Elegance Is Fashion Rule

Fresh Peach Bavarian Cream Lush, Light Family Dessert

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—You've got to be elegant this fall.

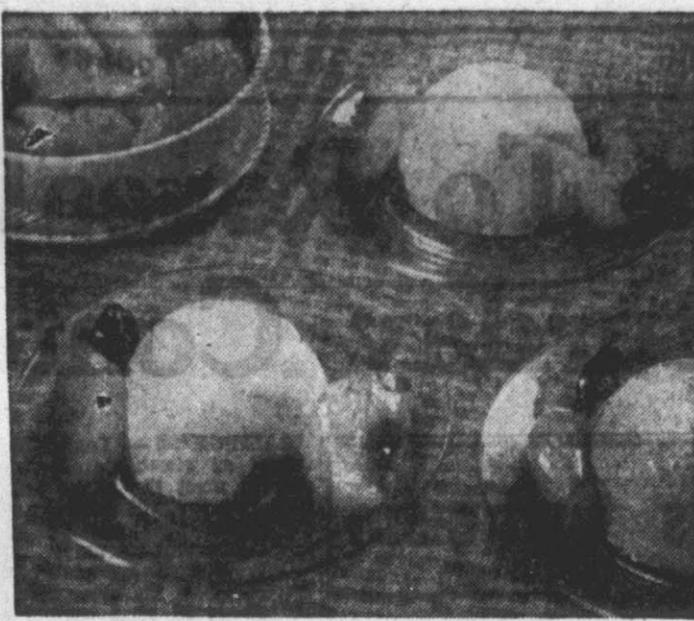

You've got to dress to the teeth, act like a lady and perhaps learn to swoon with the grace that grandmother understood so well.

That is the theme that has been impressed upon the American fashion press this week, during a series of previews of New York fall styles, all of which have been bitten by a nostalgic bug producing large rashes of ladylike elegance in the 1912 manner.

Pauline Trigere, the transplanted French designer who is now happily American, hits a high note of suave, understated magnificence in her collection of great lady fashions. There is nothing flagrant or overdone, but there is definitely a new air of formality.

An example is the almost shamelessly simple collarless suit of red velour, which manages to caress the figure with subtle suggestion, achieving a nostalgic look for no good reason except possibly the prim little mink choker worn with it, or the way the model wears her hair, in buns over each ear.

Ben Zuckerman, master of the tailored touch, softens the line this season with the suggestion of feminine detail and lush fabrics. His suits, while still unmistakably tailored by a master hand, have a look of fragility that is the mark of the new season's female.

Fresh golden peaches are reason enough to be lured to the kitchen even these hot days. Fresh peach pie, crusty peach cobbler, whole peach dumplings rolling in syrup sauce, peach ice cream fresh from the churn are old fashioned desserts every family should enjoy this month.

Here's a new peach dessert that's light, airy, low in calories and ever so easy to make. It's my thrifty version of Bavarian Cream with sweetened fresh peaches spooned over the top just after it is unmolded for serving.

In most supermarkets this month you'll find beautiful displays of orchard-fresh fruits. Buy plentiful supplies and enjoy them while they are at their peak of goodness. Wash the fruit, chill it and serve it as is. Or use the fruits in any of dozens of desserts. Fresh fruit is rich in minerals and vitamins and one of the basic food groups your body needs every day. If you'd like summertime fruit desserts, write to me, Nancy Carter, P. O. Box 4358, Atlanta, Ga.

FRESH PEACH BAVARIAN CREAM

|-----------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 1 envelope unflavored gelatin | 1 cup undiluted evaporated milk |
| 1-4 cup sugar | 2 tablespoons lemon juice |
| 1-8 teaspoon salt | 1-4 cup sugar |
| 2 eggs, separated | 1 teaspoon vanilla extract |
| 2-3 cup undiluted evaporated milk | Sliced and sweetened fresh peaches |
| 2-3 cup water | |
- Thoroughly combine first three ingredients in top of double boiler. Beat together egg yolks, the 2-3 cup evaporated milk and the water. Add to gelatin mixture. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until gelatin is dissolved, about 8 minutes. Chill until slightly set. Chill the 1 cup undiluted milk (remainder of 1 tall can) in refrigerator tray until crystals form around edges, 15 to 20 minutes. Whip until stiff, about 1 minute. Add lemon juice and whip very stiff, about 2 minutes longer. Beat egg whites until stiff. Add sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating thoroughly. Fold the gelatin mixture, whipped milk, egg whites and vanilla. Turn into a 1 quart mold or custard cups. Chill until firm. Unmold and serve with peaches spooned over top. Makes 6 servings.

Open House Is Held At Red Oak

Residents of the Red Oak Community gathered Sunday afternoon for open house at Red Oak Christian Church.

A musical program was presented by Miss Jane Winchester, organist, and Miss Pearl Forbes, Miss Joandell Evans, Miss Bettie Lane Evans, Amos Ray, Miss Sue Lanman, Mrs. Marie Eason Padgett, Mrs. Mimi Denton, Mrs. Jackie Kinsaul, Mrs. Leon Tyson, accordionist, the junior choir, a men's quartet and a men's chorus composed of twenty voices.

Also featured on the program was a brief resume of the history of the church given by Milton May, chairman of the church board. Clifford Lanman led in prayer. Mrs. Tyson was mistress of ceremonies.

Yellow and white arrangements of gladioli, daisies plox and calladiums given by Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Allen were used in the church sanctuary.

Refreshments were served in the community building which had been decorated for the occasion by Jarvis Tripp, Jr. and his mother. Magnolia leaves and summer flowers were used.

The tea table was laid with a cutwork cloth. It held an arrangement of white glads, pink carnations and fern flanked by silver candelabra holding white tapers. Canapes and cookies, make by George Haddock and Mrs. Lizzie Vandford.

This new building was constructed at a cost of some $20,000 and contains five large class rooms, a minister's study, several storage closets, rest rooms and two heating plants.

A new parsonage just completed at a cost of some $11,000 contains three large bedrooms, a living room, bath and large family room. It is equipped with a new refrigerator, stove, hot water heater and heating plant.

Mrs. Jarvis Tripp had charge of the parsonage decoration.

The refreshment committee was composed of Mrs. Milton May, Mrs. Amos Evans, and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Winchester.

In the receiving line were Mrs. Tyson, the Rev. Clifford Lanman and Mrs. Lanman, Billy, Shirley, Sue and David Lanman, Mrs. Travis Crawford, president of the C. W. F., F. L. Allen, Sr., superintendent of the Sunday School, Mrs. Allen, president of the Red Oak Home Demonstration Club and Sue Allen, president of C. Y. F.

The community kitchen, opened for inspection, was decorated with flowers, plates and other arrangements. Mrs. James Allen and Mrs. Joe Allen had this in charge.

The new educational department was decorated throughout with garden flowers contributed by Mrs.

Women In The Church

By Mary Fowler

Women of National Missions (Presbyterian U. S. A.) Ows-Lee Large Parish, Booneville, Ky., are making money for their church. They offer to piece handmade quilts on order for any homemaker or family group over the country interested in acquiring a bona fied sample of the vanishing art. Quilts can be made according to a preferred traditional pattern or from sketches supplied with the order. The Ows-Lee women will also follow color preferences. They ask that quilt pieces be supplied. Prices range from $15 to $100. Proceeds go to the church.

A grant of $10,000 has been made by the "Fund for the Republic" to United Church Women for "educational work in race relations." Mrs. T. O. Wedel of Washington, D. C., president of United Church Women, a general department of the National Council of Churches, announcing the gift, said: "The grant will make possible a series of workshops in key communities, with the purpose of alerting and educating women of the churches on civil rights and civil liberties, uniting the strength of church women to a more potent force in obtaining the rights which our Christian faith seeks for all peoples, helping to make the total community aware of the implications and dangers in the denial of rights to any persons, and of studying how to deal with controversy, how to work with people who differ without alienating them, and how to create understanding between those who hold opposite views."

A $500,000 "Grand Auditorium," said to be the largest in South Korea, has been dedicated on the campus of Ewha Woman's University in Seoul in honor of two Methodist bishops, one Korean and one American. Dedicated as a part of the seventieth anniversary celebration at the Methodist-sponsored university, the auditorium will seat 3,500 of Ewha's 4,800 students. The bishops in whose names the building was dedicated are Bishop Herbert Welch of New York, at 93 the senior bishop of the Methodist Church, and Bishop J. S. Ryang, first bishop of the Korean Methodist Church. Bishop Hyungki J. Lew, present bishop of the Korean church, conducted the dedication. Bishop Welch was the first resident bishop for Korea of a former Methodist Episcopal Church, having served from 1916 to 1928.

New Minister Assumes Duties

GRIFTON—The Rev. Ralph I. Epps filled the pulpit on Sunday for the first time as pastor of the Grifton Methodist Church.

He with his wife, the former Miss Pinear Mae (Pat) Windley of Pinetown, children Barbara age 7 and 'Ikie' age 5 are residing at 501 N. Pitt Street in the parsonage.

The Rev. Mr. Epps comes to Grifton from the Laurel Hill Charge. During his ministry he has held pastorates at Stem Charge, Raleigh District and Maxton in the Fayetteville District. He is a native of Sumter, S. C. where he attended the Edmunds High School. He received his A. B. Degree in 1942 from Wofford College, Spartanburg, S. C., served 46 months in the U. S. Infantry and was discharged with the rank of captain. He also attended the Duke Divinity School where he received his BD degree in 1950.

At the June session of the annual conference in Greenville he was elected Secretary of Town and Country Work for the North Carolina Conference, a work in which he has been interested and done much during his ministry.

30 Years Ago Today

The Daily Reflector July 12, 1925

The July crop report of the North Carolina Crop Reporting Service says that present indications point to a decreased final production of tobacco this year at less than 600 pounds to the acre. It is indicated there is about 81 per cent of a full stand. The outlook for this part of the state is particularly good at this time. Many farmers are already housing their crops. The growers were rather doubtful as to the outlook the first part of the season on account of unfavorable weather conditions, but an improvement came and resulted in rapid development of the week in virtually all parts of the county.

Suntan Styles Important Too!

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

It's a good idea to use a suntan product that is for your own type. Blondes like a honey tan, a gentle shade. Brunettes may choose a squaw or coppery brown tone in lotion or cream to coat their epidermis.

Then convenience should be considered. If oil lotion is preferred, you'll be pleased to note these are now available in aerosol cans—no more messy hands, stains on clothes or perfumed picnic fare. Your hands will stay clean so that sand and grass will not cling to them.

Non-oily lotions still are available for those who like a carefree tan. A tanning foam that is sprayed from a can offers an added ingredient that smooths normally dry skin. There is a greaseless tanning cream that contains body lotion treatment also.

There are sun-proofing products too for those who can't take any sun-sensitive or allergic types need to choose it if they'd block out ultra-violet rays. It is greaseless and odorless.

One new liquid burn-aid is said to be the first healing, antiseptic liquid that sprays away sunburn pain, so you do not need to touch sunburned areas.

The important point about sun concoctions is that you should not be too eager to get your tan even though you wear sun protection. Give yourself time and plan your exposures so that you build up your tan gradually. If your skin starts to peel in the middle of your vacation because you've charred the outer layer of skin, it will defeat your entire beauty aim for summer. After the peeled skin is fluffed off, it will take awhile to build up a nice smooth tan again. By that time the summer may be over and you will not have gained much by trying to rush things along.

BEACH BEAUTY . . . New suntan oil may be sprayed on, avoiding stickiness, preserving the well-groomed look.

Car Buyer Is Victim Of Fast Shuffle

BALTIMORE (AP) — Theodore B. Fowler had a car, went to trade it for a new one and went home by bus without any.

Fowler's complaint to the department of motor vehicles has been referred to the state's attorney.

Fowler reported that while he and a salesman were negotiating, another took away his car. Meanwhile, Fowler signed what he said he thought was a conditional sales contract.

But finally he didn't like the deal and asked for his car back. The salesman told him he had sold it by signing the contract. Besides, he was told, his car already had been sold to another.

Fowler still is riding the bus.

Beauties Begin March For Miss Universe With Great Anxiety

By JACK LEFLER
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—How real is the pot of gold and fame at the end of the Miss Universe rainbow?

With visions of the glamor and riches of movie stardom in their pretty heads, 74 beauties from throughout the world today start down the glittering trail that will lead to the crown.

They come from 32 foreign countries and 39 states and three cities of this country.

After nine days of competition in face and form in the fifth annual International Beauty Congress, the fairest of all will be acclaimed Miss Universe.

Universal-International studios will place Miss Universe, Miss U.S.A. and the runner-up in each month contract. And it may sign others who look promising.

What has happened to the four previous winners of the title?

First Miss Universe in 1952 was the Finnish beauty Helena Kuusela. Not long after winning, she went to Manila to make an appearance at an international exposition. There she met Virgilio Hilario, a wealthy young Filipino. They were married soon after in Tokyo.

Prairie Schooner Firemen Held Up Reaches Hannibal As Motel Burns

HANIBAL, Mo. (AP) — An old prairie schooner drawn by two white mules pulled into Hannibal yesterday, bringing the Elfgren family of eight and their pet dog.

The Elfgrens, who travel about 10 hours and 25-30 miles each day, planned to continue today their trip from East Killigly, Conn., to Lincoln, Neb. They still have about 400 miles to go.

Mom, Dad, six children and the dog left East Killigly three weeks ago.

Ernest Elfgren, a machinist says he expected to reach Lincoln about Aug. 1. They plan to settle and start a chinchilla and pony farm in Nebraska.

MACKINAW CITY, Mich. (AP) — All alone, Stanley Zuras, 60, fought a fire which swept through his motel while firemen waited helplessly a few hundred yards away for a train to pull away from a crossing.

When he saw the fire was out of control, Zuras ran outside, keeled over and died of a heart attack.

Later when the train had moved on, firemen drove across the tracks and put out the fire.

The interior of the 12-unit frame motel was destroyed.

Firemen said an explosion of undetermined origin touched off the blaze.

Junior Woodmen Have Bingo Party

Approximately thirty-five children and adult guests enjoyed the meeting and bingo party presented by the Junior Club No. 13885 of the Modern Woodmen of America on Monday night at 7:30.

