

Nasser And Advisors Map Reply To Suez Proposals

CAIRO (AP) — President Nasser met today with his top advisers, presumably to frame his reply to an 18-nation plan for international control of the Suez Canal.

Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies of Australia also was in consultation with members of his five-nation committee. The committee presented the majority plan of the London Suez conference to Nasser yesterday.

A committee spokesman said Nasser so far has done most of the talking but Nasser is expected to have his say at the evening conference. Nasser has rejected international control of the canal he seized July 26.

Nasser met with Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi and his No. 1 political adviser, Ali Sabry. Sabry was in London as an observer during the Suez conference that Egypt refused to attend.

The Australian legation was in contact with diplomatic representatives in Cairo of the 18 nations supporting the international control plan drafted by Secretary of State Dulles.

Despite the announced cordiality of the meetings, storm clouds still hung over Suez.

French and British military stores poured ashore at the British island base of Cyprus, 230 miles north of the Mediterranean entrance to the Canal.

The commander of Egypt's army said his forces were "strategically deployed to meet any situation."

Egypt's secret police arrested another British subject and charged him with spying. He was the fourth Briton under arrest.

In Paris, the Suez Canal Co. operator of the canal before Nasser seized it, said in a statement it had ordered its pilots and other employees to stay on the job during the current Cairo talks.

A brief statement said company employees — presumably non-Egyptian — were now on the job "against their desires." It left the implication that failure of the Nasser mission might spell new instructions to the 525 non-Egyptian employees to quit.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council was assembling in Paris for the opening tomorrow of a conference on the Suez crisis.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd of Britain will present the results of the London Suez conference and the talks in Cairo. Foreign Secretary Lester B. Pearson of Canada, and foreign ministers Christian Pineau of France and Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium also are on hand. Pineau advocates strong action if the Nasser mission fails.

While Nasser has balked at international control, hope has been expressed the Nasser mission talks may turn up the basis for negotiations leading to a compromise.

The committee met with Nasser and his aides twice yesterday for a total of an hour and 40 minutes. Nasser said he did all the talking.

He presented the plan approved by 18 of the 22 nations at the London conference, providing for creation of an international board, including Egypt, to run the canal joining the Mediterranean and Red Sea.

Nasser was in smiling good humor. Menzies also gave an impression of cautious optimism. U. S. Delegate Loy Henderson, when he was asked how the negotiations were going, said: "I look happy, don't I?"

Menzies said he expected the closed-door talks to last through the week.

Other nations on the committee are Iran, Ethiopia and Sweden.

Nasser said earlier he saw room for compromise in President Eisenhower's latest statement Friday affirming Egyptian sovereignty over the Suez Canal but insisting that it be kept open to international shipping.

Nasser said that internationalization of the canal would infringe his country's sovereignty, but he has offered to guarantee unimpeded passage through it to all nations.

Unanimous Approval Of Pearsall Plan By Pitt County Commissioners

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners handled mostly routine business at the morning session of their regular monthly meeting today in the Court House.

Among the items of "extra" business processed was a unanimous endorsement of the Pearsall Plan by the five-member board. They endorsed the Plan as "the best thing yet forward" to deal with integration of North Carolina Public Schools.

Other items included drawing a jury list for the next term of Superior Court, receipt of departmental reports, approval of two constable resignations, receipt of financial reports, and study and discussion of the Grand Jury report.

The jury list was drawn by Ellen Heidenreich, 6, of 1100 West Fourth St. The list was approved by the commissioners.

Auditor Reginald Gray reported to the board that the building to be used for the new county vehicles is expected to be completed by the first of next week. The building will be located at the county's school garage in Winterville. Gray also stated that the gas pump and tank are on hand but have not been installed.

The commissioners referred to a committee the question of using decals on the county vehicles instead of having necessary lettering painted on the doors. The commissioners approved a proposed decal which will include a sketch of the Court House before referring the matter to committee for further study.

Resignations from Cecil Crandall, constable in Carolina Township, and Leroy Baker, constable in Arthur Township, were accepted by the Board. William H. Crandall was named to succeed his brother in Carolina Township but the commissioners took no action on a replacement for Baker.

A contract with D. R. Hollowell, Certified Public Accountant, was signed by Chairman W. J. Smith to audit the county's financial records for the 1955-1956 fiscal year. The board had previously awarded Hollowell the contract for $2,850 and he has already started work on the books.

Another contract, with the Soil Conservation Department, to pay the cost of recently installed air conditioning units was signed by Smith. A similar contract, signed by Gray, with the F.H.A. was also approved. Gray pointed out to the board that the county will retain ownership of the units under terms of the contracts.

On recommendation of the Board of Education, the board approved transfer of $1,494 from the Emergency Fund to use for other expenses, acceptance of $2,759.01 raised in Farmville to pay a teacher, and re-investment of $225,000 Ayden School District bonds in 90-day certificates. The locally raised funds in Farmville are to be administered by the county in paying a teacher not provided for in tax receipts. The re-invested Ayden District bonds are part of a $250,000 group that has matured.

The board referred to the Welfare Department a petition from Grifton citizens seeking to restore an aid cut made in the case of James I. Williams. Grifton Attorney Bob Wheeler presented the petition for the 69-year-old man whose aid was cut from $22 to $6. The board asked for a complete review of the case by the Welfare Department.

Auditor Gray and the board's constitutional government committee were given the problem of working out social security payments for members of the Sheriff's Department. Gray reported members of the department are eligible for social security but must pay two per cent of their 1955 earnings and five per cent of their 1956 earnings in the social security and retirement funds. The commissioners authorized Gray to work out a satisfactory payment plan.

Gray also reported purchase of supplies for the mosquito control plan, investigation of Civil Defense cooperation for payment for radios used in the county vehicles, and a statement of the county's financial condition as of June 30.

A letter from clerical workers in the Welfare Department thanking the commissioners for considerations in the recent budget actions was also noted.

All members of the board were present for the meeting.

Tax Dollars Pour In General Fund

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina general fund rolled up tax collections topping 1 1/2 million dollars last month as tax dollars continued to pour in at a rate well above last year.

Revenue Commissioner Eugene Shaw reported to Gov. Hodges today that the August collections of $15,699,626 represented an increase of $1,366,756 over the same month in 1955.

For the first two months of the current fiscal year, the general fund has taken in $30,244,485, Shaw said. This is an increase of $2,937,646 or nearly 11 per cent over the same period of the previous fiscal year, he pointed out.

Increases were noted for August in all important tax schedules, Shaw told the governor.

The income tax brought in $1,602,530, an increase of $261,130. Shaw said individual income tax rose better than 50 per cent, while penalties and interest collected by the Revenue Department soared

Construction Is Leading '55 Rate

Total valuation of new building authorized by City Building Inspector George Gardner moved ahead of 1955 with the $308,000 in new construction authorized last month.

Gardner said that permits were issued for the construction of 23 dwellings and seven apartment houses during the month. There were no permits for commercial buildings.

So far this year, Gardner reported, new building has been authorized within the city limits valued at $1,831,300. Of that amount $1,437,100 is the valuation of the 88 dwellings and seven apartment houses authorized by the building inspector and $394,200 is for the 20 commercial buildings authorized so far.

The better-than-$300,000 in new construction authorized during August of 1955 is far ahead of the same month last year when permits were issued for $171,500 in new building.

In addition to the new construction authorized last month permits for alterations to three buildings were issued. Total value of the alterations was set at $52,450. For the entire year through August 30 alteration permits have been

Dr. Minges To Head Mental Health Fund Drive

Dr. Ray D. Minges, Greenville surgeon, has been appointed chairman of the Pitt County Mental Health Association's fund drive.

Charles D. Cobb, President of the Association, announced the appointment of Dr. Minges today. He will serve with vice-chairman Eli Bloom for the drive which will begin October 1.

In accepting the chairmanship, Dr. Minges said, "For many years I have served as a volunteer in many health and welfare causes, but it is my belief that no cause is as urgent as the cause of the mentally ill. Our country rallied splendidly to the first against polio, heart disease, cancer and other illnesses which afflict us, and I am sure that as we are called again, we shall respond with undiminished enthusiasm. But there is one cause to which we have devoted ourselves hardly at all — and that is the cause of the mentally ill. Because of that, in our country and the nation, thousands of children, men and women are needlessly suffering the tortures of mental illness.

"We have neglected the mentally ill and this is why they are in this tragic plight. But it is certainly not too late. There is still time to rescue thousands of the present victims of mental illness and to save additional hundreds from ever needing to become mentally ill. We can do this by joining and supporting the Pitt County Mental Health Association during the Mental Health Campaign during the month of October."

Dr. Minges is a native of Greenville and the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Minges. He graduated from

New Polio Case For Greenville

Seven - Months - Old Infant Under Treatment As Clinic Has Busy Week

Pitt County's 14th case of polio was reported today by Dr. Walter C. Humbert, County Health Director.

A seven-months-old Negro boy of Mack Street contracted a non-paralytic type of the disease and is being treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital. Dr. Humbert said that the child had not been immunized with Salk vaccine but responded well to treatment.

