Pressure Grows For Compromise On Suez Dispute

LONDON (AP)—Pressure mounted today for a compromise over the Suez Canal that would save the pride of both Britain and Egypt. The pressure came from statesmen and newspapers as delegates arrived to begin a 22-nation conference Thursday on the canal's future.

Britain, France and the United States arranged the conference to work out international control of the 103-mile waterway.

Prime Minister Eden and Premier Guy Mollet of France met with their cabinets on the crisis. In Cairo, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi began a series of meetings with diplomatic representatives of countries taking part in the London talks.

Egypt precipitated the crisis last month by seizing the Suez Canal Co. It refused to attend the London conference but proposed one of its own.

There were reports the United States and India had put forward separate compromise proposals. The reports could not be confirmed.

A Foreign Office spokesman said he had no reason to believe the United States had changed its views since joining last week in the three power call for international control.

V. K. Krishna Menon, Indian delegate to the conference, saw President Nasser of Egypt en route to London. He then had a long talk on his arrival with Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd. Results of the talk were not disclosed.

Eden, before summoning his cabinet into special session, received leaders of the opposition Labour party.

Opposition leader Hugh Gaitskill said the Conservative Prime Minister seemed "broadly in agreement" with the views presented by the Labor delegation.

The Labor committee in Parliament yesterday asked Eden to give a public guarantee that Britain would not attack Egypt over the issue of the canal.

Iranian Foreign Minister Ali G. Ardalan, arriving for the conference, suggested Nasser was in a mood to compromise. He recalled Nasser's proposal Sunday for an alternative 45-nation meeting.

"According to his speech," said Ardalan, "he is willing to have a conference to find a solution. So long as you have a conference, meetings and conversations, you always have hope of finding a solution."

In Hamburg, Germany, the 7-84-ton British freighter Benledi was loaded about 70 British army trucks and other equipment.

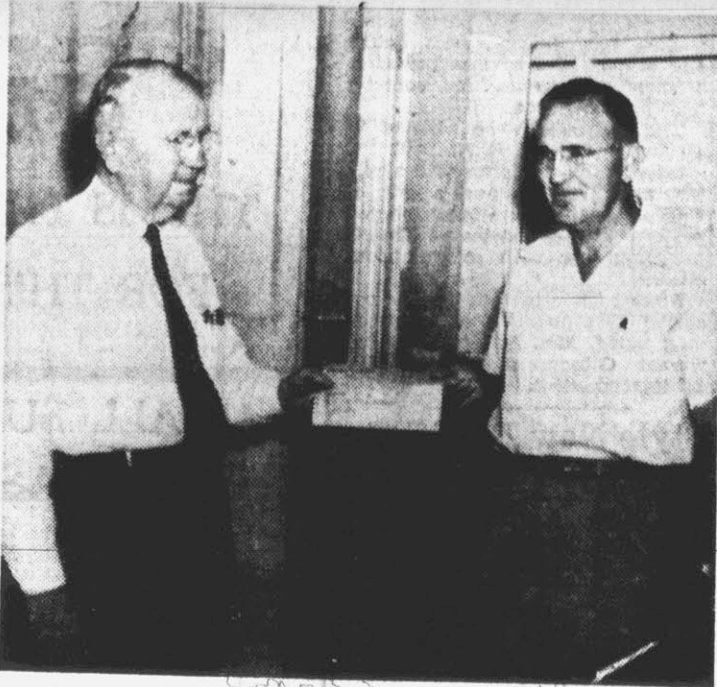

The ship's German agent said consular officials told him Gibraltar, Malta or Cyprus was the "most probable" destination. This meant the shipment was part of the big British air, land and sea buildup in the Mediterranean.

Communist Czechoslovakia in a Prague radio broadcast demanded a part in the London conference. Prague said nationalization of the canal was "a legal act of the Sovereign State of Egypt."

Some newspapers favored a strong line for Britain and France. But the independent Paris Figaro said the attitude of U. S. Secretary of State Dulles "will weigh very heavily on the results of the conference." He has come out for moderation.

The British press showed growing concern that Britain might stumble into war over the canal.

Utilities Deal Completed

FACILITIES SOLD—Greenville Utilities yesterday sold its electrical distribution facilities outside Pitt County to Carolina Power and Light Co. The deal was made official by an auction yesterday at which CP&L was the only bidder. City Councilmen approved the transaction following the sale. CP&L will pay $525,000 for the facilities plus an additional amount for improvements made to the system after the sale was negotiated. The money will be used for bond retirement. In the above photo W. H. Weatherston, vice-president and general counsel for CP&L is shown as he presents a deposit check for $118,000 to City Clerk H. H. Duncan. The balance will be paid when the city can give a clear conveyance of the deeds for the property. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Tobacco Mart To Launch 66th Year

By: W. L. Whedbee, Supervisor, Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade

On Thursday, August 23rd, at 9:00 a.m. the Greenville Tobacco Market will begin its 66th year of selling tobacco for farmers in this area.

This year Greenville, as it has for the past 65 years, will have for the tobacco farmers who sell on the Greenville Market unsurpassed competition on each and every grade of tobacco.

The importance of this complete buying competition cannot be over emphasized as it means more money in the pocket of every farmer who sells in Greenville on every grade of tobacco that he has to offer.

FIVE COMPLETE SETS OF BUYERS

Greenville, as every tobacco farmer knows, has five complete bona fide sets of buyers with every major export and domestic company in the world having a buyer on each of Greenville's five sales. No market in the nation has more buying strength than Greenville.

1955 GREENVILLE'S LARGEST YEAR

In 1955 farmers sold 73,644,996 pounds of tobacco on the Greenville Tobacco Market. This represents an increase of 17.2 per cent over and above the previous year's sales and is the greatest number of pounds of tobacco ever sold by farmers on the Greenville Tobacco Market in its entire 65-year history. Gross sales (including re-sales) on the Greenville Market in 1955 amounted to 77,524,533 pounds.

Dulles 'Confident' On Eve Of Suez Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today after meeting with President Eisenhower that he is confident of a "peaceful solution" of the Suez Canal dispute.

Dulles made his view known after a final 40 minute talk with Eisenhower, a few hours before leaving by special plane to attend the 22-nation conference which opens in the British capital Thursday.

"I go hopefully and with confidence that we will have a peaceful solution," he said.

Standing outside the White House, the secretary made clear this government was united with Britain and France in demanding international operation of the canal, instead of leaving it solely in Egyptian hands.

Dulles conferred for 40 minutes yesterday with Secretary of Defense Wilson; Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; and Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, commander of North Atlantic Treaty forces in Europe.

Results of the meeting were not disclosed, but presumably the four sought to coordinate diplomatic moves with defense strategy.

In advance of his departure Dulles was reported to feel his diplomatic efforts had eased the threat that war might break out in the Middle East over Egypt's move in seizing the Suez waterway.

American officials were reported optimistic that the London meeting would devise a formula for some kind of international control acceptable to both Egyptian and Western governments.

Some sources said advisers of Adlai Stevenson and Averell Harriman, the top-running presidential aspirants, were being consulted quietly.

The veteran McCormack, when asked about this replied: "Why, I'd never thought of that."

Charles Diggs Jr., Negro congressman from Detroit, said Northerners would present a minority report if they regarded the civil rights proposal unacceptable.

This group wants specific reference to the unanimous Supreme Court decision barring racial segregation in public schools.

John S. Battle, former governor of Virginia said one of several Southerners on the drafting group said any such reference would mean Southern Democrats "could not live within the party."

No Signs Yet Of Delegate Shift To Avert Deadlock

By JACK BELL
And WILLIAM T. PEACOCK
CONVENTION HALL, Chicago

There was no sign of a break today from the essential deadlock in the struggle among the Democrats over their presidential nomination.

"Favorite sons" still clinging to their votes, and the big block of delegates silent as to their sentiments kept the outlook teetering in uncertainty as the party faithful returned to this hall for the second day of their convention.

Forces backing Averell Harriman, who is waging an uphill battle to catch the front-running Adlai Stevenson, professed to find the situation to their liking.

The Harriman people said the reluctance of many state delegations to take a firm position indicate "discontent" in groups previously regarded as leaning to, or virtually in, the Stevenson camp.

But to many of the old pros, Stevenson looked like an odds-on favorite. By an Associated Press poll of delegates, he was just 132 1/2 votes short of the 686 1/2 needed for the nomination. Moreover, a big parcel of uncommitted votes was in the South. Southern sentiment is clearly toward a preference for Stevenson over Harriman if it comes to a choice of taking one or the other.

The AP poll of delegates willing to express a preference gave Stevenson 554, Harriman 229 1/2, and other candidates 283. This left 305 1/2 in the uncommitted category.

Among the uncommitted were 22 from Mississippi, 11 from Alabama, 14 1/2 from Arkansas, 19 1/2 from Georgia, 19 1/2 from Virginia, and 9 from North Carolina. South Carolina's 20 are pledged to Gov. George B. Timmerman as a favorite son.

And today, Tennessee decided that on the first ballot its 32 would go to Gov. Frank Clement, the party keynoter who rocked this hall last night with a fighting-praying call to arms against the Republicans.

For the delegates, there was more oratory on tap today. This time it was keyed to winning the housewife's vote and paraded Democratic women members of Congress.

Clement's "country style" oratory found high favor among the delegation from Missouri, one of the nation's largest producers of country style music. The Missouri boys talked of backing Clement for vice president.

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee also was being plugged for second place on the ticket. The California delegation reported strong sentiment for him.

Kefauver, who had made a bid in primaries for the presidential nomination but quit in July with an endorsement of Stevenson, got in some more licks in behalf of the man he is championing. He called a meeting of his former delegates to urge their support for Stevenson.

Kefauver said he had 259 convention votes promised him before he withdrew and that "about half" had gone over to Stevenson.

He hoped to swing more with his new appeal.

Former President Harry S. Truman, chief backer of the Harriman drive, was continuing his efforts in conferences with individual delegates. He is going to have a news conference tomorrow morning which will present an opportunity to speak out again in behalf of his man.

The former Illinois governor found himself confronted by a tightening freeze of "favorite son" and Southern state delegations apparently planning to scatter their votes among half a dozen or more names while they waited to see which way the decision might go.

Stevenson, the party's nominee in 1952, was reported as planning to shoot the works on the second ballot.

In their effort to boost their candidate's total, Stevenson's backers indicated they were counting on picking up strength primarily from New Jersey, Massachusetts and Washington, and from several Southern states.

Evangelical Fervor Marks Keynote Speech At Democratic Convention

By SAUL PETT
CHICAGO (AP)—It was, as the man said, "a give 'em hell and heaven" speech.

But Frank G. Clement, 36, governor of Tennessee, boy orator of the Cumberland and an old-fashioned spellbinder, lived up to his advance billing last night.

His keynote speech had evangelical fervor, untimely humor, thunder, searing denunciation of the opposition, songs of sweet harmony for the home team and a ringing battle charge. It had alliteration, metaphors (straight and mixed), rhyme, puns, catch phrases and, rolling sentences that began innocently, gathered speed and crashed like angry waves on the Republican beach.

He assailed the GOP opposition with cries of "Nixon, Dixon and Yates" . . . "party of privilege and pillage" . . . "the Republican triple B Benson, below parit, and bankruptcy."

He said President Eisenhower "cannot Jim Hagertize his ay through this whole campaign." He said, "The farmer has been de-vitalized by the GOP and Benson-ized by Ezra B." e said, "Foster (Dulles) fiddles, fritters, frets and flits," called him alternately the "wandering minstrel" and "the unguided missile."

The cheering, howling delegates in the blue-trimmed convention hall loved it, though they seemed to run down on steam toward the end. Not Clement. His energy and breath control showed no letup.

A literary purist might argue that the length of his sentences left you breathless and his metaphors occasionally wrestled each other to the ground.

Item: "That kind of double-faced campaign by the opposition the vice-hatchet man slinging slander and spreading half-truths while the top man peers down the green fairways of indifference—no will not be tolerated by the Democratic party."

Item: "... There is righteous ground for objection that the farmer's income is being ploughed under 26 per cent these past 3 1/2 years by the party that said when going to be fall in the saddle for big business—and has kept that promise with the highest batting average in the history of American politics."

Toward the end, Clement recited a catalogue of what he called Republican sins, his arms upraised, sweat streaming, down his angry, handsome face, down his blue collar, blue shirt, blue suit. Before each stipulated sin of the enemy, he asked, "How long, oh, how long" would they be tolerated. There were a dozen "how longs."

And at the very end, his fist raised high, he shouted, "Precious Lord, take us on!"

Eleanor Roosevelt's gentle, ex-temporaneous speech contrasted strikingly with Clement's thunder. Mrs. Roosevelt got her own special response from the delegates—standing applause, a light in their eyes and, one imagines, a special something running up their spines.

The delegates also enjoyed a party propaganda film and a quiz show.

Clement brought to the microphone two quiz kids—Gloria Lockman and Leonard Ross, who together had won $148,000 on two television programs.

The keynoter questioned the children.

