Egypt Proposes Talks By All Users Of Suez Canal

LONDON (AP)—Egypt bid today for a parley representing the views of all users of the Suez canal to tackle the stalemate that Cairo negotiations failed to solve. The key issue is control of the canal.

Dag Hammarskjold and to governments throughout the world. The note criticized the massing of British and French troops in the eastern Mediterranean and urged efforts to influence foreign canal pilots to quit. It recalled Egypt has expressed willingness Aug. 12 to negotiate on the basis of renewal of the 1888 convention guaranteeing freedom of navigation of the canal.

In broad outline, Egypt's suggestion that Suez matters "concern all countries using the canal and Egypt, as owner of the canal," resembled the argument Soviet Russia advanced in criticizing the London Suez conference of mid-August.

You Can Vaccinate Against Accidents

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.
AP Newsfeatures

MARtha was diapering her two-month-old baby, Tim. The phone rang. She ran to answer it. While she was talking she heard a dull thud, and nothing more. She dashed back, and there was Tim lying on the floor, not even crying. She picked him up, he was limp. Martha was terrified. She shook him, and presently he gave a weak whimper. She phoned her doctor, who told her to take Tim to the hospital. Tim had a brain concussion. With skillful treatment in the hospital he recovered, and was none the worse for his accident. Martha was lucky that nothing more serious had happened. It could have been worse.

The greatest killer of children today is accidents. In this country around 5,000 children between one and four years of age die every year from accidents. In the larger group of children between 1-14, accidents cause around 11,000 deaths every year. As many children die from accidents as from pneumonia, diarrhea, measles, diphtheria, meningitis, poliomyelitis, whooping cough and scarlet fever, all combined.

water. It's dangerous to leave a baby alone in a tub even for a moment. If you have forgotten something while you are bathing him—either go on without it or pick him up, wrap a bath towel around him and carry him with you into the next room.

These are just a few cautions for the very young baby. As the baby grows into a toddler and can get places on his own your vigilance too must grow.

Remember 90 per cent of all accidents could have been prevented. With a little treatment could have been prevented.

Madrid Show Pleases Men If Not Milady

MADRID (AP)—Jose Maria Marbel, up and coming Madrid couturier, designed his new winter collection not to please milady—but the man in her life. His is the "magnetic" line.

At a sneak preview, the young designer unveiled a raft of sleek creations guaranteed to make male eyes pop all over Spain. His biggest news is the "bare look" for evening and the cover-up for daytime.

His festive dresses, many in chiffon and satin, are as revealing and clinging as nightgowns.

In contrast, his daytime clothes expose the very minimum of skin. Sleeves creep down to the wrist and collars up to the ears.

As a whole, Marbel emphasizes slenderness. Most of his dresses are adaptations of the sheath but with a tricky cut that lends ease in movement and stresses functionalism. All his clothes, even the bulkiest tweeds, are draped, crushed and sculptured to accentuate the female form with curvy bosoms, waistlines and hips. Looking at Marbel's collection one doesn't notice as much the dress as the woman who is wearing it.

The same theme holds true for his suits. Simplicity is the key word and he achieves a very sophisticated line with pencil-slim skirts and young-looking, nipped-in jackets. Tweeds lead the parade of materials. Very often checks or plaids are combined with solid colors in the same ensemble. Tones are muted with exception of a clear tomato red which appears throughout his collection.

His coats are as bulky as his dresses are slim. They have huge bat wing sleeves that start at the waist and enormous collars of cape proportions. At least 50 per cent of the coats are trimmed with fur and are fashioned of thick fleecy wool.

Marbel's collection does not aspire to introduce crass ideas but is designed to bring out a woman's best points, kindly hide her disadvantages and most of all please the man who has to pay the bill.

Decorating Possibilities For Utilizing Space Into Nursery

AP Newsfeatures

EVERY CHILD deserves a room of his own, even within the limited space of a small modern apartment, says C. Eugene Stephenson, noted decorator.

To illustrate his point, Stephenson recently exhibited a series of three rooms, each designed for a definite age group, each practical for either an apartment or a house.

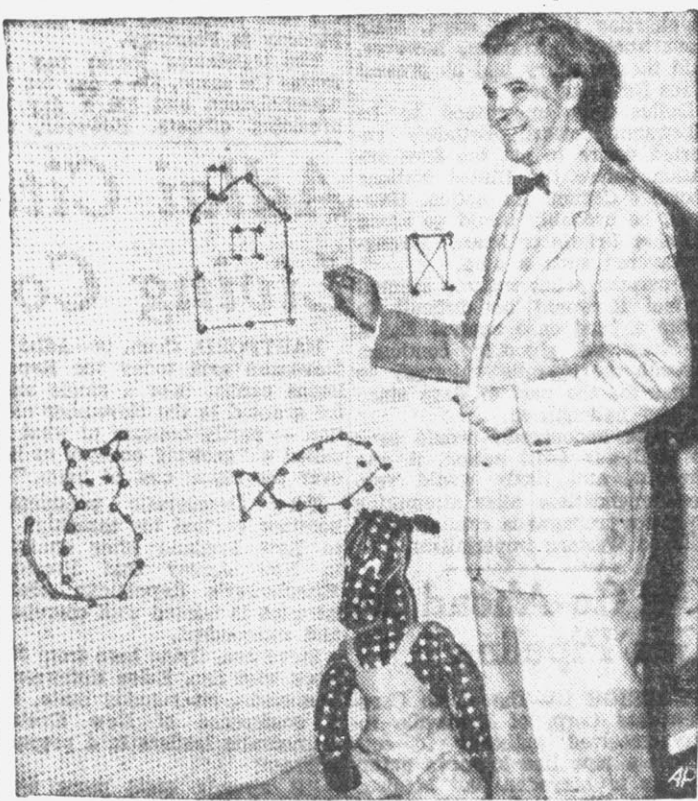

To show the possibilities of making full use of limited space, the decorator showed a gay nursery that could be planned in an area only four feet deep, separated by a sheer curtain from the parents' room. The predominant green and white color scheme of the parents' room is carried over into the nursery end, but here it is accented with two tones of pink and a circus mural done in wallpaper. A peg-board wall at one end offers opportunities for further juvenile decor.

Three-dimensional pictures can be achieved on a peg-board wall by using golf tees and bright yarn, as demonstrated by Stephenson, who is chairman of the National Board of Governors of the American Institute of Decorators. The colored tees are stuck into holes in the peg-board, and the picture outlines are achieved by winding the yarn between them. Even small children will have fun thus making their own decorations.

In his toy room, designed for children between the ages of five and 11, Stephenson uses a series of cabinets which give a built-in effect, but can be re-arranged at will. An electric train is fastened to a table which folds into the wall when not in use. Ample space is provided for storage of toys, games and clothing, with a color scheme of blue, white and gray accented by bright orange.

His teen-age room is designed as a junior night club, with small stage and space for a dance floor, done in wallpaper. Lights are arranged beneath glass-topped tables, to give the effect of indirect lighting. A long table serves as buffet or snack bar. A vinyl tile floor in tones of red contrasts gaily with walls and furnishings in turquoise and char-

'EASTERN CAROLINA'S SHOPPING CENTER'

A Tomboy Grew Up

COLUMBIA (AP)—A tomboy who grew up into a real American beauty is South Carolina's and the nation's beauty queen.

But it looks like it will be almost a month before South Carolina can get back Marian McKnight to acclaim her triumph in winning the Miss America title Saturday night at Atlantic City, N.J.

Lots of home folks want her back—Mayor Sam Gamble of Manning, her hometown, for a blowout welcome; her sisters, Sue, 12, and Mrs. Fred Spigner, 17, for chit-chat about the big contest; and Lt. Johnny Gramling of Orangeburg and the Shaw Air Force Base, whose fraternity pin Marian is wearing.

Gamble discussed plans for a whing-ding welcome with Marian's mother, widowed Mrs. Alice McKnight, in a telephone talk and a face-to-face talk yesterday.

He called her first at Atlantic City, then headed a Manning delegation that met her at the airport here when she returned Sunday night without her daughter.

"I don't think she's realized it yet," Mrs. McKnight said. "She's happy, laughing and when I left—sleeping."

"I knew she could do it" Sue exclaimed after she saw Marian win on television.

Mrs. Spigner said Marian had practiced at home "being Miss America."

Neither of the younger sisters accompanied their mother on the trip with Marian.

Gramling, a 1951-53 quarterback star on the University of South Carolina football team, telephoned Marian at 4:30 a.m. yesterday to find out when she's coming home. Marian says she will have to wait until after she finishes college before seriously considering marriage. And the demands of the coming year on her time may delay college another year.

