

Fifth And Sixth Cases Of Polio Reported In County

Fifth and sixth cases of polio in Pitt County were reported yesterday afternoon by the health director, Dr. Walter C. Humbert.

All the cases have been reported within the past ten days.

Latest victims of paralytic, or Bulbar polio, are a four-year-old Negro girl of Farmville, Route 2, and a two-and-one-half-year-old Negro girl of Bethel Route 2. Neither had been vaccinated.

The children were transferred this morning from Pitt Memorial Hospital to the Poliomylitis Convalescent Hospital in Greensboro where another Pitt County youngster is also hospitalized with paralytic polio. Two other young victims are being treated at Duke. One child, Lewis Mose of Farmville, died of polio last Thursday.

Break Own Legs In Protest Step

BUFORD, Ga. (AP)—Thirty-six prisoners broke their own legs with 10-pound sledge hammers yesterday in protest against working conditions at Rock Quarry State Prison, the "Little Alcatraz" of the Georgia penal system.

Jack Forrester, state director of corrections, said a prison doctor told him 29 white and seven Negro inmates shattered bones in their legs during an afternoon rest period at a rock quarry where they were working half a mile from the prison.

He said the men placed their legs on rocks and "started whacking away" with the sledge hammers, normally used to crush rock at the quarry. There were no cries of pain, he said.

Guards watching the 189 prisoners in the fenced-in quarry were taking a rest at the time and said they did not notice what had happened until they ordered the men back to work.

Warden Hubert Smith said the injured men told him after the incident that they felt their wheelbarrows were too heavily loaded, and the sun was too hot. Temperatures were reported in the low 90s at the time.

Rock Quarry prison was built in 1949. Forrester said it was used to house incorrigible prisoners and that men hard to handle were sent there from other prisons in the state.

Smith said that prisoners work from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. with half-hour breaks in the morning and afternoon, and a two-hour lunch break at noon.

The prison at Buford is in the north Georgia hills about 40 miles northeast of Atlanta.

One Immunized

Only one of the children had received the Salk anti-polio vaccine, a nine-year-old Negro boy of Winterville, who got one shot in the schools in the spring. His case is described as mild and non-paralytic.

Dr. Humbert has recommended that everyone from age six months to 20 years be immunized, as well as expectant mothers. The vaccine is available at the offices of private physicians or at the Health Department clinics in Greenville and Farmville.

The Health Department is keeping its offices in both Greenville and Farmville open from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. through Friday and from 8:30 a.m. until noon on Saturday to administer the anti-polio vaccine.

Previously only about 40 per cent of the eligible children had received even one or two shots, and only about 500 had gotten the complete series of three injections.

Dr. Humbert, analyzing the polio situation here this morning, said, "It is significant that, with the exception of the Farmville case, all the polio victims have been rural residents and four of the six are Negro."

Unvaccinated

"We knew the unvaccinated population of the county was in the rural areas, and we also knew the Negro rural population was the greatest group not immunized. On the basis of the county percentage, the city of Greenville has by far the greatest number of children immunized."

The health director declared that the scattered cases "mean to us the virus is everywhere in this area. The fact that the cases are so widely spread over the area means the virus is not concentrated in one particular spot."

"There must be a lot of healthy carriers and a lot of children who have had or are having 'sub-clinical' infection. This means they have been infected by polio virus and have sufficient immunity that the disease never gets beyond the severe cold, fever and upset stomach stage."

He said he didn't believe another area in the state had had this year such a "short violent explosion" of polio cases as Pitt. He stated there is about 35 per cent less polio over the state this year than last year at this time.

Dr. Ellen Winston, state welfare commissioner, explained yesterday that the number of needy persons needing hospital care has increased more than anticipated.

She asked the Advisory Budget Commission for an increase in state funds to take care of the situation. However, on Friday the commission turned down her request, saying that it was a matter for the Legislature to handle.

The state, counties and the federal government share in paying for hospitalization for the needy. A total of $175,000 in state funds is available for each year of the biennium. Dr. Winston wanted an additional $100,000 from the state's contingency and emergency fund.

Under the program, the state has been paying $1.50 per day, the counties $1.50 per day, and the federal government matches their total, paying $3.

If the state were to cut its amount to $1, and the counties to $1, then the federal government's share would be $2, or a total of $4.

During June, said Dr. Winston, claims under the program totaled $97,000, or a rate equal to $1,100,000 a year.

Since only $700,000 in state, federal and local funds are available, she said, "obviously the demand is exceeding the available funds."

She said the only alternative is to "get more state money or we will have to reduce the $6 per day to $4 or less."

Crash Is Fatal For 'Duster'

Veteran Pilot Reportedly Caught In Wind Gust, Crashes, Dies Monday

A Greenville crop sprayer who was killed when his plane crashed near Coleraine was evidently forced down by gusty winds that chased other sprayers into their hangars, according to reports made by investigators.

Josh L. Hazelton, 33, flying for R. F. MacLachlan and Sons, had made "two or three passes" on his crop-dusting mission in winds of 12-14 miles per hour with gusts. According to the investigators' report, the former Air Force pilot and flight instructor made a downwind turn and got caught in a gust. The gust caught his left wing and threw his aircraft into the ground. The force of the crash indicated that there was no engine failure of the aircraft, a crop sprayer with 320 hours of operational and flying time.

Hazelton was working on the Perry Farm, about an half-mile from the landing strip of Tom Holley, MacLachlan's representative in Coleraine. The crash occurred about a mile and a half from Coleraine.

Hazelton served during World War II with the Air Force and was discharged as a captain. He had been employed at Stallings Air Force Base in Kingston as a preliminary flight instructor prior to going to work with MacLachlan about a year and a half ago.

Dulles Ordered To London As British Alert Warships

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower is sending Secretary of State Dulles to London to confer with Britain and France about Egypt's seizure of the Suez Canal.

The White House announced today shortly after the President and Dulles had discussed Egypt's nationalization of the waterway.

The United States already is represented at the London talks by Dep. Under Secretary of State Robert Murphy.

Murray Snyder, assistant White House press secretary, read this statement to newsmen:

"In view of the importance of the matters being discussed in London between Foreign Ministers Lloyd and Pineau, the President has asked Secretary Dulles personally to take part in the concluding period of their talks, in which the United States is also represented by Dep. Under Secretary Murphy."

Selwyn Lloyd is Britain's foreign minister. Christian Pineau is the French foreign minister.

Asked whether Dulles would leave for London immediately, Snyder referred questioners to the State Department.

LONDON (AP)—Some British warship crews on leave in English ports were reported recalled today for readiness in case a show of force is ordered in the Suez crisis.

The Admiralty declined to confirm the report, which developed as British, French and American diplomatic leaders worked to build up steam behind the idea of an international control body to guarantee free movement of ships through the canal taken over by Egypt.

An Admiralty spokesman, asked about activity involving the aircraft carrier Ocean at Devonport, said, "Certain naval moves are being ordered."

Fresh talks developed between British and American naval authorities at Malta, the central Mediterranean naval base of British and Allied forces. Rear Adm. N. K. Dietrich, commander of nine forces of the U. S. Atlantic Fleet, arrived there by plane for two days of conferences.

The international control plan under discussion by representatives of the Western Big three in London, however, is authoritatively reported to keep military measures in the background out of deference to American caution in the situation.

One major problem was whether Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser would go along with such a proposal. Another was what part the Russians would demand in any control group.

Nasser kicked up an international storm Thursday when he announced Egypt had nationalized the key waterway, operated by a French-British company under a concession which had until 1968 to run. Russia applauded the Egyptian action.

Western experts continued to thumb their lawbooks, but so far could come up with no grounds for a legal challenge of the nationalization decree. Nasser said he would pay off the stockholders in the canal company at the market rate on Thursday. The British government is the biggest holder with 40 per cent of the shares.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau and U. S. Deputy Under Secretary of State Robert D. Murphy scheduled another meeting today on the canal question.

They already have held two days of emergency talks. Prime Minister Eden said their sessions should wind up by Thursday at the latest. Pineau made an overnight trip to Paris to confer with members of the French Cabinet.

After talking with French Premier Guy Mollet, Pineau told reporters a joint communique would be published, probably tonight, on the London conferences.

"We will do everything to set up an Arab regime for the canal," he added.

Sen. Mundt (R-SD), who has criticized Stassen's proposal to bypass Nixon, said the leave of absence "raises the possibility" that Stassen "won't return."

Mundt and Sen. Dvorshak (R-Iowa) agreed in separate interviews that it was a good thing for Stassen to leave the White House payroll while he plugs for Herter.

Sen. Allott (R-Colo.) termed the leave-taking "probably the best way to handle the situation."

"It will give Gov. Stassen a free hand to pursue the course he believes the right one, which he has a right to do," Allott said. "I do not happen to agree with him. I announced my support of Nixon for renomination at the time the President said he would seek another term."

Sen. Watkins (R-Utah) called it a wise move for Stassen to go on his own.

"The vast majority of Republicans throughout the country are sold on the ticket of Eisenhower and Nixon," he said.

'Go It Alone' Tag Applied To 30 Day Leave Granted Harold Stassen

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's grant of a 30-day leave to Harold E. Stassen was interpreted by some Republicans today as putting a go-it-alone tag on Stassen's drive to dump Vice President Nixon.

Stassen asked and received yesterday a month's relief from his job as presidential disarmament assistant to pursue his effort to replace Nixon with Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts as No. 2 man on the GOP ticket.

Eisenhower's granting of Stassen's request was subject also to the interpretation that Stassen was being encouraged in his effort, but no support for that view was voiced by any GOP sources available for comment.

Some high in administration counsels said they expect Eisenhower to repeat at a news conference tomorrow that he would be delighted to have Nixon as his running mate.

But they said they do not believe he will exclude other possible nominees since that might be regarded as an attempt to dictate to the Republican National Convention which meets less than three weeks hence.

The leave of absence for Stassen "to pursue certain political activities without involving his official position or the White House" was announced at Gettysburg, Pa., and Stassen said here a short time later.

"On Thursday, Aug. 2, I will make a further statement about my continuing endeavor to add strength to the Eisenhower campaign and to Republican congressional races through the nomination of an Eisenhower-Herter ticket."

