

Egypt Agrees To Hear Out Suez Committee

LONDON (AP)—Egypt agreed today to meet with a committee charged with presenting a proposal for international control of the Suez Canal but made no commitment to accept the plan.

President Nasser made known his willingness to see the five-nation committee. In a terse letter to its chairman, Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies of Australia, he mentioned neither time nor place for the meeting.

The letter did not bear out an earlier report from Egyptian officials that Nasser had specified Cairo as the site for the meeting. On the strength of this report, a spokesman for the committee had indicated the members were ready to fly to Cairo almost immediately.

On getting Nasser's reply, Menzies went to 10 Downing St., residence of Prime Minister Eden where the Cabinet was in session. The Cabinet was informed of Nasser's reply and the meeting broke up soon after.

The Menzies committee was named by 18 of the 22 nations attending the London conference. It was assigned the task of presenting the majority proposals to Nasser for an international board to run the canal. The plan would make Egypt a member of the board and link the agency to the United Nations.

The five-power committee sent its request for a meeting to Nasser five days ago. Members in addition to Australia are the United States, Sweden, Ethiopia and Iran. Veteran career diplomat Loy Henderson is the U.S. representative.

A minority plan, submitted by India and supported by the Soviet Union, Ceylon and Indonesia, would leave the canal under Egyptian control and provide an international board with advisory powers only.

Nasser has said that Egypt will keep the canal open to all shipping. Reports from Cairo said he would offer treaty guarantees to back up his promise.

In the background remained the key question of what the West would do next if Nasser, after meeting with the committee, still refused to yield.

Britain and France are continuing to reinforce their military forces in the eastern Mediterranean. They have described these moves as precautionary, however, and it was considered likely that a deadlock over the canal would bring economic rather than military moves.

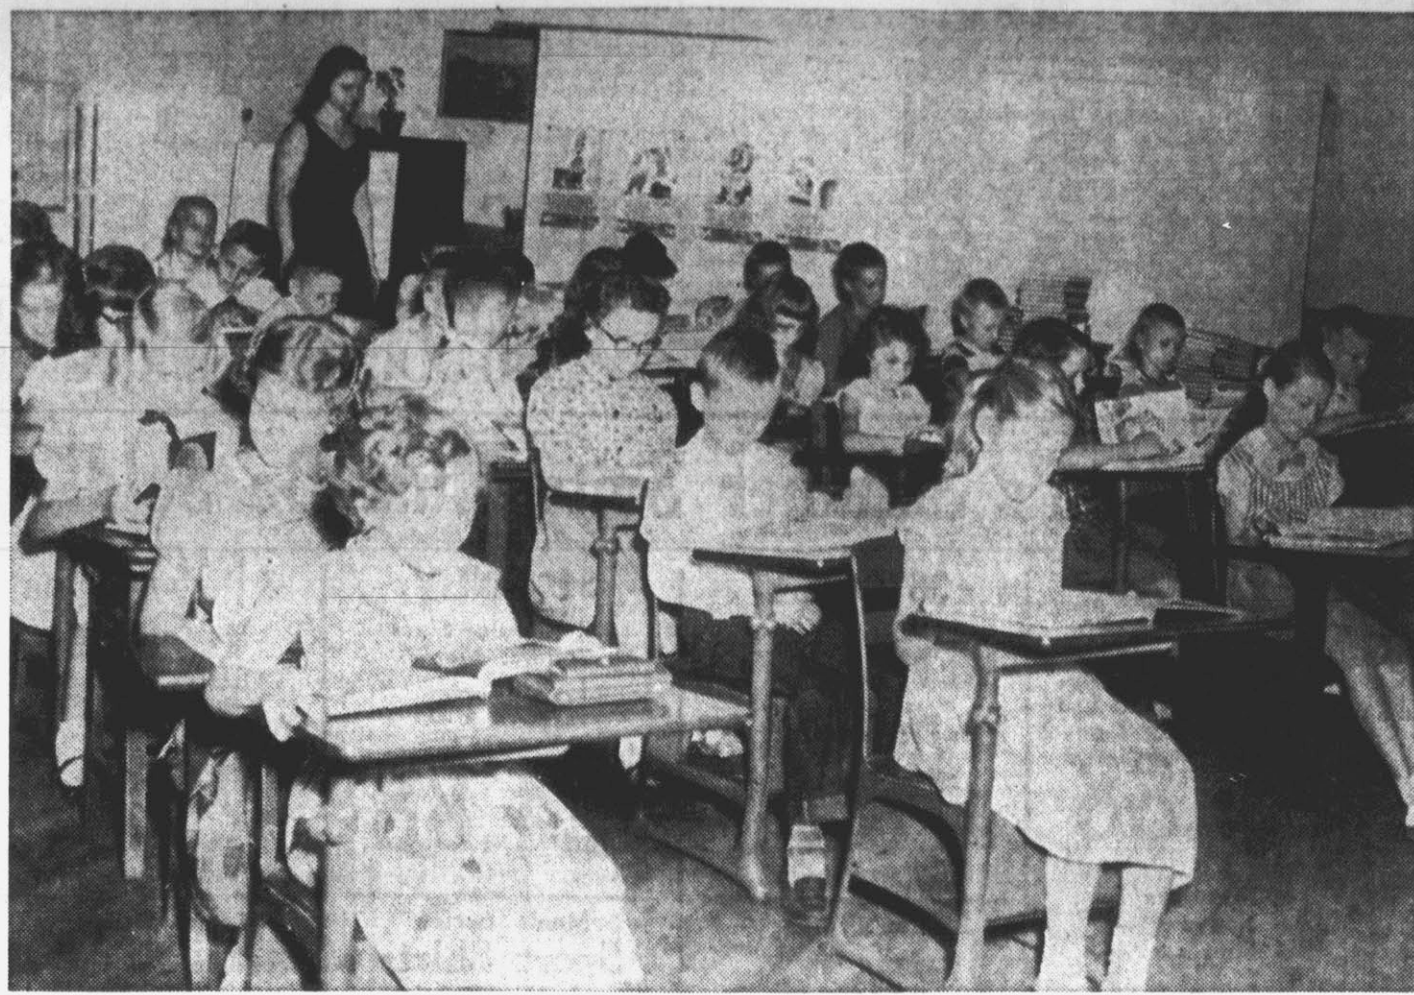

The already tense situation was worsened by the arrest in Cairo of two British subjects on charges of espionage. At least one Egyptian also was arrested and accused of being a member of an alleged spy ring.

There are about 11,000 British subjects still in Egypt. Hundreds of wives and children of Britons working there have been evacuated. Both Britain and France have advised all their people there to leave unless they have compelling reasons for staying.

One of three Western correspondents expelled Sunday, William Stevenson of the Toronto, Ont., Star, sent dispatch his paper said had caused his ouster. In it he reported that German Nazis are "everywhere and everything in Egypt today."

The correspondent said Egyptian officials "hit the ceiling" after his story was cabled.

County Schools Open, All Running Smoothly

BACK TO SCHOOL—Summer play days are over and it's back to the books for Pitt County's school-age youngsters. County schools opened this morning. The students pictured above, looking over their new geography books, are in Mrs. Margaret Brown's fourth grade at Falkland Elementary School. (Reflector Photo by Edwina Haymes).

Pitt County schools opened quietly this morning, except for the cries of class-bound youngsters greeting old schoolmates after a summer of vacation.

Sunburned faces, slicked back hair and shiny new shoes were visual evidence that the summer holiday has ended and it's back to books and lessons for the county's school population.

Supt. D. H. Conley reported all operations running smoothly, this morning, including bus transportation. The orange and black vehicles were noticeably prominent on the county's roads after three months of inactivity.

Today a half-day schedule was observed in the 28 county units. Hereafter each school will follow a schedule set up by its local board, according to the number of students who still have to help on the farms. A few lunchrooms were in operation today, but Superintendent Conley said the majority of the cafeterias will open Monday.

Enrollment this year is expected to be around 13,500, or approximately the same as last year. Exact figures will be available in about a week, the superintendent said.

All faculty staffs are complete, with 12 additional teachers employed this year. School buildings were ready to greet the returning students with new paint jobs and other signs of summer renovation and repair.

The county schools will close for the summer next May 20 and will observe holidays on November 22 and 23 for Thanksgiving, December 20 to December 31 for Christmas, and April 22 for Easter.

At minute preparations are presently being made for the opening of the city schools September 5. This will be the first time in a number of years the city schools have opened after Labor Day.

Gap In Incomes Cited

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Gov. Hodges declared today, "We must still face the fact that North Carolina ranks very poorly in per capita income standing among the states."

He pointed out that in 1953 North Carolina ranked 45th in per capita income, outranked by six of the 11 Southeastern states.

The governor presented his figures in an address prepared for the annual meeting of the North Carolina Assn. of Chamber of Commerce Executives.

"While our per capita income for non-farm people is nothing to shout about," the governor said, "the greatest problem lies with our low per capita farm income."

He stated "We do have the largest farm population in the nation and rank second in the total number of farms. Agriculture is in a great transition; and the small farm or family-size farm, as we know it in North Carolina, faces a very dark future."

He pointed out "The gap in income in agriculture per farm person in the United States and in North Carolina is still very large."

The governor said, "There is plenty of room for improvement in boosting the per capita income of non-farm people by an increase in the diversification of industry and the expansion of existing industry throughout the state."

He declared, "There is a great future ahead for North Carolina and its people, if we hold fast to our faith and our belief in our state and in ourselves."

He concluded by touching on the public school segregation issue. He discussed the steps the state has taken to retain segregated schools and explained the tuition grants and local option features of the Pearsall plan which the people will vote on Sept. 8.

New Subdivision Plats Prepared For Commission

The Zoning-Planning Commission will receive two preliminary plats for new subdivision which it meets tonight in City Hall at 3 o'clock.

Plats for "Oakmont" subdivision and "North Greenville Development No. 1" are scheduled to come before the commission for approval.

Also coming up tonight is a proposed off-street parking ordinance which would govern new businesses in providing off-street parking for customers.

Other matters listed on the agenda for tonight: rezoning of lot at the corner of Forbes and 10th Sts.; Royce Jones subdivision and continuation of Elm St.; rezoning of lot on 14th St.; rezoning of Hillside Addition No. 1; zoning of portion of Bancraft Ave.

