

President Discloses Another Atomic Blast In Soviet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower announced today that the Russians have touched off still another atomic explosion. He said this one was more powerful than the test a week ago which had the force of almost one million tons of TNT.

Eisenhower made the announcement at a news conference after recalling that last Sunday he disclosed that the Soviet Union had resumed tests of nuclear weapons.

On that occasion, while he was still in California, Eisenhower said a blast on Aug. 24 had the force of almost a megaton, or a million tons of TNT.

Today he said the Russians have engaged in what he termed another large test in the accustomed place. That would be in southwest Siberia, as reported for the first time officially in Eisenhower's announcement last Sunday.

The new test, Eisenhower said, took place yesterday in that area. Then he went on, in effect, to criticize Soviet leaders for talking peace and at the same time continuing tests of nuclear weapons.

Eisenhower said Soviet diplomats talk of abolishing atomic weapons but go right ahead testing them without prior announcement and in secrecy.

A reporter reminded Eisenhower that last Sunday's announcement talked about a blast with a yield of something less than a megaton.

Noting that Eisenhower spoke today of the new blast being even more powerful, the newsman asked the President if he could be more specific about that.

Eisenhower replied he could not say at this time that it was more powerful. The Atomic Energy Commission, he added, apparently is not ready to go into more detail.

At the news conference—his first since he was nominated last week for a second term—Eisenhower also dealt with these matters:

POLITICS — He intends to stick to his February announcement that he will do no barnstorming or "whistle-stop" campaigning. But Eisenhower said that does not foreclose the possibility of his traveling into key areas to make what he termed significant political speeches.

As for the plans he has in mind, Eisenhower said he intends to set forth his administration's record in great detail but that under no circumstances will he engage in any petty name-calling.

As for the endorsement of his Democratic opponent, Adlai Stevenson, Eisenhower said he had no comment on that, but did go on to say that while they were still separate organizations in 1952, the AFL and CIO gave Stevenson their endorsement that year.

Eisenhower noted that the vote in the AFL-CIO Executive Council this week was 17-5 in favor of endorsing Stevenson. He said he was proud of those leaders who did not go along with the endorsement.

SUEZ — Eisenhower again expressed confidence that the Suez Canal crisis will be settled peacefully.

He took note at the outset of the news conference of Egyptian President Nasser's challenge of Eisenhower's statement that the canal was internationalized under terms of an 1888 treaty.

Nasser contends the treaty did not internationalize the canal. He expressed "regrets" yesterday that Eisenhower had made his statement earlier this week.

Eisenhower said both sides have been talking at cross purposes. He said he did not mean in his statement that nations which use the canal also own it.

He said he was talking of usage of the canal when he spoke of it as an international waterway.

Eisenhower also noted he had emphasized that the United States and other users of the canal stand ready to respect Egypt's rights of sovereignty.

CIVIL RIGHTS — Asked whether he is satisfied with the Republican plank on civil rights as related to the school desegregation issue, Eisenhower replied he did not care to go into that matter in great detail.

He said it was an issue charged with emotionalism and called on everyone to use all possible effort in working out a solution.

Eisenhower did say no platform plank ever fully satisfies anyone.

He said also that the desegregation controversy never will be settled by any great show of force or arbitrary action.

HEALTH — A reporter noted that the White House had said earlier this week that Eisenhower's physicians feel his convalescence from major abdominal surgery last June 9 is at an end.

The newsman asked whether Eisenhower feels as good now as he did before he was stricken with an intestinal ailment.

The President replied yes, he does.

At another point Eisenhower was asked whether he plans to discuss his health during the campaign. He replied with a show of irritation, that he already has said he plans to undergo another full-scale physical examination some time before the Nov. 6 election.

Eisenhower's complexion today seemed to this reporter to be as ruddy as ever. He handled replies to questions with a bit more snap than he did earlier this month when he met with newsmen for the first time since his operation.

French Soldiers Due To Arrive In Cyprus Today

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The first sizable contingent of French troops was expected to reach this Mediterranean island today to bolster this French-British military position in the tense Suez area.

An advance liaison party flew into Nicosia last night to prepare for arrival of the French forces, while a cargo ship reportedly carrying military supplies and about 150 troops dropped anchor off Famagusta.

Unofficial sources said three shiploads of French soldiers were expected today at Limassol, major port on Cyprus' south coast. More vessels carrying French troops are expected before the week ends.

These were other developments in the continuing Suez Canal crisis:

1. Britain announced the North Atlantic Council will meet in Paris Wednesday "to consider the Suez Canal question."
2. Egypt objected to statements by President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles describing the Suez Canal as an internationalized waterway.
3. The five-member Suez committee headed by Australian Prime Minister Robert Menzies met again in London to further plans for its meeting in Cairo Monday with Egyptian President Nasser. The committee will present the proposal for international control of the waterway endorsed by 18 of the 22 nations which attended the recent London conference.
4. Britain ordered two attaches of the Egyptian embassy in London to leave British soil in retaliation for Egypt's expulsion of two British diplomats the Egyptians charged were mixed up in a spy ring. The British denied the spy charges.
5. Egypt pushed its drive abroad to recruit pilots to guide ships through the Suez. There was no indication, however, what luck she was having.

A communique issued in Nicosia announced the "first elements of French troops due to be stationed in Cyprus arrived here by air" last night. The announcement did not say how many.

France got permission from Britain earlier this week to base troops on the British-ruled island only 250 months north of Egypt along the Suez Canal.

The purpose of the move, French officials said, was to protect French citizens and interests in the event of a breakdown in Suez negotiations.

Assistant DA Roughed Up By Mob At School

MANSFIELD, Tex. (AP) — An assistant district attorney was mobbed, shoved and cursed today when he appeared in the middle of the angry crowd of white men who for two days have dared Negroes to enter Mansfield High School.

Grady Haight, the attorney, was white and shaken when he finally was released.

One unidentified person in the mob claimed Haight was "looking around so he would know who to prosecute."

At least 150 men raced around Haight and those centered around Haight shoved and pushed him.

The crowd had vowed no Negroes would be allowed to register at the school. No Negroes had appeared at midmorning.

Several white students walked through the mob into the school about 11:10 a.m., but they did not speak to any in the crowd.

Dangling over the entrance to the school was a new effigy of a Negro. An effigy hung from the school flagpole yesterday was today. A similar figure in downtown Mansfield was cut down Wednesday.

The school was ordered integrated by Federal Court order, this year for the first time. Yesterday, Judge Joe E. Estes refused to postpone his integration order. School authorities had asked for a one-year delay.

Supt. R. L. Huffman was the first faculty member to appear today. He immediately was surrounded by the crowd.

Huffman said, "Now you guys know I'm with you, but I've got this mandate hanging over my head." As he said that, he ran his finger across his throat.

Some of the men told Huffman that they had checked all entrances where Negroes possibly could slip into the school.

"Now remember," Huffman said, "there's two doors in back. Now I'm not telling you what to do, but I'm just telling you about those doors."

A laborer, Owen Metcalf, appeared to be the recognized leader of the mob.

Asked if he was the leader, Metcalf said, "Lord, no. There ain't nobody leading this. This is just a damn mob."

Federal Payroll Hit Record High

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Byrd said today the cost of government civilian employment shot past the 10½ billion dollar mark to history's highest level in the year just ended.

Byrd heads the Senate - House committee on reduction of nonessential federal expenditures. He had protested last week that the government was on a "spending spree" endangering prospects for a tax cut in 1957, and that Congress had "accelerated" the spending rates.

He said in a statement the payroll figures were compiled by his committee from reports certified as correct by the various executive agencies. They listed payroll expenditures totaling $10,528,000,000 in fiscal 1956 which ended June 30. This, Byrd said, eclipsed the previous peak of $9,863,000,000 recorded in 1953 and was nearly a billion dollars above the fiscal 1955 total of $9,621,000,000.

Higher pay scales voted by Congress over the years account for much of the rise, Byrd said.

Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-SC) announced this week he is already working on plans to push another pay increase in Congress next session.

Byrd reported a "small decrease in average employment" in the year, but said the number of civilian employees of both military and civilian agencies had climbed steadily in the year's last seven months to a reported but not incomplete total of 2,398,656. He said the average monthly employment total for the year was 2,364,042, down from 2,367,290 in fiscal 1955.

Byrd said all agencies reported 2,194,261 workers on their payroll inside the continental United States in July, 15,323 more than in June, 1th 204,395 employed outside the country, a decrease of 1,095 from June.

Biggest Day On Farmville Mart

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Tobacco Market had its biggest day in every respect yesterday.

Sales Supervisor Charles Edwards reported a sale of 687,384 pounds for $362,360.35, an average of $52.72 per hundred pounds. Quality of offerings was exceptionally good, Edwards said, and buyers entered into considerable competition to acquire smoking leaf. Amounts turned over to the Stabilization Corporation were negligible and few tags were turned by sellers.

The poundage was almost twice as much as the first day sale, the previous high in the market's six days of operation. The average price was eight cents higher than the previous high mark registered Tuesday and almost three dollars higher than the average for the first five days of market operation.

The season's sales average now stands at $50.60, more than dollar gain over the five-day mark reported yesterday. Total poundage and sales stand at 1,919,293 pounds for $970,511.51.

Pitt's first bale of cotton of 1956 was ginned this morning in Bethel.

The cotton was grown by Arthur James of the Bethel community and was ginned by W. Jasper Smith at the Bethel Manufacturing Company, gin in Bethel.

The cotton was graded middling and brought 40 cents a pound. The bale weighed 454 pounds.

First $1 Million Day Of Season On Tobacco Mart

The local tobacco market chalked up its first million dollar day of the season yesterday with sales the heaviest of the young season.

Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee said that $1,114,847.35 was paid out during yesterday's sales of 2,145,902 pounds of tobacco. The average for the day was $51.94.

Whedbee said that Stabilization's receipts yesterday were very small. Farmers appeared very well satisfied with their sales and few tags were turned.

Yesterday was a full sale, Whedbee noted.

He said he is expecting a full sale today and a full sale Tuesday after the Labor Day holiday.

"Prices on all leaf grades and on green grades continued at a very high level on warehouse floors," Whedbee declared.

He said that tips and leaf grades were predominant on the local market.

Skeleton Study Discounts Fears

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An anthropologist reported today that the skeleton discovered near here Aug. 18 was that of a woman 30 or older.

This discounted the possibility that the remains were those of Shirley Goodman, 18-year-old Lumberton girl who last seen leaving a cafe with a soldier 21 months ago.

The report was made by Dr. Joffre L. Coe, of the University of North Carolina medical school, to Cumberland County Police Chief A. Glenn Buchanan.

After examining the bones, Dr. Coe said the woman probably was Indian or mixed white and Indian, approximately four feet eight inches tall.

Several fractures indicated the possibility of foul play. The report said fractures were found in the left jaw, at the base of the skull and in the first vertebrae beneath the skull. The report said they were made by a sharp, thin instrument and were not caused by wild animals.

The report said the body probably had been lying in the woods at least since the summer of 1955, certainly before the leaves fell last autumn.

Public Address Bl Rep. Jones In Ayden Tonight

AYDEN — Rep. Walter Jones will discuss the Pearsall Plan and the September 8 special election in a public meeting here tonight at 7:30 in the high school auditorium.

The talk was originally scheduled to be made to members of the Ayden Rotary Club in their regular weekly meeting. However, Rotary officers changed the site, with Jones' consent, after several other local civic organizations and citizens had expressed a desire to be present. The Rotary Club has issued an invitation to all Ayden citizens to be present for Jones' talk.

The talk is one in a series Jones has made since the July 23 special session of the state legislature. He discusses the Pearsall Plan, the bills passed by the legislature, and issues at stake in the special election. He also answers questions from the floor at the conclusion of his remarks.

Nixon's Father Very Weak Today

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP) — Frank Nixon, 77-year-old father of the vice president, was reported "very weak" this morning by the family physician who added:

"His general condition is very poor. He cannot last too much longer."

