Early Man At The Polls

EARLY RISER—Haywood Willis (right, above) was at the polls at 6:30 this morning to cast his ballots in the bond issue and fluoridation election being held in Greenville today. Willis was the first person to vote at the Main fire station. Handing him his ballots is Mrs. W. F. Phillips. Looking on are Judges Mrs. Charlotte Mills and Mrs. Lois Worthington. (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor).

Light Voting Is Reported In Special Election Today

Greenville's bond issue and water fluoridation vote had been extremely light at 11:30 this morning.

Only 164 of the between four and five thousand registered voters in the city had cast ballots in the election at that time.

At the Courthouse, where Wards 1 and 2 are voting, box poll holders reported that only 88 ballots had been cast at 11:30. Things were worse still at the main fire station, where Wards 3 and 4 are voting. There poll holds said, 76 persons had cast ballots.

Thus it appeared at noon that whether or not Greenville issues $275,000 in capital improvement bonds will be decided today by only a small fraction of the registered voters within the city.

Also being decided by the few who trudged to the polls today was the question of whether to floridate the city's water supply. That issue has been fought bitterly by two factions locally. As a result of the long battle, city councilmen decided to call for the special straw vote on the question today. Actually the floridation vote will have no legal bearing on the councilmen's final action. However, it is expected that city fathers will be guided by the results of today's vote on the issue.

The bond monies, if approved today, will be used for street, drainage, recreation and Fire Department improvements. It is broken down into six ballots and voters may approve or disapprove of each of the improvement plans.

This morning's voting was undoubtedly held down by heavy rains which began falling around 10 o'clock. The rains were continuing off and on at noon today.

Polls are scheduled to close at 6:30 tonight.

Eisenhower Announces Plans To Run Again Despite Heart Trouble, Recent Operation

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower is going to run for a second term.

Republican Senate Leader Knowland disclosed this at a dramatic news conference on the Gettysburg College campus today.

Press secretary James C. Hagerty stood by nodding.

Knowland said the President told a meeting of Republican congressional leaders he feels in better shape than he did when he made his Feb. 29 announcement that he would seek re-election.

"We are looking forward to a very vigorous and active campaign under his leadership," Knowland said.

"Are you telling us," a reporter asked, "that the President is going to keep his hat in the ring?"

"I'm telling you precisely that," Knowland replied.

He added that Eisenhower "left no doubt in anyone's mind" that he will run again despite the June 9 intestinal operation.

Eisenhower himself appeared before reporters and photographers before and after an hour strategy session with the Capitol Hill leaders.

He looked a little pale and obviously had lost weight. The rough-textured sport shirt he wore was loose around his neck. But his color was better and his step was firmer than when he left Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington a week ago last Saturday.

Knowland was asked whether Eisenhower had given thought to his decision to run again in the light of his recent illness, which followed by nine months his Denver heart attack.

"The fact remains he's in the race," Knowland replied.

The senator said he regarded Eisenhower's comments today as a definition of his February announcement that he would accept renomination.

Knowland also was asked whether Eisenhower had authorized him to make the statement.

"No," Knowland replied, "but he knew we were going to meet the press afterward and he knew we always try to make frank reports."

Eisenhower's second major illness had touched off a new worldwide outbreak of political speculation on whether the President would stay in the race for a second term. The first big round of speculation—

Generated when Eisenhower suffered his heart attack in Denver Sept. 24, 1955—had subsided only three months earlier when the President announced he would seek another term.

Governor Tells Legislators New Plan Will Save Schools

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Hodges and his lieutenants continued to brief the state's legislators today on the school bills which will be submitted to the special legislative session July 23.

The latest round of briefings began yesterday in a lonely country cabin near Battleboro, owned by Thomas Pearsall. Pearsall is chairman of the Advisory Committee on Education which has recommended the bills.

The governor, Pearsall, Atty. Gen. William Rodman Jr., and State Supt. of Public Instruction Charles F. Carroll assured the lawmakers the bills are intended to preserve the public schools.

The proposed bills, which have not been disclosed to the public, would carry out the advisory committee's recommendations and amend the state's Constitution.

They would make it possible to give public funds to students to attend private schools if they object to attending an integrated public school, and permit local school units to close down their public schools if conditions become "intolerable."

After today, the next briefing will be at Lexington Thursday. On Friday the briefers will travel to Waynesville and meet with far western lawmakers at the home of AL. L. Freedlander, president of the Dayton Rubber Co., for their last such meeting.

Briefing sessions were held some months ago when the governor wanted legislators to know about his plans. The current briefings are to show lawmakers the bills and make final changes in wording and punctuation.

Tar Heels will vote in the next general election on the proposed constitutional amendments. Hodges disclosed at his news conference last week that he has asked the State Supreme Court for an advisory opinion on whether a general election can be held in September instead of the traditional November date.

During yesterday's briefing session it was revealed that the Advisory Education Committee will have a public relations director starting tomorrow. He is Ralph Howland, former Raleigh reporter who is getting a leave of absence from his job as head of public relations for Chatham Mills.

20 Missing After Greek 'Quake

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Greek sailors combed the rubbled ruins of Thira Island today, seeking 20 persons reported missing since death-dealing earthquakes and tidal waves rocked the Aegean Islands south of Greece.

Prime Minister Constantine Karamanlis' office announced the casualty total from yesterday's upheaval also included 42 killed and 51 injured. All were on Thira — most in the town of Santorini — except five injured on the neighboring island of Amorgos.

An earlier report that 10 died on Ios appeared incorrect.

Thousands of homeless spent the night in the fields. Minor earth shocks continued through the night and into the morning. The Athens observatory said 257 tremors of varying intensity had been recorded.

The first eyewitness reports from Greek reporters on Thira, southernmost island of the Cyclades group and the home of some 10,000 persons, said the first quake lasted 45 seconds and struck just after sunrise.

Most of the casualties were women and children. Their men already had left for the fields to cultivate the wine grapes for which the island is noted. The screams and moans of those trapped guided them as they rushed back to devastated Santorini, perched on a cliff above the water.

Reports from Santorini said foreign tourists there escaped unhurt before the Hotel Vulcan collapsed. In their hurried flight, many left behind their clothes, money and tickets home. The names and nationalities of the foreigners were not immediately available.

Serious property damage also was reported from Amorgos, 25 miles northeast of Thira. The tidal waters flooded low-lying farmlands on other islands and washed up or wrecked fishing boats.

A destroyer from the U. S. 6th Fleet was ordered to Santorini with water and medical supplies.

Steel Talks To Begin Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP)—Federal mediators today fixed Thursday as the "probable" day to begin joint meetings in Pittsburgh of industry and union representatives in an effort to end the steel strike.

Joseph F. Finnegan, director of the Federal mediation and Conciliation Service, announced at the same time that mediators will hold preliminary meetings with both sides today and tomorrow.

Finnegan said he would meet at 5 p.m. here today with David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers Union, and Arthur G. Goldberg, union counsel.

There will be a preliminary session tomorrow, probably in Finnegan's office here about noon, with an industrial group headed by John A. Stephens, vice president of U. S. Steel.

Finnegan said that he and Clyde Mills, assistant director of the mediation service, and Special Asst. Robert H. Moore, would attend the joint meetings between management and union officials.

The preliminary sessions, he said, will be conducted in order to get a "better understanding" of the issues prior to beginning of the joint meetings.

The 10-day strike has idled some 730,000 workers.

During the long weeks of contract debate, the federal government remained entirely out of the picture. But after exploratory talks in Pittsburgh, it decided to take the initiative.

Negotiations collapsed July 1, six hours before the strike that has idled 650,000 steelworkers and cut the nation's steelmaking production by 90 per cent.

Neither side has made any move toward resuming contract talks, indicating they have not retreated from their position.

Industry offered a 52-month contract at terms valued by the industry at 17 2-3 cents an hour per employe for the first year. The union pegged the offer at about 14 cents. Steelworkers had earned $2.46 an hour.

In another development, the government again has moved to conserve steel products for essential defense work.

The Commerce Department announced that the space the 35 or more steel mills not affected by the strike must devote to defense production will be doubled. For hot-rolled bars, the space increases range up to 800 per cent.

Last Friday the department ordered a freeze on certain types of steels in warehouses. It can be shipped out only for defense purposes.

The General Services Administration has ordered government agencies not to dispose of any steel they hold until further notice.

Meantime, economic effects of the strike continue to soar. Some 30,000 of the nation's 200,000 soft coal miners will join the list of those idle today after annual 10-day vacations. They work in captive (steel company owned) mines.

The captive coal fields shutdown at midnight last night with one lone exception—the Robena mine at Uniontown, Pa. It will operate on a four-day schedule. The cut in coal production for steel mills will amount to about 250,000 tons a day.

Stevenson Supporter To Keynote Convention

CHICAGO (AP) — Gov. Frank G. Clement of Tennessee, regarded as friendly to Adlai E. Stevenson, was selected yesterday to keynote the Democratic National Convention.

The young governor was named by the party's Convention Arrangements Committee after a three-hour meeting.

Clement, a fiery orator and considered a possible vice presidential candidate, did not receive a unanimous vote of the committee, National Chairman Paul M. Butler said.

Butler said the committee's 13 members gave a "full discussion of each of 17 or 18 possible selections." Clement was picked, he said "because of his familiarity with the issues and his capacity to discuss them fluently and capably, and the impression he has made around the country.

"I wouldn't say it (Clement's selection) was unanimous but all feel that a good decision was made. I don't consider it a victory for anyone except the Democratic party."

In Nashville, the 36-year-old governor, informed of his selection to keynote the convention on opening night Aug. 13 in Chicago, said:

"I did not expect this assignment. There were many other capable men who could have done an excellent job. But I'll do the very best I can to represent the Democratic party and the American people."

Although Clement has shied away from publicly committing himself to any candidate, he has expressed himself as friendly toward Stevenson.

Insurance Company Names Officers And Directors

Officers and directors of the new Sentinel Life Insurance Company were elected last night at the organizational meeting here.

The new company, organized in eastern North Carolina in recent weeks, already has secured sufficient subscriptions for its initial stock issue of 30,000 shares providing a capital and surplus of $600,000.

A. Hartwell Campbell, secretary and general manager of the Carolina Broadcasting Company, was elected president of Sentinel Life Insurance Company and chairman of its board of directors. J. H. Moye of Greenville was elected vice president; Bancroft Moseley of Greenville, secretary; John C. Proctor of Greenville, treasurer; and W. W. Speight of Greenville, general counsel.

Members of the new company's board of directors in addition to the officers are: John T. Marston Jr. of Greenville, W. J. Bateman of Tarboro, H. G. Nicholson of Tarboro, Bernice Turnage of Farmville, Dr. Robert Gilbert of Kinston and Charles F. Terrell of Washington.

All of the officers and directors of the company were elected from the 25 original incorporators.

President Campbell said in a statement this morning:

"The Sentinel Life Insurance Company begins operations this fall with the greatest initial paid in capital and surplus of any life insurance company ever created in North Carolina.

"In some 12 consecutive working days the steering committee of our company secured stock subscriptions from more than 600 individuals in Eastern North Carolina for more than $576,000. Never have I seen such evidence of public confidence.

"As soon as trained executive management has been secured I shall be pleased to resign as president of the company in order to properly recognize the outstanding executive we plan to secure. I shall be pleased to continue to serve on the board of directors and as its chairman."

Arrest Man For Murder Committed 32 Years Ago

A man, accused of murdering an Ayden man Sept. 14, 1924, has been arrested in Kingston, N.Y.

Under arrest and being held for Pitt County authorities on a warrant issued locally is James Brooks alias Edward Wells, 55. He is accused of killing William Allen in Ayden more than 30 years ago.

Dist. Atty. Howard St. John said Wells was arrested in Kingston on a charge of striking a woman. Arresting officers in the New York town said they found a switch blade knife on his person.

Later officers received a call from Wells' wife that he had a .38 caliber revolver in the house. Police found the revolver and lodged two charges of illegal possession of weapons against Wells.

Later police received a telephone call from an unidentified woman stating that Wells had killed a man in North Carolina years ago. Kingston officials contacted law enforcement authorities in this state. The Pitt Sheriff's Department forwarded a warrant charging Wells with slaying Allen. The Sheriff's Department asked that Wells be held for extradition.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson was said to be out of town this morning. Reports were that he was in the New York city concerning the arrest. His office said Sheriff Tyson is expected back today.

S. A. Whitehurst, who was a deputy sheriff at the time the shooting took place, said Allen met his death at the result of an argument over a "crap" game.

Whitehurst said the shooting took place at a woods camp near Ayden and he could recall no direct witnesses to the shooting. Officers were unable to locate Wells or Brooks as he was known at the time following the shooting, Whitehurst recalled.

The former deputy sheriff, who later served as sheriff, said he remembered that a pistol was removed from the body of the dead man.

Both men were Negroes, Whitehurst said.

Sponsor Expects Aid Cut To Stay

WASHINGTON (AP)—The sponsor of a heavily cut foreign aid money bill said today he does not expect the House to increase its amount despite an appeal from President Eisenhower for a "substantial" restoration of funds.

