DEMOCRATS' CIVIL RIGHTS PLANK UNVEILED

Harry Claims Stevenson Has No 'Fighting Spirit'

CHICAGO (AP)—Former President Truman said today that Adlai Stevenson "lacks the kind of fighting spirit" needed by the Democrats to preserve New Deal and Fair Deal principles.

Truman appeared before a crowded news conference in the Sheraton-Blackstone Hotel to plug anew Averell Harriman for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Truman said he was shocked that "any liberal Democrat would encourage the abandonment" of the New Deal and the Fair Deal as out of date.

He said the destruction of the social and economic philosophies underlying these programs is the aim of the conservatives in both the Republican and Democratic parties.

Stevenson, the party's 1952 standard bearer and the front running candidate for the nomination this year, "is not the kind of candidate" that the Democrats need, Truman said, adding:

"He lacks the kind of fighting spirit we need."

At the outset of the news conference, Truman said "I'm going to read a statement and then this time I will let you ask me questions."

Last Saturday, when he announced that he regarded Harriman as the best qualified man to be the next president, he had declined to answer any questions.

Truman said he was "deeply touched by the anxiety" he said members of the press and news columnists had expressed about "my political judgment" in endorsing Harriman.

He said that seldom had he seen such concern about the future political life of an ex-president, adding that writers had suggested he had ruined his "possible place in history" and his skill as a politician.

But Truman added with a chuckle that "they need not be alarmed" and that he was sure he had done the right thing.

Stevenson Gains Michigan Votes

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson took a long stride today toward clinching another chance to run against President Eisenhower by racking up 31½ of Michigan's 44 Democratic presidential nominating votes.

Stevenson's forces broke through the ranks of favorite son candidates in the party's convention when Gov. G. Mennen Williams threw his support behind the 1952 nominee at a Michigan delegation caucus.

The delegation decided to give 31½ votes to Stevenson, 11 to Gov. Averell Harriman of New York and a half to Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri. One vote remained uncommitted.

Technically the group is bound by its state constitution to vote for Williams on the first ballot. However, the governor said this instruction may be waived. He said he would urge a unanimous delegation vote for Stevenson.

To this point, Stevenson's forces expected to add later in the day majority support from New Jersey's 36-vote group. State leaders predicted Gov. Robert B. Meyner would announce he is for Stevenson and eliminate himself as a possible favorite son aspirant.

Behind that might come an effort to bring Tennessee's 32-vote delegation into line quickly for Stevenson. The state's vote now is pledged to Gov. Frank G. Clement, convention keynoter who is angling for second place on the ticket.

While they had no commitments, the Stevenson forces had the public word of Gov. Frank J. Lausche, the favorite son of Ohio's 58-vote delegation, that he is not supporting Harriman for the nomination.

Undecided Wisconsin's 20-vote delegation, a 4-2 edge over Harriman in a poll of its 28-vote delegation. George Rock, head of the Colorado delegation, indicated he may announce all of the state's 20 votes for Stevenson and let Harriman supporters in the group challenge him on the convention floor.

The Associated Press tabulation of first ballot choices publicly showed Stevenson 572½ votes to 232½ for Harriman. Other candidates had 314 votes and 253 remained uncommitted.

The nomination requires 686½ votes.

CHICAGO (AP)—New Jersey today threw its 36 Democratic national convention votes to Adlai Stevenson.

Gov. Robert B. Meyner announced the action after a caucus of the state's 116 delegates and alternates.

Stevenson previously had been credited with 6½ votes, in an Associated Press poll of the delegation.

The poll gave Averell Harriman 2 votes.

Stevenson himself appeared at the New Jersey caucus today and told the delegates he was "very happy."

"Thanks to the New Jersey delegates I am jumping," he said. Stevenson noted that his first appearance in New Jersey in the 1952 campaign was at the Jumping Brook Country Club.

Meyner said the caucus decided to cast a solid vote for Stevenson on the first ballot tomorrow night.

Rayburn Says GOP Inactive On Peace Front

CHICAGO (AP)—The top Democrat in the House of Representatives says the Eisenhower administration hasn't produced "a single new effective contribution toward world peace."

Taking over as permanent chairman of the Democratic National Convention, Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn of Texas last night hit at the Republicans for "mis-handling" foreign policy and taking "the most serious risks" with the lives, fortunes and honor of the American people.

At home, he said, the Republicans have practiced a backward labor policy, taken income "out of the pockets" of farm families, and allowed many small businesses to go "to the wall."

Rayburn's induction as permanent chairman was the signal for a boisterous demonstration by the Speaker's fellow Texans in the big hall.

Rapping the gavel, Rayburn halted the demonstration with the smiling observation that "I'm not a candidate for anything."

He is a candidate for re-election to the House, where he already has served for more than 43 years. But he obviously was referring to the fact that most floor demonstrations are staged for candidates for the party's presidential nomination.

In the speech that followed, Rayburn said, "The end result of four years of Republican mis-handling of our foreign affairs is such that we have fewer friends than ever before, and we have made enemies of many that were our friends."

Rayburn aimed several of his thrusts right at President Eisenhower.

At one point, he said, "The man primarily responsible for the conduct of foreign policy simply is not handling the job."

And at another point he charged that under Eisenhower "we have an administration that has developed the classic Army buck-passing game to new heights."

Reports Nasser Is Willing To Accept 'Advisory' Board

LONDON (AP)—Pakistan's foreign minister said today President Nasser of Egypt told him he would agree to maritime nations advising on Suez Canal operations but insisted "it is the sovereign right of Egypt to run the canal."

Foreign Minister Hamidul Haq Chowdhury, arriving for the Suez Canal conference from talks with Nasser, said the Egyptian president is ready to enter into a covenant with all nations who signed the 1888 conventions guaranteeing freedom of navigation in the canal.

Chowdhury told reporters at the airport:

"The Egyptian president wants a peaceful and happy solution to the problem."

"He is not adverse to the setting up of a body representing the users of the canal to advise the organization which he has set up to manage and administer it. He still believes it is the sovereign right of Egypt to run the canal."

A few hours earlier, Secretary of State Dulles arrived for the conference opening tomorrow. He expressed hope for a solution "so vital to the preservation and well being of the entire world."

Britain, France and the United States are insisting on internationalizing the vital 103-mile waterway under guarantees more binding than the system envisaged by Nasser.

On the eve of the conference, tempers obviously were cooling. Differences, although still great, were not so threatening as a week ago.

The Pakistan statement dovetailed with a plan reportedly brought to the conference by V.K. Krishna Menon of India to bridge the gap between Egypt and the Western Powers.

Diplomats understood the Indian plan would give Egypt the right to manage daily operation of the canal. It would set up an international authority with advisory powers on such matters as toll charges and future development of the canal.

Dulles hurried off for talks with Eden, Dulles and Lloyd on a Big Three plan for the Suez Canal.

In talks ended here Aug. 2, the three countries called the conference to set up international control of the canal as a counter to Egypt's nationalization of the 103-mile international waterway July 26.

Pineau told reporters at the airport that "France is convinced of the desirability of international control for the canal."

A British crowd of about 200 cheered Dulles as he entered Eden's residence, smiling and relaxed.

Before leaving Washington, Dulles expressed hope of "achieving positive results" in the talks the United States, Britain and France arranged in the hope of bringing the strategic waterway under international control.

The latest problem confronting the Western Big Three was a reported Soviet scheme to junk the London talks before they get off the ground. Reports from Moscow said Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov planned to move for adjournment when the conference opens tomorrow and urge that the parley be expanded and held at a different site.

Twenty-four nations were invited to attend the London conference after the July 26 nationalization of the Suez by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser. Greece and Egypt rejected the bids. Egypt declared all countries that regularly use the waterway, about 45 nations, should be invited to any talks on the canal's future.

CHICAGO (AP)—Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon headed West today to try to make good his prediction that what he called a White House effort to purge him from the Senate would "fall flat on its face."

Breathing defiance at the Republican party he left in 1952, Morse last night made his debut before the Democratic National Convention with a speech that was a big success.

A standard-waving demonstration by Oregon delegates welcomed him to the hall where four years ago he cheered President Eisenhower. His biggest ovation came when he declared he had "no regrets" over leaving the Republican party.

Morse broke with Eisenhower during the 1952 election campaign. After a period as an independent, he joined the Democrats when they took control of the Senate in 1955.

"It has made me the target of a White House purge," he told the convention.

"However, I want to let the White House in on a political secret—the purge attempt is going to fall flat on its face."

He said Oregon voters "have no intention of letting the White House handpick their senator for them."

No Progress In Brinks Trial

BOSTON (AP)—The trial of eight men charged with the $1,218,211 Brink's robbery—now in its eighth day—was no farther advanced today than the day the case opened in Suffolk Superior Court.

Not a single juror has yet been chosen to hear testimony on the nation's largest cash robbery although Judge Felix Forte has been parading prospective jurors into the court at the rate of 100 a day.

Fully 600 men and women were examined for possible jury duty up to yesterday from an available pool of 2,000.

Of that number, the defense challenged 145 as unacceptable. The prosecution found 42 unacceptable. The others were dismissed by the court for having unshakable opinions on the case or by reason of health or business exigencies.

Judge Forte has ruled against all defense motions seeking dismissal of the 169 indictments pending against the eight Greater Boston men charged with the crime.

They are Joseph F. McGinnis, 52; Anthony Pino, 48; James I. Faherty, 44; Henry D. Baker, 49; Adolph Maffie, 44; Thomas F. Richardson, 48; Michael V. Geagan, 47; and Vincent J. Costa, 41.

Program

CHICAGO (AP)—Here is the program for the Democratic National Convention session today and tomorrow:

Wednesday—

Opens at 8 p.m. (EST), with invocation, "Star Spangled Banner."

Report of Resolutions and Platform Committee—House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, chairman.

Addresses—Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma and Rep. William I. Dawson of Illinois.

Thursday—

Afternoon session opens 12 noon with invocation, "Star Spangled Banner."

Roll call of states to nominate candidates for the presidential nomination.

Night session opens 8 p.m. with invocation, "Star Spangled Banner."

Balloting on candidates for presidential nomination.

Prison Term For Illinois Auditor

CHICAGO (AP)—Orville Hodge, ousted Illinois state auditor, was sentenced today to 10 years in a federal prison for misapplying more than $800,000 in federal insured bank funds.

Judge John P. Barnes of U. S. District Court passed sentence a few minutes after Hodge, mopping tears from his eyes, heard his lawyer, Arthur Fitzgerald, enter the plea of guilty.

The plea embraced 51 counts of the 54 originally contained in the federal indictment. Hodge also has been indicted by the state of Illinois. The governor dropped three of the counts for technical reasons.