Dr. I. N. Kraushaar said the elder Nixon is still conscious but is in great pain and has been receiving oxygen most of the night.

The vice president interrupted his work-vacation in New Jersey and plans to fly from Washington to his father's bedside in nearby La Habra.

Adlai And Estes Elated Over Knoxville Reception

CHICAGO (AP) — Elated by an enthusiastic reception in the South, Adlai E. Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver today wind up here a five-day series of regional strategy huddles with Democratic leaders from 34 states.

The Democratic presidential and vice presidential nominees returned last night from Knoxville, Tenn., where they were told the South will line up solidly in the Democratic column in the Nov. 6 election.

In the last of their current round of conferences today they are to discuss campaign issues and plans with party leaders from Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri and Ohio.

"After this, Stevenson's aides said, he will hold a 'full-fledged, no-holds-barred news conference.'"

At the Knoxville meeting, attended by senators, governors and other party leaders from 10 southern states, reports relayed to newsmen indicated there was no discussion of the controversial civil rights issue.

Instead, unity was the keynote. Clayton Pritchey, Stevenson's press secretary, told reporters during one interlude that "this meeting is turning into a rally for the Stevenson-Kefauver ticket."

At the end of the meeting, Stevenson disclosed that he had received a telegram from Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia pledging "my earnest support in what I expect to be a successful campaign."

Russell, a leader of Dixie forces in the Senate, and himself a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1952, said that there were some planks in the party platform to which he could not "in good conscience subscribe."

However, he added that "the Democratic party is the only party which holds any hope for the farmer, the small businessman and the average American and is our one hope of eliminating special privilege."

In another telegram to James A. Finnegan, Stevenson's campaign manager, Russell said:

"Unless there is some unforeseen development, I believe that you can safely count on the Southern states once more giving an overwhelming majority to the Democratic ticket in restoration of the old solid South. If no serious mistakes are made, we will elect our ticket in November."

Bought Liquor For Pitt Jail Inmates

Two trustees from Pitt County Jail assigned to work at the court house were each sentenced to six months hard labor in City Court this morning after being convicted of furnishing alcoholic beverages to prisoners in the jail.

The two men, who were sentenced by Judge Charles Whedbee, are: John Wilks Jr., 32-year-old Negro of Greenville and Clarence Powell, 44, Negro, also of Greenville.

The pair were arrested on warrants signed by Jailor Loyd Manning.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said this morning that the two men had been assigned to cleaning and other work in the court house and at night they were returned to their cells at the jail.

The sheriff said that several days ago the men purchased ABC liquor for other inmates in the jail.

No trouble developed among the prisoners in the jail after the liquor was purchased, the sheriff said.

As far as is known there have been no other such incidents other than the one for which the two men were tried this morning, the sheriff indicated.

Both men will be turned over to the state prison system to serve their six months hard labor terms.

Wilks had been serving a 30-day sentence in the county jail after being convicted of damage to real property.

Powell was serving a 30-day sentence on a drunkenness conviction.

Nineteen-Year-Old Girl Plans Enter College In An Iron Lung

BOILING SPRINGS, N.C. (AP) — Nineteen-year-old Martha Masor is going to Gardner-Webb College—in an iron lung.

Spunky Martha, of nearby Lattimore, has been in an iron lung since 1948 when polio hit her. But the crippling disease didn't stop her. Last June, Martha was graduated from the Lattimore High School with the highest scholastic average in the school's history—98.6.

Now, with the help of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Masor, Martha's dream of a college education is about to become a reality.

Martha and her parents yesterday moved into the old Higgins-Curtis Hall, a men's dorm housing 60 students. Martha's parents will act as counselors.

A two-way inter-communication system is being installed in the college classrooms, auditorium and the Boiling Springs Baptist Church, placing Martha in contact with nearly every phase of college life.

Martha registered yesterday for 15 semester hours in English, Latin, Bible, math and history. At the side of her iron lung will be either her mother or an assistant to do her writing and operate the inter-com set.

Martha thinks she would like to become a journalist. "I feel a handicapped person needs an education more than others. Some day I want to be able to take care of myself financially and an education also makes life more enjoyable," she said.

"I was real excited about coming to college. I want to meet all the people I can, and I want to do my best. Daddy took me on the tour of the campus and the building."

There will be no holidays for the patrolmen. "All leaves have been canceled," said Whitfield. "Pitt County will be divided into sections, with each patrolman covering a certain territory."

Five thousand safe driving cards will be distributed to the weekend motorists by Pitt County highway patrolmen. The cards are an urgent reminder to "drive safely."

Corporal Whitfield urges holiday groups to "leave early enough to get to their destinations without having to speed." Some of the main driving faults, relates Whitfield, are "following too closely, passing over the yellow line when it is in your lane and not being careful enough at intersections."

"Safety starts behind your own steering wheel," said the corporal. "Please keep that in mind this weekend."

19,149 Voters

A total of 693 persons registered during the recent period when registration books were open for the constitution amendment election to be held Sept. 8.

The figure was announced today by D. S. Spain Jr., chairman of the County Board of Elections.

Spain said the total registration figure now stands at 19,149 for the entire county.

Books were open at the polls for three Saturdays.

Watched Botched Hub-Cap Theft

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Two Gastonia policemen were the unseen audience at a botched attempt to steal hubcaps at a city parking lot.

The policemen said a couple of teenage boys drove into the lot and parked between two vehicles. One jumped out with a screwdriver in hand and went to work loosening a hubcap.

"Hey," yelled the driver, "You're taking 'em off our own car."

With that, the confused youth jumped back into the car and the boys sped away, minus a hubcap.

Pitt Highway Patrolmen To Stage Weekend Alert

Students Arrive For BSU Weekend Retreat

Among the earliest pre-school arrivals at East Carolina College will be the approximately twenty-five students who compose the executive council of the Baptist Student Union. A number of them will terminate their summer employment and others will shorten vacations in order to return to Greenville to participate in the B.S.U. retreat which begins tomorrow and extends through Monday.

Dr. Bruce E. Whitaker of Raleigh, executive secretary of the Student Union Department of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, will address the group during one of their sessions and will be the guest speaker at the Sunday morning worship service at Immanuel Baptist Church. He is a graduate of Wake Forest College and received the B.D., Th.M. and Th.D. degrees from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky.

Ronnie Crow of Lexington and N. C. State College, president of the North Carolina Baptist Student Union, will meet with the local group to discuss plans and projects to be sponsored in 1956-57 by the cooperative efforts of more than forty campus BSUs in the state.

Ralph Lamm, rising senior at East Carolina and president of the local BSU, will preside at the various sessions of the three day event. He says the theme "Communicating the Good News" will be developed with emphasis upon inspiration, information and practical planning for an effective program of Baptist student work in the local Memorial and Immanuel churches and at the Baptist Student Center on weekdays.

Following their arrival in Greenville during the day tomorrow, the students will gather at the B.S.U. Center on Eighth Street for a lawn supper which will precede the opening session of their retreat to be held during the evening.

After a period of worship led by Hilda Morris of Zebulon, the Rev. Percy Upchurch, local minister, will speak to the group on "What We Are Trying To Communicate." Remainder of the evening session will be devoted to discussion of the plans proposed by the co-chairmen of the weekly BSU Forum, Eugene Hayman of Coitlock and Fan Green of Zebulon, and the presidents of the several Sunday school classes for students: Sarah Margaret Asbell, Tyner; Eva Ann Coburn, Robertsonville; Jean Rowland, Raleigh; Jo Allen Brown, Wilmington; and Frances Bryant, Spring Hope. Plans will be discussed for organizing new classes for students who attend Immanuel and Memorial churches.

On Sunday the executive council will continue its retreat at an early morning session and by participating in the services at Immanuel Baptist Church.

The Kiwanis Park, Elm Street, will be the scene of a picnic dinner and the afternoon session at which Dr. Whitaker will speak.

On Sunday evening Miss Gloria H. Blanton, director of the East Carolina Baptist Student Union, will speak on "How We Can Communicate the Good News." The group will attend the worship service at Memorial Church.

During the Sunday sessions students who will propose to the council plans for their respective offices will include:

Shirley Alford, Burlington, enrollment vice-president; Barbara Blanton, Teachey, social vice-president; Kay Hargrove, Weldon, devotional vice-president; Gilliam Underwood, Clayton, training union director; Patricia Dunn, Raleigh, chairman of the "Listen" project; Herbert Joyner, Henderson, music chairman.

The Monday morning session, to be held at Kiwanis Park, will include presentation of plans by the following who serve as chairmen of standing committees of the Baptist Student Union:

Wade Parker, Monroe; Michael King, Henderson; Janet Wall, Smithfield; Coleman Gentry, Chapel Hill; Elbert Blanton, Teachey; Hilda Morris, Zebulon; Jerry McDaniel, Fayetteville; Fred Layton, Edenton; Martha Underhill, Selma; and Anne Shelton, Camden.

Prayer Plate Helpful Reminder

CHICAGO (AP)—A new prayer, by a wise minister reminds children what to say when saying grace at the table.

The Rev. Charles S. Applegath, 75, pastor of the Lake Avenue Methodist Church of Ashabua, Ohio, designed a child's prayer plate with the message painted on its surface:

"Our Father
We thank Thee for this food
God bless us and all Thy hungry
Children everywhere
Amen."

The Rev. Applegath composed the prayer after seeing a snapshot made by his daughter, Hope, of his grandson, Roger Warner, 4, of LaGrange, Ill., praying at a table with a neighbor girl, Ginny Allison, 4.

The prayer first was transferred to dinnerware two years ago. Since then it has been translated into five languages and is accepted by Protestant, Catholic and Greek Orthodox Churches as suitable for children of their parishes.

A Methodist Bishop of Korea reports he plans to introduce it among children there. The Rev. Applegath says he has received requests for the plate from England and Canada. He was born at Hamilton, Ontario.

Appendicitis May Be Result Of Child's Stomach Pains

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.
The voice on the telephone was very worried.

"Doctor, Andy has a terrible stomach ache and I'm so afraid he may have appendicitis, may I bring him right over?"

Andy was 7 and he certainly was a miserable little boy. He had a fairly high temperature, he was coughing a good deal and hanging on to his abdomen where he said his hurt was. When Andy was examined he was found to have an acutely inflamed throat, but his abdomen showed no signs of inflammation of the appendix. He hadn't had a bowel movement for several days. The pain in his abdomen was due to an accumulation of gas in his intestinal tract plus some enlarged and tender glands—like those under his jaw from his inflamed tonsils. He was given some medicine for his sore throat and his mother told to give him an enema. Next day he was much better.

Every pain in the abdomen is not an appendicitis but of course stomach ache is one of the danger signals of appendicitis and Andy's mother did exactly the right thing to make sure what was the trouble with her little boy.

Appendicitis runs in families. It is a frequent story to hear that Mother or Dad or maybe some of the other children have had an appendix removed. You don't, of course, inherit an infected appendix, but you do inherit your body build and shape. In some families the appendix lies in a crooked cramped place and is more likely to become infected than when it lies straight and

Union Leaders Can't Control Votes

Labor leaders' official endorsement of the Democratic ticket gives an important boost to the Stevenson-Kefauver team in its effort to defeat President Eisenhower. But the endorsement as such does not guarantee the Democratic ticket votes of the 15 million members of AFL-CIO unions.

Union leaders have become a big factor in national politics, but election results have clearly shown they cannot and do not control votes of individual members of their unions.

At Least It's A Start In The Right Direction

While recognizing the plans for a Negro subdivision development for Greenville are still in the preliminary stages after four or five years of consideration, it remains a project to be cheered on as a necessary adjunct to a growing community.

As a matter of fact, the stagnation attendant upon development of good Negro housing in the city is something to wonder at. It has long been our opinion that "something ought to be done" about substandard dwellings that plague many blocks of Greenville's residential districts and offer no grounds for pride by either their occupants or the city as a whole.

Strictly as a business venture it appears to us that the field of housing for Negro families would be extremely favorable. No one can deny the first prerequisite, demand, exists.