Q. What are all these delegates doing here?

A. They're going to nominate the next President of the United States.

Q. How does the growth of small business under the Republicans compare with the Democratic years?

A. Eight to one in favor of the Democratic administration.

There were other questions and other answers, none of which labeled the Democrats.

Hurricane Takes Northerly Course

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Betsy veered away from its bee-line course toward Florida today and forecasters said that if the trend continues the center of the small but violent tropical storm may never reach the Florida coast.

Hurricane warnings were lowered along the thickly-populated southeast Florida "Gold Coast" from Palm Beach southward at 11 a.m. EST as the storm continued its gradual swing away from its earlier northwest course to a more northerly direction.

The checkered warning flags still flew, however, along the 100-mile stretch of coast from Palm Beach to Melbourne and a "hurricane watch" was advised from Melbourne to Brunswick, Ga.

A "hurricane watch" is a warning for residents to keep abreast of storm advisories and be ready to take precautions if they become necessary.

Centered 230 miles east of Palm Beach, hurricane Betsy was moving northwestward about 14 m.p.h. Forecasters said it probably would continue on its present course the next six to 12 hours.

After that, the 11 a.m. EST advisory said, "There are some indications of a more northerly movement. If this development occurs, the likelihood of the hurricane center reaching the Florida coast will decrease."

The storm's intensity was unchanged. Winds of 120 m.p.h. whirled in a small area around the "eye" and winds of hurricane velocity—75 m.p.h. or greater—reached out 150 miles to the northeast and 75 to 100 miles on other sides of the storm.

Betsy is scheduled now to reach the coast late tonight or early Wednesday, but hours before that rising winds and tides will signal the approach of the storm.

The hurricane was bearing in from the Bahama Islands after doing millions of dollars worth of damage in Puerto Rico.

Hurricane signals flew along the state's east coast from Miami 169 miles north to Melbourne and from Palm Beach, 60 miles north of Miami, inland to Lake Okeechobee.

The Weather Bureau said the Palm Beach vicinity was Betsy's most probable point of entry. It was at Palm Beach in September 1928 that one of Florida's most disastrous hurricanes slammed ashore and killed nearly 2,000 persons—most of them with a wall of water blown off Lake Okeechobee onto flatlands south of the lake.

Demo Platform Writers Seek Unity Over Private Feelings

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON
CHICAGO (AP)—Democratic platform drafters sought today to place party unity above how they feel on racial segregation in schools—an issue that could tear them apart as they gird for the November elections.

Compromisers went to work at the party's convention where they work best—backstage. You had to strain to see the forces trying to settle the dispute to the satisfaction of both North and South.

At stage center was the platform's farm plank, about to be put on public display shortly. So far, three such little-controversy planks have been unveiled as proposals of a 17-member drafting committee, yet to be acted upon by the 108-member Platform Committee and the convention delegates.

These three deal with finances, atomic energy and domestic policies in general. Together with the civil rights and seven other planks they are expected to be made ready today and tonight for presentation to the convention in time for a final vote tomorrow night.

A strong voice for party unity, with a civil rights plank somehow satisfactory to all, was that of Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn of Texas.

Rayburn told his Texas delegation yesterday: "Somewhere, some way we will get a plank on which Texas can run a candidate for president and elect him."

Rayburn is backing Senate Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, Texas' favorite son, for the presidential nomination.

House Leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, chairman of the Platform Committee, is holding the touchy civil rights plank till last.

"I feel confident of a platform that the convention will approve," he told newsmen. To questions, he

Pitt's Polio Patients Costing Local Chapter $200 Every Day

Pitt County's 10 hospitalized polio patients this summer are costing the local chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis more than $200 per day.

Chapter Chairman J. H. Rose said expenses for the patients, all young children except one 20-year-old mother, are running from $19 to $31 a day each, "plus extras."

All the victims but one are paralyzed in some form. One young child has returned to his home and is improving, Rose said, but he must continue to visit Duke Hospital at frequent intervals for further treatment and therapy.

Chapter Treasurer Jonathan Overton reports a balance on hand of $10,547. Rose said the bills for the polio patients are just beginning to come in and "the money will last about a month and a half."

However, he pointed out that when the local funds are depleted, "the National Foundation will send us all the money we need to pay the bills. We have sent them thousands of dollars in the past to help out other areas, and they will help us out now."

He said no special fund drive will be held in the county, but persons wishing to make contributions may do so through himself or Overton. Checks should be made out to the Pitt County Chapter for Infantile Paralysis.

He said he has received two checks for the foundation in memory of seven-year-old Lewis Mose of Farmville who died of polio two weeks ago, one check in the amount of $5, and the other for $25.

During the regular January campaign this year, $14,000 was con-

C-of-C Directors Initiate Pitt-Wide Study Program

Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors last night voted to support the formation of an organization to promote industrial development in Pitt County.

Ben L. Rouse, a member of the board, proposed that the Chamber investigate the possibility of such an organization and President Dan Saleed was authorized to appoint a committee to assist in developing a plan of operation and organization.

The plan would mean that instead of each Pitt County town organizing its own industrial development program, they would combine their resources on a county-wide basis.

Similar Programs

Rouse pointed out a similar program is now in operation in Union County and other sections of the state where several counties have come together to form an area industrial development program.

Leonard P. Bloxam, chairman of the Chamber's Industrial Com-tributed to the fund, of which half was sent to the National Foundation. Rose said some $500 has been spent this year on old polio cases; for new braces and other therapeutic care. A surplus of last year's fund makes the treasury balance of a little more than $10,000.

The chairman said this is the second "bad polio year" for Pitt County. In 1950 there were some 10 cases, but not one of these was paralytic.

School Coats Have Slim Lines

SCHOOL FAVORITES... The second-grader at left wears a fitted coat in dark green and red wool with deep green velvet collar, bow and buttons, with bonnet to match. Big sister is set to keep warm in any weather in a classic dark gray alpaca coat with pearl buttons and roomy pockets, with new narrower lines. Both designs are by Bambury.

By DOROTHY ROE
MAJOR INVESTMENT in any back-to-school wardrobe is a coat which will see the young fry smartly through a long, hard season, from snowballs to Sunday School.

Mom will be wise, therefore, if she examines fabric labels carefully, selects a sturdy wool or a proven blend that will stand the gauntlet, dark enough not to show soil easily, cut on the simple lines that always are best for school girls.

This fall there are some new wrinkles in the school coat lineup. Lines are narrower than last year, usually sloping gently from the shoulders, slightly wider at the hemline. Dark, rich colors are the tops, with brown and black combinations high in favor. There's a dark chocolate brown that is particularly good in classic alpaca coats, while dark muted plaids also are important.

The new coats may be either fitted or loose, both styles being equally smart. Linings take on new interest this year, also. There are many millum linings, giving all-weather comfort. Sometimes a contrasting lining is used, with a scarf to match.

Hooded coats are all over the place for winter, as the younger set catches up with the sports-car trend.

Chesterfields, refters and perennial boy-coats are still top favorites for the school crowd, who are inclined to like their fashions classic.

Political Candidates' Wives Brush Up On Campaign Manners

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Wives of political candidates expect to do their husbands proud in the forthcoming campaigns. Women of both parties have been boning up on how they can be a help to their husbands when they accompany them about the country this summer.

Republican women are armed with a pamphlet, "Mind Your Political Manners," put out by the women's division of the Republican National Committee. This is chiefly for the wives who expect to plan and execute pow-wows for their husbands or other candidates.

Most of the wives, already hep to the problem of protocol in Washington—who outranks whom at dinners and receptions involving foreign diplomats and high-ranking officials—are told how to seat the local politicians according to their importance.

Democrats and Republicans alike banded together for a series at their own Congressional Club which emphasized platform behavior, campaign dress, the art of meeting people and of holding gracious radio, TV and press conferences.

They were told to choose good-looking, well-made clothes, but to steer clear of the fussy and flashy. Loud colors, zany hats, showy jewelry and bangles distract audience attention from the speaker—presumably their husband.

Many wives also have been taking intensive courses in public speaking and are ready to take over the mike when their husband gets windied, or even to fill in for him on occasions where he's scheduled to appear elsewhere.

Some wives have been known to win more votes for friend husband than he does himself.

On the other hand, Mrs. Karl Mundt, wife of the Democratic senator from South Dakota, expresses the view of many, saying the women voters would rather see the wives of the candidates than hear them.

Guests were greeted by the hostesses, honoree and her mother, Mrs. C. L. Brady.

A color note of yellow and white was carried out in decorations and refreshments. Yellow mums were used in arrangements in the living room and on the dining table where Cokes, dainty party sandwiches, lady fingers, nuts, mints and bridal cakes were served after a variety of games and contests had been enjoyed.

The hostesses were assisted in serving by Mrs. J. R. Standell.

Miss Brady was presented a yellow mum corsage and a gift of wall plates and china in her chosen pattern by the hostesses. Guests presented her with miscellaneous gifts.

Among those present for the occasion were members of the wedding party, Mrs. Brady, and Mrs. Hassal Gibson, mother of the bridegroom-elect.

Style Now Bouffant; Blue Tint Thrown In

LOS ANGELES (U)—Don't shoot, men—that blue-haired Viking in the kitchen may be your wife.

The California Cosmetologist Assn. at its annual convention displayed the hairdos of nearly 150 hair stylists—and something called the bouffant emerged as the dominant new style.

The bouffant was described as the flaring out of hair on the sides into the shape of an old Viking warrior's helmet. It's the fashion of 1912, but with a modern touch, one expert said.

The "touch" was blue tint. "Everything's blue these days," the expert said.

Third Birthday Celebrated
GRIFTON—Little Miss Olivia Reeves celebrated her third birthday on Friday afternoon by having as guests neighborhood playmates. Games were enjoyed on the back lawn of the Reeves home and later in the afternoon the three-tiered birthday cake which was decorated in pink and green was served with ice cream by the hostess mother, Mrs. Edwin Reeves, assisted by Jane Cobb.

League Sponsors Open Meeting On Pearsall Plan Provisions

On August 21 at 8 p.m. in the Court Room of City Hall, the Voters Service Committee of the Greenville League of Women Voters will sponsor an open meeting to better familiarize the public with the Pearsall Plan. State Representative Walter Jones of Farmville will discuss in detail this issue upon which the public will vote on September 8. The public is urged to attend.

This is the second public service meeting which the Voters Service Committee of the League has conducted in recent weeks. The first open forum was held prior to the recent bond issue vote and was devoted to the needs of the Recreation Department of the City of Greenville. At this meeting the Rev. Leonard Topping, Mrs. L. W. Edwards, Mrs. W. M. Johnston, Gordon Goodman, Tyson Bilbro and K. T. Futrell, members of the Recreation Commission, spoke on various phases of these needs.

Mrs. William Johnston, chairman of the Voters Service Committee, has stated that her committee is already taking steps to see that a record number of voters will go to the polls in November. She urges everyone of voting age to be sure they are properly registered, pointing out that voting precincts will be open the next two Saturdays for registration purposes. Mrs. Johnston stressed the fact that properly registered persons may vote September 8 on the Pearsall Plan and may also vote in November for the party of their choice.

In stressing the importance of voting, Mrs. Johnston states that the growing apathy on the part of qualified voters is alarming. She asked everyone to repeat to himself with conviction, a quotation from a speech of U. S. District Judge Luther W. Youngdahl: "I am only one—but I am one. I can't do much—but I can do something. What I can do, I ought to do. What I will do, I will do."

Mrs. Johnston has recently appointed the following League members to serve with her on the Voters Service Committee: Mrs. J. B. Spilman, Mrs. H. H. Bryant, Mrs. Samuel Sewall, Dr. Kathleen Stokes, Mrs. Charles Horne Sr. and Mrs. M. P. Bailey Jr.

School For Methodist Women Scheduled For August 20-24

The Tenth Annual School of Missions and Christian Service scheduled to be held at Duke University August 20-24 is expected to attract several hundred Methodist women representing 722 local Women's Societies of Christian Service, with a total membership of 24,910. The school is sponsored by the North Carolina Conference Women's Society of Christian Service. Mrs. Pierce Johnson of Weldon is the organization's president.

A Spiritual Life Retreat, conducted by Miss Estelle Carver of Whitinsville, Mass., will be held August 18-19, immediately preceding the school. Mrs. J. C. Burwell of Warrenton is the conference secretary of spiritual life.

General theme for the school will be "Teach Me, Lord, That I May Teach." Highlighting the five day program will be courses of study for the current Conference year, workshops, clinics for officers training and assemblies.

The study courses and their instructors will be: Mission Field, U.S.A., Mrs. R. M. White, Richmond, Va.; Southeast Asia, Dr. Creighton Lacy, Duke University; and Miss Mildred Drescher, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Paul's Letters to Local Churches, Mrs. E. L. Hillman, Siler City, and Miss Estelle Carver; Youth in a Responsible Society—A Christian's Concern, Mrs. D. L. Fouts, Mt. Olive.

