Poll Shows Stevenson Gain As Convention Opens

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson stood off two waves of challengers to maintain a front-running pace toward the Democratic presidential nomination in the party's national convention opening today.

war for the 68 1/2 votes needed to nominate a presidential candidate in balloting to begin Thursday. There Stevenson vied against a combination of New York Gov. Averell Harriman and former President Harry S. Truman for the support of unpledged state delegations.

Truman busied himself from morning till late at night seeing candidates, governors and delegations chiefs. He worked with his old pros of former years not only to get Harriman support but to keep "favorite sons" in the race.

at gatherings where he, Harriman and others turned out. About 10,000 people tried to jam their way into a reception Stevenson gave for Mrs. Roosevelt. When he and Harriman made separate appearances at a dinner for Democratic women, Stevenson only polite applause.

Truman's endorsement of Harriman hadn't changed his support of Stevenson. The state's 44-vote delegation is pledged to Gov. Mennen Williams as a "favorite son." Williams wouldn't express a choice between Stevenson and Harriman. But the governor said he had "no covert desire to help promote a candidate, and open the way for some other candidate."

How the Ohio vote would split was problematical. Stevenson's friends said they are confident they will have support of the majority. New Jersey's Gov. Robert B. Meyner still resists efforts to put him into the race as a "favorite son," a move that would give aid and comfort to the Harriman-Truman campaign to prevent an early ballot Stevenson nomination.

Belgin told a news conference the Suez Canal into the Nasser Canal he will be ready for an all-out attack on Israel. He said Israel should make alliances with any anti-Nasser power.

open—appeared to reduce the possibility of Western military action to settle the crisis created by Egypt's nationalization of the waterway. Prime Minister Eden and his closest aides studied the Egyptian counterplan closely. The first official reaction was that the London conference will be held as planned with only two countries of the 24 invited to decline to attend.

Hodges Praises Southern Delegates; Still For Adlai

CHICAGO (AP)—Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina today praised Southern delegates for the way in which they have handled themselves since coming to the Democratic convention.

He said he talked with Stevenson shortly after arriving in Chicago. Stevenson told him, he said, that perhaps he had made a bad choice in words.

Hodges urged delegates to get out and work for Stevenson. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., a member of the platform committee, said that there is more at stake in the present convention than perhaps for half a century. He said at issue is whether the Democratic party is going to continue to exist as a national party.

Record Salk Shots Total Given In Pitt On Saturday

More Salk antipolio vaccinations were given at the Health Department clinics in Greenville, Farmville and Bethel Saturday than have been given any one day previously.

Health Director Walter C. Humbert reported 1,249 shots were administered at the three clinics Saturday morning, and of this number 945 were first injections.

Vaccine Effective Dr. Humbert said today, "The vaccine has proved itself in the fact that we haven't had a case of polio this summer in a child who has been thoroughly immunized. This means at least two shots of the vaccine. If we can get around to other states that have resided we should never have another polio epidemic here."

Odds Are On A 5 Day Convention

CHICAGO (AP)—If conventions were like horse races, you could play the odds and put down a pretty safe bet on the Democratic one opening today.

Safety Program Given At Inter-City Meet

The Greenville Credit Women's Breakfast Club was host at an inter-city C.W.B.C. dinner meeting at Respass Brothers Wednesday evening. Topics for the evening were "Traffic Safety."

C.W.B.C. State President Mrs. Mary Wray Howard of Fuquay Springs was guest of honor. Mrs. Howard chose the "Slow Down and Live" highway traffic safety program of North Carolina for the C.W.B.C. state project with each club actively participating and promoting the club year.

President Henrietta Johnson of the Greenville Club presided and welcomed guests and members. Response was given by Miss Tillie Wells, Rocky Mount C.W.B.C. president. Mrs. Rosalind Robbins, Wilson C.W.B.C. president, gave the invocation. The president recognized distinguished guests, sponsors, bosses and club presidents.

The traffic safety theme was used in table decorations consisting of toy automobiles in trucks, buses, train crossings, complete with stop signs, traffic light signals, and other original safety reminders and devices. Miniature traffic signs were used for place cards. The orange-gold of the State Highway Patrol was used in the center arrangements of chrysanthemums, the programs and posters.

Mrs. Rubelle Crawford, Greenville-CWBC safety chairman, introduced the speaker, Cpl. Carl E. Whitfield of the Highway Patrol, whose topic was "Slow Down and Live."

He explained why the traffic safety problem is becoming more acute and critical. He said that since the first recorded traffic accident, occurring in 1899 in New York City, until 1955, there had been one million fatalities.

This year, he pointed out, Americans are speeding to a greater number of injuries and deaths in traffic accidents than ever before in the nation's history. Statistics show that there are 55 million cars and trucks operating on the highways and roads, and that by 1965, there will be an estimated 75 million more. Unless this problem is faced by the individual in all seriousness and cooperativeness, there is no way of estimating or controlling the deaths, injuries and loss of property this nation will suffer, the speaker pointed out.

Cpl. Whitfield explained the three "E's" of traffic safety: engineering, enforcement and education. Engineering, he said, was the work of the State Highway Department, and they are working daily to improve roads, eliminating every possible hazard. The Highway Patrol and Police Department worked ceaselessly day and night to enforce the traffic laws, and now for the past four years a program designed to educate the individual has been in effect, and being increasingly stepped up. All thinking individuals—the courts, schools, educational institutions, churches, civic, service, business and educational organizations—are teaming up to cooperate and promote the program, he concluded.

Cpl. Whitfield with the association of Lt. Johnnie Piver of the Greenville Police Department showed a film "Courtesy is Contagious," depicting a day in court for traffic violators and their individual attitudes and reactions to this pressing problem.

President Johnson recognized the chairman of the traffic safety committee of the Rocky Mount, Wilson, Kinston and Greenville Clubs who respectively gave reports of their clubs' activities in carrying out the state project. Mrs. Vallie Henderson, member of the Governor's Safety Council, secretary and treasurer of the Raleigh Traffic Council, and a member of the Raleigh C.W.B.C. gave a report for the Raleigh Club. She also spoke briefly about the work of the Governor's Safety Council.

State President Mary Wray Howard briefly addressed the group on why she chose this program for her state project, explaining that more than in most businesses, perhaps, her work with doctors brought her in closer proximity to the urgent and tragic consequences of this constantly increasing menace.

Mrs. Mary Dell Seymour of the Greenville C.W.B.C. announced the resignation of member Mrs. Ann Kroll whose family is moving to New York. Mrs. Seymour, on behalf of the club, expressed the admiration and love in which the membership held Mrs. Kroll and their regret at losing her as a member. She was presented a farewell gift from the club. The club remembered the State President with a corsage and gift. Cpl. Whitfield, guest speaker, was also given a gift in appreciation of his talk and assistance.

Mrs. Dorothy Copeland invited the assembled guests and members to an old-fashioned ice cream party given by the Greenville Club in honor of the state president at Mrs. Copeland's home on the Falkland Highway.

The following C.W.B.C. Women Rally-Round For Busy Election Schedule This Year

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—It is estimated that 35 million women, three million more than in 1952, will vote in this year's presidential elections. Top politics of both Democratic and Republican parties are counting on the women to put over their own standard bearers.

Throughout the nation, in rural as well as urban areas, women are being stirred to active participation in the political arena as vote-getters and fund-raisers.

The Republicans have their "Thank You, Mr. President" fund-raising project. The Democrats have their "Teas for TV" campaign. The Republican project is being done through the National Federation of Republican Women, as one phase of its 24-point "Double Dozen" promoted promotion of a million dues-paying volunteers.

The Democratic women have already raised more than $50,000, in less than one dollar contributions, in the "Teas for TV" project to raise money for their candidates' "air time."

The Republicans have their "Kitchen Cabinet," where wives of Cabinet members "share political recipes on what's cooking in Washington with housewives of America."

The Citizens for Eisenhower women are working on the independent and Democratic vote, urging women to cook up an "Eisenhower Old-Fashioned Beef Stew."

GOOD DIPLOMATS

HALIFAX, (AP)—Leon Dolan, head of the Federal Tourist Bureau, told a service club meeting here that service clubs do more to promote good relations between countries than all the speeches of diplomats.

Supper' on Thursdays, "the maid's night out," invite their friends and neighbors to come in for the "political talk" that goes with the stew.