The new case came despite the busiest Saturday and third largest week reported by the Health Department's emergency clinic. Dr. Humbert reported a total of 1,348 shots administered in Greenville and Farmville Saturday to run the week's total up to 4,243 shots.

"We are well pleased with the response for second shots," Dr. Humbert said in noting that 951 of the shots given Saturday were second immunizations. A total of 2,612 second shots were given at the clinics and by private physicians last week.

The breakdown of shots given Saturday showed 1,026 given in Greenville and 322 in Farmville. Greenville children received 688 of the second shots and Farmville children got 263.

Dr. Humbert added, "There is still a lot to be done in the program. However, we expect to clear some of the lags between first and second shots in the school inoculation program which will start in a few weeks. We also hope to reach some of the children who have not received a first shot yet."

The Health Director pointed out, however, that children who will receive their first shots in the school program must have a note from their parents. Notes will not be required for children who have already had one shot.

No shots will be given to school-age children at the Health Department after the inoculation program starts in the schools. Only children younger than six or older persons under 20 who are not in school will be eligible for shots at the Health Department clinics.

This week, the clinic schedule calls for Salk shots to be administered at the Health Department tomorrow from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. and on Saturday from 8:30 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. Farmville clinics will give shots Thursday from 8:30 until 4:30 and Saturday morning from 8:30 until 11:30.

In addition to the Greenville and Farmville clinics, there will be a clinic in Bethel Saturday morning from 8:30 until 11:30 and a special clinic in Ayden on September 17 from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. The Ayden clinic will be the last special clinic for administering the polio shots.

Since April 1955 when the inoculation program was started, Dr. Humbert said that 22,346 first shots had been cleared through the Health Department. Second shots total 9,445 and third shots total 2,220.

School Classes At Clinton Resume As About Half Of White Pupils Stay Away

CLINTON, Tenn. (AP) — Nine of 12 Negroes enrolled in Clinton High School reported for classes today and many of the 796 white pupils stayed away as militiamen, busy during the night quelling a mob at nearby Oliver Springs, patrolled this center of anti-integration tension.

While some of the white students lined the entrance jeering, six Negro youths went into the school's front entrance just before the 8:30 a.m. opening bell. Three Negro girls arrived by private car and entered a side door.

"What are they going to do in school today by themselves," one of the white students yelled, indicating a boycott on the part of some of the whites. Many white school buses, usually filled with students standing, carried only a few today.

The comparatively quiet resumption of classes at the school, which integrated a week ago, was in sharp contrast to a tumultuous night in which a National Guard force raced to Oliver Springs to put down a gun-shooting mob.

Guardmen in jeeps circled the block around the school here as the students started straggling up.

One bus which usually hauls 62 students had only nine this morning. An attractive red-haired girl slumped in her seat, crying bitterly.

With the troops rigidly enforcing a ban on public gatherings, there was no crowd of townspeople at the school. There were many newsmen and photographers.

Adj. Gen. Joe Henry, commander of the Guard, mounted the school steps and talked briefly to the pupils congregated outside. He suggested they go to their classes.

Ronald Gust, an assistant coach joined Henry. He told the pupils "I think we ought to go to school."

About 20 boys followed him in.

School officials later estimated attendance at about 50 per cent.

A bullet-spattered riot broke out in Oliver Springs, 12 miles southwest of here, last night after dynamite blasts were set off in the little village's Negro residential section, but Clinton marked its first night of peace in eight days.

Anderson County Sheriff Glad Woodward said a white mob member was wounded by a Negro during the riotous eruption after an unfounded rumor spread that the Oliver Springs schools would be integrated today.

A state highway patrol car was fired on at a highway road block, but nobody was hurt. An earlier report that the bullet had wounded a deputy sheriff proved erroneous.

Eighty of the 633 National Guardsmen and eight of the 10 tanks stationed here were moved out to Oliver Springs early today to quell the new riot. They were sent by Adj. Gen. Joe Henry, in charge of the militia force here.

And near Dayton, 75 miles to the south, five men attacked two guardsmen who were driving to quell the new riot. They were sent by Adj. Gen. Joe Henry, in charge of the militia force here.

whites.

Here's the way the tense situation built up, resulting in the dispatch by Gov. Clement of 100 highway patrolmen into strife-ridden Clinton Saturday and the relieving force of militiamen Sunday:

After five years of litigation, Federal Judge Robert L. Taylor of Knoxville ordered Clinton High this year to admit Negroes. The school announced plans to do so and registered 15 for entrance at school opening last Monday.

But the day before school started, John Kasper, a segregationist from Washington, D.C., appeared making a door-to-door canvass urging a school strike and addressed a small group of perhaps 30 on the courthouse square.

He was promptly clapped in jail, but peaceful crowds and pickets nevertheless appeared at school opening when 12 of the Negroes reported to classes with the three others staying away pending check of their credits.

Tuesday the charge of inciting to riot against Kasper was thrown out of court and he left jail to address a crowd of 500 Tuesday night and 800 Wednesday night.

Thursday he was jailed in Knoxville and Friday was sentenced to a year in prison for violating a temporary restraining order issued by Judge Taylor Wednesday. The order prohibits anyone from doing anything that might interfere with peaceful integration of the school.

But the crowds continued to grow at the school by day and on public square by night. It became obvious that this little town of 4,000 with only 396 Negro residents — theoretically ideal for a start of integration — was becoming a focal point for anti-integration sentiment throughout the state and South.

ECC Activities Starting For About 1700 Freshmen

East Carolina's largest group of new students, approximately 1700 men and women, officially began their activities for the 1956-57 term this morning. A general assembly in the Wright auditorium opened events of the twenty-eighth annual orientation program on the campus, through which freshmen and transfer students will receive an introduction to campus life.

President John D. Messick of the college welcomed newcomers in an inspirational address. He stressed the values of a college education in the development of personality and in the building of a successful career.

"If you can get a vision," he told his audience, "if you can realize that right in this auditorium there are enough people to set the world on fire if all potentialities were developed, if you can see the gleam, feel with your heart and mind, you will make a great contribution to society."

He encouraged students to believe that each of them has something to offer. He told them, however, that they must be alert and ambitious in developing their potentialities and must "project themselves" and "get discovered" if they hoped to achieve their aims in life.

Turning to practical aspects of college education, Dr. Messick cited statistics from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce which reveal that the college-trained person has a great advantage over others economically.

In 1950, he said, the average income of the college graduate was $5,500; that of the high school graduate $3,700; and that of a person with only four years of elementary training $1,700. "A college education pays in dollars and cents," he told the new students.

Freshmen met with their department heads and their advisors after the assembly and began arranging their class schedules for the fall quarter. Registration for class work began at 1:30 this afternoon and will continue through Wednesday for new students.

The testing program for new students begins tonight. When those just entering college will take a battery of examinations of various types.

Medical examinations for all students just entering the college also began today at the college infirmary. Instruction in the use of the college library is being given to all newcomers this week by members of the staff of the Joyner Library.

Upperclassmen have begun to arrive on the campus in preparation for registration Thursday. Classes for all students will have their first meetings Friday.

Accident-Wise, One Of Best Holidays

OVER TWICE — This is one of the two wrecks that occurred in Pitt County over the Labor Day weekend. The mishap took place close to Grimesland when Edward Warren Rouse, 29, of Washington, lost control of his ambulance after hitting a sudden shower of rain. The ambulance, property of Paul's Funeral Home in Washington, turned over twice. Rouse was not injured, and fortunately, he was not carrying a patient. Property damage amounted to $1000. (Photo by Jim Boykin).

"Pitt County had its best Labor Day weekend in four years," declared Corporal C. E. Whitfield, head of the Pitt troopers, "despite the fact that we had the heaviest traffic in history."

Last year during the Labor Day weekend, Pitt County had 14 accidents with nine people suffering injuries. "This year," said the corporal, "we have had just two during the holiday weekend with accidents, and no personal injuries."

"The people of the county operated splendidly," continued Whitfield. "They stayed spaced out in traffic and speeding was at a minimum. We investigated very few calls concerning drunk drivers and speeders."

Five thousand safe driving cards were distributed to the motorists in making this one of the most successful and safe weekend holidays in a long, long while.

With approximately a million pounds of the "golden weed" offered on the floors of Greenville's eight large auction tobacco warehouses and with thousands of visitors from every section of this and adjoining states present, the 1926 tobacco season got underway here shortly after 9 o'clock this morning. All buyers and others connected with the tobacco industry gathered in the warehouse of Johnston-McGowan Company, where K. W. Cobb, secretary of the Tobacco Board of Trade, delivered a short address of welcome to the thousands of farmers and visitors present. His talk was followed by a prayer by R. C. Flanagan of this city. A conservative estimate placed the visitors on the market at 10,000.

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER
Mrs. James D. Wyker of Mount Vernon, Ohio, one of the nation's leading churchwomen, has been named "minister-at-large" in the Department of Social Welfare, United Christian (Disciples) Missionary Society. An ordained minister of the Disciples of Christ church, she will be available as a speaker to churches of her denomination throughout the U. S. and Canada. Mrs. Wyker is a vice-president of the National Council of Churches, and was president of United Church Women 1950-55.