Sessions of the two workshops held each morning, Tuesday through Friday, will have as their emphasis The Outreach of the Woman's Division. Around the World with Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Helen Bourne of Greenwood, S. C., as leaders, and Methods and Techniques of Program Building, Dr. Guion Johnson, Chapel Hill and Mrs. J. H. Brown, Hobbinsville. The eight lines of work to be emphasized at the clinics for officers training will include the offices of vice president, recording secretary, and secretaries of promotion, missionary education and service, Christian social relations, spiritual life, literature and publications and Wesleyan Service Guild.

The daily noon and evening assemblies will feature addresses on topics pertinent to the program of the Woman's Division of Christian Service, by members of the school's faculty. Speakers for the noon hours will be Dr. Johnson, Mrs. Fouts and Mrs. White. Three of the four evening assemblies will have, for their speakers, Miss Drescher, Dr. Lacy and Miss Carver. On Tuesday evening the film "John Wesley" will be shown.

An important little housekeeping detail that often gets overlooked is providing fresh soap for both basin and shower. It may seem trivial until somebody has to climb dripping out of the tub to borrow soap from the basin.

Let that be your cue to keep fresh soap handy at both places, and make cleanliness as easy and inviting as possible for every member of the family.

It's Hamburger In New Guise

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

WE'VE INVENTED A HAMBURGER. Tasters have given their blessings and naturally we're prejudiced in its favor. Our inspiration for the hamburger came from the Italian way of serving roasted sweet red peppers and anchovies together. If you are partial to these two foods, do try this recipe.

OUR OWN HAMBURGERS
Ingredients: 1 pound ground beef chuck, 4 whole canned pimientos (drained), 8 caper-rolled anchovies (drained), salt, pepper.
Method: Make 8 flat matching-size patties of the beef; each should be about 4 inches in diameter. Place a pimiento in the center of 4 of the patties; tuck 2 anchovies into each pimiento. Cover with 4 remaining patties and seal edges well with fingers so hamburgers look plump and are about 3 inches in diameter. Grill over charcoal or in a little butter in a skillet to desired doneness. Sprinkle both sides of hamburgers with salt and pepper during cooking.

Note: There are usually 4 to 5 pimientos in a 4-ounce can and about 12 caper-rolled anchovies in a 2-ounce can.

We like these hamburgers served with well-buttered toast but otherwise unembellished. But if you are planning to cook and serve them outdoors, you may wish to offer them with hamburger rolls, slices of tomato and onion and pickles.

A portable charcoal grill is fine for outdoor hamburger cooking. A matching insulated jug, with a pumping unit, can hold iced tea.

HAMBURGERS AND FIXINGS—Served with iced tea.

Just push the rubber bulb on the jug when you are ready to serve and the tea will issue forth. No lifting, tilting or pouring!

ICED TEABAG TEA
Put 18 teabags in a container. Bring 1 quart of water in a saucepan (do not cover) to a rolling boil. Pour boiling water over teabags and brew 5 minutes; stir. Remove teabags and add to tea to 1 quart cold water. Add sugar and lemon to taste. Serve over ice cubes.

DEVILED CELERY SOUP
Ingredients: 1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed cream of celery soup, 1 1/2 cups milk, 1 can (2 1/4 ounces) deviled ham, minced parsley or chives.
Method: Mix condensed soup, milk and deviled ham together; heat, stirring occasionally. Sprinkle with parsley. Makes 4 servings.

To remove stains from inside the spout of your teapot, wrap a pipe cleaner with cotton, dip this into thick soap or detergent suds, and let it rest in the nozzle for a few minutes.

Next, use the sudsy pipe cleaner as a plunger so the in-and-out motion will loosen any deposits which have formed in the spout. Then wash the entire piece in hot suds, dry—and you'll have a teapot any Englishman would be proud to pour from.

Keynoter Hung His Own Star High

Gov. Frank Clement hung a new star on the Democratic horizon last night.

His own! In his keynote address there were shades as well as words of Harry Truman, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Albion Barkley and William Jennings Bryan. Woven into one of the most impressive keynote addresses at a Democratic National Convention in years were the fighting qualities of Truman, the disarming quiet of Roosevelt's chats, the hill-country characteristics of Barkley and phrases of Bryan.

The 36-year-old governor of Tennessee made a significant impression upon the 3,000 delegates and millions in the TV audience which in all probability will be of importance to him in later years if indeed not this year.

In the brief span of one hour Clement hung his star in the national political arena where it will be looked upon, referred to, and not soon forgotten. Mentioned prominently as a vice presidential candidate before the convention began, he may well emerge as the fighting young man to give strength to the party ticket in the number two spot this year.

Aside from the man behind the speech, there are other things which should not be overlooked. If, in fact as well as in title, Clement's address is to form the keynote of the Democratic campaign this year, it is clear what course will be followed. President Eisenhower will be attacked vigorously for the failures of his administration. While others in the close circles of his political family will not be spared the blast of words, the President himself will be tagged for the shortcomings of his administration. At the same time members of the cabinet, particularly Secretaries Benson, Wilson and Dulles will be important secondary targets for campaign attacks.

First Step Taken For County-Wide Program

The first step toward a county-wide industrial development program for Pitt was taken last night by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

Such a move has been needed in the county for a long time. Now that the initial step has been taken, there should in time develop a county-wide program to attract industry to this area.

The Greenville Chamber of Commerce authorized the appointment of a committee to make a study of other areas of the state where industrial development programs are operating on a county-wide or area wide basis. Following the study the committee is to report back to the local Chamber of Commerce and confer with other Chambers of Commerce in the county.

It is logical that in industrial development Pitt County should be treated as a unit. Development of new industries anywhere in the county will be of benefit to all sections of the county. And by combining the resources of the various communities which are seeking industrial development a more comprehensive program can be financed than by each community seeking to stage its own program.

As in any other joint movement on a county or area basis, the key to its success will be the degree of cooperation between the several communities involved. The cooperative feeling between the individual communities of Pitt at the outset provides a foundation upon which a sound county-wide industrial development program can be built.

On a county-wide basis, Union County has brought about one of the best industrial development programs in North Carolina. And the program has paid off for all the people of that county through more plants and more jobs.

In the Western part of the state several counties have formed an industrial development group which is attracting industry into the several counties. In the Southeastern part of the state seven counties are now in the process of forming another industrial development group on an area basis.

A county-wide industrial development program for Pitt County is indeed ambitious. Nevertheless such a program offers the greatest promise for attracting the industrial development which will benefit people throughout Pitt.

Opinions In Brief

ODESSA, WASH., RECORD: "The man who lived through the depression . . . had seen conditions that were really rough. His greatest lesson is the one that gives him comfort now. He studiously avoids going into debt, has devoted a part of his annual gain into savings designed to carry him through any bad years . . . When we have provided this protection, we are independent of governmental whims and fancies."

CLAREMONT, MINN., NEWS: "For the past twenty-five years there has been a wild race among the different groups of people in this country to get more back in the form of subsidies than one pays to the subsidies of other groups. It is admittedly a poor practice all around as in the transfer payments and their appointees take off a large slice of the exhorated money."

WARREN, R. I., GAZETTE: "A group of foreign manufacturers being shown an American plant saw a machine that took a piece of steel and in one operation stamped, punched and shaped it into a finished product. After they had watched it for a while, an apparently bitter argument broke out, with much arm waving and finger shaking. The guide asked the interpreter accompanying the party what the shouting was all about. 'Some of them,' said the interpreter, 'insist that it can't be done!'"

MYRTLE BEACH, S. C., DAILY NEWS: "We can take a lesson in democracy from Iceland, where 90 per cent of the voters actually voted."

Then there is Nixon who will rank second only to the President in attention given in speeches by Democratic campaigners. Clement in his attacks upon Nixon left the GOP little ground for retreating from Nixon's renomination even if Republicans would like to follow the course advocated by Harold Stassen. To dump Nixon after Clement's speech would be to play into Democratic hands. Not to do so will only mean more of the same.

Gov. Clement did an outstanding job in setting the keynote for a fighting Democratic campaign. In so doing, he likewise turned in a good night's work in his own behalf.

If In Dark, Nobody But Themselves To Blame

The American citizen who has difficulty in keeping up with what goes on at the national conventions this week and next have only themselves to blame.

More information will be disseminated on these two national events than any other happenings of comparable importance in history.

A crop of more than a thousand newsmen are on hand in Chicago this week to inform the public of what goes on. They will turn out an estimated eight million words of reports on the happenings. On top of that the radio and television coverage of the convention is the most elaborate ever staged of a public event.

After this week in Chicago the extravaganza will be repeated next week in San Francisco when the faithful of the GOP gather to go through many of the same motions.

More than ever before the American people have a ringside seat at the national conventions of the major political parties. And more than ever before the citizens of the country should profit by what they learn this week and next.

Longer Pay Period For Our Legislators

By LYNN NISBET

LEGISLATIVE PAY — The compensation of members of the General Assembly has for many years been fixed by the constitution. Salaries of all other State officials, elected or appointed, and all employees are set by the Legislature, directly or through delegated powers. Limitations have been that compensation of constitutional executive officers cannot be increased or diminished during the term for which elected. Compensation of judges may not be diminished, but may be increased during the term.

Rising cost of living and inflation have occasioned three changes in legislative pay in recent years. It went from $4.00 per day for a period not exceeding 60 days, to $6.00 for the session regardless of duration, and then to $15 per day for not exceeding 90 days. Presiding officers receive $20 a day and in event of extra session the pay is limited to 25 days at the same rate.

The people will vote September 8 on an amendment proposed by Rep. Bascom Sawyer of Pasquotank and submitted by the 1955 General Assembly extending the pay period to 120 days for the regular session, leaving the extra session limit at 25 days. The pending amendment adds something entirely new to North Carolina policy, in the provision for travel and living expenses. The second part of the pay section to be voted upon reads: "The members and presiding officers shall also receive, while engaged in legislative duties, such subsistence and travel allowance as shall be established by law; provided, such allowances shall not exceed those established for members of State boards and commissions generally."

The present maximum subsistence allowance for board and commission members is $8 per day inside the state, $11 for out of state visits. Travel allowance is 7 cents per mile if the member uses his own car, actual cost of travel on public transportation systems.

APPLICATION — Since it is unlikely that any regular session in the near future will run for less than 120 days, the effect of the amendment will be to increase salaries or wages of the members from $1,350 to $1,800. The $8 subsistence allowance for the duration of the session, and for any other legislative duties for which members may be called, will add $1,000 to $1,500 to receipts of each member, making total payments approximately $3,000 per session. That is more than double the present rate.

Experience of legislators in recent years has been that they have had to dig into their own bank accounts to pay for the privilege of serving the State. That is obviously an unsatisfactory situation and unwarranted imposition upon the members. Assuming the $3,000 payment for 120 days, it figures out at $25 a day, or $175 a week—counting Sunday. Out of that the member must pay his hotel bill and travel plus the numerous incidental items which add to the cost of living away from home—including a lot of telephone calls and some meals for constituents.

If the amendment is ratified, as expected, legislators still will receive very little compensation for time and services given to the State. They will not have to pay for the privilege of serving the people. They will be giving their time largely for free. Some members can ill afford that, but majority of them are willing to give the time and energy required in the same spirit they devote efforts to church and civic work at home.

It might be wise for the General Assembly to implement the constitutional provision by statutory definition of "legislative duties," to eliminate claims by some members for time spent in more or less personal "legislative duties" when the Assembly is not in session. Demands upon members for this type of activity are heavy in many counties.

MEETING TIME — For more than a century the constitution has required the General Assembly to convene on Wednesday following the first Monday in January after the election. In recent years there has been considerable loss time in the early states waiting for reports on income tax yields which have come in mid-March. Since the date for filing income tax returns was moved from March 15 to April 15 the idling time was extended, resulting in prolonged sessions.

An amendment proposed by Sen. Lunaford Crew of Halifax and submitted to the voters by the 1955 Legislature would change the date for convening to the Wednesday after the first Monday in February. Proponents of the idea contend that it has other merit. It will give legislators time to get their home business straightened out after New Year day and enable them to give more undivided attention to legislative duties, thus speeding up activities prior to bedrock consideration of the money bills—which cannot be written until the tax reports are studied.

This is the only one of the four amendments to be voted upon September 8 about which your reporter has not heard a single word of objection.

WOMEN — In old English common law, upon which most Federal and State laws are based, women were accorded small if any recognition in the economic scheme. Original Federal and State constitutions denied them the right to vote or hold office and statutes made the wife little more than a chattel of the husband. Questions have arisen in the amendment is clear: "Every married woman may exercise powers of attorney conferred upon her by her husband, including the power to execute and acknowledge deeds to property owned by her or by her husband or by her husband."

himself for not carrying more insurance on the building. He might, in his frenzy, have rushed in and tried to bring everything out, and himself have perished. But he did none of these things. Here was a great scene worth painting, and he started with frantic haste to paint it.

Objectivity is one of life's greatest achievements. If you can stand off and look at yourself and your troubles instead of getting enmeshed with them, you will find it makes all the difference between hope and despair, between triumph and defeat. The next time you find yourself in some sort of difficulty, try to get a little distance away from it, where you can see it objectively. Take a good look at it—and yourself.