S. C. Demo Party Regulars Defeat 'Independent' Move

COLUMBIA (AP)—South Carolina Democratic party regulars have put down—at least temporarily—an attempt by some members of the party to place independent electors on the November ballot.

After two close votes on the independent slate issue, a majority of the delegates to the reconvened state convention yesterday placed the national Democratic ticket on the ballot.

By this move the convention decided officially to return to the fold of the national Democratic party for the first time in 12 years.

The action came despite warnings that a "gag-rule" on voting in the election "will split the state Democratic party so badly that it will never heal."

The convention had hardly adjourned on what could be termed this note of unity, before a "South Carolinians for Independent Electors" movement had been brought hastily into being.

Many of the organization's members had just left the party convention where they and others were unsuccessful in attempts to give state Democrats the right to vote as they please without damaging their party standing.

While the state Democratic executive committee announced the selection of eight electors pledged to national Democratic candidates Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver.

Plan Delegation Of 20-25 Demos

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina is expected to have a delegation of 20 to 25 Democrats on hand for a conference in Knoxville, Tenn., Thursday with Democratic candidates Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver.

Ed Rankin, Gov. Hodges' private secretary, said most of the Tar Heel group will go from the Raleigh-Durham Airport in two private planes loaned for the occasion.

Gov. Hodges and State Democratic Chairman John D. Larkins Jr. will be among those flying. Rankin said.

Meanwhile, Larkins expressed the hope that a quorum will be on hand for a meeting here tomorrow of the State Democratic Executive Committee.

Since the committee has 224 members, at least 113 must attend or be represented by proxy to constitute a quorum. The committee is scheduled to name the Democratic nominees for chief justice of the State Supreme Court for associate justice and for attorney general in the November general election.

The committee is expected to nominate the men appointed by Hodges to fill the posts: Chief Justice J. Wallace Winborne, Associate Justice W. B. Rodman Jr., and Atty. Gen. George B. Patton.

ver, the newly-formed opposition group mapped plans for its drive for an independent slate of electors.

Its first job was to obtain the legally required 10,000 signatures. One member, former State Sen. R. M. Kennedy of Camden, predicted getting the signatures for the independent slate petition would be "easier than 1952."

He referred to the "Independents for Eisenhower" movement that picked up more than enough signatures and nearly carried the state for the President.

The independents, who named Farley Smith of Lynchburg, a son of the late U.S. Sen. Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith, as temporary chairman, asserted:

"This organization... was formed to give the voters of South Carolina an opportunity to protest against the national Democratic and Republican candidates and platforms, through the exercise of the rights guaranteed to South Carolina Democrats under South Carolina election laws and the rules of the South Carolina Democratic party."

The group said in its statement that it was opposed to both the Republican and Democratic platforms on sections "relating to states rights and constitutional government."

The statement added the independents are strongly against "any platform plank which would limit free debate in the U.S. Senate, any endorsement of the U.S. Supreme Court decisions relating to segregation of the races; and any attempt to extend the jurisdiction of the federal courts."

Among those attending the organizational meeting, which was closed to the press, were Micah Jenkins of Charleston, president of the pro-segregation South Carolina Assn. of Citizens Councils, and S. E. Rogers of Summerton, executive secretary of the organization.

President Ends Coast Holiday

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—President Eisenhower reported in good condition by his doctor, ends a West Coast vacation today and flies back to Washington to map second term campaign strategy and resume government business conferences.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower are scheduled to take off from the Monterey Naval Air Station about 9 a.m., PDT, on a nine-hour nonstop flight to the capital.

Relaying word from Eisenhower's physician, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, White House press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen the President's stay at the Cypress Point Club in this resort area has done him a great deal of good.

"The doctor says the President is feeling fine and is in good condition," Hagerty said.

Eisenhower arrived here last Thursday evening a few hours after accepting nomination for a second term at the closing session of the Republican National Convention in San Francisco. Since then there have been these developments regarding the President's health:

1. Hagerty has stated the doctors now feel Eisenhower's convalescence from major abdominal surgery which he underwent June 9—at an end.

2. His weight, which fell off to about 157 pounds while he was hospitalized in June, climbed back to the presurgery level for the first time last week. As of four days ago he tipped the scale, at 168½, a half pound more than he weighed when he entered the hospital.

3. He has resumed playing full rounds of golf, a favorite recreation which always is a good yardstick of how the President is feeling. He has played 18 holes at the tough Cypress Point course each day for the last four. The range was four to 16 holes on any one day before he came to picturesque Pebble Beach.

In advance of Eisenhower's departure, Hagerty said was steadfastly refusing to discuss politics and the coming campaign. And he insisted the President had put politics out of his mind during his vacation.

"There will be plenty of time for that after he gets back to Washington," Hagerty said.

Greenville Mart Has $49.79 Average Monday

Greenville's tobacco market posted a $49.79 per hundred pound average yesterday in selling 1,124,930 pounds of tobacco for $560,061.60.

Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee said the market continued to be flooded with poor and low grade primings and lugs with a sprinkling of tops.

Producers sales figures, which do not include resales of tobacco, showed that the local market sold 1,035,472 pounds of tobacco for $520,173.64. The producers average was $50.24.

Whedbee said light sales are expected tomorrow with a substantial increase in volume Thursday and Friday.

Stabilization's take from yesterday's sales was 15.09 per cent, Whedbee said.

Egypt Arrests Two Britons On Spying Charges

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt's sudden arrest of two Britons as spies threw new fuel today on the smoldering dispute with Great Britain—already threatening to burst into flame over the Suez Canal seizure.

Security police charged that the Britons and an Egyptian associate masterminded a spy network for British intelligence. The police said the ring leaders have incriminated four other Egyptians and that "others may be implicated."

The arrests added to tension stirred up by President Nasser's seizure of the Suez Canal Co. They seemed certain to increase sentiment in Britain for a tough policy toward Egypt—possibly including the use of military force.

Held at the heavily guarded Interior Ministry were James Swinburn, business manager of the British-owned Arab News Agency in Cairo; Charles Pittuck, an official of the Marconi Radio-Telegraph Co. of Egypt; and El Sayed Amin Mahmud, the Egyptian.

Swinburn, about 50, has lived in Egypt almost 25 years. The Arab News Agency distributes news through the Middle East from the British agency Reuters. Pittuck is a second generation resident of Egypt and speaks fluent Arabic.

The arrests followed by a day the expulsion from Egypt of two British reporters and an American woman correspondent for a London daily, for unannounced reasons.

Road Sentence For 110-MPH

RALEIGH (AP)—A Wilmington, Del. youth who led highway patrolmen on a 110-mile-per-hour chase Saturday night faces a 15-month road sentence for his efforts.

Earl E. Schoffer, 18, was convicted in Cary Recorder's Court yesterday of speeding 110 miles per hour, reckless driving and driving without an operator's license.

Thirteen Bills Offered To Virginia's Assembly

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Administration leaders introduced in the General Assembly today 13 bills aimed at retaining Virginia's traditional system of separate public schools for white and Negro students.

Key bill in the package was one that would cut off state support for integrated schools, a lever Gov. Thomas B. Stanley believes will bring voluntary segregation.

The governor outlined his no-money-for-integrated-schools program in a 30-minute address to the House and Senate yesterday, an hour after the Assembly convened for the special school session.

"There should be no reason to close any school in Virginia under this legislation," said Stanley, placing the blame for any school closing on those who would seek to enter a school operated for the other race.

Del. Howard H. Adams, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, and Sen. J. D. Harwood, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, offered identical bills in their respective houses on the money withholding and related grants-in-aid features of the program.

Sen. Garland Gray, chairman of the Gray Commission, and other commission members were the chief patrons of other bills, likewise identical measures, in the administration's package.

Two Richmond Assembly members, Sen. Eugene B. Sydnor Jr. and Del. Fitzgerald Bemiss, planned to introduce a bill allowing localities to decide whether they should close their schools to avoid integration. The measure also would provide for a local referendum in which voters would choose between integrated public schools or no public schools.

Stanley proposed that provision be made for state funds be withheld from an integrated school by amending the 1956 Appropriations Act.

This amendment would define an "efficient system of schools" as one in which white and Negro children are taught separately, spell out the state's policy for operating such schools and earmark state school funds beyond the constitutionally required minimum for segregated schools only.

Bomb's Explosion Ends Cyprus Truce

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—The end of an 11-day truce proclaimed by the Greek Cypriot underground was punctuated today by a bombing at the east coast town of Larnaca.

Authorities said the bomb damaged a house occupied by a Greek family but there were no casualties. The bombing was blamed on EOKA, the extremist underground that called the truce.

The British placed Dr. Themistocles Dervis, Greek mayor of Nicosia, under house arrest and searched his home and office. They said they were investigating the mayor "as a result of information received" but did not elaborate.

The mayor is an outspoken advocate of union with Greece. Authorities also announced six convicted EOKA members were taken from Nicosia's central prison and flown to Britain to serve out the rest of their sentences.

They said the six had terrorized both their wards and other prisoners. One convicted EOKA under life sentence escaped last night.

The authorities concentrated their search at Mayor Dervis' office in the Town Hall after a roomy-room inspection of his luxurious villa failed to turn up anything incriminating.

There was no indication whether the search was linked with the expiration of the EOKA truce. But it was believed it stemmed from information contained in captured EOKA documents made public by British authorities yesterday.

EOKA is the underground fighting wing of the movement to make Cyprus a political part of Greece. The British said the seized documents established that the EOKA leader, whom they have identified as former Greek army Col. George Grivas, was acting under the personal direction of exiled Archbishop Makarios.

Battle For Congressional Seats Should Be Hot

By JOHN CHADWICK
The Associated Press

Republicans are hoping that, with President Eisenhower once again at the head of their ticket, they will be able to recapture control of Congress in the November elections.

Eisenhower took time at the Republican convention in San Francisco last week to try to transfer some of his popularity to GOP candidates for the Senate and the House, receiving them in his hotel suite and posing with them for pictures.

And, at an extraordinary news conference he held during the convention, he said he believed the country is best served when both the White House and the Congress are controlled by the same political party.

