President Takes Over Convention Spotlight Today

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—President Eisenhower took command of the Republican centennial convention today amid indications he will cement his choice of Vice President Nixon as his running mate.

The only question seemed to be whether he would do so by remaining silent or by restating his oft-voiced views that the convention should be "open" and that he would be delighted to run again with Nixon.

A convention showdown on Harold E. Stassen's campaign to ditch Nixon remained a possibility.

The mood of the delegates was such that only an outright expression of preference for someone else would induce them to side-track Nixon. And there was absolutely nothing to indicate Eisenhower would do that.

Eisenhower himself is certain to be renominated unanimously at the convention session late today. Immediately after that, the delegates will choose the vice presidential nominee.

Eisenhower had no known plans to visit convention hall until his acceptance address tomorrow night.

But his influence was all-encompassing.

Stassen, on leave as the President's assistant on disarmament, asked permission to address the party convention today after it renominates Eisenhower and before the roll of states is called on the vice presidential nomination.

There was considerable doubt he would get it.

Stassen is not a delegate and under the rules could not address the convention except by unanimous consent.

Nixon, who has taken no public note of Stassen's efforts to remove him from the ticket other than to say the convention should be an open one, urged convention delegates to let Stassen speak.

Sen. John Bricker of Ohio, a Nixon backer, said he thinks it would be a good idea for Stassen to speak. He said he thinks Stassen would only "rouse" more delegate opposition to his move to side-track Nixon.

Nixon is credited with having more than 1,000 of the convention's votes behind him, and would certainly win any roll call test unless Eisenhower expressed a preference for someone else.

Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. indicated he expects no Eisenhower announcement on a running mate prior to the convention's action. Brownell said he didn't look for any "excitement" as a result of the President's day-early visit to San Francisco.

The attorney general said it was his understanding Eisenhower would confer with a number of Republican candidates for Senate, House and governorships and have his picture made with them. Some had appointments today.

Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts, who has been Stassen's chief candidate to replace Nixon although Herter put Nixon's name in nomination, said he doesn't think Eisenhower will have any list of men acceptable to him as running mates.

Herter said he hopes to see the President, but he added that, as far as he is concerned, it will be "just a social call."

Gov. Goodwin J. Knight of California, a political foe of Nixon, said he will "emphatically request" that his own name not be put in nomination — "and if it should be submitted I will ask that it be withdrawn." Mrs. Mary Tibbets, a delegate, told the California delegation she would put Knight's name in nomination even if he opposed such a step.

California has adopted a majority-rule provision under which all the state's 70 votes will go to Nixon despite Knight's opposition.

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona said some of his state's delegates had been approached in search of support for Knight.

Goldwater, one of Nixon's strategy team members, said he regards Knight as about the only candidate left who might be placed in nomination against Nixon.

Knight, one of those who greeted Eisenhower on his arrival at the San Francisco airport yesterday, said he hopes to talk to the President later but had no specific date.

Eisenhower, all smiles, got a rousing reception on his arrival here. His appearance gave the Republicans something to cheer about and they turned out by the thousands as he drove to a downtown hotel from the airport.

Nixon headed the list of greeters at the airport. He got a warm handclasp and a few words from the President. Stassen, in the receiving line, also got a presidential smile and a word or two.

added that many people "view with alarm" the provision. "I sincerely believe," he told his audience, "we will not have any wholesale closing of public schools under the provision. 'Next to churches, there is nothing the people of our state hold so dear as their public schools. I cannot under any circumstances foresee any mass closing of schools.'"

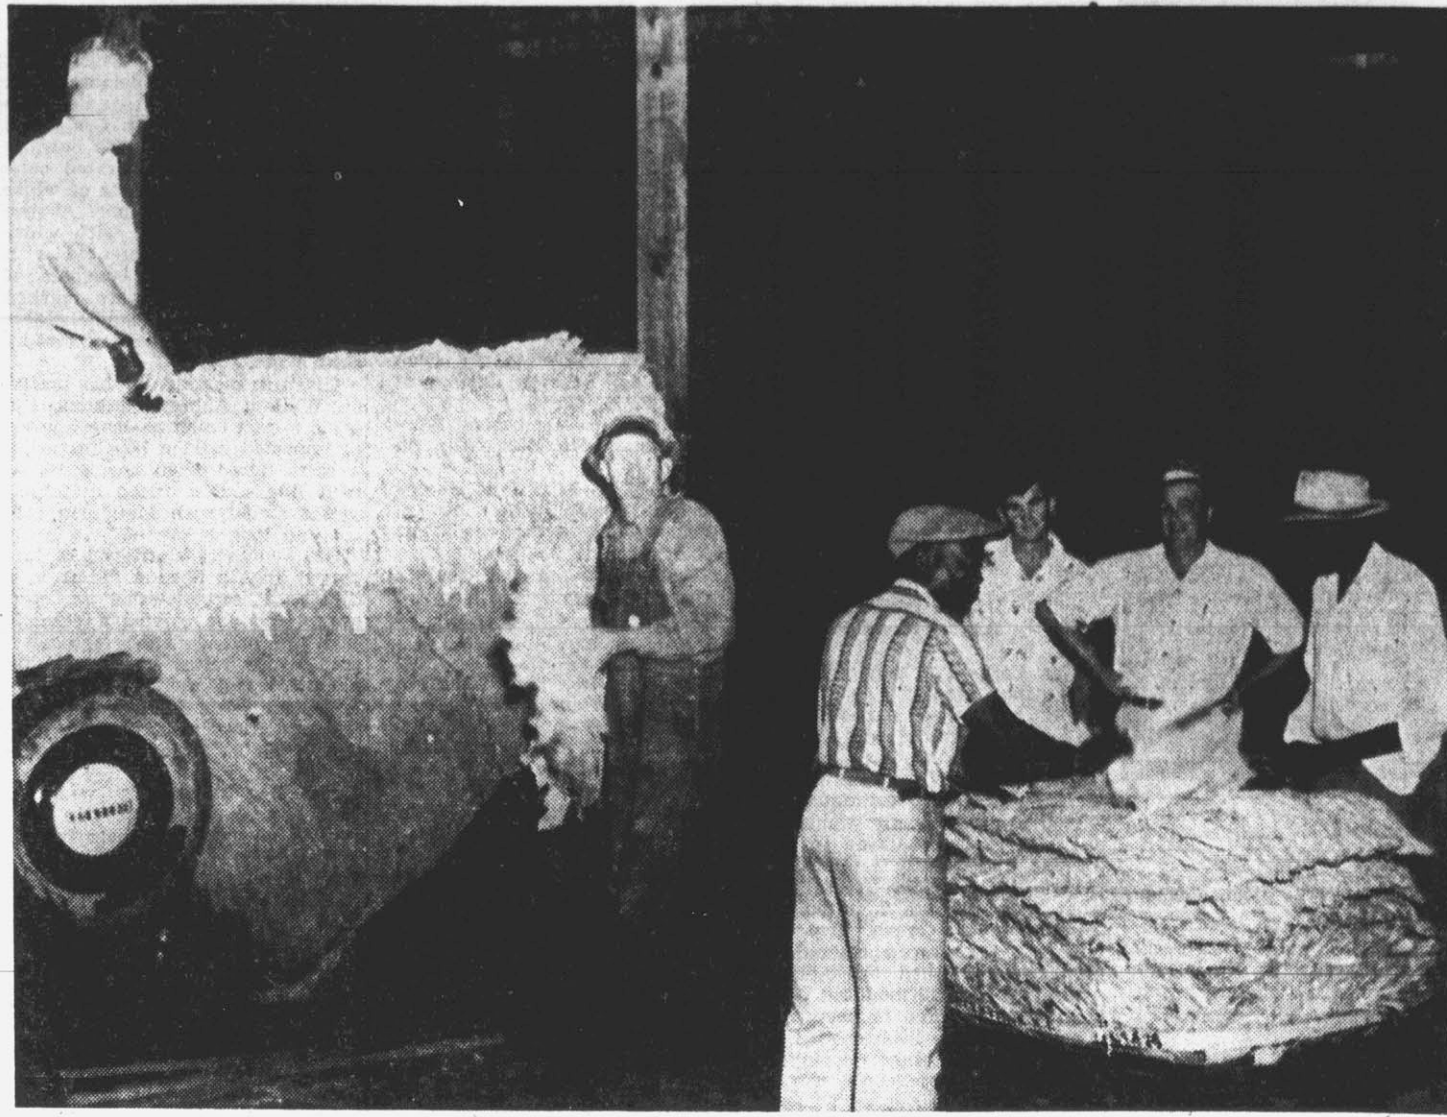

"Should conditions become such that people in a local opinion unit would vote to close their schools, would it not be better to have schools closed by an election rather than by violence and chaos?" Rep. Jones outlined generally the

SAM RAYBURN TO SPEAK HERE

Another Load Of Golden Weed Is Placed On Floor

GOLDEN WEED POURS IN—Levi Haddock of near Black Jack unloads tobacco on a local warehouse floor for tomorrow's opening day sales. Tobacco has been coming in to Greenville all day today as farmers, warehousemen and factories prepare for the opening of the Eastern Belt. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Tobacco Flows Into Warehouses As Market Starts Season Tomorrow

The chant of the tobacco auctioneer will resound through Greenville's warehouses tomorrow as the market begins its 66th season.

Today the Golden Weed was pouring into the city's warehouses in preparation for tomorrow's opening sales.

How much tobacco will be on the warehouse floors and how it will sell was anybody's guess and tobaccoists were refusing to predict an average for the opening day.

The opening day average "remains to be seen," said Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee. "It will depend upon the quality and the type of tobacco that's predominant on the warehouse floors."

Whedbee had no predictions as to the amount of leaf which will be sold here tomorrow. However, he did say that he was expecting a "large amount" of tobacco to pour in Greenville's warehouses today.

There will be 12 sales daily in the 13 warehouses which are to be operated here this year. The other eight warehouses in town will remain idle, according to Whedbee.

"I'm not looking for anything like that this year," Whedbee declared. "The Georgia market is essentially sold out and we anticipate opening with five complete sets of buyers."

Tobaccoists would not hazard a guess as to whether tomorrow's average would exceed last year's opening day average of $45.54 per hundred pounds.

It all depends on what grades of tobacco are predominant on the floors of warehouses when sales begin tomorrow.

Change In Demand Tobaccoists say there has been a change in demands of cigarette companies in recent years. In the years before filter tip cigarettes became popular cigarette companies wanted thin leaf tobacco which smoked milder. Now with the popularity of filter cigarettes on the upgrade, the companies prefer "bodied" leaf—those from high up on the tobacco stalk.

These stronger leaves furnish the "punch" needed to carry the full flavor through the filters, tobaccoists say.

Thus if the "bodied" leaf is predominant on warehouse floors tomorrow prices are expected to be stronger.

While quality of this year's tobacco is expected to be good in general it is not expected to measure up to last year's bumper crop. The year 1955 was considered one of the outstanding growing years by tobaccoists and farmers. In spite of the hurricanes which destroyed a certain proportion of last year's tobacco while it was still in the fields it was one of the largest crops ever harvested.

And 1955's producers' or farmers' sales were the largest ever for the Greenville market.

