Market's Opening Here Hits $46.90

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Greenville's market averaged $46.90 per hundred pounds yesterday as sales for the 1956 season got underway.

Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee reported this morning that 1,741,360 pounds of the golden weed were sold in local warehouses on opening day. A total of $816,666.11 was paid out to farmers for the first day's sales.

The opening day's average was $1.36 above last year's average for the first sales day. Last year the average was $45.54 per hundred pounds. On opening day in 1955 the local market sold 2,040,778 pounds of tobacco.

Yesterday morning observers had feared that the day's average would not exceed last year's. However, all grades were considerably stronger yesterday afternoon than they were during the morning.

There was a "noticeable strengthening in the whole market," Whedbee said.

"I am very pleased by the size of the sale yesterday," the sales supervisor declared this morning. "I think farmers were pleased with prices considering the quality on the floor. Particularly those with leaf grades were very well pleased. Any tobacco with body in it was selling high."

Whedbee said that sales today were light. Sales next week are expected to be comparatively light during the early part of the week with heavy sales beginning during the latter part of next week.

"The increase in this year's average over last year's was attributed by Whedbee to the stronger demand for bodied tobacco.

"Buyers did not want thin and light tobacco," he declared. "It did not sell as well as heavy tobacco."

Stabilization's take of yesterday's sales was far less than last year's. On opening day in 1955 Stabilization took approximately half of the tobacco sold during the day.

Today bodied tobacco was continuing strong on the local market. Leaf grades were in most cases considerably above the Stabilization support prices. Primings were continuing to sell low. Prices paid for lugs, which appeared to be predominant on today's sales, were generally near or below the support prices.

Practically all the tobacco being taken by Stabilization was lugs or primings, a continuation of yesterday's trend.

Observers said today that very few farmers were turning their tags or rejecting the bids offered for their tobacco.

Eastern Belt Leaf Markets Average $48.89 Opening

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flue-cured tobacco markets on the big Eastern North Carolina Belt sold a total of 8,601,794 pounds on opening day yesterday for an average of $48.89, an increase of $1.03 over opening day last year.

In 1955, the opening day average was $47.86 for 14,297,168 pounds sold.

The Federal-State Market News Service reported that opening day volume ranged from light to medium by market, that quality was down some from the 1955 opening day and that most sales were fair and low primings and leaf. Demand was good.

The news service said an estimated 15 to 35 per cent sales went under the government price support program. Last year, 47 per cent of the opening day offerings went under loan.

The North Carolina-South Carolina Border Belt reported gains of $5 per 100 pounds yesterday with quality unchanged and heavy volume.

Wednesday the belt sold 7,957,944 pounds, averaging $54.56, down 18 cents from Tuesday. For the season the belt has sold 93,513,472 pounds averaging $51.36.

South Carolina markets sold 3,871,234 pounds Wednesday averaging $53.50. Wednesday's sales for North Carolina markets were 4,086,710 pounds, averaging $55.37.

Fred S. Royster of Henderson, president of the Bright Belt Warehouse Assn., announced yesterday that the North Carolina Middle Belt will open its sales season Sept. 10 and the North Carolina-Virginia Old Belt Sept. 24. The Middle Belt tentatively will open Sept. 4 and the Old Belt Sept. 18.

Royster said a principal buying company advised him it could not have buyers on the two belts for the earlier dates.

Average prices for some grades on the Border Belt yesterday:

Leaf—Good lemon 63, up 1; fair lemon 59, unchanged; fair orange 53, down 1; low orange 55, unchanged.

Cutters—Low lemon 61, down 1; low orange 62, unchanged.

Lugs—Good lemon 63, up 1; good orange 63, up 2; fair lemon 59, up 1; fair orange 59, up 2.

Primings—Good lemon 54, up 1; fair lemon 48, up 1; fair orange 43, up 3; low orange 32, up 5.

Nondescript—Best thin 18.50, unchanged; poorest thin 11.50, down 50.

Wednesday the belt sold 7,957,944 pounds, averaging $54.56, down 18 cents from Tuesday. For the season the belt has sold 93,513,472 pounds averaging $51.36.

South Carolina markets sold 3,871,234 pounds Wednesday averaging $53.50. Wednesday's sales for North Carolina markets were 4,086,710 pounds, averaging $55.37.

Interception For Goldsboro Jets

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force announced today new links in the national defense against air attack will begin operation in North Carolina later this year.

All-weather jet fighters of the 462nd Fighter Interceptor Squadron will operate out of Seymour Johnson Air Base near Goldsboro to intercept unidentified aircraft reported to them by the newly activated 810th Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron at Winston-Salem.

The squadron at Seymour Johnson will be a unit of the 85th Air Division which is charged with defense of a five-state area around the nation's capital. Lt. Col. James S. Thomas will command the squadron.

Brig. Gen. Emmett F. Yost, commander of the 85th Air Division, said personnel and equipment will move into Seymour Johnson as quickly as facilities become available. He said about 349 men will be assigned to the squadron and the payroll will run nearly one million dollars a year. Major John S. Bates is in charge of a small group at the base until the full squadron moves in.

The 810th Control and Warning Squadron will be located on Highway 311 near Union Cross in the Winston-Salem area. Maj. Clifford N. Keith of Spartanburg, S. C., has been assigned as squadron commander.

About 20 officers and 120 airmen and civilians will be assigned to the warning squadron when facilities are completed by Owens Construction Co. of Greensboro.

Eye Operation For Jim Farley

NEW YORK (AP)—James A. Farley, who was hit in the face by a flying saucer at the Democratic convention, underwent an emergency operation on his right eye yesterday.

Farley's office said later that, barring complications, his eye sight will not be impaired.

The former postmaster general and Democratic national chairman was reported "resting comfortably" after the operation at Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital.

Georgia-Florida Prices Fumbling

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP)—Tumbling prices and volume have marked another day of sales on the Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco market.

The few markets remaining open did little business Wednesday with the poorer grades only moving on the floor. Average prices were off $1-$1.11 per hundred with most losses running $3 to $5.

Unregistered Voters To Have A 'Last Chance' On Saturday

Pitt Counties will have their last chance to register for the September 3 State Constitutional amendment election tomorrow.

Registration books, which have been open for the last two Saturdays, will be open for the last time tomorrow.

Registration through last Saturday had been extremely light in Pitt. Chairman of the County Board of Elections D. S. Spain Jr. said.

However, the registration is for new voters only. Those who have voted in previous state elections are not required to re-register.

Persons who must register for the coming election include: (1) those who have moved into the state or into a new precinct; (2) those who have reached their 21st

Farmville Market Reports Average Price Increase

FARMVILLE—The Farmville Tobacco Market opened sales yesterday with a sale of 337,867 pounds for $157,661.78, an average of $46.66 per hundred pounds.

Yesterday's poundage was more than a half-million pounds below the first-day sale for 1955, but the average was up six cents. Last year, the market opened with a total sale of 844,946 pounds for $393,743.73. Opening day average was $46.60.

Thirty-one per cent of yesterday's sales went to the Stabilization Commission, a considerable drop from 1955 when 54 per cent of the first-day sales went to the Coop.

Sales today were expected to rise about a penny a pound. According to Sales Supervisor Charles Edwards, quality of tobacco being offered is continuing to be good. No wet or damaged tobacco has been reported in any of Farmville's warehouses.

The big drop in first-day sales was attributed by Edwards to last week's bad weather and continued efforts of farmers to get their crops housed.

Farmville Police Vacancy Filled

FARMVILLE—Brooks Oakley, an employee of Garner Gas and Equipment Company, has been named to fill the vacancy in the Farmville Police Department. He will report to his new job Monday.

Oakley will succeed M. D. Beaman who resigned August 1 to accept a position as license examiner with the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles. Beaman had been with the Police Department for a year.

Appointment of Oakley to the job ended speculation that a woman might be hired to work in the office, handle radio transmission and other details. Police Chief L. T. Lucas and the Town Board of Commission decided that employment of another policeman would give the town more protection and actual patrol work.

Committee Readies Suez Proposal For Nasser

LONDON (AP)—A five-nation committee today charted plans to hand Egypt's President Nasser a West-sponsored proposal for international control of the Suez Canal. But the French stepped up military preparations in case the Arab leader says no.

The West was hopeful that the door was open for negotiation. But Nasser has emphasized Egypt's claim to sole control over the 103-mile waterway since announcing July 26 his government had nationalized the Suez Canal Co. He also refused to attend the 22-nation Suez Canal conference, which ended here yesterday, and challenged its right to take any action.

Eighteen of the 22 nations at the parley supported the plan for an international control board and named the five nations to take the proposal to Nasser, Russia, India,

U.S. Navy Plane Believed Shot Down Off China

The cross on this map marks the location off the central China coast where a U. S. Navy patrol plane with 16 crewmen was believed shot down by Communist aircraft. The last word received by radio from the four-engine plane, a P4M Mercator, reported it was "under attack by aircraft" Wednesday about 32 miles off Red China's shore, and about 100 miles north of Formosa. At right is a plane of the type that is missing. Planes and surface ships later found bits of wreckage. (AP Wirephoto).

Find Plane Wreckage And Rafts; No Trace Of Fliers

TOKYO (AP)—Search planes and ships today found wreckage and two empty life rafts presumed to be from a U. S. Navy patrol plane which disappeared after radioing it was being attacked off the Red China coast.

First reports of the finding said there was no indication of what happened to the 16 American airmen aboard the missing plane, a four-engine P4M Mercator. The Navy said on a routine patrol and training mission from Japan.

Navy officials refused to speculate on the possibility that Communist boats had picked up at least some of the men. The State Department has asked Britain, which has diplomatic relations with the Peiping regime, to find out if the Reds have any information about the plane and its crew.

Navy spokesmen at the huge Yokosuka base said the first wreckage and rafts were found floating a few miles south of a Communist-held island about 100 miles southeast of Shanghai.

That put the wreckage nearly 200 miles north of the position given by the P4M when it radioed at 1:25 a. m. Thursday it was being attacked by unidentified aircraft.

However, the wreckage was found in approximately the same area, south of the Saddle Islands off the Bay of Hangchow, at which Peiping radio said Chinese Communist aircraft intercepted and damaged a "Chiang Kai-shek plane" early Thursday.

Chiang's Nationalist air force on Formosa said it had no planes in the area at the time and none of its planes were missing.

The Communist broadcast said the plane its airmen attacked passed over several Communist-held islands and flew off toward the southeast after it was hit.

The Navy said the Mercator's flight plan called for it to fly south well out over international waters, toward Formosa and then to circle back northeastward to Formosa.

A 17-ship fleet, including three aircraft carriers, and scores of land and carrier-based planes searched throughout yesterday and again today for traces of the missing aircraft.

Concerned Over Tobacco-Makers

The Pitt Farm Bureau of Directors last night adopted a resolution directing the 15-member tobacco committee, "to take such action as may be necessary to properly register our concern at the use of reconstituted tobacco in the manufacture of cigarettes." J. B. Speight, president of the Pitt Farm Bureau said this morning.

The resolution further directed this committee to present to the appropriate Congressional Committee such recommendations and suggestions as deemed necessary to properly protect the best interests of the tobacco growers," Speight stated.

W. E. Little fieldman for the North Carolina Farm Bureau, presented information to the Board showing that under Public Law 480, agreements signed through July 15, 1956 directed the exportation of $83.4 worth of tobacco. This represents one and a fourth million dollars more than was shipped under this law during the previous 12 months. A total of 126,661,000 pounds of tobacco was represented in these figures.

Little also mentioned the annual membership drive and stated that a set of 4,105 members had been set for Pitt pending the approval of the county organization. Previously the quota has been set at 4,000. The State Board of Directors has set the state quota at 70,000 members in North Carolina this year.

The Board last night approved a request from James M. Goode, Negro County Agent, for $200 to be used for premiums in a county Junior Negro Dairy Show to be held in September.

"With such weapons," he said, "there can be no victory for anyone. Plainly, the objective now must be to see that such a war does not occur at all."

Beaming at the thunderous reception given him and his running mate, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Eisenhower pitched his bid for reelection primarily on his promise to work for "a brave and shining new world—a world in which back-breaking toil and long hours will not be necessary."

Nixon told the delegates shortly before accepting his second-place nomination that "we have peace in the world today, but we are not going to rest on our laurels and be satisfied with the achievements of 3 1/2 years."

Peace For All Time' Goal Is Outlined By Eisenhower

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—President Eisenhower fixed "peace for all time" as the goal of the Republican "party of the future" in accepting formally its nomination for another four years in the White House.

Accepting "humbly but confidently" command of the GOP's 1956 campaign for national leadership, he told cheering delegates at last night's windup session of the party's centennial convention it is not enough to promise "the young who fight the wars" that there will be "peace in our time."

"There is only one peace now, and that is peace for all time," he declared.

He said thermonuclear war had become "not just tragic, but preposterous."

"With such weapons," he said, "there can be no victory for anyone. Plainly, the objective now must be to see that such a war does not occur at all."

Republicans See Gains In South

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Republicans from five Southeastern states said today they'll crack the Democratic South again in November.

As delegates to the Republican national convention from South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama completed their missions here they were filled with enthusiasm for the fall campaign.

They saw not only the possibility of carrying their states for President Eisenhower but winning some congressional seats as well.

This same enthusiasm was demonstrated by Democrats as they departed from their convention in Chicago a week ago. But there was some grumbling. The ticket wasn't altogether pleasing to many, especially the vice presidential nomination of Estes Kefauver.

But the Democrats avowed they would work hard, regardless.

Florida was the only one of the five states to go for Eisenhower home, this is "what some of the members had to say."

Harold G. Alexander of Florida: "We'll carry Florida again this fall for Eisenhower and perhaps by twice the vote margin we did four years ago. We hope to pick up extra congressional seats as well."

Ray Jennings of North Carolina: "We'll carry the state for Eisenhower. We'll make an all-out effort to get four congressmen and a governor."

Robert Snodgrass of Georgia: "We'll campaign vigorously all over the entire state. We are confident that Kefauver is unacceptable to the people in Georgia and the South and that the area is only lukewarm in support of Stevenson. There is tremendous respect for Eisenhower and his administration. We feel that Georgia will support the Eisenhower program and he will carry the state."

