Ready To Begin Paving Lot

PREPARE TO PAVE—Workmen today were preparing to pace the city's parking lot located on the old swimming pool property. Meters have recently been placed on the lot and curb and gutter installed. Formerly the dirt parking lot was available free to motorists. (Reflector Staff Photo.)

Farm Bureau Officials To Consider Leaf Price Drop

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—Officials of the North Carolina Farm Bureau were called today to meet tonight at Raleigh to decide on a course of action in what they have described as an alarming price decline situation on tobacco markets of the Eastern North Carolina and Carolinas Border Belts. A. D. Williams of Wilson, state Farm Bureau president, said he called the meeting at the request of growers, warehousemen and others interested in the tobacco industry. The session will be a joint meeting of the Farm Bureau's directors and of the organization's tobacco committee. Williams contends that the glutting of processing plants throughout the belts is one of the main reasons for price declines on the auction markets. Newly purchased leaf is stemmed, processed and packed in hogheads for storage at the processing plants. Tobaccoists here said the Raleigh meeting probably will decide whether the Farm Bureau will ask for a sales holiday or a curtailing of market selling hours in order for processing plants to catch up with their work on the huge amounts of leaf that have been dumped upon them in recent weeks. Meanwhile, Fred S. Royster, president of the Bright Belt Warehouse Assn., said "quite a few complaints" have been received about the price drop. But he said he thought the crowding in the processing plants was not the major factor in the decline. Royster lives in Henderson, which is in the Middle (North Carolina) Belt. The Eastern North Carolina Belt, the biggest in the world, opened Aug. 23. The Border Belt opened Aug. 2. Williams said he had received calls from all sections of the Eastern Belt commending him for his proposal to look into the price drops. Royster said prices had fallen $4 to $6 a hundred pounds since last Monday on some of the markets. Royster said a revised crop estimate released Monday was a major cause for the price drop. The estimate upped estimates of this year's production from 1,276,000,000 pounds to 1,296,000,000. He pointed out that as of July 1, the flue-cured carryover stocks were the greatest in history by 200 million pounds. Williams stated that overcrowded processing plants were the cause for the lack of competition among buyers.

City Is Starting Tax Collections

The City of Greenville has collected $90,763.31 of its total tax levy for 1956. City Clerk H. H. Duncan reported today. That is 27 per cent of the total amount set up in the budget to be collected for this year, Duncan noted. Much of the amount collected so far came from businesses which prepaid their taxes during June and July. The city actually began billing tax payers last week. Duncan said it is hoped all the tax notices will be sent out this week. Duncan reported that $1,277.93 was collected by the city on Monday of this week. Tuesday a total of $5,453.39 was received in the tax collectors office. Wednesday $1,118.68 was paid in by taxpayers. Yesterday $4,227.13 was collected in City Hall. For the entire month of September $12,398.20 has been collected by the city, Duncan reported. If the total property taxes and poll taxes it would take in an estimated $334,680 during the present year. However, in preparing the city budget officials place 90 per cent of that figure—$304,264—in the budget. Duncan again urged tax payers to pay their bills early to take advantage of discounts. Those paying during September will receive a one per cent discount on their tax bills. In October a 1/2 per cent discount will be allowed. During December and January the full amount must be paid. There will be a one per cent penalty in February and a two per cent penalty in March. After March a 1/2 of one per cent penalty will be added for each additional month.

Not Really One For Sand Traps

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges, in defense of his golf game, says a picture showing him blasting out of a sand trap at White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., was posed. He was actually on the fairway, Hodges told his news conference yesterday, when a couple of press service photographers approached him and asked permission to take a picture. "We don't have a picture of a governor in a sand trap," he said, and moved him off the fairway into the trap. He was agreeable. "What a sacrifice you have to make," Hodges sighed. "I've been getting wires and telephone calls from people asking me what I was doing in that trap and advising that I was using the wrong club actually."

'Besides, She Cut Me First' Says Bloodstained Defendant

By NEIL KING Reflector Staff Writer Chesterfield Payton, 41-year-old Negro of Grifton Route 1, charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, was escorted into Police Court this morning to face the charge. Payton's right forearm, index and middle fingers were bandaged. His clothes were covered with dried blood stains. The police report said that Payton had cut himself on a show case glass after he had hit Sarah Newsome over the head with a bottle. Payton, who did not have a lawyer, but acted in his own defense, denied it. The Newsome woman, who resides at 604 Cooper Lane, was the first to take the stand. She testified: "I do not know Payton personally—just when I see him. He grabbed me and I told him to let me go. . . he hit me with a bottle." The Negro woman, expecting a baby in December, was treated at Pitt Hospital for a cut on the head. Payton told Judge Charles H. Whedbee that "it isn't even logical that I should hit her without a cause. . . besides, she cut me first. I had a right to hit her then. . . He turned toward the woman in the witness box, raised his bandaged arm and said, "Who do you think has suffered the most? I lost nearly a half-gallon of blood." The woman said she knew nothing about how his arm was cut, only that he hit her over the head with a bottle. Investigating patrolman E. G. Cannon took the stand and told the court that enroute to the hospital last night, Payton had said "I hit her and I hope she dies. . . I cut myself on the showcase glass. She didn't have anything to do with it." When given permission to speak to Cannon, Payton said, "Did you know I had been drinking?" Cannon answered "no." Then Payton said, "did you believe everything I told you?" Cannon replied, "I had no reason to believe otherwise." Payton again told Judge Whedbee that he had no logical reason for hitting the woman and that she had hit him first. Judge Whedbee's verdict was that the court finds probable cause for assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and holds the defendant over for Grand Jury action, $1,000 bond. Payton also received a 30-day suspended sentence upon payment of costs of being drunk in public.

Hodges Okays Thinning Ranks N.C. Highway Commissioners

Will Also Ask General Assembly To Make Prisons Dept. Separate Agency

ASHEVILLE (AP)—Gov. Hodges last night gave his approval to a proposal that the present 14-member State Highway Commission be cut to a "much smaller statewide, policy-making group." The governor also revealed he will ask the 1957 General Assembly to separate the State Prisons Department from the Highway Commission and set it up as a separate agency. Hodges, who was a member of the Highway Commission during the early '30s, disclosed his position in an address before the North Carolina Motor Carriers Assn. and the American Trucking Assn. He said the change in the Highway Commission setup is a "tentative recommendation" of a commission authorized by the last General Assembly to study reorganization of the Highway Department. Under the committee's proposal, the streamlined Highway Commission would have "an outstanding man" as executive administrator to carry out its policies. "I agree with this approach," Hodges said, "and believe that such a step would be more in keeping with the proper management of a state agency spending 125 million dollars a year of our tax money." Such a move would be exactly counter to an action of the 1953 General Assembly. That legislation, on the recommendation of Gov. Umstead, expanded the Highway Commission membership from 10 to 14, with a corresponding increase in the state's highway divisions. The reorganization committee's proposals still are in the tentative stage and would require legislative sanction to become effective. Hodges expressed his high regard for individual commission members and emphasized that he has "made no decision on the replacement of any commission members or any new personnel in any way." He said the job of the new commission would be "to plan particularly for our primary highways where the statewide view is so necessary." Secondary and county roads, he added, would be handled under policies set down by the commission "with an eye to uniform and fair treatment throughout the state." He said "These policies for maintenance and construction of secondary roads would be carried out by the highway engineers on the local level closest to the people and the need. The county commissioners who are closest to the people would play a greater part in this program than is now the case."

Hughes Severely Stricken, But Said Recovering

POMPANO BEACH, Fla.—City Manager James S. Hughes is recovering after a near-fatal reaction to an injection of penicillin received for a sore throat. The former Greenville city manager walked from the Pompano Beach City Hall to his physician's office to receive the shot. He was taken ill as he returned to his own office and collapsed speechless at his desk. The physician was summoned and within a matter of minutes had administered oxygen, adrenalin and cortisone. "Breathing was completely arrested as Hughes went into a state of extreme shock," he stated. "We gave him everything in the book to bring him out of it." Hughes resigned last December as Greenville's city manager, to accept the Pompano Beach job.

Jury Censured

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—A jury which acquitted a truck driver charged with drunken driving was publicly censured here yesterday by Judge Frank M. Armstrong. When the jury returned the verdict against Ollie Joyner, 46, of Winston-Salem, Judge Armstrong called it "the second most shocking" he had experienced in such a case. He did not name the most shocking case. He then ordered all jury trials be continued until the next term of criminal court. Judge Armstrong ordered the verdict, over the names and addresses of the jurors, "be forever recorded in the minutes of the court" and that his remarks be put in the court minutes.

Development Bid By 7 Counties

RALEIGH (AP)—Seven eastern North Carolina counties banded together yesterday to form the Capital Area Development Assn. Modeled after the Northwest North Carolina Development Assn., its purpose is "to promote through regional cooperation the industrial, agricultural, and recreational well-being" of its members. The association is composed of representatives from Warren, Vance, Granville, Franklin, Johnston, Wake and Harnett counties. George P. Geobegan Jr. of Raleigh, regional vice president of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., was named president of the association. James A. Graham, manager of Raleigh's Farmers Market, was elected secretary.

Big Three Move Swiftly To Form Suez Canal Ass'n

LONDON (AP)—The Western Big Three moved swiftly today to set up a Suez Canal users' association with the prospect U. S. Secretary of State Dulles may make a hurried flight to London. An American diplomatic source said he understood Dulles was coming here next week—probably Wednesday. A British diplomatic spokesman said the invitation list for an international conference is still being drawn up—but the invitations would go out "shortly." The British Press Assn. suggested the possibility that Egypt may be among those invited. The general feeling here was that the conference would be next week—but no definite date has been announced. Whether Dulles' reported trip was to take part in the conference or merely to discuss preparations with the British and French was not clear. The war jitters that gripped this capital—and a large part of the world—after the idea of the users' group was first raised—have subsided somewhat in the wake of Prime Minister Eden's qualified promise to seek U.N. action before resorting to force. The Institute of London Underwriters announced big increases in "war risk" insurance rates for ships calling at Egypt and sailing through the Suez Canal. The British Embassy in Cairo this morning warned Britons for the third time to leave Egypt "if they have no compelling reason for remaining." Another British aircraft carrier, the 27,000-ton Albion, was ordered to sail tomorrow for the eastern Mediterranean. British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd was busy enlisting support for the proposed association—intended to coordinate traffic through the canal in cooperation with Egypt. The 18 nations which supported the original plan for internationalizing the canal seem likely to form the hard core for the new association—although membership will be open to all the world's maritime nations. There was an urgency to get the association into operation in view of the mass walkout of non-Egyptian canal pilots set for midnight tonight. Lloyd met with the Scandinavian ambassadors this morning. The foreign ministers of Sweden, Denmark and Norway—among those originally cool to idea of a users' association—are conferring Sunday in Stockholm. After talking with the Scandinavian envoys, Lloyd met with representatives of the Baghdad Pact countries—Iran, Iraq, Turkey and Pakistan. The Middle East situation was still regarded as grave. The Eden government told Parliament that it was "impractical" to give Cyprus self-determination at this time in view of the Suez crisis. Britain and France are building up forces on the vital Mediterranean island only a springboard distance from Egypt. These units are being held in readiness with the announced purpose of protecting British and French nationals if trouble breaks out. To the East, a Jordan military spokesman charged that a force of 1,000 Israelis, backed by three warplanes and using heavy weapons, raided a Jordan police post last night. He said 21 soldiers were killed, wounded or are missing. Eden predicted yesterday that if Nasser wins the Suez gamble he will next attack Israel.

Stevenson Offers Argument That GOP Reins Are Going To Nixon

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Adlai Stevenson campaigned today with a new argument—that Republican leadership "from here on" will be in the hands of Vice President Nixon instead of President Eisenhower. Stevenson "formally" opened his campaign in a convention-like atmosphere, with his supporters waving placards and marching in the aisles at a $50-a-plate fundraising buffet in Harrisburg's huge Farm Show Arena. James A. Finnegan, Stevenson's campaign manager, said at least 8,500 tickets were sold, indicating a gross of some $425,000. "To ignore them is perilous. They are the reasons America's human needs go today unmet. Nor will they be met so long as the President is not master in his own house." # ECC'S Own Beauty Back In Town

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Staff Writer

Joan Melton, the former East Carolina College coed who represented North Carolina in the "Miss America" beauty pageant last week, is back in Greenville.

The Albemarle miss isn't back to stay, however. She's just visiting and will return to her home tomorrow.

Joan came here Monday afternoon on a private plane. She has been staying with the John Robbins family on Harding Street and much of her time has been spent renewing acquaintances made last year when she was a freshman at the college.

Yesterday Joan visited her former piano instructor at the college, Dr. Robert Carter, and discussed to some extent the continuation of her study of serious piano music. She plans to enroll next year at the Jacksonville College of Music in Florida to study under Dr. Hans Barth, a noted pianist and composer.

Actually, Joan had intended to transfer to the Florida school this year but the series of beauty pageants and their attendant obligations upset her plans. She has been serious about concert piano playing since early childhood and has intended for several years to study with Dr. Barth.

The plans she has, however, hasn't changed her opinions of East Carolina, in general, and Dr. Carter, in particular. She was rather lavish in her praise for both.

"With a free week after Atlantic City," Joan said, "I could not think of any place I would rather be than Greenville. I especially wanted to see Dr. Carter who is a wonderful musician and teacher and who was exactly what I needed as a teacher when I came to East Carolina last year."

The routine she must follow as "Miss North Carolina" has, however, upset not only her plans to enter the Jacksonville College but her routine study of serious music.