Morse Defiant Of 'Purge' Plan

CHICAGO (AP)—Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon headed West today to try to make good his prediction that what he called a White House effort to purge him from the Senate would "fall flat on its face."

Breathing defiance at the Republican party he left in 1952, Morse last night made his debut before the Democratic National Convention with a speech that was a big success.

Will Bid On Two Pitt Projects

Two Pitt County road paving projects are included in the 16 projects for which bids will be opened by the State Highway Commission August 28.

Both projects call for sand asphalt paving of two sections of county road.

One is 4.3 miles of paving from a point on US 264 3.8 miles southwest of Greenville northeast to a junction with a paved county road.

The second is from a point on N. C. 11 3.23 miles south of Bethel east to a junction with NC 33.

Ask SBI Inquiry In Pitt Case

Called In By Graham As Two Suspended For Alleged Payroll Irregularities

By JIMMY ELLIS

The State Bureau of Investigation has been requested to make a "thorough investigation" of alleged payroll irregularities that have brought about the suspension of two local Highway Department employees.

The SBI was called into the case this morning at the request of A. H. Graham, chairman of the North Carolina Highway Commission. Graham made the request after Landscape Supervisor Philip L. Sasser and machine operator Cyrus Shepard were suspended from their jobs.

Graham said this morning that the men were ordered suspended by Landscape Department chief Frank Bryant of Raleigh and Second Division Engineer R. Markham of Greenville. The commissioner said that the men have been questioned "about carrying names of people who did not work" on highway department payrolls. He did not elaborate on the possible number of persons or the amounts of money involved.

The highway chief did stress, however, that Sasser and Shepard were "only suspended" pending outcome of the investigation. The SBI investigation is supposed to begin immediately and, according to Graham, continue the investigation by Landscape Department and Second Division officials.

Sasser, 43, has been with the Highway Department since March, 1948, when he began work as a machine operator. Shepard, 24, was hired in June, 1954, as a truck driver. Sasser works in a salary range of $3,708 to $4,548 per year and Shepard has been drawing a salary of $217 per month.

The two were suspended from their jobs last week after a check of payroll records.

Second Division Commissioner H. Maynard Hicks of Snow Hill could not be reached for comment this morning.

Some Effort To Soothe South

CHICAGO (AP)—The Democratic party's proposed civil rights platform plank said today the Supreme Court's desegregation decisions "have brought consequences of vast importance." But the draft said "we reject all proposals for the use of force to interfere with the orderly determination of these matters by the courts."

Each section of the platform is subject to approval by the full 108-member platform committee and—tonight—by the convention itself.

The platform committee was in session in the Conrad Hilton Hotel—convention headquarters downtown.

Whether a fight would develop there or on the convention floor tonight remained to be determined.

Southerners have done their best to have the platform avoid any mention of the Supreme Court. Some Northerners on the other hand have talked of seeking what they would regard as the strongest possible plank.

In the education section approved a few minutes before the drafters made public the civil rights plank, this wording was used:

"Every American child, irrespective of race or national origin, economic status or place of residence, has full right under the law and the Constitution, without discrimination, to every educational opportunity to develop his potentialities."

This was a part of the "human welfare" treatment in the suggested platform.

Both front-running Adlai E. Stevenson and his most serious contender, Averell Harriman, have said they felt the platform should express—in so many words—outright approval of the high tribunal's action.

Dixie delegates to this national convention had threatened a rugged fight and probable loss of Southern votes in the November election if the plank gave specific support to the court's school desegregation decision.

Rep Emanuel Celler of New York reportedly offered several amendments in an effort to strengthen the plank as demanded by groups advocating strong civil rights measures.

But they were shouted down by the other platform writers anxious to preserve party harmony.

BULLETIN

CHICAGO (AP)—The Georgia delegation to the Democratic National Convention agreed today to vote against the platform drafted by the convention platform committee.

Although the suggested education plank had omitted any reference to the Supreme Court, the civil rights section had this to say on the subject:

"Recent decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States relating to segregation in publicly supported schools and elsewhere have brought consequences of vast importance to our nation as a whole and especially to communities directly affected. We reject all proposals for the use of force to interfere with the orderly determination of these matters by the courts."

The Democratic party emphatically reaffirms its support of the historic principle that ours is a government of laws and not of men; it recognizes the Supreme Court of the United States as one of the three constitutional and coordinated branches of the federal government, superior to and separate from any political party, the decisions of which are part of the law of the land. We condemn the efforts of the Republican party to make it appear that this tribunal is a part of the Republican party."

The suggested plank had been approved at a session of the drafting committee early today. The vote was 12-5.

While the five Dixie members cast their votes against the word, most members of the drafting group said they regarded the

Considered As A Show, Convention Rather Dull

By SAUL PETT

CHICAGO (AP)—If by some trick of electronics the Democratic National Convention appeared exciting to you on television last night, you'd better trade in your set.

Considered strictly as a show, the party's performance in Chicago's cavernous livestock amphitheater had all the drama of a mail order catalogue. There was little of the fire-eating whoop and holler exploded on opening night by Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee, the keynoter.

A warm ovation greeted bald, dour Sam Rayburn, speaker of the House, when he took over the gavel as permanent chairman.

"Mr. Sam" accused the Republicans of mishandling foreign affairs and said President Eisenhower must bear that responsibility.

In passing, Rayburn noted, "We're not going to make the health of the President an issue." This, apparently, is becoming one of the most frequently mentioned non-issues of the convention.

The next featured speaker might have been expected to provide some dramatic irony. Just four years ago, in the same hall, he was working furiously for the nomination of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon returned as a Democrat and excoriated the Eisenhower administration as "government by big business regency."

But neither Rayburn nor Morse could ever be accused of inciting a mob to riot. While their appearances drew a noisy hand and waving of state banners, their rhetoric was interrupted only spasmodically by scattered applause.

Many of the blue delegate seats stared back empty at the speakers. Most of those who remained on the premises were busy not listening. They read newspapers, milled in the aisles or clotted around ubiquitous TV interviewers, the fellows with the fantastic mobile equipment that looks like it came from outer space.

Before the convention, there was considerable talk about the need for streamlining and dramatizing the big political clambakes for the sake of the television audience. Thus far, the Democrats have revealed no new techniques except movies and quiz shows on the podium.

Last night's film was a clip from "The Best Years of Our Lives," used to introduce Harold Russell, the armless war veteran who was featured in the movie.

The convention's real excitement, of course, was still back in the downtown hotel rooms, in the crowded corridors and lobbies where Adlai Stevenson and Gov. Averell Harriman of New York continued their tug-of-war over delegate votes.

While speakers in the hall were unanimously lambasting Republicans, the Democrats downtown were doing considerable intramural mauling. Probably the best description of the situation came from a Kansas delegate. Asked how his delegation would go, he said, "I don't know but we're sure working on each other."

City's First Water Well Now Completed; Quality 'Excellent'

Greenville's first water well has been completed, Utilities Superintendent Leonard Bloxam reported to the Utilities Commission last night.

Bloxam said the well, which was drilled at the Washington and 13th St. tank, had been accepted rated at 750-gallons per minute. The gravel pack well should deliver better than a million gallons of water into the city's system daily, the superintendent reported to the commission.

Final analysis of water from the new well has not yet been received. Bloxam reported, but a field check by Federal government geologists has indicated that the "quality of the water seems to be excellent."

"I feel that the well has proven more than successful," Bloxam declared at last night's meeting of the Utilities Commission.

Bloxam said that he was recommending the purchase of a pump for the well be on which more stages for greater capacity can be added at a later date since the government geologists had said that the longer water is pumped from such a well the greater its capacity becomes.

The Utilities Commission agreed to the construction of the deep well at Bloxam's recommendation some months ago. Original plans had been to construct an addition to the water processing plant.

Bloxam said that the use of walls rather than the water plant addition, would mean a considerable savings.

Water from the well will be pumped directly into the city's mains at the Washington and 13th St. tank.

The Utilities Superintendent also reported on the progress of various projects currently being undertaken by the commission.

At Bloxam's recommendation the commissioners voted a month's salary for Frederick M. Stokes, long-time Utilities employee who recently retired.

Also approved was a donation of $250 for the Greenville High School activities bus.

Tobacco Barn Is Lost To Flames

Greenville firemen were called to a burning tobacco barn on the Robert Pierce farm located on the Kammern Rd. last night.

Approximately 510 sticks of tobacco were lost in the blaze. Firemen saved a nearby shelter and a quantity of tobacco stored in racks.

Firemen also answered a call to the Bruce Garis farm near Callie's Crossroads yesterday. A barn containing approximately 550 sticks of tobacco was lost.

Hurricane Slows To Snail's Pace

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Betsy slowed to a snail's pace today, greatly reducing a threat to the U. S. mainland with a swing to the north and indications of a still more northeastward turn.

Gordon Dunn, chief storm forecaster at the Miami Weather Bureau, said last night "New England has nothing to worry about from this storm."

Meanwhile, a new area of strong winds and rain squalls far out in the tropical Atlantic indicated a new storm may be brewing in the section where Betsy was born last Friday.

Highway Commission Erred; Oregon Family Has Toll Road

WOLF CREEK, Ore. (AP)—Southern Oregon's Stumbo clan, not in a bargaining mood, made plans today to operate a toll road 16½ feet long on the busy Pacific Highway.

Robert G. Stumbo, Wolf Creek logger and spokesman for his two brothers and a cousin, was surprised to learn that the Oregon Highway Commission—after two days of file searching—had admitted its mistake. The commission said the contested strip of U. S. Highway 99 had been overlooked in the past and, by golly, Robert, Harry and Allan Stumbo—the brothers—and cousin Clair W. Stumbo do have a lawful claim on the property.

The Highway Commission, not impressed with the toll road idea, is ready to negotiate with the Stumbos and buy the strip.

Stumbo announced at once that his attorney would handle any negotiations.

"I can imagine they are quite embarrassed," he said.

But as for the toll road? "Well, we'd like to sort of follow that along."

The family began making news and ribbing the state last Sunday when they stretched a rope across their strip and put up a big "private property" sign on a long straightaway, 10 miles north of

This small logging community. Traffic was delayed for half an hour and the Stumbos had a start.

The day after the traffic-stopping they applied to the county clerk in nearby Roseburg for permission to operate the disputed strip as a toll road. The application even included a proposed rate schedule for livestock and wheeled vehicles.

Robert Stumbo told a reporter, "The Highway Commission has always pushed the little guy around down here in southern Oregon... and it occurred to us that if we're paying taxes on the property we just might as well take it over."