The party and meeting took place at the meeting hall on Broad Street.

Lib Sutton, president of the club, presided and minutes were read by Stella Boyd, secretary.

After a brief business discussion, refreshments were served and several games of bingo were played.

Following the bingo games, prizes were awarded.

A doll and talent show is planned by the club for August.

Progressive Steps Now Assured

Greenville is now assured of the $275,000 worth of capital improvements so badly needed by several departments of its municipal governments. Voters who went to the polls Tuesday in the special referendum gave their approval to each of the six bond ballots and likewise approved fluoridation of the city's water supply.

These progressive steps will mean much to the city and its people. The bonds will afford equipment, facilities and equipment that have long been needed by Greenville, but which have not been available because of lack of funds in the city's annual budgets.

Now that the bonds have been passed, there will be a new fire truck and hose for the Fire Department; and there will be an extension of the city's fire alarm system in new sections of the city which at present are not a part of the existing alarm system.

The new tractor for the Street Department will enable the city to carry out more cheaply many of its routine chores of street maintenance and other jobs and at the same time enable the city to use its own facilities for major drainage projects rather than contracting the work. According to city officials, the cost of drainage projects provided in the bond issue, and likewise the opening of First Street can be done more cheaply by the city using its own facilities.

First Street can be opened to provide a new traffic artery to the eastern part of the city, and extensive drainage work will open the way for the surfacing of many dirt streets which will eventually cut the city's cost of maintaining streets.

Through the election funds have been provided for new recreation facilities and equipment as well as for the purchase of more property to be used for recreation purposes in Greenville. These things provided by the bonds will enable the Recreation Department to present a better program more in keeping with the needs of the people of the city.

In spite of our delight in the fact that all the items in the special referendum carried, a disgracefully few of Greenville's several thousand voters went to the polls. By official count only 686 of the almost 5,000 registered voters of the city took the trouble to vote. Heavy rains kept many voters from the polls; but in reality apathy toward the city's well being probably kept more voters from the polls than the bad weather.

While all the bond issues were decided by the voters, the fluoridation issue still awaits official action by the City Council before Greenville can follow the lead of other progressive cities and fluoridate its water supply.

Although the vote on fluoridation is not binding upon the City Council, those elected officials certainly should follow the mandate given in Tuesday's election by Greenville's citizens. To be sure the vote was close; but at the same time the measure was approved by the majority of those who voted. The Reflector is confident the Council called the special fluoridation referendum in good faith to determine the feeling of the people of Greenville.

Now that the measure has been approved at the polls, the Council members should reflect by their individual vote on the matter the expressed wish of the majority of the people of the city.

What Qualifies A Man Proud Of Progress For The Supreme Court? In Stream Clean-Up

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, Jr. is fighting an uphill battle for a more qualified Supreme Court than the United States now has, but in time his constructive criticism of the court may bear fruit.

In an address recently in Houston, Tex., Sen. Ervin asserted qualifications for membership of the high court should be written in the constitution.

Frankly, we doubt that the day will come when qualifications for members of the Supreme Court will be set forth in the constitution. Nevertheless, Sen. Ervin's argument for some more specific standard of qualification for membership on the tribunal should have a bearing upon the minds of the American people.

The senior senator from North Carolina—who has been critical of the Supreme Court—pointed out that "no member of the Supreme Court as now constituted, ever served as a judge of a court of general jurisdiction, either state or federal" before becoming a member of the highest court of the land.

Sen. Ervin likewise asserted that a majority of the nine members of the Supreme Court today did not devote their major efforts to actual practice of law before being appointed to the bench.

Obviously members of the Supreme Court should be among the best legal minds of the nation. Previous experience on the bench of a court of general jurisdiction would be a tremendous asset to the men whose responsibility it is to interpret the supreme law of the land.

The Reflector concurs with Sen. Ervin in the feeling that a seat on the Supreme Court has in recent years become a political plum which is passed out without due regard to selection of the best qualified persons to fill one of the most important places in federal government.

STREAMS — J. Vivian Whitfield, member of the State Stream Sanitation Commission and author of the bill which established the agency, is proud of the progress being made in classifying North Carolina's rivers. He is especially happy about the almost 100 per cent co-operation accorded the program by municipalities and private industry.

Under authority of the 1951 and 1953 legislative acts, the commission has already classified the Yadkin-Pee Dee basin; New River in Onslow county; White Oak and Newport rivers, and the Chowan. The French Broad and Roanoke basins are scheduled for completion this fall, with the Cape Fear and the Neuse coming up next year. That leaves the Catawba and the Tar-Pamlico basins among the major rivers, and they are scheduled for classification for 1961.

In Raleigh this week Whitfield said the classification program had been retarded by necessity for special work in aftermath of the 1954 and '55 hurricanes, and to some extent by requests for special projects in connection with locating industrial plants. If these special projects request continue, the commission will need a mobile unit to handle them so as not to interfere with long range basin classifications, he said.

Many of the industrialists who most vigorously opposed the legislation for stream sanitation control are now its most enthusiastic supporters and co-operators. Whitfield said. Large municipalities also are very co-operative. Such trouble as the commission has encountered came mostly from small towns which did not have the financial ability to comply with sewerage treatment and other anti-pollution requirements.

BONDS — Bills are pending in the Congress authorizing Federal grants to municipalities under some conditions for anti-pollution projects. There is also provision for issuing revenue bonds to finance sewerage disposal plants in cases where the municipalities cannot issue general fund bonds. These provisions should enable any community, however small or with whatever existing debt ratio, to comply with requirements of the stream sanitation code.

RESPONSIBILITY — Dean Wm. M. Randall of Wilmington College has a somewhat different idea than prevails in many cities about the responsibility of a trade center to its whole trading area. He told the advisory budget commission that about one-third of the students enrolled in the college came from outside Hanover county, although the college is largely supported by a 5 cents tax levy in New Hanover. A member of the budget group asked if they thought it fair to charge the tax to New Hanover and give the other county residents a more or less free ride.

"We think so," said Dr. Randall. "Wilmington is the trading and banking center for the people of Brunswick and Pender, and large parts of Columbus, Bladen and Onslow counties. They contribute to the business prosperity of New Hanover, and add to income and property values, and help the New Hanover folks to pay the tax levy. It seems only fair to let them share in the educational services and other advantages which these taxes afford."

This idea is relatively new in Wilmington and has not yet pervaded some other population and trade centers in the state. It seems to indicate that Wilmington is moving out of its traditional isolation policy into acceptance of the responsibilities of leadership in a much larger area.

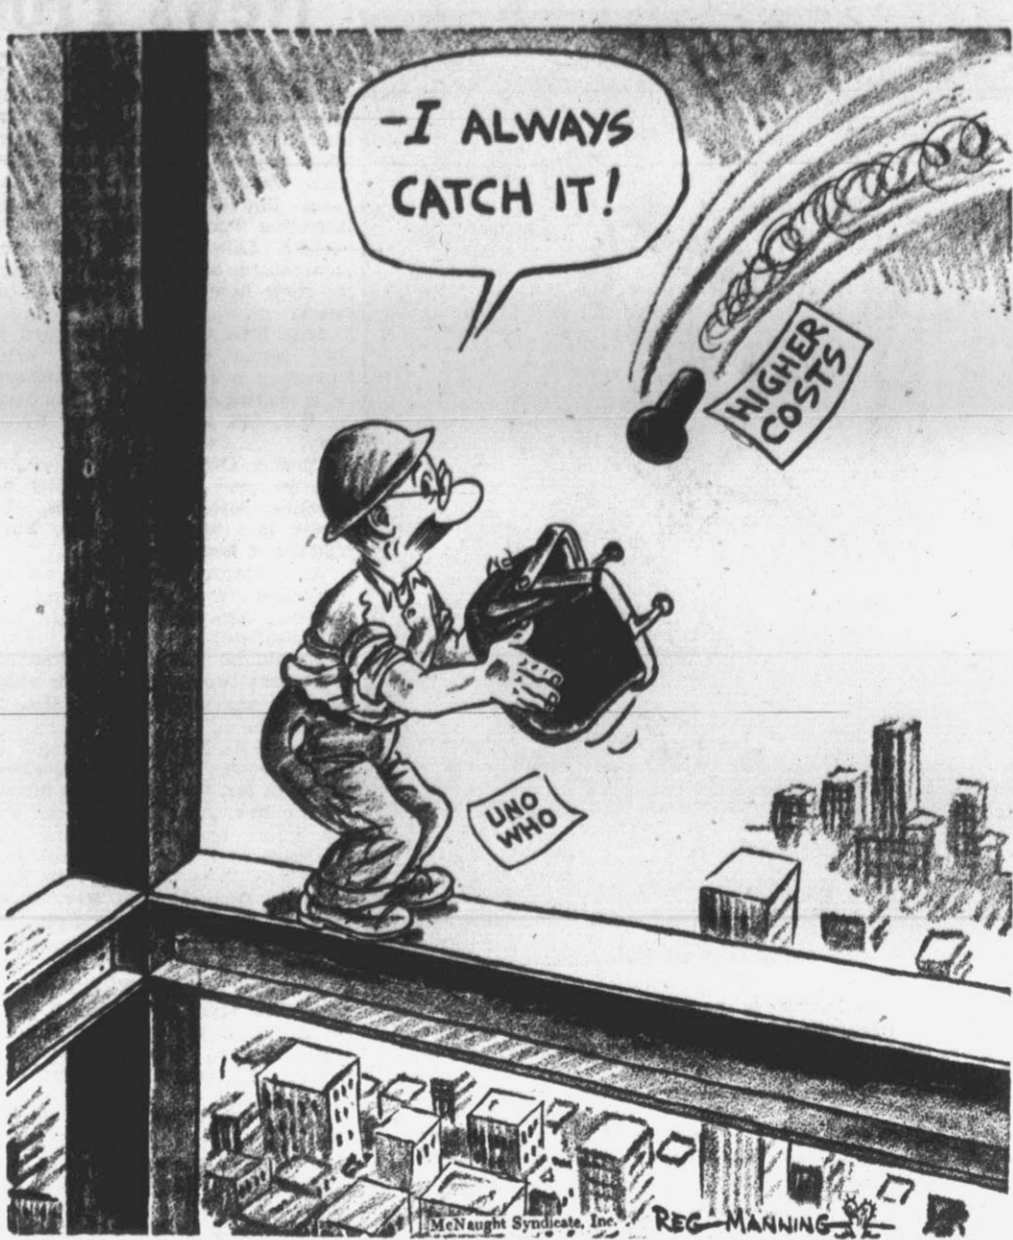

REORGANIZATION — With most of their biennial budget problems pretty well behind them, administrative officers in the several State departments and agencies are buckling down to study of suggestions for reorganizing the State government.

Pursuant to recommendations of a commission set up by the 1953 Legislature the 1955 session made some material changes in the organization structure. The commission was continued, with slight changes in personnel, to make recommendations to the 1957 session.

Most of the ground and leg work and research is being handled by the Institute of Government. The efficient young men in the Institute have spent a lot of time and energy with the various agencies and executives, preparatory to final reports to the commission. The commission will take these reports and work them into recommendations for new laws. Final authority for effectuating proposed changes rests with the General Assembly.

It is sort of an open secret that every agency and department wants the organizational setup changed—but changed so as to give each agency a little more authority and prestige than it now has. Any suggestion for eliminating or "low-rating" an agency will meet vigorous opposition from that particular group, and gather just as vigorous support from the agency which is given somewhat larger powers.

Another Fan Of Big Mickey

I realize this should be on the sports page, but I'm going to tell you about it, anyway. There was this kid sitting with his Dad in front of me last Sunday in Griffith Stadium in Washington, and he kept looking up at his old man and saying, "Where is he, Daddy? Where is he?"

"He'll be out in a few minutes," replied the youngster's father. "There he is now... see him? He's talking to number 23."

The kid's eyes lit up like a bonfire, and he watched this guy who was talking to number 23 like a hawk. I don't know if my eyes lit up or not, but I watched him, too. I watched him when he stepped into the batting cage and took his five batting practice swings. On the fifth cut, he rapped a line shot over the high, right-centerfield wall and out of the stadium. It passed over the 380-foot mark and someone said later that it went over two houses before it hit. Then this guy who walked it, Mickey Mantle, if you haven't already guessed, stepped out and started talking to number 23 again.

The kid in front of me beamed as if he'd been the one who had done it.

The fans yelled more when Mantle hit the practice homer, than they did when one of their own players hit a 380-foot drive into the left-centerfield temporary bleachers during the regular game. You might think this to be a nice tribute to a nice guy who knocks the hide off a ball, but fans are funny people. When he struck out his second time at bat the fans sort of moaned, but when he came to bat his third time, the boos and cheers were about even. Incidentally, they really cheered when he was announced in the starting lineup.

Getting back to the kid—the whole time Mantle was in the game (four innings) the kid never took his eyes off him, except when he was out of sight in the dugout. Even when Mickey was just standing motionless in the outfield the kid was watching him.

When the fifth inning started the youngster looked up to watch Mantle trot to centerfield, but instead a substitute took his place. The little boy looked close to tears.

It wasn't long after that, that he leaned over and said to his Dad, "Let's go home, I'm tired."

Without protest, his Dad took him by the hand and led him up the aisle saying as they went, "We did get to see him hit one homer, huh, son?"

Preachers Learning To Fly

By EDWARD S. KITCH WOODDALE, III. (AP)—One of the nation's most unusual flight schools is training missionary students to be bush pilots.

Young men are prepared by the Moody Bible Institute's aviation training branch to provide wings for missionary families serving in undeveloped areas of South and Central America, Alaska and Canada.

Some 50 pilots have finished the four-year course that qualifies them to serve in the ministry as well as fly as commercial pilots.

These missionary technical specialists are the result of a program pioneered by a former Baptist minister, the Rev. Paul Robinson.

With Civil Aeronautics Authority approval he began the school 10 years ago with a class of three men and one airplane.

Now the class has 60 men and 12 planes. The institute owns the Moody-Wooddale campus Airport, a 90-acre layout of hangars, shops and classrooms.

