

Hucksters Of Fear Are Muddying Waters Of The Pearsall Plan

Hucksters of fear and uncertainty in North Carolina have muddied the waters around the Pearsall Plan, leaving confusion in their wake and hoping for negative votes Saturday from a bewildered citizenry.

Last Pitt Countians fall unwitting victims to the barrage of far-fetched speculations unfounded fears and misrepresentations of the purpose and contents of the Pearsall Plan, The Reflector would point out several vital facts:

1. Prophets of doom who have assailed so vehemently the Pearsall Plan have sought to have the people of the state believe there will be wholesale closing of public schools if the constitutional amendment is adopted Saturday.

Nothing could be farther from the truth!

If indeed, provisions of the Pearsall Plan are invoked, few if any of the public schools of North Carolina will be closed by the voters. The people of the state have worked long and hard to build their public school system. They readily recognize the vital role the schools play in the life of a community. They will not discard lightly the institutions they cherish above all others, save their churches.

2. Those who have likened the Pearsall Plan to a funeral march for North Carolina's public schools have made much over the provision which would in specific cases remove the state's compulsory attendance law.

In fact, however, North Carolina has never spent one penny to enforce that law in all the years it has been on the books. And yet our schools are filled to overflowing. Under the Pearsall Plan compulsory attendance would be relaxed only in the unfortunate event that a school were closed. Without a public-supported school to attend, how can the state justly enforce an attendance law?

3. Where will the private schools come from? Continued On Page Four

Three Face A Common Problem

Three prominent North Carolinians very much concerned with public education got together last night to exchange ideas and comments. Dr. John D. Messick (right), president of East Carolina College, was host at a supper for Governor Luther H. Hodges (seated) and Tom Pearsall (left) of Rocky Mount, author of the Pearsall Plan. The supper was held after Governor Hodges and Pearsall had appeared on a television program here. (Reflector Staff Photo.)

FTC Dismisses Charges Against Wilson Board

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission today dismissed charges that the Wilson, N. C. Tobacco Board of Trade, Inc., and its 19 warehouse members have illegally restricted trade in the area.

The commission, however, ordered removal of some "unreasonable restraints on newcomers to the market and independent speculators."

Concerning these operations, the order of the commission prohibits the board and its warehouse members from:

1. Computing warehouse sales of its members, for determining year-to-year performance, by pounds of tobacco sold rather than by the number of baskets sold.
2. Discriminating against independent speculators or resellers.
3. Basing the selling time allowed a new warehouse on the past performance of only one other warehouse in the area.

The commission denied appeals by the leader in the sale of flue-cured tobacco grown in a five-belt area stretching from northern Florida to central Virginia. The market in 1953 handled sales of more than 91 million pounds.

Because flue-cured tobacco is a perishable item, the amount sold in a day must be controlled. The Wilson market is allotted 10,000 baskets a day by the Bright Belt Warehouse Assn. and the Wilson board in turn determines the system for allowing selling time to each warehouse.

In an examination of the inequities in the current system, Commissioner Lowell B. Mason agreed with Examiner Frank Bier that measurement of performance by poundage rather than baskets sold was "unrealistic and inequitable."

The opinion noted that baskets brought in from the farms vary from 20 to 300 pounds, yet each basket requires the same amount of space and time to sell. The result is that under the poundage system one warehouse may sell as many baskets as another but have to its credit only half as many pounds.

In addition, the opinion said, a warehouse is allowed to include in its performance only 6.8 per cent of the tobacco resold by speculators. Mason said that when this figure of total sales is reached, some warehousemen refuse to accept speculators' tobacco for resale, with a resulting unreasonable restraint on their right to do business.

Color Available

The Daily Reflector today for the first time carries a color advertisement.

Through its recent expansion program and the installation of new equipment, The Reflector is now in a position to offer advertisers one color in addition to black and white. Within the next few months the newspaper will expand the color advertising service it will be able to offer.

D. J. Whichard Jr., publisher of The Reflector, said today, "We have looked forward for several years to being able to offer our advertisers this additional service of color. We are confident it will be an asset to local business firms in their advertising and merchandising and at the same time be pleasing to our readers."

The deadline for receipt of copy and insertion of color advertisements will be noon two days before publication.

Staff Will Tally Ballot Results

Poll holders for Saturday's constitutional amendment election have been asked to telephone results of the election to the Reflector after ballots are counted Saturday night.

The telephone number is 6166. Reflector staff members will compile the returns at the newspaper office on Saturday night.

STURGIS, Ky. (AP)—An angry, yelling mob of 400-500 persons swung fists here today as National Guard troops escorted nine Negro youths into the previously all-white Sturgis High School.

The armed troops got the youths through the yelling, fist-swinging crowd after a five-minute struggle. Five unidentified men were seized by the troops, who moved into this western Kentucky town of 5,000 last night. The seized men were quickly removed from the scene by State Police.

The troops, after taking the Negro youths into the school approximately a half hour before classes were to open, fixed bayonets and drove the crowd away from the school building.

As the Negro youths left their homes about a mile from this mining and farming town's only high school, crowds began to gather along the way engaging in name-calling as the youths walked down the street.

By the time they had reached the school's vicinity, the crowd had reached nearly 500, many yelling "don't let those niggers in our school."

When several in the crowd tried to grab the youths, National Guardsmen stepped in. Fists began to fly but the troops pushed their way through and after driving the crowd back across the street remained with fixed bayonets around the school.

Many white children remained outside the school. Maj. Gen. J. B. Williams, commanding officer of about 210 members of the 240th Tank Battalion which was ordered to this small community along with four tanks, said:

"I have issued orders to keep the street clear and traffic moving. All children who want to enter the school will be admitted."

The crowd remained milling around the school approximately 45 minutes after the Negro youths had entered. They continued heckling the troops.

Gen. Williams said last night after the troops' arrival that the Guardsmen would remain as long as necessary and were "well-prepared for any eventuality."

Later, a sixth unidentified man was arrested when he assaulted State Police Det. Leroy Poole.

Tanks moved up into the street directly in front of the school building. A solid line of Guardsmen was strung along the block from one end to the other as school buses began to arrive with white children.

As the children alighted from the buses, the crowd began to chant "don't go into that nigger-loving school." The crowd kept up the chant as the assembly bell sounded inside the school.

A few minutes later, some children began to leave the school. Many girls were crying. As they reached the outside, the crowd cheered.

One mother ran to a window and shouted for her children to leave. Some children inside the school yelled in reply:

"We're not coming out. The law is the law."

Other parents entered the school and returned to the outside with their children.

The Negro youths who entered the school were identified as Shirley Beasley, Margaret Garnett, Kenneth Hayden, Jane Howard, James Beasley, Dudley Bishop, Kenneth Greenwell, Nathaniel Dixon and Tommy Dixon.

Considers Pupil Assignment Law Fills N. C. Need

Mrs. John W. Crawford, president of the North Carolina Congress of Parents and Teachers, Inc., said last night that the congress believes the "1955 Pupil Assignment Law now in effect is adequate and that the proposed (Pearsall plan) amendment should be defeated at the polls."

Mrs. Crawford spoke on television station WNCN last night following a program on which Gov. Luther Hodges and Thomas Pearsall appeared to urge support of the Pearsall plan.

"A vote for this amendment is a backward step for North Carolina's schools," Mrs. Crawford declared. "We have come a long way to reach our present high standards. Now are we going to jeopardize our public schools for a plan that many qualified people think would be quickly declared unconstitutional and will bring us into seeming defiance of the Supreme Court?"

Mrs. John W. Crawford

Mrs. Crawford said that the North Carolina Congress of Parents and Teachers has given the matter many months of "most careful study and prayerful consideration and thought."

She said the executive committee of the organization "decided that the Pearsall plan is in conflict with the purposes of the Parent-Teacher organization in its endeavours to secure for every child the highest advantage in physical, mental, social and spiritual education."

The president said that after months of careful study "we came to the conclusion that the proposed amendment might not serve as a 'safety valve,' but instead of maintaining segregation, it would tend to hasten and force integration in the public schools. The North Carolina Congress stands firm in its support of public schools and education, but does not either propose or promote integration, which is an entirely different matter."

"Therefore, two other members of the Executive Committee and I appeared before the special session of the General Assembly on July 24 and expressed our views in opposition of the Pearsall plan."

"We urge every citizen in North Carolina to vote on Sept. 8 as conscientiously and wisely as is within your power as together we seek to preserve our public schools," Mrs. Crawford concluded. "We believe our public schools must be maintained."

Money Problems Grow In 2-Day-Old Budget Hearing

RALEIGH (AP)—Think you have money troubles? Look what Gov. Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission have to contend with.

The budget hearings are just two days old, but already state agencies have filed requests for $12,412,000 more in operating funds for the next two fiscal years than they were given during the current biennium.

In addition, they have filed requests for $2,942,000 for permanent improvements.

Balanced against the requests is the fact the state has a $3 million dollar balance in its treasury and Gov. Hodges has stated he does not see any tax reductions in sight.

The hearings will last another two weeks and some of the state's biggest spending agencies, such as the Board of Education, have yet to be heard from.

The Budget Commission will go over the requests at the conclusion of the hearings and make its budget recommendations to the 1957 Legislature.

Among the requests filed yesterday was one for 1 1/2 million dollars to air condition state office buildings. State Buildings and Grounds Supt. George B. Cherry told the commission the cooling equipment would make summer time more productive as well as more pleasant for state workers.

Biggest requests filed yesterday were by the State Board of Health and the State Department of Welfare. Both called for 10 per cent wage increases for their employees.

Asst. Budget Director D. S. Coltrane said 18 1/2 million dollars a year would be needed to spread a 10 per cent hike to all workers paid from the general fund. He said another four million would be needed from the highway fund and other special funds.

The Welfare Department, whose budget this year is $6,552,391, asked for $8,183,457 during the first year of the biennium, and $8,220,837 during the second year.

Dr. Ellen Winston, welfare commissioner, said the requested increases would do little more than keep pace with growing case loads.

The Board of Health, operating on a budget of $2,474,131 this year, asked for $3,669,070 next year and $3,740,077 the following year. A portion of the increase, said State Health Officer J. W. R. Norton, would raise state aid to local health departments.