Sample Script For Chicago Speech

By JIMMY ELLIS

Beard Linked To Ambitions

Every child, at some time or other in his juvenile years, solemnly announces to the world that he intends to be something.

Usually the announced intentions fall in the "exciting" occupations, policeman, fireman, bus driver, or something like that. Very few six-year-olds want to be bank presidents, lawyers, newspaper reporters or representatives of similar distinguished occupational groups. The six-year-old is looking for excitement and honestly believes he'll find it as a cop or fireman or in some similar occupation. Very few of them follow their announced intentions. Mostly because of later influences like stern poppas and mommas.

Now, when I was a wee bit of a thing the only ambition I ever had was to be rich. Don't get me wrong, it wasn't the money involved. We always had a little bit (25 or 30 cents) around the house to operate on and the presence of such never really registered.

I want to be rich because I thought then that rich folks could do just what they wanted to do and get away with it. I had one old fellow in mind, a gentleman of several decades who, in addition to a full pocketbook, a full beard. He was the only man I knew at the time with nerve enough to laugh when he passed the barber shop. I wanted to be like him, I wanted a beard.

Now, you have to understand that one of the inheritances given to my brothers and me has been a generous natural supply of whiskers. I have known since I was old enough to watch my father sharpen his razor that I was going to have to shave every day of my adult life. My father did and explained that he had to do it because he "met the public." He worked for a living (still does) and "the public" wouldn't do business with a man who dared to meet them with a face full of whiskers. Somewhere along the line I convinced myself that it took money to do things out of the ordinary I figured that my old hero had a beard because he had money and really didn't give a happy hoot what that general public thought of him. He didn't have to "meet the public" and depend on its social desires to get along in life.

Of course, I've changed basic ideas of life through the years, but I'd still like to be rich. A man who doesn't have every day can scarcely imagine what it's like fussing with a razor every morning.

It would be comforting to exchange my razor for a pair of scissors. It would be even more comforting to have my wife explain lack of shaving by saying, "Oh, he doesn't have to shave. He's loaded. You know, rich and eccentric."

But one thing that has me stumped is this: Would it be a compliment to have old friends say "I knew that boy when he had to shave every day." I'd love to find out.

An Ally Is Shoved Around

By ELMER ROESSNER

Japan gets a lot of shoving around for a country we are trying to keep out of the Communist orbit.

Take tuna. We have raised barriers to limit importation of this fish; now there are demands for even higher fences to keep it out. It is true Japanese fishermen are paid much less than Americans out of work. But this is one of the few food products Japan can spare to export to earn dollars with which to buy American goods. And so far, at least, American housewives have shown considerable willingness to pay 5 or 10 cents more a can for the American brands they are familiar with.

Take cotton goods. Opposition to Japanese imports in some of the cotton-manufacturing communities is so strong that merchants who handle Japanese goods are threatened with boycotts. In shipping out these goods, Japan, in a sense, is exporting cheap labor and in that sense American workers and manufacturers are competing with workers who earn only a few cents an hour. Yet Japan has surplus cotton manufacturing facilities and if she cannot sell to the democracies she may be forced to sell to China and Russia.

1933 LAW INVOKED

Take defense materials. Other Japanese-made goods have run afoul of a law enacted in 1933. During the depression Congress passed the Buy American law which requires government agencies to purchase American products only, except in certain cases. One section provides that contractors using foreign materials in government construction shall be blacklisted from Federal contracts for three years.

The workings of this law have created what is now called the "Fort Lewis case." It was discovered that a contractor erecting 800 family housing units at Fort Lewis, Wash., had used Japanese plywood paneling and doors in 240 units. The action was inadvertent; the contractor did not know the plywood had been processed in Japan.

The Army's Judge Advocate General ruled that the contractor would have to tear out and replace the doors and panels or suffer blacklisting. The case was appealed to Assistant Army Secretary Frank Higgins who decided the national interest would be injured by such a step. The matter had already delayed three months; now there is another delay to find an American manufacturer who can produce doors and panels to the original specifications.

SOLUTION DIFFICULT

An interdepartmental committee has been set up in Washington to determine policy in such cases. The Army's corps of Engineers has suggested that when granting construction contracts, the government itself examine the specifications for each item to make sure it conforms to the law. This would effectively bar almost all foreign materials. Other agencies, however, feel the law should be interpreted more liberally. Some think that if the final process is applied to a product in the United States it should be considered American.

The State Department is watching developments closely. Any action to take American markets away from our allies will hurt us all the way through the democratic world and comfort the Reds.

FARMER HELD TOPS

AS SHOE WEARER-OUTER — Neither the policeman nor the mailman is the shoe industry's darling any more. Shoe men love the farmer most.

With prowl cars and lab work, the average cop walks only 14 miles a day, according to some research by Paul O. MacBride, an official of the National Shoe Fair in Chicago next October. The mailman walks an average of 22 miles a day, he found, and the average farmer does 25½ miles in tending his fields.

The farmer, Mr. MacBride noted, insists on good shoes, resistant to moisture and hard wear, and with cushioned insoles. Furthermore, he wants good lines and dash of style—so much so that many farm shoes are also offered as sportsman's shoes.

Notebook On Life

Movies . . . Costlier Than Ever

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—It is a poor year when Hollywood doesn't come up with "the greatest picture ever made."

But these are boom times, and this year the film industry has spent in the neighborhood of 25 million dollars on three pictures vying for the title of "the greatest ever."

Each is based on a literary classic: the ordinary man has heard of all his life, but spent precious little time studying. They are Herman Melville's "Moby Dick," Leo Tolstoy's "War and Peace," and—the shortest of the three—the 10 Commandments Moses brought down from Mount Sinai.

Anyone who claims he has been too busy to read these masterpieces no longer can use that as an excuse. They'll all be available on the screen by the end of the year.

And if this 25-million-dollar gamble doesn't lure the American public away from its television sets and back to the box office, the homes of the movie moguls won't be decked with holiday decorations. They'll be hung with black crepe.

Veteran Director King Vidor, who spent a year and a half filming "War and Peace," believes Hollywood's return to the colossal epic is its best bet for survival.

"The day of the cheap grind future state of Eisenhower's health. MANCHESTER GUARDIAN'S OPPOSITION TO NIXON The opposition to Nixon as expressed in the Manchester Guardian, which frequently voices 10 Downing Street's viewpoint, is based on the belief overseas that Nixon is less liberal and less internationally minded than President Eisenhower. The British shudder, editorially, at the thought of the young Californian in the White House.

film is over," he said. "To get people out of their homes and into the movie houses you have to give them productions too big to fit a TV screen."

"And they have to be pictures big in theme, too, something they'll remember a long time." Vidor spent $40 on his first film, a two-reeler on auto racing called, "The Tow," made when he was 18. He played six roles himself and married his leading lady, Florence Vidor, who later became a famous actress.

It cost six million dollars to make "War and Peace," a saga of Napoleon's fatal invasion of Russia and regarded by many as the greatest novel ever written.

"That's why I like this business," mused Vidor. "You can go from $40 to six million dollars in a single lifetime. It's the most expensive picture ever made up until now."

But this record, if it is one, has already fallen. Cecil B. DeMille is reported to have spent from 12 million to 15 million dollars on "The Ten Commandments," the figure depending on which Paramount Pictures spokesman you talk to.

Vidor had three big problems in bringing "War and Peace" to the screen for the first time. First, he had to read the novel, which runs to 700,000 words. It took an international crew of writers—two English, two Italian and one American—plus Vidor to turn out a script. Second, he had to outpace two other producers—Mike Todd and David Selznick—who separately were trying to film the same novel. Vidor won by signing up Audrey Hepburn to play the leading feminine role and the Italian army to play Napoleon's battered legions. With these two aces showing, Todd and Selznick picked up their chips and got out of the game.

Third, the picture was made in Italy, and Vidor's knowledge of Italian didn't include even the word for aspirin. But it soon did. "There were all kinds of language difficulties," he said. "It took a lot of talk even to get to a paper clip."

"To impress anyone you had to put on an act. You had to learn how to yell. You can't get anything done over there in a low voice. Hell, I was born in Texas, and not used to talk that way. But I learned."

"They don't need any psychiatrists in Italy. They don't have any suppressed emotions. They get everything out of their system on the spot, and when they calm down they aren't mad at anybody."

After a year and a half of yelling, Vidor is hoarse but happy. He feels "War and Peace" is his masterpiece. He is sure it will do better than two of his earlier films, "The Big Parade" and

No Longer Purely An American Affair?

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON The British believe that they now have a right to interfere in American Presidential politics, and their unofficial favorite for the Republican Vice Presidential nomination is Governor Christian A. Herter rather than Richard M. Nixon.

London bases its amazing and unprecedented action, although it is only unofficial, on America's extremely powerful and old position as the only challenger of Russian aggression. Specifically, it notes that the American President, as Truman did in 1945, is one of few men who can decide to precipitate an atomic war that would engulf all civilization.

In short, they feel that the election of a President and Vice President is no longer a matter of merely domestic concern. The outcome is as vital to the world as it is to the people of the United States. And, despite White House and medical reports, they are extremely worried over the future state of Eisenhower's health. As a former State Department official and secretary to Herbert Hoover during Belgium relief operations in World War I, he established and has maintained close contacts with young Britishers now high in the Eden Government.

As a member of the House, Herter headed the Congressional Committee which laid the groundwork for the Marshall Plan and subsequent foreign aid programs, including the International Cooperation Administration once administered by Harold E. Stassen. As Ike's disarmament adviser, Stassen himself has spent almost as much time in London as at Washington during recent months.

"IT IS STASSEN PLOT MISFIRE ENTIRELY." "It would have been a pity," says The Guardian, "if Mr. Stassen's plot had misfired entirely. Governor Herter is nearer than Mr. Nixon to the moderate tradition." President Eisenhower's own convention clearly established a new direction in Republican leadership and outlook. It was a healthy direction and proved itself in action.

"His continuity would be less secure under Mr. Nixon than the continuity of conservative influence in and through the party machine. The party managers like Nixon because he likes them."

BRITAIN AFFECTED NOW "Any foreign comment of course is liable to be treated in the United States as inexcusable interference. Until ten years ago, that was fair. Now, however, our own future is directly affected."

"The President, after all, is one of the three men in the world who can decide to drop a hydrogen bomb or initiate a new Geneva. In the West he is immeasurably the most powerful person, and on him rests an almost inhuman burden of personal decision."

Lyndon Johnson Waits For Platform Strife

CHICAGO (AP)—The Democratic convention's ability to fashion a civil rights plank acceptable to his "moderation" views may be the key to Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson's plans to push or drop his presidential hopes.

Sources close to Johnson in the Texas delegation told this correspondent they thought he would begin an aggressive drive for delegates if the Platform Committee comes up today or tomorrow with a plank the South will take.

Johnson continued a series of high-level talks with political figures yesterday and late into the night. Among them were senators Stuart Symington of Missouri, John L. McClellan of Arkansas, J. A. Frear of Delaware and Gov. Averell Harriman of New York. If strife develops over civil rights or an extreme plank is adopted, Johnson's friends said, he would continue his fight for moderation but not press his presidential nomination hopes. Among those seeing Johnson at all hours of the day and night are many Southerners who look to the Senate majority leader as their principal hope for a moderate stand on the Supreme Court's desegregation decision.

After calling on the Texas delegates for a continued spirit of unity at yesterday's caucus, Johnson spent most of the day in conferences in his suite on the 23rd floor of the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

Only a few of the Texas delegation showed up for the opening session of the convention, but the seats were filled for last night's session. Most of the delegates were sightseeing, trying to get spectator's seats for their friends, or listening to sales talks from backers of other candidates hoping to get the nod if Johnson's name is withdrawn. The 56 Texas votes are committed to Johnson until he releases them. There was no sign yet that he would.

BUTTE, Mont. (AP)—A Butte mother of five has been credited with saving the lives of 15 babies afflicted with a blood disorder in five years. Mrs. Pauline Cain, assistant to the laboratory technicians at a Butte hospital, has Type O negative blood, found in about 6 per cent of the nation's inhabitants.

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
CHICAGO (AP)—There is an air of unreality—a fizzle in the sizzle—in the struggle over the kind of civil rights plank the Democrats will put in their party platform.

No explosion, no party-shattering fight, no walkout by Southern Democrats is expected.

The likely result: a plank that tries to be all things to all people: whites and Negroes in Northern cities, and at the same time, is worded mildly enough to be acceptable to the Southerners.

It can be said with almost complete certainty that the next Congress—Democratic or Republican—will not pass any new civil rights laws which this convention may promise.

The reason is simple: In the Senate Southern Democrats would filibuster to death any effort to bring up a civil rights bill. Under Senate rules it is practically impossible to stop a filibuster.

This year's Democratic plank on civil rights will be meaningless if it promises action by Congress. Congress hasn't passed civil rights legislation in more than a generation.

The only progress made in civil rights has been by presidential action or rulings of the Supreme Court. The Democrats can't, of course, make any promises for the court.