"You have to be an expert to survive in the kind of country these fellows go to," the Rev. Mr. Robinson said.

To equip them for emergencies, the future sky pilots are trained to overhaul all types of aircraft engines, repair propellers for light planes and land aircraft in rough territory. They are crammed with scores of technical details.

The Rev. Mr. Robinson, who has held three pastorates in New York State, first conceived his plan to combine missionary work with flying after extensive travels through the jungle areas of the Amazon.

He wanted to be a flying missionary himself but World War II interrupted plans. He served as a flight officer in the Civil Air Patrol instead.

He presented his idea to Moody's Board of Trustees and one of their number personally purchased the first aircraft for the course.

A missionary bush pilot is one of several skilled men who serve in the field where white men seldom venture. They include teachers, radio men, linguists and medical missionaries.

They dedicate themselves to follow the instructions of the Bible, particularly Mark 16:15, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

An interdenominational Christian training school, Moody Bible Institute is supported by members of churches all over the world. It admits 12 students each year to its radio and flight course. Scores more applicants try for entry but careful screening sifts the field to those who express sincere missionary qualifications.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS TURNING LIFE UPSIDE DOWN

An interior decorator told recently of a beautiful house she had inspected. She reported that it was one of the most perfect examples of good taste as regards furniture, rugs, and decoration that she had ever seen. The owners were people of intrinsic good taste and they had employed professional assistance in solving their problems. The house was everything that even the most exacting interior decorator could desire.

But singularly enough, the people who built the house do not live in these beautiful rooms. They have finished off several rooms in the basement. There they have their books, their radio and TV, the easy chairs they love. Here they spend their evenings. The beautifully decorated rooms above them are kept scrupulously clean and are for show purposes only. They never occupy these rooms except when they are entertaining guests.

What folly that people should have rooms beautifully decorated but only for purposes of display. The people who live in the basement of the house which they decorated in such exquisite taste are striking examples of people who, for some reason or other, have turned their lives upside down.

Beautiful display to impress outsiders but living in the basement! This reminds us of some people's religion.

Three Bars To Kennedy's Nomination

By RAY TUCKER WASHINGTON — A drastic anti-segregation declaration by Massachusetts Democrats at their recent state convention may add another argument to the three reasons which Senator John F. Kennedy himself has given as possible bars to his Vice Presidential nomination. He has cited his youth (39), his religion and his opposition to high farm support prices.

Senator Kennedy recently became the actual boss of Bay State Democrats when he installed his own State Chairman, John E. Powers. And it was under Powers' personal leadership that the extremely liberal platform on Civil Rights and other highly controversial issues was adopted.

Moreover, House Majority Leader John W. McCormack of Boston refers to the document as one on which Democrats "can no longer forward confident of victory and success next November on State and National tickets."

It is noted that, if enough electorally important states adopt platforms similar to the Kennedy-McCormack doctrine, it may influence the national convention to approve an equally strong pronouncement on Civil Rights. That begins to be a definite possibility, regardless of the identity of the nominee, or its political effect in the South.

KENNEDY IN SECOND-PLACE SPOT? Under such circumstances, it is doubtful if Southern delegates would favor Kennedy's presence on the ticket, or vote for it with him in the second-place spot. And this despite their friendship and admiration for the able Bostonian, whose "Profits in Courage" is a best-seller.

Besides declaring for elimination of segregation in schools and housing, the platform specifically condemns more than 100 members of Congress from Dixie, who signed the "Manifesto" denouncing the Supreme Court's fateful decision. Here are excerpts from the Massachusetts Manifesto:

MASSACHUSETTS MANIFESTO "We wholeheartedly support the decisions of the Supreme Court in outlawing segregation in the public schools. We favor the elimination of segregation in housing.

"We abhor second-rate citizenship. We recognize no race, color or creed as a minority group."

"Accordingly, we express our deep concern and manifest indignation of any effort, by any group anywhere in the land, whereby the Constitution, as interpreted by the Supreme Court, is hampered for the best reason not maintaining a decadent way of life which from its inception was alien to the American ideal."

TERMS WILL RING NO BELLS AMONG DIXIE MEN These references to the South's establishment and educational system and customs—"base," "decadent" and "alien"—will ring no bells among Dixie delegates at the Chicago Convention.

The platform also calls for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act. On such questions as the State's re-

Customers Determine Prosperity

By ELMER ROESSNER

Are you buoyant? Do you feel like going out and buying something? Are you willing to let the little lady charge a bit more at department stores? Want to look at that new 1956 car again, or do you think you'd better wait for the '57's?

Those are important questions. This is the eleventh day of the third quarter and the economic whales have come up to blow have been saying the July-September quarter would be the decisive period of the year.

If business bounces along, the economists said, it will show that we have shed the fears of the second quarter. If it doesn't, then there is always the fourth quarter.

And what business does in this third quarter depends largely on you and all the other consumers.

Not entirely, of course. The high commitments for spending for plants and equipment, and the extent of the economic damage of the steel strike are also important factors. But unless you and the other consumers show a willingness to be free with a buck, the prospects are for cloudy, with occasional storms.

PSYCHOLOGY IMPROVES It is far too early to tell how this quarter will shape up. Labor Day will come before we have a convincing idea.

However, prospects at the moment are not bad. The first quarter of this year was rosy, well above year-ago levels by almost all indexes. So was April. Then in May, sales of autos and a few other durables began to drag their feet. Most of us worried our way through June saying, "This is it!" without much knowing what "it" was. Steel was struck in the first seconds of July.

The strike call may have been as good psychologically as it was bad economically. At least we knew where we were. We had something real, instead of vague feelings, to worry about.

It created this state of mind; if the trouble could be cleared up with minimum damage to the economy, we could go on to fresh prosperity. If it couldn't, we would know where the fault was and we could blame the McDonalds and Stephens instead of ourselves.

MOST PUNDITS CONFIDENT Although they probably made up their minds before the Steelworkers struck, most economists surfacing recently have blown favorable predictions. (Unlike the whole Defense Secretary Wilson told Congress about, economists don't fear harpoons and, if captured, yield very little blubber.)

The Department of Commerce, in its Survey of Current Business, said companies were adhering to earlier plans for plant and equipment spending and the third-quarter outlay would be 25 per cent higher than in the third quarter. Another survey, Commerce's retail sales, was a continuance of high-level operations, likely for the balance of the year in most major industries.

Economist A.W. Zelomek, whose predictions have been highly accurate, said business in the third quarter would average slightly less than in the second, but only because of seasonal and cyclic tendencies. The fourth quarter, he said, will be higher, perhaps setting a new peak for the year.

The National City Bank of New York says the economy at midyear shows "no striking change" from the months before, and that rising income and employment provide a strong underpinning for retail sales. Perhaps the bank's choice of words was unfortunate; if there has been any change, it has been "striking." (Put down the gun, fellows, I won't pun like that again!)

Others have not been so bullish. Economist Lewis H. Haney reported to the National Association of Purchasing Agents that there are indications of a beginning of a cyclic decline. And Hugh Bullock, president of the Calvin Bullock investment organization, states that his firm is "unable to follow the general assumption" that consumer buying will pick up in the fall.

Other Editors Are Saying... Our Own Southern Manifesto

The Charlotte News

We've been sitting up with a sick conscience these past few nights, brooding about the manifesto situation. After that rhetorical thunderclap called the Southern Manifesto, a little rain has fallen into our lives from all over. Sub-manifestoes have appeared—masquerading as editorials, platforms, earnest This I Believe appeals and other assorted affirmations. Most smack of the Upper Mississippi to Early Devonian school of political declaration, full of earnest conviction and something closely resembling omniscience (leaning heavily on such phrases as "history proves," "it is a fact that" and "we must all").

Caught in the age of manifestoes without a manifesto is like being caught in the Renaissance without a paint brush.

We've actually had little use for the things since Mencken and Nathan wrote their American Credo in 1920 but will bow to the demands of the hour with smile on face and pen in hand. We solemnly proclaim these truths, self-evident as they indeed are, to be a part of something we will temporarily call Manifesto In Progress—Being A System of Beliefs and Disbeliefs Wherein Life Is Examined From A To B.

That catsnaps are too good for cats.

That there is some good in all politicians.

That gall is divided into three parts—Republican, Democratic and Southern Democrat.

That the Great Seal of the United States is actually a mammal.

That a stitch in time hardly saves anything at all anymore.

That watermelon is best eaten with a fork.

That the Scotch-Irish are the salt of the earth even if they have lived in this country for only a couple of hundred years.

That the quality of mercy is, too, strain'd.

That winters aren't as cold as they used to be but summers are hotter.

That Sherman was right. That life is a trap.

That going to bed early and getting up early hasn't got anything to do with health, wealth or wisdom.

That most women are good drivers.

That postmasters in small towns don't read all the postcards.

That there are people out there—watching. That everybody ought to live within their income even if they have to borrow money to do so. That it is and we'll stand by it, by jing.

Army Signs Up Ayden Twins

TWINS ENLIST—Charles and Bobby Baldree, 19-year-old twin brothers from Ayden Route 2, have enlisted in the U. S. Army Quartermaster Corps through the local recruiting station. They will attend the Supply Specialist Course at Ft. Lee, Va., after completion of Basic Training at Ft. Jackson, S. C. The twins are graduates of Maury High School and they will be assigned together while in the army. They are believed to be the first set of twins to enlist through the local recruiting station.

Solons Demand Jury Recordings Be Destroyed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Internal Security subcommittee demanded today that University of Chicago researchers destroy the secret recordings they made of juries' deliberations in a Wichita, Kan., federal court.

In a delayed report on an investigation completed last fall, the subcommittee said that the research team had "invaded the sanctity of jury rooms" by placing hidden microphones to record the proceedings.

"Knowledge by any group of jurors that the sanctity of their deliberations may be invaded in this or any other manner cannot fail to affect adversely the free and full discussions necessary to the formation of a proper verdict," the report said.

The jury room surveillance in 1953 was part of a project financed by a $400,000 grant from the Ford Foundation to determine, among other things, how juries reached their verdicts and how fully they understood their instructions from the trial judge.

Disclosure of the project stirred a storm of controversy which touched off the subcommittee's public hearings to investigate it last Oct. 12-13. The subcommittee's report actually is dated last March 20, but it was made public only today.

In five recommendations, the subcommittee urged that:

1. A transcript of the testimony go to the Justice Department for "determination as to whether any violations of the law occurred" in recording the jurors' deliberations.
2. The Internal Revenue Service study whether use of Ford Foundation funds "is compatible with the conditions under which (it) receives exemption from taxes."
3. Legislation be enacted "to prevent further violations of the sanctity of the federal jury rooms." The Senate already has passed a bill to forbid the practice, which lawyers contend is not now prohibited by any specific statute.
4. The Senate Finance Committee determine whether new restrictions should be imposed on tax exemptions to foundations.
5. "All recording tapes, including copies, and all transcriptions and notes which evolved from the recording of jury deliberations by representatives of the University of Chicago be destroyed by voluntary action of such representatives."

Louisiana Assembly Ends Session

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—The Louisiana Legislature early today found up the wildest session in any years, with Gov. Earl Long using most of the uproar. The lawmakers brushed aside new taxes, but set spending records; repealed the two-year-old right to work law, but reinstated for agricultural workers; voted a whopping pay raise for teachers; it killed the tax measure providing the funds.

Long held the spotlight to the end, going before a joint meeting of the House and Senate shortly after midnight to talk more than one hour. He defended his actions during the session and bitterly attacked newspapers and foes of his tax program. Long began the 60-day session by directing the Legislature to address out of office 14 board members and the chairman of the State Tax Commission who refused to resign at his request. And he easily won passage of legislation nullifying governmental reorganization under former Gov. Robert Kennon. But one by one, the House killed Long's tax bills. Each fell short, by a narrow margin, of the 68-vote two-thirds approval required under a constitutional amendment adopted in the April general election.

Long, younger brother of the late Sen. Huey P. Long, carried a running feud with anyone who opposed his program. The fiery 60-year-old governor stalked the House and Senate floor, buttonholing members, heckling opponents and shouting taunts. He touched off a lusty name-calling feud with Secretary of State Wade Martin Jr. and his father, chairman of the Louisiana Public Service Commission, then pushed through legislation stripping the younger Martin of his duties as state insurance commissioner and custodian of voting machines.

Caddy Carts Move From Fairways to Mail Routes

NEW WAY TO CARRY MAIL—This is the newest device, an adapted golf caddy cart, to be developed by the Post Office to ease the strain on their carriers.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Looks like caddy carts, load-lifters for the weekend golfer, may add a few years to the working career of some postmen.

Four of the push-or-pull type carts are now in use at the St. Louis post office by mailmen with a physical disability, such as a bad back.

"It looks like they will be all right," says Raymond Scott, superintendent of delivery and collection here.

The rubber-wheeled carts, with places for two mail pouches, take the load off the postman's back and shoulder, and Scott says: "If we can get a few more years out of a good man with the cart we feel it is advisable."

Some routes, such as those with high terraces, don't lend themselves to the use of the carts, Scott says. But if a postman who needs a cart is on one of these routes, Scott says he can be transferred to one where the use is feasible.

The carts fold up and plans are being made for them to be kept in mail storage boxes along the routes so the postmen won't have to return to the main or branch offices with them.

Air Force Denies Flight Violations

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. Air Force both here and in Germany has denied Russian claims that its planes flew over Russian territory three times this month.

Soviet Ambassador Georgi Zarin protested formally to the State Department Tuesday that U. S. planes from West Germany had flown over territory of both Russia and its satellite neighbors July 4, 5 and 9.

The State Department has not yet replied officially, but the Air Force's European Headquarters said yesterday, "No aircraft assigned to the command of the U. S. Air Force in Europe violated Soviet or satellite territory."

A similar statement came from Air Force Headquarters here, which said that "no United States Air Force planes have been flying over Soviet territory as Moscow charged."

Cops Get Tricky With Pastel Cars

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Police Department has ordered 30 new police cars, painted various pastel shades.

Commissioner James M. Hebron said the department eventually will be fully equipped with vari-colored autos instead of the present black ones. The idea is to make them harder to spot.