Banner Year "Last year was the banner year of all time," Whedbee said. "The largest amount of money was paid out and the greatest amount of tobacco was sold in the 65-year history of the market," the sales supervisor declared.

There was a 172 per cent increase in poundage over the previous year.

Official government producers' sales figures showed that 73,644,996 pounds of tobacco were sold on

Demo Rally Set For September 28

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Staff Writer
"Mr. Democrat" is coming to Greenville in September.

Representative Sam Rayburn of Texas, Speaker of the U. S. House of Representatives and permanent chairman of the Democratic National Convention, will speak at a Democratic rally here September 28. The Eastern North Carolina rally will be held in Wright Auditorium on the campus of East Carolina College.

Announcement of Rayburn's coming was made this morning by John G. Clark Sr., chairman of the Executive Committee of the Pitt County Democratic Committee. Rayburn's appearance at the rally was arranged yesterday by First District Representative Herbert C. Bonner of Washington, a close friend of the Speaker.

Clark said the rally will be a fund-raising meeting for the Democratic Party. He added that prices for tickets to the dinner meeting and Rayburn's address will be set at a later date. Until a committee can be appointed to handle arrangements, Clark will serve as chairman for the affair.

Clark has called a special meeting of the county Democratic committee for Saturday noon at Respect Brothers' barbecue house. Arrangements for the rally will be discussed at that meeting and committees are expected to be appointed.

"I have never been as well pleased," Clark said today, "I am so delighted that we have been able to get Speaker Sam Rayburn here for our meeting. I think he is truly 'Mr. Democrat' and one of the outstanding men in the United States."

"I sincerely hope all of the Democrats and people of Eastern North Carolina will join us for this great occasion," he added.

The rally will be the largest political meeting Pitt County has had since April 29, 1950, when the late Alben Barkley of Kentucky, then vice-president in the Truman Administration, came here. Barkley's appearance was sponsored by the North Carolina Young Democrats' Club and drew a capacity crowd to ECC's Wright Building.

Rayburn represents Texas' Fourth District in the House of Representatives. He was first elected in 1913 to attend the 36th Congress and has been re-elected for 22 additional consecutive congresses. He became Speaker of the House on September 16, 1940, when he elected to fill the unexpired term of the late Speaker, William B. Bankhead of Alabama.

Rayburn was re-elected Speaker of the House in 1941, 1943, and 1945. In 1947 when Republicans gained control of the House he was named Democratic leader and then became Speaker again in 1949 when the Democrats gained control of the 81st Congress. He was re-elected Speaker in 1951 and held the job until 1953 when he became Democratic leader in the Republican 83rd Congress. He was named for the Speaker's post again in 1955 when the 84th Congress convened.

The Speaker is a graduate of East Texas College and the University of Texas and is a lawyer by profession. He was born in Roane County, Tenn., January 6, 1882, and now makes his home in Bonham, Texas. Before being elected to Congress he was a member of the Texas Legislature for six years, serving the last two years as Speaker of the House of Representatives.

No Prospect That Nasser Will Agree

LONDON (AP)—The Suez Canal conference today neared its close with 17 of the 22 nations endorsing the Western Big Three's proposal to put the vital waterway under international control. But there was no prospect that Egyptian President Nasser would agree.

Instead it appeared the best that Britain, France and the United States could hope for without fighting would be Egyptian acceptance of India's plan for an international group to give advice only to the Egyptian canal management.

In brief, this was the outcome of the weeklong conference: Seventeen nations endorsed the proposal presented by U.S. Secretary of State Dulles for an international board, associated with the U.N., to run the 168-mile canal.

The 17 were the United States, Great Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, Pakistan, Iran, Ethiopia, Turkey, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Japan, Italy, West Germany, the Netherlands and Portugal.

Four nations — India, the Soviet Union, Ceylon and Indonesia — backed the substitute plan presented by India's V. K. Krishna Menon to leave the canal under Egyptian management but with international advisors.

The 22nd nation at the conference, Spain, did not come out in formal support of the Indian resolution but offered an amendment — which was not accepted — that would have given the same effect to the Dulles resolution.

All 22 nations agreed that Egypt's nationalization of the canal four weeks ago must be recognized, and that some form of international participation in its management was needed to insure that it always will remain open to world shipping. The difference was over whether the international group should actually operate the canal or only give advice to the Egyptians.

Egyptian spokesmen have consistently rejected the idea of international management of the canal. But since India and Russia kept in close contact with Nasser's government throughout the conference, it was believed the Egyptian President might agree to an international advisory group.

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill. (AP)—Adlai Stevenson today labeled a Republican promise of tax cuts as just "so much election talk."

The Democratic presidential nominee, completing plans for a flying tour of the country next week to lay the groundwork for a strenuous campaign, said the tax cut promise was a "contradiction of President Eisenhower's own position that he is 'against tax cuts' and favors applying any surplus revenue toward 'retirement of the public debt.'"

EXTENDED WEATHER FORECAST FOR N. C. Temperatures will average 4 to 7 degrees below normal with a warming trend Thursday and Friday, becoming a little cooler during the weekend. Precipitation averaging 1-3 of an inch and in scattered thundershowers Friday and Saturday, and again about Monday.

Nixon Leaves Convention For Father's Bedside

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon, advised his father is critically ill at Whittier, Calif., made reservations to fly to Los Angeles today.

This meant cutting short his attendance at the Republican National Convention, which today was expected to renominate him for vice president.

Nixon will be accompanied by his brother, Don of Los Angeles, who has been attending the convention.

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP)—Frank Nixon, 77, father of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, suffered a ruptured vein in his stomach today and is in critical condition, the family physician reported.

The elder Nixon has been bedridden recently suffering from what the physician said in layman's terms was hardening of the arteries.

Whittier is a community about 15 miles east of Los Angeles which is some 400 miles south of San Francisco.

The elder Nixon was hospitalized recently suffering from what was described as a recurrence of a stomach ailment. There was hemorrhaging from stomach ulcers and he was given transfusions.

Later he was released and brought home, where he has been bedridden.

The vice president visited him overnight en route to the convention at San Francisco.

Today the elder Nixon's physician said "It is very doubtful that he will survive." The physician, who asked that his name not be used, added: "But he has a lot of fight."

The physician said Nixon broke his hip in December of 1954, had ulcers last month, and has arthritis.

The elder Nixon is being treated with a pain relieving drug and has asked not to be removed to a hospital.

The vice president's mother had planned to go to the convention at San Francisco today, but canceled the plans upon her husband's illness.

The elder Nixon, a Quaker, came to California from Ohio in 1906. He was married to Hannah Milhouse in 1908.

His first job in California was a streetcar motorman in Los Angeles. Then he became a citrus rancher.

He built a gasoline filling station at Whittier, later adding a general store.

Young Dick worked as a boy in the store and filling station. He credited that experience of meeting the public with giving him a good start on his public career.

James-Vernelson Nuptials Held At Parkers Chapel FWB Church

WASHINGTON, N. C.—Parkers Chapel Free Will Baptist Church was the setting Sunday for the wedding of Miss Ann Vernelson, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. John D. Vernelson, and Douglas James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Zeno James of Stokes.

The Rev. Mr. Vernelson officiated at his daughter's wedding. Nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Roscoe Barnhill, pianist, and the Rev. Clyde Cox of Saratoga, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Hilton Vernelson, wore a full-length gown of chantilly lace and tulle over satin designed with round neckline and fitted V-shaped bodice with long pointed lace sleeves.

Her fingertip veil of French illusion was attached to a matching lace hat and she carried a cascade of white fusi mums centered with an orchid tied by satin streamers.

Miss Joyce Gilbert was maid of honor. She wore a gown of light blue nylon net over taffeta with lace bodice designed like that of the bride's and a matching picture hat. Her flowers were a colonial bouquet of deep pink asters tied with blue streamers.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Eleanor Vernelson of Greenville, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Joan James of Norfolk, Va., niece of the bridegroom.

They wore light pink gowns and matching hats similar to the honor attendant's and also carried colonial bouquets.

Mack James served his brother as best man. Ushers were Fred James of Chapel Hill, brother of the bridegroom, John Vernelson of Washington, brother of the bride, Glen Cherry and Larry Whitehurst of Stokes.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Vernelson was attired in a street-length dress of pink lace with white accessories. Mrs. James wore a street-length dress of orchid lace with navy accessories. Both wore corsages of white carnations.

For their wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina, the bride wore a beige suit with black accessories and the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. James is a graduate of the Stokes-Pactolus High School and is now employed in Washington, N. C.

Following the rehearsal Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Vernelson entertained the James-Vernelson wedding party and close friends at their home near Greenville.

The refreshment table was decorated with an imported lace table cloth with crystal holders bearing green tapers and an arrangement of white asters carrying out the green and white color note.

Mrs. John D. Vernelson, mother of the bride, presided over the punch bowl while Mrs. Tripp, sister of the bridegroom, served the cake after the bridal couple cut the first slice in the traditional manner. Guests served themselves assorted sandwiches, nuts and mints.

A miniature bride and bridegroom arranged with candles was used as decorations on the mantel. Mixed summer flowers were placed throughout the home.

Commission On Education Meets
The Commission on Education of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will meet in the youth assembly room tonight at 8 o'clock, according to Jake Hadley, chairman.

Miss Spain Is Honored At Morning Party

Miss Frances Spain was honored on Saturday morning at a Coca-Cola party given by Mrs. Jesse R. Moye Jr. and Mrs. Vance Perkins at the home of Mrs. Moye in Brookgreen.

Mrs. Moye and Mrs. Perkins received at the front door and introduced the guests to Miss Spain, her mother, Mrs. Jack Spain, and Miss Bennie Holt, a member of the bridal party.

Guests were invited to the dining room where a color note of green, pink and white was used.

The dining table was covered with an imported white cutwork cloth and centered with a bridal church scene.

The bride- and groom-elect, accompanied by the bridesmaids in pink and the maid of honor and flower girl in white, completed the bridal party.

The background was formed by miniature brass candelabra and brass baskets of petite daisies. Outlining the scene were small garlands of ivy.

Misses Margaret and Lillian Moye and Jane Perkins assisted the guests in serving themselves to iced cokes, ham biscuits, chicken puffs, nuts, cheese straws, orange cakes and cookies.

Pink roses, dahlias and china asters were used in arrangements throughout the house.

Miss Spain was given a corsage of white asters.

Mrs. Moye and Mrs. Perkins also presented Miss Spain china and silver in her chosen patterns.

Mrs. Lafferty Is Honored At Farewell Party

Mrs. Curtis Perkins Jr. and Mrs. Karl Andersen entertained Monday evening honoring Mrs. James S. Lafferty.

The card party, a farewell gesture to Mrs. Lafferty who is moving to Clemson, S. C., took place at the Perkins home.

Arrangements of asters and gladioli were used in the living room where four tables were set up for cards.

The hostesses served Cokes, nuts and mints during play. Mrs. George Fleming was high scorer in bridge and Mrs. Ashley Hudson, low. High score in canasta was awarded Mrs. Nick Simonowich while low went to Mrs. Mike Brocato.

After cards were laid aside, guests were served ice cream cookies, nuts and mints at the tables covered with white cloths.

Mrs. Lafferty was presented a table cloth of white damask as a farewell gift by her hostesses.