The Democrats have been very successful with their "Read and Sew" get-togethers—a combination fund-raising and educational activity—especially in small towns.

The Democrats do not boast a separate national women's organization, in the expressed belief that men and women are more effective working in unity.

About 14 states have women's Democratic clubs, however, such as the Women's National Democratic Club of the District of Columbia which raised thousands with its hilarious skit "Jenny for President," which will be repeated in Chicago during the national convention. Also effective is its Congressional Wives Forum, made up of about 45 wives of top Democratic lawmakers, many of whom have been going on speaking tours throughout the country.

Recreation Dept. Announce Plans For Play School

The Recreation Department has announced that applications for "Play School" will be accepted from August 13 through August 23. A new plan is being tried this fall in an effort to make "Play School" available to more of Greenville's pre-school age children.

Gordon Goodman, director of the Greenville Recreation Department, and Mrs. Sam T. White II, program supervisor, have presented the following plan.

"Play School" is designed for children between the ages of three and five years. Its primary purpose is to provide companionship and supervised play for this age group. There are two separate groups of children. One group meets on Tuesday and the other on Friday from 10 until 12 noon. Present equipment and space limit each group to 24 children on each of the two days.

Under the new plan, the names of 48 children will be drawn from the applications on Friday, August 24. These children will attend "Play School" for three months, giving each child 13 mornings of supervised play. At the end of this period, another group of names will be drawn, thus giving more children the opportunity of attending.

Mothers of the children enrolled will be asked to help with "Play School" one time during the three months and supply the juice and cookies for the morning.

Applications will be accepted by mail or by telephone. When applying, please give the following information: day preferred; child's name, age and birthdate; parents' name, address and telephone number.

Funeral On Tuesday For Miss Mary Boyd

Miss Mary Louise Boyd died in Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville at 1:50 o'clock Sunday afternoon following nine months of illness.

Funeral services will be held at St. Paul's Episcopal Church at five o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and burial will be in the Old Episcopal Churchyard. The Rev. T. L. Hastings, Episcopal minister of Williamston, will conduct the services. Professional nurses of Pitt County will attend in uniform.

Miss Boyd, daughter of the late John Foreman and Emma McCluer Boyd, was born in Pitt County on November 24, 1876. After attending the County Schools, she was trained as a nurse at Dr. David Taylor's Hospital in Washington and was graduated in 1909. She did supervising work in Tayloe Hospital for a year and located in Greenville in 1910. She was the first private duty nurse to practice in Greenville. Since that time she had done hospital and private duty nursing in Greenville. She was a member of the Twentieth District Nurses Association and the American National Association of Nurses. She was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Surviving are a sister, Miss Sue McDowell Boyd, and a niece, Miss Bessie Hayden, both of the home.

Take Care In Choosing The Right Kind Of Milk For Junior

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D., AP Newsfeatures

MILK is probably the most important food for children. However, there are many kinds of milk available. So many questions come in about milk it seems worthwhile to discuss the whole subject.

Cow's milk is of course the kind we use almost all the time. But cow's milk as it comes from the cow is more suitable for a calf than it is for a human baby.

Raw cow's milk is difficult for a child to digest. It forms big "cluck" tough curds in the stomach. These curds are so firm that the digestive juices do not penetrate them easily. Digestion is therefore slow and difficult. Babies who take raw cow's milk often have colic and do considerable vomiting and may have either diarrhea or constipation.

We can treat raw cow's milk so that it forms tiny soft curds in the stomach, curds as small as those of breast milk. There are two main ways of doing this. The first is by heating the milk, the second is by the process known as homogenization.

The more milk is heated, the smaller the curd. Pasteurized milk has a smaller curd than raw milk, boiled milk has a still smaller curd and milk heated under pressure (as is done in the manufacture of dried and evaporated milks) has a still smaller curd.

Homogenization of milk is a process by which all the fat particles are broken up into such tiny bits that they do not rise to the top of the milk as cream. Homogenized milk, like heated milk, forms small curds in the stomach and therefore is easily digested.

Babies as young as three months can digest undiluted homogenized

Room For Pitt-Wide Development

It is time Pitt County gave serious consideration to the formation of a group to undertake industrial development locally on a county-wide basis.

Chambers of Commerce and other groups in individual towns of the county are undertaking industrial development programs, but for the most part they are primarily interested in their respective town and the community immediately surrounding it. So far as we have been able to learn there is no concerted effort to sell Pitt County as a whole for industrial locations to manufacturing firms in other sections of the country.

There are several places in North Carolina where neighboring counties have banded together, pooled their resources and launched industrial development programs on an area basis.

If several counties can successfully undertake such a project, why can't Pitt undertake a similar project on a county-wide basis?

Probably the most notable example of area industrial development is the group of counties in the northwestern part of the state which has its program going in high gear now. Patterned after this organization is the fledgling Southeastern North Carolina Development Association which is being formed by seven counties in the southeastern part of the state.

The counties of Bladen, Brunswick, Columbus, Duplin, Pender, Onslow and New Hanover are now in the process of setting up the permanent organization of their area industrial development group. Through a united effort their industrial development program will carry much more weight than programs of individual communities in the seven counties working separate and apart from each other.

Pitt County is a large area. At the same time, it is an area in which there is little difference in economic problems between the various communities. It would lend itself ideally to the new concept of area rather than community development efforts. And obviously industrial development in any one section of the county is going to be beneficial to all the other sections.

Nash County may be pointing toward a county-wide development program such as the one The Reflector proposed for Pitt. Virginia Electric Power Company which serves a small section of Nash County in the Whitakers area has recently completed a survey of possible industrial sites throughout Nash County. Sketches and descriptions of the sites will be included in a booklet which outlines advantages offered by the county to new industry. These of course will be made available to industrial prospects and others interested in the industrial development of Nash County.

Perhaps such a survey could be Pitt's first step toward a county-wide industrial development program. VEPCO has an interest in Pitt County's development just as it does in the development of Nash County. The power company's interest, if anything, probably is more extensive in Pitt than in Nash, for VEPCO sells power to Greenville Utilities which supplies a large part of Pitt, and at the same time owns the distribution system which serves Bethel and its surrounding area.

Carolina Power and Light Company likewise has an interest in Pitt County, owning the distribution system formerly owned by Grimesland and at the same time having lines in the Farmville area which might become a source of supply for new industries.

Properly approached, one or both of these power companies probably would agree to make an industrial site survey of Pitt County. They have men experienced in industrial development who could handle the project that could be of importance to Pitt's industrial development on a county-wide basis.

As the governing board of the county, it seems proper that the County Commissioners should be the group to initiate such a program by calling together representatives of the various communities in the county and set in motion organization of the project and the machinery for a county-wide industrial development program.

Hodges Made Good In Naming Patton

By LYNN NISBET
TOP DRAWER — In persuading Judge George B. Patton to accept the post of Attorney General, Governor Hodges made good on his promise that the appointment would go to a "top drawer" man. The selection is hailed with enthusiastic approval by everybody except a few trial lawyers who regret to lose Judge Patton from the Superior Court bench, where he has served with distinction for nearly ten years.

The fact that Governor Hodges sought a man of such caliber and the acceptance of the post by Judge Patton is testimony on part of both to the importance of the office. Patton has had experience in the general practice of law, as a legislator, as general counsel for the highway commission and as assistant Attorney General, and as Superior Court Judge since 1947.

In moving from the bench to head of the State Department of Justice, he is not entering a strange field. He does surrender, temporarily at least, valuable retirement benefits. Judges make no contribution to their retirement and may retire after 12 or 15 years service upon certain conditions at two-thirds the salary being drawn at time of retirement. Presently the Attorney General participates in the general Teachers' & State Employees Retirement System, buying benefits on percentage payments from salaries which are matched by the State.

Governor Hodges said he will use the next General Assembly to include the Attorney General in the judicial retirement plan. Rep John W. Umstead said he will support the idea, and believes there will be no difficulty in getting it enacted into law (A similar effort in the last Legislature failed. It lacked support of the administration, and then Attorney General Harry McMullan was near retirement the suggestion savored of a pension hand-out).

