harbors work is "disgraceful" compared with what other states are getting, he said.

Florida the governor stated, has spent 200 million dollars for hurricane rehabilitation, of which 85 per cent was federal money, while North Carolina has received only small sums.

Meeting with the governor and representatives of coastal areas were members of his two hurricane advisory committees and the state's delegation to the National Rivers and Harbors Congress.

Hodges said a long-range hurricane rehabilitation program calls for cooperation and expenditure on the local, state and national levels. "We can't just look to the federal government," he asserted.

Hodges stated that the state will assist communities in planning rehabilitation work. He said the planning will be directed by Col. Harold Brown, whom he recently appointed to lead the program.

The governor expressed hope that the office ultimately will develop into a state planning agency "not only for hurricanes but for other kinds of planning as well."

Terminating disaster insurance "absolutely essential," Hodges urged the officials not to "wait three weeks to write your congressman and ask what he is doing about" such a program.

The state's Rivers and Harbors delegation is scheduled to meet in Raleigh Thursday to study new projects and hurricane rehabilitation programs.

Men, Machines Probing Debris

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Men and machines bored deeper today into the still smoking ruins of a big granary in search for the last of the bodies perished in the city's worst explosion.

Beyond the loss of life the cost was reckoned in injuries inflicted on 15 men and 10 horses; in property damage estimated at some as much as 3 1/2 million dollars; in dislocations that in some instances will last for weeks.

Rescue squads yesterday recovered the bodies of men identified, the first with assurance and the other tentatively, as Arthur Harrell, 39, Vineland, N.J., and Vyrion Whilden, 31, Dorchester, N.J.

Both were truck drivers. They were waiting in the office of the Tidewater Mill and Elevator Co. in the busy 30th and Market Street section when the blast occurred Wednesday night.

Still listed as missing and presumed to be dead was Edward Johnson, 39-year-old Philadelphia driver employed by Tidewater.

More than 30 hours after the explosion and raging fire destroyed the granary and wrought damage over a 10-block area, firemen continued to play their hose streams over the rubble.

Sergeant Found Dead In Roanoke Rapids Jail

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C. (AP)—Air Force Staff Sgt. Floyd R. Reese, 40, was found hanged in his cell at the city jail here today, less than eight hours after his arrest on a drunk driving charge.

Roanoke County Coroner Rufus Britton said it appeared to be a case of suicide.

Reese's body was discovered about 8 a.m. by City Officer W. T. Story as he made a routine check of the cells. Reese was the only occupant of the cell where he was placed after his arrest shortly before 1 a.m.

The coroner estimated Reese had been dead about five or six hours when his body was discovered.

Reese was connected with the 632nd Aircraft Control and Warning Sqdn, stationed here.

Advisory Education Committee Report Ready

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Advisory Committee on Education will go before the people at the state next Tuesday night with its recommendations for meeting the school segregation issue.

The committee announced yesterday its even members will use radio and television facilities to unveil its report.

The report is expected to set the stage for a special session of the Legislature this summer.

Gov. Hodges, who has said he will introduce a bill to end school segregation in a few days, a brief statement of

Stevenson Puts New Snap In Campaign; Likes Results

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Adlai Stevenson, evidently pleased with his reception in California, says he likes his chances of beating Sen. Estes Kefauver in that state's Democratic presidential primary.

But Kefauver, while conceding he is running behind Stevenson in California, says he is gaining ground.

The opposing candidates for top place on the 1956 Democratic national ticket battled eastward today after whirling across California on meet-the-voter missions. The California primary will be held June 5, while the Nevada primary will be held June 12.

In San Francisco last night, Stevenson brought down the house at a rally in that city's Labor Temple when he shoved aside prepared speech notes and told some 500 cheering supporters: "You know why I'm here—I'm here for votes!" And they shouted in reply: "You're going to get 'em, Adlai!"

Stevenson seemed to put new snap into his campaigning. In Los Angeles, he tramped crowded streets, shaking hands on all sides and signing autographs.

However, he insisted at an airport news conference that there isn't any "new Stevenson."

Kefauver, who stumped California ahead of Stevenson, spent yesterday in search of support in New Mexico.

Although he thumped Stevenson in the Minnesota primary 10 days ago, the Tennessee senator described his rival as "still the leading candidate" for the nomination. He told newsmen in Albuquerque he felt this is so because Stevenson, the Democrats' presidential candidate in 1952, is titular head of the party.

The word battle between Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas, and "heavy" with the House, Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) waxed hotter.

Replying to a blast from Rayburn yesterday, Shivers said in Austin that Rayburn "has always insisted throughout his career on being a Democrat first and an American second."

A long-simmering feud within the Texas Democratic party broke into the open recently. It grows in part out of Shivers' support of President Eisenhower in the '52 campaign. Rayburn and Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, backed Stevenson.

Shivers last Tuesday night accused Rayburn of what the governor called "a cynical and calculated effort" to divide Texas Democrats by proposing that Johnson be endorsed as Texas' "favorite son" and named to head the state's delegation to the national convention.

Rayburn said in a Washington statement yesterday that the governor "impresses me as an angry, confused and frustrated man."

The Texas governor's latest statement had kind words for Johnson. Shivers said he "respects" the job Johnson is doing in the Senate and that "I would not deny to him the honor of representing Texas as chairman of its delegation to Chicago or its 'favorite son.'"

Explosion Blasts Hole In Tanker, Rocking Oil City

BAYTOWN, Tex. (AP)—A spectacular explosion last night blasted a gaping hole in an oil tanker taking on kerosene at a dock. Orange flames roared 300 feet into the sky.

Two crewmen were sent to the hospital. Most of the ship's 23-man crew were on shore leave.

The explosion of the 10,000-ton tanker Esso Patterson rocked this oil and chemical city on the industrial-lined Houston ship canal. It was felt in suburban Houston 25 miles away.

The flames were extinguished in an hour, but in the meantime there was near panic here. Residents vividly remembered the ship explosion in nearby Texas City that killed at least 510 people in 1947.

The Esso Patterson was at a dock of the huge Humble Refinery. The blast ripped a hole 12 feet wide and 30 feet deep, extending from the water line to the deck, on the starboard side. Humble officials declined to estimate the loss but a crew member said the damage to the tanker was "heavy" with the ship's plates torn and bent.

The injured crewmen were Chief Mate Howard McCartney, 31, Lowell, Mass., and Seaman Jack I. Motro, 48, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Both jumped from the blazing ship to the dock 30 feet below. McCartney suffered a compound fracture of the left leg. Motro complained of severe abdominal pains.

Donald Ayers, 22, Hillandale, Va., escaped unharmed by jumping into the channel and Petty Officer Samuel E. McRoberts, 60, reached safety by sliding down a hawser line to the dock. Most of the 42-man crew was on shore leave.

McRoberts said he was drinking coffee when the blast rocked the tanker.

"I just knew the whole thing was going up so I ran outside and grabbed a hawser line and slid down it to the dock," he said.

The cause of the blast was undetermined.

A supertanker, the 20,000-ton Esso Florence, had pulled in immediately behind the Esso Patterson. It and the 10,000-ton Esso Linden also tied up near the Patterson, were pulled by tugs out of the danger area.

The Patterson had arrived from its home port of Charleston, S.C., yesterday and was to have departed for Philadelphia.

The U.S. Coast Guard at Galveston sent two boats with firefighting equipment, and fire departments from La. Porte and Humble aided Baytown and Houston.

The jarring blast put this city of more than 30,000 on a disaster alert. Some residents near the fire started evacuating their homes and civil defense officials geared for a major disaster.

Two Arrested In ABC Still Raids

Pitt County ABC officers swooped down on two illegal stilleries, both in operation this morning and arrested two alleged operators at the site of one of the units.

The stills were found approximately a half mile apart near the old Greer Road, about three and one-half miles north of Pactolus.

One of the stills found by the officers was a 50-gallon copper pot type unit. It was at the site of this unit that the arrests were made.

Officers J. M. Ward identified the two men as Raymond W. Dixon, 49, and Raymond Langley, 19, both of Greenville Route 5.