Frank Elmore and Edgar Morris of South Carolina predicted a GOP victory in their state, say Eisenhower is just as popular there as he ever was.

Searchers Find Remains Of Tiny Kidnap Victim

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP)—The decomposed body of kidnaped Peter Weinberger, with a safety pin still intact, was found today in roadside shrubbery 51 days after he was taken from the patio of his Westbury, Long Island, home.

It was found where FBI agents said Angelo J. LaMarca, a cab driver, told them he had abandoned the month-old child on July 5, the day after he took the baby. LaMarca, 31, father of two children, was arrested yesterday by FBI agents and Nassau County police and charged with kidnaping. Financial difficulties apparently caused his act. He had asked $2,000 ransom.

More than 50 Nassau County police and FBI agents moved on the abandonment spot at 9:15 a. m. It was situated alongside a cut-off road from Northern State Parkway leading to Plainville where LaMarca lives. It is only 8 miles east of the Weinberger home.

Forming a line an arm's length apart, the searchers moved slowly through the underbrush. Shortly after 10:30 a. m. the body was found.

Asst. Chief Inspector James Farrell said the baby had not been buried. He apparently had been placed in the underbrush, then summer storms whipped up honeysuckle vines and leaves to blanket the body.

It was not known whether the child had died or was killed before he was abandoned.

"Even if the child was alive when it was placed on the ground, it may well constitute murder," Nassau County Dist. Atty. Frank Gulotta said.

Asked why LaMarca, a taxicab driver, was not immediately charged with murder, the district attorney replied "we have not found the body yet."

Conviction of kidnaping, like first degree murder, carries a maximum penalty of death in New York.

Authorities said LaMarca admitted abandoning the child after being frightened away by the presence of police and newsmen when he showed up at an appointed spot to pick up $2,000 ransom money.

A ransom note was found on the patio of the Weinberger home where the baby had been taking a nap in his carriage.

LaMarca, stocky, dark-haired, and wearing a small mustache, was picked up at his home in Plainville early yesterday by an FBI agent and a Nassau County policeman.

Since the kidnaping, thousands of handwriting specimens were scrutinized from public records and compared with the ransom note and other letters received by the Weinbergers. It was not disclosed how, and from what source, authorities picked up the writing clue which led them to LaMarca.

Police said the kidnaping seemed to have been a one-man job. LaMarca's only previous arrest record was on a bootlegging charge for which he was given a suspended sentence last year.

LaMarca moved to Plainville four months ago from another section of Long Island.

It was said he does not know the child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Weinberger, but prepared the ransom note in advance and then went looking for a child to kidnap.

Police said LaMarca cited about $1,800 in debts—including back payments on a refrigerator and storm windows—as motivating the kidnaping.

Neighbors of LaMarca said he, his wife, Donna and their two children, Vincent, 9, and Vivian, 6, were quiet but friendly people and that the children were polite and well-mannered.

Police said members of LaMarca's family were not involved in the case.

Police did not disclose where Peter was kept overnight after the kidnaping. They said LaMarca's family sometime after the abduction. They did not indicate whether that was before or after the baby was abandoned.

Officers said LaMarca had Peter with him in his car when he approached the Weinberger home to pick up the ransom money. Police and newspapermen were apparent in the vicinity.

Police did not disclose where Peter was kept overnight after the kidnaping. They said LaMarca's family sometime after the abduction. They did not indicate whether that was before or after the baby was abandoned.

Officers said LaMarca had Peter with him in his car when he approached the Weinberger home to pick up the ransom money. Police and newspapermen were apparent in the vicinity.

Searchers Find Remains Of Tiny Kidnap Victim

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP)—The decomposed body of kidnaped Peter Weinberger, with a safety pin still intact, was found today in roadside shrubbery 51 days after he was taken from the patio of his Westbury, Long Island, home.

It was found where FBI agents said Angelo J. LaMarca, a cab driver, told them he had abandoned the month-old child on July 5, the day after he took the baby. LaMarca, 31, father of two children, was arrested yesterday by FBI agents and Nassau County police and charged with kidnaping. Financial difficulties apparently caused his act. He had asked $2,000 ransom.

More than 50 Nassau County police and FBI agents moved on the abandonment spot at 9:15 a. m. It was situated alongside a cut-off road from Northern State Parkway leading to Plainville where LaMarca lives. It is only 8 miles east of the Weinberger home.

Forming a line an arm's length apart, the searchers moved slowly through the underbrush. Shortly after 10:30 a. m. the body was found.

Asst. Chief Inspector James Farrell said the baby had not been buried. He apparently had been placed in the underbrush, then summer storms whipped up honeysuckle vines and leaves to blanket the body.

It was not known whether the child had died or was killed before he was abandoned.

"Even if the child was alive when it was placed on the ground, it may well constitute murder," Nassau County Dist. Atty. Frank Gulotta said.

Asked why LaMarca, a taxicab driver, was not immediately charged with murder, the district attorney replied "we have not found the body yet."

Conviction of kidnaping, like first degree murder, carries a maximum penalty of death in New York.

Authorities said LaMarca admitted abandoning the child after being frightened away by the presence of police and newsmen when he showed up at an appointed spot to pick up $2,000 ransom money.

A ransom note was found on the patio of the Weinberger home where the baby had been taking a nap in his carriage.

LaMarca, stocky, dark-haired, and wearing a small mustache, was picked up at his home in Plainville early yesterday by an FBI agent and a Nassau County policeman.

Since the kidnaping, thousands of handwriting specimens were scrutinized from public records and compared with the ransom note and other letters received by the Weinbergers. It was not disclosed how, and from what source, authorities picked up the writing clue which led them to LaMarca.

Police said the kidnaping seemed to have been a one-man job. LaMarca's only previous arrest record was on a bootlegging charge for which he was given a suspended sentence last year.

LaMarca moved to Plainville four months ago from another section of Long Island.

It was said he does not know the child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Weinberger, but prepared the ransom note in advance and then went looking for a child to kidnap.

Police said LaMarca cited about $1,800 in debts—including back payments on a refrigerator and storm windows—as motivating the kidnaping.

Neighbors of LaMarca said he, his wife, Donna and their two children, Vincent, 9, and Vivian, 6, were quiet but friendly people and that the children were polite and well-mannered.

Police said members of LaMarca's family were not involved in the case.

Miss Snoddy, Minister Marry In Kentucky

GREENUP, Ky.—Miss Anna Lee Snoddy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Snoddy of Greenup, became the bride of the Rev. Carroll Alexander, son of the Rev. and Mrs. D. W. Alexander of Bethel, North Carolina, in an open church ceremony at the Free Will Baptist Church July 12 at 7:30 p.m.

The couple exchanged their wedding vows in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Jay Duvall of Catlettsburg and assisted by the Rev. D. W. Alexander, father of the bridegroom. The church was decorated with an arrangement of Kenta palms and Boston ferns interspersed with four seven-branched candelabra holding lighted tapers. Standards of white gladioli and white carnations were used. The prie-dieu was covered with white satin trimmed with green springarie. Mrs. W. T. Cox of Catlettsburg was pianist and presented one-half hour of nuptial music preceding the ceremony.

The Rev. Eugene Wadell of Timminsville, S. C. was vocalist and sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "Always." The male quartet from the Free Will Baptist Bible College of Nashville, Tenn. sang several selections including "Savior Like A Shepherd, Lead Us" and "Seal Us O Holy Spirit."

Rita Karen Pruitt of Greenup and Rita Karen Connis of Riverdale, Ky. were taper lighters. Linda Lou Littler of Greenup was flower girl and John Michael Miller was ringbearer. Both are cousins of the bride.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She chose for her wedding a white floor-length gown of imported hand-clipped chantilly lace and nylon tulle over bridal satin. The bodice of lace was topped with a scalloped bateau neckline with tiny covered buttons down the back. The sleeves were long and ended in points over the hands. The full bouffant skirt was worn over hoops and was tiered, alternating one with lace in wide scallops and the other of a full gathered tulle fashioned with a wide all lace panel down the front. The skirt ended in a cathedral train.

Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was fastened to a jeweled cap combined of rosepoint lace and pleated tulle embroidered with sequins and pearls. She carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid and tied by satin streamers.

Mrs. James Stuart of Greenup was matron of honor and wore for the wedding a floor length gown of mint green silk capre with matching hat. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow and white chrysanthemums.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Robert Littler and Miss Bessie Ladonna Pruitt, cousins of the bride, and Miss Ricca Jane Snoddy and Miss Carol Sue Snoddy, sisters of the bride. They wore gowns and hats styled and colored identical to that of the honor attendant's. They carried colonial bouquets of yellow and white chrysanthemums.

The Rev. Roger Tripp of Ayden, N. C. served the groom as best man. Ushers were the Rev. Frank Hilton, Greenup, the Rev. Willis Wilson, Stokes, N. C., Jarvey Felty, Grayson, Ky., and Miles Hart of Raleigh, N. C.

Mrs. Snoddy wore for her daughter's wedding a light blue lace dress over silk taffeta with matching jacket. She wore a hat of light blue silk shantung and a corsage of pink carnations.
 Immediately following the wedding a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and the center arrangement was of fern and white bud vases holding white carnations. The three-tiered cake was topped with the traditional miniature bride and groom, dove and rings.

Those assisting at the reception were Mrs. Maynard Bush, Miss Edna Mae Johnson, Mrs. Forest Glenn Logan, Miss Beulah Faye Boyle and Mrs. Thurman Miller. More than 130 wedding guests attended the reception.
 The bride wore for her going away outfit a sheath dress with matching duster of white silk with black trim, black and white accessories and an orchid corsage. They left for a bridal trip through the Shenandoah Valley, Va. and on to South Carolina. They will establish their home at Columbia, S. C.

Mrs. Alexander is a graduate of Wurland High School, Ashland Junior College, and attended the Free Will Baptist College at Nashville. She has taught school in the Greenup County school system for the past three years.
 Her husband is a graduate of Bethel, N. C. High School, the Free Will Baptist College of Nashville and is now working on his M. A. degree at Columbia Bible College, Columbia, S. C. He is serving as pastor of the West Side Free Will Baptist Church at Johnsonville, S. C.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

Francisco Sagan, author of last year's best seller "Bonjour Triestesse," has just come out with another novel, this one called "A Certain Smile"—which sounds a little like Mona Lisa, we think. Anyway, we've discovered that the new book is about a young girl named Dominique who falls in love with a man who is old enough to be her father—sufficient to make her personally very much interested in reading it, and to learn how the old boy swings the deal. "Bonjour Triestesse" also was about a young thing who gets acquainted with Love, and we enjoyed it thoroughly. . . .

Seems as though young things getting acquainted with Love are getting very popular these days. Rinehart, the publishers, are billing an "American Sagan" who is an 18 year old student at Barnard College named Pamela Moore. Next month her first novel, "Chocolates for Breakfast" will be hitting the bookshelves, and it's about—you'd never guess—a teen-ager's first acquaintance with Love. Writes Robert Curran in the N. Y. Times about "Chocolates"—he got hold of the advance galley somehow, the lucky stuff. "Some sections make Mile Sagan look a trifle prudish. Which brings to mind the unsettling thought that not very long ago it would have been regarded as shocking to find girls in their teens reading the kind of books they're now writing. . . . What is happening to our nice young things, these days?"

Supreme Court
Here's something non-controversial—for a change—about the Supreme Court. Viking Press is issuing a reprint of "Brandeis: A Free Man's Life," in honor of the 100th anniversary of Louis Brandeis' birth. He's considered by many of the greatest Supreme Court Justices who ever lived. . . . Another life of a distinguished member of the Court will be out in November—"Harlan Flisks Stone: Pillar of the Law," the first full-scale biography of the twelfth Chief Justice. . . .

On Whales
With the movie epic "Moby Dick" coming to the local cinema soon, we want to call your attention to a re-issue of "Whale Off!" by Everett J. Edwards and Jeanette E. Ratray. It's all about American shore whaling, a fabulous but little-known activity that was carried on mostly off the eastern shore of Long Island in small boats—the first and last whaling of this sort done anywhere in America. . . .

Mystery Woman
Just out is "Madame Solario," billed by Viking Press as its first anonymous book. Nobody knows who wrote it, and the author is veiled in complete mystery as to sex, age and nationality. . . . The blurb says that "Madame Solario" deals with international society summering in Italy around 1906, and a beautiful and mysterious woman, Natalia Solario, who, along with three men who shadow her—whatever they are—"becomes enmeshed in a fury-haunted scandal of tragic proportions. . . . Sounds cozy, hey?"

Today's Review
Mrs. Dora Fountain contributes her comments about a book concerning the wife of Nathaniel Greene, after whom, according to the Sheppard Memorial Library authorities, Greenville was named—which gives you another reason for being interested, no? . . .

Let My Name Stand Fair
By Shirley Seifert, Philadelphia: Lippincott, $3.95.
LET MY NAME STAND FAIR is an exciting story concerning one of the most dramatic and vital eras in our nation's history, our fight for independence. The tale, which is based on facts, is woven around the vivacious wife of Nathaniel Greene and the part she took in the events of the day. She is pictured as a young woman with much charm and attraction for the opposite sex, and even has the audacity to carry on a mild flirtation with the father of our country, General G. Washington, himself. In the midst of all the familiar battles and privations of that time, Caty Greene lends her talent for brightening the scene and relieving the tension of military strategy. The humor and courage displayed by Caty and her serious and sometimes dour husband, Nathaniel Greene, make a story well worth reading.

The author gives us, as well, a new slant on such famous heroes as General Howe and Lord Cornwallis, the Marquis de Lafayette and Colonel Lee of the Light Horse. The cultural background and customs of several different sections of this country, as well as the types of people who helped create them is told with facility and much interesting detail.

This is a story of facts familiar to all Americans re-told in a new and very readable, embellished with quite possible conversations and descriptions.

Memphis Meet For Dissidents

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—States Righters who don't like either the Republican or Democratic ticket will meet next month in Memphis, Tenn., to work out their own presidential campaign plans.

Indications the States Righters seek to broaden their scope were seen in the absence of mention of segregation and other regional issues in the announcement after an unannounced conference here yesterday.