Among those present was Miss Daphne Rees of Greensboro.

30 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
August 22, 1926

New York—The body of Rudolph Valentino, greatest lover of the screen, today was guarded by police and black skirted fascisti, because of the traffic throng that have tried to view it, resulting in scores of injuries. Police estimated that 60,000 persons, mostly women and girls, blocked Broadway in front of the undertaking establishment where the star lies in state and that more than a hundred were injured in the crush. Two plate glass windows were shattered. Reserves were called out and 135 policemen and 10 mounted policemen were required to keep order. The streets were littered with battered hats and other wearing apparel. After some order was restored, police picked up 28 shoes.

Shower Honors Bride-Elect Of Saturday

Miscellaneous bridal gifts were showered on Miss Mary Jane Forrest last night when Mrs. J. R. Carrington and Mrs. W. R. Brewer entertained for her at the Carrington home on East Eleventh Street.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect in a white decorated basket ornamented with a bridal bouquet of valley lilies and satin streamers.

The hostesses presented her a corsage of tuberose and gifts of silver and china.

A pink color note was used throughout the home in decorations and refreshments. In the dining room pink lighted tapers in silver candle holders reflected the pink glow of the linen cloth. The center arrangement was of matching gladioli.

Mrs. J. G. Forrest, mother of the honoree, poured punch. Guests served themselves party sandwiches, decorated bridal squares, mints and nuts.

Some twenty guests were present to enjoy games and contests prior to the refreshment time.

Miss Forrest will wed Larry David Ely Saturday in a ceremony at Eighth Street Christian Church.

Miss Sermons, Durham Man Wed In Church Rites Here Sunday

Miss Jean Faye Sermons and Halvor Gerald Adcock were united in marriage Saturday in a 4 o'clock ceremony at Eighth Street Christian Church. The Rev. Dr. H. G. Haney officiated at the double ring rites.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Helen Tucker Sermons of 403 Student Street and the late Bill Sermons. Mr. Adcock's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Garland Elton Adcock of Durham.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Edgar Hirschberg, organist, and Mrs. J. G. Wilson Jr., soloist.

Vows were spoken before a background of bridal greenery and seven branched candelabra with myriads of Cathedral candles. The Communion table with Cross and brass candlesticks held burning tapers flanked by decorated candelabra and floor baskets of white gladioli and large mums. At the altar was a prie-dieu with white organly cushions decorated with bridal greenery and bouquets of white mums. Pews were marked with satin bows with candleholders holding lighted candles and tied by satin bows.

Given in marriage by her brother, William Aubrey Sermons, the bride wore a ballerina-length gown of imported galloon lace featuring a skirt tiered from the waist to hem line and a fitted matching jacket styled with Mandarin collar and long sleeves.

Her shoulder-length veil of imported French illusion fell from a tiny lace cap carried in seed pearls and she carried a cascade of white orchids and stephanotis with white velvet leaves tied by narrow bridal satin.

The bride was unattended. Ushers were Ray Evans, Jimmy Sullivan, Hugh Tucker and Curtis Hendrix.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Sermons was attired in heavenly blue nylon lace over taffeta with sweetheart neckline edged in blue velvet. She wore matching accessories and headpiece of nylon lace with illusion and blue velvet. Her corsage was of white hybrid orchids.

Mrs. Adcock was gowned in lavender crepe with high neckline and lace trim. She wore matching hat and gloves and a corsage of white hybrid orchids.

For a wedding trip to Sea Island, Ga., the bride changed into a graphite green cotton-cashmere costume with mint green accessories. She wore an orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Adcock is a Greenville High School graduate and received her Bachelor of Science Degree in elementary education from East Carolina College in 1956.

The bridegroom also holds a degree from East Carolina College. He is a graduate of Durham High School and served four years in the United States Navy.

Upon their return from the wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Adcock will make their home in Brunswick, Ga. where they will both teach in the city schools.

Out-of-town guests present for the Adcock-Sermons wedding included Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Adcock, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Adcock, Mrs. Frank Adcock, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Adcock, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Taylor, Mrs. Hazel Wheeler and Howard Wheeler of Durham; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Muse of Baltimore, Md.; and Mrs. Harry Lee Roberts of Washington, N. C.

Mrs. Halvor Gerald Adcock

Reception

Following the wedding, the bride's mother entertained with a reception in the Educational Building of the church.

Guests were introduced to the receiving line by Mr. and Mrs. Hendrix.

Mrs. Owen Marshburn directed them to the refreshment table which was covered with a pink linen and lace cloth. The center arrangement was of canna leaves and pink carnations. The punch bowl, placed at one end of the table, was encircled with ivy and pink carnations as were the bridal cakes at the other end.

On the piano, silver candelabra holding pink tapers were placed interspersed with ivy and pink zinnias.

Standard baskets of pink myrtle, large pink zinnias, tuberose and wine lilies placed throughout the room completed the decorations.

Mrs. J. R. Hunning poured punch and Mrs. Preston Cannon served bridal cakes. They were assisted by Misses Donna Whitley, Ruth Tucker, Betty Lane Evans and Lynda Hunning who served mints and nuts.

Mrs. Ethel G. Tucker presided at the register. Goodbyes were said to Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Galloway. Others receiving throughout the building were Mrs. J. R. Carrington, Mrs. W. L. Allen and Mrs. Ruth Harris.

Cake Cutting

Following the rehearsal, Mrs. Billy Whitley, Mrs. Burney Tucker and Mrs. J. H. Gibson entertained the bridal party and out-of-town guests at a cake cutting.

The table was covered in white linen and centered with white gladioli and fern.

Mrs. Ethel G. Tucker poured punch and Mrs. Sermons served cake after the bridal couple cut the first slice.

Strother Given N. C. State Post

RALEIGH — Robert E. Strother of Stem has been named to the new position of alumni secretary of North Carolina State College, effective September 1.

Announcement of Strother's appointment was made today by T.B. Upchurch, Jr., of Raeford, president of the college's Alumni Association, and C.B. Eller of North Wilkesboro, chairman of the association's board of directors.

A 1954 honor graduate of North Carolina State College, Strother has resigned his position as teacher of vocational agriculture at Stem High School to accept the college post. He will assist H. W. (Pop) Taylor, director of alumni affairs at State College, in maintaining closer contact between alumni groups across the State and the institution.

Since his graduation from college, Strother has been employed by the Granville County Board of Education as the agricultural teacher at Stem and has, in addition to his teaching duties, done graduate work at State College toward a master's degree in agricultural education.

Disappointingly Few Registered

A disappointingly small number of Pitt Countians have put their names on the county's registration books during the current registration period which ends Saturday.

At noon last Saturday D. S. Spain, Jr., chairman of the Pitt Board of Elections, reported that only 32 people registered during the first two weeks of the registration period in Greenville and Farmville. That would indicate that probably not more than 50 voters had registered throughout the county.

In spite of the fact a registration period was held just prior to the Democratic primary in May, there remain a good many people in Pitt County who are not properly registered in the precinct in which they reside. Unless they are registered by Saturday afternoon, they will not be allowed to vote in the special referendum on constitutional amendments to be held on September 8.

The proposed constitutional amendments on the Pearsall Plan and the three constitutional amendments passed by the 1955 General Assembly are of utmost importance to the voters of North Carolina. On September 8, voters are expected to turn out in large numbers to exercise their right of deciding whether those amendments will become part of the constitution of North Carolina.

Unless more attention is given the matter of being properly registered, there are going to be some disappointed people in Pitt and other counties when they go to cast a ballot on September 8.

Another Contribution To Welfare Of A City

Greenville Jaycees have made another valuable contribution to the welfare of Greenville and its young people by spearheading the campaign which has brought forth funds for a new activity bus for Greenville High School.

Through the efforts of the Jaycees and the co-operation of Greenville business firms and countless citizens, funds for the new bus have been raised and delivery of the vehicle is slated in a few days. In the words of High School Principal O. E. Dowd, the new bus will "greatly enhance" the activity program of the high school.

Greenville is indeed fortunate in having civic and fraternal organizations which seemingly always stand ready to undertake major worthwhile projects for the betterment of the city and its people.

This Jaycee project to provide a new activity bus for the high school brings to mind other undertakings of the young men's organization which to our mind have contributed to the betterment of Greenville in recent years. In each undertaking the Jaycees have received the help of other citizens of the community, but the Jaycees themselves have been in the forefront.

A year ago the Jaycees sponsored a movement which brought about the purchase of a Civil Defense Rescue truck, one of the first of its kind in North Carolina, for the use of the people of Pitt County. A few years ago the organization spearheaded the movement which brought about the adoption of the Council-Manager form of government in Greenville to replace the antiquated Aldermanic system. Prior to that it was the Jaycees who led the movement for the adoption of a modern recreation ordinance for Greenville which set up the present Recreation Commission and laid the groundwork for the municipal recreation program the city now has.

Greenville has every right to be proud not only of its civic and fraternal organizations, but the fact that the citizens of the community are ready at all times to join hands in any effort for the betterment of the city and its people.

Those Blue-Prints Can Be Dusted Off Again

At long last state officials have decided to convert into cash the $25 million in school bonds approved by the General Assembly of North Carolina in 1953.

It has taken a long time and a great deal of red tape to finally get the bonds converted into cash so it can be used by counties throughout the state to bolster their school building programs. Needless to say, almost every county in North Carolina already has its part of the fund earmarked.

The first half of the $50 million bond issue was issued and distributed among the counties. This second half is to be distributed among the counties according to a formula which takes into consideration the needs of individual counties and the efforts they have put forth to carry out their school building programs with local funds.

It is our frank opinion that the school building program in the state has been retarded because it has taken so long between the time the bonds were approved and the time the money is being made available.

Now that the funds are forthcoming, however, many counties which have had to shelve building plans for lack of funds can get out the blue-prints and go to work.

Blue Ridge Retains Green Woodlands

By LYNN NISBET

COLOR — Occasional splashes of color, mostly yellow, are to be seen on the wooded slopes of the Blue Ridge. Bright-hued summer flowers grow in profusion in home yards, and commercial fields of dahlias, gladioli and other cut flowers are not uncommon.

Mostly the color is green. Nature has co-operated with the foresters' slogan, "Keep North Carolina Green." Reforestation projects have largely covered the raw scars left when lumbermen denuded the hillsides. Shades of green range from almost yellow to almost black providing a harmony of color less spectacular, but more restful, than the same slopes will present in October. Unwooded areas are green, too. It has been the privilege of your reporter to get pretty well all over North Carolina during July and August every summer for many years. Never before have the green hills and pastures shown less drought searing than this summer. From Raleigh west even the tobacco and cotton looks more like mid-July than late August.

Grandfather Mountain is green, too, but on McRae Meadows there was plenty of color Sunday. Occasion was the gathering of the Scottish Clans to celebrate the 21st anniversary of the birth of Bonnie Prince Charlie at Glenfinnan, Scotland, on August 19, 1745. Upwards of 3,000 people came to watch the hundred or more participants in ancient highland games, hear bagpipers from Charleston and Washington, hear special ballads and folks songs, join in group singing of old Scottish religious and battle hymns. Descendants of the clans wore kilts and scarfs and head-dress in authentic tartan weave, presenting a variety of color in a scene dominated by the huge blue flag with the Cross of St. Andrew and the orange banner with the red dragon of St. George.

