Shoppers Line Up At Greenville Stores For Dollar Day

WAITING TO BUY—Crowds of shoppers lined up in front of downtown stores early this morning waiting for the doors to open and Dollar Day to begin. Merchants reported the one-day sales event "as big as any we've had in the past." (Reflector Photo by Edwina Haynes).

Early Arrivals Throng Streets For Dollar Day

Another "big" Dollar Day got underway in Greenville this morning as folks began arriving early as usual to take advantage of the semi-annual sales event.

Participating merchants were in agreement by late morning that this Dollar Day will be as big as any in the past. Some commented it is their "biggest Dollar Day so far."

J. D. McGlohon, Jr., chairman of the Merchants Association Trade Promotion Committee, declared, "From the traffic seen in the stores by noon it is evident this will be one of the biggest Dollar Days Greenville has ever experienced."

Potential buyers, mostly women, were lined up in front of a number of stores early this morning waiting for the doors to open. As always, the ladies seemed to be the biggest buyers, but the men were out in significant numbers also.

Sales were reportedly going well in all departments, including home furnishings, clothing for men, women and children, even items from the downtown drugstores.

Many out-of-town shoppers came into the city for the sales day and traffic was heavy even in the early hours before the stores opened. More than 1,000 free parking spaces were made available by the city, as the parking meters were declared free for the day.

In addition to the Greenville shoppers, cars were observed downtown from Grifton, Bladenboro, Robersonville, Tarboro, Farmville, Washington, Pactivos, Winterville, Ayden, Havelock, Williamston, Fountain, Bethel, Falkland and Vanceboro.

The Police Department reported that in spite of the heavy traffic, "everything seems to be running smoothly" with only the usual number of men on duty in the downtown area.

Receiving most attention from the buying public this morning were the department stores and the ladies-ready-to-wear shops. The women were buying not only for themselves but for their husbands, families and homes.

Business was reported going well in the men's and children's shops also, as well as in the shoe stores. Merchants reported sales heavy and traffic regular. Many had purchased special goods for the day, and nearly all had employed additional sales personnel.

Berlin Writing A Theme Song

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Republican National Convention is going to have a special theme song, written specially for the occasion by the master tunesmith Irving Berlin.

The GOP melody, which hasn't been named, and maybe hasn't even been written yet, was announced by Mrs. Webster Todd of New Jersey, chairman of the convention subcommittee on music and decorations.

Truman Keeps Democrats Guessing As To His Pick

By JACK BELL

CHICAGO (AP)—Harry S. Truman kept Democrats guessing today about his choice for a presidential nominee as he headed into town with an expected rousing plea for the party to adopt a fighting program.

Last-minute efforts by supporters of Adlai E. Stevenson and Gov. Averell Harriman of New York to pry out of Truman some sort of favorable mention for their candidates apparently had failed.

The peppery former President scheduled an appearance today before the convention's Platform Committee that promised by all odds to be the stellar event of this pre-convention week — taken up there by arguments over civil rights and conflicting claims of candidates.

Many party members were reaching the conclusion that Truman intended to remain neutral in the nomination race.

Truman isn't even a delegate and he has asked that his scheduled speech to next week's convention be put off until the nominee is chosen.

But he commands even greater affection and influence in the party today than when he was president. His enemies of those days—particularly in the South, which didn't like his civil rights views—largely have forgiven him.

With all of this in mind, Harriman's backers were reported to have tried and failed to get a Truman statement praising their candidate. The best Stevenson's supporters could produce was a declaration for their candidate by Oscar Chapman, former secretary of interior in Truman's Cabinet.

The Truman influence on the convention has been increased by the argument over civil rights raised by Stevenson's call for a clear-cut platform endorsement of the Supreme Court's order for racial integration in public schools.

Democrats remember that in 1948 Truman won without the support of some Southern states.

Southerners were making veiled threats that the Democrats might have to enter another campaign under the same circumstances if the convention formally endorses the court's desegregation ruling.

While there was widespread belief the Southerners were bluffing in an effort to tone down the platform's civil rights plank, the situation assumed some serious aspects for Stevenson's bid for an early ballot nomination. North Carolina's Gov. Luther H. Hodges pinpointed the uncertainty with a statement in Raleigh last night that he may reconsider his support for Stevenson.

Hodges has been one of the bulwarks of the Stevenson strength in the South. If he should lead the North Carolina delegation in withholding its 36-vote strength from Stevenson, the candidate's tensiveness might tumble rapidly in the South.

By their own private admission, the Stevenson people are counting more than 90 votes in Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi in the 630 James E. Finnegan, Stevenson's campaign manager, said they will have on the first ballot. A total of 68 1/2 is needed for the nomination.

In the face of the threatened defection in the South, Stevenson's camp got new hope of support from an important and thus far uncommitted Northern source.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams, who controls Michigan's 44 nominating votes as the state's favorite son, said Stevenson's statement for "unequivocal endorsement" of the court's school ruling "is very encouraging."

Explosion Burns Winterville Man

WINTERVILLE—A 41-year-old rural Winterville Negro received second degree burns as a result of an explosion of undetermined origin this morning in Winterville.

Isaiah Smith was cleaning pumps in a sewage disposal station 20 feet under Chapman Street when the explosion occurred.

Winterville Chief of Police D. C. Martin reported that H. L. Joyner, foreman of the labor crew, was working within three feet of Smith, but was separated from him by an 18-inch concrete partition.

Joyner heard Smith shouting and had to come up through the manhole he occupied to see what had happened.

Smith, badly burned from the flash explosion, came out of the hole unassisted. He was rushed to Pitt Memorial Hospital by Martin Hospital authorities describe his condition as "fair."

Martin stated that he "did not know what caused the explosion but the matter is under investigation."

Hodges Proposed As Favorite Son

RALEIGH (AP)—Rumblings in North Carolina against Adlai Stevenson's call for "unequivocal approval" of the U. S. Supreme Court's segregation decision have produced the suggestion that the 36-vote Tar Heel delegation support Gov. Luther Hodges as "a favorite son" presidential candidate.

And Hodges, who has been a strong Stevenson backer, indicated in a statement that he may reconsider his support of the front-running candidate for the Democratic nomination.

"I've felt all along that it would give us some bargaining position," he said.

Terry Sanford of Fayetteville, another delegate, also suggested, "Maybe we ought to go to Chicago with Gov. Hodges as a favorite son candidate for president. We see that we are not left out of the party councils when it comes time to adopt the plank and talking about the selection of the vice presidential candidate."

Sanford said he was "disturbed" by Stevenson's statement. He added, "We have been lulled into thinking that he would not embarrass us in party circles. And now he makes his totally unnecessary statement at a most embarrassing time."

Stevenson's proposal that the approval of the decision be included in the Democratic platform brought several statements of discontent from Tar Heel delegates. Some said it would cost Stevenson Southern support. Others, indicating that they did not like the statement, said they still consider Stevenson the "most moderate" of the leading candidates.

Prior to Stevenson's statement, an overwhelming majority of the North Carolina delegation had indicated they would support him for the presidential nomination.

Mrs. John S. Richardson of Raleigh, state Democratic vice chairman and a convention delegate, suggested that North Carolina give its vote to Hodges as a favorite son for president.

"I've felt all along that it would give us some bargaining position," he said.

Terry Sanford of Fayetteville, another delegate, also suggested, "Maybe we ought to go to Chicago with Gov. Hodges as a favorite son candidate for president. We see that we are not left out of the party councils when it comes time to adopt the plank and talking about the selection of the vice presidential candidate."

Britain Postpones Airlift But New Units Are Called

LONDON (AP)—Britain today postponed the start of a major airlift of troops to the Mediterranean—and at the same time was reported preparing to pull some military units and personnel from Germany to cope with the Suez crisis.

BULLETIN WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles today invited Democratic and Republican leaders of Congress to meet with him here Sunday for a report on the Suez Canal crisis.

There was no immediate explanation of the postponement of the airlift, and no official confirmation or denial of the report Britain may draw on her army in Germany.

Prime Minister Eden, in a major radio and television speech last night, declared his confidence that a workable scheme could be found in peaceful negotiations to resolve the fermenting dispute and said the British "do not seek a solution by force."

At the same time he reassured British intentions to use force if necessary as a last resort: "I must make plain: We cannot agree that an act of plunder which threatens the livelihood of many nations shall be allowed to succeed."

Britain holds that Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's July 26 nationalization of the Suez Canal Co. is a menace to her lifelines to Middle East oil supplies and her Far Eastern commonwealth partners and colonies.

The War Office said the airlift was postponed for "at least 24 hours."

In the last few days an air-sea armada has been assembled along Britain's south coast to begin the transport of troops and supplies.

Six Bristol Britannias, each capable of carrying 100 men, and nearly 200 smaller planes were to start the first wave of the airlift at dawn tomorrow with movement of the headquarters brigade of the 3rd Infantry Division.

At least four troopships were to leave in the next six days. There was no indication whether these sailings also were affected.

Widely printed press reports in London said the 15,000-man 2nd Infantry Division may be withdrawn from West Germany, where British maintains four divisions and a tactical air force.

Later Allied diplomats said only certain personnel and smaller units were involved in the contemplated withdrawal.

The War Office would not deny or confirm the reports, and both the political and military headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Paris declined comment.

Meanwhile, diplomatic and other activity ranged far and wide as the Aug. 16 opening date of a 24-nation conference on international control of the Suez Canal approached.

Indonesia—the 20th nation to line up—agreed to attend the conference called by the agreement of Britain, France and the United States.

Iran, another nation that has accepted, explained in a statement by its foreign minister that Iran considers Egypt was acting within her sovereign rights in nationalizing the canal, but declaring her vital interest was in "securing free passage in the Suez Canal."

In Moscow, French Ambassador Maurice Dejean again called on Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov.

U. S. Charge d'Affaires John Jernegan, senior diplomat in Rome, discussed the crisis with Italian Foreign Minister Gaetano Martino.

A two-hour nationwide strike and demonstrations to protest the London conference were called in Syria for Aug. 14 by a group calling itself "The Syrian Commission for Egypt's Aid."

The Allied diplomats said Eden's government has given no indication of either the nature or number of troops it may withdraw from the Continent.

The earlier reports said the troops to be withdrawn would not themselves be sent to the Mediterranean, but would join British strategic reserves at home, replacing the Mediterranean-bound 1st and 3rd Infantry Divisions.

In his broadcast, Eden declared Nasser "has shown he is not a man who can be trusted to keep an agreement." He charged the Egyptian leader had seized the canal "for his own ends."

"Our quarrel is not with Egypt," Eden said, "still less with the Arab world. It is with Col. Nasser."

Termining the Middle East oil that passes through the canal a matter of life and death for Western Europe, the Prime Minister warned:

"If Col. Nasser's action were to succeed, each one of us would be at the mercy of one man for the supplies upon which we live. We could never accept that. With dictators you always have to pay a higher price later on—for their appetite grows with feeding."

largest in Marcinelle, a small town just outside the industrial city of Charleroi. A mine official said most of the trapped miners are Italians. Many Italians have come to work the rich Belgian coal fields since the end of World War II.

A crowd of about 1,000 grimaced relatives and friends gathered at the mine entrance to watch rescue operations throughout the chill summer night. King Baudouin visited the scene at nightfall. Premier Achille Van Acker and three other Cabinet members also were at the pit head.

Andre Vanden Heuvel, manager of the mine, said the trapped men might be able to live "several days" unless noxious gases became too dense.

Report 721 Salk Shots Given In Pitt Yesterday

Pitt County Health Department and private physicians have reported a total of 721 antipolio shots given over the county yesterday.

This brings the total since April, 1955, to approximately 14,000 persons who have received at least one injection of the Salk vaccine.

Majority of this number has been vaccinated in the past three weeks since an outbreak of polio in the county.

To date nine persons have been stricken with the disease, and eight of these paralyzed. All have been young children and, except for one in Farmville, rural residents.

Yesterday private physicians inoculated 378 persons, the biggest number they have reported vaccinated in one day. At the Greenville Health Department 325 received the injections and in Farmville 37 got the Salk shots. Of the total vaccinated, 682 were getting their first shots.

Special polio clinics are being held at the Health Department in Greenville all day tomorrow and Saturday morning, in Farmville all day today and Saturday morning, and in Bethel Saturday morning.

Next week clinics are scheduled for Greenville Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and on Saturday morning, for Farmville Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, and on Saturday morning, and in Grifton on Monday afternoon.

Health Director Walter C. Humbert said no special clinics will be held when school opens, as a mass inoculation program is planned in the schools.

Some Arrests In Colombian Blast

PANAMA (AP)—Arrivals from the blast-shattered Colombian city of Cali say a number of persons have been arrested in connection with Tuesday's explosion. Estimates of the total dead, meanwhile, ranged as high as 1,200.

The informants said Colombian authorities have launched an investigation of the dynamite blast which wrecked the heart of Cali, scooping a crater 85 feet deep and about 200 feet wide and causing damage put by some estimates at 40 million dollars.

Colombian President Gustavo Rojas Pinilla has labeled the explosion an act of political sabotage. The pro-government newspaper Diario of Colombia accused the President's political enemies of setting off the blast in an attempt to overthrow the regime.

The travelers said press censorship has been clamped down in Colombia as a result of the blast and that all outgoing dispatches are being closely screened.

Call residents have been forbidden to leave the city, the informants added, and plane, train and car travel is under rigid control.

No North Americans have been reported killed in the explosion, which occurred when seven trucks loaded with government dynamite went off in a densely populated downtown area.

The only official death announcement was made by Rojas Pinilla, who said more than 1,000 were dead and injured. Persons arriving from the stricken area said the victims included 600 soldiers and more than 400 civilians.

Doom Lives Of 30 Miners In Hopes Of Rescuing 230

MARCINELLE, Belgium (AP)—Rescue teams sealed off the upper levels of the burning Casier du Bois coal mine today, dooming an estimated 30 of the 260 men trapped below in the hope of saving the others from suffocation.

With oxygen tanks strapped to their backs, workers descended the main shaft of the 3,300-foot-deep mine in relays with big slabs of spun-glass fibers. With these they shut off all passages from the smoke-filled shaft down to about 2,200 feet. They hoped this would enable them to descend to lower levels where most of the trapped men were believed to be.

The miners were trapped when the fire, caused by a short circuit, melted an elevator cable and sent the lift crashing to the bottom of the pit. Other escape routes also were cut off. Twenty-five miners escaped aboard the elevator before it was lost.

Rescue workers removed nine dead and six injured miners from upper levels. Another 230 were in levels 2,500 to 3,300 feet down. About 30 more were believed somewhere in the sealed-off passages. If they were not already dead, the closing of the passages doomed them to suffocation.

One worker who came back from the 2,200-foot level said the "heat and smoke are terrible."

SHERIFF INDICTED BURNSVILLE (AP)—Yancey County Sheriff C. Frank Randolph was indicted here yesterday on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

New Record WASHINGTON (AP)—The number of American jobholders climbed again in July to 66,655,000—setting a new employment record for the second straight month.

The Commerce and Labor Departments reported the total employed was about 152,000 higher than in June and about 1,700,000 above July of last year.

At the same time, the report showed the number without jobs was virtually without change from June at 2,833,000. This total represents about 4 per cent of the civilian labor force of 72 million, which includes those in the armed forces.