The States Righters still aren't saying who their standard bearer will be. The Louisiana faction has endorsed former Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews, a Tennessee man said Andrews, who now advocates abolishing the income tax, was among prospective nominees discussed at Jackson.

The Jackson meeting was at a downtown hotel. Reporters were not admitted and most men leaving and entering wouldn't give their names or say what the meeting was about.

At its windup, however, Circuit Judge M. M. McGowan of Jackson typed a statement for reporters. It said the meeting brought together representatives of seven Southern states "interested in placing on the ballot on Nov. 6 presidential electors pledged to support candidates for president and vice president who are dedicated to state rights and constitutional government."

South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Tennessee and Arkansas had representatives there for that purpose, he said. He added, without explaining why they were listed separately, that "Virginia and Florida had authorized representatives present."

The Sept. 14-15 Memphis meeting was called "to coordinate the efforts of all of the states, both North and South, which have already or are now preparing to join the splinter movement."

McGowan has said the States Righters hope to gain a "balance of power" in the Electoral College and throw the presidential election into the U. S. House of Representatives, where each state has one vote.

SAT. AND BANG!

COW PALACE, San Francisco (AP)—Edgar Eisenhower, the President's attorney-brother from Tacoma, Wash., got a real bang out of the cloud of balloons that showered down on the platform at the GOP National Convention last night. . . . He sat on one.

'Musical Messengers' At Local Revival

A series of seven evangelistic services will begin Sunday night at the Grace Free Will Baptist Church. The Musical Messenger Evangelistic team will conduct the services, which will begin at eight each evening.

An outdoor rally will be staged the closing night of the campaign here. This will be the climactic service of the revival series held out-of-doors, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

This last service, the first of this nature attempted here, will feature music by the quartet, a girls' trio, and other local music talent. Five denominations will be represented on the platform during this interdenominational rally. Musical Messenger president Jerry Ballard will bring the message. Other special features are now being planned for this special service.

The Rev. Ballard, nineteen year-old prexy of the team, stated that he was overwhelmed by the response of the local young people who are sponsoring the series of services. "Never have we found so much of the work done before we arrived."

The sponsoring group is handling an extended publicity campaign and visitation program. The quartet will be featured each evening along with singers from the sponsoring youth organization. The Rev. Ballard will bring the message on the first night. Melvin Worthington will lead the singing while his twin brother, Milton, is master of ceremonies.

The Rev. Bob Harris, who is licensed by the Methodist church, will bring the message in the second service on Monday night. Ballard will lead the singing in each week-day service.

Other messages will be brought by Milton Worthington on Tuesday night; R. J. Kennedy, Wednesday night; Melvin Worthington, Thursday evening; and Bob Harris on Friday evening. All are licensed ministers. James Earl Coward will be master of ceremonies during most of the services during the week.

Prayer meetings have been held in the homes of the youth of this community for the past two weeks, and specifically for prayer for this series of services. The Rev. Rashie Kennedy, pastor of Grace F. W. B. church, where the meetings are to be held, termed the services as very successful. A large group of youth from Greenville and the surrounding area were at each prayer service.

The Musical Messenger team originated in the summer of 1955. Since their beginning they have held outdoor rallies, sponsored radio programs, held youth revivals, and rendered sacred music concerts throughout eastern North Carolina. All of the members of the group are enrolled in college, with the exception of James Earl Coward, who is affiliated with the Army.

The team will come to Greenville Sunday afternoon from a homecoming at a Tarboro church in Tarboro where the quartet is to sing Sunday morning.

A thousand-mile windbreak, 100 feet wide, is in prospect for the north side of Ontario, Canada with the planting last Spring of 13 million trees.

Ike Shelves Politics For Holiday Of Golf

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—President Eisenhower, a bit tired but happy, put politics on the shelf temporarily today and looked forward to whacking a few balls at this golfer's paradise on the Pacific Ocean.

The President arrived at nearby Monterey by special train last night from San Francisco. A few hours earlier he had accepted nomination for a second term at the closing session of the Republican National Convention.

A police-estimated crowd of 5,000 persons was on hand to greet him and Mrs. Eisenhower as they stepped from their private car here.

Mayor Dan Searle, who served under Eisenhower in Africa as a lieutenant colonel in World War II, was on hand. He asked Eisenhower about his golf game. The President—back at it only a few weeks since his June 9 abdominal operation—laughed and remarked, "These days any time I make a

Seven-Year-Old Faced Decision And Reversal

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Seven-year-old Larry Ford had a big decision to make, and he made it manfully.

Larry had been visiting two weeks in California with his father William of suburban Arcadia, who is separated from the boy's mother. Ford placed his son aboard a plane at international airport. Waiting at the New York end of the flight was Mrs. Veronica Ford of Westbury, L.I.

Ford watched the plane take off and left the airport.

Larry wasn't aboard the plane. He had climbed out. Police at the airport picked him up. He had spent half of his $6 pocket money on candy.

When his father was summoned, Larry told him: "I don't like New York. I like it better here, and I want to go fishing with you some more."

But Larry's decision had to be reversed. He was placed aboard the next plane for New York. This time he was asleep.

Raced 8 Miles To Cow Palace

COW PALACE, San Francisco (AP)—Vice President Nixon's first trip to the Cow Palace is one he's bound to remember.

So will other members of his caravan. The seven cars in the party raced the eight miles from the Mark Hopkins Hotel in 18 minutes, with five police motorcycles clearing the way through 5 p.m. peak-hour traffic.

Nixon worked in his hotel suite until the last minute on his acceptance speech after returning from his ailing father's bedside in southern California.

Head-On Crash Took Five Lives

MARSHALL, N. C. (AP)—A truck loaded with hot asphalt and an automobile smashed head-on and then burst into flames near here yesterday, killing five persons and critically injuring two.

The State Highway Patrol said the truck, driven by Robert Ramsey, 55, of Rt. 3, Marshall, was attempting to pass an automobile on U. S. 25-70 when it crashed into a car coming from the opposite direction.

The flaming inferno claimed the lives of the Rev. and Mrs. T. H. Shackelford of Tucker, Ga.; Miss Claire Shackelford, 30, the daughter; Katherine Fulp, 7, of Greensboro, all occupants of the car, and Ramsey.

Passersby pulled the Rev. and Mrs. R. N. Barefoot of Marshall from the flaming car. They were taken to an Asheville hospital 17 miles away where both were reported in critical condition. Both were burned badly and suffered lacerations. In addition, Barefoot suffered leg fractures and head injuries.

A bus load of passengers witnessed the accident. Major Freeman of Marshall, the bus driver, and Donald E. Johnson of Winter Park, Fla., pulled the Barefoots from the car.

Shackelford, 71, was pastor of the Tucker Methodist Church. A member of the North Georgia Methodist Conference for 40 years, he was to retire in June. His wife, 65, taught at the Tucker high school.

Miss Shackelford was a missionary to Cuba and was visiting her parents during a furlough. Katherine Fulp was the Barefoots' niece.

"I'm really happy." The President and his party were driven immediately to the swanky Cypress Point Club, where he will vacation three or four days as a guest of the members.

The golf course on the edge of the Pacific is rated by experts as one of the toughest and trickiest in the country—site of the annual Bing Crosby tournament.

The President arrived in San Francisco for the GOP convention Tuesday evening and engaged in probably more activity than at any time since his surgery in June.

"He's a bit tired but certainly not a bit more so than any of the rest of us here," White House press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen.

"He's going to take a couple of days of rest here and we certainly are not going to do any campaign planning for a day or so."

Hagerty said Eisenhower probably would hit a few balls today and perhaps play a few holes. He didn't look for the President to play a full round before tomorrow.

Police Hunting Two Dangerous Women Escapees

CATONSVILLE, Md. (AP)—Police were searching this suburban Baltimore community today for two dangerous women mental hospital patients who overpowered a woman attendant, took her with them to freedom, then released her.

The attendant, Mrs. Betty Nichols of Ellicott City, mother of three children, was taken to a wooded area about two miles from the Spring Grove State Hospital here, stripped to her underwear and released. She returned to the hospital early this morning, several hours after the escape.

Authorities at the hospital said the two escaped women, identified as Romona Sensabaugh, 21, of Roanoke, Va., and Grace Maham, 18, of Baltimore, have homicidal and suicidal tendencies.

Dr. Isadore Tuerk, hospital superintendent, said Mrs. Nichols was working in the institution's white patient building when the two jumped her, took her keys and forced her to go with them as they unlocked their way to the outside world.

Weigh Carefully The Pearsall Plan

There are a great many unanswered questions about the Pearsall Plan upon which North Carolinians will give their opinion at ballot boxes September 8.

In answer to questions about what would happen in this particular situation or that, many proponents of the measure have had to answer simply, it will depend upon the wants of the people in the particular area immediately affected by the situation.

The Pearsall Plan is not a cure-all. Even its most avid supporters do not claim it as such. It has flaws; no one denies that.

Those shortcomings notwithstanding, however, it is a practical plan which will do several things; and by accomplishing those things, protect and preserve the public school system of North Carolina.

Under the Pearsall Plan no child in North Carolina will be forced to attend a school attended by a child of another race against the wishes of the parents or guardian of the child. Under the Pearsall Plan it will be up to the people of each individual community to say if and when a school situation caused by mixing the races has reached the point where the community would be better off without public schools than with them.

Under the Pearsall Plan there is a provision whereby a child who cannot be assigned to a school with children of his own race may receive a tuition grant to attend a private school.

The Pearsall Plan does not say that every public school in North Carolina shall remain segregated. Neither does it say that the schools shall be integrated. It leaves the matter entirely in the hands of the people who live in the individual local option units.

Under a democratic government, what better method is there to determine under what basic policies the public schools shall be operated?

Should integration of school children in any community cause a condition whereby the majority of the people would want the schools closed, is it not better to close them through a vote of the people rather than by mob action and violence?

It is impossible to say how private schools would be forced to handle the education of children of a community should its people vote to close their schools. Naturally that problem would be handled by the people of the community through their own resourcefulness. Certainly the state legislature cannot be expected to give a written answer.

In short, the constitutional amendments which have grown out of the Pearsall Plan provide means whereby the individual citizen can follow the dictates of his own conscience in resolving the matter of segregated or integrated schools. It affords machinery whereby the state's public school system cannot be destroyed in one fell swoop by action from within or outside the state.

To say that not one public school in North Carolina will be closed under the provisions of the constitutional amendments is foolhardy indeed. It is equally foolhardy to say there will be a wholesale closing of schools in the state because of the provisions of the amendments.

Into the planning and the writing of the constitutional amendments and the Pearsall Plan have gone many months of work and thought by a large number of the best minds of North Carolina. The plan has been framed to meet the needs of the state by individuals who know first hand the feelings, the desires and the wishes of the vast majority of North Carolinians.

Whether the plan will serve to preserve or tear down the public schools of any community depends entirely upon the wishes of the people of that individual community. Under existing conditions, and those which existed over a period of decades the people of each community in a large measure have determined the progress or retrogression of their schools.

The Reflector sincerely believes the proposed constitutional amendments offer a means through which public schools of North Carolina may withstand the most trying times of their history. Without the proposed constitutional amendments, the public school system of North Carolina in the next few years will be much more vulnerable than with the amendments.

The Reflector urges the people of Pitt County to weigh carefully the Pearsall Plan in the light of what the next few years will bring. We believe the vast majority of the people of Pitt will agree that adoption of the Pearsall Plan through the proposed constitutional amendments is the only wise course for citizens of the state to follow.

Election Campaign To Open Oct. 2nd

By LYNN NISBET

DEMOCRATS — The 1956 general election campaign for the Democratic party will formally open on Tuesday, October 2, with a twelfth district rally at the Asheville Recreation park.

Exact places for holding the other gatherings have not been determined, but the dates have been set as follows: Eleventh district, Wednesday, October 3; tenth district, Thursday, October 9; eighth district, Wednesday, October 10; seventh district, Thursday, October 11; sixth district, Tuesday, October 16; fifth district, Wednesday, October 17; fourth district, Thursday, October 18; third district, Tuesday, October 23; second district, Wednesday, October 24, and first district, Thursday, October 25.

These dates were set by State Chairman John D. Larkins Jr. and except for real emergency are not changeable. The hour and place for the rallies will be determined by the candidate for Congress in the district.

All statewide, district and local candidates on the Democratic tickets are expected to attend the rallies, along with the party organization leaders.

Rep. George Shuford and his associates in the twelfth district have promised to set a fast pace at the first gathering. Beef and park barbecues with all the fixin's will be served for free. Tentative plans call for dressing up the top flight candidates — Governor Hodges, Senator Ervin, et cetera — in white aprons and huge paper caps and have them dish out the eats. "That way," explained Phil Cooke of Congressman Shuford's law office and congressional staff, "the candidates can speak to everybody and no guest can hog their time."

PRELIMINARY — The Democratic State Executive Committee has a bit of business to do before the opening of the campaign. A meeting has been called for next Wednesday, August 29, in Raleigh to nominate candidates for Chief Justice, Associate Justice and Attorney General. This step was made necessary by retirement of Chief Justice Barnhill and the moving up of Justice Winborne to the high seat, appointment of William B. Rodman to fill the vacancy on the bench, and of George B. Patton to replace Rodman as Attorney General.

The committee is certain to name these men for the November ballot for the offices to which they were appointed. That will be perfunctory and the only problem will be to get enough proxies of non attending members to constitute a quorum.

ORGANIZATION — Chairman Larkins has indicated he will suggest changes in the party plan of organization, or appoint a committee to rework the plan. Such revision is long overdue. As the plan is presently written it requires reading of three or four sections to determine membership of the executive committee. One place says the executive committee shall consist of nine men and nine women (18 in all) from each of the 12 congressional districts, a total of 216 members. Another place says that officers or appoint a committee—chairman, vice chairman and secretary—are entitled to vote. Still another place says the president of the State Young Democratic Clubs is a voting member, and still another gives voting membership on the State committee to the national committee members—one man and one woman.

