News From Red Oak

Home-Coming Day at the Red Oak Christian Church was about as perfect as any day can be from a weather stand-point, large crowd, good food, good fellowship and a general feeling of real joy and happiness among all the friends, former members and members of the Church who were present. An estimated five hundred people were in attendance.

Over one hundred people attended Sunday School and a much larger crowd attended morning Church Services and enjoyed the Sermons by the resident Minister, Mr. C.R. Lanman, a solo by Mrs. Edgar Denton and a Men's Chorus singing "Leaning On The Everlasting Arms."

After dinner was served picnic style the church was filled again with people who enjoyed the good singing and good fellowship of the afternoon session.

Those who sang special numbers were Mrs. Dink James and Miss Agnes Fullilove, Art Bishop of A C College, Miss Sue Lanman, Dr. Elizabeth Uterbach of East Carolina College, and Mrs. Jackie Kinsaul.

Jay Prillaman of AG College, a former supply pastor of Red Oak, brought a short message and Mrs. Edna Hearne of Teachy, N.C. brought greetings from the Presbyterian Church. She also gave a vivid description of how a Memorial fund started in honor of her son, killed in Korea, had grown and how so many young men were able to receive help from it to further their education in the Ministry.

Others who brought greetings from their churches were Offis Stanell and Mrs. Sam Pollard from the Mt. Pleasant Christian Church; Spruill Spain, Mrs. Ruth Harris, Mrs. Ethel Tucker and Mrs. Bill Sermons of the Christian Church in Greenville; Mrs. Verna Dickinson, Mrs. N.S. Tyson and Mrs. R.R. Tyson of the Piney Grove Church; C.L. Hardy of the Methodist Church in Maury; Miss Lena Allen of Red Oak; Mrs. Evelyn Smith of Reedy Branch Church; Mrs. Janie Gold Starling from the Immanuel Baptist Church in Greenville.

Many visitors from Greenville, Ayden, Winterville and Farmville were present. Some of the former members came from as far away as Pennsylvania.

The two "Mr. Bishops" from Philadelphia were present to sing and speak. They have only been in North Carolina for two weeks as students at A C College but they said they were very much impressed with the friendliness of the people whom they had met. All committees for Homecoming Day are to be congratulated for making the day a success: the parking committee, Lyman Eason who saw that there was ice for water and tea, the table committee, the clean-up committee which was self-appointed, and the program planning committee, responsible for music and messages.

Ingredients: 1 can (10 3-4 ounces) meatless tomato-mushroom spaghetti sauce, 8 eggs, 1/2 cup grated cheddar cheese.

Method: Heat tomato sauce. Divide tomato sauce among 4 shirred egg dishes; individual heat-resistant glass pie plates (about 6 inches across top) are fine. Break 2 eggs into each dish on top of hot sauce; be careful not to break yolks. Sprinkle eggs with grated cheese. Bake in slow (325 degrees) oven until eggs are firm—about 25 minutes. Remove from oven and allow to stand about 5 minutes or so before serving; eggs will set some more. Serve in shirred egg dishes. Makes 4 servings. No extra salt will be needed for the eggs because of the sauce and cheese. Serve at once.

Old Vies With Modern Decor In Furnishings

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

QUIET ELEGANCE keynoted the seventh annual homefurnishings show in New York.

Indicative of a nostalgic trend was Cecil Beaton's Edwardian period room, done with the feminine charm which already has identified this designer's contribution to the season's fashions. He used white wicker furniture with rayon fabrics in soft shades of pink—fitting backgrounds for fair ladies.

It was a charming room, but suspect to the homemaker who enjoys the uncluttered look and has all the rumbling of a cycle that may take us back to the era of antimacassars and antiques. We may try to escape from color too, predict the prognosticators and return to deep hues—maybe black, navy or maroon, with the relief of a dusty rose here and there.

Tommye Parzinger's designs in rattan included an unusual "triple table" with two swiveling Lazy Susan effects and an umbrella top, that reminded one of a grown-up what-not table from Granny's front parlor. A useful, interesting piece, it should be serviceable in the modern home.

One exhibit by a famous designer showed a window treatment that looked "funereal" to some onlookers. Another displayed a table treatment that was definitely popular during the World War I period.

Personally rooms by 14 decorators stressed that individuality should be the aim in the home-maker's decor. Rooms were built around the personalities of Gen. George Marshall, Celeste Holm, Franchot Tone, David Wayne, Jan Fierce and other personalities.

Color was used lovingly but sparingly by these decorators who are not as lavish with it as in the past few years. Color combinations included shades of lavender, blue, fuschia and white with peacock green in Celeste Holm's inspirational room by designers Hoffman and Heidrich and black, brown, white and Chinese yellow in the David Wayne room.

One magazine decorated a charming attic room for two teen-ager girls in pink and white accented with olive green and turquoise. A lovely teen-motif wallpaper with a matching fabric was a highlight of the room and a good utilization of space permitted book cases, cabinets, desks and dressers to appear in a built-in arrangement.

