

Calls For Support Of GHS Athletics

FIRE AND BRIMSTONE—Speaking with the steam and conviction of a fire-and-brimstone preacher, Howard Hodges Jr. blasted the apathy of Greenville citizens, students and school officials toward the local high school's pitiful athletic conditions at a Boosters Club Rally last night. He then joined with other Booster members in an appeal for "moral and financial support" of Greenville high school athletics.

Forty Show Up At Boosters' Meeting

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

A meeting was held last night, sponsored by the Greenville Boosters Club, "to review and remedy the poor athletic situation at Greenville high school," at the Municipal building.

The rally, which received a week of advance notice from radio, television and the Reflector, was also advertised by the dropping of some 10,000 pamphlets over Greenville by airplane. A total of 49 citizens attended.

McGowan Offers Plans

After reviewing many of the shortcomings of the present GHS situation, stating facts and figures and actual incidents, Booster President Ford McGowan opened the floor to suggestions as to a remedy for the conditions and outlined the club's plans.

Speeches were delivered by Booster officials Reynolds May, Howard Hodges Jr. and W. F. Scales. Coach Boley Farley also talked at some length about the condition of the school's athletic program.

Points of the Booster plan to bring about more members in the club and therefore assure more moral and financial support for the school are as follows:

(1) All civic clubs in Greenville are to be canvassed, given the facts and figures, and asked to help as much as possible. The Lions Club has already been approached and plans have been made to contact each organization in the city.

(2) The Parent-Teachers Association of the high school is to be a prime target of the club. They, too, will be approached with the facts and appealed to for help.

(3) The business firms of the city will be urged to purchase Booster memberships for their employees (which includes season tickets for all Phantom home games in football, basketball and baseball). Such an expense, it was noted, can be deducted from income tax as a business expense and will also promote morale, as well as financial support.

(4) It has also been suggested that a ticket-selling contest be arranged among the students of the high school, with a prize of some $50-$100 offered to the person selling the most memberships.

Booster Tickets
Booster Club membership tickets will cost $10. A total of $6 will go directly to the high school for use in buying equipment, meals for the athletes on out-of-town trips, first aid materials and other necessities. The remaining $4 will be kept in the Booster treasury and will be used to supplement coaches' salaries and to help the school in hiring new athletic members.

It was disclosed at the rally that the school athletics were in debt by a total of $3,000 at the present time. Howard Hodges Jr. stated that "The school was so bad off last year that a total of $350 from a separate school—and—the school store—had to be borrowed for athletics. And that still left them $1,675 in debt at the end of the school year. Since that time, the debt has risen to $3,000."

Incidents were discussed which show the conditions at the school. For instance, it was said that 19 years ago, Greenville high school operated a "three-sport athletic program with only two coaches—and today, with seven sports, it still enlists only two instructors."

Coach Boley Farley, with a full load of duties as a coach, has been forced to handle such tasks as bus driver, sign painter, field janitor. Also, incidents came to light by which several athletes had to go without food while representing the school in sports events away from home. At one time, it was pointed out, two sports events were scheduled for the same day (a golf match and baseball game) and one of the events had to be carried on without a coach.

There were many more similar occurrences.

School Support Needed
Booster officials pulled no punches, declaring that the citizens of Greenville have become lax in their support of the school athletic program. "Giving the boys a kind of 'minor-league' complex." On some occasions, it was said, the school itself seemed to neglect its own sports program. "Many times," it was said from

Sporadic Racial Disorders Flare Across South As Schools Open

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Racial disorders flared across the South as millions of children trudged to classrooms to start the third school year since the U.S. Supreme Court ruled segregation unconstitutional.

But the outbreaks were sporadic and confined to small communities for the most part. Crowds dispersed early Wednesday even in troubled Tennessee.

Despite the disturbances, more Negroes than ever before were attending integrated classes.

Exact figures were not available immediately, but the Southern Education Reporting Service at Knoxville, Tenn., estimated recently that 300,000 of the 2,500,000 Negroes in 17 states and the District of Columbia now lived in integrated school districts.

Most of the areas where Negroes and white persons went to school together were in the border states. With a few exceptions, the "Deep South" generally was holding firm against the high tribunal's integration decision of May 17, 1954.

Law and order, supported by Tennessee National Guardsmen with tanks, appeared to be winning out at Clinton, Tenn. Nine of the 12 eligible Negroes attended classes yesterday and then walked to nearby homes in the east Tennessee town. They were taken home in cars previously. Only 257 white children out of the total enrollment of 806 attended classes, however.

Only a few National Guardsmen patrolled Clinton today, following Anderson County's quietest night in more than a week.

After classes started a room check showed 312 white pupils present today, for a total of 324 today compared to the total of 257 yesterday which included nine Negroes, out of a total enrollment of 806.

At Oliver Springs, 12 miles west of Clinton, a crowd of about 400 broke up soon after arrival of a National Guard reconnaissance patrol from Clinton. Fred Gilles, night police chief at Oliver Springs, said plans to march on Clinton to "get those Negroes" were abandoned.

Two Negroes were arrested on charges of felonious assault in the wounding of a white man and 15 white persons were arrested on breach of the peace charges during a riot at Oliver Springs Monday night. National Guardsmen from Clinton finally broke it up.

At Knoxville, Tenn., two Negro effigies were hanged from a flagpole at Fulton High School last night.

No one seemed to know who put them up.

No Negroes had attempted to register when Fulton classes opened yesterday, although five Negroes were turned away at East High, and one Negro child each was turned away from two elementary schools.

At Mansfield, Tex., an attorney for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People said last night that efforts to enroll 12 Negro pupils in the high school have been abandoned for the present.

"We could not take them in there while that mob is standing there to do violence," said Atty. L. Clifford Davis. For three school days crowds maintained racial barriers despite a court order for the high school to integrate.

Earlier yesterday a young Episcopal priest who sought to shame the crowd at the high school was rescued by a Texas Ranger. The Rev. C. W. Clark of Fort Worth was led away when persons in the crowd became loud and unruly. The school has 275 white pupils enrolled.

At Sturgis, Ky., about 170 miles west of Louisville, a milling crowd of about 500 persons prevented nine Negro pupils from attending classes at the previously all-white Sturgis High School yesterday.

Carlos Oakley, superintendent of Union County schools, called the demonstration "peaceful." One Negro student, however, told newsmen a white man ripped his shirt and said that "if you try anything else we'll put you in a car and you know what comes next."

Oakley said several officers were at the scene although they were not called. The crowd dispersed shortly after the Negro children were turned back. About 310 white children enrolled.

Several other Kentucky schools were integrating without trouble, however. Dr. Robert Martin, Kentucky superintendent of public instruction, said "practically all our public districts have integrated in some form or degree," either in elementary or in high school.

He said there were about 70,000 Negroes among the more than 615,000 pupils expected to enroll.

In another border state, West Virginia, integrated schools opened without incident in two southern counties. State School Supt. W. W. Trent estimated 75 per cent of the Negro school children in the state will attend integrated schools this year.

In Maryland, 182 men, women and children jammed the Poolesville Town Hall last night to plead for continuation of a pupil strike which halved integrated classes at the joint elementary-high school.

The group named a committee to seek a public hearing on the matter before the Montgomery County School Board. Police escorted 14 Negro pupils into the building earlier in the day. Combined enrollment was estimated at 650 and approximately half that number showed up.

Approve Earlier Schedule For Three Schools Of Pitt

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education yesterday approved an early schedule for three Pitt County schools for the next two weeks.