"I'm having to play more light music than I ever have," she explained, saying that she had never done much of it before. She also lamented her musical choice at Atlantic City (an arrangement of Chopin's "Ocean Etude" and "Deep Purple") and expressed a serious doubt that she would do it again if she had another opportunity.

"I really don't do the selection very well," she said. "I much prefer more serious music because I know it better and it comes easier."

Until a new Miss North Carolina is selected next summer, Joan will make an almost continuous series of personal appearances throughout the state. Thus far, her only serious music commitments are an April 30 appearance with the Winston-Salem Symphony and a possible appearance with the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra.

Joan is looking forward to the "grind" of festivals, parades, and pageants, however. "The worst of it is all over," she says, and "I'm having a wonderful time. I hope to be able to come back to Greenville in October for the East Carolina Homecoming but I'm booked to appear in Tabor City that weekend for the Yam Festival and I'm not sure that I can manage to come back. I will if I can, however."

Joan was started on her way as a beauty queen at East Carolina. She was a sponsor at the Homecoming celebration last year and also a sponsor for the Air Force ROTC unit.

30 Years Ago Today

September 14, 1926

The Philatelic Class of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Sunday School met for the first time since June Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. S. T. White, with about 45 members present. There was no business of importance, except the election of new officers. Mrs. M. L. Wright was elected president; Mrs. K. T. Futrell, vice president; Mrs. Eloise Ellington, treasurer; Mrs. Chester Harris, secretary and reporter; Mrs. H. E. Austin, teacher, and Mrs. Luther Herring, assistant teacher. At the close of business the meeting was turned over to the hostesses, Mrs. White, Mrs. R. G. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Leon Rivers. Mrs. White's beautiful home was tastefully and artistically decorated with fall flowers of rare beauty. Mrs. Herbert Waldrop delighted everyone present with two very beautifully rendered vocal solos. Mrs. White then invited the members into the dining room, where a delicious ice course was served. She was assisted in serving by Misses Helen White, Evelyn Wright and Mabel Glenn Best.

Forty Attend Newcomers Tea

Forty guests attended the tea given yesterday by the Newcomers Club honoring newcomers to the city.

Receiving at the door of the Woman's Club were Newcomers Club President Mrs. W. T. Smith and Vice President Mrs. Lucy Harrell.

Mrs. John Shannonhouse registered guests and pinned on name tags as they entered.

The table, covered with a white cutwork cloth, was centered with a silver epergne holding pink tapers and carnations. Mrs. W. E. Rosevear poured. Guests served themselves party cakes, mints and nuts.

Salmon colored gladioli were arranged in the adjoining parlor. Receiving throughout the clubhouse were Mrs. Percy Cox, Mrs. Joel Lawhorn, Mrs. George Fleming and Mrs. Hershel Williams.

Mrs. P. L. Pair was chairman of the tea; Mrs. James Tucker, co-chairman. Club members extended an invitation to all present for their luncheon and program meeting September 20.

Miss Etheridge, Mr. Knight Wed

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—In a double ring ceremony at four o'clock August 25, Miss Nelle Etheridge became the bride of Paul Mathis Knight of Miami Beach. Dr. Richard L. James officiated at the rites performed in Riverside Christian Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Thomas A. Etheridge of Greenville, N. C. and the late Mr. Etheridge. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Lloyd Knight of Coral Gables, Fla. and Saluda, N. C.

Nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Richard L. James, organist, who played "I Love You Truly" by Grieg and "O Promise Me," by Walter Ware, soloist, rendered "Always" and "The Lord's Prayer." Traditional wedding marches were used.

Given in marriage by her brother, Joseph A. Etheridge, the bride wore a ballerina length dress of white nylon net and imported Venetian Lace over taffeta with a fitted short sleeve jacket of matching lace featuring a Peter Pan collar.

Her shoulder length veil was attached to a halo of lilies of the valley. She carried a satin covered Bible topped with a purple-throated orchid, showered with white carnations.

Miss Billie Sue Haltiwanger, bridesmaid and only attendant, wore a pink waltz length strapless dress of crystal and net with capelets. Her bouquet was of white carnations.

E. Lloyd Knight attended his brother as best man. Ushers were Solon Ellmaker and Britt Everett of Jacksonville.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Etheridge wore a dress of black and white bengara with black accessories. Her corsage was a purple orchid.

The bridegroom's mother was dressed in gray lace with pink and gray accessories. She also wore a purple orchid.

Mrs. Knight received her education in the city schools of Greenville and the Smith School of Business College of Richmond, Va. For the past two years she has held a position with Vita Foods, Inc. of Jacksonville.

Mr. Knight received his education in the city schools of Coral Gables and is a graduate of the University of Miami where he was a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity. He is president of the Empire Insurance Agency, Inc.

For traveling the bride chose a coffee linen dress with white collar and white accessories. Her corsage was the orchid lifted from her bouquet.

After a wedding trip to the Florida West Coast, the couple will be at home, 930 N.E., 160th St., North Miami Beach, Fla.

Reception Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Grace Gullidge and introduced to the receiving line composed of the bride's party and parents of the bride couple. Mrs.

Out-of-Town Guests Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knight and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Knight Sr. of Coral Gables; Dr. and Mrs. Milton Travers, Miami Beach; Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Knight Jr., Miami; Mrs. T. A. Etheridge, Mrs. Lillian Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Etheridge of Greenville, N. C.; and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Stromire, Gainesville, Fla.

Mrs. Lillian Thomas poured punch from a silver punch bowl placed amid a setting of palm and white gladioli. Mrs. David L. Forbush served bridal mints and nuts. Goodbyes were said to Mrs. Richard L. James.

Wings Given BPW Members

At last night's Business and Professional Women's Club meeting the attractive yearbooks, prepared under the direction of Mrs. Annie T. Briley, were given to the approximately forty members present.

Six persons were awarded wings by the United States Air Force Ground Observers Corps: Mrs. Viola Baker, Mrs. Lottie Barnhill, Miss Mattie Hobbs, Mrs. Chester Walsh, Miss Ruth White and Dr. Ann Hulzenga. Dr. Hulzenga is not a member of the Club.

These persons have all served ten or more hours at the local G. O. C. post. Wings were presented by Miss Camille Clark who is the National Security Chairman for the Club.

Plans were made by the club to observe National Business Women's Week, September 23-29. Future announcements will be made of the ways the local group will join with clubs over the nation to observe this week of tribute and salute to women.

Under the direction of Mrs. Viola Baker, health and safety committee chairman, a skit was given to call to the attention of those present the importance of one's health and thoughts to keep in mind in maintaining health.

Those assisting with the skit were: Miss Alya R. Taylor, Mrs. Tina Osborne, Miss Margaret Register and Miss Evelyn Latham.

In addition to members present, one guest, Miss Agnes Deal, was present.

Miss Elizabeth Deal, president, announced that there are twenty members of the local club who plan to attend the District BPWC which will be at the Staff NCC Club, Cherry Point on September 16.

Social Notes

Among the students leaving here this week for Campbell College at Buies Creek were Miss Sarah Adams, Joe Taft Jr. and Billy Dunn.

Among the Greenville homes to be visited by the Rev. and Mrs. R. E. Hardaway of Newnan, Ga., who arrived today, will be the N. C. Brooks' residence on Library Street.

The budding artists in the Paint and Putter Class at Elm Street Park were surprised by a visit from Miss North Carolina last night. Miss Melton is in town for a short visit with her local friends.

To Honor Hardaways

On Saturday evening from 8-10 o'clock at the Woman's Club an informal open house will be held honoring the Rev. and Mrs. R. E. Hardaway of Newnan, Ga. The Hardaways are former residents of Greenville, the Rev. Mr. Hardaway having been pastor of Memorial Baptist Church for a number of years. Friends of the couple are invited to attend.

Greenville F. W. B. Announcements

Everyone who is not in Sunday School is invited to attend this Sunday at the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church. Mr. Stephen Walters will give a cordial welcome to those present. At the 11 a.m. worship the choir will sing the hymn "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart" and the pastor's sermon topic will be "Jesus Has Come Into My Heart" (Titus 3:3-8). The League will meet at 6:30 p.m. under the direction of Mr. Mark Case. At the 7:30 p.m. worship the pastor's sermon topic will be "God's Love for Prodigals" (Luke 15:20).

The East Carolina Free Will Baptist Student Fellowship will meet at 5 p.m. at the "Y" hut for vesper services and a light supper. The Sunday School Council will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. with Mr. and Mrs. Claude Bland, 407 Line Ave. It is needed that all general officers, all class teachers and officers be present for this meeting of the Sunday School Council.

Tuesday at 7:15 p.m. the Young People's Choir will meet at the church for a rehearsal.

Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. there will be prayer services and evangelism classes at the church.

Thursday at 7 p.m. the Junior Choir will meet for a rehearsal and at 8 p.m. the Senior Choir will meet for a rehearsal.

There will be an important church business conference on Wednesday, September 26, at 7:30 p.m. Every member of the church should plan to be present.

Revel services begin October 1 at 7:30 p.m. Rev. William Hill of Nashville, Tenn. will be the evangelist.

Teen-Age Recreation Program To Begin

FARMVILLE—The first of a series of supervised recreational activities for Farmville teen-agers will be held tomorrow night in the new American Legion hut.

The Farmville High School swing band, the Serenaders, will provide music for the dance which will begin at 7:30 and last until 10:30.

Civic expenses of the program will be planned and conducted by teen-agers in Farmville.

The supervised program, first of its kind in Farmville since a similar effort failed some time ago, was first discussed Tuesday night at a meeting of civic and high school leaders. Horton Rountree of the American Legion advanced the idea and offered use of the Legion's hut, constructed recently near the ball park.

The weekly programs will be supervised by adults in the community.

After 20 Years He's In Coffin

DANVILLE, Ill. — For 20 years, William J. Mellott's coffin has been waiting for him. Today, Mellott's body lay in the poplar burial box he fashioned, awaiting funeral services Sunday.

Mellott, 96, who spent most of his life as a farmer and carpenter near Veedersburg, Ind., a few miles from here, died yesterday in a nursing home.

Undertaker Charles Fishero knew just what to do. He got the casket Mellott had made out of storage. Inside it, he found the suit Mellott wanted to be buried in.

There is an average of 1.9 police officers for every 1,000 persons in the population of the U.S.

Five Awarded For Service In Ground Observer Corps

Jake Hadley, director of the Greenville Ground Observer Corps, presented wings to five members of the Greenville Service League for ten or more hours of service at the local post when the league met for its first fall meeting Monday.

Those receiving the wings were Mrs. Eugene West, Mrs. James Phelps, Mrs. Ed Parkinson, Mrs. Wesley Harvey and Mrs. Pace Fuller.

Hadley thanked members for their help and co-operation in making the corps a success. Sgt. Bass of the US Air Defense Command, presented by Hadley, spoke on the importance of the post being staffed at all times.

During the business session various reports were made.

Announcement was made by Mrs. Carl Wade, bloodmobile chairman, that the bloodmobile would be at the Moose Hall September 19 from 12-5 p.m. Members were urged to participate and enlist donors in order to reach the quota.

Mrs. E. H. Williford, projects chairman, reported on plans for the coming year and asked that each member feel personally responsible for the success of each project.

Announcement that the league would sponsor a bridge tournament October 11 was made by Mrs. Ed Parkinson, finance chairman. The event will take place at the home of Mrs. David Evans. She also announced orders were being taken for Christmas cards.

Workers were secured by Mrs. Morris Brody, placement chairman, for the coffee shop. Plans call for them to start September 17. Mrs. James T. Little, coffee shop chairman, commended members on success of the project this summer.

Mrs. W. A. Wright, girl scout chairman, made an appeal for volunteers to help with troops this fall, stressing the dire need of leaders and assistants.

In reviewing standing projects of the league, Mrs. W. S. Bost reported two wheel chairs and one pair of crutches had been loaned during the summer. Mrs. Eugene West reported eighteen emergency charity calls made.

Seven patients were provided for during the summer at Pitt Memorial Hospital through the league's hospital bed fund, according to the report made by Mrs. David Hardee, bed chairman.

Volunteers were accepted to participate in the Ground Observer Corps and the quota filled.

Mrs. Wesley Harvey, president of the league, presided over the meeting held at Elm Street Park.

Grace F. W. B. Announcements

Two hundred and eighty-two persons were in attendance last Sunday as the Sunday School assembled in the church auditorium. There were several visitors in the eighteen classes. There is plenty of room for every member to be present at one time. Why not try it? The Sunday School meets each Sunday morning at 9:45 o'clock. The worship service begins at 11 a.m. with the choir singing the "Call to Worship." The pastor will bring the morning message.

The League meets at 7 p.m. each Sunday. The evangelistic service begins at 8 p.m. Everyone is invited and urged to attend.

The Sunday School Council meets in the home of Mrs. Willie Evans, 1705 S. Elm Street, Monday evening at 8:00.

The prayer service will be conducted at the church on Wednesday evening at 8:00. During the same hour the Good News Club for the boys and girls meets. The choir will rehearse following these services.

The Bolivian flag consists of three horizontal stripes of red, gold and green.

State President Speaks To UDC

The George B. Singletary Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy met at the home of Mrs. T. T. Hollingsworth Thursday afternoon with Mrs. J. H. Randolph serving as assistant hostess.

The home was decorated throughout with arrangements of fall flowers.

The hostesses welcomed each member; the guest for the afternoon, Mrs. St. Amand of Wilmington, state president of the U. D. C.; and two new members, Mrs. Alice Keel and Mrs. Annie Pittman.