Rep. Passman (D-Ala) referred to scheduled House action tomorrow on the $3,600,000 foreign aid measure approved by the House Appropriations Committee. The bill is some $1,400,000,000 below Eisenhower's request.

"I do not anticipate an increase" by the House, Passmano told a newsman, adding that if the Senate later votes for a bigger amount he will not "capitulate" in his efforts to keep a Senate-House compromise close to the lower House figure.

House Republican Leader Martin (Mass) handed to the Senate yesterday responsibility for any move to add funds to the bill. He announced at the start of debate that the House GOP leadership would make no concerted floor effort to restore money although, he said "we believe the President is right" in protesting the cut.

Eisenhower mentioned no specific amount in a statement issued in Gettysburg, Pa., where he is convalescing from an intestinal operation. He indicated earlier he would be satisfied with about 4½ billion dollars.

He asked that "a substantial part" of the funds cut be restored, and said it is his "earnest conviction that the successive slashes that the committees of Congress have made in mutual security funds are not in the best interests of the United States of America."

Methodists Open Western Meeting

LAKE JUNALUSKA, N.C. (AP) — The Southeastern Jurisdiction of the Methodist Church opens its five - day quadrennial conference here tomorrow morning with the election of two bishops topping the agenda.

The representative of more than 2½ million Methodists in nine states and Cuba will cast the first ballot for the bishops Thursday morning.

Leaders predict that more than a dozen ballots will be necessary before two men receive a majority vote.

The victors will succeed retiring Bishops Costen J. Harrell of Charlotte and Clare Purcell of Birmingham, Ala.

More than 2,000 churchmen and lay delegates are expected to be on hand when the conference opens tomorrow with Holy Communion and the traditional episcopal address by Bishop William T. Watkins of Louisville, Ky.

Committee meetings will be held Wednesday afternoon. Tomorrow night Dr. George E. Clary Sr., and Dr. James W. Sells, executive secretaries of the Jurisdictional Council from Atlanta, will present a program, "The Church in the Southeast."

In other conference business here, delegates will name jurisdictional members to the church's general and regional boards and agencies and will plan educational, evangelistic, missionary and benevolent programs.

Governor To Rule On Killer's Case

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges may say today or tomorrow whether he will intervene in the death row case of Robert S. Conner.

Conner, 30-year-old Winston-Salem Negro, is slated to die in the Central Prison gas chamber Friday for killing Langston B. Roberts, Winston-Salem grocer.

Roberts was killed during a $44 holdup in May, 1954. Conner was twice convicted of murder. The State Supreme Court granted him a new trial following the first conviction but upheld his second conviction.

Ministers Offer Views On Crash

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Two men of God saw the Grand Canyon air disaster as a possible beacon to progress in the air at a mass funeral and burial attended by friends and relatives of the crash victims yesterday.

Sixty-seven coffins were lowered into the ground on a pine-covered knoll of the Flagstaff Cemetery. They symbolized the bodies of the 70 victims aboard the Trans World Airlines plane that presumably collided with a United Air Lines DC7 on June 30, killing all 128 board. Remains of three victims were sent home for burial.

"Someone asks: 'Where was God when these two planes came together?'" said the Rev. Wyburn Skidmore of the Protestant Flagstaff Federated Church.

"Ah, he was in the same place as he was when Jesus Christ was hanged on a cross. His heart knows agony along with ours.

"This sudden agonizing loss is not altogether bad because much progress may result from it."

Elder Delbert L. Stapley of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-Day Saints in Salt Lake City said God "is not responsible for these tragedies, but imperfect man is victimized by his own inventions."

Such disasters serve a purpose of stressing the need for advances in technology, the Mormon elder said; and "the sacrifice of life therefore is not always in vain."

Most of the 1,500 at the funeral stood and listened without any display of emotion. Few of the mourners wept.

United Air Lines said it would have an announcement on its funeral plans today. An inquest into the UAL crash was scheduled to begin at the Coconino County courthouse.

Working On Plan For Prisoners

RALEIGH (AP)—A committee is working out plans for a program under which selected short-term prisoners would work at their regular job during the day and sleep in prison camps at night.

Prisons Director William F. Bailey, head of the committee, said today the program will be submitted to the 1957 General Assembly. Gov. Hodges suggested that the plans be worked out as one means of relieving the increasing prison population.

The terms of many short-term prisoners expire before they can be fully classified and trained for a prison job. Under study is the possibility that prisoners who would come under the plan would pay something out of the salaries to cover their prison board and keep. This would be about $2.60 a day. Other prisoners pay this in labor. The balance of the salary would be divided between an allowance for the man's family and a deposit to be kept for him until he finishes his term.

Two Face Charges In Hoax Call

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — A longshoreman and a railroad clerk face up to 25 years in prison if convicted of tormenting Mrs. Beatrice Weinberger with a false claim they held her kidnaped baby boy.

The two young men, both unemployed, were to be arraigned today in Ridgewood Felony Court, Queens. They are charged with attempting to extort $5,000 from the heartbroken mother and giving false information about a kidnaping.

Meanwhile, there was no trace of 5-week-old Peter Weinberger or any solid evidence he is still alive. The blue-eyed baby was snatched from his carriage in the patio of the Weinberger home here last Wednesday.

The FBI plans to enter the case [illegible] one week after the kidnaping. Under the Lindbergh law, the FBI can move into a kidnaping case after seven days or after the victim has been transported across state lines.

Arrested were Robert F. Giebler, 27, longshoreman, Jackson Heights, Queens, and Gordon T. Rowell, 24, railroad clerk, Sunnyside, Queens. Both are married and Giebler has three children.

Police said the two hatched the hoax in a Queens bar Sunday night.

The two allegedly made four telephone calls to the Weinberger home Sunday night and early yesterday. They told Mrs. Weinberger she would find her infant son in a Queens church if she paid the $5,000 ransom, police said.

Twice the 32-year-old mother took $5,000 and drove off from her home in desperate hope of embracing her baby again.

The first telephone call ordered her to drop the money in a parked car in Queens. She spent an agonizing 70 minutes at the location but no one showed up. Then she returned home.

Later, another call told her to leave the money in a Queens bar. Again the contact failed.

A telephone operator informed police that in collecting overtime charges from a pay phone she had heard conversation about the Weinberger case.

Police rushed to a Queens bar where the call was made. They soon picked up the two men in the neighborhood.

"They said they weren't interested in the money," Deputy Police Inspector Raymond V. Martin said. "They just want to see the cops run around."

Rain Continues

Jupiter Pluvius continued to hold sway in the Greenville area and at 8 a.m. today 5.24 inches of rain had fallen since last Saturday night.

Observer and Weather Observer Mrs. for the U.S. Department of Commerce Mrs. Leland Mizell, who reported last Saturday that Tar River at Greenville was at its lowest level in 40 years—one foot and three-quarters feet—said the stream had risen to the five and one-third feet stage today.

OFFICERS OF NEW INSURANCE COMPANY—Officers and directors of the new Sentinel Life Insurance Company were elected last night at the organizational meeting of the company held here. Left to right are: (seated) J. H. Moye of Greenville, vice president; W. W. Speight of Greenville, general counsel; A. Hartwell Campbell of Greenville, president and chairman of the board; Bancroft Moseley of Greenville, secretary; and John C. Proctor of Greenville, treasurer. Standing are directors Charles F. Terrell of Washington; John T. Marston, Jr. of Greenville; Bernice Turnage of Farmville; H. G. Nicholson of Tarboro, Dr. Robert Gilbert of Kinston and W. J. Bateman of Tarboro. The company will begin operations this fall. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Painting Aids Child Development

If a child is to learn the "skills of practical democracy"—living and planning together, accepting the will of the majority—many such learning opportunities must be created for him in the home.

We must begin early to build toward the adult, the future citizen. If we want adults to be capable of mature planning, we must teach them as children to plan, state educators at Michigan State University. Adults too often tend to give youngsters all the answers, whereas they need to begin planning and taking responsibility at an early age if they are to take it later on.

One of the best ways of bringing the child into more active participation in family affairs and of creating such opportunities is to draw him into the family council, particularly when matters directly concerning him are discussed.

For example, if the parents are planning to redecorate, when the child's room is done, let him help in planning the color scheme, the furnishings, and their arrangement. In thinking of color in relation to his own surroundings, he has a chance for creative expression, and in the framework of a situation which is real, not just play.

This experience can be carried a step further. It is even possible for the child to help in the actual execution of the project, particularly when latex paints are used. Because these paints are easy to apply with a roller, even a very young child can paint. Children generally do not have sufficient muscular coordination at an early age to use a brush but can easily handle the roller, with Mother's help of course.

Since the latex paints do not show lap marks, the wall will be quite presentable in spite of small hands, and as much or as little can be done at a stretch as desired depending on the child's span of attention.

The project will be popular with the children, for children like projects that show results and show them quickly. Since the latex paints dry to the touch within an hour, the child can have the satisfaction of seeing the results of his work within a very short time. He has a real feeling of accomplishment and participation as curtains and pictures are replaced on the freshly painted wall he has helped to do.

American Figure Has Changed Says Designer Hannah Troy

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — That long-stemmed American beauty also has a short waist, says designer Hannah Troy, who has been measuring customers all over the country to arrive at her new sizing, shown today to some 250 members of the nation's fashion press.

"At least half of the women in the country don't fit into regular sizes," says Hannah. "They have long legs, but their waistlines are shorter, so that when they buy a readymade dress they have to spend half again the original price on alterations."

So, going by her statistics, Mrs. Troy shows half her collection in the new shorter-waisted proportions, and all of it in what she calls the "well-shaped look" — carefully curved and constructed clothes built to flatter the feminine figure, whatever its size. She clings for the most part to the sheath silhouette, but softens it with drapery, floating panels and other devices to forestall austerity.

Claire McCardell, high priestess of the casual look, manages to give her offhanded outfits a new look of elegance this year, by subtle variations in cut, by use of luxurious fabrics and by highlighting a series of dinner-at-home gowns dramatizing the "Empress Josephine look." These are long and flowing outfits falling loose and free from a sash or belt just below the bust, presented in such lush fabrics as heavy satin, brocade and jersey sparked with gold or silver threads.

More in her usual breezy manner is her "Carpetbagger coat," in cotton print with wool fleece lining, fastened in front with three buckles and worn, if you like, with matching skirt and coordinated blouse.

Miss Gay Williams Marries

WINSTON-SALEM — Miss Gay Williams of Winston-Salem and Wilmington, Del. and Joseph Acton Whipple, also of Wilmington, were married Saturday at a morning ceremony solemnized at St. Paul's Episcopal Church here. The Rev. Thomas A. Fraser Jr. performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Williams, 12 Blum Street, and the granddaughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Dixon of Greenville.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. James V. Colpitts of Bridgeton, N. J.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white peau de soie dress with short sleeves. The lace yolk was re-embroidered with pearls, and her shoulder-length veil was attached to a pill-box of alencon lace.

Mrs. Howard Waldrop of Greenville, the bride's first cousin, was matron of honor. She wore a light blue linen dress.

Dr. George H. Whipple Jr. served as best man.

The wedding was attended only by members of their immediate families, as was the wedding breakfast which was given at the Twin City Club by the bride's parents following the ceremony.

The table cloth was yellow, and the wedding cake, the centerpiece. Mixed flowers of white, yellow and blue were used.

Friday evening, the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dixon, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Waldrop of Greenville, entertained at a dinner at the Twin City Club.

Mrs. Whipple is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, member of Chi Omega sorority, and a member of the Winston-Salem and Wilmington Junior Leagues. For tre past two years she has been employed in the public relations department of Du Pont Company.

Mr. Whipple attended the Mercersburg Academy, Mercersburg, Pa., and graduated from the New York Military Academy, Cornwall-on-Hudson, N. Hair Suffers From Sun, Surf

PROTECT TINTED HAIR . . . It is important to wear a bathing cap to prevent damage from sun, surf and sand.

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

Protect your hair from sun, surf and sand.

The girl with bleached, tinted or dyed hair has an even bigger problem to keep her hair from looking like straw in the summer.

"If your hair is tinted, be sure to wear a bathing cap when you go swimming," advises Miss Vern, a New York hair coloring expert. "Salt water bleaches and dries the hair and dunkings in a chlorinated pool are no help either. Pool water combined with sunshine may drastically bleach or discolor your hair," she says.

Dry wet edges of your hair with a towel after taking off your bathing cap, she advises. Put on a big brimmed hat to reduce red or gold sun bleached hair streaks that might otherwise result from the exposure.

Hair lacquer is no substitute for a scarf if you ride in a convertible car, Miss Vern reminds us. Lacquer, she says, should be used sparingly at all seasons because it fades the hair, causing it to lose lustre. She suggests using a hair setting lotion that unsnarls the hair and contains a conditioner.

Every woman should have at least one mid-summer reconditioning hair treatment, she says, whether she tints or not. It will help keep the hair lustrous. "Many women think that the oils in pomade help condition hair. Actually, it only dresses the hair. It should be used lightly because it might fade the hair as well as attract dust to it," says she.

