

Operations In Low Gear, But Brisk Period Lies Ahead

RE-DRYING BEGINS—The big re-drying machines have begun operation in three Pitt County tobacco plants. Several other plants expect to begin processing tobacco next week. This picture was taken in the Imperial Tobacco Co. plant in Greenville. Export Tobacco Co. in Greenville and A. C. Monk Tobacco Co. in Farmville have also begun re-drying tobacco. Tobacco Re-Drying Plants Starting Work In Greenville And Farmville

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector City Editor. Two Greenville and one Farmville re-drying plants have begun operations, a Reflector survey shows. In Greenville the Export Leaf Tobacco Co. and Imperial Tobacco Co. have started re-drying and in Farmville A. C. Monk and Co., Inc. is now processing tobacco. All three companies are handling Georgia leaf at present. Officials at Export in Greenville reported that re-drying operations were started Monday. An eight-hour shift was used Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and yesterday a night shift was added. Export is running one re-drying machine at present. Imperial Tobacco Co. spokesmen reported that two re-drying machines are now in operation. The plant began operations last Monday and is now operating on a ten-hour day. Officials at A. C. Monk in Farmville said their No. 2 plant, the old Farmville Leaf Tobacco Co. plant, began operating Wednesday. A ten-hour day shift was used Wednesday and yesterday a 10-hour night shift was added. The stemmy as one re-drying machine are in operation at the No. 2 plant, officials said. Monk officials said it is expected that the No. 1 plant will be placed in operation next week. A spokesman at E. B. Ficklen

Tobacco Co. said that re-drying had not at that plant. However, Georgia tobacco is arriving at the plant and it is expected that operations will begin next week. Person-Garett officials said they would not begin operations before next week. Several loads of Georgia tobacco have been received at the plant. Greenville Tobacco Co. reported that their plant had not been placed in operation as yet.

Some Casualties In Fight With Red Intruders

KUNLONG FERRY, Northern Burma (AP)—Communist Chinese troops occupying territory in northern Burma today were reported digging in after several clashes with Burmese army units. Reports from the area about 120 miles east of Lashio said the Reds were hacking out jungle paths leading into rugged mountain areas peopled by headhunting tribes. Burmese army intelligence accounts said Communist forces were feverishly building roads and approaches toward Burma from the Yunnan area, on the Chinese side of the border. Col. Chit Myaing, a Burmese army commander, reported several engagements with Chinese intruders, including one six-hour battle. He said one Chinese officer and nine soldiers were killed in the major clash and several were captured. Three Burmese soldiers were reported wounded. Officials announced Tuesday that Red Chinese forces, believed numbering about 500 men, had moved across the poorly defined border into Burmese territory. Minor patrol incidents have been reported previously in the region, but spokesmen said the move this week involved far larger numbers of troops.

Tobacco Prices Are Below Opening Sales Expectation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Tobacco prices on South Carolina and North Carolina Border markets were well below expectations on opening sales yesterday and a tobacco news official said early sales today showed no improvement. The Federal-State Market News Service reported that the 11 South Carolina and the eight Border North Carolina markets sold a total of 8,524,500 pounds yesterday at a disappointing average of $45.28. Some tobacco officials had expected an average of around $55 per hundred. The South Carolina markets sold a total of 4,550,034 pounds at an average of $45.28 while the North Carolina markets sold 3,974,466 pounds at the same average. On their opening days last year, the South Carolina markets sold 5,928,242 pounds at $57.16 while the North Carolina markets sold 4,931,382 pounds at $52.57. H. J. Rollins of the USDA Tobacco Market News Service said neither prices nor quality of the leaf was up to expectations. He said he visited one market today and found prices had not improved since yesterday. It was estimated that the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp. received approximately 30 percent of the leaf sold yesterday under the government price support program.

Average prices by grades, the service said, were much lower than last year's opening day on the South Carolina belt. Last year the Border North Carolina markets opened four days later than the South Carolina markets. Compared with opening day last year, yesterday's price declines ranged from $2 to $11 per hundred. Most were $2 to $4. The biggest drops were in primings and best thin nondescript. A few grades were unchanged to $1 higher. Deliveries are expected to be light for the next several days since a great percentage of the crop has not yet been harvested. Deliveries to the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp., which receives tobacco under the government loan program, were estimated at 15 to 25 percent of total sales. On opening day last year the South Carolina markets turned over 47.6 percent of sales to the loan program. The government at this time of year has tax receipts smaller than its expenses, necessitating cash borrowing to keep going. The next tax collections of any size will be on Sept. 15 when corporations pay 10 percent of the amount of taxes due in the current calendar year. Under a plan put into effect several years ago corporations are progressively paying more of their taxes on a current basis instead of paying the following year as in the past.

No New Pitt Polio Cases, But Humbert Urges Immunization

No new cases of polio were reported in Pitt County today but Health Director Dr. Walter C. Humbert said that an emergency still "definitely exists" and issued a new plea for all persons under 20 years of age to get immunization shots at the Department's special clinics. Yesterday, 217 persons received first shots at the Greenville clinic and an additional 110 got them at the Farmville clinic to bring the total of first shots administered in the last 11 days to at least 3,160. In addition, 40 persons received second injections in Greenville and 18 were immunized at Farmville to bring the 11-day total of all shots given to at least 3,861. Dr. Humbert said yesterday's totals do not include "several hundred" shots given by private physicians in the county. Pitt has had seven cases of polio reported in the last ten days, creating an emergency condition and causing health officials to believe "a very virulent virus has blanketed the county, hitting particularly unimmunized persons in rural areas." Dr. Humbert pointed out today "if no new cases are reported in the next three or four days, the flare-up may be under control but the possibility exists that it could flare up again in another section." "At the present time," Dr. Humbert stated, "freely furnished vaccine is not available to persons who have reached their 20th birthday. However, private physicians, who obtain their vaccine through commercial sources, are free to vaccinate anyone they choose." He added that all persons between the ages of six months and 20 years of age should get the shots but expressed the doubt that the Health Department would participate in any program for persons older than 20. Clinics are being held this week from 8:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. every day through Friday and from 8:30 a.m. until noon on Saturday in both Greenville and Farmville. Next week, the clinics will be held in Greenville Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. and on Saturday from 8:30 a.m. until noon. In Farmville, the clinics will be held Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 8:30 to 4:30 and on Saturday from 8:30 until noon.

had broken bones. A convict who witnessed the bone breaking told the committee at a hearing yesterday in the Rock Quarry Prison near Buford that three white convicts "went down the line" smashing legs of other white prisoners. Earlier, it had been reported that each convict broke his own leg by smashing the sharp edge of the heavy hammers down on them. "A Negro convict who testified he saw the mass mutilation identified the three white inmates as Willie McSwain, Junior Powell and Odell Evans. He said the three broke each other's legs after they had smashed those of the others. He said Jesse Lee Stark swung the hammer on the legs of his fellow Negro convicts and then broke his own leg. The witness said the men "just hollered out a little bit and sort of turned to one side" as their legs were smashed. They were out of sight of guards. One Negro, testifying on conditions at the prison, said that "about half of the prisoners are stoop-pigeons" but that the stoop-pigeons get about the same general treatment as the others. Two white convicts said the food was good and offered no complaints concerning their own treatment. They said, however, the work is hard and that there was some mistreatment by guards. They accused guards of using profanity and beating prisoners with sticks.

Final Arguments Made In McKeon Court-Martial

By BEM PRICE. PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (AP)—The defense held today the tragedy of Ribbon Creek and the court-martial of Marine S. Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon was the "result of panic and not lawlessness." Defense Atty. E. mile Zola Berman of New York City made his final plea to the seven-member court-martial board immediately after Maj. Charles B. Sevier, prosecutor, had summed up the government's case. Sevier contended McKeon was "just mad" when he led 74 recruits on a night disciplinary march into a marsh where six swimmers among the 74 members of the platoon. "How can you teach discipline if you do not maintain discipline?" he asked. "By his actions," Sevier continued, "he placed these men in a dangerous situation. Not a one of those men went into those waters voluntarily." He reminded the court—six Marines and a Navy doctor—that McKeon had admitted ordering two field days—or area cleanups—and slapping three of the recruits. McKeon, said Sevier, "was just mad. He wanted to punish them by getting them wet and cold." Quietly, Sevier said "Six Marines were drowned and no one can say those men were not oppressed." Thirty-four minutes after he began his argument on the 19th day of trial, Sevier sat down. Whatever the outcome, the Marine Corps has never seen anything quite like this. Never before has a commandant taken the witness stand in the defense of a sergeant as did Gen. Randolph McC. Pate. And never before has a retired hero and lieutenant general been called from retirement to testify in the defense of an enlisted man he had never seen. But it happened when Lt. Gen. Lewis B. (Chesty) Puller was summoned yesterday on McKeon's behalf.

The trial judge, Navy Capt. Irving N. Klein of New York City, planned to instruct the panel on points of law this morning. The panel was expected to have the case for decision by 12:30 p.m. EDT. McKeon is charged with involuntary manslaughter, oppression of recruits and drinking on duty. If convicted, he faces a maximum sentence of six years at hard labor and a dishonorable discharge. In making his plea for acquittal, Berman also contended McKeon would never have been brought to trial had it not been for "politics in high places—yes, even the halls of Congress—and mistakes in handling this matter." The thin balding, hawk-nosed attorney referred to the outcry in Congress immediately after the April 8 tragedy for an investigation of Marine training methods and the statement by Gen. Randolph McCall Pate, Marine commandant, that the Marine Corps itself was on trial. Both the defense and prosecution arguments required only 41 minutes. Berman contended that McKeon was "teaching discipline" in the highest traditions of the military service" when he ordered the recruits out for the night march. Further, he held that McKeon, at the head of the column, was not negligent because he was showing the way, step by step. Berman admitted McKeon was "technically guilty" of one of the drinking charges—possessing alcohol in barracks. The New York attorney held, too, that McKeon was acting as had other unit instructors in the past in conducting a "hard, slug gin march... to take these boys and make them men." "The loss of these lives," said Berman, "was due to panic. Panic can never be predicted or foreseen nor can its results be explained as in this case." Sevier made no effort to be dramatic. He spoke as one military man to another. "Gentlemen," he said to the seven-member court-martial, "these are six Marines who will never take their place in the Fleet Marine Force, will never go to sea, will never be artillerymen, of tank-ers." McKeon is charged with involuntary manslaughter, oppression of recruits and drinking on duty. The charges grew out of the night march of Platoon 71 into the tidal waters of Ribbon Creek here April 8, McKeon said. It was to "teach them discipline."

Sevier scoffed at the idea that McKeon was "teaching discipline." Sevier made much of the fact McKeon led the column without additional orders or taking steps to secure the safety of the non-

Treasury Plans Brief Borrow Of $3 Billions

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Treasury today announced plans to borrow three billion dollars this month to tide it over the period of lean tax collections from now until next spring. Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey said the issue of tax anticipation certificates of indebtedness will bear interest at the rate of 2 3/4 percent. The books will be opened for subscription only one day—next Monday, Aug. 6. The tax certificates will be dated Aug. 15 and will mature next March 22. They will be retired next March at par plus accrued interest, in payment of income and profits taxes due next March 15. Corporations often purchase such tax anticipation certificates with funds they are setting aside to pay taxes due in future month. This is the first such cash borrowing by the Treasury since last October when 2 1/2 billion dollars of tax anticipation certificates were issued. That issue was retired last June 15th, being received in payment of taxes. The interest rate of 2 3/4 percent on the current issue compares with 2 percent on the issue last fall. A Treasury official noted that interest rates have risen in the last few months and that a 2 1/2 percent rate was paid on an issue of more than 12 billion dollars in notes put last month. Humphrey also said that in connection with the new financing the Treasury on Sept. 15 will pay off 982 million dollars of 2 3/4 percent Treasury bonds which have been called for redemption. These bonds were issued in 1936 and would have gone to maturity in 1959. However, the Treasury gave the necessary four-month notice last May that it would call the bonds.

The government at this time of year has tax receipts smaller than its expenses, necessitating cash borrowing to keep going. The next tax collections of any size will be on Sept. 15 when corporations pay 10 percent of the amount of taxes due in the current calendar year. Under a plan put into effect several years ago corporations are progressively paying more of their taxes on a current basis instead of paying the following year as in the past.

Both British and French foreign ministers—hammered out plans for the conference yesterday and agreed to ask Russia and Egypt among others to meet in London Aug. 16 to establish an international authority over the canal which Egypt nationalized eight days ago. Britain already has dispatched the invitations. A source close to the Egyptian government in Cairo said President Gamal Abdel Nasser may reply tonight. There were indications in the Egyptian capital that his answer would be "No."

