

Polls Open Early Saturday In Pitt

Pitt County voters will join thousands of other North Carolinians in going to the polls tomorrow to cast their ballots for or against four constitutional amendments including the controversial school amendment.

Chairman of the County Board of Elections D. S. Spain, Jr., said this morning that the polls about the county will be open from 6:30 in the morning until 6:30 tomorrow night.

All who have voted in past national or state elections since the last complete registration some years ago will be eligible to participate in tomorrow's constitutional election, Spain indicated.

The Elections Board chairman said that there are now 19,360 registered voters in the county. Some 687 persons registered on the three recent Saturdays that the registration books were open at the polling places.

Pitt political observers were holding back on predictions of tomorrow's vote on the constitutional amendments.

Most observers said that interest had lagged earlier but within the past few days the people of Pitt County have begun to take a greater interest in the constitutional amendment election.

Urges Heavy Vote
Pitt's Legislative Representative Walter Jones who has made 18 trips on the Pearsall plan within the past few days today urged a heavy vote in Pitt County.

"With the importance of the election it certainly behooves every citizen to express his convictions through the medium of the ballot box," Jones declared this morning.

"Certainly the people by tomorrow should have formed their own convictions and tomorrow is the one opportunity for the voters of this county and the entire state to express their convictions whatever they might be on this all-important subject."

Jones has been speaking to civic clubs and other organizations recently to explain the Pearsall plan and the constitutional amendment which would place the plan in operation.

Although there are four amendments to be voted on tomorrow, interest has centered primarily on the school amendment which proponents say will do much to preserve segregation within the schools.

The amendment provides for expense grants for private education of children whose parents do not wish to send them to integrated schools.

It also provides for a local vote of the governor and other state officials plus a large number of organizations.

It has been opposed by several state newspapers and by the North Carolina Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The other three amendments which voters will find on the ballot tomorrow provide for: allowing limited necessary compensation of members of the General Assembly, changing the date for convening the General Assembly from January to February, and authorizing married women to exercise powers of attorney conferred upon her by her husband.

Utilities Employe Burned By Wire

A Greenville man danced with death on a high live wire over Washington Street last night.

Sidney Spain, 50-year-old employe of the Greenville Utilities Commission, inadvertently brushed against a live wire, charged with between 1,500 and 3,000 volts of electricity, but authorities report that he is "doing very nicely" in Pitt Memorial Hospital where he was taken shortly after the mishap.

Spain, employed with the Commission for the past 19 years, was on the platform where the street lighting transformers are located. He was trying to get the street lighting circuit to come on when the accident occurred. Spain said today that he was unable to remember exactly what did happen.

Hospital authorities reported that the Greenville man suffered second and third degree burns on the right leg just above the knee and on the right arm close to the elbow. Because the burns are deep and electrical, it is expected that the healing process will be a lengthy one.

"No one actually knows what happened," said City Manager Leonard P. Bloxam. Spain was the only person on the platform at the time. However, Bloxam said that "night before last a high voltage wire fell on street light wires, but it was corrected." He speculated that "perhaps last night's accident could have stemmed from what happened two nights ago, but we are not positive."

The time of the accident was around nine o'clock. Spain resides at 902 Colonial Avenue.

Fifth Straight

Yesterday marked the fifth million dollar day in a row for the Greenville Tobacco Market.

Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee said that 2,315,356 pounds of tobacco were sold for $1,208,534.26 in yesterday's sales. The average was $52.20 per hundred pounds.

"It was one of the largest sales ever held in Greenville," the sales supervisor declared, "and it was the largest sale of the whole year."

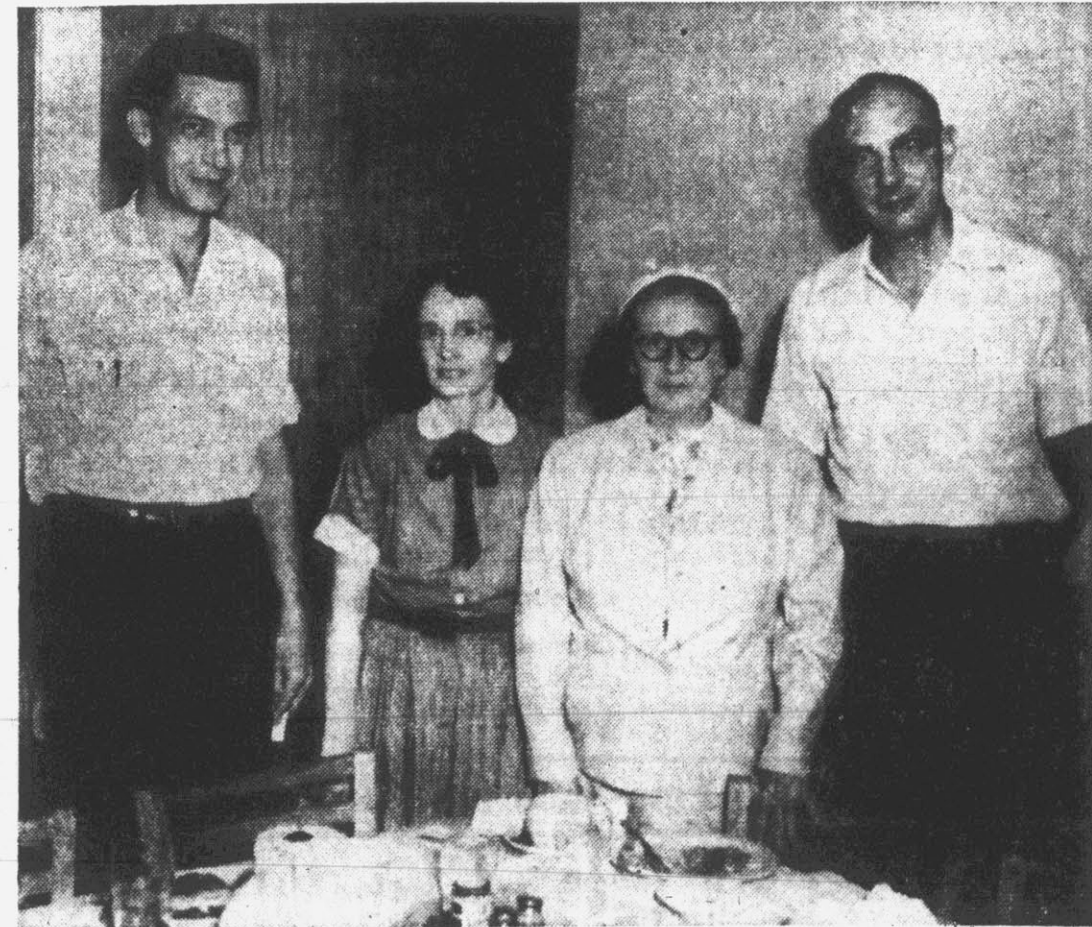

Whedbee said that leaf grades continued to sell at a very high price and farmers were well pleased with the prices they received for their offerings.

Full sales were being conducted in Greenville warehouse floors today.

Police Bear Down As FBI Drops Probe Of Kidnaping

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Police although its facilities have been are bearing down today with renewed intensity — and as though a solution were near — in their investigation of the Ruotolo baby case.

With an absence of interstate angles indicated, the FBI has officially stepped out of the probe.

Cynthia, was found stuffed in a plastic bag in Hamden's Lake Whitney.

The child's mother, Eleanor Ruotolo, 33, told police the baby was snatched from her carriage in the foyer of a Sears Roebuck store Saturday, a mile from the lake.

It was shortly after three boys fishing had found the body that Ullman's office became the investigation's focal point.

Mrs. Ruotolo spent several hours there with Ullman, Cornea, James J. Corrigan and police investigators. She was led out at 8:30 p.m., got into a police car and was driven off.

Mrs. Ruotolo returned to her home several hours later.

While no one at Ullman's office would say what Mrs. Ruotolo was at the courthouse for, Deputy Police Chief Frank Cattaneo of Hamden was called to go over her story of last Saturday's events.

Cattaneo said investigators were awaiting a report of an autopsy. Corrigan said only a preliminary report had been made.

"We have no motive," said Cattaneo, "until we ascertain the cause of the baby's death."

Corrigan said vital organs from the baby's body were being sent to the FBI laboratory in Washington for examination. He said he expected it would take several days.

Also brought to Ullman's office were Mrs. Ruotolo's neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Paul I. Rebucci. Mrs. Rebucci had said she went shopping at Sears with Mrs. Ruotolo the day the latter reported Cynthia missing from the carriage.

Three other women — middle-aged — entered the office and came out after a short time, but none would identify themselves. One scooped photographs for snapping her picture.

Then about 11:30 p.m., Cornea Corrigan came out to tell newsmen Cynthia, whose body was found in a plastic bag weighed down with a rock, had suffered a bruise on the left side of her head.

There was hemorrhage," he said, "but there was no brain injury." He added:

"I cannot give the cause of death at this time."

Corrigan said only a preliminary autopsy had been made and that he could not say whether Cynthia was dead before she was thrown into the lake, a New Haven Water Co. reservoir.

He said he has not issued a warrant for anyone's arrest and couldn't say then whether he would.

Asked what phase of the case was under investigation, he replied:

"The whole thing."

County Safety Council Forms, Name Officers

A Pitt County Safety Council was formed here yesterday with 44 charter members of the organization representing communities in every part of the county.

F. Badger Johnson was elected chairman of the council; Dr. Walter C. Humbert, vice chairman; Mrs. Cora Powell, secretary and Miss Elizabeth Deal, treasurer.

Chris Henkle, chairman of the Lenoir County Safety Council, addressed the group at a luncheon meeting, pointing out the toll being taken by highway and other forms of accidents. He outlined briefly activities of the Lenoir County council, asserting a definite decrease in accidental deaths and injuries has resulted from work of the council.

"It takes people on the local level to get anything done in the safety field," Henkle declared. "We'll never have safety on the highways until people on the local level decide to do something about it."

Highway Patrol Sgt. John Laws of Kinston — also addressed the group urging the formation of a safety council in Pitt to help deal with the traffic accident record of the county. Laws pointed out that registration of motor vehicles in North Carolina has increased more than one million since 1946.

Justice Minton Plans Retire On October 15

WASHINGTON (AP)—Justice Sherman Minton of the Supreme Court today announced that he will retire on Oct. 15.

Minton said he is leaving because of impaired health. He will be 66 on Oct. 20.

In a letter sent to the White House this morning, Minton notified President Eisenhower of his plan.

The justice has a circulatory condition in his legs. He told the President he does not feel he could carry out "the exacting duties of my office" in his present condition.

Appointed by President Harry Truman, Minton went on the Supreme Court bench Oct. 12, 1949. Previously he served more than eight years on the U. S. Circuit Court in Chicago.

This gives him sufficient years in federal courts for him to retire at full pay of $35,000 a year.

Six-Ton Load Of Moonshine

PINE LEVEL, N.C. (AP)—A six-ton load of moonshine whisky was captured by federal revenue agents after a six mile chase yesterday.

Arresting ATU agents said the 1,440-gallon haul was the biggest single "in-transit" catch they knew of.

ATU Agent Roy C. Longenecker said the white liquor "represented a tax fraud of some $15,000."

Arrested as driver of the truck carrying the liquor was Glenn E. Bell of North Wilkesboro, along with Benjamin Boykin, 43, of R. 2, Wilson.

Kentucky Ready To Invoke Martial Law

STURGIS, Ky. (AP)—Nine Negro students stayed home today as officials stood ready to declare martial law if necessary to control angry crowds threatening the school students who enrolled in previously all-white Sturgis High School.

National Guard and State Police officials said they had the papers necessary for declaring martial law but at the moment thought it was not needed.