She succeeded her roommate, Martha Dean Chestnut, as Miss South Carolina this year. Both girls attend Coker College at Hartsville.

Miss Oakley To Teach Abroad

SMITHFIELD—Miss Ann Carver Oakley, daughter of Mrs. Cledith Oakley of Smithfield, has gone to England for a year's stay as teacher in the Overseas Dependent School Program operated by the U. S. Department of Defense.

She left here Tuesday for Washington, D. C., where she completed final processing at Bolling Air Field. Then she went to New Jersey and on Thursday left the McGuire Air Force Base for the flight to England. The flight was expected to take 14 hours with one stop at Newfoundland.

The exact destination in England was not known when Miss Oakley left McGuire Air Field. Neither did she know when she left in what school in England she would teach nor the grade. She has taught first and second grades and her work will be primary work. There are 250 of these civilian schools of the U. S. Air Force outside the United States—in Europe, Africa, the Far East, the Azores and Newfoundland.

Miss Oakley became interested in teaching in the Overseas Dependent School Program about a year ago. She was teaching in Charlotte and when interviewers of the program went to Charlotte in the spring she was among the 100 applicants.

After she was chosen as having the qualifications required for the position, she almost decided not to accept. But last week, after she had studied in summer school at the University of Maryland and had vacationed for a week at the beach, she decided the opportunity for foreign travel was too good to miss.

Miss Oakley is the daughter of Mrs. Cledith Oakley, a native Smithfieldian who returned here to live two years ago after her husband's death. She is the granddaughter of A. A. Peedin, who was a well-known merchant here before his retirement. She grew up in Greenville. After attending Greensboro College for Women for two years, she returned to Greenville and graduated from East Carolina College. She taught school for four years in Goldsboro before going to Charlotte last year.

Almost A Year Late, But It'll Help

Almost a year late, 20 Eastern North Carolina counties are going to get approximately $1.6 million to be used for snagging and cleaning out streams clogged by 1955 hurricanes.

It's better to have the funds for use now than not at all, but it appears to us the Civil Defense funds are coming a mite late. Particularly will this be so if more hurricanes sweep through this area this year—and the hurricane season is not over by any means.

According to the announcement from Washington work in some of the 20 counties of the East should begin not later than the end of this year. We assume from that time schedule that by the time the hurricane season begins in 1957 most of the streams will be cleared.

While Pitt is not directly affected by the Civil Defense allocation, the county is affected indirectly because some of the streams in neighboring counties to be cleared do have a bearing on the flow of water through Pitt. During the hurricanes of 1954 and 1955 there was considerable water damage from flooding streams and rivers. To some extent this flooding was due to the fact that streams had not been cleared for years to insure an adequate run-off of water during heavy storms. To some extent it was due to the trees and debris which clogged the streams during the storms.

During the hurricanes last year it became apparent that the streams would have to be cleared before another storm if a large area were not to be inundated. Applications from the Eastern counties were made for work similar to that which has been carried out in other parts of the nation after similar storms through the use of federal funds.

But for the North Carolina counties, it was a tough row to hoe. The North Carolina delegation in Washington had to do a great deal of talking and persuading before they could get a commitment for the funds. When that was finally extracted this area could only sit back and wait for the funds and the work to come.

It has been apparent for some months that the stream clearing project would come too late to be of help if more hurricanes swept through this area this year.

In view of the critical situation in some counties of this area, much of the work should have been completed before the current hurricane season. But the powers that be in Washington apparently did not recognize the urgency of the matter. They put us off.

It's better to have the funds now than not to receive them at all; but it would have been far better if the clearing work could have begun nine months earlier than the proposed date at the end of this year.

No Mistaking How The People Feel Now

There is no mistake now about how the people of North Carolina feel about the Pearsall Plan. They made it law by more than a four to one vote Saturday in one of the largest special elections ever held in the state.

Much discussed for many months, the constitutional amendment and impeding legislation are now law. They guarantee that no child in North Carolina will have to attend a public school with a child of another race unless he wants to do so. It paves the way for a peaceful solution to the school problems which may be expected to arise in the fact of the 1954 Supreme Court decision and the implementing rulings of the high court.

By the adoption of the "Safety valve" legislation, North Carolinians have taken a major step to preserve their public school system. They have voiced in overwhelming numbers their feeling that any problems which arise concerning the schools should be resolved through due process of law rather than by mob action which has been the pattern in other states.

With the Pearsall Plan now law in North Carolina, there is no reason for the violence which has appeared in other states to occur anywhere in North Carolina. Although the "Safety valve" act offers a means by which individual schools may be closed, we do not expect school closings to be widespread in the state. Neither do the people of North Carolina.

While the state as a whole was voting more than four to one in favor of the constitutional amendment on schools, the voters of Pitt voted more than nine to one in favor of the plan in an election which saw more votes cast than in the May primary.

The people of Pitt are to be commended not only for their approval of the plan—but also for the fact that voters turned out in such large numbers to express their opinions at the ballot box.

A total of 9,600 voters went to the polls in Pitt, which was 50 per cent more than the number of voters who went to the polls in the May primary. On the whole, the turnout of voters in Pitt was considerably better than the response of voters throughout North Carolina.

Pitt indeed can be proud not only of the fact that it gave the Pearsall Plan an approving vote of more than nine to one, but also for the fact that percentage-wise it cast one of the largest votes of any county in North Carolina.

Strength for the Day

KEEP YOUR INSURANCE INTACT

Some people don't believe in insurance. Most people, however, do—and it would appear that those who do are a lot wiser than those who do not.

Security is a factor of real value in life. Of course, in this imperfect, wicked world in which we live there is no such thing as absolute security. But everyone is justified in surrounding himself with as much reasonable security as possible.

Perhaps it was because on a rainy day recently I was sorting out insurance policies and throwing away the old ones, the importance of insurance—security, if you please—filled my mind.

It's good to be as safe as we can all the time.

Take religion for example! The first thing in religion is certainly not security. Forgiveness is first of all, then loyalty to the will of God, then light shed upon the daily path, then the abiding presence of the Divine Power. But security has a place too. Life here on earth is never really secure without trust in God and an honest attempt on our part to live righteously. And as for the future—well, the universe is so vast and we are so small and insignificant that we had better make sure that we are on the right side of things, universally speaking, and that we will not be eternally left while the righteous purposes of God sweep on.

Prison Problem Is Under Discussion

By LYNN NISBET

PRISONS — The advisory budget commission engaged in a brief but lively discussion of the prison problem when that item came up on the agenda. Principal exchange was between Budgeteer Leroy Martin and Lin Garibaldi, vice chairman of the Prison Advisory Council on the extent of prison industries' competition with private enterprise.

Col. W. F. Bailey, director of prisons, had presented a program budget based on the assumption that administration of prisons will be divorced from the highway commission. He said the amount of dollars required would be the same, and felt it would be fairer to everybody to put the burden on the general fund rather than on the special highway fund. Even if the source of support is not changed, accounting and administration should be independent.

The highway commission cannot profitably use more than 7,000 prisoners—and has promised to use approximately that number in event of separation. The program outlined by Col. Bailey and Garibaldi contemplates developing a system of prison industries, expanding farm operations and utilizing prisoners in reforestation and in harvesting forest products and in initial processing into lumber and pulpwood.

The industries program contemplates wood and metal working plants, paint and soap making, printing, canning and other activities on much larger scale than at present. The farming operations include improvement of the poultry flocks to eliminate purchase of $175,000 worth of eggs a year, as well as production of more vegetables for canning. The forestry program envisions tree planting on thousands of idle acres owned by the State, the harvesting and processing of tree products instead of selling stumps.

COMPETITIVE — Martin voiced no objection to this overall program, but did protest the claim that it would not compete with private enterprise. He noted that prison sawmills would necessarily compete with those operated with free labor. Prison production of eggs will deprive private poultrymen of that market, and so on down the line.

Prison labor on highways keeps a free man from getting a job on that project. Paint and soap, printing and auto tags, produced in prison shops means that much less to be bought on the open market. It would appear rather foolish to attempt denial that anything done by prisoners competes with activities of free workers. Competition must be admitted, and justified on sound business principles.

Col. Bailey offered justification in his statement of the three-fold goal of the prison system: (1) to protect the public; (2) to salvage as much human wreckage as possible through rehabilitation; (3) to give North Carolina the best possible prison system per dollar expended.