Ward said the two will be charged with possession of illegal whiskey, mash and distilling equipment, and manufacturing of illegal liquor.

They will receive a preliminary hearing before the United States Commissioner in Washington, N.C. this afternoon.

Ward noted that the distillery was new and was being operated for the first time. Some 250 gallons of mash was found at the site and around two quarts of liquor had been run off.

The second distillery found by the officers was in the same woods. It was a 50-gallon drum type unit and Ward said it was in operation when the officers raided the site.

The operators had fled the scene, however.

Around 250 gallons of mash were found at the second still site and about a gallon of whiskey had been manufactured.

Officers destroyed both units with dynamite.

Participating in the raids in addition to Ward were ABC officers H. B. Lilly, Walter Taylor and James Ross.

Pitt Soldier Is Found Strangled

A Pitt County soldier, Sgt. Kenneth R. Meeks, 22, was found strangled in his parked car at Ft. Benning, Ga. yesterday.

Meeks was found with one end of a boot lace around his neck. The other end was attached to a coat hook in the car's back seat. He was resting on the rear seat with his legs stretched along the floor, the public information office said.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete pending the arrival of the body here.

Sgt. Meeks spent most of his life in Pitt County and attended local schools. He joined the army in September, 1952 and was honorably discharged in November, 1955. He enlisted in January, 1956 and had been at Ft. Benning since then.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Meeks of near Stokes; four brothers, Harry, Elmer, S.C. J. B. and Durwood of Greenville, and Richard of Stokes; six sisters, Mrs. Russell Adams of near Greenville, Mrs. Harry Blaud of Hobgood, Mrs. W. C. Wynn of Norfolk, Mrs. Jimmy Jones of Greenville, and Misses Jean and Jeanette Meeks of the home.

NAACP Activities Blocked By Injunction Issued In Louisiana

By W. H. RAGSDALE JR.

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—A state court here today issued an injunction blocking activity of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in Louisiana until the state supreme court takes up the case Wednesday.

At about the same time yesterday, U.S. District Judge J. Skelly Wright forbade the NAACP from suing or conducting any litigation until they have complied with a 1924 law requiring filing of membership lists yearly with the secretary of state.

In New Orleans U. S. District Judge J. Skelly Wright issued the Louisiana injunction Wednesday why an injunction should not be issued to halt the action against the NAACP in state court.

U.S. Gen. Fred LeBlanc said he did not think the federal action would affect the state injunction until after the hearing, but the federal judge could block any action by the state court if he ruled in favor of the NAACP.

Earlier, Judge LeBlanc ruled a plea by NAACP attorneys that their petition Wednesday seeking removal of the case to federal court, on grounds the state suit violated their civil rights, automatically delayed the state hearing until a federal judge ruled.

The state sought to prove the NAACP operated in Louisiana and had not filed the membership lists in the past three years.

Robert L. Carter, NAACP attorney from New York, contended the NAACP had been in operation since the law was passed, but only now does the attorney general see fit to invoke that statute. He contended it was an effort to frustrate and curtail the civil rights activities of the NAACP.

Miss Butler Marries In Noon Ceremony

Mrs. Benjamin Sanborn Shepard

Miss Anne Watson Butler became the bride of Benjamin Sanborn Shepard in a private ceremony today at twelve o'clock noon in the First Presbyterian Church of Greenville.

The bride is the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Watson Butler of Greenville where her father is East Carolina College alumni secretary. The groom is the younger son of Mrs. Robert Parker Shepard of Southern Pines, and the late Dr. Shepard.

Vows were spoken before the Rev. Leonard W. Topping, pastor of the church and groom. Nuptial music was presented by Miss Billie Gray Morris.

organist, of Tarboro, a former college roommate of the bride. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an eggshell white ballroom gown fashioned along princess lines with a scoop neckline. Small bouquets of white flowers were carried by the bridesmaids. The bride carried a white Bible, gift of her maternal grandmother, which was topped with a white orchid and white satin streamers.

Both the bride and the groom are graduates of East Carolina College.

Farmville Garden Club To Cooperate In Clean Up Week

FARMVILLE—The Farmville Garden Club met with Tabitha M. DeViscanti Tuesday, March 27, Mrs. L. E. Turnage, president, presided and opened with an Easter prayer. The members decided to cooperate in Clean-Up Week for the third successive year and to combine with this a "litter-bug" campaign to aid in making the town clean and keep it clean by encouraging everyone to refrain from the habit of throwing away a small piece of paper on the street or highway. "Litterbug" posters were used to demonstrate. Mrs. B. Melton Allen, Mrs. E. C. Carr and Tabitha M. DeViscanti were appointed on this committee.

The following action was taken: To donate a third book to the Farmville Public Library; "The Complete Book of Gardening," by Leonard Barron.

To change the meeting from the fourth Monday to the first Tuesday beginning the next club year in August. This will prevent the conflict with church meetings.

A scrapbook, compiled by Mrs. Mark W. Joyner, was displayed. This is Garden Club Therapy work and will be placed in the children's ward at Pitt County Memorial Hospital in Greenville.

A total of 120 dogwood trees was reported planted.

Mrs. Bob Hinson, a former member, who has been living in Kinston, was welcomed back and two new members were enrolled—Mrs. Ernest N. Petteway and Mrs. Frank A. Williams.

The program was the study of the Bluebird and Lilies. Miss Bettie Joyner read an interesting paper on the Bluebird. She stated that saving these birds from extinction is a national and state project and is up to the Garden Club members to do all possible to assist in saving people's organizations such as Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls and 4-H Clubs to preserve all birds and now especially the Bluebirds. It has long been recognized that bird sanctuaries, where no shooting is permitted at any time, are much needed and are very helpful in caring for birds. The bluebird is the symbol of happiness and are fond of being near houses and people and seeking the companionship of man in the fields, orchards and gardens. They nest in cavities in trees, in abandoned woodpecker holes, sometimes in mail boxes. There is a campaign on to build suitable boxes to entice them to nest and rear their families.

Miss Joyner read a poem, "The Bluebird," by Emily Miller. Her talk was emphasized by a bluebird poster and house. Then Miss Ann Joyner, niece of Miss Joyner, in a bluebird costume, danced about the room singing "The Bluebird Song," in a dance representative of birds flying. Mrs. O. H. Moxingo in her program on lilies said, "They have become an integral part of the basic landscaping due to their strong plants, self-perpetuating and being left alone and liking it. They are favorite flowers all over the nation and in foreign countries. There are lilies for spring and summer and fall for the greenhouse and for outside planting. There is a great variety of forms and colors—length of the bloom, from May to November. Some lilies cannot stand the 90-100 degree temperature so wise, Southern gardeners experiment to find out the best varieties for this section—those that will stand up under such conditions. Buy bulbs early in the fall and plant them promptly. The sooner they are in the ground the better. Use leaf mold, peat moss and other humus to retain moisture during the dry periods.

Arrangements of French Lilies, camellias, red bud and violets were used to decorate the home.

Assisting the hostess were Mrs. S. C. Gardner and Miss Ann Joyner, special guests, and Miss Bettie Joyner and Mrs. Preston M. Murphy. Angel custard royale, coffee and cheese wafers were served.

Rev. K. J. Philip To Assist At St. Paul's Easter Services

The Rev. K. J. Philip, a priest of the Mar Thoma Church of South India, will assist at the Holy Communion Service Easter morning at St. Paul's Church. Mr. Philip has been a visitor at East Carolina College during the past week in connection with the Student Volunteer Movement. He will return in April to his post in India as a teacher in the Mar Thoma Theological Seminary at Travancore.

The Mar Thoma Church was founded by St. Thomas, one of the Apostles, in the first century. This ancient church is in communion with the Archbishop of Canterbury, which is a way of saying that it is closely related to the Anglican Communion.

During his stay in the United States Mr. Philip has been studying at Princeton Theological Seminary. He has recently received the degree of Master of Theology from that institution. On Sunday morning he will read the Epistle and assist in the administration of the Holy Communion. The Easter Service will begin at 7:30.