Your hair treatment if done in a salon should take about 40 minutes with a heating cap and special oils that help remove foreign coatings such as soap scum, shampoo residue and pigment from rinses as it lubricates and conditions the hair. These oils usually do not leave a sticky hair film and may be removed with a single soaping.

"A natural blonde or a tinted blonde who goes without a bathing cap may be surprised to find her hair taking on a green cast from chlorinated water," says Miss Vern. "That condition and brittle hair may be helped by using a hair coloring bath that is warmer than the original shade. After that application removes the greenish discoloration the original color may then be put on."

The brassy hair look, the result of too much sun bleaching, may be helped temporarily with a rinse of hair coloring in a live-looking gray. This rinse conditions the hair at the same time so that there is no need for a setting lotion.

Brunette hair is likely to suffer from too much sun also. Ends that become sun-streaked are likely to need reconditioning, says Miss Vern, of the Clairol Institute.

Johnson-Jenkins Vows Spoken

ROBERSONVILLE—The marriage of Miss Myrtle Warren Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Andrew Jenkins, and Lewis Wayne Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Johnson of Robersonville, was solemnized July 1 at the Robersonville First Baptist Church at four o'clock in the afternoon.

The Rev. Ralph E. Ferguson, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

A program of wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Selma Meadows, organist, and Miss Patsy Warren, soloist. Both are from Robersonville.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an original wedding gown of white nylon tulle over bridal satin. The long-sleeved pointed bodice was fashioned with a portrait neckline enhanced by a deep bertha embroidered with sequins and pearl-sprinkled chantilly lace medallions. Alternate panels of lace accented the billowy skirt which swept out into a full train.

Her fingertip veil of imported French illusion was attached to a sequin and pearl tiara.

She carried a Colonial bouquet of bridal roses and stephanotis centered with a purple throated white orchid tied with net and satin streamers.

Miss Geraldine Jenkins, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor.

She wore a ballerina length dress of mint green embossed organdy over taffeta and carried a Colonial bouquet of white roses with net and satin streamers. She wore a lace hat trimmed with yellow ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. James E. Hancock Jr. of Timmonsville, S. C., sister of the bridegroom, Miss Shirley Roebuck, Miss Dorothy Jackson and Mrs. J. R. Jenkins, all of Robersonville; Miss Betty Jean Terry and Mrs. William Dennis Jenkins, both of Williamston.

They wore embossed organdy gowns in pastel shades designed like the maid of honor's. Their Colonial bouquets were of white carnations with satin ribbon.

Darlene Warren, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl. Her dress was of white organdy and she carried a white basket filled with rose petals.

Davis Jenkins served as his cousin's best man. Ushers were Joseph Johnson and Carl Johnson, brothers of the bridegroom, J. R. Jenkins, William Jenkins and Bobby Jenkins, brothers of the bride, and Grant Vanderford, all of Robersonville.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Jenkins wore a navy blue lace dress with matching blue and white accessories and a white rose corsage.

Following the ceremony, the bridal couple received in the vestibule of the church.

For her wedding trip to Western North Carolina, the bride changed to a blue pleated sheath dress with light beige accessories. She wore the orchid corsage lifted from her bridal bouquet.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will make their home in Raleigh.

The bride and groom are graduates of Robersonville High School. She has been employed at the Branch Bank in Williamston for three years. She now holds a position with the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company in Raleigh. The bridegroom attended King's Business College and served 24 months in the Army. He is now with Commercial Refrigeration, Inc. in Raleigh.

Cake Cutting

Immediately following the Johnson-Jenkins wedding rehearsal,, Mr. and Mrs. William Andrew Jenkins, parents of the bride, entertained in their home at a cake cutting for members of the wedding party and special friends of the bridal couple.

Vases of gladioli decorted the rooms. Ivy and candles were also used in the dining room where the table was centered with an arrangement of white gladioli and gardenias entwined with white ribbon.

After the bridal couple cut the first slice of the three-tiered wedding cake, the mother of the bride served cake to the fifty guests.

Mints, nuts, pickles and punch were served buffet style.

Coca-Cola Party

On June 20, Miss Myrtle Jenkins was honored by Mrs. James E. Hancock of Timmonsville, S. C., Mrs. Joseph T. Johnson, Mrs. Troy B. Warren and Mrs. Grant Vanderford with a Coca-Cola party in the home of Mrs. Warren.

The house, decorated with mixed summer flowers, was thrown ensuite. The dining table was centered with a bridal cake and candles entwined with ivy.

Upon arrival, Miss Jenkins was presented a corsage of gardenias.

Open-faced sandwiches, ham biscuits, potato chips, pickles, a variety of cookies, salted nuts and Coca-Colas were served to the 24 guests.

The hostesses presented the honoree a set of bowls in her chosen pattern.

Miscellaneous Floating Shower

Miss Myrtle Jenkins was honored at a miscellaneous floating shower at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Andrew Jenkins, on June 26 from 8:00 until 10 o'clock.

Mrs. William Jenkins and Mrs. J. R. Jenkins greeted the guests at the door.

Mrs. R. L. McClaren showed guests the gifts.

Miss Jenkins was presented a white gladioli corsage.

The living room and dining room were decorated with daisies and white gladioli.

Pimento-cheese sandwiches, pickles, mints, nuts and lemonade were served to a large number of callers.

Lingerie Shower

Mrs. Russell Mizell entertained Miss Myrtle Jenkins June 27 at a lingerie shower.

The house was decorated with arrangements of white and yellow gladioli.

The centerpiece for the dining table was a vase of glads carrying out the yellow and white color scheme. Hors d'oeuvres, cheese straws, mints, salted peanuts and Coca-Colas were served from the lace covered table.

The honoree wore a white carnation corsage presented by the hostess.

Twenty guests showered her with gifts.

Carolyn Spain, Mr. Davis Wed

Miss Carolyn Roberson Spain of Greenville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney R. Spain, and Carlos Leroy Davis, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Davis of Mount Olive, were married Sunday at 5 p.m. in a ceremony solemnized in the Eighth Street Christian Church.

The Rev. H. G. Haney, pastor of the bride, officiated.

Music was presented by Carolyn Cooper of Bethel, organist, and Elbert Bennet of Greenville, soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a ballerina-length dress of lace over taffeta with a scooped neckline edged with appliques of Irish lace.

Her fingertip veil was attoched to the crown of orange blossoms. She carried a white satin covered prayer book topped with an orchid and stephanotis.

Miss Mary Sideris of Greenville was maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. She wore a ballerina-length dress of pink crystalette over taffeta. Her picture hat was made om matching materials and she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Milton Spain of Greenville was best man.

Jack Garica and Robert Taft of Greenville served as ushers.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of powder blue crystalette with white accessories and a white orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother wore black chiffon voile with black accessories and a white orchid corsage.

The bride is a graduate of Greenville High School and attended East Carolina College.

The groom is a graduate of Calypso High School and attended Mars Hill and North Carolina State College. He is now serving in the United States Coast Guard.

Lawyer Gets Paid With Phony Check

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Harold P. Curtis, attorney, told the court that his client had paid him with a bogus check.

"You've lost faith in him?" the judge asked.

"Yes," Curtis replied.

The defendant accepted a court appointed attorney to replace Curtis.

Washington's Big 'Who Done It'

Whose to blame for the federal aid to education bill being killed in the House?

The answer, of course, depends upon the person the question is asked. Republicans already are blaming the Democrats; the Democrats are blaming the Republicans; Southerners are blaming the anti-segregationists and the anti-segregationists are blaming the Southerners.

Out of it all we gather that efforts to place the blame squarely upon the shoulders of one group will continue by all groups and that the matter of federal aid to education will become one of the hotter issues in the forthcoming political campaigns. Charges will be hurled in all directions from both sides of the political fence and from each corner of individual party rooms.

For our part, it appears to us that the immediate cause for the bill's defeat on the floor of the House was the adoption of the Powell amendment which would have made eligible for federal aid only those states which complied with the Supreme Court anti-segregation decision in public schools. But obviously there was much more to the action than just that one item. Had all the members of the House who voted in favor of the Powell amendment likewise voted in favor of the bill as amended it would have passed and been sent to the Senate.

The whole situation smacks of an attempt by a large number of House members to play politics with both the Powell amendment and also the bill as a whole. The totally confused situation which existed on the floor of the House while the measure was being ironed out indicated there were many political irons being put into and pulled out of the fire.

If nothing eles, the display by the House should have proved even to the skeptics there is little possibility of any sort of federal aid for schools—or anything else for that matter—that will not carry with it dictatorial authority from Washington governing the spending of the money and use of the facilities which the money purchases.

Plugging Holes In The U. S. Narcotics Dike

Dope peddlers and smugglers are going to find the going tougher in the United States if the Senate follows suit with the House and invokes stiffer penalties on those found guilty of illegal dealings in narcotics.

The growing menace of illegal narcotics traffic has long been recognized by leaders throughout the nation. Law enforcement agencies, in spite of their efforts at curbing the traffic, have found themselves seriously handicapped by inadequate laws which governed their work in connection with narcotics. Courts have found themselves limited by statute to invoking grossly inadequate sentences on those found guilty of the crime.

The narcotics bill passed this week by the House and now awaiting Senate approval will remove many of the handicaps under which law enforcement agencies have been forced to work. The bill likewise permits harsher sentences for smugglers and peddlers who prey upon the public with narcotics. The Senate should quickly give its approval to the bill and write into law the new provisions for the narcotics act.

In brief the bill will increase all present penalties for narcotics law violations and tighten present laws designed to curb traffic in marihuana. The bill would permit the death sentence on persons found guilty of selling or giving heroin to persons under 18 years of age. It also liberalizes rules dealing with issuance of search warrants in narcotics cases, permits deportation of alien offenders and outlaws heroin except for scientific research purposes.

Clearly the bill is one of the most progressive steps taken by Congress in years to stamp out the illegal narcotics traffic in the United States. It will plug many of the loopholes in old laws which have permitted offenders to escape unpunished in the past.

Bolstered with the new teeth provided by the bill, law enforcement agencies should be able to cut off many of the channels through which illegal narcotics are coming into the United States. They will be able to clamp down on the gigantic narcotics operation from the importers to the street peddlers level. The net result should be the protection of many Americans from the living hell of addiction to these illegal drugs.

Hits Careless Drivers Where It Hurts Most

North Carolina's policy of revoking drivers licenses for certain traffic violations is month by month making the state's drivers more conscious of abiding by traffic regulations.

During the first six months of this year, according to a report of the Motor Vehicles Department, a total of 15,928 Tar Heels lost their drivers licenses for traffic offenses. Some lost their licenses for a year or more, others for only a few months.

In addition to these people whose licenses were taken up by the Motor Vehicles Department, there were countless others whose drivers licenses were suspended for a few days in local courts throughout North Carolina.

For the most part those whose licenses were revoked during the first half of 1956 will be much more careful to abide by traffic regulations when their driving privileges are returned to them. Some, of course, will continue to flaunt the law endangering their own lives and lives of others. These, fortunately, make up only a small percentage of the total.

Through its policy of revoking drivers licenses, North Carolina is hitting the traffic violators where it hurts most. The program year by year is bringing to bear upon the public greater pressure for safe driving. The program likewise is gaining more public support as the months pass.

Revocation of drivers licenses is temporarily taking a good many drivers off North Carolina's highways, but at the same time it is converting a good many careless drivers into those who have much more regard for taffic regulations and highway safety.

State Is Winning War Against Disease

By LYNN NISBET

HEALTH WAR — North Carolina is winning the war against disease. Victory flags fly over the battlegrounds where diphtheria, smallpox and typhoid were defeated. Indisputable evidence is that victory is in sight over tuberculosis. Polio and other communicable diseases are due for a licking within the next few years.

Less progress has been made against degenerative diseases such as cancer, heart ailments and mental disorders. The present new frontiers to conquer. New battle lines are being formed by medical and public health agencies. The prospect is not as drear as simple challenge of degenerative diseases in the same spirit it met and conquered and the communicable disease half a century ago.

William H. Richardson of the N. C. Health Department has compiled some interesting figures.

In 1916, first year for which complete authentic figures are available, five communicable diseases were responsible for 5,104 deaths out of a total of 31,389 from all causes. Tuberculosis led with 3,577; typhiod accounted for 702; diphtheria 410; whooping cause 402 and smallpox 13.

In 1955 deaths from tuberculosis dropped to 258, smallpox had faded entirely from the picture and the other four diseases combined accounted for only 294 deaths.

The other side of the picture is that in 1916 only 5,337 deaths were attributed to cancer, heart and mental ailments, whereas in 1955 these diseases claimed 19,490. The presentage ratio for these diseases whet up from 17 per cent in 1916 to 60 per cent in 1955.

PROGRESS — Despite this percentage increase in deaths from degenerative diseases, the whole picture reflects tremendous progrss. In 40 years the population of North Carolina grew from about two and a quarter million persons. Yet the total number of deaths from all causes increased only 826—from 31,389 to 32,215.