"Then you can fix responsibility," he said.

In the 1952 elections the Republicans swept into power in the Senate and the House behind Eisenhower's smashing victory over Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee. But two years later, when Eisenhower was not on the ticket, the Democrats returned to control in Congress.

In the Senate the Democrats have only a squeaky margin over the Republicans. The lineup is Democrats, 49; Republicans, 47. In the House the Democrats outnumber the Republicans 231 to 201. There are three vacancies.

Control of the House usually rests in some 65 marginal seats that swing back and forth between Republicans and Democrats with the election tides.

But the situation in the Senate is different, because only one-third of its 96 members ordinarily come up for election every two years and many of these come from states that are safely Democratic or Republican.

In the Senate seats at stake in this year's election the Democrats have a built-in advantage in two respects.

First, of the 32 senators who come up for re-election, 17 are Republicans and 15 are Democrats. Thus the Democrats have less to lose.

Secondly, of the 15 Democratic seats at stake, seven are in the Democratic South, and a couple others are in border states where Republican chances usually are faint at best.

In contrast, only four of the 17 Republican seats at stake are in states where Democrats cannot entertain some hope of victory. This is not the whole story, however, because recent events have helped to perk up Republican prospects. For one thing, four more Senate seats—making a total of 33—will be up for election as a result of deaths and resignations.

The death of the late Sen. Barkley threw open two seats in Kentucky; instead of just one. The death of the late Sen. Kilgore has created a vacancy in West Virginia.

In addition, Sen. Thurmond of South Carolina resigned his seat and Sen. Daniel of Texas is expected to resign if he is elected governor of his state.

Thurmond, elected two years ago as a write-in candidate, resigned to run for his seat under regular procedure in line with a pledge he made to the voters. This offers no opening for Republicans because of South Carolina's traditionally Democratic allegiance.

While Texas too is generally a Democratic state, Daniels' resignation might create a situation under the state's election law that would enable a Republican candidate to come out on top of a field of Democratic candidates.

That could happen if a single Republican ran strongly while the Democratic vote was split among a number of candidates in a one-shot special election.

Other events that the Republicans hope to turn to their profit are the decision of Sen. Lehman (D-NY) not to seek re-election and the withdrawal of former Sen. Tydings (D-Md) from a comeback race.

Nine Pitt County 4-H youth will enter their Sear's Poultry Chain pullets in the annual 4-H Poultry Show and Sale on the Court House lawn tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Each of the boys will show 12 birds and they will be judged by N. C. State College Poultry Specialists C. J. Maupin and T. B. Morris.

The exhibited birds will be awarded blue, red or white ribbons and cash prizes will be presented to the owners.

The public will have a chance to purchase the pullets at the sale which will follow the poultry show. The Sear's Poultry Chain was begun in the county with 1,000 chicks given by the Sear's-Roebuck Co. Originally several 4-H boys were picked to receive 100 chicks each. They raised the chicks and when the first Show and Sale was held they placed 12 of the pullets on display. Following the show the 12 were sold and profits used to continue the chain. That is the plan followed each year thus making the chain self-perpetuating.

This year, as in years past, the 4-H youth will place their pullets each in the show and the amount they bring in the sale will revert to the poultry chain.

The boys keep the remaining pullets from the 100 they originally received.

In all there will be 103 pullets on display in tomorrow's sale. The county 4-H youth who are carefully selected each year. Whether they have adequate housing and other facilities to do a good job in growing the chicks is considered.

The chicks which will be offered for sale tomorrow are Parmenter Reds, a laying strain of the Rhode Island Reds. The chicks received by the boys are sexed.

Assistant County Agent Cecil Register urged interested individuals to attend the show and sale tomorrow.

"The Parmenter is a very good laying strain of the Rhode Island Red," Register declared. "This will be an excellent chance to pick up some birds that are already in production."

Register noted that the continuance of the Poultry Chain "depends on people coming to the sale." He noted that the sale means a particularly good chance for small farmers who want good laying hens to obtain them.

Municipalities Get Financial Boost

Another financial shot in the arm will be forthcoming for North Carolina's municipalities next month as they receive their respective portions of this year's Powell Bill funds.

During the past five years the incorporated cities and towns of the state have received more direct benefit from the Powell Bill than from any other one piece of legislation. It has provided a cushion to help hard-pressed municipalities fill a financial gap. Without it, many towns would have many more miles of unpaved streets and higher tax rates to provide for maintaining dirt streets.

Here at home, Pitt County's eight incorporated communities will be $112,188 richer when the Powell Bill checks for this year are mailed from Raleigh. Greenville, the largest of the municipalities of the county will receive $68,476 from the fund. As is the case in other municipalities, that will mean $68,476 less that local taxpayers will have to pay directly to the city for street work which will be provided. Without the Powell Bill funds, Greenville taxpayers would have to pay a considerably higher tax rate to provide for the same street program that is now carried on with the assistance of these state funds.

Since the close of World War II all levels of government have been hard-pressed for revenue to meet the rising cost of operations. No level, however, has been as hard-pressed as the municipal government which finds it more difficult to levy and collect new forms of taxes than other governmental units. To these municipalities of the state, the Powell Bill funds have come as a real boost.

Cities have profited two ways from these state-collected funds through the gasoline tax. Initially, the cities have been able to pave countless miles of streets and thus provide better communities. As a secondary and equally important matter, the streets which have been paved with Powell Bill funds have enabled communities to eliminate a major street maintenance cost they otherwise would face from year to year.

It costs a great deal more to maintain in any fashion a dirt street than it does a street which is properly paved with curb and gutter. Had the legislation not provided funds for this paving as well as maintenance, North Carolina's cities would have faced much more difficult financial problems than they have in the past five years.

The $112,000 coming to Pitt County's municipalities from the Powell Bill means more and better streets for the people living in the towns and the people of rural areas who visit the towns and use the streets.

No Question But That Through Route Needed

The fight of Southern Railroad to acquire the use of the Atlantic and East Carolina Railroad apparently isn't over and we're glad it isn't.

In spite of the fact that the Interstate Commerce Commission denied Southern's petition to take over the railroad which goes from Goldsboro to Morehead City and also the short Camp Lejeune railroad, it is still our opinion that Southern's operation of the two short lines would be in the best interest of the people of the state.

The Reflector is quite confident such a move would be in the best interest of the residents of areas served by the two short railroad lines.

North Carolina's east-west travel problem has long been a stumbling block for the economic growth of the state. With no through rail facilities linking the eastern part of the state with the western part, the problem has become more acute as North Carolina seeks to improve its economic position.

Should Southern be allowed to take over the A. and E. C., the state would be assured of linking one of its deepwater ports with major market centers not only in the western part of the state but beyond the boundaries of the state with service by one railroad. It would stimulate the moving of cargo through the port of Morehead City, and make it a port of entry not only for other parts of North Carolina, but states farther west as well. At the same time it would open a new route for the flow of manufactured goods to be routed via rail to the port and then by ship to destinations along the east and west coasts of the country as well as abroad.

In short, an uninterrupted rail route from North Carolina's mountains to the sea would be opened. And with it would come many benefits to the people of the state.

The I. C. C. has turned thumbs down on the petition. The ruling at least delays the dream of many years in North Carolina of having an adequate east-west transportation route by rail. But Southern has said it will continue its fight for use of the two small eastern links of track. The Reflector for one, looks forward to the day when Southern's efforts will be culminated in success. It will be a great day for North Carolina.

A Major Step Toward Handling Air Traffic

A major step toward bringing the handling of aviation traffic up to date will be made with the $250 million aviation safety and airport modernization program launched by the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

Secretary of Commerce Weeks has termed the major program "the greatest federal aviation program in history." From the comments which were forthcoming after the recent major air disaster suffered by the nation, it is quite obvious that the country needs the greatest aviation safety program it has ever undertaken.

Following the tragedies of the Grand Canyon and other air disasters, aviation experts were quick to point out that the system of air traffic controls under which the nation is operating are antiquated. In a large measure they are the same controls which were adopted years ago when only a fraction of the present number of airplanes were in commercial and private use.

Through the installation of up-to-date traffic control and air navigation instruments at some 200 sites across the nation, air travel will be made safer. Whether they will be adequate to meet the needs of the modern air age, only the experts can say.

Certainly the nation must keep its air traffic controls adequate to meet modern demands of a growing aviation industry. And it should not take other tragedies such as those of the last few months to prod officials into action.

Chiefly Concerned Over Getting Voters

By LYNN NISBET

SLOW VOTE — The Governor's Committee for the Public School Amendment, which is directing the campaign for ratification of the amendment authorizing the Pearsall Plan to be put into effect, is chiefly concerned with getting out the vote. The committee is sending out from its Sir Walter Hotel headquarters a lot of literature and personal letters seeking favorable votes. Governor Hodges told his news conference this week, and activities around the headquarters bear out the idea, that the main appeal is to get voters to the polls. There is assumption that majority of them will vote "right" if they can be induced to vote at all.

The Governor was quoted some time ago as saying he hoped that a million votes would be cast. He indicated to reporters that he has lowered his expectation—but not his aim. Most of the proponents of the amendment will be satisfied with half a million, and many estimates are considerably under that figure.

This is a general election which registered Democrats, Republicans and independents may participate on equal footing. Exact count has never been made, but intelligent estimates are that almost two million voters are registered in the state's more than 2100 precincts. The highest vote ever cast in an election involving State issues was 1,179,635 for Governor in 1952. The presidential total that year was 1,210,909. The heavy vote was brought out by the national campaign between Eisenhower and Stevenson, the hottest presidential race in North Carolina since the Al Smith debacle of 1928.

Analysis of votes cast in other elections when constitutional amendments were at issue does not justify hope for a heavy turnout on September 8.

RECORD — During the past 20 years less than two-thirds as many people voted on amendments than voted for candidates for Governor or United States Senator in the same election. The 1936 general election vote set a new high to that time—which was not exceeded until 1952—with a total vote for Democrat and Republican candidates for Governor of 812,982. The highest vote on any of three amendments that year was 420,826—a little less than 52 per cent of the gubernatorial total.