Stassen did not elaborate. He indicated on his return from a 20-minute conference with Eisenhower at Gettysburg he has no intention of resigning. Twenty Republican House members suggested last week that he give up his post.

Murray Snyder, assistant White House press secretary, said at Gettysburg in response to a question that Stassen continues to be the President's disarmament assistant.

Asked if Stassen is going to leave later, Snyder said "I am not anticipating anything."

He said Stassen and his deputy, Amos Peaslee, will talk with Eisenhower at the White House later today about Stassen's official duties. At his home in Mantoloking, N. J., Peaslee said that apparently "I will take over Stassen's duties for as long as he is gone."

The 30-day period will expire about a week after the scheduled windup of the GOP convention at San Francisco.

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP Senate leader, declined to say during an MBS radio interview last night whether he thinks Stassen should resign or be dismissed, but he added:

"I certainly don't think he has helped Republican unity and I think it makes a very difficult situation if he continues as assistant to the President."

Knowland said he thinks Nixon will be renominated, possibly by acclamation.

Armed Red Chinese Force Crosses Burmese Frontier

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—Several hundred armed Chinese Communist troops today were reported to have crossed Burma's wild and mountainous northeast frontier along a 500-mile arc and advanced to 60 miles into Burmese territory.

Reports from the border area said the Reds crossed in small bands and occupied positions in a wide arc between Putao—Pt. Hertz—at the northern tip of the country, and Kunlong Ferry, on the Salween River south of the wartime Burma Road to China.

Prime minister Ba Swe met with Cabinet leaders and chiefs of the armed forces. The government was expected to lodge a strong protest with Peiping, with which it maintains friendly relations.

The Executive Committee of Ba Swe's party, the anti-Fascist People's Freedom League, was told there is a "threat to Burma's security."

Communist patrols have crossed the 1,000-mile, poorly defined border before but always have withdrawn after Burmese protests.

Peiping customarily blames errors of local border commanders. The latest crossings, however, appeared to be in considerably greater strength than previous incursions. They also followed reports from Burmese officials in the area that Chinese army units along the border have been reinforced with regular troops in recent months.

Because of the increased Communist activity across the frontier, Burmese army troops now are being sent to the area to replace or bolster the thinly strung border police.

Red China's embassy in Rangoon had no comment on the invasion report.

One report from the area quoted Red Chinese soldiers as saying they were searching for "machitsay," a plant believed to be a powerful antidote against snakebit and opium or alcohol poisoning.

Neutral Burma has acted infamously, but not intimate, manner toward its big Communist neighbor.

Relations between the two states are governed in theory by the "declaration of five principles" signed by Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai and former Burmese Premier U. Nu. The agreement calls for:

Respect for each other's territorial integrity and sovereignty; non-alignment; noninterference in each other's internal affairs; equality; and mutual benefit and peaceful coexistence.

The delegates also learned that though the death rate from TB has been cut 90 per cent in the last 15 years, the morbidity rate (the number of TB cases) has declined only 5 per cent or less.

It is still the leading killer in life's productive years.

Dr. Dressler said that although the disease rate now is only 1 per cent of the population, there are another 30,000 out of every 100,000 who have the bug, and are thus potential cases or spreaders of the disease.

Fire Trapped 12 In Nursing Home

PUXICO, Mo. (AP)—Fire swept quickly through the Reagan Nursing Home late last night and trapped 12 of the 13 residents, most of them in or beside their beds.

Nine of those who perished were 72 to 91. All were from Puxico, a nearby town. One was bedfast.

Only Mrs. Sherry Frederick, an elderly patient, escaped. Two men scrambled up to the roof of the front porch, broke out a window of her second-floor room and pulled her to safety.

The body of Mrs. Bertha Reagan, 55, who overhauled the old three-story building and opened her nursing home 21 months ago, was found in the first-floor kitchen. She apparently was trying to get out the back door but it was locked.

Her 7-year-old grandson, David Johnson, was found on the third floor.

All the others were on the second floor. One of them, Lois Rodgers, 30, entered as a patient yesterday.

Everyone in the house apparently was asleep when the fire broke out.

John Ryan, chief of the fire department at nearby Poplar Bluff, Mo., said he and Sgt. Jack Prater of the Missouri Highway Patrol found a hole burned in the ceiling above a sofa on the first floor. They theorized a smoldering cigarette had fallen on the sofa.

The flames were out of control when volunteer firemen got the alarm.

"The whole interior was on fire and flames seemed to be shooting clear to the third floor when I got there," said Jack Hart, a carpenter who was among the first on the scene.

Nine Congressmen Plan Inspect Swedish Liner In Probe Of Safety At Sea

NEW YORK (AP)—Nine congressmen will go to a Brooklyn dry-dock tomorrow to inspect the Swedish liner Doria, which was damaged in the collision with the Italian luxury liner Andrea Doria.

The congressmen, members of the House Merchant Marine Committee, will look over the liner Stockholm as the first step in a probe of safety at sea.

The two sleek modern ships collided in dense fog south of Nantucket Island, Mass., last Wednesday night. The 30,000-ton Doria plunged to the bottom of the Atlantic the next day. The 12,500-ton Stockholm struggled back to port here with a smashed bow.

In other developments yesterday:

1. The Italian Line said the Doria radar-tracked the oncoming Stockholm before the fatal crash. Capt. Piero Calamai said he himself watched the Swedish vessel approach on the radar screen. The line declined to say more about what happened on the Doria's bridge.

2. The Italian Line listed two known dead, 18 presumed dead and 29 unaccounted for among the Doria's 1,706 passengers and crew. Rescue vessels saved the rest. The line hopes many of the unaccounted for are safe and only failed to register in the confusion at the various piers where survivors debarked.

Two Stockholm crewmen died in the crash and three others are missing and presumed dead. The known or presumed dead total for both ships is 25.

Working Wives Require Rest

American wives certainly aren't a lazy lot! According to a recent survey made by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, about 107 million of them—or 27 per cent of all married women in the country—are actively engaged in the business world.

Since the majority of the working wives interviewed indicated that they have no household help, this means that they're actually holding down two jobs. That's why it's vitally important that they receive a sufficient quota of restful sleep every night.

Good sleep equipment is an absolute must in the case of the working wife if she is to perform her double duties efficiently and cheerfully. The relaxing slumber that enables mind and body to recoup their energy just can't be achieved properly on sagging, lumpy, or worn-out mattresses and bedsprings.

Official Washington Leaves For Various Vacation Points

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON — Justice and Mrs. Harold H. Burton will make their first visit to South America during the Supreme Court recess this summer. Every year since 1947 they have gone to Europe.

Most of the trip will be by air "to get a bird's eye view of the sights that are beautiful," Mrs. Burton explained. "The places we like best we can revisit another time for a longer stay." They will be gone until the last of August.

"By then some 300 to 400 cases will have come in to the court, and the Justice will have to settle down to studying them," Mrs. Burton told me. The Burtons are traveling alone. Their two sons, two daughters, six granddaughters and three grandsons, most of whom live around Cleveland, they saw at family clambakes before leaving. "We're traveling simply as Selma and Harold Burton, and no one where we go will feel he has to do any official entertaining for us," the Justice's wife explained. "We're traveling light so we can keep moving from place to place as we wish."

Justice and Mrs. Sherman Minton also expect to travel. They plan to visit England, Scotland, the Scandinavian countries, Germany, Luxembourg and France. Their daughter, Mrs. John Callanan, married to a dentist and mother of four boys, and their son, John, who is with the Department of the Interior, live in Washington. Another son, Dr. Sherman Minton Jr., married and SHADES OF 1959 . . . Undefined waistlines and hip belts identify these new fall dresses designed by Larry Aldrich. That Flapper is loose again—this time romping through the fall fashion collections.

Designer Larry Aldrich gives her top billing in his new lineup of ladylike clothes, which will arrive in the nation's stores after Labor Day. But the 1956 flapper somehow looks better than her 1925 counterpart. She has a new sophistication, new refinement—and she doesn't roll her stockings.

Although some of the dresses in the Aldrich collection are completely without a waistline and belted at the hips, the figure beneath still is evident. There is no flat-chested look here, and the sheer fabrics used tend to cling in the right places.

Aldrich calls it the "gentled" look for fall—no exaggeration, no nipped waists, no skin-tight skirts—rather a free-falling silhouette allowing the body to move within the clothes.

The look is strictly feminine, done in luxurious fabrics, with fine detail in trimmings and much concentration on lace, embroidery and jeweled touches.

"5 Ways To A Perfect Fit" At 5 Points

One-Woman Show Termed Hit

By GEORGE E. PERRY

It takes a lot of "something" to be able to appear on a stage and with a solo dramatic act hold an audience and entertain them for over an hour. Cornelia Otis Skinner and Ruth Draper have tried it and succeeded, and so has Mary Hutchinson, as was evidenced last evening in Austin Auditorium when she appeared before a moderate but responsive audience. It was a thoroughly likable, enjoyable show from the beginning, easy to take, and fun to watch. Miss Hutchinson has a very flexible voice which she knows how to use to advantage. She knows how to use a stage, too, no mean task when you're entirely alone. But her charming personality and insight into human character plus her ability to portray convincingly the many facets of a human character seem to be her principal attributes. She depicted each of her portrayals in a very believable manner, switching with ease from one type of speech to another.

Her program opened with a scene from Sheridan's play, "School for Scandal," in which she depicted Lady Teazell's morning dispute with her husband. There was a nice underlining of the cleverest of the lines, with a generous dash of flirtation. Lacking, however, was the traditionally extreme British accent. But this was the only number of the evening wherein the voice didn't fit the characterization to a T.

As Miss Hutchinson disappeared behind a screen to change for her next number, during which time, by the way, she held the evening together by a continuous flow of explanation, the audience was treated to something a bit unusual. For, silhouetted against the back curtain was the figure of Miss Hutchinson, going through the various contortions of a rapid costume-change. Not that it detracted; rather it gave a visual aspect to the spoken line she maintained. Twice during the evening, she slid the screen aside as she finished her make-up, and we saw her putting on the final touches as she concluded the introductory remarks, all of which showed her flair for originality.