The higher the mortality rate among middle-aged and elderly people is actually a tribute to achievements of medical science. Richardson states it this way: "If a child except strangulation by diphtheria at the age of two, to become a victim of heart disease at 50 or 60, certainly that person has won an opportunity to lead a more abundant life extending over half a century."

The fact that most people now are dying of diseases which allict only those of middle age or above means simply that more people are surviving childhood ailments to reach the riper age. Without curtailing activities to control the communicable diseases which affect youth, medical-health sceintists are carrying on the war against the degenerative diseases. The energy that went into research leading to control of diphtheria, smallpox, typhoid and whooping cough and almost control of tuberculosis, can be switched now to research in cancer, heart and mental diseases.

These studies involve not only medical science but serious so-health scientists have found how to keep people alive many more years. The business and social scientists have not kept pace in evolving means of utilizing the increasing number of old people and fitting them into the continuing productive economic scheme.

NEWS — President Luther Barnhardt of the Senate and Speaker Larry Moore of House still have some problems to work out with respect to news coverage of the special session of the branches give the presiding officers complete control over assigning space to newsmen to report doings of the Legislature. The only serious problem until a few days ago was to find enough space for the pencil reporters to sit or stand. Increasing use of news pictures required some provisions for photobulbs interfered to some extent with deliberations of the legislators.

Then came recording devices for radio and glaring lamps for television. Facilities in the century-old capitol building are not adequate to serve the needs of these modern communication devices. Whereas writing reporters for dozens of newspapers and news services can be accommodated, more or less adequately. One TV setup requires all the available facilities to the exclusion of all others. At least that is true where the big lamps and many yards of cable are used.

What President Barnhardt and Speaker Larry Moore have to decide is which TV station will be assigned more or less exclusive coverage, or whether any will be permitted to interfere with legislative process by use of bright lights with attendant heat and confusion. "There'll be confusion enought on my side of the capitol without TV light," said Speaker Moore.

Improvements in television broadcasting have been almost phenomenal during the past 18 months. The TV folks say that full coverage of the special session later this month will involve much less equipment than was necessary for televising sessions in the spring of last year. If the televising can be accomplished without interference with orderly precedure the presiding officers are all for it.

Other Editors Are Saying... Tooth Trouble

The Charlotte Observer

Man and boy, we've been tussling with the caps on toothpaste tubes for more years than our wives will admit, and it's been, up to now, strictly a losing scrap. The things disappear. Fall down drains; roll under bath tubs; hide in dark corners.

Currently, a friend reports, one of the toothpaste tycoons has topped his product with a new kind of cap—a BIG one; exactly the diameter of the tube itself—that ought to be hard to lose and certainly easy to find. Too big, that is, for the drainpipe.

So all we need to do is rush to the nearest drugstore and stock a supply of the big-cap toothpaste.

There's only one drawback: It isn't our brand.

Strength for the Day

LIFE A VAST COMPLEX

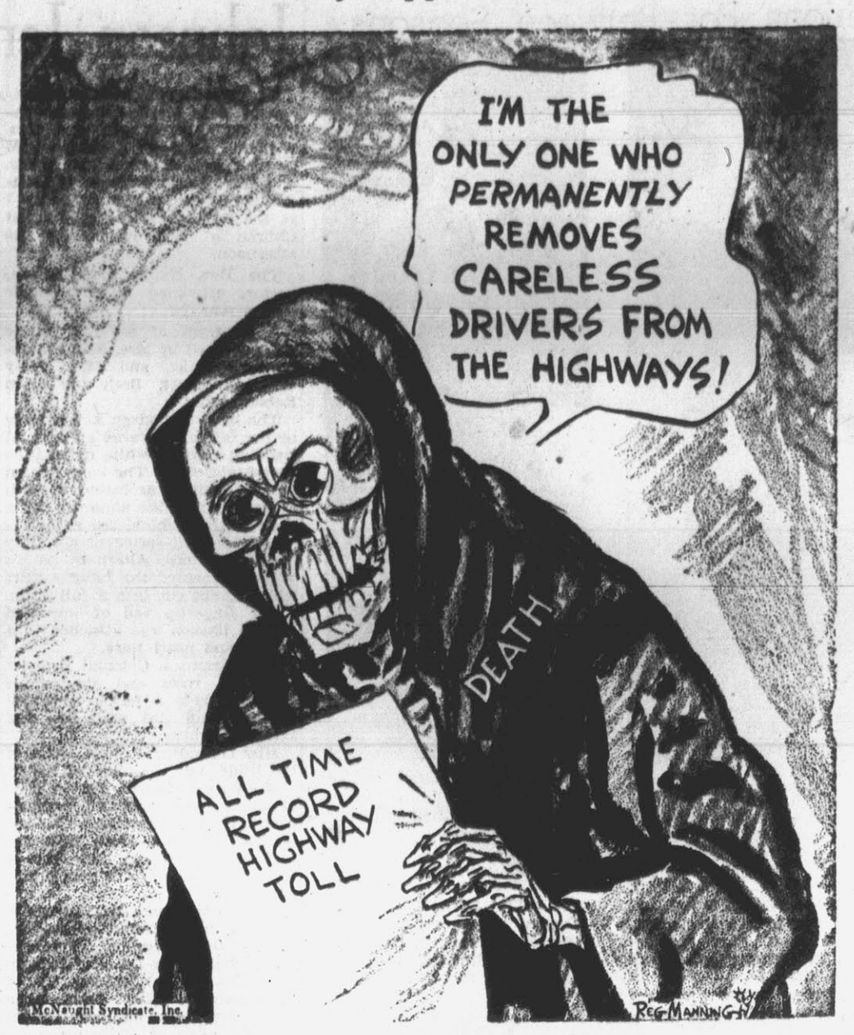
A minister was talking to a woman who had lost her husband. She was not only filled with grief over her loss but kept torturing herself with much self-accusation. She believed that had she not neglected this or that, had she insisted on certain measures at certain times, the tragedy would have been averted.

"Life is too complicated," said the pastor, "to enable us to pick out any one circumstance and say that it is the cause of anything. Everything that happens is the result of many causes. Had you done all the things you now accuse yourself of neglecting, the outcome would probably have been no different. Had you taken every measure you failed to take, each and all of them would have proved unavailing.

"This does not mean that your husband was fated to die and nothing could be done about it; it only means that every circumstance in life is a vast complex, that all we can do is to do the best we know how, and that no matter how much we do, we will always think that we have not done enough.

"Last of all, we must remember that the issues of life are in hands more powerful than ours. The sovereign God presides over life in its immensity and in its details. In Him is peace. Through Him all things work together for good."

Nobody Appreciates Me



By JIMMY ELLIS

'I Knew That Boy When...'

Everybody has a little bit of desire to say "I knew him when" when the conversation comes around to a celebrity.

Well, the conversation came around to one the other morning and I modestly commented, "I knew that boy when he was a school teacher. In fact, he taught me." The converstaion was about Andy Griffith who ain't half the country boy everybody thinks he is because of the records he makes. He's a city slicker, all right, and one of the slickest city slickers I ever knew.

Andy (I can call him that now, instead of "Mr. Griffith") taught dramatics and coached the men's chorus in Goldsboro High School in the late '40's and early '50's. That "men's" chorus was made up of a bunch of shirt-tail squirts (me included) who could holler louder than anybody else in school.

We would meet three or four times a week, usually on our own time, to practice our singing. It took a couple of months to tone down the yelling and screaming but we came around to where we could render a dignified performance of "Ave Maria" and one other song I don't remember the name of, but it was pretty anyway.

I sang baritone on those two selections. I couldn't sing high enough to be a tenor or low enough to be a bass but I could carry a simple tune so I was a baritone. I got along fine as long as we worked on those two songs but then he started to teach us Carrie Jacobs Bond's "When You Come To The End Of A Perfect Day." When we started singing that song is when my brief career as a musician came to an end.

The baritone part for our arrangement of the song was just too tricky for me. I tried hard and Andy tried hard but I just couldn't learn the part. I was willing but the notes wouldn't come out right or on time. I was finally invited to "sit it out."

I was crushed, of course, but who had a choice? I didn't quit, altogether, however. I'd sneak in the auditorium and sit 'way up in the balcony and hum the song. I still couldn't carry the tune properly but I was stubborn and it finally paid off.

After a couple of days sitting in the balcony, my off-key and slow singing and humming finally carried to the front of the auditorium where Andy and the rest of the boys were. He called me down front and told me that perserverance like mind should be rewarded and he thought he knew where I would fit in.

He let me help a couple of other fellows move the piano every day. I loved it and worked hard.

But I still don't know that song.

NEW YORK (AP) — Some things a columnist might never know if he didn't read his mail:

That the American man buys less than an average of one new suit a year, has each suit dry cleaned four times a year.

That no really well-dressed man will wear a bow tie with a buttoned-down shirt—but I do, and don't intent to quit either.

That Cecil B. DeMille, active in motion pictures since 1913, estimates his films have drawn 3,314,000,000 paid admissions.

That aviation experts predict in 20 years atom-powered air freighters will be developed that will weigh a million pounds and fly at a thousand miles an hour nonstop between any two points on the earth's surface.

That people who think big cities are as out-of-date as the dinosaur don't know what they are talking about. Suburbs have shown a 35 per cent population gain in the last decade, but cities themselves are up 15 per cent.

That Chicago, the Windy City, is really doing domething about its dust problem. The dustfall for the first quarter of 1956 averaged 56.6 tons per square mile, compared to 65.7 tons during the same period in the three previous years.

That one of the hazards of oil explorers in Libya is still-unexploded land mines laid by Field Marshal Rommel's troops in wartime, and since covered by shifting sands.

That many southern mountain folk, who like to look strangers in the eye, are annoyed by tourists who wear dark sunglasses.

That Italians, adopted an old American custom, are buying their motor scooters on the instalment plan.

That the ancient Egyptians, even as you and I, suffered from foot corns. A papyrus dating back to 1,500 B.C. recommended as a remedy a poultice of various berried cooked in cow fat.

That in old Ninevah the antique Assyrian medics treated bruised leg muscles with a combination of "flour of barkey kernel and gazelle dung in rose water."

Pressures Break Conservative Coalition

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, — The conservative coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats on Capitol Hill, which plagued both F.D.R. and Truman, has collapsed under the impact of racial, economic and re-election-year pressures. The crack-up seems to dispel dreams of a new political party that might disrupt historic alignments.

On two questions involving the race issue—Civil Rights and Federal aid to schools—several GOP committee members broke with their Dixie allies. Facing re-election in a doubtful year, they felt that they could not afford to alienate the relatively heavy colored vote in Illinois, Indiana and New York districts.

For this defection, their Southern friends may forgive them, for politics is a live-and-let-live proposition among professionals. Sometimes, and especially in a Presidential election year, Congressional tolerance on both sides of the aisle passes all human understanding. Moreover, the segregation question, in its present passionate phase, may be only a passing problem.

SERIOUS DIVERGENCE The really serious and significant divergence came on an economic matter—namely, a proposal for temporary reductions on imports of cotton textiles and farm products now in surplus or jeopardized by Japanese and Canadian competition in this country.

Here, it seemed, was an issue on which Southern Democrats and Republicans from North and West could join. Textile imports are hurting the sale of the South's raw and finished cotton. The textile mills are closing do from New England to Virginia, the Carblinas and even farther South. Unemployment is spreading and profits are falling.

BASIS FOR NATURAL ALLIANCE? Western producers suffer from imports of Canadian hogs; cheese, butter, and grains. There appeared to be here the basis for a natural alliance between the agricultural interest of South and West. This common bond has frequently been heralded as the politico-economic tie that might some day unite the two regions in permanent, ballot-box matrimony.

But the vote on the Young amendment for application of quotas was 45 to 43 in the negative. Only 18 Republicans lined up with the South, 11 from the North and nine from the West.

VOTE HARD TO EXPLAIN The anti-quota opposition included such Senators as Case and Smith from New Jersey, Flanders and Aiken from Vermont, Duff and Martin of Pennsylvania. It is difficult to explain their vote. A principal victim of foreign textiles is New Jersey. And it would seem that the Vermont-Pennsylvania contingent would have voted for textile interests in neighboring states.

But they preferred, as they explained, to stand with the White House, which opposed curtailment of imports on the ground that it would damage relations with Tokyo and Ottawa. Moreover, they had the excuse that the U.S. Tariff Commission is studying the problem with a view to possible relief through prescribed methods.

DIXIE FROWNS ON GOP Complete divorce of the coalitionists came on the milder Johnston amendment. This was permissive rather than mandatory on the Administration, and it applied quotas only to finished textile textile garments.

The vote was 52 to 36 against, with only 15 Republicans siding with the South. Seven were from the North, and eight from the West. Administration leaders voted in the negative on both tests. Thus, it appears that Ike will not be the long-awaited leader who can lead Dixie into the GOP or into even a facsimile thereof.

Demands Restrictions On Imports

By ELMER ROESSNER

You can expect a sharp increase in demands for the government to restrict imports of various foreign products.

You also can expect that bars will be raised only where American producers are taking a severe licking by foreign producers.