Strictly as a civic matter it also seems obvious that responsible city leadership would deem it imperative that if for no other reason than to present a pleasing facade to visitors, the presence of a large number of unsightly dwellings should be something to be concerned about.

Add to that, all the arguments involving Better Health, Personal Pride, Civic Consciousness, Living Space, and you have every reason to wonder why the conditions of cramped and often inadequate housing for so many hundreds of Greenville's citizens have existed for so long.

The Reflector feels some sense of encouragement by the recent approval of a preliminary subdivision plat presented by local developers; yet, we feel this is just scratching the surface of a need that cannot be fulfilled by one such endeavor.

With its expanding business district, Greenville people as individuals and in groups, should give more than passing thought as to how city-blighting structures can be removed and at the same time provide housing for the families that are displaced.

An Economic Blow To A Neighboring City

When a business in any community closes its doors and ceases operation, it leaves a gap in the economy of the community.

No matter how large or how small the business, it leaves a gap in proportion to its size.

In neighboring Washington one of the city's major businesses, Eureka Lumber Company, reportedly has given notice to its 200 employees that their jobs will end this week. Under new ownership the mill which has been a major part of the economic life of Washington for more than half a century will no longer sound its whistle in the early morning or pay off employees weekly or monthly.

We don't know what the annual payroll of Eureka has been, but with 200 employees it probably ran well into six figures. The city of Washington will have a tough time making up for the loss of jobs and the payroll loss which results from the mill's closing. Employees who must hunt for new jobs will not be the only ones to suffer. Stores that have provided food, clothing and other merchandise for the 200 employees of Eureka will likewise feel the pinch when the mill turns off its workers.

If some 200 workers in Washington are out of jobs because of the closing of the lumber mill, the economic repercussions may cause other businesses to reduce their number of employees also. It is difficult indeed to say just how much the mill's closing will be felt in the city.

The economic blow which has hit Washington is one which almost every community faces at one time or another. Like any other community, Washington will have to create new jobs to replace those which have been lost. Where they will come from and what they will be will depend upon the people of the community. The degree of the community's loss will in a large measure depend upon how rapidly the people of the community can find jobs for those who are put out of work by Eureka's closing.

Results of the 1952 national election show that a great many union members voted for President Eisenhower. In spite of the official endorsement of the Democratic ticket by the AFL-CIO officials, there will be a great many labor votes for the Republican ticket again this year.

Organized labor leaders for years sought to defeat Sen. Taft in the heavily unionized state of Ohio. They used every means at their disposal to marshal the vote of union members against the author of the Taft-Hartley law. But their efforts were futile. And Taft could not have been elected had it not been for the voters of members of unions.

There is another factor which enters the political picture this year. In addition to its endorsement of the Democratic ticket the AFL-CIO is planning to pick favorite candidates for Congress and key state posts to support during the November elections. Their endorsement carries with it the foregone conclusion that financial support from union treasurers will be available to the candidates labor leaders endorse. As in other years, the big effort labor leaders are planning to put forth may backfire to some extent.

Right-to-work laws have become a prime target of union leaders in many states. But individually a great many union members favor the right-to-work laws in their respective states. Many members of unions may find themselves no little disturbed over the fact that a portion of the dues they have paid to the organization are going into campaigns of candidates of which they do not approve.

The political influence of union leaders has grown rapidly within recent years, but it is still a long way from the point where it can control in a real sense the votes of members of the various labor organizations.

The AFL-CIO endorsement helps the Democratic ticket in a real sense. Yet it is folly to believe that it guarantees to the ticket the vast majority of the voters who are members of the labor organizations.

Notes Will Be Sold Regardless Of Vote

By LYNN NISBET

NOTES — Three days after the election on the constitutional amendments the State of North Carolina will open bids on $15 million bond anticipation notes for school house building. The notes will be sold regardless of outcome of the election, and the school houses will be needed whether or not the Pearsall Plan is effectuated.

Those responsible for administering the educational and financial affairs of the state are confident the amendment will be ratified, but plans for operating the schools are not made contingent upon that result. Assumption is that with or without the Pearsall Plan the public schools will continue in business.

Proponents of the amendment contend that it offers the surest guarantee that the school system will be preserved. Opponents contend that its ratification will make maintenance of the public schools more difficult.

This difference of opinion might be reflected in higher or lower interest rates on long bonds, depending upon the view of the bidder. Inasmuch as the notes offered now are for a seven month period to be dated September 19, 1956, and payable April 19, 1957—the long range question of school system preservation is not involved.

There remains to be sold $25 million of the $50 million bond issue voted in 1953 for school construction. It had been planned to sell these bonds early this fall. The present money market is not good for long term securities, so the device of issuing anticipation notes for the amount immediately needed was adopted. Sealed bids will be received until 11 a.m. Wednesday, September 12, in the office of the State Treasurer. No bid for more than 4 per cent will be considered.

ASSURANCE — It is reassuring that while many people are asking about possible breakdown of the school system, responsible State officials are moving ahead with plans to speed up expansion and increase its efficiency.

Attendance at the schools which already have opened for the 1956-57 term, and advance registration at the rest which will open next week, emphasizes the great need for the proposed new construction, along with plans for expanded building programs, the educational leaders are preparing budget requests to be presented to the next General Assembly, anticipating continued growth in the public schools.

PRAYER — No reason why anybody should be surprised, but it was a bit unusual. Governor Luther Hodges was called upon to make the opening prayer at the Democratic executive committee meeting and did a good job if it is less than one minute. Such meetings are usually opened with prayer, but oldtimers could not recall one as short and complete.

COMMENDATION — The committee meeting reminded reporters of the love feasts which come at end of legislative sessions. Everybody bragged on everybody else, with special tribute to Sen. Sam Ervin for the magnificent work he did on the platform committee at Chicago. Governor Hodges and Mrs. Verett were also singled out for commendation in the way handled their duties at the convention.

J. Lee White of Cabarrus, who was a delegate, said the North Carolina delegation as a whole, and especially its recognized leadership, stood out among all the states.

There were very few members from the tenth district present, and the only attendant from Mecklenburg was Herman Moore — in his capacity as secretary of the committee.

Some staunch Democrats from down east wondered why the Mecklenburgers were so different, and why they should be called upon to carry the main load of the party vote—when, as they contend, the Piedmont gets nearly all "the gravy."

Other Editors Are Saying ... Public Not Served By Decision

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

The future development of Eastern Carolina received a very serious setback in the recent Interstate Commerce Commission refusal to permit the Southern Railway Company to acquire trackage from Goldsboro to the port of Morehead City.

The Southern proposed to acquire the Atlantic & East Carolina Railway Company and a government-owned line running from Havelock through Camp Lejeune reservation to a connection at Jacksonville with the Atlantic Coast Line. This would have connected the port of Morehead City and the surrounding area of Eastern Carolina with the American heartland in the Mississippi Valley. Such a development held much promise for all of North Carolina and its people.

The Interstate Commerce Commission based its decision on the claim that the proposed Southern Railway acquisition would not be in the public interest.

What nonsense. Just who, we wonder, does the ICC think it's fooling.

What the Commission should have said is that the plan would not be in the interest of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, which was the chief opponent to the Southern Acquisition.

During the hearings, representative after representative of the public and of North Carolina testified that acquisition of these two railroads would be very much in the public interest. Every newspaper in North Carolina we know anything about which expressed an opinion on the matter came out in favor of the Southern Railroad project. But the Commission has seen fit to ignore all this testimony in behalf of the public and in favor of the Coast Line, a competing railroad.

If the railroads, beset as they are by truck, automobile and airline competition, would quit fighting themselves and begin cooperating in an enlightened manner to serve the public in the best way, their future might look brighter. The ICC decision represents a net loss not only to the public and to this entire area but also to the railroads themselves which would be the principal beneficiaries of area development.

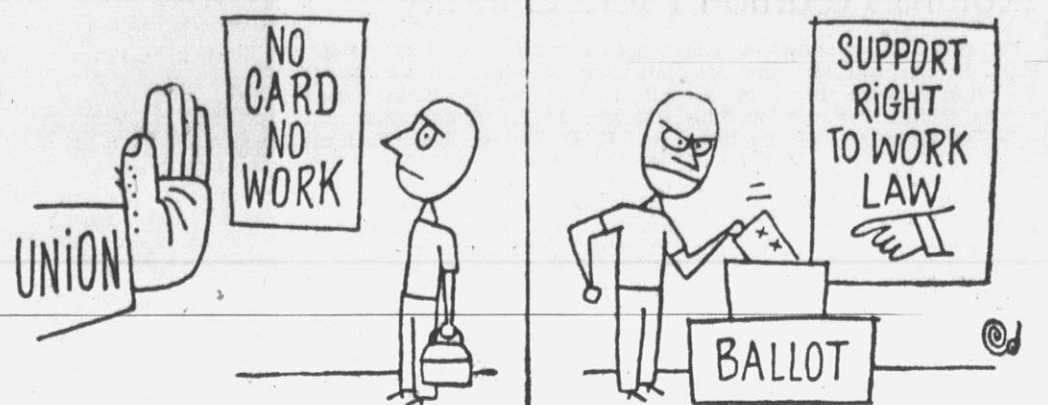

The Telegram is glad to note that the Southern Railroad plans to continue this fight. In such a courageous and sensible undertaking it can be sure of the backing of all the public which the ICC claims will not be served.

A Bill Of Rights For Bill

Bill, like all good Americans, cherishes his right as a free man to choose his political allegiance.

Bill finds his union is using his dues money to support a political candidate he disapproves.

Bill finds he can't stop paying dues or quit the union because its agreement with his employer requires membership in order to hold a job.

ONE THING... Bill can do is vote for a Right to Work law or the State Legislators who support them.

Delivered, Safe And Sound

If there's one thing I don't understand in this world it's kids.

Not that I don't like them, you understand. It's just that they are bewildering to a bachelor like myself.

Take my twin nephews, Donald and Ronald. They were at my house along with their daddy the other night when I came home.

When my brother got ready to leave they were interested in "The Lone Ranger" on TV and they wouldn't budge.

"Go ahead," I told my brother, Bill. "I'll carry them home in about an hour."

"You sure you can manage them?" Bill asked apprehensively.

"Sure," I said confidently. "They're just little things. They can't give me any trouble." My brother cast a doubtful look at me but then he left.

Things went along pretty well while we were at the house with their grandmother to look after the twins. Aside from getting hit on the head with a cake of soap by Ronald while I was bathing and having to chase Donald down to retrieve my car keys I must say it was a quiet evening.

Anyway I finally managed to bundle the two in my car and head for Lakewood Pines.

Then it began. Halfway between Greenville and Lakewood Pines Ronald burst into tears.

"What's the matter?" I asked. "I lost my gun," he cried. "Where?" I asked. "Out the window," Ronald boo hooed. I promised him another, a bigger and better one.

"I want that one," Ronald screamed.

"Okay, okay," I said. "We'll look for it."

Up and down Evans St. Ext. we rode, Ronald, Donald and me. Passing motorists stared but Ronald and Donald didn't seem to mind and I ignored them.

Finally I spotted the red gun alongside the road. I jumped out, picked it up and handed it to my nephew. Ronald was all smiles again. I was a wreck and Donald gave me a pat on the back.

After that I rolled up all the windows, drove to my brother's house with no lost time and deposited the twins safe and sound, guns and all.

Notebook On Life

Names And Their Meanings

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — What's in a name? It turns out, a lot more than often meets the ear.

The name of Vice President Richard M. Nixon for example, holds a meaning as well as the Decors in an election year. Nixon means "Nick's son," and Nick is a pet form of Nicholas, which means "people's victory."

Democrats may get some consolation, however, from the fact that Adlai Stevenson's last name stands for "son of Stephen" and Stephen is derived from "crown of garland."

President Dwight Eisenhower, and Estes Kefauver, the democratic vice presidential candidate, have names that hold a lot of history.

