

Kefauver Withdraws; Stevenson Prospects Soaring

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver's withdrawal appeared today to have heightened Adlai E. Stevenson's chances to win the Democratic presidential nomination again on an early convention ballot.

Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, however, maintained a show of confidence and some of his backers contended that his prospects had been improved despite Kefauver's appeal to his supporters to switch to Stevenson.

Kefauver, in a surprise move, withdrew from the race late yesterday and said that in the interest of Democratic unity and victory he would support Stevenson at the party convention opening in Chicago a week from Monday.

Stevenson said in Chicago he shares Kefauver's hope "that we Democrats, united by a common purpose, can soon close ranks and get on with this fateful campaign."

Harriman said in New York that Kefauver's withdrawal clears the air, and he added:

"His delegates are now free. I've asked them to join mine in the cause I stand for. Many have already told me they will do so."

Harriman contended he will get more than half the delegates who had been pledged to Kefauver. Michael H. Prendergast, New York Democratic state chairman and one of Harriman's campaign managers, said the New York governor's prospects are "brighter than ever."

The many supporters of Sen. Kefauver who backed him for the nomination will now be for Gov. Harriman," Prendergast said.

Stevenson himself made no predictions but his campaign manager James A. Finnegan said Kefauver's withdrawal created "a very strong chance that Stevenson will be nominated on the first ballot." Several other supporters of the former Illinois governor said such a victory was "close to a certainty."

Both Stevenson and Kefauver said in response to questions there had been no deal between them. Kefauver said he is not a candidate for the vice presidential nomination but he did not close the door to accepting it.

Stevenson said "there are a number of qualified men" acceptable to him if he wins the top spot. "And I include among those Sen. Kefauver," he added that "there have never been any negotiations by me (with Kefauver) or by anyone associated with me."

In any event, the day's developments appeared to have washed out any lingering traces of the bitterness with which Kefauver and Stevenson assailed one another in the heated Florida and California primary campaigns.

The Tennessee senator said he no longer has doubts that Stevenson is capable of leading the Democrats to victory in November against the almost certain Republican candidacy of President Eisenhower.

Kefauver said he was asking his backers "wholeheartedly" to support Stevenson. He said he foresaw a possibility Stevenson would win the nomination on the first ballot.

Finnegan said he expects the "vast majority" of Kefauver's delegates to switch to Stevenson. Harriman, however, quoted Kefauver as having told aides of the governor by telephone "that he believed I would get at least half his delegates."

"From indications I have now received," Harriman added, "I believe I will be more."

Harriman, who did not contest in any of the party preferential primaries with Stevenson and Kefauver, said, "The Democrats want a fighting leader and I am sure I can fill that post."

"I will not withdraw," he said. "Never."

A suggestion that he do so came from Mark R. Holloran of St. Louis, a Democratic national committeeman and backer of Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri for the presidential nomination.

"If the race is over," Holloran said, "it is over and that's all there is to it."

Holloran is a friend of former President Truman, who said Kefauver's withdrawal "does not change my position of neutrality" concerning the race for the nomination.

Stevenson told newsmen at Chicago he had been trying to reach Kefauver by telephone "to express to him my gratitude for this gracious and spontaneous expression of his support," and he continued:

"I respect Sen. Kefauver as a thoughtful, liberal Democrat. We share a grave anxiety about drift at home and deterioration abroad under a faltering leadership and a divided party."

Prior to Kefauver's withdrawal, the latest Associated Press tabulation had given him an indicated first-ballot strength of 164½ votes, compared with 371 for Stevenson and 136 for Harriman. Nomination will require 686½ delegate votes.

It appeared that if Stevenson was to achieve a first-ballot victory, he would have to pick up new strength among delegates now committed to various "favorite sons."

Outstanding on this list is Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, Senate majority leader, with "Texas" block of 56 votes. Johnson, who supported Stevenson in 1952, has kept silent on his choice this year.

But he has advocated the same sort of "moderation" as has Stevenson. If he went to Stevenson, Johnson's lead would certainly be followed by delegations from some other Southern states.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio controls most of that state's 53 votes but said he has not decided whom he will support. Gov. G. Mennen Williams, who holds Michigan's 44 votes, has seemed to lean recently more in the direction of Harriman than toward Stevenson.

Nixon Acceptable Says Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said today he is feeling good but not as well as he did a year ago. He added he has no doubt he would be able to carry on in the presidency for another four years beyond next January.

Eisenhower gave this report to a jammed news conference, his first since he underwent an emergency abdominal operation June 9.

Told that some of his friends and neighbors in the vicinity of his Gettysburg, Pa., farm have expressed concern as to whether he would live through another term, Eisenhower replied with a smile he was flattered by their concern.

Then he said the Republican party and the country apparently believe they still need him. He added the decision will be up to the American people.

Eisenhower was noticeably a bit thinner than when he held his last news conference June 6. But he replied to a barrage of questions during a 30-minute session in a sure voice and seemed to be in a confident mood.

On other subjects Eisenhower had this to say:

VICE PRESIDENCY — Richard M. Nixon still is perfectly acceptable to him as a vice presidential running mate. Harold E. Stassen has launched a campaign to dump Nixon from the Republican ticket and nominate Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts in his place.

While Eisenhower again spoke highly of Nixon, he refused to say whether Herter or anyone else would be acceptable.

The President said that if he commented on any others who might be mentioned it might put him in the position of having to state what he termed reservations about some of them.

SUEZ — The international crisis generated by Egypt's seizure of the Suez Canal is one which must be handled with great care.

Eisenhower added we must make sure that certain rights of the world in connection with use of the great waterway are not abused.

On the question of the possibility of putting the canal under international control, a reporter remarked such a step might lead to suggestions by other nations that the U.S. owned and operated Panama Canal be internationalized.

Eisenhower replied conditions in the two cases are not the same. The great problem now, he said, is to make sure the Suez is preserved as an international waterway.

Doing that, he added, is vital to the U.S. economy and welfare.

CONGRESS — The record of the 84th Congress, which adjourned last Friday, leaves him with mixed emotions. The performance of the lawmakers pleased him in some respects, left him regretful in some, and frankly disappointed him in others.

Some of the legislation he proposed in his January State of the Union Message was enacted, Eisenhower commented without going into any detail. On the other hand passage of some administration measures—such as the farm and highway construction bills—was delayed. And on still other bills, Congress took no action whatever. In the latter category, he noted a school construction measure and his health insurance program.

RACIAL — A reporter told Eisenhower that in connection with political primaries in the South there has been "violent talk of the race issue." The reporter asked whether the President feels that candidates who engage in such talk render a disservice to the country.

Replying, Eisenhower said he had not been aware of such didn't know it was going on, and that he deplores it. The President called such activity a very grave error and a disservice to the country.

Steady Stream Of Youngsters Get Their Salk Shots

Health Director Walter C. Hubert said this morning a steady stream of children including many anti-polio shots at the Health Department clinics in Greenville and Farmville and in the offices of their private physicians.

No more cases of polio have been reported in Pitt since Monday afternoon.

Offices of the Health Department are remaining open from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. through Friday and from 8:30 a.m. until noon on Saturday for administering the Salk injections.

Yesterday 539 shots were given in the health offices in Greenville and Farmville, and 454 of these were first injections. A total of 2,281 shots has been given since Monday a week ago, with 1,860 of these administered Saturday, Monday and yesterday. Of the total, 1,633 have been first injections.

An outbreak of polio struck in Pitt County ten days ago, when the first case of the year was reported. Since then five other youngsters have been stricken with the disease, and only one of the cases has been non-paralytic. One child in Farmville died of polio last week.

The swimming pool in Farmville has been closed as a precautionary measure, and the additional clinics are being held at the Health Department offices this week upon recommendation of the Polio Advisory Committee of the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society.

All the cases have been widely scattered and all rural except one in Farmville. Four of the victims have been Negroes. Only one child, a nine-year-old Negro boy who was not paralyzed by the virus, had been immunized. He had received one shot in the schools this spring.

Following announcement of the Farmville child's death last Friday, parents flocked with their children to physicians' offices and the Health Department clinics Saturday. The clinics remained open during the afternoon and 900 shots were administered, most of them first injections.

Prior to last week, 60 per cent of the eligible children in the county had not been immunized against polio and only about 300 had gotten the complete series of three shots.

Britain Said Ready To Use Force To Keep Suez Open

LONDON (AP) — An authoritative British source said today Britain is ready to use force if necessary, including the reoccupation of the Suez Canal Zone, to keep the canal open to world shipping.

The informant is an official of Prime Minister Eden's government, but he declined to be identified by name or position.

He said Britain has not asked—and does not intend asking—the United States to join in any military measures which this country may take as a result of Egypt's nationalization of the canal.

Britain has, however, called upon the United States to give political support in the event military action is taken, he said.

France and some British Commonwealth countries were described as backing this attitude.

There was no official confirmation from either the British Foreign Office or the U.S. Embassy.

The information was given out as U.S. Secretary of State Dulles talked with Eden, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau at a hurriedly arranged "work luncheon."

Dulles, who only Sunday said he had no plans to come here, arrived from Washington by plane this morning. He is thought to have been sent by President Eisenhower to urge moderation upon the French and British.

The United States broadly supports Anglo-French objections to the canal nationalization and also seeks ways of guaranteeing free passage through the canal—which Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser has pledged to do.

But thus far the United States has balked at endorsing decisions which it feels might lead to a shooting war.

Dulles met first at the U. S. Embassy with Robert Murphy, deputy under secretary of state, who represented the United States in the first three days of talks with Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau. Lloyd and Dulles later met privately and then huddled with Pineau before the luncheon session with Eden.

The foreign ministers were to open their first formal session after a two-way talk between Dulles and Pineau. U. S. Ambassador C. Douglas Dillon was summoned from Paris to join the meetings.

British naval craft assembled at Cyprus, 230 miles north of the Suez, included the cruiser Jamaica, the minelayer Maxman, the destroyer Sarfleur and the frigate Urania.