There were no amendments submitted for the 1940 election. In 1944 the candidates for Governor received a total of 759,993 while the highest vote on any of three amendments was 341,004, about 45 per cent.

In 1948 the gubernatorial candidates got a total of 780,525 votes, while the highest cast on any of four amendments was 484,381, or 62 per cent.

Tariffs were in voting humor in 1952 and gave the candidates for Governor a total of 1,179,635.

and the highest on any of three amendments was 805,502, a whopping 69 per cent. That was the latest election for President and Governor. Two years ago, however, the people cast a total of 619,634 votes for candidates for the United States Senate in the general election and a maximum of 348,024, or 56 per cent, for the highest on any of three amendments.

PROMOTION — Except for rather indifferent lip service none of the amendments involved in any of the elections listed were given support of any organization. The showing made by the amendment to extend terms of sheriffs from two years to four was much better. In 1938 John D. Larkins Jr. spearheaded an organization and real campaign for that proposal. Result was 403,662 votes, mostly favorable, which was 81.5 per cent of the total cast for United States Senator that year. It must be remembered also that all of the votes listed here were at regular November elections when State and local candidates were on the ballots.

SPECIAL — While the election ordered for September 8 has been designated as a "general election," in the sense that only amendments to the constitution are involved. In that respect, as well as in the organizational effort in behalf of one of the four amendments to be voted upon, the situation is more nearly analogous to the road-school bond issue special election of June 4, 1949.

Strenuous effort of a well-organized and over-financed campaign brought out a total vote of 404,140 on the road bond issue—and 8,000 of them did not bother to vote on the school building bonds involved in the same election. That 404,000 votes contrasted with 780,000 for Governor the year before and 1,180,000 for Governor in the following election.

There are more eligible voters now than in 1949 and there is stronger emotional appeal in the school segregation problem than in 1949 and there is stronger emotional appeal in the school segregation problem than could be aroused by an anti-mud campaign.

DIFFERENCE — Another important difference is that the road bonds seven years ago were actively opposed by powerful influences, which served to stimulate interest in the campaign. The present school amendment has only nominal opposition, which puts its advocates somewhat in position of fighting windmills. The road bonds were Governor Kerr Scott's baby, and a lot of powerful North Carolinians didn't like Scott. This school program is Governor Luther Hodges' baby, and almost everybody likes Hodges. So nearly everybody, there is no reason for local rivalry among political

Other Editors Are Saying... That Airport Is Needed

(Wilson Times)

Wilson must get behind the Mid-Eastern Airport authority, and help push this venture to a successful conclusion. The cooperative effort is trying to supply air service for Eastern Carolina and the airport will be conveniently located to the participating cities.

Wilson had hoped something could be worked out whereby the local airport could be used. But this move appears out of the question. So there is no use in sitting back and doing nothing, just because Wilson has an adequate, but unused airport.

We must get to work and put this airport for Eastern Carolina over. We must give it the push it is waiting for and the money it will need. We must begin to work with the CAB to show them the advantages real air service will bring to the participating companies. And we must get firm commitments from the airlines as to service.

We do not want a milk bus, or one schedule service. We must have a real schedule that will work to the advantage of those who travel by air. This will increase air travel. For there is little air service in this area now.

This is a growing area. Wilson is one of the verge of a new day. With the large and modern Swift and company plant that will be in operation within two years, will come other industries. Already big plans are in the making, and several other allied industries will be announced later.

And these plants will need air service for their executives. Today there are many in Wilson and our neighboring cities that need this service. So the thing for Wilson to do is to get behind the Eastern Airport authority. We should not drag our feet any longer, we should say we are ready, and go to work.

SIX OF THE BEST! (Industrial News Review)

Sydney, Australia, like many an American community, has been plagued with juvenile crime. Duck-tailed teen-agers, called bodgie-boys Down Under, have wantonly destroyed automobiles, engaged in gang wars, and beaten innocent bystanders.

Sydney's answer takes the form of a two-pronged ordinance. First, the parents must pay for the damage done by their delinquent offspring. Second, as Robert Ruark vividly phrases it, "A father must, in the presence of a police officer, apply six of the best to sonny boy's, sternly with a police whip, and to the satisfaction of the attending officer."

Sydney has set a precedent that every city and town could profitably follow.

Back From 'Vacation'

By JIMMY ELLIS

Eyebrows Are Being Raised

A fellow we know is collecting quite a reputation for absent-mindedness among his co-workers.

Of course, absent-mindedness isn't unusual. College professors are supposed to get a generous dose of it somewhere along the line, according to traditional stories. Fence post salesmen have been accused of it and other lesser lights in the business world have been afflicted from time to time.

This guy we know, however, had it come upon him out of a clear sky and when he was hit, he was hit hard.

The first notice of it came on a recent trip out of town when he carried a camera and some small flash bulbs on a routine job. He made his trip, set up his picture and then realized that he had neglected to bring an adapter that would permit use of small bulbs in the flash attachment to his camera. He had made many such trips before and knew the adapter was necessary.

That was just one incident, though, and one mistake can be overlooked. Subsequent incidents, however, caused his co-workers to raise their eyebrows and steer clear of him on the streets.

A day or so after the camera incident, he departed his office announcing on the way out that he was going to the bank to cash a check. He got all the way to the bank before remembering that the check had been left in a desk drawer.

Soon after that, two or three days, he started to the post office to pick up the afternoon mail. . . . a job that he does with some degree of regularity. He got to the post office lobby before it dawned on him that keys are helpful in opening the mail drawers.

Confronted with the evidence of his previous misdeeds, and accused of losing his faculties, the fellow in question tried at first to evade the issue. He finally broke down, mumbled something about "pressures" and huffed out of the office, claiming that he would never again forget anything so routine.

He headed for the parking lot and his co-workers turned back to their work after seeing him get into his car.

They were interrupted a few minutes when our boy came back to pick up his car keys.

Facts The Mail Brought In

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Odd facts a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

That many highway accidents are probably caused by people who are slowly going blind and don't know it. The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness estimates that fewer than half of the one million Americans suffering from glaucoma, a vision-destroying ailment, realize they have it.

On a busy highway recently a northbound car swerved into an overtaking vehicle. The latter crossed into a southbound lane and rammed another car. Still another left the road to avoid collision. In all, twelve people went to the hospital.

The possible consequences of negligence are frightening—and not only on the highway. Almost everything we do may eventually affect others, perhaps many others.

Take, for example, the unfaithful husband. When the truth comes out, the trouble does not stop with him. His wife will be involved. The other woman, his children. If his partner in sin

After-Thoughts On Choice Of Kefauver

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON Post-convention conferences generate the suspicion among many important Democrats that they may have made a major blunder when they nominated Senator Estes Kefauver over Senator John F. Kennedy in a year when the Vice Presidential nominees of both parties will occupy an unusually glaring spotlight.

In nominating the lanky, drawing and pedestrian Tennesseean, the Democrats deliberately directed their appeal to the farm states, which had evidenced no kinship with Adlai E. Stevenson in the 1952 contest or in the 1956 primaries. It was the agricultural delegations which started the convention bandwagon rolling for Kefauver after the Bostonian seemed to hold the nomination in his hands.

As pointed out here recently, the Democrats figure that they can win with a combination of Southern and Border states, the corn-wheat-cattle belt and one or two great states of composite industrial and agricultural character—Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana. They patterned their strategy after that which rejected Harry S. Truman in 1948.

IMPROVED FARM CONDITIONS Ironically, farm conditions began to show improvement almost on the eve of the Democratic convention. Prices for basic crops were moving up, and they may continue their climb right to Election Day, with several assists from Secretary Ezra Taft Benson. Thus, Kefauver's expected strength in this area may diminish to the vanishing point in terms of votes.

On the other hand, the tall Tennesseean is not a popular figure in the great cities. The politicians, including the doorbell-ringing, precinct workers, recall his exhortation of their leaders and organizations during his televised crime-and-politics expose.

Nor do his appearance and delivery, so unlike any political personality they have experienced, excite the clubhouse crowd or metropolitan audiences.

STEVENSON WEAK IN BIG INDUSTRIAL CENTERS Kefauver's ultraliberal attitude on labor, civil rights and racial minorities' grievances is considered a liability in the big industrial centers. It is possible that Kefauver's presence on the ticket may lose several Southern states, which gave Kennedy such strong and surprising convention support, in view of the Al Smith episode of unhappy memory.

That Saturday is a more dangerous day than Sunday for motorists. Last year Saturday accidents took 8,320 lives, Sunday, 7,410.

That the first self-service "honor system" restaurant, the Exchange Buffet, the cashier took the customer's word for what he ate, opened here Sept. 4, 1885. No night club or bar has ever tried the system, so far as we know.

That Melville Bell, father of Alexander Graham Bell (the inventor Don Ameche, remember?), devised a "visible speech" system that is still used to teach pronunciation.

That the average American farmer, who in 1900 raised enough food to supply six other persons, now—according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture—raises enough to feed 18 persons besides himself.

Installment Rates Will Change

By ELMER ROESSNER

If you are a consumer—aren't we all?—when you make your next installment purchase you may find things a bit different. The amount of the down payment may be a bit more than you expected. The credit executive may not smile and say, "Eighteen or twenty-four payments?" He's much more likely to say, "Now you'd like to clear this up in twelve payments, wouldn't you?" And if you've been lax in making payments on the last purchase, you'll find the credit executive still genial but he'll be suggesting a bit more down and, say, 10 payments.

And if you haven't paid your July charge account bill, you're likely to get a phone call some day next week. A sweet voice will ask you if you have overlooked the matter.

And if you want to finance an auto, you may find the interest rate two or three points higher than your last auto loan.

Congress has taken power to regulate credit away from the Federal Reserve Board. But the FRB discount rate, plus the rise in bank rates, is doing the job.

ALL RATES RELATED

Banks get much of their lend-money from the Federal Reserve System. The banks have been paying from 2 1/4 to 3 per cent on this money, depending on the district in which they are located. The banks have been lending this money to borrowers with highest ratings at 3 3/4 per cent. Last week, anticipating that the FRB would raise its discount rate (the rate at which it lends to banks), banks boosted their basic rate to 4 per cent, the highest rate in 23 years. When the base rate rises, all other rates go up. For example, when the rate to the imprudent corporations went to 4 per cent the rate to stockbrokers went to 4 1/2 per cent. Brokers raised their rate to customers to 5 per cent.