Dwight means light-complexioned, and it also means a descendant of Diot, possibly a pet form for Dionysus, the Greek god of wine. Eisenhower means iron miner of a man who made eisenhauers, a German saber blade strong enough to shear through iron nails.

Estes is derived from gracious, and also "son of the East." Kefauver is German for one who made and sold vats.

These are tidbits turned up by Elston C. Smith, a New York attorney who, after 20 years of research, has written a book, "The Dictionary of American Family Names." He gives 10,000 examples, ranging from Aagaard, dweller in the yard by the river, to Zylstra dweller near a drainage sluice.

Family names are on thing Russians never got around to inventing first. The Chinese did—more than 2,000 years ago.

Here are the original meanings of some of the names that may be familiar in your neighborhood:

Smith—A metal worker.

Jones—son of John, "gracious gift of Jehovah."

Johnson, Johnsen, Johanson, etc.—ditto Jones.

Miller—one who grinds grain.

Mickelson, Mikkelson—the son of Michael, "who is like God."

Brown—one with a dark complexion.

Cohen—the priest.

Kelly—grandson of contention.

Kilroy—son of the red-haired man.

Derivation of the names of some famous people seems oddly appropriate or strangely quaint.

Such as Calvin ("Bald") Coolidge—"dweller near a pool of cold water." Or Warren ("Keeper of a game preserve") Harding—"firm, friend." Or Woodrow ("one who came from a row of trees") Wilson—"resolution."

Republicans, of course, have known all along that Roosevelt

GOP Leaders Want Stassen's Removal

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON Although Harold E. Stassen has reported for work as President Eisenhower's disarmament adviser and "Secretary for Peace," his resignation has been demanded by leading Republican politicians, and his departure from the official family would not be mourned by Secretary John Foster Dulles and Undersecretary Herbert Hoover, Jr. He is as distasteful to them as he is to Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall.

The politicians' attitude is understandable, although their anti-Stassen arguments are not so convincing and logical as the viewpoint of the diplomatic corps. The politicians regard Stassen as the Truman of their organization in view of his disparagement of Vice President Nixon.

As Truman's criticism of Stevenson will be highlighted by GOP orators, so Stassen's insistence that Nixon will alienate 4,000,000 votes for President Eisenhower will be hulla-ballooed by the Democrats. In short, according to Ike's more hard-boiled advisers, Stassen is a campaign menace.

INVASION OF DIPLOMATIC DOMAINS, however, has a more reasonable basis for demanding Stassen's ouster as a diplomatic representative abroad.

Although Dulles and Hoover have always resented Stassen's invasion of their domain—first, as head of the International Cooperation Administration, and now as a disarmament advocate—they had no solid ground for asking President Eisenhower to get rid of the Minnesotaan. Such a demand would have appeared to be personal prejudice and bureaucratic jealousy.

But in trying to block Nixon's re-nomination, according to the new thesis, Stassen displayed a complete lack of ordinary common sense, political awareness and diplomatic savvy. It is doubtful if any man in modern political history ever made such a doll of himself.

STASSEN in view of Stassen's behavior, the Dulles faction believes that it would be foolhardy to continue to entrust such a serious problem as world disarmament to the mentality of such an individual. And there are other explanations for State's suspicions of his capacity in this role.

As he was in his "Stop Nixon" effort, Stassen has always been over-optimistic on Russia's willingness to disarm. After each international conference on this question he bobbed up in Washington with the report that "The Russians are coming along, and we are getting somewhere." Dulles and Hoover snicker when Stassen submits such a report at meetings of the Cabinet or the National Security Council.

THAT THIRD STRIKE There is another diplomatic strike against Stassen, which probably makes three and out.

All Wrong In Their Mark-Ups

By ELMER ROESSNER

It may be that for generations retailers have been guring their mark-ups all wrong.

Sam Flanel, general manager of the Controllers' Congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, has raised the question.

Under the traditional system in department stores and most other retail lines, sellers add a percentage to their cost to arrive at their selling price. In some lines, selling prices are fixed by manufacturers or competition, and the difference between cost and selling prices is the margin.

But whether mark-up or margin, merchants have insisted that it be within certain percentages of the cost. Out of the margin or mark-up the seller pays his expenses. If there is anything left, it's profit.

STANDARD MARK-UP. FACULTY?

In the department and specialty store field, merchants try for a mark-up that will provide a margin of 40 per cent. However, they seldom make that average because of sales, price cuts and competition. In general, they avoid items on which the margin cannot be more than 30 per cent. (because their costs average around 56 per cent of sales) and they avoid margins of more than 50 per cent (because they give competitors too much opportunity to undersell.)

Mr. Flanel, in addressing a controllers' group in Seattle, said that he and several leading retailers were re-examining this established mark-up system.

"If it costs approximately the same to buy, receive, mark, transport, wrap and deliver a $50 coat as a $250 coat, why should both take the same percentage mark-up?" he asked. "Would it make more sense to price out such known costs, add them to the invoice price and arrive at an adjusted, but truer cost?"

One store, he said is experimenting with a fixed dollars and cents add-on, which vary with the amount of merchandise costs. In the appliance department it expects to gain $10,000 in volume for every 0.1 per cent drop in mark-up.

Much current thinking, he said, is based on these theories:

1. Dollar return, rather than percentage return on sales, is the more important objective. The goal is to find the price that yields the greatest dollar return. This system is generally used in industrial pricing.

2. The second is the importance of turnover on profits. Supermarkets, he pointed out, have small margins but they take them fast and often. Under present systems in the department store field, the return per dollar invested in inventory ranges from as low as 18 cents a year in television to $9.11 in low-priced millinery.

3. The third is greater recognition of the importance of return on investment. Ratios reflecting the use of capital have been largely ignored in retailing. Mr. Flanel said, although it must be used in evaluating the investment of capital in branches.

Mr. Flanel said new methods of pricing would be kept under study by his organization. Out of this study may come a new pricing technique, perhaps one that will restore reasonable profits to the department store field.

"You know," Mr. Flanel said, "we're low man on the profit item pole."

GEE-WHIZ ITEMS FROM THE BUSINESS WIRE

To promote its new line of mattresses, a Chicago company is going to hide a $100,000 check in New York City next month. Clues will be found under mattresses in stores and others will be broadcast by Jerry Colonna. British coal mines are betting more oomph out of their dynamite by pumping water at high pressure on the coal before detonation. While partners may buy meals for employees who work late, they can't deduct the price of their own meals, the U.S. Tax Court rules.

They were unusually acute observers of the American political scene.

Their dispatches to London, Paris, Moscow, Bonn, Rome and Tokyo paralleled American reporters' extremely critical reports of Stassen's one-man adventure, including his abject apology and surrender. They also emphasized the fact—too much so, perhaps—that Nixon may yet be President of the United States.

MINNESOTA'S USEFULNESS WAXES As a result of their correspondence, Stassen's prestige and influence abroad have been destroyed completely. He can no longer serve effectively as Ike's Disarmament Ambassador with the great friendly or hostile powers.

A decent, tolerant and kindly person, Ike may carry Harold through the campaign. But the days of the usefulness of the erstwhile "boy wonder from Minnesota" are nearing their end. His perennial Presidential balloon has finally collapsed.

Curiosity Costs Business Plenty In Research Job

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Curiosity about what goes on inside a solid hunk of matter is costing some corporations plenty. It's likely to cost them more because expensive research facilities are being expanded.

The reason: What scientists call solid state physics has been replacing many companies with profitable products they couldn't make 10 years ago. One example is the transistor, the little rod that can replace some radio tubes.

Industrialists freely predict that within the next 10 years the major share of many businesses will come from products not now in production.

National Carbon next month will open a multimillion-dollar laboratory in Parma, Ohio, to concentrate on chemical and solid state physics.

Bell Telephone Laboratories' work in that field brought about the solar battery operated by the rays of the sun.

U.S. Steel opened a research center a few months ago in the Pittsburgh area, where solid state physics is applied particularly to metals. Other steel companies' research scientists work on specific problems in the same field. They learn, for example, about the strength and fatigue of metals, how to improve the one and forestall the other.

Solid state physics studies the ties that bind atoms together in solid matter and the movement of the electrons surrounding the nucleus of the atom. Nuclear physics, on the other hand, studies the core of the atom and from this study comes those loud bangs in the Pacific Ocean and the Siberian wastes.

The study of solids, however, is concerned more with development of materials and processes for the metal, electronic, power, chemical and electro-chemical industries. By learning how some electrons can move in the solid matter under the influence of electric or magnetic fields or under the influence of light of certain energy or wave lengths, scientists have developed such things as: Non-metallic magnets used in computers of advanced design; non-metallic powders used in modern tape recorders; solid state rectifiers to transform alternating current to direct current.

They are now seeking to perfect: Intermetallics, which they describe as completely new materials with properties not found in materials used by industry today; new catalysts to speed up chemical and physical reactions in industrial processes; new types of TV receiving and transmitting tubes; and a host of new electronic marvels.

Dr. W. R. G. Baker, vice president of General Electric in Syracuse, says, "our research and development engineers are busy constantly developing new products."

Woolson Statue For Gettysburg

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—A statue of an ancient warrior—last surviving member of the Northern Army—sits proudly erect on a fallen tree to survey the meadow across which Pickett led the famous charge of his gallant Confederate forces in a losing cause a century ago.

The Albert Woolson bronze depicts the Union veteran in his declining years, his gnarled hand resting on a walking stick. He wears the blue uniform of the Grand Army of the Republic, which he donned as a young drummer boy in the waning months of the Civil War.

The statue, slightly larger than life size, is the creation of Dr. Elvard Fairbanks, noted Western sculptor. It arrived yesterday at this national shrine—scene of the bloody battle that historians have called the turning point of the war, where the strife-torn nation's president later delivered his immortal address.

The memorial will be formally dedicated Sept. 12, Maj. Gen. U.S. Grant III grandson of the famed Union general, is to deliver the principal address.

The national auxiliary of the Sons of Union Veterans raised $17,000 to commission the statue as a tribute to Woolson and all his comrades in arms who have long since passed on.

Woolson died at the age of 109 Aug. 2 in Duluth, Minn., the last of 400,000 GAR veterans. He did not participate in the battle of Gettysburg. Three veterans of the Confederate Army survive. The oldest now is 113.

Estimated 850 Seen In Schools

FARMVILLE—An estimated 850 students are expected to be enrolled in the Farmville Public Schools after all student enrollments are completed. Principal Sam D. Bundy said today. The schools opened Tuesday with an enrollment of 830 in three departments, Bundy said. The primary department opened with 230 students, the grammar department started with 325 and the high school began with 275. Overall enrollment is approximately the same as last year, Bundy added, although first grade enrollment is slightly lower than in September 1955.

Full day schedules and lunchrooms will go into operation Monday. The band, glee club and athletic association are being organized this week and the football team has switched to one-a-day workouts under coaches Elbert Moyer and Sam Stell after two weeks of twice-a-day practice sessions. The Farmville Public Schools have a staff of 35 teachers with Bundy as Supervising Principal and Mrs. Lula Beaman as Building Principal of the Primary School.

Left His Mark In Oklahoma City

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—William S. Kanager of New York City spent only a few hours in Oklahoma but he left his mark. Gene Hines, manager of a Tulsa car renting firm, said Kanager obtained a car yesterday and drove to Bartlesville, 50 miles north of here. However, when Kanager completed his business at Bartlesville he drove back here in an auto he mistook for his rented car. It took police of both cities to unravel stolen car reports. Kanager was long gone by air when the mix-up was noted.

Accused Sits In Isolation Booth During Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A scowling, muttering man sits shackled hand and foot in a glaringly lighted isolation booth in a Los Angeles courtroom.

His thick shoulders strain against the straps binding him to a high-backed steel chair. His head rolls from side to side, up and down.

Across the room, watching him through double plate glass windows, sit six men and six women. They are the jurors who earlier saw James Merkuris, 40, hit the prosecutor in the face, and heard him curse and scream obscenities in the courtroom of Superior Court Judge Clement P. Nye.