A report that the aircraft carrier Eagle had joined the Jamaica was denied. Instead the Eagle was reported in the Malta area.

British troops both at home and in the Mediterranean area were ready for quick action in case of violence in the Suez.

Dulles hastened to London from Washington after three days of talks had failed to bring Big Three agreement on a plan for dealing with Nasser's seizure of the 103-mile shipping channel, vital to the West's trade.

In the talks so far, all three nations were reported to favor control of the canal by some kind of international body. But the United States appeared to differ with the French and British on how to organize the body and how to get Egypt to accept it.

The Times of London, which often reflects British official thinking, said in a blistering editorial:

"Anyone who thinks that victory for Nasser would not encourage other extremist demands against oil fields — and against strategic bases — should confine himself to tiddlywinks or blind man's bluff."

"The danger is that a large conference will end, as so often, in only a melancholy long withdrawing roar."

"If it is to meet the bill, it must be speedily summoned, present the strongest terms to Egypt and be ready from the start to use force if Nasser answers with hesitancy or with refusal."

Burmese Call On Reds To Back Up

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Burma today pressed Communist China to withdraw Red troops which military sources say have occupied about 1,000 square miles of Burmese territory.

There were no reports of new advances. Clashes with Burmese forces and some casualties were said to have occurred when the Chinese units moved up to 60 miles at various points into Burma's northern territory.

A government spokesman said Burma was "seriously concerned" about the moves along the north-east border and had brought the situation to the attention of the Peiping government.

"Negotiations are now in progress with a view to the withdrawal of these Chinese troops to the Chinese side of the border," a Foreign Office statement said.

There was no accurate count of the strength of the Chinese force, but estimates here put the total at not less than 500 troops. Chinese patrols have crossed Burma's border in small numbers in the past, but have withdrawn after Burmese protests. The Chinese Communists have blamed these incidents on errors of local commanders along the poorly defined border.

Military sources said Chinese and Burmese troops now were far apart, each over a 200-yard strip at many points in the mountainous area about 100 miles east of Lashio.

Premier Ba Swe and other top officials continued to confer with military leaders on the situation.

Hard Labor For A Day Of Crime

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — Robe Teague of Hickory was a busy young man June 11. So busy, in fact, that Judge Dan K. Moore gave him 12 to 15 years at hard labor for:

1. Kidnaping, resisting arrest, robbery with firearms, driving after license revoked, armed robbery, assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and assault on a female with a deadly weapon with intent to kill.

Judge Moore called the 21-year-old Teague's activities "an old timey holdup like you read about and see on TV."

Officers said Teague:

1. Forced Mr. and Mrs. William Floyd Moore at knifepoint to drive him to a Mountain View store.

2. And the store customers against the wall and fired his pistol into the ceiling and out of the door.

3. Forced store owner James Kilby to turn over $500.

4. Flew in an automobile taken from federal probation officer Hugh Johnson of Hickory.

5. Held up in the nearby home of Alton Biggs after threatening Mrs. Biggs with the pistol.

6. Surrendered quietly to a posse of armed policemen who surrounded the house.

Two Aluminum Plants Struck

NEW YORK (AP) — One union started a strike against the nation's two biggest aluminum producers today. A second union held off another threatened walkout against the same two giant firms.

The United Steelworkers of America called a strike of 28,000 workers at Aluminum Co. of America (Alcoa) and Reynolds Metals Co. plants across the nation. The walkout began shortly after midnight in a wage contract dispute.

Meanwhile, the Aluminum Workers International Union extended its strike deadline 24 hours — until midnight tonight. The union officially kept its 20,500 members on the job at other Alcoa and Reynolds plants.

AWIU workers at the Cressona, Pa., Alcoa plant reportedly walked out after the original deadline at midnight last night. The union ordered them back while contract negotiations continue.

"There is no (AWIU) strike," said a union official.

Despite the strike by the steelworkers' union, contract talks were to resume today in three cities — New York, Pittsburgh and Richmond, Va.

The USW strike hit 12 Alcoa and 9 Reynolds plants producing about half the nation's aluminum. Nine other Alcoa and 10 Reynolds mills where the AWIU has jurisdiction officially stayed in operation.

The USW contract with Reynolds and Alcoa expired at midnight. A union spokesman said after talks processed here at 1:30 p.m. that Alcoa's package offer "failed to match the steel settlement package of 45¢ cents an hour."

The USW seeks approximately the same settlement for aluminum workers as the union got for steelworkers last week.

An Alcoa spokesman said, however, that his company's offer matched the steel settlement and called for "about 46¢ cents hourly over three years."

ROCKY MOUNT (AP) — The four-year co-educational Methodist college will be built on a 200-acre tract on the Belmont farm, which is part of the Braswell estate near Rocky Mount.

The property is located along U.S. Highway 31, between Rocky Mount and Battleboro, about 2½ miles north of here.

It is owned by three sisters of the area, Mrs. R. D. Gorham, Miss Vivian Braswell and Mrs. Thomas J. Pearsall.

Heavy Sale Seen On Leaf Markets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Marketing of the 1956 flue-cured tobacco crop will begin tomorrow at South Carolina's 11 markets and the eight markets of the North Carolina Border Belt. The opening sales are expected to be heavy.

W. P. Hedrick, marketing specialist for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, has predicted an average price of around $55 per hundred pounds for the opening day sales.

Hedrick said he is looking for heavy sales on Thursday and Friday and next Monday with lighter sales next week because "so much tobacco is still in the fields."

He added reports indicate that leaf being brought in for the opening sales on the North Carolina and markets is "good tobacco, heavier in body than last year." William L. Harrelson, South Carolina commissioner of agriculture, said yesterday that the quality of this year's crop in his state is better than last year.

Hedrick pointed out that the support price for the leaf this year is somewhat higher than last year — 48.9 cents per pound as compared with 48.3 cents last season.

The 11 South Carolina markets which open tomorrow are: Conway, Darlington, Dillon, Hemingway, Kingstree, Lamar, Lake City, Loris, Mullins, Pamplico and Timmonsville. Last season, these markets began their sales on July 28 with an opening average price of $57.28.

The North Carolina Border markets are: Chadbourn, Clarkton, Fair Bluff, Fairmont, Fayetteville, Lumberton, Tabor City and Whiteville. These markets opened their sales last year on Aug. 3 with an average of $52.59.

Runaway Is Found Looking For Elvis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A New York teen-ager, object of a 13-state police search after she ran away from home in a row with her parents over her "dream" of Elvis Presley, was found in a Memphis hotel early today.

Fourteen-year-old Marion Weisbarth left home after her parents ordered her to stop playing records of the famed rock 'n' roll king.

The girl's father, David Weisbarth, was on his way to Memphis to escort Marion back to her home at East Meadow, Long Island.

Marion told a reporter for the Memphis Commercial Appeal that she earned money as a baby-sitter for bus fare to Memphis, home of the famed rock 'n' roller.

"I love him," she said of Presley, "and always dreamed of seeing him. I thought that if I came to Memphis I might become his secretary, or something."

Marion, who looks somewhat older than her 14 years, was quoted as saying she had been "sent" on Presley since she heard his first rock 'n' roll record.

"Heartbreak Hotel" simply sends me said," she said.

In New York, her mother put it like this "It's like a frenzy with her. We quarreled all the time about her playing those records all day and night."

Marion brought her record collection and a scrapbook of Presley clippings with her.

"I wrote to him and told him I was not going to come to see him until I got an autographed picture of him," she said, "but I got tired of waiting."

Presley was on his way to Miami to fill a night club engagement when Marion arrived.

What did she like most about the rajah of rock 'n' roll?

"He's so soft spoken and nice mannered," Marion beamed.

Marion was found by the Commercial Appeal after considerable telephone calling between Memphis, New York, and the Weisbarth home on Long Island.

Waives Hearing On Bank Hold-Up

BOSTON, N.C. (AP) — An unemployed Rutherfordton man who said the robbery yesterday of the security branch of the Security Bank & Trust Co. of Rutherfordton was a "matter of starvation" has waived a preliminary hearing and is being held for grand jury action under $15,000 bond.

Sheriff V. H. Wilkins said 50-year-old Bruce Gibson was arrested less than an hour after he had taken $1,841.13 from the bank at gunpoint. Wilkins said the getaway car had been borrowed from a neighbor.

Police found money and a .38 caliber pistol in the bag inside the home of Gibson's son-in-law in nearby Rutherfordton. Gibson was arrested as he left the house.

Gibson was transferred to the Buncombe County jail at Asheville pending trial.

Marine Prosecutor Seeks Show McKeon Poor Leader, Violated Rules

By BEY PRICE

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — A stocky, quietly scathing major today sought to show that Marine Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon was a poor troop leader and violated basic military rules.

Maj. Charles B. Sevier of Jacksonville, Ill., government prosecutor, fired questions at the pale, 31-year-old former drill instructor with the insistence of a tank — which he is — shooting for effect.

McKeon is facing a general court-martial for leading a 74-man platoon of recruits into tide-swamp waters of Ribbon Creek marsh, where six drowned.

After McKeon marched his men into the water "to teach them discipline," Sevier wanted to know, "you gave no order to stay in column?"

"No, sir," said McKeon. "They were in a staggered column."

"You never told them to close up and cover down (stay one behind the other at an interval of 40 inches)?"

"No, sir."

"You didn't know what condition your platoon was in, did you?"

"They were in more or less of a column," McKeon answered.

A key point in the court-martial is whether the recruits would have drowned had they followed McKeon's order of "Follow me."

Defense attorney Emile Zola-Zeig testified, "I would have Bernam of New York City signed anything I would have in service, wandered away from the column to their deaths."

A basic tenet of the military on night exercises is to keep in close contact with the man in front.

McKeon completed his testimony at 10:32 a.m. (EDT) and the court awaited expectantly the arrival of Marine commandant Gen. Randolph M. C. Pate, to represent the government and take disciplinary action.

"Did you believe that your battalion commander held you responsible for teaching discipline?" the colonel asked.

"Yes, sir," McKeon replied.