American wage scales are constantly rising. This tends to increase margins by which foreign producers can undersell Americans. Therefore American producers can demand—and probably get—labor support when they ask Congress and the Administration to restrict foreign low-wage products even more than at present.

This being an election year, no Congressman will be deaf to constituents' demands for protection. Some Congressmen have already showed signs of shifting their stand to favor higher barriers against imports.

Despite the domestic political risk, the Administration will resist restrictions except in the most flagrant case. It has lost several diplomatic battles to the Communist nations recently—in Indo-China, Egypt and Yugoslavia. On top of that the testimony of Lieut. Gen. James M. Gavin that nuclear attack might kill friends as well as enemy has alarmed our allies. This, then is not the time to harm friends abroad by restricting their sales here.

OTHER COMING EVENTS

Here are more predictions, based on analyses of developing trends:

This will be the boating industry's biggest year. Sales of pleasure craft so far have been phenomenal. High income has been strengthening demand for everything from punts to seagoing yachts. A deeper reason for the boom is that interest in boating has been steadily rising in the last ten years.

Bargains in cook-out equipment are coming. Manufacture of barbecue equipment is largely in the hands of hundreds of small producers. They knew a boom was coming, but they didn't have the research facilities to determine just how much the public would buy. Even if they had, no one could tell just how much of the market he could count on. Working in the dark, manufacturers seem to have overproduced. Grills and accessories are still moving briskly but toward the end of the summer there will be deep price cuts to reduce inventories.

PRICE RISES AHEAD

Fancy canned salmon will cost more. Runs of fancy chinooks were light this year. Canners' prices have already started to move up.

Carpet and rug prices will be higher this fall. Several manufacturers have raised their prices and others are expected to follow. Retailers appear to be reluctant to charge more until forced to replenish stocks, which will be in the fall.

Dacron marquisette curtains will go up. Mill prices on marquisette have been rising, manufacturers are passing the increase along to dealers and by fall the retailers will be passing it on to customers.

Expect more package deals in hardware. Several recent packaged assortments of nails, screwdrivers and other hardware items have proved unexpectedly successful; now a 10-piece set of paint brushes in various sizes is coming to market. Other manufacturers, noting results, are likely to bring out other package offers.

CAN OLD PROMOTER BE FOOLING US?

There was a sly smile on the Old Promoter's puss when he dropped in today and we asked him what new venture he was planning.

"I'm setting myself up as a professional worrier," he said. "When a businessman has a frustrating problem, I will undertake to worry about it for him—for a fee, of course. That will leave the executive free to seek a solution unharried, or to go out and play golf."

"Come now," we objected. "That's an old idea. Nobody will fall for it. Nobody will even laugh at it today."

The old one was not interested. "Yes," he said, "but I have a sure-fire gimmick. I'll guarantee to worry. If I don't develop an ulcer in three months, I return the fee."

Eden Tells Bulganin USSR 10 Years Behind

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Eden has told Soviet Premier Bulganin Russia is more than 10 years behind the West in trimming her armed forces.

Eden said in a letter to Bulganin, made public last night, that he welcomes Moscow's recent announcement it was demobilizing 1,200,000 men.

But, the Prime Minister said, Moscow was only copying what Western powers have been doing since 1945, the end of World War II.

Eden rejected as "not practicable" at this time Bulganin's suggestion the West make a similar cut in its over-all armed strength and also trim its forces in West Germany.

Bulganin made his proposals in letters last month to Eden, President Eisenhower and the government heads of France, West Germany, Italy and Canada. The Soviet chief said his government was taking 30,000 of its troops out of East Germany. Italy already has rejected the proposal.

Eden's answer left the door open to a further study of the Bulganin troop reduction proposal. The Soviet leader had called it a possible "first step' toward a complete withdrawal of foreign troops from Germany and a final peace settlement.

Eden replied that "existing guarantees" for the security of West Europeans must be maintained in any East-West understanding in Europe.

"My own feeling is that unilateral reductions of this kind are helpful," Eden said. "I do not think, however, that they are of themselves sufficient if international confidence and security are to develop as we wish.'

There is no substitute, the Prime Minister said, for an international disarmament agreement providing for effective control and inspection and adequate measures for protection against surprise attack.

"Comprehensive arrangements to take into account both disarmament and urgent political questions, notably the reunification of Germany, would make real progress possible. I shall always be ready to give any help I can in this," Eden said.

ECC Professor Studies At Utah

Lucille A. Rice, faculty member of East Carolina College department of science, is participating in the work of the Institute of Biology at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City.

Miss Rice began he rwork with the Institute yesterday and will be in Salt Lake City until August 10 She has been a faculty member at East Carolina since 1948 and is the author of a number of published articles in the field of biology.

She is one of 25 teachers chosen from various sections of the country to take part in the special study and to receive a stipend for expenses.

The theme of the Institute is "Modern Advances in Biology for Better Teaching of High School and College Biology." Major aims will be to present the most important of the newer basic concepts in the biological sciences and to give teachers greater competence in the specialized task of teaching the biological sciences in colleges and high schools.

The program at the Institute will be directed by Dr. Loren C. Petry, professor of botany, University of Missouri, and Dr. Stanley B. Mulaik, assistant professor of biology, University of Utah. Major fields of study will include plant and animal physiology, human genetics and radiation effects, systematics and evolution, ecology, conservation, microbiology, and plant morphology and classification.

Spanish Defense To Be Discussed

MADRID, Spain (AP) — High-level talks open here tomorrow apparently to lay the groundwork for linking Spain directly to the strategic planning for Western europe's defense.

Participating will be Spanish and Portuguese leaders and U.S. military officials. A U.S. military mission arrived last night for the talks, which are scheduled to last four days. Heading the mission is Maj. Gen. Francis Day, representing the U.S. commander in Spain is not a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The American command here reports and receives orders from Washington. Portugal is a member of NATO and is linked to Spain by the Iberian Pact of 1940.

Informants said the agenda for the talks includes coordination of mutual defense problems and arrangements for assuring the security of military installations on the peninsula.

The informants said Spain requested the talks as a result of Gen. Francisco Franco's meeting last November with Secretary of State Dulles.

PCA Group Back From Meeting

Alton Gardner, E. W. Fleming, Arch J. Flanagan, Jesse L. Tripp, W. F. Welfare Jr. and F. L. Little Jr. of the Greenville Production Credit Association have returned from Charleston, S. C., where they attended the South Carolina Production Credit Association directors' conference.

Figures were presented giving a total of 86,177 Class A and Class B stockholders of the 87 production credit associations in the Third Farm Credit District. These associations made loans during 1955 totaling $112,375,384 and they have a total net worth of $24,036,762.

The principal speaker was Dr. George H. Aull, head of the Department of Agricultural Economics, Clemson Agricultural College. He presented a comprehensive report of the economic and agricultural outlook for the next five years. Robert A. Darr, president of the Production Credit Corporation of Columbia, S. C., presented production credit plans for the future. These plans called for a detailed study of each production credit association by its board of directors and management to determine that each local organization is serving the credit needs of farmers in its territory.

Others appearing on the program were Dr. Frank W. Peck, member Federal Farm Credit Board from Minnesota; John T. Knox, New York City fiscal agent of Farm Credit Administration; H. Dwight McAlister, pastor, First Baptist Church, Cheraw, S. C.; Marshall Edwards, member Farm Credit Board, Bartow, Fla.; William H. Johnson, extension representative Farm Credit District of Baltimore. Other officers and officials of the Production Credit Corporation and the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank made brief statements to the group.

The Greenville Production Credit Association, serving the farmers of Pitt and Greene Counties, made loans totaling $3,100,000 during 1955 to finance agriculture in these two counties, according to a report from Secretary-Treasurer F. L. Little Jr. of the local association. The farmers of these two counties own in stock and surplus over $550,000 in this local cooperative.

The Greenville Production Credit Association has offices located in Greenville and Snow Hill.

HELP YOURSELF

Pointing to stacks of fat fowls killed in the storm, Young invited, "Help yourself."

Death Penalty Prescribed For Narcotics Peddlers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress has sent the White House a bill prescribing stiffer penalties, including death, in the hope of discouraging the peddling of narcotics.

The measure is expected to be signed into law by President Eisenhower since it carries out recommendations made early this year by a Cabinet committee.

The bill, passed by the Senate and House yesterday, would increase present penalties for narcotics law violations and permit the death sentence for persons who sell or give heroin to children under 18. The death penalty would apply when recommended by juries in states permitting capital punishment.

Without a jury's recommendation, the penalty for the heroin law violation could be 10 years to life, even for a first offense. In addition, the bill would outlaw heroin in this country except for research and require all heroin to be turned over to the Treasury Department within 120 days.

Penalties for dope peddling are more than doubled by the bill. They are increased from the present 2 to 5 years for a first offense to 5 to 10 years and from the present 5 to 10 years for a second offense to 10 to 40 years for a second or subsequent violation. Maximum fines are increased from $2,000 to $20,000.

Eisenhower ordered a narcotics study late in 1954 by a five-department Cabinet committee in an effort to stamp out dope addiction and the crimes it causes.

Proponents of the bill, along with Harry J. Anslinger, chief of the Federal Narcotics Bureau, contend the new law will make dope peddling unpopular in the underworld.

Sen. Daniel (D-Tex), author of the Senate bill and chairman of a Senate committee which investigated illegal narcotics traffic on a national scale, said the measure "will be the biggest blow ever dealt the ... traffic in the United States."

Growing Pains Hit Montreal

MONTREAL (AP)—Montreal is spilling over. The boom has struck the south shore, across the St. Lawrence from the metropolis. Farms, sold for several times the value they had a few years ago, are being developed into industrial sites. Construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway is a factor.

A particularly attractive site is a 15-mile strip beside the main river channel to the Atlantic, and at the entrance to the St. Lawrence Seaway project. In this area industries can build docks direct to a waterway 35 feet deep, the St. Lawrence Ship Canal. Several United States and European steel companies have optioned or purchased land in the district, Montreal's Economic Development Bureau reports.

Misses Tax Guess By Only $4,000

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—The South Carolina Tax Commission and State Auditor J. M. Smith missed guessing the state's 1955-56 tax take by $4,000. That figures out an error of .00003 per cent.

The prediction—made in December 1954 for revenue that would not all be collected until June 30 of this year—was $119,946,000. The take was $119,950,000.

Child Injured In Auto Wreck

Local Man Was Olympic Threat, AAU Cinder Star

He Starred With Patton, Mathias, Richards, Others

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Writer

(Editor's note: This is the third in a series of articles concerning Greenville citizens who have been outstanding in the world of sports).

John Montgomery, a television technician and salesman at V. A. Merritt and Sons Appliances, was one of the nation's top potential Olympic pole vaulters less than a decade ago. Attending the University of Southern California, he competed with and against the world's leading performers in track—and even defeated some of them.

He is somewhat of a celebrity in the field of track, having journeyed to Finland to perform for the AAU, having had his picture (a full-page colored action photo) appear in Esquire magazine at the height of his career, having been both friends and—or foes with such all-time greats as Mel Patton, Bob Markham, Bob Mathias, Paddy O'Brien, Dick Attlesley, Cornelius Warmerdam and Dave Sime.

Was High School Standout

Montgomery was born in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, 35 years ago and soon became a standout trackster at Baton Rough high school. His record for a 13 foot- 3 1-8 inch height still stands as the state's pole vaulting summit. He also competed in the broad jump, high jump, and the now obsolete hop, step and jump.

In 1941-42, he entered Rice Institute, at Houston, Texas, on a track scholarship and worked with the freshman cinder team. "Freshmen in those days were considered only future varsity material," John says, "and we didn't get a chance to do much real work."

The outbreak of World War II found Montgomery in the service. "I traveled to just about every place in the country," he recalls. Among the places he was stationed are San Diego, Cherry Point, Logan, Utah, Corpus Christi, Fort Worth. New Port, Arkansas—and Greenville.

"While stationed at Cherry Point, I competed in several indoor and outdoor meets at Chapel Hill," John says. "They were considered AAU meets. That was in 1944 and '45."

While on duty at Greenville, John married a local girl, Mary Lee Williams. "When I got out of the service," the 6-2, 180 pound Montgomery says, "Mary Lee and I intended to move back to Texas, so that I could enroll at Rice again."

John laughs when telling the next part of his story. "I had been enrolled for a week at Rice when we had to pack up a leave. My wife despised the hot, dry weather and the doctor told her that if she stayed in Texas, her hay fever would stay right with her."

Called Dean Cromwell

Someone at Rice suggested that John call the track coach at the University of Southern California, Dean Cromwell. "I got Cromwell on the phone and told him that I had jumped 13 feet 3 1-8 inches in the pole vault and that I wanted to go to school. He told me to come up to California, that they could use me," Montgomery states.

Unable to work with the Southern California track team for a full year, due to eligibility rules, John worked at a radio manufacturing factory and then entered school the following term In '48, he went out for the track squad.