Public protection is inherent in the confinement of those who have committed crimes. Both the rehabilitation and economy objectives require that prisoners be kept busy at productively labor. It is unthinkable that able-bodied persons in prison should loiter around in idleness, requiring more guards and greater expense to taxpayers, when they can earn their keep and at the same time be learning a trade at which they can make a living when released.

The problem facing prison administrators, budget makers and legislators is to achieve these several objectives with as little competition with outside wage earners as possible. With perhaps one or two minor exceptions every prison activity proposed calls for maximum use of manpower, minimum use of machinery, and minimum intrusion on areas where free men earn their livelihood.

BEER — Several incidents recently have raised questions about the processes for granting and revoking licenses of retail beer sellers. The retail dealer must have four or five "pieces of paper" before he can legally sell a bottle, a can or a glass of beer across the counter. One of these is a Federal malt beverage license, about which neither State nor local police agencies are concerned.

He must also have a Schedule B privilege license issued by the State Department of Revenue, a license issued by the county and, if the outlet is within the limits of an incorporated town or city, a municipal license. State, county and municipal licenses are conditioned upon a permit from the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Upon presentation of the ABC permit the applicant must be granted license by the state, county and municipality upon payment of the required fees. Local governments have no choice in the matter of granting original license. The suspension or revocation of the license granted is handled differently. Whereas it takes four levels of government—Federal, State county and municipal—to grant selling privileges, any one of these levels can revoke the grant.

Information is that there has been considerable buck-passing among the different levels of government on this point. While the town or the county must issue a license upon presentation of the State ABC permit, either level can revoke the license the next day, and revocation by any one amounts to revocation by all—since it will close up the place selling beer.

As in all other governmental areas, any aggrieved party has right of appeal to the courts, through channels set out in the statutes.

Campaign Economic Grounds

By ELMER ROESSNER
A large part of the Presidential campaign is being waged on economic grounds. Orators declaim about employment and unemployment totals, housing starts, the consumer price index, the GNP and other statistical matters.

Most of the figures they cite are compiled by the government, usually on a regular basis. Most of the figures are estimates, based on samples. Some of the samples are fairly small, some large.

Typical is the politically important figures on employment and unemployment. Once a month, in the week containing the 12th day, government researchers call on about 35,000 households in 330 areas and ask how many employables are working and how many aren't.

The total number of American households is then determined from census counts and calculations based on the birth, marriage and death rates. Next, the ratio of employment and unemployment, as found in those 35,000 households, is applied to the total number of households.

Odd Facts Brought In Mail

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — ...dd facts a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

That if loveless Leap Year maidens want to know the real reason for the shortage of marriageable men, the answer is—marriage. Some 51 per cent of men 20 to 24 years old are married now, compared to only 27 per cent in the same age brackets in 1940.

That Joe Louis won 10 of his 60 professional fights by first round knockouts, more than any other heavyweight champion.

That the World Almanac has an article on how to make a will.

That the Hotel Roosevelt here has a special canine menu for guests who bring along their pooches. This will only annoy the allurphiles.

That actor Gale Gordon, known for his fine diction, was born with a cleft palate.

That in order to escape completely from the earth's gravitational pull, a rocket would have to maintain a speed of 7.2 miles a second.

That caves make a good refuge for hay fever victims since they are comparatively free of ragweed pollen.

That Johnny Longden, ex-coalminer who now has ridden more winning races than any other, won only 38 of 287 starts in his first three years in the saddle.

That horses with jockey Eddie Arcaro aboard have won more than a million dollars in each of the last 10 years.

Employment figures, like most of the series, can be checked in various ways. Accurate counts of persons on unemployment compensation are available. If the compensation figure did not rise or fall with unemployment figures, the government would start a recheck of the latter.

Some series offer "index figures" instead of totals.

One of these is the consumer price index, often incorrectly called "the cost of living index." In July it was 117, which means that the things city wage-earner and a clerical-worker families spend money for have gone up 17 per cent over the 1947-49 average. The government took 300 items, including carfare, autos, TV sets, food and rent, and calculated how much, proportionately, was spent for each in 1947 through 1949. It replicates these items to measure the percentage change. Some things, such as autos, are priced every few months but food is priced every month.

Other statistics you'll be hearing about in the campaign: Housing starts. This is the number of nonfarm houses started in each month, calculated from a sampling. It can be checked against the number of building permits issued and every ten years, against the complete census count.

THE KEY SERIES

The GNP — that stands for "gross national product," the total value of all the goods and services produced in the country. It is compiled quarterly by the Federal Reserve System from a huge amount of data from reporting agencies, industry and the government. It is generally regarded as the one big indicator of how business is doing. In the April-June quarter it reached $408.3 billion for a new high.

Industrial production. This is another index-figure series, with the 1947-49 average being 100. It is compiled monthly by the Federal Reserve and usually moves in the same direction as the GNP. It's based on reports from industry. It was 141 in June and 136 in July but probably snapped back in August with the end of the steel strike. August figures will be ready in about a week.

The five described are the most commonly quoted. There are also series dealing with consumer credit, department store sales, all retail sales, wholesale prices, inventories, corporation dividends, births, marriages, deaths, industrial construction, plant and equipment, plant wages, hours worked, and what not.

RELIABILITY CAN BE CHECKED

BONDS FOR ORDINARY INVESTORS

The average investor to whom yield is important would be justified in putting a small part of his bond funds into medium-grade utility and industrial issues. On long-term issues of such bonds, he can now obtain a yield of about 3.75 per cent on rails, 3.59 per cent on industrials, and 3.62 per cent on utilities. But at these yields, I prefer nontaxable bonds, such as municipals and high-grade revenue issues for those who are in the high tax brackets and who do not worry about marketability.

I would recommend that purchases of medium-grade corporation bonds be confined to first-mortgage issues. Medium-grade bonds are influenced in price movement by what happens in the stock market. In so case should the average investor place any of his funds intended as a nest egg for later purchase of stocks in other than short-term high-grade issues, even though he may have to make some sacrifice of yield.

Bonds To Again Be Popular

By ROBER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — Recently, monetary authorities have tightened their controls again, bringing about a further decline in bond prices. I forecast that these authorities — so long as business remains good — will maintain a firm rein on credit. The trend for bond prices has been down for 20 months. That is the primary reason why I have advised and still advise the average investor to buy only short maturity bonds.

BONDS WILL AGAIN BECOME POPULAR

Investor interest in bonds has increased somewhat in recent weeks as uncertainties have crept into the outlook for common stock prices and as yields from the most popular common stocks have become quite low. These stocks could be particularly vulnerable in any important market correction. I predict that investor interest in bonds will grow.

As I view the monetary and business situation this fall, I foresee a continued weak bond market. The monetary authorities will have to contend with possible upward price pressure arising out of the steel wage settlement; but nothing radical will be done until after the elections in November. Certainly, nothing will be done before then to harm business.

GOVERNMENT BONDS

Do not count on long-term Government bonds showing any sustained strength. After the elections the money managers may have to fight higher prices by again slightly tightening credit terms and raising money rates. I assume that bankers — who are mostly Republicans — do not object to higher money rates.

I would caution the average investor against buying long-term Government bonds with any thought of profits. As with other bond groups, I urge investors to confine the major portion of their purchases to intermediate and short-term Government issues. Only for death-tax purposes should one build a backlog of those long-term Treasury issues which are always worth par for payment of estate taxes. This means one should not pay more than par for them. Remember, however, that the interest received from Government bonds is subject to federal income taxes.

CORPORATE BONDS FOR INSURANCE COMPANIES

The difference in yields between high-grade corporate and Government bonds in a given maturity is now relatively small. However, I question whether even insurance companies should buy so heavily into the corporate field as into Governments. Unlike the individual investor who maintains a balanced fund of bonds and stocks, insurance companies, particularly life companies, must spread maturities and include some long-term bonds including subject to taxation can well AAA utilities and rails. Colleges, hospitals, and funds not subject to taxation can well consider good corporate bonds. However, I think such their bond funds into utilities and industrials than into rails.

BONDS FOR ORDINARY INVESTORS

The average investor to whom yield is important would be justified in putting a small part of his bond funds into medium-grade utility and industrial issues. On long-term issues of such bonds, he can now obtain a yield of about 3.75 per cent on rails, 3.59 per cent on industrials, and 3.62 per cent on utilities. But at these yields, I prefer nontaxable bonds, such as municipals and high-grade revenue issues for those who are in the high tax brackets and who do not worry about marketability.

I would recommend that purchases of medium-grade corporation bonds be confined to first-mortgage issues. Medium-grade bonds are influenced in price movement by what happens in the stock market. In so case should the average investor place any of his funds intended as a nest egg for later purchase of stocks in other than short-term high-grade issues, even though he may have to make some sacrifice of yield.