Diplomatic sources here said the conference would be held whether Egypt and Russia attend or not. Spokesmen for West Germany, Japan, Spain and New Zealand already have indicated their governments would accept bids. But a British Foreign Office spokesman said no official acceptances had been received yet. Both British and French Cabinet met. Queen Elizabeth II held a meeting of her Privy Council at Arundel Castle. French Premier Guy Mollet and Foreign Minister Christian Pineau planned speeches on the crisis later. PARIS (AP)—Premier Guy Mollet and Foreign Minister Christian Pineau told the National Assembly today the French government is determined to "use every means to prevent Egypt from retaining control of the Suez Canal."

Mobilization Stepped Up As Suez Parleys Planned

LONDON (AP)—Britain and France rushed mobilization measures today and set the Mediterranean today and set the machinery in motion for a 24-nation conference on the Suez Canal. BULLETIN LONDON (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II tonight declared a state of "great emergency" in Britain in a proclamation calling for some army reservists to the colors for possible use in the Suez Canal crisis.

Britain already has dispatched the invitations. A source close to the Egyptian government in Cairo said President Gamal Abdel Nasser may reply tonight. There were indications in the Egyptian capital that his answer would be "No."

The British Cabinet considered the measures being taken to defend the nation in a position of strength in case of serious trouble. The aircraft carrier Theseus' decks were readied at Portsmouth to carry 1,000 troops to the Mediterranean and she was expected to sail Sunday. The aircraft carrier Bulwark and the cruiser Glasgow were to sail on Monday. The Bulwark was to receive a squadron of aircraft while at sea. The Transport Ministry announced orders had gone out for requisitioning of a number of merchant ships, presumably for the transport of troops and supplies. At Nicosia, Cyprus, British authorities requisitioned several school buildings for housing troops during the school vacation. U. S. Secretary of State Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn

Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Pineau wound up five days of crisis talks here last night with a communique accusing Nasser of the arbitrary seizure of an international agency. An official source in Cairo said the idea for control of Suez by an international authority "completely disregards the rights of Egypt, to exercise sovereignty within its boundaries." The Big Three's communique said the conference should "establish operating arrangements under an international system designed to assure the continuity of the operations of the canal" as guaranteed by the Constantinople convention of 1888. The Big Three acknowledged Egypt's right to nationalize the assets of the canal company which are subject to Egyptian political control, a qualification apparently excluding the vast foreign holdings of the company.

Investigators Question Self-Maimed Convicts

REIDSVILLE, Ga. (AP)—A legislative investigating committee today began interviewing 41 convicts who broke or damaged their legs with sledge hammers in protest against working conditions and alleged brutality at Georgia's Rock Quarry Prison for incorrigibles. The injured were brought to the state's Central Prison here for treatment. Seven suffered deep gashes or bruises; the other 34 had broken bones. A convict who witnessed the bone breaking told the committee at a hearing yesterday in the Rock Quarry Prison near Buford that three white convicts "went down the line" smashing legs of other white prisoners. Earlier, it had been reported that each convict broke his own leg by smashing the sharp edge of the heavy hammers down on them. Chest Directors Talk Fall Drive

Tentative plans for Greenville's annual Community Chest campaign next October were discussed yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the board of directors of the organization. Ben L. Rouse, member of the board of directors and chairman of this year's fund-raising campaign, outlined to the board the general organization plan which will be followed in the fund drive. Rouse said that in addition to special gifts and house-to-house canvasses which have been followed in past years, this year's campaign will seek to include more individual donations than has been the case in past years. Efforts will be made to solicit donations from employees of individual business firms of the city as well as donations from the firms themselves. The board authorized President J. B. Kittrell Jr. to appoint a five-member budget committee of the Community Chest which will receive and review budget requests for the coming year from individual agencies included in the Chest fund. The special budget committee, Kittrell said, will be composed of local citizens who are not members of the organization's board of directors. After consideration of the budget requests, the committee will make its report to the board of directors. J. B. Kittrell Jr. said he will be asked within the next week to prepare their budgets for the coming year as soon as possible in order that the budget committee may begin its work.

Greenville Jaycees Are Host To District Meet

Approximately 140 Jaycees from Eastern North Carolina gathered here last night for the ninth district meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. J. B. Smith of Greenville, state vice president for the district, presided at the meeting by Jaycees of Greenville, Ayden, Farmville, Kingston, New Bern, Morehead City, Beaufort, Washington, Jacksonville and Richlands. During the meeting held at the local Moose Lodge, Smith announced the appointment of four Greenville Jaycees as district chairman for state Jaycee projects during the coming year. Appointed district chairman were J. E. Rodgers, education committee; J. C. Lanier, Jr., policy, constitution and by-laws committee; Clarke Stokes, extension and retention committee; and Bob Russ, credentials committee. Marshal Spears of Durham, national director for the North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce, discussed activities for Jaycees outlined at a recent meeting of the board of directors of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce. Tom Singleton of Washington reported on the recent national Jaycee convention at Kansas City and showed a movie of the convention activities. The Jaycees voted to accept the invitation of the New Bern club to hold the next district meeting in New Bern. Miss Linda Whichard, Miss Greenville of 1956, entertained the

Pre-Nuptial Parties Yesterday Fete Pair

Miss Catherine Clark of 407 Holly Street and Paul Nissen Montague Jr. of Winston-Salem were honored at a series of parties yesterday.

Their marriage will take place this afternoon at five o'clock in the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Open House

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel O. Worthington were at home to members of the Montague-Clark wedding party and out-of-town guests yesterday from five to seven o'clock at their home on Eighth Street.

Guests were greeted at the door by the hosts, assisted by Mrs. David McKenzie Clark, mother of the bride, and Mrs. Robert Mays, daughter of the hosts.

Floral arrangements, predominantly pink and white, with soft glowing candles were used throughout the house.

The dining room table, covered with a lace cloth, was decorated with a centerpiece of white flowers flanked by burning white tapers. Light refreshments were served buffet style to some thirty people who called.

Dinner Party

Mr. and Mrs. Reid Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles White, Dr. and Mrs. John Winstead and Mrs. J. L. Fleming were joint hosts at a pre-rehearsal buffet supper last night at 7 o'clock honoring Miss Clark and Mr. Montague.

The home of Dr. and Mrs. Winstead and Mrs. Fleming was the scene of the supper.

As guests arrived they were welcomed on the front porch by Mr. and Mrs. James Fleming Jr. and invited to the punch table where they were served by Miss Janet Watson, Jack Whitchard, Miss Nancy Jane Carroll and David Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam T. White greeted guests at the front door. Receiving in the living room were the hosts, the honorees, Mrs. D. M. Clark, mother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Montague, parents of the bridegroom, and the two attendants, Miss June Montague and Miss Virginia Perkins and escorts Dr. Charles Pace and Judson Blount.

The house was decorated throughout with summer flowers. Dr. and Mrs. Sam White, II, invited guests into the dining room. Supper was served buffet style from the dining room table which was covered with a green satin cloth and centered with a miniature bride and bridegroom standing in a large white satin wedding ring and mounted in a bed of dainty trailing greens scattered with yellow and white flowers.

Over the centerpiece was a shower of wedding bells which hung from the chandelier. Smaller wedding bells tied with satin bows and tulle were used to festoon the cloth.

Both refreshments and decorations carried out a color scheme of green, white and yellow.

Serving from either end of the table were Miss Clark's two aunts, Miss Mary C. Brogdon of San Marcos, Texas and Miss Nettie Brogdon of Jacksonville, Florida.

Assisting throughout the house were Miss Elizabeth White, Lawrence Perkins and Joe and Jim Winstead.

About sixty-five out-of-town guests and members of the wedding party attended.

Flanagans Entertain

Following the rehearsal, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Flanagan entertained members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests at their home on the Falkland Highway.

For the informal occasion, garden flowers were used throughout the house.

Light refreshments were served.

Out-of-Town Guests

Out-of-town guests arriving yesterday and today for the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Paul Nissen Montague Sr., Mr. and Mrs. R. Phillip Hanes, Mr. and Mrs. Claude B. Strickland, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fort, Leon Hartzell Cash, Zackary T. Smith, Stewart Robertson, Mrs. Thomas Craig Redfern and Miss Dorothy Louise Redfern, Winston-Salem; Mr. and Mrs. George E. N. Charles Wilkerson Is Host At Supper To Kiwanis Officials Past President Charles V. Wilkerson was host at supper at Silo Restaurant last night to the Greenville Kiwanis Club's officers and directors and several committee chairmen. President Ed Waldrop presided.

The president announced that the Carolina Kiwanis District convention will be held at Charleston, S. C. October 7-9. Past Greenville President John T. Barnhill's name is being favorably mentioned for lieutenant-governor of the Seventh Kiwanis Division. Mr. Waldrop said Joe Tally of Fayetteville, Kiwanis International Trustee, at the recent international convention at San Francisco, received the largest vote for international trustee of any candidate, and that he is in line for international treasurer.

The Kiwanis "Choo-Choo Train" will continue to run at Elm Street Park in the afternoons until fall. A proposal of the Eye Bank for Restoring Sight for the club's support was referred to a committee and announcement came from Ed Bloom that the Kiwanis Minstrel for the benefit of underprivileged children will be held in October.

Those present in addition to the host and President Waldrop were: Secretary John O. Reynolds, Elbert H. Bennett, James W. Brewer, Dr. Howard H. Grady, R. E. (Dick) Rogers, D. A. Blue, Riley Cox, Robert L. Elks and Raymond W. Lowe. Vice-President Charles E. Blair was out of the city. Other guests were Underprivileged Child Committee Chairman Charles P. Gaskins, Ken Beatty and Dick Heller of the Kiwanis "Choo-Choo" Train Committee, and Public Relations Chairman Chester Walsh.

Director James W. Brewer will be host to the Kiwanians at the October directors meeting.

30 Years Ago Today

Mrs. J. C. Whiteford attractively entertained three tables of bridge last evening in honor of her sister, Mrs. F. H. Gray of High Point. The mezzanine at Hill Home Drug Co. was decorated with summer flowers. On arrival Coca-Colas were served. The honoree was given a framed tapestry. The visitor's prize, attractive shoe trees, went to Mrs. McCarley of Batesburg, S. C. Miss Doyle Burnett, bride-elect, was remembered with a bottle of bath salts. At the conclusion of the game cantaloupe a la mode was served.

Gripes From Secretaries And Bosses

By DOROTHY ROE Editor Associated Press Women's Edition

Seems as though the wistful dream of most businessmen these days is not a sports car, not a swimming pool—just a good secretary.

That this dream is growing more and more difficult to attain is attested by the following plaintive note from a New York public relations office:

"For the past month we've been attempting to fill a position in our office. We're looking for a bright girl for a junior secretarial spot."

"So far we've interviewed at least 200 girls. Of the 200 some 150 were primarily concerned with whether or not we have air-conditioning. (We don't have.) A dozen or so thought it might be nice if they could knock off around 4:30 daily for the rest of the summer. A couple said yes, they'd like the job—if they could start about three weeks from Friday."

But if bosses are having trouble getting a secretary—to say nothing of the perfect one—it seems there is another side to the coin. The secretaries say a lot of bosses leave a lot to be desired, too.

At a recent meeting of 40 of them, a secretarial snoop named Susy sat in, assigned to the job by the editors of the trade magazine of the Bureau of Business Practice.

These are the things the girls with their bosses wouldn't do: Jangle keys or change in the pocket while dictating. Face up and down a large office, often out of earshot, while dictating. Look out the window and dictate to the wild blue yonder. Blame the secretary when they just plain forget something. Refer to the secretary as "my girl".

Go rummaging through the files leaving them in a mess. Forbid the secretary to clean up his desk. Ask her to do personal errands during her lunch hour and then complain if she is 10 minutes late.

TEATIME SANDWICHES

Chop watercress leaves and the top tender part of the stems. Soften a package of cream cheese and add chili sauce to taste. (A dash of Worcestershire sauce and grated onion may also be added to the cream-cheese mixture). Now mix the watercress and cream-cheese mixture. Use as a filling for thin white or whole-wheat bread sandwiches.

Shower Honors Miss Sylvester

Miss Henrietta Sylvester of Richlands, whose marriage to Joseph Alligood of 116 Woodlawn Ave. will take place August 18, was honored at a shower luncheon July 28.

The informal event took place in Richlands at the home of Miss Anne Reid. Miss Olivia Thompson was co-hostess.

Miss Thompson greeted guests and served them pineapple cocktail. The guest of honor was presented a corsage of colorful measuring spoons upon arrival. The gift table was decorated with a blue umbrella under which gifts for the kitchen, wrapped in blue and pink, were arranged.

Following several games, guests were invited to the appointed table which carried out the kitchen motif. A red and white color scheme was used in both decorations and food.