When Dr. Marian B. Hall returns later this year with her doctor, husband, Dr. Sherwood Hall, to Madar Tuberculosis Sanatorium in India (after furlough in the U. S.A.), she will find awaiting her an $8,000 custom-built mobile unit—a maternity health clinic on wheels. For this she has been waiting many years. Equipped with a tent for examinations, a portable X-ray unit and a refrigerator, the field car will be manned by Dr. Hall, an Indian woman doctor, an Indian nurse, and a driver. "In an overpopulated, underdeveloped land such as India, which is making significant strides under government leadership toward social and economic uplift," says Dr. Hall, "a key factor is a population which can be supported adequately by available resources. Hence the need for planned parenthood, to help keep population size in accord with the ability of the land to support it."

Miss May Bryant, a great-great-grandniece of the New York editor poet, William Cullen Bryant, is going to the Near East as an associate missionary, the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions (Congregational-Christian Churches) announces. A graduate nurse with a distinguished record of service in civilian and military hospitals, Miss Bryant has been appointed a nurse at the Azariah Smith Memorial Hospital in Gaziantep, Turkey. Miss Bryant is the daughter of Mrs. Arthur W. Bryant of Princeton, Illinois. She served in India for 18 months during World War II as a surgical and orthopedic nurse with the U. S. Army—"an experience never to be forgotten or regretted," she says. She was born in Princeton, attended high school there, and completed her training at the Presbyterian Hospital in Chicago in 1928. Since that time she has served as head nurse of the women's surgical floor at a number of prominent hospitals.

The bride is the daughter of Luther Burbank West and the late

Mrs. West and the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Austin of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hosea Levi Arledge of Tryon.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dennis Ricks. Music was presented by Mrs. William Flora, organist, and Al Wright of Manteo, soloist. Mr. Wright sang "O Promise Me" and "Because" and a benediction "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white length gown of silk, featuring a bodice of French Alencon lace with a scooped neckline embroidered with iridescent sequins, and a bouffant skirt. Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a lace crown trimmed in pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white antheriums, crystal white grapes and white calladium leaves.

Maid of honor was Miss Janis Booth of Shawboro, who was attired in a neptune blue silk taffeta ballerina length dress. Her cascade bouquet was of gold carnations with bronze daisy chrysanthemums tied with matching ribbon.

The flower girl was Dana Meiggs whose dress was white taffeta and net. She carried a nosegay of mixed bronze pom poms and wore a matching floral headress. James Thurston Arledge, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Keith Arledge, brother of the bride groom, and Tully Baxter Williams Jr.

The bridegroom's mother wore a gown of rose lace over taffeta with black accessories and a purple orchid.

Immediately following the wedding, Mrs. Norman Ballance, Mrs. Walter Meiggs, Mrs. Ernest Taylor and Mrs. Travis Morris entertained with a reception on the church lawn.

Mr. and Mrs. Arledge left later for a northern wedding trip. For traveling, the bride wore a two piece brown cotton tweed ensemble which she designed and made herself. Her accessories were brown with an original hat of resset velvet. Her corsage was of white antheriums lifted from her bouquet.

The bride was graduated from Meredith College and until her marriage was home demonstration agent for Dare County. The bridegroom served four years in the United States Navy and is now a pharmacy major at the University of South Carolina. Upon their return they will reside in Columbia, S. C.

Among those attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Austin of Greenville and Mrs. Clement Yancey and son Lindsay Yancy of Oxford.

Sportsman Turns Designer For Girls

SPORTING LOOK... Racing driver John Weitz (inset) draws on his own wide experience in sports to design what he considers the correct sports wear for young women who want to look expensive on a budget. Left is his new outfit of wide-wale beige corduroy plus-fours and jacket, worn with turtle-neck sweater; right, skinnier gambler pants of black and gray striped corduroy, worn with loose pullover of fireman with red fleece, with popular V-neck.

BY DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
YOUNG AMERICA lives in sports clothes says John Weitz, a new variety of designer who spends his spare time racing sports cars, skiing, yachting and occasionally playing rugby.

This breezy, good-looking young man has definite ideas about how women like to look—young women, that is, who have to look smart on a budget—and his sports wear collections are designed accordingly.

"I design for the gal whose husband buys an imported sports car on time," says John. "They belong to the country club, but can't afford it. They have no servants and they are paying off the mortgage on their house, which is likely to look always as if they had just moved in. And they have a whale of a good time."

"Sports wear is the standby of this typically American young woman, who knows her way around and always looks exactly right for whatever she is doing."

The Weitz clothes lean toward the Ivy League look, but are more sophisticated than the usual gear of college girls. They consist of good-looking separates that can be switched around in a number of combinations, but always look well-hung-together. There are skirts, shirts, skinnier pants, walking shorts, jackets and pullovers, all in distinctive fabrics, cut with clean precision.

"I cut pants ruthlessly," says John. "If you can't fit into them you have no business wearing pants anyway."

In his current collection he has plus-fours of wide corduroy, a matching man-tailored jacket and a turtle-neck sweater for one outfit. Another consists of gambler pants in black and gray striped corduroy, which he recommends be worn with a loose, bulky, V-necked pullover of fireman-red fleece.

Something Better Than Mad Mob

Many opponents of the Pearsall Plan would unthinkingly leave North Carolina and its public school system to the fate of the public schools of Clinton, Tennessee which have become the center of rioting and mob action.

Is the situation in Clinton to be preferred to a legal procedure whereby schools may be closed to prevent such rioting? Is it better to settle an issue by mob violence than by a legal, fair election?

Is it better to have the schools closed by violence and have no provisions for private education than it is to have an insufficient fund provided by the state for pupils' education in private schools?

The Pearsall Plan is not perfect. But at least it provides for the people of North Carolina a method short of and much better than mob violence through which they can prevent integration in their individual public schools if they see fit. At least the Pearsall Plan provides a small sum for private education of youngsters in the event schools are closed; which would not be available if the plan is defeated and subsequently schools are closed by violence.

At the same time, it must be remembered that the Pearsall Plan does not say that integration of public schools will not be tolerated in North Carolina. It affords the people of every individual school district of the state the means of saying at the polls whether they prefer integrated schools to no school at all if the situation comes to that choice. The decision is left entirely to the people of the local unit.

In the final analysis it is much more likely that fewer schools in North Carolina will be closed through elections made possible by the Pearsall Plan than would be the case if the plan is defeated and the only way to combat integration is by mob violence which would certainly close the schools.

The Pearsall Plan assures there will be a middle ground in case of an integration order in which individual citizens can determine whether, under existing circumstances, they will condone a certain amount of integration in their schools or close them. If the plan is defeated, radicals on either side will hold sway and there will be no middle ground. Mob rule will replace law and order, and leaders of the mobs will determine the course to be followed.

Opponents who would lead citizens to believe there will be a wholesale closing of public schools in North Carolina under the Pearsall Plan discount the amose reverent attitude the average citizen has toward public schools.

How preposterous it is to believe that in any community in North Carolina a majority of the citizens would vote to close the schools except in an extreme crisis caused by integration.

The Pearsall Plan, in short, is a two-edged weapon which promises the greatest security for the public schools of North Carolina in the troubled times which appear to lie ahead. On the one hand it will thwart the efforts of those who would force mass integration which would in itself destroy the public schools of the state. On the other hand it will prevent destruction of the public schools by those who would have every school in the state closed the moment one Negro child was admitted to a white school.

The Pearsall Plan is, in fact, a realistic approach to preserving the public schools of North Carolina. The plan deserves the support of every citizen of the state who sincerely wants the best possible public educational system for all the youngsters of North Carolina.

N. C. Salary Costs Probably Will Rise

By LYNN NISBET
SALARIES — It is fairly certain that the cost of salaries of State employees, including teachers in the public schools and the institutions of higher education, will be upped about 10 per cent next year. That may not mean that every person on the State payroll will get a 10 per cent boost in pay.

The Board of Higher Education, especially its finance committee, is struggling with the problem of how to adjust salaries of professors and instructors in the tax-supported colleges. The easy way out would be to recommend a 10 per cent raise "across the board." Studies by the finance committee have disclosed some glaring discrepancies in compensation on basis of real ability and service. A horizontal raise would serve only to perpetuate and accentuate the discrepancies. Neither the finance committee nor the full board wants to do that.

Question is: Who will do the grading to determine which professor will get a raise, maybe above 10 per cent, and who will not? College administrators, living every day with faculty members, are reluctant to assume the responsibility. Top board members confess they are not sufficiently acquainted with ability, performance and service of individuals to make adequate appraisal. At the same time, Maj. L.P. McLendon, a member of the board's finance committee, feels his group should share the responsibility. He says his committee has found a splendid spirit of cooperation among college administrators.

Maj. McLendon further voiced the hope that the plan adopted by his board for the colleges, of recognizing tenure and loyalty along with proven ability and capacity for service, might serve as a pattern for more equitable adjustment of pay scales through all State agencies, departments and institutions.