They will determine whether Merkuris is sane or insane, whether he will be committed to a mental institution or tried for the murders of his former wife and her husband.

Merkuris was convicted a year ago of murdering Mrs. Despine Liles, 35, and was sentenced to death. But the Supreme Court reversed the conviction and ordered a new trial. He has never been tried for the slaying of Robert Forbes, 48.

The violent outbursts of Merkuris early in his current sanity hearing caused Judge Nye to order that he be physically gagged. But Merkuris worked the gag loose and continued his tirades. "Something had to be done so Merkuris could hear what was going on but so people in the courtroom couldn't hear him," said deputy Dist. Atty. J. M. Leavy. "I thought of those isolation booths they use on the TV quiz programs. Why couldn't we put him in one of them?"

Leavy telephoned a network and tried to borrow a booth but none was available. So he had one built, sound-proof and air conditioned. A loud speaker carries courtroom voices into the booth. A telephone line enables Merkuris and his attorney to converse.

The first time Merkuris was strapped to a wooden chair in the booth he broke loose and shattered the chair to kindling. Leavy ordered a steel chair, bolted to the floor and high enough to lift its struggling prisoner's feet from the floor.

Merkuris sits there now, flanked by two sheriff's deputies, as the proceedings drone on. He mutters and sometimes screams but the judge, the attorneys and the jurors are undisturbed.

"As far as I know," said Leavy, "this is the first time an isolation booth has been used in a courtroom to restrain and silence a prisoner. I believe it is the humane and just thing to do."

Construction Slowed On New Fire Station Going Up In Farmville

FARMVILLE—Work on the new Farmville fire station slowed this week when brickmasons were forced to other jobs.

The walls of the new station are about 75 per cent complete and will be finished when the masons have caught up work on other projects. Town officials are hoping to have the walls completed before cold weather so that structural steel which will support the station roof can be placed. The steel must be in place before the actual roof construction can begin.

The building itself is about 40 per cent complete with rough flooring in on both floors. All materials for completion of the job are on hand and finishing work will be started after the roof is placed.

Members of the volunteer fire department are doing most of the rough work on the project, but outside labor is being used for brickmasonry and other finishing work.

The station, located beside the town hall, will provide quarters for Fire Department equipment. Present fire equipment space in the town hall will be used to expand quarters for the police department and other town offices.

the mayor told a news conference yesterday:

"We decided I could best serve . . . by actively campaigning as a member of the ticket with the hope that the people of the State of New York will not only help elect Adlai Stevenson but will also have confidence in my record and policy; to send me to Washington to support me in that capacity."

"If the Democratic convention at Albany — Sept. 10 — sees fit to select me, I will accept."

Democratic leaders hailed his decision. Said Stevenson: "I could not be more pleased. Bob Wagner has been a splendid mayor of New York City. He stands at the very top among the fine, liberal younger leaders of Democratic party in our nation."

Sen. George Smathers of Florida, chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, said Wagner's announcement "is great news."

And James A. Finnegan, Stevenson's campaign manager, said Wagner "will make a worthy successor to one of the greatest Senators New York ever had, Sen. Lehman."

New York's Gov. Averell Harriman, an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination for whom Wagner cast his vote on the first ballot during the Democratic National Convention this month, said:

"The people of our state need him in the Senate in these critical times, to carry on in the fighting spirit of Sen. Lehman and of his own father."

State party leaders have expressed belief he would add strength to the Stevenson-Kefauver national ticket.

The Republican State Committee will decide on its candidate for the Senate seat at a meeting in Albany the same day as the Democrats.

Wagner's four-year term as mayor has two years to run. He will not have to resign to campaign for the Senate.

His present salary of $40,000 a year is considerably more than the $22,500 he would receive as a senator.

Farmville Scouts Are Presented 28 Merit Badges

FARMVILLE—Nine Farmville Boy Scouts received a total of 28 merit badges and other awards at a Court of Honor held here Tuesday night.

Three other Scouts who are candidates for advancement to higher rank in the program were examined by a Board of Review after the Court of Honor.

P. K. Ewell presented the awards to Scouts Moses Moyer, Howard Moyer, Hardy Moyer, Ben Moore, Bobby Eason, Nassif Canon, Jr., Ronnie Webber, Bobby Buss, and Todd Holmes. The Board of Review examined Scouts Shipley Ryan, Bob Fiser, Jr., and J. Y. Monk, III, as a preliminary to their advancement in the Scout program.

The Scout program, held in conjunction with regular meeting of the Farmville Rotary Club, preceded a report of a canoe trip down Contentnea Creek by several Explorers Scouts. Harold Flanagan presented the report on the canoe trip.

Benson Blames Low Quality For Prices

WASHINGTON (AP)—A drop in prices on the North Carolina-South Carolina Border Belt is due to an inferior quality flue-cured tobacco crop, according to Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

Sen. Scott (D-NC) had written Benson suggesting that increased imports were depressing tobacco prices. In a letter to Scott yesterday, Benson said that the 1956 Type 13 tobacco grown on the Border Belt "has been, definitely inferior in quality to the 1955 crop, hence the price drop."

The average price through Aug. 24 for Type 13 on the Georgia-Florida Belt was up $1.59 per 100 pounds from 1955 and the average price of Type 12 grown on the North Carolina Eastern Belt was up $1.74, Benson wrote.

He said the average price of Type 13 was down $3.12 per 100 pounds, adding, however, that in the past week the general average for Type 13 was only 48 cents per 100 pounds lower than last year's price.

Benson wrote that there has been a slight increase in foreign grown cigarette leaf tobacco imported. Because of their specialized nature, he said, they are not competitive with American tobacco.

In pre-war years, Benson wrote,

Sales Wednesday totaled 6,906,627 pounds for an average of $52.63, up 41 cents, with about 10 per cent of deliveries going to the Stabilization Corp.

Demand on the South Carolina and Border North Carolina markets was termed exceptionally good for nondescript. Other grades showed changes of $1 and $2, losses and gains about equal.

Wednesday 11,368,212 pounds were sold for an average of $52.22, down 98 cents. South Carolina markets sold 5,773,670 for an average of $52.89 and North Carolina markets sold 5,594,542 pounds for an average of $55.40.

Auction bid averages for some grades on the Eastern Belt yesterday:

Leaf—fair lemon 58, fair orange 60, low lemon 55.

Cutters—Low lemon 62.

Lugs—Good lemon 63, fair lemon 58, fair orange 55.

Nobody's Safe In Hectic National League Scramble

By The Associated Press
It's time to get the kids off the street in the National League pennant scramble, and the long Labor Day weekend—strictly a weekend of labor for Milwaukee, Brooklyn and Cincinnati—could do it.

Nobody's safe. Milwaukee and Brooklyn each play eight games in the next six days. And the second place Dodgers facing three doubleheaders in three days while the front-running Braves meet first the pesty St. Louis Cardinals, then the persistent third-place Redlegs in a pair of four-game sets.

Ex-Dodger Don Hoak tripped the Braves. His seventh-inning sacrifice fly tied the score at 3-all against starter Roger Craig and his single scored the winner off Don Bessent. Turk Lown won it in relief.

East Carolina Gridders To Arrive Today, Begin Drills

East Carolina College's 1956 football aggression will begin preparations for its toughest schedule in the school's history tomorrow morning. Head Coach Jack Boone has issued approximately 50 invitations, including 19 lettermen and a host of promising freshmen.

The Pirate squad is expected to arrive on campus today and will go through a complete physical before their first practice session slated for 9:30 in the morning.

East Carolina will have only one week of practice before their opening encounter with Norfolk Navy at Greenville, September 8. Heading the list of returning lettermen will be All-Conference quarterback Dick Cherry and his prime passing targets, Ray Pennington and Bill Helms. Co-Captain Pennington was an All-Conference nominee last fall. Cherry, "the Blond Bombshell," has been All-Conference each of his three years at ECC and was All-State his sophomore year.

Outstanding among the incoming freshmen crop is expected to be Larry Howell, gigantic 268 pound tackle, from Monroe, N.C.

Five Veterans Seeking Records

DARLINGTON, S.C. — Five veteran drivers strove to beat record shattering performances here today in qualifying runs for the Labor Day Southern 500-mile stock car race.

Today's hopefuls included the Flock brothers, Fonty and Tim, both of Atlanta; Curtis Turner, Roanoke, Va., and Joe Weatherly, Norfolk, Va., all aiming at the new mark of 119.639 miles per hour set yesterday by Buck Baker of Charlotte, N.C.

Baker broke a mark of 118.683 set Wednesday by Speedy Thompson of Monroe, N.C. Baker, in a Chrysler, also set a one lap record of 120.087 m.p.h.

The Charlotte speedster was one of five drivers who qualified yesterday for the race.

The others were Frank Mundy, Atlanta; Joe Eubanks, Spartanburg; Bill Widenhouse, Midland, N.C.; and Ralph Moody, Dania, Fla.

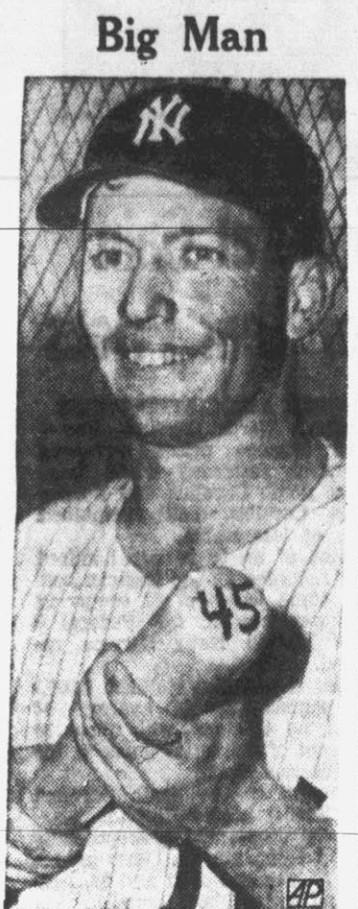

Mundy had the third fastest qualifying time in the two days of time trials. His speed average was 118.117 m.p.h.

Lowest speed thus far registered was turned in by Larry Flynn of Myrtle Beach, S.C., with 104.617.

Galveston, Tex. — George Zaharias today was to receive on behalf of his wife, Babe Didrikson Zaharias, a medal from the National Encampment of Veterans of Foreign Wars for "exceptional service rendered to country, community and mankind."

The medal was voted to Mrs. Zaharias at the VFW's annual encampment in Dallas recently. She was the first woman to be so honored.

At John Sealy Hospital, where the famous woman athlete is undergoing treatment for cancer, Mrs. Zaharias' condition was described as unchanged. The hospital said she "remains comfortable and free from pain" and that her spirits are good.

Eppes Drills Feature Big Freshman Turnout

Eppes high school football coach Percy Daniels announced today that the Bulldog schedule has been completed for the coming season and that practice sessions have begun.

Working with Daniels this fall are assistants Frazier Sanders and Leroy Foster.

"We have the largest number of freshmen ever to turn out for the team this year," Daniels said, "although most of our regulars are still working. A total of 23 freshmen have reported for drill thus far."

Daniels said that his biggest worry this season was to find a replacement for All-State quarterback Freddy Outterbridge. He named freshman Virgil Lynch as a possible contender for that position.

The coach's regulars are expected to be at drills beginning Monday. James Brewington, a 265-pound All-State tackle and center are outwitted by the Bulldogs.

ROCKY MOUNT—A star student wrestling card heading television favorite Hombres Montaña and two pretty girls is all set for action here Saturday night on the annual Rocky Mount Civitan Club All-Star Professional Wrestling Show. The action gets underway at 8 o'clock in Municipal Stadium.

Tremendous Montaña, who stands 6-1 and weighs 310 pounds, teams with Don Arnold in a main event tag team match. Arnold, from San Diego, weighs 225. They battle 225-pound Jack Vansky of Bayonne, N.J., and Tom Bradley, 230-pounder from St. Louis, in a two-of-three falls bout with an hour-time limit.