Adj. Gen. J. J. B. Williams said the governor instructed him to use martial law if it becomes necessary but "That is one of the last things I want to do."

Williams, in charge of National Guardsmen in this western Kentucky mining and farming community, announced the Negro students would not attend school today.

Williams and Don Sturgill, Kentucky's deputy public safety commissioner, said they had received reports that parents of the students had been "subjected to heavy economic pressure."

"Parents of some of the youths work in nearby coal mines," Williams said, "and it is reported some were told they would lose their jobs if the Negro children remained in Sturgis High School."

"These rumors and reports have been turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation to check any possible violation of civil rights," the commander said.

Williams estimated only 300 persons gathered in front of the school this morning. The crowd was mostly quiet and orderly. One man was arrested on a breach of peace charge when he refused to move on.

Williams said the Negro youths' parents reported they would be back in school Monday but they were "too afraid to have them in school today."

Williams returned from a conference at Frankfort with Gov. A. B. Chandler this morning.

He said the governor prepared a martial law proclamation "and instructed me to use it if it becomes necessary. As of now, it isn't necessary."

Buses bringing white children to the school were less than half filled. Less than 100 children were in classes.

A National Guard tank was parked in front of the school entrance. Other tanks were stationed at each end of the block.

Williams said the martial law papers needed only his signature to put this community of approximately 5,000 under military rule.

The Guardsmen and State Police stopped an angry crowd yesterday, escorting the nine Negroes into and out of the school. The students later vowed they had "enrolled to stay."

Gen. Williams said he would declare martial law, under which the community, including its courts, would be under military rule, only if it is necessary.

City Council Sets 5 Public Hearings For October 11

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

City Councilmen set five public hearings for Oct. 11 last night in one of the shortest meetings of the city's governing body in remembrance of old times.

City fathers set a public hearing on a Zoning-Planning Commission recommendation for the rezoning of certain property from Evans to Forbes St. on Tenth commercial. All the property facing Tenth in that area which is not now commercial would be zoned as business area. Also included would be all four corner lots at the Forbes St. intersection.

Public hearings were set on the proposed zoning of Hillsdale Addition No. 1 as residential and the zoning of a portion of Bancroft Ave. which was recently annexed as residential.

The councilmen set a public hearing for Oct. 11 on the annexation of the W. H. Mills subdivision in Meadowbrook.

A public hearing was also set on the annexation of the Royce Jones subdivision at the southern end of Elm St. City Manager Leonard Bloxam said most of that area had been sold off but owners had agreed to abide by city subdivision requirements.

In addition, Bloxam said, the city would be able to obtain right-of-way for opening Elm St. through the area.

City fathers voted to accept a low bid for a steel pre-fabricated building to be used as a main-tenance shop for the Recreation Commission. Bloxam asked that the building be ordered now to avoid an increase in steel prices. The structure is to be purchased from bond issue money and it will be constructed on the southwest corner of Guy Smith Park property.

It will cost $3,175 plus an additional $575 for erection of the building.

Councilmen voted to restrict parking on the south side of E. Tenth St. from Charles to Elm. Bloxam said the action had been requested by the State Highway Commission to relieve congestion in the college area.

Finally the council denied a petition from residents in the Tenth St. area asking for reduction of the 45 mile per hour speed limit on Tenth from Erul to the city limits to 35 mph. Mayor W. L. Whedbee voted against the denial because, he said, he considered 45 mph too fast in that area.

However, Bloxam said, the Highway Commission had made a survey of the area and they had recommended that the speed limit be left as it is.

Bloxam told the Council that a petition requesting that the speed limit be changed to 35 mph and that a traffic light be installed at Elm and Tenth had been received. The light has been installed, Bloxam said.

Scheidt Bids For More Patrolmen

RALEIGH (AP)—Motor Vehicles Commissioner Edward Scheidt put in a bid for 100 additional state highway patrolmen during his appearance before the Advisory Budget Commission yesterday.

He also called for a 10 per cent wage increase for state employes and asked for 36 additional staff workers.

The suggested 10 per cent, he told Gov. Hodges and the money group, is a "round number figure" and further study "will likely prove that an amount greater than this is proper and equitable."

During its first three days of hearings the Budget Commission has heard requests for $13,968,736 in budget increases from state departments and agencies, with about two more weeks of hearings to go.

With an eye on the 33-million-dollar surplus rattling around in the state treasury, the department heads also have requested $10,027,236 in permanent improvements.

The Budget Commission will make recommendations to the 1957 Legislature for the two fiscal years beginning next July 1.

The Highway Patrol now has 581 men. Scheidt said 100 additional men were needed because of the rising number of vehicles, increasing traffic, and more road mileage as a result of highway-building programs.

Scheidt, whose department is supported by the highway fund rather than the general fund, asked that his budget be increased from $5,336,000 this year to $10,107,833 the first half of the next biennium and $10,006,913 the second half.

Dr. John A. Ferrell, executive secretary of the Medical Care Commission, asked for 1½ million for building hospitals and health centers and help for indigent patients, and $200,000 for a student loan fund to attract doctors to practice in rural areas.

For administration, Dr. Ferrell asked for $136,904 and $173,332 for the biennium, compared with $114,355 this year.

State Paroles Board Chairman George Randall asked for money to hire additional personnel so the board could examine more thoroughly the records of prisoners serving terms of six months to a year. As a general policy, the board considers paroles only for those prisoners sentenced to serve a year or more, although paroles have been granted to prisoners serving shorter terms.

ECC President Speaks Out For Pearsall Plan

"I am persuaded that the Pearsall Plan provides for a compromise action that is best for all the people, white and colored, in North Carolina," President John D. Messick declared, "for any community to close its schools temporarily than for strife, anger, and enmity to inflame the people of a community."

"I am absolutely for the continuance of public education," Dr. Messick added, "and trust sincerely that no emotional, social, or racial cleavage will cause the closing of any school."

"However," he continued, "if a problem should arise, the Pearsall Plan makes provision for the closing of a school by a majority vote.

But the school may be opened likewise by a majority vote and its closing may be only temporary."

"It would be better," Dr. Messick declared, "for any community to close its schools temporarily than for strife, anger, and enmity to inflame the people of a community."

Turning to the pupil assignment plan, Dr. Messick explained, "This plan, if it attempted permanently, which it is designed to do, has in the past been declared illegal by several courts. Therefore it would not prevent integration, as some now believe."

"The Supreme Court has exercised a legislative and not a judicial function in its decision concerning desegregation, but we must accept its decision as an edict. It does not state that white and colored children must be integrated in the same school. It holds that a person cannot be denied admission to a school because of race or color."

If equal facilities were provided for white and colored children, I doubt if many of either race would care to attend the school of the opposite race."

Under the Pearsall Plan, if children of either race should persist in going to a school designated for the opposite race, the community could resort to a vote and, if passed by a majority, close its school for as long or as short a period as it wished.

"The action would not affect any other part of the state nor the responsibility of the state in providing for all other children of the state as at present."

"I am persuaded," Dr. Messick concluded, "that the Pearsall Plan provides an alternate, a compromise, that every citizen of the state should vote upon favorably tomorrow."

The East Carolina president urged that every citizen of the state consider the question carefully and vote his conviction on September 8.

Smith-Tilley Vows Are Said

The marriage of Miss Lou Tilley and Roy R. Smith was solemnized August 26 at 4 p.m. in the Eighth Street Christian Church here. The Rev. Dr. H. G. Haney, pastor, heard the double ring vows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Tilley of Greenville. Mr. Smith is the son of R. G. Smith and the late Mrs. Smith, also of Greenville.

Prior to and during the ceremony Miss Mabel Lewis, organist, presented a program of nuptial music. She used the "Bridal Chorus," Wagner, and the "Wedding March," Mendelssohn, as the bride and groom entered and left the church.

Miss Joanna Hardee, Miss Rachel Steinbeck and Miss Kitty Collins sang "Through The Years" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father. She wore a wedding gown of Chantilly lace with nylon tulle and net skirt over shimmering satin. Lace appliques edged the tight fitting bodice and short sleeves. With this she wore matching mitts. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls and iridescent sequins and she carried a bridal bouquet of white bridal roses centered with a purple-throated white orchid.

Miss Gwyn Clark served the bride as maid of honor and Mrs. James D. Griffin as matron of honor.

They wore floor-length dresses of pink tulle, covered in net. Their full gathered skirts were ruffled in pink net. Their picture hats were of net matching the dresses and trimmed with a net ruffle and matching satin bows. They carried bouquets of pink asters.

Little Miss Peggy Smith, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Jane Roberts, cousin of the bride, were junior bridesmaids.

They wore light blue tulle floor-length dresses covered with matching net and blue picture hats similar to the honor attendants'. Their arm bouquets were of blue asters.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Dot Branch, Miss Peggy Johnston, Mrs. R. S. Barnhill and Mrs. Bob Taylor. They wore blue or pink evening gowns and matching half-hats.

R. G. Smith was his son's best man. Ushers were Mitchell Johnson, Jimmy Perkins and Gene Brown, all of Greenville, and Joe Ward of Rocky Mount, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Tilley, mother of the bride, wore a rose brocaded satin sheath dress with matching bolero and white accessories and a white coronation corsage.

Mrs. Smith, stepmother of the bridegroom, wore an antique blue lace dress over tulle with matching accessories.

After the ceremony, the bridal couple received guests in the vestibule of the church. They then left for their wedding trip.

For traveling, the bride wore a navy blue linen sheath dress with matching bolero and white accessories. She wore the white orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will make their home on Eastern Street in Greenville.

Both the bride and bridegroom were graduated from Greenville High School in 1955 and have attended East Carolina College. The bride plans to complete her studies at the college.

Wedding Breakfast
Roy G. Smith entertained the Smith-Tilley wedding party and out-of-town guests at a wedding breakfast in the Olde Towne Inn.

Cake Cutting
Miss Tilley and Mr. Smith were honored with a cake cutting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Worsley on Saturday evening following the wedding rehearsal.

Mrs. F. A. Worsley, Mrs. J. D. Griffin and Mrs. J. L. Allgood were hostesses to the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

The home was decorated with arrangements of asters and clematis. A green and white color scheme was carried out in the dining room where guests were served.

The table, covered with a white linen cloth featuring embroidery and cutwork, was centered with an arrangement of carnations, clematis, fern and candles. Green punch shimmered in a cut glass punch bowl.

Silver dishes of cashew nuts and bridal mints in green and white were arranged on the table.

The tiered wedding cake was cut and served by Mrs. J. L. Allgood of Wilmington, aunt of the bride, after the bridal pair cut their first slice.

The fifty-five guests were served fruit punch by Mrs. J. D. Griffin, sister of the bride.

How important is a good personality?

"It's the most important asset a girl can have" according to one popular young male student. "If she happens to be good looking with a nice figure too, more power to her. But my experience is that beautiful girls depend on their looks to carry them on to social success."

Pretty girls, he says, are not always the most popular because they think the world owes them some sort of special adoration.

"Take a girl I dated recently," this 18-year-old student says, "she eluded us 15 minutes at home even though we were late for our date with another group, waiting somewhere for us. Then she pouted because she didn't like the evening's schedule, although she had nothing more constructive to suggest in the way of entertainment, even if we could have changed our plans."

When you are out with a beauty she is likely to spend a good deal of time glancing in the mirror, powdering and re-finisher her makeup. She worries about her looks constantly, this young man says.

He insists, too, that pretty girls are usually bad sports. "The mere fact that they are good looking," he says, "seems to make them determined to shun any form of entertainment that will even muss their hair."

His examples include swimming, skating, skiing.

"Oh, yes they'll sit around in a bathing suit and look pretty but they don't want to get their hair wet or ruin their makeup," he says. "Also they may corral the most tremendous wardrobe, riding clothes, skit stuff, skating skirts that are worn like a fashion show rather than to contribute to the activity planned for them."