ROAD TAX — A quarter of a cent a gallon tax on gasoline doesn't seem very big, but it amounts to about $3 million dollars a year in North Carolina. Donnie Sorrell, commissioner for the fifth division, told his colleagues on the highway commission that the motorists in North Carolina are paying that much taxes which many of them do not know about. Most people think the gasoline State tax is 7 cents a gallon, when in fact it is 7 1/4, the quarter cent being levied under a different law as an inspection fee.

The collections under this item amount to a little more than $3 million a year. The inspection service costs about half a million. The other two and a half millions go into the general fund. Highway folks contend this constitutes "diversion" of highway revenues. Others contend it is a constitutional collection of fees above the cost of inspection. The highway commissioners are acutely conscious of this excess levy, both as public officials and as private business men. All 14 of them are men of widely diverse successful business. At least four—Emmett Winslow, Donnie Sorrell, Jim Hardison and June Scarborough—have major interest in the distribution and retail sale of gasoline. They want their customers to know that in addition to the 7 cents road tax levied by the State and 3 cents by the Federal government, there is another hidden tax amounting to $3 million a year which comes out of what otherwise would be profits for their industry.

They don't object to the tax so much as to the way it is hidden. They want it openly published that the State tax is 7 1/4 cents a gallon, and they want it all dedicated to highway projects, or they want the quarter cent levy eliminated and the cost of inspection absorbed by the highway fund out of the 7 cents yield.

In raising the issue of this time they are playing with dynamite, because Governor Hodges has often indicated his belief that separately earmarked funds are unnecessary, that State services should be provided as needed out of State revenue, without too much regard for source or destination of the tax money.

COURTS — E.T. (Curly) Sanders, Burlington attorney and veteran legislator, was talking about improvement in the courts during the past two or three years. Criminal dockets are kept fairly current and much of the accumulated backlog on civil calendars has been cleared up. He was also highly pleased with the type of men Governor Hodges has persuaded to serve on the bench and in auxiliary judicial capacities. "In my opinion," said Sanders, "none of the long line of eminent lawyers who have filled the Governor's office did as much to enhance the prestige of the legal profession and the judiciary, as the incumbent layman."

PIECE OF PAPER — Speaking of judges, reminds of the story about Judge Raymond Mallard and the automobile driver. A lawyer was trying to get the judge to reduce a rather heavy fine imposed upon his client, who had been convicted of speeding, driving "under the influence," and operating a motor vehicle without a license.

As quoted later by the lawyer, the judge said in effect: "I can understand how a man might inadvertently let his foot bear down and push his care above the level speed. There is room for reasonable doubt about the degree of drunkenness of a driver, and the extent of control he might have over his own senses and his car after one or more drinks. It is conceivable that speeding and drunken driving might be accidental. But when a man gets into his car to drive it without that little piece of paper, this operator's license, that is bound to be deliberate, and I have no patience with him."

P.S. — The lawyer advised his client not to appeal.

Other Editors Are Saying... A Really Big Rally

(Washington Daily News)

Most of the political rallies which have been held in North Carolina in recent years at which party funds were being raised have cost the individual at least $50 per plate.

Now, all of us will admit that when a Democrat goes to a political fund raising rally, he expects to pay far more than the supper is actually worth. He goes to offer his support and money to the party.

The political fund raising rally to be held in Greenville on Friday night, September 28, will cost $15 per plate. That is low when we consider what has been charged at other rallies in past years.

Herbert Bonner, First District congressman, put it very adequately when he said, "We had rather have a full house at $15 per plate than two thirds of a full house at $25 per plate."

The September 28 rally will be held at Wright Memorial auditorium at East Carolina college. That building can accommodate about 1,800 people, we are told. It is the hope that it will be full that night.

Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the House of representatives, will be the featured speaker on the occasion. Mr. Rayburn is making quite a sacrifice to come to Eastern North Carolina for this occasion. He is coming at the invitation of Mr. Bonner who is a very close friend.

It would be most embarrassing

if the Democrats of Eastern North Carolina fail to support this rally. And the rally is for all Democrats of Eastern North Carolina and not merely a Pitt county rally.

It is expected that Beaufort county will have at least 100 Democrats in attendance. We have 29 precincts in our county, and it is hoped that representatives from every precinct will attend. All profit made from this fund raising event will go to the National Democratic committee to help elect the Stevenson-Kefauver ticket this November or to help elect Democrats to congress. Everyone is being told just why the event is being held, and there is no mystery surrounding any part of it. It is very simple. The Democrats need money, and this is one of many similar events throughout this country which is being held to raise money for the campaign.

Each precinct chairman in our county should ascertain if he needs for his precinct. When he should notify the secretary of the party in Washington. Arrangements to get the tickets will be told about later. Hyde county has seven precincts. It is hoped that at least 25 persons can attend from that county.

Rayburn's attendance should give the event color, dignity, and enthusiasm. But only we, as Democrats, can give it the real success it ought to have.

His Silent Backer

By JIMMY ELLIS

The Street - Building Secrets

Building streets is a fascinating thing.

It's also a growing thing. And what with all kinds of money being laid out for it, the unformed laymen are almost forced to ask, "Just how do you build a street?"

A poll of several qualified sidewalk superintendents on a job here in town revealed some fascinating answers. I am happy to pass them on.

First, a route must be selected. If possible, pick a route that has been in use for several years. That's because so many people have become accustomed to using the route and the contractor can see that his services are needed. Inconvenience of the masses has nothing to do with selection of a route.

Second, try to tear up the existing thoroughfare as much as possible. That includes knocking out old curbs and gutters, laying new pipes and conduits, and ripping up the front edges of lawns.

The reason for that is to get in as much new construction as possible so if there's trouble later the old road bed won't have to be blasted. A desire to infuriate property owners does not enter into the overall plan.

Third, after all the ripping, tearing, putting and placing is completed, haul in new dirt to fill in the holes. Just dump the new dirt and spread it a bit, so it can settle naturally. The fact that clay is frequently used is not a coincidence but street builders really have no desire to see automobiles get stuck in the gooey mess. They don't like to laugh at spinning wheels and irate drivers.

After the new dirt settles, the fourth phase comes in. That involves the use of discs and road scraping. New ways to lay out ed on is blocked off, of course, and the discs and scrapers are run back and forth all day long. There is a reason for doing this but it is NOT to perfect new methods of contour plowing and scraping. New ways to lay out a corn field have nothing to do with street building.

Next comes the laying of asphalt. That means using several dump trucks, the asphalt spreader and at least 17 straw bales. The fact that the dump trucks have faulty mufflers and pump out loads of carbon monoxide is mere coincidence and really contributes to the project because the street builder wants to get out of the area as quickly as he can. Nobody likes to breathe old stale gas fumes.

Finally, after the section has been surfaced, the speeches made, and the ribbons cut, the sixth phase comes in.

That's when somebody calls Street Department to cut a hole in the new street so their little boy can be removed from where he refused to leave when the asphalt spreader went by.

Odd Facts Out Of The Mail

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Odd facts a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

That if the dog wants to continue to be known as man's best friend he may have to grow feathers. More people are turning to birds for pets. A census showed the nation's parakeet population increased 22 per cent last year, canaries 12 per cent, cats 6 per cent—and dogs only 3 per cent.

That a 160-pound mother recently gave birth in a Cleveland hospital to a pair of twins whose combined weight was 20 pounds 4 1/2 ounces. This is believed to be a new medical record.

That if a man doesn't want to be the father of twins his best bet is to marry a teen-ager. Women over 30 are twice as likely to have twins or triplets as those under 20.

That singer Kate Smith has never set foot outside North America—and doesn't want to. That long before the invention of the submarine nature equipped the hippopotamus with a built-in periscope. Its bulging eyes protrude so far it can submerge all the rest of its big body and still maintain a sharp lookout.

That television announcer Carl King is forming an organization of people with square names—that is, four letters in their first and four in the last—how about Karl Marx—is he still eligible?

That Alexander the Great, long before Kipling wrote "Never the Twain Shall Meet," tried to fuse East and West by instituting 10,000 mass marriages between Persians and Greeks.

That nobody loves an old joke better than restaurant owners, else why do so many of them have printed on their menus the slogan, "Eat here, diet home."

That an American buffalo, for all his ungainly bulk, can lope across the plains at a speed of up to 40 miles an hour. I've held for years that if they cross-bred buffaloes and Kentucky thoroughbreds the result would be forbearing racehorses that could run in all kinds of weather and thus enable northern tracks to stay open all winter.

That, despite medical progress, some 28 million Americans today suffer from some type of chronic ailment... not including the most widespread of all, Chronic Laziness.

That a Missouri medical journal reports tests have shown a man can drink a 12-ounce bottle of beer every half hour for eight hours—or a total of a gallon and a half—with raising the alcohol in his blood to the point of intoxication.

A bartender I asked about this commented, "That test must have been made on a guy with awfully hollow legs—or they used mighty weak beer."

That science still isn't sure just what sunspots are, but has found they occur roughly in 11-year cycles.