It was during this season that Montgomery met such great stars as Mel Patton, the Rev. Bob Richards, Don Laze and Paddy O'Brien. He carried Southern Cal's banners in the '48 Olympic trials and vaulted against Laze and Richards (both from Illinois, Gwynn Smith (San Francisco) and Bob Markham (New Hampshire). Richards, Smith and Markham won cut over the field and represented the United States in the '48 world events.

During the Olympic trials, John became intimate pals with Mel Patton, who holds the world's 100 yard dash record; Fortune Gordien, world record-holder in the discus; Dick Attlesley, who set a world's high hurdles mark; Bob Mathias, the two-time decathlon winner.

"The tour of Europe and the Finland performances came in the summer of 1949," Montgomery reflects. "The AAU took our country's best tracksters on that trip."

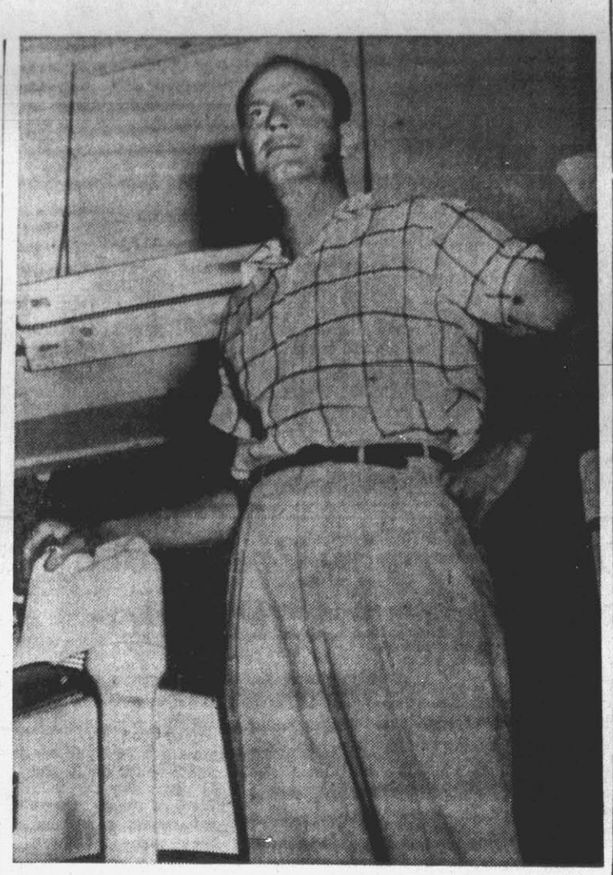
Defeated Richards

After graduating from Southern California, John went to work for a Los Angeles television company. "I stayed in shape and pole vaulted for the Los Angeles Athletic Club in the Fresno Relays. I defeated Bob Richards that year with a 14-foot-four-inch height." Richards has since vaulted past the 15-foot mark and will represent the United States in the 1956 Olympics.

Montgomery also vaulted against Cornelius Warmerdam during the Fresno trials. Warmerdam is considered the world's greatest vaulter, and holds the world's record with a 15-foot-8 3-4 inch mark.

In 1951, Montgomery moved to Charlotte and then came to Greenville again in '53, where he has lived since. His residence is 422 West Fifth street.

When asked about present day tracksters, the balding athlete says "Dave Sime is the fastest thing on two feet today. As far as all-around athlete is concerned, I think that Mathias was absolutely the best in his day—and he could probably still beat out anybody else even today."



AAU ATHLETE—John Montgomery once performed his pole Vaulting feats on A European AAU tour, competing with an against such greats as Bob Mathias, Rev. Bob Richards, Paddy O'Brien, Mel Patton and others. He later defeated Richards in the Fresno Relays with a 14-foot-4-inch mark.

BEAUTY ENTRY

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The Rhode Island entry in the Miss Universe beauty contest is a Massachusetts girl.

Miss Sandra Lee Bozella of Walpole, Mass., has been chosen to represent Rhode Island at Long Beach, Calif. Oddly enough, Miss Bozella finished second in a recent contest to pick Miss Massachusetts.

Beanings Didn't Faze Don Zimmer

BROOKLYN (AP)—You'd think a fellow who had suffered two beannings and a broken wrist at the age of 25 would think of giving up.

"It did enter my mind," smiled Brooklyn infielder Don Zimmer through dark glasses as he left the hospital after a stay of almost three weeks following his second beaning. "My family probably would have liked it. But I only thought of it a while."

Zimmer was felled by a fast ball delivered by the Cincinnati Redlegs' Hal Jeffcoat June 23. His left cheek bone was smashed and the retina of his left eye was injured.

A few hours later from his hospital bed, Zimmer, always a fighter said:

"Tell Jeffcoat he'd better go back to outfielding. I took his best pitch and I'm still here."

Jeffcoat is a former outfielder.

"I feel great right now," said Zimmer. "I'd like to think I'll be able to play some more this season, but I doubt it. I hope to return to the Dodgers for the last week of the season and by then maybe I'll be able to work out."

Until Sept. 24, though, Zimmer's activities will be severely restricted. The pinpoint glasses he is wearing will be removed in two weeks if all goes well. Zimmer also has been ordered by his physician to refrain from any physical exertion, even to the point of taking automobile rides.

"So," Zimmer sighed, "that means I'll have to stay in my apartment here for two weeks. Then I'll go to my parents' home in Cincinnati and if all goes well, I'll be back with the Dodgers for the final week."

He took his first beaning in 1953 when he was playing with the Brooks' farm club at St. Paul in the American Assn. That fractured his skull and almost ended his life.

But he came off the floor and was up with the Brooks last year. Then last October, his wrist was broken in two places during the Puerto Rican Winter League play.

Soon after that, he underwent an appendectomy, putting him on the shelf for the winter.

Setting The Pace For Linksters

By JACK STEVENSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The South and the West set the pace today as the 31st annual Amateur Public Links Championships went into the second and crucial round of qualifying play.

With Californian Scotty McBeath of Palo Alto holding a one-stroke lead among the individuals and the Memphis, Tenn., team ahead of the field, the play today determines the team championship and which 64 golfers will enter tomorrow's match play.

McBeath, 34, a sporting goods salesman who does most of his golfing on the weekends, fired a 3-under-par 69 over the Harding Park course yesterday. The 15th to complete his round among the 150 public course players entered, he saw his top spot hold up.

Tied in second place with 70 were Lt. Dick Stearns of Portland, Ore., the Air Force champion, and Fred Corvi of San Francisco, an airport bus driver.

Defending champion Sam Kocsis of Detroit soared to a 77 but didn't appear agitated.

"I'll do better and be in the match play," he said. Then he spent the afternoon on the practice tee.

The fourth par-breaker over the 36-36—72 Harding layout of 6,683 yards was Vern Callison, a tavern owner from Sacramento, Calif.

Troy Drops Down A Notch After Tough Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Troy shrugged when he was asked if Jerry Luedee's blows hurt.

"They just sting a little," he said. "But they sure don't hurt like some of those light - heavyweights."

The 24-year-old Troy once looked like a pretty fair light - heavy prospect, but he displayed an alarming ailment, a glass jaw. So now he's back with the middleweights and apparently happier.

He was out only three times last year, and four times this year, and his inaction showed last night at St. Nicholas Arena where he won a split, 10-round decision over Luedee, a youngster from New Haven, Conn.

Troy weighed 161¾, Luedee 163.

Troy didn't appear to have any desire to fight for half the bout. Actually, he was warming up to the task and once he got going, Luedee took some stinging body blows.

The officials had it about as narrow as you could have it. Judge Frank Fullam had it a draw, 5-5 in rounds, and five points each under New York state's supplemental point scoring system. Judge Leo Birnbaum saw Troy ahead, 6-4, while Referee Dave Feld had it even in rounds but gave Troy eight points to five for Luedee. The Associated Press saw it 5-4-1, Troy ahead.

Luedee spent most of the fight barging in, but his long, loping rights were wild. He connected in the ninth and had Troy in trouble, but couldn't finish the job.

They're billed for a return go on Aug. 13 or 20.

Gordon To Be Seals' Manager

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Joe (Flash) Gordon, former Yankee star and Detroit Tiger coach, takes over as manager of the San Francisco Seals today following the sudden ouster of Eddie Joost as pilot of the seventh-place Pacific Coast League club.

Seals President Jerry Donovan said Joost was fired because "Eddie wasn't getting the best potential out of the club." The Seals lag 14 games behind Seattle, the league leader.

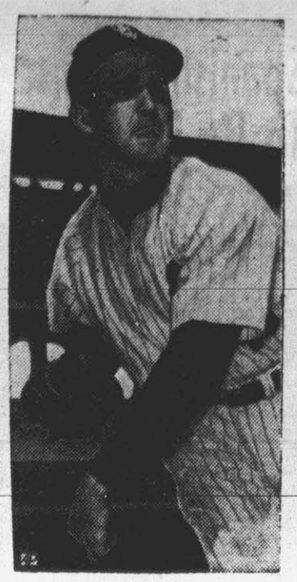
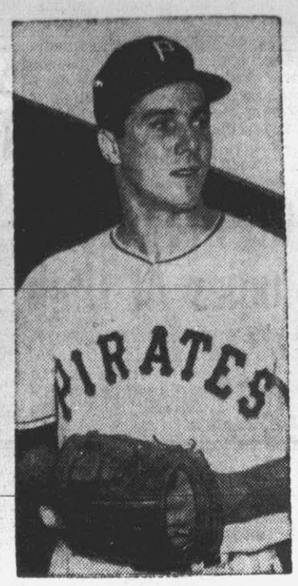
All-Star Starters



BILLY PIERCE



BOB FRIEND

Mantle To Start All-Star Battle In Washington

By JOE REICHLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The selection of Pittsburgh right-hander Bob Friend and Chicago White Sox left-hander Billy Pierce as the starting pitchers for today's annual All-Star Game brought no change in the 6-5 odds favoring the American League over the Nationals.

A sell-out crowd of nearly 29,000 was certain to jam Griffith Stadium.

The game will be broadcast and telecast.

Manager Casey Stengel of the American League team had no trouble deciding on Pierce as his starter but Walter Alston, the National's skipper, did not settle on Friend until he was convinced the Pirate ace was fully recovered from a mild throat ailment that had sent him to bed Sunday.

"I talked with Friend," Alston said, "and he assured me he was feeling fine. He said there's nothing wrong with his throat. He has a little soreness there but it doesn't bother him at all."

Stengel, explaining the choice of Pierce over his own Yankee Whitey Ford, said: "Pierce has the best record in the league. I know he pitched Sunday but he went only five innings and that shouldn't bother him at all. I've got to start him after what he did against those guys (National League) before. He's pitched six innings against them and they haven't scored against him yet."

Stengel, a man of many innovations, said he may throw three southpaws against the power-laden National Leaguers. His plan was to follow Pierce with Ford and Herb Score, the Cleveland fireballer.

Stengel's plans were subject to change, however, if Alston decided to send in his available right-handed hitting lineup as soon as possible. And the Dodger boss indicated he planned to do just that after the third inning. Under the rules he must play the players named in the fan vote for at least three innings.

Alston said he wasn't sure who would follow Friend to the mound. He thought he would use a left-hander for the middle three innings but added:

"It all depends on the moves Casey makes. That is, what players he has in the game as it goes along."

Friend's work was cut out for him since six of the Americans' starters bat left-handed, including the switch-hitting Mickey Mantle.

Braves' Pitchers Are Best In Loop

MILWAUKEE (AP) — What are five reasons why Fred Haney is the envy of the other National League managers these days?

The round little manager of the Milwaukee Braves has that many starting pitchers—with a glittering combined earned run average of 2.91.

Where the second-place Braves would be today without Lew Burdette, Warren Spahn, Bob Buhl, Ray Crone and Gene Conley is open to conjecture.

"Figure it out for yourself," Haney said before the All-Star break. "We're hitting around .260. We're doing right well when we score five runs in a game.

"If our first-line pitching wasn't going so well, there's no telling where we'd be. We've just got to get more hits before we press our luck too far."

Since Haney took over from the "resigned" Charlie Grimm at Brooklyn June 16, the Braves have scored an average of 4.7 runs a game in 25 games. They've won 17 of them, mainly because the opposition has been held to an average of 3.4 runs a game.

Burdette leads the staff and the National League with an ERA of only 2.12. Then, in order come Spahn, a left-hander who has been around a long time, with 2.81; Conley, 3.12; Crone, 3.19; and Buhl, 3.32.

Last year at this juncture in the race, the same Big Five had a combined ERA of 3.60.

McCormick Drilling For Olympic Trials

LOG BACH, Calif. (AP)—Blonde Pat McCormick, the greatest diver, male or female, on record, starts right in again today on a rigorous training schedule leading to the Olympic trials in Detroit Aug. 7-10.

The 26-year-old mother returned home in triumph yesterday from Texas where she won the 1, 3 and 10-meter diving events in Tyler and Houston in the National AAU outdoor events.

These three gave her a total of 27 national titles, to say nothing of two gold medals in the 1952 Olympics and three Pan-American Games titles. In 1948 Juno Stover edged her out for the Olympic team by a point fraction but since then Pat has been virtually invincible.