While speakers in the hall were unanimously lambasting Republicans, the Democrats downtown were doing considerable intramural mauling. Probably the best description of the situation came from a Kansas delegate. Asked how his delegation would go, he said, "I don't know but we're sure working on each other."

Mesta Party Was Up To Par

By ED CREAUGH
CHICAGO (AP)—Perle Mesta's party may not have been the most but it came close to being the best.

Where else can you find H. V. Kaltenborn imitating Harry S. Truman imitating H. V. Kaltenborn?

Where else do they serve you champagne in glasses with pink rosebuds around the stems?

And where else does a master of ceremonies wearing an Averell Harriman button suddenly remember he was supposed to introduce a man named Adlai E. Stevenson only to discover Stevenson had already left? The M. C., Irish tenor Phil Reagan, never will live that one down.

Mrs. Mesta, a formidable party-giver who used to be minister to Luxembourg, planned originally to have only a modest 350 or so guests at last night's champagne supper.

All sorts of people, including reporters, kept pestering her for her views on the convention. She wound up with a good 500 guests in a hotel ballroom that can accommodate half that many. In the confusion some guests never did get a drink. But they saw a whale of an off-the-cuff floor show.

Martha Roundtree, who moderates television panel shows, lined up the politicians on her right, the celebrated commentators and reporters on her left, and they exchanged barbs in a free-wheeling fashion you don't often see on your TV screen.

Somebody reminded Kaltenborn of the celebrated imitation Truman did of him after the 1948 election. Kaltenborn rose to the occasion. He did an imitation of Truman imitating Kaltenborn. It brought down the house.

One roaring spectator: M. S. Truman.

Sen. Estes Kefauver was there. So were — oh, just name about anybody at the convention. They mostly were there except Harriman, who missed the big plug the man Reagan gave him.

Reagan swears he forgot he was wearing that Harriman button when he stepped up to the microphone to introduce such performers as Vaughan Monroe and Johnnie Desmond.)

Tips To Skinny Gals From Star

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

IT'S JUST as important to give advice to girls who want to gain weight as to those who want to lose weight, says movie actress Natalie Wood. She explains:

"It may sound odd to expound theories on how to put on weight when newspapers, magazines and bookstalls are loaded with literature on how to get thin. But there are lots of people who have trouble gaining weight. I'm one of them."

Natalie says that technicians working on the set are forever telling her how skinny she was as a child. It seemed to be her trademark.

Now, she says, she'd like to gain weight but her energy burns it off faster than she can accumulate it. Natalie wears size 5 dresses, found only in specialized shops, where the selection often is not complete, another handicap to the slim-Jill figure.

But occasionally the handicap can work to her advantage, she says.

"The studio bought me a beautiful wardrobe of clothes for my role in 'The Girl He Left Behind' with Tab Hunter. These clothes are put back in stock as a rule when the picture is finished, to be used over and over by bit players and extras. But because the sizes were so small, the studio decided it would be silly taking up room storing them, so they gave them to me."

Natalie tried the reverse technique for gaining weight. She read stories about how to reduce and then did what they said not to do—she ate creamed foods, fried foods, biscuits, bread, potatoes, spaghetti, noodles, high-calored vegetables such as lima beans, thick gravies, sauces, gooey desserts.

But then she found that her face erupted from too many sweets—candy, pastry, etc.—and that sweets deprived her of body building foods because she lost her appetite for spinach, meat, carrots and other nutrients.

"It was a mistake," she says, "to try to diet that way. The quick energy you get from sweets gives you a false sense of fullness that disappears soon and is only satiated by more sweets."

After a trial and error method, Natalie has decided the best idea for gaining weight is "to eat large helpings of good wholesome food at regular mealtimes. In addition, drink lots of malted milks, whole milk and cream."

"A favorite 'gain-weight treat' of mine is ice cream and ginger ale mixed together in equal proportions. It is not only refreshing, healthful and satisfying but it seems to do the trick," she says. That formula for weight gaining is successful for many skinny types and has been a popular recipe for a good number of years.

Church Ceremony Unites Miss Sumlin, Mr. Mangum

FOUNTAIN—Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church was the scene August 12 for the wedding of Miss Joyce Sumlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Sumlin of Fountain, and Johnny Ray Mangum, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Mangum of Walstonburg.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. L. B. Manning of Fountain before a background of greenery and ferns with baskets of gladioli and summer flowers. Five seven-branch candelabra completed the setting.

Prior to the ceremony, Miss Peggy Mangum, sister of the bridegroom, played "Lievestraum," "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," "Poem," "Evening Star," "I Love You Truly," "With This Ring," "Melody of Love" and the traditional wedding marches. Mrs. Bobby Baker of Fountain sang "Because" and "Whither Thou Goest."

Given in marriage by her uncle, Watson Owens, the bride wore a gown of chantilly lace and tulle designed with sheer yoke, double collar and long sleeves with points over the hands. The bouffant skirt of tulle over satin had insets of matching lace and cascaded into a sweeping train.

Her fingertip veil of imported illusion was attached to a tiana of matching lace and seed pearls. She carried a white Bible, centered with a white orchid.

Miss Monna Lou Carawan of Swan Quarter attended the bride as maid of honor. She was wearing a street-length dress of yellow embroidered organza over taffeta.

The bridesmaid, Miss Edith Hines, and junior bridesmaid, Miss Nettie Faye Sumlin, sister of the bride, wore green dresses identical to that of the honor attendant's. Mr. Mangum served as best man for his son. Ushers were Grant Mangum, brother of the bridegroom, and Larris Owens of Fountain.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of pastel pink lace with white accessories and an orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of pastel blue with white accessories and an orchid corsage.

The bride is a graduate of South Edgemore High School and is employed by the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company of Tarboro. Mr. Mangum is a graduate of Saratoga High School and attended East Carolina College. He will be employed by the Greenville Tobacco Company.

Following the wedding trip, the couple will make their home in Fountain.

Need Convention Pass? Try Southern Charm

By ANNETTE JACKSON
Reflector Woman's Editor

Ever tried to crash a national political convention?

Miss Elizabeth Copeland did and with the help of a Philadelphia policeman, it worked.

This daring incident, brought to mind by the current convention clamor, proves to Miss Copeland that chivalry knows no Mason-Dixon Line.

It was in 1948 when both of the conventions were held in Phila- delphia. Miss Copeland was doing research work there for an econo- mist. She laughs that she was about the only Democrat in the whole of Delaware County and a ticket to the convention was un- heard of.

The 1948 convention was the year the Republicans had a host of candidates for the presidency—Vandenberg, Dewey, Stassen, War- ren and Taft among others—and they were all very much in the race at convention time.

Miss Copeland found that a friend of hers had been given a ticket by a Republican big wheel who found at the last minute that he could not attend. With tickets scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth, it was worth solid gold.

Miss Copeland reports that she had heard her bosses and asso- ciates, some of them high in the Republican ranks, lament for months there were no tickets avail- able. It was the farthestest thing from her mind that she—a lone Democrat—in a traditionally Re- publican stronghold should gain admittance—by hook or by crook—into the inner sanctum.

It was while they were discuss- ing the one ticket held between them the Philadelphia cop ap- peared. Sighting the two damsels in distress, he offered his assist- ance. Miss Copeland reports that she described the problem in her best Southern drawl. It was the first time she had ever seen so many Republicans together she told him.

The husky policeman buckled under her Southern charm; he agreed to become a party to the conspiracy, j. g. He advised Miss Copeland's friend to use her ticket and wait for them inside the con- vention hall, leaving the local li- brarian to wait alone. Hearing her name from the rear, she wheeled around to see her policeman offer a sweeping bow in the best South- ern tradition. There, in the bottom of his hat, she saw the ticket.

She reports she never knew how he got it and that she didn't stop to ask questions. He whisked her past the outer gate, reunited her with her friend, got them up the back stairs through numerous "smoke filled rooms" where she got a first hand look at the party pow-wows and left them within view of their goal.

It was up to them, then.

They made it! Skipping about from vacant seat to vacant seat, Miss Copeland reports the con- vention panorama was something she will never forget. Always in- terested in politics, she had read everything at hand on the con- ventions. She tried to follow Her- bert Hoover's address that night but was so excited and confused by all the noise and demon- strations that her memories now are one mass of what she describes as "bedlam."

As each of the hopeful candi- dates arrived, the demonstrators tried to outdo the previous one. She recalls that Dewey's lasted the longest.

She reports the women arrived dressed to the teeth in their finery. But, alas, lack of air conditioning and the pressures of the evening sent them home looking like dish rags.

At the Democratic convention three weeks later, Miss Copeland attended in style, and had to pull no "deals" for tickets. She was present for several of those ses- sions and terribly embarrassed the evening the Alabama and Missis- sippi delegations walked out over the Civil Rights plank, waving their Confederate flags.

Physically, the Democratic con- vention was much the same with its demonstrations, bunting-draped wall and fiery speeches, she re- ports. She recalls the Truman demonstration lasted over thirty minutes, beating Dewey's record considerably.

Miss Copeland never saw her kind-hearted policeman again. And even to this day, her friends don't believe the story.

Miss Copeland has stayed as close to the convention scene this week as possible via TV. Next week, she'll take her vacation and be able to keep a constant watch on the Republicans in the comfort of her own home.

Supersize Bed For Long Tom

Not too long ago, the question of whether Grandpa slept with his whiskers over or under his bulky covers was a standing joke. Today, it's a dud.

The bedroom has gone modern and the plump old feather bed that provoked the question has given ground to warm, light-weight blankets. Keeping pace, scientifi- cally-designed mattresses and bed- springs replace the old straw ticks. Manufacturers are constantly de- veloping new sleep items to pro- mote more comfortable rest.

The latest innovation is super- size bedding. Although it's a god- send for the Tall Tom who out- distanced the standard bed in length, it isn't for him alone. It's designed to give everyone the free- dom he needs to stretch his toes and make the many position shifts so necessary to relax all of his muscles.

Available in most of the name brands, supersize mattresses and bedsprings can be adapted to standard beds through the use of easy-to-attach bed rail extenders.

They Can't Win Without South

If Southern Democrats run into difficulty over the civil rights platform in Chicago later this week, they have an ace in the hole which a good many people—particularly in the South—have been prone to overlook.

If the Democrats, regardless of their candidate, are to defeat President Eisenhower in November, it is going to take all the strength the party can muster. And the party cannot muster sufficient strength without the South.

Butler Erred Badly In Criticism On Coverage

Paul Butler's fight with CBS is providing an interesting and absolutely unnecessary sidelight to the Democratic convention which could have been avoided if Butler had used more tact and common sense in making his complaint about the failure of CBS to show a film on the opening night of the convention.