That you can go on believing—if you want to—that Sir Walter Raleigh once gallantly spread his cloak on the muddy ground for Queen Elizabeth to step on, but many historians doubt the authenticity of the tale.

That "Yellow Kid" Weil, reported to have garnered millions as one of history's greatest swindlers, lost his wealth by investing it in legitimate enterprise that flopped.

That 1,600,000 Americans — 1,599,999 besides Arthur Godfrey — still play the ukulele, a musical instrument most of us thought went out with the raccoon coat era.

That one way to keep from cheating on a diet is to keep your bathroom scales in front of your refrigerator—so everytime you try to snatch an extra snack you are reminded of your weight.

That although hotels are in the business of renting rooms, 55 to 60 per cent of their revenue comes from their restaurant and bar service.

That poultry can transmit 26 different diseases to man, but only a fifth of the poultry consumed in the United States is federally inspected.

That it was Oscar Wilde who said, "What is a cynic? A man who knows the price of everything, and the value of nothing."

Record Ahead In $$$ Totals

By ELMER ROESSNER

The Labor Day-to-Christmas selling period starting today promises to run up the largest dollar totals the country has ever seen.

Almost all forms of income—wages, salaries, proprietors' profits and dividends—are at a peak and apparently going even higher. Even farm income, which has been lagging, has shown signs of picking up. There are plenty of goods. New models of appliances are beginning to roll off assembly lines and the 1957 model autos will be coming along in a matter of weeks.

Buying power and supplies of goods are essential, but they do not mean much without confidence—and confidence is running out our ears.

A RUNNING START

Sales totals have been generally good so far this year. Total retail sales in the first half of the year were 4 per cent higher than in the first half of 1955, according to Commerce Department figures. Of the groups of stores for which comparative figures are available, only three failed to top 1955 marks. They are meat markets, down 5 per cent; bakery products stores, down 3 per cent, and motor vehicle dealers, down 4 per cent.

Rising meat prices may pull up the markets' total for the year and the new models may help auto dealers. The bakeries seem stuck at the present level until dieting becomes unpopular.

Department store sales, as compiled by the Federal Reserve, were 6 per cent ahead of last year during the first six months of this one. Very few areas reported declines. Downtown Boston fell below last year, and minor losses were reported from Providence, R.I.; Wilkes-Barre-Hazleton; Lexington, Ky.; Lowell, Mass.; and Kansas City areas. Wilmington, Del., led all other districts with a 14 per cent gain, followed by Duluth-Superior and Topeka with 10 per cent.

SUMMER SLUMP MYTH

This six months of gain gave merchants considerable momentum. However, the steel strike in July slowed sales in most lines. The end of strike, with its bonnie wage increase, appeared to have given sales a spurt in August, although the figures will not be available for some time.

July and August are no longer off months, largely because merchants have found that, with vigorous promotions, they can sell through summer. For instance, the average total of monthly sales last year was $15.5 billion. This figure was fattened, of course, by the December total. Sales in July were $15.4 billion, a shade under the average, and in August were $15.6 billion, a shade over.

There is one little joker in the prospective sales rise through the remaining months of the year. The increase may be less than it seems.

Prices, as well as incomes, are rising. Therefore an increase in sales as measured by dollars may represent a smaller, or no, rise in the volume of goods sold. A rise of 8 per cent in sales in the last four months of the year—a not unlikely figure—might represent only a 4.5 or 6 per cent rise in physical volume.

In fact, part of the 4 per cent rise in sales during the first half of this year may represent rise in prices, although not much because the price level up to July was fairly stable. It was after that that the steel settlement and the government-engineered rise in agriculture prices began to shove the level higher.

IDEAS IN ACTION IN BUSINESS FIELDS

A Buffalo chain stimulated juvenile furniture sales by offering to tear up the bill if a mother guessed the birth date of an expected child. Guesses had to be at least 60 days in advance. A Seattle store, plagued by the problem of operating six days a week with five-day employees, remains closed on Monday as well as Sunday. Instead of hurting sales, it had drawn new customers. . . . Any freighter can become a tanker with an idea developed by a British firm. Collapsible tanks of reinforced synthetic rubber are placed in dry-cargo holds. They have proved successful with crude oil and petroleum products and the company is experimenting with edible oils and wine.

Such influential leaders as Dave Beck, head of the powerful Teamsters' Union; Maurice A. Hutcheson, boss of the Carpenters' Union, and James C. Petrillo, who heads the musicians' union favor Ike. And John L. Lewis, who supposedly influences about 650,000 workers of the United Miners and District 50 affiliates, appears to lean toward Ike, no matter what stand he may take officially.

JOHN L.'S COMPLIMENT TO HUMPHREY Once, after listening to Treasury Secretary George Humphrey discuss labor and economic conditions, John L. remarked: "I could vote for you, if you were running for President."

And Humphrey, who heads the industrial dynasty founded by Mark Hanna, is considered to be a symbol of "big business" influence in the Eisenhower Administration.

N. C. Lawmakers Have Considerable Stake In Constitutional Amendment

By BRYAN HANSLIP

RALEIGH (AP)—Members of the 1957 General Assembly have a financial stake in a constitutional amendment which voters will decide on Sept. 8.

If the amendment is approved, the lawmakers stand to get a pay increase which could amount to $450 each. In addition, they could receive up to $8 per day for living expenses and seven cents per mile for travel.

For a session of 120 days, the two changes could mean as much as $1,350 a session is scarcely enough to pay their living expenses in Raleigh and certainly does not compensate them for the time and effort they devote to their legislative duties.

The amendment is one of three adopted by the 1955 Legislature. Ordinarily, they would have been voted on in the November general election.

However, a special session of the Legislature last July set the Sept. 8 "general election" for a vote on the amendment dealing with school segregation proposals. Under the state constitution, it was necessary to submit the other three amendments at the same time.

The discussion of the school segregation amendment has far overshadowed the other proposed constitutional changes. No campaign for their approval or rejection has been apparent.

In addition to legislative pay, another amendment could affect the 1957 session. If it is approved, the session would begin early in February, a month later than previously.

The third amendment would authorize a married woman to execute a power of attorney conferred by her husband. It has been described as a "lawyer's amendment."

Its net effect, according to an explanation by the attorney general's office, would be to "allow in this state a common business practice that is now allowed in every state of the union with one exception."

Here is how the three regular session amendments will appear on the ballot:

and actual travel costs by commercial transportation or seven cents per mile for private auto.

If a legislator received the top $8 per day subsistence allowance for a session of 120 days he would get $960 to apply to his expenses. The state also would pay him for travel from his home to Raleigh.

Under the constitution as it now stands, the Legislature must convene every two years on the first Wednesday after the first Monday in January. The proposed amendment would shift the date to the first Wednesday after the first Monday in February, "unless a different day shall be provided by law."

This would give the Legislature authority to fix any other date for its meeting.

The importance of income tax returns in the state's budget planning is behind the proposal. The amount of money brought in by the tax is a big factor in making revenue estimates.

The 1955 Legislature shifted the deadline for filing income tax returns from March 15 to April 15, delaying by a month final figures on the returns. Convening a month later would give the Legislature the income tax information without continuing in session until the figures were available.

Segregation Issue Said Hurting U. S.

LAKE JUNALUSKA, N.C. (AP)—Interviews with delegates from overseas at the World Methodist Conference here indicate that segregation troubles, blown up by the Communists, have caused America to lose prestige in the world.

Delegates who were asked how foreign people feel about the U.S. segregation problem also gave answers yesterday which indicated:

1. The church ought to take a firmer stand and assume more of a role of leadership.
2. Most foreigners are in accord with the Supreme Court decision outlawing racial segregation in public schools.
3. Many foreigners have renewed faith in U. S. democracy because of the court decision and the fact that this nation is making an effort to solve the problem.

Hiroshi Shimmi, a Japanese minister, said the race question is causing a dislike of American foreign policy in some lands because segregation "is a strong weapon in the hands of those who are enemies of the United States."

175th Birthday For Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Today is the 175th anniversary of the founding of the City of Los Angeles.

A Mexican-type fiesta will be held tonight at the old plaza, the birthplace of the city. At the nearby Union Station, an old fashioned train carrying costumed passengers will arrive in a re-enactment of the first train arrival in Los Angeles, Sept. 6, 1876.

JUST FOR LAUGHS

HILLSDALE, Mich. (AP)—Two men giggled themselves back to jail before an irate judge. The pair asked to have their court date moved up so they could plead guilty to felonious driving and larceny. But they laughed and snickered so much while making their pleas that the judge ordered them back behind bars to await the next month's court term.

Ride To School In Taxi System

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Remember when school children were lucky if they only had to walk five miles to school?

Today's modern youngsters, at least in the Louisville area, will be riding cabs to their classes this year.

The school-taxi system will work like this: A number of local cab companies will start operating what they call "cab pools" to schools. The firms say the system will allow as many as five children to ride for the fare of one.

Under the system, one mother assumes the responsibility of organizing the cab pool for her and her neighbor's children. She contracts for the cab and arranges for it to call for the children daily at the home and the school.

Cost to pool members depends upon the distance to be driven.