Other Editors Are Saying... Strategy To Attract Wavering Voters

Court Vacancy Is Opportunity

(Kinston Free Press)
The retirement of Associate Justice Sherman Minton, 65, from the U. S. Supreme Court because of ill health, gives President Eisenhower an opportunity to appoint his third member to that important body. It also gives him a new opportunity to bring to the Court more judicial experience from the ranks of the Nation's leading jurists.

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON A carefully and deliberately devised strategy has been inaugurated by President Eisenhower's inner political Cabinet in order to attract large blocs of unfriendly, indifferent or possibly wavering voters. It is such an unobtrusive, unrelated and logical activity that it hardly comes under the head of orthodox vote-seeking. But it is practical, close-to-the-vest political poker.

By RAY TUCKER

These executive and administrative acts, already in effect, are designed to hold or win over such diverse groups as the "libertarians," independents, the labor and colored vote, international idealists, and the farmers. There is a political gift for each of these elements in the White House kit.

INNER POLITICAL CABINET

This inner circle consists of the President himself, National Chairman Leonard W. Hall, Chief of Staff Sherman Adams, Permanent General Arthur E. Summerfield, and Labor Undersecretary Arthur Larson. Whenever necessary, representatives of the various departments are summoned to give advice on special problems.

It is a representatives group. It consists of a former Representative and skilled operator on the local and national levels (Hall); of a former Governor (Adams); of a smart political salesman (Summerfield); and of Ike's favorite Republican author, philosopher and ghost writer (Larson). Eisenhower himself shows an uncanny instinct for strengthening any soft spots, after they have been described to him.

TENANT'S REQUIREMENT SCRAPPED In a move to appease "libertarians" resentful of so-called "McCarthyism," there been several orders restoring civil liberties. People illegally fired from non-sensitive jobs as security risks have been declared eligible by Attorney General Brownell. The same action has been taken in regard to scientists and researchers engaged in non-security work.

The Federal Housing Administration has scrapped the requirement that tenants of low-rent projects must sign loyalty oaths. The philosophy of "built by association" has been abandoned in civil and military branches of the Government.

Most of these changes resulted from Federal Courts' decisions. But the Administration bowed quickly to these rulings, and put them into effect with unusual speed.

DISTRIBUTION OF SOIL BANK CHECKS As recently related here, Secretary Benson broke all traffic records in distributing $260,000,000 in soil bank checks before Election Day. He will also pour out every cent which Congress has made available to farmers in surplus purchases, soil conservation disbursements and any other form of aid he can find on the statutes.

Meanwhile, he expects to announce soon another huge sale of surplus wheat and cotton, in addition to the $360,000,000 deal negotiated with India. Any transaction that lifts the shadow of surpluses from over the market is a help to Agriculture.

POLITICALLY EFFECTIVE ACTIVITY Labor Secretary Mitchell is handling the labor front. As Vice-Chairman of the Executive Committee on Government Contracts (Vice President Nixon is chairman), Mitchell has intervened successfully in several discrimination cases against union and colored workers. This arduous activity makes no black headlines. But it is politically effective, for Negro newspapers play up these gains.

RAW STUFF OF WHICH VOTES ARE MADE Mitchell has declared his opposition to "right to work" laws, which bar the closed shop, although Ike believes that this is a matter for each state to decide. But GOP orators will point out that 12 of the 18 states having such statutes are in the Democratic South.

Nor will they let labor and colored voters forget that, under Democratic control of Congress, Southern members will head committees enjoying jurisdiction over social, economic, industrial and educational questions directly affecting their welfare. They will emphasize, of course, that voting for a Democratic Presidential candidate tends the place that Party in control on Capitol Hill.

These are not circus or head-line antics or stunts. They are the raw and basic stuff of which politics—and votes—are made.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

PROGRESS in the adoption of new ideas in home building and home modernization—new inventions, new materials, new methods—sometimes seems to march at the classic rate of the husbands who went to rescue their Sabine women—one step forward and two steps backward.

Why don't more homeowners jump at a good thing when they see it?

Answer: In most cases they don't see it and have no chance to see it. There are no department stores for all building materials and equipment, where you can wander around and feel of everything from cast iron soil pipe to marble chips for the roof—from sump pumps and dehumidifiers to prefabricated fireplaces and chimneys, real wood wallpaper, sliding glass doors, etc.

Consider, for example, the glamor of them may be apparent to you immediately. But it would take a brave man to order a set if he had no chance to see how they work—how they glide at a finger touch, how they are weatherstripped, locked, screened and drained. Where to see them in operation is a problem in the brief time one has to select plumbing fixtures and fittings, paneling, paint, insulation and the lot. But you must choose. It's just part of the headache that goes with home building or remodeling.

HOME SHOWS try to solve this problem, but they are comparatively few and far between. Home builders maintain an eight-story exhibit building in Washington, but a trip to Washington would cost many distant homeowners more than they plan to spend on a project. So a chain of permanent exhibition buildings—showcases for materials, appliances, furnishings, financing and landscaping—is being planned to dot the country at strategic intersections of the new network of super highways now being linked up.

The first of these showcase buildings is scheduled to be opened shortly in New Jersey, where it will be within reasonable driving distance from the population centers of New England, New York and Pennsylvania. It is sponsored by Built-In Age, Inc., whose head, Charles S. Cohan, announces that similar buildings will follow on sites already obtained near Chicago and near Dallas, California and Massachusetts projects are on the drawing boards, he says.

Cohan's first intention was to provide a permanent exhibit for the use of architects, builders, engineers and bankers. "When I realized that perhaps 80 per cent of the families in this country want to improve their homes or build a new home, I changed my plans," he said. "Each building not only will be open to the public, but will also be a vast television stage, designed and built to carry the message of modern housing into every home within the reach of TV."

IN THE MEANTIME, the Sliding Glass Door and Window Institute, comprising various manufacturers of those products, has issued a new brochure on standard sizes now being made. It is distributed from the institute headquarters, 7421 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles 36, Calif.

"The use of sliding glass doors," it says, "originated in Southern California where temperatures are comparatively even the year round. Today, through advances in manufacturing, improved weatherstripping and the perfection of double glazing to withstand both heat and cold, they can be installed and enjoyed in all parts of the country."

Had Names For Triplets Picked

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mommy's got triplets! Mommy's got triplets! That's what 2½-year-old Bruno Ve Sota sang through the neighborhood yesterday. He said they'd be named Davy Crockett, the Lone Ranger and Tonto.

But at the hospital where the triplets were born to Mrs. Genevieve Ve Sota, 30, Mommy said the names would be Marie Grace, Grace Marie and Mary Elmore. The arrivals weighed 6 pounds 4 ounces, 5 pounds 1 ounce and 5 pounds 7 ounces.

The family now will have to move out of its one-bedroom apartment, the mother added.

Cypriot Rebels Attack French Now On Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Cypriot rebels made their first attack yesterday on French troops of Cyprus' booming "Suez garrison." The rebels inflicted no casualties on the French, but they killed a Greek Cypriot and wounded five British soldiers in other attacks. Gunmen in ambush aimed small arms fire at a French army truck two miles from Famagusta on the east coast. French soldiers in the truck fire back. None were wounded, though the vehicle was hit five times.

The Greek Cypriot was shot dead in a coffee shop in Ayio Ioannis, a southwestern village.

Four British soldiers were in a truck blown up south of Nicosia. A bomb was detonated electrically in a tree as the truck passed by. Another soldier was wounded by a bomb blast on a British servicemen's beach near Limassol, south coast port. Gunfire and bombs also were directed from ambush at British army vehicles near Kyrenia on the north coast. Bombs were thrown at other vehicles at Kythrea, eight miles northeast of Nicosia. A time bomb was found and disposed of in a ditch near the British district commissioner's house in Larnaca on the east coast. No casualties resulted in these cases.

Authorities blamed all the incidents on EOKA, the Greek Cypriot underground which has been fighting since April 1, 1955, to oust the British from this crown colony and annex the island to Greece.

The French forces came under attack only 10 days after they began arriving on Cyprus. Britain's main Middle Eastern base, for the avowed purpose of protecting French nationals and their interests in the dispute over Egypt's nationalization of the Suez Canal.

Irrigated With Infested Water

ROXBORO — Ira Wolfe of the Bushy Fork community, Person County, found that he was spreading more than water when he irrigated his tobacco.

Demo Chairman Favors Limiting Election Outlay

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler said today campaign spending should be limited "to make it possible the control of elections merely through expenditures of money."