Eggs in the Cradle
Sliced Tomatoes and Cucumbers
Bread Tray
Cookies Beverage

EGGS IN THE CRADLE

Ingredients: 4 cups seasoned mashed potatoes, 1 can (3 ounces) sliced broiled mushrooms, milk, 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, 4 tablespoons flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 6 hard-cooked eggs (shelled and halved), 2 tablespoons finely diced green pepper, grated Parmesan cheese, paprika.

Method: Line 4 individual casseroles with seasoned mashed potatoes. Drain mushrooms; add enough milk to mushroom liquid to make 2 cups. Melt butter in saucepan over low heat; stir in flour, salt and pepper. Add milk-mushroom mixture; cook and stir constantly until thickened and bubbly. Add mushrooms and green pepper; reheat. Place 3 egg halves in each potato-lined casserole. Cover with sauce and sprinkle cheese over top; sprinkle paprika along edges. Bake in hot (400 degrees) oven 10 minutes or until potatoes are hot. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

Three - In - One Dress For School

By DOROTHY ROE

One New York designer, Celeste, has come up with the "duette" dress for pint-size glamor girls. It consists of an outfit in two parts, which may be worn separately and interchanged with other things.

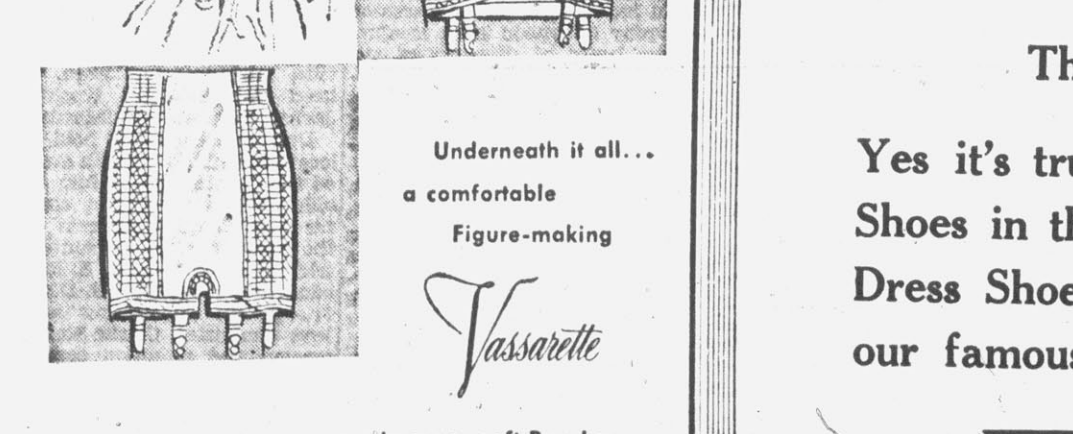

The idea starts with a jumper and a coordinated under-dress, instead of the usual blouse, which is always pulling out at the waist. This acts as both blouse and petticoat, and is so carefully styled and finished that it can be worn separately, as another dress for school or play.

An added attraction is a separate petti-blouse in white pique to be worn with the same jumper, the top precisely tailored in the best blouse fashion with tiny tucks and minute ocean-pearl buttons, attached to a full skirt with ruffled flounce.

Thus Mom can buy the jumper outfit, complete with under-dress, add a white petti-blouse, and have three outfits for her small school belle. All three are cut to go together, and extra petticoats are unnecessary.

It's a great way to initiate a small charmer into the science of a planned and coordinated wardrobe—and it's easy on Mom's budget, too.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

Some weeks ago we told you about the Jargon Press, which is way up in Highlands, North Carolina, where avant-garde—another way of saying off-beat—poetry is published by a brave and enterprising fellow named Jonathan Williams. Mr. Williams wrote us recently about his poetry books which book stores refuse to buy because they can't sell them. Though he gets them printed on a shoe-string, he feels—and we quote—"that no American publishing house will offer so strong a list of major avant-garde poets this year."

HIRSHBERG

And one of his poets, Charles Olson, whose latest collection is called "The Maximus Poems 11-22," Mr. Williams calls "the major poet of his generation"—which is pretty big stuff, in any man's language. A way, if you want to find out more about Jargon, just ask our writer. We think it's wonderful to have such goings-on in N.C., even way out west, and wish Jargon well.

New Writer On Tarheelia
From John F. Blair, another publisher we had never heard of, comes tidings of a new book called "Tar Heel Writers I Know," by Bernadette Hoyle, a newspaperwoman and press photographer who lives in Smithfield. Her publisher has headquarters in Winston-Salem, so the book is North Carolina all the way through. . . . Says the publicity on it: "Profusely illustrated with photographs made by Mrs. Hoyle, the book promises to become an all-time favorite with school and public libraries, with would-be writers, with book and study clubs, and with anyone who likes to read about other people. Far from being in the stuffy research category, "Tar Heel Writers I Know" brings to life the men and women who write." There it is folks—all about it, and if you want to find out more, again, just ask us.

Another Search
Just when "The Search for Bridey Murphy" is beginning to fade off the best seller lists, along comes a new book called "The Search for Captain Slocum," by Walter M. Teller. It's a biography of the famous Captain Joshua Slocum, who was the first man to sail completely around the world all by himself. His book is an epic voyage, which lasted three years, two months and two days, in his "Sailing Alone Around the World," which people have been reading for the last fifty years, since its publication soon after Slocum's trip was completed in 1898. According to the Biography, the captain didn't do much else worthwhile besides taking his long journey—though we guess 45,000 miles in a 36-foot oyster boat at the age of 51 is enough for any man to go for quite awhile. . . .

August Event
Appropriately entitled "The Ideas of August," a new book by William C. Haygood will be issued August 15 by World Publishing Company, which informs us that it will be a good one, a novel about expatriate Americans living in Spain.

The World people also nudged us to let you know that two of their books, "The Mandarins" and "Andersonville," still are on the best seller lists and are doing very well, thank you, with Big A coming out soon in seven foreign editions. . . .

Today's Review

HALF-CROWN HOUSE. By Helen Ashton, New York: Dodd, Mead and Co., 1956.

Fountain Court, the "Half-Crown House," has survived many centuries and many changes of fortune. Originally a medieval monastery, it has been continuously owned as a country house by one distinguished family since the sixteenth century. It is located in the English Midlands; the scene is the House, in late autumn, 1964.

This is the story of the House and its people during its last day. Into the fabric of the events of this day, our author has skillfully woven four centuries of English history; she has followed the House through its architectural vicissitudes and embellishments; she has traced the family through all the many social and political developments from the days of Henry VIII to the present. Manners and customs of the changing years lead us at last to see the hopelessness, during these present times, of such decaying institutions as the House. In the post-war world, the family, in poverty and despair, have been at length obliged, in order to keep the place up, to open the house and its treasured treasures to the public. . . .

"Half-Crown House" has known better days; royalty has slept here (not always alone, rumor has it); proud young sons of the family have served with distinction in all of England's great wars; here money has flowed like rivers—but now all is gone; only the tourists' half-crowns and the vegetable gardens provide any income at all. . . . There is a great deal of symbolism in the book. The house itself, with its decaying or vanished treasures, applies a great empire now defunct, across its backdrop agents of past and present move like ghosts, each representing one form or another of human futility. The fruitless waste of human endeavor is made poignant through the author's perceptive portrayal of individual character and action, past and present. Miss Ashton is frequently foggy and inaccurate with reference to her own fictitious chronology (she gets ages and dates all mixed up sometimes), but her gift of capturing the spirit of an almost-forgotten past and combining it with an almost-intolerable present, through her description of actions and scenes, is exceptionally good; all comes vividly into focus. We can almost forgive her somewhat contrived and melodramatic conclusion. . . .

Christian Science Society
The fact that all things are possible to God will be brought out in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Spirit" at Christian Science services Sunday.

Scriptural selections to be read from the King James Version of the Bible will include Paul's statement to the Philippians (4:13): "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be read the following (182:30-4): "To admit that sickness is a condition over which God has no control, is to presuppose that omnipotent power is powerless on some occasions. The law of Christ, or Truth, makes all things possible to Spirit; but the so-called laws of matter would render Spirit of no avail, and demand obedience to materialistic codes, thus departing from the basis of one God, one lawmaker."

BROILED CHICKEN
You can change the flavor of broiled chicken by varying the seasoning you add to the melted butter with which you brush or baste the chicken during the cooking. Here are possibilities: parsley; minced garlic or onion; fresh or dried tarragon; a mixture of paprika and dry mustard.

If you are plagued by greasy black spots on "clean" laundry try using hotter water and plenty of soap or detergent on future washdays.

Cheer Up Dieting Population; Fate May Become Less Dreary

By HOWARD C. HEYN
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — So you're on a diet? Well, cheer up, fatso; it was a lot worse 20 years ago. These days, you can have your cake — and eat it too.

This, in substance, is the message being spread by some 500 producers and purveyors of specialized foods, assembled here for the 18th convention of the National Dietary Foods Assn.

A sizable industry has grown from the fact that dieting once was, but needn't be, a very dreary chore. Nonfattening foods used to be plain foods. Canned diet foods, packed in water, formerly had all the flavor of an old paper napkin.

The result: monotony sent the dieter's morale plummeting along with his weight.

Dieting still isn't exactly fun, as this fat reporter can attest. But modern processing methods and a wide array of sugar substitutes now offer a new interest in life for many a calorie counter.

Almost all the things once denied a dieter were on display at the convention yesterday — in very special form. Chocolate nougats, for instance. Protein value high, caloric value (19 apiece) low.

There is a very passable butter substitute made from soy oil. Like Jell-y? Any flavor you can think of, one calorie per spoonful. Dietetic mayonnaise, once pretty nasty, tastes much better now, at 10 calories per spoonful.

You don't even have to give up pie. Low calorie fruit fillings come in cans, with dietetic mixes to make the crust.

Sugar-free chewing gum and lollipops are big sellers, delegates say.

Most cakes and cookies are for skinny people, but there are a few for us chubby fellows too, at 19 calories each.

One, made from "orange flour," the true name of which is protopectin, an appetite appeaser found in the skins and pulp of citrus fruits. The citrus industry now produces protopectin as a by-product.

The dieting fat man, like the gourmet he envies, can go in for bizarre foods too. Spinach noodles, for example, and artichoke noodles.

Then there are such delicacies as huckleberry tea and oat straw tea, if you go in for that sort of thing. The pods of the carob tree, known to early Christians as St. John's bread, are used now to make candy.

Health is the by-word of the convention. But there is one noticeable thing about the delegates: an amazing number of them could stand a little dieting.

A Lunch For The Ladies

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

THE GIRLS coming for lunch? Then you might like to serve something different: a combination of eggplant, crabmeat and cheese sauce. With it bring on hot biscuits and a salad of tomato wedges, chicory or escarole and green pepper, mixed with French dressing, and you're all set. For dessert have melon and some bar-type cookies for those who aren't weight-watching.

EGGPLANT AND CRABMEAT LUNCHEON DISH

Ingredients: 1-4 pound (medium-small) mushrooms, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 3 tablespoons minced onion, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 can (6 ounces) crabmeat, pan-fried eggplant, cheese sauce, parsley springs.

Method: Separate caps and stems of mushrooms; chop stems fine. Melt butter in 8-inch skillet; add mushroom caps and cook until lightly browned, turning often, over moderate heat. Remove caps from skillet; add chopped mushroom stems and onion to butter in skillet. Cook slowly about five minutes. Stir in parsley, salt, mustard and lemon juice. Rinse crabmeat in cold water; drain; remove cartilage and flake; stir into mushroom stem mixture in skillet; push to one side. Arrange cooked mushroom caps on other side of skillet; reheat. Arrange hot pan-fried eggplant on serving plates; spread with most of crabmeat mixture; top with mushrooms; stuff mushroom caps with remaining crab-meat mixture. Garnish with parsley sprigs. Serve with hot Cheese Sauce. Makes 4 servings.

CHEESE SAUCE
Ingredients: 2 1/2 tablespoons butter, 2 1/2 tablespoons flour, 1-4 cup milk, 3-4 cup medium-fine grated natural cheddar cheese.

Method: Melt butter in top of double boiler over low heat; stir in flour; remove from heat. Gradually add milk stirring until smooth after each addition. Return to direct moderately low heat; cook and stir constantly until thickened. Place over hot (not boiling) water; stir in cheese until melted. Cover and keep warm over hot water.

PAN-FRIED EGGPLANT

Ingredients: 1 eggplant (3-4 pound), 2 tablespoons flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter.