"Did you believe he held you responsible for taking disciplinary action?"

"No, sir," McKeon said.

Earlier, McKeon was asked by Sevier if he tried to maintain discipline and morale — slapping his men.

In his testimony yesterday the tall, strained former drill instructor admitted he had half-heartedly slapped three recruits. He also said he considered the discipline of the platoon poor.

Under cross-examination by Maj. Charles B. Sevier of Jacksonville, Ill., McKeon was asked, "Did you slap men into the position of attention?"

"Yes, sir," he said. "That was the way you maintained discipline, by slapping recruits?"

The 31-year-old native of Worcester, Mass., replied, "There was no meanness in my heart, no hate, when I slapped those men. I'd be in the back of the platoon and if they were goofing off, I'd give them a little belt beside the head."

McKeon said that was to let the platoon know "we mean business."

Sevier then inquired sarcastically, "Didn't you say the platoon's discipline would be good for two or three days and then slack off?"

McKeon, who has the appearance of a man close to breaking, replied, "Yes, sir."

"Then," said Sevier, "don't you feel it was the drill instructors who were slacking off?"

"I wouldn't say, sir," McKeon answered.

As he resumed the witness stand today, the 16th of the trial, McKeon said his platoon had no non-swimmer, just some who couldn't qualify by swimming the length of the pool at the rifle range twice.

"Every one of the people I seen," he said, "could swim. They couldn't qualify, but they could swim some."

On the stand yesterday, McKeon told his story of the fatal night march. At one point the hitherto impassive, beribboned veteran of Korea wept.

Panel Begins Its Air Crash Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fact-finding panel of the Civil Aeronautics Board today opens hearings aimed at finding the cause for the Grand Canyon collision of two airliners which killed all 128 persons aboard.

To piece together the facts on U.S. commercial aviation's worst disaster — for which there were neither witnesses nor survivors — more than 30 representatives of the United Air Lines and Trans World Airways and of the Civil Aeronautics Administration were listed.

What they could tell the six-man panel during the next two or three days obviously could deal only with procedures for dispatching the airliners, traffic rules and the shattered bits of wreckage.

To begin with, the official investigators worked from these basic facts:

A TWA Constellation and a United DC7, which took off a few minutes apart from Los Angeles on June 30, collided at what probably was about 20,000 feet altitude above the Colorado River as it flows through the Arizona Canyon.

Both planes were eastbound, the TWA headed for Kansas City, the UAL for New York. The TWA Constellation carried 53 passengers and 5 crewmen; the UAL DC7 64 passengers and 6 crewmen.

The DC7 had filed a flight plan for soaring at 21,000 feet in the canyon area, which contained a thick cloud deck extending from about 2,000 feet up to 20,000 feet. The CAA, which handles air traffic, said the TWA pilot requested permission to go up from 19,000 to 21,000 feet, but before he could be answered again radioed that he would fly visually, instead of on instrument, at 1,000 feet above the cloud tops.

This would have put him up to the level of the UAL liner. The last words from either of the airliners was the fragment of a message radioed by the UAL plane: "We are going..."

As the CAB hearings began, a number of possible causes for the crash already had been speculated upon. They have included inept traffic control rules, pilot error or misjudgment, malfunctioning of equipment, and the possibility that turbulence in the thunderstorms through which the planes were flying may have hurled them together.

The CAB panel conducting the public hearings is headed by Chairman James R. Duffee.

President Signs Arms Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has signed a bill supplying $3,766,000,000 to 54 nations for the next year to reinforce their armed services and economies in the cold war with Communism.

But the measure contains two features the administration found objectionable during the Congressional fight on foreign aid.

Most important, the amount of money was $1,093,405,000 less than the President wanted, a cut Eisenhower maintained would mean America's security and free world partnership "will be seriously impaired."

The other stipulation fought unsuccessfully by the administration stops further arms aid to Communist Yugoslavia. This was inserted by senators led by members of Eisenhower's party, Republican leader Knowland (Calif.) and Bridges (N.H.).

Yugoslavia, however, still can obtain military equipment on order, plus future material for maintenance and spare parts. There also is a provision allowing Yugoslavia 15 million dollars in economic aid.

Chandler Happy On VP Outlook

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. A. B. Chandler showed elation over the withdrawal of Sen. Estes Kefauver from the race for the Democratic presidential nomination and told a press conference "Truthfully, I now think I will be second on the first ballot at Chicago."

Kefauver urged his supporters to back Adlai Stevenson.

Chandler's first reaction when hearing the news from his executive secretary was "Well, this beats them both."

Gov. Averell Harriman is the third candidate in the race for the Democratic nomination.

Chandler said he had several calls from Kefauver backers offering their support to his candidacy. He said he would definitely continue to seek delegates and planned to spend two days this week in South Carolina. He will be met at Columbia, S. C., tomorrow by Sol Blatt, speaker of the South Carolina House of Representatives.

Chandler will pay a courtesy call and have lunch with South Carolina Gov. Timmerman Friday. He will address a Democratic rally Saturday at Wilmington, N.C.

Checking Up On Heirs To Estate

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP) — Attorneys handling the estate of Mrs. Kate E. Landes sent out $500 questionnaires to 19 heirs.

Smoke? Drink? Belong to a church? Go to Church or Sunday school every Sunday?

Mrs. Landes left $500 apiece to 17 nieces and nephews and two friends if they have the right answers ("no" to the first two questions and "yes" to the others).

Three have answered satisfactorily and certified they are eligible for the $500.

Twelve others replied variously, some of them declining to claim the money.

Two haven't been heard from at all.

And a lawyer for the other two, legally dotting every "I" and crossing every "T," responded in their behalf:

"Eligible unless that portion of Article IV of the will which provides 'nor drink' should be interpreted to include the consumption of water and other nonalcoholic beverage."

Indict Peron For Seducing Girl

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A judge has indicted former President Juan D. Peron in absentia on seducing teen-ager Nelly (Nelly) Rivas.

Peron is in exile in Panama. The indictment issued by Judge Ernesto Gonzalez Bonorino in Juvenile Court accuses him of having sexual relations with the young girl for two years, from the time she was 14.

The judge also indicted Nelly's parents, Jose and Maria de Rivas, on charges of aiding Peron in the alleged seduction. They and their daughter already have been jailed.

Personal Touch May Someday Go

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Those roadside conversations between motorists and policemen that usually begin, "Where's the fire, Buddy?" may some day be a thing of the past.

Police Chief William H. Parker predicts personal contact between officers and motorists will be eliminated in the future, with closed circuit television spotting and photographing traffic violations.

The photographs would be mailed to the offender and to the traffic court, he told a meeting at which Los Angeles received a national safety award.

Figured 'Love' Needed Proving

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — To prove his love for a Colorado College coed, Michael F. Cusack of Fort Worth, Tex., ran his fist through the glass door of his college dormitory. Police said the unidentified coed, who witnessed the incident, wasn't convinced. Neither was the college's dean of men. He handed Cusack a bill for the damage. And the young student was taken to a local hospital suffering severe hand and wrist cuts.

Killer Captured In Chicago Alley

CHICAGO (AP) — Lawrence Neumann, 26, wanted in the shotgun slaying of three persons, was captured today in an alley on Chicago's near West Side.

Neumann was taken without a struggle, police said. Two hundred police surrounded a three-mile-square area searching for the fugitive gunman after two detectives earlier reported exchanging shots with a man they believed was Neumann.

The bespectacled ex-convict eluded police squads for about two hours before a woman resident of the area discovered him crouching on her back porch.

Mrs. Pat Ward, 40, told police she opened the door to let her dog out and saw Neumann. She said he rushed at her, motioning for her to remain quiet. However, she screamed "Who are you, who are you?" and then collapsed, police said.

Neumann attempted to flee but was captured by police who heard Mrs. Ward's cries.

Police said Neumann was wanted for the slaying June 8 of Max Epstein, 50, part owner of a North Side tavern; Mrs. Lois Gates, 29, a dice girl, and John Keller, 47, a news vendor.

Mrs. Gates and Epstein were shot in Epstein's tavern and Keller was shot down when he inadvertently blocked the killer's escape route.

Police said Neumann had been arrested in the tavern May 9 for creating a disturbance and apparently returned to settle a grudge.

Sixteen-State Conference On Atom-Use Begins

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Representatives from 16 states met here today to begin a four-day conference on peaceful uses of atomic energy in the South.

Gov. Leroy Collins of Florida, who proposed the meetings at a Southern Governors' Conference last fall, will address the Southern Regional Work Conference on nuclear energy tonight.

Collins is to present the conference recommendations before the Southern Governors' Conference to be held Sept. 9-11 at White Sulphur Springs, W.Va.

Three major planning conferences already have been held: at Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Raleigh, N.C.; and Aiken, S.C. Results of these conferences are to be coordinated at the current conference, which continues through Saturday.

State delegates, consultants in nuclear energy and members of the Southern Regional Education Board have collected data on the present status of atomic energy uses — plans by industry, state governments and educational institutions, and future possibilities. Their findings cover five major fields of atomic energy applications — general industry, power, agriculture, public health and medicine, manpower and education.

States cooperating are Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

Three-Year-Old Promise To Korean Youth Is Kept

MCKEESPORT, Pa. (AP) — A promise made to a Korean houseboy by a former Army sergeant more than three years ago was fulfilled today with the arrival of Cheung (Mickey) Key Wan.

When Mickey landed at Greater Pittsburgh Airport and embraced his benefactor, LaVerne R. Lefford, 30, it was the end of a three-year struggle to bring the 13-year-old Korean orphan to this country. Mickey, who understands more English than he speaks, grinned broadly when he saw his "old Army buddy," Lefford, who gave up an eight-year Army career to bring his friend home, said:

"That's all the thanks I need. I feel great that I was able to succeed in my promise to bring him here."

Lefford explained that he met Mickey while serving with the 424th Field Artillery near Seoul. Mickey was a houseboy in the barracks.

"I took an immediate liking to Mickey and decided to help him," Lefford said. "When I learned I would have to be discharged from the Army to bring him to McKeesport, I did it willingly and have no regrets."