Floor and wall treatments were unusual with one vinyl floor in a floral motif and another in flagstone effects. Walls included decorative cork brick and vinyl brick effects.

Jr. Woman's Club Sponsors Clothing Drive Again

The Greenville Junior Woman's Club, cooperating with the Pitt County Welfare Department, is sponsoring the Children's Clothing Closet again this year, according to an announcement yesterday by Mrs. R. D. Harrington Jr., club president.

"The project, begun by the Junior Woman's Club many years ago, is designed to furnish needy children in Pitt County with adequate clothing for the coming school year," Mrs. Harrington said. "We are looking forward to the same spirit of co-operation from the public that we have received in the past."

Mrs. Harrington stated that a chairman for the drive has been appointed and the club will begin the collection of clothes to be used by children whose need is known to the welfare department.

It was pointed out that used clothes, when in good condition, will be accepted, as well as money for the purchase of new clothes.

In commenting on the project, K. T. Putrell, Superintendent of Public Welfare in Pitt County, said, "We are very happy that the Junior Woman's Club has decided to sponsor the Clothing Closet again this year. Last year the Closet furnished clothing for 275 children in this county."

"This plan makes possible attendance of many children in school and at Sunday School and helps protect the health of children during cold and wet weather. It is our hope that the public will support this drive 100 per cent so that we can be sure that no child in Pitt County will suffer this winter from lack of needed clothes."

Young Moderns

BY VIVIAN BROWN

How do you make those first weeks back to school interesting as you wear yourself away from summer's playland? Clothes talk can help perk up those first days and the new trend to going back to school in cottons helps the idea along. It seems that this generation of money-wise daughters has decided they're not going to waste a speck of their clothing allowance. They'll see what their schoolmates consider the fashion trend to be before they invest in a wardrobe.

New party ideas help perk up dreary days, and a new record case may be easily toted to any party. It holds 60-45 r.p.m. records. Index numbers come with the case and make it easy to use. It is molded in the shape of the records.

Speaking of records and parties, one rage this last season was a language party. French, Spanish, Italian and what-have-you is spoken by a group when they are together and even parties are tied into the theme. At one such French party the girls served french bread, cheese and fruit and talked French all evening. They played language records that permit an easy method of teaching.

Another way to pass the time pleasantly until social life comes into full swing is to revive the old-fashioned sewing bee in the interest of Christmas. Consider a new version of the patch quilt for your best friend, Aunt Mary or Mom.

Make the one for your school pal in school colors, striped or patched. Or make the background of the quilt a solid color with a school pennant applied to the cover. Aunt Mary might enjoy having some motif applied to her quilt that plays up her favorite hobby. If she likes the theater, you might do tragedy and comedy masks.

Mom's initials might be applied to her quilt. Perhaps you'll make a smaller one to be used as a throw on the living room sofa.

This back-to-school lull may be used for many personal advantages, even creating your own Christmas cards. If you start now you'll have time to do them all by hand, avoiding the last minute rush that always coincides with the party season.

laid Peter in his crib, shrieks and all

"Mary, honey," the voice said, "I'm sorry I acted like such a boor, please forgive me."

"Oh, Bill!" was all Mary could get out.

"The Rosens are a bore, but I know you're right and I'm glad you asked them over. I'll try and get home early."

"Bill, you're wonderful, but I must go now; Peter's crying."

Mary practically danced into the other room, picked up Peter, told him he had the most wonderful father in the world. Peter stopped crying, beamed at this good old Mommy, grabbed for his bottle as soon as Mary got it within reach and sucked it down to the last drop.

"Peter," said Mary to the relieved little bundle, "you knew I was all mean inside. I don't know how you knew it, but you did. Oh, Peter, I won't do it to you again."

Baby Reflects Mother's Mood

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D. AP Newsfeatures

IT'S A STRANGE THING how quickly a baby knows that his mother is upset. A baby doesn't like an upset mother. He doesn't have one smitch of sympathy for her troubles, and he tells her so in no uncertain terms.

Mary and Bill had a quarrel at the breakfast table. Mary said they must have the Rosens over and she'd invited them in for dinner tonight. Bill hit the ceiling, shouting, "I can't stand him and that simpering fool of a wife. Why can't you have them around (if you must) while I'm at the office?"

Mary was crushed but before she could explain further Bill shoved his chair back, grabbed his hat and slammed the door after him.

Mary was angry and hurt. She and Bill had very few fights. She felt somehow she was to blame and yet she knew she wasn't. She became more and more upset as she ruminated on Bill's behavior. She was brought back to the present by a loud wail from the other room. It was time to feed Peter. She took a bottle of milk from the refrigerator, warmed it up and walked into Peter's room, still thinking about how unjust Bill was.