Ralph P. Hanes of Winston-Salem, president of Old Salem, Inc., asked that the state almost double its contribution to the restoration of Old Salem, an 18th century Moravian settlement in Forsyth County. The state put up $35,000 during this biennium; Hanes asked for $60,000 during the next biennium.

Three New Grades Are Added For Extra Pupils

By NEIL KING
Superintendent of City Schools

J. H. Rose reported that three new grades had been added to accommodate the additional 201 students for this school year.

This year's opening day attendance was 4,298 as compared to 4,097 last year. An extra eighth grade was added at the high school and two more grades, sixth and seventh, were affixed to the Elmhurst School. Rose stated that school population could possibly increase to 4,500 by the end of the month. "About two or three hundred colored pupils are expected to register between now and next month," said Rose, "and we are looking for an increase in white pupils, too—between 25 and 50." Continued the Superintendent: "We still have some congestion at West Greenville School, but we'll have it ironed out in a few more days. Fortunately, everything panned out just about as expected."

The biggest jump in opening day attendance was in the white elementary grades which grew from one to eight. This year's total amounted to 2085 compared to last year's 1961—an increase of 124 students. The lowest increase was 13 at Greenville High School. This year 525 high school students registered, compared to 512 a year ago. An overall increase of 137 white students was shown for 1956. Total registration amounted to 2,610.

First day attendance showed an increase of 35 pupils at C. M. Eppey High School. Two hundred eighty-seven high school students, grades 9 through 12, registered for the 1956 school term compared to 252 of a year ago. Registration for the colored elementary schools' grades one through eight, was 1,401. Last year's registration was 1,372—an increase of 29 students. The overall increase in colored schools amounted to 64. The total number of registered colored students for Greenville comes to 1,688.

"We want to thank the people of Greenville," said Rose, "in understanding our problems and in wanting to thank them again for the cooperation they gave us in making everything run as smoothly as possible."

Light Agenda To Face Council

City Councilmen will find a light agenda when they hold their regular September meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in City Hall.

The city fathers will be asked to authorize public hearings preliminary to annexing two subdivisions tonight, both of which have been approved by the Planning-Zoning Commission. They are the W. H. Mills subdivision in Meadowbrook and the Royce Jones subdivision on S. Elm St.

They will also be asked to zone Hillsdale Addition No. 1 and a portion of Bancroft Ave. as residential areas.

Councilmen will hear a request for rezoning certain residential property from Evans to Forbes on 10th as commercial.

The restriction of parking in front of the college on 10th St. will come before the councilmen tonight and they will also discuss the purchase of a shop and storage building for the Recreation Department.

Finally the city fathers will be asked to make permanent a 45 mile per hour speed limit from Erml St. to the city limits on 10th.

Police Await Publisher's Side Of How Gun Wound Incurred

CUJAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Witnesses agreed today there was a loud quarrel over a story in Confidential magazine just before the publisher, Robert Weldy, 50, was shot. But police waited to get Harrison's own story before deciding whether to prosecute Brichard Weldy, 35, jungle trapper and guide. The New York publisher was in a hospital here suffering from exhaustion, exposure and a slight flesh wound in the left arm.

Weldy was under arrest in this city on a holding charge. He acknowledged to reporters at police headquarters yesterday he had shot Harrison Tuesday in woods where the publisher was hunting in the Jarabacoa Mountain district about 70 miles northwest of here. But he said the shooting was an accident.

He said his rifle fell and went off as the two were having a "big argument" over a story in Harrison's magazine. The story told how Weldy introduced Peruvian actress Pilar Palette, then his wife, to Hollywood star John Wayne in Peru in 1952. She later became Mrs. Wayne.

"I never had any intention of hurting Harrison," he declared, "although I was sore because of the story in the magazine."

A. F. Govoni, managing editor

of Confidential and Harrison's hunting companion, said last night "Weldy was shouting and gesturing abuse because of the story in the magazine."

He said he did not see the shooting because he had just stumbled and fallen on his face. He told newsmen he could not say whether the shooting was accidental or deliberate. "Harrison will have to tell you that," he added.

A pretty American woman singer, Genee Courtney, also was on the hunting trip when Weldy happened upon the party. Weldy and Govoni left her with the wounded Harrison in the jungle.

Hodges Calls For Big Vote By Tar Heels On Saturday

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Gov. Luther B. Hodges last night called for a "tremendous vote" in Saturday's Pearsall plan constitutional amendment election.

The governor and Thomas J. Pearsall, from whom the plan is named, appeared on television stations WNCN and WTTN last night to urge the public to support the amendment.

At a press conference following his TV appearance in Greenville Gov. Hodges said: "I'm hoping we will get out a tremendous vote. It's vitally important that we get a large vote."

Earlier during his appearance on the two television stations, Gov. Hodges had said that it was important that the constitutional amendment pass by a large majority.

If it did not, he said, "outside instigators and in-seated sympathizers would claim some sort of moral victory."

At the press conference last night Gov. Hodges said that he realized that the election was coming at an off-time.

However, he said, it was planned that way for two reasons. First, he continued, the Sept. 8 election date was chosen so there would be no question that the election was non-partisan. Then, he said, "I also promised the people that the election would be held near the opening of school."

The governor said that "thousands of people have wanted a chance to express themselves" and the "chance to vote Saturday gives them that chance to express themselves."

Gov. Hodges stated that "some people and newspapers" have attempted to defeat the program by suggesting that it will close the schools.

"The opposite is true," he declared. The governor said he did not know how large the vote in Saturday's election will be.

"I have heard it estimated from three to four hundred thousand but I do not know," he declared.

He said he had predicted the amendment will carry two or three to one. However, he noted he had heard estimates as high as seven to one, although he considered that high. The governor said that he is making television and radio talks Friday night to make a final request of North Carolinians that they support the amendment.

Saturday, he said, he will fly to Asheville to cast his vote in the amendment election.

On the television broadcasts Hodges and Pearsall were questioned about various aspects of the Pearsall plan. Both men reiterated that the amendment can prevent integration.

Pearsall on TV described the plan as a "safety valve."

"Contrary to what a lot of people are saying and newspapers are trying to make people believe, this plan would not close the schools of North Carolina. It provides a safety valve. We think the people are entitled to that protection."

Gov. Hodges closed the telecasts by urging a large vote on Saturday.

"I want you to go to the polls on Saturday and show them that you want this plan," he declared. "The way to do it is to get out and vote on Saturday and I hope you do."

Pearsall Almost Didn't Make It To Party After Telecasting

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Staff Writer

Tom Pearsall almost didn't make the party where he was one of the honored guests last night.

The author of the state's proposed new school plan was to attend a private supper given by Dr. John D. Messick for Governor Luther H. Hodges and members of his party after the Governor's television address. Pearsall had come to Greenville in "Number One" with the Governor but got separated when Dr. Paul Jones of Farmville offered to ride Governor Hodges to the restaurant where the supper was to be held.

Highway Patrol Sgt. Harold Minges, the Governor's chauffeur, knew the general direction of the other cars had taken and took off after them. He lost the other drivers, however, and pulled into a filling station to ask where the supper was being held. Folks in the filling station directed Minges to the Country Club.

Pearsall got out of the big limousine at the Country Club but hopped right back in when he was directed to another restaurant. He was inside there when Jim Butler finally traced him and got him back with the rest of the group.

The big man from Rocky Mount roared with laughter when he found that the filling station where they got their first directions is next door to the restaurant where the supper was being held.

The supper party included some of the state's most outstanding business, civic and political leaders. Besides the Governor and Pearsall, others attending were Dr. Messick, Butler, and Dr. Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College, Jack Spain, administrative assistant to Senator Sam J. Ervin, Ralph Hodges and L. H. Ross of Washington, N. C.; Ivan Bissette of Grifton; Clifton Everette, vice-

Capitol Guide Likes Job Despite Rigors Entailed

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Myrtle Cheney Murdock, a Capitol building guide, says taking visitors around the historic domed-building amounts to a "physical endurance contest," this summer even after Congress has closed up shop and not a lawmaker's in sight.

"It's a strange thing," she told me. "The influx of visitors hasn't let up this year. The 24 guides are still on duty, with most of us making about five tours a day—only three or four less than in the heaviest tourist season in the spring. The main thing folks want to see are the Senate and House chambers whether anybody's there or not."

There are some 20 to 25 children in each group and 30 to 40 adults, according to Mrs. Murdock. All are fascinated with the historical facts and explanations given them by the guides.

Probably no one is more devoted to the nation's capital city, or so ably equipped to interpret its historical development than Mrs. Murdock. The wife of John R. Murdock, former Democratic congressman from Arizona, for whom she worked as a clerk on Capitol Hill for 12 years, the indefatigable Mrs. Murdock has been boning up on Washington's history ever since coming here in 1936.

She's written three highly interesting and popular books on the subject. The first, "Your Uncle Sam in Washington," published in 1948, is used in schools and libraries. She wrote a book about Constantino Brumidi, the fresco artist who decorated the walls and dome of the capitol, and another, "National Statuary Hall," which brings to life the 86 bronze and marble statues in the building.

When Murdock decided to stay on in Washington to research for a book of his own after his defeat for re-election in 1952, his wife got herself a job as a capitol guide. "I decided I knew enough to make a good guide," she said. "I don't know how many steps I take a day. I'd just rather not know. I might get tired thinking about it."

The guides take people through the capitol every day from 9 a.m. until about 4 or 4:30 p.m. with every other Sunday off. The capitol is 757 feet long, and the 35- to 45-minute tours cover this distance.

News From Red Oak

October 24 has been set aside for the annual "Harvest Auction Sale and Supper" held at the Red Oak Community Center for the benefit of the Red Oak Church Building Fund.

The idea for the "Harvest Sale" originated in the Old Circle No. 1 of the church which was composed of about thirty-five of the older men and women of the church. It has been an annual affair every since October 1948 and each year the crowds get larger and the proceeds increase. Several thousand dollars have been added to the Church Building fund from this annual affair.

In just a short while all committees will be appointed. With everybody cooperating to the fullest, this should be the most successful sale ever held.

Mrs. B. L. Tyson has been appointed by the church board as chairman of the Harvest Festival. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tyson and sons Joe and Terry have returned home after spending Labor Day holidays with their parents.