This young man seems to feel that a girl with a winning personality automatically is entertaining, that she makes a sincere effort to be gay on a date, and that it just sort of goes with her type.

She is likely to be a better sport, too, he says, enjoying any entertainment planned by her date, he says.

What does the average male dater like to do, this young man was asked, "and whatever happened to the idea that when a man dated a girl he was supposed to take her to the place of her choice, regale her with his own sparkling wit and generally try to impress her with his charm, while she played it coy and feminine?"

He doesn't think men want that kind of companionship any more, he says.

"There isn't time for all that," he says, "not with everybody hopping off to get married before they scarcely know each other. A man wants to know whether a girl will go on a fishing trip with him, whether she'll criticize his interest in baseball and hockey, whether she'll demand his presence in the home all the time, or whether she's the type who will respect him as an individual after they get married, enjoying the things he is interested in as well as the things she likes."

So it boils down to this, girls. You'll be popular with the opposite sex if you let them have their own way in most things which is exactly what they seem to resent in you.

Named Dairy Princess Of Area

Miss Roselyn Waters of R-2, Winterville, has been declared Dairy Princess of Area 7.

Originally placing runner-up in the contest held in Rocky Mount August 23, Miss Waters was named winner when Miss Connie Renfrow of Wilson County, previously announced as winner, was disqualified because of her age.

As Dairy Princess of Area 7, Miss Waters will compete with other district winners for the state title to be decided October 17. The state winner will reign over the North Carolina State Fair, whose theme will be dairying this year, and participate in the nationwide finals of the contest sponsored by the dairies of the country.

Miss Waters, former member of the Winterville-Greenville Club, has been active in 4-H Club work for five years. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Waters and a sophomore at East Carolina College where she is majoring in Home Economics.

Author A Little Unrealistic Says The New York Housewife

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor I have come across a quaint nostalgic note in a brand new book, "Etiquette and Protocol," by I. Monte Radovic, a former London newspaperman of international experience, who writes:

"Your relationship with your own household staff should be marked by extreme consideration for their needs."

The inevitable question that will arise from the average American reader is:

"What household staff?"

"Mr. Radovic, while undoubtedly well acquainted with correct social amenities in the higher international echelons, apparently has not tried recently to hire a maid, general housekeeper or occasional cleaning woman through a New York employment agency. I have. The most recent conversation went something like this:

Maid: "Of course I must have weekends off. You don't expect me to serve breakfast on Friday, do you? I like to get an early start."

Me: "Well, of course we want you to be happy. I guess we don't need breakfast on Fridays."

Miss Lou Cheatham of Greenville will have both of her grandmothers present when she makes her bow to North Carolina society tonight. They are Mrs. Charles Edward Mann of Washington, N. C. and Mrs. James T. Cheatham of Wilson. Miss Cheatham left yesterday for Raleigh accompanied by her mother and brother, James T. Cheatham III, who is to be his sister's chief marshal. Other relatives to join them for the ball are Mrs. James Phillips of Washington, Mr. and Mrs. George Hadenburg of Seattle, Washington, Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Hunter of Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Harris of Wilson.

Hiram Mayo Jr. of Tarboro is visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kennedy Jr., and his uncle, Dr. Ledyard Ross, and Mrs. Ross.

Christian Science Society
The vital importance of honoring God in thought and in deed will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday.

Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon on "Substance" is the Golden Text from Proverbs (22:1): "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favour rather than silver and gold."

The importance of spiritual values will be emphasized in readings from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary

Baker Eddy (239:5): "Take away wealth, fame, and social organizations, which weigh not one joy in the balance of God, and we get clearer views of Principle. Break up cliques, level wealth with honesty, let worth be judged according to wisdom, and we get better views of humanity."

Scriptural selections to be read include the following (Proverbs 3:9): "Honour the Lord with thy substance, and with the first-fruits of thine increase."

Perk Up That School Wardrobe

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Practically every school girl has a wardrobe of cotton skirts, some of which may be looking a little weary after a season or so of hard wear.

A few minutes at the sewing machine can put new life in old skirts and brighten them up for the new school term. Local sewing center experts suggest adding colorful appliques to solid-color skirts, raiding the scrap bag for fabrics.

For example, you can make a plain skirt into a conversation piece by adding appliques in a sailboat motif, using simple outlines, with single-fold bias tape for the sails and wide bias tape for the hulls of the boats. Sea-gulls also may be made from bias tape, stitched in a wide V.

Here's another new trick: Take two packages of the very wide (size 29) rickrack in two different colors. Weave the two pieces together, interlocking the points. This makes a single ribbon of trimming, with alternating colors in diagonal lines.

These are only a few suggestions for effective trimmings. Any bright girl will be able to dream up her own ideas for individual appliques to give old skirts a new lease on life.

NEW LIFE FOR AN OLD SKIRT... Colorful sailboat and sea gull appliques are stitched in contrasting bias binding. Wide rickrack braid in two colors is used to simulate ocean waves as colorful edging for the hemline of the skirt.

Miss Porter Sails For Study In France

Sailing today from New York aboard the Mauretania is Miss Dinah Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard G. Porter of 2006 East Fourth Street.

Miss Porter is one of four Duke University students who will be among some 88 students from throughout the United States spending their junior year in France under the foreign study program administered by Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Va. They will go first to Tours to receive six weeks of intensive language drill, then proceed to Paris where they will enroll in the winter term of various schools of the University of Paris.

While in France, the students will live with French families.

Proper Sleeping Equipment Is Health Factor

By MISS MARGARET STEVENS
Assistant Pitt Home Agent

What is a bedroom? A bed? A chair?

Several years ago we thought of a bedroom only in terms of a place to sleep. Now, our bedrooms are very versatile. In addition to serving as a bedroom, this room may be an area for sewing, reading or just relaxing. Possibilities for an attractive bedroom are limited only by our imagination.

Even more important than making a bedroom attractive is making one comfortable. There is no better place to start than the bed itself.

Let's begin with a strong, sturdy bedstead. Select one that has a finish which is easy to clean as well as attractive. There should be at least four and maybe as many as six slats, evenly spaced.

Bed Spring Influences Comfort

The bed spring influences the comfort and wearing quality of the mattress. It, of course, is the foundation on which the mattress rests. A rust resistant finish for any metal parts is desirable. We can make our selection of bed springs from three main types:

1. Open top coil springs may be made in single or double deck style. The double deck springs have more resilience and are supported in the middle to prevent coils buckling out of position. Better quality springs have stabilizers to prevent side sway.

2. Box springs are made by mounting coils on a foundation of slats, then insulating, upholstering and covering with ticking. This is the best type spring to use with the innerspring mattress. It is a clean kind of spring because the coils are protected from dirt and dust. It is an attractive foundation, especially when used with a matching, well tailored innerspring mattress.

3. Link springs are made of flat bands or wire links supported or held to the frame by closely wound helical (coil) springs. These are used most often on coils and fold-away beds.

Guides For Mattress Choice

Lasting good service is expected of bedding so it is wise to consider the various kinds and qualities before making a final choice. Whether a "hard" mattress or "soft" mattress is preferred is purely a matter of personal taste.

But there are guides on which we can base our choice. A good mattress is a product scientifically designed to cushion the body in a natural position, helping induce relaxation and restful sleep. It is resilient, buoyant, noiseless and well tailored.

Good tailoring and close, firmly woven ticking add to the life of a mattress. Firmly woven damask and twill tickings are used most frequently and give the best service. Side walls should be built up firmly so they remain firm and sturdy through years of use.

Types of Mattresses

The three main types of mattresses are foam latex or rubber, innerspring and solid upholstered. Foam latex has hundreds of air cells which are self-ventilating, keeping the mattress cool, fresh and odorless. A mattress of this kind never sags or lumps and never needs to be turned. A foam latex mattress should be at least four inches thick to prove satisfactory.

Quality in the innerspring mattress is dependent upon the gauge wire used in the coils, number of coils and the method of joining them. An insulator is used to keep the upholstery from working down into the coil unit.

The coil unit is cushioned top and bottom with a protective upholstery padding made up of felted cotton, hair, rubberized hair or foam latex. In a more expensive type mattress the coils are individually encased in a dust free cloth pocket and the pockets then sewed together.

The last, solid upholstered mattress, is made of layers of felted cotton innertrapped to hold the fillings in place. These mattresses are least expensive; they become lumpy and require renovating.

Any type of mattress should have secure handles. The mattress should be covered with a quilted pad to protect the upholstery from stains and soil. Mattresses should be aired regularly and turned at least once a month to prolong their lives.

Ideal Pillow

The ideal pillow is lightweight, resilient, buoyant, odorless, free from stiff quilts, wads and dust. A good test is to punch the pillow—rapid rebound indicates resiliency. Pillows may be made of foam latex, down, goose, duck, chicken and turkey feathers. Because of their straight flat quill shafts, chicken and turkey feathers are least desirable.

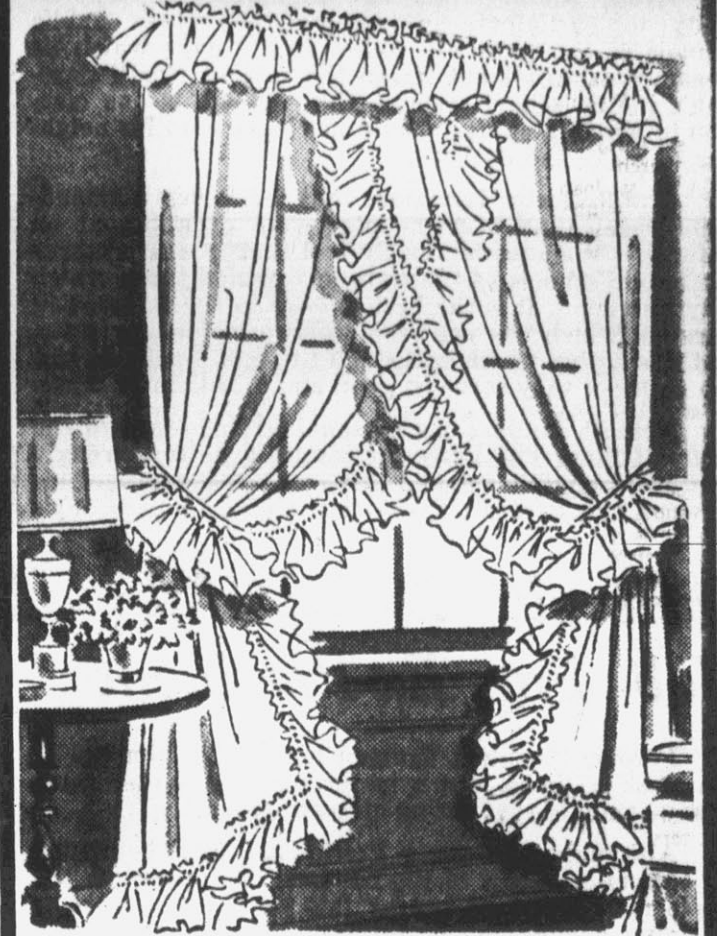

Pillows, too, should be covered with a quilted pad or plastic cover for protection.

Durability Factor In Linens

Bed linens should be chosen with utmost care for lasting durability. Sheets and pillow cases are made in various grades of muslin and percale.

essential. Sleeping comfort is based on a resilient pillows, smooth, clean sheets and pillow cases and a good spring and mattress, plump, efficient, lightweight coverings.

We Can't Save the Public Schools By Providing A Way to Abolish Them!

Vote AGAINST the "Special Session School Amendment."

THE AMENDMENT:

... IS UNNECESSARY! Children may NOW attend private schools if their parents so desire.