She picked up the baby, changed him and sat down to feed him. She didn't talk to him quite as much as usual, she was so busy thinking about Bill.

Peter knew there was something the matter. This wasn't his warm friendly Mama. This person had tense, jittery arms. She was perky and impatient. She didn't feel nice. She didn't sound nice. He didn't like it. He cried, he wouldn't have anything to do with the nipple, he pushed it away and cried harder. Mary was annoyed.

"What's the matter with you, Peter, aren't you hungry?" she said over her shoulder, but it didn't help. Peter crawled up her chest and bellowed into her ear. What he was saying was:

"Go away, you are not my Mommy! I want my nice friendly Mommy." But Mary couldn't translate his shrieks. She thought he must be sick—maybe he had colic.

Just then the phone rang. She

The Rev. Percy Upchurch, pastor of the church, gave a very inspirational devotional after which the meeting was devoted to business for both the year 1956 and 1957.

Various committees reported on their assignments. The nominating committee chairman, Mrs. R. E. Pitman, read the slate of officers and teachers for the coming year which was accepted unanimously by vote.

After the business was taken care of a social hour was enjoyed at which time the hostess served refreshments.

Governor Can't Take All Credit

Within the past few days Gov. Hodges has outlined two programs which apparently will play a major part in the legislative program he intends to present to the 1957 General Assembly.

For all practical purposes both items which Gov. Hodges has mentioned in major addresses have been under discussion by the General Assembly and state leaders for several years. Neither is original with the governor, although both, in the long run, may be attributed to him.

Before one group Gov. Hodges has proposed reduction of the number of highway commissioners and outlined in general terms a drastic change in the manner in which the State Highway Commission would operate. He likewise called for the separation of the Highway Commission and the State Prisons Department. Before another group he has proposed a revamping of the state's tax structure which has not had a general overhaul since the '30s.

These matters clearly need the attention of the General Assembly. Indeed, they have had and still

Mother Nature Helps, But A Survey Needed

During the summer of each year the Greenville Police Department usually makes a routine check of intersections throughout the city looking for blind corners where drivers' vision is blocked by bushes, high shrubs and other obstacles.

In a good many instances, blind intersections are eliminated by trimming the bushes which obstruct the view of drivers. In other cases, however, the situations at blind intersections remain uncorrected leaving a traffic hazard.

Summer has almost gone now, but there remain a good many blind corners in the city which are daily presenting traffic hazards to both drivers and pedestrians. Mother Nature will correct some of these in the next couple of months as she strips bushes of their leaves. In the case of other intersections nature will not do a complete job. There is going to have to be some pruning if blind corners are to be eliminated.

In the interest of traffic safety, the local Police Department should make another survey for blind intersections and ascertain what steps must be taken to eliminate them. When the survey is completed, the city should take whatever steps necessary to remove these traffic hazards.

The problem of blind corners is a problem which plagues every community year-round. While they are seemingly more prevalent during the summer, they are by no means entirely eliminated in other seasons of the year.

By undertaking a more comprehensive program than has been followed in the past, Greenville could eliminate many traffic hazards which now exist at intersections in various parts of the city. It is a project which would contribute to reducing the number of traffic accidents the city is experiencing.

'Hanging' And 'Funeral' Went To An Extreme

It takes a great deal of restraint following a political campaign of one sort or another for opponents to keep from "rubbing it in" on their adversaries after the election is over and the votes have been counted.

Most of the time this sort of rubbing is done in the spirit of good, clean fun. At other times, the motive behind it is questionable. In such cases, it ceases to be clean fun.

We've had two examples of it in North Carolina since the referendum on the Pearsall Plan.

Someone—apparently opponents of the Pearsall Plan—look it upon themselves to hang Gov. Hodges in effigy in Raleigh.

Another group, supporters of the Pearsall Plan, supplied a coffin and flowers for a mock funeral of Johnathan Daniels, editor of the outspoken News and Observer after the avalanche of votes buried the opposition.

The Reflector had no sympathy for the News and Observer's stand on the Pearsall Plan. Frankly we think their position was all wet. In spite of that, we respect Daniels' and the News and Observer to take whatever position Daniels desires on any issue. There is no cause for ridicule because the voters chose another and wiser course.

The political fight over the Pearsall Plan was no cause for either Daniels' funeral or Gov. Hodges' hanging. Each of those men, just as every citizen, had a right to his opinion and the right to express it as he saw fit.

With the issue decided by the voters of the state, the hatchet should have been buried by those on both sides. There is nothing to be accomplished by actions like the funeral and the hanging.

have the consideration of the lawmakers. On the one hand Gov. Hodges' proposal concerning reduction of the number of Highway Commissioners and highway divisions is exactly the reverse of action of the 1953 General Assembly which increased the number of divisions and commissioners from 10 to 14. This "tentative" arrangement was made the object of a study group authorized by the last legislature.