NO HAPPY ALTERNATIVES

A typical store has been financing credit sales at 7 per cent and takes losses on defaults in addition. Many stores pay more; only a few pay less. Then it makes an installment sale, the store gets the balance from the financial institution and uses it to pay suppliers and other obligations. As customers pay, their payments are credited to the finance company.

Now the store's rate has been raised to 8 per cent. That's equal to about half its net profit on installment sales. So it must accept a cut in profits, increase prices, increase its charges for credit or reduce credit costs. Because all the other alternatives threaten profits, the first effort is to cut credit costs.

Whenever it persuades a customer to pay $200 down instead of $100, it saves $5. While it persuades a customer to pay off a $200 balance in 12 instead of 18 months, it saves $4.

Judging from Federal Reserve data, about $3 billion in charge accounts is outstanding today in the United States. If lenders have increased their rate to stores by 1 per cent, this debt is costing stores about $3,000,000 more a year.

If stores are paying an average of 6 per cent for financing, this load of charge accounts is costing them $17,000,000 a month, plus bookkeeping and other costs. If stores can cut the time of each account in half—getting payment in 30 days instead of 60, 15 instead of 30—then retailers can increase their profits before taxes by $5,000,000 a month or more than $100,000,000 a year.

That's why you'll be asked, sweetly, to pay your bills promptly.

CLUES AND CUES TO BUSINESS TRENDS

Women's shoes that look like spat shoes of an earlier generation are on their way to popularity, National Shoe Fair officials report.

This year's 201,000 June marriages and 330,000 June births were 10.4 and 4.4 per cent above year-ago figures. Twenty-six food chains make 60 per cent of all supermarket sales. Fairchild Publication's new Supermarket News Food Industries Manual reports. The Dominican Republic has announced a $47,700,000 project to bring electric power to every city and town in the nation.

Fire And Burns In Wreck Of Truck Forgotten; Tom Will Drive Again

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Staff Writer

Tom Denton is going back to work this week. He's a truck driver, pushing big tractor-trailer combinations between the Pittsburgh steel mills and the Detroit automobile factories. He's been working for the same company since 1950, except for the last three months.

Those last three months are what's making Tom Denton's return to work something special. He has had real reason to wonder if he'd ever drive a truck again. At 2:30 a.m. on May 22, his 35th birthday, Tom was pushing a load of pig iron out of McKeesport, Pa., headed for Detroit. He had gassed up in McKeesport, eased his 35,000 pounds of rig and load up a steep hill on U.S. Highway 30, made sharp right turn around a mountainside and started down another long slope.

Trouble Signal
He had just gotten started down the three-quarters of a mile slope when an approaching truck started signaling him with lights. To Tom, and every other trucker, those blinking lights meant that either he was in trouble or that there was trouble on the highway ahead. The Greenville man, already aware that his trailer brakes had been dragging slightly, started checking. He looked in his rear view mirror and saw fire.

Denton thought, at first, that a brake drum had caught fire. He started easing his truck into lower gears and stepped out on his running board to give a visual check to his trouble. He found out that his rig was burning, with the fire concentrated between the front of the trailer and his cab.

To add to the troubles, a gas line between his saddle tanks, behind the cab, and the truck engine broke and started pumping gasoline into the cab. That blazed up and it was only a few seconds before the cab was a mass of flames.

He Had A Choice

When the fire broke out in the cab, Denton had a choice of jumping from the truck or staying with it until he could jack-knife it at the bottom of the hill. If he stayed with the truck, he stood a good chance of being badly burned. If he jumped, the huge, heavily-laden truck stood a good chance of crashing into the homes of steel workers who lived along the highway. Either way, the truck was in immediate danger of exploding.

Tom decided to stay with the truck in an attempt to keep it away from the homes along the highway. He stepped out onto the running board, keeping his right leg inside to work the clutch when he shifted to lower gears to slow the truck down.

Jack-Knifed
When the fire reached the bottom of the slope, Denton jack-knifed it into a ravine and jumped. Fortunately, he hit on the slope of the ravine and rolled out of the way of the truck which rolled on its side and exploded. Denton was burning, too, but the state trooper who had passed him on the way down was on him in a few seconds with a fire extinguisher. An ambulance called by the trooper, rolled up and took him to a hospital in McKeesport where it was discovered that the flesh on Denton's right leg had been burned almost completely off from the knee to the ankle.

Medical authorities in McKeesport advised Denton to stay there for treatment of the injury but he finally got their okay to return to Greenville for treatment. He rode a bus to Raleigh where the pain got the best of him and he checked into a hospital there for treatment before coming to Greenville and his parents' home at 807 Forbes Street.

Hospitalized
Doctors here treated the injury but decided that skin grafts would be necessary for complete healing. Tom and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Denton, Sr., completed arrangements for entrance into McGuire Veterans' Hospital in Richmond. He was admitted June 22.

Between that date and August 22, when he returned to Greenville, Tom had two skin grafts. The Richmond doctors took the skin from a section four inches by four inches on his right thigh and transplanted it on his shin. They had to cut well into his flesh to get enough skin to make a successful graft.

The wound is still not completely healed. Tom, however, says he can walk comfortably and use the leg without any trouble if he's careful about his movements.

Being careful in his movements includes elimination of certain circumstances that Denton and other members of the trucking firm believe started the fire. He had gassed up in McKeesport shortly before the accident and gas is believed to have pooled around the recessed tank opening. When he made the sharp right turn around the mountain, the hot line serving his trailer lights is believed to have snapped and... spark from it set off the gasoline pooled on top of the tank.

No Qualms
Tom has "no qualms" about returning to driving although the May 22 was incident was the second serious accident in which he has been involved. Four years ago, in May 1952, a service man just returned from overseas went to sleep at the wheel of his truck and crashed into Denton's truck on a West Virginia highway. The serviceman was killed instantly.

A veteran of World War II combat action in the Army Air Corps, Denton looks at his future driving this way: "I know what I'm going to do, but there's always the worry about the other fellow. We truckers are forced to rest when we're tired because you can't fight a big truck when you're weary. We have to use our rear view mirrors and we try to stay off the highways during the peak periods of automobile traffic."

One thing that Denton has apparently overcome is the mental depression that overcame him after the accident. "I was helpless," he remembers with a grim half-smile. "I've been in combat and I've had my share of close moments on the highway. When I was a volunteer member of the Greenville Fire Department I helped in my share of fires. But I never knew that fire could render a man as helpless as it did me."

Called A Hero
Tom Denton was called a hero when he chose to stick with his flaming truck down the mountainside instead of abandoning it in the area of the homes lining the highway. He shrugs that off, preferring to believe that he was being watched over by a gracious

FWB Mission Plans A Church

The Free Will Baptist Mission operating in East Greenville will meet Thursday night at 7:30 in the home of Wilton Evans on the corner of Franklin Street and Jefferson Drive in Colonial Heights.

According to the Rev. Frank Davenport, Missionary for the Central Conference of the Free Will Baptist Church, the mission will continue to meet weekly in private homes until suitable quarters in East Greenville can be obtained. Members of the mission plan to organize and build a new FWB church as soon as enough members are obtained.

The Rev. Henry Melvin, pastor of Reedy Branch FWB Church, will be guest speaker at Thursday's meeting. His appearance is part of the mission plan to have area Free Will Baptist ministers conduct the meetings until a permanent pastor is assigned.

The mission supplements the work of two other Free Will Baptist churches in Greenville. In addition to the East Greenville mission, Reverend Davenport said the Central Conference had organized two new churches and a mission in Scotland Neck during 1956.

Millionairess Gloria Is Wed

NEW YORK (AP) — Millionairess Gloria Vanderbilt, onetime "poor little rich girl" of Park Avenue, was married yesterday to a television director who grew up on the lower East Side.

Miss Vanderbilt and Sidney Lumet, 32, were married in a surprise ceremony. It was her third marriage, his second.

She was previously married to Hollywood agent Pat DiCicco and white-haired orchestra conductor Leopold Stokowski. Lumet's first wife was movie actress Rita Gam. The newlyweds postponed their honeymoon. Miss Vanderbilt, now an actress, is appearing nightly in a play at a Milburn, N.J., summer theater.

The marriage was performed in the West 72nd St. apartment of playwright Sidney Kingsley. Lumet directed Miss Vanderbilt when she played last year in a summer stock production of "Picnic."

Charges of restraint of trade were presented by the FTC against the board of trade and 16 of its officers and individual members at hearings in April and June. The Asheville group began presenting its case yesterday.

Hearing the rebuttal are Abner E. Lipscomb of Washington and R. D. Young Jr.

Under the "Asheville system," warehousemen are allotted selling time on the basis of warehouse square footage, total sales in the previous year and the number of warehouses operating.

The government claimed the board of trade, under the system, has created a monopoly among established warehouses and has prevented new warehouses from either opening or functioning economically once in operation.

PTC Council Rufus Williams said the government doesn't care what operating system is used, but is interested only in seeing that the tobacco seller has a chance to sell his tobacco when and where it suits him.

WRITE-IN FOR JOE
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Joe Smith, who was suggested as a Republican vice presidential nominee at the national convention last week, got one write-in vote for governor, three for lieutenant governor and one for state representative in Texas' Democratic runoff primary election Saturday.

Quiz-Master Is Being Replaced

NEW YORK (AP) — Sonny Fox, the master of ceremonies who kicked up a fuss last June when he inadvertently gave away half an answer on CBS-TV's "The $64,000 Challenge," has been dropped from the quiz show.

CBS announced yesterday that Ralph Story, a Los Angeles radio disc jockey, has been signed to replace Fox starting with next Sunday night's program.

The network gave no reason for dismissing Fox.

RALEIGH (AP) — Bids were opened by the Highway Commission today for 16 projects involving 69½ miles of road improvements. The Highway Commission will meet Thursday to review low bids. Among the projects is one calling for a new 673-foot bridge between Morehead City and Beaufort carrying U.S. 70 over Gallants Channel.