The approved schedule will permit Stokes, Pataolus and Bethel to operate their school day from 8 a.m. until 2:10 p.m. The schedule change was made because of hot weather and will remain in effect until September 21, according to County Superintendent D. H. Conley.

In other business handled by the board, pupil assignment problems were settled, new school contracts were signed, a fiscal report was studied, new teachers were approved, and a request for a teacher's home was referred to the county attorney and county commissioners.

The major pupil assignment problem handled by the board involved placement of nine high school students in the Clark's Neck section. A delegation appeared before the board, asking for a review of the assignment to Stokes-Pataolus High School and subsequent assignment to Grimesland High School.

The board had ruled on the matter last year when the students were permitted to go to Grimesland High School but that ruling was for the 1955-1956 school year only. Members finally agreed that the students would be permitted to enter Grimesland High School if they would furnish their own transportation from the Clark's Neck section.

In another assignment problem involving Arthur School District, the board ruled that two children of Sidney O'Neil must continue to attend Winterville High School. The board promised, however, to have a study made of the Arthur School District and set up geographical limits which would determine which students in the district will attend Farmville and Winterville high schools in the future. The study is to be completed by the beginning of the 1957-1958 school year.

The case came up because the Arthur district does not have a high school and students must go to either Winterville or Farmville. There have been no set geographical limits set previously although efforts have been made to assign students to the closest school.

Other pupil assignment actions were routine matters required under provisions of the 1955 School Assignment Law. The board approved assignments to Bethel Union and Grimesland schools with the approvals being subject to actual residence of the pupils in the schools' attendance areas.

The contracts signed by the board were for a new elementary school in Ayden. Construction on the new building is to begin immediately under terms of the contracts.

Information on the sale of $150,000 in bonds for the Bethel School District was passed to members of the board. The information was compiled by W. E. Easterling, secretary of the Local Government Commission, which will receive sealed bids for the bonds until 11 a.m. September 11.

The fiscal record examined and studied by the board was a report of John C. Procter, Certified Public Accountant, who was reporting on his examination of books and records of local school funds for the year ended June 30. The report involved examination of handling book fees, athletic fees, and other fees paid by students.

New teachers approved include Mrs. Tallie W. Felton of Bethel Union, Wilma I. Taylor of Stokes Elementary, Naomi B. Jackson of Winterville School, and James H. Wilkes of Fountain School.

A request for a new home for the Chico's School's agriculture teacher was approved and referred to the county attorney and the Board of Commissioners for further action. A request was made by the Chico School Committee to work out a financing plan for the home, which would be located on the school grounds. The request was for the obligation incurred to be liquidated over a 15-year period with Chico School District revenues received through taxes, and-or rent, and other funds that may be legally applied to the debt.

Conley reported to the board that work on the Grimesland Negro School is progressing satisfactorily with brick work nearing completion. He also said that construction of the new gym for the Negro school in Bethel has been temporarily delayed by a lack of steel.

All members of the board were present for the meeting which carried over until last night before final settlement of the assignment situation involving the students from Clark's Neck.

Advisory Budget Group Swamped By Money Pleas

RALEIGH (AP)—With only one day of hearings under its belt, the Advisory Budget Commission already has received requests for king-sized chunks of the 38 million dollar balance in the state treasury.

Right at the start of the 2 1/2 weeks of hearings the commission got bids for a 10 per cent salary increase for state employees.

In addition, a delegation speaking for the state's Superior Court judges, who now get $11,000 per year plus a tax-free $2,500 a year expense allowance, suggested their basic pay be upped $2,500.

Gov. Hodges and the commission are hearing budget requests from state departments and agencies for their operations for the next two fiscal years. It will screen the requests and make its recommendations to the 1957 Legislature.

Among the 15 agencies scheduled to present their proposed budgets to the commission today were the State Boards of Health and Public Welfare and the Conservation and Development Department.

Among the agencies appearing yesterday that proposed 10 per cent increases in workers' salaries were the Revenue and Labor departments.

Labor Commissioner Frank Crane said the state "has not kept pace in compensating its employees in line with the cost of living and the salaries paid in private industry."

He said $32,585 would be required for the state "has not kept pace in compensating its employees in line with the cost of living and the salaries paid in private industry."

The Revenue Department asked for an over-all increase of $846,240, the bulk to go for salaries, including 69 new workers. For the biennium the department asked for $3,551,859 the first year and $3,574,440 the second. During the current fiscal year its budget is $2,708,562.

The Labor Department's requests for the two years were $434,468 and $448,674, compared with $357,903 during the current year.

The Archives and History Department asked for $1,363,465 for a new building to house its activities.

Another big request came from Mrs. Elizabeth H. Hughey, state

Bailey-Coburn Nuptials Are Held

ROBERSONVILLE—The Baptist Church here with a background of palms, ferns, chrysanthemums and seven-branched candelabra was the setting Sunday afternoon for the wedding of Miss Peggy Coburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Coburn of Robersonville, and Gordon Bailey Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Bailey of Everett.

Prior to the ceremony, a program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Robert K. Adkins, organist, and Miss Frances Smith, soloist, who rendered "Because," "If God Left Only You" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The Rev. Ralph E. Ferguson performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of chantilly lace and nylon net fashioned with fitted bodice with long lace sleeves ending in points. The full skirt with a dust ruffle of wide scalloped lace was designed with a sweep train.

Her fingertip veil of imported illusion was attached to a Tudor bonnet of lace trimmed with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of stephanotis centered with a purple-throated orchid.

The maid of honor, Miss Eva Ann Coburn, a cousin of the bride, had a ballerina length dress of blue crystal satin and nylon net over taffeta with a bouffant skirt of net edged with net ruffles. Her picture hat was of matching French blue net and she carried a wedding ring made of yellow mums and blue stock with yellow ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Guy Lewis of Lynchburg, Va. and Mrs. Bea Grimes of Raleigh, sisters of the bridegroom, Miss Lorraine Mobley and Miss Fay Rogerson.

They wore ballerina length gowns of blue crystal satin and nets made like that of the honor attendant's. Their large hats were of matching net and their bouquets were identical to that of the maid of honor's.

Misses Deborah and Susan Lewis, nieces of the bridegroom, carried baskets of rose petals. They wore bonnets to match their dresses of white crystalet and lace.

The father of the bridegroom served as his best man. Ushers were Ben Grimes of Raleigh and Guy Lewis of Lynchburg, Va., brothers-in-law of the groom; Darrell Taylor of Williamston, cousin of the bridegroom; and Bobby Clark of Everett.

Mrs. Bailey has been employed by the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company in Williamston since her graduation from Robersonville High School.

The bridegroom graduated from Robersonville High School. He attended the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. He is a senior at East Carolina College where he is a member of Pi Omega Pi, National Honorary Business Education Fraternity.

The couple will make their home in Williamston.

For the wedding trip to Western North Carolina Mrs. Bailey chose a striped mauve dress with black accessories. She lifted the orchid from the bridal bouquet.

After the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in their home which was decorated with white gladioli, pom poms and chrysanthemums.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Roberson introduced the guests to the receiving line composed of the bride couple, Mrs. Henry Coburn, Mrs. Gordon Bailey Sr., Mrs. Guy Lewis, Mrs. Ben Grimes, Miss Lorraine Mobley, Miss Fay Rogerson and Miss Eva Ann Coburn.

Guests were invited to the dining room where the table, covered in lace, was centered with white gladioli.