Also authorized by the last session was a committee to study the state's tax structure with an eye to the needed revisions and changes which have grown out of adding here, changing there and other alterations from time to time in the last two decades without a complete tax revision from top to bottom.

While reports of these study groups have not been released officially as yet, it must be assumed that recommendations made by Gov. Hodges on these subjects last week are in line with those which will be forthcoming from the legislative study groups. It is quite likely that these programs now will assume the appearance of a governor's program rather than a legislative program.

From the standpoint of the end result, the point of origin of the programs makes little difference. Yet, antagonism between the office of the chief executive and the legislative halls should be guarded against for the sake of the best interest of the people of North Carolina. There may be some misgivings in the House and Senate if these programs which were initiated as legislative undertakings now are viewed in the form of a governor's program.

The Reflector is and has been a strong supporter of Gov. Hodges and has a great deal of admiration for the leadership he has afforded North Carolina. Notwithstanding our continued esteem for him, this latest move may take him out on thin ice so far as the legislature is concerned. Such a situation, if aggravated sufficiently, could reduce his effectiveness as a leader in the state and the benefits his forceful administration can bring to the people of North Carolina.

Amendments To Be Proclaimed Soon

By LYNN NISBET

EFFECTIVE—Governor Hodges is expected to issue a formal proclamation Thursday afternoon, September 18, declaring that the four amendments ratified by the people on September 8 are integral parts of the State Constitution.

The State Board of Elections will meet at 11 o'clock to canvass returns from the 100 counties and certify to the Secretary of State that all four proposed amendments were ratified. The Secretary of State will officially advise the Governor of this result, and the Governor will issue his formal proclamation. From the minute Governor Hodges affixes his signature and the Great Seal of the State to the proclamation the ideas cease to be proposals and become integral parts of the constitution.

The original text of the Constitution of the United States has not been changed since its adoption in 1787. Twenty-one amendments have been added, each of which embodies a new idea or materially changes an original provision, and it is necessary to read all the amendments in order to understand the meaning of the document.

Different procedure is followed with respect to the State Constitution. It has been amended more than 100 times since its ratification in 1876, that being mainly a re-write of the 1868 version. These amendments have been codified and integrated into the body of the text, so that it is easy to read and the casual reader has no intimation of what sections have been changed.

Copies of the Constitution printed on Tuesday will have no reference to the fact that the General Assembly for many years convened in January, or that members got less than $15 per day for 120 days, plus expenses, or to any change in the status of married women and powers of attorney.

PEARSALL PLAN—Simultaneously with the proclamation about the Constitution the bills enacted by the extra session of 1956 dealing with operating the public schools become effective. The local assignment act of 1955, as amended at the extra 1956 session; the provisions for grants and for closing public schools by any special voting district by majority vote—the last two made possible by ratification of the amendment—constitute the Pearsall Plan. This plan was challenged in Federal court at Greensboro before it became effective. Several good lawyers have expressed opinion that court action will have to be started anew after Tuesday, since by reason of legal technicalities there was no existing statute on the subject when the petition was filed in Federal court.

Further technical legal point has been revised as to validity of contingent legislation, enacted in advance of the time it could possibly be ruled as unconstitutional.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOLAN

Have you heard about them? In certain communities ministers have installed a service whereby one may dial a telephone number and listen to a transcribed prayer. The demand some places has been so great that if one gets a busy signal he can dial another and another sometimes as many as four phones—until he finds one that is not busy.

What does this indicate? It indicates that literally multitudes of people are hungry for spiritual nourishment, for guidance, for the assurance that faith in the unseen can confer. We pass through crowds on the street and little know the drama—and often the tragedy—that is being enacted behind their features. Some appear sad. Others carry a worried look. Most of them are dead-pan. The features seldom tell what is going on within the heart and mind.

Have a merciful heart as you think of people and their needs. Be kindly in your judgements. I remember many years ago a complaining, trouble-making woman of whom I had never low esteem—until I learned that for thirty years she had never taken a step without poignant consciousness of pain. Then I knew—and was ashamed of my harsh judgment.

Human life is a seething cauldron of pain, frustration, and longing. Have mercy.

al. For that reason many people believe that one of the first things to be done by the regular session next February will be to enact, and perhaps amend, the extra session laws.

The premature attack in the Federal court and other experiences during the intervening months may disclose some weak places in the laws which need strengthening. Just as the extra session strengthened the pupil assignment act of the regular session. It is entirely probable that the assignment act may be further amended at the next and subsequent sessions because experience will show need for change in some provisions.

The fact is that the public school laws have been amended in some respects by every session of the General Assembly in modern times. Nearly all the practices of public schools, including length of term, number of grades, compulsory attendance, transportation of pupils and certification of teachers are statutory rather than constitutional.