It is proposed to make this an annual affair on the Sunday closest to August 19.

HISTORIC — The event has historic significance for North Carolina. The guest of honor at the gathering of the clans was listed on the program as "Maj. R. H. Macdonald, O.B.E., Descendant of Flora and Alan Macdonald of Kingsburgh; Ard-Tschneider of Clan Donald and Schnoeder of Lord Macdonald of Macdonald—(High Chief of Clan Donald, Armadale Castle, Skye)."

In his comments Maj. Macdonald noted that while Grandfather Mountain is some distance from the Cape Fear Valley where his ancestors settled, the terrain is more like their ancient Scottish home, and therefore an appropriate gathering place for the clans.

The major was also the "belle of the ball" at the party the night before at Euseola Lodge, where he wore for the first time his specially woven—Clan Donald Kilts.

ROLLING — The excellent highways in North Carolina eliminate most of the rocking in travel, but they are conducive to rolling. And the wheels are rolling over them. Hotels, motels, eating places and service stations in all parts of North Carolina report good summer business. On a weekend trip from Raleigh to the mountains license plates were noted on cars from 17 states, including California and Connecticut.

More significant than the number of foreign cars was the predominance of North Carolina tags at points distant from their home base, and the fact that out-of-state plates were as obvious in the middle area as at beaches and mountain resorts. Limited check on registration at hotels and motels and use of credit cards at service stations indicates Tarheels are seeing other parts of their own state to greater extent than ever before.

These records do not conform to reports on surveys about where North Carolinians take their vacations. The discrepancy may be explained by natural inclination of folks to brag about going somewhere else.

LITTERBUGS — The highway commission is fully cooperating with Governor Hodges' anti-litterbug campaign. About every ten miles on all important roads are newly erected signs warning travelers: "Unlawful to throw trash on highway. Up to $50 fine."

Inquiry has failed to produce a single instance of a motorist being arrested or fined for violation of that law, but highway patrolmen report improvement in keeping roadways clear of discarded lunch boxes, paper cups, and beer bottles.

NEW — Some new automobile bumper strips are showing up on cars. The way the idea for the strips developed is also very new and different. Hugh Morton, who owns Grandfather Mountain and has widely publicized it as "North Carolina's Top Scene Attraction," has waged a long feud with Federal and State government infringement on private enterprise. He doesn't like government agencies going into the restaurant and hotel business, and he doesn't like them going into entertainment and recreation projects for profit. Furthermore, he has been feuding for several years about the Blue Ridge Parkway to cut up his Grandfather Mountain for a right of way other than the one donated some years ago. That gets back to the bumper strips.

The signs have reflector type orange letters on a purplish-blue background reading "Blue Ridge Parkway." They are very similar to bumper strip signs for Grandfather, Blowing Rock and other privately owned attractions. Funny part of the business is the Parkway signs were designed by Hugh Morton and are sold for a dime apiece. The private enterprise strips are put on the visitor's car without his consent for free—and sometimes quickly removed. If a motorist wants his friends to know he has been on or near the Blue Ridge Parkway, he's got to pay for the privilege.

Other Editors Are Saying... This Pearsall Plan Not Needed

(Hertford County Herald)

In a special election, called by a special session of the General Assembly, on September 8 the citizens of North Carolina are called upon to accept or reject by their votes a constitutional amendment embodying a fundamental change in educational policy of the state. The proposition to be voted upon, and by these votes accepted or rejected, is popularly called the Pearsall Plan.

In our opinion, the Pearsall Plan is an untimely and unwise move of doubtful practical value designed to avoid meeting a nebulous crisis that should never materialize.

As a plan or blueprint, it is a good thing to have around. It is doubtless the best plan its makers could devise to meet the imaginary situations envisaged by its proponents. Should it ever develop that something like it should be needed, as a standby plan to adopt to meet emergency, when and if emergency should arise, it might be useful.

But the Pearsall Plan is not needed now. This newspaper held the opinion that calling the special session of the legislature which approved submission of the proposal to the people was a mistake and unwise. It held the opinion that the action of the legislature in presenting the proposal in a special election was hasty, without due consideration, and an unfortunate mistake made by politicians operating under pressure. We have not changed our opinions in these particulars. These two mistakes have been made. They can be corrected only if the citizens reject the Pearsall Plan at the polls.

As a plan, this newspaper has no objections to the Pearsall Plan. It is the result of much study and deliberation. But it should remain simply a plan, a plan to be adopted when and if—and may this never be—it should be needed. It should not be adopted at this time into the fundamental law of the State.

It is not needed now. Its adoption could endanger the twin causes of racial peace and the progress of education in North Carolina, and the disruption of either of these would do more harm than any good that might possibly come out of the untimely and unwise provisions of the Pearsall Plan. The conditions precedent to any valid reason for adoption of the Pearsall Plan do not exist.

Because the Pearsall Plan is untimely; because it is dangerous; because its approach is an attempt at legalistic evasion of an ethical and moral problem; because its presentation to the people at this touchy period is ill-timed; because the conditions precedent to any usefulness of the plan might have not exist but might be fanned into life by its adoption, for these reasons, and for the sake of racial good will and progress in human relations, it is the sincere belief of this newspaper that the people should reject the Pearsall Plan at the polls on September 8.

A Thought... In Passing - - -

A THOUGHT: One of the most pleasant sensations I know is to walk out of the scalding sun into a dark, cool room fragrant with the odor of gardenias.

Mystic and beautiful, the gardenia is one of those flowers that smells "good enough to eat" and yet it's so fragile that the merest touch will cause its snowy whiteness to fade and yellow against the glossy green of the leaves.

Its odor is sweet, warm, almost overpowering and yet the flower itself is cool, aloof and strange.

Typically Southern.

IN PASSING: It was a Sunday afternoon, sunny and bright but not too warm. Perfect for driving through the countryside. It was a good feeling to see the blue sky and the green fields, to have the sun shine on us and the wind blow through our hair.

Rounding a curve, there rose a hill, it held a comfortable looking farmhouse, a spacious lawn shadowed by great oaks. Under one of these trees a man was lowering and lifting a spade. Slowly he did it, as the boy standing there with him silently watched. As we passed, the man dropped the spade and looked down into the hole he had made. He looked at the boy and they both knelt down, picked up the dog and carefully laid it in the grave.

We drove on, and the sun was just as bright, the sky was just as blue, the fields were just as green as they had been before. Everything was the same but it was different and it was not such a nice day for driving through the countryside.

Notebook On Life

Housewife Is Top Shoplifter

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The American housewife, who has many virtues, also leads the nation in one form of crime—shoplifting.

Light-fingered customers cost department and specialty stores at least 300 million dollars a year, and probably much more.

"The greatest loss comes from the housewife," said Mrs. Mary Congemi, one of the nation's top store detectives. "She is a good customer in many ways. She pays her bills, keeps up her charge accounts—but she steals, too."

"And if she keeps at it she soon learns all the tricks of the professionals."

Mrs. Congemi, special agent for William P. Alexander, a former infantry officer who acts as a security consultant for 34 department stores throughout the United States, has caught nearly 5,000 shoplifters in the last 10 years.

"Most shoplifters are amateurs," she said, "but the amateurs account for 75 per cent of the losses."

"They range in age from 8 to 80. A lot are teen-agers, but most are housewives between 20 and 40."

Women shoplifters outnumber men at least five to one. But in either sex the person who actually steals from hunger is unusual. Many people believe that most shoplifters suffer from kleptomania, or an irresistible compulsion to take something that doesn't belong to them, whether they have any real need for it or not. Mrs. Congemi grimly says this is purely a legend.

"Kleptomania, if there really is such a thing, is very rare," she said. "I've never encountered a kleptomaniac. Shoplifters simply want something for nothing."

"They often have the muddled idea that taking something from a big department store really isn't stealing. They don't understand the real moral issue until they are caught."

"But I'll say this about the average housewife who turns amateur shoplifter. Once she has been caught, even though she may have stolen many times before, she usually swears off forever."

Shoplifters are common in all walks of society, from the slum kid to the wealthy dowager.

Recently, in one man's store here, these people were picked up for shoplifting within a 20-day period: a lawyer, a doctor's wife, a factory owner, the manager of another store, and a federal employee.

Mrs. Congemi, dark-haired and attractive, is married to a locksmith and has two children.

Recently Max Hess, owner of an Allentown, Pa., department store, gave a training course in shoplifting techniques to 1,600 employees.

Then, to put them to the test, Mrs. Congemi, who was unknown to them, went through the store to see what she could shoplift.

In an hour and a half I filled three shopping bags with more than $400 worth of merchandise," she recalled. "I had lifted everything from ash trays to expensive dresses."

Wearing a mask over her head to hide her identity, Mrs. Congemi appeared at a specially called meeting and showed them the results of her safari through the store.

Salespeople themselves don't appreciate the extent of shoplifting until you actually show them what can be done," she said, and

Democrat Winning On Economy Front

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON It has remained for a Democrat—Representative Daniel J. Flood of Pennsylvania—to assure favorable action in the next Congress on one of the Hoover Commission's major recommendations for saving money for the taxpayers—namely, a downward revision of the Military Air Mail Transport Service's airmail payments and intrusion into the field of private enterprise.

Almost singlehandedly, Flood has demanded curtailment of MATS operations as a member of the powerful House Appropriations Committee. From Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson down to young shavetails, the Pentagon and a few great airline companies now handling military mail at high costs have opposed all attempts to restrict this agency's activities.

But the chairman of the two committees having joint jurisdiction over MATS—the House Appropriations Subcommittee on military funds and the Armed Services Committee—have promised the Pennsylvania member that an investigation of MATS will be the first order of business for their groups at the start of the January session. Republicans favor a thoroughgoing inquiry as a result of former President Hoover's concern.

COMPETES WITH PRIVATE ENTERPRISE MATS, as Hoover and Flood note, competes with private enterprise, principally airline and shipping firms, to the extent of $23,000,000 of business a year. It is so immersed in extracurricular activities that, according to Army witnesses, before the House Appropriations Committee, it would have difficulty in transporting troops, weapons and supplies in event of war.

This amazing testimony was given by the frank and blunt Lieutenant General James G. Van, who heads the Defense branch of the search and development. It was contradicted by Secretary Wilson and Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Committee members, however, were impressed by General Van's statement.

MOST WASTEFUL OPERATION. MATS has a budget of about $1 billion a year, which could buy a lot of airplanes. It ties up about 100,000 men in nonmilitary jobs, or approximately one-tenth of Air Force personnel. It carries Congressmen and their families around the world at low cost, and they make a strong lobby on Capitol Hill, along with a few great airlines.

Perhaps the most wasteful operation, according to Hoover and Flood, is its handling of military mail—about 1,000,000 pounds to West Europe and the Far East each month. At the high rate of 53 cents a ton mile, MATS turns this material over to the Post Office and commercial airlines. The annual cost of $12,000,000 is a virtual subsidy to the airlines, or at least half of it is under present conditions.

Non-scheduled airlines have offered to fly this mail for as low as 25 cents a ton mile, and the proposed Congressional investigations will try to find out why this money cannot be saved for the taxpayers.