GEORGAPHIC — The Patton appointment puts the chief legal adviser of North Carolina government in the far west, for the first time in many years. He is a resident of Macon county. The selection also complies with economic geography. Many people have concluded that the old past west physical geography alignment is far less important now than economic and political geography. Distribution of offices among the different philosophies of government seem more significant than distribution along county lines.

Governor Kerr Scott was severely criticized for appointing so many farmers to positions for which they were not particularly qualified. Governor Hodges has been subjected to some criticism for naming so many industrial executives and fellow Rotarians. The Patton appointment seems unobjectionable on any of these points.

STEPPING STONE — The office of Attorney General has been regarded in the past as a stepping stone to the Supreme Court. James S. Manning, A. A. F. Seawell and William B. Rodman Jr. moved up. Dennis Brummitt and Harry McMullan died in the office. Increasing prestige of the office, and especially if the retirement business is adjusted, puts in one more equal footing with the high court. If the retirement plan embodies eight-year tenure for the Attorney General, the same as the judges, the office will be accorded equal prestige.

The Attorney General is rated a part of the executive branch of State government. Fitting retirement and tenure into the judicial plan involves some technical difficulties. It will certainly occasion demand on part of solicitors for similar inclusion.

INCIDENT — The Patton appointment recalls an incident of ten years or more ago. Kerr Scott was Commissioner of Agriculture and his department was having trouble with a live-stock market operator. Field inspectors had closed the market for failure to comply with regulations. The operator appealed to the Board of Agriculture, which authorized reopening on basis of promises to comply. The promises were not kept and the inspector put another closure order on the market. The operator appealed again and Commissioner Scott called upon the Attorney General for advice as to procedure. The Attorney General sent over his assistant, George Patton.

Patton brought along an armful of law books, read and explained the statutes, then laid the books aside, rested his short arm on them and said about this: "That, gentlemen, is the law. That's what you asked me to tell you. Now I'm going to tell you something you didn't ask for. It is my opinion that if this board cannot back its inspectors, you ought to fire the inspector and get one you can back up."

Whereupon Patton picked up his books and left the room. A few minutes later your reporter encountered Commissioner Scott in the hall and he said something like this: "You know that fellow Patton ain't very big, but damned if he don't talk like a man."

Truman Put Life In A Cut-And-Dried Affair

Harry Truman's endorsement of Gov. Harriman of New York as the Democratic nominee has thrown the national convention into an uproar. Obviously the former president's support of Harriman has altered the appearance of the convention if it does not alter the final outcome.

Truman's announcement Saturday changed the complexion of a convention that could have been a cut and dried issue over the nomination of a presidential candidate. It has stimulated interest in the outcome not only in Chicago, but across the country. It has attracted a great deal more attention to Chicago and the convention than otherwise would have been the case.

With the support of the former president, Harriman's chances of getting the nomination have increased. But even with the weight of Truman's influence, Harriman is still far behind Adlai Stevenson in the race for the nomination.

While Truman's announcement brought some votes into the Harriman fold, it likewise solidified Stevenson's strength and probably will bring to Stevenson votes which otherwise would have stayed with favorite son candidates. Clearly the announcement drew the lines between an ultra liberal candidate within the party and a candidate who will follow the more moderate lines within the party framework.

For the North Carolina delegations and others from the South who looked with misgivings upon Stevenson's civil rights announcement of last week, their choice is now made clear. Stevenson is much to be preferred to Harriman as the party nominee. Southern support for Stevenson which was weak has taken on a more vigorous appearance. It will probably become more intense before the balloting begins next Thursday.

Generally it must be said that Truman's announcement helped Stevenson as much as it helped Harriman. To be sure it increased the likelihood that the convention will be deadlocked, but with Stevenson's lead at the outset, plus the solidification of his support by the announcement, the possibilities of a deadlock between the two major candidates for the nomination is still remote.

Dark horses still loom in the wings at Chicago. But in all probability they will remain dark horses and never come into the limelight at this convention.

Stevenson remains the major candidate most acceptable to North Carolina and other Southern States. He should therefore be accorded the full support of the Southern delegation to prevent a wedge being driven into the party by the candidacy of ultra-liberal Harriman.

First 6 Months Were Rich

By ELMER ROESSNER
The first half of this year was as rich as honey dripping from the comb, judging by the first National City Bank's round-up of income after taxes of 682 leading corporations.

Their net during the first six months of 1956 was $5,365,501,000. That's 9 per cent higher than in the first half of 1955.

Of 23 groups, only 4 showed smaller earnings than in the comparable 1955 period. Earnings of 30 automobile and parts corporations were down 22 per cent, as might have been expected. But shed no tears; their net was still $575,818,000. Income of 25 electrical equipment, radio and television companies was down 19 per cent to a mere $150,485,000; income of 20 textile and apparel companies was down 13 per cent to $1,418,000, and the net of 39 railroads was off 1 per cent to $16,418,000, and the net of 39 railroads was off 1 per cent to $337,600,000.

PLUSES ARE PLUSH — The biggest gain percentage-wise was by 45 machinery corporations, up 48 per cent to a tidy $113,198,000. Placing were 17 drugs, soap and cosmetic corporations, up 35 per cent to $13,927,000. In the show spot were 25 retail and wholesale trade corporations, up 35 per cent to $118,181,000. Last is not as exciting as it seems. Retail sales were in the doldrums during early months of 1955, so even a return to normalcy would appear as a gain. The 25 trade corporations all together netted $29,915,000, one of the smallest group totals on the list.

Earnings after taxes of 34 companies in the iron and steel group were up 22 per cent to $510,274,000. Since these corporations make public reports of their earnings, their employees must have been aware of this rise in net profits and it must have stiffened them in their struggle with the corporations over wages.

The biggest industrial-group earnings were by 33 petroleum producing and refining corporations: $1,273,705,000 for the six months. Their gain was 20 per cent.

PAPER, BEVERAGES DO WELL — Here are the other groups in the bank's compilation, along with their percentage gain in income after taxes over the first half of 1955:

Twenty-seven paper and allied products corporations, 25; 13 beverage, 23; 94 metal products other than machinery, 25; 19 mining and quarrying, 17; 30 service and amusement, 16; two transportation equipment other than autos, 13; 40 miscellaneous manufacturing, 13; 39 railroads, 12; 24 food products, 11; 12 tobacco products, 11; 31 chemical products, 6; 36 cement, glass and stone, 6 and 7 tire and rubber products, 1.

The percentage gains are, of course, averages for the groups. Individual companies have made far less profits than these averages and other have made far greater gains.

Other figures show 507 manufacturing concerns among these leading corporations made a net income after taxes of 8.2 cents on each dollar of sales in the first six months of this year. They made 8.0 cents in the first six months of this year. They made 8.0 cents in the first six months of 1955.

Since Federal taxes take about half of large corporations' profits before taxes, profits must have been around 16 per cent before taxes.

You can hang a lot of conclusions on that limb. One of them may be that profits at that rate erected a pretty good swing for demands for higher pay.

Prosperity If Retail Sales Up

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass., I have continually stressed in this column that the continuation of present prosperity depends upon the consumers, or customers of your local stores. So long as retail sales remain high, all is well, and husbands will continue employed; but when you begin to restrict buying, then retailers buy less from manufacturers. The manufacturers then begin to lay off their wage workers and retail sales are further reduced—the "vicious circle." Hence, the business cycle—so-called—turns downward until we have a depression.

GOOD WAGES AND ADVERTISING

Retail sales and employment have been kept up by extensive local and national advertising. The latter has been greatly aided by photography, color printing, radio, and now TV. Unless something unexpected happens to shake confidence, retail sales will be further stimulated by air conditioning and self-service. Some day a little oxygen will be fed into air-conditioning systems, which will be a great blessing to all.

I, however, wish to refer this week to "pills" which are being used so unnecessarily by wage-workers, many of whom leave home without a real breakfast. The "coffee break" is the most apparent development in this line. The milk and sugar are real food; but the coffee is only a temporary stimulant lasting at most one half hour. Those working on continuous-line production—who must keep up with the speed of the bells—often use decaffeinated pills. These tend to keep one awake and supply "pep." They don't work with all people who really need better meals and more sleep.