Miss Joyce Davenport and Miss Brenda Davenport poured the punch and served bridal cakes, mints and nuts.

Mrs. Kermit Dickerson, Miss Hilda Gray Harrison, Miss Janette Edwards, Miss Myrtle White and Miss Mary Lee Carson said the goodbyes to a large group of friends and relatives.

Cake Cutting Immediately following the Bailey-Coburn rehearsal Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Coburn entertained the wedding party at a cake cutting.

The house was decorated with arrangements of white gladioli and chrysanthemums.

Mrs. J. R. Matthews welcomed the guests at the door. After being greeted by the bride couple and their parents, everyone was directed to the register and then to the gift room.

Guests were invited to the dining room where a wedding ring designed of white mums and gladioli and surrounded by white tulle centered the table. The floral piece was flanked by silver candelabra holding lighted white tapers.

After the bride cut the first slice, Mrs. Harvey Coburn, aunt of the bride, served the wedding cake while Mrs. P. M. Matthews poured the punch. Mrs. Fred Taylor assisted in serving the mints and nuts.

Goodbyes were said by Mrs. Kermit Dickerson.

Coca-Cola Party Mrs. Kermit Dickerson, Miss Brenda Davenport, Miss Joyce Davenport and Miss Eva Ann Coburn were hostesses at the home of Mrs. John Coburn on August 23 when they honored Miss Peggy Coburn, bride-elect, at a Coca-Cola party.

Assorted sandwiches, pickles, potato chips and stuffed dates were served to 20 friends.

Upon arrival the bride-to-be was presented a corsage and a hand-painted vase.

Debutante Miss Anne Morgan Is Well-Seasoned Party-Goer

By ANNETTE JACKSON
Reflector Woman's Editor

Debutante Anne Morgan of Farmville knows what "partying" is all about. She's been busy with it for the last few weeks and even now is preparing for the climactic whirl at the Debutante Ball this weekend.

A blue-eyed blonde with delicate features, Miss Morgan is apparently thriving from the activities associated with her "coming out." She has entertained and been entertained.

On August 28 she, Miss Theodora Albritton of Farmville, Miss Margery Newton and Miss Dorothy Bridges entertained at a supper party and dance at the Wilson Country Club where the latter debs are from. Some sixty debs attended this event along with marshals and friends.

Miss Morgan has lunched with debs from Goldsboro and Enfield during August and has journeyed to Rocky Mount for a tea given by the debs of last year from that city.

She attended a dance at which some of the Raleigh debs were hostesses given at their Carolina Country Club in mid-August. On August 17 she was honored at a supper party by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Keller at their home in Clayton. This event was attended by Miss Albritton of Farmville and Miss Lou Chestnut of Greenville among others.

On last Wednesday Miss Morgan lunched in Greenville with debs from several Eastern Carolina towns at a party given by Mrs. William P. Shelton of Ayden honoring Miss Margery Newton of Wilson. That evening she and Miss Albritton were guests of honor at an informal dinner party in Farmville. Hosts for this occasion were Jack Lewis, a marshal of Miss Morgan's, Carroll Allen and Albert Monk, both marshals of Miss Albritton's.

On Sunday Farmville residents again recognized their debutantes at a tea given by young friends of the honorees. They were Miss Jane Russell, Miss Clara Flanagan, Miss Norris Spencer, Miss Lou Lewis, Miss Faye Mewborn, Miss Sue Flanagan, Miss Emilie Cannon, Miss Martha Holmes, Miss Ann Pollard, and Miss Janice Atkinson. This event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Holmes.

With shopping all finished and clothes displayed throughout her room, Miss Morgan will get down to packing tonight. Most of her clothes she bought on a three-day shopping spree to Richmond; others she had made and picked up at odd intervals. She's carrying outfits for every degree of formality—including Bermuda shorts.

Most of her ball clothes she'll carry in large boxes to prevent crushing but so far she's planned to take two suitcases and a large hat box which will house her first "big" hat.

Miss Morgan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Irvin Morgan Jr. Her parents and both of her grandmothers, Mrs. Morgan Sr. of Farmville and Mrs. A. F. Williams of Wilson, will be on hand to see her make her bow to society Friday evening.

Bob Borden of Goldsboro will be Miss Morgan's chief marshal. Ben Roberts of Durham and Mr. Lewis of Farmville will be the other two.

The young deb is a rising sophomore at Duke University where she is a member of Alpha Delta Pi, social sorority, and the Pep Club. She is majoring in primary education and hopes to become a teacher. She is a former graduate of Farmville High School.

Miss Betty Furter, Mr. Lehman Wed In Grifton

GRIFTON—The marriage of Miss Betty Furter, daughter of Mrs. William Furter and the late Mr. Furter of Philadelphia, Pa., to Herbert P. Lehman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lehman of Cape May, N. J., took place Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Lehman Jr. on Du Pont Street.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ralph Epps, pastor of the Grifton Methodist Church, using the double-ring rites. The couple, unattended, spoke their vows before the mantel banked with magnolia, pine, ivy and tall pink candles.

The bride wore a street length taffeta. This was fashioned with empire waist line accented with bands of matching satin, a round neckline and very full skirt. Accessories of pink and a pink rose corsage completed her attire.

Immediately after the ceremony an informal reception was held. The dining room table was covered with a white linen cloth and featured a miniature wedding party. The three-tiered wedding cake decorated in pink and topped by a bride and bridegroom was at one end of the table. At the opposite end was the punch bowl encircled by ivy and pink rose buds. After the bridal couple had cut the first slice of cake, Mrs. Robert Miller completed the serving. Only relatives and a few close friends were present.

The couple will reside in Cape May, N. J. after a short wedding trip.

Critical Point For GHS Athletics

Most Greenville citizens by now are well aware of the deplorable situation which exists in the athletic program at the local high school.

The time has come for the citizens to do something about it. Unless adequate financial support is forthcoming from local citizens through the GHS Boosters club, Greenville high's athletic program will continue the downhill road it has traveled these last several years. Already it has reached the border line where it must either begin the uphill struggle again, or be lost entirely.

High School officials and coaches have attempted to carry on an adequate sports program for the school students of the city. Under the circumstances they have done an excellent job with what they have had. The fact remains, however, that without financial support from the people of Greenville, funds for the program have been grossly inadequate and the program itself inadequate.

Through purchase of Booster Club memberships, people of the city can give Greenville High School's athletic program the shot in the arm needed to revitalize the program. The dollars which are raised through Booster Club membership will go to promote the program through the purchase of equipment so the boys will not have to buy their own as the case has been in the past. The money will provide meals on out-of-town trips so players will not have to buy their own meals or go hungry. Adequate funds will assure that a GHS baseball team will not have to attempt to go through another season with a rigid allotment of only 24 baseballs.

If the efforts of the Boosters Club are successful—and we hope they are—Greenville High, which now has only two coaches, may be able to get more coaches to compare more favorably with the four or five coaches who direct athletic programs in other schools of this area.

Most important of all, through Boosters Club

ECC Growing Pains Continue In Evidence

Another big year lies ahead for East Carolina College as officials look for a record enrollment of 3,600 students.

Like many years in the last 10 it will be a year of crowded classes, classroom space problems, turning away applicants for lack of dormitory space, difficulty in finding living quarters off campus for students and countless other problems.

For all the problems, it will be a year in which countless young people of Eastern North Carolina will be getting valuable college training they could not afford were not East Carolina located in this section of the state. For all the congestion, East Carolina will turn out another large group of new teachers next spring to fill the gaping holes in the state's public schools.