The boy is to live with the Lefords until he himself decides what he wants to do. Mrs. Lefford said later she was "very happy to have Mickey with the family."

Lefford, single and a carpenter, said there were no immediate plans for adoption, adding: "We will let him decide that."

Birthday Cake Came Too Late

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP) — Four-year-old Chris Barnes' birthday cake came too late.

The brown-haired, blue-eyed boy with "a smile like the littlest angel" died just after midnight of cancer of the blood.

His mother was more or less reconciled to it. A few hours before, while Chris was receiving his eighth blood transfusion, she quietly observed:

"He's a very sweet, very affectionate little boy. I feel he belongs to God and I feel privileged to have had him even for such a short time."

Mrs. Doris Barnes learned only 30 days ago he had the disease. Chris was in an Albuquerque hospital about two weeks. The nurses took to his bright smile and likened him to "the littlest angel."

Mrs. Barnes, a schoolteacher with three other children, said doctors told her they had seen few such cases develop so rapidly. Chris would have been 5 Friday, but his mother decided to hurry up a little birthday party — just in case. It was to have been today.

Crippled Woman Is Unique Artist

FRANKFORT, Mich. (AP) — A unique artist is Gwen Prostie, who suffered a severe attack of polio as a child and was believed crippled for life.

She creates block-print note papers and greeting cards in her one-room print shop. She does extensive research for her nature sketches, which are in demand by tourists and art lovers.

Miss Prostie worked during World War II in the tool designing department of a bomber plant. Now she teaches a crafts class and edits a clubwomen's magazine.

Sea Scouts Win Official Thanks

EL TORO, Calif. (AP) — Eleven Sea Scouts from Anaheim have received an official thank you for saving the life of a Marine pilot downed off Catalina last Tuesday.

The boys, at sea on an eight-day cruise, joined the huge search for the missing plane and found the pilot, M.Sgt. George V. Mikkelsen Wednesday after he had floated in the water all night. Another man aboard the plane was lost.

Maj. Gen. Marion L. Dawson, commander of the 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing, brought the 11 youngsters and Mayor Charles Pearson of Anaheim to the Marine Air Base here yesterday and treated them to fried chicken, an inspection tour and a regimental parade.

A Potential Waiting To Be Tapped

Eastern Carolina's glaring need for more industrial jobs to provide a greater per capita income is pointed up vividly in a recent publication of the Department of Conservation and Development.

The area has the natural resources, manpower, transportation facilities and electricity to make it one of the most prosperous sections of North Carolina. Agriculturally, it is already the most prosperous section of the state. If a balancing amount of industry is added to agriculture, the section has almost unlimited possibilities.

The department of Conservation and Development divided North Carolina into 16 geographic areas for the purpose of its study.

One of these areas is composed of the counties of Pitt, Greene, Lenoir, Wilson, Wayne, Nash and Edgecombe. It is enlightening to see how this highly successful agricultural area compares with other geographic sections of the state.

In population, the seven county area ranks third in the areas with a population of 392,000. In consumer sales it ranks fifth among the 16 geographic areas of the state, and in total income it ranks sixth among the 16 areas. Those figures are impressive. Yet in per capita income and in per capita sales, the area ranks ninth and eighth respectively among the 16 areas of the state.

It is readily seen from these figures that the seven-county area, with a sufficient number of year-round industrial jobs to provide more income for its people, could rapidly move into one of the foremost spots in the economy of North Carolina.

The per capita income of the section is $944 a year compared with a per capita income of $2,172 per year in the Charlotte area. Per capita sales in the seven-county area amount to $918 annually compared with $1,687 in the Charlotte area, the top area in North Carolina economically.

If through industrial development the per capita income of the eastern section of the state could be raised only 10 per cent, it would mean an increase of almost $37 million annually in the pockets of the people of seven-county area. A 25 per cent increase in the per capita income of citizens of the seven-county area would increase the total income of the area by $103 million annually.

Kefauver's Abdication Seems Adlai Clincher

Sen. Kefauver's abdication from the ranks of candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination comes as the biggest surprise so far in this year of political surprises.

By throwing his support to Stevenson with whom he fought so bitterly in preferential primaries, Kefauver has strengthened considerably the chances of the former governor of Illinois for the nomination. The Tennessee senator has likewise left the door open for his own nomination as vice president on the Democratic ticket in spite of his previous statement that he would not consider the post.

While this surprise move of Kefauver's does not assure the nomination of Stevenson, it does, for all practical purposes knock into a cocked hat what for a time appeared to be a coalition of opposition candidates which would have thrown the convention into a deadlock to block the Stevenson nomination.

Sen. Kefauver is not in a position to dictate to his delegates whom they should support now that he has withdrawn from the presidential candidates ring. Yet, the handshaking senator from Tennessee proved himself a tireless campaigner. The result of presidential primaries in which he entered indicated his ability to get votes among the rank and file population in spite of the odds against him at higher levels of state Democratic organizations. Should he now actively support Stevenson, he will be a big gun in the Stevenson camp with the convention less than two weeks away.

Gov. Harriman of New York now stands as Stevenson's leading challenger for the nomination. With Kefauver now in Stevenson's camp, the lines are clearly drawn between the moderate stand which Stevenson has taken throughout the pre-convention campaigning and the liberal position which Harriman has taken in his years in politics.

Kefauver's strategic move could mean the difference on the convention floor in Chicago.

Opinions In Brief

REAL HOME NEEDS

Jackson (Miss.) Clarion-Ledger

Here's a guy that both men and women will casually and cheerfully tell to go to hell and let the subject be promptly dismissed. He is Henry Glass, of Chicago, who proclaims himself a "creator of homes." He has plan to "make the home as efficient as the office."

In the first place, nobody wants to live in a home as efficient as an office. Nobody wants to substitute closets and drawers for shelves and slinding trays, as Mr. Glass proposes.

When Mr. John Householder returns home, tired and worn from a day's work, he gives no thought to efficiency. What he wants is a cool shower bath, a comfortable bath robe and a place to stretch out or a spot where he can perch his heels in the air. He wants a cheerful wife who fixes him an ice-cream highball or a frosted mint julep. He wants his joyous children to tumble about with him on the floor, and he wants to smell chicken frying in the kitchen.

Mr. Glass may plan until he is bat-mind, but Mr. John Householder wants no changes in his home unless it is the resurrection of a porch railing and a veranda that will furnish room for a rocking chair and a hammock.

P. S. Also, we want a return to the old-fashioned wood-burning fireplace to which one can draw up a chair, look and listen at golden crackling flames, and spit at it if so inclined.

million annually.

With 392,000 people, the agricultural section of Pitt, Greene, Lenoir, Wayne, Wilson, Nash and Edgecombe, has infinite possibilities for industrial development without an adverse effect upon its agriculture. Through the development of small industries, the section can increase the number of available jobs, increase the per capita income, its buying power and provide a higher standard of living for its people.

Instead of ranking sixth among North Carolina's geographic area in total income, it could rank several rungs nearer the top. Instead of ranking ninth in per capita income, the section could rank among the top five sections of the state.

A great deal of effort will be required to attain such goals; but the rewards they will bring for the people of the seven-county area are well worth the effort involved.

The area has the potential for economic growth. Whether the growth will be realized depends directly upon the efforts made by the people of the section to bring about a broader, more diversified economy.

Little Time Given Other Activities

By LYNN NISBET

LEFT OVERS — The work schedule set by legislative leaders last week, approximately 60 hours in five days, left no time for other activities. The fellows had little opportunity for socializing. More important, there was no chance for the meetings of the study commissions which the respective chairmen had hoped to get in.

Sen. Claude Currie, chairman of the committee studying the highway set up, had written associate members he hoped to just about complete their work during the week.

Rep. David Clark, chairman of the committee on reorganization, and Brandon Hodges, chairman of the tax study group, had similar ideas.

As it turned out, the members of these committees did not have time to arrange for subsequent meetings, leaving that up to call of the chairmen.

POLITICS — There was time for some offside political discussion, dealing mostly with national affairs. Considerable attention was given to the situation in the 10th district and the prospects of Democratic candidate Ben Douglas unseating Republican Charles Raper Jonas. People from outside were more optimistic on that score than those who vote in the district. The Democrats must get a whopping majority in Mecklenburg to win, and local conditions there are not conducive to Democratic voting this year.

Nearly all the legislators expect Adlai Stevenson to win the presidential nomination. Governor Frank Clement of Tennessee was given a fair chance for second place on the ticket. Next to Stevenson Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri seemed to be the favorite.

1960 — At state level interest centered on 1960, when a new Governor must be elected and the term of Senator Kev Scott runs out. Most people believe that Governor Hodges has his eyes on the Senate. A few suggested that Alton Lennon, after two terms in the House of Representatives, might again seek the Senate seat. They conceded that if Hodges gets into the running, unless there is tremendous drop in his popularity, it will be useless for anybody else to run.

The success of the school program is enacted in the regular and extra sessions of the 1955 General Assembly, and which may come out of the 1957 and 1959 Legislatures, will have material bearing on the 1960 election. If the schools are kept open without interruption, Hodges will continue to be a popular hero.

GOVERNOR — Consensus among most political observers is that result will also assure nomination and election of Tom Pearsall as Governor in 1960. It is not expected he can get by without strong opposition. If the school legislation fails to afford the relief hoped for new lines will be formed and all present bets will be off.

This kind of speculation serves only to fill in dull moments. North Carolinians know that, whatever may have been the case many years ago, Governors and Senators are not handpicked years in advance.

A savant with a crystal ball could have won millions by betting four years in advance on successful candidates for Governor in 1948 and 1956.

One fellow said that if Luther Hodges wants to stay in the Governor's office, he has prestige enough now to get the constitution amended so he can run again.

LIGHTNING — It was Monday morning after lightning had struck the steeple and burned Edenton Street Methodist Church. The group of commuters who regularly ride the 8 o'clock Forest Hills bus to work, taking over the five or six rear-most seats, were talking about it. Participants included two or three State employees, a couple of Carolina Power & Light folks and your reporter.