... IS A STEP BACKWARD! The General Assembly would no longer be required by law "to provide a general and uniform system of public schools." The "Pearsall Plan" does not assure—that without a mandate—the General Assembly would provide adequate schools.

... CAN PRODUCE ILLITERACY! In a school district taking advantage of this law, children will no longer have to go to school.

... DENIES THE SPIRIT OF DEMOCRACY! Fifty-one per cent of the voters in a school district could deprive ALL the people of that district of their schools. Only the rich could afford to send their children to private schools.

... IS UNFAIR TO TEACHERS! Those charged with the high trust of teaching would be stripped of their security.

... IS NEGATIVE! The proposed legislation was born of opposition to—rather than a search for means to comply with—the declared law of the land.

Greenville F. W. B. Announcements

There is a sincere welcome for all who attend Sunday School at the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church. Mr. Stephen Walters, superintendent, and the pastor urge a large attendance Sunday at 9:45 a.m. Last Sunday there were 370 in attendance and now as vacations are over and schools and college are open there should be a marked increase in attendance. At the 11 a.m. worship the choir anthem will be "Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled" by W. H. Sims, and the pastor's sermon topic will be "The Lord's People" (Ps. 122:1). The Leagues will meet at 6:30 p.m. under the direction of Mr. Mark Case. The pastor's sermon topic at 7:30 p.m. will be "It Is No Secret" (Acts 26:26). Following the worship service there will be a "get-acquainted" time for the college students and the church people. There will be rides for college students leaving Cotten Hall at 7:15 p.m. to take them to the church for this special college church service. There will be rides each Sunday morning at 9:30 at Cotten Hall to take college students to Sunday School and church. Students living in homes are invited to attend church here, at any or all services.

Monday at 5:00 p.m. the East Carolina Free Will Baptist Student Fellowship will meet at the "Y" but for vesper and a light meal. Monday at 7:30 p.m. the Circles of the Woman's Auxiliary meet with the following persons: Laura Bell Barnard Circle with Mrs. Jesse Boyd, 1103 Evans St.; Lilly Smith Circle with Mrs. Vernon Joyner, 2001 East 4th St.; Josephine Stevens Circle with Mrs. Joe Averette, 108 North Warren St.; Afternoon Circle Tuesday at 3:00 p.m. with Mrs. Charlie Tyson, 915 Evans St.

Tuesday at 7:00 p.m. Young People's Choir will rehearse. Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. prayer service and Evangelism classes will meet.

Thursday at 7:00 p.m. the Junior Choir will practice, and at 8:00 p.m. the Senior Choir will meet. At 7:30 Thursday the Deacons will meet at the church for a most important session.

Wednesday and Thursday, the State Conventions for Free Will Baptists will be held at Whiteville at the Beaver Dam Church.

Non-Voters Behind Bad Decisions

In three-quarters of a century North Carolinians have not been called upon to make a more important decision than they will have to make Saturday at the ballot boxes.

The decision which will be determined when the ballots are counted Saturday night should be the decision of all the people of the state. It should not be a decision made by only a small percentage of eligible voters in North Carolina.

Every eligible voter has an individual responsibility to participate in shaping the course public schools of the state will follow in the days which lie ahead. In the balance hangs the fate of North Carolina's public school system. This, indeed, is one election in which a citizen should not leave it to his neighbor to make the decision.

The Reflector is anxious that the Pearsall amendment receive an overwhelming vote of approval on Saturday. We conscientiously feel that it will preserve the public schools of the state in troubled times which may lie ahead. It is the best answer to the integration question which has yet been worked out in any state, and it is a plan which will stand the public schools and the children they serve in good stead in time of crisis.

Notwithstanding our personal feelings toward the Pearsall Plan, The Reflector cannot urge too strongly that every eligible voter in this area—regardless of his view on the Pearsall Plan—participate in Saturday's referendum. Bad decisions, like poor public officials, are not made by the people who go to the polls and vote on election day. They are made by well intentioned citizens who for one reason or another refuse to shoulder their responsibility to cast their individual ballots.

In addition to his civil responsibility to participate in this important election, every eligible voter in North Carolina has an inescapable obligation to the million school children of the state to do everything in his power to preserve the public school system. By voicing his opinion through the ballot box, each citizen can discharge this obligation.

The Reflector is confident the thinking people of North Carolina will cast their ballots in favor of the Pearsall amendment on Saturday. It is a sound, workable plan which will preserve the school system. By its adoption the Pearsall Plan will insure that North Carolina's public school system will neither be destroyed by the smashing waves of integration nor sacrificed on the fiery cross of mob violence.

The Reflector is hopeful that every citizen, regardless of his feelings, will cast a ballot in the election.

Difficult, Distasteful Job For Ex-President

Former President Truman has before him one of the most difficult jobs a major political leader faces in any campaign... eating his own words.

Although the former President is just beginning his efforts in behalf of the nominee he opposed as the Democratic standard bearer this year, he appears to be doing a good job of refuting his statements of a couple of weeks ago.

In his efforts to obtain the Democratic nomination for New York's Gov. Harriman, the man from Independence asserted that Adlai Stevenson is not a fighter, and that he could not defeat President Eisenhower in a campaign.

Now that the campaign is underway, Mr. Truman has taken the stump in behalf of the nominee he opposed. He has now retracted at least in part his earlier statement that Stevenson is no fighter. In Truman's speeches, Stevenson has since proved himself a fighting candidate. Now, according to Truman, Stevenson can defeat President Eisenhower if he receives the support of the Democratic party.

For a man who was one of the most outspoken leaders the Democratic party has had, the task is bound to be difficult if not distasteful. Where he once was the dominating influence in the party, at Chicago a couple of weeks ago he found he was no longer able to dictate to delegates, he was no longer the man who was looked to for decisions of the party.

Although he still carries a great deal of influence, in this campaign, former President Truman is not the dominating figure he was a few years ago. It is always difficult for the former star to play a lesser role.

Fertile Field Open To Safety Council In Pitt

Growing concern over safety in Pitt County is evidenced by the formation of a Pitt County Safety Council here yesterday.

The Council, which has as its goal the promotion of safety and the reduction of highway and other accidents, will find a fertile field for its endeavors in Pitt County.

One needs only to glance at the safety record of the county to see that a great deal needs to be done to reduce the number of accidental deaths and injuries on the highways and elsewhere. If it succeeds in making the people of Pitt more safety conscious, the number of accidents will decrease and the Council will have been of tremendous service.

The very fact that a group of citizens representing every section of the county have banded together to form the Council bespeaks the growing concern over the accident rate in Pitt. Already the highway death rate of the county this year is pointing toward a new all-time record. Deaths and injuries resulting from other types of accidents in the county also are happening at an alarming rate.

Membership in the Pitt County Safety Council will be open to any citizen who is interested in joining the group. Patterned along the lines of other county-wide groups formed throughout the state, this Council can fill a real need in Pitt.

The Reflector offers its congratulations to those who have laid the groundwork for a Safety Council in Pitt, and we wholeheartedly recommend it to the people throughout the county.

Public Work Time Is But Small Part

By LYNN NISBET

IN COMMON — School teachers and legislators have a lot in common. The hours spent in classrooms by teachers and in formal sessions and committee meetings by legislators are about the same. In both cases the public work time represents only a small part of the total job.

If the legislative pay amendment is ratified by the voters Saturday there will be another common factor. Teachers and lawmakers will be paid about the same wages, but still below the average truck driver or bricklayer.

Although the statutory school term is 180 classroom days, it is conceded on all hands that school teaching is a full time job. Counting time required for summer school refresher courses, for conferences with pupils and patrons before and after school, the teachers have little more vacation time than the average industrial or business office worker.

Membership in the General Assembly approaches a full time job, counting primary and general elections and demands by constituents when the Legislature is not in session. Presently members of the Legislature are among the poorest paid public servants. If the proposed amendment is ratified they will get a maximum of $1800 ($15 a day for not more than 120 days, and free work if the session runs longer). They will get $2 a day expense money for duration of the session. Assuming the 120 limit that means $2,760 total, which is about the average annual school teacher pay.

Teachers get paid every year, legislators only for the years the General Assembly is in session. Other times they can work at their private business or profession, except for a lot of time devoted to interests of constituents.

CONSISTENT — Whatever virtues or faults may be attributed to Governor Hodges the record will prove that he has been consistent throughout his public career. The multiplicity of signs along the highways warning of a possible $50 fine for throwing trash on the right of way, at test his definite "anti-litterbug" attitude. That is no change from his attitude in 1952 when he began his campaign for nomination as Lieutenant Governor. Everybody employed to put up signs on trees or telephone poles for him in that campaign was employed and paid at the same time to take down the signs after the primary. The fact that some workers took his money and failed to complete the takedown job is no reflection upon the intentions of the candidate.

Recent castigations of the highway commission for "deplorable public relations" with respect to use of Federal funds for super interstate highways and allegations of delinquency on part of other officials and employees, is not new, either. Some 30 months ago, in February of 1954, then Lieut. Gov. Hodges got himself in bad with many State employees because of a speech he made at New Orleans while on a tour incident to his position as a trustee of Rotary International.

He referred then to crowded elevators in North Carolina state office buildings being jammed with employees on their way to and from the refreshment stands, instead of being at their desks.

It has been a long time since North Carolina had a high ranking official who drove himself as hard as does Governor Hodges on the job—or who played as hard on short intermittent fishing trips. The way Luther Hodges fishes would be real work for most folks. That's the way he likes it. Majority of the rank and file of State employees cannot take a day or two off at one time, prefer to take the 15 or 20 minute "coffee breaks" every day.

PUTPOURRI — Republicans want to change the opposing party's name from DEMOCRATIC to just DEMOCRAT. Suggested revision for campaign buttons: "I like Ike; I don't like IC."

Charlie Gold, commissioner of insurance, noting the earth-moving jobs by huge bulldozers in his native mountain country, is somewhat concerned. "If this business keeps going for another hundred years like it has for the past five, they'll have all the mountains pulled down into the valleys and Western Carolina will be as flat as the East," he said. That reminds of Sam Weems' story about the mountain gal who went to Florida for the first time. She didn't like it, because "There ain't no place to stand up on to see nothing from."

Then there is the unconfirmed story about the young lady applying for a job as teacher of English grammar at public school. Asked if she believed she was a good teacher and if she was personally proficient in use of correct English, she replied: "I ain't never made but one grammatical error in my life, and I seen that as soon as I done it, and I taken it back." (P.S.—she didn't get the job.)

Nearly every employer has peculiar tests for prospective employees. Frank Ashley, one time superintendent at Hamlet and for a long time connected with Gastonia schools, would never sign up a teacher until he had eaten a meal in public with her—or him. Not so much to observe general manners and deportment in public as to see what she did with her hands when not conscious of them. Veteran trial lawyers watch the hands of witnesses on cross examination more closely than facial expression. So do portrait painters and photographers.

The completely educated person is one who knows something about everything—and everything about something.

Other Editors Are Saying... Good Use For Farm Surplus

(Wilson Daily Times)

The completing of the agreement between India and the United States for $300,000,000 for surplus wheat, rice and cotton should better relations between this country and India.

It certainly puts us far out in front of the Russians as a provider of aid to neutral India. And it should strengthen the western position in the "smiling cold war" as Mr. Menzies, Prime Minister of Australia calls the present course of the East-West struggle.

But what is equally important is that it uses farm surpluses for the economic development of countries that are in extreme need. And it is worked out so as not to endanger animosity among the nations that sell the products we are supplying under the agreement.

India has promised to continue importing rice from Burma and wheat from Australia and New Zealand. This should show these nations that we are equally interested in their economic welfare.

American "dumping" of farm surpluses has been a natural concern to our friends the world over. So the agreement, which has been called "famine insurance" for India, should "make friends and influence people."