One would think she might rest a bit before beginning what she has said will be her last campaign, with plans to retire after this year's Olympics. She appears to be a cinch to make the trip to Melbourne. But Pat said:

"I wouldn't make the team if I didn't undergo a strenuous work schedule. Our plans call for six hours of work daily for the next three weeks."

"Ours" means herself and her husband, Glenn McCormick, her coach, diving coach of the Los Angeles Athletic Club and now a pilot for United Air Lines.

"If I'm lucky enough to make the team I will take a couple of weeks rest and then start in all over again for the big push," Pat said.

"It's always a great thrill to win, especially if you perform well. But I must channel my interests, and at this time that means my husband and our 4-month old baby boy. We hope t augment the family considerably

COMFORT FOR HENS

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) Carl Dossin, poultry specialist at Pennsylvania State University, says laying hens will show a better output if they have comfortable quarters.

And, he adds, they will generally be more profitable if kept confined than allowed to run on range.

Asheville Golf Tourney Ready

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Weather permitting the rain-hampered North Carolina Open Tennis Tournament will see a full card of action here today.

The top match pitted first-seeded Herbert Browne of Columbia, S.C., against Milton Nesbitt of Asheville in the men's division.

Defending Champion Janie Haynie of Belton, S.C., was to meet June Peterson of Asheville while the other top seed in the women's division, Evelyn Cowan of Covington, Ga., was to take on Loulie Glenn of Asheville.

Marshall Happer of Kinston, the No. 1 seed in the junior division, and second-seeded Ben Keys of Greenville, S.C., are not slated to play today.

Rain limited yesterday's opening play to 12 men's singles matches on the clay courts of Biltmore Forest Country Club.

John Cappell of Montgomery, Ala., seventh-seeded in the tourney, disposes of Johnny Talley of Gastonia, 6-3, 6-1. Fifth - seeded Lindsay Hopkins of Atlanta, Ga., breezed to a 6-1, 6-1 victory over David Morgan III of Asheville. Happer, eighth-seeded in men's play, gained a first-round bye and then triumphed 6-2, 6-3 over Ralph Bridges of Atlanta.

SYNOPSIS

Priscilla Paige, who is bored with her job in a New York office and unmarried, grasps at an opportunity to escape her humdrum existence when she is notified of an unexpected bequest from a great-aunt, and naturally her imagination is stirred by what follows. Her older, wiser friend, Rita Lambert, accompanies Priscilla on the auto trip to Apalachicola, Fla., to see the principal item in the bequest—an abondoned old mansion called Lookout House. The girls learn that the house is "haunted" and has a secret passage. The two decide to remain to appear to be just tourists until they know more about why three different men have taken a curiour interest in the place and in them. The men are Bill Duval, who says he is a writer; Red Gallagher, a fisherman, and Luis Alvarez, a wealthy yachtsman.

In her first visit to the house, Rita finds $500 in brand-new bills on the floor, and Todd, the attorney for the estate, reveals that Alvarez is interested in buying the house.

The local belle, Peggy Pomeroy, is naturally annoyed that Priscilla has attracted the attention of her two best beaux, Pete Craig and Dick Devereaux.

CHAPTER 11

"Dick made a professional call to the girls last night," said Pete. "The younger one—her name's Priscilla Paige—ate too much shrimp or the wrong kind of shrimp or something. Gave her a tummyache. All the drugstores were closed and somebody told them about Dr. Devereaux."

"Did the treatment include meeting them at the drugstore this morning?" Peggy's tone was a little displeased.

"I didn't say he met them. I said he was talking to them—in fact, he was buying them a Coke. Anything wrong with that?"

"No-o, but a little unusual, don't you think? If you think she's so attractive, why didn't you barge in and get an introduction?"

Pete smiled and slid farther down in his chair. "I did. I had a Coke with them."

"Heavens above! Why didn't you say so in the first place? What does she look like?"

"Priscilla? I've just told you. Like Lauren Bacall. The other one is darkish, black hair, dark eyes. Her name is Rita Lambert. She writes or something."

"Well, I haven't seen them and I haven't any interest in them. Mother said two ladies had rented the Glass cottage for a short while. . . . Was she really sick last night?"

"Priscilla? Of course. Why else would she have called the doctor?"

Peggy swung her feet to the floor and say up. "If I were in a strange town and was bored, and I knew there was a young, attractive doctor around, I might have indigestion or some other minor ailment."

Pete looked at her speculatively. "You might, at that. But in Priscilla's case, I think the indigestion was genuine. Look, Peggy. Instead of showing you claws, it would be a nice gesture if you'd call on those girls."

Peggy said, "I may do that very thing. If I'm going to have competition, I'd like to look her over. And I'll ask Dick about them—whether they're the kind one should call on."

"Give me a little time and I'll let you know." Pete got up. "I'm going to ask Priscilla for a date."

"Sometimes, Pete, I dislike you intensely. I think you do things just to aggravate me."

"Do you ever do anything to aggravate me?" Pete demanded, looking at her, not smiling. "And I won't ask her for a date to aggravate you. I'll do it because I want a date with her. And I'll tell you something else: don't be surprised if Dick does the same. He may have asked her for a date tonight. How about riding around with me? We may run into them."

Peggy was on the verge of saying no. But she had talked to Dick once today and he hadn't said anything about seeing her tonight. Pete would probably do just as he had said, manage somehow to wangle a date with the newcomer. And perhaps it might be well in the beginning to let that girl know she had priority on Pete. So she said she would be glad to see him tonight, and as her folks were dining out, he could take her over to Maud's for dinner.

After Pete had gone, she continued to lie there in the hammock. She wished there were a half-dozen eligible men here, so that she could make Pete and Dick jealous. Did she dare date Luis Alvarez? He was attractive and he had a beautiful boat. Of course, he was too old and Mama would probably have a fit if she did. Then there was Bill Duval. He and Dick had fished together, and Dick said he was writing a book, or collecting material for a book or something. He rode around a lot in that red Buick, must do all his writing at night. Oh well . . . Peggy stretched out in the hammock and was almost immediately asleep.

Bill Duval walked over as Dr. Devereaux got into his car in front of Hicks' Pharmacy.

"Got a minute, Doctor?"

Involuntarily the young doctor's eyes went to his wrist. Then he said pleasantly, "Sure, I can take it, anyway. What's on your mind?"

"Women." A smile played over Bill's face. He opened the car door and got in.

The doctor laughed. "I thought perhaps that was it. The girl in the red slacks? I saw you watching us there in the drugstore. Why didn't you barge in, as Pete did, and get an introduction? I started to call you and just about that time you walked away."

"Who are they? And where did you meet them?"

Dr. Devereaux smiled. "The younger one's name is Priscilla Paige, the other one is Rita Lambert. They're from New York. Like you, Miss Lambert is a writer. I think they are here to get material for a book. Miss Paige ate too much shrimp last night and I was called."

"I see," Bill said. "A patient, an attractive one, calls the doctor at night. The doctor meets her next morning for a Coke."

Dick laughed.

"The older one looks Spanish," said Bill. "I understand her name is Zerita. That's Spanish, isn't it?"

"I don't know about the name, but I'm sure Rita isn't. That accent is just plain New Yorkese. The younger one, Priscilla, told me her mother's people were Southerner."

"If they're from New York, why does their car have a Connecticut license tag?"

"Has it? I didn't notice. Anyway, I'm sure they said they were

"Put it down to curiosity. One both from New York. Why do you ask, Bill?"

doesn't see many strangers who linger here for no apparent reason."

"Now that you mention it, the curiosity seems to be mutual. When you walked by, Miss Lambert asked who you were."

"She did?" Bill looked up from the cigaret he was lighting.

"Priscilla said something about having been in Apalachicola a couple of days and that they had seen you everywhere, wondered if you were following them."

Bill extinguished his match. "Why sould they think they are being followed?"

"Because they see you everywhere they go. I assured them you were quite respectable, that you were a writer collecting material for a book. Miss Lambert looked as skeptical as you did when I told you she was a writer."

"I wonder," Bill said enigmatically. "Maybe it's just another coincidence, Two Spanish people here at the same time. You haven't seen the girls talking to Alvarez, have you?"

Hard To Judge Shows On Single Performance

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—A regular weekly television show opens once a week. What is poor one week can improve with time. What is good one week may sag badly as time passes.

To praise a show lavishly on its debut—or to condemn it ruthlessly — can be rank injustice. Three new programs bowed in last Monday evening and return tonight. Any viewer can make up his own mind about them by tuning in this evening. Here is what one viewer thought of them last week:

Ernie Kovacs came in as Sid Caesar's summer replacement on NBC-TV. Kovacs may be pronounced Ko-wacks because for sheer wackiness he is unsurpassed. Apart from being constitutionally incapable of seriousness, he smolders with creative comic ideas. Subtle he is not. But he can turn a cliche inside out with dispatch.

Peering into the cloudy crystal ball, I'd say that Kovacs will be entertaining many of us long after this summer season has passed.

Charles Farrell is a nice guy and his Racquet Club in Palm Springs, Calif., is a nice place. But that pleasant state of affairs is not necessarily just cause for CBS-TV to launch a filmed "situation comedy" series about Farrell and the Club.

To me, last week's opener of "The Charlie Farrell Show" was the dullest and most cliche-laden effort at being funny I've seen in a long, long time. The plot was so absurd, the gags so ancient and bearded, the double-takes of the actors so Mack Sennett that there is absolutely nothing to say about it.

"The Vic Damone Show" CBS-TV in its debut was a good example of a variety program that could go absolutely anywhere in time—up, down or sideways.

Cadillac

His Last Switch in Motor Cars!

We have no way of knowing, of course, how many different makes of motor cars this gentleman has owned through the years.

But we're willing to bet that he has now made his last switch in motor cars!

For this time it's a Cadillac! And it is historically true that once a motorist makes the move to the "car of cars", he is usually a Cadillac owner for life.

What are the reasons for this great devotion and loyalty? Well, let us count them off.

First of all, there are the things which everyone recognizes in Cadillac. There is its great beauty . . . its matchless luxury . . . and the unquestioned respect which the car commands the world over.

Then there are those qualities with which anyone who has ever driven a Cadillac is familiar. There is its marvelous comfort and ease of handling . . . its magnificent power and performance . . . and its wonderful balance and agility.

And, finally, there are those things which only Cadillac owners themselves can fully appreciate. There is the car's remarkable economy of operation and upkeep—its incredible longevity—and its marvelous resale value.

* * *

Incidentally, you will find that we have recently made two additions to this list of things you get when you make your decision for Cadillac.

We're talking about prompt delivery and a generous trade-in allowance!

Better come in while the circumstances are so favorable—and make your last switch in motor cars!

Franco Tells U. S. Editor Russia Is 'Greater Danger'

EDITORS NOTE: The following story is copyrighted by the Winchester Evening Star and Harrisonburg Daily News-Record and made available to other Associated Press members by Harry F. Byrd Jr., editor of the two papers.

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP) — Generalissimo Franco, Spanish chief of state, warned today that Russia's new policy "constitutes a greater danger over a long period of time."

The Soviet leaders' attacks on the late Joseph Stalin, he said, "does not represent any change in objectives."

"It is only a variation in tactical strategy to better obtain these objectives."

Franco's views were made known in a letter to Harry F. Byrd Jr., editor of the Winchester Evening Star and Harrisonburg Daily News-Record. Byrd two years ago had a lengthy interview with Franco in Madrid.

"The very grave accusations (against Stalin) of Khrushchev," Franco wrote, "and the attendant publicity results from a complicated and difficult situation inside the Soviet Union. What else could justify permitting this very grave impact which hurts the internal and external prestige of communism?

"When they must defend themselves in this fashion, it is because somebody is attacking and attacking strongly." Franco added:

"What is evident is that Russia today needs more time and space to consolidate its conquests and its internal situation, and it is to this that the new policy responds: to show themselves in sheep's clothing, attract attention and create problems in other areas, which by permitting them to consolidate their local situation also permits them to assimilate what they have attained so far.

"Time is a powerful ally for the Communists."

Franco continued:

"It has been known for some time that the Communist leaders and the principal figures of the Communist party, like the generals and military leaders, felt themselves under the constant menace of Stalinist terrorism, with its periodic purges and shots in the back, without any possible defense against them.

"Stalin's death brought all together with an aim of freeing themselves of this terror."

Franco said the dissatisfaction of the Russian satellite nations "made advisable a change in strategy. It became necessary to place the blame on someone to give a semblance of sincerity to the rectification. The immediate reconciliation with Tito demonstrates this."

Byrd said that Franco two years ago "forecast last month's rapprochement between Tito's Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union."

Franco's letter went on to say:

"We must conclude that the change in tactics obyes the internal needs of communism, and we must deduce, as a result, that what they consider good must necessarily be bad for the West."

Change Planned In Flight Laws

By BILL BECKER

GRAND CANYON, Ariz. (AP) — Are the nation's air control laws outmoded?

Yes, says Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark) after conducting a hearing into history's worst commercial airline collision.

Perhaps, say Civil Aeronautics Board officials responsible for the formulation of air traffic regulations.