Questions batted around included: Why did lightning strike a church? Why wasn't the steeple "grounded" against such hazard? What is lightning? How are the clouds charged with electricity? What is electricity?

The dean of the group is an electrical engineer. He knew enough about the subject to realize he didn't know much. He didn't say anything. Some of the others had no such inhibitions. After they had exhausted their knowledge (?) they insisted the engineer give his explanation.

Here it is, about as he gave it on the bus:

Electricity is generated by the clouds rolling around and rubbing against each other. You know how it is when too many fleas get on a dog. Some of them have to jump off. Same thing happens when too much electricity gets on a cloud. Some of it has to jump off. That's lightning. When it jumps it hits whatever is in its way.

It took just 20 seconds for the rest of the fellows to realize they were being taken for a ride. And less than a minute to realize the foolishness of laymen or engineers trying to explain the phenomena of electrical energy.

MIGHTY SPEECH AND INFLUENCE

Phillips Brooks, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church at Boston was one of the greatest preachers of the nineteenth century.

Yet Phillips Brooks' life began with a huge and ludicrous failure. After graduation from college, he had only one desire, and that was to teach in a boys' preparatory school. He tried it and failed miserably. The headmaster dismissed him and sent him away with the declaration that it had been his observation that a person who failed in teaching failed in everything else.

Brookshearted and dejected, Brooks went into seminary and prepared himself for the ministry. Within a few years after his ordination he was being spoken of in Philadelphia—where at different times he had two different churches—as one of the outstanding preachers in the East.

Then he was called to Trinity in Boston. For a whole generation he held the city spellbound. People stood in the aisles every Sunday, and influence on the city's life between Sundays was even greater than that was to teaching in a boys' preparatory school. He tried it and failed miserably. The headmaster dismissed him and sent him away with the declaration that it had been his observation that a person who failed in teaching failed in everything else.

O'Course We Need Workers—

'Outsiders' And Vacationland

North Carolina claim as a "Variety Vacationland" is obviously impressing a large group of persons who come from states with their own "vacationland" claims.

Last weekend, Gwen and I palmed off our little urchin on her unsuspecting parents and hauled ourselves off to the seashore. Being at least half-way conservative, we passed up the rock 'n' paradise of Atlantic and Carolina beaches, favorites of most of the other young couples, and made the long drive to Nags Head. It was well worth the extra effort, even if the water is colder and the juke boxes fewer and quieter.

Anyway, we got there and were positively amazed at the number of out-of-state cars there, particularly those from Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio. Many of them were obviously attracted by the "Lost Colony," if bumper stickers are any kind of judge.

But many of them were also heard commenting about the length of their hotel and cottage reservations. (We eavesdropped.)

Traveling in stretch of U.S. 158 from Oregon Inlet to the Currituck Sound bridge, a Tar Heel motorist practically has to fight the out-of-staters for a place in line. They come in droves and dominate the highway traffic, in a sensible, gentle sort of way.

Many of these same cars, not so much those from Virginia as those from other states, featured bumper stickers from other parts of our state. An astounding number claimed to have seen "Unto These Hills," which is played "way up yonder in Cherokee." Many carried evidences of having visited Grandfather Mountain and its famous swinging bridge, Chimney Rock stickers were also prominent.

Frequently, we hear comments from native Tar Heels who want to go somewhere else on their vacations. These people claim North Carolina has little to offer (they evidently don't read the same things those Yankees do) and take their gas buggies and themselves somewhere else to spend money and gawk.

Now, I don't mean to say that North Carolinians should restrict themselves to the political boundaries of the state. Certainly, every person has an obligation to himself and to the people with whom he associates to know as much as he can about this great country of ours.

But I am saying, and I don't apologize for it, that many Tar Heels should be ashamed of themselves when they start kicking North Carolina. They need to open their eyes a little bit to what they have in their own backyard.

Besides, if the Yankees are smart enough to realize what we have here, then we should be. First thing you know, they'll be trying to take it away from us.

The front porch technique offers one big advantage to the Democrats. It would save them the expense of renting a campaign train. Its disadvantage is this: The best known front porch in the Democratic party is that on Harry Truman's big, old, moose home in Independence, Mo. — but Harry says he isn't available himself. Do any of the announced Democratic candidates really have a suitable front porch? That could be a problem.

The most famous porch in the nation is the controversial one on the White House, built on order of ex-President Truman himself after a bitter controversy.

It would be an odd political irony if President Eisenhower, switching to the tradition of McKinley and Harding, should use that porch as a platform for a successful second term.

Could a front porch campaign win today? The growth of mass communications would seem to make it simpler than ever for a candidate to sit at home, sip lemonade and roll up a tidal wave of ballots.

He could under the eye of the TV cameras, add such folksy touches—such as strolling out to the barbecue grill in his yard and showing the nation's housewives his skill at broiling hamburgers. Even in prosperity a candidate might not want his picture taken in an election year while cooking a juicy steak.

Robinson Leads Bums To Win Over Braves

By ED WILKS

Jackie Robinson's an old guy who can still get the job done. He came off the bench to give Brooklyn's third-place world champions the zip they needed to stay healthy after losing seven straight to National League-leading Milwaukee. He delivered the missing snap and crackle to pop the Braves 3-2 last night with a two-run homer and a tie-breaking, ninth-inning single.

Joe Adcock hit his usual home run against the Dodgers but he pulled a rock as a baserunner, killing off a ninth-inning rally.

While the Dodgers were struggling back to within four games of the Braves, Cincinnati's second-place Redlegs split a two-game double-header with the New York Giants, losing 5-1 and then winning 7-3.

The fourth-place St. Louis Cardinals handed Pittsburgh a sixth straight loss 7-0 on Murry Dickson's five-hitter. The Chicago Cubs came from behind to beat Philadelphia 9-4 with Monte Irvin driving home five runs.

Cleveland's runner-up Indians showed they were still breathing in the American League "race."

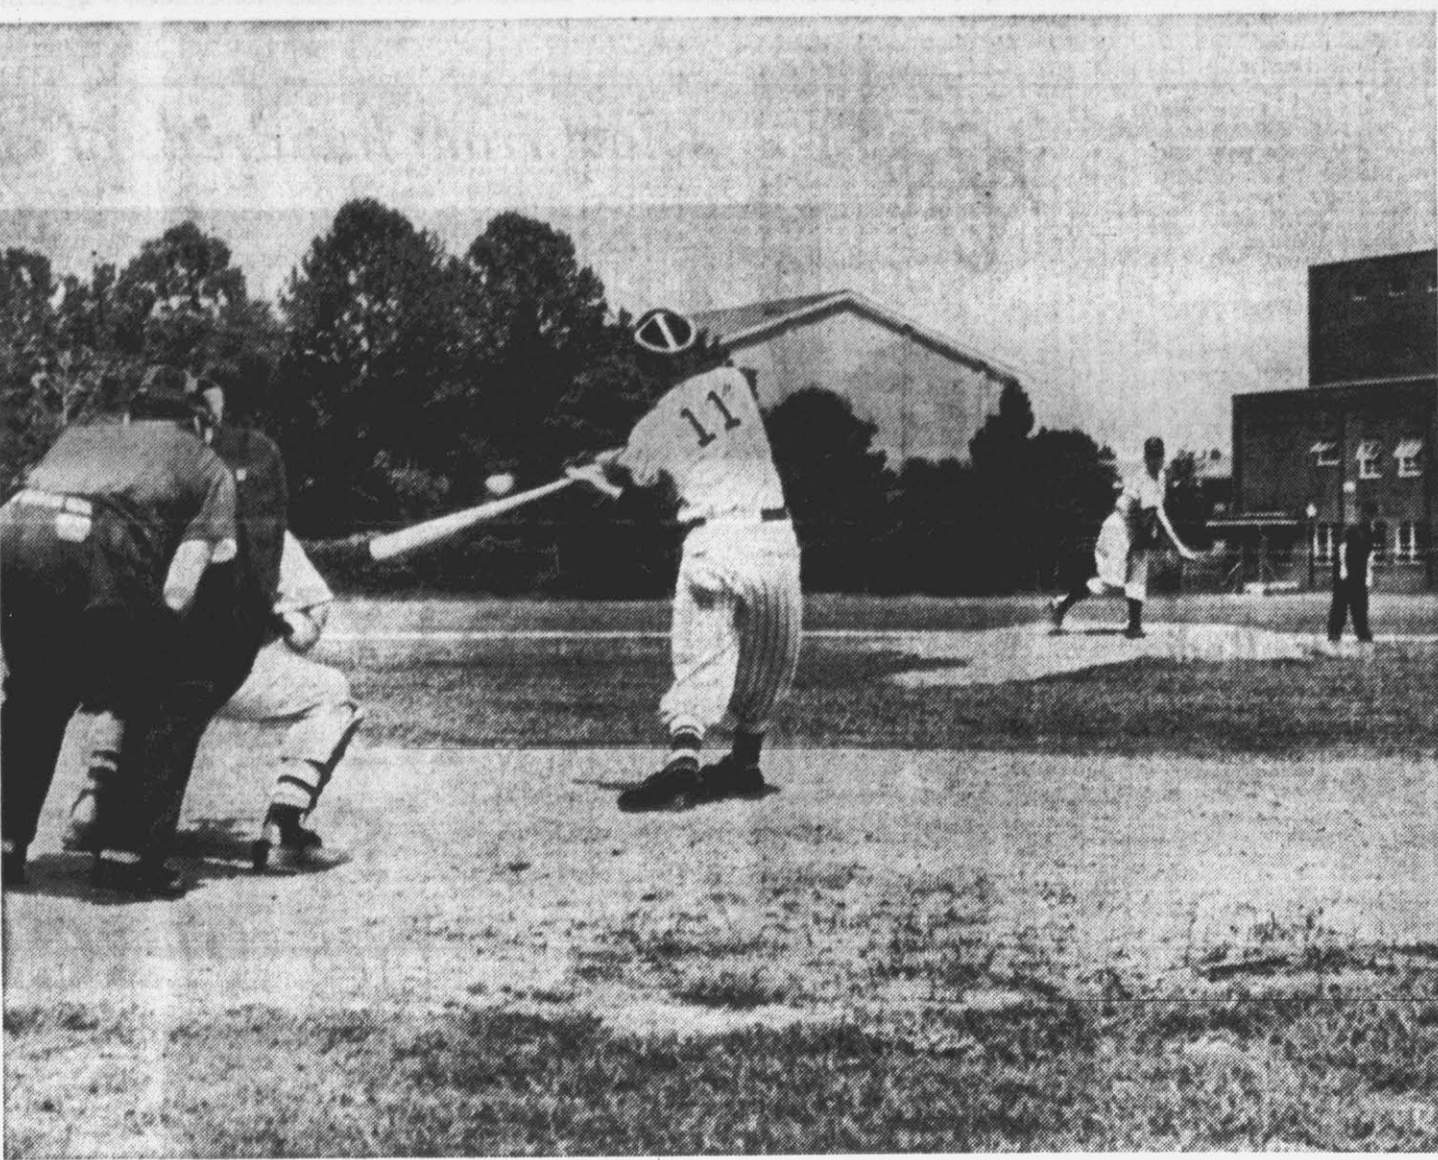

New York as Early Wynn's three-hitter ended the Yankees' winning streak at six games 5-0.