The Indian agreement could be called the first of the long range economic plans. It covers a three year period with India having the right to draw on food surpluses, while at the same time trying to raise its own living standards.

The loan will be repaid in rupees instead of American dollars and the money will be left in India to be used to build the India economy and industry. In fact $50,000,000 is earmarked for the development of free enterprise.

The Indian government has 25 years in which to repay the loan. This loan is double pronged. It should enable the Indians to become less dependent upon Russia, and give them the opportunity to become more self-reliant.

It also puts America's huge surpluses to use and on terms that are consistent to the policy this country outlined when the economic aid program was designed. That is helping relieve want and suffering, and at the same time building economic growth but not at the expense of other nations.

This does not justify the tremendous food surpluses we have on hand, but it certainly puts them to good use.

How Was That Again?

Again We Look To The Past

Youngsters and "transplants" might wonder what Greenville had to offer in the way of entertainment before the days of Cinemascope, Technicolor, TV, radio and sound movies.

Well, they had White's Theater, located where the State Theater is today.

The building was owned and operated by Sam T. White, and in addition to the silent movies of the early 1920s, some of New York's finest stock companies were booked for performances in Greenville.

My source tells me these were not run-of-the-mill shows, either. When companies were preparing to leave the Big City, Sam White eyed them with a discerning eye and brought in only the best.

The White Theater stage echoed to the music of "Bohemian Girl," "Il Trovatore," "Blossom Time," and the late Jean Eagles played here in "Rain".

Just to mention a few. "Polly and the Circus," complete with a circus ring, an elephant and performing horses was viewed by local audiences at the White Theater.

Nor was Hollywood overlooked in choices for the silent screen; some pictures were shown for the first time in North Carolina to local audiences.

In the pit, at the piano, Mrs. Lena Tyson held forth. Mrs. Dorothy Trotman and Mrs. W.L. Whichard served as substitutes in the "mood music" department. (It was Mrs. Trotman that started me off on this column.)

Providing the music for moving pictures was no cinch... the piano-player had to have a quick change of pace to fit the action on the screen.

Mrs. Trotman says popular music of the day provided most of the background touch; she racked her memory for some of these numbers, but could remember only "Blackhawk Waltz" and "Memory of Love" as being among the music she played then.

Those silent films could stir up audiences, too. The villain could be counted on to draw some jeers and the heroine some cheers. Chase scenes (yep, they had 'em) would set off impassioned urgings from the darkened theater. For such scenes the music had to be loud and fast.

The only silent film that stands out in my own mind, I saw at a tender age in Michigan. An uncle accompanied me.

There was this ship... a derelict... see, and only two people left aboard. (The hero and heroine, naturally.) and the derelict was drifting toward a tropical isle... when all of a sudden canoes loaded with grotesquely painted cannibals set out from shore... and the hero got nervous... and the pianist got agitated... and I skipped out in a hurry.

Don't tell me they didn't have fun.

Notebook On Life

Religion Adds To A Fortune

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The surest way to quick wealth in America is to find out what the public wants—and give it to them first.

A 39-year-old entertainment genius who made a fortune giving the public what it wanted in the way of comedy and fiction, crime is now rapidly enlarging that fortune by satisfying the rising public interest in religion.

He is Bernard L. Schubert, producer of "Crossroads," an ABC network show that has clergymen as its heroes. The show, now in its second year, was the first commercially sponsored national interfaith religious program on television. Its spontaneous success surprised most people in the industry. But not Schubert himself.

"After all, more Americans are deeply interested in religion today than at any time in history," he remarked. "Some 60.3 per cent of the population belongs to churches now as compared to 49 per cent in 1940 and a mere 16 per cent a hundred years ago."

Until less than two years ago Schubert had only a layman's interest in religion. He had won recognition as coproducer of the "Topper" programs and crime series, such as "Counter Spy," "Adventures of the Falcon," and "Mr. and Mrs. North."

"I hold the distinction of once having hired Jack Webb for a minor role in a radio crime show," said Schubert, a trifle glumly, since Webb later, starring on "Dragnet," probably made more out of crime than anybody, including Jesse James.

The idea for "Crossroads" originated with a Catholic priest and a rabbi.

"They wanted to show that the clergy did more than perform marriages, baptize children, and deliver funeral orations," said Schubert. "They wanted to show the full role clergymen play in their communities."

Schubert provided the technical know-how to carry out their wishes. At first he feared there might be a shortage of good stories to dramatize.

Less Conflict On Meeting Red Menace

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — In sharp contrast to their attitudes in 1952, when the Republicans high-lighted the charge of Communist sympathies and tolerance against the Stevenson-Truman combination, President Eisenhower and his opponents are nearer together on the question of how to handle the Russian menace.

Both favor a strong national defense and a continued foreign aid program in order to thwart and "contain" the Russian threat to the free world, although they may disagree on details and accomplishment of this objective since 1953.

But both, in their common search for even a tenuous and uneasy period of peace, have indicated that they will be willing to make friends with the Kremlin, if the Khrushchev-Bulganin regime show any inclination toward living up to recognized standards of international behavior.

CANDIDATES' ATTITUDE TOWARD MOSCOW President Eisenhower's qualified concessions to a reformed Russia were contained in his acceptance speech. Although one of the most important statements in his discussion of foreign affairs, it was generally overlooked. He said:

"Now, at last, there appear to be signs that some small degree of intercourse may be permitted (with the Iron Curtain countries). The hope is that, little by little, mistrust based on falsehoods will give way to international understanding based on truth."

Stevenson has spoken in much the same vein, with "flexibility" as the basis of his viewpoint toward the Kremlin. In fact, his denunciations of "Dulles bluff and bluster" suggests that he regards the Dulles-Hoover attitude, in contrast to Ike's, as too unyielding.

SIGNS OF COMMON GROUND Stevenson's promised briefings on foreign problems through the Central Intelligence Agency's files may make him more sympathetic to the Administration's general program. Indeed, there is hope that this broad and explosive issue, especially in view of the Suez crisis, may disappear from the campaign, or at least be treated in a more statesmanlike manner than in 1952.

There are other signs of common ground for agreement on essentials. Senator Mike Mansfield of Montana, one of the ablest Democrats on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, believes that it is time for another "summit conference." He disagrees sharply with certain colleagues, Democrats and Republicans, who charge that we "appeased" and "sold out" to Russia at the recent Geneva meeting.

Senator Walter F. George's assignment as a NATO adviser and consultant marks a further rapprochement between political enemies on this issue.

"FLEXIBILITY AND MOBILITY" Another important Democratic expert on Russia has been expounding this theory of "flexibility and mobility" in recent magazine articles and books. He is George F. Kennan, former Ambassador to Moscow and State

Role In Economy Mistold?

By ELMER ROESSNER

The food industry is angry with government statisticians. Food men say their role in the economy is being misrepresented to the people.

There are three main complaints:

1. That the figures compiled for the Consumers' Price Index by the Bureau of Labor Statistics are misleading.
2. That the Department of Agriculture's reports on percentage of prices received by the farmer are deceptive.
3. And that failure to distinguish between part-time farmers and commercial farmers distorts the agricultural income picture.

WHEN TO SHOP?

The first complaint has been voiced by Ralph B. Johnson, executive vice president of the National-American Wholesale Grocers Association. He said that BLS shoppers obtain food prices during the early part of the week, thus they do not take into account the "advertised specials" and "week-end specials." Therefore, he contended, the prices used are not representative and distort the size of the food budget.

Ewan Clague, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, has a persuasive answer. He points out that the index measures the fluctuation in prices consumer pay. His shoppers, he concedes, take prices during the first part of the week containing the 15th day of each month. If the rate of rise or fall is the same as from Monday in one week to Monday in another it is from one Saturday to another Saturday, Mr. Clague is right. On the other hand, if the rate of fluctuation varies, the index is lopsided. A million dollars and an act of Congress could determine the answer in no time—say two or three years.

The complaint about the farmers' share of retail prices was uttered by Frank M. Achley, agriculture consultant of the Grocery Manufacturers of America. He did not question the figures— which usually show that farmers get half or less of the retail price, but he questioned the way in which they are presented.

WANTS "VALUE ADDED" RECOGNIZED

Reports on these studies, he said, do not point out that value is added to farm products by processors, transporters and distributors.

Without the spread of prices between farm and store, he said, "not only manufacturers and distributors, but farmers as well, would be out of business. Our bread would be wheat on a Kansas farm; our cheese and butter would be milk in a pail in Wisconsin; and our breakfast juice would be on the trees in Florida or California orange groves."

"Without spread, there would be no food business as we know it. The food business would consist of local farmers selling direct to local consumers."

Mr. Achley also registered the complaint about farm income. "None of our available farm income statistics distinguish between the marginal and part-time farmer, and the real commercial farmer. The inefficient subsistence farmer can no more compete with the up-to-date mechanized commercial farmer than the old five-story wholesale warehouse, using out-dated systems and hand methods, can compete with the streamlined one-story mechanized warehouse. He is about like the old-fashioned Mom-and-Pop retail grocery trying to compete with the modern supermarket."

Earlier this year Congress increased appropriations for statistical fact-gathering. Perhaps something will come of it.

Grifton Pupils Say 'Goodbye' Vacation

By BARBARA TAYLOR
Grifton High School

"Good-bye to vacation" was said last week as students prepared themselves for another school year at Grifton High.

Among the new students we would like to welcome are Jeanette Lewis, Peggy Parker, Bill Gardner, Carolyn Lewis, and C.J. Wiley.

We would also like to welcome Mr. Earl Denton, Mrs. Doris Thomas, Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Dowdy and Mr. Alston Burke to our faculty.

Many back to school parties have been staged lately.

Linda Chauncey invited Judy Hart, Gladys Smith, Nancy Smith, and Martha Hart over Thursday night to a "gab session." The girls were served hamburgers, cokes, fudge. Later, joining the party was Floyd Smith, Walter Craft, Tommy Bogey, Mac Chauncey, Donald Bennett, and Bobby Rouse Dancing was the highlight of the evening.

Jimmy Rogers celebrated his 14th birthday Friday by having a birthday party. Friends gathered at the home at the hour of eight o'clock. Pepsis, salted nuts, and brownies were served. Later during the evening gifts were opened and the birthday cake was cut.

Among those present were: Elizabeth Lawton, Carolyn Hart, Bill Goosby, Jack Groat, Dorothy Groat, John Smith, Sharen Stone, Jane Mewborn, Joey King, Phillip Manning, and Steve Cox.

Judy Hart had as her dinner guests Saturday night Jimmy Burbage, Gladys Smith, Fred Taylor, Nancy Smith, and Gilbert Quigley. A delicious dinner consisting of steak and the trimmings was served. Later the group enjoyed a movie. This crowd resumed their fun the next day at Rest Haven, boating and swimming.

This new school year seems to have already brought about much preparation and excitement for the student body.

The classes have begun to organize and elect officers whom they wish to act as leaders and representatives for this year.

They are as follows:

Senior Class— President: Wayne Ervin; Vice President: Floyd Smith; Secretary: Faye McGotter; Treasurer: Neil Jackson.

The classes met with the annual staff advisor, Mrs. Bunch, and elected the annual staff to "The Griftonian." They are: Editor: Patsy Burney; Co-Editor: Barbara Taylor; Business Manager: Floyd Smith; Representatives: Barbara Lane, Wilma Patrick, and Dorothy Groat.

Phants Meet Goldsboro In Opener Here Tonight

Quakes Favored By 15-Point Margin

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Tonight at College Stadium, Greenville high school's Phantoms will get their first taste of 1950 football, which they collide with the AAA Goldsboro Earthquakes. Quake Coach Norris Jeffrey will bring a rugged and experienced eleven to College Stadium, hoping to rack up another victory similar to the 57-0 shellacking they gave the Phants in 1955.