WHISTLE STOPS—Something new will be added to the Democratic congressional district rally program this year. The party officials and candidates will travel by chartered bus, instead of in individual private cars. Details of the plan and schedules have not been worked out, but Herman Moore, secretary of the executive committee, said one idea was to have the bus decorated with party insignia, so that all people along the highway would know the Democrats are rolling.

Tentative plan is to have the bus stop from time to time where a few folks are congregated at service station, and give some of the candidates opportunity to extol their own virtues and the greatness of the Democratic party. A further advantage will be to get all participants in the formal rallies at the proper places and on time.

Individual transportation will still be available for speakers, who want to make side trips and participate in county or local rallies in addition to the 12 main district affairs.

CHEAP VOTES—While all bills are not in it appears certain that the committee sponsoring the school amendment in last Saturday's election spent a total of about $8,000. Most of that went for printing and postage. There was no organized opposition, but a few dollars were spent by individual opponents as well as maybe a little by individual sponsors. Looks like a total of less than $10,000 was spent for propaganda. That means the 600,000 votes cost one and a third cents apiece, which is possibly the cheapest campaign ever waged in North Carolina.

No big contributions were made to the campaign fund, most of them being in the $5 to $25 class. The committee wound up with no deficit and if any surplus not enough to occasion any worry about its disposition.

Full Swing Of The Price Spiral

By ELMER ROESSNER

A full swing of the price spiral is now likely.

There has been a drumfire of price increases since the end of the steel strike. Prices of almost everything ferrous have advanced. There have been hikes in prices of television sets, refrigerators, freezers, washers, typewriters, machine tools, materials-handling equipment, cement, beer in a number of cities, rubber goods, Dacron, meat, coffee, farm equipment, aluminum, scrap, paper, cornstarch, coke, decorative lamps and alcohol. Local taxes, generally, are rising.

There is talk in the trade of coming increases in hand-made glass, air cargo rates, packaging materials and almost all chemicals.

Railroads are asking for higher passenger and freight rates which can in turn make everything else cost more.

The government has embarked on one more campaign to increase farm prices, which will automatically increase food prices.

And money costs more. STIFFENING LABOR DEMANDS—There are many other things that have not gone up in price and a rare few that have gone down. But there have been enough price increases to affect the cost of living. This will give automatic pay rises to several million workers and it will make millions of others firm in demands for higher wages. Eventually almost every worker will be getting more. This leads to this prediction:

The price rise will complete the circle and within the next few months almost everything will cost more than it did a year ago.

Incidentally, those rare things that aren't heading upward include copper and brass products, one brand of filter cigarettes, and off-brands of six-year-old American whiskey. Because of huge supplies in bond, some six-year-old whiskeys are selling for less than four-year-old stuff at wholesale. Bottlers, unwilling to disturb price structures of regular brands, are putting some out under new names.

And here are predictions of other coming developments, based on analyses of trends, plus a sprinkling of advance information:

NO CHEAPER MONEY SOON—No cut in interest rates is in sight. The Federal Reserve Board raised the discount rate—hence, by chain reaction, all interest rates—in an effort to stave off another round of inflation. It didn't, but may have slowed down the swirl a bit.

Loosening money costs now would make the economy look more like a skyrocket than a pinwheel.

You'll hear more about BTU's. Manufacturers of more than 90 per cent of the nation's air conditioners have agreed to the Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute's proposal to use British Thermal Units in advertising cooling equipment. A BTU is a measure of capacity to raise or lower the temperature of one pound of water one degree Fahrenheit. This departure will give consumers an accurate way to compare various cooling devices.

More pork is coming. But because of higher prices of competing meats, prices won't drop materially.

Don't feel too sorry for auto makers. Passenger car sales, true, have been down this year. But fleet sales to expanding corporations (sales of five or more vehicles at one time) have held up very well, and truck sales have been strong and promise to rise with the Federal highway program.

The cap boom will continue. Ignored for years, men's caps are now back and the makers expect them to stay. They've formed the Cap and Cloth Hat Institute. A year-round drive is under way.

Average Dog Has It Better

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—If the average man never had it so good in America—well, the average dog is having it even better.

"Dogs in this country are increasing faster than people, per centage wise," said Walter Kendall, "and they are also better fed than their owners because they eat a more balanced diet. They are also healthier, because very few dogs drink or smoke."

Kendall, a Los Angeles dog food manufacturer who has raised some 500 Scottish terriers, is president of the National Dog Welfare Guild. The organization sponsors the 29th annual national dog week which opens Sunday. The theme this year is Rover's role in creating a safe home.

Some 17 million American families now own a total of 23 million dogs," said Kendall. "The growth of the suburbs is causing a tremendous increase in the dog population."

"But you don't need a police dog or a mastiff to protect your home. Burglars aren't scared off so much by dogs that attack them as by dogs that alert the household by barking."

"For this purpose the smaller dogs—terriers, miniature schnauzers and toy poodles—are of best, because they are more nervous."