Butler took the rostrum Monday night to lambast CBS for not carrying the film which Butler said was part of the keynote address. CBS promptly replied that in its coverage of the convention is being determined on the basis of news value and in the opinion of its officials there was more important news happening in the convention than the film in question.

The continued insistence of the Democratic National Chairman that CBS carry the film will get him absolutely nowhere. Indeed, the demand of Butler is just as uncalled for as if he had attacked with equal vigor every newspaper in the country which has not carried a full, detailed report of every happening in conjunction with the convention.

Whether the news media be newspaper, television or radio, the evaluation of news reports to be carried must be left in the hands of the news media. In its evaluation of convention happenings, CBS did not feel that the film warranted the time it would have consumed. The Broadcasting Company was entirely within its rights to make such a decision. Indeed, if it is to provide good news coverage to the television audience throughout the nation, it must make such decisions from time to time. Similar decisions must be made every day by newspaper, television and radio news-men every day.

Otherwise the people who rely on these media for their news reports would get only that which propaganda experts would like them exposed to.

CBS officials are to be commended for rejecting the uncalled for demands of the Democratic National Chairman. The television company's coverage of the convention so far has been excellent. We attribute the quality of the coverage to the ability of the men who are in charge of selecting events to the telecast. Were the selection left to the politicians, coverage of the convention would be as dry and uninteresting as anything we can imagine.

Frank Stanton, president of CBS, stated the facts simply and forcefully in his statement which said:

"Far more important is the vital issue of freedom of the press which you raise. Those who make the news cannot, in a free society, dictate to broadcasters, as a part of the free press, to what extent, where, and how they shall cover the news. Television and radio in covering the conventions as well as all other news events, are not mere conduits which must carry everything which the news mader demands. On the contrary, we insist most vigorously that we are, and must remain free to exercise our own judgment..."

Public Forum

To The Editor:

I have read your editorial in THE DAILY REFLECTOR of August 6 concerning the recent trial of S. Sgt. Matthew C. McKee, in which you have pictured him as being used by the top brass as a "scape goat" to cover up their own abominations. Now, I cannot think of McKee as that sort of a goat, but rather as the sort that deserves to be completely dehorned. Had he been a Protestant instead of what he is, it is not probable that there would be all this "sob-sister" stuff going on over his already well nigh negligible sentence. Those of his religious persuasion have been allowed to come into our own little city and burlarize property, shoot down and murder one of our own police officers, and yet be prosecuted virtually, if not indeed literally, upon their own terms; but just let a Protestant do such things and see what happens. It is something awful indeed for a Protestant to commit such atrocities, but these other fellows, they seem to virtually attain unto "saint-hood" thru such infamous crimes.

In my opinion S. Sgt. Matthew McKee is second to none of that type of officers who have been perpetuating the unthinkable inhumanities that we hear so much about, not only among the Marines, but in other branches of the service as well; and rather than being their "scape goat" is a Chief among them, instead.

I cannot bring myself to believe that the lives of those six men whom he drove to their deaths in the treacherous waters of Ribbon Creek on the night of April 8 were so cheap that S. Sgt. McKee deserves to be let go Scot free. Their lives were as precious unto them as is that of McKee unto himself. After having been driven by him into the jaws of death, their deaths as truly occurred at his hands as though he had taken his revolver and shot them down, in cold blood, one by one, and he is deserving of a punishment commensurate with his infamous deed.

Long now have I been a stickler for reasonable discipline. But when discipline is degenerated into brutality, then those guilty of such inhumanity are the ones who need to be disciplined, and sternly.

I have seriously wondered if some of those boys who turned Communist during the Korean War did not do so more out of protest against just such brutality than out of any relish for Communist propaganda. That officer who is a model and worthy of his salt will try to take care of his men rather than drive them into useless but certain death, just to show his authority over them.

Sincerely submitted,
W.T.C. Briggs
Greenville, N. C.

In 1952 only nine of the 48 states were in the Democratic column when the final count was made on the presidential ticket. All nine of these states were either Southern or border states which are those most concerned about too strong a civil rights plank in the 1956 platform.

Politicians from other parts of the nation have made a big fuss about the fact that Florida, Texas, Virginia and Tennessee—Southern States—voted for Eisenhower rather than the Democratic nominee in 1952. But we haven't heard any fuss about the fact that all the Northern states which were expected to do just as much for the Democratic nominee as the South also went Republican in 1952.

The fact is that a large slice of the Democratic party strength is in the South. Without Southern support the party cannot hope to win the uphill fight against an Eisenhower second term. Even with solid support from the Southern states, the Democratic candidate will be an underdog in the November election.

Party leaders are most anxious to win the 1956 election and bring the administration back under Democratic control. They realize that such a goal is out of the realm of possibility if the Southern States are not solidly in the fold. Therefore national leaders of the Democratic party—in spite of their efforts to push the Southern delegations as far as possible in writing a civil rights plank—don't want to push the issue to the breaking point. They will exert their energy to see that the breaking point is not reached.

In all probability the civil rights plank in the Democratic platform will be one sufficiently strong for the Northern Democrats to interpret to suit the fancy of their votes. At the same time it will be worded with sufficient mildness to be accepted by the South as perhaps unpleasant, yet not unreasonable.

Georgia's Gov. Griffin hit the nail on the head when he said in Chicago the Southern delegation is willing to accept a civil rights platform of moderation, but the Southern wing of the party has no intention of becoming a whipping boy for the platform plank.

Primary Objectives Of The ABC Board

By LYNN NISBET

CONTROL—Law enforcement, education and good public relations are the primary objectives of the Alcoholic Beverage Control system, according to Henry C. Liles, chairman of the Greensboro ABC board. In his talk before the county commissioners' convention at Winston-Salem Monday, Liles also resented some figures on the profits from legal sale of whiskey in North Carolina.

Recognizing that the liquor problem has and ever will be a matter of concern, the question is whether the traffic shall be controlled by law or by outlaw. The revenue aspect must always be secondary to control. Yet the fact that profits from illicit traffic are used to maintain criminal rackets, while those deriving from legal sale are devoted to constructive purposes, should be kept in mind.

Revenue accruing to the State, the counties and municipalities in North Carolina since adoption of the ABC plan is a sum greater than the value of property at all the twelve State supported institutions of higher education. It is sufficient to replace land and buildings at all the State mental hospitals, with enough left to pay salaries and wages of the staffs at present rates for 22 years.

For the fiscal year ending last June 30, ABC profits would pay salaries of all personnel at the University and the other 11 State colleges. It was an amount sufficient to operate the entire school bus fleet of over 7,000 vehicles for a year.

Profits from the Greensboro stores alone would pay tuition grants of $128.16 for every white child in Greensboro, grants of $92.50 for every one of the 17,101 pupils, white and colored, in Greensboro schools.

In addition to State and local income, the Federal government took more than $25 million in excise taxes from legal liquor sold in North Carolina last year.

EDUCATION—The profits are counted after substantial spending for law enforcement, which has greatly decreased the illicit traffic, and for education. It is conceded that the Greensboro ABC setup has one of the best educational programs in the state, although nearly all of the cities and counties carry on plans for teaching about alcoholism in the public schools, through civic clubs and other agencies—welfare departments, juvenile courts, medical and mental hygiene clinics. Emphasis is on control, both in the sale and in the use of alcoholic beverages.

Chairman Liles said that when efficient law enforcement and a balanced educational program have been established, the ABC folks should seek co-operation of all the people through good public relations. In this field he emphasizes employment of high type personnel, maintenance of clean stores in good business districts, and letting the people know that the primary objective of ABC is control rather than profit.

ECONOMY—The North Carolina State Hospital Board of Control has argued for years that real economy in mental health is not achieved by skimping appropriations, but by getting full value for dollars spent. The position is supported by results of a survey conducted a few months ago by Topeka (Kansas) State Hospital, an institution comparable to Dix Hill and Morganton. Dr. A. P. Bay, Superintendent, and Dr. P. E. Feldman, Director of Research and Education, gathered statistics from 22 other hospitals and compared them with the record at Topeka.

The 22 hospitals had an average daily patient cost of $2.64. Topeka had a cost of $5.34. The extra cost was due to more doctors and better trained attendant personnel with lower patient load. The results are interesting.

TRENDS—During the 10-year period from 1945 through 1954, the population of the 22 hospitals increased 9 per cent, from an average of 1,708 to 1,858. In 1954 there were more than 200 patients for each physician, 78 for each registered nurse. Adjunctive therapists and social workers were far below the number set by the American Psychiatric Association as adequate. During the decade considered the patient population of all the 22 hospitals showed a steady upward trend, accelerated in the past two years.

The Topeka hospital added doctors and nurses and attendants, reducing the doctor-patient load from 616 to 58. This ran the per day patient cost up to $5.34. With what result?

New admissions remained about the same at Topeka and the other institutions. But the better treatment enabled Topeka to discharge many more patients in shorter time, so that while the other 22 hospitals showed increased population of about 9 per cent, Topeka reported a decrease of 25 per cent.

COMPARISON—The hospitals surveyed were all smaller than Dix Hill and Morganton and the same service might run a bit higher per patient. The $2.64 per day in them compares with $3.20 at the North Carolina institutions. (The overall average for the five units in the N.C. system is within a few pennies of $3.00 per day.) The Psychiatric Association says $5.00 is the absolute minimum for genuine economic operation.

Dr. John W. Murdoch, General Superintendent of the N.C. hospitals, insists that a few more dollars spent for doctors and nurses and curative therapy will pay handsome dividends in two ways. It will actually save money in total appropriations, and more important it will enable the hospitals to restore to relatively normal health hundreds of patients now in State institutions.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
READ—AND REFLECT

Have you let the summer come almost to an end without taking a vacation? Maybe you are the kind of a person who throws out his chest and declares with pride that he needs no vacation. Maybe you have the idea that only lazy people go on vacations.

First of all, you had better awake to the realization that human life comes with a weekly vacation built in as part of its standard equipment. One day of rest out of seven is not only an ordinance in the Word of God but has been found by experience to be utterly necessary for health and sanity. In addition, we need periods of rest, relaxation, and reflection.

Read the New Testament and see how often Jesus said to his disciples, "Come apart a while and rest." In his three years' ministry, Jesus and his disciples took quite a few vacations. Every minute of our Lord's ministry was precious, but rest was a part of that ministry as well as work. The heart rests after every beat. Oh yes, and by-the-way, if you are a chap who never takes vacations, just stop for a moment and count how many of your friends have had heart attacks.

Too much of anything is bad—too much work or too much rest. Life gets much of its significance from balance, and vacationing is one way of allowing one's life to come into balance. Think it over if you haven't taken a vacation yet.