The Democrats in this campaign "will not be able to spend as much money as the Republican party," Butler said in testimony prepared for a Senate Elections subcommittee hearing. "We have not been and will not be able to raise as much."

Both Butler and GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall were invited to appear as the subcommittee opened what it called "a deep and thorough scrutiny" of the size and sources of campaign contributions and spending.

Chairman Gore (D-Tenn) told an ABC-TV audience he hopes the study will "have a salutary effect on the conduct of the election."

Gore said that although the pre-election hearings may tend to reduce contributions which generally are made in secrecy, he thinks they may increase gifts made more aware of the high cost of campaign.

Butler said that "the only democratic way to finance adequately a modern campaign is to do everything possible to encourage large numbers of small contributions from citizens."

"Containing that most Republican campaign funds have come from representatives of large corporations, he said, "There has been a marked reciprocal tendency for the Republican party to govern in the interests of the contributors," and added:

"We would like to make sure that the popular base of campaign contributions is broad enough so that a party is not obligated to any person or group because that person or group has financed its election to office."

Horde Of Hogs Upsetting Peace

WRIGHT CITY, Okla. (AP)—The peace of this southeastern Oklahoma community is being disturbed by a horde of rail-thin hogs.

So many, in fact, that some were found roosting around a drugstore and a church.

The situation is so acute that county commissioners will meet today to decide if a special election should be called to decide whether the porkers can run loose on the open range the same as cattle.

The commissioners say the porker problem has brought on a wrangle between established ranchers and squatters who own a lot of hogs but little or no farm property.

The controversy has grown so heated that some fences were cut with wire snippers and officers said they were fearful of something more serious between the two factions unless the issue is settled soon.

The small property owners and squatters trucked their hogs down from the hills and dumped them on the highways where there was still some unburned patches of grass left from the summer drought.

"The situation has become desperate," Louis Monroe, a rancher owning 450 acres, declared. "I kicked three hogs out of the doorway of the drugstore when I tried to get in to buy some medicine."

Buddy Burke, another rancher, added, "I kicked three hogs out of the doorway of the drugstore when I tried to get in to buy some medicine."

George Jessel Stoutly Disdains Acting Roles

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I don't want to sound like an actor who is out of work and talking about the 'good old days.' As a matter of fact, I have turned down $60,000 in offers in the past few months."

This was George Jessel's preface to his comments about the status of American show business. As you may know, George is an expounder. At the drop of a Parker House roll, he will expound to after-dinner audiences on anything from the Kinsey report to basket weaving in Israel. He's the best in the business.

But this time it was after lunch and I was an audience of one for the Jesselian observations. It all started when I asked about his return to acting in "Beau James." "But I'm just playing myself," he protested. "I am delivering the same introductions which I gave by Jimmy Walker, who is played by Bob Hope, 20 or 30 years ago. It fills me with a great feeling of nostalgia."

"If I were playing the role of someone else in the picture, I wouldn't do it. I have lost all desire to act."

What, an actor who doesn't love to act? "Absolutely," he declared. "I'm not like some of these old hams. That's why I have turned down offers to appear in saloons and gambling joints. It just isn't for me."

"Perhaps if show business were as it used to be, it might be a different story. If vaudeville were still here—"

He paused reflectively and with a little prodding, went on: "I'm not one of those old mossbacks who say that things aren't what they used to be, that John L. Sullivan could lick any fighter today, and so forth. But the situation is different from what it used to be."

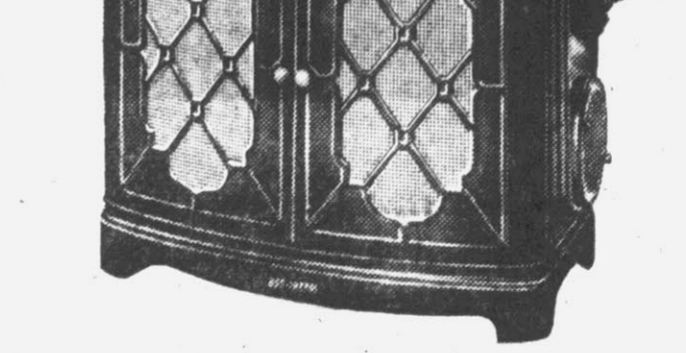

"In the old days, the great stars were gentlemen who were schooled in their craft. Nowadays, a dog for the first time."

Remote Areas Would Feel Nuclear Attack

(Rural folks who think they are far from any direct danger in the Nuclear Age should take a careful look at a new leaflet, "Rural Family Defense," issued by the Federal Civil Defense Administration. It tells how the H-bomb has placed farms and small towns "on the front" just as surely as the big cities. Following is the second in a series of articles giving the farmer practical tips on how to survive a nuclear attack and help his fellow countrymen — Editor's Note.)

Your farm or rural community may seem far from the effects of weapons which may be used to attack American cities. But there are two very real and direct dangers to rural areas:

The first is radioactive fallout. When an atomic weapon is exploded on or near the ground, tons of earth and debris are sucked high into the air. This material becomes radioactive and can cause sickness and death to humans and livestock. It can contaminate crops, soil and water. Much of it is carried by upper-air currents, then dropped back to the ground as far as hundreds of miles downwind.

WHEN THIS HAPPENS, you will be advised by Conelrad radio or other method to take cover, perhaps for several days in intensely radioactive areas. When the level of contamination has declined sufficiently, you will be told to come out of shelter and to evacuate outside the area of dangerous fallout.

You will need transportation—the family car or truck, with gasoline tank at least half full. You will need an emergency food supply, ready to load. You will need water, clothing, blankets, first-aid kit, flashlight and emergency equipment for your car or truck. All must be ready to move out immediately.

Your first defense, however, will probably be to get your family under cover, such as a potato, cyclone or storage cellar. Three feet of earth will shut out nearly all of the dangerous radio-activity from fallout. A basement can be almost as effective. An inside room in your home may reduce the danger by half. The doors and windows should be closed.

THE SECOND DANGER to your family and your property from enemy attack is chemical and biological weapons. They may be used directly against rural areas, spread from the air, or sneaked in by enemy agents and released. If you are warned that these weapons are being used in your area, you should know something about the symptoms of the diseases or sickness they cause in plants, animals and humans, and what steps can be taken to counteract them. This information is available in the pamphlet "What You Should Know About Biological Warfare" (PA-2) obtainable through your local civil defense office.

Norfolk Navy Edges East Carolina By 20-19 Margin

Welsh Lived Up To 'All America'

Norfolk ECC score stood at 20-19.

First downs	6	9
Yards rushing	74	231
Yards passing	169	98
Total yardage	243	329
Passes attempted	15	13
Passes completed	9	6
Passes intercepted	3	2
Fumbles lost	2	2
Penalties	20	10

Former Navy Quarterback George Welsh lived up to his All-America rating Saturday night as he paced his Norfolk Navy Tars to a narrow 20-19 victory over the East Carolina Pirates, in the season's opener at College Stadium.

Welsh, a 5-10, 165 pounder, passed for two Navy touchdowns and kept the Tar offense rolling throughout the game.

East Carolina's Dick Cherry, who was being boomed as a potential passing opponent for the 1955 All-America quarterback, was unable to find the range in the air, but directed a Pirate ground attack that had the Norfolk boys stymied.

Coach Jack Boone's Pirates scored early in the contest. All-North State Conference end Ray Pennington recovered a Norfolk fumble on the Tar two yard line and fullback Bob Maynard crashed over in three plays from that point. The conversion was wide and East Carolina held a 6-0 lead midway in the initial quarter.

The Pirates kicked off to Navy and James Holmes, former end for the University of Wisconsin, carried back to his own 40. On the first play from scrimmage, Welsh pitched a beautiful strike to halfback Dave Reid, who scampered untouched to pay dirt. The play covered 68 yards and Welsh's aerial travel alone to 50 yards in the air.

Holmes converted to give Norfolk a 7-6 lead.

Garry Mattocks received the kickoff and fought his way up the 39 yard line. Five plays later East Carolina had wrapped up another score. James Speight, former Greenville high school athlete, burst through right guard and wiggled through to entire Norfolk team for 40 yards and a touchdown. Mattocks kicked the extra point and ECC held a 13-7 margin at the end of the period.

Welsh Comes Back

Only minutes after the second quarter began, Welsh came back with more dead-eye hurling. After Cherry had punted out on his own 38 yard line, Navy took over. Welsh passed to Don Laraway for nine yards. Then, he flipped another to Holmes that carried 29 yards to a second Norfolk touchdown. The extra point attempt was no good. The score was tied at 13-13 and that's the way it ended at the half.