Not Only Highways Will Boom

By ELMER ROESSNER

Each time you jool at the Federal highway program it looks bigger.

It's more than billions of dollars worth of steel and cement, more than a million new jobs, more than thousands of new motels and other highway enterprises. It's thousands of acres of field telephones, a quarter of a billion more cans of beer a year, thousands of gallons of drafting ink, millions of dollars in fees for real-estate men, lawyers and industrial doctors.

The program has been described both as a $33 billion and a $50 billion project. Even these figures seem larger at each glance.

The $33 billion figure is basic; that's what the Federal government will put up, plus what the states will have to ante to get their shares. But corollary state, county and city projects for access and feeder roads make the $50 billion total seem likely.

And that's just the beginning.

INDUSTRY WILL SPEND, TOO. There will be uncountable billions spent for new restaurants, motels, service stations, tourist traps and other enterprises. There will be more billions spent for expansion of existing steel, cement, roadmaking machinery and related industries. Even crap games that follow construction crews, while adding nothing tangible to the economy, will increase acceleration of spendable income.

Let's take a look at some of the factors:

Item: The Bureau of Public Roads estimates the highway program will create on-site employment for 441,000 persons. The Bureau of Labor Statistics says that for every on-site job, two jobs in other fields—everything from government inspectors to hush-house waitresses—will be created. That means well over a million more pay envelopes a week, and that ought to boost beer sales by 250,000 cans a year. And more in hot, dry years.

Item: A government economist estimates permanent effects of the program equal to the addition of another General Motors to the economy.

CAPITAL GOODS STIMULANT.

Item: The new highways will attract industries, in new plants, to their edges, even through new plants do not have direct access to them. About $150,000,000 worth of new industrial plants have been erected along the New York State Thruway and about $100,000,000 worth now line new Route 128 in Boston.

Item: The new highways will need 26,800,000 signs.

Item: About 1,800,000 pounds of dynamite and other explosives will be needed over the 13-year program.

Item: Projected roads will require 48,740,000 tons of steel.

Item: The highways will require more than 100,000,000 barrels of cement a year by 1959.

Item: At the peak of construction, according to the American Road Builders' Association, about 775,000 tons of gravel, sand, crushed stone and slag will be needed each year.

Item: By the fifth year, replacement of highway construction equipment will double the initial demand for new machines.

Item: A minimum of 5,000,000 gallons of paint will be needed each of the next two years, according to the National Highway Users Conference. After that, use will be greater.

Item: A total of 9,300,000 feet of lumber and timber will be required during the 13 years.

You can go on and on. How many coffee containers will highway workers need? How many buses and jitney rides to and from jobs? How many pairs of socks? How many dungarees? How many preachers to marry workers emboldened by steady income? How many doctors to treat those who aren't careful? How many lawyers to represent farmers who don't want to see pappy's land cut in two by concrete? Yes, on and on.

Fortunes will be made and lost. Mostly made.

Braves Take Twin Bill; Cincinnati, Brooklyn Win

Big Klu Hits Homer To Pace Cincinnati

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press
Ted Kluszewski, just "a pain in the back" at season's start, now is keeping Cincinnati's Redlegs in the National League pennant race while beating off a challenge to his club home run title from rookie Frank Robinson.

The big first baseman, who has led the Redlegs in homers for five of the last six seasons, was in Manager Birdie Tebbets' doghouse last spring. An aching back, plus too much extra beer, had Klu slumping and he wound up on the bench for a while.

Now he's back in business. In his last seven games, of which Cincinnati has won four, he has been batting at a .481 clip, driving in eight runs and socking five home runs.

His third homer, with a man on, broke a 4-1 tie as the Redlegs rallied in the eighth to beat Pittsburgh 7-4 last night. That left the third-place Redlegs four games back of the from-running Milwaukee Braves, who gained half a game with a 5-3, 6-2 double-header sweep over last-place New York. Second-place Brooklyn, three games behind, defeated St. Louis 2-1.

The Chicago Cubs beat Philadelphia 6-4 in the other NL games.

In the American, southpaw Herb Score struck out 11, drove in two runs with a single and his first major league homer, and knocked off New York's first-place Yankees on two hits for a 3-0 Cleveland victory.

Detroit belted Washington 8-3 and Baltimore defeated Kansas City 4-3. Rain postponed Chicago's White Sox at Boston.

Kluszewski, now just one shy of NL homer leader Duke Snider, jumped one ahead of teammate Robinson in the home run race. Robinson walloped his 31st in the first inning. Gus Bell chipped in his 23rd as the Redlegs built a 3-1 lead, then blew it.

Klu had three hits in four trips, upping his average to .312, in support of Buster Freeman. Cincinnati's relief ace who won his 11th with his old form after a sidelining neck injury Aug. 9.

Junior Gilliam, who had two doubles and half of Brooklyn's eight hits against the Cards, stole home in the third inning with the decisive run. Carl Erskine won his 11th, but needed Don Bessent's relief in the last two frames when his arm lightened. Singles by Gilliam, Pee Wee Reese and Snider scored one in the first off loser Herm Wehmeier.

Boxer Predicts That Challenger Will Top Champ

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former welterweight contender Arthur Persley, who had unhappy meetings with both lightweight champion Wallace (Bud) Smith and challenger Joe Brown, predicted today Brown will whip the Cincinnati titleholder in their bout here Friday night.

Persley went even further and said he believed Brown stood a good chance of hanging a kayo on Smith in the 15-round, nationally televised title match.

The fight with Brown last January, Persley said, "was the toughest one of my life."

Persley took the final count in the ninth round and spent several weeks recuperating from a broken jaw.

"I was never hit so hard in all my years of fighting as Brown hit me in that ninth round," he said.

But he was also quick to add substance to the left hook that Brown tossed in their Miami fight in November 1954.

Smith's smash cracked two ribs and into a forced absence from the ring. Smith used the fight as a stepping stone to a title match and won the championship from Jimmy Carter at Boston six months later.

Both Smith and Brown exuded confidence today as they began to taper off in final training drills.

The 27-year-old Smith insisted he was way off form when he lost a 10-round decision to Brown in Houston last May.

"I had an off night, but I'll be my old self Friday and I'll win it," he said.

"I proved I'm the better fighter when I licked him in Houston and I'll do it again Friday," said the 30-year-old challenger from New Orleans.

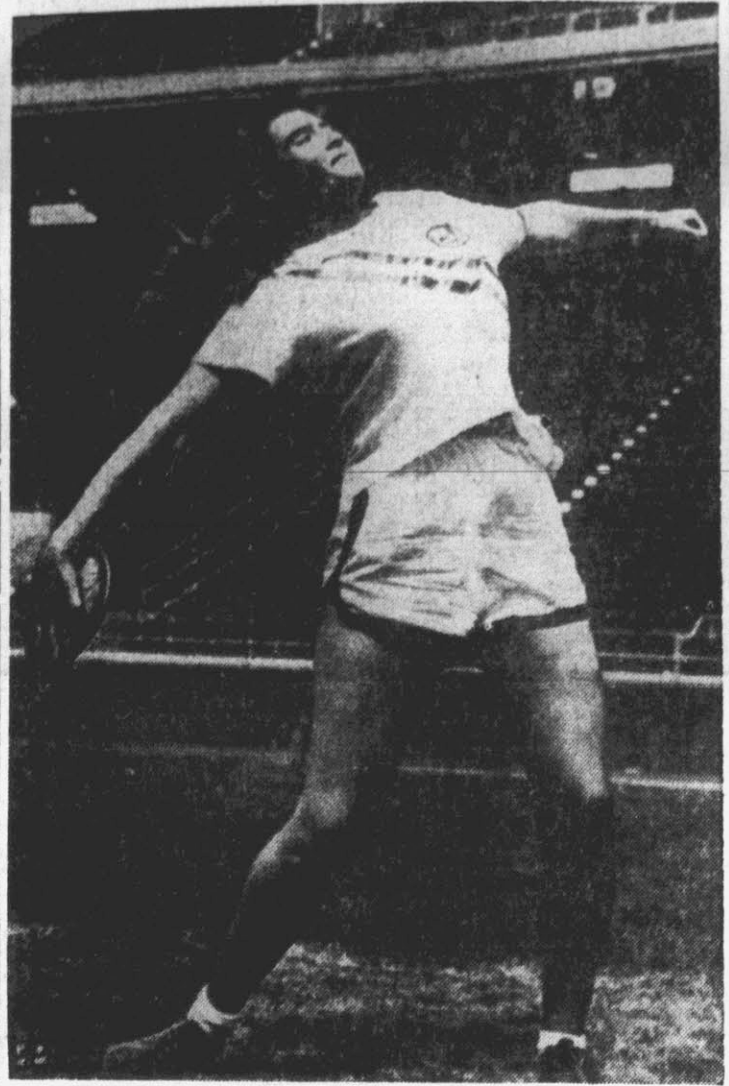

Micro Driver Leaves Hospital

Douglas Allen, injured last Saturday night during the Micro Mid-gate races here, was released from Pitt Memorial Hospital yesterday morning.

Allen's physician, Dr. D. L. Moore, would not disclose any specific facts, but did state that he felt that Allen was "not seriously injured."

Acting as a relief driver and pit mechanic at last Saturday night's races, Allen was run down by two micros which had locked wheels and crashed over a dirt barrier into the infield.

Breaks Record Twice In Two Days

Pamela Kurrell, 17-year-old San Francisco high school student, is shown as she winds up to toss discus at National AAU Women's Track and Field Championships, Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Aug. 18. During the day she threw the discus 140 feet, 11 inches, topping a toss of 139 feet, 1 inch she made at the meet Aug. 17. Each distance set a new American mark for the event. (AP Wirephoto).

Claims Tatum Used Unethical Methods

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Earle Edwards, football coach at North Carolina State, leveled a blast yesterday at the recruiting activities of Jim Tatum, new coach at the University of North Carolina.

Edwards declared Tatum and his staff used "questionable and unethical methods and tactics" in landing Cornell Johnson, 195-pound fullback at High Point High School.

Johnson was voted most valuable player in the recent East-West all-star football game at Greensboro.

Edwards asserted Johnson had signed a scholarship to attend N. C. State. The signing was done before Johnson's father and State line coach Carey Brewbaker who had visited the Johnson home Aug. 2, Edwards said.

Contacted in Greenville, S. C., last night, Tatum said he had no knowledge Johnson had accepted a State scholarship. "He didn't mention it to us," Tatum said.

State Athletic Director Roy Clogston said he will ask Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner Jim Weaver to look into the affair "as soon as we can get all the information in this case together."

Edwards charged "Carolina coaches pointed out to Johnson that the scholarship agreement he signed with us wasn't binding as far as the conference is concerned. They encouraged him to break his word."

The State coach said Johnson had signed to accept a full athletic scholarship which included his room, board, books, tuition, fees and $15 a month for laundry.

Hoad Hints That Marriage Helps

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Lew Hoad, Australia's No. 1 tennis player at the ripe old age of 21, feels he is getting "better and stronger" as he grows older, but hints that marriage is another factor in his success on the courts.

The fuzzi-cheeked blond, accompanied by Jennifer, his pretty young bride of a year, rejoined his Davis Cup teammates yesterday after an independent tour of European tournaments.