Music Teacher Requires Boat

VINALHAVEN, Maine (AP)—This island community on Penobscot Bay hopes to protect a music teacher who "has boat, will travel."

The money was spent on uniforms and equipment for 60 aspiring musicians in the junior and senior high school bands.

Now they need someone to teach them.

The school committee will furnish transportation to and from the island. There are no bridges or roads connecting with the mainland.

Salary was not mentioned.

CHAPTER 23

The trail of Eklund's horse did not last long. The storm was thickening, the rain coming in a down-pour, sweeping sheets driven by the wind. It soaked Eklund to the skin, shut off his vision for more than a few feet in any direction. Within half a mile all sign was washed out so that he could no longer follow. Hurried by the storm, night was settling well ahead of schedule.

He had one piece of luck, aided by a knowledge of this type of country. He found a deep coulee with rocky sides and brushy bottom, and back in its depths was a sheltered spot where the cliff made an overhang; dry wood for a fire had collected here, washed by sudden flood waters in some freshet. But he had no supper.

Eklund awoke in a gray dawn to find the air choked with snow, big, wet flakes which melted as they fell. Any notion of further search for the lost cayuse was hopeless. Had it been clear, he might have found something. Now he'd have to go on foot the long way back to where he'd left his buggy and the other horse.

He found a rabbit, crouched near the coulee mouth, and shot it for breakfast. It was far enough from the Indian camp that the sound wouldn't reach, and no one would be abroad in this storm.

His buggy, which he finally reached it, was just as he had left it, with his bag under the seat. But the other horse, which he had hobbled, was gone.

There was no sign to indicate what had happened, but the storm was hitting, so that he could see for quite a distance, and there was no sign of it anywhere. A hobbled horse wouldn't go far. Someone must have removed the hobbles and ridden the horse away, and the lack of tracks in the mud indicated that it had happened the day before. Now he'd have to tramp all the way back to town. Having been a foot soldier, he knew how to walk, but having lived in the West, he found that mode of locomotion as distasteful as did others confronted by the vast spaces of this land. It would take him the rest of this day and all of the next. But it wasn't a matter of choice.

Word that Eklund was out of town on one of his journeys brought Narcissa as near to panic as she had ever known. Looking at the injured Armington, knowing that he must be cared for, conscious of her own limitations, she had a wild impulse to run away. But such a notion would solve no problems, and the events of the past weeks had been toughening. Her introduction to this country had been a salutary one, and she bit her lip, fighting down the inclination to panic, and studied the situation.

Tom Armington was unconscious, and for that there was nothing that she could do. Time would have to do its own healing—at least, until the doctor returned. It might even be a blessing in disguise. The broken leg must be set and fixed in splints. She dared not wait for Eklund's return, since it might be hours or even days.

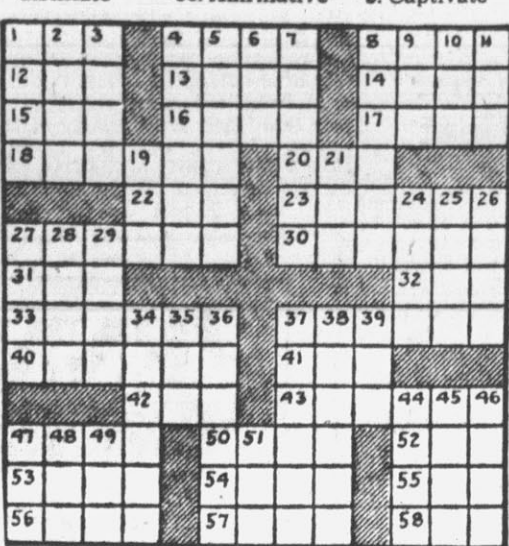

Her past experience would be helpful. As a girl, she had often been taken along on his round by a doctor in the old community, at first because he'd felt sorry for the orphaned waif, but later because he had found her quick and helpful.

Frequently she had assisted him in small matters, and once she had watched as he sat and splinted a broken arm. The child had been all eyes, and the impression had registered powerfully. Now she tried to remember just how he had gone about it.

The doctor had used a couple of flat pieces of kindling, wood from the box behind the kitchen stove, first padding the arm with layers of clean cloth, then wrapping arm and plints tightly with more strips of cloth until all was solid and unbending as a board. She could do that. It was the job of setting the broken bones that frightened her.

Calling High Low, the cook, she boiled water and, wringing out a cloth as hot as she could bear, washed the wound. It was swelling, but outwardly it didn't look bad. She could feel the broken part, and she explained to the cook what must be done. It appeared to be a clean break. The cold sweat started on her face as the two of them pulled at the leg until she felt it slip into place.

Armington groaned, but he did not regain consciousness. Affixing the splint was not so bad.

Then came the waiting, while Eklund did not return. The next afternoon, Armington regained consciousness, but by then fever was beginning to take its toll, induced in part, she judged, by the injury to his head. For two or three hours he tossed restlessly, babbling incoherently. She bathed his face and kept cold packs on it, and gave him cold drinks, which seemed to help, but not much. The ordeal came later in the night.

He had sunk into a restless sleep, only to awake in raving delirium. The night was pitch black outside, the light of the lamp seeming only to accentuate the crowding walls around her, and everyone else, including the anxious girls, was asleep.

"Damn you, Dolf Kinney!" Armington shouted, trying to rise up, so that it took Narcissa's whole weight to keep him in bed. "You keep away from there or I'll kill you!" he raved on. "I'm not afraid of you! And I won't fire her so that she'll be driven to you! I'd sooner see her dead first!"

So that was it! I was on her account that the accident had happened to Armington, Dolf Kinney had made threats, and had followed them up. Though she had no proof, there was no doubt in her mind, and a numbing terror crept in the shadowy darkness. Her thoughts went back to Emil Jacobson, murdered on his own doorstep without apparent reason—then on to the horseman who had raced to pass them when she and Eklund were only a little way out of town.

The logic of that course of thought was shocking, particularly because it fitted so well. Soon after that, someone had tried to kill Eklund, and he had told her that Emil had been avenged. But what he had not told her was at last starkly clear. That the killer had been in the hire of Dolf Kinney, just as the man who had caused the runaway must have been in his employ. And all on account of her!

Armington finally sank into an uneasy slumber, and by the next day the fever had abated to the point where he was rational when he awoke, able to eat broth as the girls took turns spooning it to him. But as the hours dragged and there was still no sign of the doctor, no work concerning him, Narcissa's fears increased, her imaginings became torture. Finally, unable to remain still longer, she saddled her horse and rode out for a couple of hours, looking across the empty land, returning in a short of desperation.

The lamps had been lighted for three hours, and the girls were asleep like their father, when there came a knock at the door. High Low would be long since asleep in his own quarters, and in trying to rouse him to help with the fevered Armington, she had discovered that he slept quite literally like a log. Nothing short of a gunshot would be likely to arouse him.

At the thought, Narcissa crossed to a bureau, pulled out the drawer, and lifted out a six-shooter which Tom Armington carried on occasion. Clutching that, she crossed to the door.

Modern New Furniture Store Sets Opening Thursday

Bostic-Sugg Furniture Co. will hold the grand opening in its new building on Evans St. Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Doors of the new building, constructed especially for the furniture store, will open at 7 p.m. Thursday evening.

During the three-day period the store will give away 25 prizes valued at more than $1,000. A portion of the prizes are to be given away Thursday night with others to go to winners on Friday and Saturday.

Those who visit the new store during the opening days may register for the free gifts. Winners do not have to be present to win.

Construction of Bostic-Sugg's new building, at Evans and Seventh Sts. was begun some months ago. The new building is modern in every respect and it measures 70 by 150 feet, thus giving the furniture company approximately 2,000 square feet more than it had in its old building on Third St.

More than 100 linear feet of plate glass will give room for window display of furniture in the front of the store.

Parking for customers will be provided along the entire length of the store on each side.

Inside fluorescent ceiling fixtures and floor and table lamps will provide ample lighting for customers to view the furniture on display.

And when the new store opens new furniture will be on display in the big show room.

JESSE LAUGHINGHOUSE
... Bostic-Sugg Manager

None of the furniture in the old store has been moved into the new building.

The structure is of concrete block and brick construction. The floor is covered with a light tan asphalt tile and the ceiling is of acoustical tile.

Manager Jesse Laughinghouse said that a complete line of Norman drapes has been added to Bostic-Sugg's stock and the drapes will be on display in the new building. Also added is a complete line of Samsonite luggage. The furniture company also carries a full line of Mohawk carpeting.

Some 25 manufacturers' representatives are expected to be present for the grand opening of the firm Thursday.

Laughinghouse today extended a cordial invitation to the public to attend the store's opening.

He pointed out that "we are endeavoring to accomplish the convenience of a suburban store while still remaining within walking distance of the business district."

Laughinghouse purchased Bostic-Sugg in 1948. Assistant manager of the store is Bob Russ. Mrs. Hilda Laughinghouse is secretary-treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. Laughinghouse's son Billy, will be associated with them in the operation of the store when he is separated from the U. S. Air Force in a few months.