Jeffrey will sport eleven lettermen, who will play regularly, and has brought along several outstanding newcomers expected to see plenty of action.

Game Time 8:00

Beginning at 8:00, the contest will be the first of a 10-game schedule for the Phantoms. Coach Guy Lewis, who has been working with a crew of 39 boys — the largest turnout in many years at GHS — has not openly commented directly concerning tonight's battle.

Greenville has been ranked, according to reports, at least a 15-point underdog to the rising Quakes. The Goldsboro camp has glittered with signs of improvement throughout the early season and the Quakes are expected to have a stronger and faster team than last year's eleven.

Leading the attack for the Blue and White will be a shifty quarterback, Worsett Clement. Clement is loaded with experience, having played at Kinston and Fayetteville during the past two years.

Heavy Line

Behind Clement, will be another experienced commander, Jerry Ellis, who was a regular at that spot last season.

The Quake line will be big and rugged, averaging around the 185-190 mark. A pair of tackles weighing 185 and 195 will anchor the forward wall. Two guards weighing 185 and 165 will strengthen the middle and the biggest man on the team will hold down the center post, Jan Kneib, a 205 stalwart.

Jeffrey has called Kneib "the best lineman in the state."

The Phantoms will field a forward wall which averages about 170 pounds. Four of the starters in the line, Wade Jordan, Edwin Wilkerson, Kelly Barnhill and Angus Duff, are lettermen.

Three of the starting Phantom backs are experienced veterans and regulars from the 1955 varsity outfit. They are Billy Sermons, Robert Howell and Mack Roebuck.

Backs Will Lead

It is expected that the Green backs will carry the bulk of the work for the locals, due to their experience. Sermons, a 6-1, 170 pounder was All-Northeastern Conference at fullback last season and a powerful runner Lewis has shifted him to a halfback slot, however, to make room for a talented newcomer.

Robin Wilfong, the only freshman on the Phant aggregation, is also one of the biggest and fastest men on the team. He weighs in at a hefty 175 pounds and is expected to give Lewis' crew plenty of grinding power at fullback.

Mack Roebuck, who commands the team at quarterback last year as a sophomore, will again handle that position at kickoff time tonight. He is a triple-threat and will do Phantom punting.

Lineups for the contest are as follows:

Goldsboro	Pos.	Greenville
C. Carawan	LE	Ed Wilkerson
J. O. Faust	LT	Angus Duff
Bill Allen	LG	Billy Brown
Jan Kneib	C	Wade Jordan
W. Wiggins	RG	K. Barnhill
E. Duff	RT	R. Martin

THURSDAY'S STARS

PITCHING — Frank Lary, Detroit, shut out the Athletics on four hits for 16th victory as Tigers won 6-0.

HITTING — Jose Valdivielso, Washington, had a three-run homer for the big blow in Senators' 7-5 victory over Baltimore.

Three Coastal Teams Opening Season Tonight

Coastal Conference football teams open their season play tonight with three games taking the spotlight in the Class AA circles.

Ayden will open with Benvenue, at Ayden, as Coach Stuart Tripp's Tornados will be seeking a non-conference win.

Coach Elbert Moye's Farmville Red Devils will also be playing home. They will do battle with LaGrange on the Farmville field.

Robersonville, last season's Coastal Champs, will tackle Pamlico County at Pamlico.

All three contests will take place at 8:00.

Bucs Set For Navy Saturday Night

STARTING FULLBACK—Robin Wilfong, freshman fullback for the Greenville Phantoms, will be playing his first varsity game tonight, against the AAA Goldsboro Quakes. A 175 pounder, Wilfong has been touted as one of the most promising gridders in the school in recent years. His running mates will be Mack Roebuck, Billy Sermons, and Robert Howell.

ALL-AMERICA—George Welsh, former All-America quarterback for Navy in 1955, and holder of the National Passing title, will face East Carolina, Saturday night, as commander of the Norfolk Navy Tars. The game is being boomed as an aerial war between Welsh and ECC triple-threat Little-All-America quarterback Dick Cherry.

THURSDAY'S FIGHTS
SAO PAULO, Brazil — Pascual Perez, 107½, Argentina, defeated Conrado Morera, 112½, Chile, 10.
SAINT JOHN, N.B. — Yvon Dujelle, 180, Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., stopped Tinker Picot, 174, Dorchester, Mass., 5.
LOS ANGELES — Willie Vaughn, 161, Los Angeles, stopped Hank Davis, 155½, Los Angeles, 7.

Welsh, Cherry Expected To Wage Aerial Warfare

With what has been heralded as one of the top passing attacks in service ball this year, the Norfolk Navy Tars will take to the field tomorrow night as the first East Carolina Pirate foe of the 1956 season.

George Welsh, a 5-10, 165-pound former All-America quarterback for Navy last season, heads a list of impressive stars on the Tar roster. Welsh led the Naval Academy to a successful campaign in 1955 and reaped a long list of individual honors on the side. He earned the National Passing title for Offensive Yardage, was selected on the All-America team by both the major press organizations in America, and also assumed duties as head quarterback for the Collegians in the 1956 All-Star-Cleveland Browns contest.

No Easy Road Is Facing Dodgers

BROOKLYN — A year ago, the Brooklyn Dodgers were just a day away from the earliest pennant clinching ever accomplished in the National League. Today, they have to win two just to stay healthy.

And it doesn't figure to be easy. This hasn't been 1953, when the Brooks won their first 10 games, ran off with the flag and then wrapped up the world championship. This time it's tough.

Going into the twilight twinbill with the New York Giants — set up by last night's rain-out in the scheduled opener of a four-game series — the Dodgers have swept only five doubleheaders all season, losing six and splitting six.

This also is their fourth doubleheader in seven days, which may account for Brooklyn's slump at the plate. With the hitters sagging, it's been the pitching staff that has enabled the third place Brooks to stay within two games of first place Milwaukee and a half game behind second place Cincinnati.

Olson To Fight As Light-Heavy

SAN FRANCISCO — There's finally some word from former "Bobo" Olson, who disappeared from the boxing scene after his knockout last May 18 by titlist Sugar Ray Robinson.

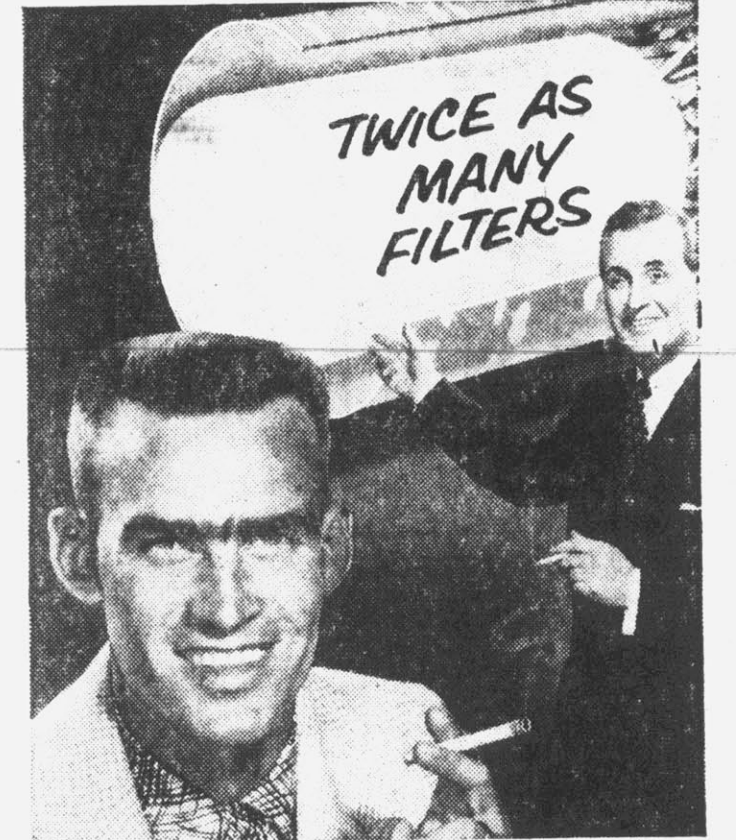

Olson's manager, Sid Flaherty, announced yesterday that his boxer will attempt a comeback as a light heavyweight with a bout scheduled in Portland, Ore., on Oct. 2. His opponent is yet to be selected.

East Carolina Art Society Plans Start Fall Program

The East Carolina Art Society will begin its fall program with an exhibition of paintings by Col. W. A. Raborg of Laredo, Texas.

The exhibition will open in the Art Gallery on second floor of Sheppard Memorial Library Thursday, Sept. 13 at 10:30 a.m. and will continue for only three days—hours from 10:30 a.m. until five p.m.

Col. Raborg will be present in the gallery on Thursday morning and will be glad to talk with callers about his paintings, according to the announcement.

Colonel Raborg is a member of the Texas Fine Arts Association, the South Texas Art League, the Laredo (Texas) Art Association of which he is vice president, the North Carolina Art Society and others.

He has studied with Eliot O'Hara, Jay Datus, John LeShay, Columbia University and others, working principally in water color. He has had a number of one man shows in Texas, Oregon and in North Carolina; his pictures have hung in several Texas galleries and at present his work is on circuit with the Texas Fine Arts Association.

Colonel Raborg served with the Eighth and Fifteenth Cavalry during the Mexican border trouble and with the Eighth Division during World War I. During World

Larger Number Of Veterans May Enroll At ECC

Enrollment of veterans entering East Carolina this fall is expected to exceed in numbers registration in other years, Registrar Orval L. Phillips stated today.

Announcement has been made by Dr. Phillips that GI students wishing to enroll for the fall quarter at the college may register as late as Wednesday, September 12, and receive full credit for the quarter's work.

Since many of these students are just being released from service, he explained, they must register for work after the beginning of the quarter. Classes will still be open to them through next Wednesday, and there will be no academic penalties for late registration, he said.

General's Son Is In Coast Guard

DENVER (AP)—The son of an Army general has joined the Coast Guard.

The Coast Guard recruiting office here identified him as Hugh R. Johnson, 18, of Colorado Springs. He is the son of Brig. Gen. Dwight B. Johnson, chief of staff of the Army anti-aircraft command at Colorado Springs.

X-Ray Survey In Greene County Begins Sept. 22

SNOW HILL — A mass chest X-ray survey for Greene county to run from September 22 through October 13 is sponsored by the Greene County Tuberculosis Association, State Board of Health and Greene County Health Department.

County Health Officer Dr. Arthur S. Chesson, Jr., said "the overall objective of the survey is to X-ray every person in Greene County 15 years old or over. Already about 50 per cent of the eligible population has been X-rayed, and now we want the other half of the population to avail themselves of this opportunity. The health officer estimates that there are 11,000 people in Greene County who should be X-rayed this year."

"The recent progress in treating tuberculosis and a growing rehabilitation program, make it imperative that we diagnose, cure and return to gainful occupation all persons in this county who have tuberculosis," the health officer stated.

The school children in this age group will be X-rayed while the mobile unit is near the respective schools.

A second objective of the X-ray survey is early diagnosis of cancer of the lungs. Cancer of the lung can be cured today with early diagnosis and surgery. It is almost certainly fatal if diagnosed in the later stages, according to medical authorities.

It takes only a few minutes to be X-rayed and no undressing is required. Written reports will be mailed within several weeks to all persons X-rayed.

Following is the schedule of the mobile X-ray unit in Snow Hill: September 22, 23, 26, 27, 28, and 29.

The mobile unit will be in the following other places during this month: September 22 and 23, near barber shop in Hookerton; September 26 and 27, Ormondsville; September 28 and 29, Maura.