Tea Honors Bride-Elect

The Woman's Club was the scene of a tea Saturday from 4:00 to 5:30 p.m.

The tea was given by Mrs. T. Frank Taylor of Greenville and Mrs. Sam R. Moore of Pinetops, honoring Miss Frances Fowlk of Raleigh, whose marriage to Mr. Clarendon Steadman of Pinetops, nephew of the hostesses, will be solemnized April 14.

Floral arrangements of white chrysanthemums, gladioli and bridal wreaths were used throughout the club house. Mantels were effectively decorated with magnolia leaves flanked by burning white tapers.

Mrs. Taylor greeted guests at the front door and directed them to the receiving line headed by Mrs. Sam R. Moore, who introduced Miss Frances Fowlk, Miss Dorothy Cameron and Mrs. Barker, all of Raleigh, and Mrs. B. A. Steadman of Pinetops.

Mrs. Herman Preseren of Wake Forest invited guests into the tea room where Mrs. C. C. Powell of Wilson presided at the punch bowl. After refreshments were served, guests were directed to the club room where they were entertained with music by Miss Josephine Hoover and Mr. Bill Norwood of the local television station.

Others assisting the hostesses were Mesdames W. A. Dunn of Kinston, Bruce Steadman of Pinetops, Edward Stanfield of Rocky Mount, W. T. Carson of Bethel, Mary Moore Dunn, Fred Webb and Harvey Tripp, all of Greenville.

United Lutheran Mission

Mr. Robert Love Troutman will be the guest preacher Sunday night in a special Easter Service of the United Lutheran Mission. The service will begin at 8:00 o'clock in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 401 East 4th Street. Mrs. Robert Forney will be at the organ.

Mr. Troutman, a native of Statesville, is a rising senior at the Lutheran Theological Southern Seminary, Columbia, S. C. He is a graduate of Lenoir Rhyne College, Hickory. The latter part of May, Mr. Troutman will come to Greenville to develop the United Lutheran Mission during the summer months. In the fall he will return to the seminary to complete his work there.

It is expected that a regularly ordained mission-developer will move to Greenville at that time. The services each Sunday evening are currently being conducted by the Rev. Frank C. Perry, pastor of Prince of Peace Evangelical Lutheran Church, Kinston.

The United Lutheran Church in America, of which the Greenville group is a part, is the largest Lutheran general body in the United States. There are approximately 175 United Lutheran congregations in North Carolina.

The public is cordially invited to hear Mr. Troutman Sunday evening and to attend all the services.

There Could Be Economy At The Top

It's not unusual for folks at the grass roots level to think that their representatives in government in faraway Washington get the cart before the horse in trying to remedy a situation which obviously needs attention.

Maybe it's because the folks at the grass roots level don't have access to all the information which people in government do. Maybe it's because a particular situation appears quite different to the person on the outside

West Could Capitalize On Downgrading Stalin

Repercussions of the anti-Stalin campaign launched by Kremlin leaders has left the Communist world in a state of turmoil. The campaign itself has left the free world wondering the answer to many questions.

For all their lies, Kremlin lords have now told the truth about Stalin, the bloody, murdering tyrant. The leader to whom they once paid homage as the greatest of the communist world, they are now picturing as a traitor.

By association with Stalin through a long number of years, most of the present Kremlin leaders must share at least a portion of the responsibility for what they are accusing Stalin of having done while in power. Obviously the brain-washed Russian generation which was taught that Stalin could do no wrong must be confused by the new turn of events. Will they be able to alter their opinion of Stalin now? Will they tolerate the abuse the new Kremlin leaders are heaping upon the grave of their idol?

While Stalin was alive and in power no words of praise were sufficient. Now that he is safely entombed in Red Square, no words of denouncement are too severe.

It is in keeping with the communist philosophy that any means justifies the end which is sought. Stalin is not the first communist great to be denounced vigorously by his successors. It is not likely that he will be the last.

The free world should not overlook the opportunities which they will have to reach and influence disillusioned people behind the Iron Curtain while they seek to reorient themselves in keeping with the new doctrine laid down by Kremlin bosses.

Encouraging Signs Of Ending Court Log-Jam

There is still a great deal to be done before the log jam of old court cases are cleared from dockets in all the counties of the state. It is most encouraging, however, that the log jam has now been broken and the dead-wood is being removed at a rapid rate.

Some months ago the state launched a positive program to clear its Superior Court dockets of the old, outdated, and in some instances forgotten cases which had been dormant for years. The program has been effective in bringing Superior Courts to a more nearly current basis although many old cases remain on dockets and it obviously will be a long time before some courts can dispose of cases as rapidly as they get on the docket.

More judges, additional terms of court, and what appears to be a determined effort by county bar associations throughout the state to clear the old dockets all have played an important part. The initial progress has been significant. There is every indication the progress will continue.

As the deadwood is cleared away and new cases placed on dockets regularly come to trial without undue delay, the prestige of Superior Courts of North Carolina and all those associated with the courts in bound to rise.

Noise By Candidates Is No Standard Of Quality

There is much more at stake in political campaigns for Congressional seats from North Carolina than who did or did not sign the Southern Manifesto.

The segregation problem is a major one for North Carolina as it is for every other Southern state. Candidates cannot in this campaign dodge the issue by ignoring it. Yet, the sole criterion of a candidates ability to make a good representative in Congress cannot be the amount of noise he can make during the campaign over the segregation and public school problem. It should not be the sole factor upon which the political contests are decided.

The segregation issue which is being brought into some campaigns will influence some voters. By and large, however, we believe most North Carolinians realize there is not a wide difference between candidates when it comes down to the question of segregation versus integration. There is a difference of opinion as to the best means and methods of handling the situation.

Conditions have been altered considerably within the past several years because of the Supreme Court decisions and resulting agitation for complete integration. Nevertheless, North Carolinians for the most part have in the past taken a rather dim view of political candidates who have based their campaigns predominantly upon race issues. It is highly improbable that North Carolinians this year will decide who goes to Congress purely upon the basis of who did and who did not sign the Southern Manifesto.

looking in, than it does to a person on the inside looking out.

Hearings are now underway in Washington on a proposal to increase postal rates to off-set the constantly mounting deficit of Post Office Department operations. Maybe the thing to do is to raise the rates, but it seems to us that another step might be taken to alleviate the situation before the rates are upped again.

The federal government is the biggest business in the country. As in many other things, the federal government is the biggest user of mail service in the country. The only difference between the government's using the mails and a private citizen using the mails is that the government mail is handled free of charge under the lose franking privilege laws.

Every agency, office, bureau, commission and what-have-you of the federal government can send out its mail without cost. Of course it costs the Post Office Department to handle the mail which constitutes a large part of the total amount of mail handled annually.

To off-set the cost of handling this bulk of government mail—much of which might well be done away with—the individual who uses the mail has to pay higher rates on what he sends. Either that, or he must fork over in taxes sufficient funds to make up the Post Office deficit.

Before Congress tacks another hike on postal rates, there should be a careful look at the tons of useless junk which is being sent out through the mails by various government offices.

We believe more could be accomplished to help the Post Office Department balance its budget by limiting the use of the franking privilege of various governmental departments than by adding one increase after another to postal rates.

In current attempts to solve the perennial budget problem of the Post Office Department, Washington is again putting the cart before the horse.

In current attempts to solve the perennial budget problem of the Post Office Department, Washington is again putting the cart before the horse.

Even A Judgeship Is Involved With Issue

By LYNN NISBET

JUDGESHIP — The civil rights issue, which in this instance is almost synonymous with the race question, is featuring the contest for Junior resident judge in Mecklenburg county, the 26th district.

Arthur Goodman, veteran legislator, is running against Judge Hugh Campbell for the full eight-year term. Judge Campbell was appointed by Governor Hodges last summer, along with ten other judges, under the new judicial districting bill.

Only other judicial contest is in the 13th district—Bladen County—where Lee J. Greer, Columbus clerk of court, is challenging Judge Richard M. Hall, Jr., Hodges appointee. The main issue there is rivalry of political factions, with Judge Mallard having support of the dominant group.