They could endorse principles which would more or less commit a Democratic president to some action. But neither Adlai Stevenson nor Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, the leading candidates for the party's presidential nomination, has made any militant promises.

Southern leaders here have felt they had to put up some kind of fight against almost the mildest kind of civil rights plank. These Southerners know they have bargaining power: the rest of the party can't afford to lose them in a year when President Eisenhower looks like an odds-on winner over any Democratic candidate.

Southern voting in the past two presidential elections is a reminder to the rest of the party that the South has political value.

As a result of a fight over civil rights in the 1948 convention, four Southern states—South Carolina, Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana—broke away from the party.

At the 1952 convention there was a bitter dispute over civil rights. Texas, Florida, Virginia and Tennessee voted for Eisenhower—probably because of his personal popularity.

More significant in 1952, the only nine states, which voted Democratic were Southern or border states: Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Kentucky and West Virginia.

The Southerners know they have to make some concessions. Their problem is deciding where to stop. The rest of the party's problem is finding out where they draw the line on pushing the Southerners.

Emphasis On Youth By Mrs. Roosevelt

CHICAGO (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, 67, held out to the Democratic party the hope that, by drawing on its youth, it can win the 1956 election.

"It is absolutely imperative," she said, "that the Democrats come back to power."

She made the appeal to the Democratic National Convention last night in her cool, high-pitched voice, which sometimes failed to carry over the less-than-perfect loud-speaker system.

"I want victory," she said, "and I believe we will have it in November."

She quoted her late husband, the only man ever to be elected president four times, and the convention delegates applauded their approval.

The only thing you have to fear," she quoted, "is fear itself." And then, as 72-year-old former President Truman shook hands with a well-wisher at his balcony seat, she had a word about elder statesmen. Gently, apparently pointing at no one in particular, she counseled: "Don't rely too much on 'elders.' Truman gave no sign he heard."

Mrs. Roosevelt is backing Adlai Stevenson, 56, or the Democratic presidential nomination. Truman is for Harriman, 64.

After ending his convention keynote speech, Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee presented Mrs. Roosevelt as "the First Lady of the World."

"Go in and work," she told the delegates. "It's work that wins at election time."

She recalled that her husband had once said one third of the nation was ill-housed, ill-clothed and ill-fed. It is now one fifth, she said, and Democrats can take credit for that.

"But," she said, "we still have a job to do."

Coastal Plain All-Stars Playing In Wilmington

Sickness May Keep Joe King From Tourney

Coach J. H. Mobley's Coastal Plain Little League All-Stars open their bid for the State Tar Heel title tonight at Wilmington—without the services of Joe King.

Mobley told the Reflector yesterday that the hustling Griffin pitcher has come down with sickness and may not see action in the Wilmington Tourney.

King, a left-hander, rolled through the 1956 season in high form, reaping a .557 batting average and a 7-3 hurling status. His average at the plate was the best record on the 14-man All-Star slate and his pitching record was equaled only by Winterville's Paul Castellone.

Little King was a very prominent figure in the Coastal Plain All-Stars, gaining a berth in the state tournament. He pitched his club to a 6-5 win over Kingston's American League All-Stars and smacked in the winning run in defeating the Kingston National League nine, 11-5. Winning these two games automatically issued the Coastal Plain boys a slot in the Wilmington play.

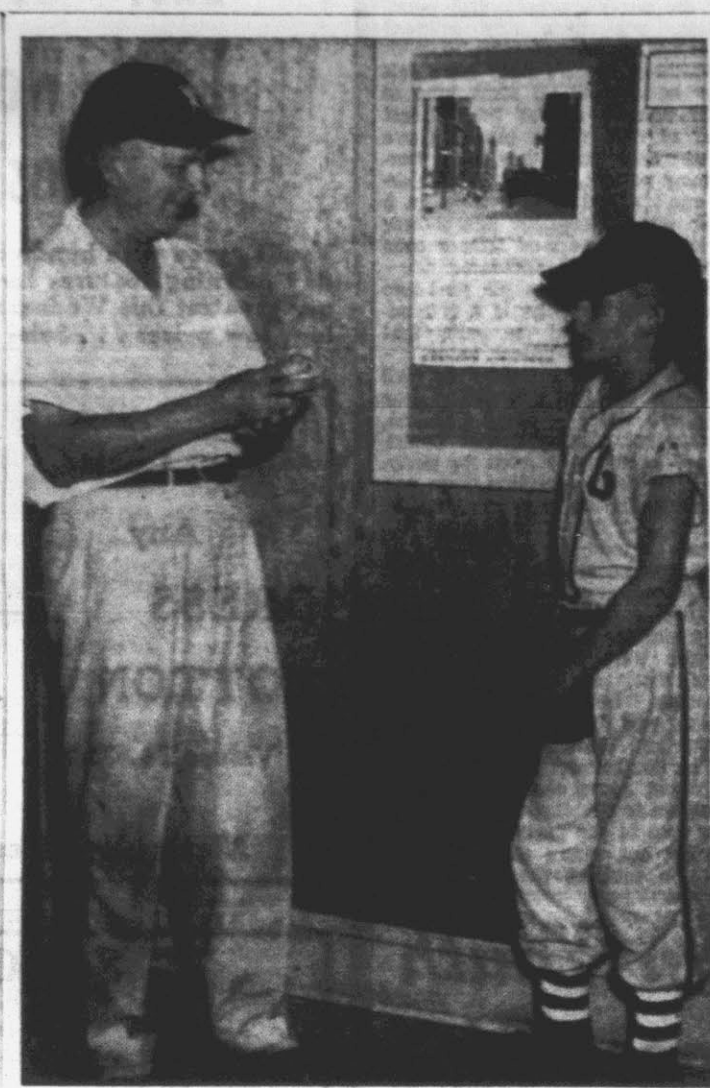

Castellone, White

Mobley stated that "We will use Castellone in our opening game." He also gave reason to believe that Castellone and Winterville's Bill White (2-1) will see plenty of mound action. Should his team win the opener.

Other pitchers on the Coastal Plain roster are Milton Miller and James Wright of Vanceboro, Jack Rose of the Grifton Cardinals, Thomas Riley and James Barwick of the Grifton Bears.

The remaining six boys on the club are Bobby Hobgood and Ernest Loftin of Winterville; William Nobles, Frank Spock of Vanceboro; Steve Cox and H. Hart of the Grifton Cards.

The All-Stars' opponents for tonight's game is as yet unknown, depending upon several games played late yesterday.

PITCHING TIPS—Coastal Plain Little League Coach J. H. Mobley is shown above giving pitcher Paul Castellone, of Winterville, some pitching tips that may help his performance tonight in the Wilmington State Tourney. Castellone compiled a 7-3 record during the regular season play.

Mangan's Mouth Earns Suspension

NEW YORK (AP)—He who says boss.

Winds up with job a total loss.

Jim Mangan, third-string New York Giants catcher, didn't like sitting on the bench, so he got up and sat in the locker room in last Sunday's double-header against Pittsburgh.

Then he made an even more serious mistake. He took Giants Manager Bill Rigney to task publicly.

"Rigney is the worst manager I ever played for," he sputtered. "As far as I'm concerned, he couldn't manage in a Class D league. He just doesn't know how to handle men."

He therefore, was suspended. It's unlikely that the Giants will miss his bat. He has two singles in 20 times to the plate for an average of exactly 100.

"This is a new one on me," said Rigney, obviously perplexed. "I can't figure out what's eating the kid. I had him in the office a couple of times before he blew up because he was complaining about not playing enough."

"I tried to explain to him that the other catchers we have had a little more experience and were a little better, that he was fairly young (26) and shouldn't be impatient."

This is not Mangan's first outburst. He was with the Pittsburgh Pirates at the start of last season, but told off no less a person than Branch Rickey, and promptly was shipped to Hollywood.

Robinson Planning Fullmer Title Bout

NEW YORK (AP)—A middleweight championship fight between Sugar Ray Robinson, the 36-year-old king of the division, and Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, was in the planning stage today with the International Boxing Club in the unusual position of a rank outsider.

Also in the talking stage was a feud between Robinson and the IBC, which holds an exclusive contract with the retired song-and-dance man.

Robinson said he had bolted the IBC stable—he's not worried about the contract—because he couldn't get enough money from President Jim Norris and Co. for a title defense.

Moreno Chills Gault With KO

TUJANA, Mexico (AP)—Ricardo Moreno, hard-hitting Mexico City bantamweight, knocked out Henry (Pappy) Gault of Spartanburg, S. C., in 1:30 of the third round of a scheduled 10-round main event in the Tijuana Bull Ring last night.

Moreno weighed 126 and Gault, 122.

The 19-year-old Moreno proved to be too strong for his veteran opponent and scored his 24th knockout in 26 fights. Several left hands to the body set Gault up for a smashing right cross that sent him to the canvas.

The Mexican puncher was far ahead when the end came. He had his rival down for an eight-count in the second round and repeatedly forced the fight with hard left hooks to the side of Gault's body.

In the third round Gault tried to exchange with his stronger opponent but couldn't protect his body.

Johnny Pollard Wins Midget Races Saturday

Johnny Pollard took top honors in last Saturday night's Micro Midget race event at the Greenville Fair Grounds track.

Pollard grabbed the lead and held it for 25 grueling laps to take his first win in the 1-8 mile oval.

Earl Venters came in second in Allen Implement Company's no. 420 and third place was captured by Albert Joyner in the speedy no. 00, sponsored by the United Glass and Top Works. Pollard's auto is sponsored by Cozart's Auto Supply.

Squeaky Jordan of Raleigh snared the 15-lap consolation prize in his Mercury-Chain special, no. 6.

Pollard and Venters came in in that order to win the first and second heats.

Participating in the race were cars from Kingston, Fayetteville, Myrtle Beach, Va., Raleigh and Greenville.

Arrangements are being made, according to Pat Patrick publicity official of the Greenville Micro Club, to make the main attraction race a 40-lap affair.

Patrick also announced that on August 18, Paul Blake, of Rocky Mount, will bring over a fleet of Quarter Midget races as an added attraction. The Quarter Midgets are smaller than Micros and are driven by boys between the ages of seven and nine.

"Anyone interested in either micro or Quarter Midget racing for the sport of it, should contact either Z. V. Harris or myself," Patrick stated.

Four Champions To Participate In Legion Play

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Four state champions open a double-elimination tournament here tonight for the Region 4 American Legion Junior baseball title.

Kingsport, Tenn., and Murray, Ky., play the opener at 6 p.m. (EST) and Wilmington takes on Richmond, Va., afterward.

The first day losers and opening game winners play tomorrow in another double header, with single games nightly thereafter until a champion is determined.

Season records sported by the state champion include Kingsport's 24-1; Richmond's 19-2; Wilmington's 26-4; and Murray's 17-4.

Smith, who underwent stomach surgery, needed the transfusions because his blood lacked essential clotting factors.

Pitcher-Poor Cincinnati May Be At End Of Line

By ED WILKS

Have the Cincinnati Redlegs, who figured "to go as far as our pitching will carry us," reached the end of the line?

It was Manager Birdie Tebbetts, who tagged his pitching the big "if" in the National League pennant chase, and now that his not-so-robust Redlegs are slumping at the plate just when the pitching is in need of a lift, the Cincys are hurting.

Tebbetts needed a "stopper" last night, what with relief ace Buster Freeman sidelined by a freak mishap and Hal Jeffcoat and Brooks Lawrence taking their lumps, but he couldn't find one. Milwaukee first-place Braves tagged Johnny Klippstein and swept the final three games of their four-game set with a 5-1 decision.

The defeat skidded the Redlegs four games behind the Braves and two back of Brooklyn, rained out at New York in the only other game scheduled in either league. The Redlegs, who won the series opener behind Larry Jansen, who was just recalled from the minors, were on even terms with the Braves for five innings. Then Del Crandall, whose sacrifice fly produced the first run, tagged Klippstein for a two-run homer, his 13th, to break a 1-1 tie in the sixth.

Rookie Frank Robinson, who was 1-for-10 in the first three games of the set, supplied the bulk of Cincinnati's inept attack, going 4-for-4 and socking his 26th home run. It was only the fourth homer managed by the heretofore free-swinging Redlegs in the series.

Rookie Taylor Phillips, a 28-year-old southpaw, gained his third victory without defeat with his second straight complete game—scattering seven hits and walking only two while holding Cincinnati's other power guys, Ted Kluszewski, Gus Bell, Wally Post and Ed Bailey, hitless.

The Braves got their other two runs off Jeffcoat on Danny O'Connell's bases-loaded single in the eighth. Jeffcoat was the fourth Redleg pitcher, following relievers Art Fowler and Don Gross, as Tebbetts again missed Freeman— the 10-4 bullpen ace who suffered a slipped disc while fielding a ground ball last Thursday.

Stengel Willing For Mick To Break Mark

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Garfield Casey Stengel, manager of the New York Yankees, let it be known today that Mickey Mantle is strictly on his own in his pursuit of Babe Ruth's home run record.