The visiting Norfolk crew scored first in second half play. After Navy had kicked off to the Pirates, D. L. Green intercepted a Cherry pass and ran it from his own 35 yard line. Navy took over. Welsh passed to Don Laraway for nine yards. Then, he flipped another to Holmes that carried 29 yards to a second Norfolk touchdown. The extra point attempt was no good. The score was tied at 13-13 and that's the way it ended at the half.

Henderson Rambles

East Carolina scored once more, in the final quarter, but was unable to make the conversion that would have tied the game.

After Wilson had punted out into the ECC end zone, the Pirates took possession of the ball on their own 20. Jim Henderson, Buc halfback, sidestepped his way up to the 40 for a first down, and Cherry gained five more on an option play.

Cherry then hurled a short pass to Bill Helms that carried them to their own 48. On another option, Cherry advanced the ball to the Navy 49, and Henderson blasted through the middle to the 43. From that point, Henderson took a handoff, zoomed through, right tackle and dashed the remaining 43 yards to East Carolina's third touchdown of the evening. Cherry missed the conversion and the Welsh passed and ran the clock away during the remaining few moments.

Outstanding for the Pirates on offense were Cherry, Henderson, Maynard, Speight and Robert Lilley on defense. Leading the defensive charge were Ray Pennington, Dick Monds, Algy Faircloth, Cherry, Ed Emory, and Bucky Dennis.

Boone used reserves freely in the opening Pirate contest and many of them played excellent ball. James Speight, who scored the second Pirate touchdown, was running as a second-unit halfback.

Garry Mattocks, who alternated with Cherry at quarterback, turned in a fine performance, as did Bobby Gay and Lilley.

In the line, Jerry Brooks, Dennis, Helms, Pennington and Waverly Chesson carried the brunt of the offensive and defensive chores.

The next Buccaneer contest will be played at Bluefield, W. Va., next Saturday, against Southern Conference foe, V.P.I.

TOUCHDOWN—Jim Henderson, Pirate halfback, is shown as he sets sail for paydirt. On this play, he scampered for 43 yards, through the entire Navy squad for ECC's final score.

Basilio Is Rated 8-5 In Comeback

By The Associated Press

Eight men have held two terms as welterweight boss. Ex-champion Carmen Basilio hopes to be the ninth.

The 29-year-old former Marine from Chittenango, N.Y., gets his chance Wednesday night in a return title 15-rounder with champion Johnny Saxton of New York in the War Memorial Auditorium in Syracuse, N.Y.

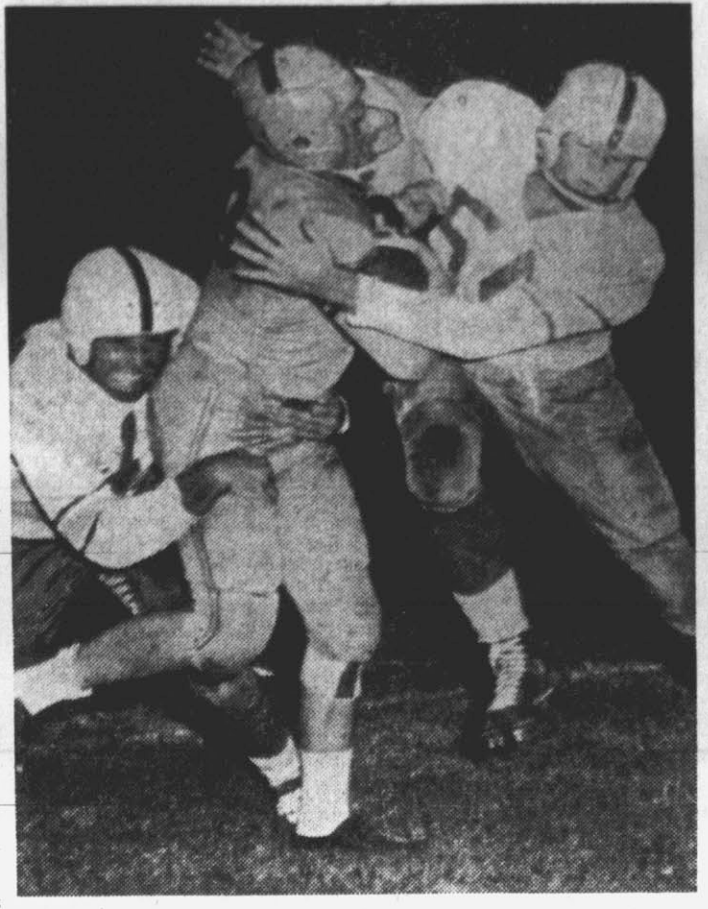

The bout will be broadcast and telecast coast to coast with TV blackouts in Syracuse, Utica, Rochester, binghamton and Watertown.

Basilio, a 2-1 choice when he dropped his crown to Saxton in Chicago March 14 on a controversial decision, is an 8-5 favorite to win it back on his home grounds. The ring-scarred veteran claimed he was "robbed" in Chicago and most of the fans and boxing writers felt he was entitled to the verdict.

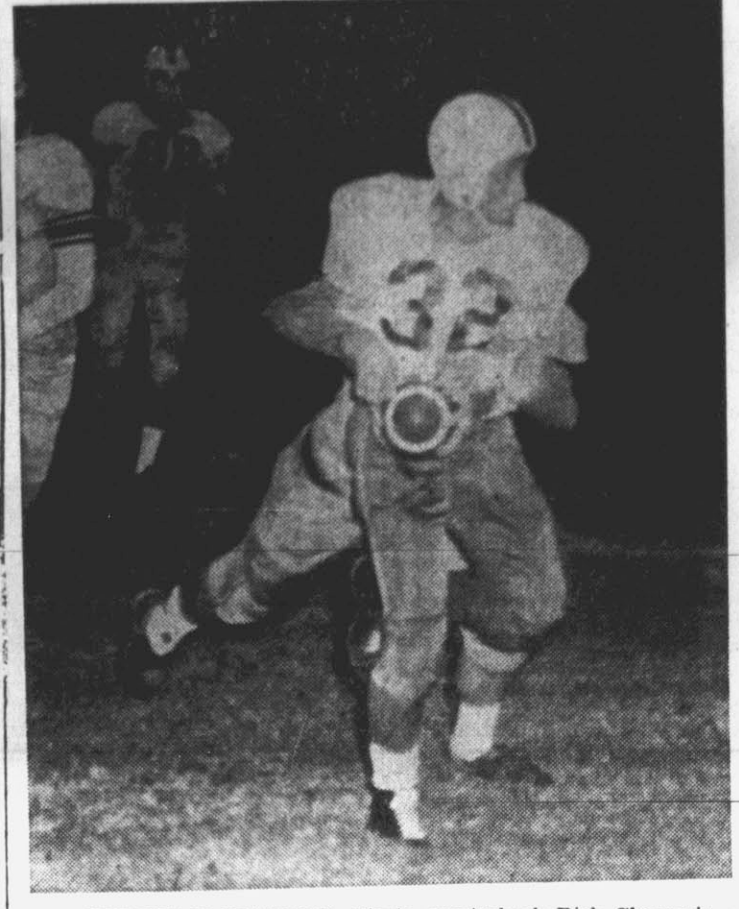

Saxton became the eighth man to reign over the 147-pounders twice when he beat Basilio. He had won the crown from Cuba's Kid Gavilan on another disputed verdict and lost it to Boston's Tony DeMarco, who handed it in turn to Basilio on a 12th-round technical knockout.

WELSH RUNNING—Quarterback George Welsh attempts to run the ball for a change. He was hit hard by Jim Faircloth (on top) and another ECC tackler, who is unidentified. The former Navy All-America performer passed for two touchdowns and kept the Bucs in trouble throughout the game with his long arials.

HOLMES IS HALTED—Norfolk's James Holmes, who was Welsh's prime passing target, was stopped cold on the above play. Ray Pennington, left, and freshman guard Bucky Dennis, collaborated on this tackle that put the former Wisconsin end down hard. Both Pennington and Dennis were outstanding throughout the game for the Bucs.

CHERRY IS TRAPPED—Pirate quarterback Dick Cherry is trapped by an opposing Norfolk defender, as he attempts to unleash a pass in Saturday night's game. Cherry completed 6 of 13 passes, but took a back seat to Navy's Welsh in that department. Norfolk edged the Buccaneers 20-19 in the season's opener for both teams. (Reflector Photos by Neil King).