The remainder of the show was a series of original characterizations which were very amusing as well as convincing. An Irish character's "reincarnation" was full of warmth and pathos as well as humor; the French war-bride on the train was sparkly and "delicious"; the New Hampshire spinster was quaint and lovable; Pearl's account of having seen the opera "Ida" was hilarious (and did not offend me as she said it might), as was her encore, "Rolie's reply to Pearl," which was a tickle-in-the-ribs of classic ballet. Here Miss Hutchinson showed that she could dance as well, and more often than not, reminded one of Iva Kitchell, that incomparable dance satirist. But not only in this number did she move well; throughout the whole program her use of the bodily gestures added meaning to her words.

Miss Hutchinson's cleverness and originality were the spring-boards of a very enjoyable evening, and again the Entertainment Committee needs to be commended for bringing good numbers on the summer series.

Mrs. Rouse Shower Honoree

GRIFTON—Mrs. Sallie Johnson and Mrs. Joe Price were joint hostesses on Wednesday night at an informal party and stork shower for Mrs. J. W. Rouse. The party took place at Mrs. Johnson's home.

For the evening, the home throughout was decorated with a variety of summer flowers. The gift table was centered with miniature replicas of the stork and baby shoes, filled with small garden flowers.

The refreshment table was covered with a lace cloth over pink and held an arrangement of pink and white carnations and fern in a Venetian glass epergne. On arrival, guests were served dainty party sandwiches, cake and iced tea.

The guest of honor was the recipient of many gifts from the assembly.

Try Diet Plan That Makes Sense

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
DO YOU KNOW THE VIRTUES of a reducing diet that makes sense? We recommend that you heed the advice offered in the "Eat-Well Diet Book" by Charlotte Adams (hard cover, Random House; soft cover, Maco). Long after faddist diets have come and gone, we hope this reasonable approach to surplus weight will go on.

There need be nothing grim about weight-watching. On Mrs. Adams' plan "you eat the foods you've always known and loved, only not so much of them." She says: "Perhaps at the start you have to cut out a few items which you can take back with restraint later. But unless you have some radical problem, you can lose weight on whatever are perfectly normal foods for you, provided you are careful to keep your diet balanced."

Here then are the foods you should eat every day: milk (whole or skim); vegetables (green or yellow); fruits (at least two kinds, one a citrus fruit or tomato); an egg (or at least three to five a week); meat, fish, poultry or cheese (one or more servings); cereal or bread; fat (as much as your doctor allows—part may be in your whole milk). These foods give you needed protein, vitamins and minerals.

Notice that phrase—as much as your doctor allows. No one should make a serious attempt to lose weight without a doctor's check up.

Along with a concise and clear explanation of diet principles and a 30-day diet, the "Eat-Well Diet Book" includes many recipes. We particularly like the chapter on first courses—appetizers and soups that are good to eat, easy to fix.

Weight-watchers are advised to use unthickened varieties of soup. But if occasionally a canned cream-type soup would be enjoyed, it's suggested that these be diluted with water instead of milk or cream.

One of the pleasant things about serving soup is that the course can be easily adapted to the whole family. Offer a water-diluted cream soup to weight-watchers. Then add some butter pats for non-dieters so they can enrich their portions. Snacks with the soup? Choose from celery, scallions, radishes, carrot strips, cauliflowerets, crisp rye wafers for weight-watchers. Nondieters can gorge themselves on fat-rich crackers. A cottage cheese dip will serve both varieties of eaters.

One of the cream-type soup recipes suggested in the "Eat-Well Diet Book" is made from a base of canned condensed green pea and tomato soups plus interesting seasonings. We adapted this soup so it could be served cold in warm weather; here's our version.

COLD SOUP MONGOLE
Ingredients: 1 can (10½ ounces) condensed tomato soup, 1 can (10½ ounces) condensed green pea soup, 2 cups cold water, 1-4 cup cooking sherry, ½ teaspoon celery salt, ½ teaspoon onion powder, 1 teaspoon curry powder, minced scallions.

Method: Using a rotary beater (hand or electric) or a whisk, beat condensed tomato and pea soups, water, sherry, celery salt, onion powder and curry powder together. Refrigerate several hours or overnight to blend flavors and have icy cold. Serve sprinkled generously with minced chives. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Old And New Combined In Modern Rooms

"We are borrowing concepts of architecture, furnishings, fabrics and colors from the world," says decorating authority Mrs. Elsie Doty Sopp, A. I. D.

Mrs. Sopp attributes this cosmopolitan attitude in modern homes to accelerated travel and a wish for richness as well as functionalism in our dwellings.

"That doesn't mean that the old or the exotic is not functional," she insists. "Many of the forms of antique than the boxy or almost inhuman molds of some so-called 'modern' designs."

"We have rediscovered the beauties and qualities of wood in furnishings, as many modern architects have discovered in building," says this imaginative interior decorator. "And along with the trend of mixing contemporary with traditional, we are faced with the problem of tying historical eras together in our walls and large areas."

Natural wood paneling has long been considered a luxury beyond the reach of most homeowners, says this popular western decorator, but in today's home that is not necessarily true. Some of the western softwoods such as Douglas fir, west coast hemlock and western red cedar, though costly in appearance, may well be more nominal than many other wall coverings, which need more frequent repair and alteration.

These woods, in their neutrality of coloring, allow the artist's imagination to run rampant in interior colors and furnishings, Mrs. Sopp points out. They may also be finished in keeping with an all-over period theme with such devices as artificial antiquing with paint stains.

They may also be painted, and re-painted, as tastes and fashions change in home decoration. But the natural beauty of grain and hue of these woods on your walls allow a capriciousness in fabric and furniture alteration without the added cost of having to do the whole room over when you want a new slip cover or some different drapes.

Vehicle-Purchases Appear 'Sound'

Further study of the purchase of ten vehicles by the county strengthens the conviction that the Board of Commissioners have made a major step toward tightening the economy of county operation.

Two weeks ago, the commissioners authorized the purchase of the vehicles for $16,317.83. They should be available before the end of August. Five of the cars will be used by the Sheriff's Department, two will go to the Tax Department, and the other will be assigned to the Health Director. The two trucks which complete the purchase will be used by the two county dog wardens.

In the hard matter of dollars and cents, the commissioners figure they cannot help but save the county money. Last year, for instance, the same people who will use the new county-owned vehicles drew $13,070.19 as compensation for using their private vehicles in pursuit of official duties. They were reimbursed at the rate of seven cents a mile and it is inevitable that as the scope of county operations expands, more traveling is going to become necessary.

As an example of how Nash County is saving money in a similar situation, their commissioners operated five cars in the Sheriff's Department during a "typical" month for $271. The cars were driven 11,685 miles and the cost per mile to the county was approximately 2.3 cents. Even with the approximated depreciation of the vehicles added, the county had a cost per mile of only 3.4 cents. That was in the Sheriff's Department only, a department that cost Pitt County

Nash County operates seven cars and two trucks. During a "typical" month last year, it cost the county $378.06 for operating them. Pitt County, on the other hand, paid seven cents a mile to the persons who will use the ten new county-owned vehicles and an average month cost the county $1,089.18 in mileage fees.

The new cars and trucks should pay for themselves within the next two years. Having a mechanic available at all times should keep the vehicles in good operating shape. Gas, oil, lubricants and spare parts can be purchased at state contract prices, creating a new area of savings.

The action by the commissioners reflects a recognition that by acting on small items, unnecessary expenditures can be reduced to the point where tremendous savings can be effected when the budget as a whole is considered.

The rapid growth of Pitt County and the continuing expansion of the budget make it mandatory that unnecessary expenditures be eliminated. The commissioners have made another thoughtful step in that program with the purchase of county-owned vehicles.

Miracle Accompanies A Tragedy At Sea

In a tragedy there is often an accompanying miracle.

Such is the case in the worst sea disaster since the sinking of the Titanic. The Italian luxury liner Andrea Doria lies in a watery grave 45 miles off the Massachusetts coast, and with her some 30 to 40 persons who were a part of her passengers and crew.

In the vast expanse of the Atlantic, it is little short of a miracle that the collision of the two vessels occurred at a spot where sea and air rescue was possible so quickly. It is little short of a miracle that the Stockholm remained afloat to pick up survivors in the Andrea Doria and that a host of other ships were in the immediate vicinity to answer the distress call quickly and minimize the loss of life.

It was not so when the Titanic went down. Her distress signals were not heard, and there were no ships nearby which rushed to the rescue.

Within five hours after the collision of the Andrea Doria and the Stockholm, all but a handful of senior officers had been taken off the sinking ship. Under other circumstances it may have taken twice that many hours for the first rescue vessel to reach the scene of the collision. The calm sea likewise made rescue operations easier and likely meant the difference of life and death for literally hundreds aboard the stricken ship.

The loss of life, the loss of the pride of the Italian fleet, will sadden the hearts of thousands upon thousands of people. Yet we should be thankful for the miracles which accompanied the disaster, making possible the rescue of hundreds upon hundreds of persons who otherwise would now rest in the watery grave with the Andrea Doria.

Stassen Is A Wise Old Veteran Of Politics

The big question in political circles is, Has Harold Stassen over extended himself this time?

Don't jump to conclusions.

Stassen is an old timer at this game of politics. He knows which side the bread is buttered on. He knows what measures or retaliation are taken against those who challenge party leadership and then fail to have sufficient backing to make good the challenge. He's been around long enough to see top echelon party officials go off on a tangent, irritate enough people and wind up low man on the totem pole.

He's also seen it work the other way when the challenger plans carefully, lays the groundwork for his move and then adroitly carries out his plans.

At least on the surface this time, it looks as if Stassen has talked when he should have been listening. His attempt to remove Nixon as the GOP vice presidential candidate and put in his place Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts has caused a tidal wave of criticism to be leveled toward Stassen. For the moment at least it appears that Stassen may be forced to give up his job in the Eisenhower administration and likewise be stripped of his position of leadership in the Republican party.

But as we said before: don't jump to conclusions. Stassen has been in politics long enough to learn the ropes. His latest, unexpected move could make him either prince or pauper so far as the GOP is concerned. Many Republicans are in sympathy with the move to replace Nixon on the GOP ticket at the coming convention. Others are indignant at the affront to President Eisenhower who made it clear he doesn't want his fair-haired boy shuttled aside.

Only time will tell whether Stassen is a king-maker or a man who went too far out on a limb.