Little Man, Big Memory

A laborer who earns $1.98 an hour, lives in a three-room flat and grew up in a children's home may be a $64,000 winner on the TV "Challenge" program Sunday night.

Last Sunday night Theodore Nadler of St. Louis answered the $32,000 question on opera. A recent article by Clarissa Start in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch tells more about this little man with the fabulous memory.

Nadler, born in St. Louis, was one of six children of a shoe cobbler. His father didn't work much, his mother had a chronic heart condition and the children spent most of their time at the Jewish Shelter Home.

Nadler says he was "always good" in history, geography and spelling, and he read a lot in school—all the biographies, Hannibal, Alexander, Caesar. He was slow in starting school because he had a speech impediment and was 14 when he finished the eighth grade and went to work.

His first job was detailed clerical work; then he worked as a hat blocker in Cincinnati and for a shoe company in St. Louis. His first day he says he learned the location of the shoe company's 68 other stores and still remembers them. "When I was 21 I had a fabulous memory," Nadler declares. "One initial or note still means 100 facts to me. I wish I had three or four hours to tell you all I know about ancient history."

In 1941, Nadler went to work for the government and now is employed at the St. Louis Area Support Center. He flies to New York week ends.

He is philosophical about his lack of worldly success and points to Julius Caesar, "the greatest man of all time. After the battle of Pharsalus in 48 B.C. he granted general amnesty to everybody. He was a great jurist, politician, orator, engineer, general—and they assassinated him." Then there was the time Nadler's interest in study lagged. "I got disgusted," he says. "I couldn't talk to anybody about it. The average person on the street, what does he care about music or history or astronomy? My wife never heard of Tchaikowsky and I know every opus he wrote. Not that it's anything against her; we're just different, that's all."

Nadler and his wife have three boys, Michael, 12, Bruce, 8, and Joe, 4. He says he had no desire to show off his knowledge until prompted by bills. "The refrigerator broke, medical bills piled up. The three-room flat is crowded." So he made his challenge and on July 10 was called for an interview, during which he says, "Most of the time I'd give them the answers before they finished the question."

He contends, though, that the whole outcome is based on luck—"no matter how much you know, they can ask you what you don't know... I really wish it would end in a draw."

Notebook On Life

The 'S', For Sneeze Season

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—This is "S"—Day—the "S" stands for sneeze—for five million Americans.

It is the opening of the annual hay fever season, when man's best friend is no longer his dog but his pocket handkerchief—or the nearest air conditioning machine.

For the next month the land will resound with the wheezing and sneezing of more than five million U. S. victims of this peculiar allergy, which seems to be as old and as mysterious of origin as man himself.

Beware the watery eyed sufferer the next 31 days. Avoid the mischievous temptation to tell him that hay fever, like seasickness, is all in the mind, or that "it's no worse than an ordinary cold."

Hay fever is no joke to the man who has it. Nor is it any joke to industry. The U.S. Public Health Service estimates day fever costs 24,750,000 lost work days each summer.

Dr. Rudolph L. Mayer, discoverer of Pyribenzamine, an antihistamine used in its treatment, lists allergies—hay fever is a leading form—among the first three chronic diseases in America, exceeded in number of cases only by heart ailments and mental illness.

"Actually, the first hay fever symptoms were described by physicians in Greece five centuries before the time of Christ," said Dr. Mayer.

These ancient doctors prescribed remedies of arsenic and belladonna to ease the discomfort and arsenic is still used in some patent medicines today in the form of Fowler's Solution.

Hay fever is peculiarly prevalent in America, oddly enough, because of our prosperity. It is caused by airborne giant ragweed pollen. In Europe and Asia, where almost every scrap of land is carefully tilled, there is no place for ragweed to spread, and the incidence of hay fever is low. But here ragweed has burgeoned on acres spared from the plow, and all attempts to stamp it out have failed.

Antihistamines, which at first seemed to offer satisfactory way to ease sufferers' discomfort, had one drawback. They made some people sleepy, thus were potentially dangerous to truckdriver, salesman, and others who spend long hours on the highways.

Now a new drug called pyribenzamine, a combination of antihistamines and vitamin, a stimulant against fatigue and mental depression, has been introduced. Dr. Jerome J. Sievers, chief of the allergy service at Los Angeles Children's Hospital, tested the drug and found it gave relief in many cases and had few

Opinions In Brief

WATCHDOG

(The Charlotte Observer) The fantastic story of Orville Hodge, the embezzling auditor of Illinois, had a small beginning—a telephone tip from a reader to The Chicago Daily News.

Now it has blown into a million-dollar fraud, the biggest state government scandal of its day. New trails still unfold.

Between the tip and the full burst of scandal lay a hard road

Weeks of digging by a team of able reporters. Resistance at every turn. Concealed records.

Public employees instructed to say nothing. Cries of "politics!"

Painstaking searches into developing leads. The examination of thousands of checks. The end result is a belated victory for good government.

And a demonstration, once again, that there is no better watchdog of the public interest than a dedicated newspaper.

Middle East Issue Raised By Demos

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON The Democratic platform makers at Chicago are building up an issue comparable to the Republicans' 1952 charge that Truman-Acheson policies "lost China" to the West. It will be that the Eisenhower-Dulles program has alienated the whole Middle East, both Arabs and Israelis, and brought the world to another "brink of war" over the Suez Canal.

Their plank on foreign affairs, as well as pre-convention planning at Washington, frames the background for this retaliatory indictment. With their plan to attack the Administration's alleged "big business" sympathies, they will attribute the Eisenhower-Dulles Middle East efforts to favoritism toward a few great American oil companies.

In short, the Democrats will maintain in the campaign that the same sort of "ineptitude" chalked up against Truman and Acheson can be blamed on Eisenhower and Dulles. It will be a debate of Korea against the Middle East.

DEMOCRATS' CONTENTION The Democratic version of alleged mishandling begins long before Washington's refusal to finance the Aswan Dam and Gamal Abdel Nasser's seizure of the Suez Canal. It starts with the denial of arms to Egypt in 1953-54, which first aroused the Nile dictator's suspicions of the United States, as he told this writer in Cairo two years ago.

When the U.S. followed up this prohibition by forcing Spain to cancel a scheduled shipment of weapons to Egypt, the dictator then turned to Russia. And, although Ambassador Henry Byroade was tipped off on these plans, beforehand, Washington scoffed and doubted the report, and did nothing to prevent the deal. That gave Moscow its first foothold in this strategic sector.

ASWAN DAM MOVES TO BE TARGET Our original agreement to finance the Aswan Dam, which might have appeased Nasser, will be severely criticized. It will be cited as evidence that foreign economic aid has been used to browbeat and cajole other nations, not for world-wide humanitarian purposes. This is Adlai E. Stevenson's major criticism of this program.

The Aswan Dam was never economically feasible or practical, according to this opposition viewpoint. Egypt's financial position and prospects did not justify the proposed Anglo-American $270,000,000 advance. Egypt could never pay the $1.3 billion total cost, especially as her whole economy is based on high prices for export of her long-staple cotton. Nasser was an extremely poor risk under the best of circumstances.

His imports have exceeded exports for many years. His gold reserves have been cut in half since he ousted King Farouk. His industrial and agricultural reforms are languishing. Cotton prices have fallen.

COTTON PLOT WILL BE CHARGED

Possible Trade Solutions

By ELMER ROESSNER

There is just no pat solution to the problem of protecting American manufacturers, workers and farmers from competition of foreign goods made more cheaply.

Japan's exports are getting rough treatment here, as was pointed out yesterday. In addition, we are using tariffs and other restrictions to limit imports from other countries. These curb imports of watches from Switzerland, sugar from Cuba, champagne from France, cheese from Italy and generators from England. Each barrier is a blow to the economy of the exporting nation. Some of these blows comfort Communists.

Let's explore possible solutions: I. Suppose we allowed free and unrestricted imports of harmless products from all friendly nations? There are some who say the results would be good. Because foreign nations would be gaining more dollars, they would be buying more American goods, making our factories busier. Importing and shipping would boom. All this would create more jobs than were lost in American watch factories, sugar beet farms and elsewhere.

PERSUASIVE, BUT WON'T WORK

While that sounds good, there is ample evidence to show that a high-wage economy cannot compete with a low-wage economy. Ask almost anybody in New England. He will tell you that New England textile mills paying $1.80 an hour have been unable to compete with Southern mills paying $1.10 an hour. The drift of textile manufacturing South has made some Southland communities better customers for New England tools, lobster and other products, but these purchases have not offset New England's loss of industry and jobs.

When there is no restricted trade between two regions, or two nations, wages in the less-favored section tend to rise, but wages in the other section tend to decline. Thus, a free exchange of products between Japan and the United States would tend to lift the Japanese level—but lower ours.

II. Suppose we raised the bars against all foreign products except those we cannot produce, or need for defense? That would preserve some existing jobs and markets, but it would destroy our import business. Worse, it would deny foreign nations opportunities to earn American dollars with which to buy American products, hence it would also destroy our export business. Cutting off foreign trade would wipe out about one-seventh of all our business.

LOANS AND GRANTS? III. Suppose we limited imports to bare minimums, and then gave foreign countries rants and loans to make up for their lost markets and to enable them to buy American products?

There is one argument for this: It would shift the burden of caring for our allies from the people in competitive fields to all the taxpayers. Surely the tuna fisherman out of San Pedro should not be expected to pay for good Japanese relations with his job; all of us should share the cost.

The big fault with this idea is that we are now learning, for the twentieth time, that loans and gifts do not make foreign friends. But give another nation a market and she will love you and fight for you.

IV. Suppose we do it the other way: give markets here to other nations and let the government and taxpayers reimburse the tuna industry for their losses? and all others for their losses?

None of us would be happy WE'LL LIVE WITH COMPROMISE

The only solution is the one that we have been using for more than a century. That is a series of compromises and adjustments, raising tariffs to protect industries in trouble; lowering them to aid other nations in distress; giving money to countries when it will help them and American interests with which they will spend it, and making loans and buying commodities at home when it is necessary to help an industry a segment of agriculture or a labor group.

We may detest governmental paternalism, statism and control of business, but we will live with it all our lives in the field of foreign trade.

ED To make matters worse, the Democrats will insist that the Administration began to undermine Egypt's main asset—cotton—for reasons of domestic politics.

Under pressure from Southern Senators whose votes were needed for legislation on Capitol Hill, and long before the seizure of Suez, Secretary Benson agreed to sell 5,000,000 bales of government cotton on the world market at a price competitive with the rival commodity from the Nile Delta. Presumably, we had kept CCC cotton off the world market.