Aussie Rosewall Is U.S. Tennis Titlist

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — It really made no difference that Ken Rosewall won the national tennis championship.

His victim, Lew Hoad, just as well could have won it. Either way, the title was headed back to Australia today for the first time since Frank Sedgman took it Down Under in 1952.

What it did show, though, was that American tennis is seriously ailing. Three Australians got into the semifinals and if it hadn't been for old-folks Vic Seixas, it would have been the first all-foreign semifinal in history.

Seixas was the fellow who was supposed to be all washed up at 33. Yet he advanced further than any other American. Except for Mike Green, the American youngsters showed very little. And Green, besides promise, showed that he was at least a year away from the top.

That's what confronted the American tennis brass before and after Rosewall drilled out a 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3 victory over Hoad in the final on the wind-swept turf of the West Side Tennis Club.

They were the two top amateurs in the world and proved it. The match was a good one, and Rosewall proved the complete master after the first set.

"The wind was difficult for both of us," said Rosewall. "We have wind in Australia, but it doesn't swirl like this. Sometimes, it looks as though three balls are coming at you and you wonder which one to hit."

This was Rosewall's first big victory over his Davis Cup mate in more than a year, and it was a good one for it prevented Hoad from scoring a "grand slam." He already had won the French, Australian and Wimbledon titles. Had he grabbed the National, he would have been the second player in history to turn the trick. Don Budge did it in 1938.

Nat'l League Race Simmers Down, Tug-Of-War Between Braves, Bums

By JOE REICHLER
The Associated Press

A three-team tug of war only a few days ago, the National League pennant race apparently has simmered down today to a hand-to-hand struggle between the fuzzy-cheeked Milwaukee Braves and the veteran Brooklyn Dodgers.

Edwards Leads Ayden To 21-0 Opening Win

Ayden smashed Benvenue 21-0 in their season's opener at Ayden this weekend.

Fullback Tommy Edwards, on the second play of the ball game, crashed off tackle for 56 yards and a score and then raked up the extra point on an end sweep.

The second score was set up by a 34 yard jaunt by Horton Jolly on an end-around play. It carried to the four yard line. From there halfback R. L. Collins plunged over. Edwards passed to Collins for the extra point.

Edwards, running wild, romped for the third score of the evening. He dashed 14 yards around his left end and outdistanced several Benvenue tacklers. Lindy Dunn, quarterback, passed to Ronnie Tripp for the conversion. The game ended on that 21-0 note.

Ikey Baldree, Burt Tripp, Jimmy Griffing and Det Bateman stood out on defense for the Ayden crew. Baldree, a veteran lineman, was especially effective and stunned the Benvenue backs frequently with jarring tackles.

Ayden 21-0
Benvenue 0-0

League pennant race apparently has simmered down today to a hand-to-hand struggle between the fuzzy-cheeked Milwaukee Braves and the veteran Brooklyn Dodgers.

While the Braves were rebounding yesterday from five straight defeats with a 7-4 and 5-3 double-header sweep in Chicago and the New York Giants 6-1, the third-place Cincinnati Redlegs absorbed a crushing 13-inning 6-5 defeat in St. Louis to drop three games off the pace—and perhaps out of the pennant fight.

The double triumph enabled the Braves not only to retain their grip on first place but sent them East—and to Brooklyn—with a full game lead over the Dodgers, whom they meet in a crucial two-game series tomorrow night and Wednesday afternoon.

The Redlegs will try to pick up precious ground in the Polo Grounds, where they will face the seventh-place Giants tomorrow and Wednesday afternoons.

The American League race is all over but the playing out of the schedule. The runaway Yankees widened their first-place margin to 11 games over Cleveland and Chicago, who split a pair while New York was beating Washington 2-1. Any combination of eight New York victories and/or 8 White Sox and Indians defeats will clinch the seventh flag in eight years for the Yankees.

Chicago came back to defeat Cleveland 6-2 after the Indians had won the opener 4-1. Boston's fourth-place Red Sox nipped Baltimore 3-2 in 12 innings and Detroit walloped Kansas City 7-3 a sweep of the four-game series.

Pittsburgh and Philadelphia swapped a pair of 10-inning decisions, the Pirates winning the opener 4-1 on pinch hitter Bob Skinner's three-run homer and the Phillies winning the second game 6-5 as Rob Roberts gained his 17th victory, a relief role.

The Braves spotted Chicago four runs on homers by Don Hoak, Monte Irvin and Hobie Landrith but roared back like champions to tie the score in the fifth and went ahead in the sixth on Bill Bruton's double, a passed ball and relief pitcher Ernie Johnson's sacrifice fly.

The Braves waited until the seventh inning of the second game to snap a 1-1 tie. A walk and singles by Chuck Tanner, Felix Mantilla, Danny O'Connell and Henry Aaron did the trick, producing three runs.

Brooklyn had an easy time of it as young Don Drysdale muffed the Giants with a three-hitter while Carl Furillo drove in four runs with a home run and single. Willie Mays' 30th homer was the only damaging blow by the Giants.

The Reds were ahead 5-4 when the Cards came to bat in the 13th. Herschel Freeman had allowed only one hit in four innings of relief. But Wally Moon singled and scored the tying run on a triple by pinch hitter Walker Cooper. Strategy called for two intentional passes to fill the bases but Ray Katt upset the dope by slapping a single to center scoring pinch runner Bobby Morgan with the game 6-5 as Rob Roberts gained his 17th victory, a relief role.

Billy Hunter's two-run triple in the seventh gave Whitey Ford his 17th victory in a southpaw duel with Chuck Stobbs. Ford fanned 11 and gave up six hits to only four for Stobbs, who had beaten the Yankees three times previous-relief pitcher Ernie Johnson's sacrifice fly.

Cairo, Born Under An Unlucky Star, Fearful Another War Is In Making

By WILTON WYNN
CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—This troubled city should have been born under a lucky star, but fate decreed otherwise.

When Caliph Moazz planned Cairo, he ordered a rope strung around the city's boundaries. Bells were strung on the rope. When astrologers signaled that a lucky star was in ascendancy, that rope was to be pulled, the bells rung and construction work begun instantly.

A crowd upset the plan. It landed on the rope and rang the bells. Astrologers sadly told the caliph the work had begun on Cairo under the sign of the planet Mars—an ill omen foretelling wars and disaster.

A thousand years have passed, Cairo long since has spilled over its old walls and sprawled out as a modern metropolis on the banks of the Nile. But its people gloomily ponder the evil omen.

"Cairo again is threatened by war."

Egyptians have nervously watched the buildup of British and French forces in the eastern Mediterranean, poised to move into Egypt at the first provocation in the quarrel over the Suez Canal.

The buildup began shortly after President Gamal Abdel Nasser nationalized the Suez Canal Co. July 26.

A new sense of urgency was injected into the situation when the five-nation Menzies mission to Cairo failed to bridge the gap between Egyptian sovereignty over the canal and Western demands for international control.

The fatalistic Egyptians say Egypt gets dragged into war after war through the meddling of outsiders rather than anything that Egyptians do.

"Look at the Suez Canal," an Egyptian said. "Planned by foreigners, built by foreigners, used by foreigners and now drawing foreign armies into our country."

The Egyptians still hoped the military buildup was only a bluff, but Britons who claimed to know their government's attitude insisted it was dead serious.

One Briton explained: "Ever since Abadan (the Iranian oil center lost by the British in Iran's nationalization decree of 1951), the British position in the Middle East has been collapsing and the loss of that position meant the end of Britain as a world power."

"Britain would have slipped into poverty. But now this Nasser has given us a chance to come back and we intend to take it. He grabbed the canal and that gives us every reason to move back in by force. When we return to that canal base, we once again will become a world power. No other Arab state will dare violate contracts with us. Our oil will be safe."

Such talk has led Egyptians to fear that Britain does not want a Suez compromise, that the British demand either an Egyptian surrender or reoccupation of the canal zone. The Egyptians hope to counter the threat with the following:

1. Intervention of the United States to avert use of force.
2. The Egyptians see the Soviet Union as another restraining power, though they have said little about direct Soviet support.
3. The Egyptians count heavily on public opinion inside Britain.

School Integration Before Conference Of Governors

By WARREN ROGERS JR.
WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—Southern governors, opening their 22nd annual conference today, informally weighed plans for coping with their mutual problem of school desegregation.

One plan came from the only Republican governor attending this four-day meeting, Theodore R. McKeldin of Maryland. It was admittedly of a general nature.

The other, as specific as dollars and cents, was offered by Gov. Luther H. Hodges of North Carolina, whose voters adopted it 4-1 at a Saturday referendum.