Price Danial Forced Carry Texas Battle Still Further

DALLAS (AP) — U. S. Sen. Price Daniel, who likes quiet and peace and can't seem to find them, was in one of the biggest brawls in Texas political history today.

This calm, natural man held a razor-thin lead over Austin attorney Ralph Yarborough for the Democratic nomination as Texas governor — equal to election in Texas.

Prospects were that he would be fighting for his political life in many of Texas 254 counties where contests or challenges of a handful of ballots in each might melt his lead away.

Yarborough workers have indicated they plan to challenge all questionable ballots. A change of one per cent of the 1,400,000 ballots in the Austin attorney's favor would defeat Daniel easily.

Daniel's calmness under fire is almost legendary. He likes nothing better than to hide away on his 3,000-acre ranch near Liberty, Tex., and hunt and fish. And a Sunday afternoon drive with the family is a favorite recreation.

This isn't exactly the picture firmly fixed in the minds of dope pushers, gamblers, people who waste natural gas, or advocates of strong federal government who want to relieve Texas of its oil-rich tidelands.

He's fought them all, and won, and found his greatest weapon is persistence and presenting a mass of facts.

For instance, he once spent $100,000 of Texas' money sending men to Chile and Spain to search ancient records to back up Texas' claims to the tidelands.

Daniel, who is 46, once said he'd rather be governor of Texas than President. He will resign his Senate seat if he wins the Democratic nomination and the general election Nov. 6. At any rate, he has said, he does not plan to be a candidate to succeed himself in the Senate.

He was elected three times to the Texas legislature—1938 through 1942. Time apparently has modified his outlook and today he generally is considered the candidate of the conservatives.

He was in the Army and returned for a whirlwind, 60-day campaign for Texas attorney general and won.

This straight-laced Baptist then stopped the bookies, except for fly-by-night operations, by cutting off their telephone and telegraph source of news. He made oil men stop wasting natural gas. He was tremendously successful in anti-trust suit prosecution.

His election to the Senate came in 1952. Political stories circulate that the veteran and venerated Tom Connally, then in his 70s, made a flying trip to Texas from Washington to see what sort of upstart opposition he had, talking to the men who know about such things, and decided right there to retire from politics.

This year should be the big one for East Carolina's football team.

True, this season's schedule will be the toughest one in the history of the school. They will face two Southern Conference teams, two out-of-state outfits, and five North State eleveners. Despite the extra pressure, signs indicate that the 1956 Buccaneers will be more than able to take care of themselves.

19 Lettermen Returning

Coach Jack Boone looks forward to the return of 19 veterans, including Little All-America quarterback Dick Cherry and his prime targets Bill Helms and Ray Pennington. Cherry has been an All-Conference selection each of the three years he has played football at ECC.

Boone has indicated that he has plenty of experienced backs to choose from. His choices thus far are fleet-footed "Injun" Jim Henderson and Greenville's Bobby Perry at half backs. Others who will be on hand for action will be Charlie Bishop, Bobby Patterson, Gary Mattocks, Tommy Scribner, Bobby Gay and James Speight.

This gives Boone a speedy, powerful scoring threat: A triple-threat quarterback, two fleet and tricky halfbacks, and twin veteran ends.

What would seem to be a dismal note in the lineup—with the graduation of All-America Lou Hollow—the Pirate center slot also has a bright side. Returning from the service to bolster the line will be Big Jim Faircloth, a 6-2, 225 All-Conference boy from Erwin. Faircloth earned All-North-State honors in 1953 at a guard position, but is expected to fill Hollow's shoes this season. He will be backed up by Tom Mixon and Lynn Barnett, both 205 pounders.

Freshmen Offer Speed, Power

The brightest note of the whole affair seems to come with the announcement of a host of fast, tough and heavy freshmen. Coach Boone has come up with 16 new boys that promise to make trouble for all Pirate opponents.

Not the least of these newcomers is gigantic Larry Howell, a 6-5, 268 pound tackle from Monroe, who has already been hailed as one of the most promising youngsters in the nation by several big coaches.

Along with Howell, Boone is expecting another big boy, Ruell Edwards, from Georgia. Edwards stands 6-5, weighs well over 200 and was one of the top prep school stars in Georgia last year at end.

From New Jersey, Boone will have Thomas McAuliffe, a 5-11, 205 pound guard. Boone calls him "one of the most explosive linemen I've ever seen anywhere."

"Biggest I've Ever Had"

Still listing his freshmen, Boone said in a recent interview, "this will undoubtedly be the biggest team I've ever had." He then continued to shovel off more names and statistics:

There's Bucky Dennis, a 6-3, 230 transfer guard from Wake Forest.

Also, there will be Jerry Helms, a 6-3½, 235 pound freshman tackle from Monroe.

Then, there's Charles Dyson, a 6-3, 225 pound freshman from Rockingham.

Clifton Jolish, a 6-3, 225 pound guard will be coming in from Elizabeth City.

From Baltimore, Boone will have John Ruck, a 6-3, 225 pound guard.

And rounding out the freshman line prospects will be husky Rocco Simeon, a 6, 235 pound guard from New Jersey.

Freshman Backs, Too

This only takes care of the freshman line. Boone is also expecting some backs. Leading the parade will be a fancy-stepping halfback from New York, Mickey Blair.

Then, there will be New Bern's Lee Atkinson and Edenton's Stuart Holland at halfbacks.

Another Baltimore import will be quarterback Paul Diforte. Goldsboro's Jack Fail and George Turner of Norfolk, Va., will be two more freshman quarterbacks.

It isn't so hard to figure the reason for Pirate enthusiasm now, even despite the rugged 1956 schedule.

Brooklyn Tops Braves Behind Bessent

Local Cop Named To Tar Heel Coaching Position

Hubert (Jim) McGee Jr., member of the Greenville police force and student at East Carolina since 1953, has been named by North Carolina Coach Jim Tatum as one of the freshman assistant coaches at the Chapel Hill university.

McGee, originally from Elizabeth City, has played "high school ball and a little service ball" and has had some experience in coaching while on the west coast before coming to Greenville.

Jim played a blocking back position for his high school squad in Elizabeth City, but gave up the gridiron sport in favor of his studies when he entered N. C. State College in 1949. He then went to California in the following year and enrolled in a junior college there, completing his sophomore work.

"After that," McGee told Reflector reporters yesterday morning, "I went into the service. I played only a little ball, mostly battalion ball on a small scale."

Coached Youngsters Following his time with Uncle Sam, Jim stayed for a while in San Francisco and coached an outfit of gridders in the famous "Pop Warner League," which is composed of boys up to 15 years of age.

He then came to Greenville and enrolled in East Carolina College to finish his school work. He began as an engineering major at State and switched over to mathematics during his stay in California. "By that time, I had a family to support and there was no time for football for me," McGee said. "I joined the police force so that I could work myself through school."

Letter From Tatum

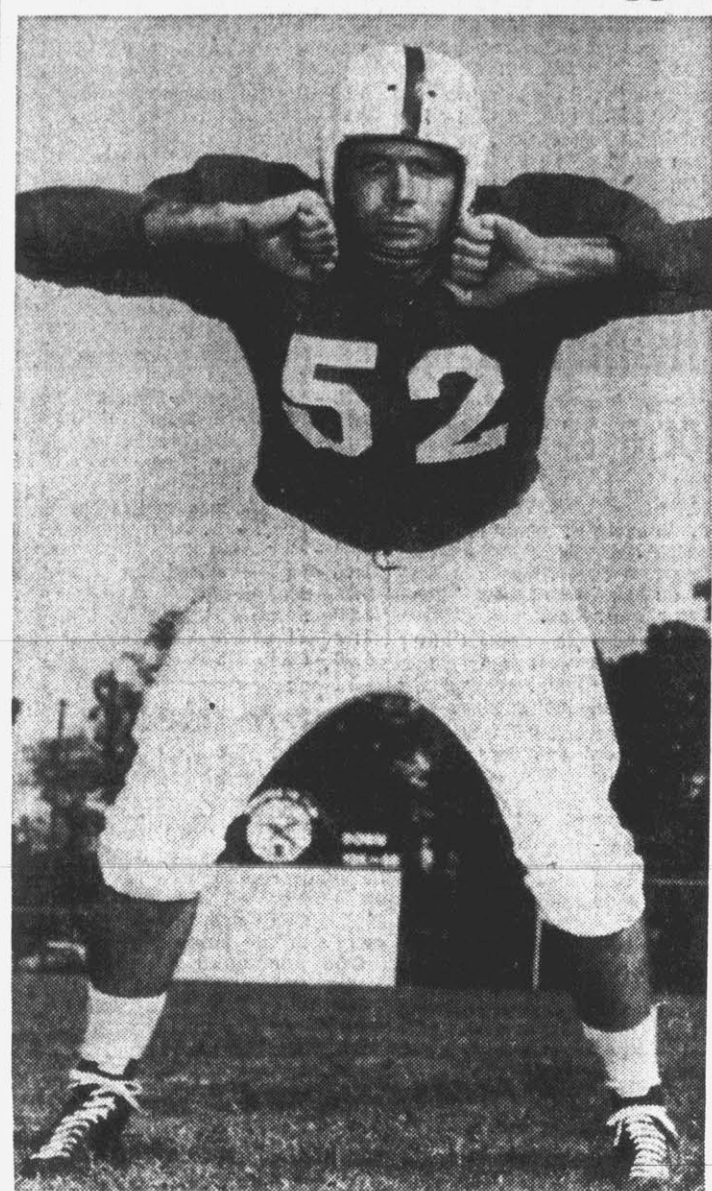

Commenting on how he landed the assistant coach job at Carolina, McGee said simply, "I didn't really know anything about it. I didn't make an application. Tatum sent me a letter offering me the job and I jumped at it."

The short, husky ex-policeman explained that "Some of the Carolina alumni here in town must have mentioned my name to Tatum during the visit he made here to talk to the alumni club. I received the letter two days after his visit."

McGee will be a distinguished company at Chapel Hill. He will be working under Head Freshman Coach Fred Tullai and the other assistants will be Bob (Goo-Goo) Gantt, Ham Wade, John Murphy. Jim plans to do his graduate work while coaching and then hopes to become a teacher-coach.