Purchases, Ordinances Will Highlight Meeting

Purchase of new equipment and consideration of changes in local ordinances pertaining to the fire department and building inspection are expected to highlight tonight's meeting of Greenville's City Council.

City Manager Leonard Bloxam said bids are to be considered and contracts awarded for the purchase of three new trucks for the Public Works Department. The department is slated to get two new garbage trucks and a dump truck. In addition the Council will consider the acquisition of a street sweeper on a rental or purchase basis.

The Council also is scheduled to consider a contract from a publishing company for re-codification of local ordinances and the city charter.

Ringside Suite For Harry At Democratic Nat'l Convention

By ED CREECH CHICAGO (AP)—A happy surprise was in store for former President Harry S. Truman today as he came here for the Democratic National Convention. It was a sparkling new redecorated suite on the 12th floor of the Sheraton-Blackstone Hotel has a feature guaranteeing the greatest privacy: a telephone in the bathroom.

This is a refinement which the hotel staff, who showed off the five-room suite to some newsmen last night, credit to the late Harry L. Hopkins, Franklin D. Roosevelt's adviser.

Hopkins reasoned that (A) an important political figure sometimes wants to make calls without other people being privy to his secrets, and (B) about the only place a president can be alone is in the bathroom. So Hopkins ordered such phones installed at the time of the Democratic National Convention of 1940.

The Blackstone is a great beauty in tradition. Hence the cream-colored telephone on the green-tiled wall.

For some reason this telephone overshadowed in interest other features of the apartment—the piano with "The Missouri Waltz" displayed in sheet music form, the imported wallpaper which cost about as much as if dollar bills had been used, the new painting of Thomas Jefferson over the fireplace.

Truman is not the only refurbished luxury suite. Right above each with telephone in the master bath — is a sumptuous living space for Sen. Estes Kefauver. Right below is another furnished with $35,000 worth of antiques — in which New York Gov. Averell Harriman will hold forth. Thereby hangs a tale.

It was in the sitting room of the Harriman suite that a harried bunch of politicians (Republicans, as it happened) put the finger on a dark horse senator named Warren G. Harding for the presidential nomination in 1924.

This came as a considerable surprise to many people who had barely heard of Harding at that point, and the question naturally arose: when and where was the decision made?

"In a smoke-filled room" one of the GOP politicians replied promptly. And, perhaps with tongue in cheek, he gave the time of the nomination, right to the minute. Lightning doesn't often strike in the same place, of course. But you couldn't blame Harriman if he passed out cigars and

ECC Returns Negro Student's Entry Inquiry

East Carolina College has replied negatively to an inquiry by a Negro student interested in transferring from Elizabeth City Teachers College.

Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina, said yesterday that the student, a native of Greenville, had visited the college and made an inquiry. The student did not try to make application for entrance and was the first Negro undergraduate to make an inquiry this year.

He was at least the third Negro to inquire about attending the school, one of three state-supported teachers colleges for white students. Two others inquired a year or so ago but were told that East Carolina's charter does not make provisions for Negro students.

The school charter, issued in 1907, says, in part, that the college is "maintained by the State for the purpose of giving young white men and women such education and training as shall fit and qualify them to teach in the public schools of North Carolina." That charter is quoted in the school catalogue which is distributed to every applicant for entrance.

The manner in which East Carolina is set up gives only the General Assembly power to change the charter. The college's Board of Trustees cannot give a Negro student permission to enter, even if he were found acceptable in other areas.

In addition to the inquiry from the Negro student, Dr. Messick said that East Carolina had received, and returned, a letter of application for graduate correspondence work and a letter of application for a teaching position from a Negro teacher at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama. The Negro who applied for correspondence on the graduate level is presently teaching in Washington, N. C., according to Dr. Messick. The State of North Carolina supports three teachers colleges for white students and three for Negroes: East Carolina, Western Carolina College in Cullowhee and Appalachian State College in Boone are the white schools. Negro teachers colleges are located in Elizabeth City, Fayetteville, and Winterville.

East Carolina has other five and is the state's fourth largest school in enrollment. The University of North Carolina, N. C. State, and Duke have more students than East Carolina.

Bridal Plans Revealed By Miss Sermons

Miss Faye Sermons has completed plans for her marriage to H. Gerald Adcock.

Miss Sermons is the daughter of Mrs. Helen Tucker Sermons of 403 Student Street and the late Mr. Sermons and Mrs. Adcock is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Elton Adcock of Durham.

The ceremony will take place August 18 at 4 p. m. in Eighth Street Christian Church. The Rev. Dr. H. G. Haney will officiate.

Wedding music will be presented by Mrs. Edgar Hirschberg, organist, and Mrs. J. D. Wilson Jr., soloist.

William Aubrey Sermons of Greenville will give his sister in marriage. She will be unattended.

Ushers named are Jimmy Sullivan of Ahoskie, Hugh Tucker of Grimesland, Ray Evans and Curtis Hendrix of Greenville.

Following the ceremony, a reception will take place at the church.

Both East Carolina College graduates, the bridal couple-elect will make their home in Brunswick, Ga. where they will teach in the Brunswick City Schools.

At Kindergarten Workshop

The program of the Fourth annual Kindergarten workshop underway at East Carolina College is checked by some of the officers of the kindergarten association. Seated are Miss Ruth Torrence of Gastonia and Miss Annie Mae Murray of the Wahl-Coastes Laboratory School at ECC. Standing are Mrs. Charlotte Barnes of Raleigh, Mrs. J. Duke Haynie of Fayetteville, and Mrs. Mozelle Murray of Severn. Members of the association were guests at a luncheon at the college today and were treated to conducted tours of Bath this afternoon. For Her Niece's Graduation Gift, A Trip To Hawaii

By ANNETTE JACKSON
Reflector Woman's Editor

Graduation from Farmville High School was a big day for Miss Faye Moore who found among her presents the promise of a trip to Hawaii.

The happy donor was her aunt, Miss Beatrice Moore of Fountain, who as a nurse at the Tarboro Clinic had secured enough leave to make a very willing traveling companion.

The June graduate, who plans to enter Woman's College this fall, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Alton Moore of Route 1, Fountain. She is a vivacious, blue-eyed redhead who found the trip every bit as exciting as when they first began to talk about it some time ago.

They had a third companion, Mrs. Gene Venters of Tarboro, who joined her husband stationed on Hawaii.

Motoring across the country, Miss Moore estimates they drove 8,300 miles. From San Francisco they had the excitement of their first plane ride, flying a total of some 4,400 miles. That was an experience in itself, according to the young tourist, who was very impressed with the service and accommodations of air travel.

Following the southern route to California, the trio was amazed at the natural wonders of this country. They were aghast at the beauty of the Grand Canyon and the Painted Desert. The rice fields of Arkansas, oil fields of Texas and petrified forests left images in their minds which can become very real to the listener as they unravel the tales of excitement and thrills.

They stayed in motels exclusively on the trip across country. The long, straight desert roads and excessive temperatures described might have dampened the spirits of a less enthusiastic crew but Faye reports the going never got dull. When the scenery became monotonous—she is very reluctant to admit it ever did—they switched on the radio and caught up with the happenings of the outside world.

They, of course, like all seasoned travelers carried their own water supply and fought the heat by placing dry ice in the foot of the car.

They reportedly had no trouble finding their way. Navigator Faye kept the situation well in hand, only getting them lost once. The high speed limits out West allowed them free reign and they report no interference from speed enforcers.

Coming into Los Angeles is a wonderful experience, according to Faye. Located right at the foot of the mountains, you simply sweep down into it. There the three spent a night with friends and went on a guided tour of the city. Faye reports they saw movie stars Howard Duff and Walter Pidgeon in a tennis match. They barely missed several other stars.

They followed the coast line to San Francisco where the car was stored and they set out on the momentous plane ride. The trip took some nine hours and they arrived in Hawaii expecting to be met by Mrs. Venters' husband but found, much to their surprise, a committee of three to welcome them with the traditional leis. The additional, Chief Warrant Officer Dave Hathaway and his wife, who had heard of their trip through friends.

The Hathaways acted as hosts on the island and made the stay all the more exciting for them. They met natives and were invited to their homes through the Hathaways, thus allowing them the rare opportunity of seeing the land "through natives' eyes."

Faye reports that she was immediately gowned in Hawaii gear upon arrival and wore few of her clothes on the trip afterwards. The Mau Mau, a loose, informal dress which is suited to almost every occasion, was introduced to Faye and she professes an immediate attachment to it.

The shoes in which she was outfitted by her native friends brought back as souvenirs. They are called "Go-Aheads" and mean just that—no entanglements from the rear. Flat and almost like a Roman sandal, they feature straps crossed over the toes and no backs at all. Faye found they were high fashion at night as well as day since they are dressed up or down.

The characteristic male fashion, according to the young tourist, is the Aloha Shirt.

Miss Moore was very impressed with the cleanliness of the houses. She reports that shoes are left at the doors and floors are shining clean all the time. She saw no slum areas in Hawaii and believes this to be the result of pride of ownership and industriousness of the natives.

Faye and her aunt stayed in Hawaii for four eventful days. They went night-clubbing where they saw authentic Hula Dances and the Tahitian Dance performed. They visited in the homes, lounged

30 Years Ago Today

August 9, 1926

Wednesday afternoon at her home in College View, Mrs. K. B. Face entertained the members of the auxiliary of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion. The hostess served tempting refreshments.

Mrs. W. A. Darden entertained at a very enjoyable party on Wednesday evening at her home on Elizabeth Street, having as honor guests her nieces, little Misses Harriet Fleming of Kingston, Sarah Copeland of Kinston and Bessie Headen Stroude of Birmingham, Ala. The lawn and porch were lighted for the games. A pantomime, each one a different stunt, was very much enjoyed. Miss Mary Relf of Hertford, the successful winner, was awarded a bottle of bath salts. The honorees were remembered with candy. An ice course was served.

Modern Patterns Change With Women's New Sizes

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

THE SHAPE of American women has changed considerably in the last 50 years—and at last home-sewing dress patterns have caught up with the change.

For many years the pet gripe of home seamstresses has been the peculiar measurements of patterns, requiring much time-consuming alteration and often resulting in uncertain fit.

Now, however, the measurement standard committee of the pattern industry has agreed on new standard sizing for all patterns, conforming more nearly to dress sizes in the ready-to-wear field.

Time was when the standard of womanly beauty was a "perfect 36," with other proportions in accordance, but today every woman works for the ideal 34 bust, 24 waist, 34 hip measurement.

The modern figure has changed since grandmother's day. Today the bustline is higher, the waist and hips smaller. And now all patterns sold in department stores and local sewing centers have been changed to fit the new national figure more accurately.

All new pattern catalogs have insert sheets showing the new measurements. However, the changeover is not yet complete on the pattern envelopes, though the pattern inside is cut to the new sizing. The trick is to select the pattern size from the chart in the catalog and ignore the measurements printed on the envelope. New pattern envelopes have the new measurements, but older ones may not. The patterns themselves have all been changed and it is practically impossible now to find a pattern with the old measurements.

Here are some tips from local sewing center experts on picking the right size pattern according to the new measurements:

Today's size 12 misses' pattern is scaled to 32-35-34, as opposed to the old measurements of 30-25-33. All the pattern companies have adopted the new measurements, and the only difference between individual patterns now is the amount of ease allowed

You'll find your fitting problems much easier if you get a complete measurement, including the width across the back of the shoulders, the distance from shoulder to neckline and other trouble spots. Use a tape measure to check the pattern size, and make alterations on the pattern before cutting into your fabric.

After you have discovered the minor alterations necessary with the new sizes, the same alterations will be good in patterns from all companies.

One final tip: be sure to do all your fitting over the foundation garment you plan to wear with the new garment.

It's A Woman Dean For College Men

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—A woman who worked her way through college by playing the drums, bells and xylophone in a school orchestra now helps solve the problems of some 5,000 young men in a predominantly male college.

Miss Ruth L. Bean is assistant dean of students at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

After graduating from Simmons College and engaging in a successful business and teaching career—including the instruction of Navy storekeepers—she turned to the field of higher education because she "liked people better than figures."

Miss Stokes Announces Plans For August Vows

Miss Betty Lou Stokes of Route 2, Ayden has announced bridal plans for August 19.

Miss Stokes will wed Jesse Branch Jones of Ayden in a four o'clock ceremony at Timothy Church.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey William Stokes. Mr. Jones is the son of Mrs. Aulcy Boyd Jones of S. Lee Street, Ayden, and the late Mr. Jones.

The Rev. Horace Quigley will officiate at the ceremony. Wedding music will be presented by Mrs. Alton Gardner, pianist, and Mrs. Grover Morris, soloist.

Ottis Stokes will give his niece in marriage. Mrs. Shirley Mills of Grimesland will be matron of honor.

Bridesmaids chosen by Miss Stokes are Miss Carol Sue Stokes of Ayden, her cousin, and Mrs. Tom Forbes of Greenville.

Miss Ann Edwards, another cousin of the bride, will be flower girl.

Oscar Barnes of Route 1, Winterville, will serve his brother-in-law as best man.

Ushers named are Kenneth Branch of Route 3, Ayden, cousin of the bridegroom, and Marion Stokes of Route 2, Ayden, cousin of the bride.

Following the ceremony, the bridal couple will receive guests at the church.

Resumes Post

Dr. Robert E. Cramer, professor in the Department of Geography of East Carolina College, has concluded a five-week assignment on a special appointment at the Aeronautical Chart and Information Center in St. Louis, Mo., and has resumed a teaching post during the summer school here.

A unit of the United States Air Force, the agency is one of the largest mapping and charting organizations in the world, employing 3,000 people to supply aeronautical charts used by the Air Force, according to Dr. Cramer.

Brief Break In Busy Schedule

A post card from a friend touring Europe captured the attention of leaders of the Choral Director's Workshop during a break this morning at East Carolina College. Looking at the card are Miss Eula Tuttle, (seated) vice-president, of Greensboro, Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert of East Carolina College (left), Dr. Charles Taylor (center) of High Point, president of the North Carolina Music Education Association, and Dr. Lara Hoggard (right) of Indian Springs School, Alabama. (Reflector Photo by Jimmy Ellis).

During the past 14 years Dr. Cramer has had extensive assignments with the ACIC in St. Louis, and from his recent five-week tour of observations of techniques and methods, he will pass along results of his studies in a series of professional articles for college and university geography departments, especially for the training of persons in the science of map and chart construction.

Goal Is Congressional Seats

WASHINGTON — Women are trying hard to increase their representation in Congress which now claims a mere 16 members. Currently the crop of women candidates for the November 1956 elections totals 33 with 18 Democrats and 15 Republicans. They represent 20 states and Hawaii.

The total includes those who have already won their state primaries, or are unopposed for nomination when filing closed. It also includes a number whose fate will be read in the August primaries. A dozen other women candidates lost out in earlier primaries.

Of the Democratic group, eight are incumbents of the present congress. Candidates who already have won their primary races, or who have no opposition, include Michigan, Mrs. Martha Griffiths of Michigan, Mrs. Leonor K. Sullivan of Missouri, Mrs. Edna F. Kelly of New York, Mrs. Edith Green of Oregon and Mrs. Elizabeth Kee of West Virginia. The others are newcomers Mrs. Fay Porter of California, Mrs. Wayne A. R. Leys of Illinois, Mrs. Julia S. Crews of New York, Mrs. Agnes Geelan of North Dakota, Mrs. Grace M. Sloan and Mrs. W. T. Granahan, both of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Granahan, both in the widow of the late incumbent.