Another main event bout is between two of pro wrestling's prettiest young female stars, Corine Cordero, dazzling 140-pound blonde from Hazlehurst, Ga., takes on Millie Stafford, 138-pound beauty from Minneapolis. It's a two-fall scuffle with a one-hour limit.

The show's semi-final bout matches young and classy Dick Steinborn against Timmy Geoghan, 220-pounder from Ireland. Steinborn weighs 210 and is from Orlando, Fla.

Harold D. Cooley, North Carolina congressman from Nashville, notified local Civitans this week that he would attend the show. Proceeds from the event will be turned over by the Civitans to the Rocky Mount College Fund.

Coaches, Principal Talk About GHS Conditions

By BILLY ARNOLD
Principal O. E. Dowd, speaking of the current Boosters Club rally to improve athletic conditions at Greenville high school, said, "Our athletic program—all seven sports—must be run strictly on what money we receive from the Boosters Club and from gate receipts from our ball games."

He emphasized that the state does not allow the school any money "whatsoever" for athletics.

The two Phantom coaches, Bo Farley and Guy Lewis, probably closest to the crux of the situation, look at things only from the standpoint of what's good for the kids. Says Farley: "We've tried to give the kids a setup by which every boy can play some kind of sport. Only nine other schools in the state offer seven sports to their athletes, and eight of those are big AAA schools. We're trying to do our best but we're just not getting any help."

Farley continued, "It would be different if we were asking for a lot, but the truth is that we haven't even been able to give the kids the basic needs: equipment, adequate instruction and time, decent practice conditions."

BOLEY FARLEY

Guy Lewis Talks
Football Coach Guy Lewis, who is beginning his second season of coaching at GHS, said emphatically yesterday, "I'll repeat what I've said before: I've never seen anything like these Greenville boys. They're the best I've ever worked with anywhere. They want to do something in athletics so bad it hurts."

"It's a shame that boys who love sports so well should be made to feel that they're second best to the people of Washington or those other conference teams even be for a single game is played—yet, that's the way it has been for such a long time, simply because they feel that they are neglected, that people do not care about them."

Lewis stated that if his boys were allowed only the basic equipment, they could and would become a team any town could be proud of. "But some of the equipment that we now have, I'd rather take out and burn before I'd let any of the kids wear it. It's that bad."

The youthful coach told reporters yesterday that he "begged and begged" last season for movies of some of the Phantom games. "You'd be surprised how helpful movies can be in helping both the coach and the players to spot and correct mistakes." Finally, Lewis said, he went out and purchased, from his own pocket, a projector and "we were then allowed to have two movies taken."

$1,500 In The Hole
Coach Farley went straight to the heart of the matter when he said evenly, "We were $1,500 in the red last year and that pretty well speaks for itself. All we ask is that we have enough to give the boys a decent chance."

Booster Club President Ford McGowan remarked recently that if the people of Greenville would "only show some interest in the athletic program at the school, conditions there would change for the better. In Kinston, a local club, composed of interested citizens, raises $8,000 each year to support their high school sports program."

The Boosters Club is sponsoring a meeting for all interested citizens and organizations at the city court room, in the Municipal Building, Tuesday night at 8:00. "The Boosters Club intends to make some changes," McGowan said, "but we can't do it without help from the people of Greenville."

The Royal Law of Love

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 6:27-31; 10:30-37; James 2

Jesus said that we should love those who hate us; be good to those who curse us, and pray for those that ill use us. Christ, suffering on the cross, asked His Father to forgive His tormentors.

"Who is my neighbor?" Jesus was asked. He told of a traveler who was robbed of all his possessions, beaten and left to die. A Samaritan saw the man, but passed him by; so did a Levite.

A Samaritan saw the man, poured soothing oil and wine on his wounds, bound them up and took him to an inn to be cared for, leaving money with the innkeeper and promising more if needed.

Jesus asked who was neighbor to this man? His questioner said, "He that showed mercy to him." Then Jesus answered, "Go thou and do likewise."

MEMORY VERSE—Luke 6:31.

The Royal Law of Love

CHRIST TEACHES US THE IDEAL WAY TO ACT IN OUR RELATIONS WITH OTHERS

Scripture—Luke 6:27-31; 10:30-37; James 2

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

WE BEGIN this lesson with Christ's words telling us the ideal way to conduct ourselves in our relations with others. Here are His words: "Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you, bless them that curse you, and pray for them that despitefully use you." Jesus did that. Even when suffering on the cross He asked His Father in heaven to forgive those who were torturing Him.

If we are struck, we should not strike back; if our cloak is taken, we should offer our coat also. We should give freely to those in need, expecting no return. Most of us have never suffered by being struck in anger or by having our clothes taken from us, but there are thousands in various parts of the world who have.

What to do? Jesus said to love them, bless and pray for them. Only a person who is indwelt by his own beast and took him to the nearest inn where he could receive care. Going still further, the Samaritan gave the innkeeper money, telling him if more was needed, he would give it when he came that way again.

Who in this case proved to be a neighbor to this man in need? "He that showed mercy on him," answered the lawyer. Jesus answered, "Go and do thou likewise."

I have always wondered if the lawyer took Christ's lesson to heart or if he disliked Jesus making a Samaritan the hero of His story.

It might be asked of pupils of all ages if they have ever been an injured person and how did they act if they did. Did they stand and stare? did they run away fast for fear they would become ill or become involved? Or did they, if young, run for help, or, if older and possessing of some knowledge of first aid, do

MEMORY VERSE

"As ye would that men should do unto you, do ye also to them likewise."—Luke 6:31.

Christ's spirit could do that, but all can try.

A lawyer who was trying to tempt Jesus by asking Him what he should do to inherit eternal life, being told that he should love his neighbor as himself, asked, "And who is my neighbor?" Then Jesus told the story of the man who was beaten and robbed of all his possessions on his way from Jerusalem to Jericho, and left to die.

No matter how many times we have read or heard this story we love to hear it again and again, as children love the stories read or told to them when they are young, which we all remember fondly when we grow older.

A priest came by, saw the suffering man, but instead of going to his aid, he averted his eyes, crossed the street and passed by. A Levite did the same, but a Samaritan (despised by Jews), went to the man, who probably was a Jew, poured soothing oil and wine into his wounds, then bound them up, hoisted him onto what they could to minister aid to the injured person?

What would Jesus have done? He would have healed the wound, but as we could not do that, if we acted in His spirit we would do what we could to help, even if the injured one was someone we might have hated.

James reminds us that God our Father is no respecter of persons. A rich man dressed well and a poor man poorly clothed might come into the synagogue or into any public place, and the rich man might be given a good seat in the synagogue and the poor man be left to stand. Why do people favor the well-to-do and often give shabby treatment to the poor?

"Hearken, my beloved brethren. Hath not God chosen the poor of this world rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which He hath promised to them that love Him? If ye fulfill the royal law according to the scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself, ye do well."

HOSTAGE

by ARCHIE JOSCELYN

CHAPTER 20

Anger coursed in Oates at sight of the doctor. Oates had a gun in his hand, and this was a remote place. With the team, his escape would be far simpler. But caution stayed his hand. It wasn't far to dawn, and to travel openly would be to invite a look from some of the soldiers who would be hunting for him. And at this hour a gunshot would be heard for miles.

Eklund was hiding something, piling stones around it. Caution prevailed, and Oates kept care-fully out of sight while the doctor finished his job, harnessed the team and hitched them to the buggy, then drove away. Only then did the outlaw have a look at the boxes.

"Rifles!" he muttered, having gotten a box open. "A Plains gun! The first I've seen in a long time. And a lot better than those old castoffs I was taking out last night! Two new rifles and the rest of them relics."

He was thankful that he had resisted temptation. His main grudge was against Dolf Kinney, and now he saw a way to carry it out. It was Kinney who had double-crossed him. The doctor had only been doing his duty as he saw it.

During the day he'd hide out. In this same coulee. Then he'd go on until he found the Indians, taking one of the cabins along. With it as a sample, he could bring them back to get the rest. There would be no question then of how they would receive him.

Unsuspecting the peril of which he had stood, Eklund headed on toward the mountains. The safest course now would be to go through the motions which were expected of him, and that should give him a few days before Kinney would suspect that he hadn't delivered the guns.

It was afternoon when he arrived at the Indian camp. Or the spot where the camp had stood. Today it was deserted, and there was about that an ominous portent like the wind whistled down from the peaks, with the wall of winter in its teeth.

It had been the notion of Patty and Peggy that Narcissa should ride a while each day. They went to the corrals and caught, bridled, and saddled the horse, a white cayuse, then took turns showing her how it should be done.

Narcissa had demurred a bit at the notion of wearing levis and riding astraddle like a "man," but she had yielded to their insistence. Having done so, she became eager as her younger companions to ride every day. There was a vast difference in such an excursion from the rides she had known in the east, balanced none too securely sidesaddle, fearful of allowing her horse to go faster than a walk.

This was a day of gathering clouds through which the sun made sporadic appearances, and the usual pushing wind was absent. Narcissa rode alone, the girls being otherwise occupied.

Despite her trip by stage and her first journey with Eklund, she was still amazed at the bigness of this land, the vast sweep of sky and plain. It was both frightening and challenging, but sight of the town on one side, the stockade of the post off the other way, were reassuring symbols that it was not complete wilderness.

Today, about to swing back, she sighted another rider on a white horse, who waved and galloped closer. Helen Blake rode as naturally as she walked, and she exclaimed delightedly as she came within hailing distance.

"So you ride, too! Talk about luck! At last I'll have someone to ride with!"

"That will be nice for me, too. But I shouldn't think someone to ride with would present any problem for you, with the post full of men," Narcissa suggested.

"It would seem as though an army of men should simplify matters, but it only complicates them," Helen sighed. "For one thing, I'm the major's sister, so if anyone escorts me, he must be an officer, or detailed as a sort of honor guard, must ride respectfully behind. Have you ever tried carrying on a conversation with your horse's tail, and a tongue-tied young cavalier? It's hardly inspiring. As for the officers, there are only two who are unmarried, the Ape and Bill McKinstry. I'm not so hard up for an escort that I encourage Stockett, and Bill, bless his heart, can't forget the girl he left behind him. I have been strongly tempted to set my cap for your doctor, but a good soldier should know when a campaign is foredoomed to failure, and save wasting his ammunition. And I can't say that I blame him in the slightest, my dear!"

Color stole into Narcissa's cheeks. "I just can't keep up with you," she complained.

"Bill McKinstry assures me that I jump around like a grasshopper," Helen agreed. "But I have eyes, and so has the doctor! It leaves me feeling dreadfully old-maidish and neglected, of course, though I have to remind myself that I had opportunities prior to your coming which I neglected. Such thoughts make one feel like a martyr, and I sometimes toy with the idea of what would happen if I were to ride off and get lost, or be kidnapped by the Indians, or something. Possibly I could even create a sensation—a mild one."

"You'd do a lot more than that, as you very well know. You'd be another Helen of Troy!"

Helen's eyes danced. "Just another Helen of Troy, disrupting the world? No, I'd be Helen of Coyote Creek, but it's an idea! If I could be sure of how my captors would react, I'd head into the far blue yonder!"

Tom Armstrong had become a methodical man across the years. Once, fairs of impatience had irked him, realizing that always there was so much work to be done, and that he had too few hands for the task and too little time to do it in. With riper judgment he had come to realize the futility of striving to accomplish too much, and now, in town, he made his purchases methodically. Groceries in the grocery section of Kinney's big store, a bolt of bright-patterned cloth for dresses for the girls from across the aisle, farm hardware for himself from the rear of the building. He was completing his list when Dolf Kinney approached.

"Tryin' to buy me out, Tom?" he hailed him jovially. "If I could get me a few more customers like you, we'd have to build a railroad in here. Got time to talk a minute?"