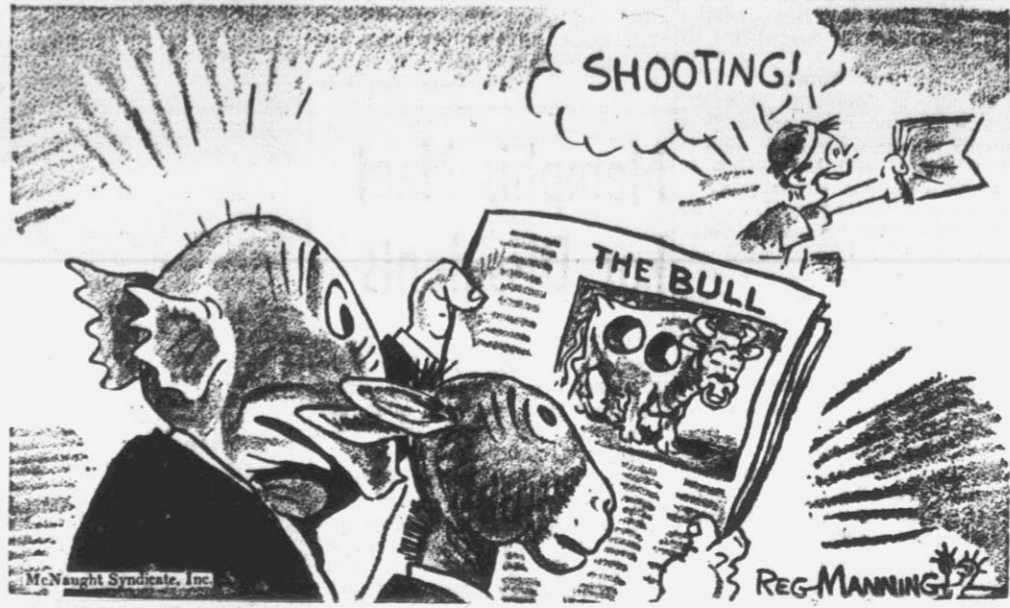

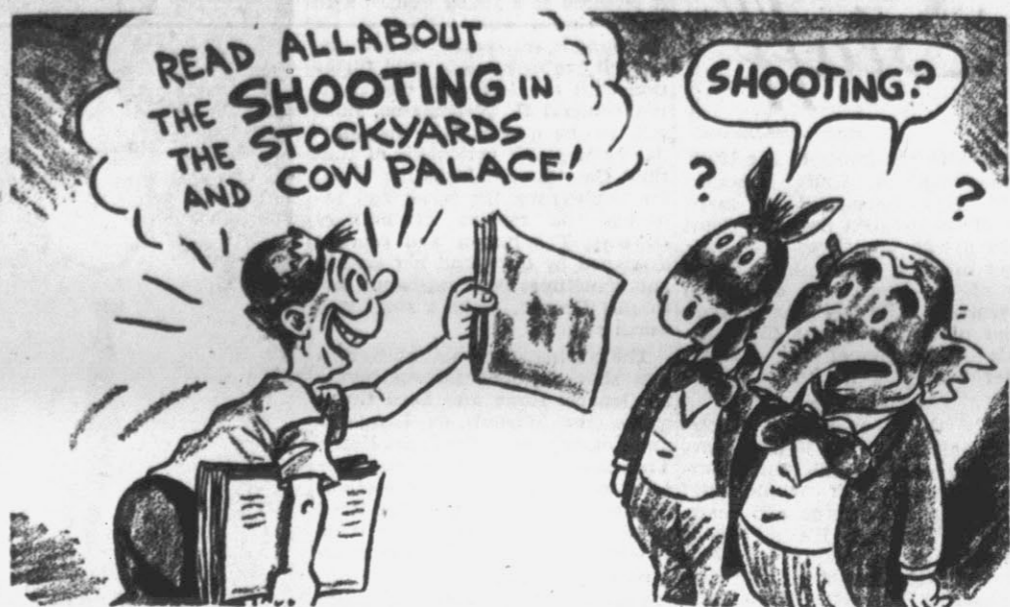

Like the Constitution of North Carolina the Democratic plan of organization has been casually amended and added to so often—without being codified—its provisions are often confusing if not conflicting.

RESEARCH — The August issue of Manufacturers Records, a national magazine devoted to industrial promotion, features a 20-page section about Raleigh. Sponsored by the Raleigh chamber of commerce the purpose is to show the importance of the capital city in the fields of commerce and industry, not solely devoted to politics by reason of being the State capital.

Supplementing the Raleigh effort the State Department of Conservation and Development is putting out a map featuring the significance of the Research Triangle, the concentration within a 15 mile radius of facilities at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Duke University at Durham and State College at Raleigh as well as many private industry research projects in the area.

U. S. 401 — A new highway blossomed out in North Carolina this week with erection of signs designating U. S. 401 highway from Norlina to Laurinburg. It isn't a new road, but the numbering is new and replaces the controversial US-15A signs over most of the route. Many of the 15A signs will stay up until the new highway maps come out next January to avoid confusion. But officially the route carries the new US-401 designation from the time the signs were erected a few days ago.

Notebook On Life

Should Have Stayed In Bed

By DAVID J. ROADS
HONG KONG (AP) — It took a large economy-size toothache to drive Po Hsiao-chou to a Peiping dentist. He should have stayed in bed. After three weeks of suffering with a swollen jaw, Po decided to risk it. Like all good Communists, he toddled off to the state hospital in Peiping. Like all dental patients, he heaved a sigh of relief when the dentist couldn't see him on the first visit. His fever wasn't high enough to get him into line with a horde of other patients. But the tooth nagged and a short time later, Po whipped up his courage and trotted off to the state hospital again. This time

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS KEPT FROM A WRONG DECISION

Four hundred years ago when John Calvin was returning from a visit to France, he was prevented, because of a state of war, from taking a direct route and so made a detour which brought him into Geneva, Switzerland. He intended to remain there only for one night and then to continue his journey toward Strasbourg, where he anticipated living a life of literary ease. William Farel, a leader in the Swiss Reformation, however, heard of Calvin's presence in the city and visited him. Farel asked him to remain in the city and help build up a church, the life of which was in considerable chaos. Calvin refused, saying that he was temperamentally and intellectually unfit for such work. Whereupon Farel cried out in anger: "You are simply following your own wishes"; and he further declared "in the name of Almighty God, if you refuse to take part in the holy work in this church, God will curse the quiet life that you want for your studies." Calvin was greatly disturbed. "As if God from heaven had laid his mighty hand upon me to stop me in my course..." and I was so stricken with terror that I did not continue my journey. We need to be challenged sometimes in this peremptory fashion before we really see truth as it is and prepare ourselves to do our duty. It sometimes takes the anger of a friend and the threat of God to deter us from wrong courses.

Strength for the Day

Stassen Didn't Sound Like A Nixon-Convert

Harold Stassen didn't sound like a man speaking with the enthusiasm of a sincere conviction the other night when he went to the podium to second the nomination of Richard Nixon for vice president.

As a matter of fact he sounded like a man who had misgivings about the job he was performing. We got the impression there were a good many things Stassen would like to have said which he could not, or would not say.

Stassen's efforts to dump Nixon from the second spot on the Republican ticket fell about as flat as any major political effort the country has seen in a good many years. And the flurry of last-minute activity which surrounded decision to abandon the fight against Nixon still has political observers guessing.

The President's disarmament assistant made what sounded to us like a hollow plea for party unity in the GOP. The words were there all right; but that intangible quality in his voice which would have convinced us was missing.

It's our guess that one of two things happened to make Stassen abandon his losing battle:

- 1. President Eisenhower called him in at the eleventh hour and told him to come back with the "team" or consider himself dismissed as a member of it; or
- 2. Stassen, fully aware of the handwriting on the wall, didn't want to become the Jimmy Byrnes of the Republican party or the administration so far as the national party leaders were concerned. He went to the President to make amends.

Whatever the reason, Stassen in the past month has been a greater help to the Democratic cause than to the Republican.

Opinions In Brief

DRY HUMOR, TOO (The Daily Oklahoman) — This prolonged drought is producing its quota of dry humor. Sen. Johnson says that in some parts of Texas it's been dry so long that six-months old bullfrogs haven't learned how to swim. There's also the story of the small Texas farm that hasn't produced a crop in years. The owner said his hired hand worked until his unpaid wages amounted to more than the farm was worth. Then the title went to the hired hand and the owner started working for him. When the original owner's unpaid wages amounted to more than the farm was worth he got it back from the hired hand who then resumed working for him.

Other Editors Are Saying... Adlai, The Standard Bearer

(The Wilson Times) — With a unity of purpose that has not been seen in several Democratic conventions, Adlai E. Stevenson was chosen the Democratic candidate for president. And the South played an important part in the final results. The South has backed Stevenson from the first, because of his moderate stand on civil rights. And, although the platform plank cannot be described as to the South's liking, it is one that will not divide the party. So Stevenson goes into the campaign with the party behind him. His campaigning is known to everyone. And the unity and harmony that pervades more like a love feast than a political convention, will give him confidence he did not have before. In fact he is in the best position possible, because of Truman's support of Harriman. Before Stevenson was tied to the Truman record, that was the only record he had to run on. And this was a decided handicap. Now he is freed from any link with the Truman administration.

Business Generally Likes GOP Regime

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON The desire of the American business community for four more years of Eisenhower is the Republicans' greatest asset in the 1956 Presidential election. It was the main theme of their platform and parades at the San Francisco convention, and the Democrats took note of this golden thread. Besides wanting Ike, the executives heading the nation's institutions of finance, business, industry, mining and transportation are working for him actively through their bread-and-butter influence on the daily economy. Not since McKinley, Coolidge and Hoover days have they shown such cooperation with any Chief Executive, Republican or Democrat. Wall Street, to use that loose term, has shown clearly that it like's Ike's domestic and foreign policies because of the favorable and friendly climate they have created. A brief survey of recent economic developments reveals how seemingly unrelated moves combine to influence the vast pocketbook vote, including that of the labor element normally hostile to the GOP.

GRANTED Pressured by two Cabinet members once associated with them—Secretaries Humphrey and Mitchell—large and small industries are granting wage increases and many novel "fringe" benefits under relatively long-term contracts. Some of these agreements will extend almost through the life of the next Administration. They are conditional promissory notes. Equally important, the real managers of the American economy are exercising restraint, at least temporarily, on a commensurate increase of wholesale and retail prices. They do not want to promote a pre-election revolt of millions of consumers. ROSY FUTURE FORECAST The pay boost in the steel industry, which the head of the union described as "the most satisfactory we have ever obtained," was expected to precipitate a $10 a ton increase in the price of that product. With stocks low because of the strike, Eugene G. Grant, board chairman of Bethlehem Steel, forecast a rosy future. Yet the "big three" raised the price by only $8.50 a ton. As a result, the boost for fabricated goods, especially electrical appliances, household equipment and building materials, has been relatively moderate. Because of intense competition, even the cost of new car models a few months hence may be less than expected. Detroit's automobile manufacturers are virtually solid for Ike. It has been predicted that many higher charges based on the steel boost may be absorbed instead of being passed on to the consumers. Volume sales and increased productivity are given as the nonpolitical reasons. Color television sets will cost only $495, far less than anticipated. GOOD PRICES JUMP Food prices, which are more difficult to manage, have shown a sharp jump. Not even Wall Street can control the weather, thousands of farmers and choosy retail customers. But even this development has not been an unmitigated evil. Cattle at $27 a hundredweight and hogs at $17 have eased the farm revolt against Eisenhower-Benson policies, according to National Chairman Leonard W. Hall. And they expect that these figures may go even higher before November 6.

Whether Ike's nonpolitical friends—that is, nonprofessional politicians—keep prices from running away before Election Day is still a question. But Secretary Humphrey and William McChesney Martin, Federal Reserve Board Chairman, are keeping their eyes on this dangerous possibility. As of today, Ike sees no reason for curtailing or easing the credit situation. COMPLAINT OF DEMOCRATS. This unofficial and unrecorded connection between "big business" practices and Administration policies—they term it a "working agreement"—furnishes cause for concern and complaint. Their speeches and platform charge that it constitutes "rank discrimination" against the "little fellows." But their attitude does not prevent Secretaries Humphrey, Weeks and Mitchell from proclaiming, as did Coolidge, Hoover and Mellon in 1924-1929, that permanent prosperity is here to stay. And they believe that they have sounder reasons than the predecessors who urged the voters to "Keep Cool with Coolidge."

N. Mexico Fair Trade Act Won

By ELMER ROESSNER

The constitutionality of New Mexico's so-called fair trade act has been upheld by a district court in Albuquerque. Max Hess, the Allentown, Pa., merchant, has been slapped with a $500 fine for violating a court order against sales below fixed prices.

But elsewhere, fair trade's twenty-fifth birthday is not exactly a jubilee.

Fair trade laws in Kentucky and Louisiana were held unconstitutional by courts last month. The Louisiana case had been brought by the Schwegmann Brothers, supermarket operators, who carried an earlier case to victory in the U. S. Supreme Court. After that victory, Congress passed the McGuire Act, designed to make fair trade laws compatible with the Constitution.

The Kentucky case will be appealed to higher courts. So will the New Mexico decision. And Mr. Hess has announced his intentions of carrying his case as high as is necessary to victory.

EVIDENCE BARRED

The Allentown case arose over the sale of steam irons, priced fixed at $15.95, for $10. The iron manufacturer obtained an injunction prohibiting the store from cutting the fixed price. The store persisted and was fined for violating the injunction. Mr. Hess was not permitted to offer evidence to show that the manufacturer had made no efforts to keep competitors from selling below the fixed price.

Meanwhile, another test case is heading toward the U. S. Supreme Court. The action does not appear to question the constitutionality of the McGuire Act, but raises several special points.

The Home Utilities Co., Inc., of Baltimore, was enjoined from selling Eastman Kodak products at less than fixed prices. It challenges the order on two grounds: first, that Eastman products are not in "free and open competition," as required by law before they can be fair traded; and second, that the company cannot reasonably fix prices on kits when some of the components are not fair traded.

After 25 years, the fair trade score is:

States in which fair trade laws are currently held unconstitutional: 10. States in which laws have not been challenged or have been upheld: 35. Missouri, Texas, Vermont and the District of Columbia have never had such laws.