Mayor Defends Withdrawal Of Privileges From Papers

READING, Pa. (AP)—Mayor Daniel F. McDevitt says his withdrawal of certain privileges from Reading's two daily newspapers is a "stand in the public interest" that has been getting public support.

McDevitt made his statement yesterday in denying that he was interfering with freedom of the press by his actions, which the Reading Eagle and the Reading Times term "large-scale harassment."

McDevitt said that "when you take action against what we have locally, a monopoly of news . . . it must be broad and bold . . . For the moment I must maintain my position. I'm terribly sorry . . ."

The jointly owned newspapers in this city of 110,000 say they believe that the mayor's restrictive measures stem chiefly from stories on a series of raids July 5 on 23 places in which federal agents seized 44 pinball and multiple coin machines. One of the spots raided was a tavern once owned by the mayor and now operated by his brother Nathaniel.

The newspapers published McDevitt's statements and explanations of his actions. Times Managing Editor Gordon Williams and City Editor Richard Peters said, "We get calls after calls and letters after letters from people cheering our efforts and asking what they can do to help."

McDevitt had said Tuesday that it was time "a public official summoned the courage to remind the local press lords that . . . they cannot ride roughshod and unchallenged over elected officeholders."

Expanding on that statement yesterday he said: "Newspaper reporters can come and go in City Hall just like any other citizens, but they get no special privileges."

On Monday, McDevitt closed the City Hall pressroom. Peters then instructed reporter Charles Kessler to pose on the City Hall steps with a typewriter in his lap for a staff photographer.

Kessler borrowed the typewriter from a city office and as he headed back up the steps to return it, he encountered McDevitt and Police Chief Bernard Richards. Bernard Richards, Kessler said, McDevitt snapped: "Lock him up."

Kessler was jailed briefly on a charge of "creating a nuisance and holding up traffic." On Tuesday he was found guilty of disorderly conduct and fined $51.25. The case was appealed by the newspapers.

The Eagle and Times said other instances of harassment included the ticketing of newspaper delivery trucks by police deliberately trailing the vans. More than 55 tickets have been issued so far, charging such violations as double parking.

The newspapers say they intend to fight these charges also. They maintain the delivery truck drivers were doing what they always had done before without interference—stopping at regular delivery stations just long enough to drop off supplies of papers.

McDevitt said reporters had behaved in unseemly manner at City Hall; that some had burst into his private office after being told by his secretary that there was no news; and that certain reporters "distorted the facts."

"He earlier had accused the times of 'deteriorating into yellow journalism.' That statement was printed in full by both newspapers.

"It is so bad," continued McDevitt, "that I am sure the management of the papers doesn't realize just how bad it has become."

The mayor denied that any "phony" traffic tickets had been issued.

Peters said the mayor had never complained about unseemly conduct to the newsmen's superiors and that any distortion was "in the mayor's mind."

Williams and Peters said: "We are just going right on with the job of printing the news. We are not going to give up this issue. We feel the mayor started it, and he will somehow, sometime have to back down."

New Violence Outbreak In Algerian Rebellion

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP)—Nationalist violence erupted anew in Algiers last night, resulting in the deaths of three rebels and one French soldier. Seven other persons were wounded in random attacks throughout the city.

Police wounded another Arab attempting to flee arrest.

Elsewhere: The French said one of their units clashed with a rebel group six miles from Montagnac, in western Algeria, killing 16 and suffering only "light losses."

In the Kabylie Mountains of northeast Algeria, the French said they killed three rebels, arrested 70 suspects and seized an arms cache.

In Paris, Finance Minister Paul Ramadier won Cabinet approval of new tax levies to raise an estimated 285 million dollars this year for the government's "pacification of Algeria" program. They must have parliamentary approval.

The population of the world is increasing by about 40 million a year.

It fell to the sidewalk and partially destroyed a cab. A police patrol chased the pair and killed both.

Bombs were lobbed into crowded cafes, and submachineguns chattered from speeding cars in a night of gangsterlike violence.

A big bomb blew out all the windows of the Algiers Opera House and those in neighboring houses.

Nationalists sped past a military post in a small car, spraying the guards with machine-gun fire. One guard was killed and two wounded. The French fired back, killing one rebel.

Four Europeans were wounded severely in a downtown cafe when Arabs threw a flaming Molotov cocktail into the building. Two rebels accused of tossing the bomb were captured. One was wounded by police fire.

Two men on a speeding motor scooter lobbed a grenade at a

Expect Taylor Trial To Go To Charlotte Jury Today

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Final arguments and the judge's charge were sent to the jury here today.

Taylor, on trial for his life for the second time, took the stand yesterday to deny that he was hiding in the trunk of his wife's car the night T. A. Parker was shot to death here.

Taylor said he was sleeping in the trunk waiting for a ride home. He crawled in there because his wife had asked him not to come around the grill where she was working, the small construction worker said.

When he woke up, Taylor testified, he heard Parker trying to seduce his wife. He said he got out of the car trunk with a shotgun in his hand.

Parker got out of the car, lunged at him and in the scuffle, Taylor declared, the gun fired.

He quoted Parker as saying

"I'll kill you," applying a fighting epithet.

The defendant's attorney labeled the killing justifiable homicide, but Asst. Solicitor Kenneth Downs called the slaying a plain case of premeditated murder.

Taylor was convicted in January of second-degree murder and sentenced to 30 years by Judge J. C. Rudisill. The State Supreme Court granted Taylor a new trial because, the court said, Judge Rudisill's questions and remarks could have prejudiced the jury against Taylor.

Witnesses to the death scene in the grill parking lot told conflicting stories yesterday.

Miss Rena Johnson of Charlotte said Taylor and Parker were never closer than eight to 10 feet. "I could see everything," she said. "They did not scuffle over the gun."

A defense witness, Mrs. Eva

Gowan, said Parker and Taylor were fighting over the gun and that both had their hands on the death weapon.

Break Up Meeting Of Presley Fans

OTTAWA (AP)—Police broke up a session of an Elvis Presley fan club here last night. Six teenagers were taken to headquarters for questioning. Four of them were charged—as minors—with drinking beer.

Mrs. Rita Primeau, 25-year-old widow at whose home the meeting was held, was charged with supplying beer to a minor.

The raid was made after complaints from neighbors. The group was listening to records in a room decorated with pictures of the rock and roll singer.

ABC Board Adopts Plan Banning Political Work

RALEIGH (AP)—Policies banning employees of the North Carolina ABC system from participating in politics during working hours have been adopted by the State ABC Board.

The board gave its approval yesterday to a lengthy document spelling out rules and regulations covering operation of the ABC system.

Other sections of the policy statement prohibit board members and workers from accepting gifts from liquor interests, and from having a financial interest in any business for the sale or distribution of alcoholic beverages.

Gov. Hodges suggested some months ago that the board write down its rules and regulations. He said the board was "on a hot spot" and open to criticism which could be avoided if employees knew how the rules stood.

While ABC employees are free to vote for any candidate and to make campaign contributions, the board declared that no worker shall campaign for any candidate "while in the performance of his official duties or while traveling at state expense."

Use of the ABC system for political advantage "would not only constitute a perversion of its purpose but would also tend to undermine public confidence in the system," the policy statement asserted.

The policies reserve for the state board the power "to remove any member of a local board who is unfit to serve" and to fire any employee of a local board "who violates the terms or spirit of the ABC act."

Carolinas Must Revamp System

ATLANTA (AP)—An expert on highway construction said here yesterday that North Carolina and South Carolina had better revamp their highway department procedures if they expect to get the most roads for their money and get them built in a reasonable time.

S. C. Austin of Raleigh, N.C., manager of the highway division of the Carolinas Branch, Associated General Contractors of America, spoke before the Southwide conference on engineering problems.

Austin, for many years an engineer in the North Carolina Highway Department, said many of the limited number of engineers in the Tar Heel state are assigned to tasks that could be done by technicians and are kept on highway projects longer than they should be.

Austin said North Carolina and South Carolina, as well as other states, must make better use of their "very short supply" of engineers in view of the tremendous engineering programs that will be necessary to carry out the expanded highway construction program.

"In a few short months North Carolina and South Carolina will launch their new highway building programs," he said.

"If the states intend to get the most roads for their money and get them built in a reasonable time, a change in highway department procedures will have to take place."

120 Persons Die When Boat Sinks

KARACHI (AP)—About 120 persons are believed drowned in the capsizing of a boat on the Chenab River 70 miles northwest of Lahore.

Reports reaching Karachi said a heavy storm overtook the boat yesterday as it left the river bank. It was dashed against an island in the river and overturned.

Of about 150 persons aboard, only 30 were rescued, the reports said.

City Expands -- He Loses Farm

HE LOST HIS FARM—Bill Stricker, with a 67-store shopping center in the background, mows what lawn he has left after the city of Detroit surrounded his farm and he finally had to sell it.

WINTER got Stricker to agree to sell the land with an understanding that he would have a lifetime lease.

So now Stricker lives at peace with the world on his acre plot, while his wife Bertha, 77, takes care of the neat eight room frame home, and practically in the backyard, the 67 store shopping center is rising where Stricker used to tend his crops.

DETROIT (AP)—Bill Stricker, 86, bucked head-on against progress and he still believes, "There is no place like home."

For 81 years Stricker had lived on a 38 acre farm on the fringes of Detroit. As the years passed he could see smart suburban homes rising up along his carefully planted wheat fields.

The situation finally came to a head. When J.L. Hudson Co., Detroit's biggest department store, told Stricker they wanted to buy his land, he said, "No."

Real estate speculators had already bought 37 acres of it, knowing that Hudson's planned to build their Eastland shopping center on the site.

"A lot of folks got the wrong idea when I refused to sell Hudson's my last acre back in 1930," Stricker says. "They accused me of trying to delay the project when all I wanted was to save my home."

"Money," Stricker says, "never was as important to me as staying in my home. Hudson people tried to do business with me dozens of times, but none of them understood my feelings until Foster Winter, a Hudson executive came along."

Baskets Disappear In Charity Plan

RUPERT, Idaho (AP)—Officers of the Pershing School PTA say it'll be a long time before they again try the "circulating basket" project as a means of raising contributions.

The PTA put three baskets into circulation with instructions that they be passed along from person to person, collecting food and money for the school.

Only one thing went wrong with the plan—all three baskets are missing.

Neighbors Help Syrian Native To Return Home

COFFEYVILLE, Kan. (AP)—Farris Keroney's fervent wish to return to his native Syria has become a reality through the help of some Kansans.

He confided to his Coffeyville neighbors recently he'd like to be with his children and grandchildren for his last years. He has one memento indicating he is 115 years old but a son in Syria said it is more likely he is about 90.

A "going home" fund was started for Keroney, whose white beard and makeshift baby buggy from which he peddles garden truck, are a familiar sight. A rummage sale netted $73.76. The remainder of the $547.11 airplane fare was donated by individuals.

Members of his family have written through an interpreter of their joy in his coming home. Wrote one son:

"I can carry him on my shoulders gladly from Damascus to Souleida and this is my duty toward my father and towards a good man like him."

It is believed Keroney, who never became a U.S. citizen, migrated to this country by way of Mexico around 1903 or 1904. For a short time, he says, he peddled Syrian handiwork at Springfield, Mo.

He settled near the railroad tracks here several years ago and started a truck garden. His wife died in March, 1955.

He apparently is in good health except for loss of hearing.

Keroney will leave Tulsa, Okla., Sunday on his air trip to Syria. There will be stopovers and changes of airports in New York and Cairo.

He is due in Damascus Wednesday, July 18. There he will be reunited with his youngest son, Nedim.

Keroney told friends a series of "Decoration Days" will be held for him when he reaches home.

Malayan War Expensive Despite Lack Of Action

By MURRAY FROMSON

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP)—Two water buffaloes killed and one farmer wounded. No terrorists sighted.

That was the report of a patrol of British soldiers who walked out of the Malayan jungle the other day as Britain entered the ninth year of its war upon Communist rebels.

The soldiers, in their 20s, had spent days hacking their way through underbrush or burning leeches from their skin. Their report was pretty much routine for the "emergency" that each day seems to lose more of its urgency.

The Communists, once a force estimated at 5,000, are supposed to number 2,500 to 3,000 now. They tangle with British forces only occasionally.

This is an expensive war for Britain — about three million dollars a month. It is also unpopular at home. Britons sense the decline of their influence in Malaya. It is hard for them to send out young men, mostly draftees.

The average Malay seems tired of restrictions too.

Roadblocks still dot the highways. Curfews imposed in 1948, are strictly observed. No cars can be driven between towns after dark.

Chinese squatters, put into new villages in 1950 and restricted in areas they can farm, hold a smoldering contempt for the Malayan authorities.

Today the Malayan Communist party finds two factors working against it.

Armed rebellion has been downgraded in the context of world Communist strategy. And the rapid grant of Malayan independence — due next year — has cut the ground from under the party's feet.

While Britain will give up its authority here, it will continue to have an interest in this area. It has been negotiating for retention of military bases for a commonwealth strategic reserve.

The British and Malays seem hopeful of declaring an end to the emergency within 18 months.

The United States had 115,000 women who were widowed by the death of husbands less than 55 years old in 1955.

Unusual Firm Does Odd Jobs

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Three men operate a firm here which has done everything from taking a hunk out of the globe to building a better fish hook. Sam Adams, his brother, Ted, and Marion J. Miller, plan to take on more trained technicians with imagination. Much of their work has been for physicians doing research at the University of Louisville Medical School.

"The physician knows what his research problem is," Adams says, "but he hasn't the faintest idea of the mechanical limitations. That's our job."

They have:

Built a table which tilts from horizontal to vertical to study people who faint when they stand up; an electronic respirator to keep anesthetized animals breathing while researchers operate on them; a nerve stimulator to tell surgeons when they've uncovered a nerve.

They have also made a trigger fish hook for an inventor. The hook is spring actuated and sets firmly in a fish's jaw when mouthed.

Perhaps one of their oddest jobs was an order for copper-lined world globes with a hunk cut out. The customer wanted to grow flowers in them.

The Criminal Code of Canada provides for 5 years imprisonment for owners of gold unless he can prove he bought such precious metal from a legitimate owner.