Method: Wash eggplant and remove stem; do not peel. Cut into round slices about 1-4-inch thick. You should have 8 good-sized slices from center of eggplant and about 4 small slices from ends. Mix flour and salt on a sheet of waxed paper; dip eggplant slices on both sides in flour. Melt butter in 12-inch skillet; place as many eggplant slices as possible in skillet; fry slowly until golden brown on both sides and cooked through. As some slices get done, stack them at side of skillet and fry remaining slices.

Nasser Put US In The Leading Role

Egypt's General Nasser has made his bold bid to become the dominant personality in the Middle East and to put himself in a position to dictate to both the East and the West as he sees fit.

Perhaps he will succeed. Or perhaps he will find himself the object of the ill will of both camps.

Nasser conducted a simultaneous courtship of both Russia, Britain and the United States in efforts to obtain funds with which to construct his Aswan dam. In the old fashioned squeeze play which he set up for both the East and the West he found himself the one who was squeezed out as tentative offers of aid from both sides suddenly disappeared.

Now Nasser has taken over the vital Suez Canal Zone which he nationalized in the name of Egypt. He says he will pay off stockholders, the British government and the French, and use revenue from the waterway to finance his dam. By his action Nasser has won the applause of Russia and the condemnation of Great Britain and France.

There is a striking contrast between the current situation and that of the late '30s when Hitler began his moves. Then it was the U. S. which clamored for use of force to stop him while Britain and France pleaded the course of moderation. Today, in Nasser's case, the situation is reversed.

The United States, while it might quickly side with its old allies, rightly stands the middle ground where it may be in a position to prevent a shooting war over the vital canal zone.

Clearly the Suez, vital to international trade, must remain open to all shipping. Neither the United States nor any other nations of the world can afford to stand by and watch Nasser make it his own private waterway, permitting only those he wishes to use it.

On the other hand, Nasser realizes that revenue which he hopes to obtain from nationalization of the waterway will come only if the canal is used. He would be cutting off his nose to spite his face (and the British) should he place restrictions on the use of the canal.

While the British talk of using force to keep Suez open, and the French nod approvingly as is their custom, Nasser leaves it to his adversaries to make the next move.

Viewed objectively, it is obvious that Nasser is not in the drivers seat by any means although he may appear so superficially at the moment. With a firm hand—and perhaps with a more objective view than either the British or French are able to take at the moment—the United States will be able to play the leading role in resolving the explosive Suez situation. By so doing, the United States may be able to regain some of the prestige it has lost in the Middle East during recent troubled times.

New Convict Strategy In That Self-Maiming

Inmates at Georgia Rock Quarry Prison have set a precedent which might be recommended to inmates in other prisons around the country.

Instead of slaying guards or holding them as hostages as has been the case in most prison riots of late, perhaps the new fad of self-maiming will command more attention.

Tactics employed by the convicts at Georgia Rock Quarry Prison are going to bring results just as surely as tactics employed in other prisons where inmates have revolted and demanded better conditions.

Only in the Georgia incident, the prisoners are not endangering lives of other people.

The state of Georgia isn't stand for prisoners to continue smashing their legs with 10 pound hammers any more than it would the prisoners' smashing guards legs with the same hammers. In the first place it means the prisoners are laid up for several weeks, breaking no rock, producing nothing and costing the state money. Secondly, the state can't afford to build the additional hospital or infirmary facilities to handle the increasing number of patients the leg-smashing fad would bring. Thirdly, it costs the state more to provide medical care for prisoners with broken legs than for ordinary prisoners. Fourthly, it puts the state in a most embarrassing position.

Last but not least, the prisoners who smash their own legs get a great deal more public sympathy than those who hold guards as hostages, or kill those who are assigned the job of guarding them.

Unless we miss our guess the new tactics of the Georgia prisoners will bring them the reforms they wish. And if Georgia authorities want to find the instigator of the trouble, we'd suggest they check the records to see if a former public relations executive is now an inmate at Rock Quarry Prison.

One further thought: We know the guards much prefer the new method to the old system of slitting the throats of hostages.

Two Elections For N. C. In Prospect

By LYNN NISBET

ELECTION — The general election to be held on September 8 on constitutional amendments will be conducted in all respects according to statutes governing general elections.

The special elections which may be held later on the question of closing public schools, if the amendment is ratified in September, will be handled under special rules set out in the bills.

Because the extra session of the General Assembly provided for both types of election, some people are confused about the rules.

There will be time enough, if special school elections should subsequently be called, to explain procedure. For the present it is sufficient to emphasize the election on September 8 is a general election, even though the ballots contain only amendments to the constitution.

Voting will be at the regularly established precincts, without return to school districts. Any person registered for voting in primary or general elections will be eligible to vote on September 8 at his or her regular voting place. Registration books will be opened for new registrants at the polling places Saturday, August 11. They will remain open until sun down Saturday, August 25. On August 11, 18 and 25 the books will be at the polling places. Other times the voters desiring to register must look up the person in charge of the books. Saturday, September 1, will be challenge day. Appearances then will be afforded any voter to question the right of a registrant to vote.

Because the September 8 affair is a general election, absentee ballots may be cast in exactly the same manner as in the regular November elections.

SPEED — Complaints have been made about highway patrolmen ignoring high speed trucks and arresting passenger car operators for exceeding speed limits. In a letter to the editor the other day Ed Scheidt, commissioner of motor vehicles, explained the discrepancy by pointing out that there are a lot more passenger cars than trucks on the roads. He added that percentage wise there are many more passenger cars than trucks traveling faster than 60 miles per hour.

He did not, however, point out that the legal speed limits are different. A truck traveling 50 miles an hour is violating the 45-mile speed limit to the same degree that a car traveling 61 miles an hour violates the 55-mile limit.

Commissioner Scheidt also pointed out that truck drivers are more alert than the average motorist in proximity of patrolmen and that they have means Rumors that Pitt ABC officers have been issued a new summer uniform are absolutely unfounded.

Furthermore there is nothing wrong with ABC Officer Jack Russell and there was a good reason why he was walking down Fifth St. in Bermuda shorts, a green and red sports shirt, a sports cap and long socks.

And to those two ladies who turned to stare at the spectacle as they passed Jack in front of the State Theatre I want you to know he went right home after that.

But let's start at the beginning. It seems Jack's daughters gave him a surprise birthday party Tuesday night and invited his cohorts ABC officers J. M. Ward,

That Wasn't A New Uniform

H. B. Lilly and J. L. Taylor in addition to Greenville Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs.

When Jack opened his presents he found — yep, the Bermuda shorts, the sports shirt and cap and the long socks.

It took some urging by his fellow officers but Jack finally agreed to model the clothes.

Then the plot began. Chief Gibbs sneaked to his house nearby and called back to report an emergency. Ward, Taylor and Lilly who were in on the plot bundled Jack up and sailed off — Bermuda shorts and all.

That is the officers sailed as far as Five Points. There, they told Jack, was as far as he went. Despite tearful pleadings Jack found himself standing alone on Five Points.

Desperately he hailed a passing car. The driver peered at him suspiciously and sped on his way. Jack, in a panic started for the police station. It was on the way that he met the two women.

It must have been hard for Jack to face the boys at the PD but he did it and finally managed to wrangle a ride home.

The Bermuda shorts haven't been seen since.

Anyway this ought to dispel the rumors of a new uniform. After all, wouldn't ABC officers look funny chasing bootleggers in Bermuda shorts? But come to think of it they were becoming to Jack!

Notebook On Life

After Elvis, It's But Comedy

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Curbside comments of a Pavement Plato: There is a saying that times of great ordeal create great heroes.

If this is true, Elvis Presley may be the unrecognized hero of America's greatest present need—someone to restore sex to its proper perspective.

Presley, the Caruso of the teenage crowd, is a young former truckdriver, known by both his admirers and detractors as "Elvis the Pelvis." Many music critics say Presley's lusty cawing is away below par.

Elvis is perhaps even more renowned for his hip wiggles than his vocal cords, and these have brought him denunciations from ministers and parents, who say his wriggles are too "suggestive."

But Presley's charms, whatever they are, have brought him four Cadillacs and an annual income greater than that of the president of the United States, who, of course, can't even play a guitar.

Personally, I can't see this honest but rich young Tennessee minstrel as a national calamity. He may, indeed, turn out to be a national blessing.

And for a very simple reason. Elvis undoubtedly will give rise to a crop of imitators. And any

CHOOSING WISELY

"And seek not ye that ye shall eat, and what ye shall drink, neither be ye of doubtful mind. For all these things do the nations of the world seek after."

Here then is the statement of the divine principle regarding possessions set over against the worldly standards, success is worldly standards, success is measured by abundance; according to God's standards, success is measured by use.

God gives us money—much or little—to see what use we will make of it. It is one of his most important means of testing men's lives and gauging their purpose. Our Lord's attitude toward possessions reflects the perfect wisdom of God. John the Baptist ate locusts and wild honey and went about in a breechcloth. Jesus lived amid the ordered society of his day and entered freely into its joys and privileges. To him, possessions were not wrong in themselves; they became wrong only in their use—or, rather, in their misuse.

Jesus regarded possessions as part of the equipment by which God trains men's souls for eternity. Put possessions in their right place, said Jesus, and they are a blessing; put them in their wrong place, and they will curse the soul and plunge it into hell. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

And the kingdom we can surely have if we but seek after it.

State As A Whole Has Profited Much More

North Carolina's Business Development Corporation has shown a profit after its first six months of operation, but the state as a whole has profited a great deal more from the young corporation than its stockholders.

The brainchild of Gov. Hodges, the corporation was formed to provide risk capital for home grown industries throughout the state that could not acquire financial assistance from conventional leading institutions. A good many Tar Heels, realizing what such an institution would mean to the state's economy, put up their money in $10 bills and those of higher denomination. A good many others couldn't see much future in buying stock in the Business Development Corporation.

For its first six months of operation the corporation has a profit of $665.54. But because of the existence of the corporation, North Carolina saw a much greater profit.

The corporation has provided in loans and loan commitments $722,065 to finance small home grown industries in the state. These new and revitalized business enterprises in turn have provided additional jobs in communities throughout the state. The jobs have meant more income for many families and an increased buying power in many cities and towns.

Were it not for the Business Development Corporation, many of these small industries would be nonexistent for lack of capital. So would the jobs in the small industries have provided.

The $665.54 profit the corporation has shown in the first six months of its life is a drop in the bucket compared to what the corporation already has meant to North Carolina and what it will mean to the state in the months and years ahead.

Other Editors Are Saying... Kefauver's Withdrawal

(Greensboro Daily News)

A number of factors entered into Sen. Estes Kefauver's decision to withdraw as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination and throw his support to Adlai Stevenson.

Not for a moment would we question the sincerity of Senator Kefauver's explanation that he withdrew to assure party unity and to make a Democratic victory next November more certain. But that explanation, especially since it entailed the Tennessee senator's shift to the Stevenson bandwagon, calls for analysis.

The personable wearer of the coonskin cap recognized the political count; the outcome of the California primary actually provided the coup de grace for his candidatorial hopes. The best he could do was slow down the Stevenson nomination or create a situation for someone like Symington or Harman, to take advantage of.

The timing of the Kefauver statement was significant. It did not come until the G.O.P. split over the vice-presidency flared into the open and accentuated Democratic possibilities

Stassen Regarded As Looking To 1960

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON Harold E. Stassen's belated effort to sidetrack Vice President Richard M. Nixon is actually a bid for the 1960 Republican Presidential nomination, in the opinion of friends and foes in political circles. Their reasoning, which is based on their knowledge of the Minnesota man's ambitions and on his recent actions and statements, appears to be sound.

Despite his denials, the inappropriately titled "Secretary for Peace" indicated recently that he has not abandoned his 20-year-old dream of landing in the White House some day. In discussing the GOP's November chances without President Eisenhower heading the ticket, he declared that either he or Chief Justice Earl Warren could win easily.

He did not mention Vice President Nixon, or the man he now thinks should supplant the Californian — Governor Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts.

Stassen regards Minnesota AS HOME STATE. To the surprise and chagrin of Twin City Republicans, Stassen has begun to resume political interests and contacts which he had several back home. He announced that he regarded Minnesota as his "home state," and said that he had kept his residence there during his years at Washington and as former president of the University of Minnesota.

Finally, he proclaimed that he would make Minnesota his "base of operations for the future." He has not been active there, politically, since 1952, when he went to the national convention as a "favorite son," and threw his support to Ike during the victorious roll call.

Naturally, his reaffiliation with Minnesota is essentially in 1960 plans, for he would not be acceptable to conservative Pennsylvania GOP-ers, and the voteless District of Columbia is not fertile Presidential soil.

WITH AN EYE TO 1960 In linking his name with Chief Justice Warren, as well as in his boosting of Governor Herter, Stassen obviously seeks to identify himself with the liberal and anti-Nixon wing of the GOP. Although his strategy may seem illogical and ill-timed he is preparing to pose as Ike's heir, or matter how the latter may feel about it.