Thus, when we refused to finance Aswan, and threw 5,000,000 bales of cotton in Nasser's face, he seized Suez as an alternate source of revenue. Aside from his desire to spite the West, and to preserve prestige among the Arabs, his need for cotton cash was a contributory consideration.

Two of the exciting questions in campaign debates will be: Who lost the Far East? Who lost the Middle East?

Experts Trying To Learn From Hurricane Betsy

By WILLIAM O. VARN
WASHINGTON (AP)—Weather experts up and down the coast were on round-the-clock watch today as Hurricane Betsy neared the Florida coast.

Besides trying to forecast her movements and warn persons in her path, they are trying to learn from Betsy the many factors affecting behavior of other such storms as part of a big 30-month research study that began this summer.

Congress voted special funds to undertake the research, being conducted from headquarters in Florida.

R. H. Simpson, the project director, and his associates hope to translate the highly technical data into conclusions about weather elements, temperatures and wind directions that lead to formation of the storms and affect their behavior.

From all of this they expect to come up with vastly better warning services and to learn what, if anything, can be done to soften the impact or change the path of the great winds.

Already, big strides have been made toward better warnings. The weather detectors watching Betsy are polling radio reports from ships at sea and planes, upper air findings from instruments sent 60,000 feet aloft, reports of Navy and Air Force pilots flying into the heart of the storms and observations by radar.

Combined, these are giving a picture of Betsy not hitherto available on her storm sisters of other years.

A giant new radar set, completed July 27 in San Juan, Puerto Rico, enabled observers to track Betsy for eight hours as she blew across that island Sunday.

A similar set was installed last year on Cape Hatteras, N.C., and a third is nearing completion now at Nantucket, Mass.

These giant radars enable forecasters to track the center of a storm 250 miles away. Radars with ranges up to 175 miles are ready at 43 sites. Still others with smaller range have helped to keep Betsy under watch as far out as the Bahamas.

Graniteers Defeat Carolina Dairy 4-3 In Playoff

Graniteers To Play Southern Bread Thursday

INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE
	W	L	Pct.
Graniteers	8	3	.727
Carolina Dairy	4	4	.500
Southern Bread	4	7	.364
Service Battery	3	9	.250

Scoring in the first, third and fourth innings, the Graniteers overcame a three-run deficit to topple the Carolina Dairy 4-3 in an Industrial Playoff game last night at Guy Smith Stadium.

The win places the Graniteers in a deadlock with the Dairy for the regular season crown. The Graniteers had won first half earlier.

Dan Gordon was the triumphant hurler, going the full seven innings and scattering five Dairy hits. Mitchell White was credited with the loss, although he struck out one and allowed only two hits.

More Playoffs

Industrial League affairs are now somewhat of a kettle of confusion. Since the league is now deadlocked with two champions, the Graniteers will be forced to play the third-place Southern Bread outfit Thursday night at 7:30. The game will be a match that was rained out previously. Should the Graniteers take this contest, they will be the unchanged champions of the second half. Should Southern Bread win, however, the Dairy and the Graniteers will be deadlocked again for second half title and a two-out-of-three series will have to be played.

The above-named series will begin Tuesday night, August 21, should it be needed.

Won On Two Hits

Left fielder Hobgood and shortstop Hardee collected the only two hits for the winners. Hobgood cracked a single in the fifth inning and Hardee added a long double in the fourth. Scoring were Nunn, Hardee, and Hobgood, who crossed the plate twice.

On the other side of the ledger, the Dairy scored all three of their runs in the first inning. Moyer and Foell cracked singles and came in later to score on Tripp's double. Tripp came in on a single by Dash. The Carolina Dairy's only other hit came in the fifth frame, as Moyer lashed out with another single, but to no avail.

The box:

Carolina Dairy 300 000 0-3 5 1
Graniteers 102 100 x-4 2 2
Batteries: White and Dash;

Floridans Are Pacing Tourney

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—Events in the Newport invitation tennis tournament suggested today that the center of U.S. tennis may be shifting from California to Florida.

So far, the oldest of U.S. court carnivals has had two upsets and both by Floridians. Monday Mike Green of Miami Beach wrecked Roy Emerson, sixth-seeded Australian, and yesterday Al Harum, of Coral Gables, crushed seventh-seeded Sid Schwartz, of Brooklyn, 6-2, 6-4. To enter the quarterfinals, Harum must now knock out Mal Anderson, of Australia.

Green gives Florida a dual delegation in the round of 16. After yesterday's triumph over Pancho Llamas, of Mexico, Green will oppose Bill Quillian, of Seattle.

First-seeded Ken Rosewall of Australia, will duel Barry McKay, of Dayton, Ohio, and Ham Richardson of Westfield, N.J., second seed and defending champ, takes on Mike Davies of England.

Haney Plans To 'Play Them As They Come'

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Fred Haney, manager of the league-leading Milwaukee Braves, is going to "play them as they come" instead of fretting about the grueling six-week home stretch.

The Braves had a chance last night to widen their margin over second-place Brooklyn but took a 6-2 defeat from the St. Louis Cardinals. It left Milwaukee two games up on the Braves and only three ahead of third-place Cincinnati.

"We're going to play every game as it comes along," Haney said. "The team we have to beat right now is the Cardinals."

St. Louis, with a 7-6 margin, and Philadelphia, 9-6, are the only two clubs in the league with an edge over the front-running Braves. Brooklyn is 8-10 and Cincinnati 4-9 against the leaders.

Haney managed to find a bright spot out of the loss to St. Louis as his big fast-balling right-hander Bob Buhl made his first start in 11 days after suffering a chipped bone in the index finger of his pitching hand.

Buhl gave up three runs and five hits in the six innings he worked. He walked four, two of whom came on to score, but didn't strike out a batter. It was his fifth defeat against 14 wins.

One of the hits was a decisive two-run pinch homer by Rocky Nelson.

"Buhl's ready to go," Haney said, "and that's heartening."

Lefty Warren Spahn will work for the Braves tonight against Tom Poholsky for the Cards in the second game of a three-game series.

Hogan Files Suit Against Government

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Golfer Ben Hogan and his wife, Valerie, filed suit today in U.S. District Court here to recover $20,294.83 from the federal government in connection with an alleged overpayment of internal revenue taxes for 1950.

The amount sought includes $16,043.34 which the Internal Revenue Service said Hogan owed as additional tax due from him on $45,000 he was paid by Twentieth Century-Fox film Corporation.

The $45,000 was paid to Hogan for motion picture rights on the story of his life and the golfing comeback he staged after he was critically injured in an automobile crash in 1949.

The remainder of the $20,294.83 sought by the Hogans represents interest on the purported tax overpayment since Aug. 15, 1955, when the payment was made by them after receiving their deficiency notice on June 9, 1955.

The Hogans' petition says that in their joint income tax return filed for 1950 income they reported receipt of the $45,000 as a long term capital gain item, interpreting the sale of film rights for the Hogan story as exchange of a capital asset.

The deficiency notice sent the Hogans by the commissioner of Internal Revenue held that the $45,000 paid the Hogans was ordinary income and not gain from sale or exchange of a capital asset.

Rocky Mount To Have Wrestling Benefit Bouts

ROCKY MOUNT — Eight of wrestling's biggest name stars—including two pretty girls—will appear in Rocky Mount Sept. 1 to take part in the Civitan Club All-Star Professional Wrestling Show, a benefit event.

The show will be held in Municipal Stadium at 8 p.m. rain or shine. All proceeds go to the Civitan Charity Fund. The wrestlers are appearing in the benefit performance through the efforts of Bill Lewis, Richmond promoter who acts as Civitan matchmaker.

A double main event headlines the show, featuring a four-man Australian tag team and a girls match.

The two young girls meeting in the second main event are Miss Corine Cordero of Hazelton, Ga., and Miss Millie Stafford of Minneapolis. Corine weighs 140 and Millie 138. They rank among the top women wrestlers today.

The other main event sees Don Arnold of San Diego pair off with Jack Venisky of Bayonne, N.J., in a tag team battle with young Dick Steinborn of Orlando, Fla., and Tom Bradley of St. Louis. Mo. Arnold and Venisky each weigh 225 pounds, while the flashy Steinborn is a 210-pounder and Bradley tips the scales at 230.

The show's preliminary bouts sends big and rugged Hombre Montana of Hollywood against Timmy Geoghegan of Ireland. The Hombre is a 310-pound mountain of a man while his Irish foe weighs 220.

Both main events will be two-of-three falls with a one hour time limit. The prelim goes one fall or 45 minutes.

After 4 Years, Wins Freedom

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A man who turned to the courts to clear him after eight years as a fugitive from a murder charge has finally won his freedom. He spent four years in jail.

Circumstantial evidence pointed to J. Guadalupe Agredano Garcia in a 1944 fatal stabbing in Jalisco. He fled. But he gave himself up in 1952 armed with what he hoped was adequate proof of his innocence. The Jalisco courts sentenced him to 12 years in prison.

The Supreme Court now has cleared him after hearing evidence Agredano Garcia was in another town at the time of the slaying.

Rained Out

WILMINGTON—A game between the Coastal Plain and More County Little League, scheduled for yesterday afternoon was called off due to heavy rain. The game was part of the State Little League Tournament being played here.

Coach J. H. Mobley's Coastal Plain boys took to the field again this morning to have a second try at the Moore County game, and the winner of that game will advance to the semi-finals tonight.

Arnett To Stay At UCLA; Knox Joins Canadians

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California's fleet halfback Jon Arnett has bypassed Canadian League pro football offers ranging from $16,000 to $20,000 to stick with his alma mater. But UCLA's passing star Ronnie Knox has decided to turn professional at once.

Back of Knox's decision is the uncertainty about his eligibility and the failure of UCLA to support his claim that he hasn't been receiving financial aid under cover.

Arnett held a brief press conference yesterday with his coach Jess Hill and told newsmen he had decided to finish his education.

"After all that's why I came to the University of Southern California," he said. "Someone might question my turning down such flattering offers from Canada, but after careful thought I decided to finish school first, then consider any future I might have in professional football. I'd find it very hard to live with myself."

With Arnett in the backfield for five games, the Trojans figure to make it interesting for anybody in the Pacific Coast Conference this fall.

But over at the UCLA campus the Bruins learned that Knox had decided to capitalize on his talent and right arm. The Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian League announced they had reached an agreement with Knox and his father Harvey, and that they will fly to Ontario today to sign a 1956 contract.

Bencriscutto Is Early Medalist

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Mike Bencriscutto Racine, pro, fired a four-under par 66 yesterday to claim medal honors as the final 55 entrants qualified for the $35,000 Milwaukee Open golf tournament that swings into first round action tomorrow.