RETAILERS UNHAPPY

A subcommittee of the Senate Small Business Committee recently reported on a survey of small businessmen attitudes toward such laws. The subcommittee chairman is Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), a vigorous proponent of such laws. The report indicated that many enterprisers are unhappy because the laws are not vigorously enforced. Enforcement must be by manufacturers, who may hale price-cutters into court. Retailers feel many manufacturers were remiss in their actions. Sunbeam and General Electric are notable exceptions.

Some businessmen felt that the laws should be strengthened by empowering judges to jail those who cut prices. A few thought a mandatory Federal law was the only solution.

Several businessmen said that they would be able to remain in business without the price protection afforded by the law. However, that does not appear to be a general situation, since the report noted that in more than 70 per cent of the retail firms, fair-traded items account for less than 10 per cent of the dollar sale volume.

NEWS YOU CAN USE IN BUSINESS
The Atomic Energy Commission is inviting qualified manufacturers to join it and the Army Quartermaster in researching the use of nuclear materials in the preservation of food. Businessmen interested in investing in Australia can get a free copy of "Peg a Stake in Australia" from Commerce Department field offices. The brochure was prepared by a Melbourne bank.

U. S. Newsman In Rare Visit To Siberian City

Editor's Note—Three American correspondents regularly stationed in Moscow are in Novosibirsk, Siberia, for the first time. The area has seldom been visited by any Westerners. Stanley Johnson, an Associated Press correspondent from Moscow, describes the industrial city in the following dispatch.

By STANLEY JOHNSON

The city of about 800,000 on the Ob River—1,750 miles east of Moscow—has been off limits to Westerners for years.

A whirlwind inspection failed to uncover any reason why Western-

Tour Of Naples Is Usually Costly

NAPLES (AP)— See Naples and cry.

That may be the tourists' experience in "Bella Napoli" if he doesn't hold on to his wallet.

Rounding up reports from all foreign consuls in the city, Dutch Consul General Charles M. Dozy reported that foreign visitors lost some $800,000 in money and valuables last year.

They were robbed in many and ingenious ways. Take the case of a young lady from France who lost more than $200 in local currency, her jewelry, cameras and all her luggage.

She left her baggage in the hall of her hotel, waiting for a taxi to take her to the station. A young man, dressed as a hotel porter, picked up the bags and carried them outside. She never saw him—or her belongings—again.

For reasons locally unknown, French tourists are the favorite victims. They report 8 to 10 thefts a day. Then come the Germans. Dutch victims number a dozen a week. But reports involving supposedly rich and extravagant Americans are few.

One-Time Civil War Waif Sees 102nd Birthday

FLORENCE, Ala. (AP)— A one-time Civil War waif who wrung from Abraham Lincoln an expression of pity celebrated his 102nd birthday yesterday.

George F. Mercer was a 7-year-old child at Fairfax, Va., when the Civil War broke out. His father joined the southern forces, but a brother enlisted in the Union army.

This so angered the father that he left George with friends at Raleigh, N.C.

The father died of typhoid fever and when the little boy finally reached Fairfax he found his home burned and his mother gone. He found her years later in Pittsburgh.

A Union general took George to Washington and introduced him to President Lincoln as an example of the tragedies inflicted by the struggle.

"This war must come to a close at once," said Lincoln.

Polish-Ukraine Hatreds Aired

NEW YORK (AP)—Warsaw broadcasts reveal that relations between Poles and Ukrainians in Poland are characterized by extremes of hatred and bitterness.

The Communist radio has appealed for mutual understanding between the two nationalities. It admitted the Polish Communist government was guilty of mass expulsion of Ukrainian families from their homes in southeastern Poland after World War II.

The Polish radio indicated some Ukrainians, returning to their former homes, in turn threatened to expel their Polish neighbors by force. The broadcasts attempted to calm the fears of Poles now living on land taken from Ukrainians. The radio said only a few Ukrainians would be permitted to resettle in their original homes, that Poles would retain most of these farms.

The broadcasts point to several important conclusions:

1. Almost all Ukrainians were involved actively or passively in revolt against Communist Poland and supported in some degree the nationalist Ukrainian bands which carried on armed warfare against the Russians and the Poles.
2. Extreme measures were adopted against Ukrainians on a mass basis. Those who were not liquidated were moved to areas seized from Germany to be scattered among Poles. The idea was to frustrate any further organized resistance.
3. Polish hate for the Ukrainians was so intense that many Ukrainians concealed their Ukrainian origin, even from their own children.

The Red radio issued an unmistakable warning to Ukrainians that the seizure of their farms in eastern Poland is generally speaking "an irrevocable act."

TV Networks Should Be Looking To 1960 Politics

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)— Although it's very early to mention 1960, something will have to be done about television coverage of the national political conventions in that year.

Despite the fact the major networks performed an extraordinary feat in covering the Democrats in Chicago and the Republicans in San Francisco, this year, the widely advertised two week spectacular was a television flop on these scores:

1. Financial-wise, the networks took a shelling. Coverage cost them a minimum of 17 million dollars, of which sponsors footed about 14 millions. This does not take into account the regular programs which were pre-empted.
2. Audience-wise, the networks apparently failed to compensate in prestige for what it cost in cash. A thorough compilation of estimated viewers will not be available for some time. But a Trendex rating for the first three nights of the Democratic Convention shows the audience proportionately behind the estimated five-night audience of the 1952 Democratic Convention.
3. Political-wise, it seems doubtful if either the Democrats or Republicans succeeded in winning many friends or influencing many people via television. Astute politicians of both camps, trying to tailor their convention proceedings to TV, failed to recognize that television is basically show business. And a basic maxim of show business is that it's not enough just to be on; you have to be hot when you're on.

When Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler publicly chapped CBS for failure to show an entire party film on opening night, he sounded a depressing note.

Why must a television network be committed to covering every minute of a political convention? It should not be, and it's reasonably certain that in 1960 it will not be.

The proceedings of many days at both conventions were worthy of little more than a couple of hours of audience viewing.

It's possible that the political tensions in 1960 will be such that almost full-length coverage of the conventions will be indicated. Whatever the situation then, however, television journalism should treat it as the TV journalists view its merits—without political harassment.

With TV production costs rising steadily, the networks may have to tell the major parties: "We'll have to do it our way—or not at all."

Lending Rate Of Four Federal Reserve Banks Edged Upward

By WILLIAM O. VARN
WASHINGTON (AP)—The lending rate of four federal reserve banks moved up to 3 per cent today in a move to curb credit and the threat of inflation.

The Federal Reserve Board's announcement of the action yesterday had been widely anticipated, and New York financial sources said they expected it to have little effect on the economy.

"The move means that the board feels the business outlook is good, because increases in the discount or lending rate to member banks come only when times are good," a reserve official said.

"But it also means the board recognizes there are inflationary dangers and is hopeful the move will help to prevent possibility of boom or bust operations."

What the board did was to approve, effective today, discount rate hikes from 2 1/2 to 3 per cent at its reserve banks in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Richmond, Va.

This action puts these banks on a 3 per cent lending level with the Minneapolis and San Francisco banks, which jumped to that figure from 2 1/2 per cent last April. Within a matter of days the rate is expected to go up from 2 1/2 to 3 per cent at these other six banks in the federal reserve system: Boston, Cleveland, Atlanta, St. Louis, Dallas and Kansas City.

The discount rate is the interest rate at which reserve member banks may borrow from the federal reserve to meet the lending needs of their customers.

The 3 per cent rate is the highest since 1933, but the figure reached 7 and 8 per cent in the 1920s.

The current ground of increases is the sixth in 16 months. The rate was 1 1/2 per cent at all 12 banks prior to April 1955.

Normally a rise in the discount rate causes higher interest rates on bank loans. In this case, however, the board's action was anticipated and banks in major cities controlling most of the financial operations raised the prime interest rate this week from 3 1/4 to 4 per cent. The prime rate applies to the banks' best customers with best credit ratings.

In New York, financial circles generally suggested the new hike in the discount rate would have little effect on the bond or stock market or on the growth of business. They said the big trouble now is not high interest rates but a shortage of funds to lend.

The average life span of American Brahman bulls is 10 1/2 years. This was determined in a test on the J. D. Hudgins ranch near Hungerford, Tex.

Carolina Dairy Wins Second Half Softball Crown

Tonight's Games Decide Season's Regular Champs

Two Industrial Softball League games tonight will decide the Greenville loop champions.

Carolina Dairy's Industrial League softballers walloped the Graniters 11-5 last night at Guy Smith Stadium to capture the second half loop championship—then, followed up with a 7-1 win in a second contest.

The first win, which secures the second half crown for the Dairy, also deadlocked the league between these same two teams for the regular season championship, since the Graniters won the first half. Therefore, a three-game series must decide the over-all winner. The first game of that series took place immediately following the Dairy's 11-5 victory and the red-hot CD boys took that one 7-1.

Tonight's two contests, beginning at 7:30, will be the final games of the series. It is expected that Bill MaHallick will pitch for the Carolina Dairy, while Dan Gordan handles mound chores for the Graniters.

In last night's first contest, the Graniters scored three quick runs in the first inning on a walk and two errors. Johnny Foell and B. Tripp brought in the Dairy's first two runs in the same inning and the game was a 3-2 affair.

Carolina Dairy broke the game wide open in the third frame, scoring seven big runs. Moyer cracked a long triple, Carson added a double and Tripp and Bobby Perry smashed singles to lead the batting parade. They scored twice again in the final inning to clinch the game. The Graniters added their final two runs in the last inning, on Manning's triple.

Gordan was credited with the loss. Mitchell White was the winning hurler.

In the first game of the three-game series, Carolina Dairy used two pitchers, four Graniter errors, and a hard-hitting attack to post their 7-1 win.

White started the second game, was relieved in the third by Mac Hallick, but still received credit for the victory—his second of the evening. Both pitchers held the Graniters to only two hits, one given up by each.

Carolina Dairy scored quickly, racking up three first-inning runs on a double by Johnny Foell, a triple by White and a single by Perry. The Graniters scored on a wild pitch and a walk by pitcher White. Carolina Dairy came through for two more runs in the fourth and two in the sixth, to cop the game easily. They collected 10 hits and committed three errors.

Top hitters in this game for the winners, were Moyer and Foell with doubles and White and Dash with triples.

MONROE MONSTER MAKES NEWS—Larry Howell, East Carolina's 6-5, 268 pound freshman tackle from Monroe, has been very much in the national limelight since his performance in the East-West All-Star game in Greensboro. Coaches from many of the top schools in the nation have sought his services, but the big boy says, "I like East Carolina."

Pirate Tackle Gaining Nation-Wide Attention

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Larry Howell, East Carolina's newly-acquired freshman tackle from Monroe, has been the center of nationwide attention during the past few weeks.

"Horse," as the 6-5, 265 pound giant is called, was one of the most sought-after high school gridders in the South during his four seasons at Monroe. Now, since his titan performance in the annual East-West football contest at Greensboro, there has been no rest for the big fellow.

East Was Terrified

Howell held down a tackle post for the West in the All-Star tilt and was one of the outstanding linemen in the affair. Reports have it that the nineteen-year-old man-mountain kept the East backs terrified throughout the game—finally reaching the point that they stopped running through his territory entirely in the latter period.

The minute the game was over and Howell's outfit had posted its 26-19 victory, the former All-Star's phone began to ring and coaches all over the land began to converge upon him. It has been said that some of the most well-known mentors in the nation bombarded "Horse" with phone calls and even sent college figureheads to talk with him. One thing is certain: Larry Howell could go to any school in the country.

He Called Boone

East Carolina Coach Jack Boone has stated that Howell called him long distance the night after the East-West game and told him that he was "buzzing with offers" and that the place was "buzzing with people from all kinds of schools."

Boone said further that the big boy assured him that "he would be in East Carolina in September, regardless of what happened."

Howell, who has already attended East Carolina for a short summer school session, told reporters that he intended to get his education and continue his football at ECC. "I like the school and the people here," he said, "and Coach Boone is the kind of coach I want to play for."

Spoke To Tucker

The Monroe Monster gave George Tucker, an ex-Pirate footballer who now coaches in South Carolina, credit for his first interest in the Greenville school. "I talked with George many times and East Carolina sounded like the school I wanted to go to. When I came up and got a look at the campus and met Coach Boone and the students, I made up my mind."

Smith Meeting Brown Tonight

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Lightweight champion Wallace "Bud" Smith and challenger Joe Brown meet for the title tonight with confidence the keynote and the outcome more unpredictable than usual.

The 27-year-old Cincinnati-born champion it will be the second defense of the crown he won from Jimmy Carter in June 1955. He turned back Carter's attempt to regain the title last October.

And it represents the opportunity of a lifetime for the 30-year-old challenger from New Orleans, who whipped Smith in a non-title 10-rounder at Houston last May.

Smith, loser of two other non-championship fights this year against promising Larry Boardman and former welterweight king Tony DeMarco, has a chance to enhance his standing as the 135-pound division ruler. While Brown is ranked only eighth among contenders, he is regarded as a prime test.

The oddsmakers have refrained from installing either Negro boxer as favorite. It's 5-6 and take your pick.

Smith's record shows 33 victories, 14 losses and 5 draws with 18 knockouts. His left hook is regarded as one of the best in the business and is expected to give Brown the most trouble.

The fancy-boxing Brown has a record of 60 victories, 14 losses and 8 draws, but he has shown a tendency to "blow" the big ones. NBC will telecast and broadcast at 10 p.m., EDT.

Friday Rules On Edwards Tatum Fuss

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—A student accepting an athletic scholarship at either North Carolina or N.C. State cannot get a scholarship at the other school.

Furthermore, ruled acting Consolidated University President William Friday, coaches at the schools shall not henceforth air their grievances in public.

Friday's action yesterday was an outgrowth of the ruckus between State Football Coach Earle Edwards and the Tar Heel's Jim Tatum.

Edwards accused Tatum of using unethical tactics in attempting to land Cornel Johnson, 195-pound hot-shot fullback from High Point, who had signed up for an athletic scholarship at State.