Incumbents Mrs. Iris Blitch of Georgia and Mrs. Cova Knutson of Minnesota and newcomers Miss Nada Novakovich of Nevada and Anne Crampton of Washington face September primaries. Returns on August primaries will tell the story for incumbent Mrs. Gracie Frost of Idaho and newcomers Mrs. Alice Fille and Mrs. Louise Reneux Hansen of Michigan.

Of the Republicans, seven are incumbents of the present congress. Those who already have won in their state primaries include Mrs. Marguerite Stitt Church of Illinois, Mrs. Cecil M. Harden of Indiana, Mrs. Katharine St. George of New York, and Mrs. Frances P. Bolton, Ohio.

Other incumbents seeking re-election are Mrs. Elizabeth Farrington, delegate from Hawaii, whose primary comes up Oct. 6; Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts, who is unopposed in a Sept. 11 primary, and Ruth Thompson, whose story will be told in an August primary. Republican women running for a Congressional seat for a first time are Mrs. Jacqueline Cochran of California, colorful record-setting aviatrix and successful business woman, Mrs. Carl Smith of Florida, Mrs. Florence P. Dwyer, New Jersey, and Mrs. Davis Elkins of West Virginia. New candidates Miss Louise Shaddock of Idaho, Mrs. Mildred Otis of Kansas, Margaret M. Tenenower of Michigan and Mrs. Elizabeth B. Cauly of Missouri face August primaries.

The lone woman member of the Senate, Republican Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, is not up for re-election this year.

Get The Most From A Freezer

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
SURPLUS GARDEN produce puts many a housewife in the mood to own a freezer. Even if she doesn't have a garden, she is likely to want to take advantage of vegetables and other foods when they are cheap, freezing them to enjoy when prices are high.

You must use a freezer constantly to get your money's worth. The upkeep is worth it, however, if you cherish it for convenience—there's always something good on tap for emergencies.

The price of a home freezer depends on its size. Eighteen cubic foot freezers cost about $30 per cubic foot. The cost decreases if it is larger, and increases if the unit is smaller. You may determine the size you require by multiplying the number of people in the family by six to get the exact cubic feet.

You may estimate cost of maintenance by using this example worked out by the experts. It is based on the use of a $420, 12-cubic-foot freezer. For freezing 360 lbs. of food (not including the cost of the food) they estimate it will cost $88.37 a year or 25 cents for every pound of food frozen. That figure is arrived at by figuring net depreciation (12 years expected life), return on investment foregone, 3 per cent interest, repairs, electricity for freezing food and maintaining and packaging at 2 cents per pound.

It's a good idea to be sure the freezer you select provides the amount of freezing and storing space you require. Choose a dealer who will give prompt service. Some manufacturers guarantee parts replacement for the first year or any part of the sealed mechanism for 5 years.

The choice between chest or upright freezer is based on family preference. The upright one occupies less floor space but additional space must be allowed for permitting doors to swing open. Chest freezers provide more work space, another consideration.

It is not possible to reach packages in the rear without removing packages in front in the upright freezer. The hard place to reach is the back part at the bottom of the chest freezer. Some upright freezers have drawers instead of shelves making it easier to reach rear packages, and some chest freezers are equipped with baskets that make it easier to get packages at the bottom of the freezer.

If you do your own freezing, your freezer will prove its worth. Garden-fresh foods may be had at a minimum of cost. Experts advise that good quality moisture-vapor proof packaging materials should be used as otherwise moisture comes out of food into the package as frost. If meats are not put in containers they should be tightly wrapped. Square waxed-board containers with re-usable plastic lids are good space savers.

The bride who cannot estimate food quantity will find that she can freeze left-overs for another meal. She'll also enjoy having a meal ready for unexpected guests. Stews and casserole dishes freeze well with the exception of those that call for whites of cooked eggs. Left-over roasts and gravy will keep in the freezer up to a month, so that the new husband does not need to eat left-overs three days in a row.

Solicitorial Districts Out Of Line

North Carolina's problem of too many Superior Court cases and not enough criminal terms of court will never be solved until the General Assembly revamps the state's solicitorial districts to conform with the judicial districts which were renovated by the 1955 session.

Last year when the legislature was in the process of creating 11 new judicial districts in the state, there were suggestions that the state's solicitorial districts be realigned at the same time. The legislators turned a deaf ear to the suggestions. They smugly went about their business of carving new judicial districts out of old ones and leaving the solicitorial districts to follow the old judicial district lines.

As The Reflector pointed out in March 1955, solicitorial districts must be revamped to correspond to judicial districts if optimum efficiency is to be gained from Superior Courts throughout the state.

Prior to the realignment of judicial districts last year the judicial districts and solicitorial districts covered the same areas. Under the new system, one solicitorial district may include parts of several judicial districts and a single judicial district may include parts of several solicitorial districts.

When it comes to criminal terms of Superior Courts, the district solicitor is just as important to the functioning of the court as the judge. If the solicitor is not available, the cases cannot be prosecuted.

There is a classic example of the result of this incomplete renovation by the legislature right here in Pitt County. Under the old setup Pitt was a part of the fifth judicial district and the fifth solicitorial district along with five neighboring counties. Since the realignment, however, Pitt has become a part of the new third judicial district, and is still included in the old fifth solicitorial district.

Solicitor Robert D. Rouse, Jr. of Farmville is charged with the responsibility of prosecuting criminal cases in all six counties of the fifth solicitorial district. He must be on hand for criminal terms of Superior Court in Pitt, Greene, Jones, Carteret, Craven and Pamlico Counties. Yet these six counties represent parts of three different judicial districts under the new organization.

Pitt, Pamlico, Craven and Carteret make up the new third judicial district. Greene is in another judicial district now and Jones is in a third. Therefore when a criminal term is scheduled in any county of the third judicial district, it is impossible for either Greene or Jones counties to hold a term of criminal court without the appointment of a special solicitor by the county. Conversely the same thing would apply to all four counties of the third judicial district whenever a criminal term is slated in Jones or Greene Counties.

By increasing the number of judicial districts, and increasing the number of judges, the state has made it possible to hold more terms of civil court. But by not realigning the solicitorial district and providing for more solicitors, the new judicial system has not provided for disposing of the increasing number of criminal cases which are on the dockets.

The result has been that a number of counties have found—like Pitt—that their number of criminal terms of court have been reduced rather than increased under the new system. In order to prevent backlogs of cases from piling too high, they have had to request special terms of court. Like Pitt, some of them have been forced to appoint special assistants to the district solicitor in order that someone may be available to prosecute cases at special criminal terms of court which are needed.

Clearly the necessity for this make-shift system should be eliminated. Only the General Assembly can provide the necessary machinery for coping with the situation by revamping the solicitorial districts to correspond with the new judicial districts.

They'll Reactivate Railroad's Charter

By LYNN NISBET

RAILROAD—One of the major items of business of the stockholders and directors of the Atlantic & North Carolina Railroad at Friday's meeting will be to reactivate the railroad's charter. It will be a routine matter that comes up every 99 years. Only difference is that in the instant case it is about three years late.

Usually the railroad meetings are purely perfunctory. The State of North Carolina owns 72 per cent of the stock. The Governor, acting for the majority stockholder, nominates majority of the directors and his personal representative moves for their election. Minority stockholders, including several counties and a dozen or so individuals, elect their directors. The directors then meet and elect the officers nominated by the Governor. These positions are commonly regarded as "appointments" of the chief executive. Technically, they are elected by the stockholders. It is a distinction rather than a difference, because the Governor speaks for 72 per cent of the stock.

The extra item of re-activating the charter comes about by reason of peculiar circumstances. The railroad was chartered in 1854 for 99 years. That means the charter ran out three years ago. Search of records, including minutes of the railroad board meetings and the Council of State, files in the office of the Secretary of State (where all charters, amendments and extensions are recorded) and other sources fail to discover any record of the charter having been extended or renewed.

The learned lawyers say that all that is necessary is a resolution of the board of directors approved by the stockholders. Inasmuch as the State of North Carolina has majority vote in both groups the item will be handled just as other routine matters coming before the meeting.

STRATEGY—It is the present purpose of the committee heading up the campaign to put over the school amendment on September 8 to devote whole attention to that one issue. The other three amendments to be voted upon at the same time will be ignored by the school folks.

One of the proposals would change the convening date of the General Assembly from early January to early February. Another would extend the pay period for members from 90 days to 120 days, and also permit legislators to vote themselves travel and expense money, not to extend amounts paid persons attending other State boards and commissions. Currently that is $7 per day. The third amendment submitted by the 1955 regular session is what is generally termed a "lawyer's bill." It deals with the use a wife may make of power of attorney granted by her husband.

Holt McPherson, editor of the High Point Enterprise, reported for duty as chairman of the campaign committee Tuesday. Others on the staff at the Sir Walter Hotel headquarters include Ralph Howland, publicity director, and Mrs. Phil Hedrick, office manager. Charles Crutchfield of Charlotte will head the radio-TV publicity section.

The organization has chosen George P. Geoghegan of Raleigh as treasurer. Sen. Warren Williams of Sanford will be the chief fund collector. Two women vice chairmen, one east and one west, will be named in a day or two. It is understood that one of the vice chairmen may be a Republican. The rest of the high command are considered good Democrats.

SINGLE SHOT—The general strategy will be similar to that used by the Better Schools & Roads campaign in 1949. In that special election the emphasis was really on the $200 million secondary road bonds, but the organization plugged also for the $25 million school building bond issue.

During the five days extra session several legislators expressed opinion that the pending school amendment and campaign made for it would help to carry the increased pay provision for them. They contemplated across the board support for all four proposals by the administration.

McPherson and Howland said a real effort would be made to get out the vote. The nationwide program of political parties, civic organizations, news disseminating agencies and others to get out a big vote in November will be utilized to fullest extent possible in North Carolina for the September election. Billboards, newspaper and radio publicity will emphasize the importance of voting without suggestion as to how to vote. Legislators who expect to come to the 1957 and subsequent sessions want positive support for the amendments that affect them.

There is some evidence their enthusiasm for the school amendment might cool if the school folks decline to help them. One veteran legislator and campaigner, not now in office, suggested that it might be wise for the sponsors of any one amendment to adopt a slogan "VOIE FOR"

SUPREME COURT—When the North Carolina Supreme Court convenes for the fall term on August 27 the justices will find a big bank of work waiting for them. When time for filing appeals to be heard the first week expired, Tuesday there were 29 cases on the books.

Other Editors Are Saying... These Are VP Conventions

(The Wilson Times)

You are going to witness, for the first time, vice-presidential contentions. The contests are fairly well decided between the presidential candidates, with Stevenson practically assured as the Democratic nominee and Eisenhower already in for the Republicans.

But the VP race is an open field which becomes more apparent daily. With the President putting Nixon on the back in one picture and giving Stassen a leave of absence to work for Herter, the field is open for the Republicans.

Around Washington, it is said that at no time since 1804, when the twelfth amendment required separate votes for the President and Vice-President, has there been so much interest in the race. This is fine from every angle. It places proper emphasis on the important office, as was intended by the writers of the constitution.

You hear it said that I do not understand Eisenhower's position on the subject. He endorses Nixon and gives Stassen the go sign. But herein lies Eisenhower's strength. He is not against but for. He is a believer in the rights of the individual therefore he did not stop Stassen. Those who know him say he is pro-Nixon but he is not against any member of the party for the position.

It was said at his press conference one of the reasons for his popularity stood out in bold relief. He is not against people, plans or programs. He has been called a pro-individual.

So in effect he has told the boys, "come on in the waters fine. And they are coming. So the Republican convention is taking on a little life.

As to the Democratic convention, it has never been dead. A real tussle has been going on there all the time. Things are quieter now that Kefauver has endorsed Stevenson. But all over the country trial balloons are being sent up. A Hubert Humphrey boom has been stated. It is only a slight breeze but it is there. Then there are the Kennedy, the Chandler ripples as well as a rash of favorite sons.

But to the casual observer the Stevenson-Kefauver ticket is growing in strength. Kefauver beat the others on the bandwagon. So naturally he expects to play at least second fiddle.

Her Popularity Picking Up

By JIMMY ELLIS

Look Out For The Oldtimers

It's about time somebody said something in defense of younger automobile drivers. This is it. According to the automobile insurance companies and the street corner conversation leaders anybody under 25 is not the safest driver in the world. If you're under 20, you're a terrible driver and if you're still in high school you're down right dangerous. That is the prevailing opinion but I can't quite buy it as a flat statement of fact.

To get personal about the whole matter, I think deliberate observations of the past few weeks have given me enough ground to stand on and say this:

The older drivers—the ones with years and years of experience—would do well to clean up their own driving habits before they criticize somebody else, particularly "young 'uns" like me. I travel a route of roughly 12 miles between home and the office each day. In addition, I have occasion to ride inside the Greenville city limits and on highways inside the county. On infrequent occasions Gwenn and I even get outside Pitt County.

One particularly striking observation is, in most instances, it isn't young drivers who fall to slow down at the "yield" signs, it isn't the young drivers who only slow to second gear at "stop" signs, and, again in the majority of cases, it isn't the young, "inexperienced" drivers who pass everything on the open highway in a big fat hurry to get where they're going.

In the route between home and office, scarcely a day passes that I do not have to stop for a person who ignores completely a "yield" sign. As a case in point,

I'll be willing to bet I have stopped for one gray-haired lady in a blue Cadillac at least a dozen times.

Every now and then, I have to stop at corners where the "stop" sign is on the other street. A case in point here was yesterday on West Fourth Street when it took considerable pressure on the brakes to prevent piling into an older gentleman in a truck who paid no attention to a stop sign.

The two cases cited were random choices from a large group of incidents. There are teenagers and other young people involved in some of them but mostly the older drivers were guilty.

The drunk store critics would do well to notice the good points of young drivers occasionally. Those good points are more numerous than those critics are admitting right now.

Notebook On Life

Where Double Beds Aren't

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) No matter what Hollywood rules, it'll never get 50 million Frenchmen to see anything immoral about a double bed.

Nor perhaps 100 million Americans, for that matter. Be that as it may, Hollywood's self-imposed censorship code forbids the shooting of scenes showing a couple in a double bed, and this restriction early created a crisis in Franco-American movie relations during the making of a recent picture in Paris.

The film, "The Ambassador's Daughter," was written, directed and produced by Norman Kraska. It is a comedy about a young GI who falls in love with a girl who turns out to be—who else but the daughter of America's ambassador to France. A plot has to have connection with the title, or does it?

Kraska figured he could save a tidy $400,000 if he shot the picture in Paris and used an all-French crew and cast with the exception of a few imported American stars. He did, too.

But there were complications. "The first came when actor John Forsythe, played the American soldier, quipped and blushed when he glanced into a mirror and presumably saw the undraped bosoms of some night club chorines.

"Why should he look embarrassed?" argued the French cameramen. "That's how the girls perform in a night club."

The cameramen also couldn't understand why Kraska wouldn't let him turn his lens on the chorines and put them in the film. Patiently, the producer explained the scene wouldn't pass Hollywood's litmus moral test.