Almost—but Not Quite—The Biggest

NO LONGER TOPS—Jerry Brooks, 6-3, 230 pound junior tackle for East Carolina was listed as the biggest man on the Pirate roster last season—but this year, Jerry will be about the fifth biggest. With the coming of two 6-5 freshmen (one weighing 268 pounds) and several shorter ones weighing in at the 235, 240 marks, Brooks will have to settle for just being known as the roughest.

Industrial City Tourney Starts Action Tonight

Southern Bread and Graniter softball teams square off tonight at 7:30 for the first game of the Industrial Softball League city tourney at Guy Smith Stadium. Carolina Dairy and Service Battery will battle immediately following at 9:00.

The tourney will be the last softball action in Greenville for 1956, and will decide the city champions. Carolina Dairy, which copped the loop title recently, will be favored to take the city crown also.

Winners of tonight's games will meet tomorrow night in the first contest for the championship and tonight's losers will play the second game.

Big guns in the opening game are expected to be Southern Bread's Charlie Yates, Earl Tripp, Tommy Davis and Neil King, and Graniter's Bobby Nunn, Bobby Conway, Dan Gordan and Bill Hendrix. Two of Southern Bread's most outstanding players throughout the year, Harold Ingram and Harold O'Kelly, will not be in Greenville for the games.

In the second contest, the Dairy will offer Bill MaHallick, Johnny Foell, Brownie Tripp and Mitchell White as some of their standouts. Service Battery will depend heavily on Bob Dash, Bill Elks and Will Wilson.

'World Series' Ended Yesterday

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The so-called "Little World Series," as folks here were calling the two-game series between Milwaukee and Brooklyn, is ended today but the pennant race remains unchanged. The Dodgers, who stormed into this town Sunday bent on sweeping both games and wrest the lead from Milwaukee, had to settle for one victory, a 6-3 triumph yesterday — and remained two games behind the pace-setting Braves, one in the important "lost" column.

There was obvious relief in the Dodger clubhouse after the hard-earned triumph, which was accomplished by Roy Campanella's three-run single in the eighth inning after the Brooks had to overcome an early three-run deficit. "We would have been in bad shape," admitted Jackie Robinson, who scored two of Brooklyn's runs, "if we had lost today. This was a big ball game."

Pee Wee Reese, the calm captain of the Dodgers, acknowledged the game was the most important one Brooklyn has won all year. "Had we lost we would have been four games out," he said. "That's a lot of ground to make up at this stage of the race."

Campanella Bangs In Winning Runs

By ED WILKS
Roy Campanella, Brooklyn's big catcher who wins the most valuable-player award every other season and then slumps in between, is following the same old script again. But with one ad lib from his bat, the Dodgers are surer than ever they'll retain the national league pennant.

Campy, at 35, the highest paid Dodger ever, won the NL's MVP award in 1951, '52 and '53. But he was a "bust" in '50, '52 and '54. And at the moment, true to the "even-year-jinx," he's wobbling along with a .220 bat average with a scrawny 57 runs batted in.

Things have been so bad for the big guy this season, Milwaukee decided to walk Jackie Robinson — loading the bases with two out — to get to Campy with the score tied 3-3 in the eighth inning yesterday. The Braves were speculating in percentages. Campy hadn't hit in his last 11 at bats.

He now has one hit in his last 12 at bats — a lined single that scored three runs and lifted the Brooks into a 6-3 victory and whittled the Braves' first-place edge to two games only more.

It was the only game scheduled in the NL, leaving the Brooks two full games ahead of third place Cincinnati.

In the only American League game scheduled, Cleveland bopped Washington 5-2 as Bob Lemon hung up his 19th lifetime victory.

Campanella's single salvaged a split in the two-game set for the second place Dodgers and gave them a victory in their last game of the season in Milwaukee for a 4-7 record at County Stadium. It was there that the Dodgers had nailed the 1953 and 1955 pennants with victories on their last visit of the season.

This one carried no such guarantee. But after coming back from a 3-0 deficit, the Brooks are sure they've got the flag in the sack. The Braves are still the team to beat, but now just one game back in the "lost" column the Brooklyn feel they can do it — helped along by an "at home" schedule to end the season. They figured they needed "only six or seven" victories on their current 11-game finale in the West this season and now they've won five of the first seven, with only four games left at Chicago against the last place Cubs.

Joe Adcock's 33rd home run, and his 11th against Brooklyn, and Bobby Thomson's 18th built the 3-0 Milwaukee lead against 20-game winner Don Newcombe, who has finished only one of his last four pitching starts, left for a pinch-hitter because of a tummy ache in the sixth when Duke Snider hit his 35th homer, a two-run shot, off Gene Conley to start the Brook revival.

Robinson's double and a single by Sandy Amoros tied it in the seventh. Then came the eighth and Conley's fifth straight losing start against the champs since May 12, 1955. Don Bessent's one-hit relief over the last four frames brought the young righthander his first 1956 victory.

It was Conley's hesitancy on Carl Furillo's chopper in the eighth that may have been responsible for his eighth defeat in 15 decisions. With runners on third and first, Conley seemed to be considering a doubleplay after fielding Furillo's bouncer, but instead retired Junior Gilliam in a rundown between third and home. Then came the pass to Robbie—who looked like the Jackie of old scoring from first on Campy's single when the outfield throw went to second.

Chico Carrasquel drove in three runs with two homers for the Tribe and scored another after doubling. Rocky Colavito also homered, his 17th, for the second place Indians, once more within seven games of the New York Yankees. Lemon, winning his 17th

Tiger Manager To Be A Fighter

DETROIT (AP)—Fred Knorr, who becomes president of the Detroit Tigers Oct. 1, says the manager of the 1957 Tigers "will be a fiery, active guy who will inspire the players and get out there on the field and fight for them."

"The Detroit radio" executive said, however, that "there is no inside track" as far as managerial candidates are concerned. He did not rule out the possibility the present manager, Bucky Harris, would be back for another season.

As many as seven possible successors to Harris have been mentioned publicly.

The names mentioned prominently so far as a possible successor to Harris include:

Paul Richards, general manager and team manager of the Baltimore Orioles.

Leo Durocher, former New York Giant manager.

Charlie Dressen, manager of the Washington Nationals.

Big Four Coaches Talk Shop

By REESE HART

RALEIGH (AP)—Some 240 football players will trot out at North Carolina's Big Four colleges Saturday and begin the grinding job of preparing for what should be a great season.

Two new coaches, a flock of holdover stars and a batch of promising new talent will be on hand to add to the excitement and competition.

North Carolina, seeking to restore its sagging football fortunes, brought in Jim Tatum from Maryland to replace George Barclay. Paul Amen, former assistant coach at Army, replaced Tom Rogers as Wake Forest coach. The Demon Deacons will be operating this year at their new campus in Winston-Salem.

Duke is expecting a turnout of 66 players. North Carolina 65, North Carolina State 62 and Wake Forest 47.

Let's take a brief look at what the coaches think of their prospects:

Duke's Bill Murray: "We're hoping that the quality of our football will continue on the same level that it has the past years. The quality of our players is about on the same level."

State's Earle Edwards: "Our team will be better. We have high hopes of filling the inexperienced spots with good performers."

Tatum: "We're going to have a good, scrappy ball club, but we're not predicting any victories. We'll be happy to get any victory."

Amen: "Our prospects are now what we would like them to be, but we have some bright spots on our club."

Murray's statement indicates the Blue Devils will again be among the nation's leading teams, despite the loss of halfback Bob Pascal and six other starters, including fullback Bryant Aldridge, end Sonny Sorrell and guard Jesse Birchfield.

Bob Brodhead, a 184-pound junior of Kittanning, Pa., has been tagged one of the brightest spots in the Duke picture.

Edenton's Stuart Holland at halfbacks.

Another Baltimore import will be quarterback Paul Diforte. Goldsboro's Jack Fail and George Turner of Norfolk, Va., will be two more freshman quarterbacks.

It isn't so hard to figure the reason for Pirate enthusiasm now, even despite the rugged 1956 schedule.

Mahoney Chosen To Be Tydings' Replacement

BALTIMORE (AP) — George P. Mahoney, who narrowly lost the Democratic primary last May, was tagged last night to replace the ailing Millard E. Tydings as the party's candidate for the U.S. Senate.

The State Democratic Committee, by a 97-55 vote, selected the 54-year-old Baltimore contractor over Mrs. Eleanor Tydings, wife of the former senator and daughter of former U.S. Ambassador to Russia Joseph E. Davies.

Early today, Mahoney said he would revive the bitter 1950 campaign between Tydings and Republican Sen. John Marshall Butler as an issue. "I'm going to take out after Butler throughout this state and make sure the people know about the fraud perpetrated on Tydings six years ago," he said.

Committee members were urged by Mrs. Tydings' supporters to name her so she might carry on her husband's vengeance campaign against Butler.

Tydings, who served 24 straight years in the Senate, was ousted by Butler in a bitter campaign for which Butler's side was reimbursed by a Senate elections sub-

Nurse Admits Three Infants Were Killed

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Police say a 260-pound pediatric nurse has admitted shaking to death three infants because they got on her nerves or refused to take their formula.

"It was all uncontrollable," Virginia B. Jaspers, 33-year-old daughter of a county official, told the coroner. "I didn't know why I did it. Children sometimes get on my nerves."

Miss Jaspers, who is six feet tall, also admitted breaking the leg of another infant and inflicting a head injury on a fifth, said Coroner James J. Corrigan.

A private pediatric nurse for 12 years, she often lived in with the parents of the children and was not connected with a hospital.

Police said the deaths dated back to 1948. Miss Jaspers was taken into custody as the result of the death Thursday of the 11-day-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Kapsinow of New Haven.

Police Chief Francis V. McManus quoted her as saying she shook the infant violently because it refused its formula.

The Kapsinows thought their child had died of natural causes.

McManus said the case developed after Dr. Sterling Taylor, acting medical examiner, reported the Kapsinow child had suffered head and body injuries, apparently caused when she was "picked up and shaken violently."

After several hours of questioning, police said Miss Jaspers admitted shaking the Kapsinow child to death.

Then, police said, she admitted shaking the death in 1948 of the 7-week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hubbard of Guilford.