The only misgiving we have at the huge enrollment at East Carolina this year is that existing facilities will be hard pressed, and in many cases overtaxed. The situation could result in some students not getting the greatest possible amount of education during their college year. Then too, there is the ever-present discouraging factor that a number of applicants who wanted to attend ECC had to be turned away for lack of facilities.

In the past ten years enrollment at East Carolina College has increased more than three-fold. The physical plant of the college and its staff and faculty have been expanded during the period in an effort to keep pace with the growth of the institution. But with each succeeding year, the facilities at East Carolina fall short of the demand made upon it for college education by young people from this part of the state.

In a few months North Carolina's General Assembly will meet again. Among other matters of business, it will determine what amount of money will be made available to East Carolina during the next biennium for permanent improvements and operations. Already the college has made known its needs to the Advisory Budget Commission. That body in turn will make recommendations to the legislature.

It behooves the people of all of Eastern Carolina to see that members of the General Assembly are aware of the acute growing pains East Carolina is feeling because of its need for additional facilities. It is important that legislators know of the important role the college plays in the life of this section of the state, and the number of youngsters who, if they are to get a college education, must of necessity acquire it at East Carolina.

The state supports a number of colleges in the Piedmont and Western parts of the state, but East Carolina is the only state-supported college east of Raleigh to serve the entire eastern section.

East Carolina's ability to serve the young people of this area is limited only by the facilities with which it is furnished by the state.

memberships and funds derived from them, youngsters of Greenville High will be afforded adequate training which they should expect in their athletic program. It is quite obvious now that with only two men to handle boys in seven sports, it is impossible for the youngsters to receive the proper attention.

The future of Greenville High's athletic program at this point depends upon the success of Booster Club efforts to raise funds to carry on the program. And the success of Boster Club efforts depends directly upon the response of the people of Greenville.

Youngsters of any high school need an adequate athletic program. It is the responsibility of the people of the community to see that funds are available to finance an adequate program.

If Greenville High School is to have the calibre athletic program its students should have, the people of the city must provide the money to operate the program. The fate of the athletic program at the high school today is in the hands of the people of Greenville. Whether the athletic program is revitalized or is allowed to fall apart depends entirely upon the people of the city.

Rules On Absentee Vote September 8

By LYNN NISBET

ABSENTEES — Yes, you may vote by mail in the September 8 election on constitutional amendments by complying with provisions of the absentee voter provisions of the election laws. The conditions are fairly simple and easy to meet. But they are written to protect the basic right of suffrage, rather than to make it easy for the indolent citizen to cast his ballot without exerting any effort.

Briefly summarized, the conditions are these: The voter must properly registered in the correct precinct; he (or she) must know in advance that he will be out of the county of residence on election day or that he will be physically unable to attend the polling place.

The voter must make application in person, or by mail in writing, or by a member of his immediate family (husband or wife, brother or sister, parent or child) to the chairman of the county board of elections for absentee ballots. The precinct registrar cannot deliver absentee ballots to anybody, and the county chairman cannot deliver them except under conditions above set out.

The statutes go into detail about how absentee ballots shall be obtained, marked and accompanied by affidavits, and records that must be kept and published by chairmen and registrars. These details are necessary, but not important to understanding by the ordinary voter as to how he can vote by mail.

What he needs to remember is that if he expects to be out of the county on election day, or anticipates physical inability to go to the polls, he must apply through proper channels at least two days before (in the instant case and to be safe not later than Wednesday, September 5) to his county board of elections chairman for absentee ballots. He may be told then what other steps are necessary.

COUNTY — To vote by mail the citizen must be out of the county on the day of election. A registrant in Jamestown, for example, cannot vote absentee because he had to be on a job in Greensboro or High Point. But a registrant in the Archdale-Trinity precinct of Randolph can vote absentee if he is on a job in High Point or Thomasville, because these places are in other counties. The county line barrier may work a hardship on some voters and operate to the distinct advantage of some others. Upon the whole it tends to carry out the purpose of the act, which is to protect the right of citizens to cast their ballots despite physical handicaps.

HISTORY — The absentee or "mail order" voting privilege was originally written into the law during World War I and was primarily intended to protect the right of suffrage of eligible voters who were away from home by reason of service in the military forces, although available to all citizens.

Abuses of the privilege led to repeal of absentee voting, except for persons in military service, in 1939 and tightened restrictions on military personnel. Absentee voting for both civilian and military was retained in general elections. By act of the General Assembly, based on an advisory opinion of the Supreme Court justices, the September 8 affair was designated a "general election." The attorney general has ruled that absentee voting privileges apply, under the same conditions as in the biennial November general elections. Although restrictive, these conditions are not very difficult for those who want to use, rather than abuse the ballot box to promote good government.

The law is intended to protect a sacred right, not to serve the convenience of the indolent and lazy citizens who just don't want to be bothered with going to the polling place.

SCANT — Indications are that voters will make very scant use of absentee in the amendments election. Check with half a dozen county elections chairmen ten days before voting day failed to discover a single application for an absentee ballot.

The secretary of state's office, which handles all military personnel absentee ballots, has received some 1200 applications for ballots in the November general election, nary a one for the September voting.

PERSONALITIES — This situation further emphasizes a point made in a recent column appearing in this space, that despite protestations about government by law rather than by men, the average voter is concerned with personalities.

Democrats and Republicans made much ado about national party platforms at their recent conventions, but come November 6 the average voter will mark his ballot for Eisenhower or Stevenson for President, Hodges or Hayes for Governor, Joe Doakes or John Doe for the legislature.

Abstract ideas represented by the constitutional amendments to be voted upon Saturday of next week fail to arouse any popular interest. The personal element will affect the vote for the abstract ideas. Ballots will be marked for or against the Pearsall Plan or the Hodges Plan rather than for or against the principles involved.

If the names of Luther Hodges, Tom Pearsall, William Joyner, Bob Huffman, Luns Crew, William Medford, Cloyd Philpott and Ed Yarborough appeared on the ballots the idea would get more votes. North Carolina folks like to vote for folks by name, rather than abstract ideas.

Other Editors Are Saying... Safety Escape Valve Needed

(Rocky Mount Telegram)
Tennessee and Texas failed to provide a safety-escape valve against the day when federal courts would order integration of the public schools. The result is a racial explosion which sets back both education and race relations to a degree not measurable.

School pupils and patrons in Tennessee and Texas when offered no alternative but forced integration became ready followers of outside and native rabble rousers. The violence and bitterness which has been engendered by the federal court's attempt to force integration is certainly not conducive to the educational process. As the Kingston Free Press asks: "Can there be maximum joy and progress in education on the part of the Negro pupils if they are in a place where they know they are not wanted, much less accepted by the rank and file of other pupils?"

This is a question which cannot be lightly dismissed. The Pearsall Plan does not guarantee either integration or segregation. The surest proof that this is so is to be found in the opposition which the plan is attracting from both sides of the fence—from extremists favoring all-out segregation forever at all costs as well as extremists advocating all-out and immediate integration regardless of the consequences. But the Pearsall Plan does assure North Carolinians that no child—white or colored—will be forced against individual wishes to attend a racially integrated school. It is thus permissive and not prohibitive.

Closing of the public schools and payment of private tuition grants is a last resort, escape provision which makes resort to violence unnecessary if and when the courts order integration.

In the faith that local citizens will be more reluctant to close their schools than legislators playing upon an emotional stage, the framers of the Pearsall Plan have provided that decision for closing the schools rests with local school patrons alone. This is in sharp contrast with other Southern states where legislators and governors states where the people have been granted the dictatorial power to close schools by decree.