It is different in Mecklenburg. Arthur Goodman has proven his prowess as a vote-getter, while Judge Campbell is a relative newcomer in the game of rough and tumble politics. Throughout his legislative career Goodman has championed the underdogs. He has sponsored legislation to make life easier for juvenile delinquents, prisoners and welfare clients. He is justifiably proud of his Hebrew lineage and has consistently been on the side of minorities, economic, racial and social. He is working now on the theory that the composite of all minorities constitutes a voting majority.

Staid old Mecklenburg, which was first to throw off the yoke of British oppression, and then dropped into an atmosphere of slavery, and other conservative elements, is scared. Goodman is rated a good chance to win the judgeship by reason of his entertainment of Negroes and other minority groups—the use of labor organization money and other factors obnoxious to the traditional culture of the Queen City and its environs.

ORCHIDS — The Goldsboro Rotary Club did honor to itself in presenting to Henry Belk a plaque and citation for distinguished service to his community. As editor of the Goldsboro News-Argus for 30 years, Henry Belk has contributed to the development of the city and its environs and has watched its growth with both fraternal and paternal interest. Tragic death of his only daughter in an automobile accident, loss of his mother and continuing fight to save partial eyesight during the past five years, failed to quench his enthusiasm for helping others.

Significance of the vent was enhanced six years ago. The Rotary Club took the position that mandatory award every year would depreciate the value of the award.

Josh Horne of Rocky Mount, Galt Braxton of Kinston and others of his newspaper colleagues were invited guests to join in paying tribute to the editor whose crusading has been always unobtrusive but effective for social and economic progress. Not only did the immediate area covered by his newspaper, but perhaps even more for the entire state which he loves devotedly.

The plaudits might be summed up in a sentence by one of his newspaper associates: "No man deserves this honor more, or expected it less."

BRINK — Overheard in the Supreme Court room where several lawyers were talking. Question was raised whether North Carolina would have riots and bloodshed over the school segregation issue. Quipped one of the by-standers: "No; we will follow the example of Mr. Dulles and go right to the brink, but we won't make it."

OLD RECORDS — In the course of research on other points your reporter ran into two interesting pieces of history.

William F. Floyd, representative of Columbus county in the 1953 and 1955 General Assemblies, and candidate for re-election, was the first man in more than fifty years to serve consecutive terms from that county. Numerous other legislators have served more than once, but always with a break between.

In volume two of N.C. Supreme Court reports appears the case of State v. Norris, decided in 1796. Norris had appealed from a conviction of murder and his lawyers contended that newspapers had been unfair to him. In writing the majority opinion Justice John Williams opened his statement with this sentence: "The people in this country do not take for truth everything published in a newspaper." That profound statement was made while George Washington was still president.

Other Editors Are Saying... What Makes Us Laugh?

(Mattoon (III), Journal-Gazette)

We have been envious, at times, of a certain person we know who can sit in a comfortable chair, with light streaming over the proper angle, and emit chuckles and an occasional loud laugh at what he reads.

The man can achieve a broad smile when something we read amuses us, or perhaps a chuckle "way inside that never reaches our vocal chords."

The thing we like, and fear, is a lively imagination, which would make the words on the page come alive for us, and the ridiculous situations described would "tickle our funny bone."

Of course, everyone doesn't laugh at the same things. We wonder how professional comedians and their writers can stand the strain of trying to be funny almost all of the time.

One method which has been tried often, and which usually works, is repetition. A comedian delivers a certain line which is only moderately amusing. Later on he repeats it. Something about his delivery brings a chuckle. Before the end of his routine he has repeated it several more times and has built up the laugh until almost everyone joins in, heartily.

When we first heard George Gobel in a Chicago hotel supper room, we were unfamiliar with his "patter", and were surprised at the loud laugh which followed his "You can't hardly get that kind anymore." We did enjoy his brand of humor, but very mildly compared with some of his admiring and vociferous fans.

Unexpectedness is our favorite brand of humor. In our high school days a teacher gave us an example when she quoted, "The girl wandered through the woods with a bunch of cows." We had a vision of dirty girl with a bunch of wild-flowers in her hand, until the final word smashed the bubble with a thud. A friend once wrote us a long-winded account of the dietary peculiarities of a couple we both knew, ending with the statement that they lived for an entire year on nothing but milk. Later in the letter she explained that the year she was talking about was when they were infants. We have a weakness for limericks, which usually have a surprise ending. We only wish we could write a few winning ones in contests.

Then there is the play on words, or the pun, sometimes called a double entendre, which can be very funny but tends to get out of hand and become a dirty joke.

We like the story of a teacher who gave the pupils some defective sentences to correct. One read, "The choir gave a scared concert." Instead of saying a "Sacred concert," as she expected, one of the pupils said, "The choir gave a scared." She allowed him the point.

Is Safe To Coming Out Now?

by Alvin Taylor

Look Girls, It's You Again

A couple of weeks ago I wrote a column about two of Pitt County's home demonstration agents, Lois Jones and Margaret Stevens.

The next time I went to the old hospital building where the home demonstration office is located I learned all was not well.

As I went in the front door a friend intercepted me.

"Boy you'd better not go upstairs," the friend said. "Those girls are hopping mad. They'd tear you limb-from-limb."

I'm just a natural born coward so I high tailed it back to the Reflector office.

After that my life was in danger. Every time I spotted those girls coming down the street I'd jump into the nearest doorway until they passed.

I always made sure they were off in the county somewhere before I visited the offices in the old hospital building.

I felt pretty confident as I reached the second floor of the building and turned down the hall.

Then someone screamed: "There he is!"

My old heart froze. I turned around and, sure enough, there stood Margaret and Lois. I'd been betrayed.

"Get him," Lois yelled.

Like a scared rabbit I looked for some place to hide. Finally I ran down a hall and wound up in what used to be the sun parlor of the building.

I was trapped. There was no escape.

"You monster!" Lois cried.

"You worm!" Margaret cried, as she raised her purse, apparently ready to sock me over the cranium.

"Now wait a minute, girls," I pleaded. "I can explain."

That didn't stop them and I continued to back away.

Suddenly I fell over a group of folding chairs set up the room. What a crash. There I lay, tangled in a mass of chairs and a little dazed.

At any rate that seemed to satisfy the girls.

They glared at me and then shook hands.

"I guess he won't write about us anymore," Margaret declared as the pair walked off.

New York Loves Its Holidays

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP)—New York responds to a holiday like a spring flower to the sun.

Just now, on the eve of Easter, the city is blooming and blossoming, dressed to the teeth in a new spring outfit. The perky little bonnet and a cascade of lilies. Well, if you can still see your breath in the frosty air? It's spring, the Easter parade is at hand and our town likes to celebrate.

The avenues have been turned into galleries of color. They make you think of gold and alabaster, like the corridors of a palace. As usual, the window decorators are having a field day. They have dressed the stores with great banks of flowers, azaleas and hyacinths in a fury of color, and streamers of yellow and blue and purple paper, and golden chickens and wonderful white rabbits as big as "Harvey," if you remember him.

I don't know which was more fun—watching the wonderment and delight in the eyes of a little girl when she saw the cascade of jelly beans, millions of jelly beans, all colors of the rainbow, in a candy store window.

Or listening to two teen-agers in front of a foreign airlines window which features a bride in a glistening, diaphanous veil, and photographs of Grace Kelly and her prince. "Well, I don't care what anybody says, I think he's cute."

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THURSDAY OF HOLY WEEK

Thursday of Holy Week is distinguished because on that night Jesus instituted the Lord's Supper. He commanded his disciples to observe it through the ages in remembrance of Him. In this Holy Sacrament, believers find entrance into the heart of the Lord, and the Lord into the heart of believers, in a way which only the elements make possible. This Sacrament has been observed in the Church continuously from the night of its institution until now.

On that night, also, Jesus washed the disciples' feet, declaring that He had thus given them an example, for the servant is not greater than his Lord, neither is one that is sent greater than he that sent him.