Detroit smacked Boston 6-4 behind Frank Lary's four-hitter. Baltimore defeated Kansas City 5-1. Washington beat the Chicago White Sox 4-3 on a wild pitch.

Robinson, 35 and in his 10th season, had been out of the Dodger lineup for 16 games because of a pulled groin muscle. He got three hits in four trips and appears certain to play third again tonight.

Adcock smacked his 24th home run in the second inning off Carl Erskine, but Jackie did him one better with a two-run poke, his eighth, in the bottom half of the frame against Gene Conley. That's the way it stood until the ninth, when with one out, Ed Mathews hit his 20th homer to tie it.

Hank Aaron followed with a double and Erskine gave way to Clem Labine. Adcock was walked intentionally, but Bobby Thomson got a scratch single that loaded the bases. Logan then grounded to Robinson, who threw to the TEEN-ER BASEBALL—The State-wide V. F. W. Teen-er Baseball Tourney, got underway at East Carolina Field yesterday with games between Gastonia and Lenoir, High Point and Elizabeth City. Today's games, which will include the teams already mentioned and two more, Morganton and St. Pauls, will begin at 9:30 A. M. and extend the full afternoon. V. F. W. officials are treating Greenville to plenty of top-notch ball, and are treating the boys to banquets, as the one last night (lower, right). (Reflector Staff Photos).

Joe Adcock Can Make Mistakes, Too; Bums Glad

By DON WEISS

JERSEY CITY, N. J. —The Brooklyn Dodgers, back within four games of the Milwaukee Braves and still with a chance to turn the current "clutch" series in their favor, are relieved to know Joe Adcock can make a mistake once in a while.

An Adcock boner, strange doings of the slugger who has almost singlehandedly opened the gap between the two clubs in recent weeks, upset a Milwaukee rally last night in the ninth inning of the Dodgers' 3-2 victory at packed Roosevelt Stadium. A homer by Adcock and another by Eddie Mathews in the ninth gave the Braves their two runs.

With the score tied 2-2, the bases loaded and one out, Adcock barreled from second to third as Johnny Logan hit into a force play at the plate, then kept going on going and tried to score. Rube Walker, Dodger catcher who had received the throw on the force play, was waiting with the ball when Adcock was 40 feet from the plate.

Joe was an easy out, the inning was over, and the Dodgers' promptly won the game in the last of the ninth when Jackie Robinson, who drove in all three Dodger runs with a homer and a single, slashed a hit to deep right center, scoring Pee Wee Reese from second base.

"I thought Rube was going to throw to first to try to get Logan and complete the double play that way," Adcock said. "Why he didn't, I don't know. But he didn't and I guess I fouled up the game."

"I saw him draw back as if to throw, and I set said. When he stopped and turned toward me, I was a dead duck."

Manager Fred Harvey of the Braves, coaching at third base, said Adcock ran on his own.

"I certainly didn't know he was going. He ran right through my size. I looked up and he was running right into the tag," Haneey said.

The Dodgers were agreeably surprised at Adcock's play since they felt Walker would have had no play on Logan had he attempted a throw to first.

Four Games Slated For Today's Play

The State-wide V.F.W. Teen-er Tourney, being held for the first time in Greenville, got underway yesterday with two games that found Gastonia and High Point place in the first inning.

Four games were on schedule for today at East Carolina College Field and the tournament will close on Thursday with the championship game and a consolation match.

Gastonia-Lenoir

Gastonia and Lenoir squared off Tuesday morning, in the first of eight scheduled Tourney games. Larry Jenkins hurled a 7-1 victory over the Lenoir crew, as his team capitalized on seven walks, three errors by the Lenoir catcher, and a hit batsman, all taking place in the first inning.

Gus Scott blasted out a triple in the first inning, while the winners at the plate and was backed up by the hitting of Marvin Beasley, Clyden Denton, Robert Ramsey and Blair Walker.

The only Lenoir run came in the fourth inning on an error and a single by shortstop Mike Broach. Broach's hit was the only safety posted by the losers.

Jenkins was relieved in the fourth frame by Max Dellinger, who pitched hitless ball for the remainder of the scheduled seven inning contest.

The losing pitcher was Don Carlton, who was relieved in the first by Max McCrary. Bernie Walker came on in the second and went the rest of the way for Lenoir.

High Point Wins

Behind the hitting and pitching of lanky Richard Kemp, the High Point Teen-er team defeated Elizabeth City 3-2 in the second game of the tourney, an afternoon affair.

Winning pitcher—Jenkins. Losing pitcher—McCrary.

Deadlocked at 2-2 at the end of the regulation seven innings, the two teams battled evenly until Kemp scampered home in the top of the ninth on a hit by D. Snigglefield.

Raleigh's Pierce was credited with the win. He also fanned 15, but gave up five scattered Greenville hits.

Both teams played scoreless ball for the full regulation seven innings, and a Raleigh base runner finally scored the winning run on a pass ball.

Raleigh's third baseman, Keys, drew a walk from Bynum in the bottom of the eighth and stole second. Daniels slapped a long fly to right field and the rightfielder relayed to third to cut off Keys. Third baseman Nobles overthrew at second, in an attempt to catch Keys for the out. He advanced to third and later scored on the pass ball.

Almost Win Second Game

In the second game, the Battery almost pulled it out of the fire with two runs in the top of the last inning, but couldn't get the tying run across the plate.

Harold O'Kelley went the route for the winners giving up 14 hits, striking out two and leaving up one.

West Hoopsters Take 85-65 Win

GREENSBORO — The West-ern all-stars romped to an 85-65 basketball win over the East here last night, opening the way for football to make its bow in the high school all-star games here today.

A coaches clinic started the pigskin parade this morning with Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech leading the march. Dodd was aided by his Yellow Jacket staff, including line coach Ray Graves, backfield mentor Frank Broyles and offensive line coach Jack Griffin.

In last night's cage action, the West caught fire in the second half to pull away from the East. The West went into the final session holding a slim 55-52 advantage, then stretched its lead to 65-54 behind the clutch playing of Leicester's Jackie Teague and Wilson Carruthers of Greensboro.

Guard Eddie Goodnight of Salisbury paced the winners with 15 points. Youngsville's Winston Wiggins led the East's scoring with 14 points.

The eight-game series is now even at 4-4.

Pony Leaguers Bow To Raleigh Outfit

Greenville's Pony League All-Stars dropped their opening contest in the District Seven Tourney at Raleigh, last night, bowing 1-0 to Raleigh, in an extra-inning affair.

Hasty right-hander Merrill Bynum hurled for the Green nine, giving up only one hit and allowing no earned runs. He struck out 15 Raleigh batters and punched out two hits to pace his team both on the mound at the plate. However, it was not enough to stop Raleigh.

Raleigh's Pierce was credited with the win. He also fanned 15, but gave up five scattered Greenville hits.

Both teams played scoreless ball for the full regulation seven innings, and a Raleigh base runner finally scored the winning run on a pass ball.

Raleigh's third baseman, Keys, drew a walk from Bynum in the bottom of the eighth and stole second. Daniels slapped a long fly to right field and the rightfielder relayed to third to cut off Keys. Romancos Beat Carolina Dairy

Defending champion Roanoke Rapids defeated Carolina Dairy 5-3 last night in Rocky Mount in a double elimination tournament.

Leonard Johnson went the route for the Greenville team. He walked the first man up in the first inning, gave up four hits—two of the scratch-catchers—and four runs. The Dairy bounced back with two runs in their half of the first and added another in the fifth to make the score 4-3.

The Romancos added an insurance run in the top of the sixth and that was the ball game. The defending champs committed 7 errors, but didn't get hurt by them.

In the first game last night, the Roanoke Rapids Flyers topped First Baptist 9-6.

Field Of 150 In Qualifying Play

CHICAGO (AP) — A field of 159 pros will complete qualifying play today for the All American Golf Tournament at Tam O'Shanter.

The group is a remainder of 283 pros who began the qualifying round yesterday despite several interruptions because of rain.

Cene Webb of St. Louis, a 35-year-old who apparently thrives in rain, fired a five-under-par 33-4-67 to lead the field yesterday with 5 birdies and 13 pars. Webb did not card more than four strokes on any hole.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Holy Family Adoption Service, which last year paced 147 babies, was faced with a new problem today — what to do with four kittens.

Someone left them in a basket on the doorstep.

C-of-C Also Seeks Build Good Will

Building good will for Greenville and cooperating with the city administration and government are important activities of the local Chamber of Commerce.

The Program and Public Relations Committee promotes and cooperates in campaigns to build good will for the city, its businesses and its citizens, and publicizes its institutions, services and facilities which make Greenville attractive as a place to live and visit.