"I can always find time, if it's important," Armstrong conceded. He'd never liked Kinney, but this store was the only source of supply, and you treated your bread and butter civilly. He followed Kinney across to the saloon and in to his office. With the door closed, Kinney said, "Nice pair of kids you have, Tom. Got plenty of spirit. You're going to be kind of peeved at me, I expect, for takin' Narcissa away from there."

"Are you going to do that?" Armstrong asked, and it was as much challenge as question. He'd always had a quick temper, and knowing the background here, he couldn't keep his voice impersonal.

"I sure am," Kinney stated flatly. "I figure I've made it plain to everybody in this country that I aim to marry her. What I want, I get."

Somebody Stole Govn't Garbage

BALTIMORE (AP)—Who would steal 148,835 gallons of government-owned garbage?

Two pig farmers, says the FBI, William C. Englehart Jr., 20, of Gloucester, N.J., and Edward J. Lafferty, 40, of Glen Olden, Pa., were charged with larceny by the federal government.

Assistant U.S. Atty. William F. Mosner said Englehart and Lafferty removed garbage from mess halls at Bainbridge, Md., Naval Training Center under contract to the Navy. They used it as feed for their pigs.

They are accused of stealing 148,835 gallons of it by falsifying weight slips.

Can Eliminate Epidemic Polio

NEW YORK (AP)—Epidemic polio can be eliminated by the end of next year by mass use of Salk vaccine, says the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Basil O'Connor, Foundation president, said yesterday in his annual report:

"When the (Salk) vaccine is procured and released in sufficient quantities and used by sufficient numbers of people, we think epidemic polio will be eliminated."

"If all concerned cooperate, we can see it happen in the United States by the end of 1957."

O'Connor's report stressed the value of the third vaccine injection—the booster dose given seven months or more after the first two primary injections.

EXTRA GUEST

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP)—The Rev. E. Paul Smith was watching television. He was joined by a ring-neck pheasant, who flew through a window. The window had been closed.

The bird was not hurt. Its next stop was Noy Aug Park, accompanied by zookeeper Jack Davis.

ROCK PICKERS

HELENA, Mont. (AP)—Police were sure it wasn't pick pockets who picked off four rock pickers. They weighed about 2,600 pounds.

WARREN, Conn. (AP)—As long as anyone can remember, there's been no good reason not to call the big yellow cat at Rob's Ridge Farm "Davy Crockett."

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

HOME MODERNIZATION is going great guns all across the country. Building materials and equipment manufacturers who sponsored the campaign called Operation Home Improvement, have found the older house market so big they are going to continue to push home remodeling next year and probably indefinitely. After all, a new house seems to become an old house almost over night and it's a rare family that hasn't started some kind of an improvement within a year or two after moving into a new house.

Maybe you have wondered how much would be involved in bringing the average old house completely up to date, inside and out. A home modernizing consultant of Peoria, Ill., says that judging from remodeling plans he designed for more than 100 houses in the past year, the cost runs around $3,000.

"It is not unusual, particularly on farms, to find modernization projects running up to $20,000," says this expert, Arthur B. Campen, tipping off contractors in Practical Building, trade publication of the light construction industry.

And projects of such size are excellent investments, he says, because the value of the old house plus the cost of remodeling is noticeably less than it would be to start with unimproved land and construct an equivalent brand-new dwelling.

THE COST of modernizing your home depends on just how far you want to go and whether you want to tackle the whole work at one time or do it gradually. Either system works. After all the FHA reports that the home remodeling loans averaged only $664 last year. If these $3,000 to $20,000 projects spread, the FHA average ought to take a jump.

Campen says modernizing a house means to make existing space more livable and to give the exterior a modern appearance. The first step in a complete job is to rip out all non-bearing partitions to get a feeling of more space and eliminate small dark cubicles.

More livable space usually can be added by building a family room or a play room. This can be done often in a basement, or by enclosing a porch or breezeway. Larger windows usually are needed, especially on the garden side, where even walls of glass may make the room seem to expand and bring the outside in.

Since most older houses are two or three stories high, they are made to appear lower and longer for the modern look. Sometimes attaching a garage and breezeway will lengthen the house and make it look lower. Sometimes a color can turn the trick—a dark roof and painted the second story a deeper tone than the first story.

WHAT DO MOST houses need? Campen's projects, ranging from Nova Scotia to California and Saskatchewan to Florida, show that 10 out of 10 older houses need new wiring systems, better lighting, modernized kitchens, more storage space, repainting and re-decorating.

Nine out of 10 new roofs—either because the old roof is worn out or because new roofing on a wing or addition makes the old material look too shabby.

Eight out of 10 need insulation. Even houses built in the last few years are not adequately insulated by today's standards.

Seven out of 10 need new or improved heating systems, new and relocated bathrooms, and more windows.

Five out of 10 need new siding. Even if old narrow clapboards are still serviceable, new types of 10 and 12-inch siding give a house longer and lower lines.

"Older houses are basically simple in plan," Campen serves. "Strip off ugly, useless porches and remove gingerbread trim and moldings, and you get down to simple structure which lends itself to modern up-to-date treatment. By removing unnecessary ornamentation and decoration, the homeowner holds future maintenance to a minimum."

Communications Workers In N.C. Remain Off Job

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—More than 6,000 members of the Communications Workers of America at three North Carolina plants of the Western Electric Co. remained off the job today in their strike over a new work contract.

Negotiating teams of the company and the union were to meet here at 2 p.m. today in an effort to break the stalemate.

The union also scheduled a meeting this morning for its members of the Winston-Salem plant involved. Union officials said union members of the Greensboro and Burlington plants also were invited.

John Walker, international representative of the CWA, called the meeting for the Winston-Salem Fairgrounds to brief the workers of the progress of the negotiations.

Both sides reported no progress in negotiations yesterday.

The old contract expired midnight Friday, Aug. 24. The main issue is a wage increase.

Prison Sentence Mix-Up Results In His Freedom

RALEIGH (AP)—Because of a mix-up in his original sentence, an Edgecombe County man who started serving a five year sentence in prison in January is now free.

The State Board of Paroles announced today that George Manning Jr., 22-year-old Negro sentenced from Edgecombe for breaking, entering and larceny, has had his sentence commuted to time served.

The board said apparently there was a mix-up in Manning's records and "it appears the court originally intended to impose a sentence of six months."

Three other prisoners had their sentences commuted and 10 others were released under parole. One of these parolees is a 15-year-old Negro.

Gun-Toting For Emergency Only

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—When can a truant officer carry a gun? Only if he can prove he has a right to carry concealed a deadly weapon for protection in the line of duty, the state attorney general's office decided.

Ruben Watts of the Letcher County Board of Education had asked if truant officers could carry weapons. Asst. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Matthews replied the right "would depend on a particular set of facts and a particular situation."

The world's smallest republic, San Marino was founded 16 centuries ago.

Women Initiated Civil Defense Set-Up For Town

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. — The little town of Waverly, Tenn., will never be the same again since its Women's Study Club became convinced that "it can happen here."

When they learned back in 1954 that their town of 1,800 situated near a large electrical generating station and titanium plant, was only some six hours away from potential bombing attack, the club started to work on a local civil defense program.

Now, less than two years later, they have 16 civic organizations working actively on some phase of local civil defense. Among the town's CD accomplishments are 135 women graduates in home nursing, a 27-man auxiliary police force, an auxiliary fire service, an active emergency mass feeding program, a transportation corps, and identification tags for every grade-school child.

Despite their success, the women found civil defense in a town even the size of Waverly isn't built overnight, and not without discouraging setbacks.

The time they tried to call a statewide civil defense meeting of civic groups, only three people attended—the three representatives from Waverly. Later, they learned that, through a telephone committee or face-to-face contacts, local people would come to hear about civil defense and do their part.

Why put all that effort into civil defense—effort which may be wasted?

A report of the Waverly Study Club on its CD program puts it this way: "The effectiveness of the project may never be concretely shown—we pray to God that we shall never need to use the techniques learned on how to evacuate our people or how to rescue the injured lying under twisted rubble. But, should such a tragedy occur, we, the people of Humphrey County, will be prepared."

S. C. Independent Movement Gains Byrne's Support

COLUMBIA (AP)—South Carolina "Independent" Democrats have the support of two of the state's leading political figures in their efforts to have eight uncommitted presidential electors placed on the November ballot.

Yesterday former Gov. James F. Byrnes "gladly" signed a petition to this effect.

Last night Sen. Nominat Strom Thurmond of Aiken said he intends to sign a petition if it is presented to him "as I feel the people are entitled to freedom of choice in the election."

Thurmond added, however, that signing the petition "doesn't necessarily mean which way any person is going to vote."

The "independents" must gather 10,000 signatures by Sept. 7—the deadline for submitting the electors' names for the ballot.

Shoplifting On A Major Scale

RALEIGH (AP)—A man and woman who allegedly went on a jewelry store shoplifting spree in Rocky Mount yesterday were caught a few hours later in Raleigh.

Held without charge for further investigation were Ida Mae Hurst, 23, and Bud Wright, 51, both Negroes, who gave their home address as New York City.

A man and woman answering their description made the rounds of Rocky Mount's jewelry stores and got at least four watches and a dozen diamond rings.

A quick investigation led the SBI to tip Raleigh police they believed the pair were headed to Raleigh.

Raleigh police said the woman had snatched a tray of diamond rings from The Jewel Box, Inc. here and was in another jewelry store when she was taken into custody.

Wright was waiting outside the store in a maroon Cadillac. Police said they found jewelry and new clothing with a retail value of more than $3,000 in the car.

Unrecommended Procedure Works

HOBBS, N.M. (AP)—This worked, but it's not recommended as general practice.

Three-year-old Ray Cox was being rushed by his mother to the hospital to have a small rubber ball removed from his throat.

Their car and another collided. The impact apparently did the trick. Examination turned up no ball. Doctors theorized the impact bounced it out.

No Incidents As Five Negro Children Applied

BRYSON CITY, N.C. (AP)—Five Negro students were turned away from the Swain County High School when they applied for admission here yesterday.

It left without incident.

They were the first time Negroes had applied for admission in a white public school in this state this school year, and the first such effort since the recent enactment by the Legislature of a plan empowering local units to close rather than integrate. The voters will vote Sept. 8 on a constitutional amendment to put the plan into effect.

A year ago, five Negro children applied for admittance at the Old Fort elementary school but were refused. Their parents promptly went to state and federal courts in an effort to have the board overruled. No final decision has been made in the case.

The application and rejection here took place before the crowd of about 35 adults and 100 white students realized what was happening.

The Negro children, accompanied by their parents, entered the office of school principal Lacy Ballard and were gone in less than five minutes after Supt. T. L. Woodard refused to admit them.

"If you want to apply for admission next year, you will have to register within 10 days after the close of the school term, according to the 1955 Legislative School Assignment Law," he told them. Four of the Negro pupils have been attending the Negro school at Sylva. One recently returned here from Ohio.

Swain County Negro students moved into a new plant at Sylva this year, erected at a cost of $100,000 in state and local funds.

At the Negro school 86 were enrolled yesterday.

Sonic Booms Set Off Some Alarm

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Sonic booms pealed across the Oklahoma City sky yesterday setting off scores of telephone calls to police and newspapers.

One mother, before she learned the blasts were caused by jets apparently rehearsing for the National Air Show here, followed advice in her civil defense manual. She covered her children with a sheet to reduce "radiation."

Soviets Protest Athlete's Arrest

LONDON (AP)—The Russians today canceled a track meet with Britain in protest against the arrest of the Soviet champion woman discus thrower, Nina Ponomareva, on a charge of shoplifting.

The hefty girl, a potential Olympic champion, jumped bail after she was picked up Wednesday in the theft of five cheap hats and there was a strong suspicion that she has flown the coop.

The leader of the Russian team said he had called off the two-day British-Russian meet scheduled to open tonight as a protest against "the dirty provocation."