CREAMED CORN AND OYSTERS

Ingredients: 1 can (10 ounces) frozen condensed oyster stew soup, 1 can (12 ounces) wholekernel corn, 2 tablespoons flour.

Method: Place unopened can of oyster stew in warm water for about 5 minutes for easy removal. Open can and turn contents into a saucepan. Allow stew to stand over low heat until defrosted; stir often but do not boil. Remove oysters with a slotted spoon and cut large ones into smaller pieces. Drain corn. Mix flour with ¼ cup of the corn liquid until smooth. Add to liquid in saucepan; cook and stir constantly over moderately low heat until thickened and bubbly; cook several minutes longer. Add oysters and corn; reheat but do not boil. Makes 4 servings.

Look, Daddy The Lake's Gone

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Rainy Lake in Presque Isle County does a disappearing act, almost as if somebody has pulled its plug.

At intervals the lake in northeastern Michigan nearly disappears through an underground channel, like bath water down a drain.

Geologists say the water seeps down into an underground limestone cavern. The lake fills up again when mud and silt accumulate to plug crevices in its bed.

Policeman J. B. Lawson (top) takes to his heels before a charging cow, one of 25 Herefords which broke out of a slaughter-house pen in the heart of Atlanta, Ga. A few moments later, pistol bullets fired by another policeman stopped the cow in her tracks but she remained on her feet. Then Lawson (lower right) turned and killed her with a shotgun blast. His charge of buckshot has just hit her and she is beginning to slump to the ground. These dramatic pictures were made by Atlanta Journal photographer Bill Warren. Policemen killed 16 of the Herefords shortly after they broke out of the pen but nine others remained on the loose in Atlanta's stockyard district. (AP Wirephoto).

Science-Fiction Thriller Features Shrinking Man

HOLLYWOOD — Can you imagine a pencil as tall as a room? A divan the size of an automobile? A coffee can as big as a water tank?

These are some of the latest results of the rampant imaginations of film creators at Universal-International. That studio has become the citadel of science fiction movies, just as it once excelled in horror films in years past.

The newest product of the fantasy factory is a dilly called "The Incredible Shrinking Man." It concerns a young man and his freak atomic fall-out. Confidentially, he shrinks. From 6 feet 2, he diminishes to 4 feet 7, 3 feet 6, then to 6 inches, 2 inches and finally to half an inch. To achieve this illusion, the U-craftsmen have created some monstrous furniture and household effects. The studio's top expert in the science fiction line is Jack Arnold, who has directed half a dozen of the immensely successful films. Arnold observed that the current run of science fiction films differ from the horror pictures in which the studio once specialized. "You'll recall that the first 'Frankenstein' and the first 'Invisible Man' were both very well-made pictures," he said. "But then they deteriorated in sequels. Their design was strictly horror to scare the audience. 'Science fiction pictures are more aimed at the imagination. They often scare you, but they also make your imagination run rampant. For that reason, they must have a valid premise. Once you get the audience to accept that, you can take off in any direction."

Heart Group Looks For Name

ROCKY MOUNT — The Edgecombe-Nash Heart Association today embarked upon a quest for a new name . . . to provide suitable recognition for the three additional counties, Halifax, Martin and Pitt, which recently became affiliated with the group.

Furthermore, the Association, through the generosity of an anonymous "friend," is prepared to award a $50 U. S. Savings Bond to the person who submits a name which will meet the approval of the executive board.

"The Edgecombe-Nash Association was glad to welcome Halifax, Martin and Pitt Counties into its membership," declared Dr. K. D. Weeks of Rocky Mount, President, "and we are anxious to find a name that will include all five counties." The President added that "a good, descriptive name" for the enlarged body is desired.

Dr. Weeks added that the Association was "most anxious" that a name be selected as soon as possible. He invited any citizen of the five counties involved to submit suggestions for names. They should be mailed to the executive secretary, Mrs. Nancy Yelverton, 1205 Lafayette Avenue, Rocky Mount. Deadline for mailing entries will be midnight, July 19th.

Important People All Know Helen

NEW YORK — It has been said that if you're an important person nationally you'll know Helen Sioussat—and she will know you. Furthermore, she and your wife will know each other. And finally, she usually will know you and your wife before you've become important nationally.

There is no particular plotting or consulting of ouija boards in this state of affairs. It's simply that Miss Sioussat likes people—and they like her. She has a job with a title: director of talks for CBS. But work seems to be mostly play to her.

To her come all requests for sustaining time and all scripts for political, cultural and educational talks heard over CBS radio and CBS-TV. As a remote sideline to all her other activities, she has gained quite a reputation as "spiker of rumors" since she attended her first national political convention for CBS in 1936. She will, of course, be present and accounted for at the conventions next month with a sharp spike for all and any rumors.

How do you spike a political rumor anyway? Well it helps to know a current or former president of the United States—and Miss Sioussat has known all presidents and their families from Herbert Hoover on.

Bing Crosby In Syndicate That Wants Tigers

DETROIT (AP)—An 11-man syndicate headed by two Michigan radio executives and embracing such famous names as Crosby and Woolworth today was one full strike ahead of three other groups still in the running for the Detroit Tigers.

A good-looking, 42-year-old Detroit whose company operates four Michigan radio stations heads the syndicate. He is Fred Knorr, a business associate and close friend of Walter O. (Spike) Briggs Jr., the Tigers' president.

Others in it include singer-actor Bing Crosby; John Fetzer, president of Fetzer Broadcasting Co., operator of several radio stations in Michigan and other states; and R. F. Woolworth of the Woolworth dime store family and a member of Stone and Webster, New York investment firm.

Their bid for the baseball company and Briggs Stadium is five million dollars, a quarter of a million dollars less than the bid of a syndicate headed by Bill Vesack and under two other bids submitted by movie producer Bob Goldstein and Toronto sportsman Jack Cooke.

For days there have been reports that Knorr's group has the inside track. Briggs holds about 7 per cent of the stock in Knorr's radio company.

"It's pretty obvious what I think of him," said Briggs. "I wouldn't have invested money in his outfit if I didn't have an abundance of confidence in the man. In my book, he's a pretty wonderful fellow."

Hard Right Hook To Stomach Ends Fight, Career

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Unbeaten Eddie Maehen, his prestige heightened by a smashing knockout victory last night over the Cuban giant Nino Valdes apparently will be in no hurry to go after bigger game.

"The kid's still green," said Machen's cage manager Sid Flaherty. "He's got a lot to learn."

Machen, a quick-striking opportunist from California, beat Valdes like a jackknife with a thudding right to the stomach in the eighth round. Ten seconds later Nino, lying on his side, was counted out for the first time in his career.

Already the 10th ranking heavyweight, although he has had only 15 professional fights, Machen undoubtedly advanced a notch or two in the ratings on his sparkling victory.

The 24-year-old Californian has won them all, 12 by knockouts, and Flaherty is confident that with a few more fights under his belt he will be a real title contender.

Whenever his slashing left hook caught Valdes off guard, Machen was on him like a cat. In the fourth, he stunned Nino with a left and had landed three more lefts and three rights to the jaw before the powerful Cuban fell halfway through the ropes.

Machen was just as quick in the final round when a left-right combination knocked Valdes into the ropes. Nino dropped his guard and left his midsection open for the finishing blow.

Machen weighed 192 pounds, 14 1/2 less than Valdes.

Sixteen Golfers In Public Links Tourney Now

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sixteen golfers today headed into the third round of the 31st amateur public links championships where, judging from yesterday, anything can happen.

Continuing in the role of favorite was salesman Scotty McBeath, the 34-year-old qualifying medalist from Palo Alto, Calif., who won his first two matches handily.

Two more will be played today over the par 36-36-72 Harding Park course to reduce the field to four semifinalists.

Five of the surviving third-rounders in this event for the nation's best public course players were under par for yesterday's play. McBeath was one of them.

Others making the grade into the round of 16 were Ovid Seyler, San Francisco; Peter Schedick, San Mateo, Calif.; Jim Wilbert, South San Francisco; Mike M. Anderson, Pontiac, Mich.; Bobby Nichols, Louisville, Ky.; William C. Scarborough Jr., Jacksonville, Fla.; John Demello, Honolulu; and John Buxbaum, Memphis, Tenn.

Creekmur Enjoys Game Even After 119 Straight

By DAVE DILES

DETROIT (AP)—Like any other working guy, gigantic Lou Creekmur likes his day off. He believes it helps him to prolong his consecutive game streak.

The Detroit Lions' lineman gets only one day off a week during the professional football season, and he believes in taking advantage of it. To do it, he goes along with the old saw about the ounce of prevention.

"He wears as many pads as any football player I ever saw," said Buddy Parker, the Lions' coach. "He straps 'em on from head to toe. I'll never tell you how he gets around so well with all that equipment, but as long as he does it as well as he does, it's fine with me."

Creekmur, a six-year veteran in the National Football League who played at William & Mary, says it won't get quite that bad. But he admits with a grin that he does allow himself as much protection as possible.

The system has paid off richly. The 250-pound, 6-foot 4 athlete, one of the NFL's finest linemen, has started 119 consecutive games—including exhibitions, playoffs and pro bowls—and you can count on the fingers of one hand the times he's been forced out of a game by injuries.

Creekmur is a friendly, happy-go-lucky fellow and good fortune rests gracefully on his massive shoulders. And he talks freely about his "day off." Says Creekmur: "Sunday is always a rough day."

LOU CREEKMUR

Monday is an off day and I just can't see spending my only day off in the training room getting worked over and patched up.

"I have very definite ideas about my Mondays. I look forward to going down to the Lions' office, picking up my check and taking it to the bank. Then I head for home and do absolutely nothing for the rest of the day. I enjoy it that way—that's the way I'm going to keep it if I can."

There's another reason behind his determination to avoid the training room, with its whirlpool baths and heat treatments. Creekmur is working in the off-season as a sales representative for a trucking firm. Come football season, he hopes to be retained on the payroll.

The 29-year-old Creekmur is married and has a small son. He meets people well and is in demand as an after-dinner speaker. He says he still gets a "lot of fun" out of playing in the pro leagues.

"When the time comes when it's no longer fun, I expect I'll get out of it," he says.

Until last season, Creekmur was used almost exclusively on offense. But Parker turned Lou into a defensive specialist before the 1955 season was half through.

He prefers offense—for a reason that goes along with his system of looking ahead to the future. "I think I'll last longer that way," says the big guy.

Harrison Wins Golf Tourney In Kinston

KINSTON—Little Bobby Harrison of Fayetteville completed a 30-foot putt in his final hole to walk away with the North Carolina Junior Golf Tournament honors yesterday, at the Kinston Country Club.

Harrison racked up rounds of 69, 72 and 70 over the three-day play, to edge Kinston's Larry Beck, the defending champ, who was one stroke back. The Fayetteville linkster's total was a sharp 211.

Ed Justa of Rocky Mount and Eddie Honeycutt of Mooresville finished third and fourth to round out the four-man team that will travel to Fargo, North Dakota, to represent North Carolina in the national Jaycee Tourney in August.

Harrison, Beck and Justa were tied for the lead at the end of yesterday's play.

Raleigh won the team crown, registering only 943 strokes. Their score was 12 full strokes better than the runner-up, Rocky Mount. The team was composed of Stat Tuttle, Jim Rouse, and James York.

Greenville's Bobby Thomas came in with a 246 and Dick Evans posted a 256. The two other Greenville golfers, Buddy Murray and Marvin Blount, withdrew earlier.

In 1952 the rumor was rife at the Republican National Convention that Gen. Douglas MacArthur was flying to Chicago. "Try to check it for us, Helen," said the CBS news chief.

"I phoned Mr. Hoover at the Waldorf in New York," Miss Sioussat recalled the other day. "He told me that Gen. MacArthur was not flying to Chicago and that I could deny the rumor. He didn't ask me not to mention his name. He knew he didn't need to. As a matter of fact, this is the first time I've told the story. But the rumor was spiked and CBS recalled its newsmen from the airport at Chicago."

A name-by-name rundown of every mentioned candidate for nomination in both parties reveals that Miss Sioussat knows well each or someone close to each—except Gov. Frank Lausche of Ohio.

She will be in close contact with them at the conventions. At the 1952 Democratic convention the rumor was afloat that Vice President Alben Barkley was withdrawing his name from the race for

Some Saying Homers Are Due To Lively Bats Not Horsehides

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK (AP)—If the ball isn't lively, as manufacturers and league officials claim, could it be that the lively bat is producing all the home runs?

Ted Kluszewski, muscular Cincinnati first baseman, goes along with the bat theory.

"I don't think the ball is any livelier," he said. "I think it's the lighter bat. The more speed you can get with the bat at the moment of impact, the further the ball will go."

"Fellows like Earnie Banks of the Chicago Cubs used a 31 ounce-35 inch bat. And Stan Musial of the Cardinals gets down to 30-31 ounces. They really can whip that bat around. It doesn't work for me. I have to overpower it. I can't get more speed with a lighter bat although I use a 36 ounce bat now."

Banks agrees with Kluszewski although he also thinks the ball is livelier.

"When I first came up I used a 35-ounce bat," he said. "Late in the season when I got a little tired I switched to a lighter bat after talking to Ralph Kiner. Now I use a 31-ounce all the time."

Hank Bauer goes along with the bat theory, adding "the ball seems livelier, too." Bauer said Mickey Vernon, his teammate, is using his 32-ounce bat as compared to the 34-5 ounce bat he used in the past. "The hitters get a better whip with lighter bats," said Bauer. "And the bats seem to be made better, too."

One of the smallest bats used in the majors is the 28-ounce-34 inch stick swung by Bolly Hemus of the Phillies. Little Bolly also hones down the handle to make it even thinner. Granny Hamner of the Phils also is in the 28-ounce class.

The contrast between the modern bat and the old models is shown by the old timer bat display that the Louisville Slugger people maintain.

Babe Ruth, for instance, once ordered a 54-ounce bat and never dipped below 40 ounces until the tail end of his career. Ty Cobb used a 42-ounce club and Home Run Baker swung a 47-ounce blue. Honus Wagner used a 38-ounce bat as did Ed Delahanty and Robert Hornsby. Cap Anson in the old days swung a 44-ounce bludgeon and Heinie Groh's famous "bottle bat" was 42-ounces, 33 inches.