Then came the agony in Gethsemane—the human Jesus praying God to deliver Him from the horror of crucifixion, yet his divine nature leading Him at last to accept the Father's will. Judas appeared with soldiers, and the most horrible of history's betrayals became an awful reality.

Of the untold billions who have lived since the world began, only one, we believe, was perfect, and Him they hunted down and put to death. The world had a chance to accept perfection and to enter into the perfection from which it had long ago fallen. This was all rejected, and the blood-stained pages of history have constituted an epilogue to that unthinkable rejection.

Then the sound of birds, twittering, pulled me up short. Birds on Fifth Avenue. It was too chilly for anything less than a penguin. Well, the song came from a loud speaker above a store front, and as you looked up, a gay, happy sign was saying, "Hello Spring."

At another corner, there was the smell of fresh, bracing perfume. It created whole images, violets, or open fields, or perhaps bluebells glistening with dew in a forest glen. That was coming from a store, too, and making people stop and sniff and smile.

Even a book store was all brightened up with "Easter eggs," made of the same crinkly colored paper you use at Christmas. And somebody had put a bright yellow daffodil in the binding of a book that, somehow, you seldom associate with daffodils—"The Decline of the West."

It gave old Doc Spengler a real rakish look.

I turned down a cross street and found the sidewalk completely blocked with boxes of azaleas. It looked like a purple bonfire. They were in front of a flower store, and an attendant was taking them inside. I asked him if he expected to sell all of them before Sunday. "Brother," he said, panting a little, "I just wish I had double this many."

I was interested but puzzled as to whether there is a vogue in hats this year. Some are large, white and look like upside-down flower bowls. The girls say they make you look thin. Then there are some jaunty little confections, neat and close-fitting, with a posy

Travel To Europe Is Still Rising

By ELMER ROESSNER

More than 530,000 Americans visited Europe last year, according to government figures. This year there will be more. And, according to estimates of the European Travel Commission, by 1960 some 1,500,000 may cross the pond by plane and boat.

There can't be quite that many more before that time because there just aren't the ships and planes to take them over and back, and there aren't enough satisfactory hotel accommodations aboard—at least in the spots Americans want to visit.

The planes are on order. Practically all of the trans-Atlantic airlines have orders outstanding for new, larger and faster planes, many of them jets. If the European traffic can be tripled in the next five years, the airlines will be ready for their share of the increase.

The ships are being built, too. Joseph Mayper, chairman of the Trans-Atlantic Passenger Conference, told a recent meeting of the European Travel Commission: "Six years ago the steamship lines operated some fifty ships in the trans-Atlantic service. At the end of 1955 the number had grown to 73. Several new ships will commence to operate in time to meet the heavy spring and summer demand this year. Within the next few years, at least 10 new passenger liners will be in service."

BUT HOTELS LAG

However, most travel authorities agree that, unless Europeans get busier building, good accommodations for American travelers will be sadly short. While Americans may be willing to "go native" during the day and evening when they get back to their hotels they want American-style rooms, good heating and bathrooms. Present accommodations range from insufficient to barely enough, depending on place and date. While a traveler planning a trip this summer at the late date may be able to get passable accommodations in London, Paris and Rome, the chances are that he will find the hotels in the next few years in the hotels of his choice. And Monte Carlo, of course, is booked solid.

While American capital has shown an eagerness to invest in new hotels abroad, most investors look more favor on Latin American, Caribbean and the Middle East nations that offer government aid or tax abatement.

WHY TRAVELING IS INCREASING

All prophecies of great increase in travel suppose a continuation of the present high level of prosperity. However, there are several other bullish factors:

1. The extension of easy-payment plans to the travel field is proving a tremendous stimulant.
2. Lower rates, resulting from the addition of tourist fares on the airlines and the promotion of off-season package deals, are tapping new markets. Experience of the airlines has been that the addition of tourist travel has greatly increased traffic without any decline in sale of luxury class tickets. According to Edward O'Connor, president of Thomas Cook & Son, in the last five years the passenger travel rose 109 per cent while year-round travel increased 60 per cent.
3. The greater ease in which Europe may be seen by auto is attracting more American travelers who are well conditioned to seeing things by car. It is now possible to rent a car and sell back, autos in Europe at moderate costs, and there are some advantages to buying a car in Europe and selling it home. However, it is still expensive to take one's own car to Europe and shipping space is limited. This tends to divert some travelers to Canada and Mexico, or keep them in the States.

Americans spent $1.5 billion on travel to foreign countries last year, according to Commerce Department estimates. Nearly half was spent in Europe. This gave Europeans about $700,000,000 more with which to buy American goods—which is why travel abroad helps the entire American economy.

repaid, although Carraway subsequently organized a $1,000,000 firm that obtained lush contracts from the Navy.

In testimony before Congressional Committees, it was brought out that Caudle and Representative Frank W. Boykin of Alabama intervened many times on behalf of Mitchell, Carraway, Caudle and Mitchell frequently hunted and fished at the wealthy Boykin's place near Mobile.

Ironically, it was an Assistant Attorney General named John Mitchell who obtained the St. Louis Mitchell's conviction in the face of these political obstacles. But because of his persistence and success, Caudle ordered that more tax cases be assigned to him. Caudle, who was a picturesque figure during the "rainy coat era," was not only was eventually fired by Truman. He is now under indictment at St. Louis for conspiracy to defraud the government in another tax case.

Doctors Day Observed Here, All Over Nation

Doctors Day is being observed in Pitt County and all over the nation today.

To honor members of the medical profession both living and dead, the day was originated in Georgia in 1933. It is sponsored locally by the Women's Auxiliary to the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society.

Today the auxiliary members have sent personal notes to each doctor in the county. They are presenting a gift to the medical society for the staff lounge at Pitt Memorial Hospital, and a bouquet of carnations in honor of the doctors has been placed in the staff lounge. In addition, the auxiliary is adding to the collection of books it contributed last year to begin a patients' library at the hospital.

Doctors Day has been so proclaimed here by Mayor W. L. Whedbee, and the proclamation follows.

WHEREAS, the doctors of Pitt County have helped to establish our city as a medical center for Eastern North Carolina; and

duty they have demonstrated the highest skill and professional achievement, and have won the admiration and respect of the community; and

WHEREAS, it has been the custom of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Pitt County Medical Society to sponsor an annual observance in recognition of the contribution made by doctors to the national health and well being; and

WHEREAS, although this observance does not extend beyond the members of the medical profession and their wives and families, it is appropriate that the city government extend its greetings on behalf of all citizens;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, W. L. Whedbee, Mayor of the City of Greenville do hereby proclaim Friday, March 30, 1956, to be DOCTORS' DAY in Greenville and Pitt County, in appreciation of the outstanding service rendered by the members of this profession.

Given under my hand and seal this 28th day of March, 1956.

Grimesland School Boys Entered Event

By MELVIN BOYD

Grimesland High School

On March 22, a cattle judging contest was held at Farmville High.

MELVIN

Tom, Joe, and Fred participated in the judging of beef cattle which Winterville won. It gives the boys good experience in learning the parts of the animals.

The following students made the honor roll at Grimesland High School the last marking period: 11th grade, Joyce Whitchard, Tenth grade, Lindy Edwards, Jimmy Edwards, Elaine Gurganus, Tave Morgan, Geraldine Mills, Peggy Warren, Shirley Singleton, 9th grade, Janice Hudson, Barbara Mills, Sue Morgan, 7th grade, Ayla Rose Tucker, James Brown Smith, 6th grade, Janice Mobley, Sandra Jackson, Laura Helen McDonald, 5th grade, Wanda Grimes, 4th grade, Nelda Hudson, Leanna Haddock, Marilyn Kay Heath, Alma Stokes, Kenneth Paramore, 3rd grade, Sandra Payne, Sammy Hodges, Carolyn Sumrell, Billy Hardee, Delores Elks, Barbara Broadway.

The library at Grimesland High has an attractive bulletin board put up this week by Melvin Boyd and Amos Hardee. Its caption is "Libraries Are Like Lighthouses." It shows the light rays pointing toward different book covers neatly displayed in the different fields, such as science, history, biographies, fiction, etc.