Following is the schedule for the mobile X-ray unit in Greene County during October: Snow Hill October 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12, and 13, near postoffice, Walstonburg, October 2 and 3, Grantham's store, October 4 and 5, Shine Crossroads 6 and 9, Jason, October 10 and 11, Brownstown, October 12 and 13.

Mule Acting As Foster-Mother

MOULTRIE, Ga. (AP)—For 19 years Queen was just a mule on the Harry Grubbs farm.

Now she's something special—the foster mother of an 8-month-old calf, which she has nursed for six months.

The calf was abandoned by its real mother last February. That started Queen on her way to what veterinarian Quincy Derbyshire calls a "real curiosity."

Grubbs said the calf was almost gone from starvation. Then Queen began giving milk and nursing the calf. Grubbs says this is the first time Queen has given milk.

Derbyshire has never heard of a mule rearing a calf, and says only in rare instances have mules ever given birth to colts. The hybrid animals, he explains, generally do not reproduce.

The Source of Human Conflicts

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scriptures—Luke 22:31-34; 54-62; James 3-4.

Jesus told Peter that Satan was tempting him, but He was praying for him. Peter insisted that he would go to prison or death with Jesus, but Christ said that the cock would not crow three times before he would deny Him.

Jesus was taken before the high priest, Peter following at a distance. A maid in the house looked at Peter steadfastly and said he was with Jesus, and he denied it. Later two men accused him that he had been with Jesus, and again Peter denied it hotly.

Peter heard the cock crow three times, and as he started to leave the house Jesus looked at him. Then Peter remembered what Christ had told him, that he would deny Him thrice, and Peter left the house weeping bitterly.

James warns what discord evil speaking brings. "Speak not evil one of another, brethren. He that speaketh evil of his brother, and judgeth his brother, speaketh evil." God will help us. MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 19:14.

The Source of Human Conflict

SHOWING THE IMPORTANCE OF CONTROLLING THE TONGUE

Scripture—Luke 22:31-34; 54-62; James 3-4.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THE FIRST PART of our lesson tells of Peter's great sin in denying his Master when Jesus was taken in custody and brought before the high priest in the priest's house.

Shortly before this Jesus had told Peter that he knew he was tempted by Satan but He was praying for him. Peter protested that he never would be unfaithful; that he would follow Christ to prison or to death if necessary. Jesus then told Peter that before the cock crowd three times that night he would deny Him the same number of times.

Jesus was seized and taken before the high priest, Peter following Him but at a distance. At the house of the priest, Peter that we should all take to heart. It is on the subject of unruly tongues. How many of us think with shame of something we said in a moment of anger to an associate, a dear friend, a member of our family. How many a little child is broken-hearted because other children whispered something about him and the playmates would not let the child play with them. How many a life has been ruined because of idle gossip!

The tongue is a tiny member of our bodies, but it can create more mischief than any other member. James tells us that wars are brought on by men's evil talk.

A horse is controlled by a bit in its mouth; a great ship is driven through stormy seas by joined a group before a fire. A maid looked at him intently, then said, "This man was also with Him." Peter denied it, saying "Woman, I know Him not."

Later a man said to him, "Thou art also of them," and Peter answered, "Man, I am not."

A third man also said Peter was companion of Jesus and was a Galilean. Peter denied it hotly, and then he heard the cock crow and remembered the Lord's words. As he hurriedly left the house Jesus looked at him, and Peter went out, and wept bitterly for his great sin.

After Jesus' death Peter redeemed himself, becoming the foremost Apostle to preach the gospel in spite of being forbidden to do so and being thrown into prison and in danger of death. He, too, died a martyr's death.

St. James teaches us a lesson small instruments, but we who are the only one of God's creatures to whom speech is given, often fail to control our tongues and give way to evil speaking. Only man of all the creatures of the earth is tamed only by himself, "but the tongue can no man tame," says James.

"And the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity," it defileth the whole body, and setteth fire the course of nature."

"Speak not evil one of another, brethren. He that speaketh evil of his brother, speaketh evil of the law and judgeth the law. . . there is one lawgiver who is able to save and destroy; who art thou that thou judgest another?"

"Draw nigh unto God, and He will also draw nigh to you." "Submit yourselves to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you."

Organizational Meeting Of ECC Orchestra Set

Instrumentalists in Eastern North Carolina who are interested in becoming members of the East Carolina Orchestra, a college-community ensemble sponsored by East Carolina College, are invited to be present at an organizational meeting Tuesday, September 11, at 7 p.m. in the music building on the college campus.

Rehearsals for the 1956-1957 season will begin at that time, with Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, director of the East Carolina College department of music, as conductor. Any qualified musician, he states, may become a member of the East Carolina Orchestra. Those playing stringed instruments are in demand and will be especially welcome as members.

The East Carolina Orchestra is composed of students and faculty members at the college here and of musicians from various towns in the eastern part of the state, including Greenville, Tarboro, Washington, and Wilson. Now in its sixth year under Dr. Cuthbert's direction, it has become through concerts on the campus and elsewhere a popular ensemble.

Last year, with a membership of fifty talented instrumentalists, the orchestra began its 1955-1956 season with an appearance at the celebration marking the 250th anniversary of the founding of Bath, N. C. Joan Melton of Albemarle, "Miss North Carolina" of 1956, then a student of music at East Carolina, was one of those who appeared with the group as soloist last year.

In addition to other campus concerts, the East Carolina Orchestra presented programs last season in Jamesville, Farmville,

Christian Church Announcements

Mr. William E. Tucker, son of Mrs. Ethel Godley Tucker of Greenville, will be ordained to the Christian ministry at the Eighth Street Christian Church in the morning service this Sunday.

Dr. Ross Allen, secretary of the North Carolina Christian Missionary Society, will deliver the charge and Dr. C. C. Ware, well-known state leader of many years, will receive him into the fellowship of the ministry of the Disciples of Christ. Dr. Arthur D. Wenger, recently elected president of Atlantic Christian College in Wilson, will participate along with the others in the Scriptural practice of "the laying on of hands." James Hemby of Ayden, classmate of Mr. Tucker, will extend the right hand of fellowship in ministerial comradeship. The service will be held at 11 o'clock and will follow a short sermon by the pastor. The choir under the direction of Mrs. H. L. Carter will sing "I Feel the Winds of God," a traditional English melody.

The Circles of the Christian Women's Fellowship which did not meet last week will meet this Monday as follows:

No. 2, with Mrs. Paul Ricks at 3:30.

No. 3, with Mrs. L. S. Garris at 3:30.

No. 4, with Mrs. Nelson Bowden at 3:30.

No. 5, with Mrs. C. W. Howard at 3:30.

No. 7, with Mrs. Kermir Highsmith at 8 p.m.

No. 10, with Mrs. Lester Bunting at 8 p.m. with Mrs. Tommie Moore assisting.

The Disciples Student Fellowship composed of the students of the Christian Churches who are attending East Carolina College will meet Sunday evening at 6:30 at the church. This is a session open to all these students of whatever class with the hope that the freshmen especially will attend as this is their first year at the college and the church. Miss Nancy Harris and Miss Sara Ewell of the local church will be in charge of the program and the ladies of the Christian Women's Fellowship will serve. A special welcome is given to all these students to be present for this "get-acquainted" session.

Jose de San Martin won freedom for Argentina from the Spanish Crown.

Marines Officers Plans Interviews

The Marine Corps Procurement Officer for North Carolina will visit East Carolina College September 19-20 to hold interviews with students interested in two officer-training programs, both of which provide opportunities for enrollees as ground officers and pilots.

While on the campus, the visiting officer will discuss with students the Officer Candidate Course Program and the Platoon Leaders Course Program. Those interested in arranging an interview with the Marine Corps Procurement Officer may receive assistance and further information from Dean Leo W. Jeankins of the college.

If you're saving for peace of mind...

...where you save does make a difference

It's a good feeling to have savings for any emergency. And where you save does make a difference—as over 16 million Americans know. They're enjoying important advantages by putting their money into insured Savings and Loan Associations. Excellent returns from your money is one advantage. Another is efficient service from men who know how to make your dollars work harder for you. And, of course, your money is safe. Your savings are protected by sound management and substantial reserves. They are insured up to $10,000 by the FSLIC—an agency of the U. S. Government. There are the reasons why Americans are putting more of their savings account dollars into insured Savings and Loan Associations than anywhere else! Start enjoying these worthwhile advantages at your nearby insured Association. Drop in tomorrow.

CHAPTER 26.

Harlow Blake had a regular office, as commandant of the post, but Dolf Kinney was early abroad this morning, so the major received him in his house. There was a sharp chill in the air which belokened that in this north country summer was swiftly passing; and the heat from the cooking stove, where Kinney could catch glimpses of Helen at work, permeated this adjoining room and contrasted pleasantly with the frost without.

"I sure hate to bother you at such an hour, Major," Kinney said. "Only I figured this was important, and you'd ought to know without any waste of time. I'd of had the letter yesterday, right after the stage brought the mail," he added by way of explanation, "but I was out of town a spell, and one of the boys put it on my desk and it got all covered up. I just happened to find it, first thing this morning, when I was looking for something else."

The major regarded him attentively, but he waited in silence. Many men found that a disconcerting habit, but Kinney was thankful that Blake had not questioned him immediately concerning the expected shipment of munitions. He was hoping now to forestall the subject by this diversionary action.

It did not come easy to Kinney to play the part of a man diffident and abashed. He was no actor, and now he twiddled his hat in his hands and shook his head, and then, realizing how unconvincing was his performance, he dropped it abruptly.

"Hang it, Major, what's the use of pretendin'?" he asked. "This letter is about Eklund, and I don't like to admit that I made a mistake, but it seems I have. I figured him for a good man when I recommended him for doctor here at the post. 'Course, he'd sort of put the notion in my mind, but it seemed pretty logical, with Cap'n Philpott leavin' so sudden. I didn't count on him usin' his position here to cover up some crooked work, as you might say—puttin' it mildly."

"What are you getting at?" Blake snapped, and Kinney was aware that the footsteps in the kitchen, brisk up to a minute ago, had been succeeded by a breathless hush.

"It's something I wouldn't have believed, if I didn't know now that it's been happenin'," Kinney went on, refusing to be cushed. "I'll confess it's shocked me, for I had a good opinion of him. But his usin' his job as an officer here to run whiskey and mebbey guns to the Indians is bad. Though that's the least part of it!"

"Do you mean to charge Mr. Eklund with running whiskey and guns to the Indians?" Blake snapped. "Is that what you're trying to say?"

"That's part of it. Just a small part."

"A small part? But you certainly didn't get that information in a letter?"

"No, I didn't," Kinney conceded. "I got some of that last night, from an old trapper that came in to town. I couldn't rightly believe him, but when I read the letter this morning, that made it easier to understand. What it has to say is about the doctor, and it's pretty bad. Somebody must have got wind that he was out this way somewhere, so they sent me this shopin' I could sort of check up. They hit the nail right on the head, as it happens. This letter makes what he's been doing easier to understand. A man who's a deserter from the army, in time of war—here's the letter. Set for yourself."

Blake accepted the missive and read it with an expressionless face. "As you say, this is startling information, Mr. Kinney, but it appears to be quite conclusive," he agreed. "On top of what else you have reported. You are certain that he has been using his immunity as an officer to run contraband to the Indians?"

"Pretty certain, Major. A lot of that has been going on for quite a spell, and I couldn't figure, any more than you, how the stuff could keep gettin' through. This explains it."

"So it would appear. Well, this leaves my duty plain. I will order his arrest at once."

"His arrest?" Helen appeared in the doorway, flourishing a smoking skillet in one hand, her cheeks flushed. "What is this, Harlow, about gun-running and desertion? Arrest Doctor Eklund? It's monstrous to suspect him of such a thing!"