ASTOUNDING STATISTICS

But consider the following statistics on pills which are being used today— not by sick people—but those who are employed in factories, retail stores, and offices. The following figures have been supplied by Dr. Henry van Zile Hyde of the U.S. Public Health Service at Washington. He says: Each year we dose ourselves with about 400 tons of barbiturates (a nerve drug), 34 tons of amphetamine a "pep-up" drug, and 7,000 tons of aspirin made into 19 billion five-grain tablets! In addition, there are billions of laxative pills sold.

Much of this tonnage is consumed by tired mothers preparatory to shopping at a supermarket or some other retail store. The final step may be to give pills, free, to customers as they enter the store! Such pills would keep them longer on their aching feet and give them courage to buy more goods. All of these stimulants are in addition to the highballs and doses of whiskey or brandy taken regularly at home.

THE TAKING OF SUCH PILLS MEANS

The taking of such pills—like buying on installment—may not be harmful if properly controlled. It, however, is dangerous for wage-workers, consumers, or retailers to depend too much upon such artificial stimulants. Not only does their use serve only temporarily, but it is a dangerous and unnatural way to get free from pain, fatigue, and other troubles. Those depending upon such stimulants go to a physician for a "check-up" and learn how to eliminate the cause of their troubles.

IMPORTANCE OF GOOD FOOD

Surely the prosperity of the nation as well as our own well-being could be benefited by the regular eating of more good food. Coffee will not take the place of oatmeal; ice cream sodas will not serve for healthy lunches; while hurried dinners or suppers keep you alive, but not prosperous. We cannot get on with scant and hurried meals on any more than a furnace can provide power without sufficient coal or oil.

Although girls' beautiful complexions are out of my field, yet I am told "on authority" that the money spent on cosmetics would give far more rosy cheeks if spent on more good food, fresh air, pure drinking water—with more sleep. Let me further remind readers of the old question: "How does the

Hard Choice For Adlai's Running Mate

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON With Adlai E. Stevenson assured of the Democratic Presidential nomination, the 1956 strategists will face a hard choice in selection of a running mate in a year when the voters may pay more attention to the Vice Presidential candidates than ever before. They must decide whether to try to capture the farm states or the urban commonwealths while retaining the Southern and Border electoral vote.

Stevenson's statement favoring incorporation of the Supreme Court integration ruling in a Civil Rights plank could, but probably will not, upset the Southern picture. It is sure that the Republicans will take an even stronger stand on this issue.

Here is their precise dilemma at the Chicago Convention: It is obvious that a combination of the South, Border and farm states would give them the electoral ballots, necessary to elect. Likewise, a coalition of the Dixie total and several of the great industrial and electorally decisive commonwealths would land their man in the White House.

In short, although they surrender in advance no territory to STEVENSON'S STRENGTH WITH CITY BOSSES The Democrats must start with that premise concerning the Chicago lawyer. He did not carry a single farm state in 1952. He virtually bypassed them in his primary campaigning. He was defeated badly by Senator Estes Kefauver in the Minnesota test. His strength lies chiefly with the city bosses and their allies.

Stevenson just does not appeal to farmers, according to all soundings of sentiment. His speeches and mannerisms, especially his airy witticisms, associate him in their minds with the "city slicker" type. He does not impress them as a warm, sympathetic, down-to-earth being. He does not "talk our language." The new Stevenson may be able to overcome these handicaps, but there remains a doubt in the politicians' minds.

KEFAUVER, HARRIMAN POPULAR IN FARM AREAS Strangely Senator Kefauver and Governor Harriman appear to be more popular down to the farm and at the crossroads. Both, of course, have made more lavish promises on price supports than the moderate Stevenson dared to offer. Their halting speech, seeming simplicity and lack of oratorical ability or delivery give them a more human appearance.

NEUTRALITY
In the great medieval epic of heaven and hell, Dante Alighieri's Divine Comedy, the poet describes a peculiar scene just outside the boundaries of hell. A group of unhappy wretches are running about, this way and that, chasing constantly moving banners. As they run, they are stung by hornets and wasps. There are the neutral souls— not wicked enough for hell, not blessed enough for heaven. In life they would never commit themselves to any cause good or bad. They stood on the fence, and never took sides.

New Plans For Payments To Totally Disabled Workers In Effect In 1957

By JOE HALL
WASHINGTON (AP)—A new program of payments to totally disabled workers, rounding out the series of basic protections for the nation's families envisioned when Social Security was set up 20 years ago, goes into effect next year.

The program is provided under the Social Security bill passed by Congress just before it adjourned late last month, and signed by President Eisenhower. The disability provision was sponsored by Democratic leaders.

Stringent requirements must be met before a disabled person can qualify. Experts in the Social Security Administration estimate 300,000 disabled persons will receive payments in the first year.

and that in 25 years one million will be on the rolls.

Local Social Security offices will begin receiving claims for benefits Oct. 1. First checks will go out next July.

The applicant must be at least 50 and must meet this test: "Inability to engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or to be of long-continued and indefinite duration."

The monthly checks will not start until the disability has been in effect six months.

Finally, the recipient must meet all of three requirements of Social Security coverage in a job or in self-employed work for which Social Security taxes were paid. These are:

1. One and a half years of coverage in the last three years.
2. Five years of coverage in the last 10 years.
3. Coverage for half the time since 1950 or, alternatively, for 10 years.

A person in covered employment for the last five years thus would meet all three tests.

A worker disabled some time ago and now 50 or over can apply once for the payments. In his case, the Social Security coverage requirements would run in the years preceding the date of his disablement.

The applicant must furnish proof of this disability. At the local Social Security office, he can find if he has the necessary coverage and if his disability is severe enough to make him potentially eligible.

If he passes these preliminaries, he will be given medical report forms which he can have filled out by his physician, a hospital, his employer and other sources.

When his file is complete, the local office will send it to the state agency which, under the law, has the responsibility for making the determination of disability. The Social Security Administration will then pass on the claim and notify the applicant of the final decision.

If this decision is adverse, the individual can appeal to a referee of the Social Security Administration, and has the right to go on to federal court.

In general, however, personality defects, alcoholism or drug addiction will not qualify an individual. Nor will blindness, if the sightless person is able to engage in "substantial gainful activity."

The monthly payments will be the same as the primary retirement benefit for the individual under Social Security, ranging from $30 to $108.50 a month. They are expected to average $70 to $80 a month.

The Social Security tax will be increased effective next Jan. 1 by 1/4 per cent each for the employer and employer, and 1/2 per cent for the self-employed individual, to finance the disability payments. The proceeds will go into a separate fund for these benefits.

This will mean a $16.50 tax boost next year for the individual earning $4,200 or more, and the same for his employer. A self-employed person earning the same amount will pay $15.75 more.

Friday's Cases In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH
Judge Charles H. Wheabee disposed of 13 cases in Police Court Friday, the lightest docket of the summer. The cases ranged from possession of lottery tickets to driving a motor vehicle while drunk.

William E. Fornes, 110 E. 11th street, Negro, driving drunk, six months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $100 and costs. The judgment provides that he is not to operate a motor vehicle for two years unless he makes restitution for property damage. It also provides that he is not to operate a motor vehicle for one year. The court recommended that Fornes' operator's license be revoked for one year.

William H. Forbes, Negro, 504 Sheppard street, was found not guilty of possession of lottery tickets.

Paul H. Manning, Second street, and Willie Donaldson, Negro, were found not guilty of failure to yield right of way.

Rosalind J. Roulsdon, East Carolina College, speeding, prayer for judgment continued on payment of $15 costs. The judgment provides that she is not to drive a motor vehicle for seven days from August 10, 1956.

John B. Spell, Negro, 406 Empire Alley, possession of non-tax paid whiskey, $25, costs deducted.

Drunk: Rayfield Sawyer, Rt. 1, city, $15 costs; Henry Small, Negro, Grimesland, $10.

Wiley Clark, Negro, address unknown to police, failure to stop at a traffic stop sign, $5, failure to stop at another stop sign, $10.

James R. Stocks, Winterville, was found not guilty of following too closely.

Charles A. Reid, Negro, Stanburg, no chauffeur's license, prayer for judgment continued on payment of court costs and he is not to drive a truck without chauffeur's license.

William E. Underwood, Negro, 1312 Clark street, assault on a female, 30 days, suspended on payment of costs. The judgment also provides that he is not to molest or harm his wife. He is not to visit her without invitation and unless sober and he is not to violate any law.