The president, Mrs. E. W. Harvey, presided over a brief business session during which plans were made to send delegates to the State Convention to be held in Hickory, October 11, 12, and 13.

The following delegates were named: Mrs. J. L. Fleming, Mrs. J. T. Gaylord, Mrs. H. R. Rogers, Mrs. J. B. Spilman, and Mrs. E. W. Harvey.

Members were delighted to have the state president, Mrs. St. Amand, give the program for the afternoon. She gave a pep talk and brought valuable information on the work of the U. D. C.

During the social hour which followed homemade cake, nuts, and Russian tea were served by the hostesses assisted by Mrs. J. G. Lautares and Mrs. Spilman.

News From Red Oak

All former pastors, members and friends of Red Oak Christian Church are invited to worship at the church's Home-Coming Day Sunday, September 16.

Sunday School begins at nine-forty-five with classes for all ages. The morning Worship Service begins at eleven o'clock with the Minister, Clifford Lanman in the pulpit. There will be special music at this service.

Dinner will be spread picnic-style at the noon hour. All members are urged to come and bring their families and a well-filled lunch basket.

Immediately following dinner the afternoon program will feature a short session of special singing, short talks, etc., closing the program for the day.

College English Club Programs Listed

Members of the English Club at East Carolina College have organized for the 1956-1957 term and have announced a series of monthly programs extending from September through May. Florence Baker, junior from Elizabeth City, is president of the club; and Dr. James D. Allison, faculty sponsor.

New faculty members of the English department will be honor guests of the club October 9 and will present a program for members. Additions to the English staff this fall are Ovid W. Pierce, author of the prize-winning North Carolina novel "The Plantation"; Claude L. Garran, stage manager last summer for the "Lost Colony"; Dr. Claris Glick; Dr. H. D. Rowe; Dr. Virginia Herrin; Dr. George A. Cook; and Dr. Katherine W. White.

Members of the Creative Writers Club of the college will be in charge of the program November 13; the East Carolina Playhouse January 8; the "East Carolinian," college newspaper, March 12; and majors of the department engaged in student teaching April 9. Social events will include a Christmas dinner December 11 and a picnic May 7. Tentative plans include showing of two Shakespearean movies.

Divine Mind's triumph over the forces of materialism will be set forth at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Matter."

Accounts of divine power and healing—including Joshua's victory at Jericho and Christ Jesus' walking on the sea—will be among passages read from the Holy Bible.

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy the following passage will be read (130-4): "From beginning to end, the Scriptures are full of accounts of the triumph of Spirit, Mind, over matter. Moses proved the power of Mind by what men called miracles; so did Joshua, Elijah, and Elisha."

The Golden Text will include the following (Psalms 81:10): "I am the Lord thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt."

No Cure-All, But Guiding Principle

Voters of North Carolina who went to the polls and voted in the special referendum on the Pearsall Plan have not discharged completely their responsibility to the state or to its school children.

Now that the plan has become law and set forth as the principle by which the course of North Carolina's public schools will be charted, it is the responsibility of the citizenry of the state to make the plan work.

Few if any people in North Carolina want to see public schools closed. There is always the possibility that conditions may become such that some schools may be closed under the Pearsall Plan provisions; but the

As Maine Goes . . . Well, Let's Set It Straight

As Maine goes the nation doesn't necessarily go despite the political saying to the contrary. Be that as it may, the Democratic victory in Maine's election was enough to bring forth jubilation in the Democratic camp and frowns of concern from the Republicans.

The strong Democratic showing in heavily Republican Maine is sufficient cause for GOP leaders to be concerned about their chances in November. It is likewise an incentive for Democratic forces to intensify their efforts to gain control of the administration and strengthen their hold on Congress come November.

In spite of the strong Democratic showing in the Pine Tree State's election, statistics would indicate that the Democrats need not count too heavily on Maine's electoral vote in November.

Having heard for as many years as we can remember "As Maine goes so goes the nation", we looked up Maine's voting record just to see how true the saying is. The information is most enlightening.

In the 14 presidential elections since 1900, Maine has cast its ballots in favor of the winning nominee only eight times. Only in 1912 when Teddy rode his Bull Moose and split the Republican party wide open did the Democratic nominee get a plurality in Maine. Even then Woodrow Wilson got only 51,000 votes to a combined total of 75,000 for Roosevelt and Taft.

From 1932 through 1948 when the Democrats were pushing their nominee into office with ease, Maine stuck to its Republican guns, going almost alone in some election years. The twenty years from '32 to '52 showed that Maine goes Republican, period.

The nation goes like Maine goes only when the nation goes Republican.

In spite of this fact, and in spite of the fact that Eisenhower got almost two votes to every one for Stevenson in Maine in 1952, the stock market got the jitters when the results of Maine's election were announced. That in itself is a good sign for the Democrats, particularly when it is an "Eisenhower market."

Others Also See High Qualities In Governor

The signal honor which has been accorded Gov. Hodges by his election as chairman of the Southern Governors Conference is new recognition beyond the borders of the Tar Heel State of the ability and leadership of North Carolina's Chief Executive.

Gov. Hodges' election as chairman of the important group of governors from 22 states catapults his sphere of influence far beyond the borders of this state. It is evidence of the high prestige he enjoys among governors of other states.

Although he has been in the highest office of the state a relatively short time, Gov. Hodges already has been acclaimed as one of the most able governors the state has had in decades. It now becomes clear that his ability is being recognized far beyond the borders of our own state. It is a fact which is not only a tribute to the man, but likewise an honor of which the state as a whole can be proud.

Through the discharge of his duties as governor of North Carolina, Gov. Hodges has not only attracted attention to himself, but likewise to the leadership of North Carolina among the states of the South. The high calibre of leadership he has afforded North Carolina he may in years to come be called on to afford a much larger area.

Opinions In Brief

FIRST FIRED
Stillwater (Okla.) Daily News-Press
Is a minimum wage law a sound way to help people in the bottom-earning brackets?
If you think so, an article by Bettina Bein, in The Freeman, may give you another slant on the problem. The article states: "If the minimum wage rate is set higher than the market rate, it hurts the very person it is designed to help—the lowest producers, and hence the lowest earners. The first to be fired, when a new minimum wage rate is set, are those who cannot contribute enough to the market to cover the cost of their wage."

The barometer of earning power must be productivity—which is the measure of the worker's value to the employer and to the public. No law, no matter how well intentioned, can cancel out that fact.

citizens of each community, individually and collectively, can prevent such circumstances developing if they set their minds to it.

The fact almost 600,000 people voted in the special referendum is indicative of their interest in and their concern for the public schools of North Carolina. Adoption of the Plan, while it sets forth the principle by which the schools of the state can be preserved, is in itself no cure-all for troubles which may beset public schools of North Carolina or any other state. What happens to public schools in North Carolina will depend entirely upon the attitude and course of action of the people of the state as a whole.

Even with the Pearsall Plan on the Statute books and the new principle set forth in the state constitution, extremists on either side of the school question can produce action which will be detrimental to public schools. It is up to the citizens of the state to see that such attempts—if they are made—are nipped in the bud.

The people of North Carolina can make the Pearsall Plan work if they set their minds and hearts to the task as they should. They can preserve the public school system in every community of the state and continue to strengthen it to afford better education for our youth which in turn will mean a better state.

Just as it was the responsibility of the citizens of the state to approve or reject the Pearsall Plan, it is their responsibility to make it work in the best interest of the schools, the children and the state as a whole.

Happy Home Folks Could Swing Deal

By LYNN NISBET
HOME FOLKS—"I'm glad we can do business with our own folks," commented State Treasurer Edwin Gill when he discovered that the group headed by Wachovia Bank & Trust Company had bought the $15 million bond anticipation notes.

Wachovia offered to lend the money at 2.30 per cent. Next lowest bid was 2.67 per cent by First National City of New York. The third was by First Securities Corporation and associates for 2.9999 per cent.

Treasurer Gill further observed that the fact only three bids were received, and the lowest interest rate was about one-third of one percent higher than the most recent bond sale, illustrated the tightness of the money market.

Some months ago it had been planned to offer the remaining $25 million of the 1953 school building bond issue for sale early this fall. The condition of the bond market led to decision to hold off the bond sale for awhile and to offer anticipation notes for enough to assure continuance of the school building program.

The need for school building money is urgent. Dr. Charlie Carroll, superintendent of public instruction, was an interested spectator at the note sale. Someone suggested he was there because he wanted to find if his board would have some school building money. "That isn't why I'm here," said Carroll. "Our board has already committed some of this fifteen million, and I wanted to make sure we'd have it at pay-off time."

Although the interest rate is higher than North Carolina has paid in several years, members of the Council of State expressed opinion that it is a good rate under existing conditions and the note sale was promptly approved.

INTEREST—Interest on borrowed money has been defined as the wages earned by dollars at work. When more folks are available for work than there are jobs for them, personal wages decline. When more dollars are available than needed, interest rates decline. The fact that Federal agencies have raised interest rates five times in the past four years indicates a growing scarcity of working dollars, from percentage viewpoint.

Government statistics break down credit into several brackets. In the area of government there is the national, state and local unit bond-note indebtedness. In private business there is distinction between long term debt secured by mortgages or revenue bonds and temporary "working capital." In the last named field are included the major divisions of commercial, agriculture credit, consumer credit and installment loans.
Leroy Martin, a Raleigh banker, says recent tabulations show that within the past ten years commercial - agriculture credit has gone up from $9 billion to $29 billion; consumer credit from $6 billion to $37 billion, and installment credit from $3 billion to $29 billion. This increase from $18 billion to $95 billion does not include long time loans secured by real estate mortgages or other permanent assets, but embraces the three to thirty month notes, open or secured by chattel mortgages on expendable merchandise.

Just as the increased construction costs of school buildings and the higher interest rate means the State will get less building for its $15 million, the continuing increased interest rates on the several kinds of consumer credit means purchasers of automobiles, bedsteads, radios, refrigerators, television sets and such—including farm machinery—not only pay higher prices to begin with but pay in the aggregate almost one billion dollars more interest than they paid ten years ago.

EQUALITY—Ratification of the constitutional amendment effectuating the Pearsall Plan for operating the public schools imposes a burden of responsibility on counties which they have not assumed in the past.

Information obtained from sources which for obvious reasons do not want to be quoted, but believed to be authentic and reliable, is that many high schools in North Carolina fail to meet requirements for accreditation as "standard" high schools. Majority are non-white schools under the segregation policy, but there are a good many all-white schools which cannot make the grade.

It appears that some under grade white schools are in districts with Negro or Indian schools which do meet requirements. The local assignment act and provisions of the tuition grant and school closing acts, validated by the constitutional amendment, place major burden for equalizing opportunities for all pupils of all races on the county and municipal administrative units rather than on the State.

It is known that some people in the Department of Public Instruction are working on plans to have bi-racial committees formed in all local units through which complaints and requests may be channeled before final recourse to the courts. Sponsors of the idea for bi-racial review committees hope and believe that such approach will prevent a lot of trouble further along the line.

Main point is that responsibility is at local level, and county boards of commissioners and education cannot pass the buck to Raleigh. Local units through which they have been doing for the past decade or more—either for financing or for fixing policy of operation of the public schools.

Other Editors Are Saying... At Heart Of School System

(Greensboro Daily News)
Amidst the hullabaloo over the Supreme Court's school decision, relatively little attention is being paid to another problem which strikes straight at the heart of our public school system: What about our worsening teacher shortage and how can we go about relieving it?

A poll has been conducted by the Raleigh News and Observer among county superintendents over the state. The situation, they agree, is acute, especially in the rural areas. Their general conclusion is that current and increasing shortage of trained teachers could wreck rural education in North Carolina. Enrollment is soaring; comparatively few young people are going into the teaching profession, and the small number of teachers turned out by our colleges go in large degree to city school systems with local salary supplements.

Yet our school system, whatever it may be, can never be any better or more effective than the teachers who teach in it. Adequate physical facilities are indeed necessary; but it is the teacher who really makes a school.

deterioration which North Carolina had better face up to. Some way must be found to attract more teachers, to bring more young people, especially men, into the profession. Working conditions, community attitudes, requirements and exactions are all a part of the picture; but, basically, higher salaries are the answer. Teacher salaries, always far down and near the bottom of the line, have slipped even lower in comparison with the pay and future offered young people in other fields. If North Carolina wishes to get and keep trained, capable teachers, it is going to have to pay for them.

The segregation issue poses its own and added difficulties, which will undoubtedly affect the teacher situation as well. But, committed as we are to preservation of our public school system, we cannot and must not forget, that the teacher is at its heart and that a teacher-starved school system, cannot possibly be strong, stimulating and effective. When we repeatedly ask or hear asked: "What are we going to do about our schools?" we had better be thinking in terms of teacher supply as well as judicial interdictions.

Lesson In Political Education

by DON SCHLIENZY

Tops In N. Carolina.. But,

Another one of those Department of Commerce reports tells me that Pitt County leads all other North Carolina counties in the total value of products sold from the farm. At least it did in the recently completed 1954 farm census report.

Robeson and Johnston counties ranked second and third, state-wide, in that respect. But the garden spot of these United States appears not to be North Carolina.

Of the leading 100 counties listed, California counties not only lead the nation in value of farm products sold, but fourteen California counties were ranked in the top twenty.

And who held the first four positions in this listing?

Four California counties. Pitt County, the star in North Carolina's agricultural crown, ranked 69th in the list of 100 top farm producing counties of the nation. In the 1949 listing, neither Pitt nor any other Tar Heel county made the select circle.

Fresno County (Calif.) topped them all in 1954 with the sale of over $200 million in farm produce. Five other California counties individually sold well over $100 million from their farm land.