They are really proud of the new refinished floor in the auditorium at Grimesland High. The workmen finished them last week.

The students in North Carolina have a good opportunity to become teachers if they take the advantage of the opportunity given them by the NOEA Loan Fund.

The purpose of the loan is to encourage students to become teachers because of the shortage of them. The funds will come from the fund made up by the NOEA. You have to graduate from an accredited high school and have a desire to become a teacher. You must have a scholastic average of 80 and have recommendations. The NOEA board of directors will select the students. Applications for loans may be made for a period of one year. Consult the teacher of your class or advisor in the school for necessary information. The maximum loan to one student will not be more than 300 dollars a year. It is required that the student take out a life insurance policy for $1500 for four years covering the loan. The borrower will pay approximately 4% interest on the loan, very cheap according to other interest rates. It can be paid back on a yearly or monthly basis and not less than 10% of the applicant's gross income. The entire loan will be repaid within five years of the date the applicant terminates his training.

The students at Grimesland High literally flowed from the building Thursday afternoon in eager anticipation for the Easter holidays. School will be out Friday and Monday.

Mr. Garlan Bailey and Miss Oma Bliss Lewis attended the NCEA convention held in Asheville Thursday through Saturday of last week.

Mrs. J. A. Watson, 3rd and 4th grades at Grimesland High had an Easter party and egg hunt Thursday afternoon. The grade mothers were, Mrs. J. T. Broadway, Mrs. H. J. Hardee, Mrs. V. D. Hardee, and Mrs. M. B. Mewborn Sr.

There is enough ice on Greenland to cover the whole earth to a depth of 17 feet.

Easter Lilly Tag Day Sale To Be Conducted In City Tomorrow

Tomorrow Easter Lilly tag sale will be sold throughout Pitt County to raise funds for the Pitt County Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

The Tag Day sale is part of the society's annual appeal for funds to support its work. Easter Seals were mailed to 5,000 county residents earlier this month, when the campaign began.

Greenville Jayettes, co-sponsors with the Lions Club of the society, are in charge of tag day in Greenville. They will maintain downtown booths during the day. Girl Scouts will sell the tags in the residential areas. Both Girl Scouts and Jayettes will be identified by chest banners. The scouts will solicit in pairs and will be in uniform. They will carry sealed containers.

Donors will receive a white lily label pin and a paper stating they have contributed.

Dr. Walter C. Humbert, Pitt health director, Mrs. J. Knott Proctor, Girl Scout executive director and member of the society's board of directors, and Mrs. Morris Brody, also a board member, are co-chairmen for tag day. Mrs. Frank Diener, Jr. is Jayette chairman.

'Circus Museum' Here April 9

Pitt County Post No. 39 of the American Legion is sponsoring a "national circus museum" to be shown at the National Guard Armory in Greenville on April 9—afternoon and night. Tickets are now on sale by legionnaires and members of the auxiliary and Post Commander Dick Forrest and Mrs. James Worsley or Polly Williams.

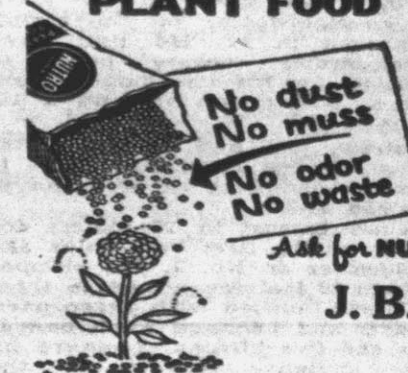

Forrest said "The circus museum is not a circus in the flesh, but a collection of actual circus exhibits gathered from different parts of the world. Included in the exhibits are a parade, circus train, tableaux and floats, a steam callopo, cook-house and a menagerie.

Moonshine Still Returned Fire

MANCHESTER, Ky. (AP)—A moonshine whisky still returned fire. The sheriff Daniel Davidson's fire. The sheriff and a party found the still in the nearby mountains.

Davidson fired. The 30-30 bullet bounced back and struck him in the leg. The steel-barrel still was then smashed with hammers. The sheriff wasn't seriously hurt. New York City harbor handles about 30 million tons of cargo a year.

Littler Sets Hot Pace In Azalea Tourney

Fails Shake Field With 6 Under Par

By KEN ALYTA
WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—The $12,000 Azalea Open Golf Tournament, which headed into its second round today, again has demonstrated how fiercely competitive professional golf has become.

Gene Littler, the 25-year-old Palm Springs, Calif., professional, a former National Amateur champion, "ate up" the Cape Fear Country Club course's 6,795 yards with a six-under-par 66 yesterday. But he was only one of 41 players who mastered the regular figures and held only a one-stroke lead over three rivals, with eight others only two back of the leader.

And if they faltered, six first-round 69 shooters were poised to charge up in the standings. They, in turn, were pressed by nine men at 70 and 14.

Littler shot near flawless golf—he had to keep a shot ahead of another former National Amateur champion, Gene Palmer of Lenoir, Pa.; George Bayer, the power hitter from Cincinnati, and Stan Leonard of Lechute, Canada. Littler, who won the Texas Open last month and is No. 2 on the PGA money list this year with $7,700 in official earnings, had only one bad hole. On the 14th he put a ball in a bunker and it nestled in a heel print. He over-saw the green and had to sink a five-footer for a bogey five.

In taking only 29 putts he dropped 15-footers on the second and fourth, a six-footer on the sixth and an eight-footer on the eighth to go out in 32. He had three more birds coming home to make up for his one bogey, canning a 20-footer on 15 and a 10-footer on 17.

Palmer, too, had a hot putter as he matched Leonard's 34 to gain a second-place tie with Bayer who had 34-33.

Palmer banged in 20-footers for birds on the first two holes and a 10-footer on No. 7. He chipped in from 20 feet for an eagle three on 15 and finished with three pars. Bayer and Leonard each had 13 pars and five birds. Leonard hit three straight starting on the sixth, while Bayer collected three out of four beginning with the 12th.

Doug Ford, GA champion from Mahopac, N. Y., blazed out in 31, but slumped to 37 coming to drop into the eight-man 69 bracket which also included Gardner Dickinson Jr., Panama City, Fla., pro, who last Sunday won his first "big one" at Miami Beach.

Alex Effie, North Carolina State College starter from Wilmington, led the amateurs with 72.

The field will be cut to the low 60 pros and ties and 10 amateurs for concluding rounds Saturday and Sunday after today's play.

Spring Sports Begin In Seven Schools Of ACC

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Seven of the eight schools in the Atlantic Coast Conference saw action in five games today as the conference spring sports schedule slowly moved out of low gear. Two league games were scheduled, South Carolina at Maryland and Clemson at Virginia.

Other games found North Carolina State playing host to a touring Michigan State nine, North Carolina and Illinois meeting in the Florida State University tournament at Tallahassee, Fla., and traveling Duke team visiting Georgia at Athens.

Other spring sports activity involving conference teams was limited to three golf matches, Ohio University at Wake Forest, North Carolina at Rollins and Cornell at Maryland.

Only two conference clubs saw baseball action yesterday. Duke defeated the Farris Island Marines 12-6 and North Carolina bowed to Florida State 3-2.

Duke unlimbered its heavy artillery to shell Farris Island pitching for 13 hits. The Marines didn't aid their cause either by committing four errors. Southpaw Bob Thuermer was the winning pitcher. He allowed the Marines six scattered hits.

North Carolina went down to its third defeat in a row, in the Florida State invitational tournament. All three Tar Heel defeats have been by 3-2 scores. Florida State scored all its runs in the first three innings to sew up one game. North Carolina managed single markers in the third and fifth and had the bases loaded in the eighth but couldn't bring home a run.

Other results yesterday included these golf scores: Wake Forest 25, Virginia 2; N.C. State 16½, Ohio University 13½; Clemson 23, Northern Illinois State 4.

To Retire?

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Journal-American said today that heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano has decided to retire.

An article written by Max Kase, Journal-American sports editor, said the information came from the intimate friends of Marciano in Boston. They said the decision was reached weeks ago, before the champion left for a tour of South America, but was kept quiet at the insistence of manager Al Weill.