Port Said Keeps Nocturnal Hours

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP)—The sleepy town of Port Said shut down early as usual. By 10 p.m., all shops were closed and most lights were out. A few white-uniformed policemen patrolled lonely beats in the arcaded streets.

An hour after midnight Port Said awakened. Lights blazed again. Horses-drawn carriages clattered through the streets and ancient taxi cabs wheezed past.

Every shop in town had opened its shutters and merchants were talking at mile-a-minute clip in many languages, trying to sell souvenirs of Egypt.

This nocturnal activity, common in Port Said, was caused by one thing—the arrival of a passenger liner loaded with well-heeled tourists. It had anchored in the harbor, waiting to pass through the Suez Canal on a trip to the Far East.

Ships entering the port at night must wait in the harbor till 7 a.m. Then they join the morning convoy for the 14-hour trip south through the waterway under the guidance of canal pilots.

While the ships wait, most tourists go ashore. Merchants, hawkers, vendors and guides descend on them, offering every kind of souvenir from fly whisks to feathers. For the stay-abouts, merchants roll out in skirts to sell from the side of the ship.

Headlines of the world's press tell of tension over Egypt's nationalization of the canal, but business goes on as usual for Port Said merchants.

There are two convoys daily—morning and evening—from each end of the canal. At almost the same time a convoy leaves Port Said, another starts from the other end at Suez. All ships must travel in convoy because the canal is too narrow to permit unescorted navigation.

Invading Africa For Cancer Clue

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP)—Twenty-five medical specialists from 14 countries are converging soon on this town in the heart of Africa, seeking new clues to the causes of cancer.

Statistics produced by the Kampala Cancer Research Committee in a conference here Aug. 24-30 may give a new lead on the disease that ranks second only to heart ailments as a killer among civilized nations.

Until recent years it was believed cancer was a disease of civilization—that peoples with a more primitive way of life suffered little from it.

Now it has been discovered that cancer is as common among the Africans around Kampala as it is in Europe and America.

This, in itself, would not advance knowledge of the disease greatly. But types of cancer and parts of the body affected in Africans are startlingly different from the situation among whites.

Cancer of the liver, for instance, is some 20 times as common among Africans. Cancer of the lymphatic glands is twice as prevalent.

Other types are correspondingly less frequent. Despite their unhygienic food and the parasites which infest their intestines, Africans are only half as liable as Americans to suffer from intestinal cancer.

If the reasons for the discrepancies can be pinned down by comparing African and, say, American diet and living habits, some of the causes of cancer may be revealed.

The Kampala conference is concentrating on liver cancer.

The delegates include some of the top names in international cancer research. The United States, Britain, France, Switzerland and India are among the nations represented.

New Hazardous Occupation Rule Applies In N. C.

Pitt County Welfare Superintendent K. T. Futrell has called attention to a new Hazardous Occupations Order issued by the U.S. Secretary of Labor which will apply to manufacturers of brick and tile products in North Carolina.

Officially designated as Hazardous Occupations Order No. 13, the new order raises the employment age to 18 in certain occupations found in the manufacture of brick, tile, and kindred products and in the manufacture of silica brick or other silica refractories. The order will become effective September 1.

It was issued by Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell on August 2 under the child labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

State Labor Commissioner Frank S. Crane said the types of work for which a minimum age of 18 will be required included operators of crushers, granulators, dry pans, and screens; storage bin work; operators of pug mills, auger or extrusion machines; hammers; car pushers; sewer pipe press crews; brick forming machine crews; glazers; setters; tossers; burners, and drawers.

Age 16 is the minimum established by the Fair Labor Standards Act for most types of employment. While the new order raises the minimum to 18 in the various manufacturing processes, many jobs in the industry remain open to 16 and 17 year olds. Specifically excluded from the order is work in storage and shipping, in offices, laboratories, and storerooms, and in drying departments of plants manufacturing sewer pipe.

Crane said the age restriction will apply in plants manufacturing brick, hollow structural tile, sewer pipe, refractories, architectural terra cotta, glazed structural tile, roofing tile, stove lining, chimney pipes and tops, wall coping, drain tile, silica brick and other silica refractories. Not included in the order are plants manufacturing ceramic floor and wall tile, mosaic tile, glazed and enamel tile, faience, and similar tile.

Crane, who administers the Fair Labor Standards Act in North Carolina under a State-Federal cooperative agreement, said the new order was issued under the Act's child labor provisions which provide for an 18 year age minimum for employment in occupations found by the Secretary of Labor to be particularly hazardous to minors. Copies of the order may be obtained from the North Carolina Department of Labor at Raleigh.

Britain, U.S. In Airliner Race

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—American and British plane makers chalk up a score apiece today in their contest to copy the transatlantic jet airliner business.

The British are first in flying their new turbojet Britannia across the pond today on a selling mission here. It's due to go into commercial service between New York and London next year for the British Overseas Airways Corp.

But the Americans can claim a selling victory with this same BOAC. Its chief, Basil Smallpeice, sees the Yankees as the long-run winners.

He says the Britannia should be tops for the transatlantic route, the keener in the highly competitive airline industry—until 1960. After that, he says, American made jets will outpace the slower British craft and grab off all the passengers. So he wants the British Transport Ministry to authorize his company to pay out some 100 million scarce American dollars for Yankee jets.

The British sent a team of experts here to look at both Boeing and Douglas jets. Between them, these two American companies already have orders for some 200 long-range jet airliners. Convair has orders for about 50 medium-range jet transports. And Lockheed has orders for around 130 turboprop craft.

The race to capture the transatlantic traffic is so keen because it is so lucrative. Both American and foreign flag air carriers are having their biggest year yet and expect the volume of overseas traffic to go even higher next year.

Speedy jets are expected to take over most of the trade in the 60s.

Nats Figure In American Race

Washington Is Constant Foil To Bosox Nine

By JOE REICHLER
The Associated Press

If the Boston Red Sox fail in their drive to overtake the American League-leading New York Yankees, as it now seems likely, they can blame it on the Washington Senators.

The lowly Nats, waging a season-long struggle to stay out of the cellar, have been plain poison to the Red Sox. On the other hand, they have been little more than a doormat for the Yankees.

They have won 9 of 13 games with Boston, the best record of any team against the Red Sox. In sharp contrast, they've won only 2 of 16 with the Yankees. There is your reason why the Yankees today were in first place, 10 games in front of the third-place Red Sox.

With New York was increasing its margin over runner-up Cleveland to 8½ games yesterday by sweeping a double-header from Baltimore 6-2 and 4-2, Washington was whipping the Red Sox 8-2. The Indians widened their lead over Boston to a game and a half by defeating Kansas City 6-3. Detroit thrashed Chicago 5-2.

In the National, Milwaukee maintained its 1½-game bulge on Brooklyn by overpowering Cincinnati 8-2 as the Dodgers were beating Robin Roberts and Philadelphia 7-3.

Pittsburgh whipped the Giants 3-2 and 11-3 while Chicago played a scoreless nine-inning tie with St. Louis after defeating the Cardinals 6-2. Darkness halted the second game.

Outfielders Jim Lemon and Roy Sievers, who have been hitting practically everything Boston pitchers have thrown at them this year, were the offensive stars against Washington knocked starter Willard Nixon out of the box in the first inning.

Lemon blasted his fourth home run in the three-game series with Boston and drove in two runs. Sievers collected three singles and drove in a run.

The Yankees' one-two punch of Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra did it again. Mantle smashed his 41st home run and drove in three runs in the opener as Don Larsen won the route for his seventh victory. Berra's two-run triple proved the difference in the second game.

Herb Score struck out 14 for his 12th victory. Bobby Avila, Rocky Colavito and Al Smith homered for the Indians.

Second baseman Frank Bowling cracked a three-run homer and a double that enabled the Tigers' Billy Hoft to win a southpaw duel from Chicago's Billy Pierce.

Lew Burdette hurled a five-hitter for the Braves as they won the rubber of their three-game set from Cincinnati. Milwaukee chased 16-game winner Brooks Lawrence in the third and went on to collect eight hits, including two by Bobby Thomson, who drove in two runs.

Carl Furillo slammed two of Brooklyn's four home runs. Pee Wee Reese and Randy Jackson got the other two. Roger Craig won his 11th although he needed help from Clem Labine in the ninth.