Five Days Regarded As Making History

By LYN NISBET

HISTORY — The 1956 extra session of the 1955 General Assembly is now history. For weeks before it convened editors, educators and radio commentators referred to it as a probable history-making session. Changes are that for years to come it will be classed as history.

During the five-day period the legislators were here few of them gave evidence they were conscious of the historic import of their meeting. They had a job to do and they did it—exactly as administration leaders and sponsors of proposed legislation had planned. Long time observers of educational progress in North Carolina doubt that the constitutional amendment submitted and implemented, legislation was any more significant than previous actions when the State assumed full responsibility for maintaining public schools in 1953 and consolidated control in a central Board of Education in 1941 and 1943.

The extra session just concluded was unique in one respect. It was more thoroughly controlled by the executive department than any Legislature in the past half century, regular or extra. Because the Governor of North Carolina does not have veto power over bills enacted by the General Assembly, the chief executive has exercised through the years large influence over legislation before its enactment. Legislatures have relied upon device and counsel of the Attorney General and upon recommendations of study commissions appointed by the Governor to greater degree than in most states.

Never before had the chief executive gone to such lengths as in this instance to condition legislators through briefing sessions at the Governor's Mansion in the spring and at regional conferences in secluded places during the summer. At no time, so far as your reporter can learn, either at the pre-primary conferences at the Mansion or the post-primary briefing sessions at other points, did Governor Hodges assume to dictate policy. He did ask for co-operation. And he got it.

CAMPAIGN — Largely because of these pre-session briefings the members of the General Assembly in extra session went along with the program outlined by the Governor and his advisory committee on education. Full opportunity was given everybody in and out of the Legislature to present their views for or against the program. At times it seemed that the leaders were leaning over backwards to give opponents unusual advantages. Despite the hearings and the free expression of opinion there was general opinion that the die had been cast, that the advisory committee proposals were certain to be enacted into law.

Substantial part of the campaign effort will be to "get out the vote." The Carolina Times, Negro paper published in Durham, last week urged Negroes to keep hands off the affair, both in Legislature and at the polls. This week the editor apologized and said he had received hundreds of protests. It is understandable that majority of the professed leaders among Negroes oppose the plan. Some concern was voiced that they might seek to register large blocks of the people to vote against the amendment.

Dr. W.D. James, senator from Richmond County, put in words what seems to be rather common sentiment. "I'm not worried about the election," he said. "We've already had one election on this subject. Governor Hodges made this plan the main issue in the primary—and he was nominated nine to one over three opponents."

Other Editors Are Saying... Who Speaks For The FTA?

(Lexington Dispatch)

The State Congress of Parents and Teachers has voiced objections to Governor Hodges' local option tuition grants school program. This is the PTA's committee plan now being studied in a special session of the State Legislature.

Mrs. John C. Crawford of Raleigh, president of the State PTA group, says that the PTA executive committee opposes the plan because the proposals "appear to be dangerous." She adds that the executive committee has "the authority" to take this stand in behalf of the State PTA membership of 276,000.

This action led to newspaper headlines reading "State PTA Opposes Pearsall Plan," indicating, with no proof whatsoever, that at least a majority of the 276,000 PTA members were of this opinion.

It is our belief that such is not the case. The only fair means for determining the wishes of the PTA would be a poll of the membership. Certainly no such poll has been conducted in this area, and a few telephone calls bring us the information that even the presidents of the various PTA organizations in local schools were not contacted. As a matter of fact, the opinion of the president of the PTA Council here was not sought.

One local PTA official said that, before the Pearsall plan was made public, she received mailed material from State PTA

Enjoying Their Trip Abroad

Two Greenvilles touring Europe this summer are Marty Hadley and Helen Stokes, and from them we relay this recent missile:

Night Ferry enroute from London to Paris

"So many things have happened that we hardly know where to begin, but first—please excuse this scratching, but it's pretty hard to write legibly on this wobbly train. We're on our way to Dover where we take the ferry across the channel and on to Paris.

"During the past three weeks we've covered much of Great Britain—from the Southern coast of England up through the Lake District to the highlands of Scotland. London has been our headquarters, and of course we've seen the usual sights—Westminster Abbey, Tower of London, debate in the House of Commons, etc., but far more interesting have been our weekend visits in private homes in South Devon and Inverness. Last weekend we were entertained royally in the home of Lady Malcolm Douglas-Hamilton (the Queen Mother's first cousin!) who lives in the highlands of Scotland. We had a picnic on the Firth of Forth, had tea at the Earl of Moray's Castle, and even attended a real reel dance—with kilts and bagpipes.

"The highlight of our trip, however, was Her Majesty's Garden Party at Buckingham Palace Thursday afternoon. We wondered how we went if with 8,000 guests there we'd even get a glimpse of the royal family, so you can imagine our surprise when we were close enough to touch the Queen, the Duke of

Notebook On Life

The Hot Dog And Its History

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — In a troubled time in which Nasser holds the Suez Canal and the New York Giants are in last place, let us pause, and honor one symbol that stands unchanged.

It is the hot dog, the hungry man's best friend.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce named July as National Hot Dog Month, and it would be a doggone shame if we let August dawn without paying melodious need to America's favorite delicacy.

The hot dog is, narrowly speaking, no more an American invention than the motor car or ice cream. But, like them, it has become recognized now, everywhere—except possibly in Russia—as peculiarly typical of our culture.

The ancestor of the hot dog is the sausage, and the sausage is older than recorded history.

It was undoubtedly broiled by the Greek troops besieging ancient Troy, because blind Homer in the 9th Century B. C.

wrote:

"As when a man hears a great glowing fire turns to and fro a sausage, full of fat and blood, so to and fro Odysseus tossed, and pondered how to lay hands upon the shameless slaves."

There are almost as many kinds of sausages as there are nationalities. But the modern hot dog, according to culinary scholars, springs from the frankfurter, developed by a forgotten genius in the 16th Century in Frankfurt, Germany.

It is also generally accepted that the frankfurter first won popularity in America at Coney Island, where it was introduced by Charles Feltman, a German immigrant, in 1871.

He put out an all-beef product. Other Coney Island hawkers, quick to try to cash in on his success, began peddling adulterated franks that seemed to have in them everything from chicken feathers to ground up mattress stuffing. Reform elements set up a hue and cry.

Quick to seize on this new political issue, Boss Tweed slapped a $200 license fee on the vendors, and Police Capt. Elias Clayton was given the task of "finding" out what breed of dog went into the making of frankfurters."

This slighting reference to the possible canine content of frank-

DON'T BE AFRAID

A college student who had failed miserably in a final examination was explaining it to his professor.

"I really knew most of the material," he said, "but when I was reading over the exam at the beginning and came to the last question, when I became panicked, I answered a certain part of that question. When I became panicked, and could not remember the things that I really did know."

Don't ever let the fear of what you cannot do prevent you from doing what you can. Fear of failure is at the heart of many psychological problems. It can be a crippling paralysis, spreading from one area of your life to another, so that fear of your inability to accomplish one thing, makes you unwilling even to attempt anything else.

Fear of failing to achieve the goals we have set may be the greatest cause of that failure. And it is an unnecessary cause. In one sense, we all, as humans, must expect to fail often. Perfection is not compatible with our mortal, fallible nature. Of course we shall often fall short. Imperfection is part of our life.

Don't be afraid to set high goals, therefore, and don't be afraid to attempt to reach them. Having them is more important than reaching them; trying, more important than succeeding. Don't be afraid!

WHAT'S THE SIGNIFICANCE?

As a rule, the public increases its spending when it has confidence in a continuance of high employment, wages and profits, and when it is afraid of either shortages or of inflation. It tends to spend more when it is uneasy about continued prosperity or when it is confident that goods will be plentiful and that the dollar will maintain its purchasing power.

It is difficult to say just which factors are at work at present. There are no fears of shortages and few fears of immediate inflation. However, the long-brewing threat of the steel strike may have created an uneasiness, and the fact that many families have enough autos and appliances for the time, or have extended their credit close to the limit, may also have bearing.

Senators Failed To Realize The Point

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Nonappreciative and nonjitterbugging Senate elders have curtailed a cultural program which has been credited with popularizing the United States among foreign peoples who enjoy no direct or immediate benefits from our billions in economic and military aid. It has been described as the single native American development which most appeals to them—namely, jazz and jazz bands.

The committee said the Washington board feels the Pearsall plan, which the executive committee of the State PTA Congress is opposing.

The resolution said the Washington board feels the Pearsall plan is a perfect solution but all members of the board feel it is the best plan yet offered. In a discussion, members said they felt a plan proposed by the state PTA group does not offer a solution to the segregation problem.

The PTA has served and will continue to serve a vital role in schools all over the state. Such an organization does not deserve to be headed by individuals inclined to believe that their own thinking must be that of the future group.

abroad long before Columbus discovered America.

As the foreign tours of so many swing bands have revealed, it is their infectious, spontaneous and brave music which gave these people the idea that Americans are merely a grasping, grubbing and materialistic race of barbarians.

Nevertheless, although the money asked for creating popular rather than official good will was only $2,500,000, the Capital Hill killjoys cut it to $1,500,000. Fifteen cents a head, the committee said, could be sent singing around the world for the amount saved by the "otherwise" spendthrift Congress.

GILLESPIE POPULAR AROUND — The fight on the appropriation was led by Senator Alexander J. Ellender of New Orleans, one of the many birth places of this indigenous brand of music.

The success of the latest tour of this kind—the Gillespie band—was recently told in an issue of the Saturday Review of Literature. Sponsored by the State Department after a careful period of training, and at a cost of only $92,500, it made an unqualified hit and deep impression in eight Middle East and Balkan countries, where anti-American sentiment has been stimulated by Communist propaganda.

The Gillespie troupe were mobbed everywhere they played, by officials and so-called intellectuals as well as the more popular classes. They could not satisfy the hunger for their music. Local militia had to prevent audiences and street throngs from mobbing the musicians with demands for prolonged playing.

PEOPLE WANT EXAMPLES — Marshall W. Stearns, who accompanied the band, gave this explanation in a Saturday Review article for the wildly enthusiastic response of native audiences:

"They definitely associated jazz with the cheerful, informal and generous side of American life and they were bowled over by its spontaneity and vitality. The stereotype notion that jazz is lowbrow never got in the way of their enjoyment. Their admiration for the United States (This was in Yugoslavia.