The Civic and Public Affairs Committee fosters and promotes civic projects for the good of the community as a whole.

Commerce, Trade
Equally important is the Commerce and Trade Committee which fosters and promotes projects for the expansion of retail and wholesale trade here, making Greenville more attractive business-wise.

This year, the Program and Public Relations Committee, headed by James L. Harris, Jr., again sponsored the city-wide Newcomers Party at which all new citizens are made to feel at home and are entertained.

Other projects for 1956 include publishing and distributing a "Guide to Greenville" with a classified membership roster, compiling and publishing a new illustrated pamphlet on Greenville and promoting the city through advertising.

ECC Advertising
This year $125 is being appropriated to the East Carolina College advertising fund as well, and the committee is working to promote closer community-tobacco industry relations.

Taking the leading roles in this phase of Chamber of Commerce activity with Chairman Harris are committee members Charles P. Gaskins, vice chairman; Morris Brody, Wyatt Brown, Donald R. Eatman, Fred J. Forbes Jr., Walter Harrington, A. A. Hines, H. L. Hodges Jr. and J. W. Overton.

Hollywood Now Filming Screen-Writer's Life

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1 (AP) — A decade or two ago, a familiar figure on the MGM lot was a crusty Navy man turned screen writer, Spig Wead, who hobbled about on two canes.

He probably would have been at the notion of having his own life story told on the screen. Yet this week his own studio is starting to film "The Wings of Eagles," the amazing story of Spig Wead.

When MGM bought the story of the screen writer, it didn't take any convincing to sign John Ford to direct it. Ford was one of Wead's best friends. Likewise it was a cinch to sign John Wayne to play the leading role. He had also been a friend of Wead's, had worked with him and Ford on "They Were Expendable." That was in 1945. Wead died in 1947.

I learned more about Lt. Cmdr. Spig Wead's life from Charles Schnee, himself a screen writer—"The Bad and the Beautiful" and producer of the film biography. It is a labor of love for Schnee, a proud member of the Writers Guild of America.

He was born Frank Wead, Schnee explained, but his Annabelle nickname was Spig and that stuck with him to the end of his days. Spig was one of the great naval names of World War I. But something happened to cut his sea career short.

"He was living in a new house in San Diego," Schnee related. "He got up in the night to look at one of his daughters and was going back to bed when he slipped and fell downstairs..."

Wead broke his back. The doctors told him he would be forced to face the life of an invalid, but he refused to accept their decision. He taught himself to walk, slowly and painfully, with the aid of canes.

His Navy career apparently doomed, he turned to writing, especially about flying, which he loved. He was associated with some of the memorable air pictures of the 30s and 40s. Among his credits: "Hell Divers," "Test Pilot," "Dive Bomber," "The Citadel," "They Were Expendable," "Ceiling Zero," "Blaze at Noon," "A Yank at Oxford."

It was natural that the dedicated

Only The Future Can Tell How U. S. Policy Fared With Egypt

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—It still remains to be seen whether the United States handled Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser well or shrewdly. He's not a simple man. He's an emotional man, a gambler and a conspirator.

This army colonel, a would-be assassin in his earlier days when he sought to overthrow the hated king and remake Egypt, finally bounced King Farouk, bloodlessly, in 1952. He stayed in the background when he did it.

Now he's in a tight spot, trying to make good. He's trying to prove his right to be leader of Egypt and of the Arab world and to shepherd his people out of illiteracy and poverty into the 20th century.

He seems to be striking out wildly now. His emotionalism burst through last week. For four days he boiled in silence over the American and British refusal to lead him money to build a dam which backward Egypt sorely needs.

Then he spat out: "May you choke to death on your own hate." The West felt he had been playing too much footsy with the Russians, taunting the West, trying to play it off against the Reds, letting both bid for his favor.

He argues he tries to make the best deal for Egypt that he can, in arms and money. To anyone of Nasser's intensity what he considers a hurt to Egypt may seem like an act of hate.

Or it may be simply that any act of frustration which jeopardizes his personal power is too hateful to be borne. At any rate he struck back — perhaps in blind rage — by seizing the Suez Canal.

The British and French reacted strongly. But how far they are willing to go to loosen his grip on the canal is still to be seen. The United States may get involved. This is probably a turning point, up or down, for Nasser.

He is not a polished orator. Action may be his only resort to win the devotion of his own people. Apparently he doesn't have it, or didn't until he seized the canal, after four years in power.

When Nasser threw out Farouk, he worked out of sight as part of a group of army officers who led the revolt and used Maj. Gen. Mohamed Naguib as front man. Nasser finally pushed Naguib aside.

The Egyptians put Nasser strictly on his own — as he asked — last June by electing him president. That didn't mean he had their devotion. On July 7, Wilton Wynn, Associated Press reporter, wrote from Cairo:

"Nasser has become the leader of the Arab world. Now he faces the crisis of his life as he tackles the problem of winning over one set of people who have remained indifferent toward him — his own Egyptian public."

It may be that the Egyptians, who had so many masters so long, think he can't last simply because he is an Egyptian.

The Egyptians were uninterrupted under foreign rule from 525 B.C. to 1936 when the British withdrew. The memory of it is poison

Generally, U.S. Corporations in Profitable Year

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—American corporations on the whole continue to make more profits than in the previous years. But weakness in some key industries pull the average gains down from the heady percentages they were reporting some months back.

In the first six months of 1956 net profits after taxes for 448 corporations, the first to report, averaged 5.5 per cent higher than in the first half of 1955. But a year ago the average gains were 34.7 per cent higher than the first six months of 1954.

About three out of four corporations, however, show increases this year. In the previous year 17 did.

The industries which as a group declined this year from the profits they reported a year ago include automobiles, auto suppliers, glass, aircraft, breweries, railroads and electric equipment. The electronics group, however, was down as a unit chiefly because of one big company being strikebound during part of the period. At midyear its books had worked back into black ink.

Utilities turned in an average 12 per cent gain in the first half of the year. The 397 industrials, combined, were up 7.4 per cent. But the 32 railroads, with 15 on the declining side and three operating in the red, showed a 23 per cent drop this year as a group.

Some industrial groups show big gains over a year ago, to offset the weakness in the auto, aircraft and rail groups.

Biggest comeback from its own private depression of 1955 was the meat-packing group which this year shows a 164.3 per cent gain in profits.

Rail equipment makers have profits averaging 65.7 per cent higher this year. Machine tool companies show combined gains of 49.6 per cent. Coal companies report a 45.5 per cent increase as they hit the comeback trail.

Oil equipment makers spurred ahead by 61.7 per cent, while the oil producers advanced 18.8 per cent to continue their steady gains year by year since the end of the war.

The 26 steel and iron companies reporting early show a combined profit increase of 26.3 per cent in the period ending June 30. The strike that began the following day will affect the earnings in the current quarter, as will the wage and price hikes to go into effect.

If the auto companies come back strong as they expect and the steel companies rebound from their strike as anticipated, the year as a whole should run 1955 as a close race if not top it as a money maker for business as a whole.

Police Summons For Wrong Man

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP)—A Missoula man had a tough time convincing his suspicious spouse that he had never been to New York after that city sent him a summons to appear in police court to pay a $15 fine on a traffic charge. He was exonerated, however. Examination of the legal paper showed two transposed figures in a license plate number from which the name and address were obtained.

SOMETHING EXTRA

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP)—Homer Melton said the engine of his car broke down, and when a mechanic tore it apart, he found that someone had poured a mixture of varnish and aluminum paint into the oil pan.

ENCHANTED HARBOR

By DOROTHY WORLEY

CHAPTER 30

When the heavy-set man and dark woman moved away, Pete said to Gallagher, "I guess you'll have plenty of visitors to-day."

"Yeah," the fisherman said, "asking a lot of fool questions. That bird that just left—he has n't any sense about boats."

"People don't, unless they live around water."

Gallagher shrugged. "I know them all. That's a government boat out there, the gray boat. 'Coast Guard.'"

"That's right. Guess it brought in some of the big fellows." He looked at Pete as if he expected him to volunteer some information. There was a peculiar note in his voice that caused Pete to wonder. Did the man want confirmation of his conjecture regarding the reason for the Coast Guard cutter's being there?

Pete said carelessly, "I suppose that is why it's here—to bring some of the important visitors."

"It came last night," Gallagher said, looking off to where the boat was anchored. "Too many boats crowdin' in here today. I guess I oughta pulled out. May decide to do it yet."

When Pete was back on Main Street, he saw the heavy-set man and dark woman getting into a car. It was a gray Packard, with a license plate indistinguishable from rust. That was a little queer because the car was new. When he came closer, he saw that they were arguing.

When he was near enough, he said, "Hello!"

The man's expression changed instantly. "Oh—you're the young fellow we saw down on the water front just now. Tell me, is there a bar around?"

Bill pointed out the Gibson Hotel a couple of blocks down the street. He told them there was a bar in the hotel and there was also one at Maud's Tavern just across the causeway.

"You live here?" the man asked.

"Yes, I was born here."

"Guess you like it, then. For myself, I've never understood what anybody does in a place like this. Any industry?"

"Oh—fishing, principally," Pete said vaguely. "Apalachicola has the largest oyster beds in the world. Mostly, we just—live. We don't hurry through life."

"That's good," the man said good-naturedly. "Everybody seems to hurry these days. Well, I'll be hunting that drink. Thanks for the information."

The woman said something in Spanish to the man as the car backed from the parking space.

Pete watched them park and enter the Gibson Hotel, then he went to look for Bill. He found him at the Park and told him what had happened.

"What did they look like?"

"The man was stocky. Well dressed, sporting a big diamond like a lump of ice. The woman was slender and dark, a good looking. Reminded me a little of Rita."

Bill stopped suddenly and looked at Pete. "Are you sure they're still at the Gibson?"

"Yes. He was hunting a bar. I directed him there. He didn't seem to be in any hurry."

"What sort of car were they driving? What license tag?"