Homers by Jim King and Monte Irvin accounted for five of Chicago's six runs as right-hander Bob Rush scattered nine St. Louis hits for his 11th triumph. Herman Wehmeier, Card right-hander, and Jim Davis, Cub southpaw, waged the scoreless second-game duel.

Frank Thomas singled four times to spearhead a 17-hit Pirate attack against the Giants pitchers in the second game after Pittsburgh had won the opener on Bill Virdon's two-run triple.

There's something about the place in the Crpling's Open. In the five years he has been playing as a professional, Boros has banked $127,436 in winnings. This doesn't include his exhibition earnings or his profitable connection with a golf equipment manufacturer.

Even in his formative stage as an amateur, the six-foot, 200-pound Boros boasted a smooth, controlled swing. A perfect example of harnessing power, every swing was apparently well within himself. Every shot smooth and unburied with no effort to apply all the power packed in his broad shoulders. Tight-lipped and unsmiling, he is almost grim as a competitor. Aside from the three lessons he had from Tommy Armour, Boros is a self-taught golfer. Burdette, Lawrence Discuss Pitching

MILWAUKEE (AP)—To hear Lew Burdette and Brooks Lawrence talk, yesterday's 8-2 Milwaukee triumph over Cincinnati should have ended the other way around.

Burdette, with "the poorest stuff I've had in a long time," pitched a five-hitter for his 14th victory of the season and third over the Redlegs without a setback.

Lawrence, with "the best stuff I've had in a long time," lasted less than three innings and was tagged with his fifth defeat against 16 victories.

Braves manager Fred Haney said Burdette had had better days and the 29-year-old right-hander agreed.

To Ask Leniency For Sgt. MKeon

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (AP)—The senior vice commander of the Marine Corps League said today he will introduce a resolution at the league's national convention seeking leniency for Sgt. Matthew MKeon.

The resolution will ask that the bad conduct discharge be dropped from the sentence a court-martial ordered for the drill instructor involved in the Parris Island recruit drownings.

William Derderian of New Britain, author of the resolution, is a candidate for national commander at the Marine Corps League convention in Miami Beach, Fla.

Champs Defeat Tigers By 12-6

Coming from behind twice, the College Court Champions pounded out a 12-6 victory over the Tenth Street Tigers and snapped a four-game winning streak, yesterday at East Carolina College.

The two teams are composed of boys between the ages of six and 12 years old.

Victory for the Champions was all the more impressive as they were playing without the services of their star first baseman Gordon Aycock.

Ray Ward started for the Champions and pitched fine ball until an injury forced him from the game. Frank Moye came in and handled the opposition until the fifth frame, when he was relieved by Lou Ward. Ward, a regular centerfielder, went to the mound with two walked batters on base and put out the fire for the Champs.

Much of the credit for the victory was taken by the hitting end of the Champion roster. James "Mick" Moye, Franklin Mallory (whose clutch single tied the game in the fifth), Billy Neal James, and Tommy Smith each collected two hits each. Ward, who received credit for the win, aided his own cause with a bases loaded double.

The Tigers, playing without their regular shortstop and second baseman, Burney Warren and Gary Bostic, made a determined bid for the victory and played clean ball throughout the contest. They took top honors in the game in defensive play, but were simply outmaneuvered by the College Court nine.

These same two teams will battle for the rubber and deciding game next Sunday at three p.m. for the Eastern Greenville Championship at East Carolina.

Eleven Records Topple In Meet

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The record book took a beating during the two-day Carolina AAU Junior Olympics—swimming meet that ended here Saturday. Eleven individual records toppled.

Leading the assault were 14-year-old Lee Skidmore of Columbia, S.C., and Betsy Glynn of Greensboro.

Miss Skidmore swam to two national AAU records and Miss Glynn took home a pair of records, too.

The South Carolina miss knocked more than a full second off the intermediate girls 200-meter freestyle to set a new mark of 2:36.5 seconds. Her other record came in the 100-meter butterfly.

Miss Glynn chopped four seconds off the intermediate girls 100-meter freestyle and two seconds off the 1951 record 135style and was clocked at 1:37.9 in the breaststroke.

Ranny Dodson of Greensboro established a senior boys 200-meter individual medley relay mark with a time of 2:46.9 seconds, a whopping nine seconds lower than the previous record. Her other record came in the 100-meter butterfly.

Other new marks were set by Penny Tallaferro of Greensboro in the intermediate girls 100-meter backstroke, Richard Edwards of Greensboro in the intermediate boys 100-meter backstroke; John Essick of Columbia in the mixed 50-meter butterfly; John Burwell of Greensboro in the senior boys 100-meter freestyle and Harry Schiffman of Greensboro in the intermediate boys 100-meter breaststroke.

Major League Committee Talks Of Pensions

NEW YORK (AP)—The Major League Pension Committee was scheduled to meet here today to discuss the increased player pension benefits resulting from the new 1½-million-dollar radio and TV World Series and All-Star game five-year contract.

Player representatives Bob Feller of Cleveland and Robin Roberts of Philadelphia and owner representatives Joe Cronin of Boston and John Galbreath of Pittsburgh were unavailable for comment but it was learned that pension benefits already had been agreed upon.

A source revealed that the 16 club representatives had decided, in a recent mail vote, on a compromise figure that would double the benefits now received by the players.

The vote provided for five-year men to receive $100 a month at the age of 50 and 10-year men to receive $200 a month at the same age. The players also agreed to make eligible all players now receiving benefits. That would include all players with at least five years of service in the majors who were present in 1947 when the pension plan originated.

Dead Fish Turn Up In Blount's Creek Vicinity

Hundreds of dead fish have been reported floating along the shores of Blount's Creek, near Washington, within the last few days.

Reflector employee Mike Procata stated this morning that he and a friend journeyed to the creek this weekend on a short fishing trip and discovered "literally hundreds of fish" on the surface of the water and along the shore line.

Procata stated that he only surveyed an area of about 1000 yards between the Girls Scout Camp and the mouth of Blount's Creek and that within that area there were "Rock, Speckled Trout, Perch, Gar Fish, Flounders and many tiny fish." He reported that some of the fish were as large as five and six pounds.

"The operator of a small store near the area told us that the fish had turned up last Thursday night," Procata said.

As the Reflector goes to press, no explanation of the strange incident has been found, though it has been suggested that the fish may have died as result of the drainage of chemicals from the surrounding farm area.

State Wildlife officials have called in a fish biologist to look into the matter, it has been reported.

Te officials stated that a similar situation took place about two weeks ago in approximately the same area near Maul's Point. Biologists named insecticides as the cause of the earlier incident.

Nashua's Plans Are Unsettled

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Nashua, the millionaire horse, was scheduled to leave here for Saratoga Springs, N.Y., today with his future plans somewhat unsettled as the result of a stomach ache which forced his withdrawal from last Saturday's $100,000 Atlantic City Handicap.

Leslie Combs II, who headed a syndicate which paid $1,251,200 for Nashua last fall, said the 4-year-old colt would skip the $40,000 Whitney Stakes at Saratoga next Saturday.

Nashua apparently has fully recovered from the sudden case of colic but he was due for another examination today before being placed aboard a van for the trip to Saratoga.

With Nashua on the sidelines, the Woodland Farm's Blue Sparkler led most of the way in the mile and one-eighth race to win the $65,000 first-place money.

Purple Heart Hero Finally Hits Top

By JERRY LISKA
CHICAGO (AP)—Ted Kroll, golfer's Purple Heart hero, has captured the game's richest prize, the $50,000 top swag of the "World" tourney.

There was more than poetic justice as the 37-year-old Kroll, long seeking a major title, hit the jackpot with a sizzling 15-under-par total of 273 at Tam O'Shanter yesterday and prepared to pocket another $50,000 in exhibition money.

Kroll, who is short (5-8½), compact (152) and iron-nerved (he was wounded four times in World War II), indicated he would sign today with promoter George S. May for a minimum of 50 promotional exhibitions at $1,000 per appearance.

Kroll's fine string of 67-69-71-66 rounds matched the 1951 World record aggregate of 273 by Ben Hogan.