Savings Up Again For John Doe

By ELMER ROESSNER

Assuming you are an average American, your financial attitude is undergoing a change.

Although your income is higher than it has ever been, you are spending less of it and saving more than you did last year. You aren't running so deeply into debt, but you are still "taking on more installments than you are paying off. And you are using more of your savings to invest in stocks—or to dabble in the market.

These conclusions come from government and private statistics. Frankly, not all of the statistics are sharp and clear.

For example, Commerce Department figures indicate that savings in the first quarter of this year were at an annual rate of $18.2 billion, or slightly less than the rate of $18.8 billion in the last quarter of 1955. The Commerce figures indicate savings of about $4.5 billion in the quarter.

SEC DISSENTS

On the other hand, the Securities and Exchange Commission says savings in the first quarter were $5 billion, the largest savings in any three-month period since 1952.

However, Commerce gets its figures by estimating income and then subtracting taxes and spending, assuming the remainder is saved. The Commerce formula counts installment and mortgage payments as "savings."

The SEC figures are based on reports to the agency. However, it counts personal trust funds and nonprofit foundations as "individuals," which seems to cloud up matters because these organizations ordinarily sock away a lot of their income in bonds and investments.

Despite the fuzzy fringes to the data, there seem to be good reasons for believing the average American is tucking more stuff away. While total retail sales have shown gains, the gains are fairly proportional to the rise in income, and there has been a sharp drop in purchases of autos and certain appliances. Housing sales have also declined noticeably.

Consumer cautiousness is also suggested by smaller rises in consumer credit. It went up $331,000,000 in May, compared with $636,000,000 in May, 1955. The biggest change was in automobile loans, but even change accounts rose less than a year ago.

EVIDENCE OF SAVINGS

During the first three months of the year, the SEC found the public purchased $300,000,000 worth of U.S. Savings Bonds, $2.8 billion in other government securities, $600,000,000 in state and local obligations, $300,000,000 in corporate bonds and $50,000,000 in corporation stocks.

That purchase of "other government securities" emphasizes the fact that the SEC date does not reflect individual action very well. Surely most of that buying was done by institutions.

Despite that fact, the rise in savings is shown by other figures. Deposits in the nation's 527 mutual funds, for example, increased to $513,000,000 in the first quarter, somewhat less than a year ago. Deposits in April came up even with April, 1955, and in May they were 29 per cent ahead of the same month last year.

The same pattern appeared in savings and loan association deposits, with a sharp rise in May and, on the basis of preliminary figures, another large gain in June.

As a rule, the public increases its spending when it has confidence in a continuance of high employment, wages and profits, and when it is afraid of either shortages or of inflation. It tends to spend more when it is uneasy about continued prosperity or when it is confident that goods will be plentiful and that the dollar will maintain its purchasing power.

It is difficult to say just which factors are at work at present. There are no fears of shortages and few fears of immediate inflation. However, the long-brewing threat of the steel strike may have created an uneasiness, and the fact that many families have enough autos and appliances for the time, or have extended their credit close to the limit, may also have bearing.

Acquitted Of Child-Molesting

VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP)—A jury has acquitted former boxer Buddy Baer of one count of child molestation and another of lewd vagrancy. Two other charges of child molestation were dismissed earlier yesterday by Judge Kenneth L. Holaday on motion of Baer's attorney.

The charges against the 41-year-old actor, singer and brother of former heavyweight champion Max Baer, was brought by two 10-year-old girls and one 12 years old.

Baer denied the charges through out the trial and maintained it was a case of mistaken identity. He testified he was working on a television film the afternoon of June 27, when the offenses were alleged to have occurred. James R. Nicholson, an assistant director, corroborated Baer's testimony.

Potato chips are gold. Twelve per cent of the 1955 potato production in the U.S. was sold as potato chips.

C-of-C Has Host Of Key Activities

(Third in a series).

Three important phases of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce work are its activities relating to legislation and national affairs, transportation and appointed each year to direct the various programs.

This year E. S. Webb is serving as chairman of the Legislation and National Affairs Committee whose duties are to call attention of the membership to proposed legislation whether national state or local, to study such legislation and its effects and to encourage interest in government.

Charles A. White is vice chairman of this committee and other members are Wyatt Brown, J. Preston Corey, Louis S. Ficklen, B. D. Johnston, E. Hoover Taft, Jr., James A. Taylor and J. Edmund Waldrop.

Examples of the Chamber's activities in this area are its protest of a bill in the State Legislature last year which would have repealed the North Carolina "right to work" law. The Chamber requested Pitt County's legislative delegation to oppose the measure and also cooperated with the DeMille Foundation in its efforts to secure passage of "right to work" laws in other states.

The Chamber also opposed passage of a bill in the State Legislature requiring all papers offered for recording to carry the name or names of persons preparing the paper.

Further, the membership was informed of various legislation in the U. S. Congress relative to the Fair Standards Labor Act and income taxes.

This year's projects include requesting legislation to permit zoning one mile beyond the city limits to promote orderly growth of areas which may come into the city, and proposing an ordinance for the city and county regulating pest control work and operators.

Activities of the Transportation and Communications Committee deal with air, highway, railroad and water. This committee, which encourages expansion and improvement of transportation and communication facilities in the county, is composed of W. W. Speight, chairman; T. W. Rivers, vice chairman; W. L. Allen, James W. Butler, A. Hartwell Campbell, C. W. Harvey, Jr., Dr. J. D.

Messick, N. O. Van Nortwick, Jr., J. Vance Perkins and Dr. Allen Taylor.

One of this group's big projects this year is to back the Eastern Carolina Airport Authority in obtaining adequate air service for this area. Activities also include promotion of a motor freight terminal and better motor freight service, and endorsement of a Roanoke River Bridge between Williamston and Scotland Neck to connect the Greenville, Bethel, Robersonville area with the Aulander-Ahoskie area.

Other Activities
The committee is also making a survey of current utilities rates and telephone service in Greenville, working for the extension of U.S. Highway 13 through the city, promoting the re-establishment of water transportation on Tar River and cooperating with the N. C. Coastal Marine Council for the development of inland water ports and water resources.

The Chamber also cooperates in street and highway safety projects.

Among its 1955 services the committee lists a protest of the removal of drawtenders on the Washington and Grimesland bridges, which would have required 24 hours notice by river traffic using the Tar River channel, and a request to the U. S. Army Engineers to survey the Tar River from Washington to Greenville to determine need for snaggings to remove shoaling and fallen trees resulting from hurricanes in the area, obstructing flow and causing hazards to river traffic.

Promoting educational projects in the city is the job of the Education Committee, headed by F. Badger Johnson, Jr. Members of his group include Charles B. Bissette, C. E. Blair, Dr. E. R. Browning, James W. Butler, O. E. Dowd, W. G. Hennessy, J. B. Kittrell, Jr., E. E. Rawl, Sr. and H. F. Steinbeck.

This fall the committee plans to carry out a Business Education Day in Greenville and to work with the city schools on projects that will enable them to adequately take care of increased enrollment and maintain desired educational standards. The group is also investigating the possibility of establishing a technical institute for job and business training in Greenville.

North Staters Cop 1 - 0 Victory In District Action

MacArthur Hurls Three-Hit Game Over Tar Heels

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Favored by about 3-1 odds before yesterday's Little League District game, the North State All-Stars came through as expected to squeeze out a 1-0 victory over the Tar Heels, at Elm Street Park.

A crowd of about 300 watched Little Alan MacArthur, of the Lions, go the full six innings for the North Staters, holding his foes to only three hits, striking out 11 big batters, and walking only one.

His opposing pitcher, husky Rickey Sauve, of the Elks, also went the distance for the Tar Heels and allowed the winners only two hits and fanned eight batters.

Slender Leo Starling, agile first baseman for the NS club, collected both of his team's hits, delivering singles in the first and fifth innings. For the Tar Heels, Billy James, Rickey Sauve and Joe Harper punched out singles.

Winning Run Came Early

The North Staters scored their winning run early in the ball game, taking advantage of Sauve's momentary wildness. Sauve and his batterymate, Bev Whitley, of the Pepsi-Cola, seemed unable to click together in the very first moments of the game, and Coach Bob Starling's boys capitalized on it.

Kenneth Allen walked, to open the game, and was forced out by MacArthur's grounder. Starling then punched out his first hit and both he and MacArthur advanced on a wild pitch. Sauve hurled still another wild pitch and Alan scampered home with the big run.

In their half of the inning, the Tar Heels put one man on base, as Billy Neal James, of the Elks, change, punched out a single. Joyner fanned, Hardee grounded out and Sauve popped up to retire the side.

Sauve, still a bit wild, allowed two North Staters to reach base in the next frame, but came through to hold off further scoring. He finished the inning with two opponents stranded on the bases. MacArthur pitched out through his second session on the mound with little difficulty, working smoothly with his familiar batterymate Rommie Brock, also a Lion.

NS Threatens Again

In the third inning, the North State threatened again. Starling walked and another Lion, Frank Puryear, also drew a walk, putting two men in scoring position. Jody Black, of the V.F.W., fanned. Dalton Owens flied out and MacArthur accounted for the third out. Sauve had staved off NS scoring again.

MacArthur retired the Tar Heels with three straight strike-outs.

Going into the fourth stanza, Brock grounded out to Tar Heel second baseman Harper, and Lester Brown and James Braxton fanned. In their half of the inning, the Tar Heels threatened slightly as Sauve sent a stinging single down the first base line. MacArthur, however, managed to get out of trouble with a strike-out and two pop-ups.

Leo Starling whacked out his second hit of the evening in the fifth inning, a looping fly into short left field, but it was not available, as three teammates grounded out to retire the side.

Final Tar Heel Hit

Joe Harper accounted for the final Tar Heel hit of the afternoon in the last half of the fifth. He cracked a sharp single through third base. Whitley grounded out to shortstop Puryear, and Coltraine and Moye fanned to kill any thought of a fifth-inning rally for the underdogs.

Sauve, who had by this time regained some of his composure on the mound, began to get through to the North Staters. He struck out Blacklock for the third consecutive time, and sent Brock down by the same route. Dalton Owens popped up to catcher Whitley to set them down one, two, three.