Compare those sky-high figures with Pitt's, which sold $31,343,562 worth of agricultural produce that year. It illustrates the vast room for improving the farm economy in this part of the country.

One can argue all they wish that the West Coast has necessary variations of climate and soil, but you can't get away from the fact that huge irrigation systems and variety of produce contribute immeasurably to their farmers' economic welfare.

The World Almanac reports California produces more citrus fruit and fresh vegetables than any other state. It is first in production of grapes, peaches, pears, apricots, olives, figs, lemons, avocados, walnuts, almonds, lettuce and melons; second in oranges. In 1954 it was first in barley, third in cotton. In 1955 it was the third-ranking sheep state and had over 3.5 million cattle, including 909,000 for milk. In addition, they boast a multiplicity of food processing plants.

I don't think it all "just happened".

Rich in its good soil, mild weather and long growing seasons, Eastern Carolina has all the prerequisites for agricultural wealth that haven't even been tapped.

It's satisfying to read that Pitt led all of North Carolina in its farm products during 1954, but the Fresno figures underscore a big gap between the two farm economies.

Notebook On Life

Biggest Small Businessman

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Ira I. Slomon has an old hobby for a millionaire. He likes to give away money.

Slomon, known to his friends as "The Glue King," is a kind of poor man's Rockefeller, but he likes to think of himself as "the biggest small businessman in America."

He keeps bags full of silver dollars in his country estate, his main factory, and his city apartment. He likes to distribute them to others—but on his own terms. Sometimes he slips a silver dollar into the hand of man he has talked to for five minutes. But he may know you for years and never offer you one.

"I give them to anyone who shows a sign of truthiness in him," he said. "I don't think of them as money—but as symbols of good will and a wish for good luck to someone who has done or said something worthwhile."

A dapper little man of 72 with squirrel-bright eyes, this silver-dollar philanthropist likes to wear checkered caps, tattered vests and yellow shoes. He looks like a retired vaudeville hooper—and that's what he is.

Ira I. Slomon—squeeze his initials together and you get $—is a graduate of the poverty-stricken Lower East Side and only had three years of schooling.

"But I always had a creative mind," he said. "I always liked to develop new things."

After a brief period as a song and dance man, he became a top ladies' hat salesman. In 1911 he turned his most bedroom into a laboratory and developed a new kind of millinery glue. This launched him on a third career.

It's a poor glue-maker who cannot make money stick to his fingers. Slomon has had no trouble in this respect.

He now makes 80 kinds of specialized adhesives—they stick together everything from feathers to metals—in three plants. Long ago he became a millionaire, and his hand-picked customers ranged from Lily Dache to the Pennsylvania Railroad. But for 45 years he has run his operation himself, refusing to hire even one salesman.

"I learned early in life to rely on myself," he said, "and I want to stay that way. I'd rather be (Continued on Page Ten)

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
LUKEWARM

In the Book of Revelation we find this statement made about the Church of the Laodiceans: "I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot. . . . So then, because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out of my mouth." All through the Bible we find this point of view set forth. Take your stand on one side of the line or the other. Don't straddle. Don't compromise. Be hot or cold—not lukewarm.

This position calls forth the enthusiasm of practically every generation of Bible readers. We can endure evil people if we know them to be evil, but the people who keep crossing back and forth, who will never take a stand on a moral issue and remain there—the issue is settled—such folks call forth our disdain and enmity.

There is, of course, no such thing as perfection in the world. Everyone finds himself at times vacillating on right issues. But there is quite a difference between acute lapses into dereliction which arise from weakness or folly and the studied attempt of some people always to be in a neutral position when moral issues are being discussed.

We like hot drinks and we like cold drinks, but lukewarm drinks produce nausea. Lukewarm people do the same. "I will spue thee out of my mouth," says the Good Book.

Jesse Jones Unveils A Hidden Story

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON The unhappy bank holiday of 1933 could have been avoided, if Franklin D. Roosevelt and Congressional Democrats had been willing to co-operate with Herbert Hoover between F.D.R.'s election and his inauguration.

Equally blameworthy for their refusal to state off the financial panic were the late J.P. Morgan, Henry Ford and Senator James O. Couzens of Michigan. This hitherto unpublished revelation is the most sensational story in a new book on the life and career of the late Jesse H. Jones of Houston, Tex., the architect of national recovery as Roosevelt's Chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Written by Bascom N. Timmons, a veteran Washington correspondent and Jones' literary executor, it might well be selected as the political biography of the year by the Pulitzer Prize judges.

Although a fascinating, romance of the big, blue-eyed and racy Texan, it is Jones' experiences in national finance and politics which will excite greatest interest. In fact, numerous secrets spilled by the Jones-Timmons combination may become issues in the Presidential campaign. For they present Hoover in a far better light than Roosevelt in those depression days.

DEPRESSION OF 1932 According to Timmons, "the natural turning point of the depression arrived in midsummer of 1932." Before creation of RFC in January, 1932, bank failures had amounted to $200,000,000 a month. Afterward, they fell to $10,000,000. Had the Democrats on Capitol Hill worked with Hoover during that period, and had the former President displayed greater economic audacity, it is the Jones-Timmons contention that the collapse would have been avoided or minimized.

Hoover proposed that Congress permit RFC to lend money to banks on the true worth of their securities rather than on their depressed value; to lend money for plant improvement for farm exports and for public works. Congress withheld the necessary authority.

F.D.R. WRONGFULLY TOOK CREDIT FOR REFORM Jones former Vice President Garner also believed that an essential step for restoration of public confidence was Federal guarantee of bank deposits. But Congress refused to enact this safeguard because F.D.R. was bitter; opposed it. He said to Garner: "It won't do, Jack. The weak banks will pull down the strong." Jones, Garner and the late Senator Vandenberg of Michigan conspired to ram through the bank insurance measure in May, 1933. F.D.R. signed it only reluctantly, although he subsequently took great credit for this reform.

After Roosevelt's election, Garner and "Joe" Robinson, then Majority Senate Leader, tried to obtain Roosevelt's approval of the Jones-Hoover banking program which Congress had rejected. But Roosevelt withheld approval and advanced no substitute remedies.

Wee Share For Dealer In Autos

By ELMER ROESSNER

If you bought a new car or truck during the first six months of this year, the profits did not give the dealer a weekend in Paris.

Not even Paris, Ky. The average profit per unit was $48, according to figures compiled by the National Automobile Dealers Association.

And that was before Federal taxes. The take-home-to-mama net was probably under $30.

The $48-before-taxes figure is based on the average new-car and truck sale of $4,822. So if you bought a $2,500 passenger car, the dealer's probable profit was only $25.

You may think the dealer sweetened his profits on used cars.

Guess again. Dealers' average gross loss on used cars per used car sale was $204.06. Their loss on used cars per new car sold was $353.59.

WHERE THE MONEY WENT These figures, which indicate an average net profit of 1 per cent before taxes, result from the association's analysis of reports from its membership. The analysis suggests the first six months of the year have been the most harrowing since the war.

And while the average dealer reported a 1 per cent gain, 23 per cent reported they had lost money during that period.

The average of $4,822 per sale was boosted by the inclusion of trucks which run higher than most passenger cars. On the average, there was a gross profit of $647. Of this, $626 less a few pennies went for expenses. These are the averages:

Warranty and delivery expenses—$46.22; Salesmen's compensation—$90.37; Other salaries, except labor costs—$216.10; Bonuses—$5.16; Tools and supplies—$16.13; Rent and related expenses—$44.77; Promotion, advertising, training—$36.60; Insurance—$15.88; Other expenses—$154.55.

These expenses include owners' salaries, a fortunate circumstance because at $48 a car many owners would otherwise be hungry. The net profit of $48 a car includes reserves to offset losses on repossessions.

USED CAR PICTURE DREARY The dealers' figures show that the average price obtained for a used car was $705, with the high-volume dealers doing better with an average of $755 and the low-volume merchants getting only $684.

The small fellows had to sell more used cars to keep going; they had to sell almost two used cars for every new one. The volume sellers sold five new cars for every six used ones. The big fellows moved their stock faster, too. They had only 20.4 per cent of their used cars in stock 30 days or longer; the little ones had 52.9 per cent of their cars on the lot for more than 30 days before sale.

The N.A.D.A., in releasing these figures, reported: "The only chance for a betterment of this unhappy situation now lies in an orderly liquidation of present inventories, and a strong upward turn of the market following new negotiations."

HERE ARE MORE CLUES TO BUSINESS TRENDS Shipment of finished steel products during the first half of this year set a new record—46,933,786 net tons—the American Iron and Steel Institute reports. Titanium has its uses but is not a miracle metal, the Illinois Institute of Technology reports. Titanium alloys cannot stand as much heat as certain other metals, it finds. . . . Factory furniture shipments ran 13 per cent ahead of year-ago levels during the first seven months of this year, says the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers.

The population of the U.S. will be at least 208,000,000 by 1975 and probably nearer to 230,000,000 according to Dr. Philip M. Houser, sociologist and former acting director of the Bureau of the Census.

MORE GEE—WIZ ITEMS IN BUSINESS NEWS A New Jersey-New York appliance chain is offering major appliances for no cash payment until February 15, 1957, and then 36 months to pay. . . . Dayton Rubber asked employees to guess how many different types of V-belts it makes. Answers ranged from 64 to 40,000 but nobody said 8,662, which was correct.

Christ Among the Churches

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 18:20; John 21:1-14; Revelation 1-3.

After His resurrection Jesus appeared for the seventh time to seven Apostles on the sea of Galilee.

Jesus asked if they had caught any fish and they said no, although they had been fishing all night.

Peter threw himself into the sea, swimming ashore, but the others brought in the ship with full nets.

"Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if any man hear My voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him."

MEMORY VERSE—Revelation 13:20.

Christ Among the Churches

JESUS PROMISES TO ALWAYS BE NEAR THOSE WHO LOVE HIM

Scripture—Matthew 18:20; John 21:1-14; Revelation 1-3.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THE PROMISE of Jesus Christ to be with them always "where two or three are gathered together in My Name," was made in Capernaum.

How comforting are His words while we are living in a world that seems full of conflict and turmoil? Let us remember them, and rely on His promise.

Jesus made 10 appearances to His Apostles after the Resurrection and His Ascension. The one recorded in John in today's lesson was the seventh, and we do not know when it took place, but it was at the Sea of Galilee, sometimes called the Sea of Tiberias.

MEMORY VERSE

"Behold, I stand at the door, and knock; if any man hear My voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with Me."—Revelation 3:20.

Seven of the Apostles were gathered together—Simon Peter, Thomas, Nathanael of Cana, and the two sons of Zebedee, James and John, and two others. Peter said he was going fishing, so the others said they would go, too.

As they neared the shore Jesus asked, "Children have ye any meat?" They answered, "No." "Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find, and the net became so filled that they were not able to draw it to shore.

The rest brought the ship in and they saw a fire had been made, and fish and bread spread out on the shore. Jesus told them to bring in the fish they had caught.

caught and they cooked the fish, and ate the bread. Why did the Apostles go fishing? It might be that this was a time of waiting, that the men were restless not knowing quite what to do as nearly two weeks had passed since the Resurrection and there were no plans made for the future.

However, Jesus appeared to them, and guided them. If He had not come to them, it is possible that they might have gone back to their former occupations, becoming fishermen again instead of preachers of the gospel. What a tragedy that would have been!

Revelation, written by John the beloved disciple, writes to the seven churches that are in Asia. "I, John who also am your brother, and in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ, was in the isle that is called Patmos, for the word of God, and for the testimony of Jesus Christ.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

Here we are, back again after our two weeks off (?), refreshed and rejuvenated and ready for more books, more stuff, and—well, almost said—more love. Anyway, there is plenty of that in the newest sensation just issued from the press by that irrepressible French lass, Mme. Francoise Sagan, who we have just started reading it and like it as well—if not better than—her first effort, which apparently was not just a flash in the pan. We'll give you a more detailed report on "A Certain Smile" at a later date—but can already assure you that it's worth an evening's reading. . . . Which is about all it will take to read, only 128 pages in all—if you can get an evening free, these days, that is.

Native Talent

North Carolina has its own young authors, let alone France in a new star on the literary horizon—to coin a phrase—who is the daughter of the editor of a newspaper which comes out of Raleigh. . . . She's Lucy Daniels, and her new novel, "Caleb, My Son," is creating quite a stir in literary circles. Lucy is only 22 years old—just about Francoise Sagan's age—and has lived most of her life in the South. She wisely chose a topic that certainly pertains to her region—a tragedy about American Negroes living in the South. From what the reviewers say she has done an excellent piece of work, which we hope to have reviewed in these columns soon. . . .

Inside And Out

Some months ago an unknown and uneducated Englishman named Colin Wilson bowled over British and European critics with a book about Modern Man called "The Outsiders." It concerns the "predicament" which civilized men find themselves in these days, and people like Edith Sitwell and Philip Toynbee found it terrific. . . . But according to American critic Newton Arvin, an English professor at Smith College, writing in this week's Times, it is a well-intentioned effort of a "youthful but quite untrained and uncritical intelligence" to deal with some painful contemporary problems. . . . quite falling to hit the mark. . . . And another Britisher bit the dust. . . .

Local Drama

We hope you've read about the local folks who are trying to revive a little theatre in Greenville currently getting ready for the production of "My Sister Eileen," scheduled for the second week in November, all going well. . . . Casting is not yet finished, and more men are needed—any member of the Greenville JC's, who are sponsoring the show, can tell you all about it. . . . The college drama group will put on "State of the Union" during election week—certainly a good choice for that time of year. . . .