But he must first weaken Nixon, even if he cannot succeed in displacing him. Should he become incapacitated during a second term, which almost everybody concedes him, Nixon, like Coolidge in 1924, would take over the Party. Even if he finished his second term, Nixon would be in a strong spot for 1960.

His California rivals—Senator William F. Knowland and Governor Goodwin Knight, could be out of the running under such circumstances: Warren would be too old in 1960, whereas Stassen will be only 53. Herter would be 65. None of the other prospects—Thomas E. Dewey, Henry Cabot Lodge, Secretary George M. Humphrey — would be in as strategic a position as "Child Harold," or so he thinks, provided he can remove Nixon from the field.

TOGO'S FORECAST RAISES DOUBTS Stassen's choice of the supervisor of his second Nixon-Herter poll supports this viewpoint and analysis. He is Adolph Toigo, president of the Madison Avenue advertising firm of Leuven & Newell.

Toigo v. s. an active Stassen-for-President man in 1952. In fact, he was a campaign adviser at Milwaukee headquarters when Stassen ran in the Wisconsin Presidential primary.

Pollster Toigo first predicted that Stassen would win 30 delegates, but subsequently reduced the figure to 20. The Minnesotaan failed to obtain a single delegate.

Toigo's erroneous forecasts have raised doubts about the accuracy of his recent report on Nixon's political weakness and vulnerability, especially as it was conducted in the utmost secrecy.

Follow-Up To Dying Toll Roads

By ELMER ROESSNER

The toll-road boom was nice while it lasted. Now it's dead. The Federal highway program didn't kill the boom—it just laid the pennies on the corpse's eyes. The boom was dead months ago.

In the last 10 years, toll roads grew from about 300 miles to more than 1,845 miles. As they stretched across the countryside like fingers of concrete, they created millions of jobs and billions of dollars in sales of materials. They also created billions of dollars in tax-exempt bonds.

The boom started to lose life last year. During 1955, a total of $2.8 billion in bonds for 3,489 miles of proposed roads were delayed or abandoned. At least 18 states planning toll roads were unable to get them to the financing stage because they were found unfeasible or because they encountered legal troubles, the American Society of Planning Officials reports.

ESTIMATES NOT MET

The most discouraging factor was that several of the new highways did not bring in revenues expected. The roads in West Virginia and Ohio and some new extensions in Pennsylvania have failed to produce fees so hopefully forecast in pre-construction surveys.

A virorous minority of property owners and voters also slowed down the boom. Each new road cut off established businesses from profitable traffic. The liveliness of hundreds of operators of gas stations, motels, highway restaurants, farm stands, novelty shops and other roadside enterprises was taken away by toll roads, and then similar enterprises were leased to big gas and catering. In many places toll roads have been powerful instruments in crushing small business and fattening big business. Small enterprises therefore became more active in opposing new turnpikes.

The growing realization that the Federal government would have to take a hand in the problem of bringing the nation's highways up to date—if only for defense purposes — also helped hasten the death of the toll-road boom.

NOW, NEW PROBLEMS

The new Federal highway program, which eventually will add about $50 billion worth of new roads, also will dislocate many small businesses. And along with many of the new highways, businesses will be limited to parallel service roads. However, it is not likely that big corporations will be given exclusive rights to stretches of highways, small firms will be able to bid for a share of whatever trade there is. In some cases, improvement of existing roads will benefit small businesses now in operation.

Call to Christian Living (Temperance) ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON By Alfred J. Buescher

St. Luke says of the Boy Jesus: "And the child grew and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom; and the grace of God was upon Him." Jesus went home to Nazareth from Jerusalem with His parents, and obeyed them. He "increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man."

A Call to Christian Living (Temperance) HOW WE MAY GROW AS FRIENDS OF JESUS

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL WE ARE told very little about Jesus' childhood and youth in the Bible. St. Luke, however, gives us two lovely pictures of Him as a child, which show Him as a fine, lovable character, popular with people and approved by God.

Jimmy built the six-foot rocket in the basement of his home here after reading a lot of books and making a few home experiments. It's powered by liquid oxygen and has a fuel injection system, and the Civil Aeronautics Administration says please don't shoot it off in Mecklenburg County. It might hit an airplane or something. Meantime, Army ordnance and operations officers say they'll try to find a place where Jimmy can fire the rocket, perhaps at some military base, where folks are used to such things. Jimmy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Blackmon, commented: "I didn't think about hitting anything on the way up. I had thought it might hit something on the way down."

Gastonia Whips High Point 8-1 For Teen-er Crown

Gastonia Crowned State VFW Teen-er Champions

Max Dellinger Hits, Hurls His Team To Title

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Led by a slender whip-lash right-hander named Max Dellinger, Gastonia defeated High Point 8-1 in a water-soaked seven innings to cap the North Carolina Teen-er baseball title yesterday, at East Carolina Field.

Earlier, in a morning game that lasted only four innings, Elizabeth City trampled St. Pauls 16-0, for the consolation prize.

Gastonia To Georgia

After proving their worth in the three-day North Carolina tournament, Gastonia will now travel to Lafayette, Georgia, to compete in the National Area Four Tourney, which will include teams from seven Southern states.

Of the six teams entered in the recent tourney, Gastonia was most impressive throughout. They stopped Lenoir on Tuesday, 7-1, behind the pitching of Jenkins and Dellinger; on Wednesday, they walloped Morganton 18-1 in five innings, with Dellinger again getting credit for the triumph; then yesterday's 8-1 win, with Dellinger leading the way for a third time, clinched the title for the western team.

Richard Kemp, a husky 175-pound, 15-year-old right-hander began mound duties for High Point yesterday, holding Gastonia hitless for four innings. High Point scored early in the very first frame on a walk, and error and a sacrifice, thus leading 1-0.

In the fifth inning, with things looking bad for Gastonia, Kemp walked Jimmy Brown, and a sacrifice ball and wild pitch followed. Then Rankin walked, stole second, Dellinger, a wiry 140 pounder, punched out a single that drove in both the tying and winning runs. An overthrow at third brought in Dellinger, and Gastonia began a rally that lasted for three innings. They scored three runs in both the fifth and sixth stanzas and sent two more across the plate in the seventh.

Dellinger went the full distance for Gastonia, while Kemp was relieved in the seventh by Marvin Richards.

Elizabeth City Circus

In the morning game, which decided the third and fourth place teams in the VFW tourney, Elizabeth City turned its contest with St. Pauls into a circus.

Richard Mansfield pitched for the Yellow Jackets, racking up a neat no-hitter in four innings. He also was the leading batter, punching out three hits.

Elizabeth City amassed a total of 11 big runs in the first inning, by way of five walks, a hit batsman, four errors, two hits by Mansfield and singles by Warren Riggs and John Lowery.

In the second inning, a total of six straight walks helped their cause quite a bit, as they pushed across four more runs. Mansfield's third hit of the day in the final frame accounted for the final score for the winners.

Individual Awards

Immediately following the championship game yesterday, trophies were presented to Gastonia, High Point, Elizabeth City and St. Pauls. Two individual trophies were awarded: one for the Most Valuable Player, and one for the Best All-Around Player, as chosen by VFW athletic officials, the umpires and the press.

Max Dellinger walked off with the Most Valuable award and high praise from East Carolina Coach Jim Mallory and Earl Smith, who were acting umpires. Richard Kemp, who pitched, played first, and outfield for High Point, was selected as the Best All-Around. State Commander of the VFW, R. A. Miskelly, presented the trophies.

Boxes:

St. Pauls 000 0-0 0 4
Elizabeth City (11) 40 1-16 7 1
Mansfield and Bates, Bess; G. Jackson, Welch (1), Hall (2), Jolly (2) and Hall, D. Jackson.

Gastonia 000 033 2-8 7 1
High Point 100 000 0-1 2 6
Dellinger and Brown; Kemp, Richards (7) and Bennett.

Andrews Takes Split Decision

CHARLOTTE—Al Andrews of St. Paul, Minn. today held his second split-decision victory over Billy Kilgore of Miami Beach, Fla., and was pointing for bigger game in the middleweight division.

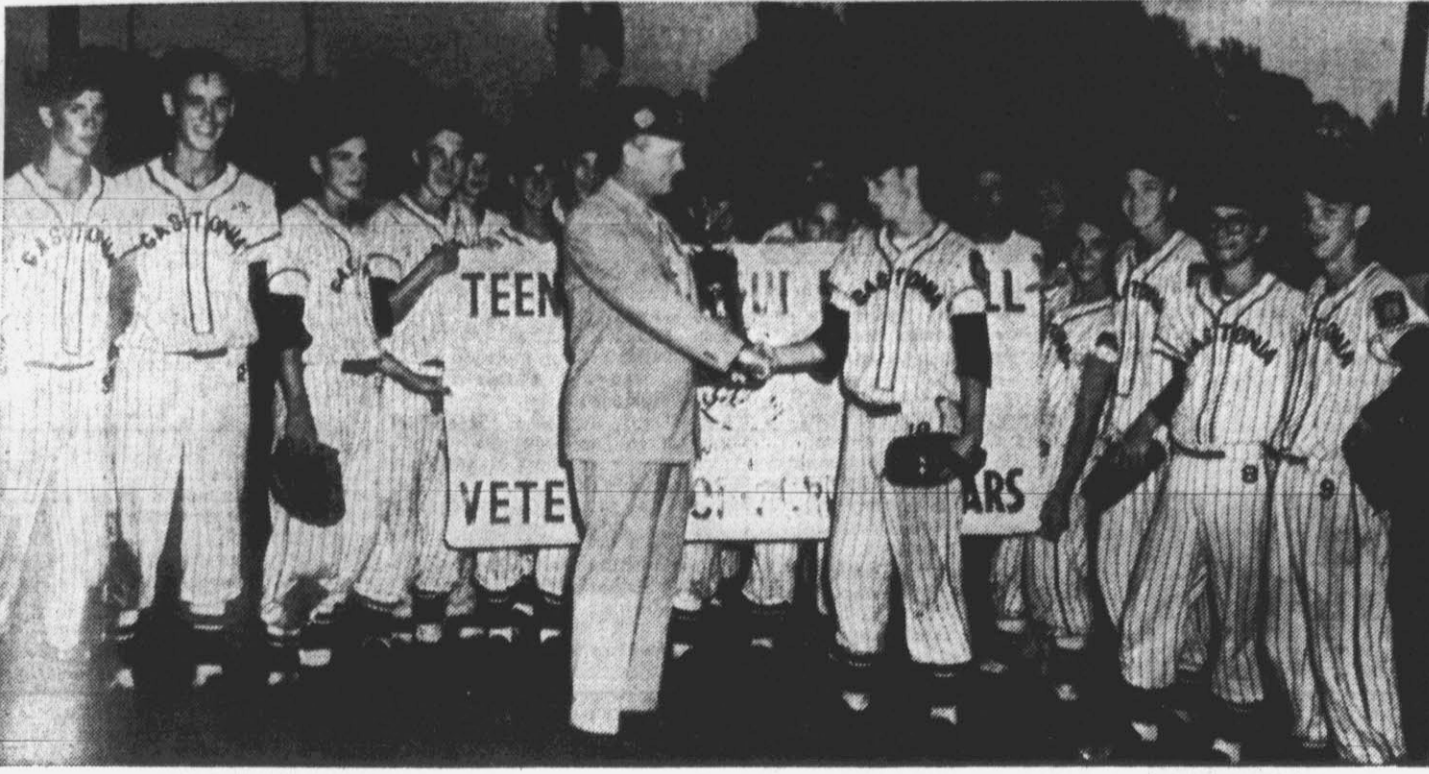

Andrews gained the nod of the referee and one judge as he punched his way to a 10-round verdict over Kilgore in Charlotte's new Park Center last night. Andrews also gained a split decision over the rugged Kilgore in Miami Beach recently.

Judge Bub Spittle and Referee Marion Diehl saw Andrews the winner last night by identical 97-96 cards. Judge T. L. Eddins scored it for Kilgore 97-95. There were no knockdowns.

A crowd of approximately 1,400 watched the bout.

Andrews, who weighed 161½ to Kilgore's 168½, piled up a big lead in the middle rounds with a two-fisted attack to the head and body. He was bothered somewhat by a cut over his right eye which Kilgore opened up in the seventh.

Kilgore made his bid in the seventh, using a left hook to advantage. He won the eighth the same way, although he staggered Andrews with a looping right at one point.

TOURNEY CHAMPS—State VFW Commander R. A. Miskelly is shown above presenting the North Carolina Teen-er championship trophy to Gastonia captain Max Dellinger after the team had trounced High Point 8-1 in the title game yesterday afternoon. Dellinger also capped the Most Valuable Player award. Gastonia now journeys to Georgia to compete in a national Regional tourney. (Reflector Photo by Billy Arnold).