Hoad and Ken Rosewall, top-seeded in the men's division, are scheduled to make their first appearance in the 73th National Doubles tournament at Longwood today after drawing a first-round bye.

A steady rain washed out second day play of the National Doubles, enabling Hoad to get some rest. He doctored in New York yesterday morning and then flew on to Boston.

First and second-round matches were scheduled to be completed today.

Gets His First Hit In 42 Trips

BALTIMORE (AP) — When short-stop Willie Miranda of the Baltimore Orioles made a triple in the fifth inning of last night's game with the Kansas City Athletics, it was his first hit in 42 times at bat.

The hit was Miranda's first since Aug. 4 and it led to Baltimore's second run in a 4-3 victory. Willie scored moments later on a double by Dick Williams.

The next time Miranda was due to bat, in the sixth, the Orioles had the bases loaded with one out and the score was tied 2-2. Manager Paul Richards decided to lift Miranda for pinch-hitter Joe Frazier. Frazier hit into a double play.

Reports Say Lopez To Resign Cleveland Post

By JOE REICHLER
MILWAUKEE (AP) — No matter where the Cleveland Indians finish in 1956, Al Lopez will tender his resignation as manager at the end of the season, The Associated Press learned today.

A source always found to be reliable, said the Indians' front office is aware of Lopez' intention and is even now making secret inquiries concerning a successor. The informant also said he knew of two men under consideration. He named Joe Gordon, the former star second baseman of the Indians and the New York Yankees, and Jimmy Dykes, coach of the Cincinnati Redlegs, who has spent one third of his 60 years as a manager, 17 in the American League with Chicago, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

This has not been a happy season for Lopez who may, for the first time in his 6-year Cleveland reign, finish with fewer than 90 victories. The genial native of Tampa, Fla., is regarded as one of the best pilots in baseball.

Since coming to Cleveland in 1951 after a 3-year apprenticeship at Indianapolis, the Indians have never finished lower than second. They won the pennant in 1954, establishing an American League record of 111 victories.

Committee Issues Out Suspensions To Schools

DENVER (AP) — University of California at Los Angeles and University of Washington, already reeling from Pacific Coast Conference punishment, have been dealt another blow by the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (NCAA) for cash payments to their football players.

In resolutions fully endorsing the PCC crackdown, the NCAA Council yesterday placed UCLA on probation for three years and put Washington on probation for two years.

During these periods neither school's teams nor athletes may participate in any of the NCAA's 14 national championship events or in 25 other events sanctioned by the NCAA. These include post-season football bowl games, in-season basketball tournaments and track relays.

The council heaped most of its censure on UCLA with a declaration that the Los Angeles school had violated an NCAA code requiring member schools to establish and maintain high standards of "personal honor, eligibility and fair play."

The council said the violation was based on its finding that "members of the football staff permitted student-athletes to provide false information to UCLA and the PCC."

Violations of NCAA requirements were committed, the council said, when the member institutions allowed booster organizations to make payments to the players with funds that were not administered through UCLA and Washington school administrations.

The PCC earlier placed UCLA on three years' probation and Washington on two years' probation in the conference. This bans athletes at the two schools from qualifying for any conference championships during the probationary period. Both are ineligible for the Rose Bowl and cannot share in its receipts.

Clarence P. Houston of Tufts University and head of the 18-member NCAA council, said it would meet again Oct. 22-23 at a site to be selected to consider Ohio State and "additional case reports which will be ready for submission by the committee on infractions at that time."

Bell Says That Rams Will Play

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams were ready to play, not picket, Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League says, after he gave them a few words of friendly advice.

Bell said the threat of a strike by the Rams over pre-season pay (they don't get any now) was all a misunderstanding.

"The whole thing has been straightened out and I'm sure the players are satisfied that the league and the owners are more than willing to see that they get fair treatment," Bell said.

The commissioner stepped in after the Rams demanded $75 a week for veterans and $50 weekly for rookies during the exhibition season. The players threatened to sit out Friday's game with the Cleveland Browns unless they got paid.

Bell said he talked to several of the Rams' veterans on the phone and smoothed things out. He said further discussions would be held after the season ended.

Players in training camps are given room and board, laundry money and some other incidentals but salaries do not start until the season opens.

Ethics And Rule Interpretations To Be Discussed

GREENSBORO (AP) — Rule interpretations and player recruiting ethics will be among the topics for discussion when the Atlantic Coast Conference football officials and coaches open their annual meeting here Saturday.

The program includes a series of gatherings prior to the official business of the meeting, which comes Sunday when the ACC's 28 football officials take examinations on the rules and their applications.

The special coaches committee appointed to study a possible code of ethics on recruiting meets at 9 a.m. Saturday. The booking office committee, headed by Rex Enright of South Carolina, meets at 6 p.m.

Commissioner Jim Weaver has scheduled a session later Saturday night on rule interpretations. ACC practice begins Sept. 1, with the most teams opening the season Sept. 22.

SYNOPSIS

In Wild West days, Narcissa Hull traveled by stagecoach to Coyote Creek, Montana, to marry Emil Jacobson. One passenger became obnoxious in his attentions to her—Dolf Kinney. He bragged of being the richest and most powerful man in the territory, and told her to jilt Jacobson and marry him. Narcissa found comfort in the presence of Dr. Erd Ek-lund, who helped her fend off Kinney. When the stagecoach stopped at Coyote Creek, Emil was not waiting for Narcissa. The doctor offered her a ride to Emil's cabin and she gratefully accepted. They found Emil—murdered only minutes before.

For hidden reasons, Kinney wants Ek-lund to replace Philpott, the surgeon at the local Army post who resigned. When Erd declined, Kinney threatened to execute him as a deserter. A Chickamauga, Kinney also has an influence over Major Blake, the post commander, and Blake effected the appointment. Erd rode to Emil's cabin in search of the shell to the murder bullet. The doctor was fired upon and his horse killed. He shot the gunman—Deever, a hireling of Kinney's—and rode Deever's horse back to town.

Ek-lund allowed himself to be induced to carry whiskey to the Indians. The doctor found Plenty Horses dead from smallpox, and his contaminated blanket missing. Looking around for it, Erd saw the blanket being worn by Chief Man Walks Alone. The chief refused to give it up.

CHAPTER 12

Dolf Kinney had always prided himself on being a direct man, one who did not beat about the bush. When he wanted something, he went after it, and he had given an excellent and public demonstration of that in regard to Narcissa Hull. Everybody in this whole stretch of country knew that he had proposed to her and that he had intended to marry her.

It was as well that everybody should know and understand. Men outnumbered women, in this land, by ten or twenty to one. Women as young, beautiful and desirable as Narcissa were rare indeed. If it weren't that he had made his announcement so public, thereby practically putting his own brand on her, every unattached male, and very probably some few with more or less nebulous alliances, would be beating a path to her door.

He wanted none of that, and he had acted to make certain that it did not happen. It would be a bold man indeed who would trespass where he warned away, or challenge when he wanted something. Most men knew Dolf Kinney, and the power he wielded, direct or controlled.

So he was reasonably easy in his mind, but it would do no harm to make his intentions doubly plain by calling on her, and it would be a double pleasure to add enjoyment to business, since he had to go to the fort in any case. He swung his saddle horse in to Armstrong's ranch, looking about with sharp approval. He'd never molested Armstrong, or had any truck with him, one way or another. But he liked the way Armstrong was fixing this place up. He had, he reflected, particular reasons for liking it.

Looking about, he caught sight of Narcissa, off by the barn, flanked by Armstrong's two girls. Apparently they had been showing her the calf penned over there, and all three of them were laughing about something. Th. laughter broke off abruptly as he strode toward them, and they stopped uncertainly. There was more of apprehension than welcome in their eyes.

"Hello, sweetheart," Kinney greeted. "Thought I'd stop by and see if you was ready to marry me yet."

Narcissa opened her mouth to reply, but was spared the need. Peggy and Patty had stood, close on either side of her, watching this big man as if frozen. Fear and distrust had blazed in their eyes, and it was evident that the story had reached their ears, as well as those of virtually everyone else in this section of the north county, of what had happened on the stage.

For some years now they had pretty much run wild, with few restraining influences. When they wished to yield to impulse, they generally did so, and now was no exception. Before Kinney quite knew what was happening, the two horses were swarming on and over him, shaking his arms, kicking at him, screaming, half-crying.

"You get away from here, you bad man, you!" Patty cried furiously. "Miss Narcissa is taking care of us, and you ain't going to take her away! I hate you!"

"Peggy! Patty!" Narcissa exclaimed, horrified, but Dolf Kinney had the situation under control. For a moment he had been too surprised to react. Then he grabbed with both big paws, clutching each girl by the arm and shoulder. Despite their frantic struggles, he lifted both of them off their feet and held them, still kicking, in front of him, well off the ground. To their surprise, he was grinning broadly.

"Well, well, what've we got here?" he demanded. "So Narcissa's takin' care of you, is she, and you like her? That makes makes three of us. I like her, too, and I want her to take care of me! But I like kids—specially little girls that've got the spunk you kids have! We're goin' to get along fine."

He set them down, sobered and abashed, and fumbled, for once uncertain, in his pocket. He produced two silver dollars and tendered them.

"I wish I had some candy, but I don't," he sighed. "But there's some at the store in town. You get some."

They eyed him uneasily, surprised by his reaction. Patty half extended a tentative hand toward the shining bauble, but Peggy indignantly snatched her arm away.

"We don't want your money!" she shouted, and struck out her tongue. "And we don't want you, any more than Narcissa does! You stay away and leave her alone!"

Turning, fearful of the cat-swift strength of this big man, she fled behind the nearest soddy, her sister beside her. Kinney stared after them, and his grin widened.

"Now that's the sort of kids I like," he pronounced. "Got a lot of spirit, and ain't afraid to say what they mean, same as I do! Know what they like, too, same as I do, and show mighty good judgment likin' you, Narcissa. I sure didn't make any mistake when I decided to marry you!"

"It takes two to make an agreement!" Narcissa flashed. She was surprised by his reaction, and somewhat inclined to doubt her first judgment of him. A man who liked children must have some good in him.

But that did not in the least alter her abhorrence at the thought of such a man for a husband. If the idea had been distasteful when he had first mentioned it, so flauntingly in public, and when her thoughts had been fixed on a somewhat shadowy, not too well-remembered man on a bit of land, it had become doubly so since then. Perhaps because she could now contrast him with a man so much his opposite, a quiet medico who was neither shadowy nor hard to recall.

"That part don't worry me any," Kinney retorted. "I always get what I want, and I want you. Well, I'll be seel' you, sweetheart."

He turned back toward the store, swinging again as an after-thought struck him, and tossed the silver dollars toward her.

"Get some candy for the kids," he said. "They'll change their minds."

He was hugely pleased with himself and life in general as he approached the post. The sentry hailed him in friendly fashion, and Kinney rode past without halting, making his way with the ease of long familiarity, going as if this post, like all the country, were his personal property.

Monday's Case In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH

Judge Charles H. Whedder disposed of an unusually light docket Monday morning. The cases ranged from affray to carrying concealed weapons.

Willie Carr, Negro, 1307 Mill street, was found guilty of carrying a concealed weapon (pistol). The court gave him three months on the roads, suspended on payment of $50 and costs, and the pistol was ordered confiscated and sold according to law. The judgment also provides that Carr is not to violate any law for two years.