Today's Review Your columnist contributes the following on a recent choice of The Fireside Theatre—the address is Garden City N.Y., if you want to join. . . .

TIGER AT THE GATES, By Jean Giraudoux. Trans. by Christopher Fry. New York: Oxford University Press, 1956.

"Tiger at the Gates" is an urbane and witty commentary on the inevitability of war in a civilized society. It is a translation of a play by Jean Giraudoux called "La Guerre de Troie n'aura Pas lieu," done in a sort of heightened prose that sounds more like poetry than some modern poetry does. It also sounds like Christopher Fry, author of "The Lady's Not For Burning" and "A Phoenix Too Frequent," among others who did the translating. . . .

"Tiger" first was produced in London in June, 1955, and came to Broadway later in the same year, where it had a very respectable run. It's about the imaginary events immediately leading up to the outbreak of the Trojan War, and contains a wonderful characterization of Helen of Troy who is portrayed as a beautiful, intelligent and not very sensitive girl who really has very little to do with the actual outbreak of the war. The "Tiger" is Destiny, which remains outside the Gates of War until the end of the play, when they open, despite Hector's efforts to keep them closed and through no fault of Helen herself. . . .

Hector, the Trojan captain who tries and fails to keep peace is the bitter focal point of the play. He looks at war as it really is: "the most sordid, hypocritical way of making all men equal." To the dead of war, he says, "Whatever you may be. . . we must ask you to forgive us, we, the deserters who survive you, we feel we have stolen two great privileges; I hope the sound of their names will never reach you; the warmth of the living body, and the sky." This is what the play talks about—the utter futility of war. And a very timely topic it is, too. . . .

BACKLOG OF CASES MEXICO CITY (AP)—Divorce cases are keeping the 15 civil courts of this federal district jammed. Records show that at any given time between six and seven thousand such cases are on file. . . .

U.S. cars and trucks being scrapped today have run an average 122,000 miles. . . .

...where you save does make a difference

It's a good feeling to have savings for any emergency. And where you save does make a difference—as over 16 million Americans know. They're enjoying important advantages by putting their money into insured Savings and Loan Associations. Excellent returns from your money is one advantage. Another is efficient service from men who know how to make your dollars work harder for you. And, of course, your money is safe. Your savings are protected by sound management and substantial reserves. They are insured up to $10,000 by the FSLIC—an agency of the U. S. Government. These are the reasons why Americans are putting more of their savings account dollars into insured Savings and Loan Associations than anywhere else! Start enjoying these worthwhile advantages at your nearby insured Association. Drop in tomorrow.

What Is Fallout?

FALLOUT CLOUD from the first H-bomb blast, towering 25 miles high, begins to drift off to the left after nuclear device, rated in millions of tons of TNT, was touched off in mid-Pacific in November 1952. If the cloud could have been magnified, it would have looked much like the inset, with microscopic radioactive particles clinging to larger earth particles which were blown skyward by the blast. From tests such as this, the Federal Civil Defense Administration learns the basic facts about fallout necessary to plan future defenses against it. (U. S. Air Force Photo)

WEATHER MAN at Federal Civil Defense Administration headquarters at Battle Creek, Mich., plots areas affected by simulated fallout during Operation Alert 1956. Radiation fallout predictions, based on twice-daily nationwide high-altitude wind observations by the Weather Bureau, are plotted daily by an assortment of government agencies at all levels as routine preparations for the day when those winds might be carrying real fallout. (FCDA Photo)

TIPS FOR SURVIVAL

FCDA Offers Practical Defense Against Fallout

In a split second during the pre-dawn hours of a morning in November 1952, radioactive fallout came of age as a potential hazard to every living thing.

Since then, millions of words have been written and spoken about it. We are told that it cannot be detected by any of the human senses, only by radiation detection devices. It can hitch a ride on the wind for hundreds of miles from a nuclear blast, settle to earth even in remote places and make entire areas temporarily uninhabitable.

BUT WHAT, ACTUALLY, is fallout? Can its movement be predicted? And what can people do to protect against it? Fallout is nothing more than tiny dust particles blasted into the air when a nuclear weapon's fireball intersects the earth's surface. This material is then made radioactive by the fireball, and thus carries dangerous radiation to wherever the dust falls.

By plotting high-altitude winds, weather men can predict the area of fallout, and tell approximately where it will land. Radiological monitoring would then establish specific fallout patterns.

People can protect themselves mainly by staying under cover, and tuning a battery-operated radio to emergency civil defense frequencies for expert instructions. A basement makes a fair shelter, an old-fashioned root cellar an excellent one. This is because only 1/5,000th of the radiation that would hit a person in the open will penetrate three feet of earth.

MOST IMPORTANT, remember that fallout leaves no margin for errors, or amateurs. For example, just because the surface wind is blowing from a "safe" direction doesn't mean that the winds above 10,000 feet—which would usually dominate the direction of fallout—weren't blowing some other way. Only the experts have the equipment to predict fallout areas.

RADIOLOGICAL monitor at Springfield, Ill., food store uses "survey meter" to measure "fallout" during Operation Alert 1956. Thousands of these and similar instruments are being stockpiled, and personnel are being trained by the Federal Civil Defense Administration against the day when they would provide the only way to detect "hot" areas and warn people to avoid contaminated articles. (Photo by J. L. Green, Department of Public Health, Springfield, Ill.)

FALLOUT shelter designed by the Federal Civil Defense Administration would provide almost complete protection from fallout at low cost if built as a do-it-yourself project. It would also be a welcome tornado and hurricane haven. (FCDA Photo)

Forecasters See Good Chance No Hurricane Visit

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The world's top hurricane forecaster, Gordon Dunn, said today there's a good chance that none of these tropical horrors will visit the United States this year.

Good news? Well, not to everybody. Florida hasn't had a big storm since 1950 and it could use the torrential rains that always accompany them. Water tables are far below normal.

And Richard Simpson, head of the National Hurricane Research Project, wants to see some hurricanes. The research project, launched this year, is intended to perfect long-distance hurricane forecasts and to find some way to divert or weaken the more dangerous tropical storms.

"Obviously," said Simpson, "the amount of information you get depends on the number of specimens you have to work with. We can't do much unless we see some storms."

Most persons along the Atlantic Seaboard will be delighted, however, with the cautious statement by Dunn, chief storm forecaster in the Miami Weather Bureau, that conditions are not right for hurricanes.

"We might have another hurricane or two before the season ends," he said, "but there's a good possibility that none will reach the U.S. mainland."

"That's not a definite forecast, of course. I'm just optimistic about it."

If it happens, it will be the first year since 1937 that no hurricane crossed a U.S. coastline.

And it will be a welcome relief after 1955, when hurricanes killed 218 persons and took a property damage toll of more than a billion dollars in this country.

The major factor in the lack of big storms this year, Dunn said, is that the "westerlies," which normally blow through the temperate zone, have shifted southward, dipping into the subtropics.

These high-altitude winds have brought with them cooler air and low pressure which discourages the formation of hurricanes. Tropical storms feed on warm, moist air and high pressure.

And if a hurricane does form, Dunn said, the westerlies "will tend to shunt it away from the coast."

So far this year, there have been five tropical storms but only one real hurricane, Betsy, and it was a comparatively weak one. It veered away into the Atlantic after once threatening to hit the Florida coast.

Richer Because He Didn't Steal

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Clarence Clifford Wilson was $1,500 richer today because of a 10-cent fried pie he didn't steal.

A district court jury awarded that judgment to Wilson, climaxing his damage suit against the Honest John grocery. The Oklahoma city man told jurors he was "very embarrassed" three years ago when a store clerk accused him of stealing the pie and had him thrown in jail.

Even though another jury later cleared him of the crime, Wilson said people still referred to him as the "Fried Pie Man."

Lost His Case To Lie-Detector

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP)—A Hagerstown motorist said he was innocent of hitting another car and driving off, and to prove it he offered to take a lie detector test.

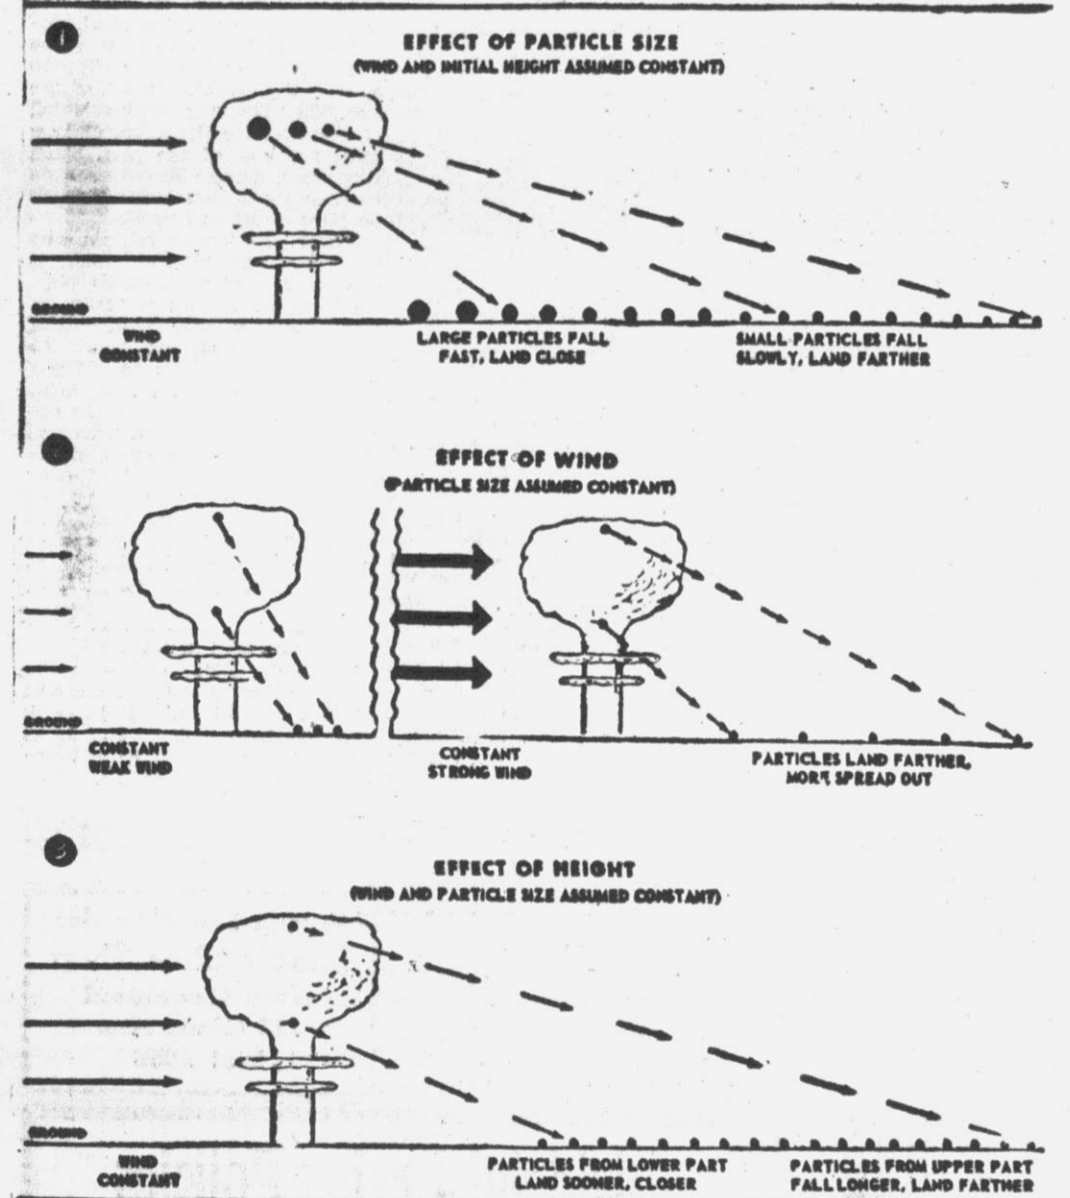

So Joseph Bitner, 20, took the test. Magistrate Paul Ottinger gave him the bad news. The evidence was overwhelmingly against him, Ottinger said.

Bitner was fined $50 and ordered to pay the driver of the other car $151 damages or serve 60 days in jail.

Word Is Out . . . Keep Head Down

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—The order around Lansing's old city hall is "keep your head down," until the new city hall is built next door.

Yesterday, a crowbar slipped from a workman's hand, smashed through a window in the old city hall and plunged down an empty stairway, no one was hurt. Earlier, a hot rivet shot through an office window, just missing several employees.

FACTORS AFFECTING FALLOUT distribution over countryside downwind from a nuclear blast are the size of the earth particles carrying the radioactivity, their altitude and the speed and direction of the wind. Generally, in the United States, the winds which would dominate the direction of fallout would be the strong, usually west-to-east winds at about 40,000 feet. For this reason, the Federal Civil Defense Administration warns that only weather experts, with their methods of tracking high-altitude winds, can predict with reasonable accuracy the area to be affected by fallout. Men with radiation monitoring instruments are also required to determine whether an area is "safe" from radio active fallout after a nuclear attack. (FCDA Photos)

Defiance Of Court Order Is Nearly Raised In Texas

By BEM PRICE Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas has raised a point which lies at the heart of the school integration problem. What happens when there is open defiance of a federal court order?

So far the question has been academic, but in the case of Mansfield, Tex., it came close to being raised in concrete form.

A federal court ordered the Mansfield school board to stop discriminating against the admission of students on the basis of race. The practical effect of this order was to decree the admission of 12 Negro students to Mansfield High School.