"What's immoral about a bosom?" demanded the cameramen, unconvinced. In a later bedroom scene in which Adolphe Menjou and Myrna Loy played the ambassador and his wife, Kraska ordered the double bed removed from the set and replaced by twin beds.

At first the French crew thought Kraska was joking. They began to suspect it was a plot to ridicule their nation by spreading the falsehood that French husbands and wives used twin beds.

"All married couples in France sleep in double beds," they insisted. "It is the only way."

When Kraska explained again that Hollywood's strange morality code required twin beds, one Frenchman observed:

"These Americans—they must all have soiled minds." The twin beds proved an expensive item. None could be found to match the rest of the 150-year-old furniture in the bedroom set, and a new pair had to be built.

Stassen Infuriates The Palace Guard

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall said the whole White House family, especially Chief of Staff Sherman Adams and Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, are furious over Harold E. Stassen's "Stop Nixon" drive. Only President Eisenhower's caution and restraint prevent them from expressing their scalding opinion of the disruptive movement, which has dumfounded all the "old pros" in politics.

Together with Vice President Nixon's close political associates, they attribute Stassen's idea and inspiration to a small liberal faction in New York, including bankers, industrialists and former military officers now heading great corporations. Several held suspect by the V. P. have denied that they support or finance the Minnesota drive, but their disingenuousness is not accepted at face value.

The New York group has had numerous overseas associations, including actual participation in some of the foreign aid programs, which resulted in intimate contact with Stassen, who formerly headed the International Cooperation Administration.

They do not believe that Nixon supposedly more responsive and susceptible to conservative Senate sentiment, is sufficiently sympathetic to their international program. Should he land in the White House, they doubt if he would show Ike's enthusiasm.

PLOT SEEN FROM CAPITOL HILL Nor does the Nixon faction believe that Governor Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts is the New Yorker's real preference for Vice President, or for possible promotion to the White House. And it is the late and future of the Presidency, as well as Party control around which the basic controversy revolves. Here is the Capitol Hill version of the plot.

be Chief Justice Earl Warren. This conclusion has been drawn even in the face of Ike's assertion that he thinks his health is equal to the job, and Warren's insistence that he will never again run for public office.

Nor is Governor Herter looked upon by Stassen's critics as the Eastern liberals' and internationalists' first choice for the Vice-Presidential nomination. He is reported to be Sherman Adams' hand-picked choice.

"DIVERSIONARY" TACTICS The pro-Herter cry is regarded as a mere "diversionary" operation. It is designed to make Nixon an object-of-target-of-doubt and controversy, and to create a convention atmosphere congenial to Warren or Adams depending on developments and circumstances within the next two weeks. Obviously, if President Eisenhower should be asked a list of "acceptable" running mates, he could include both Warren and Adams, and he probably would.

Grounds For Fear Of Inflation

By ELMER ROESSNER

Fear that another round of inflation has been triggered is growing.

The steel strike settlement, with its built-in annual pay rises and built-in annual boosts in the price of steel, has sharpened those fears. They have been intensified, too, by the lavish spending of the recent Congress.

In discussing the strike, the Chase Manhattan Bank in its quarterly discussion of economic matters, says, "The longer term effects may lie chiefly on the side of increased inflationary pressures," and, "It would seem that the note that could characterize the period ahead may well be struck from the gong of inflation."

Of 393 purchasing executives in steel-consuming businesses polled by Purchasing Magazine, 97 per cent agreed that steel price rises will be "the beginning of a new inflationary round in other products as well." Incidentally, more than half said higher steel prices could not be passed on to consumers without hurting sales volume.

CONGRESS' PART Congressional action does not appear to be directly inflationary in that the lawmakers did not spend more than expected revenues. But the net results do not appear to be deflationary in the least.

Most economists agree that when inflation threatens, tax rates should not be cut, and that greater efforts be made to pay off something on the national debt. Congress accepted the first part of this advice but, instead of retiring debts, spent money as almost no earlier peace-time Congress has. It gave the Defense Department $1 billion more than it asked, it committed the nation to its largest highway program yet, and it poured out money for projects in almost every Congressional district. The question of whether these ventures are good has no bearing on the fact that they constitute no brake on inflation.

Humphrey B. Neill—another economist who is fearful of a new round of inflation—says in his "Letters of Contrary Opinion" that the Federal Reserve money managers are apprehensive over inflation dangers and while they can control interest rates and money supplies, they cannot control Congressional spending or the acceleration of money (the speed with which it changes hands), both of which are potentially inflationary.

INFLATION OR SOMETHING ELSE? Most observers think we have been having mild inflationary spins right along, ever since we took the gold backbone out of the dollar. Prices and wages have been rising regularly; the purchasing power of the dollar has been shrinking. The consumer price index hit a new high in June.

However, Arthur F. Burns, President Eisenhower's economic adviser, has said, "It is a disservice to truth and social opportunity to describe our time as an age of inflation." The validity of that statement depends on Dr. Burns' definitions of "inflation" and "age."

Few observers see index to index with Dr. Burns. The Chicago Federal Reserve Bank, for instance, points out in its latest monthly review that while the national output measured in dollars has moved upward during the past six months much of the gain "reflects the upward trend in prices."

Either that's not inflation or SOMEBODY is disserving truth. CLUES AND INKLINGS TO BUSINESS TRENDS

The United States Savings and Loan League's committee on economic trends reports that the American economy is in a delicate, nicely balanced situation "in a period of mild rather than rapid expansion." The travel boom promises to set new records around the world this year, according to a Holiday analysis. Banks are actively competing for business from small as well as large firms in 64 important trade areas surveyed by the American Bankers Association. Output of cars will exceed 4 billion units for the first time this year, predicts William C. Stoltz, American Can president. There were 93 retail apparel store failures in July, compared with 57 in July, 1955, Dun & Bradstreet reports.

Japanese Tobaccoists Here To Study Methods

Two officials of Japan's Tobacco Monopoly Corporation, including Greenville and Pitt County in their tour of the United States where they have been studying production, manufacturing and marketing of cigarettes during the past month.

The visiting tobaccoists, who left Greenville yesterday and will return to Japan next Monday, were K. Takamura, chief of the sales division for the Japan Tobacco Monopoly Corporation, and S. Mori, chief of sales for the Tokyo area for the government-owned corporation.

On the Southern leg of their tour of marketing, manufacturing and production of tobacco and tobacco products in this country, the two Japanese were accompanied by J. C. Lanier, Jr. of Greenville, assistant counsel of the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association, and J. C. Fink, assistant to the president of Tobacco Associates, Inc., States.

Study Methods
Their visit to the United States is part of a sales promotion program for American leaf tobacco being carried on jointly in Japan by the United States Department of Agriculture, the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association and Tobacco Associates, Inc. The American organizations are cooperating with the Japanese Tobacco Monopoly and the National Tobacco Sales Association of Japan in promoting salesmen of the Japan Tobacco Monopoly and also the import of leaf from foreign countries, said the primary purpose of the visit was to study fundamentals of marketing of cigarettes in the United States.

Takamura expressed particular interest in the research and testing programs which are used in the U. S. in placing a new brand of cigarettes of other product on the market. In Japan, he said, there are no such programs. He also pointed out that funds available for advertising and research work are much more limited in Japan than in the United States. During their tour of the United States, Takamura and Mori spent more than two weeks studying marketing, advertising, research and public relations fundamentals with the J. Walter Thompson advertising agency in New York. They studied operations in a number of cigarette manufacturing plants in Virginia and North Carolina, visited plants of leaf tobacco companies which supply American tobacco for the Japanese firm, and also visited experiment stations and tobacco farms in this area.

Government Monopoly
Takamura explained that the government-owned Japan Tobacco Monopoly Corporation controls all tobacco products manufactured and sold in his country. Funds available for advertising the products, research and marketing are controlled by the Japanese government budget and such funds are much more limited than those used by private corporations in the United States for similar purposes.

In Japan, he explained, there are only seven brands of cigarettes, all manufactured by the Monopoly. Each of the brands sells for a different price. Four of the brands, which contain American leaf are known as the "high class" brands, sell for higher prices, and are bought almost exclusively by Japanese in higher income brackets, almost without exception, he said. The brand of cigarettes a Japanese purchases is governed by his relative income status. Wealthy people buy the higher priced cigarettes while the poorer people purchase the lower priced brands. In an effort to stimulate sales of higher priced brands, he explained, the government is at liberty to curtail the amount of lower priced brands available to consumers.

"This method of producing more sales of certain brands is definitely limited," Takamura said. He added that on his return to Japan some of the marketing and promoting methods used in the United States will be adapted to the Japanese market in an effort to promote sales.

Cigarette Prices
Prices of a package of 20 cigarettes were Representatives Wolverson and Canfield (J), Fulton (Pa.), Baker (Tenn) and Westland, Holmes and Tollefson (Wash).

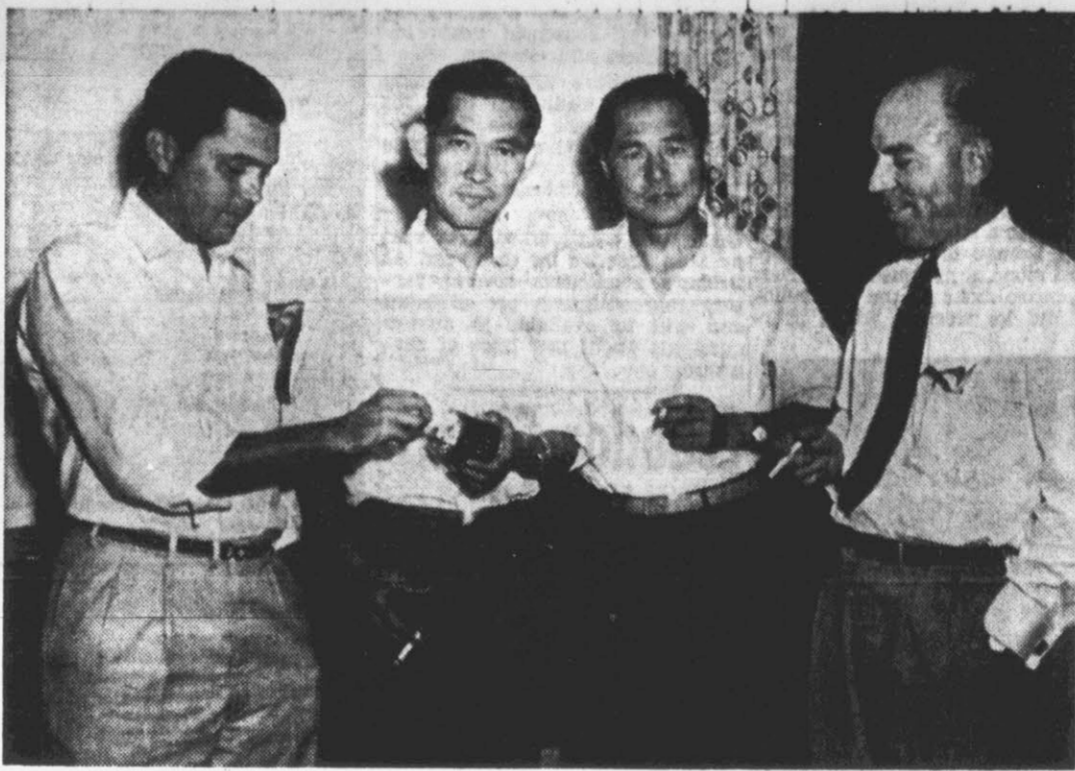

rettes in Japan (in terms of American money) range from 22 cents per pack for the cheapest brand up to 38 cents per pack for the most expensive brand made in that country. Approximately 80 per cent of the total cigarette sales are derived from the sale of cigarettes priced at 14 cents per pack and the fact that the average Japanese worker has a total income of $42 to $43 per month. The per capita cigarette consumption in Japan is about one-half that of the United States and about equal to that of France and Italy. Few Women Smokers

Few women in Japan smoke cigarettes, Takamura said. During the past decade there has been a slight rise in the number of Japanese women who smoke cigarettes, but women still account for a minute fraction of the cigarettes consumed in Japan. As Japanese traditions and customs change, Takamura expects to see women smokers in Japan increase as has been the case in the United States in the past three decades.

While Japan is a customer for American tobacco, the country produces its own tobacco to a large extent. Japan annually produces approximately 300 million pounds of tobacco of which some 60 per cent is flue-cured.

During their stay in the Greenville area the two Japanese tobaccoists toured factories in Pitt and surrounding counties and also tobacco factories of leaf dealers who supply American tobacco to the Japanese market.

Mori (second from right) are Japanese tobaccoists who spent several days in Pitt County as part of their tour of the United States to study marketing, production and manufacturing methods of American tobacco companies. ADA Credits Liberal Record To Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP)—Americans for Democratic Action today credited Democrats in both Senate and House with a "far more liberal" voting record than Republicans in the recent session of Congress.

The ADA, using its own yardstick to measure liberal vs. conservative votes, said Democrats supported the liberal position on 14 selected Senate roll calls 72 per cent of the time as contrasted with 30.5 per cent for the Republicans. On seven roll calls it selected in the House, Democrats were found to have voted the liberal position 70.6 per cent of the time as compared with Republicans' 40.5 per cent.

The ADA advocates principles of the Franklin D. Roosevelt and Truman administrations, although calling itself nonpartisan.

The 14 Senate issues selected by ADA for judging party and individual performances included the natural gas bill, foreign aid, public housing, Social Security, Niagara power and Hells Canyon dam. Issues in the House included foreign aid, aid to education and civil rights.

Eleven senators, all Democrats, scored 100 per cent on the liberal side: Douglas (Ill), Humphreys (Ky), McNamara (Mich), Humphrey (Minn), Hennings (Mo), Lehman (NY), Morse and Neuberger (Ore), Kefauver (Tenn), Laird and Neely (W-Va). (Humphreys and Laird took office during the session and did not vote on all issues).

Two Republican senators, Williams (Del) and Welker (Id) were listed as voting the conservative position on all issues.

In the House, 94 Democrats and 7 Republicans were recorded on the liberal side on every test vote; 10 Democrats and 19 Republicans on the conservative side on all the selected roll calls.

The seven Republicans listed as voting liberal on all the issues

Aged Veteran Is Feeling Better

FRANKLIN, Tex. (AP)—Walter W. Williams, ailing 113-year-old Civil War veteran, felt a little better yesterday and insisted on staying at home.

"If anything happens, I want to be at home," he said, adding that if he needs a doctor, the doctor can come to his home. His family had wanted to take him to Houston for a checkup.

Mrs. Jean Williams, a daughter-in-law, said he took a turn for the worse after hearing last Thursday of the death of Albert Woolson, last Union Army veteran.

The former Confederate cavalryman, oldest surviving Civil War veteran, felt well enough yesterday to sit up in his rocking chair for a while, chew a little tobacco, and complain of feeling hungry.

"They are trying to make out that I am a heap worse off than I really am," Williams said.

His ailment has been generally described as dropsy of the stomach and complications induced by low blood pressure. A doctor attending the case said that at his age there would naturally be numerous factors contributing to his illness.