Miss Sue Lanman has returned from a month's visit with relatives in Indiana.

Home-Coming Day will be celebrated at the Red Oak Christian church on the third Sunday in September. All former pastors, members and friends are cordially invited to the services. Sunday School begins at 9:45 a.m., followed by church services at eleven. A picnic dinner will be spread on the grounds and a musical and fellowship program will be held for one hour in the afternoon. All members are asked to bring a picnic basket.

Hucksters Of Fear Muddy Water

shout the verbose opponents, predicating the question on their unfounded assumption that North Carolinians are itching for a chance to discard the fine public schools they now have.

Where indeed? They would be provided—if indeed they are needed in any community in the state—by the same average citizen who has worked so diligently for decades to build the public school system we now have.

There are three groups of citizens who will vote against the Pearsall amendment on Saturday. The pro-integrationists who see the plan as a means of preserving the state's public school system in its present form; the extreme segregationists who feel the plan is too moderate; and the much larger group of citizens who because of an inadequate understanding of the plan, have fallen victim to the unfounded and irresponsible assertions that the plan precludes destruction of the public school system.

Even at this late hour on the eve of the referendum, it is our hope that this latter group will recognize the wisdom of the Pearsall Plan, understand it more fully and cast their ballots in its favor Saturday.

The Pearsall Plan provides a practical means of coping with any situation which might arise concerning integration. It leaves in the hands of the people of each community the power to determine the course of their own public schools so far as integration is concerned. It guarantees a middle ground between extremes where the people, following their own consciences, may determine the course of their schools.

Under the Pearsall Plan the people of every community will be provided the legal means of the ballot box to resolve any situation which may arise.

Certainly that means it is much to be preferred to the violence which is the only recourse open to the people of Tennessee, Texas and Kentucky.

Without the Pearsall Plan every community in North Carolina could find itself and its schools at the mercy of extremists on either side of the question. Without the alternative of local option votes which the Pearsall Plan provides, control of the situation would be thrown into the hands of the extremists. The only recourse would be mob action, a thrashing, snarling beast with the power to destroy and no common sense to restrain it.

At the ballot box Saturday every North Carolinian will have the opportunity to express his opposition to

Today Marks New Step In Reflector's Progress

Today the Reflector makes available to its advertisers another special service; that of color advertising. For several years this newspaper has looked forward to the day it could offer this additional service to its advertisers and its readers. Through the installation of additional equipment in our recent expansion program we now have mechanical equipment to offer color in The Reflector.

For the time being The Reflector will offer advertising in only one color in addition to the regular black and white. In the next few months, however, as we become more accustomed to handling color printing, we will be able to offer advertisements in three colors in addition to black and white.

It is our sincere hope that this new use of color by The Reflector will be pleasing to both our advertisers and our readers as we make another step forward to better serve the people of Pitt County.

Holiday Safety Could Be Year-Round Feature

Pitt County can justly be proud of its traffic record during the Labor Day week-end, the best for the county in four years.

It wasn't that the people didn't get out on the roads, for officials say that traffic through Pitt was the heaviest in history over the holiday. It was just a matter of the drivers taking special precautions to make sure they didn't become a highway statistic.

force integration by voting FOR the Pearsall amendment. At the same time he will be casting a ballot which will insure the peaceful preservation of the state's public school system.

Growing Demands For State Services

By LYNN NISBET BUDGETS — The first day's hearing by the advisory budget commission developed a pattern of presentations by State agencies, departments and institutions of needs for the next biennium. Larger demands for services occasioned by a growing state in almost every instance called for additional personnel and equipment.

The backlog of needs in these areas was enlarged by the attitude of the budget commission and the General Assembly two years ago in holding down appropriations to an absolute minimum. The fear was then openly voiced that a declining economy would reduce revenue and the general fund could not stand the drain to meet normal expansion.

The budget-makers miscued on that, with result that fiscal year ended with a general fund balance of $38 million. Nobody mentioned that item before the commission, but there were numerous references to the fact that requests made before were cut out, thus increasing the need now.

There were several indirect references to saving pennies at the expense of dollars, especially in adequate auditing, checking of inventories and efficient administration.

AUDITING — Auditor Henry Bridges emphasized the need for four additional men. He does not feel that there has been serious skimping of required audits, but said in order to comply with statutory requirements for annual audits of all institutions and departments, his men admittedly have not been as thorough in details as he would like.

PERSONNEL — Another facet of the same story is in the Department of Personnel. At least two additional employees are needed to extend the recruiting services to high school and colleges in order to develop employee pools for State jobs, and for closer co-operation with the employment service and merit council. Without this stepping up efficiency the State faces prospect of gradual lowering in competence of employees, which might prove serious 15 or 20 years hence. A few dollars spent now will save millions in the long run, said John McDevitt, personnel director.

NONCHALANCE — Also coming for frequent criticism was the long time practice of the General Assembly nonchalantly adding new duties to administrative offices without making any appropriation for the extra work. Secretary of State Thad Eure made that point, when he ex-

Public Forum

To the Editor: Dear Sir: Tuesday night I was among those who attended the Greenville High School athletic booster meeting which was held down in Town Hall. Continually I heard voiced two sentiments. The first was apparently everyone's disappointment in there being so few at the meeting. The second was everyone's self-righteous attitude at their own presence.

The leaders of the organization maintained that the students, faculty, and other citizens were all at fault. I place before you these questions. Should the students be called upon to sell Athletic Booster tickets when they are called upon to sell season athletic tickets, band and glee club concert tickets, ads for both annual and newspaper, stationery and magazine subscriptions in order to raise class funds, and the Red Cross and March of Dimes causes? Is it fair for the town people to think it the obligation of the faculty to attend all athletic events? Not that most of the faculty do not attend such events, because they do; but perhaps to the faculty attendance gives a sense of continuation of profession whereas to the otherwise employed citizen it gives a sense of recreation. Perhaps it should be pointed out that faculty members organize and direct the extra-curricular activities of the high school and serve as chaperons for dances and other occasions without pay.

Is it fair to criticize the faculty for insisting upon the attendance of students in class when many citizens of our town should be very pleased if we could but produce college material? Of course our athletic program needs attendance and financial support; so do our other activities. I should ask those present at the meeting last night if they are members of the Band Booster Club. A few were, but most were not. Most of those present last night were only concerned with the athletic problem. In answer to the question "Where was everyone last night?" I should propose that perhaps they were saving their support for

No Time For A Coffee Break

It's Dec. 1, 1957. Joe Doakes of Greenville decides to take an air trip to Raleigh. He hops into his car, completes the 30 minute drive to Kinston and steps into a Piedmont Airlines Fairchild F-27. He calls to the hostess. "Oh, hostess," he says. "May I have a cup of coffee before we take off?" "Sir," she says. "We have taken off. And I'm afraid you won't have time for coffee if you plan to get off at Raleigh."

"Not new, sir," replies the hostess. "With these new propellers the trip from Kinston to Raleigh takes 11 minutes." "Yep, it's not 1957 yet, but that's what the man at Piedmont's Kinston office says — with the delivery of the airline's first propeller in December, 1957 the air trip from Kinston to Raleigh will take exactly 11 minutes. Talk about a fast age! The $500,000 airships will cruise at an average speed of 280 miles per hour and they will be designed to carry 40 passengers."

The new aircraft will stand 18 inches off the ground when the plane has landed and wings and engines will be above the fuselage. The two engines which will propel the plane will be Rolls-Royce Dart Propellers. And, so I'm told, there will be no engine vibration in the new planes. Fasten your safety belt, friend, the speed age is here. Incidentally, if you don't have 11 minutes to spare for a trip to Raleigh, buy a ticket to New Bern. That trip takes five minutes.

Notebook On Life

The Grass Is Always Greener

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP) — Curbstone reflections of a Pavement Plato: Now is the time to feel sorry for yourself. If there is any one month in the year when practically everybody gives way to the yearning to be someone else, it is in September. The child, stricken with the feeling his days of barefoot freedom are over, tells his dad: "Boy, do I wish I was you! Then I wouldn't have to go to school." The father, if he is equally frank replies: "Boy, don't I wish I was you, and could go to school instead of work?" And mother hearing them both, murmurs silently to herself: "My, don't I wish I was either of you. Then I wouldn't have to worry about taking down the summer draperies, and starting fall housecleaning." Each has his point. The grass always looks greener on the other side of the fence that hems us in during the final days of summer. The mere mention of fences brings a shudder to the politician. That's all he'll be doing from now until election time—mending one fence after another. This disease of discontent we're all going through now is like a late attack of spring fever, a regret that vacation time is over and we must return again to the reality of the daily struggle. But the return to reality is doubly hard when the noon sun still holds a languor and the night is still loud with katydid clamor and the lonesome cry of the whippoorwill. The wage slave, unwilling as any schoolboy, goes back to a desk piled high with postponed chores, and has little heart to tackle them. He has to shake his head to dispel the recurring daydream of a silver fish leaping at twilight in a quiet mountain lake, the fish he almost caught just a few days before. Or was it years? He can't be sure. It already seems so long ago. The office stenographer, wistfully noting as she puts on her morning lipstick that her vacation tan is already beginning to fade, also dreams of "the one that got away"—the bachelor she met on her cruise. "Now I've got to hunt for a new one," she thinks to herself crossly. "If the Lord had to put men in the world, why did he have to make it so hard to find a good one?" The boss, trying to restore a little pep in the place, calls a conference and tells his salesmen: "All right, boys, the joyride is over. It's time to hit the ball again. We've got a lot of good hard selling to do between now and Christmas to make our quota. And I don't mind telling you right now that if we don't make our quota, there'll be some new faces around here after the first of the year. Remember, it's a team job, and I'm counting on every man who expects to stay on this team to get in there and start pitching—hard." After the conference is over, the boss cautiously closes his door, lies down on his couch and wonders if he really wouldn't enjoy life more if he were a beach-comber. So it goes with schoolchild, housewife, bus driver or business executive—each wonders if it wouldn't be better to be somebody else. Anybody else. What we all really need right now is a good heavy snowfall. Then we'd all snap out of our end-of-summer doldrums and get back to the hurly-burly tempo of normal civilized living.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS LOOK UP! The maze, or labyrinth, used to be very popular at amusement centers, especially in England. Once a person got into its narrow hallways escape seemed almost impossible. The more one tried to escape the more hopelessly became his involvement. But there was one way by which a person could extricate himself very easily. A man was always seated on a chair above the maze. He was clearly visible to everyone in the narrow passages. All one had to do if he became hopelessly lost was to signal this man and he would show the bewildered person how to get out quickly and easily. Help came when the lost and bewildered person looked up. Does one need to apply this circumstance to the moral and spiritual situation in which we all find ourselves? The more we try to get out of the agonizing labyrinth into which our habits have led us, the more we become confused and frustrated. Here, as in the intricacies of the real labyrinths, rescue comes only when we look up. To rely only upon our own powers involves us all the more hopelessly. It is when we look up that we discern One who indicates the way of escape and leads us out.