When school opened, however, a mob gathered and threatened violence if any Negroes actually sought to enroll.

Shivers then sent six Texas Rangers to Mansfield to help maintain law and order, instructing them to transfer "any scholastics, white or colored, whose attendance or attempts to attend Mansfield High School would be reasonably calculated to incite violence."

In essence, the governor said that if violence threatened to accompany Negroes' entry to the school, they should be sent elsewhere. The Negroes dropped their attempt—at least temporarily.

Shivers denied this was defiance of the federal court, but added, "Should the resulting actions be construed as contempt of the federal court, I respectfully suggest that the charge be laid against the governor and not the local people."

So what happens? Nothing at the moment. Federal courts are blind until there is official notification of a violation. Until the interested parties—the Negroes' lawyer or the school board's—come before the court and inform it the non-discrimination order is not being obeyed, the court will take no action.

The following people were charged with gambling, fined $5 and costs:

Dowdy Gardner, Grimesland; Joe Copeland, Washington, Route 3; Essie Cooper, Pactolus; Zeno Ward, Pactolus; and Willie Wilson, Pactolus.

Motorists Urged To Display Care

FARMVILLE — Chief L. T. Lucas and Mayor Charles Edwards have issued a request for more careful driving on streets near the new Farmville Primary School.

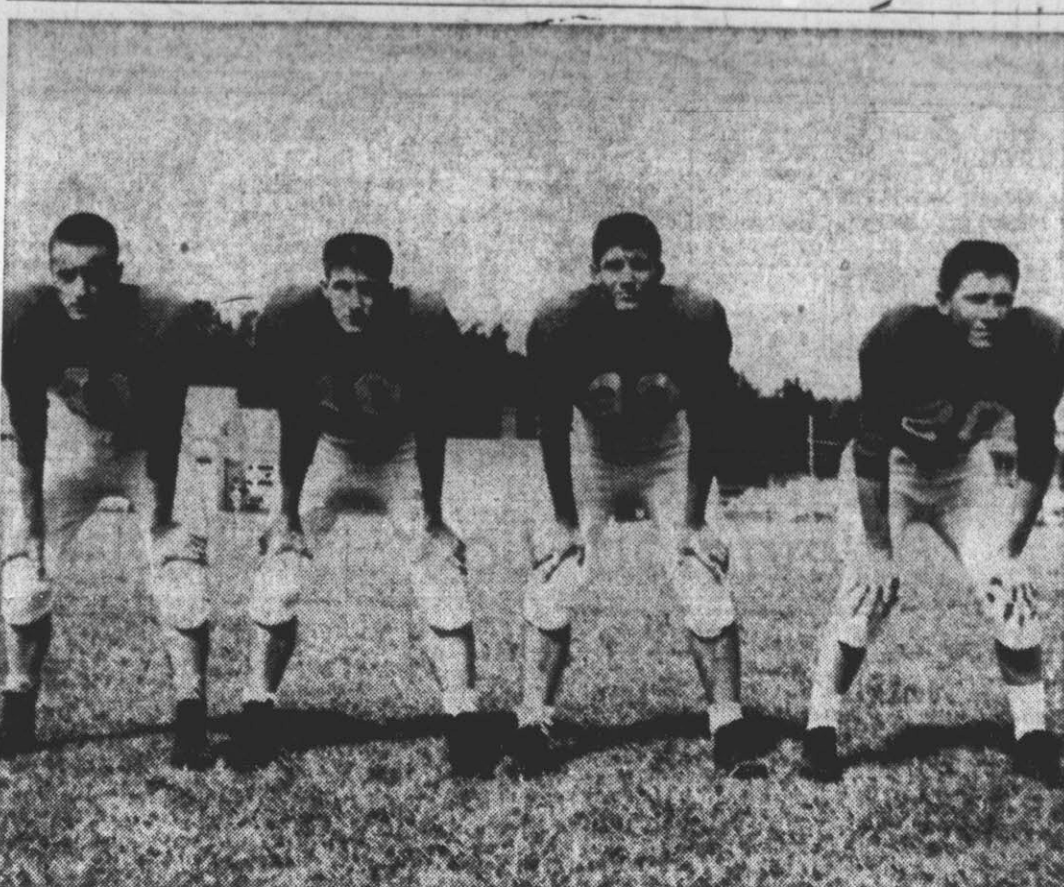

The request came after several complaints had been made about speeding on the streets near the school. Chief Lucas pointed out that the situation was especially bad on Home Avenue, but also said that drivers using Grimmersburg, Wilson, Pine and Pitt streets in the vicinity of the school should be more careful.

Jacksonville Host To GHS For Northeastern Opener

Phantoms Rated Underdogs By 2 Touchdowns

BACKFIELD POWER—Robert Howell, Robin Wilfong, Mack Roebuck and Billy Sermons, Greenville high school's first unit backfield, will be part of a double-edged offense used by Coach Guy Lewis tonight at Jacksonville.

Ranked a two-touchdown underdog tonight, the Greenville high school footballers will go into the Jacksonville field "determined to win," according to Coach Guy Lewis.

Throughout the season, Lewis has lauded the Phantoms' spirit and drive and he recently stated that his boys will be trying to prove their bottom-place Northeastern conference ranking wrong.

Tonight's contest will be the first conference game of the season for GHS. They dropped a 31-0 affair last week against AAA Goldsboro.

Edison is a hard-running senior fullback, who also punts. Lanier is the fastest man on the team and was a good broken-field runner last season.

WADE JORDAN

Norwood Crawford, veteran quarterback for the Cardinals, will be still another thorn in the GHS defensive. He was an outstanding passer in 1955 and is expected to field an air attack that is among the best in the loop.

Top defensive backs for the Phantoms are expected to be Billy Sermons, Mack Roebuck and Jimmy Kelly.

The Greenville offensive is expected to be a double edged affair tonight. Last week, the G-Men ran well, but were unable to get their passing gear into operation.

Leading the running game again this week, is expected to be Sermons, an All-Conference fullback in 1955, Robert Howell, Jimmy Kelly and Robin Wilfong.

Edwin Wilkerson and Billy Cox will be called upon frequently when the Phantoms move into their aerial offensive.

A veteran and is a candidate for All-Conference honors this fall.

Pennant Pressure Is Now Squarely On The Dodgers

By ED WILKS The Associated Press

The nerve-wracking pennant pressure Brooklyn's world champions have been so sure would make Milwaukee crack, today is squarely on the Dodgers—not the Braves.

Milwaukee never looked more like the National League champion than it did today.

It was hustle guy Johnny Logan banged up with a sore back and out of the lineup when the Braves were in Brooklyn this week, who complained the loudest about how the Dodgers were being called "the old pros."

"We," said Logan, "are the young pros. We can play under pressure too."

He was right. After knocking off Don Newcombe despite a 3-0 deficit to gain a split in the series at Brooklyn Wednesday, the Braves wheeled into Philadelphia last night and twice came bustling from behind to sweep a two-night double-header from the Phillies.

They did it the hard way—winning 3-2 in 13 innings, and 4-3 in 12. Third-place Cincinnati defeated Pittsburgh 5-4, falling 3 1/2 games behind Milwaukee.

Hank Aaron, with four runs batted in for the night, tripled home the winning run for Milwaukee in the opener. And when his 25th home run failed to get the job done in the nightcap 11th, he nailed it for sure in the 12th with a sacrifice fly for Warren Spahn's 20th major league victory.

Bobby Thomson, fined $100 by Manager Fred Haney for a wild attempted steal of home against Brooklyn, wiped the fine off the books with a peg that nailed a runner at the plate in the opener 12th—then did it again in the nightcap ninth.

St. Louis defeated New York 5-0 in the only other NL game.

In the American, Mickey Mantle's first September home run, his 48th, gave New York's pennant-bound Yankees a 3-2 victory over Kansas City. Baltimore bounced Cleveland 4-1, and southpaw Billy Pierce became the league's first 20-game winner since 1954 by beating Boston 4-3 in 10 innings as Chicago reclaimed third place. Detroit beat Washington 7-2.

The Braves, now 10-10 for the season with the Phillies, were down 2-0 in the first game as Jack Meyer one-hit them for six frames. Then Danny O'Connell singled, Aaron got an RBI double and Eddie Mathews hit a run-producing single to tie it in the seventh. Taylor Phillips, who relieved Bob Trowbridge, gave up seven hits in eight innings, but struck out six and left eight runners stranded for his fifth victory.

who had three hits, doubled home two to tie off Robin Roberts in the fifth. Aaron's homer was matched by Ted Kazanski's shot in the 11th off Spahn, but reliever Ben Flowers and Curt Simmons then walked the bases full to set up Aaron's sacrifice fly in the 12th.

A pinch single by Ray Jablonski and a single by Frank Robinson drove in the tying and winning runs for the Redlegs in the ninth inning at Pittsburgh. George Crowe's pinch homer had helped get two in the seventh for a 3-all tie, but the Pirates broke it in their seventh on Frank Thomas' 22nd home run.

Wilmer Mizell gave just four hits for his second straight shut-out while the Cardinals, winning their sixth in a row, got a two-run triple from Whitey Lockman and homers from Rip Repulski and Ken Boyer.

Mantle, who doubled ahead of Yogi Berra's two-run single in the first, homered in the third for Whitey Ford's 18th victory—3-2 in 13 innings, and 4-3 in 12.

Third-place Cincinnati defeated Pittsburgh 5-4, falling 3 1/2 games behind Milwaukee.

Hank Aaron, with four runs batted in for the night, tripled home the winning run for Milwaukee in the opener. And when his 25th home run failed to get the job done in the nightcap 11th, he nailed it for sure in the 12th with a sacrifice fly for Warren Spahn's 20th major league victory.

12 for their seventh in a row. Paul Foytack won his 13th with a five-hitter.

Pierce's Big 20th Win Came At Right Time

CHICAGO (AP)—The goal of 20 victories, every major league pitcher's ambition, was realized by Billy Pierce of the Chicago White Sox at the right time, he says: "Just when we really needed it."

The brilliant left-hander, who has flirted with the mark twice in the past, came through yesterday with a 4-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox in 10 innings.

Pierce had no doubts about reaching the magic number when the White Sox opened their three-game series with Boston. "I guess I'll make it this year," he said, "but this is the club I'd like to get it against. They're pretty close to us."

That was Tuesday when the White Sox were tied for second with Cleveland and Boston was in hot pursuit. By the time Pierce's turn came, the Red Sox had taken two straight from the White Sox to move into third place, dropping Chicago to fourth.

Pierce made good, pitching Chicago back into third and becoming the first White Sox hurler to win 20 games since left-hander Thornton Lee did it back in 1941 with a 22-11 record.

Pierce, 29, came close to the goal in 1953 but he faltered late in the season and had to settle for an 18-12 record. The following season he was a poor 9-10 but came up when a 15-10 mark last year when he did some of his greatest pitching.

ECC, VPI Both Favorites, Both Rated As Underdogs

By BILLY ARNOLD Reflector Sports Editor With reports from the Associated Press blasting out the supposed weakness of the VPI football team at this point in the early season, with both Coach Jack Boone and Coach Frank Moseley lamenting several serious injuries, while each maintaining that each team is "potentially" strong, predictions as to the outcome of the ECC-VPI game would seem ridiculous.

The East Carolina camp came out with the statement this week that the Gobblers would be favored to "trample Coach Boone's crew by "three or four touchdowns" but also added that the Pirates are looking forward to the big opportunity and are confident. From Bluefield, Gobbler Coach Moseley has been waiting about the loss of his star quarterback and several key players and has pointed out that his team has been dwindled down to a mere 28 men.

Both teams, it would seem, are demanding the underdog position while loudly snouting that they will probably win.

Odds Against ECC Despite the numerous injuries reported in the VPI camp of late, the tough Virginia team definitely has the favored role. Coach Moseley's crew is experienced, big fast and has the depth that a "big" school must have in order to compete with such teams as Virginia, Clemson, South Carolina and Richmond. Also, the fact that VPI has been ranked to take the Virginia championship and has been given a good chance to take the Southern Conference crown, cannot be ignored.

Moseley, of course, must set the stage for a possible defeat. It would be somewhat embarrassing should the Gobblers suffer defeat at the hands of "the little teachers' college from Greenville."

Then, too, East Carolina has been rated stronger this season than ever before. Boone's boys are the natural underdogs, but many people are expecting an ECC win tomorrow night. Therefore, the Bucs are in almost the same predicament that Moseley is in.

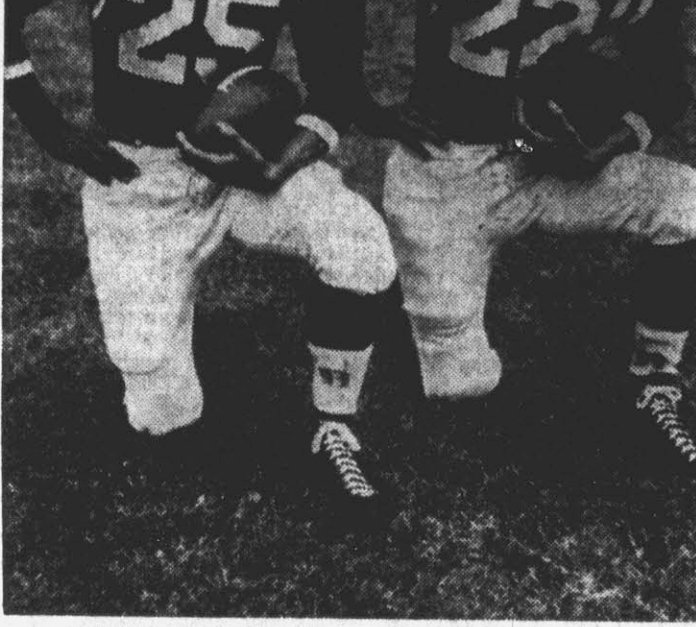

Naturally, with all the crying towel publicity from both camps, the team that wins will have done so "despite the disadvantages of injuries, inexperience, etc. etc."