In the final half of the final inning, the Tar Heels showed signs of a last ditch rally. Ken Joyner, of the Moose, drew a walk. Dennis Hardee, of the Elks, fanned and Billy Neal James followed suit. Joyner, however, zoomed into second with a stolen base on a dropped ball by catcher Brock. As MacArthur was in the process of polishing off Sauve for the final out, Joyner streaked into third with still another stolen base. This called for a conference between Tar Heel coaches and their boys, who could smell a possible score in the making. Sauve, however, grounded out to shortstop Puryear to ice the game for the North Staters, 1-0.

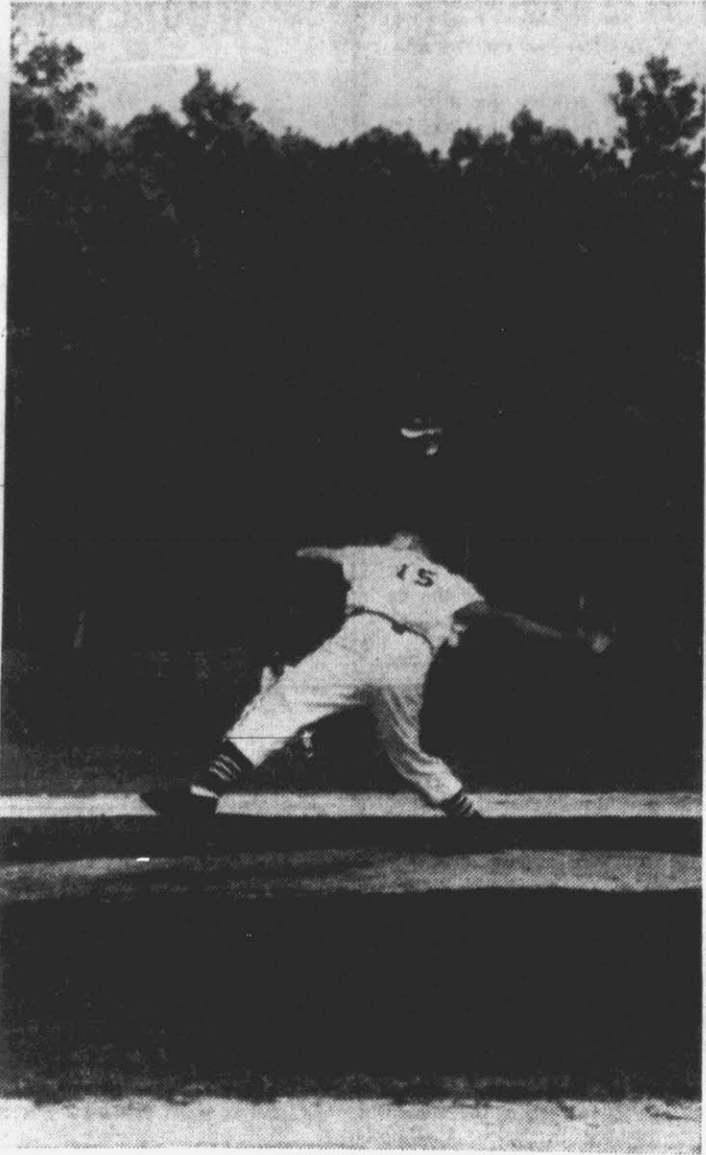

To Play Wednesday

In the sudden death tourney, the Tar Heels dropped out of all further play with their defeat. The North Staters will play the winner of the Rocky Mount-Havelock game, which will be played today, in Rocky Mount.

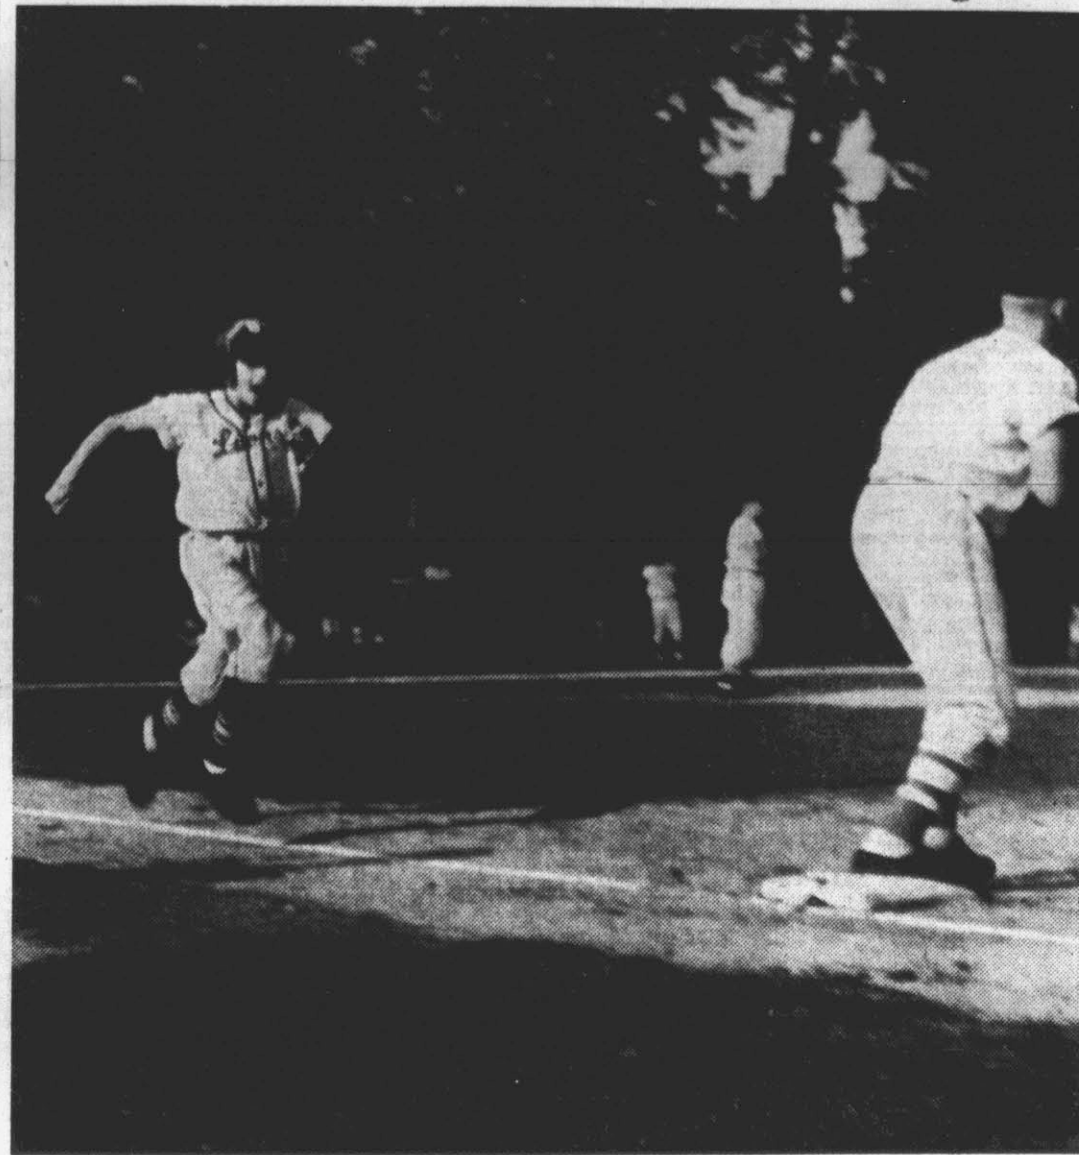

Havelock won the only other District game in progress yesterday, 3-0, as a Havelock hurler pitched a no-hitter over Morehead City.

The Greenville game, between Havelock or Rocky Mount, will take place at Elm Street Park, Tuesday, at five o'clock.

MacArthur Roars Around Sack With Winning Run

Sauve Had Early-Inning Troubles

Pirates Club Still A Growing Concern

In the winter of 1952, a group of sports-minded business men of Greenville met with a number of the college faculty at East Carolina and set up machinery for the formation and incorporation, under the North Carolina State Law, of the East Carolina Pirates Club.

Mr. E. E. Rawl, a staunch supporter of the college athletic program, was elected president of the club. Mr. Herbert Waldrop was chosen treasurer and James Butler, of the school, was elected secretary. In addition, a board of directors was appointed to give support to the movement.

Has Grown Tremendously

From this handful of loyal pirate backers, the club has grown, like the school itself, with phenomenal speed. Within the first year of its existence, the club opened its doors to approximately 1,000 members and has grown stronger each succeeding year.

With a fresh new campaign raging, the East Carolina Pirates Club is out to enroll every football fan in the entire eastern half of the state, according to club officials. Tickets are now being issued to new members and old members are getting their memberships renewed.

Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, athletic director of the college, stated recently that "the customary approach, used by practically all the colleges in the country, to gain memberships in their athletic alumni groups is to charge a flat ten or fifteen dollars membership fee and then give the member the opportunity to purchase reserved seats at their home games."

"The philosophy of the Athletic Department and the Pirates Club officers at East Carolina is that a customer should be given something for his money; that membership fees should be geared to suit the income of the average person. Thus, the Pirates Club gives, without further charge, season tickets to all home football games to its members—we do not know of any other college which is as liberal."

Offers Six Treats

For the price of $12.50, members get:

- (1) a reserved season football ticket to all home games
- (2) a membership card
- (3) a display plaque
- (4) a decal or sticker
- (5) priority in the purchase of seats for basketball season
- (6) the feeling of belonging to and supporting the fastest growing college in the state.

Membership is open to anyone, both alumni and non-alumni; male and female. Membership may be obtained by writing to the Athletic Office at East Carolina College.

An entire wing of East Carolina's football stadium is used to seat the Pirates Club members. There are 1,800 seats on the North side, with all Pirates Club seats located within the 20 yard line. Dr. Jorgensen further stated, "If we grow to more than 1,800, a new addition will be built into the stands. We guarantee to seat every single member."

Outstanding Schedule

This season's football schedule has been proclaimed the best in the history of the school—and the toughest. The Pirates, under the guidance of head Coach Jack Boone and assistant coaches Earl Smith and Jim Mallory, will face two members of the Southern Conference.