The Louisville people have 10,000 models at their factory with the present day average about 34 1/2 ounces-35 inches.

Hal Schumacher, former New York Giant pitching ace, is in the bat business as vice-president of the Adirondack Bat Co. at Dolgeville, N.Y. Hal has some very positive ideas about the value of whip action in a bat.

On a recent trip to his factory, Schumacher set up a testing machine that measured the whip in a bat. By actual measurements, before and after, a bat was bent 4 1/2 inches without breaking. Some high speed cameras can record a traction of this whip in a bat at the moment of impact with the ball.

Incidentally, it is a long involved process by which a log of northern white ash is split, turned, weighed, bleached, filed, coated and finally stamped with a trade mark. At the Adirondack factory turns about 1,000,000 bats a year, many of them for the Little League, softball and playground baseball business.

The importance of whip in a bat is illustrated by the vast changes in golf clubs from the old rigid shafts to the present day models with the swing and sway style. Lack of whip was one criticism of the laminated bat.

ASHEVILLE (AP)—Herb Browne of Columbia, S.C., first-seeded in men's singles in the North Carolina Open Tennis Tournament, takes on Marshall Happer of Kinston today in the top semifinals match of the tournament.

Happer defeated Tommy Hearne of Albemarle 6-1, 6-3 yesterday and Browne beat Alfred Thompson of Atlanta, 9-7, 6-4.

Ronnie Sawyer of Shreveport, La., and his University of Houston teammate, Johnny Lawhon of Denton, Tex., made their way into the semifinals with upset victories.

Sixth-seeded Sawyer eliminated second-seeded John Brownlow of Clinton, S.C., 6-2, 9-6, 6-4. Lawhon polished off fourth-seeded Harvey Jackson of Greenville, S.C., 6-4, 7-5.

Lawhon takes on Lindsay Hopkins of Atlanta today. Hopkins beat Vince Connerat of Atlanta 6-2, 6-4. Sawyer won't be paired until after early play.

Hagge-Wright Team Expected To Pace Play

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—The team of Marlene Bauer Hagge and Mickey Wright shaped up as the favorite today as play began in the $6,500 Hot Springs four-ball golf tournament.

Mrs. Hagge, with an intake of $10,196, is the top money winner on the women's pro circuit this year. Miss Wright, from San Diego, Calif., is fourth with $6,333.

But they faced stiff competition from nine other teams entered in the 72-hole event over the 6,375-yard, par 4 Cascades course.

Mrs. Hagge, who plays out of Asheville, N.C., and Miss Wright warmed up with a practice 68 yesterday.

Defending champions are Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., and Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., who won last year with a 16-under-par total of 280.

U.S. cars and trucks being scrapped today average 13.8 years in age.

Olmedo Still Alive In Tourney

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Alex Olmedo of Arequipa, Peru, the NCAA titlist but unseeded in the Western tennis championships, was still alive today going into the quarter-final round of the Western.

The University of Southern California player made it by upsetting fourth-seeded Sammy Giammalve of Houston, Tex., 6-3, 6-3, in a match that was easier than the score indicated.

The three seeded players who reached the quarter-final round had trouble.

Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, No. 1, defeated John Leach of Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-4.

Defending Champion Bernard Bartzen of San Angelo, Tex., No. 2 beat Mike Green of Miami Beach, Fla., 6-2, 5-7, 7-5, but he was down 5-2 in the deciding set before his experience tipped the balance.

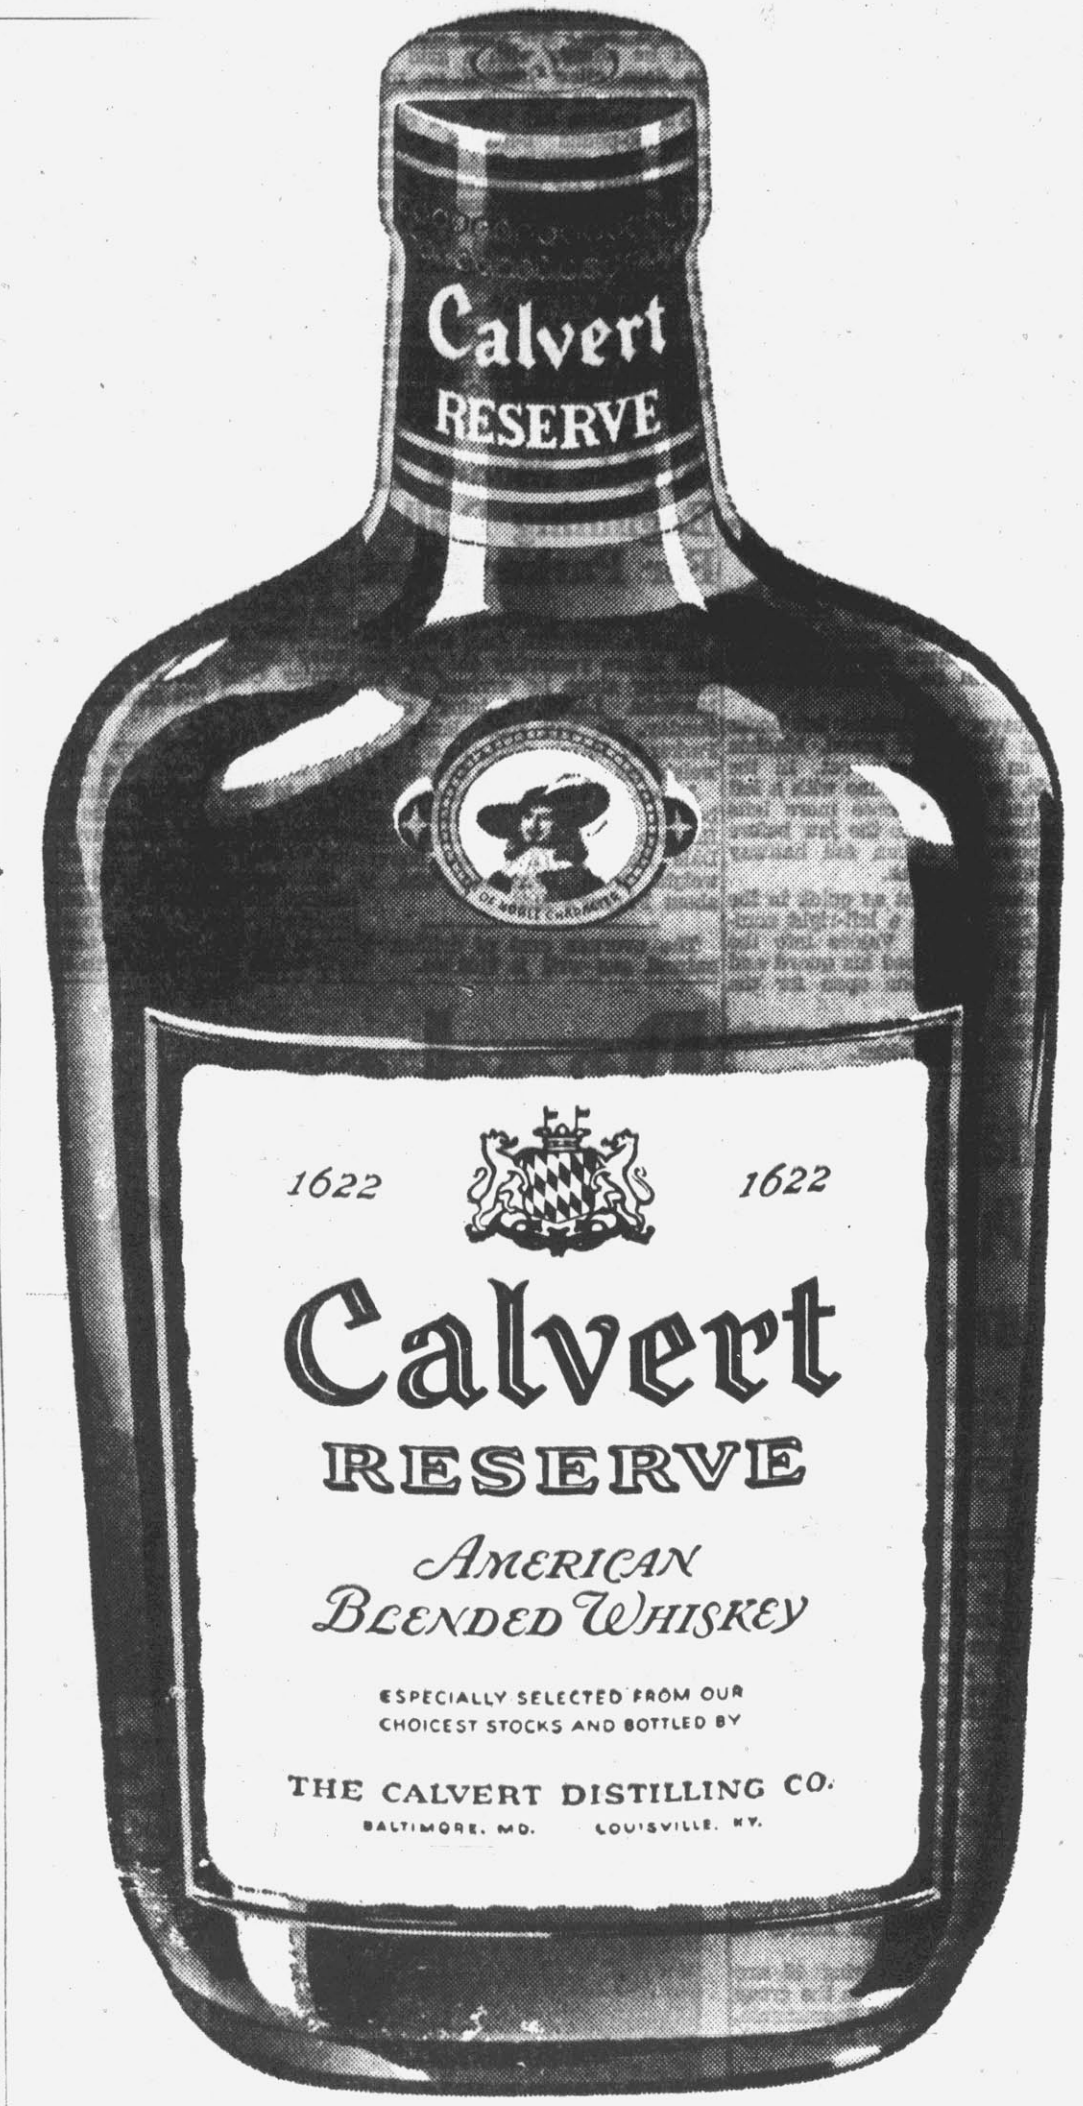

Green, No. 2 junior in the nation, drove Bartzen all over the court but wore himself out in the process.

Eddie Moylan of Trenton, N.J., also needed three sets to get past Arthur Andrews of Iowa City, Iowa, 9-7, 1-6, 6-4.

In the quarter-finals, Seixas plays Reynaldo Garrido of Miami; Olmedo takes on Bill Quillian of Seattle; Bartzen goes against Chuck Devoe of Indianapolis, and Moylan plays Amando Vieira of Havana, 8.

In the women's singles, only top-seeded Janet Hopps of Seattle had trouble in advancing, she beat Joan Johnson of Los Angeles, 1-6, 6-3, 6-0.

Men Will Try For Decathlon

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind. (AP)—Forty-two fast, big men will work their way through 10 track and field events tomorrow and Saturday at Wabash College in the national AAU decathlon elimination that has produced the best all-around athlete in four straight Olympic games.

On the records, 20-year-old Rafer Johnson of UCLA is the logical successor to James Bausch, the 1932 Olympic decathlon winner; Glenn Morris, 1936, and Bob Mathias, 1948 and 1952.

Johnson, 6 feet 2 1/2 and 195 pounds, broke Mathias' 52 world record of 7,887 points by scoring 7,983 in winning the Central California AAU decathlon last year. Officials of this weekend's meet at Wabash College think Johnson 8,000 points.

The three top performers will be added to the Olympic squad. Johnson already is a member as a broad jumper. The Rev. Bob Richards of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, defending champion in the AAU meet, also has a berth clinched in the pole vault event he won at Helsinki, Finland, in 1952.

Missiles And Electronics Industries Growing Fast

By SAM DAWSON

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Space travel, earth satellites, rockets, missiles—all the electronic and atomic marvels of a new age—make up one of today's fastest spreading branches of the aircraft industry. Production, employment, spending in these fields are increasing rapidly—in some instances doubling each year for the last four.

What was about one per cent of the total aircraft business six years ago is now estimated to account for 15 per cent of the industry's budget of sales and perhaps more of its spending.

One fifth of Convair's employees are engaged in work on missile, rocket or space travel projects, J. V. Naish, executive vice president of the Convair division of General Dynamics, says here. And since Convair has many suppliers of parts, uncounted others also contribute to this work.

Seventeen thousand or more employees of North American Aviation, in the Los Angeles area and elsewhere in the nation, are employed in its missile development, rocketry and autometrics divisions.

"Guided missiles and their cousins are now fast becoming an industry of their own," says R. A. Lambeth, vice president and treasurer of North American Aviation. "The industry is far from mature yet. It will continue to grow."