Bucs Left At 7:30 East Carolina's team departed from Greenville at 7:30 this morning for Bluefield, W. Va. Coach Boone took a party of 41, including assistant coaches Earl Smith and Emory. Larry Howell, freshman import from Monroe, may see action as a starting tackle.

Expected to start for the Bucs are Bill Helms, Ray Peurington, Ray Overton, Jerry Brooks, Aley Faircloth, Dick Cherry, Jim Henderson, Bobby Perry and Bob Maynard. The guard positions, upset by the injury of Bucky Dennis, will probably be manned by Dick Monds, Ken Burgess and Ed

Despite the confusing tactics of modern football publicity, tomorrow's game will be a noteworthy one and an important one, regardless of who wins. It marks the first time in history that a Southern Conference team has met East Carolina on the gridiron.

PIRATE HALFBACKS—Jim Henderson (25) and Bobby Perry (22), veteran halfbacks for the East Carolina Pirates, will see plenty of action tomorrow night when the Pirates journey to Blue Field, W. Va., to battle Southern Conference foe V. P. I. Perry is a former Greenville high school griddler and a junior at ECC.

CHAPTER 32

"It's a risky business, your going alone into the Indian camp at such a time," Blake pointed out to Kinney.

"Sure it's risky. But it's the only way—the only chance there is. To save Narcissa, I mean, and maybe do more than that. And I figure I can handle the situation."

"You have my permission to try," Blake agreed. "Under the circumstances, I can't do anything else, and I appreciate what you are attempting. If we had ammunition with which to fight a war, or even one good battle, it might be a different story," he added meaningly.

Kinney shook his head regretfully. "I know what you mean," he agreed. "And while you haven't said so, Major, I figure that this is all my fault, our being caught short the way we are. Like I told you, the invoices showed everything shipped as ordered. But when it comes to unloading, those supplies we needed most weren't in the wagons. I've sent a mighty hot letter back, and men to try and trace where the boxes might have been side-tracked. Providin' they were."

"What do you mean?"

"Quien sabe?" Kinney shrugged. "Such things don't just happen by accident."

"And we're faced with trouble and nothing to put in our guns?" McKinsty interjected grimly.

"That seems to be the size of it, Captain," Kinney agreed.

"Which is just one more reason why I aim to try and stop this thing short of a real bustout!" He looked around, nodding.

"Since you're agreeable, Major, I won't waste any more time. I'm starting now!"

"And he's gone, McKinsty reported to Eklund, a few minutes later. Technically, since he was an officer and Eklund a prisoner, he supposed that he shouldn't visit him without permission from the major. On the other hand, Eklund was his friend, and with as vital an interest in what was transpiring as any man could have. Also, if he were to ask permission, McKinsty knew that it would be granted.

Eklund looked at him gravely. He'd had time to do a lot of thinking since being locked up, and now things were beginning to fall into place, events fitting as in a pattern.

"Bill," he said, "I'm a prisoner—and held under several mighty serious charges. But your coming here this way makes me sure of what I've figured all along—that you're my friend!"

"You're right about that," McKinsty agreed. "And I'm proud to call you mine, Doc. As for these accusations against you—well, all I can say is that, if I was in charge here, I'd take a different course."

"Thanks. Now I can go ahead and talk. I suppose the wires have been cut?"

"Within the last hour, yes. It looks like a mighty bad situation, and getting worse. The only hope I can see is in Kinney—and ordinarily I'd think he was a mighty shaky stick to lean on."

"There's no hope in him," Eklund agreed quietly. "I'll give him credit for one thing, Bill. He's gone out there to try and save Narcissa, because I guess that, in his way, he thinks a lot of her. And he figures he can rescue her merely by sayin' the word. You see, he's the man the chief takes orders from — or he has, up to now."

"You're suggestin' something that I've been doing a lot of wonderin' about," McKinsty said. "What's the rest of it?"

"Kinney's been running guns and whiskey to the Indians. I know because I helped do it. At least with the whiskey. I balked when it came to guns, and that's why he turned me in to the major, like he threatened. I don't know just how far he'd aimed to go, but considerin' that ammunition and other needed supplies haven't come through for the army, I figure he was going all the way."

"That pretty well jibes with what I'd suspected. But why, if he's got that much influence there, do you say there's no hope in him?"

"Because the situation isn't what it was. Oates was runnin' guns for him, and when he was caught, Kinney tried to double-cross him and get him killed. He figured that Oates wouldn't be of any more use to him; also that he might talk under pressure. It didn't work. Oates got away, and he's rememberin' that double cross. He's pushed things far and pretty fast. Which shows he has ability and the ear of the chief. There'll be a show-down when Kinney gets there. And one way or another, Oates will win."

McKinsty eyed him in horror. "You make it sound as logical as the rules of war," he groaned.

"But, good lord, man, don't you see what this means? If Oates wins that showdown, it's not only the finish for Narcissa, but for all of us! We've nothing to fight with, and they'll go all out!"

"Unless they can be stopped, before it gets started," Eklund agreed quietly.

For the last few minutes, McKinsty had emulated his superior, striding up and down the confines of the guardhouse, while the lantern smoked on a table. Now he checked.

"How do you mean, stopped?" he demanded. "If Dolf Kinney can't do it, who can?"

Eklund's smile was gentle, calculating, while he remained seated and drummed on the edge of the table with his fingers.

"Maybe nobody," he conceded. "It won't be easy. But I figure that there's a chance. I'd like to try, Bill."

"You!" McKinsty collapsed in to another chair opposite. "You really think there's a chance that you could do something—if you were loose to try?"

"I think it's the best, and may be the only chance, for everybody," Eklund agreed. "I'm a doctor. Bill. The only medico in this whole country now. And there are certain factors that might be on

Dr. Bond Helps Prepare Plans For Science Fair

Dr. Austin D. Bond of the East Carolina department of science met with public school personnel in Columbus County Tuesday of this week in Whiteville to assist in mapping plans for a science fair to be held there later during the school year.

At a workshop and conference Dr. Bond discussed "Values of a Local Science Fair and How to Plan for It." Others participating in the discussion were B. D. Dunn, supervisor of Columbus County schools, and Mrs. Anne F. Barefoot, science teacher.

Schools throughout the state, Dr. Bond stated, are now organizing local fairs in which students of science will enter exhibits and compete for awards. Winners in these events become eligible to participate in district fairs sponsored annually by the North Carolina Academy of Science throughout the state. Final event in the series organized by the Academy is a state-wide science fair in the spring at State College, Raleigh, where winners are chosen for national competition.

be guilty of one or both, with the stakes a lot more important. Do I just let you out of here, or do I go with you?"

"For the present, you'd better come along with me," Eklund decided. "Not the Indian camp, Bill, but to town. I have a hunch that I want to investigate, before doing anything else."

First Presbyterian Announcements

The General Meeting of the Women of the Church will be held Monday at 8 p.m. in the Church Parlor. Mrs. H. H. Bryant, president, will give a report on the Synodical Training School which she attended in Raleigh.

The Men of the Church will meet Wednesday at 6:45 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall. Mr. Ed Waldrop will speak on the relationship between civic clubs and the church. The supper will be served by Circle No. 2, Mrs. J. G. Clark, chairman.

The Session's Committee on Christian Education, F. B. Johnson, chairman, will meet Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in the Church Parlor.

Two weeks from Sunday is Rally Day in the church. The theme will be "Home and Church—Growing Together." The church cannot fulfill its mission except by working through Christian homes and having the active support of whole families. The Christian home cannot bring its members to maturity in Christ without the constant inspiration, instruction and support of the church.

The Senior High and the Pioneer Fellowships will meet Sunday at 6 p.m. for supper and vespers. Dr. S. M. Walter will speak to the seniors on the topic "What You Cannot Do Without." The Pioneer program will be "The Trials of a Pioneer."

The Westminster Fellowship of East Carolina College will meet at the Manse, 401 E. 9th Street, Monday afternoon at 5:30 for vespers, fellowship and supper.

The choir will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. for rehearsal.

Tourists May Be Taken For Ride

MONTEREY, Mex. (AP)—Private interests plan to build a cable car line from here to the top of famed Saddle Mountain as a tourist attraction. The scheduled time of the ride is 20 minutes.

The head of the sponsoring group said the idea came while visiting Rio de Janeiro where there is a similar line to Sugar Loaf Mountain.

Driver Must Be Able To Show Registration Card

The North Carolina Motor Vehicle Registration Card must be carried while driving and be subject to inspection by the Highway Patrolmen or any peace officer.

Corporal C. E. Whitfield of the State Highway Patrol, announced today that in the very near future highway checkpoints would be used in an effort to check for registration cards, in addition to the usual license check.

The registration card is the pocket-size blue card received yearly from the Department of Motor Vehicles and states the make, style, motor number, and so forth. But more important, it is your proof of ownership.

Corporal Whitfield said: "If you are stopped by a patrolman and cannot produce your registration card, he will take down your license number and write you a summons to appear in court. When you go before the judge if you can show him that the license number on your registration card is the same as the number the patrolman wrote down, then your troubles are over. If you can't produce a valid card, then your troubles are just beginning."

The object behind the registration card check is to make it easier for the Highway Patrol to trace stolen cars. They hope to make motorists registration card-conscious. If they are able to accomplish this, then anyone stopped and not having a card would probably be driving a stolen car.

"If motorists were as good about carrying cards as they are about carrying their licenses, the mounting stolen car problem would be cut to a minimum," said Whitfield.

Police Fire On Fleeing Convict

NEW YORK (AP)—Gunfire cracked on staid Staten Island yesterday as dozens of police fired at least 100 shots during a wild, two-hour chase to capture an escaped prisoner.

The fugitive and three law officers were wounded in the melee, and another policeman suffered a heart attack.

It all started with Henry Bryant, 28-year-old ex-convict, being held in a Richmond County Court-house detention cell awaiting a lawyer to defend him on an assault and burglary charge.

Bryant, a Negro, asked to be taken to a washroom on the second floor. In the washroom, he knocked correction officer Max Rudtz to the floor, escaped through a window and boarded a bus.

Rudtz and Deputy Sheriff Russell Johnson, 46, were close behind in an auto. The officers boarded the bus. In a scuffle which terrified passengers, Bryant grabbed Rudtz's gun and fired several shots. One bullet struck Johnson in the stomach.

Bryant leaped from the bus. Meanwhile, police throughout the island — across the bay from Manhattan — had descended on the normally quiet St. George section. Residents took cover as police bullets followed Bryant, who darted in and out of back yards.

Bryant, a former amateur boxer, finally was cornered in a garage in New Brighton. Police pumped bullets into the garage until Bryant, bleeding from an arm wound, surrendered and pleaded: "Leave me alone. I ain't got the gun any more."

Weather Is Perfect For New Fall Attire

By MARTHA JANE PIERCE

Greenville High School "Old Man Weather" timed its just right last Friday for the new skirts and sweaters to make their fall debut at the first game of the season.

MARTHA

Since football has always been associated with cold weather, no one wished to appear at the game in cotton dresses. Despite the bad weather last Friday night, a Phantoms' first kick-off of the season. After the game there was a dance in the high school gym sponsored by the Student Council Association.

Leaving tonight for the Washington-New Bern football game are seven juniors. Lillian Moye, who will be driving Cynthia Cranford's car, Cynthia Cranford, Barbara Davis, and Judy Jolly are those who will be going. Beverly Dunn, Milly Bowden, and Ray Lane are also going. Ray Lane, a newcomer from Washington, is staying for the weekend with Jenny Fowle.

A new system of notifying pastors has been put in effect by the Pitt Memorial Hospital and the Greenville Ministerial Association. Secretary of the Association, Reverend Malloy Owen stated that a postcard would be filled out by the hospital registrar when a patient is admitted and mailed to the patient's pastor. The patient's name and the date will be placed on one side and the pastor's name will go on the other side.

This new system serves a twofold purpose. First, it will save the preacher needless trips to the hospital once a day or at least once every other day to see if a member of his church has been admitted, when a great deal of the time no one has. Also, the pastor will know, within a 24 hour period, that a member has been admitted.

The new system was introduced to the Association by its President, the Reverend C. C. Cribb, who borrowed the idea from the new Cape Fear Valley Hospital in Fayetteville. The plan was readily accepted by the Pitt Hospital and will be put into use immediately.

CROMWELL, Okla. (AP)—A mud-loving pig just couldn't stand being all spick and span after winning a blue ribbon at the county fair. Riding in the back seat of his owner's car, the porker started wriggling out of a window. Rayford C. Wakefield, the driver and owner, and a friend tried to corral the pig.

The car suddenly careened out of control into a ditch. The rear door of the heavily-damaged car flew open and out scrambled the pig—right into a mudhole.

SINK AND DRAINBOARD HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—Someone finally stole the kitchen sink—and the drainboard, too. Lewis Brunner reported to police that someone broke into a house he was dismantling and stole the sink and the drainboard. He valued them at $200.

Annual Work Begins At Belvoir-Falkland

By ANNE HARRIS
Belvoir-Falkland School
The Senior Class are now busily working on their 1957 annual, "The Clapper." They are selling ads for their annual to the various business concerns in Greenville, Tarboro, Farmville, and other surrounding communities. Among their other planned projects for the year is their senior play which they will present about the last of November.