The disorders in Tennessee and Texas afford us the most eloquent possible argument for providing a safety valve such as the Pearsall Plan proposes. The fact remains that opponents of the Plan have not yet offered any alternative except integration or no alternative except turmoil of the Texas and Tennessee type.

The Patrolman Understood

The radio on State Highway Patrol car 931 crackled, then sputtered and the whine of the sender's transmitter could be heard just before a voice crystallized from the speaker with the message.

"Be on the lookout for a 1953 wine-red two-door car, bearing Idaho license plates number . . . When last seen, it was heading north on Market Street. Stop car and hold driver on Peeping Tom charge."

The car was not spotted until the next day when a patrolman luckily pulled up behind it. After checking out the description of the car and its license number, his left foot gently tapped the siren paddle and the driver, immediately upon hearing the siren's short whine, pulled to the curb and stopped.

"May I see your driver's license, please," asked the patrolman. The driver complied.

"I have orders," said the trooper, "to pick you up on a Peeping Tom charge—know anything about it?"

"Yes, I do," declared the Idaho man. "There was a slight mix-up, but it's been straightened out now. If you have a few minutes I'll tell you what happened." The patrolman leaned back against the fender of his car and waited.

"Well, it's like this," said the wine-red car driver. "My son has just turned 16 and the other day he obtained his driver's license. Last night I gave him the car for the first time and off he went to ask a girl whom he had visited on several occasions, but never formally taken out, for a date. He's the person that the girl's mother saw. He is also the person that she mistook for a Peeping Tom."

"But, anyway, getting back to the story. He left the house, quite proud of his newly-acquired driving privilege, and headed for the girl's house to ask her for a date to go riding. While he was on his way, a thought came to him that perhaps the girl wouldn't date him. The more he thought about it, the more upset he became. He got to her house alright, got out of the car, but with each step he became a little more uncertain. Finally, as he passed the window before getting to the porch he lost his nerve, turned and fled. The mother saw him run and, of course, phoned the police."

The patrolman, not commenting during the story, nodded and said, "I know just how the kid felt. I was like him once myself, but that was a long time ago."

Notebook On Life

Puttering Around May Pay

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Many wives today complain that puttering husbands are driving them out of their minds.

It's a side effect of the do-it-yourself fad that has gripped millions of American men. They leave the house a mess from basement to attic, some wives object bitterly.

But the truth is that a number of these amateur tinkers are coming up with new and profitable household inventions. "Not my husband," the average wife may object. "If I gave him a blow torch, he couldn't even invent warm water."

Well, maybe. Then again, maybe not. You never know when or where inventive genius will strike.

For example: When his wife became ill, Eli Tchack, a hardware dealer of Kinston, N.C., had to prepare his own meals for a few days.

Tchack, who likes to broil steaks didn't mind the cooking at all. But he hated the later chore of scrubbing pans.

Noticing some aluminum foil in the kitchen, he began tinkering with it, trying to make a disposable broiling tray.

After several experiments, he came up with a tray with high sides and deep grooves to catch the dripping fat. He found he could cook his steaks, throw away the aluminum foil tray, and leave the roasting as clean as a—well, a hound's breakfast.

Tchack naturally bragged about his new idea to some fellow businessmen, and one suggested: "Why don't you patent and sell it?"

He did. He founded a new firm, his "broil-a-foil" trays are now sold in hundreds of supermarkets, and Tchack is launched on a million-dollar business.

But a fellow doesn't have to wait for his wife to fall ill to come up with a money-making idea.

Take George Lerner of Freeport, Long Island. One day bad weather kept his children in and, bored, they asked him if he couldn't think up something they could play. They were tired of their old toys.

Remembering a game he had played in rainy days during his own childhood, Lerner, a commercial artist, got out some potatoes and carrots. Then, using collar buttons, toothpicks and other odds and ends, he began to turn the vegetables into lifelike people. The children were delighted.

"If my kids get a kick out of a simple thing like this, why wouldn't other kids?" Lerner asked himself.

The result was "Mr. Potatohead," a collection of plastic ears, noses, mouths and eyes

Ratio Of Owners At Peak

By ELMER ROESSNER
The rise in the ratio of home ownership may be near an end. In 1940, 44 of every 100 family units, owned their own homes. By 1950, 55 of every 100 families were home owners and today around 60 out of every 100 are independent of landlords.

Politicians who claim credit for this state of affairs, sociologists and others say this high incidence of home ownership is wonderful—which of course it is.

A few of them say America will go on to be the first nation in which almost every family will own its own home.

That's nonsense. The ratio may never get much higher than it is now, no matter how much money the government pours into mortgages and incentive programs. TENANTS PREFERRED

Here are some groups for whom home ownership may be a burden:

Young families with pre-school children. The size of the family, hence the size of the house needed, is still uncertain. The care of the youngsters may not leave enough time and money to care for a home.

Families consisting of a parent and one son or daughter and where a marriage may radically change requirements.

Elderly couples, where shoveling snow, plowing lawns and other household chores might shorten life.

Families with a handicapped person whose care precludes care of a house and garden, or who must live close to sources of treatment.

Families in which the breadwinner's occupation requires frequent moves, or whose employment requires residence in certain areas. This includes those in which the breadwinner expects to be his company's European manager next year, and families of government employees who may be transferred from post to post.

Families who get major satisfactions from golf, theater, the ballet, sports and other activities rather than from a home.

There are also families who don't want to be bothered with the responsibilities of home ownership, families that are unable to keep a home in repair or mortgage payments current, families who prefer apartment life anyhow, families that prefer rented quarters until they can save enough for retirement homes in the country, and many one-person "families."

CONFIRMED BY STUDY

This persistence of tenancy is largely corroborated by a study of rental housing in Milwaukee, made by the University of Wisconsin's Bureau of Business Research and Service, financed in part by a Rockefeller Foundation grant.

The study showed that high-rent areas contained unattached persons, young adults, small new family groups with few if any children, and the aged. Many of the aged lived close to the business district and nursing home. In the low-rent areas there were many minority groups some, presumably, who will not be sold homes. In the medium-rental areas investigators found many families with grown children who had once owned their own homes. In rental areas below $100 a month, the population pattern dominated by children under five, with young parents too busy and too financially pressed to buy their own homes. (Besides, the children would wreck them.)

If about 40 of every hundred families fall into these natural tenancy groups, then the ratio of home ownership will not rise from now on. But the deterioration of old homes and the rise in the number of families will keep builders fairly busy.

GEE-WHILLIKER ITEMS IN THE BUSINESS FIELD

Scouts for the Lippincott and Margulies design firm have found in Italy the something found for two . . . Turn-the-other-cheek department: The Department of Commerce is trying to find an American firm interested in supplying capital and know-how to Ramadan Chelata Ahmed, an Egyptian luggage manufacturer . . . An inventor who has designed an item that looks like a match book but which contains strips of antiseptic paper has asked the Small Business Administration to find a manufacturer . . . Elmer W. Hassel, a General Electric engineer, wants cities to install public address systems in traffic lights to calm the people in case of national emergencies.

50-year-old disabled workers.

CHANCES ONCE OPPOSED BY REPUBLICAN PARTY Almost everyone of these economic and social changes were opposed by the Republican Presidential candidates of the last 30 years—Harding, Coolidge, Hoover, Landon, Wilkie, and although he was more sympathetic to them than his associates, by Thomas E. Dewey.