Politics was also a topic here. The consensus was that President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon would not do near, so well in the South as in 1952, when they got seven Southern states.

A report on how the South is faring in its regional education program provided a possible vehicle for some governor to turn the talk to segregation in the public schools.

The governors were asked to approve a recommendation that $500 be added to the annual payment made by states for students in medicine and veterinary medicine. They now are $1,500 and $1,000, respectively.

Gov. Leroy Collins of Florida, in his report as chairman of the Southern Regional Education Board, said such a raise "would bring these payments more nearly in line with costs."

The payments are made to schools which have signed contracts under the regional education plan launched in 1949. Collins said this program, making available to all of them in such technical fields as medicine and forestry, has been a huge success.

Collins reported his staff now is studying the possibility of setting up a Southern educational television network.

As for problems stemming from the Supreme Court decision outlawing school segregation, McKeldin issued a statement last night saying Maryland has a general rule: "No matter what happens everybody is going to obey the law, and nobody is going to shoot."

So far, he said, it has worked. As to Maryland, he said: "We confidently expect that within a short time the decree of the court will have been put into effect throughout the state."

"From the very start we have held as sacred two propositions . . . The Constitution as interpreted by the court is the supreme law of the land . . . The second is that violence will not be tolerated."

Hodges said the North Carolina plan "or something like it would tend to solve the problem." He explained it would work this way: If any of the state's 174 school districts decides it can't integrate some or all of its schools, they shut down. The state then puts up $135 average per pupil per year to send the children to private schools.

Almost to a man the governors rejected any outside "help or interference," as Gov. Frank G. Clement of Tennessee, put it. Clement, the conference chairman, told reporters: "I'm not going to tolerate outside agitators, period."

Seek Harnessing Atom For Rocket

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP)—Scientists in this atomic city are seeking to harness the power of the atom to drive rockets across continents or into space.

First word that such a project existed—and has existed for more than a year—came buried in a brief routine news release announcing the employment of a new engineer.

It said that William F. Carlson of Bristol, Conn., had been employed to work with the N Division. A later paragraph explained the N Division was "concerned with the research and development of nuclear rocket propulsion."

Neither Atomic Energy Commission spokesmen nor the University of California, which operates Los Alamos for the AEC, would say anything further.

One laboratory employee said news of the project may have been released in order to attract top scientists to the work.

It was disclosed that the head of the N Division is Dr. Raemer Schreiber, a native of McMinnsville, Ore., a Ph. D. from Purdue, and one of the scientists who helped develop the first atomic bomb under the Army's Manhattan Project.

Schreiber acknowledged the project had been working "something more than a year" but he declined to say whether atomic rockets were still on the drawing board, or had reached the stage of field tests.

Over 100 Million Church Members

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Council of Churches says church membership in the United States has soared beyond the 100 million mark for the first time in history.

That's almost two of every three persons in the nation.

The council reported that the latest compilation of the Yearbook of American Churches lists 100,182,529 members of all faiths. That compares with 97,482,611 last year.

Winston-Salem Opposed 'Plan'

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Although North Carolinians overwhelmingly endorsed the Pearsall plan in Saturday's special election, the state's second biggest city voted against it by five ballots.

Complete but unofficial returns showed that Winston-Salem voted 4,493 against the constitutional amendment and 4,488 for it.

However, surrounding rural areas voted overwhelmingly for the amendment, with the total tally for Forsyth County 9,634 in favor of the amendment and 6,277 opposed.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved slightly higher early this afternoon as strength by steels and motors spurred the list.

General Motors and Ford improved fractionally while Chrysler was up around a point.

Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn L. Martin and Lockheed went ahead by major fractions. North American Aviation, after an early advance, retreated around a point.

Daniel, Gibney Speak At N. C. Writers' Meet

CHAPEL HILL — Clifton Daniel, Assistant Editor of the New York Times, and Frank Gibney, Senior Editor in charge of Features for Newsweek Magazine, were featured speakers at the fifth annual North Carolina News and Feature Writers Conference here Saturday.

Daniel spoke at the afternoon session of the conference, discussing writing for newspapers and how the Times handled its news. Gibney discussed treatment of features, particularly from the angle of a weekly news magazine.

The morning session of the conference included a panel discussion of "What Editors Want," with Miles Wolf, executive editor of the Greensboro Daily News, acting as moderator. The panel included Jim Whitfield of the Raleigh News and Observer, Tom Wicker of the Winston-Salem Journal-Sentinel, Billy Johnson of the Rocky Mount Evening Telegram, Havi Thompson of The Charlotte Observer, and Ed Hodges of the Durham Morning Herald.

City Editor Alvin Taylor and staff writer Jimmy Ellis represented The Daily Reflector at the conference.

In his talk, Daniel told the delegates, "A surprising number of newspapermen, through haste or carelessness, write badly at times."

He added that "Some newspapermen have never learned to write properly. Others are so pre-occupied with news-gathering that they neglect news-writing. Still others, once good writers, have gone stale or fallen into bad habits."

"Every good newspaper and every newspaper that wants to be good," Daniel said, "must be a training school for writers. Good writing can't be produced with an editor's black pencil. It must begin with the training of reporters. And a good reporter learns something about his trade every day."

Daniel described the good-writing campaign which the New York Times has conducted for some years among its staff members. "The campaign never ends," he explained. "Prizes for the best writing in the paper are given each month—$100 for the best article in each of several categories."

The campaign's "unmistakable" success, Daniel said, "can be measured in terms of the interest of others in the profession and by a steady gain in circulation."

Ike Using Press As Unique Forum

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower appears to be stepping up use of a unique and influential forum, the presidential news conference, with his re-election campaign getting under way.

Daniel described the good-writing campaign which the New York Times has conducted for some years among its staff members. "The campaign never ends," he explained. "Prizes for the best writing in the paper are given each month—$100 for the best article in each of several categories."

The campaign's "unmistakable" success, Daniel said, "can be measured in terms of the interest of others in the profession and by a steady gain in circulation."

Two Serving As Camp Counselors

John Brooks of Greenville and Jerry Mayo of Falkland will act as counselors at a YMCA-sponsored Freshman Camp this week to introduce approximately 175 freshmen to the University of North Carolina.

Brooks and Mayo will assist the freshmen in meeting problems of adjustment to college life and to inform them of opportunities at the university. Included in the program will be discussion of religious in college life, adjustment problems, the pros and cons of fraternity membership, a faculty-freshman softball game, and faculty-led panel on the meaning of a college education.

The camp will be held at Camp New Hope, seven miles from Chapel Hill, and will precede the orientation week program for all new students.

Found It Quite A Combination

ROBBINSVILLE — Crawford Jenkins of the Stecoah section has found that hybrid corn and top-dressing form quite a combination.

Graham County Agent D. D. Robinson says that Jenkins top-dressed his hybrid corn with 400 pounds of ammonium nitrate. He estimates his yield on this acreage at 105 bushels per acre. On the other side of the road he used open pollinated corn, and although he fertilized it well, left off the top-dressing. He estimates its yield at about 30 bushels per acre.

Centipede Grass Alarm Sounded, For 'Lazy Men' Found No Blaze

WASHINGTON — Julian Cutler of Pinetown at Everett's Crossroads can't see knocking himself out for no reason. That's why he recommends Centipede grass for "lazy men."

Beaufort County Agent M. P. Chesnut says that Cutler seeded eight ounces of the grass on his lawn two years ago. Now, Cutler says he has to mow that part of his lawn only half as often as the rest of his lawn. And the good thing is that the Centipede is spreading to the rest.

Attendance Up For Broadcast

MOORESVILLE, N.C. — Attendance increased about 25 percent at a rural church near here yesterday, and for a very good reason.

The services at the Prospect Presbyterian Church four miles from Mooresville on the Landis road were recorded for broadcast by the Voice of America.

The sermon by the Rev. Carlisle A. McDonald, and the responses by the congregation of 350 were to be broadcast behind the Iron Curtain and elsewhere around the world as a sample of democracy in action.

Various denominational headquarters have recommended that churches participate in the series. The Prospect Church was chosen as the Rural Church of the South in 1954.

McDonald had told the congregation two weeks ago that the services would be broadcast. The usual Sunday attendance is 275.

The brick church of Georgian architecture had an attendance of 350 yesterday. It seats 400.

The pastor, 37-year-old native of Powhatan near Richmond, Va., devoted much of his sermon to praise of Paul. He said:

"Remember the key to Paul's life: I live by faith in the son of God, who lived for me and gave himself for me. That may be your key, too."