Six other pros turned in sub-par rounds over the 70 stroke Tripoli Country Club course. They were: Bill Trombley, Dallas, Tex., 67; Darrell Hickok, Arlington Heights, Ill., 67; Gay Brewer, Cincinnati, Paul O'Leary, Bismark, N. D., 68; Billy Sixty Jr., Knoxville, Ill., and Walker Iman Jr., Augusta, Ga., 69.

The 55 qualifiers out of a field of 87 will join about 75 pros and six amateurs who were exempt from qualifying in medal play tomorrow. A 76 or better was needed to qualify in yesterday's 18-hole round.

Sam Snead turned out to be the most popular man on the course as a gallery of about 300 followed him as he posted an estimated 67.

Defending champion Cary Midgcoff, who is the U.S. Open king, arrived yesterday and planned his first test round today. He took last year's prize with a 265, 15 under par, 72-hole total at Blue Mound Country Club.

Russia's Track Field Team To Be Young, Brash

MOSCOW (AP)—Russia's track field team for the Olympic games in Australia may not be as good as the Soviets expected, but it will be young, new and brash.

An almost completely new group of men and women won championships during the Soviet Spartakiad Sports Festival, and victory here is virtually certain to get the winners a ride to Melbourne and a chance to take a crack at the powerful American squad.

The new champions are replacements for many old Russian stars who first got a good peek outside the Iron Curtain in 1950 at Brussels for the European Games, took another quick and unsuccessful look into the fresh air in 1952 for the Olympics, and made their mass journey to Bern, Switzerland, in 1954 for the victorious European Games.

Since then they have journeyed to London, Paris, and Scandinavia in addition to numerous trips through satellite countries.

Now a new crew is taking over and its assignment is to beat the Americans.

But it is most unlikely they will do this for another eight years, not until Russia's tremendously impressive sports mill turns out more good coaches.

NEW YORK (AP) The combined attraction of Mickey Mantle's bat and the unpredictable Ted Williams lured 52,409 fans into Yankee Stadium last night—the largest single-game crowd in the majors this season and enough to put New York's American League leaders over the million mark for the 11th straight year.

The Yankees, with 1,047,353 through the gates this season, now have topped the million mark in 20 seasons.

Mantle, Martin Hit Homers To Pace NY

By ED WILKS

Harvey Haddix, the guy St. Louis "couldn't use," and Curt Simmons, a springtime bust, are having themselves a ball these days even though the Philadelphia Phillies can't seem to make the unexpected boost pay off.

The two southpaws each gained their seventh straight victories with a pair of six-hitters last night as the fifth-place Phils swept a two-night double-header with the still plunging Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0 and 11-2.

The sweep gave the Phillies a solid .636 winning percentage since the All-Star Game, yet they've been able to move up just one spot in that fast-passing National League pennant race and still trail the leaders by 12 games.

Philadelphia managed to pick up just half a game on fourth place St. Louis as the Cardinals rocked Milwaukee 6-2 and prevented the first-place Braves from padding their two-game lead over Brooklyn, beaten 3-1 by New York's reluctant Giants. Third-place Cincinnati moved back to within three games of the lead by defeating the Chicago Cubs 2-0.

In the American League, Mickey Mantle socked away his 42nd home run, staying 13 games ahead of Babe Ruth's record-60 pace in 1927, as the New York Yankees whacked Boston 12-2 and ballooned their lead to 9 1/2 games after Detroit knocked off Cleveland 6-4 in 15 innings. The Chicago White Sox hammered Kansas City 12-1. Baltimore defeated Washington 3-0.

Haddix, 30, whom the Cardinals wrapped up with Stu Miller and Ben Flowers in a May swag at St. Louis, and Herm Wehmer, shut out the Pirates in the opener on five singles and a double by Joser Bob Fricard.

In the nightcap, Simmons hung up his seventh straight complete game in his "comeback" from springtime s-o-r-e-a-r-m miseries, and breezed in as the Phils jumped Red Munger in an eight-run second inning.

Rocky Nelson, who returned to the Cardinals when the Dodgers gave up on him, socked a two-run pinch homer to beat the Braves.

HOSTAGE

by ARCHIE JOSCELYN

SYNOPSIS
In Wild West days, Narcissa Hull traveled by stagecoach to Coyote Creek, in northeastern Montana, to marry Emil Jacobson. One passenger became obnoxious in his attentions to her—Dolf Kinney. He bragged of being the richest and most powerful man in the territory, and told her to jilt Jacobson and marry him. Narcissa found comfort in the presence of Dr. Erd, who helped her fend off Kinney. When the stagecoach stopped at Coyote Creek, Emil was not waiting for her. "Looks like your fellow didn't show up," Kinney said. "When you change your mind, let me know," Dr. Erd offered to take Narcissa to Emil's cabin. They found him—murdered only minutes before. On the way they had heard a horseman passing swiftly but keeping out of sight.

Dr. Erd thought of a haven for Narcissa—a position as housekeeper for Tom Arrington and Tom's two wild young orphan daughters. He left her there and reported Jacobson's murder to Major Blake, commander at the nearby army post.

Next morning a messenger tells Eklund, "Kinney wants to see you... Now!"

CHAPTER 6

Eklund found Dolf Kinney in his office in the rear of his big Rocky Mountain Saloon, and, characteristically, Kinney came abruptly to the point.

"Well, what did you do with her?"

"You've heard that we found Jacobson dead?" Eklund countered. "The news is all over. But you didn't leave her there?"

"Naturally not. She's working at the Arringtons' now—looking after Tom's girls."

Kinney appeared startled at this development, but, after mulling it over, not particularly displeased.

"Not a bad idea," he grunted. "You and me can do business, Doc."

"What do you mean?"

"Just what I say. Always say what I mean, and generally I mean what I say. Heard about the mediao out at the fort?"

"Dr. Philpott? What about him?"

"Called East yesterday. Rode thirty miles to catch the stage. Seems his man is pretty sick. Since his enlistment is up, he won't be coming back. Told the major so. That leaves you as the only saloon in this whole section of country."

"The army will soon get in a new medical officer."

"No, they won't, and I'll tell you why. Because you'll be that officer."

Eklund was startled. After a moment, he felt inclined to laugh. "You're mistaken on several counts, Dolf. In the first place, the army don't do things that way. In any case, I wouldn't be interested in the job."

"I usually know what I'm talking about. Don't forget that I used to be a scout for the army, and I still have some close ties with them. I furnish most of the supplies for the post, as well as owning the store and trading post here in town. I'm recommending to the major that he give you the job, since a medical officer needed right now, and it would take weeks, maybe months, to get a new one in. You can live here in town, and look after the post at the same time. He'll do what I say."

Knowing Major Blake, that seemed a brazen statement. On the other hand, there was no question that the major did defer to this man's judgment on a surprising number of matters. That was as surprising as it was hard to understand.

"I still wouldn't be interested in the job," Eklund said patiently. "I've plenty to do now."

"Make a considerable difference in your wages."

"That doesn't interest me."

"Just the same," Kinney insisted confidently, "you'll take it."

"What makes you so sure?"

"I usually get what I want, and I want you in that job. I've got my reasons. We can work together on some things. And if you work it right, as I say, you'll not only get some extra money, you'll get a lot."

"I'm afraid I'd be less interested than ever."

Kinney's next remark appeared irrelevant.

"Chickamauga was quite a battle," he said. "I was there. Eklund surveyed him with suddenly sharpened interest. "Where you, now?" he wondered.

"I sure was, Eklund—same as you. The main difference between us is that I didn't do a sneak that night. I'm not down on the books for desertion in time of war."

Silence ran between them for what seemed a long time. Eklund's fact had lost some of its savor; otherwise, he gave no sign.

"Well?" he asked.

"I thought I knew you when you first showed in this town, last winter," Kinney went on. "I knew I seen you before. You were Captain Davidson in those days, and a powerful good fighting man, they told me. What made you desert, I don't know. But you did it, and just in case it might come in handy to know, I've been doing some checking. I like to know such things. Well, I was pretty sure at first I've been certain of it for the last month. If Harlow Blake guessed, he's the kind of man who'd take a lot of pleasure in seeing that you paid the penalty—and it still holds. You know that too."

Eklund nodded gravely. There was no point in denying or dissembling. All that Kinney needed to do was make a report to the major. Arrest would follow, and it would be easy enough for them to establish the fact that he was Davidson, a deserter in time of war. He'd almost certainly pay with his life. Up to yesterday he might have moved on. But something was changed since yesterday, and the coming of Narcissa Hull. He couldn't run away—not again. There was too much to do, too many reasons for staying.

"Looks like there's not much choice," he said.

"There's never any when I want something," Kinney said flatly. "But don't let that worry you. We'll get along fine—and if he'll start to bust loose in this country, you'll be better off in with me than any other way."

Threat was implicit in the words of Dolf Kinney, a threat against Narcissa as well as himself. If there was also promise, it was not of a reassuring nature. Eklund was sober-faced as he set out on this day's round of activities.

He'd come to Coyote Creek half a year before, attracted partly by its remoteness from the world he had known, partly by the country itself. It was wild, savage, but there was rugged strength and stark beauty in the Rockies rearing to the west, untrammelled space here to their east. And here he had stayed.

Once he'd run, and on that score he had no regrets. But a man could run only so far, and never could you outrun destiny. Today, despite the bright sun that flooded the earth, it was as though thick fog had blanketed out the stars by which a man must steer.

He fought a brief battle with temptation, and lost. After all, it would be only courtesy to stop at the Arrington ranch on his way to the post, to inquire how everything was this morning. Likely there'd be questions that Narcissa would want to ask. In any case, he wanted to call there.

Peggy and Patty, attired in levis, came flying to greet him before the buggy had pulled to a halt. Narcissa, more sedate but smiling, was at the door of the house. He found himself smothered in a double embrace, covered with kisses and cries of rapture.

"We want to thank you, Erd, for bringing her here!" Peggy cried. "It's the nicest thing that ever happened to us!"

"If we didn't say thank you last night, we do now!" Patty added. "I think you're just the nicest man in the whole world."

"You seem to have made a next to Papa, of course!" hit," he said, once the girls had

You Too Can Use A LARGER SUGAR BOWL! ... for the difference you save on Dependable, Economical Optical Service Ridgeway's OPTICIANS, Inc. 5 Points Greenville dashed away on some new impulse.

"If there's any glory, it's splashing over on you," Narcissa laughed. "But they are dear." She sobered, as though ashamed of her gaiety. "I can never thank you enough for what you've done for me," she added.

"If a doctor's duties were all half so pleasant, or rewarding, the field would soon be woefully overcrowded," he retorted. "I just stopped to ask if there is anything that I can do."