Tatum, denying the charge, said he had conducted his recruiting campaign for Johnson in good faith. Johnson, meanwhile, indicated yesterday he may not attend either school and that he now is considering attending South Carolina.

Friday cleared Tatum of the unethical charge and announced that both State and Carolina had acted "in good faith and in compliance with Atlantic Coast Conference regulations" when they offered scholarships to Johnson.

Friday's announcement said both Tatum and Edwards were releasing Johnson of "any commitment" and were leaving the youth "free to go to any institution of his choice."

To put a lid on possible future recruiting squabbles between schools of the consolidated university, he ruled that any student accepting an athletic scholarship at one school would not be eligible to receive a scholarship from the other. This regulation will remain in effect until Sept. 30 and in the interim a permanent regulation will be drawn up.

To keep the coaches from airing their complaints in public, Friday said, "Any coach in the consolidated university who has a complaint against any other institution must submit it, with substantiating evidence in writing, through administrative channels to his chancellor for consideration and action."

If Braves Are Weakening They Don't Know About It

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

If Milwaukee is starting to show the strain of pressure, as some folks say, someone forgot to tell the Braves about it. Particularly Bobby Thomson, Hank Aaron and Johnny Logan.

They looked as though they didn't have a care in the world last night, protecting their two-game National League lead with a comeback 10-5 walk over the pesky Philadelphia Phillies. Thomson's seventh major league grand-slammer tied it in the fourth and Aaron and Logan then homered as the Braves scored seven in the fifth.

The Phillies are the only club in the league with an edge (10-7) over Milwaukee.

The "pressure" talk started when Milwaukee dropped a 2-1 decision to the last-place New York Giants Wednesday.

Big Don Newcombe of Brooklyn put the suddenly revived Giants in a different light by becoming the first to win 20 in the majors this season, choking off the homer happy Cincinnati Reds 6-5. The third-place Redlegs set a club mark with three homers that upped their season total to 183.

The Giants, meanwhile, came within 1½ games of leaving the cellar by defeating the seventh-place Chicago Cubs twice, 2-1 and 8-5. Fourth-place St. Louis also swept a pair, beating Pittsburgh 3-0 and 3-2 in a twin-batter.

New York's Yankees were belted 8-3 and 6-4 by the Chicago White Sox, with Nellie Fox getting seventh straight hits. Second-place Cleveland was spilled 2-1 by Boston as Mel Parnell beat Bob Lemon in a pair of three-hitters. Baltimore beat Detroit 3-0 and Washington defeated Kansas City 5-3.

Southpaw Curt Simmons, who had won seven in a row, took his second straight defeat after Thomson's 17th home run—first since July 26—overcame matched a 4-0 Phillie lead set up on Stan Lopez's 26th and 27th home runs. Ray Crone gained the decision, his 10th victory, with relief help.

Duke Snider and Carl Furillo each drove in three runs for the Dodgers, with Snider's second double scoring Newk with the clinching run in the ninth. Johnny Klippstein lost his 10th after Wally Post's 26th homer, with two on, had tied things at 3-all in the first.

Young Wally Moon pushed into the NL Batting lead with 4-for-8 including a two-run triple in the ninth that gave him a .355 average. Wilmer Mizell fanned seven and gave just four hits in the opener, riding in on Ra. Kati's two-run homer. Bobby Morgan's pinch single with the bases-loaded in the ninth won the nightcap for fellefer Jackie Collum.

A ninth-inning single by Daryl Spencer broke a 1-1 tie and gave Johnny Antonelli a pitching duel with bonus kid Moe Drabowsky as the Giants won the opener. They scored eight in the nightcap fourth while Max Surkont held the Cubs to one hit until they uncorcked five runs in the seventh. Then darkness called a halt in lightless Wrigley Field. Gene Baker hit a grand-slam in the Cub rally.

Fox drove in four runs for the White Sox in the opener, two on a triple as Bob Keegan went all the way for his fourth victory. The Sox scored three in the first inning of each game, adding three more in the nightcap third against reliever Tommy Byrne to nail it.

Mickey Mantle socked his 43rd homer, after a 10-game slump, to stay five games ahead of Babe Ruth's record-60 pace.

Dixie Howell, who hadn't started one in the majors since 1949 with Cincinnati, lasted the better part of six innings to win his fifth in the afterpiece. Rip Coleman and Bob Turley were the losers as the Yankees dropped their sixth in nine games.

Jim Piersall's sacrifice fly, after three walks had loaded the bases in the eighth, beat Lemon and the Indians. Rocky Colavito homered for one of the hits off Parnell. Jim Hegan got the other two.

Ray Moore three-hit the Tigers for seven innings, then injured his shoulder sliding into second. He gave five games ahead of Babe Brown gave one hit the rest of the way. George Kell batted in all three runs with two singles. Frank Lary lost it.

Roy Sievers matched the Washington club mark he set last year with his 25th homer while Chuck Stobbs five-hit the A's for his 12th victory.

TRIPLE THREAT—Greenville high school will be depending much on junior quarterback Mack Roebuck this season. The 165 pound back played first string for the Phantoms last year and was effective in passing, running and kicking. Coach Guy Lewis is grooming the youngster for All-Conference honors this fall.

McGowan New Club President

Principal O. E. Dowd of Greenville high school, announced last night that the 1956 Boosters Club officers have been elected and that action has already begun toward supporting this year's seven-sport Phantom program.

At the first 1956 Boosters Club meeting, held on Tuesday, Ford McGowan was elected President; Tyson Bilbro was named Vice President; Robert Moyer was chosen Secretary and Treasurer.

Nine directors were also chosen. They are: Dr. M. B. Massey, H. L. Hodges, J. B. Kittrell Jr., W. M. Scales, Reynolds May, Badger Johnson, E. W. Harvey Jr., Louis Gaylord and J. H. Blount Jr.

Dowd further stated yesterday that it was decided to "send the 1956 Boosters Club membership cards and certificates, along with season tickets, to members today." Membership in the club remains the same as last year, costing $10.

"We're very happy to have these men in office this year," Dowd concluded, "and we at the high school feel, as does the Boosters Club, that they will do much in helping Greenville high school."

Micros Race Saturday

Micro Midgets will be going at it again this weekend at the Greenville fairgrounds track.

Greenville will again play host to cars from Portsmouth, Norfolk, Raleigh, Kinston and Merrill-Lynch, Saturday night.

The main event race will be a 40-lap event. Last week, the main attraction was halted after 22 laps when two racers locked wheels and broke into the infield, injuring a pit mechanic.

Micro Club officials have announced that the infield area has now been moved outside the track in order to assure the mechanics and relief drivers more safety and to give the spectators a better view of the races.

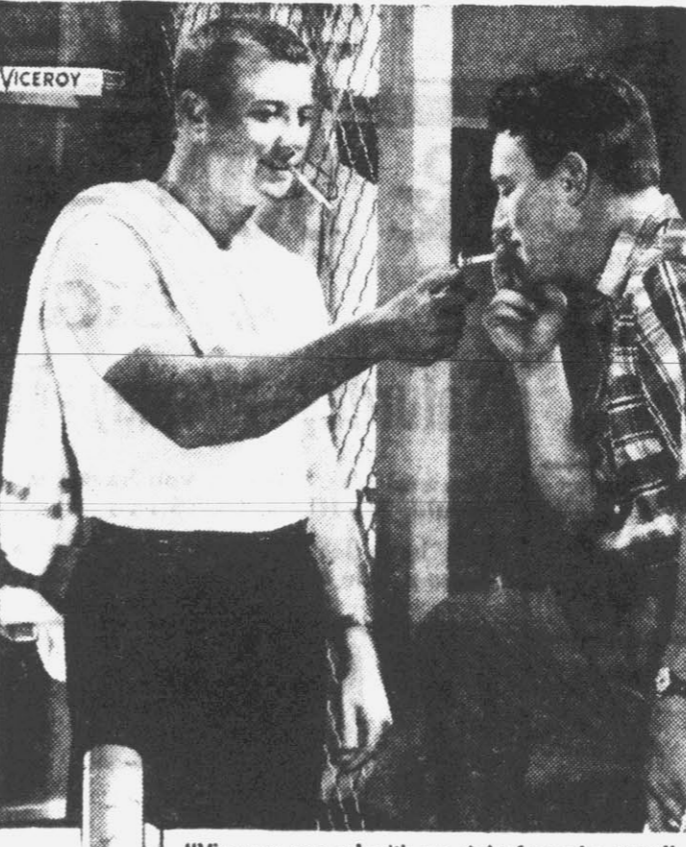

There will be three 10-lap heat races, a 15-lap consolation race and a special attraction preceding the main event. The special show will be afforded by a host of Quarter racers from Rocky Mount, driven by boys between the ages of seven and nine.

Last week's three top men in the main event, George Salas of Portsmouth, Earl Venters and Obie Bridges of Greenville, will be present again Saturday night.

Fort Hancock, on the Sandy Hook, N. J. coastline, was originally built in 1870 as part of New York's harbor defenses. It is now to give the spectators a better view of the races.

HOSTAGE

by ARCHIE JOSCELYN

CHAPTER 14
Strolling by himself at the Army post, the doctor swung about as a hall, Helen Blake, accompanied by Bill McKinstry, came up. "My arm is beginning to feel sore," Doctor, Helen said. "It that a good sign?"

"Excellent. It shows that the vaccination is starting to work." She made a little south. "Work, work, everything and everybody works. Both of you, the only eligible males in this country, are always too busy to acquire a lady around. I feel quite neglected at times, not to say out-of-control!"

"You shouldn't, with all the attention you get from every man you'll even look at," McKinstry grinned.

Her eyes danced, then she sighed. "And there's officers mess call, and knowing men, I know where their heart is. Go along, both of you, and fill your stomachs. Only then is a man in any mood for romance."

She went on, laughing. It had been in Eklund's mind to head back for town, but McKinstry forestalled that.

"Come and eat with us, man," he urged. "I'll bet you've not had a bite since morning, and you're an officer here now, whether you're in uniform or not. And the rest of the boys would like to have you."

Eklund accepted. His status was pretty well understood here at the post now, and that entitled him to all the rights and privileges whenever he felt like availing himself of them. And it would be pleasant.

There was joking and laughter, much as he remembered from days when tension had not been high. Apparently Dolf Kinney had dropped a reassuring word or so before leaving.

Everything went pleasantly until the meal was nearly done. Then Abe Stockett looked up suddenly, and his voice held a new quality, which caught the instant attention of the others and as swiftly silenced the talk and laughter.

"I understand that you killed a man the other day, Doctor?"

Eklund gave him his careful attention. He knew little about Abe Stockett, one way or another. He was a tall man, with unusually long arms—so long that they suggested a nickname, which, however, was never applied to Stockett's face. Ape. He was not too popular with fellow-officers.

"Just what do you mean?" Eklund asked.

"I've heard various versions," Stockett answered. "But it seems to add up to the fact that a man was murdered—without witnesses. I'm interested, you see, because I counted Curt Deever as my friend!"

Eklund laid down his knife and fork.

"I don't like your way of putting it, Mr. Stockett," he said clearly. "Ape, I take exception to your choice of words."

Stockett scraped his chair back. "In that case," he said, "I'll be delighted to afford you satisfaction. You wear no uniform, and your status at this post seems a trifle on the doubtful side, but since you are permitted to eat at this mess, I assume that you are to be treated as an officer—and prepared to uphold the responsibilities which go with such a position!"

It was becoming clear to Eklund now. No officer would be that good a friend of a man such as Deever, nor would he go out of his way to pick a quarrel on that account. Deever merely furnished the excuse. The real reason was Dolf Kinney.

For it was well known that Stockett and Kinney were cronies, and in this instance Kinney was being devious. Because the doctor had indirectly trod on Kinney's toes, he was to be given a trashing as punishment. Kinney was displeased. Deever wouldn't matter, but it could be that Kinney hadn't liked his poking into that affair either.

"If there's to be an argument, we'd better go to the stables," someone murmured, and every officer arose. Eklund found McKinstry at his elbow.

"Watch out for the Ape," he warned. "When it comes to a fight, he's no gentleman!"

Eklund sensed that most of the men favored him, just as they seemed to feel that the result was a foregone conclusion, that he would have no chance against Stockett.

Horses stamped restlessly at this invasion of their sanctuary, and a rising wind played gustily outside. An open space between stalls was selected, a lantern hung overhead from a beam of light. It's adequate glow seemed only to accentuate the black pockets at the corners, and Eklund knew that this was going to be rough.

He removed his coat, and a lieutenant ventured a suggestion that there should be rounds, a timekeeper, and the usual regulations. Stockett's refusal was biting. "This is a fight," he said, "not a fancy exhibition!"

Despite that reproach, Bill McKinstry offered a protest.

"Aren't you going to take off those spurs, Ape?" he demanded. "They'll be in your way."

They could be more than that. Stockett wore an excellent pair of boots, and attacked to them were the longest-shanked, wickedest-looking pair of spurs that Eklund had ever beheld.

"They won't bother me," he assured McKinstry. "I take them off only when I remove my boots—and I have no intention of fighting barefooted!"

Those spurs could play an evil part in a fight, and wearing them would intimidate many an opponent. Someone gave the word, and Stockett danced lightly forward, smiling, feinted, and lunged in suddenly. Eklund met him, watching his eyes, burying his own right to Stockett's belly, followed by his left. He took a glancing blow on the chin which rocked his head back, but Stockett grunted in surprise.

Eklund could see the change in his face, the sudden rage in his eyes. Those blows had hurt, and he didn't like them. There were extra pounds about Stockett's middle, a flabbiness there where he perhaps hadn't suspected. He was in a mood to get this over quickly, and he came in with a savage rush which drove Eklund back. A rain of blows sent him staggering. The next moment he felt lancing pain in his side, knew that he had been bumped hard and deliberately against the rough edge of a stall.

Stockett saw his condition and was quick to take advantage of it, trying to slam him against the stall again. Eklund came up from a half-crouch, the taste of blood in his mouth, fending off with another blow to the stomach, getting away. He caught a painful breath and guessed that he had a cracked rib, realized that Stockett had worked him in for such a result.