William L. Edwards, Negro, 211 West Moore street, affray, 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of costs. The judgment also provides that he shall not visit Paradise Cafe for two weeks and be of good behavior.

Drunk: Sylvester Vick, Rt. 2, city, $15; Joseph S. Carter, address unknown, $10; John A. Davis, Negro, Enfield, 30 days in jail or pay $10; Herman Hardy, Negro, 217 West Dudley street, $10; Edith G. Suggs, Negro, 1200 Factory street, $15; Dave Davis, Negro, 107 S. Washington street, $10; Jolly Jones, Negro $20 costs deducted. Alena Marshall Negro, Rober-

James L. Ward, Negro, Rt. 5, city, was found guilty of carrying a concealed weapon (razor). The court gave him 90 days on the roads, suspended on payment of $50 and costs, and the razor was ordered confiscated and destroyed according to law.

William L. Edwards, Negro, 211 West Moore street, affray, 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of costs. The judgment also provides that he shall not visit Paradise Cafe for two weeks and be of good behavior.

The facts speak for themselves.

This new GMC 250-8 has 180 V8 horsepower standard. No other truck in its class comes even close.

The extra power delivers 276 foot-pounds of truck-propelling torque. Over-the-road truckers call it "guts"—and this GMC's got up to 33% more than the others.

It's at the top of the heap in frame-strength, too. There's as much as 10% more "muscle" in its chassis than in comparable trucks.

And there's more. For this rugged

GMC has 3500 lb. front axles and 7200 lb. rear—unsurpassed in its weight-bracket. It has extra-size brakes and springs.

Add it all up and you can see what GMC Blue Chip stamina really means. Especially when you team it with a GMC's dependable performance and Hydra-Matic* savings.

FT. BRAGG — Greenville's two National Guard units, along with Guardsmen from six other North Carolina communities, will return to their homes Sunday after completing two intensive weeks of summer active duty training here.

The Greenville guard units are a part of the IV Corps Artillery, commanded by Brig. Gen. Oscar I. Wrenn of Greensboro. The 800 officers and men arrived here Aug. 12. In addition to Greenville the men came from Belmont, Charlotte, Mooresville, Monroe, Kinston and Washington.

During the two weeks the Tar Heel artillerymen have been constantly on the go, applying in practical work the classroom training they have received since last year's encampment here.

The five Guard organizations and their headquarters are:

Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, IV Corps Artillery, Charlotte; the 49th Field Artillery Observation Battalion, Charlotte; the 196th Field Artillery Group, Kinston; the 25th Field Artillery Battalion, Washington; and the 94th Army Band, Charlotte.

Under Gen. Wrenn's supervision, the Guardsmen have concentrated this week on qualifying, with their individual small arms—carbine, submachine gun, and 45 cal. pistol.

Gen. Wrenn was particularly gratified with the smooth transition from civilian to military life made by the members of his command. "I am very pleased with the manner in which the officers and men of the IV Corps Artillery have adapted themselves to this training," Gen. Wrenn said.

Gen. Wrenn singled out two factors which have contributed greatly to the success of the camp:

1. Many of the Guardsmen have previously served on extended periods of active duty in the Army, and so can give the younger members of the unit the benefit of their knowledge and experience.

2. Many members of the unit are right at home in their military assignments, since they hold similar jobs in civilian life.

Other training being conducted for the Tar Heel Guardsmen, includes schools for radio, wire and intelligence personnel, conduct of vehicle convoys, and firing of the 105 mm. howitzer.

The Corps Artillery aviation section, the eyes of the command, has been busy flying reconnaissance and cross-country missions and observing artillery fire with their ten light aircraft.

This week of the IV Corps' training has included a two-day field problem, and a full dress parade in which all units will take part.

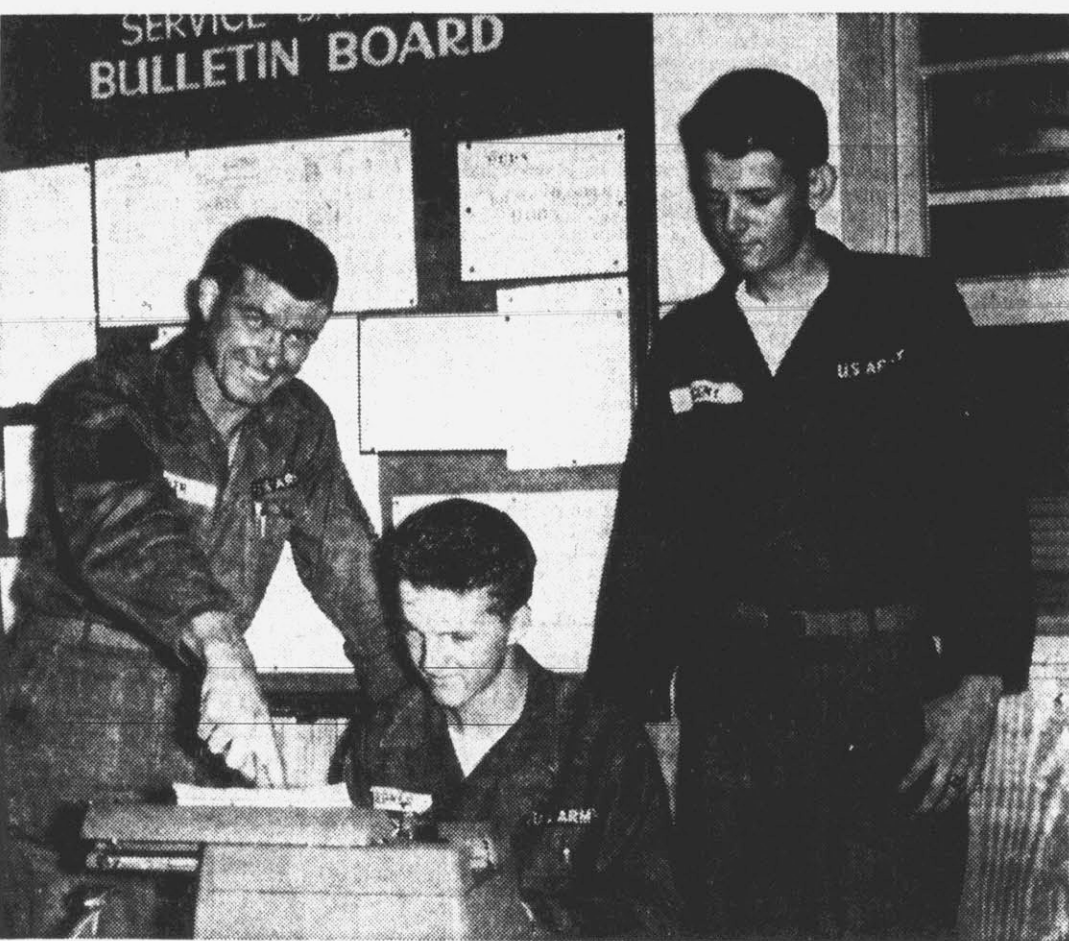

The problem, conducted Monday and Tuesday was held under simulated combat conditions against

PREPARE SUPPLY RECORDS—Pfc. Ronnie Toler, East Carolina College student and member of the local Service Battery, prepares records on supplies assigned to the 295th FA Bn. as WO Mayo E. Allen looks on.

PREPARE MORNING REPORT—Service Battery First Sergeant Robert E. Smith inspects a morning report being prepared by Pvt. William M. Gardner while the unit is at summer camp at Ft. Bragg. Looking on is Pvt. Alton G. Vincent.

"enemy" forces.

The 94th Army band had an opportunity to apply its training in Thursday morning's parade, in which all units marched. This ceremony highlighted the training period at Bragg.

A unique unit which is currently training along with the Guardsmen is the 312th Army Postal Unit, from Charlotte. The 312th, comprised mostly of Charlotte post office employees, puts its training into practice every day in delivering mail to IV Corps Guardsmen.

The two-week encampment will end for all units Sunday morning, at which time they will return to their home stations.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — The stock market staged a broad but restrained advance today. By early afternoon, prices of some key issues were below the best for the day. Trading was quiet.

The uptrend extended to nearly all major sections of the list. An exception was the utilities division where several pivotal stocks backed down.

Sizable gains were tacked on by a few stocks in instances where corporate news carried them well ahead of the market. IBM shot up 13 points following settlement of its patent dispute with Sperry Rand. Lone Star Cement was up 2 and American Cyanamid up 1 1/2 on higher dividend declarations.

Fractional gains were the rule for the steels, motors, rubbers, metals, chemicals, rails and oils. Standard, one of the few gainers in yesterday's market, was down a shade in early afternoon today.

RALEIGH — (NCDA) — Hog markets today were mostly steady to 25 higher. Tops of 16.50 to 17.75 at Rocky Mount; 17.00 to 17.50 at Tarboro, Enfield, Bethel, 16.75 to 17.25 at Benson, New Bern; 17.25 at Hillsboro, Goldsboro, Castle Hayne; 17.00 at Rich Square, Fayetteville, Clinton, Micro, Lumberton, Smithfield, Siler City, Elizabethtown, Mount Olive, Mount Gilead, Wintgate, Newton Grove, Kenly, Dunn, Bailey, Whiteville, Clark, Blackman's Crossroads; 16.75 at Farmville, Beaufort, Nahunta.

RALEIGH — (NCDA) — North Carolina poultry market, today: Eggs and broilers steady, farm price 18, f.o.b. plant 19 1/4 to 19 1/2; Raleigh eggs steady, a large 45; Asheville eggs steady, a large 45 to 47.

Sidelights On GOP Convention

SAN FRANCISCO — Some Republicans made Stevenson Street in downtown San Francisco a little difficult to find. They slapped big "Ike 1956" stickers on the street signs.

SAN FRANCISCO — Abe Lincoln is in town. But he's not a delegate to the Republican National Convention. He's a trombone player in a Dixieland band.

SAN FRANCISCO — It's a field day for free loaders at the Republican National Convention. Want a free beer and eat? Drop up to a "hospitality center" at a brewery's second-floor hotel suite.

Don't drink? Go to the next suite and pick up a basket of fresh California fruit. It's free.

Go to the end of the hall. An airline is passing out chewing gum, fruit juice or coffee.

Are the masks for convention goers wanting to close their eyes to the speech making?

"Good heavens, no," said the donor. "They're to help these busy delegates get a little sleep on their way home from the convention."

Rousing Welcome For Kefauver From Hometown

MADISONVILLE, Tenn. — Sen. Estes Kefauver, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, came home yesterday to a rousing reception by some 5,000 persons from the Republican strongholds of Monroe County and east Tennessee.

Party lines were erased, at least temporarily, as the crowd swarmed on the lawn of the Monroe County Courthouse to hear the town's most famous son deliver a short "nonpolitical" address.

Gay flags and bunting were plentiful along the streets of Madisonville, a town nestled in the shadow of the Great Smoky Mountains, and pictures of Kefauver marked most store windows.

The senator spent 55 minutes after his talk shaking hands and signing autographs.

Prior to the reception, he visited his father Robert Cooke Kefauver, 85, who has been confined to bed at the family home near here with influenza.