Kendall gave this tip for training watchdogs: "If you want the dog to guard your house at night, feed him in the morning. Then he'll be alert and hungry by nightfall, and won't fall asleep."

"If you want him to be alert during the day, feed him at night."

Kindall is a strolling encyclopedia of canine statistics, such as:

"Americans spent 264 million dollars for dog food last year, and the nation's pet shops grossed 50 million dollars from the sale of dogs."

"The average dog weighs 20 pounds, eats 800 calories a day, costs $50 a year to feed and lives to be 10 years old."

"The larger the breed the shorter the life. A great Dane ordinarily lives to be 7 or 8, a chihuahua will last 12 or 15 years."

"I heard of one dog—I forget the breed—that lived to be 26. Since a dog lives seven times as fast as a person, that's equivalent to a man living to be 182. Very remarkable."

No War Expected Over Suez

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass.—The Egyptian trouble will not result in any war, Sir Anthony Eden and Guy Mollet, Premier of France, who have been criticized as being "soft," may feel that this is a good opportunity to show their real strength.

THE LEGAL STATUS vs. SUEZ
At President Eisenhower's last press conference he stated clearly that all nations should respect "the sovereignty of Egypt as it applies to the Suez Canal." This insures that the United States will not get into the squabble. Since that is apparently all Nasser demanded, there is nothing to fight over except regulations and toll charges. President Eisenhower made clear that the International Treaty of 1888 gives many nations rights in and to the Canal in perpetuity; but that this does not mean that Egypt internationalized her sovereignty.

From a legal standpoint it is much like a city which gives a street railway or bus company a permanent franchise, but without relinquishing sovereignty or ownership of its streets. The city may make regulations and fares as it desires, so long as it does not "take property without due process of law."

THE FIVE NATION COMMITTEE
The Committee of Five Neutral Nations is in Cairo conferring with President Nasser. The chairman of this Committee is the Australian Prime Minister Menzies. I forecast that the final agreement will recognize the sovereignty of Egypt, but that nothing will be done to seriously harm the Suez Canal Company, which has the franchise to operate the canal. Like all dictators, "President" Nasser must do something radical to show his power and keep his job. However, the one thing Egypt needs most—other than better character—is more money. The new toll rates, which like nearly everything else, are passed on to the ultimate consumer, will give Nasser the needed additional funds.

WHAT NASSER FEARS
Neither Egypt, nor the other countries which are benefiting from American dollars, want to be guilty of "expropriation." They know this would frighten away American, English, and French investors. There are, however, other arguments the Committee of Five could use with President Nasser. For instance, more than one half of Britain's oil imports come through this canal. If the canal should be closed, other sources of supply would be available from Venezuela, West Indies, and the United States. For a short time only, the use of oil in England and France would need to be rationed.

Within a year new pipelines would be built to carry oil direct to the Mediterranean. This pipeline would be from Haifa on the Mediterranean to the Gulf of Agaba. Furthermore, with an increase in oil capacity, England and France could temporarily return to the old route around the Cape of Good Hope. This Suez scare will awaken nations to the need of more tanker capacity so that they will not again risk being cut off.

Doubtless Nasser remembers what the airlift did in bringing oil, food, and other necessities into Berlin several years ago when Stalin tried a stunt similar to Nasser's. In fact, it is a fair question whether the Suez Canal would be built today without the possible competition of air transport, electrical transmission, and big tankers.

SUEZ AND THE STOCK MARKET
Although there may be several good reasons for taking profits today on stocks, certainly the Suez scare is no reason for selling stocks at the present time. What will ultimately create a crash in the stock market will be some totally unexpected event which no one can now forecast. Therefore, I repeat my forecast that England and France and Egypt will arrive at a peaceful settlement; but whatever happens, the United States will keep out of any fighting. Furthermore, we will continue our present policy of withdrawing troops from Europe and reorganizing our fighting strength to conform to the new nuclear policy.

Majority Of High Court 'Out Of Step'

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—A majority of the Supreme Court of the United States has been out of step with a larger number of experienced Federal jurists in six of 16 five-to-four decisions handed down since Earl Warren became Chief Justice. And in the other ten cases the majority won out by only a narrow margin over dissident law-givers on the high tribunal and in inferior jurisdictions.

The legal confusion resulting from these upsets gives point to President Eisenhower's declaration that only men with experience on lower Federal bodies should be named to future vacancies. And it is significant that Justice Sherman Minton, who has just resigned, disagreed with the majority in seven of the 16 controversial decisions.

Minton came to the court with more previous experience on the bench than any of his associates. Regarded as a liberal, Roosevelt ideologist when he was named, the Indiana man showed more regard for the law and precedents than such Roosevelt selections as Justices Black, Frankfurter and Douglas.