Eklund had been taking his time, feeling his opponent out, knowing that if would not be easy. He knew that now it was going to be even rougher than he had feared. For Stockett was not named the Ape for nothing. With those long arms he could keep chopping, and still remain out of harm's way himself. That wouldn't do. Stockett had learned to be wary, disliking those punishing blows to the midriff, preferring to take his time. That way he couldn't lose.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 4:1-11; James 1.

After Jesus' baptism by John, He went into the wilderness and fasted for 40 days and nights. He became hungry and Satan appeared and suggested that He turn the stones into bread. Christ said, "man shall not live by bread alone."

From a pinnacle of the temple, Satan told Jesus that if He was indeed the Son of God, He could throw Himself down and angels would bear Him up. Jesus said, "It is written, thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God."

The third temptation of Jesus was from the top of a high mountain where all the world was spread before them. Satan said if Christ would worship him, He should be given all this, but Jesus told the evil one to leave Him.

After Satan left Jesus, angels came and ministered to Him. James, Jesus' brother, wrote that if we lack wisdom to resist temptation, we should pray to God in faith, for the will to resist. MEMORY VERSE—James 1:12.

Shirley Booth Wishes Her 'Oscar' Delayed

By Hal McClure
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Shirley Booth leaned back in her chair beside her swimming pool and said, "I wish I hadn't won the Academy award so soon."

Not that the Oscar—for her 1952 portrayal of a frumpy hausfrau in "Come Back Little Sheba"—has done her any harm.

"But, I felt it came much too quickly. It was my first motion picture, you know. I always think you should work up to something," she said.

Her success on the stage with "Sheba" and subsequent plays came after many years of hard work, frustration and tears. Miss Booth, by the way, made her Broadway debut in 1925 with a young fellow named Humphrey Bogart.

The red-haired actress is a temporary Hollywoodian while appearing in the play, "The Desk Set."

"It's a funny thing," she went on, "when success arrives in your later years, no one is envious at all. Older people hope the same lightning might strike them; the younger folk aren't a bit jealous because they know you've been working for it a long time."

Shirley, who doesn't look her 49 years, recalled a conversation with her ex-husband, Ed Gardner, created of "Duffy's Tavern."

"Ed said, 'Shirley, people envy me my success, but they all hope you'll make it to the top one of these days. They say, good of Shirley, she's been pluggin' away a long time.'"

Long-remembered radio fans might recall that Shirley played the original "Miss Duffy" on the radio for two years. She and Gardner were divorced in 1943.

Shirley interrupts her busy schedule at the end of the month for a two-month tour of England, France and Italy. She returns to San Francisco and several more weeks with "The Desk Set." In January, she starts, "Next of Kin," her third motion picture.

Cost Of Money Goes Up While Value Slipping

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The price of money is going up at the same time that its value in the market place is slipping.

It will cost a businessman more to borrow money this fall. And when he spends it, chances are he'll get less in materials and services than he could have last spring.

Consumers are finding it costs more to buy many items. At the same time they are finding it hard to locate funds to finance mortgages on the new home they want.

The price of money — what you pay in interest when you borrow — is going up in response to the demand for money, particularly on the part of businessmen wanting to borrow, is growing while the supply of lendable funds is very tight.

Since business is bidding for construction materials and for such capital goods as machinery and tools, and since the supply of many of these items is tight, their price is rising. This approximates the classical definition of inflation: "Too much money (borrowed in this case) chasing too few goods."

In the consumer's case it's quite different. Prices on many manufactured items are going up although there are large stocks of these goods on hand and idle productive capacity. There certainly aren't "too few goods."

The price tags are being marked up at manufacturing level because of higher costs of labor and materials. At the retail level, where competition is fierce, markups aren't nearly as widespread.

Money is tight for several reasons. The great demand for it is one. The demand comes from businesses wishing to expand to prepare for the even greater prosperity they foresee, from merchants carrying costly stocks, and from consumers buying on time.

The supply of it, while growing, isn't keeping up with demand. Basically the supply of money for investment comes from the savings of individuals and corporations. The rate of savings varies as consumers go on spending sprees or tighten up for awhile.

But business notions now of how big an industrial plant the nation will need in the next few years are much bigger than current savings can pay for.

The Federal Reserve Board could ease credit considerably. It could let the banks have more money to lend. By supporting the bond market as it did just after the war it could halt the rise in interest rates.

But the federal reserve policy is to keep money sufficiently tight to head off any upswelling of inflation which it feels would follow the pouring of cheap money into expansion plans and new business ventures. Inflation could bring sharply higher consumer prices.

So borrowing is allowed to grow more difficult and more costly. It is hoped that will help hold down the rising cost of living. So far that weapon hasn't seemed to help the consumer much.

CHRIST'S EXAMPLE TEACHES US HOW TO RESIST TEMPTATION

Scripture—Matthew 4:1-11; James 1.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

IF WE READ the headlines in the newspapers we are likely to think that there are more temptations in today's world than ever before in history, and that more people yield to them than ever before. Even more children seem to indulge in crime than in any previous generation.

Be that as it may, even Jesus Christ was subject to temptation, but He remained sinless. As He sets us the example in all our actions by His stainless life while He was on earth, He also shows us how we can resist Satan.

Small children as well as older ones meet with temptations. A child may be tempted to steal money that is carelessly left within reach; or he may be assailed by a desire to take a package of candy from the store in which his mother is shopping or some fruit from a stall.

If he is detected he will be was: "It is written, man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

Then Satan took Jesus up to a pinnacle on the top of the temple, saying that if He should throw Himself down, angels from God His Father would see that He came to no harm. Jesus said, "It is written again, thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God."

A third time Satan tried, taking Jesus to the top of a high mountain where there was a view of the world in all its glory, saying: "All these things will I give Thee if Thou wilt fall down and worship me."

"Get thee hence, Satan, for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and Him only shalt thou serve." Christ answered. Satan went away then, and Christ's hunger for food was assuaged by angels.

'Candidate' Joe Smith Has Own Campaign Program

By ED CREAGH
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Interview aboard a San Francisco cable car: "Excuse me, sir, but I heard you say your name was Joe Smith and—"
"Yeah, I know. You're one of them newspaper guys. They been pesterin' me and every Joe Smith in the country. Get lost."
"Well, naturally, sir, since a Joe Smith was put in nomination, or almost in nomination, by a Nebraska delegate at the Republican convention the other night—" "Do you know how many Joe Smiths there are in this country, buster? I looked it up. There are 1,096,203 of us. So why pick on me?"

"Well, I just thought—" "Think again. I decline the nomination."
"Don't you want to be vice president?"
"Nah, I'm shootin' the works. Like Happy Chandler said at Chicago, I'm goin' for the roses. That's a racin' term, in case you don't get it. Kentucky Derby, like. It means I'm out for the top spot."
"You mean you're a candidate for president, Mr. Smith? I don't mean to downgrade you, but the nominees for this year seem to have been selected. And frankly, I didn't hear your name mentioned—even as a dark horse."
"Ah, what do those politicians know about politics? I'll have them coming to me yet. On their knees."
"Then you—er—have a program that you think will capture the imagination of the masses, Mr. Smith?"
"Call me Joe, buddy. Sure I got a program. It'll sweep all 48 states."
"May I inquire, Joe—?"
"Why inquire? I'll tell you. I'm just goin' to sit tight. Won't make no speeches."

GHS Activity Bus Scheduled Arrive Tonight

Greenville High School's new activity bus purchased with funds raised by the local Junior Chamber of Commerce, is due to arrive in Greenville tonight, Jaycee President David J. Whichard announced at the club's meeting last night. James Rodgers, band director at the school, and Boley Farley, athletic director, left this morning to bring the vehicle to Greenville.

The fund raising drive has been underway for approximately a year and the Jaycees through various projects had collected $3,500 of the total amount needed for the bus. Last week Whichard and Jaycee First Vice-President W. M. Scales conducted a fund raising campaign among local business firms and individuals in which they raised the additional $2,495 needed to pay for the activities bus.

Whichard said last night that plans are being made to place the names of donors on the bus.

Whichard expressed appreciation to Bob Russ, who has served as chairman of the bus project, Past President M. W. Aldridge, Scales and all other members of the club who have worked to bring the bus project to a successful conclusion.

Sen. Kennedy's Wife In Hospital

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy, wife of the Massachusetts Democratic senator, was reported "improving" today from an emergency operation she underwent last night after loss of the baby she was expecting in October.
A spokesman at Newport Hospital said her condition is not serious.
Mrs. Kennedy was with the senator at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago last week, where Kennedy missed the vice presidential nomination by about 20 votes.
The senator is visiting his parents at their villa in Nice, France.

Nixon Pledges Hard Work For GOP Campaign

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Vice President Nixon says he intends to work hard in the coming campaign in order to help President Eisenhower complete his "unfinished tasks."

Accepting renomination yesterday, he also promised the Republican National Convention he would carry the "great message" of the Eisenhower administration "to every corner of this land."

After delivering his speech to heavy applause, Nixon flew back to the bedside of his ailing 77-year-old father in La Habra, east of Los Angeles. The length of his stay there will depend on the elder Nixon's condition.
The vice president smiled happily, but he was a tired man when he began his 26-minute speech before a capacity audience in the Cow Palace.

He flew in from southern California a few hours before he stepped before the final session of the 1956 party gathering. Called away by his father's illness the day before, he worked on his text to the last minute.

"I am grateful beyond measure," Nixon said, "that you have given me the privilege of running on the same ticket with President Eisenhower. I shall work hard to re-elect the President by an even greater majority than the landslide of four years ago."

His wife Pat sat on the platform listening proudly as her husband, a House member at 33, a U. S. senator at 37 and vice president at 40—crossed another threshold in his fast-moving political career. Their two daughters, Patricia, 10, and Julie, 8, saw it all on television. They were with relatives in Whittier.

Afterward, the Nixons celebrated quietly in their 11th-floor hotel suite with a few friends.

In his speech, the vice president declared, "The American people support the record of President Eisenhower and will overwhelmingly re-elect him on that record."
"But the President himself looks forward to greater achievement and progress," he said. "He needs more time to carry out the program that he feels to be so vital for the future of our nation."
He said American living standards must rise still higher—"and they will do so under the sound economic policies of the Eisenhower administration."
Declaring that not all Americans have shared equally in the country's prosperity, he said, "We must move ahead with vigor and imagination to root out any economic problems in our midst."
He got a big hand when he said, "Our prosperity must be fully shared by the 17 million Negro Americans."

Wedding Staged For Zoo's Camel

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Cecil, the camel at Crandon Park Zoo will take an Australian bride, Cecilia, today in an Arab-type "ceremony" with oriental overtones.
The wedding announcement was made by Yank Taylor, publicity County Parks Department.
The "Voice of America" will cover the wedding for a world-wide radio broadcast.
Until recently the only camel at the zoo, Cecil's lonesome expression provoked the Miami Herald to start a campaign for donations toward the purchase of a bride. Purchasing agents found a mate in Australia and she is becoming acquainted with Cecil from an adjoining, but unconnected, lot.

Driver Gives Up Due To Years

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Capt. Olin Hill of the Florida highway patrol said he wishes more drivers would use the common sense of Frank Marion Howe.
Howe, 82, recently turned in his driver's license of his own accord with the explanation: "I'm just too old to drive."

Five Jurors Are Seated In Trial

BOSTON (AP)—Five jurors have been seated with nine more to go as the trial of eight men charged with the $1,218,211 Brink's robbery today entered its 14th day.
Nearly 1,300 prospective jurors have been examined and dismissed.

Not before chief defense counsel Paul T. Smith exhausted his allotted 262 peremptory (without cause) challenges was the first juror selected.
From now on, the defense can challenge jurors only for cause, subject to a ruling from Superior Court Judge Felix Forte. The prosecution still has a backlog of 173 without-cause challenges.

Soviet Embassy Group In Wreck

BELLEVILLE, Ont. (AP)—Five members of the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa were injured last night when their car skidded on wet pavement and rolled into a ditch.
Most seriously hurt was Mrs. Tanya Vedenev, 44, who suffered lacerations of the elbow and scalp and a possible broken arm. Her husband Nicholas suffered a sprained ankle. Others were identified as Olga Novikov, sprained ankle; Nicholas Eisevnikov, sprained ankle, and his wife Irene, sprained elbow.
It could not be learned immediately what positions the five held on the embassy staff.

Stevenson Pushes Speech-Writing Chores For Start Of His Campaign

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
LIBERTYVILLE, Ill. (AP)—Adlai Stevenson stepped up the pace of his speech writing today in preparation for his departure Monday on a campaign schedule that will keep him on the road almost continuously until election eve.

Facing the 1952 landslide team of Eisenhower and Nixon again, he has told friends that his hopes for victory lie in personal contacts with thousands of voters in every crucial state.

The Democratic presidential nominee got an idea of what he is up against last night as he watched a telecast of President Eisenhower's acceptance speech at the Republican National Convention. But he had no comment on his rival's talk before retiring at his sheep-farm home near here.
Stevenson is in continuous telephone contact with James A. Finnegan, his campaign manager, and chief strategist on what they call a program for the "greatest grass roots campaign in political history."

Stevenson is counting heavily on conferences he and Sen. Estes Kefauver, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, will hold next week with state and local party officials and workers in five regions of the country.
Other such conferences in additional areas will be set up for the following weeks.

The idea is to get advice at the grass roots on what areas should be campaigned most thoroughly and on what issues to stress in an effort to rally Democratic voters to the polls.
Stevenson said that Democratic registration which exceeds Republican registration offers the foundation for his belief that the Democrats can win in November.

The first stop in the precampaign tour will be at Santa Fe, N.M., Monday. From there the two candidates and Finnegan will move into the area of Bonneville Dam, Wash., Tuesday.

Wednesday will find them rallying the party helpers at Sioux City, Iowa, and Thursday they will move into Knoxville, Tenn., to size up the outlook for carrying the South. The final big conference of the week will be held in Chicago Friday.

With a brief weekend at home, Stevenson will be off again the following Monday for a Labor Day address under labor auspices in Detroit, the first major speech of the campaign. Other regional conferences likely will be set up for Labor Day week in the three remaining areas he wants to cover.
Sen. Kefauver is flying to Illinois Saturday to join Stevenson at his home here to talk over the campaign and to make some of the five-minute filmed programs for use on television beginning the middle of September. Stevenson already is making talks on education, welfare, agriculture and other issues for use on the 89 TV spots Finnegan has bought for the campaign.