Causing the death of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Malkin of New Canaan four years ago. Mrs. Malkin is a concert soprano whose stage name is Joan Brainerd.

Inflicting a head injury on the 8-week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Saidel of New Haven.

Breaking the leg of the 3-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Schaeffer of Woodbridge in 1955.

In a jail cell, Miss Jaspers kept repeating:

"How will I ever face people again?"

Adlai Put Stress On Precinct Level

By JOHN CHADWICK

SANTA FE, N. M. (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson, hitting hard at the importance of organizing at the precinct level, headed today for the Northwest on the second leg of a whirlwind precampaign tour.

The next stop for the Democratic presidential nominee and his running mate, Sen. Estes Kefauver, was Portland, Ore. Then, after a motor trip to Bonneville Dam, they are to confer with party leaders from Washington, Oregon, Montana, Idaho and Utah.

By nightfall they are to be on the way again, taking off in their chartered plane for Sioux City, Iowa.

The first of their regional powwows with Democratic leaders was held here yesterday, and afterward Stevenson pronounced it "even more satisfactory than I thought it was possible."

"The enthusiasm and the spirit of the party in the Southwest has exhilarated me," he told newsmen.

The conference, largely given over to campaign tactics at the unglamorous working level, brought together representatives of these seven states—New Mexico, Colorado, Arkansas, Wyoming, Texas, Oklahoma and Arizona.

Most of these states, with 57 electoral votes, are normally Democratic, but in 1952 President Eisenhower carried all of them except Arkansas.

Stevenson bluntly told the conferees that the Democrats have "a man-sized job" on their hands to win in the November election and that party workers were going to have to roll up their sleeves and labor in the precincts.

"This election is going to be won or lost depending on what is done in the precincts," he said. "And when I say won or lost, I mean won."

The present series of regional meetings is designed to lay the groundwork at the grass roots for the speech-making campaign that Stevenson and Kefauver will launch next month.

Stevenson said that while he does not intend to attack Eisenhower personally, he is going to make an issue of the way in which the President has conducted his office and what he called the present "failure of leadership."

In answer to a question, he said that in the closed meeting of party leaders, the statement was made that President Eisenhower "should not be spared" in the coming campaign.

But Stevenson said that "for the life of me" he couldn't remember who made the statement.

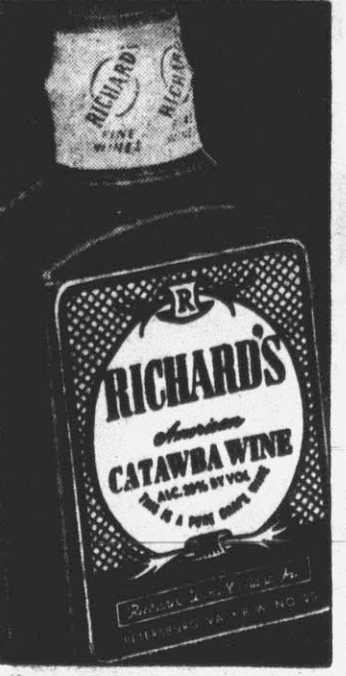

Spokesman of the House Sam Rayburn, who came from Texas for the conference, jumped up and said "I made it."

"This is the Eisenhower administration," Rayburn said, adding that the administration has to be viewed as a whole "and Mr. Eisenhower is the head of it."

Stevenson said he didn't know what kind of campaign Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon were going to conduct, but he said that his and Kefauver's campaign was going to be on "as high a level" as they could make it.

Slightly over 90 political leaders were on hand from the seven states in the area for the Santa Fe conference.

Stevenson said they discussed factions, hence no effort to get out the vote in order the beat the fellow on the other side.

That situation is very likely to produce a smaller vote than if there were real factional scrapping. By the same token it is almost certain to yield a much higher percentage favorable vote than the 57 per cent given the road bonds. Prediction is here-with made that the total vote on September 8 will be around half a million, with 80 per cent to 85 per cent for the school amendment.

Three Men Die As Car Crashes Gasoline Truck

TOOEL, Utah (AP)—Three men died in the crash of their car with a gasoline tank truck last night at a highway junction nine miles north of here.

Officers said an unknown passing motorist tossed a lighted match onto spilled gasoline before two of the bodies could be extricated. The resulting blaze cremated the bodies and took 2½ hours to bring under control.

It was several hours before the Utah Highway Patrol could issue a tentative identification of the dead. The three, all Salt Lake City men, were listed as Lee Loy Park, owner of the car, Tommy Lau and won the No. 2 spot on the Democratic ticket because, "in the Democratic tradition, he fought for it" and convinced a majority of the delegates he was the best man.

Kefauver called the Santa Fe meeting "a great start for our campaign." He said that if he and Stevenson were received with "the same enthusiasm everywhere, there can be no question" about the outcome of the November election.

Highway Patrolman Howard Cooper said one body had been removed from the car and officers were waiting for acetylene torch equipment to free the other dead when the wreckage was set ablaze. He said all three were killed in the crash.

Glen Townsend, 28, Salt Lake City, driver of the truck, was not seriously hurt.

CHAPTER 17

"I don't like the way Eklund's been acting, and I'm going to have a showdown with him," Kinney promised Stockett. "Another thing, I got the truth out of Oates, though he didn't intend to let it slip. Apparently he was more than willing to be caught, which sounds like double-dealing. Now he wants out, and he thinks he has me fooled. He'll try to escape when his supper is brought in." He lowered his voice impressively.

"The game we're playing is there's no room for double-crossers. When he makes his try to see to it that he doesn't get loose. You know what to do!"

"I'll tend to it," Stockett agreed. "I only wish it was Eklund!"

"I'll handle Eklund," Kinney promised. "We've got to keep him alive, for a while, because he's the only medic in this country. And we may need him."

Turning back toward town, Kinney was in a somewhat better mood. Dead, Oates would cease to be a menace. And he'd enjoy making a few things clear to the sawbones. Eklund must have had the wit to perceive that Stockett was jumping him, not on account of Deever, but as a rebuke from himself. He was getting far too cocky when he failed to heed such warnings.

Kinney swung his horse toward the Armingtons' ranch. The girls should be in a more friendly mood today, because of the money he'd given them for candy. He knew how to handle kids—or older folks, when it came to that. But his patience was wearing thin in a lot of places.

To his surprise, the girls seemed more, rather than less, hostile at sight of him. Nor was there any welcome in Narcissa's strained good morning.

Despite that, Kinney was determinedly jovial.

"Didn't you get that candy, yet?" he asked. "Or do you need more of it to sweeten you up?"

"We didn't want any candy," Patty said distinctly. "And you don't need to come around here any more. If Narcissa marries anybody, it can be the doctor! We like him!"

"So that's the way of it!" Kinney looked from one to the other, swung his glance across Narcissa's scarlet face. His own was black. Without another word, he turned, swung into the saddle. But as he headed his horse toward town, he called back, "I'll be back! You can count on that!"

Patty boiled in him. It was high time he made several things plain to the medic. Apparently his first warning hadn't been enough. But

How to Take Sharp Pictures

Everybody wants to take sharp pictures—and everybody can.

Every once in a while someone asks about the fuzziness of a picture. Sometimes they even blame it on the camera or the film.

In nearly every case the trouble is with the photographer's inability to hold his camera steady. This one fault probably ruins more pictures than any other mistake the photographer can make.

Here are a few tips. First of all, check the way you stand. Try to think of yourself as a human tripod—legs braced slightly apart, arms held close to your sides, elbows firmly braced so that your hands form a steady holder for your camera.

Next use a slow, gentle pressure when you release the shutter, so that you don't shake the camera and hold your breath at the instant you press the shutter.

If you're taking pictures from a car or boat, don't rest the camera where it will pick up the vibrations of the motor. Let them be absorbed by your body.

this part of the country. Eklund hadn't seen a single one since coming to Montana. Besides, these were brand-new, unused weapons, instead of second-hand stock.

Replacing the rifle and fastening down the lid, he drove on more slowly. This confirmed his suspicion that Kinney was supplying the Indians with rifles as well as whiskey, and of the two, guns were infinitely the worse. The question now was what his own course should be.

PUBLIC NOTICE

$150,000

BETHEL SCHOOL DISTRICT OF PITT CO., NORTH CAROLINA SCHOOL BONDS

Sealed bids will be received until 11 o'clock A.M. Eastern Standard Time September 11, 1956, by the undersigned at its office in the City of Raleigh, North Carolina, for $150,000 School Bonds to be issued by Pitt County, North Carolina, for and in behalf of the Bethel School District of Pitt County, dated June 1, 1956, and maturing annually, June 1, $6,000 1958 to 1982, inclusive, without option of prior payment.

Denomination $1,000; principal and semi-annual interest (J and D 1), payable in legal tender in New York City or Greenville, N. C. at holder's option; coupon bonds not negotiable; delivery on or about October 3, 1956, at place of purchaser's choice. There will be no auction.

The bonds will be payable from an unlimited tax to be levied upon all taxable property in the Bethel School District of Pitt County. The bonds were authorized at an election in the district, 211 votes for and 21 against.

Bidders are requested to name the interest rate or rates, not exceeding 6% per annum, in multiples of one-fourth of one per cent. Each bid may name one rate for part of the bonds (having the earliest maturities), and another rate or rates for the balance, but no bid may name more than four rates, and each bidder must specify in his bid the amount of bonds of each rate. The bonds will be awarded to the bidder offering to purchase the bonds at the lowest interest cost to the district, such cost to be determined by deducting the total amount of any premium bid from the aggregate amount of interest upon all of the bonds until their respective maturities. No bid of less than par and accrued interest will be entertained.

Each bid must be on a form to be furnished with additional information by the undersigned, enclosed in a sealed envelope marked "Proposal for Bonds" and must be accompanied by a certified check upon an incorporated bank or trust company, payable unconditionally to the order of the State Treasurer of North Carolina, for $3,000.

The approving opinion of Mitchell, Pershing, Shetterly & Mitchell, New York City, will be furnished without cost to the purchaser. There will also be furnished the usual closing papers, including a certificate stating that there is no litigation pending affecting the validity of the bonds.

The right to reject all bids is reserved.