With tonight's game to go, starting with tonight's date with the Boston Red Sox, Mantle must hit 20 homers to eclipse Ruth's mark of 60 and become the present-day Sultan of Swat.

"I don't know how I can help him toward the record," croaked Stengel. "It's a job he'll have to do himself. The pitchers won't help him any."

"They'll walk him half the time anyway or give him bad balls to hit at, so it's a problem he has to face himself."

The suggestion was raised that maybe Stengel would consider batting Mantle in the leadoff spot, so Mickey would get to the plate more often.

"No dice," said the professor. "You build your batting order to win ball games, and besides he would get only six or eight more times at bat if he was the first batter."

"Well, then, does the Professor think his man will break the record?"

"Half the time I doubt it," he answered. "They figure to make it tougher and tougher for him. They're sure not giving him much to hit and the longer they do that, the more anxious he might become to take a swipe at some of those bad pitches."

Mantle talks less about the record than anyone. He does admit that he is getting fewer and fewer good pitches to hit.

"I'd like to hit 75, if I could," he said. "But I'm not worrying too much about it. What I'm trying to do is get a piece of the ball, so I can keep hitting around that .370 mark."

Del Crandall Is Death On Tebbetts

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Manager Birdie Tebbetts of the Cincinnati Redlegs often has said, "Crandall murders us."

Then before last night's game with front running Milwaukee, which the Braves won 5-1 behind rookie Taylor Phillips to stun third place Cincinnati for the third straight time, Birdie volunteered, "O'Connell? He kills us."

Del Crandall and Danny O'Connell, whose mediocre batting averages belie their value to the Braves, accounted for all five runs last night as Tebbetts' faltering pitching staff got another workout.

Crandall drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly and a home run, his 13th. O'Connell, who punched out 8 hits in 15 trips in the four-game series that shoved the Redlegs back to third, four games behind, accounted for the others with a bases-loaded single.

Weight Trouble Hounding Willie

NEW YORK (AP)—Weight continues to be one of the fighter's arch enemies.

That's the way Willie Troy of Washington, D.C., had it figured after his 10-round draw with Jerry Luedee of New Haven, Conn., at St. Nicholas Arena last night.

Troy said he planned to enter the ring at 161, but a two-day lay-off, added three pounds.

"I fight better at 161," said Troy. "If I had made that weight, I'm sure I would have won without any trouble."

Both boys were "very happy" with the decision and Teddy Brenner, St. Nick's matchmaker, rewarded them with future bouts.

Luedee, who came in at 166 pounds, was signed to fight Bob Provizny Aug. 27 and Troy was given English middleweight John L. Sullivan as a Sept. 10 opponent.

Referee Harry Ebbets called Luedee the winner, awarding him five rounds and Troy four. Judge Bert Grant had it 5-5 with Troy the winner on points and Judge Mike Davidowitz had it even in rounds and points. The AP card agreed with Ebbets.

Tebbetts even used four outfielders in an effort to stop Crandall, but Del smacked a single through second. Second baseman Johnny Temple fielded the ball in right center field where he had been stationed. Had he been playing his normal position he might have been able to throw Crandall out. Tebbetts employs the shift against Stan Musial, among others.

Neither Crandall nor O'Connell could give a reason for their poisonous proclivities against the Redlegs.

"But, from what I've seen of Cincinnati's pitching in this series, it could be that they're tired," Crandall said. "They used 12 pitchers in this series alone. That's a lot of work for that staff."

Over in the Redlegs' clubhouse, Tebbetts was bemoaning the fact that his ace reliever, the injured Hershel Freeman, doesn't know when he'll be available for bullpen duty.

"He's as valuable to us that (Clem) Labine is to Brooklyn," Tebbetts said. "In a four-game series like this one, he could have been the equalizer."

"We'll be in bad shape without him if we don't get some complete games from our starters soon. We need a guy like him."

All Tobacco-Buying Firms Look To Greenville Mart

By: W. L. Whedbee, Supervisor
Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade, Inc.

Representatives of all the tobacco buying companies in the world are here in Greenville, anxiously awaiting their chance for competitive bidding for the world's finest bright leaf tobacco during the 1956 season.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS IN FACTORIES

These tobacco companies have invested millions of dollars in factories and storage warehouses, located in Greenville, to process the tremendous volume of quality leaf which is annually sold here.

Set out here is a list of their respective presidents and branch managers: American Suppliers, Inc., O. L. Hull, Branch Manager; Export Leaf Tobacco Company, L. T. Shotwell, Branch Manager; E. B. Ficklen Tobacco Company, L. S. Ficklen, President; Greenville Tobacco Company, C. W. Howard, Jr., President; Imperial Tobacco Company, Ltd., Jesse R. Moye, Jr., Branch Manager; Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, Jack Cobb, Branch Manager; Person Garrett Company, W. S. Bost, President; and R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Lawrence Reese, Branch Manager.

GREENVILLE'S INDEPENDENT COMPANIES

Greenville is fortunate, indeed, in the men who head its three independent tobacco companies. No where, in the entire tobacco trade, will you find executives who are more highly respected in their profession than L. S. Ficklen, President of E. B. Ficklen Tobacco Company, C. W. Howard, Jr., President of the Greenville Tobacco Company, and W. S. Bost, President of Person Garrett Company.

AN ENVIEABLE RECORD

Enumerable friendships, which have been built up over the entire tobacco world by many years of satisfactory business dealings, place these men and their companies in a uniquely favorable position to render outstanding service to those who place their orders in Greenville. Greenville's three independent companies take just pride in the fact that they have become the finest graders, handlers, and processors of leaf tobacco in the entire trade.

ORDERS EXPERTLY HANDLED

Their purchases are made by experienced buyers, and their plant are operated by skilled workers. By infinite attention to even the smallest detail, both on the warehouse floors and in their modern plants, they have built for themselves an enviable reputation. This high standard of operation has been carried on for so many years that it has become universally known in the tobacco trade that "an order placed in Greenville is an order satisfactorily filled."

CAPACITY ALMOST UNLIMITED

With their plants equipped with the most modern machinery available, Greenville's three independent tobacco companies are now prepared, in this same satisfactory manner, to buy, process and put up in hogsheads almost an unlimited amount of tobacco on orders of any kind.

I am listing below a brief sketch of each of these companies.

PANY, INC.

E. B. Ficklen Tobacco Company, Inc., established in 1896, is now in its 60th year of serving the tobacco trade with quality packed tobaccos. During this time a large export business has been built, shipments being made to all parts of the world, and the company also does substantial business in the domestic trade.

James S. Ficklen served as President from 1925 until his death September 17, 1955. L. S. Ficklen, formerly Vice-President, was elevated to the office of President in October, 1955. L. S. Ficklen is a past president of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade, a member of the Board of Governors of Tobacco Association of United States, and is currently Treasurer of Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association. James S. Ficklen, Jr., is Vice President and Treasurer of E. B. Ficklen Tobacco Company; A. C. Ruffin is Vice President; J. T. Cheatham, Jr. and C. C. Skinner are Assistant Vice Presidents; O. L. Alexander is Secretary; and E. O. Parkinson, Jr., is Assistant Secretary. M. P. Jolly, who has had many years experience in the leaf tobacco business, is supervisor of buying.

E. B. Ficklen Tobacco Company, Inc., with highly skilled and experienced personnel in all departments, is fully prepared to buy, expertly process and pack tobacco orders for both foreign and domestic manufacturers. They have ample storage facilities and are in a position to store tobaccos for their customers.

GREENVILLE TOBACCO COMPANY

C. W. Howard, Jr., is President of the Greenville Tobacco Company. E. C. Wilkerson, who has had many years of practical experience in the purchase of leaf tobacco in the fine-cured and burley belts, is Vice President and supervisor of buying. He is also immediate past president of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade. John L. Howard is Secretary and H. L. Naron is Assistant Secretary.

By continual modernization of their plant, together with the insistence of their highly trained personnel that each individual order be filled exactly as the customer wishes it, the Greenville Tobacco Company has been a large factor in building for the Greenville market, and for themselves as well, an enviable reputation in world-wide tobacco trade. It is proud of its fine personnel. But also, it is proud of the fact that there is no tobacco company, in the trade, which has finer or more complete and modern equipment.

Constantly, from year to year, improvements are being made to its plant and equipment.

PERSON GARRETT COMPANY

Person Garrett Company was established in 1924 by R. M. Garrett, who served as its President from that date until July of 1950 when he was succeeded by W. S. Bost, who is now president of Person Garrett Company and also past President of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade.

R. M. Garrett, after retiring from the presidency of Person Garrett Company, served as chairman of its board of directors until his death on July 5, 1955. R. M. Garrett, Jr., is Vice President of Person Garrett Company.

Person Garrett Company has its main offices in Greenville, but also operates branches in Fairmont, North Carolina, and Lumberton, North Carolina. L. G. Stanfield is in charge of its Fairmont branch, and E. K. Howard of Lumberton branch is in charge of its Lumberton branch.

Person Garrett Company, whose plant superintendent is O. R. Waters, has a present capacity of approximately one-half million pounds of tobacco per day in its modern redrying plant in Greenville and a million pounds per day in its three combined plants.

The company purchases and processes leaf tobacco for both foreign and domestic concerns, being now equipped with modern steel and concrete storages, with storage capacity for approximately 12,500 hogsheads.

NEW INDEPENDENT WAREHOUSE

Ashley D. Wynn, J.R. Cullifer, E.L. Blount, Jr., Tom Andrews, S.A. Andrews, S.A. Whitehurst, H.R. Rogers, Asst. Mgr.; Planters Warehouse, Elbert H. OVER TWO MILLION POUNDS PER DAY

To give you some idea of the size of the Greenville market, it has not been uncommon in the past few years for the Greenville market to pay out over a million dollars a day for the purchase of tobacco upon its warehouse floors. Daily sales have been as high as 2,353,592 pounds per day for $1,508,571.27, bought by Greenville's five sets of buyers.

PREDICTION FOR 1956

In 1955 more pounds of tobacco were sold by farmers on the Greenville Tobacco Market than in any year during its entire 65-year history.

Abundant Floor Space Here For Tobacco Auction Two Face Test By Lie-Detector

Greenville operates five sets of buyers simultaneously, every sales day, over its warehouse floors. There are 21 tobacco warehouses and 12 warehouse firms in Greenville. To give you some idea of the size of these warehouses, the largest one of these warehouse floors alone covers over 11 acres.

The floor space in Greenville devoted exclusively to the sale and processing of leaf tobacco is well over three million square feet.

The names of the owners and operators of these warehouse firms are as follows: Dixie Warehouse, W.T. Cannon, Carlton Dail; Farmers Warehouse, Jasper Tripp, W. Arthur Tripp, Alf Forbes, Sales Mgr.; Harris & Rogers Warehouse, R.E. Rogers, Bruce Strickland, Sales Mgr.; Keel's Warehouse, L.W. Edwards; McGowan's Warehouse, C.H. McGowan; Morton's Warehouse, W.Z. Morton, W.Z. Morton, Jr.; New Carolina Warehouses 1 & 2, Floyd McGowan, Harold Forbes, Sales Mgr.; New Enterprise Warehouse, G.B. Jones.

Mrs. Chandler and Watson were arrested after they told police Mrs. Treadaway, wife of a serviceman in Europe, was missing. They told officers three men they met at a roadside took Mrs. Treadaway from them the night of Aug. 3 and beat her in a wooded area. No trace of the three men has been found. No formal charges have been filed against Watson and Mrs. Chandler, although both Smith and Scotland County Sheriff Jesse Gibson have said they would charge them with murder.

The pair were returned here yesterday from Richmond County Jail at Rockingham, where they had been taken due to crowded conditions here.

SHADE PROJECT

RYCROFT, Sask. (AP)—Two hundred shade trees have been planted along residential streets in this northwestern Alberta village. The trees were bought by the village council as part of a beautification program.

Fourteen Dead In Cafe Explosion

MONTICELLO, Utah (AP)—An explosion shattered a crowded cafe in this southeastern Utah uranium mining community last night, killing at least 14 persons. Officials said the death toll may rise.

The small Monticello Hospital counted 26 injured. Others were flown to hospitals in Salt Lake City and to Cortez, Durango and Grand Junction, in Colorado.

The blast was believed caused by leaking gas. A resident, Steven Hazelwood, risked his life to shut off the gas system after the explosion.

The blast was felt three miles away.

"The cafe was there one moment I looked," said Mrs. Bernice Saul, "then the next — it just wasn't there."

The explosion ripped through the Lariat Cafe at the peak of the 7 o'clock dinner hour. About 60 persons were believed in the building at the time.

Officials said the cafe had been connected only yesterday to Monticello's new natural gas system. The Red Cross flew blood and serum albumen from Salt Lake City, 240 miles northwest of here, to aid the injured. Doctors and nurses from towns as much as 100 miles away were rushed to the scene.

The explosion left a 30-foot-deep hole in the center of where the small cinder-block cafe, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ramsdell, stood on the outskirts of the town. Mrs. Ramsdell was injured.