Kefauver told his reception audience that another Republican victory would endanger the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Slight Decline In Crop Conditions

RALEIGH — Dryness in the mountains and Piedmont and west in the Coastal Plain region caused the condition of Tar Heel crops to decline slightly last week.

The Federal State Crop Reporting Service said yesterday there had been a general decline in tobacco, corn, cotton, sweet potatoes, and hay. Peanuts showed some improvement.

It was the first time in several weeks a decline had been noted in tobacco. The service attributed this to dry soils in the Piedmont and mountain area. The crop was reported as good to very good in the Coastal Plain.

Greene Infant Stricken With Paralytic Polio

A five-month-old white baby from Greene County is hospitalized here with paralytic polio. It is that county's first polio case this year.

The infant boy, who lives on Ayden Rt. 1, is being treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital. Pitt Health Director Walter C. Humbert said both the Greene County Health Department and the State Health Department have been notified of the case.

The baby had not been immunized against polio, but the two other young children in the family had gotten their first shot in Greene County and are due for their second injections this week.

Dr. Humbert described the case as "the typical type of infection so common 30 or 40 years ago when infants without previous illness suddenly became paralyzed. This is the type the doctors saw in the early '20's and which gave rise to the name 'infantile paralysis'."

Dr. Humbert said there are still a number of eligible persons between six months and 20 years of age in Pitt County who have not gotten the Salk shots.

Yesterday a total of 669 was given in the health department clinics in Greenville, Farmville and Ayden, and private physicians reported they gave 176 injections. Tallyes on the number of first and second shots had not been completed this morning.

Polio clinics in Greenville on Friday and Tuesday have been cancelled because of the regular orthopedic and maternal and infant care clinics scheduled for those days. Polio clinics scheduled for Farmville or other Pitt towns on these two dates will be held as originally planned.

Mississippians Affirm Loyalty

JACKSON, Miss. — Senator James Eastland and John Stennis of Mississippi have joined Gov. J. P. Coleman in saying they will support the Democratic national ticket.

Along with similar statements by other Mississippi Democratic leaders, this seemed today to bar the likelihood of a re-called state convention and the attendant danger of a party bolt.

Coleman disclosed further that presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson has been invited to campaign in Mississippi.

The statements by the two senators yesterday were cautiously worded and, like Coleman, did not refer to vice presidential nominee Estes Kefauver.

"I think that the best interest of Mississippi, the South and the nation will be best served by the election of a Democratic Congress and a Democratic administration," said Eastland. "I will support the Democratic ticket."

Stennis first said he had considered the platforms and nominees of both parties, background of facts surrounding the adoption of the civil rights plank, and the special problems that confront us in our area over the years ahead.

Sparkman To Be Durham Speaker

DURHAM — U.S. Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala.) will speak here Saturday night to an expected 300 persons at a statewide Democratic rally.

Gov. Hodges and other state officials are invited to the rally, planned by the Young Democrats Club, which includes a reception for Sen. Sparkman, a banquet and the speech.

The state YDC executive committee will meet Saturday afternoon.

Other guests expected include Mrs. B. B. Everett and B. Everett Jordan, national committee members, and Frank Crane, state labor commissioner.

Last Rites Held For Clarence C. Sumrell

AYDEN — Funeral services for Clarence C. Sumrell, who died at his home here Sunday night of a heart attack, were held at Britt's Funeral Chapel Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. W. H. Howell, Missionary Baptist minister of Ayden, officiated. Burial was in the Ayden cemetery.

Mr. Sumrell was a son of the late Craven and Elizabeth Sumrell of Pitt county. He was a member of Bethany Free Will Baptist Church about 40 years.

RALEIGH — The head of the Columbus County Farm Bureau Federation says reports that quantities of flue-cured tobacco may be imported into the United States from Southern Rhodesia are being investigated.

D. D. Cox of Clarendon said yesterday that a report of the investigation may be made at a meeting here Friday of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Advisory Committee.

The Friday meeting was called for a discussion of complaints over prices received for this year's flue-cured crop on South Carolina and Border North Carolina markets.

Although Rhodesian leaf production was less than 25 million pounds prior to the outbreak of World War II, this season's crop is an estimated 160 million pounds.

It has been averaging $40 a hundred this year, compared to about $50 for flue-cured weed grown in the Carolinas.

At Greenville, J. Con Lanier, attorney for independent tobacco companies of North Carolina, asserted that "Rhodesia is this country's largest competitor in the tobacco industry and it is expanding its production of flue-cured tobacco. This increased production is not a domestic threat but it is a threat to our foreign markets. Rhodesia has been constantly expanding its production for the past several years but I do not see any possibility of any Rhodesian imports here. The main effect is in the world markets, such as England."

"Rhodesia can sell tobacco at a lower price because of the cheapness of labor there. However, their tobacco is not the fine quality of our top grade tobacco, but it is a good substitute for our medium quality tobacco."

Lanier said small American tobacco companies have taken no steps to meet the challenge from Rhodesia, but he added "We are constantly preaching to our growers to increase quality. That's our only chance."

A. D. Williams of Wilson, president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau said he put no faith in reports that Rhodesian tobacco poses a threat to domestic markets.

Williams said he was concerned about the effect Rhodesia's increased production would have on world markets, particularly England's. He said the United States had lost about 25 per cent of its markets in England to Rhodesia, and that there probably would be losses in Holland, France and Belgium.

Legion Hears Jorgensen And Boone At Meet

East Carolina College Athletic Director Dr. N. L. Jorgensen and Football Coach Jack Boone, guest speakers at the American Legion's supper meeting last night, outlined plans for the football season and appealed to the legionnaires for support of the athletic program.

Post Commander Louis W. Gaylord Jr. presided.

Dr. Jorgensen traced the growth of athletics at the college since World War II and pointed out the need for recreation and relaxation through participation in sports in the present day pace of living. He said athletics is a release from tension. He appealed for support of the Pirates Club's plan to sell home game season football tickets (reserved) at $12.50 each again this year and reminded that E.C.C. now has a good chance of getting into the Southern Conference.

Coach Boone reviewed the prospects for football at East Carolina College this year and indicated that the prospects for a good season are excellent. He said some of the prospective football players coming to E.C.C. have been offered scholarships at larger schools.

"Eleven players are coming to East Carolina College this year instead of 40 to 50 which report to larger schools," the coach stated, "and they will be picked for certain positions as needed and will be practically assured of playing. I have hopes for a great year in football and other athletics at East Carolina College this year, and we have been playing some of the best colleges in the East," he said in conclusion.

Jones Calls . . .

The speaker asked provisions of the constitutional amendments providing for local option elections, the provision of tuition grants and the removal of a compulsory attendance law in local option units if schools are closed by a vote of the people.

In response to questions, Rep. Jones said:

1. Every child who attended a school which was closed by a vote of the people in a local option unit would be eligible for the $135 state tuition grant to an approved non-sectarian private school. Asked how many such private schools now exist in the state, he said few if any. It would be up to the people to establish their own private schools, he implied.

Rep. Jones likewise expressed the opinion that public schools which ceased to be used as such would be leased by local school boards for private schools.

2. Contracts of teachers whose schools might be closed would be honored for the remainder of the school year. If a teacher obtained other employment which paid less than her teaching job, the state would pay the difference in the two salaries for the duration of the contract term.

3. There were three Negroes on the original advisory committee on education which laid down the principles of the present Pearsall Plan, but there were no Negroes on the seven-man Pearsall Committee which was provided for by act of the 1955 legislature. The bill provided that four of the seven members must be members of the General Assembly and the other three should be chosen from the state at large.

4. Elections in a local option unit would be called on a petition of 15 per cent of the voters within the unit and a majority would be required to close the schools of the unit. It would be up to local school boards to define the boundaries of local option units under their respective jurisdiction.

5. The provisions outlining composition of local option units are "elastic and flexible" leaving the matter largely to the discretion of local school boards.

6. The compulsory attendance law of the state has been on the books for about 40 years, but no money has ever been provided by the state for the enforcement of the law. Compulsory school attendance would still be required except in local option units where schools were closed by a vote of the people.

Mrs. Michael Luskin, president of the League of Women Voters presided at the meeting and Mrs. J. B. Spilman introduced the speaker.

Lehman's Retirement Leaves Gap In Liberals

By GEOFFREY GOULD

NEW YORK — The retirement of Sen. Herbert H. Lehman (D-Lib.) from politics leaves a massive gap in the ranks of the Democratic party's liberal wing.

In the view of many, Lehman was the mightiest oak in the liberal woods.

He announced yesterday that at the age of 78, after 28 years on the political hustings as governor of New York and later Senator, he no longer felt up to the demands of campaigning and would not run for re-election this year.

Lehman was a tireless advocate of civil rights legislation, public housing, foreign aid. He was a relentless foe of racial segregation, immigration restrictions and the transfer of tidelands oil fields from the federal to state governments.

It would be hard to point out any occasion when Lehman, a determined fighter, sacrificed principle for expediency, no matter how unpopular the cause.

In this he was like the late Sen. Robert A. Taft.

Unlike Taft, however, Lehman rarely spoke in postwar years as the voice of his party. Often he found himself far to the left of the party majority.

Lehman, although often speaking up for the rights of leftist political groups, was rarely accused of being soft on communism, even by his most partisan opponents.

He frequently criticized Soviet Russia and in 1954 voted along with the entire Senate for a strong anti-communist bill.

Lehman is a square-jawed, dignified man. His bald head is fringed by white hair, but his beaming eyebrows remain black. His private life has always been one of the utmost respectability.

The senator began his political life in 1928 at the age of 50, when he ran for lieutenant governor of New York with Franklin D. Roosevelt at the top of the ticket.

Four years later Roosevelt ran for president and Lehman won his first term as governor.

He went on to win an unprecedented four terms in the governor's chair, over a period of 10 years.

He supported Roosevelt's policies almost without exception for the rest of his political life.

After service as the first director-general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, Lehman ran for the Senate in 1946. He was beaten by Republican Irving M. Ives.

Three years later he won a special New York senatorial election by trouncing John Foster Dulles. Lehman won a full term in 1950.

He ran on the tickets of the tickets of the Democratic and Liberal parties, the latter a New York state organization.

Lehman, in a familiar paradox of American politics, came to his liberal convictions from a background of great wealth.

He was the son of the founder of Lehman Brothers, the Wall Street investment banking firm.

He was in the textile and banking fields before entering politics.

On his 75th birthday, the New York Times in an editorial said Lehman has had three careers—in business, philanthropy and in government.

"To all that he has done he has brought a keen intelligence, a humane spirit, and an urgent sense of responsibility," the Times said.

Reports Rise In Salvation Army Assistance Calls

At a meeting of the Salvation Army Board of Advisors yesterday, Capt. Ben T. Lewis reported a sharp upswing in the number of calls for assistance received by the local Salvation Army during the first six months of this year.

Capt. Lewis reported that the Salvation Army in Greenville has distributed more than 5,000 garments during the first six months of this year compared with approximately 1,000 during the same period last year. He also noted an increase in the number of lodgings, grocery orders, meals and other aid provided by the Army to needy families and individuals.

James W. Butler, chairman of the advisory board, presided at the meeting at which a summary of the work of the first six months of this year was given.