Among the gifts to be given away during the opening are: a Kingsdown mattress, a Mohawk rug cushion, two pair of drapes installed, and three 9x12 linoleum rugs.

BOONE TO SPEAK

East Carolina Football Coach Jack Boone will be guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club's supper meeting next Friday night at 6:30. He will outline some of ECC's plans for the football season and talk about some of the players.

Kiwanian Joe Waltz will have charge of the program. President Ed Waldrop will preside.

Four Members Of Local Circle K Club Attend Temple U. Convention

Four East Carolina students, members of the campus Circle K Club, are attending the first annual convention of Circle K International on the campus of Temple University in Philadelphia this week. They are Eddie Dennis, Eddie Harris, Gus Manos and J. B. Nichols.

"They will be a part of a group of 250 Circle K members, advisors and sponsors who are assembled for the first official Circle K convention," Greenville Kiwanis Club President Ed Waldrop stated. "Circle K International is a college level men's service organization performing on the college campus the same function that its sponsoring organization—Kiwanis International—performs in the adult community. Circle K, today, numbers about 3,000 students in approximately 160 clubs on United States and Canadian campuses."

Circle K was organized about 20 years ago, sponsored by Kiwanis International. Today it is a separate organization, working wholly within the framework of Kiwanis International. The ECC Circle K Club was organized here shortly after World War II by Dr. John O. Reynolds under sponsorship of the Greenville Kiwanis Club.

Dick B. Forde, a junior at Western Michigan College, Kalamazoo, Michigan, is president of Circle K International.

Hard-To-Handle Redlegs Tied For Second With Bums

Yankees Win Two; Mantle, Babe Tied

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press
The Cincinnati Redlegs are getting downright uncooperative in that National League pennant chase. They just won't die.

Remember when they lost three straight in Brooklyn? And when they dropped three of four at Milwaukee? Or when they won only three of seven from the Braves and Dodgers in Cincinnati? It looked like it was time to buy beer for the wake.

Trouble is, the beer, not the Redlegs, wound up on ice.

They had a dandy chance to get measured again in the Labor Day doubleheader at Milwaukee. They blew a 2-0 lead and lost the first game 3-2. Then they blew a 2-0 lead in the nightcap, but bounced back to pack it away on Ted Kluszewski's 34th home run and a long-haul relief job by Brooks Lawrence that beat the Braves 7-5.

The split kept the Redlegs with a 3½ game lead in first place Milwaukee and in a second place tie with Brooklyn, which split a pair with Pittsburgh. The Dodgers rallied to take the opener 4-3, but then got beat at their own game as the Pirates pulled a squeeze bunt to win the nightcap 3-2.

The other NL twinbills also were split. St. Louis defeated Chicago's Cubs 4-2, then lost 8-0. And Philadelphia smacked the New York Giants 5-1 before losing 2-1.

In the American, Baltimore's Orioles — putting him even homerless — putting him even as Babe Ruth's record 60-homer pace in 1927 with 47 in 133 games — but lost a doubleheader to the New York Yankees 6-1 and 5-0. Second place Cleveland slipped 8½ games behind, losing 5-2 in a morning game at Kansas City, then winning the afternoon contest 2-1.

Chicago's White Sox split with Detroit, losing 11-8 and winning 5-3. Boston walloped Washington twice, 7-5 and 16-0.

Frank Robinson hit his 38th home run, two shy of the rookie record, for the Redlegs in the opener, but Hank Aaron busted his 22nd and 23rd for a 2-all tie. Joe Adcock then broke it up in the ninth with a single after Aaron's double and Lew Burdette had his 18th victory. Johnny Klippstein was the loser, getting banged on the leg by Adcock's winning blow.

Cincinnati rocked 16-game winner Bob Buhl early in the nightcap and Klu then packed it away with a two-run sock in the fifth. Lawrence came on in the third to win his 18th. Bobby Thomson hit his 19th home run and Aaron hit his third of the day in the Braves' comeback trip.

A double by Sandy Amoroso broke a 3-all first game tie for the Dodgers in the eighth against Bob Friend, but the 15-14 right-hander then came back in relief to save the second game decision for Elroy Face. Dick Groat's eighth-inning bunt squeezed home Lee Walls, who had tripled against Don Drysdale, with the winning run. Bill Virdon lined seven straight hits for the Bucs, starting with his 10th homer in the opener.

Murry Dickson, winning his 12th, had two RBI singles for the Cards in the opener, which Rip Repulski's two-run single put away in the seventh. Walt Moryn, who hit his 18th homer in the first game, smacked a pair in the nightcap along with Ernie Banks' 27th.

Bob Miller four-hit the Giants in the opener, backed by two-run singles by Del Ennis and Andy Seminick in the first inning. Jackie Brandt's eighth-inning single won the nightcap.

Johnny Kucks' 18th victory was a cinch in the Yankee opener after Yogi Berra hit his 24th and 25th homers for a 3-0 lead. Don Larsen then gave just four hits, fanning 10, to take the nightcap with Bill Skowron slugging a supporting home run. Orioles' Bob Nieman and Bob Boyd stretched their hitting streaks to 18 and 17 games, respectively.

Joe Power slammed three runs as the A's beat Mike Garcia in the first game. Early Wynn knocked in the run that collared his 16th victory with a two-out single as the Tribe scored twice in the nightcap ninth.

The Tigers made it four in a row, and pulled to 500, on home runs by Red Wilson, Ray Boone and Harvey Kuenn in the opener. But Larry Doby, Minnie Minoso, Fred Hatfield and Jim Rivera poked White Sox homers in the afterpiece with 17-game winner Billy Pierce saving Bob Keegan's victory in relief.

Jim Piersall drove in eight runs with six hits and Ted Lepcio batted home five in Boston's sweep. Tom Brewer breezed to his 18th victory in the nightcap after Piersall's 12th homer had decided the opener.

Quinoa, a hardy, nutritive plant found in the Andes mountains of South America, was introduced experimentally in the U.S. in 1899 as a possible substitute for spinach.

Coaches "Well Pleased" With Pirate Scrimmage

Cherry, Zehring Pass For TD's At Lejeune

CAMP LEJEUNE—East Carolina's 1956 gridders, working out with the Camp Lejeune team in preparation for their opener against Norfolk Navy Saturday night, entered into heavy scrimmage with the Marines yesterday.

Though no score was released, it was disclosed that the Pirates racked up two touchdowns, both on long-distance passes. Coach Ralph Boone played most of his boys except the bulk of his freshman newcomers. They are to get their workout today, according to reports.

The first TD pass was a 55-yard completion from quarterback Dick Cherry to halfback Tommy Nash. Nash is a 5-11 All-Stater from Monroe, playing his first season for ECC.

Ralph Zehring, third string quarterback, tossed a 65-yard pass to end Howard Beal for the second score. Beal is a 6-1, 190 pounder from Virginia, who was held over from last year's team and is still considered a freshman by eligibility rules. Zehring is also from Virginia and was also held from last year. He saw no action during 1955, but his play at Lejeune indicates that Boone may use him much this fall.

Boone is impressed with the great morale of his crew, in workouts thus far. He called this year's squad the "hardest working group I've ever fielded."

The Pirates looked especially good on defense, and the offensive play was described as "fair" by a representative of the Buc camp. Coach Boone and Assistant Coaches Jim Mallory and Earl Smith were "well pleased." It is reported.

Only one injury has been recorded since the opening drills here at Lejeune, and that took place in yesterday's two-hour scrimmage session. Halfback Bobby Lilley suffered a cut on his mouth that required two stitches.

The regular lineup in yesterday's scrimmage session included Ray Pennington and Bill Helms at ends; Ray (Bull) Overton and Jerry Brooks at tackles; Bucky Dennis and Kenneth Burgess at guards; Algy Faircloth and Waverly Chesson alternated at center; Dick Cherry at quarterback; Jim Henderson and Bobby Perry at halfbacks and Bob Maynard at fullback.

Though Boone substituted freely, the above listed boys were the regulars.

Today, the Pirate coaching staff is expected to give the freshman newcomers a trial.

IN THEIR SPOTLIGHT AGAIN—East Carolina quarterback Dick Cherry seems destined for the spotlight for the fourth straight season. The 165 pound triple threat from Washington, who has been named Little All-America, All-State, and was All-North State Conference for three years, is also expected to pace the Pirates in 1956.

Richmond, W&L Are Last In S C Drills

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Richmond's Spiders and Washington and Lee's Generals today became the last two of the Southern Conference's 10 teams to get down to work in pre-season football drills.

Coach Ed Merrick expected a turnout of 52 for Richmond's first conditioning session this morning. That's how many received equipment yesterday as Merrick paved the way for practice.

Washington and Lee Coach Bill Chipley expected to greet about 45 at Lexington. The de-emphasized Generals don't open their season until Oct. 6. Richmond launches its campaign Sept. 22.

Furman's big injury list caused Coach Homer Hobbs yesterday to call off plans for a full scale scrimmage session set for tomorrow. On the shelf temporarily because of injuries and halfbacks Butch Miller, Jerry Penland and Pete Cox, as well as fullback Richard Shaw.