into corporation treasuries and workmen's pockets, is relied upon to maintain and to bolster the system of American production and consumption. Even if there were a slight depression like that of 1937, resulting in unemployment and a curtailment of purchasing power, which are the principal ingredients of an economic slump, there are new cushions and supports to prevent a recurrence of the 1929 crash. Never before did so many Americans possess such a huge "nest egg" or "rainy day" account. The ownership of bank deposits, public and private securities, life insurance policies, home and Social Security benefits, provide a safeguard against depression hardships never equaled in human history. There is sufficient "fat" to last through several lean years. CUSHIONS NOW TO PREVENT 1929 HAPPENING That volume of cash and credit, which goes

The Future Is Viewed In A Rosy Light

WASHINGTON — The long-range economic forecasters, including White House advisers, look for at least 10 years of the kind of "prosperity" which we are enjoying now. And this optimistic viewpoint is shared by many private and public economists who do not credit the nation's rosy state solely to the Eisenhower Administration. They are non-political soothsayers. They base their predictions on several factors never before present in our economic system, or not present in such a degree as today. They look forward to at least $125 billion of annual spending by the Federal, state and local governmental units. They expect at least $100 billion in yearly expenditures for industrial expansion, schools, hospitals, highways and for other Federal and local projects.

over, the politicians and government have learned their lesson from the political social and economic effects of the 1929-1933 disaster. It resulted in two of the worst defeats, 1932 and 1936, for the Republican Party. It heralded 20 years of Democratic supremacy at Washington, including the election of a single individual to the Presidency four times. A new depression would have even more catastrophic results. It would have a world-wide reaction, weakening our Allies and alliances overseas. It would enable Moscow to announce, as the Kremlin has maintained for years, that the "capitalistic system" contains within itself the seeds of its own destruction. The Republicans cannot afford another crack-up on their time. Neither can the Democrats. Politicians do not survive depressions. WAYS AND MEANS Thus despite his conservative ideas on sometary and fiscal policies, as against his proclaimed "liberal" attitude toward social and allied questions, Ike will emulate F.D.R.'s PWA-WPA programs, if an economic emergency should warrant or necessitate Federal spending. Fortunately, such an anti-depression expenditure need not consist of wasteful, make-work and nonconstructive activities, according to White House advisers. Billions can be devoted to conversion of atomic energy to peacetime, industrial use. More billions will be needed for construction of schools, hospitals, scientific laboratories and highways. Many cities will require the rebuilding and the elimination of slum areas. And, of course, the amount of Federal funds to be disbursed to farmers will increase year by year. That is President Eisenhower's Republican Party—and nation—"of the Future."

A Bigger Share Of Christmas

By ELMER ROESSNER

The food industry is trying to wrap up a bigger share of the Christmas gift business. This has been indicated by the trend to more festive packaging of luxury items, and it was well confirmed at the recent national Fancy Food and Confection Show in New York.

There were scores of new items and new imports exhibitors were pushing for the gift market. They are interested in selling to firms that send impressive gifts to customers and clients as well as in the person-to-person gift market. Typical of new things is a 13 1/2-inch reproduction of a Parianist kiosk, exquisitely done, that turns out to be a container of candies, imported by Liberty Import Corp. The same house is also bringing in for the first time de Bresse pigeons in their own jelly, rooster combs in natural jelly, and the first goose liver from Israel.

Another big importer, C. & J. Willenborg, claims a first for tender German mountain eels in glass, fennel honey, Klaus Oblaten Lebkuchen (a wafer) and whole Westphalian hams packed in smoked buckwheat to preserve flavor and sealed in giant cans.

Mrs. C.F. Melick, of San Antonio, Tex., exhibited cans of Mexican peppers stuffed with cheese or meat and cooked in a spicy tomato sauce, chili con queso (a chili-flavored cheese spread), whole canned Mexican clams, and mole powder, a sort of ready-mix for tortilla and tamales.

PASSION FRUIT NECTAR — Australia's Perry H. Chipnol introduced passion fruit nectar. Accompanying literature suggests the boomerang cocktail (rum, gin, brandy, nectar, bitter and lemon juice), and Grand Passion (gin and nectar). The nectar may also be used for soft drinks, sherbet and Passionate Chiffon pie. The same firm displayed delicately handcrafted cocktail picks made in Portugal by techniques 400 years ago.

Hundreds of other expensive candies, biscuits, meats, spices and tidbits were displayed. There was 50 per cent more products, exhibitors and buyers than at last year's show.

Among other exotic, though not necessarily new, foods were: baby lobsters, muskrat meat, dry powdered seaweed, cockles, tasty lily bulbs, instant seasoning for snails, bouillabaisse in cans, shan-puizle and pifferlinge (German mushroom), cepes and chanterelles (French mushrooms), hearts of palm, artichoke paste, smoked oysters, smoked clams, smoked frog legs, baby octopus, fried grasshoppers, fried agave worms, chili-flavored mussel from Denmark (!) and Bombay duck (a fish). From domestic packers came tinned rattlesnake meat, smoked rainbow trout pate and whole canned pheasants.

OTHER LUSTY MARKETS — In addition to the gift market, importers and distributors of food specialties have two other important markets.

One is the foreign-antecedents market. People of foreign descent, even to the third generation, like the foods of the old country, or eat them at traditional festivals. "You should see the Polish hams we sell in Detroit and the marzipan and German sauerkraut we sell in St. Louis," one salesman said.

The other market consists of people who shop at supermarkets and the corner grocery. With income high, American families are inclined to spend more for food. A new study by the U.S. Department of Agriculture shows that between 1949 and 1955, the family spending for food rose 25 per cent, although food prices rose only 6 per cent.

Classic economists used to hold that spending for food would level off as income rose but, it appears, they were wrong. Families seem to be using their "optional dollars"—those not committed to necessary expenses—for better foods and for experimenting with rare delicacies. More Americans are traveling, too, and thereby become acquainted with exotic foods. And food merchants push these foods because the margins are slightly higher than for other items and they occupy little shelf space.

Plan A $500,000 New TV Studio

RALEIGH (AP) — The Capitol Broadcasting Co. announced yesterday it plans to erect a $500,000 television studio on Raleigh's outer city limits behind the N.C. State College campus.

Capitol, operator of radio station WRAL, recently was awarded VHF Channel 5 by the Federal Communications Commission over the protest of rival Raleigh radio station WPTF, which hasn't exhausted all its routes of appeal.

Capitol said if it definitely gets the station, it will build a modern glass-brick building housing a 43,000 square foot studio and an 11,000 square foot administration building.

The president of Capitol is A. J. Fletcher, Raleigh attorney and businessman.

Septuagenarian Is Caught Again

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A 70-year-old woman, Mrs. Maggie Reilly, was arrested in a large department store on petty larceny charges.

Police said it was Mrs. Reilly's 105th arrest on pickpocket and purse snatching charges since 1908. She has been arrested in all the principal cities of the United States and Canada and has used 44 aliases, police added. The septuagenarian has spent a third of her life in jail.

Mansfield Constable Just Tries Keep Peace

By IRWIN FRANK
MANSFIELD, Tex. (AP) — Tom Beard is the leathery skinned, wrinkle-necked man with a gun on his hip who has been the law around here 16 of the last 22 years.

In all the time he's been constable of this small community 15 miles south of Fort Worth, he's never forgotten the day men drew straws to see "who was going to have the privilege of shooting the constable."

It was back in 1910. The constable, Emmet Morrison, was not liked because of his strict enforcement of the law.

"He was walking down the street without his guns when a shotgun blast ripped open his back," Beard recalled. Beard was 19 years old when the shot was fired on that hot afternoon.

During the last six days, when angry mobs gathered at the all-white high school to keep Negro students from enrolling, Beard has kept in mind something he says Morrison might have forgotten.

"My job is to keep the peace. It's not to arrest people and act the big shot because I've got a star and a gun," he said.

"The only thing I've been interested in these past few days is in keeping the peace," he said. "I don't want any mob action. As soon as I saw someone in the crowd that seemed to be inciting to riot I'd put them right."

"I'd go up to them and tell them they wasn't fooling with the county sheriff or the state patrol. I'd tell them they was fooling with the federal government and that usually put a stop to that," he said.

Beard, who has six grandchildren, admits he doesn't approve of Negroes going to school "with my grandchildren."

"I guess I'm just an old fogey but I don't believe in mixing them up," he said.

He said he likes Negroes and lots of them are his friends. "I do lots of business with them. And I hope to keep on doing business with them," he said.

Beard sells used cars and auto parts in his spare time.