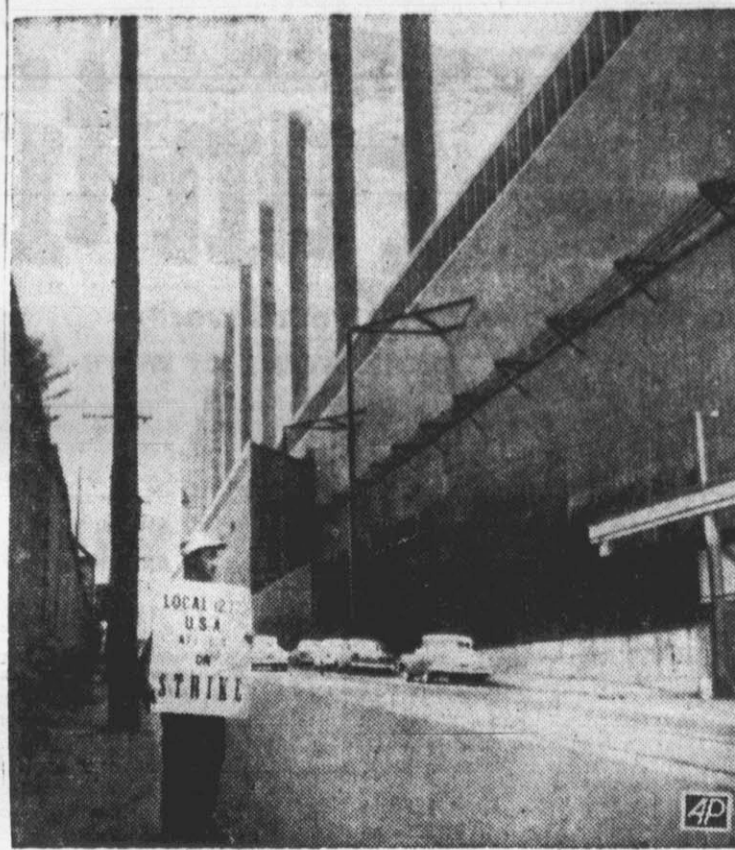

Douglas Aircraft starts production this year on Nike-type missiles in a government-owned plant at Charlotte, N.C. Like the missiles rolling off its Santa Monica production lines the last two years. Altogether it is working on eight major missile projects. "Missiles are an important part of our production," Donald W. Douglas says. "We helped pioneer the field 14 years ago. It would be an even faster growing part of the industry if the engineering shortage weren't a limiting factor."

In Seattle, Boeing engineers and production staff work on missile projects and prepare for the coming atomic age.

Lockheed will build a plant in Georgia to work on problems of building atomic planes. Vitro Corp. of America will study shielding and radiation problems involved in such a plane.

Officials at both Boeing and Convair are inclined to think scientists now can produce air and space machine marvels beyond the military's present ideas of how to make use of them.

Egyptian Men Passing Up Chance To Have 4 Wives

CAIRO (AP)—Egyptians may be allowed four wives but right now they are not making much of it. There are over a quarter million women in Cairo without husbands. From the looks of it most of them are on the manhunt.

This city of 2½ million suffers from one of the most acute marriage problems in the world. More than a third of the population is single, national census figures say.

In a Cairo University questionnaire almost all the coeds said they wanted to be married and 80 per cent declared they would leave the university if they found a husband.

The problem is not scarcity of males. In Cairo 88 per cent of the men are bachelors. Only one out of every seven get married during any one year.

The number of polygamous marriages, permitted under Moslem law, in Egypt's capital is less than 7 per cent.

What causes the marriage freeze?

The men blame the economic and social system. In Egypt it's the bridegroom who settles a dowry on the bride, not her parents. A marriage without such a grant is almost unheard of. And parents insist their daughters do as well as any sisters who might have preceded them into matrimony.

The ladies also require expensive diamond wedding rings as a measure of social status. But the average Cairo man earns no more than $60 a month. He is not financially independent until his late 20s.

The peak marriage age for the men is 28, while most girls marry in their teens. A girl past 20 years has a lot to worry about. Cairo is a tough town for widows—only 24 per cent ever marry again. Divorced women have a slim 22 per cent chance of remarrying.

Sociologists believe Cairo's marriage problem will not be solved until more women work and dowries are abolished. Both these suggestions are looked upon unfavorably in this conservative Moslem country.

Juliana's Opponents Said To Have Spread Rumor

AMSTERDAM (AP)—Were intimate details of differences between Queen Juliana and her German-born husband deliberately leaked to a German news magazine with intent to discredit the Queen?

Some observers contend that enemies of the Queen and friends of Prince Bernhard laid bare to Der Spiegel (The Mirror) of Hamburg a secret whispered in government and royal circles here for years—that a wide rift exists between the royal couple.

They claim the story was planted in hopes that its publication would produce repercussions that would force Queen Juliana to abdicate.

They say the 45-year-old prince would be in a better position in many ways as father of the Queen's successor—18-year-old Princess Beatrix—than as husband of Juliana, now 47. They do not elaborate on that.

As published in a June issue of the German news magazine, Queen Juliana and the former Prussian prince broke apart in 1950 over Miss Greet Hofmans, an erect, 61-year-old self-styled faith healer.

The royal couple jointly consulted Miss Hofmans in 1948 after their youngest daughter, Princess Maria Cristina (Marijke) was born partly blind Feb. 18, 1947.

Some of the Dutch eye specialists held out little hope of helping the princess' eyesight. The couple went to Miss Hofmans in desperation.

Miss Hofmans claims she has God-given powers to heal through prayer and faith. She told the distressed mother and father the little princess would have good eyesight in two years. She was invited to live in one of the royal palaces to be near the child.

But the child's vision grew no better and the prince ordered Miss Hofmans to leave the palace. Der Spiegel reported the faith healer, meanwhile, had gained great influence over the Queen, a devout mother, to the prince's displeasure.

Other sources contend too that the prince in the meantime had grown tired of the Queen and gone his own way. He spends about one fourth of his time away from Soestdijk Palace, the favorite residence.

It boils down to a case, say one source close to both the government and the royal house, of a man and a wife drifting apart. Since they are the royal couple they apparently cannot do anything except to make the best of it. Divorce or separation in the royal house is next to an impossibility.

But some contend that if the breach is not healed and resulting developments should affect the government, then the Queen would have to abdicate. That is considered a remote possibility.

Many feel that if the story had not been published the differences between the two might have quietly and finally resolved themselves. Dutch editors had faithfully suppressed the story.

One government spokesman says he is positive that Miss Hofmans has no ulterior motive. "The only objection, if it is one, is that her beliefs might at times border on the superstitious," he says.

Miss Hofmans has repeatedly denied that she has any influence on the Queen.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

The dirtiest trick arithmetic ever plays on a man, aside from income tax schedules, is probably when actual cost figures for a new house, or for improving a house, exceed a budget and puncture dreams.

Building of any kind is such a complicated thing, whether you are attempting to do it yourself or hire a contractor to hire men, that you can't blame anybody for tearing up plans when the answer won't come out right.

But there's a way to beat this stymie. Good substitute materials, capable of giving the same performance as all-wood-and-a-yard-wide, can conform to Hoyle. In fact, New York State has a performance building code which has already been adopted by some 200 towns, and it merely says how much load, stress, strain, etc., must be provided for. If you could make a strong enough beam out of old newspapers, it would perform.

So lower grades of lumber offer dandy keys to economy in making your plans fit your budget—no matter what kind of a building code you may run into. These lower-cost grades do the job just as well in most places as if you use fancy wood envied by furniture makers.

Any lumberman can tell you how your dollar will go twice as far when you buy lower grades. This, of course, means knots, which mean that the tree had branches. And knotty pine, for example, is very attractive stuff. The popularity of knotty paneling was the best idea that ever hit the lumber industry. As soon as we all started to take up the old American idea of knotty wood paneling, in keeping with the natural beauty of landmark homes, a lot of bonfires died out in lumber yards.

A good story about knotty lumber is told by Leo V. Bodine, the man the National Assn. of Lumber Manufacturers keeps in Washington to save homeowners money. He painted the shelves, anyway, and nobody can tell the difference.

Instead of selling them teak wood for kindling. It's a true story involving a man who bought No. 4 common lumber for sheathing—the boards you hide with building paper and clapboards or brick veneer and what-not.

Before the carpenters arrived, this man looked through the lumber and found so many attractive designs in the natural grain of the wood that he set a big batch of boards aside to panel a den.

He had to order a little more No. 4 common to fill out his sheathing needs, but he wound up with a handsome den. He saved so much money on his den that he doesn't want it put in the paper. He says if he ever wants to sell his house he would just as soon have the purchaser decide for himself how much that fancy paneling job is worth.

"When appearance is a subject of specifications in procuring lumber," says P. A. Wedding, professor of civil engineering at the University of Maryland, "the question arises as to how best to word that specification. The presence of knots gives the surface an informal appearance that is appropriate for many interior finishes."

Even though knots give you a challenge in nailing, it can be more economical to shorten lower grades of lumber to conform to nailing requirements than to buy the much more expensive clear grades.

Ask the man who has a home workshop how he upgrades his lumber. Needing miscellaneous short lengths, he cuts out the portions he wants—either clear or with desirable markings. The discarded scraps come in handy for odd repair jobs.

One handyman bought lumber for four wall-hung bookshelves for $6.40. If he had bought a higher grade, it would have cost him $14.

Eppes To Have Two New Rooms

C.M. Eppes High School will have two new science classrooms when the fall term opens in September.

The classrooms are presently being constructed in an auxiliary building at the high school which has been used by the teenage-age club.

Some $5,000 worth of equipment will be installed in the new science rooms, one for chemistry and biology and one for physics and general science.

In other city schools, Superintendent J.H. Rose reports workmen are engaged in the customary summer painting and repairing. In addition, the schools will be refurbished as usual in preparation for additional enrollment in the fall. Rose said each year additional furniture for 200 to 250 youngsters has to be purchased, and this year he expects the net increase in pupil enrollment to reach 300 in all the schools.

It boils down to a case, say one source close to both the government and the royal house, of a man and a wife drifting apart. Since they are the royal couple they apparently cannot do anything except to make the best of it. Divorce or separation in the royal house is next to an impossibility.

But some contend that if the breach is not healed and resulting developments should affect the government, then the Queen would have to abdicate. That is considered a remote possibility.

Many feel that if the story had not been published the differences between the two might have quietly and finally resolved themselves. Dutch editors had faithfully suppressed the story.

One government spokesman says he is positive that Miss Hofmans has no ulterior motive. "The only objection, if it is one, is that her beliefs might at times border on the superstitious," he says.

Miss Hofmans has repeatedly

denied that she has any influence on the Queen.

Gordon T. Rowell (left), 24, and Robert F. Giebler, 27, are held at Elmhurst, N. Y., on charges of attempting to extort $5,000 from the heartbroken mother of kidnaped Peter Weinberger, and giving false information about the kidnaping. Police identified them as the men who made hoax telephone calls to Mrs. Beatrice Weinberger that she would find her kidnaped 4-week-old son in a church in Queens if she paid them $5,000 ransom. The calls sent Mrs. Weinberger on a fruitless search for the baby Sunday night. Both men are unemployed. Both are married and Giebler has three children. (AP Wirephoto).

Absence Of Ike Hampered Foreign Aid, School Plans

WASHINGTON (AP)—What a presidential illness means — in drift and lack of leadership — is illustrated by President Eisenhower's bleated efforts in behalf of his foreign aid and federal aid to education programs.

It's the performance of his own Republicans — the way they've thwarted him and sometimes led the parade in doing it. There's no mystery about why they want him to run again: he's the best insurance for their own re-election.

Those Republicans and Democrats who voted for the amendment could go back home at election time and tell the Negroes in their districts they did their best to keep segregated states from getting school aid money.

Shelley Winters Prefers Stage To Making Movies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Maybe all of the movie queens should take a season on Broadway—if they could come back as refreshed and stimulated as Shelley Winters.

"There's no real kick in doing pictures," she observed. "After you've finished the last scene, it's over."

Contrast In High Speed Presses

ASHTON, Idaho (AP)—Ralph Hunter, editor of the Ashton Herald, received a letter from Heber Hartvigsen of the San Diego Union, who published the first newspaper in Ashton, Hartvigsen wrote that the Union's presses could turn out 52,500 copies of a 96-page newspaper in an hour.

LANTERN LOST PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Emanuel Poulson still can't figure out how thieves made off with his antique bronze Japanese lantern. It weighed 2,000 pounds.

Ike Gets New Booster: Russia's Jacob Malik

By EDDIE GILMORE LONDON (AP)—Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik is an "Ike for President" booster.

"Have you heard the news?" asked Russia's envoy to Britain as he swept into a party last night given by Harry Hohler, British Foreign Office official.

Heads turned his way, awaiting some new pronouncement from the Kremlin.

"Sen. Knowland," said Malik, "has just announced that Ike is going to be a candidate. This is one news."

Someone asked him which roses. "Last year," Malik explained, "the mayor of Harrogate (England) sent me some cuttings. I planted them in my garden and you should see them! I call them my peace roses."

Another guest suggested that Britain is peaceful territory.

"That means they are growing on Soviet soil."

"There you go," said a guest who has known Malik for many years. "You are making propaganda."

A guest asked Malik for comment on British newspaper reports about Soviet Communist boss Nikita Khrushchev's intoxication at diplomatic parties.

"Come, come," said Malik, wagging a reproving finger, "naughty question."

Old Man Hunter Finally Retires After 20 Years

HALE CENTER, Tex. (AP)—J. Frank Norfleet, the man hunter, has retired.

"Of course, you have to tie him down," say members of his family.

He's 91 years old now. It was in 1919 that Norfleet was in Dallas, Tex. when a gang of swindlers got the $30,000 with which he planned to buy a ranch. He resolved to track down the members of the gang.

Over the United States and Canada he traveled. Two swindlers were taken into custody in Los Angeles. Another was captured in Georgia. A fourth was found in Salt Lake City, then another in Los Angeles.

Pitt Highways Paved In June

More than three miles of paving in Pitt County are included in the 9.75 miles of road work completed in the Second Highway Division by the State Highway Commission during June.

Commissioner Maynard Hicks of Snow Hill reports that during the past month in Pitt County, by contract, the two-mile road running from a point on N.C. 11 southward via Reedy Branch Church to a paved road was surfaced, 18 feet wide, with sand asphalt on a sand seal base.

In addition, work in Pitt included paving 1.4 miles from Stokes Negro School northwest to a paved county road just south of Oakley.

Other counties in the Second Division are Beaufort, Carteret, Craven, Pamlico, Greene, Jones and Lenoir. Division headquarters are in Greenville, and R. Markham is division engineer.

Weather Decides Bakery's Plans

CINCINNATI (AP)—Pastry chef Gene Vogel studies the weather forecasts to determine how he'll do his baking for the next day.

"If the weatherman says 'cold,' I bake extra coffee cake, doughnuts—other things that go with coffee."