Under a conservative President, and if they did not need him so badly at the head of their national ticket, a majority of the Republicans in the House and Senate would have voted against all of these Eisenhower-Roosevelt-Truman innovations as "political heresy."

If re-elected, Ike's only task will be to keep the GOP from slipping back to McKinley-Harding-Coolidge-Hoover days. If he can do that, he thinks that a refabricated Republican Party can remain in power for another 20 years.

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP)—Frank A. Nixon has lost his long fight to vote once more for his son, Vice President Richard Nixon.

Death came quietly last night to the 77-year-old former grocer. He struggled nearly two weeks against a combination of crucial ailments, and then, realizing the end was near, calmly arranged his own funeral services.

Earlier he had hoped to vote again. "I'm going to make it," he told his physician last week. "I want to be around to vote in November."

The vice president, his two brothers, Edward and F. Donald, and their mother, Mrs. Hannah Nixon, 71, were at the elder Nixon's side when he died. Mrs. Nixon held his hand until the end.

Dr. I. N. Kraushaar said a pulmonary congestion was the immediate cause of death. Ill since a stomach ulcer hemorrhaged in July, he became critical Aug. 22, when an abdominal artery ruptured. His physical stamina amazed his physician.

"He's a tough member of a tough generation," Dr. Kraushaar said.

The vice president took his father's death "pretty badly," friends said. He remained in seclusion in the big, two-story home in nearby La Habra.

He made no immediate announcement of his plans for tomorrow, when he is scheduled to speak before the American Legion Convention in Los Angeles.

Dr. Kraushaar said the elder Nixon told his eldest son earlier "to go ahead with his obligations." The vice president canceled plans for today and Friday. But made no disclosures of the program for tomorrow.

The vice president's father arranged the funeral services with an oldtime friend, Dr. George Jenkins, who will officiate. The services will be held at 2 p.m. PDT Friday in the family's church, the East Whittier Friends Church.

Nixon died in his own room, where he had asked to remain. He refused to leave his home for a hospital. His bed was surrounded by pictures of his children and grandchildren.

The family gathered in the bedroom when Dr. Kraushaar announced the end was near. Richard and his brother, F. Donald, away from the home on a brief errand, hurried back. Already present was Edward, a Navy ensign home on emergency leave, and Mrs. Nixon.

Nixon, who had slipped into a coma early yesterday, never really revived. He died at 8:25 p.m. The family physician informed the newsmen and neighbors waiting in front of the home.

In one of his last conscious moments, the elder Nixon had asked to see his brother, Dr. Ernest Nixon, a geologist, of Harrisburg, Pa. But the brother's plane did not arrive in time.

No Goldbricking In Future Army

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here's a sad note for soldiers: Goldbricking—loafing on an easy or non-existent job—is on the way out.

Lt. Gen. Walter L. Weble, assistant chief of staff in charge of manpower and personnel, said in an interview yesterday the Army is looking for ways to reduce manpower in several fields, and at the same time make more efficient use of remaining GIs.

CHAPTER 24

The storm was over, but the clouds, briefly dispersed by the sun, folded back again and vision was shut away as Eklund plodded wearily toward his goal. Dusk laid its blanket across the earth.

He had three choices, and Eklund had pondered them these last dozen miles. One was to go again to Major Blake and tell what he had seen, to strive to convince him that peril was brewing in the cook pots of the red men, bubbling about to boil over.

To be at all convincing he must tell what had become a certainty in his own mind—that Dolf Kinney was the instigator of the trouble, the master planner behind a monstrous plot. Without that information, all the rest of it was worthless and would not be believed. Yet to give it was to have Kinney promptly called in, to listen to his denials and be discredited by them, and the major's suspicions lulled.

It was not of his own welfare that Eklund thought, or on that account that he hesitated. As being a sacrifice to duty now, or in the common holocaust which was brewing, he preferred to act immediately. But there was no point to being a useless sacrifice.

In the end, he yielded to desire and headed for the Armington ranch. He'd been ordered by Kinney to stay away from there, but save as he now played a game with the trader and must go warily, he was through with taking orders. Above all, he wanted to make sure that Narcissa was safe.

Narcissa opened the door to his knock. The lamplight framed her in its halo, so that she seemed even more beautiful than he had remembered. Welcome home, his goal relentlessly.

Many men had tried to stand in his way across the years, only to be brushed aside or trampled ruthlessly underfoot. Tom Armington was the latest of the list, but he would by no means be the last. Now, with Armington safely bedridden, there would be no one to interfere in this call which he had about to make. He'd have Narcissa understand that what he wanted he got.

If she was in a receptive mood, that would be fine. If not, he'd enjoy teaching her.

The shock came when, approaching the house, he looked through the open doorway, into the lighted room, and saw Narcissa in Eklund's arms.

Rage and shock held him frozen for a moment. Then he moved, not of his own volition, and he had taken a dozen lunging steps when the door closed, shutting out the scene. He halted, breathing heavily, still half-minded to charge ahead, to vent his anger. But by then he remembered that he had another weapon to use, a better, more devastating one than either fists or bullets. After a dragging hesitation, he swung back, then crossed to his horse and rode away before Eklund should emerge from the house and see him.

He thirsted for direct action. But to take it, he knew with chill certainty would bring Narcissa's hate upon him, and he wished at all costs to avoid that. This other method would be better, for it ought to kill her liking for the doctor even as it disposed of the man himself. With that surety, he could afford the slower method.

Meanwhile, he'd wait in town for Eklund to report, and to pay him for the guns. That would be the sort of meeting in which Kinney took pleasure—one in which the medico would figure that it was he who was doing the double-crossing, not realizing that his fate was already sealed. Dolf Kinney liked the ironical.

Back at his office, he lounged in a deep chair and drummed impatiently on the desk with heavy blunt fingers. To guard against the possibility that Eklund might not bother to seek him out that night, he passed the word to several of his henchmen to be on the lookout for the medico's return, and, unless he came speedily, to summon him. As it turned out, Eklund lost no time in coming.

Eklund had washed the grime from face and hands, back at the ranch, and the hour of rest and the food had helped, but he still looked worn, several days' growth of whiskers raggedly across his face. His whole desire was for bed, but he knew that Kinney would be impatient.

It would be easy to lie, under the circumstances, to make a convincing story of why he hadn't delivered the rifles. But Eklund was fed up, in the mood for a showdown.

Freeman Stuns Braves With 4-2 Victory

Redlegs Are After At Least 5 Honors

By JOE REICHLER
The Associated Press

Win, lose or draw, the Cincinnati Redlegs are almost certain to walk off with the following honors this year:

1. The most successful extra-inning club in the major leagues.
2. The most powerful home-run hitting crew in big league history.
3. Possessor of the National League's rookie-of-the-year in Frank Robinson.
4. Owner of the No. 1 relief pitcher in both leagues in Hershel Freeman.
5. Having the manager-of-the-year in Birdie Tebbets.

The amazing Redlegs solidified their hold on all five honors last night by handing the front-running Milwaukee Braves a stunning 4-2 defeat in 10 innings, made possible by Robinson's 37th home run and Freeman's 30th victory-bringing relief job. The Reds' brilliant fireman received credit for his 12th victory. He has saved 18 other games for Cincinnati.

The Reds' triumph, their second in a row over Milwaukee after a seemingly disastrous opening game defeat in Monday's double-header, boosted Tebbets' never-say-die outfit into second place, a half game ahead of Brooklyn and 2½ lengths behind the Braves.