Automobile car lights lighted the small landing strip near here so airplanes could land and take off with medical supplies and patients.

Monticello — population 1,762 — is in the heart of the uranium mining area known as the Colorado Plateau, 23 miles west of the Utah-Colorado border and 89 miles south of Moab, the plateau's uranium "center."

Trucker 'Lost' Load Of Bricks

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP)—A truck driver, bringing a load of bricks from nearby Burlington, got two flats here. He needed a place to unload the bricks before he could jack up the truck and arranged to use a nearby front yard.

Thinking to kill two birds with one brick, he decided to return to Burlington for a second load and get some help for reloading the first batch.

At last report he was still looking for the front yard.

SYNOPSIS

In Wild West Days, Narcissa Hull traveled by stagecoach to Coyote Creek, in northeastern Montana, to marry Emil Jacobsen. One passenger became obnoxious in his attentions to her—Dolf Kinney. He bragged of being the richest and most powerful man in the territory, and told her to jilt Jacobsen and marry him. Narcissa found comfort in the presence of Dr. Erd Eklund, who helped her coach stopped at Coyote Creek. Emil was not waiting for her. "Looks like your feller didn't show up," Kinney said. "When you change your mind, let me know." Dr. Eklund offered to take Narcissa to Emil's cabin. They found him—murdered only minutes before. On the way they had heard a horseman passing swiftly but keeping out of sight.

Dr. Eklund thought of a haven for Narcissa—a position as housekeeper for Tom Armstrong and Tom's two wild young orphan daughters. They are meeting Tom room. She turned for a moment before the door closed, and her warm, bright glance met his and lingered. Armstrong looked at him in surprise.

"Kind of takes a man's breath away," he confessed. "What did you say had happened to Jacobson?"

Eklund told him, and Armstrong looked grave.

"Murder?" he repeated. "I don't like it. You got any ideas, Doc?"

"Maybe, but they're only ideas," Eklund sighed. "I've got to be getting to the fort and reporting it. Tom, I'll be back here to-morrow to vaccinate all of you," now.

He explained about that, then drove on. It was nearing midnight now, but to his surprise, lights still glowed brightly at the post. The sentry at the gate challenged, then, recognizing him, waved him past.

"What's going on here?" Eklund asked curiously.

"Dance," the sentry explained. "Big ball, they call it. Just breaking in' up now, I guess." Enviously he gazed to what duty had forbidden. "Lucky for you, maybe."

Eklund nodded and drove ahead. It has been seven years since he had been a part of this sort of life, of martial clamor and all that went with it. Unconsciously he straightened the sag in his shoulders, as if bracing them against some hidden foe.

Light, girlish laughter came to his ears, waiting across the star-studded night. I brought the half-remembered words of a song to his mind—drifting, like a vapor, on the soft summer air! He saw her then, dressed in white, an elfin figure in the gloom, moving beside the staid, blue-clad figure of her brother the major, commandant of the post. Some things in life were hard to believe; and it seemed almost impossible to him that a gay, friendly girl like Helen Blake could be sister to such an impossibly stuffy man as Harlow Blake.

She squealed suddenly at sight of him, and came racing across toward the buggy, gathering up her skirts to run better, giving glimpses of trim ankles fringed by the lace of petticoats. Eklund halted the team and swung to the ground, feeling a rush of pleasure that she should do this, knowing that she would do it as quickly for any one of a score of other men. It was just her way, and it meant nothing.

But she was young and vibrant and beautiful, her hair a night-black cap above upturned nose and mischievous mouth, and she placed both her hands in his and looked up at him in a manner both provocative and bewitching.

"Dr. Erd Eklund! What possible excuse can you give, sir, for arriving just as the ball is over? I warn you, it had better be a good one!"

"About the only one that I can give is that I've been out of town a few days, and didn't even know there was to be a ball," Eklund explained. "Will that do?"

"I suppose it will have to, you being a doctor," Helen Blake it would have been worth the said. "But I missed you horri- bly! I was saving several waltzes for you. Have you come thus be- lately to make your apologies?" With the Major.

"If I'd been sure of seeing you, Major Blake had come up by then, taking his time in doing so. He stood observing them with a carefully expressionless face, from which it seemed all human emo- tion had long since been wrung. If the perfect soldier should be an automaton, then this man ought to qualify. Eklund thought wryly. Though only about a dozen years his sister's senior, he might have belonged not to different genera- tions, but to separate ages. Blake's voice was carefully precise.

"The hour grows late, my dear. If the doctor has something which he wishes to see me about—"

"I'm sorry to trouble you at this hour, Major, but it seemed impor- tant," Eklund explained. "I'll make it brief."

With an inclination of his head, Blake led the way toward his office. Helen made a mouth at her brother's back, shook her head, grinned at Eklund, and hurried to join others who were not far away.

"Come sometime when you can see me, and not on business," she invited, and was gone.

Not until they were seated in- side the office did Blake speak. "Yes?" he queried.

"There are two things," Eklund explained. "And you should know them, Major. The other day I came upon a sick old Indian—fortu- nately living alone, in a remote cabin. Today my worst fears were con- firmed. Smallpox."

For once, he had startled the soldier out of his calm. Blake's head jerked, then he had control of himself.

"I'd appreciate the details," he said calmly.

Eklund supplied them, then wait- ed. The major pondered briefly.

"Fortunately, as you said, he is off by himself," he said. "Appar- ently there is nothing to be done, beyond what you are doing. You spoke of another matter?"

"Yes. On the way out there, I stopped to see Emil Jacobsen. He had been shot—less than an hour before my arrival. I left him in his cabin. You will want to in- vestigate."

"Shot? Killed?"

"Instantly."

"You have no notion who might have done it?"

Eklund had foreseen that ques- tion. Knowing his man, he did not temporize with his answer.

"I hadn't known that he had any enemies. And I wouldn't want to guess, what it would have to be only that."

"Thank you, Doctor. I'll send a sergeant and a couple of men out in the morning to bring in the body."

He stood up, terminating the interview. What thoughts might be behind that impassive face there was no way of telling.

Wearily, Eklund returned to his waiting buggy and drove back to town. He was desperately tired, and in need of sleep. There would be plenty to do on the morrow. He'd hoped, in view of his news about the Indian, that the major would suggest a conference with the post physician, but hee had said no word.

His own plans, he found, must wait a while. He had no sooner breakfasted, cooking his own meal as he usually did, and stepped out of his door than a messenger ar- rived.

"Kinney wants to see you," he said, and jerked a thumb. "Now!"

That was a summons which few men would think of ignoring. After yesterday, it would have added significance.

Hollywood Music and Your Snapshots

Hollywood producers will tell you that the musical accompaniment that runs along with motion pictures isn't really intended to be heard at all. If you become consciously aware of the "mood" music when you're watching a movie, the job hasn't been well done.

Backgrounds for your snapshots are a lot like these musical backgrounds. They "belong"—the picture wouldn't be right without them—but when the background interferes with the main subject, the picture simply isn't as good as it should be. We've all seen examples of poor backgrounds—the picture that "features" the blank side of a house, the scenic complete with incongruous telephone pole, and—alas—the unfortunate snapshot that has a tree "growing" out of Aunt Abby's head.

The remedy is simply to think of your pictures as pictures when you press the exposure button. Think of your camera's finder as a "frame" for your snapshot, and be sure that everything within that frame is something you really want in your picture. If the background isn't suitable, walk your subjects to a slightly different location . . . or move your camera to a different angle . . . or simply bend a bit and shoot up at your subject. (An upward angle is our favorite solution to the problem—there just isn't a more attractive snapshot background than sky and fleecy clouds.)

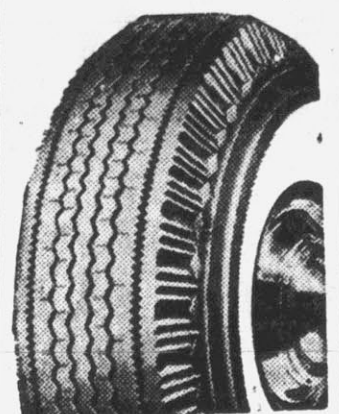

I could go on with picture-taking tips like this by the hour. And I will, too, at the drop of a snapshot. Bring in some of your next time you're in the neighborhood, and try me. I'll be delighted!

Gave Away Beans He Couldn't Sell

BALTIMORE (AP)—A frustrated New York farmer gave away two truckloads of string beans free last night.

Beans spilled from broken bags, crowds gathered and traffic snarled on lower Broadway as Robert Castle of Route 1, Bainbridge, N. Y., handed out the goods. There were 627 bushels.

Castle was quoted as saying the firm bought 426 bushels, then tried to cut the price for the rest of his load contrary to agreement, saying the quality was low. "It was a wonderful crop," said Castle. "I'm disgusted," he went on. "I'm going back and sell my farm."

Women Covered By Social Security To Soon Get Their Payments At 62

CD Pushes For Local Action On Disaster Needs

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Civil Defense Officials are suffering no delusions about the fact that a great many communities in the state are not prepared to cope with disaster, either enemy caused or from the forces of nature, State Director Edward P. Griffin said today in disclosing that renewed, intensive effort to change the situation is underway.

Under a cover letter from Governor Hodges, Council Chairman, copies of a new "Guide to Local Civil Defense Planning and Development," recently published by the North Carolina Council of Civil Defense have been sent to governing officials of every county, city and town, and to local Civil Defense directors.

"Communities share an equal responsibility with the Federal and State governments in survival planning and planning for natural disaster. It is impossible for either the Federal government or the State government to go into your community with adequate facilities and personnel to establish your Civil Defense organization," Governor Hodges said. "I strongly urge all communities which are not cooperating at present with the State and Federal Civil Defense effort to establish such organizations without further delay. It should be done for the best security of your community, our State and our Nation."

The booklet, described as containing step-by-step instruction pertinent to local Civil Defense organization, defines facts, plans and areas of responsibility in the simplest terms possible. It has been published, Griffin stated, for general information of local governing officials and to guide the course of action of those to whom the officials delegate Civil Defense responsibility.

"We feel that local governing authorities, once aware of their responsibility to their citizens to take precautions for community survival, will initiate the necessary action," the state director explained. "This new publication, we hope, will serve that purpose."

"In North Carolina there are many city and county directors who are doing an outstanding job. But every county and every town must have a well established preparedness program—coordinated within that of the state—before we can consider that the state has fulfilled its obligation to its citizens or to the nation."

WASHINGTON (AP)—Women covered by Social Security will soon be able to begin drawing retirement payments at age 62 in the first break from the age 65 deadline fixed when the program was set up 20 years ago.

The change, sponsored by Democratic leaders, was embodied in the Social Security bill passed by Congress on the day it adjourned and since signed by President Eisenhower.

The bill makes no change in age 65 retirement for men. However, one provision gives a break to married men who expect to receive retirement checks under Social Security. It will permit their wives to start getting the wife's benefit at age 62. Until now, the wife had to wait until she herself reached 65.

Under the new law qualified women between 62 and 65 will be able to start receiving payments starting in December. The age 62 retirement is optional.

For one group of women, widows of deceased workers covered by Social Security, the new law provides payments at 62 equivalent to the full amount they now receive at 65.

The widow's benefit amounts to four-fifths of what her husband would have been entitled to at retirement. Thus, if he were eligible for the maximum, $108.50 a month, she would receive $86.40.

Women workers and wives of retired workers must take a reduced rate of payment for life if they go on the rolls before 65. Women workers retiring at 62 will receive 80 per cent of the wife's retired workers, and 200,000 will take advantage of before-65 retirement in the first year.

Since the first checks under the new program will go out in four months, women expecting to take advantage of it are being advised to file claims at their district Social Security offices promptly. Officials expect a heavy crush of applications at the outset of the payment would get $94 a month.

if she retired at age 63, or $101 at age 64.

A wife of a retired worker would receive 75 per cent of her age 65 payment if she elected to go on the rolls at 62. For each month that she waited after reaching 62, her payment would be increased 25 thirty-sixths of 1 per cent.

The bill does not change the retirement that the husband must have started receiving his Social Security checks before his wife can get hers, which amount to half of the husband's. Thus a woman older than her husband cannot draw benefits until he reaches 65.

A wife going on the rolls at 62, if her husband was entitled to the maximum payment of $108.50 a month, would get $40.50 instead of the $54.30 which she would be paid if she waited to age 65.

Thus a couple in this bracket would get $149 a month if the wife went on the rolls at 62 as compared with the $162.80 they would receive if she waited until age 65. If the wife began receiving payments at 63, the monthly check would be $154. If she started at age 64, it would be $158.

The lower schedules of payments for the two groups were worked out actuarially to give women electing retirement before 65 about the same total amount of money, spread out over a longer period of years, as they would receive if they waited until 65.

Experts for the Social Security Administration estimate about 300,000 working women, 300,000 wives of retired workers, and 200,000 widows will take advantage of before-65 retirement in the first year.

Spokesmen in Harriman's headquarters said they were encouraged by what they termed the reluctance of numerous state delegations to hold immediate caucuses on how to vote.