In New York Weill disclaimed any knowledge of Marciano's intention.

Rain Halts Tennis Play; Bucs Trail

The rain that threatened to postpone the East Carolina-Kenyon (Ohio) College tennis matches yesterday afternoon finally did call a halt to the contests, with the score 5-1, in favor of the visitors.

Rain washed out the doubles and the tilts ended with Coach Raymond Martinez netters scoring only one win in the six events played.

Sophomore standout Maurice Everett, of Robersonville, topped Kenyon's Templeton, 6-3, 2-6, 7-5, for the Pirates' only triumph. His victory came in the number one singles.

Wright, of Kenyon, dropped Bucs' Gene Lilley, 6-1, 6-1, in the number two tilts.

Bill Underwood, ECG veteran and sophomore, succumbed to a strong attack by Kenyon's Wigglesworth, to give the visiting Ohio team their second consecutive win, 6-4, 6-0.

In the number four affair of the singles, Pantner clouted Pirate Joel Farrar 6-0, 6-1. Farrar, though an upperclassman at East Carolina, is a newcomer to the squad. The Kenyon match is his first appearance against major competition.

Kenyon's Yee defeated another Pirate newcomer, Mike Katsias, 1-6, 6-2, 6-1, to take the number five event.

Letterman Al Webb fell before the blasts of the Gambler, Ohio, school's Coleman, 6-3, 6-2, to round out the singles.

East Carolina's greatest threat was killed by a slow rain that followed the singles events. The Pirates' best work was supposedly apparently in their doubles playing. Maurice Everett and Gil Underwood, the two sophomores, lettermen, had been classified by Coach Martinez as a strong unit, having won the doubles crown of the North State Conference last season.

Kenyon, a small-college power each year, will tackle the state's Big Four next, meeting Duke, Wake Forest, Carolina and N.C. State.

East Carolina's next match has not been announced, the schedule having been rearranged during the past few weeks.

The Meaning of the Resurrection

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Duescher

Scripture—Luke 24:1-55.

Very early in the morning of the first day of the week some women went to Jesus' tomb to embalm Him. They found the tomb empty; two men in shining garments told them that Christ was risen.

The women went straight to the apostles and told them the joyful news, but they refused to believe it. Peter ran to the tomb, found it empty, and went away wondering what had come to pass.

That day two men went to Emmaus. Jesus joined them but they didn't know Him. He asked of what they talked. They marveled that He did not know it was His death and resurrection.

The men invited Jesus to share their evening meal. Only when He broke bread, blessed it and gave it to them did they realize that He was Christ Himself. MEMORY VERSE—I Corinthians 15:57.

The Meaning of the Resurrection

IT ASSURES CHRISTIANS EVERYWHERE OF CHRIST'S ETERNAL INFLUENCE

Scripture—Luke 24:1-55.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.
EASTER SUNDAY—one of the gladdest days of the whole year. It is proof that the Holy Child whose birth we celebrate at the Christmas season, is indeed God's Son and our Redeemer.

There is much to be told and taught in this lesson so we must condense it as much as possible. It was a day of overwhelming joy in Christ's day, and it remains so in our modern world.

Very early in the morning, Luke tells us that Mary Magdalene, Mary, mother of James, and Joanna came to Jesus' tomb with other women to embalm His body with spices. They found the stone rolled away from the sepulchre, which was empty.

As they stood, puzzled, two beings in shining garments came and the women were afraid. The two said, "Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here, but is risen; remember how He spoke unto you when He was yet in Galilee," and then they recalled how He had said He must be crucified, and would rise again the third day.

They went to the apostles to tell them the joyful news, but they were sceptical, thinking the women were telling idle tales. Peter, however, hastened to the sepulchre, looked in and saw it was empty, and he went away wondering what it was that had come to pass.

That same day two men left Jerusalem, about seven miles from Jerusalem. They were not of the 12, and the name of one was Cleopas. While they were talking together of the exciting events which had just taken place in the city, another joined them. It was the Risen Lord, but the two did not know Him.

He asked them what they talked of while they walked, and they asked Him if He did not know what everyone in Jerusalem was discussing—that Jesus of Nazareth was crucified but that morning His body was not found in the sepulchre, and it was said that angels had been seen there who said He was alive.

Jesus then said to them: "O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken; ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into His glory?" And He quoted the prophets beginning with Isaiah.

Moses and other prophets who had prophesied these things from the beginning. As they came near the town Jesus seemed about to leave them, but they asked Him to stay with them as it was growing late. As He sat at meat with them, Jesus took bread and blessed and broke it and gave it to them, just as He did when He was with the disciples at the Passover. Then their eyes were opened and they knew Him, but He vanished from their sight.

They said to each other, "Did not our heart burn within us, while He talked with us by the way, and while He opened to us the Scriptures?" and they went back to Jerusalem. They found the 11 together, and they said, "The Lord is risen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon. And the two men told about Jesus walking with them, and how they knew Him only when He broke the bread."

"And as they thus spoke Jesus Himself stood in the midst of them, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you."

All present were terrified, supposing they were seeing a spirit.

First Presbyterian Announcements

This Sunday we observe the Resurrection of our Lord and keep the Easter Faith by a knowledge of His Spiritual and Living Presence as revealed in the New Testament. A practical expression of the Resurrection Faith is our annual Easter offering for the relief of human suffering which will be received and dedicated Sunday morning in the Sunday School and during the church service. The Department of Overseas Relief and Inter-Church Aid of the Board of World Missions, Nashville, Tenn., sponsors and administers this important program of the church.

Our annual week of Evangelistic Services will begin Sunday morning, April 8th, and extend through Friday night, the 13th. Dr. Sidney Austin Gates, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Salisbury, N.C., will be the guest preacher for the week of spiritual enrichment. Please remember the services and the minister in your prayers daily.

Thursday night at 8:15 "clock there will be a prayer meeting in the Church Parlor in preparation for the services. Every member is urged to attend.

The Executive Board of the Women of the Church will meet Monday at 8:00 p.m. in the Church Parlor.

The Senior High Fellowship and the Pioneer Fellowship will meet Sunday at 6:00 p.m. for supper and vespers.

The Senior High Fellowship Spring Rally was held March 25 at the First Presbyterian Church in Wilson. Nine young people from this church attended the Rally. Miss Mary Ann Bryant was elected vice president of the Senior High Fellowship of Albemarle Presbytery and Jesse Powell was appointed chairman of the Commission on Christian Citizenship. May God's blessing be upon these youth as they take their position in the Presbytery's Youth Council.

The nursery for little children during the 11 o'clock church service is sponsored by Circle No. 1, Mrs. Tige Gardner, chairman. The choir will meet for rehearsal Thursday at 7:30 p.m. A Church School Superintendent's Rally for Albemarle Presbytery will be held in this church Sunday afternoon, April 8th. The teachers, officers and workers in the Church School are urged to attend this important rally. Outstanding leaders such as Mr. Morris Warren, Board of Christian Education, and Dr. Price Gwynn of Flora Macdonald College will be present.

TO BURN TAX STAMPS
SALEM, Ore. (AP)—The Oregon Tax Commission, after waiting 15 years finally has given up hope of ever using 11 million cigarette tax stamps. The stamps, purchased in 1941 for a cigarette tax that was voted down the next year, will be burned at a special ceremony at the state incinerator next Tuesday.

BLONDIE

PASSPORT TO HAPPINESS

By MAYSIE ORRIS

CHAPTER 1
Val drew her thoughts away from the odd conversation that had taken place last night at the Grange after she had got Mrs. Featherstone to bed and turned to face her patient.

"Don't look at me as though I were mad, girl!" Mrs. Featherstone rapped out sharply. "I know what I'm talking about. I've got to have advice at once. Send Dirk to me."

"Yes, of course, Mrs. Featherstone," Val said gently. Mrs. Featherstone was wringing her plump white hands. "I don't know what to do, I don't really, Nurse, I should never have come on this ship after I saw him standing there on the top deck."