Olympic Pledge Causing Wide-Spread Fuss

CHICAGO—Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, has promised a statement by Sunday explaining the anti-pro pledge for Olympic contestants which left athletes and some officials bewildered.

Word of the newly contrived, controversial pledge which demands an athlete must swear he not only is an amateur but intends to remain an amateur came Wednesday out of Australia where it received wide publicity.

News of the statement immediately brought a "very firm" protest from K. L. (Tug) Wilson, president of the U. S. Olympic Assn., and varied responses from Olympic contestants.

Some of the athletes shrugged it off with a "So what?" attitude, while others felt they could not sign.

The new rule requires all entries in the 1956 Olympics to sign the following pledge:

"I, the undersigned, declare on my honor that I am and intend to remain an amateur and fulfill the conditions stipulated by the Olympic rules."

Brundage, a staunch supporter of pure amateurism, refused to discuss the pledge, saying he is preparing a statement on the subject. However, he did say all entries must sign the pledge or they cannot compete.

Wilson, who met with Brundage yesterday, said, "I registered a firm protest with the executive committee of the IOC against enforcement of the rule, stating I believe that further study should be given to all the effects of its enforcement."

Little Leaguers Continuing At Guy Smith Park

The Greenville - Rocky Mount Little League game, which was halted Wednesday afternoon, with the score deadlocked at 5-5, due to darkness, was rained out yesterday.

Recreation officials stated this morning that the contest would be continued this afternoon at five o'clock, unless rain should halt it for the second time.

Both team managers decided to make today's contest a "costume" game of Wednesday's play, rather than a new game, so that Little League Rules would not interfere in pitching selections. Had the game been declared a new one, some of the pitchers used Wednesday would be eligible for the second game.

Winners of this big game will have copped the District crown and will then journey to Gastonia to work in the Regional tournament, during the second week of August.

Double Sweeps In Men's Loop

The Buck Amocos won three straight games over the Quality Oilers Wednesday night, in the Men's Bowling League. Wayne Strawn was high man for the winning team with a 157 three-game series. Connie Hines was high man for the Quality Oilers with a 156 average.

Bill Skinner led the Alley Cats to three consecutive wins over the Evereadys, with a 186 average, while Francis Whelihan averaged 172 for the losers.

Pony Leaguers Lose To Wilmington 5-3

Wilmington's hitting, Greenville errors and a light drizzling rain upset the local Pony leaguers' bid for a second win in the District seven tourney last night in Raleigh, as they went down 5-3. It was the second loss in three games for the Greenville team, which finished them in tournament play.

The Green team committed a total of seven costly errors, which was their downfall. Wilmington scored once in the third inning, thrice in the fourth and once again in the seventh, to wrap up the game. Greenville scored in the first, third and sixth.

Joe Moyer began on the mound for the locals and was relieved in the fourth frame by Merrill Bynum, who finished for Greenville. Aubrey Harrison was the catcher. Leeuwenburg was the winning pitcher for Wilmington.

The winning Wilmington runs came in the fourth inning, on two wild overthrows.

Greenville's runs were accounted for as follows: In the first inning, Bass and Moyer singled and Nobles brought in Bass with another single. In the third, Moyer doubled and scored on Nobles' double. The final run came when Cecil Cherry doubled, went to second on a wild pitch, and came in when the first baseman errored a grounder.

CHARLOTTE—It doesn't seem to bother versatile Marshall Happer of Kinston to mix his sports. Take his performance yesterday in the Carolinas tennis championships, for example.

Happer blasted out two tough victories in the blazing sun in the junior division less than 24 hours after competing in the annual all-star East-West high school basketball game at Greensboro.

Happer, who is North Carolina high school tennis singles king, downed Bobby Burns of Columbia, S.C., 9-7, 7-5, and John Tally of Gastonia, 8-6, 7-5 to gain the third round. Happer is top seeded and defending junior champion.

To show he is human, however, Happer was forced to default in a men's division match. After losing the first set to Gil Stacey of Charlotte Happer was ahead 3-2 in the second set when he threw in the towel.

In another feature junior match second-seeded Finley Lee of Charlotte took the measure of Tommy Riggs of Durham 6-4, 6-0.

Defending Men's Champion Bill Umstaedter of Abbeville, S.C., received permission from his doctor to defend his title. He was scheduled to play three matches today to catch up with the field.

In the women's division, defending Champion Evelyn Cowan of Covington, Ga., drew a bye yesterday. She advanced to the quarter-finals along with Louise Fowler, also of Covington, who defeated Judy Fitzjohn of Charlotte 6-0, 6-1.

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—There were four Triple Crown winners—Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes—in the 1940's, but there have been none in the 1950's. Citation in 1948 was the last 3-year-old to take the three stakes.

The total number of married people in the U.S. reached 81 billion in 1956. There were only 60 million in 1940.

National Loop Leaders To Battle Among Themselves

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

If you think the heat's on in the National League pennant race, just sit back and wait. This month of August figures to be a scorcher.

Take a look: First-place Milwaukee and second-place Cincinnati, just a game apart, have 14 games to play against each other, eight of them into an 11-day stretch beginning next Friday.

And Brooklyn's third-place world champions, just two games behind the Braves, have nine games remaining with the two top clubs—including five in as many days, three at Cincy beginning Aug. 23 and two at Milwaukee beginning Aug. 26.

Brooklyn completed a hustling comeback yesterday with a 3-0 decision over the Braves, sweeping the last three games in their four-game set. The Brooks gave Milwaukee the old-pro treatment. Don Newcombe became the NL's winningest pitcher on a four-hitter and 10 strikeouts. I was his 16th victory.

The Redlegs salvaged only a split from an expected four-game sweep, refining their power to blast New York's last-place Giants 10-2.

The fourth-place St. Louis Cardinals, nine games back, won their seventh in the last eight by swatting Pittsburgh 7-5. Philadelphia and Chicago were idle.

In the American, Herb Score's four-hitter, backed up by four homers, brought a touch of color back to Cleveland's cheeks as the second-place Indians rocked New York for three straight, 4-0, and whittled the Yankees' lead to seven games.

Boston peppered Detroit 18-3, with Jackie Jensen batting in nine runs. The Chicago White Sox beat Washington 5-4. Kansas City defeated Baltimore 3-2.

Newcombe, who didn't walk a man, ran his scoreless-inning string to 24 with his shutout. Carl Furillo tagged Ray Crone for his 14th homer in the fourth and Roy Campanella rocked him for No. 13, with one on, in the sixth. Henry Aaron ran his hitting streak to 18 games with a first-inning single as the Braves dropped their fifth in the last six.

Stan Palyas was 5-for-5 and 7-for-7 in the series, for the Redlegs, smacking a homer along with Ray Jablonski and Frank Robinson as Tom Acker won his second with relief help. Jabbo's puke was a grand-slammer in a six-run seventh. Johnny Antonelli lost it.

The Cards scored four in the third and wrapped up their fifth straight in the seventh with Stan Musial's 19th home run and a two-run double by relief winner Herm Wehmeier.

The Indians caught up with Tom Sturdivant after the young right-hander had beaten them with two straight two-hitters. Bobby Avila, Preston Ward, Rocky Colavito and Chico Carrasquel slapped the homers. Score, who fanned seven in winning his 11th, gave the Indians their second shutout over the Yankees in three days.

Jensen hammered a home run, triple, single and sacrifice fly for the Red Sox, then grounded out with the bases loaded to fall two short of the AL RBI record for one game. Willard Nixon won his fifth, backed by 15 hits of a half-dozen Tiger pitchers, who walked 12.

Los Moss slugged a three-run homer in the sixth to win for the White Sox and reliever Ellis Kuder, who gained his 100th major league victory.

Harry Simpson's 17th home run, with a man on, and a pinch single by Enos Slaughter got the A's home safe.

Giambra Seeking His Fourth Straight Win

NEW YORK—Handsome Joey Giambra bids for his fourth straight victory and a place in the middleweight rankings tonight when he opposes clever Rocky Castellani at Madison Square Garden.

The 24-year-old Buffalo Adonis feels he's ready to move once more against the top fighters and is confident that the 29-year old Castellani won't end his modest post-Army streak.

"I'm sure I can take Rocky," said Giambra. "If I can beat him, I'll be ready for anyone in the division."

The rangy, 5-11 sharpshooter has been made a slight 6-5 underdog for the 10-rounder which will be broadcast and telecast (NBC-TV, radio, 9 p.m. EST) coast to coast. On form it figures to be a very close fight.

Giambra was a high-ranking 160-pounder until he was drafted into the Army a couple of years back. Since his discharge he has won three straight decisions, outpointing Al Andrews and edging Britton John L. Sullivan twice. His record is 44-4-1 with 24 knockouts.

Joey features a stinging left jab and a solid left hook. Castellani, an ex-Marine now living in Atlantic City, also relies mainly on his left. On rare occasions when he opens up, Rocky has proved he can hurt an opponent with a sneak overhand right. The trouble with Rocky is that he doesn't let loose often enough. He let go against both Bobo Olson, the former middleweight champ, and Ray Robinson, the current king, and dropped both although he lost to both.

Now ranked ninth after once being top banana among the contenders, Castellani has a 61-8-2 record, including 15 kayos. He lost to Gene Fullmer, now the No. 1 contender, and whipped John L. Sullivan in his two outings this year.

Scoring will be by the rounds system. A supplementary point system also is employed to help break draws. The winner of each round gets from 1 to 4 points, the loser none.

Sedgeman And A Friend Are Still Recording Wins

LOS ANGELES—Australian tennis stars Frank Sedgeman and Rex Hartwig continued their advance in Jack Kramer's pro tournament yesterday with smashing victories over American opposition.

Sedgeman downed Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, 6-2, 6-1, and moved into the lead in the $7,500 Masters round robin championship, at the Los Angeles Tennis Club.

Hartwig, an erratic performer, had one of his good nights and whipped Kramer, 6-4, 6-1.

Sedgeman now has won three matches without a defeat. Pancho Gonzales is the only other unbeaten contestant, with two victories.

CHAPTER 32

"Dick still talking of coming up to New York Christmas?" Bill asked Priscilla.

She smiled. "That's what he says. Rita doesn't believe it, though."

"Do you?"

"I'm keeping my fingers crossed." Her voice sounded gay. Then she said, more soberly, "Yes, Bill I do believe it."

"Might lead to a serious situation, you know."

Priscilla looked at him inquiringly, and he said, "Matrimony."

"Oh—"

"I'm talking like a Dutch uncle, Priscilla. Don't mind me. I'm low, but if the visit should lead to the serious situation, matrimony, have you thought how you would like living in a place like Apalachicola? I imagine day in, day out, year in and year out, it would be deadly monotonous."

"It isn't monotonous for Peggy. And yes, I've thought of it." She turned her gaze off to the sea, to the far horizon where land and sky seemed to meet, and said simply, "I know of nothing in the world I would love more than to live here always, with all this beauty and the quietness and peace."

"And hurricanes," Bill added, watching her.

"That wasn't bad. And they strike other places, too. Seems Florida is getting sort of a breathing spell from hurricanes and it's the Eastern states that are getting them now." She was silent for a moment. "Of course if Dick doesn't like me that much, then all this will be remembered as a lovely interlude. I shall never forget it, but it will be just that—an interlude."

"I think he'll come, Priscilla. And I'm sure that for him it is more than an interlude."

"If I had never come to Apalachicola—" She left the sentence suspended.

"But that was fate," Bill said. "She has a way of arranging her cards."

"They're not arranged that way yet," Priscilla said lightly, "but it's all wonderful, anyway."

One of the men said, "This is it, Duval. There she is."

Priscilla had no idea what he meant. The excitement in his voice made little chills go up and down her spine.

There were several boats tied up at the dock at the island, dimly twinkling, but there was no sign of life anywhere.

"We're coming in now, Priscilla," Bill said. "You stay out of sight. I'll let these fellows handle this. It isn't quite time for me to enter the picture."

"What did they mean when they said, 'There she is'? Are they looking for someone?"

"Boats are called 'she.' It's Red Gallagher's shrimp boat they're referring to. See it over there, all the lights on?"

The men approached the boat while Priscilla and Bill watched unseeingly.

Gallagher pretended to have just awakened in response to their call. One of the government men said, "Sorry to have bothered you, but we're inspecting all boats in the harbor. Over here and in Apalachicola."

"In the middle of the night?" Gallagher asked, barely concealing the panic he was feeling.

"That's right. We're doing it now."

"Ain't nothing on my boat to interest you. If you're looking for something, why don't you look on them nifty boats?" Gallagher had been on the watch all night for the government boat. He had seen the little cabin cruiser approaching, but had suspected nothing.