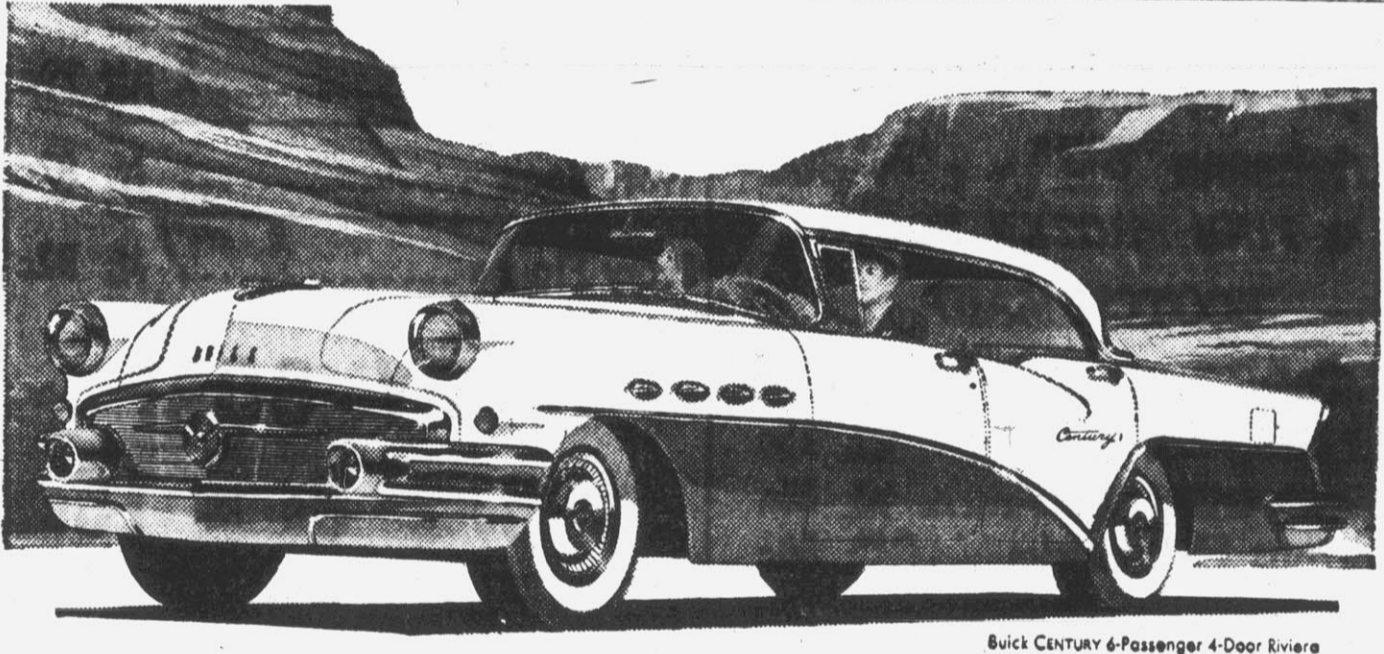

Beard did not take part in the two incidents when a minister and an assistant district attorney were taken from the school grounds for their own safety. Beard was patrolling in other parts of town at the time.

The 65-year-old constable patrols the streets in his yellow and green car about 18 hours a day.

A loaded automatic riot gun rests by his feet. A shotgun is on the back seat. By his right hand is an old wooden blackjack. He has not had to use any of the weapons.

He has used his knowledge of the people with whom he has lived and worked for 60 years. "I love these people," he said. "I don't want to see my town disgraced in the eyes of the world with a lynchin'. We've never had a lynchin' here. I pray God we never will."

The 7-year-old kids wave to Beard when he drives by the school playground. Toothless old

SENSATION OF THE CENTURY - at an easy-to-take price

It's Bonanza Time at Buick Dealers!

FIRST TIME you take the measure of a '56 Buick CENTURY, you'll know what the sports-car folks mean when they say the CENTURY is a great performer.

The getaway is right away—the road feel superb—the handling a joy. For this is Buick's most spirited and spectacular car.

It has the highest power-per-pound ratio in all Buick history.

It rides on a chassis compact to the last ounce and inch.

It takes to movement like a prima ballerina—nimble to the nth degree.

And when you press the pedal you get the response of Buick's mightiest V8 engine and the silk-smooth wizardry of an advanced new Variable Pitch Dynaflo* that lets you switch the pitch for emergency acceleration that's the most satisfying safety measure in the land today.

As we said, the name is CENTURY. And, as you'll discover, the price is a cinch. For the CENTURY is just a cut above Buick's lowest-price SPECIAL Series—and that's just a cut above the well-known smaller cars.

So you really ought to try a '56 CENTURY . . .

Especially now, while your present car is at its peak worth . . .

Especially now, at today's Buick prices (who knows when they'll ever be as low again!)

And especially now, with Buick so solidly in the Top 3 of America's best sellers—and that kind of sales volume permitting us to make you an even finer trade-in allowance.

Drop in on us this week—today would be even better!—and see what a buy you can make right now on the best Buick yet.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

Employees' Stock Plan Is Slated By Telephone Co.

An Employees' Stock Plan, the first of its kind for Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company, is scheduled to be put into effect on September 7.

The plan will enable employees of the company with more than three months' service to purchase the company's stock on a payroll deduction installment arrangement at the rate of $5 per month per share. Employees of the company will be allowed to purchase one share of stock under the offering for each full $500 of annual earnings. The stock will be sold to employees at 83 per cent of the average bid and asked price of the stock on the last day of the month on which payments are completed. However, the price will not be more than $150 or less than $100 per share.

Stockholders of the telephone company held a special meeting on August 10 to amend the charter of the company to enable the Employees' Stock Plan to be offered. The amendment to the company's charter stipulated that a total not to exceed 20,000 shares of common capital stock may be issued to employees. Directors of the company authorized the offering of 12,000 of the shares to eligible employees. The remaining 8,000 shares may be authorized by the Board at a later date.

J. F. Havens, Vice President in charge of personnel and public relations, stated that the company management felt that much would be gained by having employees become stockholders in the firm. The company now employs some 2,200 people and Havens stated that preliminary surveys indicated the majority of the employees would

Aerial War Seen As Bucs Gird For Navy

Back again on their own campus practice field, the East Carolina Pirate footballers have continued their two-a-day drill in preparation for the season's opener against Norfolk Navy, Saturday.

An important factor of this week's drills is the stress on an air attack. George Welsh, All-America quarterback at Navy last season and one of the country's most accurate passers, will command an able air game for the Norfolk team and Coach Jack Boone hopes to present a capable defense.

Slated to catch Welsh's aerials, is husky Robert Holmes, formerly a first string end on Wisconsin's 1955 team. Another Wisconsin griddler, Don Wilson, a 210 pound guard is expected to bolster the Tar line.

Jack Cloud, a former collegiate star at William and Mary and a fullback on the professional Washington Redskins, is coaching the Norfolk squad this season. With him from the pro ranks, is Richie McCade, former halfback with the Pittsburgh Steelers, who will perform in the Tar backfield, Saturday night.

Aerial War

Coach Jack Boone stated yesterday that Saturday night's contest at College Stadium, "should really be an aerial war." The youthful Buccaneer mentor said that he intends to use both Dick Cherry and Gary Mattocks as throwing quarterbacks. He also pointed out that his freshmen quarterbacks will also see plenty of action. Boone has five quarterbacks and every one of them "can pass well."

Boone continued by saying that he intends to use many of his freshmen against the Tars. "We'll be depending upon our newcomers greatly throughout the season and we expect to get plenty of added strength from them."

As of the present time, the Pirate unit that has the nod as starters seems to be as follows: Bill Helms and Ray Pennington at ends; Ray Overton and Jerry Brooks at tackles; Busky Dennis, Paul Popov and Ken Burreas at guards; Jim Faircloth and Waverly Chesson alternating at center; Dick Cherry, Jim Henderson, Bobby Perry and Bob Maynard in the backfield.

Talks Of Depth

"This season," Boone commented yesterday, "I think we may have the depth that we've needed to give us a more successful year. I just can't say how much these freshmen have helped us. Many of them are coming along very well and are actually pushing our veterans for the number one positions."

"Our freshmen will see plenty of action this year—and Saturday night will be as good a time as any to introduce them. I intend to use them freely against Norfolk."

A spot that gave Boone trouble last year, due to lack of depth, was his guard position. "Now we have Paul Popov, Dick Monds, Ken Burgess, all with good experience, and two of our freshmen Ed Emory and Bucky Dennis have come along well and give us the needed depth."

Boone was enthusiastic over his tackle positions. Ray Overton and Jerry Howell (weighing 225 and 230 respectively) are expected to anchor down the first unit jobs. "However, this Howell boy from Monroe has really shown up well. He could become a great tackle. We feel that it is only a matter of time before he'll be running right up there with our regulars." Boone was referring to 250 pound, 6-5 Larry Howell.

Gigantic Ends

The end slots are well manned this year. Slated to catch Cherry's passes will be veterans Bill Helms and co-captain Ray Pennington. Among the freshmen pushing for first unit honors are Russ Edwards, a 6-5, 240 pounder, Harold Beal, and Tommy Jones.

The Pirate backfield will be both fast and strong this Saturday. As already mentioned, the quarterback post will be strong in depth at both a passing and running game. At fullback, Bobby Maynard, a 190 pounder, can depend upon Bobby Lilley, another 190 pounder with reserve power. Also there is Kemp Wickizer, 210, and Jim Slaughter, 180.

At halfback slots, Perry and Henderson are farther advanced than any of the others, however, Tommy Nash, a former high school All-America from Monroe has looked good in drills. Bobby Gay, James Speight and Charlie Bishop are also expected to play Saturday.

The Sports Reflector
By BILLY ARNOLD

With football season practically breathing down our necks, and East Carolina College's first game less than a week away, it might be interesting to note how the teams in the North State Conference are being ranked this fall.

As far as we know, there have been no pre-season predictions, therefore we can only be led by general belief and the press releases which flow into the Reflector office directly from the various school publicity directors themselves.

Lenoir Rhyne

What seems to be a unanimous thing in the loop, is the feeling that Lenoir Rhyne will again run roughshod over all foes and clip the Championship for the second season in a row. That is the general consensus of the picture.

Coach Clarence Stasavich's Bears captured the 1955 crown with a fine 6-0-0 record and posted an even more impressive 9-0-1 mark as an overall slate. This season, he will be blessed with 18 returning lettermen, including Little All-America guard Arden "Baby" Ray, All-State fullback Harold Bullard, and All-Conference tailback Walt Cornwell.

According to Tom Einstein, Publicity director at Lenoir Rhyne, "Optimism is running high in the Bruin Camp this fall."

East Carolina

Coach Jack Boone has not been shy in the least about East Carolina's prospects for the coming season. Though he will not openly predict an ECC Championship, he (and both his assistant coaches) are quick to say that they doubt that Lenoir Rhyne will run roughshod over the 1956 Pirates.

The Buccaneers are rated in second place by many observers, third place by some. Boone and company, with a returning group of some 19 lettermen, 21 non-lettermen held over from last year, and a promising 18 freshmen, are quite optimistic themselves.