The Junior Class has begun to work on that "all family hard task" of raising money for the Junior-Senior Banquet to be held next spring in honor of the Seniors. Last Thursday Charles Doak, a magazine salesman, came from Raleigh to give the Juniors some helpful "sales talk" on selling magazines. The class began to sell the magazines on that date and will continue to do so until Thursday, September 20. They are hoping to reach their $750 goal, and as usual, each student wants to be the high salesman who will receive as a prize a 17 jewel watch or two Dixie Classic tickets. They are also having a jackpot among themselves for the purpose of "boosting" better magazine sales.

The Juniors are now picking out their Junior play which will be presented the first of October. They also decided upon another fund-raising project which is the "Fall Hop" to be held in the Falkland Community Building on Saturday night, September 15, from 8 until 11:30 P.M. with a 25 cent admission.

The Sophomore Class met on last Thursday when they discussed possible projects for the year. They also elected officers who are as follows: president, Mackie Turner; vice president, Marie Carraway; secretary, Dora Ann Brown; treasurer, Betty Lou Nelson; reporter, Charlie Strickland; Student Council representative, Nellie Ruth Gwaltney; annual representative, Allen Harris. Class advisor is Mrs. Dorothy Hardy.

10B—president, James Joyner; vice president, Bill Windham; secretary, Gall Garbis; reporter, Alberta Manning; Student Council representative, Mitchell Wooten; annual representative, Janice Faye Corbett. The 10B homeroom teacher is Mrs. Dorothy Gurganus.

The ninth grade students of both Belvoir and Falkland have now become acquainted with each other enough to elect the students that they think would best meet the qualifications for their class officers in their first year of high school. They are: 9A—president, Cobby Deans; vice president, Bobby Allen; secretary, Sadie Moore; treasurer, Roadrick Anderson; reporter, Jerry Little; Student Council representative, Annie Mae Faye Wade. Mr. J.T. Cobb is the 9A class advisor.

9B president, Linda Smith; vice president, Marie Harrell; secretary-treasurer, Brenda Windham;

Student Council representative, Carol Anderson; annual representative, Pattie Moore. The homeroom teacher for 9B is Mrs. Evelyn Finch.

Friday night the Senior Class sponsored a closed "Welcome Freshmen Dance" in the high school auditorium. Approximately seventy-five people present enjoyed dancing by the soft music of records.

All enjoyed refreshments which consisted of drinks, vanilla cupcakes topped with fluffy white icing, several kinds of cookies, and potato chips.

Chaperones for the dance were Mrs. Ed Switzer and Mr. and Mrs. O.H. Forrest.

"Maybe that sounds nutty," he added, smiling. "But you should be so nutty, too!"
Now the dean of his industry, Slomon often acts as a consultant for large corporations. Even his competitors like to ask his advice.

"There's a revolution going on in the field," he volunteered. "Before long men and women will be going around without a stitch on. The new fabric adhesives will replace sewing. They'll make the needle needless."

Slomon, who is hopping through his elder years with the gaiety of a cricket and has more fun than some people think a millionaire is entitled to, began collecting silver dollars back in 1933 after the nation's banks were briefly closed.

"I couldn't even draw out funds to meet my own payroll," he recalled, "and I swore then I'd never again be caught without plenty of ready cash."

"But after I piled up around 10,000 silver dollars they began to be a nuisance. They took up an awful lot of space. So I started giving them away gradually."

In the last five years Slomon, whose larger philanthropies are his own secret, has presented 3,600 silver dollars, usually keeps half a dozen handy in his pocket so he can reward any Boy Scout caught helping an old lady across the street.

Slomon says he had a fine time when he was poor and sees no reason why, now that he's wealthy, he can't afford a few eccentricities.

"Money is a necessity," he said cheerfully, "but it is a particular blessing when you're sick. A rich man in a hospital can always get a bedpan in a hurry."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON THE ADOPTION OF AN ORDINANCE ZONING REAL ESTATE WITHIN THE CITY OF GREENVILLE

Pursuant to Chapter 160, Section 176, of the General Statutes of North Carolina, notice is hereby given that the City Council of the City of Greenville, North Carolina, will hold a public hearing at the Municipal Building in the City of Greenville, North Carolina, on Thursday, October 11, 1956 at 8:00 p.m., on the question of the adoption of an ordinance zoning the following described territory within the City of Greenville as "Residence District":

(a) That certain tract of land bounded on the north and east by the present city Boulevard and on the south by Farmville Boulevard and on the west by the drainage ditch and lying on both sides of Baneroff Avenue as shown on map made by Roger L. Mann Jr., C. E., dated March 15, 1956.

(b) Lots Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15 in Block "A"; Lots Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 in Block "B"; Lots Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 in Block "D"; Lots Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 in Block "E"; Lots Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 in Block "T"; the city owned lift station lot in Block "T" as shown on map of Hillside Extension No. 1 recorded in the Pitt County Registry.

All persons interested are requested to be present at the hearing to be held at the time and place aforesaid when they will be afforded an opportunity to be heard.

By order of the City Council,

Record Attendance For Gritton PTA Meeting

GRIFTON — A record attendance was noted when the Gritton PTA met Tuesday night in the community building for the first meeting of the 1956-57 school year. President James C. Smith called the meeting to order and the invocation and benediction was said by the Rev. J. L. Roberson, Christian Minister. The singing of America and The Gritton School Song followed.

Program co-chairman John Groat introduced County Supt. of Schools D. H. Conley of Greenville who addressed a few remarks to the parents and friends of the school relative to our school system in regards to the academic standards, funds and expenditures and expansion program. He stated that education was necessary to progress and that we should use all the technical knowledge available to us to promote this education. He urged parents to instill in their children the importance of the high standards of scholarship—nothing less than the highest to suffice.

After the program the regular business was conducted with the vice president, W. M. January, presiding over the session. He read the committee heads as follows: Homeroom representative, Mrs. Paul Bradley; Hospitality, Mrs. Howard Kress; House and Grounds, Mrs. Bill Mann; Safety, Jack Calvert; Library, Mrs. Tom Gower; Budget and Finance, W.M. Daws; Legislative, Mrs. Charles Stone; Membership, Paul Mears; Publicity, W. W. Mahler; Program, Mr. and Mrs. John Groat; Teacher representative, Mrs. Paul Whitley; Lunch Room, Mrs. James Hudson; Ways and Means, L. O. Vanneman. The attendance awards went to Mrs. Quinerly's second and Mrs. Bunch's 9th grades.

Principal E. B. Bright introduced his faculty members and new comers are Mrs. Elizabeth Dowdy, Miss Doris Thomas, Alston Burke and Earl Denton. He also announced a meeting of all students interested in band for 7:30 Monday night, Sept. 17th.

After adjournment the hospitality committee Mesdames Kress, Jack Calvert and Fray Schutte served punch, cookies and salted nuts. The refreshment table was covered with a white cloth bordered with red roses and held as decorations a white bowl of greenery flanked by tall red candles.

Had To Make Good On Diet

SAN DIEGO, CALIF. (AP) — A navy wife whose letters told of the success of her reducing diet got back this demand from her husband serving in the Far East: "Just what are your measurements these days anyhow?" Knowing that her husband would not be home for six months, she gave an optimistic reply. Back came three tailored silk dresses—all hopelessly small for her.

A DAY YOUNGER
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—At the age of 96, John Olson retired as caretaker of the Wednesday club, a social group. He took the job, he recalled, in 1932 after he had been turned down, because of his age, for similar work by the Thursday club.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market remained on the upside early this afternoon but many initial advances were cut.

Steels, motors, aircrafts, rails and oils had fairly active turnover on estimated volume about the same as yesterday's two million shares.

Royal Dutch stayed ahead a point or so, fluctuating around a 2-point gain. As it added to its 4 1/2 gain of yesterday, a spokesman for the company declined either to affirm or deny rumors of an impending stock split.

Gulf oil, however, lost a 1-point gain and dipped about the same. Standard Oil (New Jersey) remained ahead fractionally.

Bethlehem Steel, retreating a bit for a while, added 2 points. U.S. Steel, Republic and Youngstown went ahead.

While aircrafts drew trading interest, the stocks either were unchanged or eased slightly as in the case of Boeing and United.

New York Central bounced back and forth between a gain of a major fraction to a point. Southern Railway, Baltimore & Ohio and Illinois Central gained fractions.

An exceptional 3-point gain was scored by Aluminum Ltd. General Motors, Chrysler, Ford and Studebaker - Packard improved.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 30 cents to $181.40 with the industrials up $60 cents, the rails up 40 cents and the utilities down 10 cents.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—How prices were mostly 25 higher today. Tops of 15.75 to 16.50 at Rocky Mount; 15.75 to 16.25 at Bethel, Tarboro and Enfield; 15.50

Greenville Firm Awarded Ayden Paving Contract

AYDEN—White Construction Company of Greenville has been awarded a $7,900 contract for paving and improving six streets in Ayden. The contract was signed following the regular meeting of the Town Board Monday night.

The contract provides for paving the alley between First and Second streets, behind the Free Will Baptist Press, Worthington's Tin Shop and Tripp's Garage; the alley between Theibert Worthington's and the Baptist parsonage; a portion of Eighth Street; improvement of Snow Hill Street between Second and Third streets; improvement of Third Street from Snow Hill Street to Venters Street; and improvement of property of Ayden Clinic, Inc., on Power Street. The Clinic will pay for improvement of its property but the work will be done under city inspection.

Routine business occupied the remainder of time during the meeting, according to Mayor Corey Stokes.

Tax Collector In Grifton Named

GRIFTON—Grifton's Town Board, meeting in regular session Monday, has named Mrs. Marjorie Harris, Town Clerk, as Grifton's Tax Collector. The Chief of Police will be deputy collector.

The commissioners also voted to install traffic control signs which will permit right-turning traffic to move off streets while traffic lights are red. The "turn right on red" signs will be installed at the intersections of Queen Street and Highway 11, and Queen and Church streets, and at points where Highway 118 enters the town limits.

An ordinance calling for continuous display of license plates on vehicles in the town was also adopted.

Over 14,000 NC Lions Joining In Blind Drive

By JOEL LAWHON

The more than 14,000 Lions of North Carolina are ready and set to launch the Annual White Cane Drive in North Carolina for the Blind.

Maybe some people wonder why the Lions sponsor this drive.

The history of Lionism in North Carolina goes back to 34 years ago when the first club was organized. Work for the blind is the major project of Lions International, so it became the major project of North Carolina Lions.

When the first Lions Clubs began work for the blind 34 years ago, they soon discovered there was no organized work and very few services were being rendered. After some years of conscientious labor, the Lions decided something more must be done if the blind citizens were to have their opportunities to live and work as other people.

In 1934, North Carolina Lions, with other civic leaders, met in Statesville to organize the North Carolina State Association for the Blind. The first goal of the Association was to work for the creation of a State supported agency that would devote full time to work for the blind. Such an agency was created by legislative enactment in March of 1935 and the North Carolina State Commission for the Blind began to function in July 1935.

The Association has continued to serve the blind on a statewide basis for over 22 years. Each year through the loyalty and support of Lions, it has expanded its services and rendered aid to thousands of blind and visually handicapped persons.

Locally, the Pitt County Blind Association, in cooperation with the North Carolina State Blind Association and the Greenville Lions Club, carry on one of the finest programs in the State.

This year the goal is $250,000; the dates of the drive are September 11 through September 25. The seventy Lions of Greenville will sponsor the White Cane Drive and invite all to join the White Cane Drive and help prevent blindness.

There are 334,000 blind persons in the United States, 11,600 in North Carolina, and more persons went blind last year than ever before. So little is spent on prevention and eye research and yet it costs much to care for those already blind.

The Association renders many services such as providing glasses and other visual aids; radios to shut-in blind; eye care; medical services; White Cane walking sticks; express charges on talking books; dental care; hearing aids; clothes, etc. All these are needed but the Association feels an expanded prevention program will be the greatest service that could be rendered to the citizens of Pitt County.

The Lions Club of Greenville sponsors the local White Cane Drive. Its members offer each citizen of the community an opportunity to aid in the prevention of blindness September 11 through September 25, by joining the White Cane Drive. Memberships in the Association will be open to all contributors of one dollar or more.

Duke Educator Declares State Must Strengthen Its Schools

North Carolina's Number One Problem today is the strengthening and support of the public schools, declared Dr. William H. Cartwright, Duke University dean of education, addressing near 150 school board officials at the 3rd annual Regional meeting of the North Carolina State School Boards Association, held on the campus of East Carolina College Thursday.

The critics of the schools were answered by the Duke educator in a speech which pointed up the advances in North Carolina in more than 50 years of public schools, citing the state's growth in industry, its progress in health facilities, its leadership in government, and the improvement of opportunities for the education of all its citizens.

But the state more than ever before must maintain its record through preserving, improving and making stronger its schools if it is to keep from falling back into the darkness of the middle ages, he said. The speaker was presented by S. G. Chappell, Wilson city schools superintendent.

Dr. Cartwright addressed the closing session at which Dr. J. K. Long, chairman of the East Carolina department of education, presided. Preceding Cartwright's message, greetings were brought to the school board members by O. P. Johnson of Kenansville, Duplin

No Progress In Strike Parleys

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Officials of the striking Communications Workers of America and the Western Electric Co. continued their negotiations here today.

The strike, in its 21st day, has taken more than 6,000 workers off their jobs at company plants here, at Greensboro and Burlington.

The home of Albert Foster, a non-striking company employe, was the object of an explosion midnight Wednesday.