They said this indicated "discontent" in delegations previously regarded as leaning to, or virtually in, the Stevenson camp.

Harriman Sees 'Bandwagon' As In The Making

CHICAGO (AP)—Averell Harriman said today he believes a Harriman bandwagon is "definitely" developing in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

To a question as to where increased support for him was coming from, he said, "All over the country—from Maine to New Mexico and Arizona."

He refused to be drawn into an estimate of how many votes he expects on the first ballot. His headquarters estimated yesterday he had assurances of about 400. The Adlai Stevenson camp claims 600 or more. Needed to nominate are 686½.

Harriman expected to devote the day chiefly to talking to members of as many state delegations as possible in an effort to gain support.

He and his wife gave a mammoth punch-and-cake reception in the Conrad Hilton Hotel's grand ballroom last night. For three hours without interruption they stood by a doorway in a receiving line, greeting guests filing into the ballroom. More than 5,000 invitations went to every delegate and alternate, and to their spouses.

Newsman estimated about 3,000 persons responded, although hotel ushers said 3,000 passed through the receiving line and others entered other doors.

Spokesmen in Harriman's headquarters said they were encouraged by what they termed the reluctance of numerous state delegations to hold immediate caucuses

Big Deal! Relaxation While Planning A Film

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This was a big movie production conference? The assistant director lay on the floor, his eyes closed. The director was on a sofa, his legs in the air, his feet resting against a slatted window. The star-producer Alan Ladd, sprawled in a huge leather chair.

Ladd is one of that new breed of businessmen actors who produce as well as star in their own movies. He handles the business end at luncheon meetings in his dressing room. I was told. So I sat in, expecting to see million-dollar deals, careers bought and sold and epic scenes planned.

But this break between morning and afternoon shooting was for relaxation only. The nearest thing to a million-dollar deal was when Alan handed a stuntman friend 12 bucks to buy Ladd three pairs of athletic-type shorts—"waist-size 30."

"A chance to pick stories," replied Ladd, who is only a thin slice more talkative than Gary Cooper.

Ladd Enterprises, Inc., is a family affair in which Alan's wife,

Sue Carol, and their four children are members of the board and could conceivably outvote him. On the screen the company calls itself Jaguar Productions.

"Buffalo Grass" is the company's fourth picture. The first, "Drumbeat," has grossed more than five million. Ladd and Warner brothers, where he produces, split the grosses 50-50.

Alan brought 66-year-old George Berthelon, "the best in the business," out of semi-retirement to be his associate producer. Berthelon, for 10 years Paramount production manager, reads scripts, assembles crews and makes recommendations on story lines.

Alan remembers fellow actors from his radio days and has Berthelon track them down for picture parts. He has Berthelon keep files on promising bit players for future re-use.

Ladd takes no screen credit as producer—"Why should I?"—and seldom watches other actors do their scenes because "I wouldn't want another actor watching me."

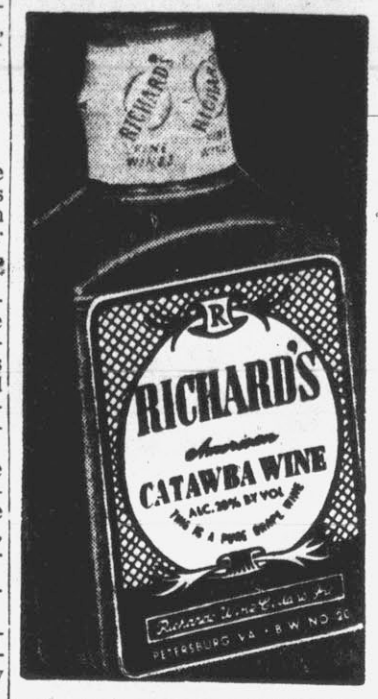

Atomic Engine Proves Stamina

WASHINGTON (AP)—A duplicate of the atomic engine which powers the submarine Nautilus has been run continuously at full power for 66 days and nights without refueling.

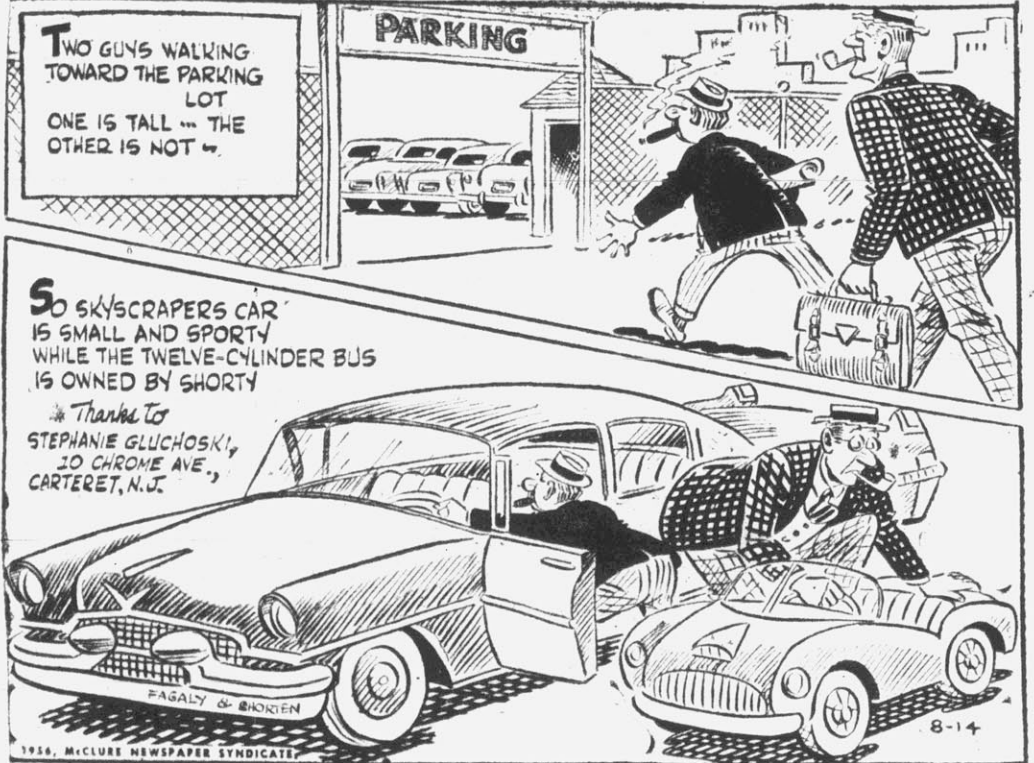

The Atomic Energy Commission, announcing completion of the test run at its Idaho testing station, said the experiment was made "to prove the reliability and stamina of pressurized water reactors for ship propulsion." It added:

"If the Nautilus itself had made a cruise for this length of time—1,600 hours—she could have steamed at top speed, submerged, around the world and many thousands of miles more."

They said this indicated "discontent" in delegations previously regarded as leaning to, or virtually in, the Stevenson camp.

Anti-Polio Shots Given For 755

Some 755 persons got Salk anti-polio shots at the Health Department clinics in Greenville, Farmville and Grifton yesterday, Health Director Walter C. Humbert reports.

Of this number 668 were first injections. There are still, Dr. Humbert said, about 3,500 eligible persons between six months and 20 years of age who have not gotten at least one immunization.

The special clinics will be held this week in Greenville tomorrow, Friday, and Saturday morning; in Farmville tomorrow, Thursday, and Saturday morning; and in Bethel Saturday morning.

Next week the health offices will go on a five and a half day schedule for giving the Salk shots, as persons who got the first injection the week of July 23 will be eligible for their second dose next week. Those who got the first shot the week of July 30 should get their second vaccination the week of August 27.

Dr. Humbert has stated that no special clinics will be held after Sept. 1, as a mass inoculation program will begin in the schools. After that date, only those persons not eligible to receive the vaccine in the schools may get it from the health offices.

Other Action

The board further voted to urge the postmaster to have the department reopen the post office on Wednesday afternoons, and approved tentative plans of the Civic Affairs Committee for a Fire Prevention Week program October 7-13, and a "Welcome Week" program for East Carolina College faculty and students. The latter will be directed by the Commerce and Trade Committee.

Ben Rouse, chairman of the Membership Committee, reported that 54 new members have joined the Chamber as a result of the recent campaign. Goal was 50 new members. He said the drive is still now complete and will be continued until all prospects have been extended an invitation to participate in the Chamber's program.

This year the organization is emphasizing industrial development, with an additional $4,000 included in the budget for this purpose.

Last Rites Set For Miss Frances Ford

Miss Frances Ford, 26, died at four o'clock Monday afternoon in Pitt Memorial Hospital after having been ill for two and a half weeks.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home near Bethel Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock and burial will be in the Bethel Cemetery. The Rev. Carlos Womack, Methodist Minister of Bethel, will conduct the services.

Miss Ford was a lifelong resident of the Bethel community and was the daughter of Will O. Ford and the late Edna Jenkins Ford. She attended the Bethel schools and was graduated in 1947.

Surviving are her father; five sisters: Mrs. B. D. Simpson of Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. Tom Malloy of near Robersonville, Mrs. J. I. Andrews of Plymouth, Mrs. J. E. Nelson of Robersonville and Miss Delores Ford of the home; two brothers: Wilbur Ford of Amityville, N. Y., and Ralph Ford of the U. S. Air Force, now in Japan; and her grandmother, Mrs. L. O. Ford of Bethel.

First Negroes In Woman's College

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Two Negro women will begin studies next month as freshmen at the hitherto all-white Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, and will live together in a dormitory room on the campus.

Miss Mildred Newton, director of admissions, said letters had been mailed giving notice of acceptance to Mrs. Betty Ann Davis Tillman, 19, of Wadesboro, and Elizabeth Ann Smart, 17, of Raleigh. They will be the first of their race admitted to the college, although seven Negro women had sought admission to fall classes.

Of the applicants, said Miss Newton, two did not complete their credentials and three did not meet scholastic requirements.

Acceptance of the two women followed a federal court order of last fall that the Consolidated University of North Carolina must consider the applications of Negroes as undergraduates.

"I thank God," was the comment of Mrs. Tillman, contacted in Washington where she was visiting relatives. "I consider myself highly honored." She plans to study international law. Her husband, Benjamin D. Tillman, is assigned to the USS Los Angeles stationed at San Francisco.

Miss Smart, who graduated from high school last June, will study sociology and economics.

Three Durham Negroes last year became the first of their race to enter at the university at Chapel Hill as undergraduates.

Tobacco Mart

GREATEST PRODUCER

Pitt County, whose largest tobacco market is Greenville, N. C., has been known by the trade for many years as "the world's largest producer of bright leaf flue-cured tobacco."

Again, in 1956, Pitt County, as it has for many years, will continue to produce and sell more bright leaf tobacco than will be produced and sold in any other county in the United States or for that matter in the entire world.

GREENVILLE SERVES LARGE TERRITORY

Every pound of tobacco produced in Pitt County, however, is not sufficient to make up the total pounds of tobacco sold each year in Greenville.

Every year to this home production is added many more millions of pounds of tobacco, which are brought by farmers of adjoining counties to the Greenville Market for sale.

This mass movement of tobacco from adjoining counties to the Greenville Market starts with the opening day of the market and continues until the last day that the warehouses are open.

ANOTHER RECORD

Pitt County, admitted to be the world's largest producer of bright leaf flue-cured tobacco, has also set another record, which is even more important.

QUALITY ALSO UNSURPASSED

Year after year Pitt County has also consistently produced, in this same volume, the world's choicest tobacco. The quality of this Pitt County tobacco is so consistently high that it is admittedly unsurpassed anywhere in the world.

CHANGE WITH WORLD DEMAND

When world trade demanded a heavy, thick bodied tobacco, Pitt

County Farmers Easily Produced This Type of Tobacco in Great Quantities for World Consumption.

The demand then changed. World trade became anxious for a finer, thinner, lighter and milder smoking leaf. Again Pitt County farmers, specialists in their field, kept abreast of the times and changed their type of tobacco to suit the changing world tastes without removing the natural aroma of Pitt County tobacco.

Now the world trade is laying more emphasis upon choice bright leaf tobacco, which is fine, thin and light and yet both full flavored and aromatic.

Again Pitt County farmers, by utilizing their almost perfect soil and climatic conditions and by infinite attention to variety and cultural practices, have produced tobaccos for the changing world tastes exactly in accordance with current demands, both foreign and domestic.

CHOICE, BRIGHT LEAF, FULL FLAVORED, AROMATIC TOBACCO

Those who are in the market for choice, bright leaf, full flavored, aromatic tobaccos will naturally turn to Greenville, North Carolina, U. S. A., for a large per cent of their 1956 purchases.

Greenville is now equipped to sell and process over one hundred million pounds of tobacco during the 1956 season. The 1956 season should be the best in Greenville's history.

SCARED SPARROW

MEMPHIS (AP)—Early every morning a cocky little sparrow strutted up to a basement window, fought his reflection in the glass so noisily it disrupted Don Fuller's sleep.

So Fuller placed a magnifying mirror against the window. The bird came, took one look at his outside image, flew away and hasn't been heard from since.