Catawba

Al Brown, of Catawba, has predicted a promising picture for the Indians this coming season. Head Coach Clyde Biggers lost only four starters from the 1955 eleven. One, however, was an All-America end, Dick Snyder.

Catawba will welcome 18 returning veterans, the most outstanding of which will probably be Larry "The Horse" Gildersleeve. Biggers calls Gildersleeve "the hardest runner I've seen in some time . . . he should make quite a name for himself during the next three years." The powerful fullback is 6-1 and weighs 205.

Elon

Coach Sid Varney's Elon Christians, recuperating from one of their worst seasons in recent years in 1955, are looking forward to a somewhat better one this fall. Luther Byrd, publicity director of the school states almost comically: "Varney is most certainly claiming no prize for optimism in making such a prediction . . . there is no way to go but up for his 1956 outfit."

Varney will have 21 returning lettermen, and his whole starting aggregation will be experienced. However, the Christians are not seriously regarded as a threat to the North State title.

New Coaches

Guilford, Appalachian and Western Carolina will be making their appearances behind new coaches this fall and predictions as to their strength and talent have been sparse.

Herb Appenzeller will take the reins at Guilford, Bob Broome will handle Appalachian, and Dan Robinson will be the new man at Western Carolina.

Birdie - Who Should Know - Says Redlegs Can Go All The Way, Now

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

Manager Birdie Tebbets, an off-season insurance agent who knows all about life-expectancy tables, figures his Cincinnati Redlegs "can go all the way—now."

"Our whole mental outlook rested on that four-game series in Milwaukee," said Birdie. "It was the psychological (He also has touched the sciences in post-graduate work) turning point. Now that we've come this far, our guys figure 'why stop now?'"

All the happy talk followed a startling, three-game sweep by second place Cincy after losing the opener to the Braves. The homer happy Redlegs switched to singles and pounded Milwaukee and southpaw Warren Spahn 12-2 in the series windup yesterday, cutting the Braves' National League lead to 1 1/2 games.

The three-game kick also has put Manager Fred Haney to thinking about a shakeup in the Braves' lineup. Milwaukee now has only a two-game edge over Cincinnati and Brooklyn in the "lost" column with 21 games left. The Redlegs have 20 games remaining, Brooklyn 21.

The sweep also kept Brooklyn's third place world champs in the race. Struggling through an eight-game schedule in six days, the Dodgers climbed to within 2 games of the lead by slipping past Pittsburgh 4-3 last night — their fifth victory in the eight-game nightmare.

St. Louis defeated the Chicago Cubs 2-1 in 11 innings and New York's Giants trimmed Philadelphia 5-4 in 10 in the other NL games.

In the American, the New York

Yankees built their lead to 9 1/2 games by breaking Willard Nixon's jinx with a 5-3 decision over Boston. Washington defeated Baltimore 2-0. Second place Cleveland, Chicago, Detroit and Kansas City were not scheduled.

Rookie Frank Robinson and Roy McMillan each drove in two runs as the Redlegs scored five times on five hits in the second off Spahn, who sought his 200th career victory. Buster Freeman hustled in to relieve Tom Acker after Joe Adcock's 35th home run, with one on in the fourth and gave one hit over 4-1-3 innings to nail his 13th victory — second in two days.

Four unearned runs in the fifth, with Freeman's double — his first 1956 hit — scoring two, packed it away for the Redlegs, who now have won 10 of their last 12. They had 15 hits against five pitchers.

The Dodgers, with just five hits off loser Ron Kline and Elroy Face, made it on Jackie Robinson's squeeze bunt in the sixth. A wild pitch set it up. Duke Snider reclaimed the NL homer lead, breaking a tie with Redleg Robinson, with his 38th, a two-run poke. Gil Hodges hit his 26th. It was Snider's first in nine games. Hodges' first in 19.

Sal Maglie won his ninth, but the Bucs, who haven't beaten him since April 21, 1953, chased him with a run in the ninth. Don Bessent came out to fan Jack Shepard for the final out — naming Maglie's 26th victory in 30 lifetime decisions with Pittsburgh.

Al Dark, with three of St. Louis's six hits off Bob Rush, drove in both runs and broke it up with a single. Herm Wehmeier, tagged for Walt Morry's 21st homer that tied it in the seventh, won his ninth.

A pinch single by Hank Thompson won for the Giants, who started $65,000 bonus kid Mike McCormick. The 17-year-old southpaw proved wild and failed to last two innings.

Bill Skowron's two-run single in the ninth iced it for the Yankees and Whitey Ford, who won his 16th. Yogi Berra hit his 26th homer to break a 2-all tie in the eighth — putting him two shy of Gabby Hartnett's 236 career record for catchers and breaking a string of 27 2-3 innings in which the Yanks hadn't scored an unearned run against Nixon.

Mickey Mantle, homerless now is two back of Babe Ruth's record of 60 home runs in 1927 today.

The young New York Yankee centerfielder, with 47 home runs in the bag, had just a single in four tries at Boston last night as the American League leaders defeated the Red Sox 5-3. It was Mantle's 134th game, leaving 20 to be played. Ruth smacked two in his 134th game for a 49 total.

Macias Goes Home After KO Victory

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Raul Macias, an artist in the ring with dynamite in his right fist, headed home to Mexico City today, knock-out winner over clever Larry Bataan of Manila, P.I., in the sixth round of their nationally tel-vised fight.

A short left jab followed by a straight right to the chin, perfectly executed, sent Bataan down for the full count after 2 minutes, 52 seconds of the sixth round at the Hollywood Legion Stadium last night.

Mick Trails Babe By 2 Home Runs

NEW YORK (AP)—Mickey Mantle, still homerless in Boston's Fenway Park this season, is two behind Babe Ruth's record of 60 home runs in 1927 today.

The young New York Yankee centerfielder, with 47 home runs in the bag, had just a single in four tries at Boston last night as the American League leaders defeated the Red Sox 5-3. It was Mantle's 134th game, leaving 20 to be played. Ruth smacked two in his 134th game for a 49 total.

Seixas Takes A Needed Breather

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (AP)—Vic Seixas, at 33 the old man of the tennis was, took his first breather in the past four days of the National Championships today and admitted:

"I can use it."

They don't keep records on who plays the most sets in this tournament, but if they did Seixas certainly would be near the top.

He has played four matches, all against foreigners. They have gone a total of 202 games and 18 sets. That's two sets short of the absolute maximum.

His fourth victim, Torben Ulrich of Denmark, threw up another stiff battle yesterday before Seixas won 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

Seixas, a handsome Philadelphia who has been playing in the nationals 16 years, said his big problem was to snap back tomorrow when he meets sixth-seeded Ashley Cooper of Australia, who won a bitter 3-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, 7-5 decision from Sam Giammalva of Seixas happens to be in the same half of the draw with Ken Rosewall and Dick Savitt, who will play tomorrow's other quarter final match. Rosewall whipped Hugh Stewart of Pasadena, Calif., 2-6, 9-7, 6-1, 6-2, while Savitt polished off Mexico's Pancho Contreras, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

Widely-Sought Player At State

RALEIGH (AP)—Jackie Moreland, the widely sought 6-8 Moreland high school basketball star, has finally turned up on the campus of North Carolina State College.

The college, refusing to have him interviewed directly, announced yesterday that Moreland is planning to study civil engineering at State.

Moreland is a 195-pound left-hander who maintained a straight A average at the Linden, La., High School and was salutatorian of his graduation class.

He disappeared from contact at his home last Friday which caused reports to be published that he had been "kidnaped" by an assistant basketball coach at State.

The college quoted Moreland as saying "I don't know how that story got started but it was absurd. I walked with Coach (Vic) Bubas in my home last week and didn't see him again until I arrived in Raleigh," which was believed to have been Tuesday.

He was quoted as saying further "My folks have known where I was all the time and they are happy that I'm in school here."

According to the college Moreland first visited State in May and signed a letter of intent at that time.

Problematical If Vic Can Return

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A doctor says it is problematical whether Vic Janowicz, injured Aug. 18 in a car accident, will play football again this year — or any year.

But the husky Washington Redskins halfback predicted from his bed at Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital that he would be back in a Redskins uniform "in another week."

"He could be through forever, it depends on how he comes along," Dr. Paul Moore said yesterday. "He may be out this year or he may be able to play this year, it's always problematical in the case of head injuries," Dr. Moore added.

Janowicz, who suffered a severe concussion in the accident, said, "I feel good and plan to go on with my career."

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—Babe Didrikson Zaharias was reported to be cheerful and resting comfortably last night at John Sealy Hospital where the noted woman athlete is suffering from cancer.

War Orphan Education Act Provisions Cited

M.E. Cavendish, Pitt County Service Officer, has released the following information concerning the War Orphan Educational Assistance Act of 1956. Mr. Cavendish requests that any parent or one of their child will qualify for one of these scholarships to call on him.

Young men and women planning to attend school this fall under the new War Orphan Educational Law were urged today by the Veterans Administration to file their applications as soon as possible, to avoid unnecessary delays in receiving their first monthly allowance checks.

Application forms are available at all VA offices. Persons eligible for schooling are those whose veteran-parent died of injuries or diseases resulting from military service during World War I, World War II or the Korean Conflict. Students generally must be 18 and 23 years old.

Prompt action is needed, VA explained, because normally it will take about three months from the date of application to the date the initial allowance check is placed in the mail. So in the case of young men and women who apply now, the earliest that VA could mail out checks would be mid-November.

When the first checks do arrive, however, they will cover the entire period during which the students were in school after October 1 of the beginning date on which the law authorizes payments to be made. Thereafter, checks will be mailed regularly to cover each month the student is in school. The money usually will be sent to the student's parent or guardian, rather than to the student himself.

The three-month period between application and receipt of the first check is necessary because of the processes required by the law. VA said. Here's what is involved:

After the application is filed, VA must check its records to make certain that the young man or woman meets basic eligibility requirements for schooling. If so, VA will issue a "provisional approval." Next, VA will schedule vocational counseling to help the applicant, along with his living parent or guardian, to plan a program of education best suited to his aptitudes, abilities and interests. Also, the parent or guardian, with the help of VA counselors, must work out an "educational plan" showing the student's goal, his program of education, what school or schools he plans to attend and the estimated cost.