It marked the 10th consecutive overtime triumph for the rampaging Redlegs, who have fought back into contention after having been counted out more times than a glass-chinned fighter.

In the only other National League game played last night, the New York Giants thumped Philadelphia 7-2 under the lights. Cleveland's hopes of overtaking the American League leading New York Yankees became dimmer than ever when the tail-end Kansas City Athletics dumped the second placers 5-2 to drop the Indians nine games behind New York.

Chicago's third place White Sox climbed to within two games of the Tribe by whipping Detroit 11-4 and Boston needed a 12th-inning home run by Ted Lepcio to nip Washington 7-6. Baltimore and New York had a day off.

Freeman made his 49th mound appearance for Cincinnati in the ninth with the score tied 2-2, and gave up a leadoff double to rookie Earl Hersh, playing in his first major league game. But he pitched out of the jam by purposely walking Joe Adcock, getting Bobby Thomson to ground into a double play and retiring Bill Bruton on a grounder.

Ernie Johnson was on the mound for Milwaukee in the 10th when Robinson rocked him with a home run to bring the flashy outfielder to within one of Wally Berger's rookie homer record of 38. Singles by Ted Kluszewski, Wally Post and Ed Bailey added an insurance run.

Max Surkont, supported by a 12-hit attack, notched his second victory since joining the Giants two weeks ago with a six-hitter against the Phils. A four-run ninth finished off loser Harvey Haddix.

The Athletics handed Herb Score his ninth defeat with an early attack that included a bases-loaded single by Joe De Maestri. Jack Crimian gained his third victory.

Dick Donovan not only pitched his sixth consecutive complete game victory with a 10-hitter against the Tigers but helped his cause with a three-run homer off Steve Gromek. Nellie Fox paced Chicago's 13-hit attack with three singles to wrest the lead from Mickey Mantle with 172 hits.

Lepcio added a two-run single to his game-winning home run to give Frank Sullivan his 12th triumph as the Red Sox swept the three-game series from their Washington tormentors.

Knollwood Will Be Big Test For '56 Play

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
CHICAGO (AP) — Months of a toughening-up process have left the Knollwood Club course a severe, exacting test for the 56th National Amateur golf tournament starting Monday.

In fact, the 6,790-yard circuit, carrying a par 35-36-71, is so demanding, as of now, that the United States Golf Assn. should be prepared to receive a number of beefs from players who think the course is rigged unfairly.

But such beefs—if they be forthcoming—would be nothing new to the USGA and Executive Director Joseph C. Dey Jr. It is their business to suggest how a course can be toughened for USGA title play. And they do an excellent job.

Knollwood's rough has been allowed to grow. With an unusual amount of rain recently, it has become a thickly matted nightmare of grass. The USGA, following usual procedure, may order some barbing work before tourney time.

As it stands now, the rough is so deep and shaggy that a player will have difficulty finding his ball, let alone playing it out. Using a No. 4 or 5 wood would be mere folly from most parts of the rough. A No. 9 or 8 iron, or Wedge, may be required to dig the ball out.

The rough has been allowed to encroach upon the fairways, narrowing them to 33-38 yards in width on most holes. And the thick grass also makes a frightening fringe at the greens. Chip shots from these aprons will be especially hazardous.

The course also is conscientiously trapped. Many of its fairways are pockmarked with sand requiring precise tee shots to keep out of trouble. Traps yawn around the front and sides of most greens, making approach shots a premium of accuracy.

But, mainly, it is the monstrous rough that will cause the most trouble. It virtually will cost a stroke to get into it. A straight long-ball hitter, who also has a strong putting game, should find frequently wind-swept Knollwood to his liking.

Rain, Injury Has Plagued Coaches

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain and injuries plagued many Atlantic Coast Conference football teams yesterday but third day practice sessions left a few coaches happy.

Coach Paul Amen at Wake Forest watched two contact sessions and commented, "We have progressed more than I thought we would at this stage."

He singled out George Johnson, tackle, for his play and had praise for the pass defenders. But with an infected throat and half-backs Eddie Rushton and George Dutton still nursed bad legs.

Coach Jim Tatum focused a movie camera on the session in order to give his staff a chance to better study the field. Several key men were still on the injured list as Duke finished its third straight day of rough workouts. Buddy Bass, captain and starting right end, was out with an infected throat and half-backs Eddie Rushton and George Dutton still nursed bad legs.

Rain spoiled the first full-scale scrimmage session at the University of North Carolina where half-back Ed Sutton and fullback Joe Temple looked sharp running before the cloudburst.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The honey moon in Milwaukee may be over but the love affair between the people of Wisconsin and the baseball team they call "Our Braves" continues to bloom as bright as ever. From the looks of things, the romance is likely to last a long, long time.

After nearly four wonderful years in Milwaukee—wonderful for the Braves and wonderful for Milwaukee—the fantastic story of the transplanted Braves may be nearing its climax—participation in the World Series.

The season has four weeks to run, but there is no denying the fact the Braves' chances of winning the National League pennant are excellent. As the race headed into September, they were in first place, two games in front of the pursuing Brooklyn Dodgers and three ahead of the third place Cincinnati Redlegs.

The people of Milwaukee and her neighboring communities who have been wishfully thinking of a pennant ever since the Braves came here in 1953, are convinced the time has come. They've been feverishly ordering World Series tickets for weeks and frenziedly making hotel reservations for the glorious event next month.

What will happen should the Braves fail?

"The people will be terribly disappointed," said Donald Davidson, the Braves' energetic public relations director, "but they won't quit us. They know if we don't win the pennant this year, we'll win it the next or in 1958. It's a young club with a promise for the future."

That seems to be the general opinion in Milwaukee. Losing the pennant would be a tremendous shock to the people but that wouldn't stop them from storming the windows next winter for their season tickets for 1957.

"Until this year," explained Russ Lynch, dynamic sports editor of the Milwaukee Journal who had a great deal to do with bringing the Braves to Milwaukee, "the fans merely hoped for a pennant. Now they expect it. They feel they are entitled to one. No fan anywhere has been more loyal, more generous and more devoted to his team."

There has been some feeling that the Braves' good deal in Milwaukee could not last. Many people have been expecting the bubble to burst ever since 1954 when the city bettered its own first year attendance record of 1,826,397 by soaring over the two million mark. But attendance reached two million again last year and is practically certain of doing that again this year.

"Take it from a man who has observed the Milwaukee sport scene practically all of his life," said Lloyd Larsen, sports editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel, "There is no bubble to burst. Do not expect the Braves attendance to fall below a million and a half in any season for the next ten years. Interest falling off? Anything but. There's more of it than ever."

SC Teams Begin Heavy Contact

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southern Conference football teams aren't waiting very long to get into the tough contact work.

After a few days of limbering up in pre-season drills, most teams conducted scrimmages in their practices yesterday — Virginia Military for a full hour and one-half. The VMI varsity took on the freshmen in the scrimmage, which coach John McKenna said "showed quite well our need for continued hard work."

The Citadel squad conducted its first contact work and coach John Sauer expressed pleasure with the results. However, the team took a setback when Bobby Miller, one of two veteran-quarterbacks, underwent an emergency operation. He'll be out of action for the first half of the season.

Halfback Charlie Sidwell broke loose for several long runs as William and Mary went through a one-hour, full-speed scrimmage, which put the accent on passing. Ends Larry Peccatiello and Dan Plummer were other standouts.