The $50,000 cold-cash first prize made Kroll the year's top money winner with $72,835, out fame and Hawkins closed with a 67 for his 276 and collected $10,000. Roberto Vicenzo of Mexico City had

Richardson Is Still In Davis Cup Limelight

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—Ham Richardson, considered one of America's top Davis Cup hopefuls although ranked only No. 7 in the nation, held the limelight today as the Newport Invitational Tennis Tournament opened at the Casino.

Richardson, a Rhodes Scholar from Westfield, N.J., was seeded second behind Australian Davis Cupper Ken Rosewall, but the tourney ratings were made before the young American's latest triumph.

Richardson won the Eastern Grass Court championship yesterday by overwhelming Neal Fraser of Australia, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2, or his fourth straight victory over an Aussie tourist.

Before his straight-set triumph over Fraser, Richardson defeated Aussie Roy Emerson, Rosewall and Ashley Cooper. It was Richardson's first Eastern Grass Court title.

Richardson lost his service only once to Fraser, in the second game of the first set. After that the American was in complete command.

Later, Ham and Vic Seixas, veteran member of the U.S. Davis Cup team, teamed in the doubles, but lost to Fraser and Rosewall. The Aussies were hard-pressed before gaining a 6-4, 8-6, 3-6, 4-6, 6-4 victory.

Trailing in order in the seedings behind Rosewall and Richardson at Newport are Cooper; Grant Golden of Chicago; Fraser; Emerson; Sid Schwartz of New York and Al Morris of Atlanta.

Several Fights Highlight This Week's Card

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Monday show from St. Nicholas Arena in New York has the airways all to itself this week with the Wednesday and Friday fights shut down because of conflict with the political convention at Chicago.

Jerry Luedee of New Haven and Willie Troy of Washington, D.C. are rematched in a 10-round middleweight battle to be seen on TV (DuMont) in some sections of the country. Troy beat Luedee on a split decision, July 10.

Eddie Machen will try to stretch his unbeaten streak to 16 Thursday at Portland, Ore. against Walter Hafer, Washington veteran. Machen knocked out Nino Valdes in his last previous start.

Ranked among the top 10 heavyweights at the age of 24, Machen, of Redding, Calif., is regarded by many as the best prospect in the division.

Bobby Melnick, manager of Yama Bahama of Bimini still is screaming about the events of last Thursday at Saginaw, Mich., when Bahama first was announced as the winner over Pat Lowry of Toledo, Ohio and 30 minutes later learned he had lost.

The officials claimed a recheck of one of the judge's cards showed he should have voted for Lowry 96-94 instead of his announced 94-92 vote for Bahama.

Melnick said he was protesting to the Michigan Boxing Commission.

Nothing Very New In Arab Crisis... 1,300 Years Old

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst
The Arab crisis is 1,300 years old.

For more than a dozen centuries the Arabs, their civilization cradled in the scorched Arabian Peninsula, have conquered and been conquered until the tides of history scattered them over a vast area now loosely known as "the Arab world."

Today the heart and center of that world is Egypt, and Egypt has set the Western world's nerves on edge. Nationalization of the Suez Canal, focus of the immediate crisis, is not the only Western worry. Arab ambitions, tempers, frustrations and hatreds have spread ferment from the Persian Gulf to the Atlantic.

Egypt's President Nasser, central figure in the latest crisis, calls this whole area "the Arab nation." His spoken aspirations make it plain he considers Egypt the leader of an Arab world which one day will be united.

It is far from united now. It is not really one world but at least four, linked loosely by ties of common religion and the Arab language. Nasser speaks for pan-Arabians, and Arabic speaking peoples are pulled strongly toward the dream. But national, racial, geographical and ideological rivalries keep the Arab lands disunited.

The 10 million Arabs who inhabit the Arabian Peninsula are an isolated world to themselves. Only the thin veneer of a modern civilization, induced by the flow of foreign oil royalties, covers centuries-old feudal systems.

The so-called fertile crescent — the area formed by Syria, Lebanon, Iraq, Jordan and Palestine — cradle of modern civilization and the great Western religions, is yet another world of some 12-million Arabs.

The almost 30 million Moslems of Egypt and Sudan, occupying a big patch of east Africa, are a third world, often described by fertile crescent people as more African than Arab. And about 20 million people who call themselves Arab occupy Morocco, Tunisia, Algeria and Libya in North Africa. Their religion is Moslem but in the mists of centuries many of the cultural ties with the Eastern Arabs have been lost.

All these countries have their own cultures, some tied to Europe. Many Arabs are Christians, particularly in Lebanon and Egypt. Some are Jews.

The new Egyptian constitution calls Egypt an integral part of the Arab nation, meaning the vast area in which at least 70 million who might be described as Arabs are linked by religion and language.

The common history and language stem from the militant religion founded by the prophet Mohammed, who was born in Mecca, on the Arabian Peninsula, in 570 A.D. The sword of Islam knifed East and West. In about 642, 10 years after Mohammed died, Arabs seized Egypt. By 683 they reached Morocco and in 1061 Moslems overran Spain. Islam spread eastward to what is now Soviet Central Asia.

But in the 13th century this power began to wane. The Arabs lost Persia and the eastern part of their empire to the Turks and Mongols. They lost Spain to Christians. Their empire split itself in fierce rivalries.

The rise of a hero like Nasser inflamed the deep-rooted desire among Arabs to regain their ancient grandeur after centuries of want and oppression. They sensed their latent power. They inhabited one of the most important sectors of the globe, the source of life-giving oil for Europe's industry and the crossroads of the world's trade. If Nasser could defeat the great powers in a spectacular show of defiance, there was a chance that the great pressure of millions of Arabs might overthrow rulers who failed to bury their old rivalries in the quest for a second empire of the Arab world.

Launching Is 'Success' As Movie Vessel Sinks

By GENE HANDSAKER
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A launching just completed at Los Angeles Harbor was a huge success because, as planned, the boat sank.

The occasion was the refilming of "The Buster Keaton Story" of a historic scene in one of the frozen-faced comic's two-reelers, "The Boat," 35 years ago. The scene kept silent-flicker audiences laughing for a minute and a half, claimed Keaton, on the set as technical adviser. He'd got the idea from a newsreel of a ceremonial ship-launching.

Donald O'Connor, portraying him in the biography, doesn't particularly resemble Keaton, but then who does? O'Connor, in a ridiculous, over-size admiral's uniform, mounted an 18-foot boat poised for launching on the ways of a yacht anchorage.

Prop men had knocked out the rear end of a real boat so water would rush in as it slid backward. They'd built on an upper deck with portholes to give the preposterous appearance of a miniature ocean liner. Two and a half tons of iron weighted the unseaworthy craft. The precautions were suggested by Keaton. It took him three days to shoot the scene originally because his boat kept refusing to sink.

But the remake went off smoothly in 20 seconds. O'Connor stood proudly at the wheel, one hand inside his coat in a Napoleonic pose, and sank with his vessel like a startled but dutiful sea captain. The only thing left floating was his pancake hat — one of 35 the studio had made, at $12.50 each, like the kind Keaton made famous in vaudeville and then silent movies.

The laughter and applause of perhaps a hundred crewmen and other bystanders onshore indicated the scene's remake may be as successful as the original. Any moviemaker will tell you you can't hardly get minute-and-a-half laughs any more.

In Many Ways, Averell And Adlai Are 'Twins'

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
CHICAGO (AP) — The great illusion at the Democratic convention is that there is a big difference between Adlai Stevenson and Gov. Harriman on national issues.

There isn't. On most they look like twins. Harriman himself has helped create this illusion by denouncing the "moderation" of Stevenson and of President Eisenhower too. He has done this for one of two reasons:

1. He thinks there is a difference of 2) he thinks it necessary to make himself sound like a political hot-rod in order to win the Democratic nomination and then the presidential election.

The best way to judge Stevenson and Harriman — on any differences or similarities between them — is on where they stand on the issues. Under that kind of examination they look alike:

Civil rights — Both are for a careful, gradual carrying out of the Supreme Court's ban on public school segregation. Both say that they would not use troops or guns. Both proposed a party platform plank backing the court.

Harriman would go one step further than Stevenson: he'd withhold federal aid to segregated schools. Stevenson would not.

Natural resources and power development — Both — and this is a standard Democratic cry — accuse the Eisenhower administration of a "giveaway" of natural resources. Both favor public development of water power and natural resources.