RULINGS PUZZLED LAWYERS
These five-to-four reversals of

Circuit Court rulings puzzle lawyers because many of the overruled jurists are regarded as more able than their judicial betters—such men as Medina of New York, Parker of Charlotte, Borah of New Orleans, Phillips of Denver, Bratton of Albuquerque, Sanborn of St. Paul, Denman of San Francisco, Bone of Tacoma, Danaher and Prettymann of the District of Columbia.

A typical case in which a combination of the minority in a Supreme Court ruling, plus the judges of the inferior court, actually outvoted the high tribunal's majority decision, was that of U. S. versus Morgan. In 1939, Morgan pleaded guilty to attempted burglary in a Federal court, and served four years. Twelve years later, he was convicted of attempted burglary in a New York Court, and given a stiffer sentence because of his previous offense.

HIGH TRIBUNAL DEFERRED WITH APPEALS
Circuit Court Morgan then asked to have the Federal conviction annulled on the ground that he was only 19 at the time he was ignorant of the law and his rights, and had not been assigned a lawyer by the court. The Second Circuit Appeals judges held for Morgan in a three-to-nothing verdict. The Supreme Court ruled against him, five-to-four. Thus, seven favored annulment, while only five decided Morgan's fate.

In a case involving Maryland's right to tax goods delivered in that state by a Delaware store, the Maryland Court decided against the outstate groceryman. The Supreme Court majority reversed and remanded. Again the majority was outvoted by seven to five.

In a suit against a Maryland insurance company by relatives of five seamen, who had been drowned in the Atchafalaya River when a chartered tug, captained by the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, gave a three-to-nothing verdict for the plaintiffs. The Supreme Court majority saw the accident in a different light in another seven-to-five balling.

SEVEN-TO-FIVE RULINGS
Other cases with a similar seven-to-five lineup involved the Coast Guard's liability for a shipwreck caused by failure to operate its lighthouse efficiently; the right of a state (New Mexico) to use illegally seized narcotics as evidence after a Federal Court had dismissed the indictment because of the unlawful procedure; the amount of compensation due a

South Carolina power company when its land was taken over by the Federal government for a hydroelectric project.

It is impossible to single out any justice for being out of step with a majority of his fellow-jurists. Here, the number of times that various members lined up with the outvoted narrow majority in these 16 cases: Warren, six; Douglas, six; Black, six; Frankfurter, nine; Reed, ten; Burton, seven; Clark, six. The late Justice Jackson and Justice Harlan did not serve the full three years under consideration.

SOUNDNESS OF IKE'S PREFERENCE
As further evidence of the soundness of Eisenhower's preference for experienced jurists to fill the Minton and prospective vacancies (Frankfurter and Reed), tomorrow's column will discuss a notorious upset in two District Courts, two Circuit Courts—12 judges in all—and three Court-appointed commissioners to decide the compensation due the Twin City Power Company. Here, Roosevelt ideologists and Chief Justice Warren formed the majority in an amazing decision.

Chandler Recalled Another Mob In Ordering Guards

By KYLE VANCE
FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—An angry mob stormed the courthouse at Lexington 36 years ago, bent on taking a young Negro rapist to the nearest tree. Six men were killed.

Gov. A. B. Chandler, then a student at Transylvania College, watched as officers turned back the raiders with machineguns. "As they retreated," Chandler recalled in an interview today, "they left six or seven of their number sprawled on the ground, dead."

"Federal troops were brought in from Louisville, but too late to save men's lives. They didn't act fast enough."

He told the story in explaining why National Guard troops and state policemen were sent, on his orders, into Sturgis, Ky., two weeks ago to keep order in strife stirred up by the admission of Negroes in a previously all-white school.

"That experience was in my mind when the Sturgis trouble broke out," he said. "But I would have done as I did anyway."

"Mobs led by bad-tempered men were taking over. You can't let mobs enforce the law. The rights of the people were at stake. Streets were closed. Lives were in danger."

"We had to act fast. We knew the situation, because we had the information from an air-tight intelligence organization."

"My orders were to move in—not to force people to do things, but to open the streets and give the people free movement. I gave instructions to take over in force."

"The tanks were taken along for the proper psychological effect. Some men won't let a soldier with a gun push them. No man is going to argue with a tank."

"I am pleased with the results we have obtained so far. After all, nobody has been hurt and nobody has been killed. You can speculate that the reverse might have been true if we had acted slower. I am convinced that the trouble at Sturgis would have been serious."

Asked if he considered his action "politically popular," he said he was not concerned in the least over political implications.

"At times like this, you don't consider politics," he said. "You do the job you are sworn to do."

He said it was "absolutely untrue" that his friendship with Mayor Herman Z. Clark of Clay influenced his late movement of troops into that town after "taking over" in Sturgis from the outset.

Chandler then explained how secret agents of the state kept abreast of the situation in both Sturgis and Clay.

He said plainclothes state detectives moved into Sturgis when word first arrived that trouble was brewing. "They wore overalls and mixed with crowds," he said. "They even attended the demonstrators' meetings. They knew what was going to happen as soon as anybody else did. In that way, we were prepared for the proper action at the proper time."