"What about—Emil?" she asked.

"The major promised to attend to whatever has to be done. I'm going out to the fort again now."

"You'll let me know—for the funeral?"

"Of course. It will probably be tomorrow."

Major Blake confirmed that, an hour later. Everything would be done with military precision, since it had fallen into his hands. He seemed a little shocked at Eklund's suggestion that he would like a chance to perform an autopsy.

"Is that necessary?" I understood you to say that the cause of death was a gunshot wound?"

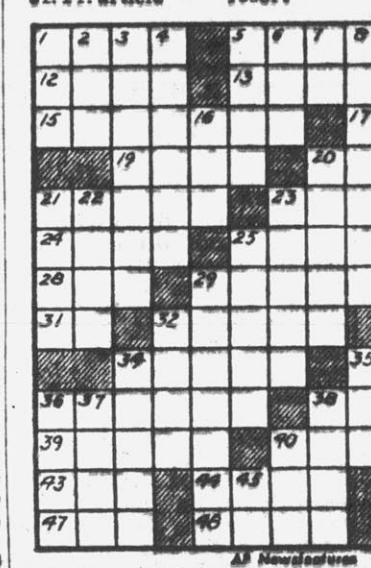

"That's the reason," Eklund explained. "I'd like to have a look at the bullet that killed him. There's only a slim chance that it'll tell anything, but it might. And that was murder."

Reported 4,500 Chinese In Burma

MYITKYNA, Northern Burma (AP)—Military sources say at least 4,500 regular Chinese Communist troops are holding positions inside Burma territory. They were reported giving all indications they are part of a "planned invasion" aimed at seizing and occupying portions of Burma. Officials revealed July 31 that Red Chinese forces had occupied about 1,000 square miles of Burma's northern territory after clashes with Burmese forces. The poorly defined border in the rugged area has been disputed for years.

Resettling Red China Refugees

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—The Free China Relief Assn. reports it has helped resettle 52,268 refugees on Formosa from the Communists since 1951. The association said it plans to set up new aid stations this year along the rim of Red China at Hong Kong, the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu and other points. The oldest carillon in North America is in the spire of Sacred Heart Church at the University of Notre Dame. The 23 bells were imported from France in 1856.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — Steels joined coppers, oils and aircrafts early this afternoon as a pacemaker in another market upturn.

Leading issues rose fractions to 2 points or so in fairly active trading.

International oils again were on the upside as investors were more encouraged about the Suez Canal situation. Good corporate news helped stimulate trading interest.

An impressive earnings report helped Anaconda to a gain of more than a point and Phelps Dodge was ahead fractionally following its own improved earnings.

Aircrafts pushed earlier gains to more than 2 points. Pivotal steel issues were ahead a point or more. Oils were up fractions to beyond a point.

Boeing's Air Force contracts totaling more than half a billion dollars seemed to stimulate the entire aircraft group as Douglas and United Aircraft advanced 2 points or more. Boeing itself, following its 2 1/2 gain of yesterday when it was the most active stock, was ahead more than a point.

Steels, which were firm from the start, stretched their gains in more active turnover. U.S. Steel, Republic and Bethlehem advanced about a point or more.

Among the motors, Chrysler was up around a point and Ford a fraction. Chemicals were spotty with small gains by Dow and du Pont. Allied Chemical dropped a point at 108 1/2 on a block of 3,200 shares.

Small gains were made by Goodyear, Goodrich, International Telephone, Southern Pacific, Loew's and U.S. Gypsum.

Premium Book For County Fair Ready In Week

The 1956 premium book for the Pitt County Agricultural Fair will be ready for delivery early next week, Larry L. Averette, president of the association, said today.

The premium offers for the 1956 event, to be held Oct. 8-13, amounts to $4,000 and all exhibits at the fair are limited to Pitt County, Averette said.

Sam C. Winchester, county agent, is serving as director of the men's division and Mrs. Lillie B. Little, home demonstration agent, is serving as director of the women's division.

Premium books will be mailed to all 1955 exhibitors and others desiring books can secure them from the County and Home Demonstration Agent's offices or from vocational teachers.

Averette noted that premiums for a sheep exhibit have been added for the first time this year. He also announced that the judging of all exhibits will take place Oct. 8 and that the swine and livestock show will start promptly at 11 o'clock that day.

All exhibits for the 1956 Fair, with the exception of livestock and swine, will be held over during the entire day on Saturday.

"We are putting forth every effort to provide a Fair that all of the people of Pitt County will be proud of, and to carry out our slogan 'Pitt County on Parade'."

Averette declared, "Therefore, we urge our people to make their plans now to exhibit at the Fair."

New Solicitor General Named

WASHINGTON (AP)—J. Lee Rankin, an assistant attorney general since 1953, takes office today as solicitor general of the United States.

He was appointed by President Eisenhower yesterday. Also named was a new ambassador to Egypt in the midst of an international dispute with that country over its nationalization of the Suez Canal Co.

Raymond A. Hare, a career diplomat with several tours of duty in the Middle East, replaces Ambassador Henry A. Byrads, who has been reassigned to the Union of South Africa. Hare, 55, now is in Washington as director general of the foreign service.

Rankin, a 49-year-old Republican from Lincoln, Neb., succeeds Simon E. Sobeloff, who resigned to become a judge of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Rankin's appointment is subject to Senate confirmation next year.

As solicitor general, he will represent the United States in cases before the Supreme Court, and will decide which rulings adverse to the government are to be appealed.

Rankin represented the government in arguments before the Supreme Court which led to the 1954 ruling that racial segregation in schools was unconstitutional.

N. C. Farmers To Get $4.5 Million

WASHINGTON (AP)—Carolinas farmers taking part in the U. S. Agriculture Department's soil bank plan stand to collect about $4.5 million dollars in the next few weeks.

The department said yesterday it hopes to start delivery of about 230 million dollars worth of soil bank payment certificates within three weeks to state farm committees over the country.

Certificates and cash will be distributed to farmers after state committees check their eligibility. Estimated total payments due include: North Carolina, $3,733,000; South Carolina, $793,000; Georgia, $1,377,000; Tennessee, $2,063,000; Virginia, $659,000.

OKAY HEALTH CENTER

RALEIGH (AP)—Construction of a $33,350 health center for Ashe County has been approved by the State Medical Care Commission.

Cyprus has been ruled by the Egyptians, Assyrians, Persians, Greeks, Romans, the Byzantine Empire, England, Venice and the Turks since its written history began about 1,500 B.C.

Travel - Study Tour Of ECC At End Of Road

The 1956 travel-study tour of East Carolina College terminated on the campus Tuesday evening with the return of 33 persons who had completed a 7,265-mile circuit of the United States of America.

The coast-to-coast tour began Monday morning, July 16, under the direction of Dr. Ed. J. Carter, director of the Bureau of Field Service of the college, and covered the southern, southwestern, and mid-western states. The party making this 30-day study tour included 14 persons who registered for college credit for the course.

The party was welcomed home by Dr. J. D. Messick, ECC president, and Alumni Secretary James W. Butler.

The touring Tar Heels returned home with richer experiences gained in obtaining a first-hand knowledge of the historic, industrial, agricultural and scenic areas of the nation, several members of the group reported upon their arrival here.

It was obvious to the onlookers watching the unloading of the huge air-conditioned Carolina Trailways bus that the party had also accumulated much additional baggage during this Atlantic-to-Pacific expedition—including dried straw hats, and silver souvenirs from the West Coast states.

Top Decorated Flier Is Victim

MILDENHALL, England (AP)—An auto crash last night killed David C. Schilling, 37, one of America's most decorated fliers.

Schilling became a top U.S. Air Force ace in World War II by shooting down 23 German planes in combat and destroying 10 others on the ground. He won the Harmon International Air Trophy in 1951 as the year's outstanding flier.

His car apparently went into a skid and hurtled into a bridge three miles south of the big U.S. Air Force base here. The car broke in two. Police said Schilling was thrown from the vehicle and died at once.

He was stationed in England as inspector general of the Strategic Air Command's 7th Air Division. The colonel was a native of Leavenworth, Kan. Survivors include his wife Mary and two children, David Jr., 13, and Carla, 3.

N. C. Delegation Planning Hold Caucus Today

CHICAGO (AP)—North Carolina delegates to the Democratic National Convention planned a caucus today as the session reached a critical stage as far as the South is concerned.

The party platform, with the all-important civil rights plank, is to be presented to the convention tonight. Balloting will begin tomorrow night.

Gov. Luther Hodges, who heads the delegation, said he expects North Carolina to deliver between 30 and 35 votes to Adlai Stevenson on the first ballot. He said he expects a Stevenson victory on the first or second call of the roll.

Hodges said it would be unfortunate if the Platform Committee presents a moderate civil rights plank and liberal elements try to substitute a stronger one on the floor.

The North Carolinian said the convention had been marked by a display of unity that could lead to victory at the polls in November.

'Patriots' Back Pearsall Plan

WINSTON - SALEM (AP)—The state's "Pearsall plan" for maintaining racial segregation drew support yesterday from leaders of Patriots of North Carolina, Inc.

Dr. W. C. George of Chapel Hill, president of the pro-segregation group, said the legislation passed by the special General Assembly session last month may not be adequate to meet the crisis in education and in our lives.

He added, however, that the Patriots will urge voters to approve the legislation at the polls Sept. 8.

A vice president of the group, Dallas E. Gwynn of Leaksville, said that in the past 10 days he has collected more than $2,000 from North Carolinians who oppose any sort of racial integration.

Grant, current president of the State Rights Council of Georgia, voiced discouragement at "the lack of unity among Southern leaders at the Democratic convention." He said he had advised Georgia Gov. Marvin Griffin to "bolt the Democratic party" rather than support Adlai Stevenson or Gov. Averell Harriman of New York for the nomination.

TO TALK POLITICS

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower arranged to talk politics with Thomas E. Dewey today amid speculation they may discuss the controversy over picking a GOP vice presidential candidate.

The payoff!

There are many ways to measure life insurance values. Financial stability, service, prompt payment of claims: these are some of the important yardsticks.

Woodmen of the World, financially strongest fraternal benefit society, is proud of its showing of excellence by these measurements.

Of more than 7 1/2 millions of dollars paid in 1955 death and disability claims, litigation required settlement in but a single one. This remarkable record is second to none in the life field.

In the matter of promptness, too, Woodmen has a superb record. Checks to beneficiaries are usually in the mail within 48 hours after receipt of proofs.

This just, liberal, speedy performance in claim settlements stands out. It is another demonstration of the plus benefits offered by membership in a great Society.