Labor — Both favor changes in the Taft-Hartley Labor Act and both are critical of the right-to-work laws — in some states — which forbid union shops.

Foreign policy — Both favor sizable economic aid to foreign countries. Stevenson suggests the United States and Russia join in giving economic help through the United Nations instead of separately as now. Harriman suggests a new international agency to do the job with the United States and Russia as members.

Both, of course, were highly critical of the Eisenhower administration's handling of foreign affairs.

Immigration — Both would make changes in the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act of 1952 to permit more people to enter this country.

Farm problems — Both favor 90 per cent of parity support prices and the soil bank plan. Harriman would additionally go along with a food stamp plan for needy families, a world conference on food resources. Both favor liberal farm credit.

Health and medical care — Both back away from the idea of a federal health insurance program. They talked of government help for private insurance plans.

Taxes — Stevenson is against a general tax reduction — if there is a budget surplus — until consideration is given to using the surplus to reduce the public debt and to national needs like housing and schools and lower taxes for low-income families.

A careful check with Harriman's office here turned up no evidence he has had anything to say about national tax problems. Housing — Harriman's office here could produce nothing from its files to show he had any plans on housing. Stevenson talked of housing problems in pretty general terms.

A WORD TO INVESTORS
Although I am an optimist on oils, chemicals, and certain other groups of stocks, yet I have continually kept in mind that some "unexpected event" may at any time happen. I wrote a column on this subject a few weeks ago. The recent sudden taking over of the Suez Canal by the new Egyptian Government is an illustration of what I had in mind. Even in these good days this sudden event caused several billion dollars to be knocked off the value of oil stocks and other internationally owned securities within a few hours.

We are now living in a small world. Whatever our religion, color, or nationality, we are brothers together economically. Every investor in the world has lost money by this act of the Egyptian Government. These investors are asking themselves: If this can be done to one of the oldest and most conservative investments, Suez Canal stock, why could it not be done to many other "blue chips"? However, all "unexpected events" are not bearish. Some are very bullish, such as the recent sudden adjournment of Congress until next January.

The Air Force chief of staff told a Senate Armed Services subcommittee July 19 that Russia has "thousands more jet combat planes in operational units" than the U. S. Air Force and Navy combined. A censored transcript of his testimony made public during the weekend quoted him also as believing the Russians are working on a long-range supersonic bomber "and will be able to make one someday."

He said that during his trip to Russia last month he and his group saw a light bomber which the Russians said was supersonic. Lt. Gen. C. S. Irvine of the Air Force's materiel branch testified the plane they saw "looks better than anything we have in our inventory in the light bomber category," but added that "I am sure our B58 will be much better."

Twining said this country still holds an advantage in aerial "striking power" but told the subcommittee "I was quite shocked" by the speed with which the Russians have produced MIG fighter planes.

Looking Toward 114th Birthday
FRANKLIN, Tex. (AP)—Old Soldier Walter Williams appeared to be fully recovered today from his latest illness and said he is looking forward to his 114th birthday next Nov. 12.

"I'm starting all over and there will be only 14 candles on the cake," the Confederate veteran said.

"I've got no time to go to the hospital. I'm too darn busy," he said, adding that he wanted to read the big stack of mail he received during his illness.

A siege of droopy gave him a few bad days recently.

HOSTAGE

by ARCHIE JOSCELYN

SYNOPSIS

In Wild West days, Narcissa Hull traveled by stagecoach to Coyote Creek, in northeastern Montana, to marry Emil Jacobsen. One passenger became obnoxious in his attentions to her—Dolf Kinney. He bragged of being the richest and most powerful man in the territory, and told her to jilt Jacobsen and marry him. Narcissa found comfort in the presence of Dr. Erd Eklund, who helped her fend off Kinney. When the stagecoach stopped at Coyote Creek, Emil was not waiting for her. "Look like your feller didn't show up," Kinney said. "When you change your mind, let me know." The doctor, who has to visit a sick Indian, offers Narcissa a ride to Emil's cabin. They find him—murdered only minutes before. On the way they heard a horseman passing swiftly but keeping out of sight.

To be able to take Narcissa with him when he visits the sick Indian, who may have smallpox, Dr. Eklund prepares to vaccinate her.

"Roll up your sleeve, above your elbow," Eklund told her. "It'll only take a minute."

Narcissa obeyed, disclosing a rounded white arm which caused the color to come to her cheeks, but he, as a doctor, had probably seen plenty of naked limbs before, she reflected. He was completely impersonal as he rubbed her arm with a moist pad, scratched with a needle, and nodded.

"That does it," he said. "You're vaccinated. It may be a little sore for two or three days—but you'll be safe from getting any worse. To be on the safe side, you stay here and look after the team while I make my call. There's Plenty Horses' cabin."

He indicated it, back among the trees. The girl gathered up the reins, and he saluted, but her question held surprise.

"I thought Indians lived in tents, or something, not houses!"

"Mostly they like tepees," he agreed. "But Plenty Horses is a lone wolf. He wanders around by himself, with not even a squaw. Some white man built this shack, and abandoned it, so Plenty Horses made himself at home."

He walked to the cabin, which was in an advanced state of disrepair, the one window a yawning cavity, the door sagging. Inside it was worse, but the sick man had not been hard to please. Eklund had come upon him beside the road, three days before, and had recognized at once that the man was not well.

Now, despite the poorness of the light, it required only a quick look to convince him that his first fears had been correct. It was too late for the vaccine here, too late for much of anything, unless the patient's physical stamina should carry him through. Wrapped in a red-striped blanket, Plenty Horses lay stretched on the bunk, tossing feverishly.

There was an old water bucket, and Eklund filled that from the creek which was close at hand. The sick man drank thirstily, and the doctor did what he could. He was thoughtful as he returned to the buggy.

"He's got smallpox, all right," he reported. "And there's only one good thing about it. He's off here, by himself, and so far as I know, he's been by himself for quite a while. Maybe it's an isolated case, that we can keep from spreading."

"But if he's been by himself, how would he get it in the first place?" Narcissa asked.

"That's what I wish I knew," he smiled wryly as he took his seat beside her.

"There are always so many questions, and it's hard to know the answers. For instance, an epidemic among the Indians right now might be a blessing in disguise. If it wiped out half of them, those who survived would be too weak to think about warring on the whites. On the other hand, a man couldn't knowingly condone such a thing—and a plague, once it gets started, is like a fire. When it's out of control, it can burn your own house down."

"You seem to be something of a philosopher, as well as a doc-place is only a couple of miles from the fort, too, and about three from town, which has its good points. We'll stop there on the way."

They had left the stunted-tree country behind, were back on the flatter prairie again, though occasional hills lifted or thrust a sharp shoulder petulantly upward. The ponies kept up a tireless pace. Suddenly the doctor exclaimed, contritely:

"You must be all played out—coming all that way by train and then jolting in that stage a couple of days, and this trip on top of it."

"I'd kind of forgotten about myself," Narcissa confessed. "But you've been on the go pretty steady yourself."

"That's a doctor's job: I'm used to it. We'll soon come to the ranch." He pointed to a tiny pin point of light which at first she had mistaken for a low-hanging star. "Somebody's still up."

Narcissa watched with increasing interest as they came nearer.

This, she decided, must be one of the big ranches she had heard about. The house looked comfortable; it was built of logs, as was the barn and the pole corral. Two or three other squat buildings were harder to define in the gloom.

"Soddies, Eklund explained. "He lived in one of them for a while, he told me, then hauled logs down from the mountains. It's an old-timer in this country. Tom is. Been here half a dozen years. He'd just finished the house when his wife died. Broke him up pretty bad, for he'd built it for her."

He swung the team up, raised his voice in a hail. A door opened, and a strong bellow came back.

"That you, Doc? What you doing this time o' night, when honest men should be abed?"

"Same as you, I guess, Tom," Eklund returned. "I've brought you a housekeeper." He jumped down, after winding the reins around the whip, turned to assist Narcissa.

"She's fresh out from Indiana," he explained, as they moved toward the house. "Came out to marry Emil Jacobsen. I was going out that way, and she rode with me. We found Emil dead—shot," he added bluntly.

Tom Armington was a big man, his hair iron-gray, with a broad sweep of mustache. The odor of saddle and stable clung to him, but Narcissa liked him instantly, and his own half-startled appraisal of her seemed approving.