"I'll go and get Mr. Hanson for you now," she said quietly. "But do please try to rest."

Feels ill
"I feel ill, really ill. My heart..." Mrs. Featherstone drew a small breath. "Suppose I become really ill on this wretched boat?"

"But there's a ship's surgeon on board, Mrs. Featherstone. I saw his name on the passenger list." Val looked around for the list but Mrs. Featherstone had it clutched in her hand.

"No, no!" The older woman started up and clung tightly to Val's arm. "No, Nurse, whatever happens you must promise me you won't call in the ship's doctor! You've only got to follow Doctor Mangin's instructions. As I told you, he knows all about my heart and he said he'd given you more than enough medicine to last until we reach Jamaica. A ship's doctor! I've traveled on ships, lots of them, and in my opinion the doctors on ships are grossly incompetent!"

"Isn't that rather a sweeping statement, Mrs. Featherstone?" Val asked quietly.

"No, it isn't," the older woman snapped, "and I'm sure this so-called ship's doctor is no exception. Don't dare let him come near me or I'll scream to high Heaven. Now go and fetch Dirk at once."

Afraid of What?
As she let herself out of the cabin, Val wondered why Mrs. Featherstone was so vehement on the subject of ship's surgeons. Could it be that she was afraid a doctor other than her precious Dr. Mangin might tell her the truth about herself? Was it of something intangible that Mrs. Featherstone was afraid, or was it an actual person on this ship?

Val found Dirk leaning over the railing watching the prow cut the gray waters like a knife, tossing foam aside in a gay, haphazard way.

He hadn't heard her approach, but when she said, "Hello, Mr. Hanson," he turned sharply and greeted her with his usual cheerful smile.

"Hello there! Come up to get a breather?" "Mrs. Featherstone sent me. She wants to see you at once."

He smiled in a boyishly imprudent way. "Blast her, she's an old tyrant, isn't she? But there's no need to take notice of everything she says."

"But she does want to see you," she insisted. "I don't think she's very well."

"She never is—when she wants to get her own way." He was still grinning. "Come and stand here, Nurse. This is pretty good, isn't it? Gosh, I'm glad to be on shipboard again." With a quick movement, he drew her arm through his and pulled her over so that she was standing beside him.

"Why not look upon this trip as a holiday?"

"But it isn't. As you know, I'm working my passage out to Jamaica."

"So am I, if it comes to that," he said grinning. "Aunt May is paying the fare. I couldn't have come otherwise."

She wished he hadn't said that. For some reason, she didn't like to think of him being beholden to Mrs. Featherstone. His gray eyes searched her face with a cheerful impudence.

"You're shocked, aren't you? Your young men must be worthy above all else. Worthy and dull."

"The two don't necessarily go together," she said.

"No," he nodded his head. "But if we're going to be friends—and I hope we are—you'd better know at once that I'm not a worthy character. Do you think I'm dull?"

"I must say I find you amusing," she admitted, smiling. "I suppose Mrs. Featherstone does too—at least you make her laugh. But I think you'll have a job if you can make her laugh today," she added soberly.

"Is anything seriously wrong with her?"

"Mystery Man

"I think she saw someone she knew or had known on the deck. She's muttered something about 'that man' and said she couldn't come on board. It was all rather odd and—disturbing." There was a pause, and then she asked the question uppermost in her mind: "Is Mrs. Featherstone quite right in her head, Mr. Hanson?"

There was another pause, an awkward one. The friendly expression had gone from his face.

"What makes you make such a suggestion, Nurse?"

"I—I don't know exactly." To her own embarrassment, she found she was stammering. "It was some remarks she made just now in the cabin. For one thing she insisted she wasn't going to leave her stateroom until we reach Jamaica."

His brow cleared. "Oh, that's nothing. Aunt May gets those moods. Surely you, a nurse, must have had enough experience of human nature to understand that?"

"I've had several nervous and neurotic patients," she admitted, "but so far I've never had one who suggested that if she left her cabin she might be murdered!"

Outnumber Nazi Subs By 7 To 1

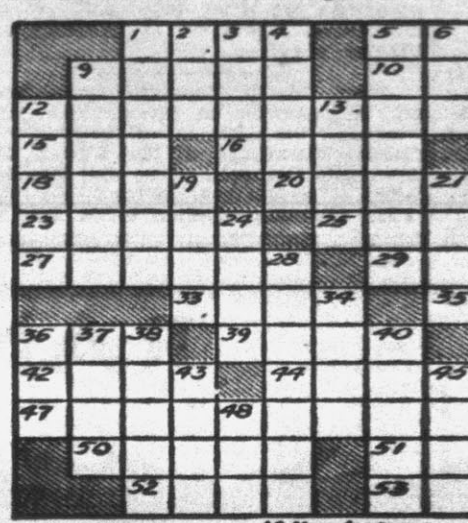

NEW YORK (AP)—Adm. Jerauld Wright, supreme Allied commander of the Atlantic Fleet, says that by the end of this year the Soviet Union will have seven times more submarines than Hitler had at the outbreak of World War II.

Speaking yesterday to the Overseas Press Club, Wright cited the need for American buildup of anti-submarine forces.

TRAP DOOR TRAP
COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—A dustless trap door trapped an AWOL soldier. Military police went to the soldier's home but were told by his wife that he was not there. Obtaining a search warrant, they went inside. About to leave, they noticed that a trap door leading to the attic was devoid of dust—unlike the surrounding area. The soldier was hiding in the attic.

If you're saving for a comfortable future . . .

Where you save does make a difference

As more than 15,000,000 Americans already know, there are important advantages to putting your savings in insured Savings and Loan Associations . . .

Excellent returns from your money is one advantage.

Modern, efficient, forward-looking service is another.

And, of course, your money is safe because in insured Savings and Loan Associations your savings are protected by sound management and substantial reserves. They are insured up to $10,000 by the FSLIC—an agency of the U. S. Government.

No wonder Americans are now putting more of their savings account dollars into insured Savings and Loan Associations than anywhere else!

This sign identifies us as a member of The Savings and Loan Foundation Inc., a nationwide organization of insured Savings and Loan, Building and Loan and Homestead Associations which sponsors this message in Life, The Saturday Evening Post and U. S. News and World Report.

U.S. Ouster In Just Talk Stage

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP)—The Iceland Parliament's call for withdrawal of U.S. troops is not expected to get beyond the talking stage unless the Communists gain enough strength in parliamentary elections June 24 to back demands for further action.

Parliament approved a resolution over Conservative opposition Tuesday calling for departure of U.S. troops stationed here as an NATO force since 1951.

The demand, which would leave this strategic North Atlantic outpost undefended, aroused open concern in Washington and gleeful support in Moscow.

But informed sources here said it was all part of a political maneuver designed to cut the ground from under the Reds.

They said the Farmers party and others joined the Communists in supporting the resolution in order to steal thunder from the left. The Reds reportedly hope to gain strength in the parliamentary elections with demands that foreign troops get out of Iceland.

The idea appeared to be that if the Reds did not score major gains in the election, the go-home demand would be allowed to die. Political circles here contended the resolution did not stem from strained relations between Iceland and U.S. servicemen. They said harmony prevails despite Moscow radio claims that the American military aroused Iceland's ire by interfering in the island's internal affairs.

Officials in Washington expressed open concern over the resolution and the vital landing site just south of the Arctic Circle and almost midway between Moscow and New York.

or two. Still others made me think of flying saucers. It's a little confusing.

The best surprise of all was—guess—a bank!

This bank is in a new building which is beautiful even without any Easter trimmings. It is all glass and shining aluminum, and it has a wonderful feeling of light and air and gracefulness.

Right now, it is luxuriating in tall Hawaiian tree ferns, yellow crocuses, hydrangeas and hyacinths. The sign says they came from Hawaii, California and Florida, and invites you in.

Besides the blossoms, a gigantic round door of a vault has been left open. The main shell is as shiny as stainless steel. Small brass gears look more like decorations than machinery. It is lovely as a piece of costume jewelry.

This was stopping more people than any of the stores. And no wonder.