"A gray Packard. I looked at the license but I couldn't read it. It was bent and rusty looking. Does the description tally with the people you're looking for?"

"The woman's description does. That car had already been stopped."

"Hadden't you better go down to the Gibson?"

"It's better that I stay away. They're being covered anyway. And I don't want Alvarez to know that I have anything on my mind other than enjoying the day."

Pete stopped suddenly. "There's Peggy," he exclaimed, "with Rita and Priscilla! I completely forgot that I promised to pick Peggy up at eleven. I'm going to have to think fast."

Peggy didn't seem at all disturbed. She said they were three deserted females. Dick had called Priscilla and when she finally agreed to see him, he didn't show up, so she, Priscilla, and Rita had come together.

"Dick had an emergency," Bill said. "I talked to him. He tried to call you again, Priscilla, but you had already gone." Then he turned to Peggy. "And you're going to have to excuse Pete, too. I had some business and wanted him to help me."

"I know," Peggy said cheerfully. "But no one should have business on Harbor Day."

Bill's eyes moved over the three girls. "I understand Alvarez is having a breakfast party on his yacht after the ball tonight. Anybody here invited?"

"I'm not," Peggy said immediately. "The Stanleys always have a breakfast party at their Lodge and we're supposed to go there."

"Maybe it would be more fun on the yacht."

"But we aren't invited on the yacht," Rita said.

"I have an idea that party is something Alvarez thought up on the spur of the moment," Bill offered, "but he'll probably carry it through. If he should have it and invite you, I wish you'd all go."

Pete said, "You know, Bill, I had the same idea—that Alvarez planned the party on the spot. If he really did intend to move out, he probably thought no one would suspect."

"We're still here," Peggy said. "What on earth are you talking about?"

Bill told them about the visit on the Silver Song that morning.

Rita said, "The men who went with you were from the government boat, weren't they?"

Bill looked at her blankly. "How did you know?"

"I didn't," she shrugged slightly. "It was just a hunch. And I don't think they are here to celebrate Harbor Day, either."

Bill gave her another glance and said nothing.

Rita looked at her watch. "It isn't quite time to get in line for dinner. I'm going to run over to the post office to mail a letter."

"I'll find you somewhere on the grounds when I get back," she stopped as she caught sight of Dick.

Dick came up, apologizing for his delay.

"Remember all visitors are in one line, home folks in another," Peggy reminded Rita. "Bill, you have to get in line with Rita and Priscilla—you're really a visitor, you know."

"No use to get in line yet," Dick said. "There's plenty of time. Priscilla and I will walk around awhile."

"That leaves me out in the cold," Bill said. "Unless Rita will let me go to the post office with her."

"I wouldn't think of taking you away from the festivities," Rita said. "I'll be right back." She turned and walked away, giving him no chance to go with her.

Bill watched her get into her car. He was sure she had no letter to mail. Where was she going? As he had no particular interest in the speeches, he got into his own car and turned it toward town. He had almost reached the hotel when he saw the man and woman Pete had told him about come out. He slowed his car to a crawl. Another car got in his way, but he saw Rita stop her car briefly, and he thought the man said something to her before she started up again.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — The stock market turned irregular early this afternoon following a slight rise in the morning.

Steels were off a bit in the wake of yesterday's advance but aircrafts still clung to the upside. International oils showed slight losses. Metals were mixed. Airline shares showed a string of fractional advances.

U. S. Steel dropped a major fraction in a follow-up to losses in Pacific Coast exchanges after "big steel" declared its usual dividend subsequent to the market's close in New York yesterday.

Bethlehem declined more than a point and Republic Steel a fraction.

As the situation regarding the Suez Canal showed no drastic changes, oils with heavy interests in that area eased a trifle following yesterday's recovery. Gulf and Royal Dutch dipped fractionally.

Standard Oil (New Jersey) and Sinclair were steady.

Pan American World Airlines, American Airlines, United and Eastern Airlines leaned to the upside.

As the aluminum plants were shut down in a labor dispute, Reynolds Metals was up a fraction and Alcoa down nearly a point.

Kennecott Copper gained nearly 3 points while Anaconda and Phelps Dodge improved slightly.

Louisiana Vote Upsets Political Cart For Long

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Two Louisiana congressmen threw the state's politics into a spin today after humiliating Gov. Earl Long with smashing victories in their bids for renomination in the Democratic primary election.

Rep. T. A. Thompson defeated three Long-backed candidates in the 7th Congressional Dist. race and Rep. Otto Passman won over two Long-supported candidates in the 5th.

Victory in yesterday's balloting amounted to election in this state. Long was not available for comment on the outcome.

Four other representatives won renomination in two-way races. Two representatives and Sen. Russell Long were unopposed. Interest was centered on the Thompson and Passman races, in which Long took a personal hand. There was little state interest in the other races.

Long's political prestige also took a beating in New Orleans and in the 8th Dist. Long's home district.

Four Long-backed candidates for judgeships were roundly defeated in New Orleans and Long's sister Mrs. Clara Long Knott of Many trailed Alexandria Atty. Harold McSwain in the 8th Dist. Board of Education race.

Thompson's explanation was that the results "showed the people's resentment."

The results of the two controversial congressional races were conclusive.

With 244 of 268 precincts reporting in the 5th Dist., the vote showed:

Passman 32,508; Dist. Atty. Ragann Madden 32,238; Mrs. Guy Allford, Mayor of Columbia, 2,237. With 251 of 256 precincts reporting in the 7th, the vote was:

Thompson 45,450; State Rep. Horace Lynn Jones 10,764; State Rep. Kenneth Dishot 6,363; Raymond Guillory 2,381.

Others winning renomination were Representatives Hale Boggs in the 2nd, Overton Brooks in the 4th, James Morrison in the 6th and Dr. George Long, the governor's brother, in the 8th.

Unopposed were Rep. F. Edward Hebert in the 1st and Rep. Edwin E. Willis in the 3rd.

Came Within A Mile Of Feat

TORONTO (AP) — Shirley Campbell came within a mile of completing the grueling 32-mile Lake Ontario marathon swim yesterday but exhaustion overcame the attractive steno-grapher-model.

Thousands of spectators had lined the waterfront at the eastern entrance to Toronto Harbor to cheer the 22-year-old Fergus, Ont., swimmer.

Shirley had been in the water 18 1/2 hours when currents started pulling her away from her goal. She had jumped into the water at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont.

A sudden squall didn't help matters any as the young girl made her second attempt at conquering the swim. Seven-foot waves sent some of the accompanying boats scurrying for shelter.

Rites Thursday For James Arthur Peele

Mr. James Arthur Peele, 52, died at his home near Beargrass Tuesday afternoon following four months of illness.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at Rose of Sharon Free Will Baptist Church near Beargrass, and burial will be in Robertson Cemetery. The pastor, Rev. C. D. Hamilton of Fountain, will conduct the services, assisted by Elder A. B. Ayers of Beargrass.

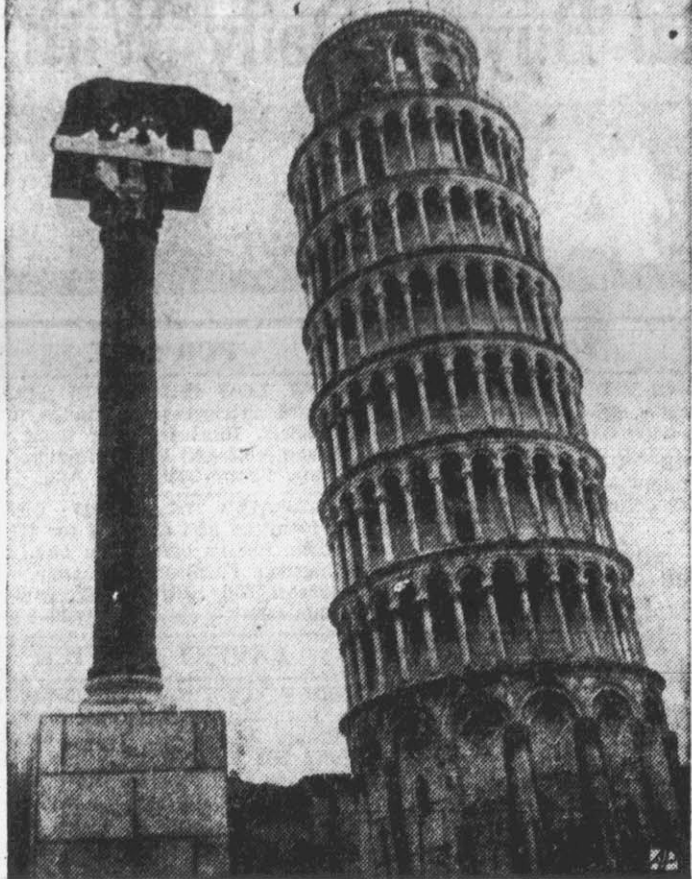

The body will be carried to the church an hour before the time of service.

Mr. Peele spent his early life in the Crossroads Community of Martin County and for thirty years has lived near Beargrass, where he was engaged in farming. He was a member of Rose of Sharon Free Will Baptist Church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Martha Taylor; four sons, J. E. (Buddy) and Donnie Peele of Robertsonville, and Billy and Gene Peele of the home; six daughters, Mrs. Garland Rogers and Mrs. Clyde Bunting of Robertsonville, Mrs. Clara Hannah and Mrs. Ernest Harris of Greenville, and Ellen and Judy Ann Peele of the home; 12 grandchildren; a brother, Dennis Peele of Beargrass; and three sisters, Mrs. Ross Gurnanus of Everetts, Mrs. Arthur Ayers of Crossroads, and Mrs. Mance Roberson of Beargrass.

The new outburst of self-mutilation occurred during a 30-minute afternoon rest period as did an earlier demonstration against the heavy work load in the hot sun.

All told, 27 white and 14 Negro convicts have pounded their legs at the same quarry site at the prison. Examination at the hospital at Reidsville Prison, where the prisoners were taken by ambulance, showed all but five of the first group of 36 had fractured leg bones.