Seat Hinges On Absentee Ballots

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Absentee ballots, to be opened tomorrow, could decide whether Herbert Douglas, 41-year-old Neosho lawyer, holds his thin lead over Albert Schoenbeck of St. Louis in their Missouri primary contest for a Republican senatorial nomination.

Schoenbeck, 40-year-old lawyer and former general attorney for the Wabash Railroad, stayed on the heels of Douglas in the counting. With all but 275 of the state's 4,555 precincts tabulated, the unofficial returns from Tuesday's primary gave Douglas 76,955 votes, Schoenbeck 74,851.

All the missing precincts were outstate, where Douglas had a big lead. The winner will meet Democratic Sen. Thomas P. C. Hennings Jr. in November. Hennings had no opposition in the primary.

Third Burning Cross In City

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—The third burning cross in a month was found last night at the San Antonio city limits.

The cross, about six feet high and four feet wide, was on the highway 90 right of way near two settlements, one occupied by Negroes, the other by a group of farmers. It was near Lackland Air Force Base.

Bexar County fire chief Cliff Holcomb said the cross seemed to have been wrapped in military blankets and soaked in an inflammable liquid.

He said it would be checked for fingerprints.

House-Hunting Gets Precedence

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—U.S. Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill (D-Mass.) said today he will be so busy house-hunting that he may not be able to attend next week's Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

Fire swept the O'Neill residence yesterday causing damage he estimated at $15,900.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill and their five children were not at home at the time.

Farmville Firm Schedules Big Celebration On Friday

Farmville Furniture Company, floor space by nearly 50 per cent. Included in the new building, connected with the original store by an arched entrance, are the gift shop, a curtain and drapery department, a luggage department, the TV department, the appliance department, and a new paint department. The rug department has been moved into separate quarters on the other side of the store and the main floor of the old building has been devoted to furniture display.

On the second floor are additional furniture displays and a complete stock of pictures. The third floor features juvenile and summer furniture as well as other

The company first did business under the name of Beaman and Monk Brothers in 1905. In 1912 the Joyner Furniture Company opened for business and the two firms were consolidated in 1912 under the name of The Farmville Furniture Company. T. Ell Joyner who was manager of the Joyner Furniture Company became manager of the new enterprise.

Several years ago, the firm renovated the front of the establishment with a modern design of redwood, Roman brick and Crab Orchard stone. A marquee now covers the entire front of the old building and its recently added sur-

The expanded gift shop, with all new fixtures, is located in the front of the new section. Next to it is the curtain department which offers a complete line of curtains, drapes, spreads, and pillows. The luggage department has been expanded to include lightweight American Tourister luggage as well as Samsonite and Aero-Pak. RCA-Victor and Philco television sets, in color and black and white are handled in the TV department and Kelvinator appliances are featured in the appliance department. The paint department features Vita-Var paints and a self-service counter for household items includes waxes and cleaners.

The furniture displays include modern and traditional lines for every room of the house. The pictures sold by the store include many custom-made items from New York and Chicago.

The store's 50th anniversary celebration was marked by a visit by Miss America for that year. At Friday's celebration several factory representatives are expected and will be available to answer questions about new lines of furniture.

The main floor furniture display of the Farmville Furniture Company shows only a small portion of the modern and traditional lines of furniture handled by the firm. Recent renovation and expansion of the establishment's quarters allow for enlarged display rooms on two other floors. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Ecuador Claims Revolt Broken

QUITO, Ecuador (AP)—Ecuador's government says it has broken the back of brief revolt and bottled up the rebel remnants on the ranch of one of the leaders.

A government spokesman said only three deaths—all army men—had been reported since army units in western Ecuador's Manabí province rebelled Monday night and seized key cities and towns in the province.

The spokesman denied a rebel charge that government planes had machine-gunned the center of the revolt, Portoviejo, and his holdouts were cornered near Chone on the ranch of Sen. Homero Andrade.

The outbreak was blamed on civilian leaders of the opposition

Liberal party, which lost in the presidential election in June and charged fraud.

The government said loyal troops had recaptured the rebel centers of Portoviejo, the provincial capital, Manta and Jipijapa, and that the rebels' military chief, Lt. Col. Arturo Davila, and his holdouts were cornered near Chone on the ranch of Sen. Homero Andrade.

Andrade and the Liberal party's unsuccessful vice presidential candidate, Jose Maria Plaza, were named as civilian leaders of the revolt.

The government radio said Chone was surrounded by loyal troops.

Nagasaki Mayor Calls For Peace

NAGASAKI, Japan (AP)—Nagasaki's mayor called today for "peace before mankind destroys" as the rebuilt city observed the 11th anniversary of World War II's second and last atomic bombing.

Some 15,000 gathered before the city's annual prayer that the bomb dropped here Aug. 9, 1945, would be man's last resort to nuclear warfare.

J. J. Oulette, sitting before his fireplace in Alberta, Canada during a gale storm, heard unusual noises in the chimney. He investigated. It was a wild duck seeking any port in a storm. Oulette released the duck, warm and well fed, two days after the storm had calmed.

GOP Counting On 'Peace' Prosperity And Progress

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press Staff Writer
As an aid to Republican campaigners, the GOP National Committee recently compiled a booklet listing 24 aspects of the Eisenhower administration's record, plus details of these claimed achievements and some side-swipes at the Democrats.

Even skeletonized, the story runs to 102 pages.
But it boils down in fact to three words which appear on the first page of the book — "Peace, Prosperity, Progress."

These three, and particularly the first two, will constitute the core of the Republican Presidential campaign. They have even been linked in the slogan, "Everything Booming But The Guns."

The order of precedence of what the book calls the 24 "accomplishments" of the administration gives the direction of the GOP appeal this year.

In No. 1 position is the statement that the present administration "ended Korean fighting and bloodshed; waged peace instead of war."

Then, "cleaned up the mess in Washington" gets the No. 2 spot, indicating that Republican speakers will miss no opportunity to recall the milk coats and deep freezes of 1952.

But the next six items all refer to prosperity and one says flatly, "achieved greatest prosperity in history."

The word, "Progress," of course is a kind of catch-all for such assertions as "reversed the 20-year trend to centralization of power in Washington," "set up health, education and welfare dept.," started St. Lawrence Seaway, etc.

Seven pages have been devoted to foreign policy, an area where the clash of argument almost certainly will be loudest. Says the booklet, "propaganda victory won at Geneva by Ike's convincing sincerity, which forced Russians to retract charge of U.S. potential aggression."

Democratic candidates — particularly Averell Harriman — already have begun attacking the President for his role at Geneva and the short-lived "Spirit of Geneva."

Along with the claims of Republican achievements, the book also devotes some attention to the Democrats. Neatly indexed are five references to former President Truman, and others to Adlai Stevenson, and Sen. Estes Kefauver.

Curiously enough, the 1952 slogan — "You never had it so good" — which was then the property of the Democrats bobs up again, this time in the GOP bag. The booklet quotes George Meany, president of the merged CIO-AFL, as saying, on June 29, 1955, "Yes, right now we never had it so good."

The Republican platform committee has as its chairman the tall, handsome senator from Connecticut, Prescott A. Bush.

He said he has not yet been in conference with many members of the committee. "In general though, I would think the platform will call attention to the accomplishments of this administration. This will certainly be the base."

Indian Industry Fights Socialism

NEW DELHI (AP) — Some of India's leading industrialists are mobilizing to defend free enterprise against this country's drift toward socialism.

Their new organization, the Forum of Free Enterprise, deplors "the displacement of normal trade channels by the intrusion of state trading."

"There is urgent need to educate public opinion on the fundamentals of free enterprise and on the contribution which it can make to national welfare," the forum says.

One sponsor is A. D. Shroff, a Bombay businessman and associate of the Tata family, which is generally considered India's foremost industrial family. Another is Murarji J. Vaidya, president of the Indian Merchants' Chamber.

Many important Indian businessmen are holding off. The Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry has made clear that it is not associated with the forum.

One reason for opposition appears to be a bad start by the forum. Its existence was announced to the public in the form of advertisements reproducing a manifesto. Its sponsors were not identified.

The immediate reaction in many newspaper editorial columns was, "Why are the sponsors of the forum afraid to identify themselves? are they legitimate?"

Following the criticism, Shroff announced his role.

SMALL DINNER
HELENA, Mont. (AP) — It was no light lunch. A 40-foot hot dog and a 10-foot hamburger was on the menu for delegates to the National Association of State Approval Agencies convention. Police escorted the lunch from the bakery to the dining room.

All Will Share In Higher Cost To Steel Producers

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) — Just who is going to pay for the steel wage-price hike? Steel company stockholders, manufacturers of products containing steel, merchants and dealers in cars and appliances or you, the ultimate buyer?

All may bear a share of the higher costs. The greatest squeeze perhaps could be on the merchant or dealer who has to coax a consumer who knows that supplies are ample and bargains to be found and whose own paycheck may not have gone up at all.

In the oil fields, for example, they know today they'll have to pay more for pipe. It's in short supply and oil drillers can't help themselves. The cost of finding oil is going up. But this doesn't mean necessarily that your service station is going to raise the price of gasoline. There's too much of it around, too much oil available and being held back at the well.

Last week the United Steelworkers signed a three-year contract which officials of U.S. Steel appraised as raising their operating costs in the first year by $10 a ton.

This week U.S. Steel dropped the other shoe. It advanced prices of its products by various amounts for an average, it said, of $8.50 a ton.

On the face of it this would seem to be lowering the profit margin, to put the company in the position of making up the difference in reduced earnings. But the company may be expecting to get back some of this $150 by increased productivity and use of more efficient new plants.

Those who plan to build stores, factories, office buildings, bridges or schools have little choice but to raise their cost estimates. Higher construction costs could deter some building but there is no early sign of that.

Manufacturers using steel in their products probably will pay the high prices without much quibbling. Some may absorb part of the higher material costs, but many contend they can't absorb any more and must pass them along in higher tags on their own products. If they can, and their competitors don't undersell them and capture the market, their profit margins should continue comfortable.

Tricky Math In Roman Culture

ST. LOUIS, (AP) — The Romans—builders of fine roads, graceful buildings and lasting empires—did their math in a tricky manner.

A description of what they considered mathematical shortcuts has been found among the 600,000 microfilm copies of Vatican library manuscripts at St. Louis University here.

For example, one shortcut involved multiplying VIII (8) by VI (6). Doing it the Roman way, you take the difference between 10 and the multiplier (6) and subtract it from the number to be multiplied (8) leaving 4. This difference was multiplied by 10, giving 40.

Next, the "differentia" of both the multiplier and the multiplicand were found. This gives you the numbers 4 and 2, which if multiplied, become 8. Add the 8 to the 40 and the answer: 48 or XLVIII.

Pitt Has Two 4-H Members At Camp

Bobby Hardy, Bethel Senior 4-H Club, and Shirley Fields, Farmville Senior 4-H Club members, are attending the 4-H Regional Camp at Washington, D. C., this week. They were honored for being local, county, district and state Negro champions in various 4-H Club projects.

Shirley Fields most outstanding project was clothing and she was selected State Clothing Champion for 1955. A $50 Government Savings Bond was awarded her for outstanding work in 1955.

Pitt County Negro Home Agent Amelia S. Capehart said she has successfully completed 43 garments for herself, family and friends at a cost of $77.50. The total value was $225 and the net profit was $147.50.

In addition to sewing for herself and her family, she has increased the family income by sewing for others and this has taken care of many of her clothing and school needs. She earned more than $100 through this project.

Other projects she completed were food preparation, gardening, home beautification and health. She has participated in at least 13 local, district and state 4-H Club demonstrations. She has participated in 16 local, district and state events, gave 13 method demonstrations in dairy foods and breadmaking, and winning first or second place rating, Mrs. Capehart said.

In her 4-H Club organization, Miss Fields has held successful office as president, secretary and reporter. Her church and school activities have been many and she has participated in the band and glee club. New Homemakers of America Club and secretary of that organization. She has been treasurer of the junior church and a member of the junior choir.

Bobby Hardy of Bethel has won numerous honors, including achievements in leadership for which he won a $50 Bond, and he was declared state champion, with a peanut demonstration titled, "Increase Peanut Yields," and he was elected president of the North Carolina 4-H Club Council.

Individual and civic and fraternal organizations paid the expenses of the two delegates to the camp at Washington.

Huge Outlay For Bases On Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Britain is spending more than 60 million dollars on two huge bases on the south coast of Cyprus.

One, the newest airfield of the Royal Air Force, is already operating. The other, joint headquarters of Middle East land, air and sea forces, will start functioning early next year.

High Price Tag On Automobiles In Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—Price tags on automobiles in Communist Yugoslavia are hard to believe.

A little German Volkswagen costs $12,500. A Yugoslav-assembled Italian Fiat 600, just about the smallest of Europe's tiny autos, goes for $8,500.

A standard-size Italian-made typewriter costing $190 in Italy sells for $750 here.

And those prices are figured at 400 dinars to the dollar — a rate only foreign tourists get. Yugoslavs pay a third more.

There is no official explanation of the markups. The most common unofficial story is that the government keeps prices high to hold down purchases and conserve scarce foreign currency.

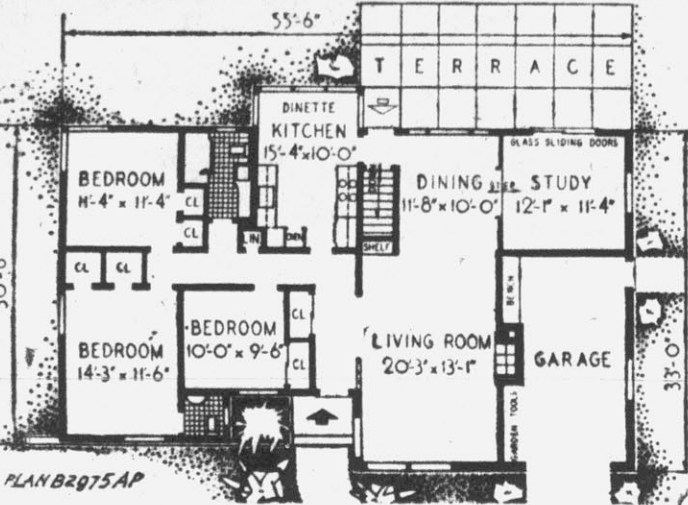

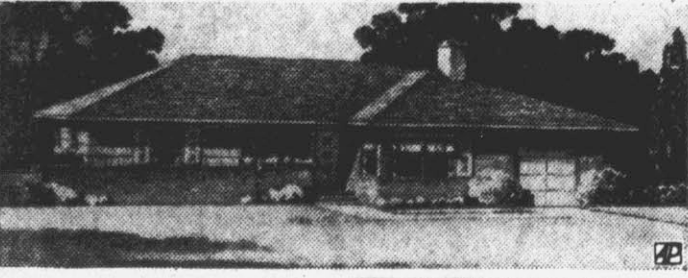

One result: Traffic and parking are no problem. You can drive for miles in the countryside without seeing a car. In the cities, parking space is available almost anywhere you want it.

UNSKILLED CONVICTS

FORT MADISON, Iowa (AP)—Percy Lainsow, Iowa state penitentiary warden, says men who do creative work with their hands are less likely to wind up in prison.

About 20 of the 1,300 penitentiary inmates here have been skilled workers, he says, and "strangely, most of them are in for murder."