Only after this plan is submitted may VA give its final approval for the training.

And even after the student enrolls in school, he can't expect his Government check immediately. For the law calls for payments to be made some time after the end of each month of training completed.

After the month has ended, the student and his school must submit a certification to VA stating that he has been in attendance all month. The law, then, allows the VA up to 20 days after receipt of the certification to get the student's check in the mail.

The entire process, VA said takes roughly three months. The earlier that applications are filed, the sooner VA payments begin.

For young men and women who want to begin fall terms at school, receiving VA's final approval of their courses, VA suggested for Korea veterans under the Korean G.I. Bill. Any VA regional office can inform a student whether the course he has chosen is GI-approved.

The law specifies that school courses approved for Korean veterans also are approved for students enrolled under the War Orphan Educational program. It's advisable, however, that they receive VA vocational counseling before they enroll. This way they will know that their courses will best prepare them for their future careers.

Drove 10 Miles Without Wife

VALLEY, Neb. (AP)—A couple pulled their car into a gas station here, had the tank filled after which the car drove off. The driver later recounted how 10 miles away, his eyes fixed firmly on the road, he asked his wife to light a cigaret for him. No answer. He took his eyes from the road long enough for a side glance at his wife. He returned to the gas station to pick her up.

Gave Up Trip To Help The Kids

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—Flint's nine city commissioners gave up a trip to the Michigan Municipal League meeting so children won't have to pay an extra five cents to swim in the city pools. The commission turned over $1,350 set aside for the league trip when advised that a deficit in park funds would make it necessary to boost swimming pool fees from 5 to 10 cents.

Auto Swap Was Natural Error

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Two automobiles, same make, same color, same model, collided on a street here without causing serious damage and without injuring the occupants. But in the excitement that followed, Mike Wright, one of the drivers, climbed into Leon Huey's vehicle and drove away—leaving his own car at the scene of the accident.

Police contacted Wright by tracing his license number.

He hurried back to make another swap.

Offers Test For Undesireables

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP)—An assistant professor of education at Bowling Green State University has developed a test which he says will help businessmen put a finger on employees with undesirable personality traits. The test contains 150 opinion-type statements and by studying the answers, personnel directors can place potential trouble makers in jobs where they will not clash with others, Dr. Mearl R. Guthrie says.

CHAPTER 25

"You've been a long time in coming," said Kinney.

"I've been walkin' two days," Eklund explained. "The Indians had moved, so I left my buggy and one horse and rode the other to find them and have a look. I didn't want to blunder into trouble."

"There'd have been no trouble for you—not with what you had for them."

"If trouble was brewing, I wanted to have a look before I delivered anything," Eklund retorted bluntly.

"So! What happened?"

"A grizzly came along while I was gone and my cayuse broke loose. In the storm, I couldn't find it again. When I got back to the buggy, the other horse was gone."

"What about your load?"

"I'd cached the rifles already, when I found that they were. The Indians are getting ready for war, Kinney. Maybe they had you fooled. But I'm not runnin' guns to them—not under these conditions."

Kinney's tone was mild. "Well, you've been there and had a look. And I haven't," he conceded. "I'll check up. If I find they're kickin' over the traces, I'll know what to do. And if I find that you're trying to pull a fast one, it won't go good for you, either."

That was all, and somehow it was more ominous than a wilder outburst. But he'd made his position plain, and tired as he was, Eklund felt as if a heavy weight had been removed, as he crossed to his own cabin.

Kinney sat, not moving, eyes half-closed. He knew what his course would be, yet, oddly enough, he felt a faint regret, and no hurry to go about it. His earlier anger had cooled, and Eklund's forthrightness had impressed him. Most men who hindered him he crushed without compunction or even a second thought. Somehow, in this instance, it was different. The doc understood perfectly well that he was putting his neck in jeopardy, yet he went ahead without bluff or whine. If he'd tried a double-cross, now, or been righteously or defiant, it would have been different. Somehow you couldn't get too mad at a man like him.

Kinney was still sitting there when another caller was announced. This man was ostensibly a trapper and prospector, and he came rarely to town. Only two things ever brought him: the need for supplies, or to report to the man who paid him wages for fitting with eyes open and ears on the stretch. Obviously the latter was his reason now.

"The Injuns have moved," he said. "You know what that means?"

Kinney nodded. "I knew that." His henchman looked disappointed. "Thought you'd want to know," he grumbled. "I guess you always do know what's going on, through mostly before it happens."

"I aim to," Kinney agreed. "And them havin' new carbines—you would know, all right."

Kinney straightened suddenly. "What's that?"

His spy looked surprised. "Why nothin'," he protested. "Only they seem to have about a dozen brand-new rifles—carbines. Plains guns, they looked like to me. I reckoned of course they'd got 'em from you."

After he had gone, Kinney pondered. So the guns had been delivered, after all. This put a new light on the whole affair. Eklund was a shrewder customer than he'd given him credit for—but the medico was a chump, as was any man who thought to cheat him out of his share. By the same token, Eklund was cut from the same cloth. Those pretensions to principle, his refusal to deliver the rifles on account of scruples—that was a laugh. Well, this news made what he had to do a pleasant chore.

Stepping out into the saloon, Kinney looked around. Most of the customers had gone home, and a word to the bartender confirmed that Script Nyman had left early. Which wasn't to be wondered at. What puzzled Kinney was that a man who had sworn off liquor should continue to hang around the saloon. But with Nyman there was nowhere else to go, no other life that he knew.

Nyman's early departure suited Kinney. He lifted down several flasks of whiskey, stuffed them into his pockets, and went out into the night.

Presently he knocked at Script Nyman's door and let himself in. There was a sleepy stir; the close smell of a room used for cooking, eating and sleeping, and badly in need of ventilation. Leaving the door open, Kinney scratched a match and got the wick of a lamp alight.

Nyman was a small man, once neat and precise but badly gone to seed. He sat up in bed, now, tousled, in need of a shave, but clear-eyed.

"Oh, it's you, Dolf," he said, with the air of a man past feeling surprise at the caprices of life.

Kinney lifted the flasks of whiskey and placed them on a rickety table as he shut the door. "I've brought something for you to drink," he said genially.

"Take the stuff away," Nyman whispered, and urgency made a strident quality in his voice. "I don't want it, Dolf—you know what it does to me!"

"Sure, I know," Kinney admitted. "That's why I brought it. I want you drunk. Got a job for you. And good pay. You do this tonight and you get all this whiskey, and fifty dollars cash after you're sober again."

Script Nyman looked from the face of his visitor to the bottles, and back again. He swung a scrawny leg over the edge of the bunk. "You know I get into trouble every time I do that," he whined.

"You won't this time," Kinney promised. "Get to turning it down, man, I'm in a hurry."

Nyman hesitated, reached suddenly and extracted the cork with his teeth, tipped the bottle and drank as though the fiery liquid was water. Then he reached for his clothes.

Kinney watched, pleased. Nyman was nicknamed Script for good reason. Sober, he was a reasonably honest man, and a dull plodder whose handwriting was nothing to get excited about. Drunk, he became a different individual.

When thoroughly under the influence of liquor, he could study a sample of handwriting, dip his pen in ink, and copy with such amazing accuracy that on numerous occasions he had forged signatures and cashed checks in a dozen eastern states.

When sober, he could not do even a passable imitation. Now, as he began on the second bottle, Kinney produced paper and a document which he tendered.

"There's nothing crooked about what you have to do here," he assured Nyman. "But I want a good copy. I got this letter a couple months back—and I want it to say the same thing again, only to have it read, date and all, like I just got it today. So it'll be convincin'."

"I'll fix it so the writer couldn't tell the difference himself," Script assured him. Liquored, Nyman was competent and sure. The only trouble was that he was then always too certain of his ability to fool everybody, including the law.

"You have this fixed by morning," Kinney instructed. "That's all I want." Satisfied, he took his departure. Tomorrow he'd give the revision to Major Blake, and that way his story would be plausible. Blake would know Eklund for a deserter, and he'd do the rest.

Some Return On Day Of Fleecing

CAMDEN, Ark. (AP) — A hot check artist fleeced merchants here of around $900 in cash and merchandise in a little more than one day.

Camden got something out of the check-passer, though. Police said a 50-cent parking meter violation fine was collected on the automobile used by the check artist.

Too Much Car For That Space

CORRY, Pa. (AP) — It might not have happened if John Adams of Roscoe, N.Y., hadn't been driving a miniature sports car over a narrow steel bridge near Corry.

But he was driving a miniature sports car as he and John Zawacki, of nearby Ridgeway, approached the bridge from the opposite directions.

Zawacki figured his standard sized car and the small sports car could pass on the bridge with a few inches to spare. So did Adams.

Both were wrong. They got wedged together in the middle of the steel span.

Woods Saved By Boot Brigade

SHERIDAN, Wyo. (AP) — A Fishing-boot brigade has been credited with controlling a lightning-caused forest fire in the Big Horn mountains near here.

When Forest Service fire guards arrived at the scene of a fire they found it was nearly out.

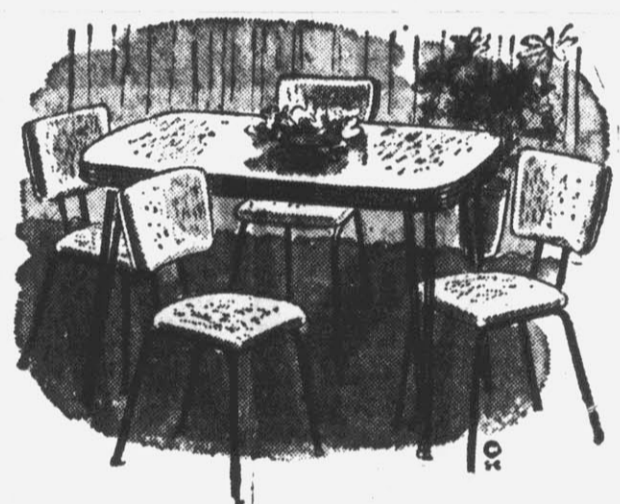

Dick Bard of Story, Wyo., and a group of fishermen he was guiding were dipping water from Snow Lake in their fishing boots and dousing the blaze.