"Why are you anchored over here?"

"Wanted to get an early start. Too many boats over there."

"Well, we'll have to come aboard."

"Nobody ain't coming on my boat this time of night," Gallagher said stubbornly. "Ain't nothing here, anyway. Who are you?"

The man turned back the lapel of his coat. His badge was plainly discernible even in the dim light. Gallagher's eyes bulged, and he swallowed.

"What's that covered with tarpaulin?"

"Bait, boxes, ballast," Gallagher said, his voice shaking a little. He seemed rooted to the spot. He had had nightmares of just such an experience. Alvarez had been so cocky, so sure nothing could go wrong.

"We'll take a look."

Bill stroled up, his right hand in his coat pocket. He said "Hello, Gallagher."

"You bin snoopin' around here a long time, haven't you?"

"Oh, he's one of us," the government man said lightly. "We're going to have to ask you some questions."

"You can ask," the fisherman said, shrugging. He had a gun in his pocket, too. But he knew that Bill would be quicker than he with a gun. Besides, he wouldn't get anywhere that way. The others were armed, too. He didn't have a chance against the three of them.

Bill said, "You were talking to a couple down on the dock this morning."

"What couple?"

"A man and a woman."

"I talked to lots of people this morning."

"These two later went aboard the Silver Song."

Gallagher shrugged. "How would I know about that? Lots of people asked about that boat; guess some of them wanted to see it. What's that got to do with me?"

"Do you know who they were?"

Bill persisted. "What their business was in Apalachicola?"

"I don't know what you're talking about."

"Gallagher, I think it will be better for you if you talk."

Gallagher looked at him and said nothing.

"That couple left town a short while ago." The fisherman's expression did not change.

"But they didn't get very far," Bill said softly. "They were stopped in Port St. Joe."

"I don't know nothing about it," Gallagher said.

One of the men said, "And now we'll take a look around especially under the tarpaulins."

Gallagher himself lifted the tarpaulin. As he had said, there were boxes of fish bait, ropes ballast, and a general mixture of odds and ends.

The man's flashlight played over the boat.

"It's like I told you," Gallagher said, a little bravado in his voice. "Ain't nothing here."

"You're under arrest, Gallagher."

"What for?" The bravado left Gallagher's voice. It shook a little. "Because of what is contained in the two small chests under those things. You junk doesn't quite cover them, you see."

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

By FAGALY and SHORTEN

Governing Of Pitt County Is Big Business In Itself

(First of a series of articles on the operation of the Pitt County government.)

Pitt County, the very heart of the world's greatest Bright Leaf tobacco production area, is a big business in itself.

In the fiscal year which began July 1, and ends next June 30, the county will spend approximately $1,281,470.32 in the operation of its 28 departments and agencies. That sum, strictly budgeted for each department and agency, is figured as the minimum necessary for the county to do a competent job in rendering services to county residents.

At the head of every government, local, state or national, there has to be an administrative unit. Pitt County has its administrative unit, headed by the County Commissioners who meet at least once a month to make decisions on county operations and policies.

The Commissioners will draw $6,075 for their operations before next June 30. The bulk of their appropriation, $5,400, is for salaries of the commissioners, a sum that is set by the North Carolina General Assembly and required by the state's General Statutes. There is no increase in that amount this year.

The chairman of the Board of Commissioners draws a monthly salary of $125. The vice-chairman gets $100 per month and the other three members of the board draw $75 per month.

Twenty-five dollars has been set aside for supplies (stationery and printing), the same sum that was allocated last year but not used. Travel and miscellaneous expenses of the board drew an appropriation of $650 this year, also the same as last year. The travel money is used for out-of-town trips by the commissioners, such as the annual trip to the meeting of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners. That meeting will be held in Winston-Salem later this month and the Pitt Commissioners are expected to attend in a body.

Administrative Costs

A total of $29,419 has been set aside for administrative costs of the county. Those costs include fees for the county attorney, special attorneys, auditing, insurance and bonding, the Institute of Government, miscellaneous expenses, and the retirement and social security funds.

The retirement and social security funds, lumped together this year, have an increase of $4,000 in their appropriation for a total of $18,000 this year. The funds include the county's contribution to state and federal agencies for county employees' retirement.

The county attorney will draw the same salary he did last year, $3,600, a sum that is set by the county. The sum is not a retainer fee, but, rather, a set salary that puts Speight available at all times for any phase of the county's legal work.

The special attorneys fee is set aside in case the county attorney needs special legal assistance. The same sum, $300, was allocated last year but not used.

The $2,500 fee for auditing the county books is almost a standard appropriation. The same amount was allocated last year and the county gets a complete audit of its financial records for the sum. The audit is performed by private businesses under a contract.

Insurance for county buildings and bonding of all county employees who handle money with the exception of the Tax Collector, Register of Deeds, Sheriff, Clerk of Court, and Auditor will take an additional $500 this year. Last year, $4,000 was set aside for the service but this year's appropriation is for $4,500.

The Institute of Government fee of $319 is based on county population and is Pitt County's contribution to the Chapel Hill agency. The contribution entitles the county to send delegates to all of the Institute's schools and courses and makes available other services of the Institute.

The miscellaneous expenses of administrative costs has been given a $100 reduction in its appropriation this year. Last year, $300 was set aside for that function but since it was not all used the commissioners reduced the sum to $200.

for 1956-57 operation.

The overall budget for administrative costs has been increased $4,400.94 for the coming year. Last year, the county set aside $25,018.96 for the work.

City Takes Tolls On State Bridge

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The city of Alton, Ill., is collecting tolls on a Mississippi River bridge owned by the State of Missouri.

Impossible, you say? You're wrong, 15 cents worth.

Robert L. Hyder, general counsel for the Missouri Highway Department, announced he'll file a petition before the Supreme Court in Washington Aug. 14 in an effort to stop it.

"The city of Alton has been collecting $1,000 a day in tolls since June 30 and is not in any way entitled to it," Hyder declared. "The bridge belongs to the State of Missouri."

The two-lane bridge, 3,000 feet long, crosses the Mississippi between Alton and West Alton, Mo., about 20 miles north of St. Louis on U. S. 67.

From 1936 until June it belonged to Missouri's St. Charles County. The toll was 25 cents. It long since had paid for itself.

In June, St. Charles County authorities revoked the tolls, declared it a free bridge, and presented the deed to the Missouri Highway Department.

Anguished cries arose from Alton. Said Mayor Leo Straif:

"Instead of giving the city of Alton and the Illinois Highway Department a free bridge, they propose to dump into the laps of the taxpayers of Alton the one-million-dollar problem of providing adequate bridge approaches and the expensive solution of the attendant traffic problem."

Traffic was expected to boom, since all the other river crossings in the St. Louis area are toll bridges.

Alton countershocked. City Judge I. H. Streper issued an injunction. The city seized the Alton end of the bridge. A receiver was named. A 15-cent toll was imposed.

About 8,000 cars use the bridge on an average day and Alton has been banking the money at the rate of about $400,000 a year.

Pool Gates Will Remain Locked

FARMVILLE—Mayor Charles Edwards announced here today that Farmville's municipal swimming pool will remain closed until further notice. The pool was scheduled to reopen Sunday. The pool, Pitt County's only municipal swimming area, was ordered closed last week after the death of seven-year-old Lewis Moyer. The child died in Woodard-Herring Hospital in Wilson while enroute to Duke Hospital. He was a victim of bulbar-type polio. Elbert Moyer is summer director of the pool and is assisted by Sam Stell. According to Moyer, near-record crowds had been using the pool daily until it was closed.

Harriman Relies On Stevenson's Moderate View

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Averell Harriman hopes to cut down Adlai Stevenson's lead in the Democratic presidential nomination race with the contention that Stevenson's "moderation" approach cannot win in November. Harriman and his campaign strategists hammered away at that theme last night at a big $50-a-plate pre-convention "send-off" dinner for Harriman in Albany's banner-bedecked armory. The governor decried counsels of moderation as "counsels of defeat." He pledged to fight at the party convention in Chicago for what he called "the liberal principles and objectives" of former Presidents Roosevelt and Truman. Harriman and other speakers drew only moderate applause from the crowd of 2,000. Some of those present said privately they feared Harriman's chances for the nomination were crippled when Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) threw his support to Stevenson.

Harriman accused President Eisenhower of breaking his 1952 campaign promises. This, he said, departing from his text, was "one of the most ignoble acts of any president in the history of our country." After dismissing what he termed Eisenhower's "middle-of-the-road program as a roadblock to progress," the governor leveled his sights at "moderation" within the Democratic party. He did not mention Stevenson by name. But it was obvious he referred to Stevenson's call last November for "moderation" in approaching issues of the 1956 election. Harriman said Roosevelt had won in 1936 and Truman in 1948 after spurning suggestions that they tone down their programs. "Now again," he continued, "there are some who advise us to take it easy — who talk about moderation as the spirit of the times."

"For my part, as governor of New York — and as a Democrat — I reject these counsels. They are the counsels of defeat." Harriman said that, if the Democrats put before the nation a program of "new vision, new drive, new determination," they could win in November. But, he said, the party would need "a fighting candidate and a fighting campaign."

Adding Machine Has Fascination

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—A Little Rock man has got two years to see if he can overcome a fascination for a particular adding machine. Andrew Mosley was sentenced to two years in prison for theft of a $155 adding machine from his employer. At the time of his arrest, he was out on bond, facing a charge of stealing the same machine once before. "If he's going to keep on stealing that same machine," said Circuit Judge William J. Kirby, "we've either got to give it to him or else send him to the penitentiary."

Curfew Remains, But Siren Stilled

CLEARFIELD, Utah (AP)—There will be no more wailing sirens to signify the 10 p.m. curfew for juveniles in this northern Utah community. Mothers complained that the shrill siren awakened the children who were already asleep. The City Council ordered use of the siren discontinued. The curfew remains; but the teenagers will have to go by their own watches hereafter.

Suez-Like Seizure Of Panama Canal Held Unlikely; Conditions Differ

WASHINGTON (AP)—Could the Panama Canal — the world's second largest man-made waterway — be nationalized as the Egyptians have done with the Suez Canal? "Absolutely not," Panamanian Ambassador J. J. Vallarino said today. "The situations are entirely different," said W. M. Whitman, secretary of the Panama Canal Co., a U.S. government corporation which operates the canal. The U.S. agreement with Panama, under which the canal is operated, "does not entirely fulfill the wishes and aspirations of the people and government of Panama," the ambassador said, but he was firm that his country would continue to enforce the treaty. "The affairs of the Suez Canal do not concern us at all," he said, "but it may lead in the future to better understanding and more liberal consideration towards Panama."

company under a 99-year-lease due to terminate in 1968. In the seizure of the Suez Canal Co., Whitman said, the point was that the canal actually was within the boundaries of Egypt. Panama has granted the Panama Canal Zone territory to the United States, he added. The latest U.S.-Panama treaty, which took some two years to negotiate, met sharp opposition when it came before the Senate in 1955 although the vote on ratification itself was overwhelmingly in favor. Sen. Magnuson (D-Wash.) called it a "bad treaty" and predicted the next step would be a demand by Panama "to take over the zone and the canal itself." Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) said he feared Panama "may bleed us white" in case of a future war, for land needed to defend the canal and the citizens and government of Panama.

The basic issue now and when the canals were built was that the waterways be kept neutral — open to ships of all nations at all times in both peace and war. Nasser has estimated the Suez Canal's annual collection of traffic tolls reached 100 million dollars. The Panama Canal Co. took in $37,450,000 in the 1956 fiscal year. Its traffic of 8,475 transits is about half of the Suez traffic, which carries much of the Middle East oil, Whitman said. The Panama Canal is operated and regulated financially by a 13-member board of directors appointed by the secretary of the Army, acting as personal representative of the President. It is not part of the Army, Whitman said. The Canal Zone itself, however, is governed by an officer of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Maj. Gen. William E.

Potter, a 50-year-old native of Oshkosh, Wis., has been governor of the Canal Zone since last May. The directors of the Panama Canal Co. are principally businessmen and high government officials drawn from all parts of the country. They serve without salary. Income from the canal tolls is used to operate the canal and to replace and enlarge its facilities. Whitman said that since 1951 the company has paid 15 million dollars to the U.S. Treasury toward reduction of the government's investment in the canal.