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

A SMART HOUSE in compact space — 1,185 square feet — this plan is efficiently arranged with a center hall controlling traffic throughout. A dropped study, one step down from the dining room, with sliding glass doors to a garden terrace is a feature of this house. A basement is optional. The space occupied by the stairs can be used for additional storage and a modern heating plant can be located in the garage adjacent to the chimney. Coastal Plain LL All-Stars Win Tournament Honors

Topple Kinston By 11-5 After Big First Frame

The Coastal Plain Little League All-Stars took first place honors in the District Seven tournament by defeating the Kinston Little League National League last night in Kinston's Fair-Field Park, 11-5.

The Coastal All-Stars, coached by J. H. Mobley and Paul Lovette, jumped off to a seven run lead in the first inning and coasted home for the victory that will send them to Wilmington to compete in the state tournament August 14-16.

Paul Castellone, Winterville pitcher, went the route and gained credit for the victory. He allowed only five hits, fanned six and issued five free passes. Dennis Paepke started for the Nationals and was charged with the loss. Paepke walked six and whiffed one. Stewart Jones came on in relief of Paepke and proved to be just as wild. Jones gave up seven base on balls and struck out three.

In the Coastal Plain's big 7-run first inning, eight free passes were given up by Kinston pitching. There was only one hit in that inning, a single by third baseman Tommy Riley.

The boys from Vanceboro, Winterville and Grifton added another win in the third on James Wright's single and two walks. Kinston bounced back with four runs in the bottom of the third on two hits, a walk and three errors. The Coastal Plainers added insurance runs in the fourth and fifth innings. Kinston managed one more tally in the fifth, but in the last inning were set down in order by Castellone.

First sacker Joe King was the big offensive gun for the winners with a double and a single. Wright also had two base knocks. Charlie Jones had two hits for Kinston.

The fielding gem of the day came in the fourth inning when Jackie Rose of the Grifton Cards made a spectacular catch of a bloop hit out over second base.

Coaches Mobley and Lovette had a strong bench to call on and in Tuesday's game with the Kinston American League. The subs came through in fine style when they tied the game up in the fifth inning. The All-Stars went on to win 6-5 in an extra inning.

The Coastal team received good cheers for winning the tournament. The team members that won the District Seven title include: Paul Castellone, Bobby Hobgood, Bill White, and Ernest Loftin of Winterville; Gene Nobles, Frank Ippock, Milton R. Miller, and James Wright of Vanceboro; Steve Hart, Jack Rose, and Harry Cox of the Grifton Cards; and Joe King, Thomas Riley, and James Barwick of the Grifton Bears.

Score by innings: R H E Coastal All-Stars 701 120-11 7 5 Kinston Nat'l 004 010-5 5 5 Winner: Castellone. Loser: Paepke.

No-Hitter Earns Teen-er Club Return Visit

LAFAYETTE, Ga. (AP) — Gastonia, N.C., has earned a return visit to the National Teen-er Baseball Tournament at Hershey, Pa., thanks to the no-hit pitching of tiny Max Dellinger.

Dellinger's no-hitter boosted the Tar Heels to a 7-0 victory over Lafayette's Georgia state champions here yesterday in a playoff for the Southeastern championship.

Gastonia thus will be one of eight teams in the national tournament at Hershey Aug. 11-24. The Tar Heel team finished fifth nationally last year.

Dellinger allowed only five base runners, one of them cut down on a game-ending double play. No Lafayette player passed second and only three Lafayette balls were hit to the outfield.

The fast-balling Dellinger struck out nine during the regulation seven-inning game.

Gastonia 303 001-7 9 0 Lafayette 000 000-0 0 2 Dellinger and J. Brown; Adams and Clements.

A Win Today Would Boost Giammalva's Davis Cup Stock

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. — Sam Giammalva can boost his future Davis Cup stock today in his third round match with Neale Fraser, captain of Australia's second-line cuppers in the Eastern Grass Court Tennis Tournament.

Giammalva, the defending champion, will be facing Fraser for the first time after rallying to stay alive yesterday, 6-3, 2-6, 7-5 over Michael Davies, England.

The chunky 341-pounder faces a battle to retain the title he won last year, with victories over Vic Seixas, Kurt Nisic of Denmark and Gil Shea. If he gets past Fraser, Giammalva figures to play

So Near, Yet So Far, For Batterymates

Greenville Little League All-Star coach Bob Starling chats with his battery, catcher Rommie Brock and pitcher Alan McArthur, left to right, prior to Greenville's heart-breaking 1-0 loss to the Charlotte Civitans in the state tournament at Gastonia. Even though losing, McArthur pitched a fine game, allowing only four hits, striking out 12 and issuing no walks.

Billy Joe To Lead N. C. Golfers At Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Va. — Billy Taylor, E. D. Barnes and Larry Dempsey, all of Greensboro, N.C.; Keely Grace and Bill Williams of Charlotte, N.C.; Harry Welch, A. D. Dorset and Clarence Klutz, all of Salisbury, N.C.; A. D. Turrentine of Durham, N.C.; and Aubrey Rothrock of Spartanburg, S.C.

Senior members are Frank Edwards of Salisbury and Roy Sweet of Charlotte. Junior members are Odell Masin of Durham and Burnham Usher of Charlotte.

Virginia's team includes State Champion Wayne Jackson and Wynsol Spencer, both of Hampton; George H. Fulton Jr. of Roanoke; Harry Easterly Jr., J. Davis Ewell Jr., Bill Tomlinson Jr. and Jack Harris, all of Richmond; H. Aulick Burke of Bristol; George Gosey Jr. and James O. Watts Jr., both of Lynchburg; Frank T. Sutton III, W. C. Battle and John S. Battle Jr., all of Charlottesville; Harry McCready and Larry Hurst, both of Virginia Beach; and Jimmy Deemer of Blacksburg.

Senior members are J. H. Boyce of Hot Springs and Roy Sweet of Roanoke. The juniors are Sam Wallace of Williamsburg and Charley Ferguson of Newport News.

The Virginia golfers will have an advantage in that they are thoroughly familiar with the Homestead Club's 6,740-yard, par 71 Cascades course where the matches will be played Saturday and Sunday. The Virginia amateur championship has been played over the Cascades layout for many years.

Pairings for both the single and best-ball matches will be made by the rival captains after the teams arrive at Hot Springs.

Everette played nine exhibition matches and won eight. His lone loss came at the hand of the professional at Boone County Club.

Everette's biggest win was over Albert Griffin number one man at Wake Forest. He avenged his earlier loss to Griffin by winning 6-4, 3-6, 6-4. He also scored impressive wins at Lynchburg, Franklin, and at the Cavalier Hotel in Virginia Beach.

Everette took second place in the men's 100-meter backstroke and the men's 200-meter breaststroke.

A butterfly only two years, a national champion after one, and the world's best only two, Yorzuk sped four laps of the 50-meter pool in the afternoon in 2:22.2 and then followed with his 2:19 masterpiece in the evening final.

The best previous time for the distance over the long, 50-meter course was the 2:23.8 made by Japan's Takashi Ishimoto a year ago.

Club owner Tom Yawkey, who imposed the record major league fine on Williams, was among the onlookers as Ted edged Boston to within half a game of second-place Cleveland.

While fans cheered his every move at the park, a Massachusetts legislator filed a bill in the Massachusetts State House to prohibit obscenity and slander by fans toward athletes. Offenders would be fined $50.

One man sent a personal check to Williams, then made arrangements with a local bank to handle contributions to help pay the Williams levy. Office girls in a Boston firm put ads in the local papers asking fans to send dollar contributions directly to Ted.

It was so like Gil Hodges to step right up and don the catcher's equipment he hadn't worn for eight years when the Dodgers suddenly found themselves without a base. The next four years saw him used exclusively at first, and then he started filling in as an outfielder when needed. And always, panella had been tossed out for protesting a called strike. It never occurred to Hodges that he was risking a split finger to help the Dodgers out of a bad situation. And, for the two innings he worked behind the plate, he gave a polished performance.

Hodges admitted that he felt a bit strange putting on the catching gear but once he got behind the plate, he felt right at home. Gil has become used to sudden shifts around the diamond since he first joined with the Dodgers back in 1943. He came up a shortstop out of St. Joseph's College, Indiana, and broke in as a third baseman with the Brooklyn club. He was a catcher in 1947 and caught 28 games for the Dodgers. In 1948, he divided his time between catching and playing first base. The next four years saw him used exclusively at first, and then he started filling in as an outfielder when needed. And always, panella had been tossed out for protesting a called strike. It never occurred to Hodges that he was risking a split finger to help the Dodgers out of a bad situation. And, for the two innings he worked behind the plate, he gave a polished performance.

"I wish I could use the outfield from first to the shifting and back as an alibi for my poor batting average at this time," said Hodges, "but it doesn't mean a thing. Shifting around does present a challenge, but nothing more."

A remarkably versatile athlete, this 32-year-old giant, and one of the most popular—with opposing players as well as his teammates and Dodger fans. A real all-around good fellow!

Five Fateful Days Open For Braves In Pressure-Packed National League

By ED WILKS The Associated Press

Milwaukee's pitcher Hungry Bravos, their mound staff hurtling with ace Bob Buhl on the sidelines, open five fateful days in the pressure-packed National League race tonight with their second two-night double-header in 24 hours against the St. Louis Cardinals.

The fourth-place Cardinals split with the Braves last night, winning 3-2 in 10 innings after a 10-1 thumping. Brooklyn's runner-up Dodgers were dumped 8-5 by Pittsburgh. The Cincinnati Redlegs belted the Chicago Cubs 8-2, climbing to within six percentage points of the Brooks and 2 1/2 games of Milwaukee.

Philadelphia made it six in a row with an 8-3 job on the New York Giants.

In the American, Mickey Mantle slugged his 38th home run — for his best one-season total in the majors — as the New York Yankees hammered Washington 12-2.

Second-place Cleveland was knocked off by the Chicago White Sox 7-6 on Sherm Lollar's 14th-inning home run.

Boston moved within six points of the Tribe, beating Baltimore 7-2 as Ted Williams, hitting instead of spitting, walloped his 13th home run to break a 2-all tie in the sixth. Detroit defeated Kansas City 8-7. Milwaukee Manager Fred Haney, trying to make hay, subbed Lew Burdette for rookie Taylor Phillips in a gamble for the sweep in the nightcap. But Herm Wehrmeier fouled it up with a four-hitter and singled home the winning run himself.

Rookie Bob Trowbridge handled the Cards with a six-hitter for a 2-0 record in the opener. Del Crandall, Johnny Logan and Joe Adcock made it easy with home runs — two by Joe, who added his 27th in the nightcap. Bob Blaylock was the loser.

Wehrmeier, now 7-8, gave up Adcock's third homer in the second inning and the tying run in the seventh on Bill Bruton's squeeze bunt. Wally Moon homered in the opener.

Frank Thomas, whose error gave the Brooks two runs in the first, set things right with a three-run homer in the Pirate first off loser Roger Craig and the Bucs took it from there. Red Munger, a 37-year-old right-hander, won his third with relief help in a three-run ninth.

Ted Kluszewski and Gus Bell homered for the Redlegs, who eased in on six cub errors and a four-hitter by Johnny Klippstein. Bob Rush, who has won 10, lost his fifth.

Stan Lopata, Willie Jones and Ted Kazanski homered in support of Robin Roberts' 14th victory for the Phils.

Bill Skowron and Elston Howard also homered for the Yankees. Bob Turley won his sixth.

Williams, fined $5,000 for Tuesday's spitting episode, clasped his hand over his mouth after slugging his 420-foot-plus homer. Mickey Vernon clubbed a three-run homer in the eighth as Mel (No-Hit) Parnell won his sixth with an eighth-inning homer.

Lollar drove in three runs for the White Sox, tagging reliever Cal McLish for the clincher homer. Gerry Staley won it.

Al Kaline and Frank House each homered and also smacked RBI singles as the Tigers scored two runs to take the lead in the sixth against losing reliever Jack Crimian. Jim Bunning won it in relief.

AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor Stan Musial, the player of the decade who leads the National League with a .342 lifetime batting average, believes Ken Boyer is going to be a great baseball player.

"Ken is having a great year," says Musial who currently is trying for his seventh batting title with Boyer one of the batters who could prevent him from doing it.

"It's wonderful to see a boy make such a showing the first year he gets a chance to hit in the important cleanup spot in the batting order," adds the St. Louis Cardinal great. "Ken is going to be a great ball player. He's one of the finest third basemen I've ever seen around. Potentially he's great with his hitting and with his fielding."

"I've watched Boyer from all angles, from every base and from the dugout—when I make out in front of him—and if he has a flaw in his hitting I can't see it. Neither can the league's pitchers. Ken really takes charge up there at the plate and is a terrific No. 4 batter with men on the bases. "You know, the Cardinals brought him up from Houston only a year ago last spring, and that's quite a jump from the Class AA Texas League to the majors."

Boyer has been terrific since the start of the season. St. Louis manager Fred Hutchinson put Boyer in the No. 4 batting spot in the sixth game of the campaign and he delivered immediately to star in a 5-3 victory over Cincinnati, driving in four runs with a homer and a single.

Boyer, who led the National League in hitting homers and in runs batted in at mid-season with 19 and 60, respectively, is well ahead of his rookie season in everything except stolen bases. As a freshman he hit .264, had 18 homers and 62 runs batted in.

This season, in his first 101 games, he had 21 homers, had batted .317 and had driven in 75 runs, second only to Musial's 81 for the same haul.

Time was when Boyer used to flail in his hitting I can't see it. The Cardinals play. Now it's his Missouri neighbors who ride that far to see him play.

Two Basking In Glory Of First Hambletonian

GOSHEN, N.Y. — A mining engineer and a rosy-cheeked Ohio driver today basked in the glory of winning their first Hambletonian.

Leonard Buck, owner of the All-world Stables of Far Hills, N.J., stepped into the 1954 Lexington yearling auction ring and paid $33,000 for a brown son of Scotland named The Intruder.

And yesterday, as a fitting climax to the mining engineer's knowledge of equine blood lines, Ned Bower of Ravenna, Ohio, celebrated his 33rd birthday one day early as he drove the colt to a surprise victory over 19 other 3-year-old trotters in the $100,603 year stake.

For Bower, who seven years ago was getting $175 a month as a groom for veteran Frank Ervin, it was triumph in his first shot at the buggy whip derby. It was worth about $6,000 to young Bower under the customary contract in which the driver gets 10 per cent of the winner's purse.

"It sure was a thrill," said the youthful Bower after he had won the second and third heats following an 11th back of Mrs. David R. Johnston's Valiant Rodney of Charlotte, N.C., in the first mile trip around Good Time Park's triangle-shaped track.

As a 2-year-old The Intruder didn't race because of illness. He made his debut at Saratoga, where he won two of his six starts and finished second the same number of times. Until he arrived at Good Time he never had raced over a mile track.

And after the first heat, which Valiant Rodney won in 2:03, it appeared as if Bower should have kept his ace in the barn. But the "Kid" came back with irises that would have done credit to the sport's greatest reinsmen as he twice brought The Intruder from off the pace to win in the final strides.

In the second mile he edged the favored Egyptian Princess from the Clearview Stables of Winterville, Maine, who injured her right front heel and finished 14th to the first trip. In the third mile The Intruder grabbed the decision from Ego Hanover, owned by Cecile A. Gossman of Mountain Lakes, N.J.