The Buccaneers will open the season against Virginia Polytechnic Institute and will finish the campaign against Richmond University, both S. C. schools. The Richmond battle will be a home game. Also on the slate will be Elon, Appalachian State, Lenoir Rhyne in away contests, and Stetson, Catawba, Western Carolina in home games.

The Greenville Pony League All-Stars tangle with the Raleigh Optimist League All-Stars tonight in the Capital City.

The local All-Stars, coached by Bob Penley, ECC senior, left Greenville this afternoon around 2:30 and will play the second game at 8 o'clock in the Optimist League's field at State College.

In last night's action, Rocky Mount topped Williamson, 8-5, and the Raleigh Colored Ponies edged Wilmington 7-6 in 13 innings. Rocky Mount and the Raleigh Colored team meet tonight in the first game and the winner will play the winner of the Greenville-Raleigh Optimist game on Thursday night.

GREENSBORO — East and West collide here tonight in the eighth annual playing of the North Carolina high school all-star basketball game.

The Western squad, coached by Derwood Huneycutt of Salisbury, will be battling to even up the series. The East has a 4-3 edge.

Huneycutt will send this quint into action: Ken Norman of Mount Airy and George Gentry of Jonesville, forwards; Carroll Youngkin of North Davidson, center; Larry Eula of Asheboro and Eddie Goodnight of Salisbury, guards.

East Coach Amos Sexton of Kinston has announced this starting lineup: Johnny Morris of Roxboro and Grey Poole of Raleigh, forwards; Winston Wiggins of Youngsville, center; Ike Riddick of Greenville and either Paul McNeill of Durham or Kinston's Marshall Happer at the guards.

The all-star football game will be played Friday.

Coach Bobby Dodd and his Georgia Tech staff arrived today to prepare for tomorrow's football session on the coaches' clinic, which is run in conjunction with the games.

Yesterday, the coaches heard Bucky O'Connor of Iowa say that the two-hand shot is coming back to basketball.

The coach of the Big Ten champions said, "During World War II, the sport went crazy over the one-handed shot, but the trend is turning. The two-hand shot is coming back because it puts the player in better position to bounce pass or straight pass off the same hands position with which he shoots. Even the jump shot, which is night unguardable, is a two-hand affair."

Dairy Defeats Kinston, Will Face Romancos

Carolina Dairy, playing in the opening rounds of the Northeastern District Softball Tournament in Rocky Mount, last night, defeated the Kinston Flyers, 4-1, to earn a berth in tonight's games.

Mahabich pitched for the locals, giving up five hits and striking out nine Kinston batters. The Dairy collected three hits, a double by Johnny Foell, and singles by Bobby Perry and Blaney Moye.

Tonight, the Dairy will step into the big leagues, facing the Roanoke Rapids Romancos at 7:15. The Romancos are one of the top softball teams in the country, having won the national title twice and having sopped the state crown four years in a row. They represented this district last year in the national tourney.

Craig Is Hitter And Pitcher, Too

BROOKLYN — There are exceptions to the baseball rule that pitchers don't hit, but Brooklyn Dodger right-hander Roger Craig isn't one of them. He's without a hit in 43 at bats this season. And in 26 trips after being called up in midseason last year, he had only two hits. His major league lifetime average—.029.

CHAPTER 29

Bill was back in fifteen minutes. He had said he would be very glad to show the visitors over the Silver Song. Bill had found him on deck, a pair of binoculars focused on the government boat.

Bill thought he detected a gleam of surprise in Alvarez's eyes, but it was quickly veiled. He did say that he did not often ask visitors aboard before noon, but he realized this was a special day and he would make a concession.

Bill thanked him, then said nonchalantly, "I heard you were moving out today. That's the reason I came early."

"On the contrary, I'm thinking of a party on board tonight."

"That's fine. You know, I suppose, that activities are pretty well planned for the day and that most of the people will go to the grand ball tonight."

"Of course. Perhaps I could make it a cocktail party beforehand, or a breakfast afterwards. I'd like to be hospitable. I may leave in a day or so. I've promised some friends a short cruise."

Bill thought, "That's a blind. He wants to foretell every move he makes in order to eliminate conjecture. He doesn't know how near he is to disaster."

When the two government men, with Bill and Pete, were going over the boat a short while later, Alvarez said, "I don't believe I got your names correctly. I intend having a small party, and I'd like you to be my guests. Of course my invitations must necessarily be limited and I must keep track of them."

The men repeated their names, thanked him, but said they would be unable to attend, as they would be shoving off probably before time for his party.

Bill was watching. Was that "Of course. He must be a good actor. Therein lies his protection. He seemed to me to overdo it a little."

"I wish you had let me in on this before."

"I've been watching him ever since I came to Apalachicola. I only got a definite tip a few days ago—after Rita and Priscilla came."

"Good grief! They're not mixed up in this thing?"

"No. But Lookout House is. My first tip came that night of the party on the Silver Song. I heard Lookout House mentioned to Alvarez quite innocently by Rita, and light dawned. I got a hunch and I was right. It all falls into a pattern. Oh yes, you asked me if I am a detective—I'll tell you about it tomorrow."

Pete stayed around in the vicinity of Avenue E and Market Street, since all cars going through town passed that corner. The Molly B. Pete Gallagher's shrimp boat, was still tied up at the dock and there was no sign of life about her.

He noticed a man and a woman walking along the water front. They stopped near the Molly B. Pete's heart accelerated. He thought immediately. They're Harbor Day visitors, of course. But there was something about the couple that aroused his curiosity. He had promised Bill to help; he couldn't let any possibility go by.

He sauntered down to the wharf and stood looking at the Molly B watching the couple without seeming to do so. The man was stocky, flashily dressed. The woman was dark, dressed in a trim dark suit. She reminded him of someone—why Rita, of course. Size, appearance, coloring.

Gallagher stepped out on the deck of his boat. Pete said lazily, "Hi, Red. Not fishing today?"

Gallagher shrugged. "Too many boats around. Thought I'd just stay in."

The heavy-set man came a few steps nearer. "That what you call a shrimp boat?"

Gallagher looked at the man with a bored expression. I fish in it," he said briefly.

Pete looked at the couple. "If you're interested in boats, there'll be rides around the harbor later on today."

"Thanks." The man moved his cigar to the other corner of his mouth. "Lot of activity here today."

"It's Harbor Day."

"We hadn't intended stopping, but we asked why the town was all decorated and someone told us that. What's behind it?"

"Harbor Day? The channel to the Gulf is a sure thing now. At present boats have to move all around the islands to get to the Gulf. When the channel is cut through, it will put Apalachicola back on the map. They've been working on this a long time and they set aside the second Tuesday in November to celebrate Harbor Day."

"Sounds interesting."

"Why don't you stick around? Most of the activity today is over at the park. Tonight there'll be a big fish dinner, banquet and ball. Everybody's welcome."

"That so?" The man's voice was that of a polite, interested stranger. "Maybe we'll go over. To the park. I mean. We're just seeing Florida and are in no hurry." He thanked Pete and they moved on. The woman had not spoken. Her eyes were restless and not once did they rest directly on Pete or on Red Gallagher.

Thirty-Five To Attend Winston - Salem Event

"Thirty-five of Jehovah's witnesses from Greenville will be leaving Wednesday for their four-day District Convention in Winston-Salem, N. C.," stated Willis E. Manning, presiding minister of the group. The convention scheduled for August 2-5 at the Memorial Coliseum will have as its principal speaker N. H. Knorr, president of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, sponsors of the conference.

Knorr is the third president of the Watchtower Society and has been associated with the Watchtower headquarters staff since 1923. He has traveled quite extensively, making yearly tours visiting branch offices, supervising conventions and lecturing. During the summer of 1955 he spoke at thirteen large conventions held in the United States, Canada and Europe with a combined attendance of over 400,000 people.

Manning stated that Jehovah's witnesses are one of the fastest-growing ministerial societies. "Development in the Christian ministry never ends, so advancement can always be made in ministerial qualifications. As a part of a continuous training program the Society has arranged for this four-day seminar," he said.

The Winston-Salem convention is one of 34 District Conventions being held in the United States and Canada from the 19th of July to the 20th of August. The expected attendance for the Winston-Salem convention is more than 6,000 with delegates coming from more than 15 states.

Knorr will deliver the main address of the assembly on Sunday August 5 on the subject "Why Permanent Peace Will Come in Our Day."

Thirty Scouts Embark On 6,000-Mile Tour

Sunday morning parents and friends bid farewell to 30 explorers from the East Carolina Council as they set forth on a 6,000 mile educational tour of the United States. During this trip they will cover some 21 states and will include such places as Salt Lake City, in which they will make a tour of the Mormon Temple, and the Salt Lakes. They will also go to the Grand Canyon, Yellowstone National Park, where they will make a 2 or 3 day layover for sightseeing. In addition, they will visit some 12 airbases and will be the guests of the 12 different air bases. The highlight of the trip will come at the Philmont Scout Ranch, Cimarron, New Mexico. This ranch covers some 125,000 acres of rugged mountain terrain of our pioneer forefathers of the great west.

This is the most extensive tour ever conducted by the East Carolina Council. The trip will last for 29 days and is due to arrive back about the 25th of August. Upon their return the explorers will have a banquet in Wilson, at which all the parents are invited to hear the stories and see the pictures of their trip.

Rev. L. W. Hewitt, Sr. of Aurora, will be the leader of the expedition. Rev. Hewitt has for many years been connected with scouting and was formerly a professional in scouting. The explorers making this trip are:

Harriman Says Dulles Bluffing

POLAND SPRING, Maine (AP) — New York's Gov. Averell Harriman accuses secretary of State Dulles and the Eisenhower administration of "bluffing" in international affairs.

Harriman, who flies to Boston today to continue delving for New England delegate support of his Democratic presidential nomination candidacy, told newsmen last night:

"Remember the 'agonizing reappraisal' in Europe that Dulles talked about when EDC — European Defense Community — was being considered?

"EDC didn't pass, but there was no reappraisal. That's just an example of this administration's bluffing and you can't bluff in international affairs."

He also said that Dulles was "too cavalier" to Egyptian President Nasser in the Aswan Dam negotiations.