He will make the first of six 30-minute nationwide live TV speeches Sept. 13 when he has a date to appear at a $50-a-plate fund-raising dinner at Harrisburg, Pa.

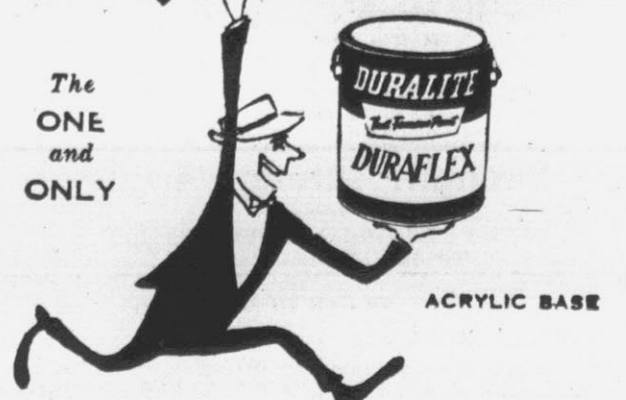

Among other speeches already billed is one Sept. 11 before the Liberal party of New York, and another Sept. 22 at the National Plowing Contest near Newton, Iowa.

Stevenson came out strongly yesterday for Mayor Robert Wagner of New York City to make the race for the United States Senate seat to be vacated by Sen. Herbert Lehman (D-N.Y.).

He said he talked with Wagner by telephone and told him he thought he would make a "splendid and strong candidate."
"Mayor Wagner said he would give it very careful thought and that he was pleased to have my encouragement," Stevenson told reporters.

Stevenson also said that he expects to address the Democratic State Convention at Albany, N.Y., Sept. 10.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market took a stride today as a new hike in interest rates by the Federal Reserve Board with prices up fractions to around a point in early afternoon.

The limited advance was a carry over from yesterday, when the market broke a string of six straight declines.

Trading was quiet, as in recent sessions. Volume was estimated at around 1,500,000 shares for the day, compared with yesterday's 1,500,000 shares.

After the close yesterday, the Federal Reserve Board announced that four of its regional banks had increased by 1/4 per cent the interest rate charged on money loaned to member banks for commercial and personal loans. The board said the action was designed to head off inflationary excesses in the economy.

Steels, metals and aircrafts were the strongest divisions, but were not spectacular. Bethlehem was ahead between 1 and 2 points after the Navy awarded the company a $40,500,000 contract for building three ammunition ships at its Sparrows Point, Md., shipyard.

At midday, a block of 3,800 shares of Lewis traded up 1/4 at 21 1/2.

Ahead around a point were Jones & Laughlin, Youngstown, Goodrich, United Aircraft, Dow Chemical, American Smelting and Refining, and Johns-Manville.

Also higher were U. S. Steel, Ford, U. S. Rubber, Douglas, Boeing, Zenith, American Telephone and Telegraph, Westinghouse, Santa Fe, and National Distillers.

On the downside were Caterpillar, Consolidated Edison, Allied Chemical, Royal Dutch and American Can.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon rose 50 cents to $185.70, with industrials up $1, rails up 40 cents and utilities up 10 cents. The average yesterday posted a gain of $1.40, its biggest advance in more than two months.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog prices steady to 25 higher. Tops of 16.50 to 17.75 at Rocky Mount; 17.00 to 17.50 at Bethel, Tarboro and Enfield; 16.75 to 17.25 at Kinston, Benson and New Bern; 17.25 at Goldsboro, Micro, Elizabethtown, Mount Olive, Fayetteville, Clinton and Lumberton; 17.00 at Tabor City, Wingate and Rich Square; 16.75 at Smithfield, Newton Grove, Dunn, Bailey, Whiteville, Clarkton, Blackmans Crossroads, Castle Hayne, Kenly, Nahunta, Farmville and Beulaville.

WUERZBURG, Germany (AP)—Four American soldiers were sentenced today to life imprisonment and three others to 40 years each for the rape of a 15-year-old German school girl.

The seven, all Negroes, were convicted by a U. S. Army court-martial yesterday of the mass attack on the girl in the woods of nearby Bamberg last July 9. The trial started Aug. 7.

The blonde girl, whose name had been withheld because of her age, collapsed twice on the witness stand in describing how the soldiers raped her while her companion, Wilfried Pillok, 22, a student, was restrained.

Her testimony was broken off and the nine-officer court ruled she could make a deposition from her bedside. Since she was not able to continue her testimony in person, the possibility of a death sentence was eliminated. The Army announced that the death sentence — maximum punishment for rape — could not be returned under military law.

Four GIs Given Life Terms For Rape In Germany

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) says the government is on an election year "spending spree" which may make tax cuts impossible.

Both the Republican and Democratic campaign platforms carry planks voicing cautious optimism about prospects for early tax reduction.

Byrd said in a statement tax cuts are overdue, but he expressed doubt they can be made, or even that the budget can be kept in balance, "unless the executive authorities sharply curtail probable spending."

He said tax collections are pouring in "at an all-time peak" rate that may produce 70 billions or more revenue in the fiscal year ending next June 30, but that spending threatens to surpass that figure.

He issued his statement as chairman of both the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee and the Senate House Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures.

"The spending spree advocated in the President's budget for fiscal year 1957 which began July 1 was accelerated by Congress," Byrd said.

He said the President requested appropriations totaling $67,700,000 in the last session of Congress, while Congress actually appropriated $69,600,000, including 8 million dollars for the big new highway program.

He said Congress probably will vote even more money in supplemental appropriations after re-opening in January which would top up all of the anticipated 7-billion-dollar income.

COW PALACE, San Francisco (AP)—One of the biggest cheers President Eisenhower drew from the GOP convention last night came in response to an invitation for "discerning Democrats" to pitch in with the Republicans.

It was an interpolation Eisenhower put into the text of his speech as it had been distributed to newsmen.

In the text, the speech read: "There are still enough injustices to be erased, still enough needless sufferings to be cured, to provide careers for all the young crusaders we can produce or find. 'We want them all!'"

To this, the President added: "Republicans, independents, discerning Democrats, come on in and help us."

PLAN ORATIONS
FALCON, N.C. (AP)—New ministers will be ordained here during the North Carolina Conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Church which began three-day meeting here today.

Tobacco Growers Feeling Effect Of Cigarette Habit Smoking Change

By NOEL YANCEY
RALEIGH (AP)—Flue-cured tobacco growers are feeling the effects of a revolution in the cigarette smoking habits of the American people, the swing toward filter tip cigarettes.

The growers used to work hard to produce a light-colored and light bodied leaf which brought premium prices at the market place for use in standard cigarettes.

In the last three years growers have seen the demand for this type of leaf decline while buyers were bidding strongly for darker, heavier-bodied, more aromatic leaf that used to be considered low and medium quality.

"What we have known as quality all these years is not quality now," said L. T. Weeks, general manager of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp., which operates the government price support program for flue-cured tobacco.

Weeks suggested that a reevaluation of what constitutes top grade and low grade leaf may be in order.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has recognized the change in demand by reducing support prices on some better grades of tobacco and boosting the supports on some lower grades.

Weeks said that more of this type is necessary because, "if you are going to administer a price support program realisticly you are forced to do it. You cannot support something way out of line from its true market value."

Weeks said the swing to filter tip cigarettes is "influencing this thing more than any other one thing."

W. P. Hedrick, tobacco marketing specialist for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, said the change to filters is "the biggest reason" for the change in the price patterns. He added, "Naturally the tobacco has to have more aroma to get any flavor or at all through the filters."

Hedrick said that last year 20 per cent of domestic tobacco production and this year about 30 per cent of the production is filter tips. And, he said, "I don't know

Necklace Bead Aids Conviction

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A bead from a broken necklace and peculiar humming noise in the motor of Raymond Clemmons' automobile were instrumental in sending him to prison yesterday for a hit-and-run death.

Police said his car made an unusual noise because the front end had been damaged, just as a witness to the hit-and-run death of Mrs. Julianne M. Laursen described it. Mrs. Laursen was struck July 2. Clemmons admitted striking her, fleeing in panic, returning, placing her body in his car and dumping it in an alley.

Police said the beads of her necklace, broken by the impact, were found where she was struck, and one matching bead was under the floor mat of Clemmons' car.

Pea-Shooters Briefly Jailed

WEST LOS ANGELES (AP)—Battery charges were dropped when two complaining women declined to prosecute actor Bobby Driscoll, 19, and Lester A. Ferguson, 20, of taking pot shots at them with a pea shooter.

Driscoll and Ferguson, a gas station attendant, were jailed, then released on bail Wednesday night. Yesterday when Mrs. Eloise Sherrill and Mrs. J. P. Glenn decided not to prosecute, the city attorney's office declined to issue a complaint. The case was dropped.

Wolfe of Jacksonville, Florida, and Mrs. Seth Thomas Baker of Macleesfield; 5 grandchildren; three brothers: Johnnie, Otis, and Jimmy Deans of near Falkland; two sisters: Mrs. Richard Harris of near Falkland and Mrs. R. L. Harrell of Crisp; two half-brothers: David Dean, of Indiana and Bartley Deans of New Jersey; and a half-sister, Mrs. Sarah Mercer of Ohio, and step-mother Mrs. A. L. McLain, of Lumberton, N. C.

Mother of Greenville Man Died Thursday

Mrs. S. V. Williams, 77, died at her home in Morehead City early Thursday morning.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Morehead City Baptist Church Sunday afternoon at three o'clock and burial will be in the Morehead City Cemetery.

Among the survivors are a son, Guy Williams of Greenville.

The busiest coal port on the western rivers is at Clairton, Elizabeth R., which handled almost 9.5 million tons of coal in 1954.

where this demand for filter tips is going to stop."

Weeks explained that, in general, there is greater demand now than in the past for tobacco produced on the top of the stalks, the leaf and smoking leaf grades, which formerly was considered as export type, and less for the bottom leaves, primings, lugs and cutters, which formerly were known as domestic cigarette-type tobacco.

As a result, buyers for domestic companies and buyers for the export trade are now competing for the same types of leaf where formerly they were interested in different types. This has accentuated demand for the so-called low and medium grades.

Another possible result has been a stronger demand for tobacco produced in the Old Belt of North Carolina and Virginia and, to a lesser extent, that produced in North Carolina's Middle Belt. Traditionally Old and Middle Belt leaf is heavier-bodied than that produced in other flue-cured areas.

Only 9.35 per cent of Old Belt tobacco and 13.25 per cent of Middle Belt leaf went to the Stabilization Corp., under price support loans last year while Stabilization Corp. got 23.48 per cent of the Eastern Belt crop, 24.08 of the South Carolina and North Carolina Border crop, and 14.78 per cent of the Georgia-Florida production.

Weeks said that most of the tobacco Stabilization Corp. received last year and this year came from the bottom of the stalk and that virtually all the leaf it has sold recently from its accumulated stocks has been the leaf and smoking leaf grades produced on the top of the stalk.

Hedrick said the farmers may be able to meet the situation partly by changing their cultural practices. He said they could increase their production of the heavier-bodied tobaccos by planting the hills and rows farther apart and by topping the stalks lower.

Peaches Browning's Death To Be Probed

NEW YORK (AP)—Peaches Browning—the overweight headline-making child bride of the 1920s—died yesterday at the age of 46 under circumstances which aroused the ire of authorities.

She fell in the bathroom of her New York apartment last Sunday, never regained consciousness and died yesterday in New York Hospital.

Angered because no report had been made to his office, Acting Medical Examiner Sidney Weinberg sent a city ambulance to the hospital and had the body removed to Bellevue Hospital morgue for an autopsy. Police started an investigation.

The four-times married woman was found unconscious at 9 a.m. Peaches was 15 when she married the 50-year-old millionaire physician. Because of Peaches' medical history of epilepsy, alcoholism and malnutrition, the doctor detected that she be kept "warm and comfortable."

At 5 p.m. the doctor visited Peaches and found a bump over her right ear and called an ambulance.

The medical examiner's office was not notified of her death. Dr. Eric Pike, New York Hospital pathology resident, said the hospital planned its own autopsy. For this reason, plus the medical history, he said, the hospital did not consider it necessary to notify the medical examiner.

Peaches was 15 when she married Edward (Daddy) Browning, the 50-year-old millionaire with a yen for teen-aged girls, in 1926. After a stormy 14 months of charges and countercharges, Daddy Browning obtained a legal separation from the former Frances Heenan on June 23, 1927. The 163-pound blonde symbol of the "flaming youth" of the era won a fortune in cash and real estate in settlements as a result of her marriage to Browning. She was believed to have held onto much of the wealth until the end.

Peaches sued Browning for divorce, but the case was dismissed. She said Browning insisted she cavort nude with him around the house.

Browning testified he spent $1,000 a day on his child bride, but was an unskilled bridegroom. He said her mother hung around too much.

The testimony made spicy reading for may sensation seekers of the Roaring 20s.

Browning died in 1934, and Peaches later was married and divorced three times.

Local Guard Unit In Review

FORT BRAGG—Greenville units of the IV Corps Artillery, North Carolina National Guard, reached the high point of their two-week summer training program today when they participated in a parade and review for Major General John Hail Manning, North Carolina Adjutant General.

The Greenville Guardsmen were among eight hundred officers and enlisted men who participated in the ceremonies under the command of Brigadier General Oscar I. Wrenn, IV Corps Commander.

Other troops in the parade were from units assigned to Belmont, Charlotte, Mooresville, Monroe, Kinston and Washington.

The Greenville units are part of the 295th Field Artillery Battalion, commanded by Lt. Col. Joe Koenig, adjutant general.

The first three days of this week, they operated in the field, taking up defensive positions against aggressor forces in simulated attack. They drew commendation from umpires judging their battery efficiency tests as prescribed by Third Army Headquarters of Fort McPherson, Ga.

After their ceremony this morning, the Greenville men completed cleaning and polishing of their field equipment. They will have final pay and other formations tomorrow and will return home by motor convoy Sunday.