Special Aides System Beat Nurse Shortage

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Baltimore hospital set out last April to prove — or disprove — its belief it could curb the critical nurse shortage.

The hospital's brainchild is now five months old and a little more than half grown. And nurse La Verda Berg says, "It's beautiful."

Morris Thorne, administrator at Sinai Hospital, says: "We're enthusiastic."

Assistant Administrator Sol Gladstein, who is running the experiment, says: "It is progressing very nicely."

But Assistant Administrator Milton W. Hamilt, who disagrees with a fundamental principle of the plan, says: "I'm from Missouri."

The plan, simply, is to free the nurses — from the linen closets, cleaning details and food trays and let them devote all their time to the patients.

To do this, Sinai:

1. Employed a "floor manager" for each nursing unit, or floor, who assumes administrative duties under the general supervision of the head nurse.

2. Trained floor maids to serve the food trays and to do the housekeeping and cleaning. Both add up to better service to the patients.

The plan, backed to the tune of $35,190 by the U. S. Public Health Service, is being tested in two of Sinai's 12 nursing units.

One is a 28-bed private maternity unit and the other a 31-bed semi-private surgical and medical unit.

If the scheme proves itself, the plan will be distributed by the Public Health Service to other hospitals who wish to try it.

Gladstein has six managers and 18 maids in training.

Gladstein said the program "has siphoned administrative problems away from the nurses."

And Gladstein said it is much easier to call the floor manager away from a floor when something goes wrong administratively than to take the nurse away.

Hamilt, whose dissent from belief in the plan is entirely friendly, acknowledges that the floors are cleaner in the experimental units.

"But Mr. Gladstein has brought order where there was anarchy," he said. "I want to bring order, too, but in a different way."

In short, Hamilt is opposed to decentralization. He believes the present plan where food is served to patients by maids from a central dietary department and the hospital is cleaned by maids working out of a central housekeeping department can be made to work just as well or better than the floor manager plan.

Special ECC Courses Offered Teachers, Graduate Students

Nineteen specially scheduled courses are offered this fall by East Carolina College for the benefit and convenience of in-service teachers and others wishing to renew their certificates or to earn credit toward the master's degree.

Each of these classes will meet once each week either in the late afternoon or on Saturday morning. The weekly session will cover a period of two and a half hours.

A student successfully completing a course will earn three quarter hours of credit.

Licenses Issued For Soliciting In N. Carolina

RALEIGH — During the month of August licenses were granted by the State Board of Public Welfare to twenty-one organizations to conduct fund-raising campaigns through public solicitations for the support of their programs. It was announced yesterday by Dr. Ellen Winston, Commissioner, while one organization was found to be exempt from license and two did not meet licensing requirements.

Eighteen of these organizations were relicensed in accordance with provisions of the state solicitation law. They are the National Traveler's Aid Association, United Nations Children's Fund, and United States Committee for UNICEF all of which have headquarters in New York City; the Atlantic Christian College at Winston; four Councils of the Boy Scouts of America as follows: Cherokee Council at Reidsville, General Greene Council at Greensboro, Oconeechee Council at Raleigh and the Old Hickory Council at Winston-Salem; five Councils of the Girl Scouts of the United States as follows: the Bright Leaf Council of North Carolina at Durham, the Cape Fear Council at Wilmington, Central Carolina Council at Sanford, the Pioneer Area Council at Gastonia and the Tri-City Council at Leaksville; Highlands Biological Station at Highlands, North Carolina; the North Carolina State Association for the Blind at Raleigh; the Palmer Memorial Institute at Sedalia; and Wake Forest College (license amended) at Winston-Salem.

The Brevard College at Brevard, North Carolina, the Calvin Jones Memorial Society at Wake Forest and the John Milton Society at New York City received licenses for the first time.

The total amount which these twenty-one organizations will seek from the public at large in North Carolina is approximately $16,000,000.

The organization which was found to be exempt from license under the law is the Church of God at Reidsville, North Carolina.

The organizations which failed to meet requirements under the law for license are the Carolina Christian Union at Roanoke Rapids and the Gospel Mission at Bristol, Tennessee.

Eight of the courses will be on the graduate level of instruction, and eleven on the senior level. Eight departments of instruction will participate in the program.

Available to interested students will be eight courses in education; three in English; three in music; and one each in geography, mathematics, health and physical education, psychology, and the social studies.

Those wishing to enroll in these specially scheduled courses should register Thursday, September 6, or on the date of the first meeting of the class. Registrar Orval L. Phillips has announced. Registration cards or permits to add a course will not be accepted, he states, after the second meeting of a class.

For the convenience of those wishing to enroll in one or more of these courses the Registrar's Office in the Administration building at the college will be open each day except Saturday and Sunday, September 7-20, from 7:30 to 8 p.m. Several of the courses offered this fall will not be taught again at East Carolina until the summer or the fall quarter of 1957, Dr. Phillips states. He advises interested students to choose required courses rather than elective courses needed for renewing the teaching certificates or completing work on the master's degree.

Titles of courses to be offered are Home-School Community Relations, Social Sciences in Elementary Schools, Principles of Guidance, High School Administration, Principles and Practices of Supervision, Research in Education, Educational Foundations, Clinical Practices and Procedures in Special Education, Tennyson and Browning, Milton, Drama Workshop, Economic Geography of the South, Safety in Physical Education, Solid Analytical Geometry, Applied Music, Problems in Music Education, Supervision of Music, Social Psychology, and Conflict of COVINGTON, Okla. (AP) — A banty rooster owned by Emil Mackey has given up ruling the roost—he's sitting on the nest.

Banty Rooster Sitting On Nest

Mackey said when the banty's mate started a family recently, the rooster promptly moved onto the nest. He says the chickens sit on the nest together.

The owner attributes the un-rooster like behavior to a bad case of loneliness. The two chickens are the only ones on a 20-acre farm.

Native Dishes Disappearing

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Chamber of Commerce complains tourists are killing Mexican cooking.

Native dishes such as tamales, enchiladas, tacos and tortillas are disappearing from restaurant menus because tourists want steaks and potatoes, the group says.

Cooks are specializing in foreign dishes and are losing the touch with native dishes, it adds.

Farmville Board Votes Water Line Extension

FARMVILLE—The Farmville Town Board voted Tuesday night to extend its six-inch water main approximately 240 feet down Walnut Street to tie-in with a proposed six-inch main in the Langdale subdivision.

Town Clerk Cleveland Paylor said today the town's main will be extended to the town limits where it will join the subdivision's line. The subdivision developers will install a six-inch main from Sunset Drive to Duke Drive and then down Duke Drive approximately 300 feet. Paylor said the subdivision's line will be approximately 1100 feet long and it is understood that it will be installed according to engineering standards of the Town of Farmville and under the supervision of the superintendent; if the Water and Light Department, Paylor added that upon installation, the subdivision's line is to be deeded to the Town of Farmville.

Further off-street parking for the town was also provided by the board when it approved rental of a 66 by 226 foot lot for public parking. The new parking lot is on Wilson Street, adjacent to the building formerly occupied by Parker Pontiac Company.

Two more street lights, on Grimmersburg Street and the other on Church Street, were approved by the board. The members also ordered the street committee to check on the reported congested condition in an alley back of B & W Chevrolet Company and to make a full report at the next board meeting.

Special permission was granted to Fox Studios of Winchester, Ky., to solicit business in the town.

Hodges Declares Editor In Error

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges asserted today that an editorial on the Pearsall school amendment published this morning "does nothing but confuse the situation."

Hodges told his news conference the editorial in question stated that "no election re-opening the schools could be held for at least a year." He said that on the contrary, under the Pearsall plan a local school board can call an election at any time on the question.

The Pearsall plan will be voted on in an election Saturday. One of its features is to permit local option elections to close public schools in "intolerable" situations. The governor declined to name the newspaper to which he referred. However, an editorial including the sentence which he cited appeared in today's issue of the Raleigh News and Observer. The paper is opposed to the Pearsall amendment.

The governor told newsmen he does not ordinarily take issue with newspapers. "I'm not mad at anybody," he said. "I'm interested only because of the gravity of the problem. I think it is pretty bad on a thing like this... on a thing like this grave."

He said the editor who wrote the editorial could have made a technical error or else made the statement "purposely" to confuse readers.

Hodges said the Pearsall plan "ought to be discussed generally, broadly and compassionately. Some papers have been completely fair."

The governor said he feels more encouraged about the possibility of a heavy vote Saturday than he did a week ago. He would not guess on the size of the vote but said he felt the Pearsall amendment would carry by a two or three to one majority.

He said there appears "to be real interest in the problem. I find some confusion, primarily in the east."

In reply to a question, Hodges said he believes more people will come out to vote Saturday because of recent disorders in Tennessee, Texas and more recently in Kentucky.

Brazil's population is made up of all the basic stocks into which the human race is divided; Indian, Caucasian, Negro and Asiatic.

Frank Wooten of Greenville; Herbert Waldrop of Greenville; Arthur Tyler of Rocky Mount; D. J. Whitchard, publisher of The Daily Reflector; and John Clark, chairman of the Pitt Democratic Executive Committee.

There was no speech-making at the supper. The only talking was across-the-table conversation which was dominated at one end by Governor Hodges and Pearsall at the other end. Pearsall kept his end of the table roaring with tales of his personal experiences with well-known men in the state.

The closest thing to a speech made was the toast proposed by Dr. Messick in which he termed Governor Hodges "the most devoted, hardest working Governor in my memory."

While the supper for Governor Hodges and his party was being held on one side of a temporary screen, some outspoken critics of the Pearsall plan were meeting on the other side. Mrs. John Crawford, state president of the Parent-Teachers Association, brought her group into the restaurant only a few minutes after Governor Hodges was seated. Representatives of both parties smiled and nodded politely to each other when they met in the main dining room after the Governor started to leave.

Atty. General Endorses Plan

RALEIGH (AP)—The Pearsall school amendment plan received the endorsement of Atty. Gen. George B. Patton yesterday.

He issued a statement declaring the plan, which calls for an amendment to the state constitution "is for the protection of our public schools."

Patton said the amendment "will not require the people to take any particular type of action" but would "only give the people a greater range of choice with respect to the action they can take."

American industry consumed an estimated 5,450 long tons of tin in April for the largest total since January of 1951.