"Warmer, I make fruit tarts, chiffon pies in greater quantity."

"Rain, I cut down on the bake shop production 30 per cent because not so many people come downtown when it rains and they don't like to carry packages."

Good Advertising

LONGVIEW, Tex. (AP)—A helicopter pilot gave a local barbecue stand some good advertising.

On a flight over the city, the 'copter suddenly faltered, then sat down on a vacant lot near the cafe.

"I smelled that hickory smoke up there and just couldn't resist it," the pilot said as he climbed up on a stool.

ENCHANTED HARBOR

By DOROTHY WORLEY

CHAPTER 13
Dr. Richard DEVEREAUX slowly drove his car to a stop as Priscilla came out of the house late the next afternoon.

"Why, hello!" She looked up with a friendly smile. "It's the doctor, again."

"I was in the neighborhood and saw you come out," he said pleasantly. "No more shrimp pains?"

"No pains at all. I feel wonderful. Their eyes met and held. "Better be careful a day or so longer. It takes a little while to get back to normal after such an attack."

"Oh I'm all right now," Priscilla assured him. "We're on our way to Maud's right now to get a steak."

"Broiled," the doctor said. "Have it broiled." He seemed on the verge of saying something else but Rita came out just then and he changed his mind. He said, "Instead, 'Good luck, then, and be careful.' He drove on.

"Wasn't that the doctor?" asked Rita.

"Yes," Priscilla's eyes were following his car. "He stopped to see how I was feeling."

"Do you suppose he makes a practice of going around after calls to see how his patients are feeling?"

"If I can't see him any other way," Priscilla said cheerfully, "I think I'll eat something I shouldn't."

"You really do like him, don't you?"

"Yes," Priscilla said, and Rita was a little troubled at the definition of that one word.

Later at Maud's, after they had given their order, Priscilla said in a quick little breath, "Don't look just now, but I think the doctor is standing by the telephone booth."

Rita looked discreetly and said, not entirely pleased, "It is. And Bill Duval is with him—" She broke off and whispered, "They're coming over here. You told Dr. Devereaux we were coming here, and it seems we're followed again."

The two men came up to the table and the doctor said pleasantly, "Having that steak?"

"Yes, Doctor. Broiled. And I'm famished." There was a lilt in Priscilla's voice.

Dr. Devereaux introduced Bill Duval. Then he said, "I happened to have a free evening—so far, at least—and Bill and I also felt inclined toward steaks. May we join you?"

His glance included them both, and Priscilla looked at Rita for an answer.

"Why not?" Rita said amiably. "Sit down and tell us something about your town."

It was soon apparent that the doctor's attention was mostly on Priscilla, leaving a clear field for Bill Duval with Rita. Rita was thinking, That was a little obvious. Bill Duval wants to talk to me. But why? The doctor isn't much interested in Priscilla. She had an uncanny intuition that Bill Duval wanted to talk to her for a purpose. She would have liked him, otherwise.

Priscilla and the doctor got up to dance.

Bill Duval lost no time in getting the conversation started. "I believe Dr. Devereaux said you were a writer."

Rita looked at him, her eyes veiled under the long, upcurling lashes. Instead of answering his question directly, she said, "I can't recall telling Dr. Devereaux that. Perhaps Priscilla did."

"And you're here for material?" He met her eyes squarely. "He had a very direct look."

She looked back at him just as directly. "There seems to have been plenty of material here in the past. Of course you know that a number of books have already been written about Apalachicola."

She took a cigaret from the pack he extended, leaned toward the lighter he had snapped open. Over the sudden golden flare, she said, her eyes not leaving his, "And what is your business here, Mr. Duval? You're not a native."

He put the lighter away. "No, I'm not a native. I'm having a holiday of sorts," he paused, "and looking around."

"Seems I've heard you're a writer, also."

Bill Duval's hesitation was perceptible. Then he said in an off-hand manner, "Oh—sports, that sort of thing." He changed the subject. "Plan to be here long?"

Rita lifted a shoulder in a tiny shrug. "A few days, possibly longer."

She was sure now that Bill Duval was trying to find out something, and with the irritation she had felt, there came amusement. She decided, I can play this game, too.

His next question came even more casually. "Didn't I see you and your friend at Lookout House?"

Matching his tone, she said, "Mr. Duval? Senior Alvarez, I

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW! By FAGALY and SHORTEN

"It's a picturesque old place, isn't it? I understand it was built before the War Between the States."

"Yes, the place has quite a history. Several of those old places around. Your name—Zerita—it's Spanish, isn't it?"

"Is it?"

"Then you're not Spanish?"

"I suppose my mother just liked the name." Again she did not answer directly.

He crumbled a cracker absently. "My mistake, then. I thought perhaps you were. Didn't I see you talking with the Spanish fellow, Alvarez, who owns the Silver Song?"

He hadn't, of course, because she hadn't been talking to Alvarez.

He waited for her reaction, thinking, She's clever. She knows I didn't see her talking to Alvarez and she's trying to find out something. And she doesn't bat an eyelash. He was already convinced, or almost, that she was not the person he was looking for, but why was he warning her? He found himself liking her.

Rita said, smiling a little, "That's a beautiful boat, isn't it, the Silver Song?"

"Yes," he said. "Quite a luxury yacht. To be anchored in a port like this. It belongs down around Miami or Nassau with others in its class. I haven't been on it, shrug. "A few days, possibly longer."

Instead of answering, she said, "I've heard he's going to have a big party on board, so perhaps we'll both see it. Maybe he's here for the fishing."

Bill lighted another cigaret and said, looking at her directly, "May be. I've seen him talking to one of those shrimpers."

"Are you interested in the man, Mr. Duval? Senior Alvarez, I mean, not the fisherman."

The question was so direct that for a moment it disconcerted him, but this was not apparent when he said lazily, "Let's say curious. Not many strangers stay around so long, especially those with private yachts."

"Isn't there talk of his building over on the Island? Or building a hotel here? Isn't Apalachicola supposed to be having a boom or something because of the prospective channel to the Gulf?"

Bill Duval shrugged. "I wouldn't say Alvarez was the type to be interested in a land boom anywhere—or a hotel, either."

"Well, I'm sure I don't know," Rita said vaguely, her tone indicating that she didn't care.

Lost Colony To Feature ECC Night Next Friday

East Carolina College Night as a special event during the 1956 production of The Lost Colony at Manteo will be observed on Friday, July 20.

Arrangements for the affair have been under way for some time, with General Manager Richard E. Jordan of The Lost Colony and Alumni Secretary James W. Butler of East Carolina College developing the program.

In a pre-performance program, beginning at 7:50 o'clock, a brief address will be made by Dr. J.D. Meeslek, ECC president, and a short musical interlude will be provided by East Carolina students who are members of The Lost Colony choir being directed by Dr. Elwood J. Keister of the college music faculty.

The Lost Colony is now in its 16th season and the dramatic production is being directed by ECC Alumnus Clifton Britton. A number of East Carolina alumni are associated with the current production.

East Carolina faculty, students, and alumni will have the privilege

It's a Great Time to Buy a Buick

(And at the Best Buy Yet!)

WHAT'S IN IT for you — if you step out and buy yourself a 1956 Buick right now? Well, first of all — the time is right. Right now, your present car is at its peak worth. And, with the whole summer and almost half of '56 still ahead of you, you'll get more enjoyment out of a spirited new Buick this year — if you buy now.

Second, there's the matter of how much more automobile your money buys in the best Buick yet.

We tell you flatly that nowhere but in a '56 Buick can you get so much bounty for so little booty.

It's one big reason why Buick now ranks in the top three of America's best-selling cars. Yet, you'll find it priced right close to the well-known smaller cars.

That sure makes Buick a whale of a lot of car for the money. And look: Nowhere but in a '56 Buick can you get the absolute smoothness and the electrifying performance of Buick's terrific new Variable Pitch Dynaflo.*

Nowhere else can you get the obedient responsiveness of Buick's big and mighty new 322-cubic-inch V8 engine. Or Buick's matchless new handling ease and ever-level ride buoyancy — or Buick's bold new sweep-ahead styling, and solidity of structure, and stretch-out roominess.

Add it all up and the answer comes out the same, any way you figure it: Now's the time to buy your 1956 Buick.

Will you come in — before another sun sets — and get set with your best buy yet?

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century — optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — The stock market was moderately lower early this afternoon after a selling flurry triggered an early rise.

Leading stocks exchanged their minor gains for losses ranging from fractions to around 2 points.

Volume for the day was estimated at around 2,500,000 shares compared with 2,520,000 yesterday.

Steels, motors and chemicals took the worst of the losses as profit-taking held sway following six straight daily advances on average.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic and Youngstown Sheet & Tube all slid fractionally to the downside after early trading left them virtually unchanged.

Chrysler led the motors downward with a drop of more than a point. Ford and General Motors were off fractionally.

Among the chemicals, Du Pont dropped around 2. Allied Chemical and Union Carbide were off a point or more.

Lukens Steel was ahead only a point after an early gain of better than 3 points today following its surge of yesterday on a sharply higher earnings report.

Coppers, which had shown gains of a point or so, tapered off to fractional gains and losses.

Among aircrafts, Boeing and Douglas were down about a point and a fraction while General Dynamics still clung narrowly to the upside.

Caterpillar fell a point or so following its recent big gains.

International Paper and Royal Dutch were 1-point losers. Long Bell Lumber, which rose 3/4 yesterday, held most of a 2-point gain today. U. S. Pipe & Foundry, heavily traded on a fractional gain at the opening, advanced a point.

West Virginia Pulp & Paper dropped 2 points at 60 on a single trade of 13,000 shares.

Rails showed a spattering of fractional gains and losses.

At noon the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down 60 cents at $196.50, with the industrials down $1.40, the rails down 20 cents and the utilities down 10 cents.

RALEIGH — (NCDA) — North Carolina fryers and broilers about steady, farm price 22, f.o.b. plant 23 1/4 to 23 3/4; Raleigh eggs steady, A large 42; Asheville eggs steady, A large 45.

Two Pitt Women At Bureau Meet

ASHEVILLE — Sixty-three North Carolina Farm Bureau leaders were among the more than 400 delegates attending a regional training school here this week for thirteen southern states and Puerto Rico.

Attending the four-day session from Pitt County were Mrs. Frances Cobb, Greenville, and Mrs. L.R. Jones, Farmville.

These leaders have occupied important roles in the development of the local Farm Bureau program during past years.

The training school, an annual midsummer event, was held last year in New Orleans, was designed to familiarize delegates with techniques in organizational methods.

Court Of Honor Held For Scouts

A Court of Honor was held last night by the St. James Methodist Church for the purpose of presenting awards to scouts of Troop 340.

Those receiving awards include: Star Scout, Rhett Honeycutt; Second Class, Chris Heller and Richard Paul; Merit Badges, Rhett Honeycutt—5, Lawrence Behr—4, and Stanley Bowers—1.

Also at the meeting last night final plans were set for a monthly camping trip to Harker's Island and Cape Lookout, and tentative plans were made for a trip to Mt. Mitchell.

Scouts will leave for Harker's Island in the troop bus Saturday at 6:30 a.m.

Weed Loan Rate To Average 48.9c

WASHINGTON — The average loan rate for this year's flue-cured tobacco crop is 48.9 cents per pound, the U. S. Department of Agriculture announced yesterday.

This is 90 per cent of parity and compares with last year's average of 48.3 cents per pound.

A minimum loan level of 45.2 cents per pound was announced by the Department April 18, but because the parity index has increased since then the higher rate becomes effective.

Demonstrate Concrete Boxes

The Department of Vocational Agriculture in Raleigh sponsored a demonstration of the pouring of concrete mail box posts by the Portland Cement Company yesterday afternoon in Grimsland.

The Raleigh Department feels that something needs to be done about the delapidated state of most rural mail boxes; thus they supported this project which intends to show farmers that these boxes are not only economical and long-lasting, but smart looking, too.

The total cost of the stand on which the box rests is five dollars. This includes labor. It is an individual stand with a round concrete base. The stand sits on top of the ground and may be rolled from place to place. Embedded in two sides of the post are the letters FFA. The arms which support the box may be either long or short according to what the mail carrier desires.

District Supervisor T. D. Elliott was in charge of the short ceremony that preceded the demonstration. There were 30 department members of vocational agriculture, each represented by an agriculture teacher, on hand for the concrete pouring. A few guests attended.

Scout Camporee Goes To Kinston

The 1957 Spring Camporee of the East Carolina Council, Boy Scouts of America, will be held in Kinston April 19-21, with Col. John Castlen, of Kinston, as camporee chief.

Announcement of the dates for this event came following a meeting of the Camporee Planning Committee in Greenville last night, with Col. Castlen in charge of the session.

Members of the committee include Sherman Parks, chairman of arrangements, of Greenville; Gene Maulsby, Jacksonville; Ethan Davis, Morehead City; C.H. Pruden, Windsor; Dorsey Nethery, Roanoke Rapids; Noel Lee, Jr., Pactivol; Norfleet Sugg, Pinebluffs; Myrlon Bissette, Kinston; T. L. Fitzgerald, Wilson; and Vernon Schriest, Rocky Mount.

Assisting in the planning conference were Erskin Duff, of Greenville; Council Scout Executive Ralph H. Mozo, Wilson; Field Executives J. B. Brookshire of Roanoke Rapids and Carl Knott of Greenville.

At the present rate of growth, the world population will double in the next 55 years.

happy vacations begin in a Chevy

You'll love to travel in it, because it loves to travel! When you get this Chevrolet out on the road, you'll want to keep going—and so will the whole family.

Of course, even in a Chevrolet the happiest vacations may involve one or two minor problems. Like fidgety small fry who want gallons of water and keep asking if you're almost there. The big things, though, are beautifully taken care of by this roomy Chevrolet's smooth and easy way of going. That's for sure.

The fact is, few cars at any price hold the road with Chevy's grace, with its solid feeling of stability. And with horsepower up to 225, Chevrolet moves out like a whiplash, for safer passing. It's no wonder that so many people who used to buy higher priced cars are changing to Chevrolet! Stop by soon for a ride.

America's largest selling car—2 million more owners than any other make.