The Intruder stepped the second mile in 2:01 2/5 and wound up the day with a 2:02 performance.

The winner's share of the purse, $39,155.15, added to previous earnings of $1,330 proved the wisdom of Buck's purchase two years ago.

Second money of $24,647.97 went to Valiant Rodney, who wound up third in each of the last two miles. Nimble Colby from Leo McNamara's Two Galts farm of Indianapolis, carried off third money of $9,859.19 for his 2-4 - 8 performance. Ego Hanover won $4,929.60 for finishing 5-5-2.

SANTA MONICA — Former world heavyweight boxing champion Primo Carnera has lost a $12-million-dollar damage suit in connection with the film, "The Harder They Fall."

Superior Judge Stanley Mosk ruled yesterday that the Italian giant's privacy had not been invaded by the film.

Carnera, now a wrestler, had contended that the film depicted him as "a stupid person who had been deceived by all who associated with him." Columbia Pictures denied that the film was based on Carnera's life.

Quick Kayo

CHICAGO (AP) — Henry (Toothpick) Brown of Philadelphia didn't give fans much time to settle in their chairs last night before he knocked out L. C. Morgan of Youngstown, Ohio, in 1:54 of the first round of a scheduled 10-round lightweight bout at Chicago Stadium.

Brown, annoyed by Morgan's flicking left jabs, unloaded with devastating swiftness halfway through the opening round. He hammered his opponent with a whistling right to the body and followed up with a left-hand shot to the jaw.

Morgan, ranked No. 9 among lightweights, slumped to the floor and was struggling feebly to rise when the referee felted the 10-count.

Brown weighed 135 1/2 to 137 1/2 for Morgan.

Morgan was a 2-1 favorite earlier but a late switch reportedly favored Brown 7-5 at ringtime.

Records Tumble In Swim Trials

DETROIT — American swimming and diving officials flashed smiles almost as broad as Billy Yorzuk's brawny shoulders today and the record-shattering New England phenom is one of the major reasons for the beaming faces.

The 23-year-old Springfield (Mass.) college medical student reeled off a pair of world-record-breaking turns in the 200-meter butterfly competition yesterday to highlight another series of spectacular performances by both the men and women in the Olympic swimming and diving tryouts.

After two days of the four-day trials to determine the squad of 46 for the games in Melbourne, records have tumbled in abundance.

So far 19 boys and girls have secured coveted places on the squad — 13 of them yesterday — and four more coveted places on the squad—13 of them yesterday — and four more berths will be fought for tonight in the finals of the men's 100-meter backstroke and the men's 200-meter breaststroke.

A butterfly only two years, a national champion after one, and the world's best only two, Yorzuk sped four laps of the 50-meter pool in the afternoon in 2:22.2 and then followed with his 2:19 masterpiece in the evening final.

The best previous time for the distance over the long, 50-meter course was the 2:23.8 made by Japan's Takashi Ishimoto a year ago.

Club owner Tom Yawkey, who imposed the record major league fine on Williams, was among the onlookers as Ted edged Boston to within half a game of second-place Cleveland.

Musial Sees A Great Career For Ken Boyer

ON HIS TOES—Third baseman Ken Boyer of the St. Louis Cardinals has been making plays like this all season. Teammate Stan Musial says the 25-year-old Red Bird cleanup hitter is going to be great.

Fans Cheer As Ted Has Homer

BOSTON — Ted Williams related to his $5,000 spitting fine with a temper-soothing home run while Boston fans started fund drives for him, stormed the turnstiles and cheered.

Williams, at his best in the spotlight, crashed a game-deciding home run and a single in last night's 7-2 Red Sox verdict over Baltimore. He clasped his hand over his mouth as he returned to the dugout.

The boos of some fans — which had prompted Ted's expensive display of salivary contempt Tuesday — were smothered by the repeated roars of the 30,338 Fenway Park "family night" customers.

Williams, the great slugger, hammered his 407th major league homer far into the right field seats.

Club owner Tom Yawkey, who imposed the record major league fine on Williams, was among the onlookers as Ted edged Boston to within half a game of second-place Cleveland.

While fans cheered his every move at the park, a Massachusetts legislator filed a bill in the Massachusetts State House to prohibit obscenity and slander by fans toward athletes. Offenders would be fined $50.

One man sent a personal check to Williams, then made arrangements with a local bank to handle contributions to help pay the Williams levy. Office girls in a Boston firm put ads in the local papers asking fans to send dollar contributions directly to Ted.

Superior Judge Stanley Mosk ruled yesterday that the Italian giant's privacy had not been invaded by the film.

Carnera, now a wrestler, had contended that the film depicted him as "a stupid person who had been deceived by all who associated with him." Columbia Pictures denied that the film was based on Carnera's life.

It was so like Gil Hodges to step right up and don the catcher's equipment he hadn't worn for eight years when the Dodgers suddenly found themselves without a base. The next four years saw him used exclusively at first, and then he started filling in as an outfielder when needed. And always, panella had been tossed out for protesting a called strike. It never occurred to Hodges that he was risking a split finger to help the Dodgers out of a bad situation. And, for the two innings he worked behind the plate, he gave a polished performance.

Hodges admitted that he felt a bit strange putting on the catching gear but once he got behind the plate, he felt right at home. Gil has become used to sudden shifts around the diamond since he first joined with the Dodgers back in 1943. He came up a shortstop out of St. Joseph's College, Indiana, and broke in as a third baseman with the Brooklyn club. He was a catcher in 1947 and caught 28 games for the Dodgers. In 1948, he divided his time between catching and playing first base. The next four years saw him used exclusively at first, and then he started filling in as an outfielder when needed. And always, panella had been tossed out for protesting a called strike. It never occurred to Hodges that he was risking a split finger to help the Dodgers out of a bad situation. And, for the two innings he worked behind the plate, he gave a polished performance.

"I wish I could use the outfield from first to the shifting and back as an alibi for my poor batting average at this time," said Hodges, "but it doesn't mean a thing. Shifting around does present a challenge, but nothing more."

A remarkably versatile athlete, this 32-year-old giant, and one of the most popular—with opposing players as well as his teammates and Dodger fans. A real all-around good fellow!

HOSTAGE

by ARCHIE JOSCELYN

CHAPTER 1

The two took the stage at Forty Mile, giving each other a curt nod of recognition which was a fair measure of their regard for each other. Erd Klund had always impressed Dolf Kinney as lazy, however good a medico he might be, and Kinney, a driving man himself, had scant use for anyone who saw life other than through his own eyes. And that was the condemnation for him in the mind of the doctor.

Eklund stood, bent over, blinking momentarily in the shadowy dusk of the stage, following the bright sunlight glare of northeastern mountains prairie. The smell of old leather was strong, mingled with that of horses, of sweaty bodies and stale tobacco. For a moment he stood hesitating, while his eyes made out his fellow passengers, and the fact that the stage was already loaded to capacity. But it was take this accommodation or wait for forty-eight hours—and sickness would admit of no delay.

Of five of the passengers he took only curious notice, classifying them as a drummer, a miner, a cowboy, an Indian in a blanket which he kept closely drawn about himself despite the stifling heat of the day, and a woman with faded eyes and work-roughened hands, the wife of some settler here on the border.

But the sixth drew attention as the sun draws water from the earth. Narcissa Hull was young and strange and new to this land, like a flower unfolding in freshness and grace. Her age the doctor judged at twenty, noting in his brief passing glance that weariness had not been able to quench the vitality in her eyes, that her skin beneath the softly folded brown hair was very fair and almost impervious to sun. She looked to be of medium height and slender, which were desirable qualities in such crowded quarters. Between her feet, slightly lifting her gray traveling skirt, was a ramhide-bound bag.

She sat on the rear seat, facing forward, the drummer on the other side. The miner was opposite her, striving ineffectually to find a place for his unusually ample boots so that they would not be in her way. The Indian and the cowboy occupied the opposite corners of the facing seat.

Dolf Kinney was ahead of Eklund, stooping in necessity, surveying the situation, and his eyes lighted at sight of Narcissa. Seeing the boldness in them, she looked beyond him to Eklund, considered him for a quick sure moment, and, having weighed him, found him not wanting. In her eyes he read appeal, but Kinney was already seating himself, showing in between the two women, contemptuous of how he pushed the other woman to the wall.

"Kinda crowded in here," he grinned to Narcissa. "But sometimes I like it that way. Makes it sort of cozy, eh?"

"I'd ride outside, but there's no room up there," he explained. "If so be as you find it close quarters, ma'am, you could perch on my lap. I've held ladies before."

"Thank you, no," she returned coldly.

She had a voice to match that quick, eager look in her eyes, save that now it was frigidly polite. The tone alone would have abashed most men, but no man, or woman for that matter, had ever seen Dolf Kinney at a loss, and he was no whit disconcerted.

As the stage got under way and dust commenced to roll in a thin mist up between the floor boards, he asked, "Going far?"

Her reply was brief. "To Coyote Creek."

"Coyote Creek!" Kinney exclaimed. "Now ain't that fine! That's where I live."

She had turned and was looking out of the window with elaborate unconcern, but Kinney was not easily deterred.

"I hadn't heard that we was gettin' so civilized, I start teachin' the kids and mebbey havin' us a schoolmarm," he said. "But mebbey I'm wrong, eh?"

To that she gave no reply, and he tried again.

"Or mebbey you're out this wayville."

lookin' for a husband, eh?" he asked boldly.

This time she turned and surveyed him while the others watched with increasing interest. Erd Klund found himself hanging on her words.

"As a matter of fact, I am," she agreed.

"Well, ain't that fine!" Kinney exclaimed. "This is sure my lucky day. Happens I'm lookin' for a wife too. Didn't know it till I set eyes on you, but it didn't take me long to make up my mind. Ask Doc Eklund here if I ain't the pushin'est, richest man in this whole part of the country. He'll tell you you couldn't do better!"

She flashed a glance at Eklund, not one of inquiry, but the doctor spoke for the first time.

"He's right about the first part of it, ma'am," he said gravely. "He caught the responsive glint in her eyes, and her answer would have devastated a less thick-skinned man than Kinney.

"As it happens, I already have a man," she said. "I'm coming out to marry him because I've known him before."

"The doggone lucky coyote! What's his name?" Kinney countered. "Anybody I know?"

"I'd doubt that," she retorted. "He is Emil Jacobsen."

"Jacobsen? Sure, I know him. Big, rawboned Swede. Got a shake out in the middle of the prairie. Try to farm and be a rancher, which for a tenderfoot is like a man liftin' himself by the seat of his britches. No fit place for a woman, 'way out there. Specially a pretty girl like you. Not much of a feller either, the way he strikes me. You'll do a lot better to take me."

"She looked at him, opened her mouth in exasperation, then seemed to think better of it and turned back to the window. But Kinney was not easily squelched.

"Keep it in mind," he said. "My offer stays open, to you. And you'll find, time you look around, that you can't do better. Fact is, you can't do as well, nowhere else, I'm a proper man, and properly able to take care of a woman."

Eklund regarded him curiously. He had long known that Kinney was an extrovert, so completely wrapped up in himself that he cared no whit for the opinions of anyone else, but to propose in public in such a manner was going pretty far, even for him. Narcissa continued to look the other way, and Kinney fell to talking with the drummer, who seemed to find him amusing. Eklund did not. He knew him too well for what he was.

Owner of the trading post and store at Coyote Creek, the biggest saloon, supplier for the local army post, and with his finger in other enterprises, Kinney pretty well dominated the community, just as he sought to run everyone in it. He had failed with Eklund, so far, partly because Eklund's business as a doctor was not one readily controlled. But in the half-year that Eklund had spent in the town, he had tried.

The miles, jolting and uncomfortable, passed in silence on Narcissa's part. It was not until they were finally pulling into Coyote Creek that Kinney addressed her directly again.

"You had time to think over what I said?" he asked. "It's a good offer."

"Thank you, I'm not interested," she returned shortly.

"You could do a lot worse," Kinney insisted, and swung down as the stage halted in a fresh cloud of dust which swirled around them. His eyes ranged the small group of bystanders, swung in a quick survey of the small town itself. Located in the midst of a treeless prairie, it was easy to look over.

"Looks like your feller didn't show up," Kinney added. "When you change your mind, let me know."

Air Force Inducements Offered To Skilled Vets

All military services veterans discharged since July 1951 will find that the many occupational skills and technical knowledge acquired through their military training are still in great demand by the Air Force, it was announced today by S-Sgt. N. G. Dean, local Air Force Recruiter.

During the past fiscal year ending June 30, the Air Force had in operation a policy which establishes a grade scale for enlistment and reenlistment for all prior service personnel. The grade scale will be based on technical skills and grade held at time of discharge.

Sergeant Dean stated that a choice of area or base assignment is also part of the plan which favors the discharged veterans. In some cases it carries provisions whereby veterans may elect reenlistment for specific overseas theaters.

The plan was devised to increase procurement of the much needed prior service technician and to insure assignment where skills could be used immediately.

Basically, the grade determination will be dependent upon skill, date of separation and the need of the occupational field specialty.

Made A Career Getting Degree

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—It took 17 years of working days and going to college nights, but Harold Hoover finally got his degree.

During his extended college days, Hoover spent four years in the U.S. Air Force, 13 years as a government employe, and accumulated a wife and two children.

Now that he has his bachelor degree from the University of Dayton, he plans to start work toward a master's.

New Furniture On Their Return

SEBREE, Ky. (AP)—The Rev. Ray Thompson, a Baptist minister, and his wife returned from a trip out of town to find their living room furniture had been replaced with spanking new pieces of furniture.

Stunned, but pleasantly so, they soon learned that members of the pastor's church had made the switch on the sly.

Exhausted From Fleeing Prison

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—At 3 a.m. Indiana University Hospital officials reported Jack Swain, 36, Indiana State Prison convict undergoing treatment for high blood pressure, had climbed from a fourth-story window on a rope made of clothing and slid down a drain pipe.

Police couldn't locate him, but at 9 a.m. hospital officials found him sleeping peacefully at the bottom of the drain pipe—suffering from a bruised leg and obviously exhausted.

PLACE OF EMPLOYMENT

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Ernest Blockman was arrested and charged with theft of scrap metal from his place of employment over a three-year period.

His place of employment was the county penal farm.

One Auto Death In July For City

One traffic fatality occurred during the month of July in Greenville. Fourteen total accidents were shown on the monthly report submitted by Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs to City Manager Leonard Bloxam. Of the fourteen, eleven involved two or more motor vehicles. The other three involved a motor vehicle and fixed object, a motor vehicle and bicycle, and a motor vehicle and pedestrian.

The greatest number of mishaps occurred between twelve noon and eight at night—a total of six. More accidents occurred on Sunday than any other day—a total of four. There were eleven personal injuries and eleven arrests made. Property damage amounted to $12,260.00. Twenty-three persons, of which twenty were males, were involved in the fourteen accidents. Nine gave city addresses. The others lived outside of Greenville.

Persons thirty years old or more, a total of fourteen, were involved in the greatest number of accidents. One-third of women employees in Canada are married. Their average age is 37.

No Civilization, But A General

Mexico City, (AP)—This capital has lost some civilization but history is better served. "Civilization" street had been renamed for General Salvador Alvarado, a revolutionary figure. One-third of women employees in Canada are married. Their average age is 37.