"I don't approve of Nasser but Dulles shouldn't have brushed him and the Egyptians off the way he did," the candidate said.

The New Yorker also said he wouldn't make President Eisenhower's health a campaign issue, adding that the President did so himself, however, "when he discussed it on television."

He turned aside a question on how many delegates he has lined up, saying "I'm not in the numbers racket."

Harriman's news conference preceded a dinner meeting with 16 of Maine's 24 delegates and 9 of 18 alternates to the Chicago convention next month.

Afterwards, nobody would say how they feel Harriman stands in Maine. But privately some delegates said they believe he is "gaining strength" among people who had been for Sen. Estes Kefauver.

Maine will have 14 votes at Chicago, with four delegates having a full vote, the rest half votes.

Cost Of McKeon Trial Mounting $1,060 Daily

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — The general court-martial of S. Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon already has cost the government some $30,000, and the cost is mounting by an estimated $1,060.24 daily. The case is in its third week.

The figures are not official and do not include the cost of witnesses or expenses shouldered by McKeon's civilian defense attorneys.

The defense is being handled by Emile Zola Berman, a New York City lawyer who says he is not charging the 31-year-old Worcester, Mass., Marine. Berman also has taken on the expense of contacting ex-Marines across the nation who are willing to testify to recruit marches similar to the one McKeon led.

Berman said he has "no idea what the total cost will be."

The prosecution sent 36 witnesses to the stand before it ended its case last Thursday. All were military personnel stationed here.

Military witnesses, in addition to their regular pay, draw per diem allowances if they come from another base. Officers get $4 a day and enlisted men $1.50. Both get five cents a mile for travel expenses.

Civilian witnesses get $9 a day plus the five-cent travel allowance. The defense already has asked for 18 to testify, most from the Northeast.

Included in the estimated cost to the government is $295.44 a day in salaries and allowances for the seven-man court, $230 a day for the military defense counsel and the prosecution and $339.28 a day for miscellaneous personnel attached to the court—public information officials, court recorders and the like.

The law officer—a Navy captain—and the Marine major assisting him draw $93.66 daily.

A grammar school on this sprawling base was converted into a courthouse at a cost of $1,500 for minor construction and $1,050 for supplies.

Survivors of Platoon 71, the outfit which marched into the creek, are costing $122 a day to keep them handy for the trial.

Death Ended Dream Of Soap Box Derby

By GEORGE LAZARUS

VALPARAISO, Ind. (AP) — Doug Hoback won't be in the starting lineup of the annual Soap Box Derby at Akron, Ohio, Aug. 12.

Lung cancer killed the 13-year-old youth and also the dream of his lifetime.

Death came Sunday in a Valparaiso hospital, just 24 hours after he had failed to qualify for the Akron race in regionalfinals at Gary, Ind.

Hoback's racer veered into a curb and put him out of the race. He watched the remainder of the race from a wheelchair after treatment for minor injuries.

A day later his cancer condition took a turn for the worse and he was taken to the hospital where he died.

But, in death unfolded the story of young Doug's courage and determination to win the soap box event, the dream he treasured more than anything else since learning he had little time to live.

"I'll tell you what kind of boy Doug was," said his doctor yesterday.

"The night before the regional soap box race in Gary, he had his mother call me up so that he could have a blood transfusion that night and get pepped up for the race. But, I just couldn't do that," said Dr. Leonard Green, a Valparaiso physician.

"He was a hopeless case from the beginning — since last December — when we found he had lymphosarcoma, or an incurable malignancy. But, he had lots of will and plenty of stamina."

Still, Doug had qualified on July 4 as Class A soap box champ of Valparaiso, a northwestern Indiana community of 15,000.

"He never gave up," Green said. "All we could do medically was to postpone his death. He even lost about 40 pounds from his normal weight of 110 pounds since his illness started."

His parents? "They went along with him. All the way with him," the doctor said.

Doug's father, Nell Hoback, 44, is a special grinder at a Valparaiso steel company that produces magnets.

"My son never gave up," Hoback said. "He wanted to race. He was a very religious boy and prayed . . ."

"Sure he had been in the hospital four times in the last six months and the boy subsisted solely on fruit juices for the last two weeks. But, he wanted to race."

Urges Protesting Of Canal 'Grab'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont) called today for a U.S. protest against Egypt's seizure of the Suez Canal to the World Court and to the U.N. General Assembly.

Describing the seizure as "clearly illegal," Mansfield said the situation is "pregnant with danger to world peace." Mansfield is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

In a separate interview, Chairman Richards (D-SC) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee said his group will investigate the Suez crisis in September as part of its study of the foreign aid program.

Richards, too, said the Mediterranean crisis is a "great danger" to peace. He said, however, "there is no doubt as to Egyptian President Nasser's right to nationalize the canal, subject to treaty obligations."

"But any effort on his part to impede traffic or trade on the canal, in view of its importance, could bring very serious repercussions," Richards declared.

Mansfield said he hopes Europe, which now gets about 90 per cent of its oil from the Middle East, will step up the volume of its imports from the Western Hemisphere, particularly the United States and Venezuela, without delay.

He said he hopes quick consideration will be given suggestions that tanker traffic be routed around the Cape of Good Hope instead of through Suez — "even though this would be longer, slower and more expensive."

Couldn't Take So Much Dancing

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — After 17 years of marriage, Mrs. Nellie Frances Davidson says her husband wanted to take her dancing five and six nights a week.

An ideal marriage? No it wasn't Mrs. Davidson testified in divorce court, charging cruelty. She's 81.

Mrs. Davidson said she would accompany her husband, Bryan, 59, "two or three nights a week. Then I'd get tired—and he'd get mad."

She was granted the divorce.

Clinic Is Opened At Robersonville

ROBERSONVILLE — The Ward Clinic was opened here July 25 for emergency cases while the equipment and medicines were being moved to the new site on Main Street.

Due to delay of shipment of eight hospital beds, eight bassinets and the same number of delivery tables, the infant and maternity section of the clinic will not be ready for obstetrical patients until the middle of August. When this equipment is received the clinic will operate on full-time schedule.

The new brick building is owned and operated by Dr. Vernon Ward and his sons, Dr. Walter Elliott Ward and Dr. Joseph M. Ward. Dr. Jesse Ward, who practiced medicine here until his death a few years ago planned with his brother and partner, Dr. V. A. Ward, to erect a modern clinic building in Robersonville.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Evans St. Ext. and U. S. 24-A. Killed were Ronald Gray Godley, Greenville, Rt. 2 and 14 son William Marshall Godley. Six other persons were injured in the crash.

Packhouse Lost To Blaze Today

A packhouse containing 2,500 sticks of tobacco, hay, corn, farm implements and tobacco sticks was destroyed by fire during the early morning hours today.

The packhouse was located on a farm belonging to Mr. J. E. Collins. It is about 5 miles from Greenville on U. S. 264.

Greenville firemen were called to the blaze but the farm building was burning too badly to be saved when they arrived. Firemen protected nearby buildings.

Witnesses said that the flames were first seen in the roof of the building. The cause of the blaze is unknown, however.

The local fire fighters were also called to the James Brown farm on the Pacolus Highway last night where a tobacco barn was destroyed by fire.

Yesterday a call came from the laundry at East Carolina College when a clothes tumbler caught fire.

Claims Mother Urged Murder

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — A preliminary hearing has been tentatively set here for Friday for a 16-year-old youth who police said shot his father to death at his mother's urging.

The boy, John Henry Redfern, is charged with murder. The mother, Mary Redfern, is charged with being an accessory before the fact. Sheriff Ben Wolfe said the victim, A. J. (Coot) Redfern, 38, was killed by a bullet from a .22 rifle. He said the youth told him his father and mother had argued and that both had been drinking. The boy said the father threatened his mother with a rifle, then laid it aside and advanced on her with a shovel.

The mother pleaded, the boy said, for him to "get that gun and shoot."

Shrine Club Has 2 ECC Speakers

The Pitt County Shrine Club at its recent supper meeting heard talks by East Carolina College Athletic Director N. M. Jorgensen and Football Coach Jack Boone.

Vice-President Leslie Garner, who presided for President Hoyt Narron, presented the speakers. Boone outlined many of the problems involving training and coaching young men in athletics. He said that many boys brought in under scholarships might not have had an opportunity for a college education otherwise. The coach outlined the character traits necessary for cooperation, loyalty, determination, give-and-take and courage as necessary for developing a good football squad.

Jorgensen spoke about the growth of athletics at the college, stressing the importance of the "Pirates" Club as the chief means of obtaining financial and moral support. The Shriners indicated that they will continue to encourage and support for athletics at East Carolina College.

Vice-President Garner thanked Boone and Jorgensen and said, "We consider East Carolina College one of the chief assets of Greenville and the county."

Americans this year will consume a billion pounds of hot dogs. If laid end to end, the hot dogs, not the Americans—they would reach to the moon and back.

The hot dog has many other nicknames. They are called franks, weiners, wienies, viennas, red hots, hot pups and pups. In some places hot dogs covered with chili sauce are known as "chihuahuas;" those smothered with onions are "poodles."

Naturally hot dogs had to enter the atomic age. They did last March. Put in hermetically sealed cans, they were dunked into 18 feet of water and irradiated with gamma rays at the national reactor testing station in Idaho.

The Army Quartermaster people say that these atom-bombed hot dogs, removed from the cans, still retain their flavor and remain unspiced for six months at room temperature.

Who but a hamburger lover would let a hot dog be around uneaten for half a year?

further tickled Coney Island tourists, who promptly began calling them "hot dogs." The name has stuck ever since.

Since historians contend, however, the hot dog sandwich as we know it today didn't come along until the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis in 1904. A concessionaire was loaned customers white gloves to eat the hot most frankfurters found many of the gloves weren't being returned. So he started wrapping buns around the hot dogs as finger protectors.

Who first wedded mustard to the hot dog? Alas, so far as I can find, he is as nameless as the first guy who joined ham and eggs.

But here are few more important facts and milestones in the career of the hot dog: Hot dogs became a fixture at baseball games during the World War I in the Polo Grounds here. In 1937 the skinless frankfurter came into vogue. That year 136 million pounds of hot dogs were produced in America. Last year Americans ate an average of 16.6 hot dogs a person during the peak season between Memorial Day and Labor Day.