But some Civil Aeronautics Administration men—the fellows who have to make the regulations work—believe a lot of changes will have to be made.

This summary shaped up today after a House Commerce subcommittee's weekend inquiry into the TWA-United Air Lines crash that cost 128 lives.

Some of the suggestions developed by the hearing include controlled airways coast to coast, more ground communications stations, electronic warning systems for airliners, and closer liaison between the CAB and CAA.

"The regulations need an overhauling," said Harris after a Las Vegas, Nev., hearing and a visit to the crash site.

"We have been working under the same rules for 12 years."

The subcommittee will not make any formal recommendations until further hearings are held in Washington. The group wants to hear from other airlines besides TWA and United.

The collision—officially verified by William K. Andrews, CAB chief investigator — occurred off CAA-controlled airways, of which there are 26. Andrews testified that TWA which changed its flight plan after leaving Los Angeles, had full responsibility for looking out for United.

But Oscar Bakke, CAB deputy director of safety regulations, testified that United had equal responsibility for looking out for TWA. Bakke was supported by CAB Chairman James R. Durfee.

A CAA witness, John A. Garrison, agreed with Andrews. He indicated United had priority at the 21,000-foot level, where the crash presumably took place.

Witnesses testified that TWA was informed United was at that elevation, but United wasn't told that TWA was coming into its flight level.

Why? Procedures did not require it, was the answer given the subcommittee.

To Chairman Harris' suggestion that carries be required to follow government airways on all routes, Bakke replied he didn't think that would allow pilots enough flexibility. Bakke said, however, the CAB is considering new regulations for heavy traffic areas and perhaps certain high-altitude operations.

The House group is not seeking to fix the cause of the Grand Canyon crash. That will be done by the CAB in a hearing to be called after it has completed its investigation in about two weeks.

Jesse James Is New Police Chief At Burlington

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Jesse James is Burlington's new police chief.

James will take over as head of the 50-man police force here Aug. 1. He succeeds A. M. Butler, who resigned March 21. City Manager J. D. McIntosh Jr. has been in charge of the force since Butler resigned.

James is a former Army captain of the Military Police and served as chief security officer for all piers and Army warehouses in Honolulu. He is a graduate of Atlantic Christian College in Wilson and holds a master's degree from East Colina College, Greenville. He lives near Camp Lejeune.

And in case anyone decides to crack wise about his name, it might be well to note that the 35-year-old James is six feet, six inches tall and weighs 240 pounds.

Major Surgery Needed To Glamorize Boulvard

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — So they've started to give Hollywood Boulevard a face-lifting. From the looks of the place, major surgery is in order.

Hollywood's civic leaders have long fretted over the fact that millions of tourists come here every year to view the town's glamor and go away disappointed. The geographical area of Hollywood is only a shade more glamorous than Passaic or Pocatello.

With their retail business ebbing, the businessmen formed the Hollywood Improvement Assn. and hired top-notch planners Pereira and Lucman.

The association plans to spend $1,627,800 during the coming year for colored sidewalks, dazzling street lights and specially designed news stands, street signs, trash cans, etc. The names of 2,000 stars of the past and present will be imprinted on the sidewalks.

That's all very nice, but the boosters will have to do more than that to make the boulevard live up to its reputation. Let's take a trip down the fabled street and see what we see.

We start at Gower and head west. For two or three blocks we find car dealers, parking lots and a mortuary. Then comes Pantages Theater, site of the Academy Awards. But on the 364 other days of the year, it's just another movie house.

Hollywood and Vine can scarcely match Times Square or other famous intersections. It is bounded by two office buildings, a department store and a restaurant. Continuing westward, we find little in the next few blocks but clothing stores, delicatessens and the Warners Theater, which now houses Cinerama.

From there we see pawn shops, juice stands, bowling alleys, surplus stores, brassiere shops, bars and close-out sales. The tone is lifted somewhat by the Egyptian Theater ("Oklahoma!") and a few good stores.

Things pick up a bit with the Hollywood Paramount and Grauman's Chinese, by far the favorite tourist trap because of the famous footprints. Then we see the modernized Roosevelt Hotel, the stately old Garden Court apartments and a few other buildings until the boulevard ends its so-called glamor section at Labrea Avenue.

That's Hollywood Boulevard Civic planners have long-range plans to improve it but you can see that they've got a long way to go.

Man Cheered Stoning City Hall

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A quickly gathering crowd cheered when Claiborne Reed started throwing stones and broken bricks at the City Hall.

"I guess they figured he was protesting against taxes," said one of the officers who collared Reed, 28.

Police learned that Reed had threatened to stone the City Hall unless given a letter qualifying him for welfare aid.

Reed was charged with malicious mischief and disturbing the peace.

Red Cross Says East Coast Has Become 'Hurricane Alley'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Red Cross in suggesting steps to save lives and property in event of a hurricane, says the entire Eastern seaboard of the United States has become a "hurricane alley."

The relief agency said in a statement yesterday that what seems to be a change in weather patterns has made this most populated area vulnerable to death-dealing tropical storms, and the disastrous floods which often follow them.

The Red Cross also said the Gulf Coast states and communities hundreds of miles inland are also threatened by hurricanes such as Connie, Diane, and Ione, which boiled out of the Caribbean last year, and raked the East Coast from South Carolina to Massachusetts. They caused hundreds of deaths and hundreds of millions of dollars in damage.

The agency suggested these steps to save lives and property in the event of a hurricane:

1. Watch your newspapers and keep the radio on for official weather bureau reports:

2. Store garden furniture, tools, awnings, and other loose objects in a safe place. Otherwise, they may become lethal weapons in storm.

3. Board up windows and put storm shutters in place.

4. If you are told to evacuate, don't delay! Just get out and follow instructions — a minute may save a life.

5. Don't run the risk of being marooned. Get away and stay away from low-lying beaches or other places likely to be swept by ocean winds or high tides.

6. Don't go outside during the storm. Stay indoors, preferably in a brick or concrete building.

7. Stay away from windows.

8. If the center or "eye" of the storm passes directly overhead there will be a deceptive lull, lasting for as long as 30 minutes. Stay where you are during this calm period. The wind will return from the opposite direction—with perhaps greater force.

9. Fill bathtubs, bottles and cooking utensils with water. Keep extra food (which does not require cooking) handy. Be sure to have a flashlight or candles to use in the event of power failure.

10. Don't touch fallen wires. Report such damage to police or power company.

Jap Socialists Win Upper House Lead

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese Socialists, riding a strong neutralist wave, have won enough seats in the upper house of Parliament to smash Prime Minister Ichiro Hatoyama's plans for speedy rearmament.

With only one seat at stake in Sunday's elections still undecided, Hatoyama's Conservative coalition held 164 of the 250 seats in the House of Councilors.

Although the government thus had a solid 78-vote majority in the upper house, a leftist gain of 12 new seats made it impossible for Hatoyama's forces to muster the two-thirds membership in both houses needed to cancel the anti-war clause of the constitution adopted during the U.S. occupation.

The provision renouncing war as an instrument of national policy has kept Japan's military forces down to small defense units. The leftist gain was a blow to the U.S. government, which had hoped the election outcome would begin to set the stage for revision of the constitution and subsequent Japanese military expansion.

"I personally think we got licked," declared Nobosuke Kishi, secretary general of Hatoyama's Liberal-Democratic party. "We'll have to accept it as sharp criticism of the Conservatives."

Effects Of Federal Soil Bank Explained To Rotary Members

Effect of the federal Soil Bank program on Pitt County farmers was discussed last night by County Agent S. C. Winchester at the meeting of the Greenville Rotary Club.

Winchester explained that the soil bank program is divided fundamentally into two parts: (1) diversion of acreage which is normally planted in allotment crops; and (2) diversion of acreage used for crops other than allotted acreage.

Under the acreage reserve program, he said, which is the program for taking out of production acreage of allotted crops, farmers may participate in the program on a one-year basis without forfeiting any of their crop allotments. In order to participate in the program, a farmer must plant within his allotment of all crops.

Winchester explained there are three ways a farmer may become eligible to participate in the acreage reserve program: (1) by under planting allotment; (2) destruction of an allotment crop by natural causes by July 20; and (3) destruction of a portion of an allotted crop by the farmer himself.

Provisions of the soil bank program set forth the maximum number of acres for each crop which a farmer can divert into the program, the speaker said. For corn the farmer can divert up to one-half of his base or a maximum of 50 acres. For cotton he can divert one-half his allotment or a maximum of 10 acres. For tobacco, one-half his allotment or a maximum of five acres. Minimum acreage which can be placed in the program are 10 per cent or five acres of corn and wheat; 10 per cent or two acres of cotton and 10 per cent or one acre of tobacco. Winchester explained that if a farmer's allotments are less than the minimum, a farmer is still eligible to participate in the program.

For tobacco acreage diverted into the program a farmer in Pitt County will receive 18 cents per pound multiplied by his average normal yield for each acre of tobacco land diverted to the program. Winchester explained that based on Pitt's average tobacco production per acre during the base period, each acre of tobacco allotment diverted to the program would bring the farmer $273.42.

Winchester explained that acreage diverted into the soil bank program under the acreage reserve category must either be left idle or planted in an approved cover crop.

Pitt District Boy Scouts Topped Others At Meet

The Pitt District of the East Carolina Council, Boy Scouts of America, with 127 Scouts registered, led the Council in the number of boys at the 1956 encampment at Camp Charles in June - July, members of the district committee learned at their July meeting last night.

Chairman F. D. Duncan presided at the meeting at which progress reports were made by district chairman. Field Executive Carl Knott announced that the number of adults registered in support of the Scouting movement in the Pitt district has exceeded the goal of 400 for the year.

Frank Diener, Jr. of Greenville was presented as a new member of the district commissioner's staff and William McKinney of Grifton was recognized as a new member of the district committee.

Charles P. Gaskins, chairman of Organization and Extension, announced the addition of three new units, and prospects favorable for other units to be enrolled this summer.

Chairman Wyatt Brown of the Advancement Committee told of the presentation of Eagle Scout and God and Country Awards to boys in the Pitt district, and Dr. Robert L. Wilfong reported on plans for the Board of Review.

The Fall Round-Up will be held September 21 in the Guy Smith Stadium in Greenville, it was reported by Chairman James Mallory of the Camping and Activities Committee. He and Council Chairman Erskine Duff of the National Jamboree in 1957 gave a digest of plans for the district's representation at this top Scout event at Valley Forge, Pa.

Plans for the 1956 campaign for raising the Council's new $109,000 budget, pointing up the public relations phases of the campaign, were given by James W. Butler, chairman of the public relations committee.

Prospects for units were favorable, declared Dr. Howard J. McGinnis, chairman of the Inter-Racial Committee.

Commissioner John Behr closed the meeting with a review of unit activities in cub packs, troops, and explorer posts.

A review of the 10-point program of the Council, given by Field Executive Knott, was a highlight of the meeting.

Suit Is Settled Outside Court

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An out of court settlement has been reached in the $30,000 suit brought against Mexican film comedian Mario Moreno, better known as Cantinflas, by theatrical agent Margaret Cook. The amount she was paid was not disclosed.

Mrs. Cook alleged Cantinflas had refused to pay her 10 per cent of the $300,000 he received for his role in the film "Around the World in 80 days," although she said the contract called for such payment.

There are 447,912 members of Parent Teacher societies in New York state.

Lions Report On Convention

Members of the Greenville Lions Club heard reports on the Lions International Convention at their regular meeting last night, as well as plans for a club party next Monday.

Reporting on the convention, which took place two weeks ago in Miami, were Lions Frank Strawn, L. E. Ward, John Biggs, Jim Taylor, Ben Rouse, Dick Worsley, Dr. M. W. Aldridge, and O. E. Dowd. It was announced that Ed Harris, another member who attended the convention, is ill and was unable to attend the meeting last night.

A. A. Hines, chairman of the club's committee on sight conservation and aid to the blind, reported that during the past year the local Lions Club had helped 454 blind people, had assisted 11 blind children to get into schools, had sponsored 155 eye examinations and 18 eye operations, and had purchased 20 pairs of glasses for people in need.

Presiding over the meeting was the club's new president, Dr. M. W. Aldridge, who announced that the next meeting would be held at Elm Street park in connection with the final game of the Little League baseball team sponsored by the Lions. The ball game will begin at 5:00 and the Lions party will begin at 6:30. Lions wives and children are invited.

Two Accidents Reported Here

Mrs.S. L. Rowland, 1801 E. 4th St., was involved in an accident shortly after noon yesterday with Ralph B. Nichols, 46, Bell Arthur, at the intersection of 4th and Student. Sts. There were no personal injuries.

Mrs. Rowland was traveling West on East 4th St. when struck by Nichols' vehicle which was going North on Student St. Nichols, according to police report, did not stop for a stop sign. Minor damage was done to each car.

Ruth T. Bing, Box 296, ECC, was involved in an accident yesterday about mid morning with Mrs. W. E. Cain, 951 E. 10th St., in East 5th St. at the EC main entrance. There was no personal injuries and only minor damage was done to each vehicle.