Trouble-Shooter Murphy Top US Career-Diplomat

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—A State Department official scratched around for words to describe a diplomatic trouble-shooter for 61-year-old Robert Murphy.

He settled for this: "He must be like a good rewrite man on a newspaper. His job is to straighten out a story that's been all messed up."

Latest messed-up story assigned to Murphy was in London. The State Department sent him flying there when the British talked angrily of using force against Egypt's President Nasser for seizing the Suez Canal.

For Murphy international jams and jumbles have been a life and a living. He made diplomacy a career, starting in the State Department's foreign service 35 years ago, serving at posts here and abroad while working his way up.

He's as high now as he can go in the foreign service with the title of career ambassador and a salary of $15,000 a year. Only one other man, Loy Henderson, has the same top rank. He's been in career diplomacy 34 years.

What could Murphy do in London? Find out what the British are thinking and planning and keep Secretary of State Dulles informed; relay American thinking to the British; make suggestions; seek solutions; maybe pour oil on troubled waters.

One thing he can't do on his own: commit this country to any agreement or line of action unless told to do so by President Eisenhower or Dulles. And even a Murphy isn't always enough. Eisenhower sent Dulles over to join him.

Besides old-timers like Murphy and Henderson, the State Department has a handful of other men, a notch or two down the scale, to send into tough, tight, hot or delicate spots. They too have made a career of diplomacy.

They are this country's top, trained experts in foreign affairs. They are advisers to the secretary of state. Whether or not he listens to them is up to him. There's a difference between them and their boss, Dulles.

For them diplomacy has been a lifetime job. For Dulles, a lawyer and politician, diplomacy is an avocation. Secretaries come and go but the career officers stay. They never get to be secretary. The President picks an outsider, like Dulles, for the top job.

Such a man, although not trained in diplomacy, may be as successful with the head of some foreign state. A good example was Chester Bowles, onetime advertising man. While he was ambassador to India he got along better

For an idea of how widely the State Department can use a man like Murphy, here are just a few assignments over the past 16 years:

He was assigned to deal with the Vichy French; he helped pave the way for the entry of American troops into North Africa; he represented President Roosevelt on special jobs; he was an adviser at Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters and on the division of Germany and the Korean armistice.

with Prime Minister Nehru than the diplomatic professionals.

WILL THE PLAGUE DESTROY THE INDIANS-- before the Indians destroy the Whites?

Never before has a doctor of the Old West faced the dilemma that confronts Erd Ecklund.

The usually peaceful Indian tribe has been stirred to war against the white settlers by Dolf Kinney, the ruthless, powerful dictator of Coyote Creek. Kinney has rendered the Whites helpless by withholding arms from the Army post. But Dr. Ecklund knows that the Indians will be wiped out by smallpox — unless he vaccinates them in time. Can he, as a doctor and a moral man, let the dread disease destroy the Indians? And if he saves them, will it be only to have them swoop savagely down on his friends and neighbors? What will Dr. Ecklund do?

You'll find his answer in an exciting new novel of the Old West—

Young Newcomer Is Big Figure In Music World

By HAL MCCLURE
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—One of the hottest newcomers in the music world today is a husky boy-next-door type named Buddy Bregman.

The 26-year-old arranger and orchestra leader has come a long way since he left the University of California at Los Angeles six years ago. He was then considering following his father in the steel business.

Today his credits include arrangements for such hits as Gogi Grant's "The Wayward Wind," "Who Are We," "Suddenly," "There's a Valley," and "Ella Fitzgerald Sings Cole Porter."

Bregman's contract with RCA-Victor allows him to appear on any other record label as arranger or orchestra leader. Victor has the sole use of his services as starring piano artist, however.

Bregman says he thinks he's picked because of his versatility as an arranger. He added:

"I believe I can do a jazz arrangement for Count Basie as one for, say, Jane Powell." He's done both, by the way.

And where many arrangers have trouble knocking out one song arrangement a day, Bregman says, "I can do four without trouble."

Bregman's talent has landed him the top spot as artist and repertoire man for Norman Granz's (Jazz at the Philharmonic) Verve label. He should earn about $75,000 this year.

Not bad for a young man who couldn't make up his mind about what to do when he left school. In

Moneybag Wins Against Bottle

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—It was a full moneybag versus an empty soft drink bottle.

Frank White, supervisor of a short-order restaurant, had about $500 in bills and change in the moneybag.

White told police that a youth who came up behind him suddenly had the soft drink bottle.

He said his assailant missed his first swing but White landed a blow with the moneybag. The youth, about 19, fell, got up and fled.

White completed his trip to the bank.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — Increasing demand spurred the stock market to another advance today in active trading.

Leading stocks went ahead fractions to 2 points or better.

The rise came on good volume estimated at about 2 1/2 million shares compared with 2,400,000 yesterday.

A calmer attitude toward the Suez Canal crisis combined with expectations in Wall Street of further inflation pushed prices ahead for the third straight day in a recovery from Monday's sharp break.

The market was higher from the start and increased its gains slightly over a wide range. No particular group showed leadership and buying was pretty much on a selective basis.

The rally continued their steady rise of the past two days on average, lending hope that they would confirm the more robust industrials.

Steels, aircrafts, chemicals, oils and metals advanced.

United Aircraft gained over 2 points following its higher earnings report.

Studebaker - Packard gained fractionally on news of its defense contract and Curtiss-Wright which rescued the auto maker in the new agreement, was up around a point.

Douglas Aircraft rose well beyond a point and Boeing gained a fraction.

Goodrich dropped around 2 points following a lower earnings report.

Anacosta and Kennecott gained major fractions.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 80 cents to $190.90, with the industrials up $1.30, the rails up 90 cents and the utilities unchanged.

Krasna, a slender, quick-witted man of 46 who started his theatrical career as a copy boy for critic Alexander Woolcott, had another problem in tact. He had to turn down U. S. Ambassador C. Douglas Dillon's court-ordered offer to use the American Embassy in Paris for his exterior shots.

"An American audience would not think it glamorous enough," he said. "So we used one of the Rothschild castles."

The producer said his experiment in employing all-French technical crews probably would be followed by other American producers making films here.

"Until now you've brought their own people over, even though they've had to hire French standby crews."

"Naturally the French cameramen, who are the equal of any in the world, have found this insulting even though they were being paid."

Praising the artistry, intelligence and loyalty of French film industry workers, Krasna also had this to say about the French populace generally: "Don't tell me the French are grasping. I saw only generosity, affection and capacity for hard work."

"They don't bother to put on a front. They aren't hypocritical and they aren't intolerant. But they are realistic and they are honest. That may be why some people at first may think they are cold."

Greek Cypriots Stage Shutdown

NICOSIA, Cyprus — The Greek population of Cyprus launched a general strike today in retaliation for the hanging several hours before dawn of three youthful Greek Cypriots convicted of murder in the underground war for union with Greece.

British authorities braced themselves for new rebel reprisals but there was no immediate new violence.

Reports reaching Nicosia said the strike was island-wide among Cypriots' 400,000 population of Greek descent. Workers stayed off the jobs and stores did not open.

The 100,000 Turkish Cypriots went about their business as usual. The strike was similar to the spontaneous shutdown which followed the first executions of two Greek Cypriot rebels last May.

Again no strike call was announced but shops did not open and workers did not show up.

Some 2,200 construction workers already had quit work on British military buildings at Lanarca, on the south coast. About 350 political prisoners at a detention camp outside Nicosia staged a 24-hour hunger strike.

Themistocles Dervis, Nicosia's mayor and a leader of the island's 400,000 Greek Cypriots, said he had warned Gov. Sir John Harding, "If the executions are carried out, things are likely to get much worse."

The condemned men were Andreas Zakkos, 25, and Charilaos Michael and Iakovos Patatos, both 22. They were members of the EOKA underground group.

They went to their deaths simultaneously on a triple gallows in Nicosia's Central Prison. As the trap was sprung, inmates of the prison chanted "Hurrah for EOKA."

Death to Harding, down with England!" Zakkos and Michael were convicted of taking part in the ambush last December of British Maj. Brian Coombe. Four extremists killed Coombe's driver, a British corporal, but the 34-year-old major captured Zakkos and killed a third attacker.

Patatos was sentenced for the fatal shooting of a Turkish Cypriot policeman in Nicosia last April. An American consular official, Paul Sprenger, was beaten up at his home yesterday but police said they did not know the motive for the attack. Sprenger was not seriously hurt.

Many said they already had formed an opinion of the guilt or innocence of the defendants.

On trial for the nation's biggest cash robbery—on the night of Jan. 17, 1956—are: Joseph P. McGinnis, 52; Anthony Pino, 48; Henry D. Baker, 49; Adolph Maffie, 44; Thomas F. Richardson, 48; James I. Faherty, 44; Michael V. Geagan, 47; and Vincent J. Costa, 41.

Advertising Agency Is Formally Opened Here

Yesterday's formal opening of Stokes-Williamson & Associates brings to Greenville the only complete advertising agency in Eastern North Carolina.

The new firm, which results from the consolidation of the local business of R. C. Stokes, advertising and R. S. Williamson & Associates of Richmond, has opened offices at suite 1-A, East Fifth Street.

R. C. (Dick) Stokes, III, a native of Greenville, has been on radio and television staffs here and in Washington. He has spent considerable time in the entertainment field in this section and in New York.

R. S. Williamson, educated at the University of North Carolina, has been in newspaper and advertising agency work in North Carolina, Virginia and New York.

Greene To Hold 4 Salk Clinics

Dr. Arthur S. Chesson, Jr., director of the Greene County Health Department, has joined Pitt County health officials in stressing the need for polio shots.

Four clinics have been set up in Greene County to administer shots to persons from six months to 20 years of age and all expectant mothers. Clinics are held in Walsenburg each Friday morning from 9 until 11, in Hookerton each Friday morning from 9 until 11, and in Snow Hill on Thursday afternoons from 1 to 4 and Saturday mornings from 9 until 11.

In announcing the clinics, Dr. Chesson said, "The season for this disease continues through September in this part of the United States. Therefore, a shot now will give some protection for the current season. We strongly urge parents to take their children to their private doctor or the Health Department clinics for these shots, and special attention should be given to the age group of 15 to 20 years. This group has been slow to take advantage of these immunizations."

There is no charge for shots given at the Health Department clinics.

One Fire And One Accident Last Night

The Fire Department of Greenville was called out one time last night and the local police looked into one traffic accident.

The Fire Department sent their high-pressure and farm trucks to the Harry Brown farm on East Third Street to extinguish a tobacco barn fire. The burner flared up because of an excess of oil, but was promptly smothered by the firemen. Harvey Dilda is the tenant.

Ben L. Stocks, 23, Greenville, Route 1, driving a 1955 model car, crashed into a fire hydrant at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Clark Street early this morning.

Stocks stated to police that his tire blew out causing him to lose control of the car. He was not injured. Property damage to Stocks' car amounted to $250. Damage to the hydrant has not been determined.

Separation Is Friendly Affair

LOS ANGELES — Film director Bruce Humberstone has agreed to pay his estranged wife, Gay, $500 monthly alimony and child support pending trial of her divorce suit. She is 26, an actress and model known as Gay Poling. Humberstone is 50.

It's a friendly separation. Humberstone told the court yesterday he was taking his wife to lunch.

Inquest Slated Into Stabbing Death Of Girl

LAURINBURG, N.C. — An inquest into the stabbing death of 19-year-old Mrs. Ida Mae Treadaway, whose nude body was found floating in Lake Roberdel, is to be held here tonight.

The blonde and tattooed wife of a soldier now in Germany had been the object of an extensive hunt by police for two days before she was found floating in the lake near Rockingham Monday.

Two men and a woman are being held in connection with the slaying and Sheriff Jesse Gibson of Scotland County said he plans to charge the woman and one of the men with murder. Two other men were released today, he said.

Gibson said he will file the charges against 61-year-old Kenny Watson, a lanky, Sandhills farmer, and twice-married Ernest Quick Chandler, 28, of East Rockingham.

Watson and Mrs. Chandler told officers they watched as three men beat and stomped Mrs. Treadaway Friday in a patch of woods. They said they had been with the girl and three strange men earlier, and that it was the three men who beat her.

A coroner's report, however, showed that Mrs. Treadaway died from eight stab wounds, one of which penetrated her heart, and that there were no marks of beating on the body.

Watson and Mrs. Chandler have been held as material witnesses since the crime was reported. Two others being held as material witnesses, 45-year-old Bruce Gibson and his 22-year-old nephew, Bobby Gibson, of the Laurel Hill area, were set free today.

Another man, who Watson and Mrs. Chandler said was one of the three strangers, is still being held. He is James Lee McDonald, 32, also of the Laurel Hill area. He has denied any knowledge of the crime.

Gibson said blood samples taken from Mrs. Chandler, Watson and from clothing identified as belonging to Mrs. Treadaway would be submitted to the State Bureau of Investigation for analysis.

Scheidt Opposes All Drag-Racing

RALEIGH — Motor Vehicles Commissioner Ed Scheidt says he is opposed to drag racing "in any way, shape, or form."

He made the statement yesterday in commenting on a proposal by two Sampson County legislators to provide for drag racing supervised by the Highway Patrol.

Scheidt said his department "has studied this thing very, very carefully and has come to the conclusion that it should be discouraged." Law enforcement officers, he added, share the same opinion.

Earlier this week, Sen. Henry Vann said he plan to introduce a bill in the 1957 General Assembly to provide for supervised drag racing on secondary roads. The races would be between a single car and a timing device to determine the maximum speed over a measured distance.

Maj. Dave Lambert of the patrol's enforcement division said that in areas where stock races are held, arrests for speeding on highways almost always rise just after the races. He cited figures showing that 24 were killed and 22 injured "that we know of" from racing between 1955 and May of this year.

Indian Affairs Is Opened In Gallup

GALLUP, N.M. — Gallup's annual inter-tribal Indian ceremonial opened today with thousands of white and red visitors filling the town to capacity.

Officials of the Ceremonial Assn which operates the affair expected in the vicinity of 16,000 white and 12,000 Indian visitors to attend before the last performance Sunday.

THE WEDDING OF DAVE GARROWAY—Television commentator Dave Garroway, 42, and Pamela Wilde, 28, holds hands during their wedding ceremony in the Municipal Building in New York. The ceremony was performed by a city clerk. The bride promised to cook breakfast every morning for her husband who is master of ceremonies of a TV show which begins at 7 A. M. on weekdays. Near 200 Attend ECC Workshop

A registration of 194 choral directors and members of high school choruses for the Choral Directors Workshop at East Carolina College was announced Tuesday.

Dr. Lara Hoggard, internationally famed conductor and arranger, of Birmingham, Ala., is guest conductor for the workshop held under the sponsorship of the North Carolina Music Educators Association and East Carolina College Music Department.

Dr. Charles Taylor, president of the Choral Division or NCMA, of High Point, and Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, chairman of the ECC Music Department, are handling arrangements for the event which continues through Friday.

Enrollment of 35 directors was reported by Dr. Cuthbert. Persons attending the workshop were guests of the East Carolina College Entertainment Committee Monday evening at the recital of international songs by Nina Dova of New York, radio, television and concert artist.