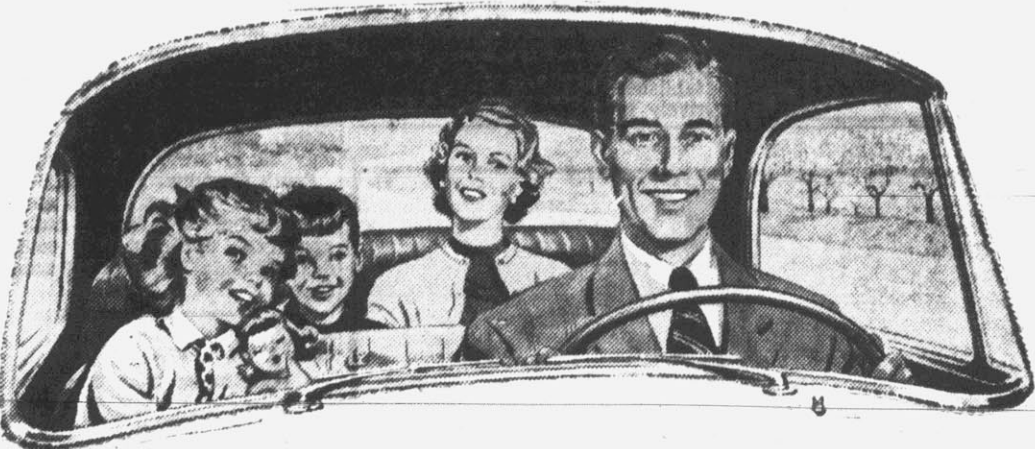

Nina is sought as a fugitive for failing to appear in magistrate's court yesterday after being released under $14 bail in care of a Soviet Embassy official.

The Soviet Embassy was believed to take the view that Nina had diplomatic immunity from arrest. But a British Foreign Office spokesman said he did not feel an athlete qualified for that.

The discus thrower won the 1952 Olympic gold medal under her maiden name of Romaschkova. She is a schoolteacher, married to a doctor and mother of a 2-year-old boy. She speaks no English.

Health Officials Keep Eye On Sleeping Sickness Toll

By EDMOND LEBRETON
WASHINGTON (AP)—Public health officials are watching with concern, but without great alarm, spotty outbreaks of sleeping sickness among men and animals across the country.

The concern comes from the fact that sleeping sickness, a form of encephalitis, is often fatal. But the number of cases reported so far in 1956 was classed by specialists as about average, although there are disturbing concentrations in some places.

The New York State Racing Commission has prohibited shipment of race horses into the state from anywhere in New England, because of a reported outbreak of sleeping sickness there.

Dr. Robert D. Courter, interviewed by telephone at the U.S. Public Health Service Communicable Disease Center at Atlanta, said, "there is no unusual epidemic. We have pretty much the same thing every summer."

Dr. Courter and several of his associates were asked about the results of an Associated Press survey this week, which showed sleeping sickness among men, animals or both reported this year in 20 states. At least six human fatalities were reported; in a seventh the diagnosis was not positive.

The Associated Press survey brought reports of 338 cases of encephalitis among horses and mules since Jan. 1. The public health specialists said 1,000 cases or more in a year would mean an epidemic—and the season for the mosquito-borne disease is moving toward its close.

The reports gave a total of 447 cases of encephalitis among humans. However, 357 of these came from California with the notation they had not all been typed. Dr. Carl Dauer of Public Health Service headquarters here said that almost certainly only a few of these cases were true sleeping sickness. Encephalitis is endemic (constantly present in greater or less degree) in Southern California, among other places, he said, and forms of it sometimes appear as a consequence of such diseases as measles.

Dr. Dauer expressed the opinion that most of the 52 cases reported in Ohio, the next highest state total, were also not sleeping sickness.

The fatalities attributed to the disease were two each in Missouri and Massachusetts, and one each in Idaho and Maryland. A third death in Massachusetts was tentatively diagnosed as due to sleeping sickness.

There is no treatment for sleeping sickness that has proved effective, the specialists agreed. A vaccine has been developed which protects horses from developing the disease, but there is no mass vaccination of humans.

Among unvaccinated horses, the mortality from the more virulent type of disease encountered on the East Coast is 90 per cent once the symptoms develop, the Public Health Service said. The mortality rate for humans has not been established because of the comparatively few cases reported.

The virus that causes the disease is believed to live on year after year, in wild birds that do not themselves develop sleeping sickness. Mosquitoes transmit the virus from birds to men and animals, especially horses. Men do not catch the disease from horses, but an outbreak among horses is nevertheless a danger signal, since the same mosquito can carry the same virus from the same sources to humans.

The public health specialists cautioned against jumping to conclusions about the concentration of the disease by comparing figures from different states. Not all state agencies are equally diligent in looking for and reporting sleeping sickness, they said. Moreover, a high number of animal cases in a particular state may mean that fewer animals there were vaccinated beforehand.

Reports to the Associated Press from state health offices included: Arizona, 14 animal cases, below average, no human cases; California, 357 human cases, only a few typed, no reports on animals; Florida, 84 animal cases, a jump of 30 in two weeks, no human cases; Georgia, at least 16 animal cases, higher than usual, no human cases.

Idaho, 61 animal cases, one fatal human case; Kentucky, no animal cases, 14 human; Maine one unclassified case of human encephalitis; Massachusetts, 5 definite human cases, including 2 fatalities, one possible fatality, 15 horses killed; Maryland, 27 animal cases, one fatal case among humans, Michigan, seven animal cases, one human, four animal; Minnesota, four human cases, two fatal, one animal; Montana, three human, 13 animal; North Carolina, no human cases, 25 animal, "compared with hundreds last year"; North Dakota, 5 human, 3 animal; Ohio, 52 human cases this year compared with only 38 in previous five years.

South Carolina, 7 animal; South Dakota, 5 human, four animal; Washington, 58 animal, outbreak apparently declining, 11 counties quarantined; Wyoming, 2 animal cases.

meant "one who lives at or near a rose farm." But probably even those who objected the loudest to the late F.D.R. knew that his first name, Franklin, stands for "a freholder who held substantial land for which he paid only a small rent and who rendered little or no service to the Lord."

Sometimes it isn't too cheering to look up the origin of your family name. "A Mulvaney is 'the grandson of a fussy person overly concerned with minor details.' A Monroe is one who dwells 'near a red swamp.' Anybody named Muscarello may brood over the fact his ancestors were thought to possess the characteristics of a goat."

"Why don't you look up your own name, Rover?" suggested my wife, Frances.
So I flipped the page to Boyle, and learned it stood for "grandson of Baoghleall, one who made vain pledges."
"They certainly picked the right one for you," murmured Frances. Searching for a quick comeback I look up her maiden name—"Young." The book said it meant "one younger than another with whom he was associated."

Expansion And Improvement Of Sewers Begun

FARMVILLE—Although revised plans for Farmville's new sewerage disposal plant have not been completed, work has already begun on expansion and improvement of sewer lines in the town.

Town Clerk Cleveland Taylor said today that the Heater Well Company, contractor for the sewer line improvement and expansion project, started work this week. The contractor is working in the Northeastern section of the town on lines which will eventually be connected with the sewerage disposal plant.

William C. Olson and Associates of Raleigh are still working on the plant revision plans, according to Taylor who expects to receive their new plans within a short time. Revisions were necessary after preliminary bids on the plant construction exceeded original estimates. A bond election on May 3, 1955, approved $430,000 for the new plant and the expansion and improvement of the sewer lines.

Taylor pointed out today that the town was able to proceed with the original plans for the plant if Congress allocates money in its next session to support a bill passed earlier this year. The new public law authorizes the federal government to assist municipalities up to 30 per cent of total cost for construction and improvement of sewerage facilities such as Farmville is doing. No money to support the bill was made available by Congress when the law was passed.

Taylor added that new bids will be asked when the modified plans for the plant are returned by the Raleigh firm.

Big Pay-Off In Elections Of '56 Will Be In Congress

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—Keep your eye on your candidates for Congress.

The big spotlight in this year's election shines on the presidential and vice presidential candidates and what they promise. They'll get headlines every day.

But no matter what they promise, the pay-off will come in Congress.

You may be an Eisenhower fan or a Stevenson booster. Both are men of goodwill, and presumably mean what they say.

Nevertheless, in almost everything they say there is a huge, built-in payoff.

If President Eisenhower, or Adlai Stevenson, becomes president and gets a Congress where a majority of the representatives and senators goes along with his ideas, then you can expect his ideas to be carried out.

Otherwise, his programs get killed, changed, or wrecked.

In a general way—but only in a very broad and general way—the president will provide the leadership in foreign affairs and national defense.

Unless Congress goes along with him, he'll be like a man talking to himself.

For example: If the President wants to continue the foreign aid program, Congress will have to vote the money to make it possible.

If the President tells Congress about the atomic development he has in mind, or the new ships, or planes or guns he wants, Congress, which holds the purse strings, decides how much he gets.

The President can recommend a tax cut till he's blue in the face, but only Congress can cut taxes.

The President may recommend that federal money be spent to help get schools built. No such money will be spent unless Congress votes it.

Yet, while you can sit at home and see Eisenhower, Stevenson, Vice President Nixon and Estes Kefauver on your TV screen, telling you what they'll do, you may have to hunt around the county or district to hear the congressional candidates.

And when you do hear them—if you want to vote for the man who will reflect your own views when he gets to Washington—be sure he talks on the issue and, if he doesn't, try to pin him down by asking him.

If he's a member of Congress seeking re-election to House or Senate, the best guide to what he really thinks is not just what he says now but how he voted on the dential candidate become such glamorous figures that they and their campaigns are apt to distract attention from local congressional races. This is not intentional, because they know the value of a Congress that will work with them.

For when all the oratory dies away, the election is over, and the new Congress takes over in January, a major portion of the power of government will rest not in the White House but under the white dome of the capitol.

Bible College Student Speaks At Services

"How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation?" was the text and subject of Melvin Worthington's message last night at Grace Free Will Baptist Church on Watauga Avenue as the inter-denominational evangelistic series being conducted by the Musical Messengers moved into the final phase.

"Jesus said, 'I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me,'" quoted the young minister from the Gospel of John in pointing out that there is only one way to escape the wrath of God which will be someday poured out on sinful man.

One of a set of twins on the Musical Messenger team, the speaker showed the necessity of being prepared for the entrance into eternity. "We will meet God someday with Him sitting either as a Judge or Saviour," the Musical Messenger pointed out. He stressed the dangers involved in neglecting to make preparations for eternity.

The Columbia Bible College student went into the Old Testament for illustrations of the danger in neglecting one's salvation.

"People wouldn't listen to Noah, but the floods came anyway," the youthful Worthington stated. "Then, it was too late for those outside the ark."

The speaker cited the story of Belshazzar and the handwriting on the wall. "Old Belshazzar was too busy throwing drunken parties to take heed of God's message of salvation. It was too late when he saw God's handwriting on the wall. Belshazzar was slain before he had found salvation from his sins. He neglected too long."

"God may call anyone of us at any time. We can't afford to neglect God's salvation through Jesus any longer," the twin concluded.

A Methodist ministerial student at High Point College, Bob Harris will bring tonight's message on "Chance or Choice." Jerry Ballard will lead the singing.

Ballard, Messenger president, will bring the closing message of the series tomorrow night in an outdoor service which will be in the vacant lot next to the church on Watauga Avenue.

Pair Sentenced In Baby's Death

S. T. Morning and Martha Eliva Pollard were convicted of concealing the birth of a new-born infant and sentenced to between six and eight years each in the State Prison yesterday in Pitt County Superior Court.

Both defendants gave notice of appeal to the Supreme Court of North Carolina. Presiding Judge Chester R. Morris placed the 22-year-old Negro woman and the 46-year-old Negro man under $10,000 appearance bonds.

The Pollard woman had admitted being the mother of the infant and she told members of the sheriff's department that Morning was the father.

The child that the couple was accused of murdering was found floating face down in the Creeping Swamp stream on the afternoon of May 28th. Morning admitted to officers that he took the box containing the baby, after it had been put there and placed under the bed by the woman, and threw it into the water.