Blake regarded her with displeasure.

"This is a matter of duty, Helen, and none of your concern."

"Then I'm making it my concern!" she flashed. "It sounds fishy to me, a trumped-up affair, and I don't believe a word of it!"

"As to its being a trumped-up affair, I'm sure that Mr. Kinney's sources of information are accurate. This letter seems unquestionably authentic. It is a semi-official document, and it makes it quite clear that Dr. Eklund, as he calls himself, is in reality Captain Davidson, wanted for desertion back in '63. Coupled with these other charges, the matter assumes serious proportions. In any case, it is quite outside your province!"

"I still don't believe it," Helen returned stormily. "And if you arrest him, what does everybody do for a doctor?"

"That is entirely beside the point. The question of duty rises paramount above every other consideration. Dolf will you kindly ask Captain McKinstry to come here, please?"

Despite the rebuke in her brother's tones, Helen did not return to the kitchen. She remained standing while Kinney took his departure, and burst out as soon as the door closed behind him:

"You're making a mistake, Harlow. I don't trust that man!"

"Kinney?" He raised his eyebrows incredulously. "He has an excellent reputation, as you know. In fact, the entire community, including the post, is largely dependent upon him—"

"Which is no credit to you as a commandant," she told him, speaking with a boldness which she had never exhibited before. "One of these days I'm afraid you'll regret having allowed yourself to become so dependent on him that he can hold you at his mercy! Apparently he didn't come to tell you that those munitions had arrived, though they should have been unloaded and delivered two days ago! And this is the third time they've failed to show up!"

She moved back into the kitchen, out of range of any retort which he might choose to make, leaving him more troubled than he cared to confess. There was too much truth in her summary for comfort. But this other—he re-read the letter which Kinney had delivered, and in its recital there seemed little room for doubt. Helen returned with a parting shot. "Erd and Bill are friends," she said. "So I suppose you'll send Bill to arrest him!"

"Would you rather that I sent an enemy to do the job?" Blake asked wearily, and that silenced her.

Eleven Okinawa Marines Drown

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—Eleven U.S. Marines drowned off the north shore of Okinawa yesterday while swimming during a break in field exercises, the Marine Corps announced.

The men were knocked off their feet by a strong undercurrent which was believed due to typhoon conditions, it was said.

Brig. Gen. Victor H. Krulak, commander of the 3rd Marine Division, said a freak ocean current caused the drownings.

At least 12 other Marines were saved by other Leathernecks in the area.

Top Air General Is Stricken Ill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lt. Gen. Roger M. Ramey, one of America's most famous air generals, has been stricken ill on the eve of a new assignment and probably will retire soon.

Ramey, formerly Fifth Air Force commander in Japan, returned to the United States last June to take charge of the Air Defense Command. He was to serve as deputy to Gen. Earle E. Partridge, chief of the Continental Air Defense Command, at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Plan To Explode Old Cannonballs

ANNISTON, Ala. (AP) — Several Civil War Cannonballs, found recently near Chattanooga at the site of the battle of Missionary Ridge, are expected to be fired at Ft. McClellan, Ala., later this week.

The cannonballs, considered "live" because rust prevented a complete examination, are scheduled to be set off by Lt. Donald White, commanding officer of the 142nd Explosives Ordnance Disposal squad.

New Faces Appear For GHS Opening

By MARTHA PIERCE
Greenville High School
With shouts of "Has anybody got a geometry book for sale?" and "Hey, who have you got for English?" Greenville High School students began their first day of the 1956-57 school term Wednesday.

MARTHA
dred Coleman, Martha Pierce, and Betsy Whedbee gave short talks to the new students on the various clubs and organizations open to the students.

New faces and strange surroundings confronted the new eighth graders and the ninth grade from the Wahl - Coates Laboratory school, West Greenville, and Elmhurst. They left school Wednesday at noon hoping that the next day would prove a little less confusing and that their classes would be easier to find.

During the summer months many of the juniors got their driver's licenses and permits. This might have had something to do with the increase in the traffic problem in Greenville. One of the last ones to get theirs was JoAnn Parks, who celebrated her sixteenth birthday August 31 with an outdoor buffet supper. Ann Marshall Allen, Anne Parkinson, Betty Lane Evans, and Jane Bass were present for the occasion. Her guests also included Joyce Sutton, Camilla Henderson, Martha Pierce, Mary Ann Bryant, and Beverly Dunn.

Trying to get in last minute sunbaths and swimming, eleven of Jarvis Memorial Church's youth and two chaperones headed for Atlantic Beach August 27 for four days of swimming, sunning, fun, and no sleep! Those who went were Ann Moore, Cynthia Cranford, Barbara Davis, Judy Jolly, Gwen Johnson, Ann Peadar, and Bunny Overton. Lewis Phelps, Gayle Clapp, Martha Pierce, Dora Pierce, and chaperones, Mrs. Luther Moore and Miss Jane Hadley also went.

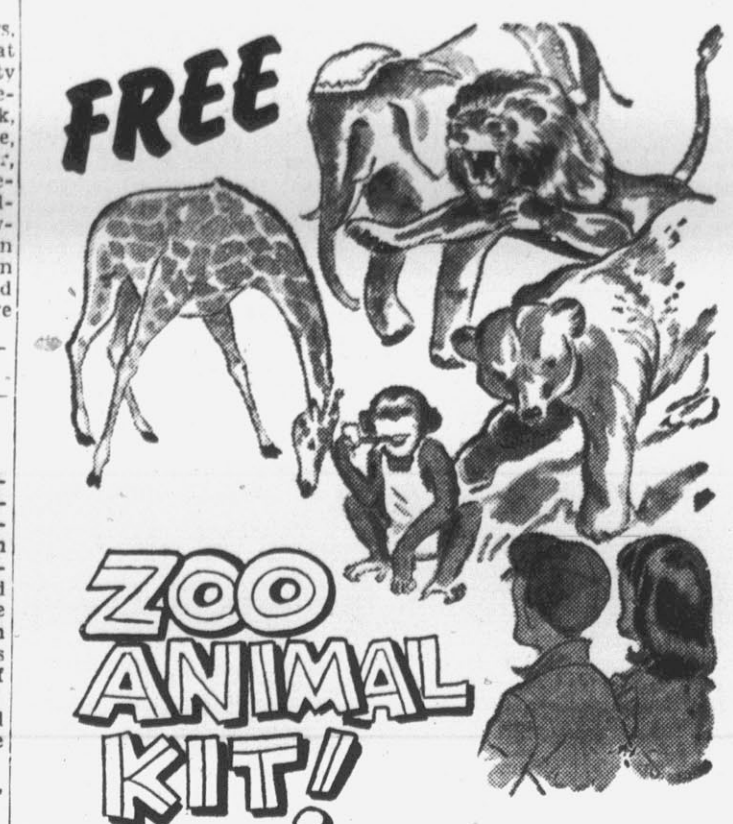

It was hoped that no one suffered from the "Tide clean corn" fed to the group on Monday night by cooks, Barbara Davis and Cynthia Cranford.

Recent arrivals in senior high school include students from as

Vote FOR The Pearsall Amendment

We urge you to vote for the PEARSALL AMENDMENT to avoid mixing of the races in our public schools.

Governor Hodges and the large majority of our State leaders approve these amendments. No Church School will receive any money under the PEARSALL PLAN.

The News & Observer and a few full-time and part-time liberal leaders oppose these amendments. They have no plan to offer except mixing the races in our public schools. P.T.A. Executive Committee has no authority to speak for the membership of their organization—the vast majority of whom favor the PEARSALL PLAN.

Let us not be misled and invite the riots and bloodshed now taking place in Texas, Tennessee, and Kentucky where they have no PEARSALL PLAN.

Stars And Bars Over The Citadel

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The stars and bars of the Confederate flag overlooked The Citadel once again.

A century ago, cadets from The Citadel made the flag possible when they fired the first shots at Ft. Sumter.

Today's version of the flag was painted on the school's water tank. Officials said no investigation would be necessary. They said the flag would be left until it becomes necessary to paint the water tower.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — International oil again lost ground today on discouraging reports about the Suez Canal crisis and the stock market was generally lower early this afternoon.

Losses among pivotal stocks ranged from 1 to around 3 points. Gulf Oil, which reportedly derives more than 50 per cent of its crude oil production from the Middle East, lost 4 points at the opening but trimmed the loss to around 3. Royal Dutch, also heavily involved in that area, trimmed its initial loss of 2 1/2. Texas Co., likewise affected by Suez, was a 1-point loser.

Leading steels took losses ranging from fractions of U. S. Steel, Republic and Jones & Laughlin to a point or so for Bethlehem.

DuPont fell around 2. Losses of about a point were taken by U. S. Gypsum, International Paper, Union Carbide and American Telephone.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 60 cents to $184.40, with the industrials down $1.00, the rails down 50 cents and the utilities unchanged.

RALEIGH (N.C.D.A.) — Hog prices steady to 25 lower. Tops of 15.25 to 17.00 at Rocky Mount; 16.00 to 16.50 at JIKY's; 14 1/2 to 16.25 at Tarboro; 16.00 at New Bern, Benson and Kingston; 16.00 at Micro, Mount Olive, Elizabethtown, Siler City, Mount Gilead, Castle Hayne, Wumberton, Clinton, Fayetteville and Rich square; 15.75 at Nahant, Farmville, Beulahville, Kely, Wingate and Goldsboro. Other markets unreported.

Rep. Jones Calls On JC Members To Back 'Plan'

Pitt's State Legislature Representative Walter Jones last night urged local Junior Chamber of Commerce members to support the Pearsall plan in Saturday's constitutional amendment election.

Jones told the Jaycees that he was speaking for the 18th time in support of the amendment which would give expense grants to those who wished to send their children to private schools rather than integrated schools and make possible local votes to suspend local schools.

He said the amendments did not represent the thinking of any one man or group of men. But he said, rather they represented the thinking of the governor, former attorney general, William B. Rodman, now a Supreme Court Justice; Col. William T. Joyner and Dr. Charles Carroll, superintendent of public instruction.

In addition, he said, the State Association of County and City School Superintendents have "almost to a man" endorsed the plan.

Menzie's Effort Ends In Failure

CAIRO — The Menzie's mission conferred privately for nearly three hours today and adjourned without announcing whether it would meet again with President Nasser on the Suez Canal situation.

A spokesman refused to comment on reports the mission has failed to get Nasser to agree to international control of the canal and that the next moves are up to Washington and London.

He said the mission did not come to Cairo to find a solution to the Suez crisis, but to find a starting point for negotiations.

Nasser left Cairo for Alexandria, the Mediterranean summer resort and Egypt's main port. Nasser's family has been vacationing there this summer, and he usually goes there on the weekend to visit them.

Pessimism pervaded both the Egyptian and the foreign quarters of Cairo following the reports the Menzie's mission had failed. It was generally agreed the mission was awaiting word from London and Washington before making its next move—even to setting a time for the next meeting with Nasser.

Hodges' Talk On Radio And TV

Gov. Luther Hodges' speech over a state-wide radio network will be heard on WGTC immediately after the high school football game tonight, around 10 o'clock.

The program will be a delayed broadcast of the governor's radio talk scheduled for 8:30.

Gov. Hodges will also speak on the school constitutional amendment on television station WNCT at 8 o'clock tonight.

Local Barbers At Convention

Four Pitt County barbers were delegates to the Barber's Convention at High Point Sept. 2, 3 and 4. Herman Boyd and R. A. Calhoun attended from Greenville, H. C. Outland from Farmville and Lyman G. Baldree of Ayden went to the convention.

Baldree and Outland were official delegates from Pitt County chapter 1033 of the National Barber's Assn.