Two good-looking freshmen brought praise from Davidson Coach Bill Dole yesterday. Guard Charlie Smith and halfback Brownie Thurmond were tabbed by the Wildcat coach the fastest men on the squad and good prospects for starting assignments.

Pass and play patterns caught attention at William and Mary. In the afternoon the varsity tangled with the frosh in a full-scale scrimmage in which halfbacks Smoky Sherman and Charley Sidwell excelled.

Virginia Tech Coach Frank Mosely labored to perfect offensive combinations and said his squad is "progressing about as well as can be expected." Jimmy Lugar, Bob McCoy and Billy Holsclaw took turns directing he offense yesterday from the vital quarterback post.

Intense heat slowed up The Citadel's practice at Myrtle Beach and caused Coach John Sauer some worry. The Bulldogs have been stressing fundamentals and conditioning.

Curtis Turner Captures Darlington Race Laurels

By DEL BOOTH
DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — The Southern 500 was a lucky seventh for Curtis Turner here yesterday. For the first time in seven tries mechanical troubles passed him by and he won the jackpot of stock car auto racing.

The Roanoke, Va. lumberman was almost two lengths ahead of runner-up Speedy Thompson of Monroe, N.C., when the checkered flag came down and waved $11,580 of the $43,350 purse into his pockets.

Turner had started, and led, every one of the previous races — and each time mechanical difficulties knocked him out of the top money. He had the lead intermittently in the early stages yesterday as seven drivers figured in 13 lead changes. Then on the 171st lap, he took it for keeps.

A crowd estimated by police at 75,000, of whom track officials said 70,000 paid, watched Turner and his factory-sponsored Ford sweep to victory. Thompson's heavy, powerful Chrysler was 1¼ lengths behind for $4,800. Marvin Panch of Gardena, Calif. came in third in a Ford, winning $3,330.

Only 37 of 70 starters were still running when the race ended. Pit stops and collision accidents were frequent in the 92 degree heat. The caution flag was down at various times for a total of about 40 of the 364 laps while wreckage was cleared. Despite this, Turner's 95.067 miles an hour was a new race record — although he and other leaders actually were turning the 1½ mile paved oval when it was clear at speeds of 114 miles an hour.

National Circuit point leader Buck Baker of Charlotte finished out of the top money and points, but held on to his leadership in standings of the National Assn. for Stock Car Automobile Racing. He finished 26th.

Three-time Southern 500 winner Herb Thomas of Sanford, N.C. was twice involved in collisions and was unable to finish, remaining right behind Baker in the standings. Thompson moved up from fifth to third in national points.

One of the accidents that spiked Thomas' hopes for a fourth win here hospitalized Dink Widenhouse of Concord, N.C., and Roy Bentley of Florence. Neither was seriously hurt. The mishap also knocked Glen (Fireball) Roberts of Daytona Beach, Fla. out of the lead he had taken, sending his car permanently to the pits.

The most spectacular accident of the race was climaxed by a pillar of fire from burning gasoline that spilled from the car of Larry Flynn of Myrtle Beach. Flynn and Bill Brown of Buffalo, N.Y., collided on the first turn. Brown's car pitched through the outside rail and down a steep embankment. Flynn's car spun to the inside and the gas tank burst open. Neither driver was hurt.

There were nine accidents during the race and the caution flag was out seven times.

Other finishers in the top 10 were Paul Goldsmith of St. Claire, Mich., Chevrolet, $1,650; Jim Paschal, High Point, N.C., Mercury, $1,520; Jim Reed, Peekskill, N.Y., Chevrolet, $1,050; Bill Amick, Portland, Ore., Ford, $950; Joe Weatherly, Norfolk, Va., Ford $850; Bobby Johns, Miami, Fla., Chevrolet, $650; and Pat Kirkwood, Ft. Worth, Tex., Pontiac, $550.

BOOSTER RALLY

Greenville's Boosters Club will begin its rally to improve the athletic conditions at Greenville High School tonight, at a kick-off meeting at the city court room in the Municipal Building, at 8:00.

All interested citizens are invited and urged to attend.

Ford McGowan, president of the club, said that the meeting would be of an informative nature, bringing to light the bad conditions of the school and open to suggestions as to how to remedy them.

Bragan Picking Milwaukee Tops

BROOKLYN (AP)—Bobby Bragan, a staunch admirer of the Brooklyn Dodgers all season, changed his mind about the National League race today and picked the Milwaukee Braves to capture the pennant.

"The Braves have really shown me something the past few days," declared the freshman Pittsburgh manager after his Pirates had earned a split in their Labor Day doubleheader with Brooklyn, coming back to win the nightcap 3-2 after losing the opener 4-3.

"They've made a believer out of me by sweeping the four-game series against St. Louis. I never thought they had it in them to win four straight from the Cardinals. But they did it in a convincing manner with great pitching and timely hitting."

Bragan had no criticism of the Dodgers but he indicated strongly that he might have overrated his former club.

"They make too many lineup changes to suit me," he said.

"When we were in Milwaukee last week," said Bragan, "I said I still liked Brooklyn's chances to overtake the Braves. I said it was a flip of the coin which team would win. Now I've got to change my mind. If I had to pick a team, I'd have to say the Braves. They're a better team than I thought they were and they're proving it."

Three-Year-Old Shows Courage

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Three-year-old Sherman Wayne Dotson learned yesterday to keep away from fire plugs—but he gave admiring adults a lesson in courage at the same time.

For an hour, the curly-haired, blond youngster bit back the tears as firemen tried to free his arm from an outmoded, abandoned fire plug.

Sherman's arm was caught as the lad reached into the plug to retrieve some rocks and bottle caps he had been throwing into a small, 4-inch opening.

As the firemen labored, Sherman proudly displayed a faint, forced smile. Only when the arm was finally freed did his smile disappear—he heard someone say he was to be taken to a hospital.

But the smile returned when he made the trip in a police patrol car, as everyone in the block waved at him and told him what a brave boy he was.

The hospital examination showed only bruises and scratches. And when Sherman returned home, a quart of strawberry ice cream was waiting on the kitchen table for him.

Sherman polished off the dessert and went to bed—he was tired.

DOORSTEP FIND
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—City Detective Ross Sims had the evidence in a burglary case laid at his doorstep—literally. He was investigating a break-in in which three radios, clothing and jewelry were stolen. As he was getting ready to go to work, a taxi drove up to house and left two packages. They contained the loot in the robbery.

Holiday Traffic Toll Soars Over The 400 Mark

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Labor Day holiday traffic deaths topped the 400 mark, but a late surge of safety consciousness was credited today with "saving of at least 40 lives."

As late reports trickled in, an Associated Press tabulation covering the period from 6 p.m. (local time) Friday to midnight Monday showed there were at least 424 traffic deaths during the 78-hour weekend. There were 88 drownings and 71 deaths in a variety of accidents for an overall violent death toll of 583.

The National Safety Council had estimated at least 400 persons would die in traffic mishaps. Midway through the holiday, when deaths were occurring at the rate of about five an hour, the council anticipated its dire forecast would be realized.

But Ned H. Dearborn, safety council president, said today that "the holiday traffic toll took a turn for the better at noon on Labor Day and the improvement continued right on through the end of the holiday."

"It meant a saving of at least 40 lives in the final toll," he said.

In the 1955 Labor Day holiday, there were 438 traffic deaths. The record toll for any Labor Day holiday was established in 1951 when 461 were killed on the nation's highways and streets.

Encephalitis In Pitt Reported

Three cases of Eastern Equine Encephalitis in horses have been reported to the Pitt County Health Department, Dr. Walter C. Humbert said today.

The disease, from which there is no recovery after it is contracted by an animal, affected work horses in Falkland and Belvoir communities and a Tennessee Walking Horse in Greenville, Dr. Humbert said that there have been no reports of the disease spreading to humans in the county but pointed out that it was possible for infected mosquitoes to carry the disease.

Mosquitoes which carry the disease were blown into the county last year by hurricanes, Dr. Humbert said. He called for persons owning horses to have them inoculated as soon as possible and to step up mosquito control projects. He added that there is no other known way to control the disease which carries a high death rate among human victims.

Report of the disease in the three horses was reported to the Health Department by a Greenville veterinarian.

Identify Woman Killed In Wreck

The identity of the body of the woman found burned to death last Friday night in a truck accident in Gates County Dismal Swamp has definitely been established.

Gates County Coroner J. M. Eason stated that the charred remains was the body of Lilly Mae Whitchard, 22, 1116 South Pitt Street, Greenville. The tractor-trailer in which she was riding with Wilbur Raspberry of Ayden, left the highway and crashed into a tree. Raymond L. Collins, owner of the truck, said that Raspberry was the only occupant when he left for Norfolk last Thursday. However, the Negro woman's mother reported that her daughter had been missing since Thursday and friends had told her that they had seen the young woman get into Raspberry's truck in Greenville.

R. P. Cook, investigating highway patrolman, said that apparently Raspberry had gone to sleep at the wheel. Coroner Eason examined the bodies and established that they were those of a man and woman. He later determined the identity of the Whitchard woman.