Davidson conducted two long workouts, one a scrimmage session, and coach Bill Dole said he was satisfied with both drills. Three teams alternated during the scrimmage. A bright spot in the Davidson picture is the expected return to action Friday of tackle Paul Biggers, hospitalized with a virus infection. Virginia Tech put some heavier work into the practice diet, including some scrimmaging and detailed work on punt formations and punt returns. Some booming kicks came off the toe of Bobby Wolfenden, senior halfback and No. 10 punter in the country last year.

For the second straight day defending conference champion West Virginia's varsity scrimmaged with the frosh. Coach Art Lewis said he was "fairly well satisfied" with the progress of both squads. However, he added that the varsity still has "a long way to go before we will be ready for Pitt Sept. 22."

Furman's workout was spent largely in polishing up the offense. Second stringers showed up well. The University of Richmond Spiders touched off their pre-season workouts with calisthenics, passing fundamentals and punting practice. Rain forced the Spiders indoors for the afternoon drill.

Church Weighs Value Of 'Foster Homes' For Aged

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—The value of a new method to deal with the pressing problem of the aged — placing them in foster homes — is being weighed by the Evangelical and Reformed Church.

"Christian love cannot countenance the tendency to bury old people alive in state-supported mental institutions where today there are thousands of forgotten older people," delegates to the church's triennial meeting were told today.

The Commission on Benevolent Institutions, which watches over 21 homes for the aged operated by the church in 11 states, reported the church membership is becoming more aware of the growing need for "adequate for the aged."

"We know that at present every one of our homes for the aged have waiting lists which would keep them filled for another two years even if they did not receive a single new application," said the Rev. Garnett O. Adams, superintendent of the Bethany Orphan Home, Womelsdorf, Pa.

"The commission does not feel the foster home plan is the complete answer to the problem or that it would mean we could do away with the homes for the aged," the Rev. Adams said in his prepared address. "But we certainly think it is an important part of the program to serve the aged."

Victor B. Hauck Jr., of St. Louis commission treasurer, said the foster home plan for the aged is being studied at the Bensenville Home Society, one of the 21 homes at Bensenville, Ill.

"The idea is the same as foster homes for children," he explained. "First, homes are found that are willing to take older people. Then social workers make studies to determine the compatibility of the home's occupants and the older persons."

The denomination's homes for the aged are supported by local contributions amounting to about 1 1/4 million dollars a year.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — The stock market prices continued their advance early this afternoon in the heaviest trading of the past two weeks.

Pivotal stocks rose from around 1 to 3 points as steels, aircrafts, oils and some copper shares were in demand.

Volume for the day was estimated at around 2,500,000 shares compared with 1,790,000 yesterday, giving the market a brisk pace that has been conspicuously lacking in recent sessions.

The market was higher from the start as industrials followed through on their rise of yesterday when they were spurred by the rise of the steel operations to its best post-strike level.

The more optimistic feeling about the Cairo conference on Suez was a tonic for the international oils and the list in general.

Even the leading rails, which lagged yesterday, perked up today as fractional gains were registered by Chesapeake & Ohio, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio and several others.

Union Oil of California went ahead over 3 points on news of its big new discovery well in Cuyahoga, Gulf Oil and Royal Dutch rose around 2 points apiece and Texas Co. about a point.

Steels made some good gains again. U. S. Steel, reached another new high. Bethlehem gained better than a point.

Chrysler was ahead around a point before it, too, backed up unchanged. General Motors and Ford were steady.

Du Pont was a 2-points gainer. Union Carbide and Air Reduction made a point or better.

Settling below their gains of the early session, Boeing and United Aircraft were up major fractions but Douglas Aircraft eased. Glenn

Commissioners In Brief Meet

Pitt County Commissioners met for only a few minutes yesterday afternoon to discuss one of their shortest meetings in recent months.

In the afternoon portion of their meeting, the commissioners heard reports from several county agencies and then adjourned for the month. Prior to that they had acted on routine business, approved a jury list for the October term of Superior Court and unanimously endorsed the Pearsall Plan.

All members of the board were present for the meeting which was postponed from Monday because of the Labor Day holiday. Chairman W. J. Smith of Bethel presided.

the floor, "the high school band has left football games before the third quarter was finished, which doesn't help the athletes' morale."

It was also stated that only 200 of the 600 students in GHS purchased season tickets last year. The fault, it was said, does not all lie in the citizens' neglect—but also in the school itself.

The Boosters, with a membership of about 200 now, plan to continue their rally. They have set a goal of 1,000 memberships and last night's meeting got the ball rolling.

Methodist Men Hear Role Of Fund-Raisers

The reason for retaining and the manner of operation of the professional money raising firm of Ketchum, Incorporated, was reported to the Methodist Men's Club of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church last night at the first meeting of the new Conference year in Fellowship Hall.

Hoover Taft, chairman of the Church Building Fund Committee at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, explained the reason and John E. Brinton of Milheim, Pa., agent sent to Jarvis Memorial by Ketchum, Inc., gave some sidelights on how it would be done. He explained that the exact procedure would be presented to the Official Board of the church last night.

Also appearing briefly was Michael Kearney, publicity man for Ketchum, Inc.

Monday's Cases In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH

In Police Court Monday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee found a man guilty of assaulting a four-year-old child and sentenced him to three months on the roads.

Testimony was that Bruce F. Cox, Negro, 1024-B Mack street, struck his stepson, Gary Simmons, in the mouth with such force as to loosen several of the child's teeth and cut its lip. Judge Whedbee suspended judgment on condition that Cox pay $5 medical bill and pay a fine of $25 and costs, and placed Cox on probation for two years.

The court found Eula B. Mooring, Negro, 313 Wade street, guilty of possessing non-tax paid whiskey, and gave her three months in jail. The court suspended judgment on condition that she pay $50, costs deducted, not possess any intoxicating beverage for two years and be placed on probation for two years. For possessing tax-paid beer for sale, the court gave Eula B. Mooring three months (concurrent), sentence to be suspended on payment of court costs and that she remain of good behavior for two years. The court ordered the beer confiscated.

nue, failure to yield right of way, prayer for judgment continued on payment of costs. He is not to drive unless he makes restitution for property damage.

Marguerite V. Crenshaw, 402 Jarvis street, failure to stop at a stop light, $10.

Failure to stop at a stop sign: Roger L. Mann, Jr., 1913 East Fifth street, was not guilty.

Young Bicyclist And Car Collide

A small Greenville boy received a bump on the forehead after engaging in a short, but decisive, battle with a car driven by Mrs. Christine Tripp, 124 N. Eastern Street.

The boy, Michael Aldridge, 136 N. Library Street, was riding a bicycle and Mrs. Tripp told police that he evidently did not see her. She further stated that she turned out for the boy and just about the time she stopped, the young lad ran into her car.

The accident occurred at the intersection of First and Eastern Streets. Young Michael is the son of Dr. and Mrs. M. W. Aldridge of 136 N. Library Street.

which children could press into vegetables and making amusing caricatures of human faces.

The game became a surprise big-seller.

"They told me that nobody would buy a game that merely called for making faces out of vegetables and fruit," recalled Lerner, whose royalties now would enable him to buy several vegetable or fruit farms if he chose.

Lerner, who now works full time in his basement laboratory developing new boys, has this to say about his success.

"Unfortunately, many people, when they do get a good profitable idea, don't have enough faith in it. They're afraid it's too simple."

The moral, ladies, is this: If you have a husband who likes to putter, let the guy alone.

If he comes up with even one good simple idea, it'll keep you in mink coat money the rest of your life.