Western Big 3 Talks Felt To Have Lessened Dangers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Western Big Three talks over the Suez Canal crisis are generally regarded here as having reduced the danger of a flaring Middle East military clash without having eliminated it by any means. Diplomatic officials gave that appraisal today in advance of the scheduled return of Secretary of State Dulles to report to President Eisenhower on his efforts to persuade Britain and France to exhaust diplomatic methods as a first step in dealing with Egypt's seizure of the canal. The three-power talks which ended in London last night resulted in an agreement to invite Egypt and 23 other nations to a conference aimed at setting up a system for international control of the canal. This afforded some hope — but no assurance — that a negotiated solution might eventually be found. Indications from an Egyptian source in London were that President Gamal Abdel Nasser would reject the invitation to the conference, which probably would be held anyway. The signs were that Nasser would stand firm on his assertion that the canal would be nationalized and operated by Egypt alone, although free to international traffic as in the past.

Dulles flew to London Tuesday at the direction of Eisenhower. His hurried decision to go was attributed by responsible officials here to a fear on the part of Eisenhower and Dulles that in "their anxiety over Nasser's action France and Britain might quickly use force and thus touch off spreading conflict in the Middle East." Authorities here considered that one important result of the decision to call the 24-nation conference is that it provides a "cooling-off period" of about two weeks. The ultimate success of the conference will depend on several factors of which two are probably of most importance: 1. The reaction of Egypt to the invitation to attend and, if that is positive, to the proposal to set up an international management for the operation of the canal even though Egyptian ownership would be recognized and substantial canal revenues would flow to Egypt. 2. The reaction of all the other countries invited to the conference and particularly of Russia, which has been developing a pro-Egyptian policy for more than a year and whose attitude might have great weight with Nasser.

Leaped, Then Had A Lengthy Swim

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Midshipman Edward K. Stone, impatient to get ashore after a summer cruise to Europe, leaped at the chance. But after leaping he had to swim a mile and a half. A Naval Academy spokesman said Stone jumped overboard from the destroyer Rowe as it lay at anchor just off Annapolis. He and the other midshipmen had been scheduled to debark the next morning. He turned himself in at the academy later. The academy spokesman, saying Stone apparently acted on a dare, added disciplinary action hinged on medical reports from Bethesda Naval Hospital. Stone was taken to the hospital for observation.

Judge Declines Stop Bullfight

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A judge has refused to stop a weaponless bullfight, saying the definition of what would worry a bull was a "64,000 question." Superior Judge William A. Glen had been asked by the Humane Society to stop the event scheduled for Aug. 18 in municipal Balboa Stadium on the grounds that just worrying a bull for exhibition was against state law. The event has been billed by promoters as a "bloodless" exhibition, with fighters and bulls coming from Mexico.

Brief Interview Not In Writing

STILLWATER, Minn. (AP)—An inmate reporter for the Mirror, Stillwater Prison weekly, wrote of Gov. Orville Freeman's recent tour of the state penitentiary and of his brief interview with him. He said he bumped the governor's elbow as they left the interview room. "Pardon me," the reporter said. "Certainly," replied the governor. "But," added the inmate reporter, "we couldn't get it into writing."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — The stock market tilted downward early this afternoon in fairly active trading.

Pivotal stocks were off fractions to a point for the most part. Among special situations there were movements of 3 or 4 points either way.

The market was mixed at the start but prices gradually eroded. There was a liberal sprinkling of gainers.

Latest developments in the Suez Canal situation were depressing the international oils, tightening credit in the money market and other news items created some hesitancy.

Steels were generally lower, rails were mixed while aluminum and copper were firm. Motors eased slightly.

While Britain and France rushed mobilization measures and at the same time set in motion a 24-nation conference on the Suez Canal, oils with heavy interests in the Near East declined sharply.

Standard Oil (New Jersey) and Texas Co. dipped about a point each. Amerada, however, gained around a point in heavy turnover.

Republic, Bethlehem and U.S. Steel eased fractionally. General Motors and Chrysler were off a trifle.

Among rails, Northern Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio gained while Santa Fe and Southern Railway were down.

Anaconda and helps dodge made fractional gains. Aluminum Ltd. as up around a point.

Chemicals showed little change except for Allied which dipped more than a point. Boeing, Douglas, and United Aircraft were off fractions to around a point.

Hazel Atlas Glass Co. fell around 3 points on news the Justice Department was suing to block the proposed merger with Continental Glass which rose 2 1/2 to 5 1/2 on a block of 8,000 shares.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 30 cents to 0190.80 with the Industrials off 60 cents, the rails off 10 cents and the utilities unchanged.

RALEIGH — (NCDA) — Hog markets were steady to mostly 2 1/2 higher today. Tops of 17.25 to 17.75 at Kinston, Benson, Tarboro, New Bern, Enfield and Beale.

RALEIGH — (NCDA) — North Carolina fryers and broilers, market weak, farm price 19 to 20. L.o.b. plant 20 1/2. Raleigh eggs steady. A large 46; Asheville eggs steady. A large 45 to 47.

NEW YORK — 1 p.m. stocks: Adams-Mills 17 1/2, Admiral Corporation 17 1/2, Alleghany Corporation 9 1/2, Allied Chemical & Dye 112 1/2, Allis Chalmers Mfg 35 1/2, American Can 44 1/2, American Smelt & Ref 54 1/2, American Tel & Tel 74 1/2, American Tobacco 138 1/2, Atchafon, Top & SF 13 1/2, Atlantic Coast Line 59 1/2, Atlantic Refinery 42 1/2, Avco Manufacturing 5 1/2.

Rocket Plane In 1900-MPH Ride

NEW ORLEANS — The Air Force has set a new unofficial world speed record for airplanes of 1,900 miles an hour, but the Defense Department won't confirm the fact to be confirmed officially.

Lt. Col. Frank K. Everest Jr., a 34-year-old West Virginian, flew the Bell 2 rocket plane four times as fast as a bullet travels — and close to just last week, July 25, over the southern California desert near Edwards Air Force Base.

This was 250 miles an hour faster than the 1,650 m.p.h. attained by Maj. Charles Yeager in a sister ship, the Bell 1A, Dec. 12, 1953.

Everest was here attending the Air Force Assn. convention when the news of his achievement leaked out yesterday.

He declined to discuss the flight with reporters, on the grounds that Air Force security restrictions forbade comment.

The 2 is a multimillion-dollar flying laboratory, fitted with a quarter ton of instruments to measure temperatures, fuel consumption, stresses and strains at extreme high speeds.

Powered by a Curtiss-Wright rocket engine, it is the first plane to be designed specifically to explore the "thermal barrier" — the problem of ever increasing air friction heat as supersonic planes fly faster and faster.

Girl Killed By Lightning Bolt

FREMONT, N.C. — A 15-year-old girl was killed and five persons were stunned or dazed by a bolt of lightning which struck a tobacco harvester yesterday during a storm.

The dead girl was Helen Gertrude Sauls of Fremont, Rt. 1. Mrs. Clarence West, who was riding on the upper level of the harvester with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John West, said, "I saw a bolt of fire coming toward us."

John West, Clarence West Jr., and George (Buddy) Godwin were dazed and suffering from cuts and bruises. The harvester was not damaged.

Bids Approved By State Board

The State Board of Education gave final approval yesterday to bids for a gymnasium and physical education building to be constructed at Eppes High School, Superintendent of City Schools J. H. Rose said today.

Work on the structure is expected to begin in the near future, Rose said.

Noon Day Heat Proved Too Much

LEXINGTON, S.C. — The noon day heat proved too much for 2 1/2-year-old Connie Marie Kneecoe of nearby Pelion.

The child wandered away from a traffic hazard and children walking or riding bicycles behind the machine are in danger of being struck by other vehicles.

The machine was delivered to the town last Friday and used for the first time Friday night by Street Superintendent J. B. Taylor. Taylor and his crew covered one section of the town Friday night and the other half Monday.

Funeral Held For Mrs. J. A. Duguid

Funeral services for Mrs. Helen Williams Duguid, 66, widow of Dr. J. A. Duguid, were conducted at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Vanceboro at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon by the Rev. Sidney Matthews, Episcopal minister, assisted by the Rev. Fred Parris, Rector of the Church, and burial was in the Vanceboro Cemetery. Mrs. Duguid died at her home in Vanceboro early Thursday morning.

Mrs. Duguid was a lifelong resident of Vanceboro and was the daughter of the late Alex and Fannie Cleve Williams. She was married to Dr. Duguid in 1911, and he died in 1935. She was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Surviving are a son, James A. Duguid of the home; a daughter, Miss Helen W. Duguid of Chapel Hill; a brother, Fred A. Williams of Fairmont; and two sisters, Mrs. Lucy Gatling of Charlotte and Mrs. Emerson Worthington of Ayden.

Log Rolls From Truck And Hits Man In Fatal Mishap

FATALLY INJURED—Tom Davis, 54-year-old Greenville man, was fatally injured when struck by a log while loading of the truck shown above was in progress yesterday morning. Davis was knocked into a puddle of water and apparently strangled. He died shortly after reaching Bethel Clinic. Coroner Griffin H. Rouse stands by the truck and points to the water hole in which Davis fell. Davis was to have driven the truck to Norfolk last night. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Tom Davis, 54-year-old Greenville Negro, died yesterday after a log rolled from a truck apparently knocking him into a nearby puddle of water.

The accident occurred near Belvoir. Other workmen at the scene of the accident said Davis was struck on the shoulder by one of the logs as it rolled from the truck which was being loaded. The blow knocked Davis face down into a puddle of water alongside the truck, witnesses said.

Workmen pulled Davis from the water and took him to a Bethel Clinic. Davis died a short time after arriving at the clinic. Rouse said that muddy water was found in Davis' lungs and he apparently strangled or suffocated in the water hole.

Witnesses to the accident said that the log rolled off to one side after it struck Davis on the shoulder. The fatally injured man was employed by L. D. Austin of Greenville. He was to have driven to Norfolk yesterday morning with the load of logs.

Working with Davis at the time of the accident were Henry Brown, James Hinton and Herman Johnson of Greenville and Jack Weaver and Richard Blount of Bethel. The Negro men pulled Davis from the puddle of water and took him to Bethel Clinic. Davis lived at 107 S. Washington St.

Two Wrecks In City Yesterday

Two auto wrecks occurred yesterday afternoon on the streets of Greenville. Chalmers G. Paramore, 39, Route 3, Greenville, was involved in a traffic mishap on West Tenth Street with Thomas B. Thompson, 29, 117 South McDaniels Street, Kinston. Total damage to both vehicles was estimated at $85. Time of the accident was one o'clock.

Five hours later at Dickinson and Boyd Avenues another wreck occurred involving Harrel Paster, 40, and Charles Ray Gardner, 18, 807 Albemarle Avenue. Vehicle damage was estimated at $65. There were no personal injuries or arrests in either accident.

Last Rites Held For Mrs. W. McLawhorn

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Smith McLawhorn, 80, were conducted at Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Ayden at 2:30 Friday afternoon by the Rev. J. C. Lynn, the pastor, and burial was in the Griffin Cemetery. Mrs. McLawhorn died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Harvell, in Burlington at 4:50 Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. McLawhorn, daughter of the late Cicero and Penny Reeves Smith, was born and reared in Pitt County. She was the widow of Walter Lee McLawhorn and a member of Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. I. W. Mumford and Mrs. Frank Harvell of Burlington and Mrs. Rufus Craft of Grifton; a son, R. M. McLawhorn of Rocky Mount; two sisters, Mrs. Ed Skinner of Dover and Mrs. J. T. Long of Bolton; a brother, Furney Smith of Grainger; nine grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Eastern Carolina News Briefs

ROCKY MOUNT—Federal approval of 200 additional housing units costing approximately $2,200,000 was announced Thursday by Wm H. McIntyre, executive director of the city's Housing Authority.

GOLDSBORO—Permits for the construction of a tobacco storage warehouse, and addition at Carolina Woods Works and 11 new dwellings sent authorized construction in Goldsboro this year past the $3 million mark.

WILLIAMSTON—Holding to the latest schedule in recent years, the tobacco harvest is now speeding up in Martin County with the prospects a third or more of the crop will have been harvested by the weekend.

NEW BERN—Vaccine has arrived in sufficient quantity for the emergency polio vaccine program in Craven County on August 9.

KINSTON—July was 1956's poorest construction month in Kinston, according to Building Inspector Deyo Southerland, who reports building permits calling for construction costs of $98,962 were issued as compared with $212,300 during June.

KINSTON—Action on the City Council's decision to withdraw fire protection to rural areas will probably highlight the session of the Board of County Commissioners on Monday.

MT. OLIVE—The first mass polio vaccination clinic for Wayne County was held yesterday in Mt. Olive. Other clinics will be held at Goldsboro and Fremont during the month.

WILSON—H. Cecl Barnes was yesterday named assistant supervisor of sales for the Wilson tobacco market.

WINTON—Carl Vaughan of St. John's, who has completed two terms on the Hertford County Welfare Board and not eligible to succeed himself, has resigned. J. C. Evans of Harrellsville has been appointed as his successor.