Do-It-Yourself Trend Is Being Felt In Industry

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Now do-it-yourself is spreading through industry. By applying the erector set idea they used as youths, more industrialists are learning today how to make the big things they need out of ready-made little things they can buy off the shelf.

Whether it's putting up a new building or diversifying products on an assembly line, the old dependence on the custom designer or the one-of-a-kind fabricator increasingly is being sidestepped.

Meta exterior walls can be bought as off the shelf units from the factory, complete with window frames and window hardware, insulation and outside and inside finishing. They are bolted in place just as your boy does with his construction set.

Movable interior walls—prefinished steel, wood or glass partitions—are being used by many businesses to provide quickly for expansion or reorganization of factory or office space.

Custom wiring for installing new equipment has been circumvented by plug-in arrangements for high voltage lines that feed machine tools and utilize new ducts permitting complete access to wires and cables inside.

Steel shelving now can be had on an expandable basis. Brackets, reinforcing bars, solid panels, back, bottom and top pieces, all come with perforations at standard intervals. Twist-on clips make it possible to alter arrangement of vertical or horizontal members in a jiffy by the erector set method.

Automation makes wide use of interchangeable small units. Many metal gadgets and structural parts along the 1956 engine line of an auto maker are not only interchangeable with the hardware to be used for 1957 models but also with those found along a competitor's engine line.

Automation plug-in components also come in handy when replacement, overhaul or failure calls for a quick change without stalling the entire mechanized production line. They also can be added for making off-beat or extra big end products, which formerly had to be done on a custom basis or on a sub-assembly line.

Jayne Flies In With Followers

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress Jayne Mansfield is back in town. The busty blonde flew in yesterday with an entourage that included her 5-year-old daughter Jaynie Marie, weightlifter Mickey Hargitay and two Chihuahua dogs—Phillip and Charlessa.

Jayne, unnoticed in Hollywood before she hit the jackpot in Broadway's "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter," told newsmen at the airport:

"I'm grateful to New York for what it did for me, but now that I'm back here I want to stay 99 years."

She begins work on the film "Do Re Mi," with Tom Ewell.

Lost $600 Didn't Stray Very Far

BOSTON (AP)—Six hundred dollars reported lost by a California couple apparently did not stray very far.

Boston police got a call from Mr. and Mrs. Oliver G. Bowen of Pasadena, Calif. They were at Hartford, Conn., and said they lost the money while in Boston.

A few hours later, police reported, the Bowens called again, this time from Norwalk, Conn., to say the money was found in one of Mrs. Bowen's shoes.

QUICKLY STOLEN

JOHNSTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—There were complaints aplenty about the old-fashioned nib pens in post offices but, says Johnstown Postmaster George McMillan: "No one ever stole them." He chained 10 new ballpoint pens to writing desks Monday. Every one of them had been stolen by Saturday.

CAN THANK GUM

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—W. E. Hawkins of Raleigh can thank a wad of chewing gum for a ten-dollar bill. Hawkins said he drove his car home and noticed an object sticking in the trend of one of the tires. Hawkins plucked it off. It was a $10 bill, securely fastened to the tire by a wad of gum.

Stevenson Encouraged By 'Round One' Of Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson said he was encouraged after Round 1 of his campaign, takes off next weekend on a new eight-day tour of 11 states ranging from Colorado to Florida.

The 7,000-mile tour will start Saturday with a major farm address at the National Field Days and Flowering Contest at Newton, Iowa. President Eisenhower speaks there Friday.

In a telegram yesterday GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall challenged the Democratic presidential nominee to repudiate

No More Secrecy As To Eligible Postmasters

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman Moss (D-Calif.) of a House subcommittee on government information said today names of eligible postmaster candidates hereafter will be made public.

Moss said the Civil Service Commission told the subcommittee it will release the names of persons eligible for appointment as postmaster one day after the Post Office Department has been given the list.

Postmaster applicants must take civil service examinations. Any one of the three placing highest in the examination for a vacancy may be appointed. Since September 1953, Moss said, the names of the eligibles have been kept secret and only the appointment announced. Post office and civil service officials said the policy was designed to recruit better candidates.

"I am glad the subcommittee has been able to punch one more hole in the paper curtain of federal secrecy," Moss said in a statement. "The people have a right to know who their local postmaster candidates are."

former President Truman's statement that Alger Hiss, in Truman's opinion, was not a Communist spy. Hiss, a longtime State Department employee, served a federal prison sentence after being convicted of perjury in denying he passed government secrets to a Soviet spy ring.

"Does your silence mean you agree with Mr. Truman's statements?" Hall asked.

The Stevenson campaign itinerary announced last night for Sept. 22-30 not only starts in the Farm Belt with the Saturday speech at Newton, it includes addresses in several other key agricultural states, underscoring how both parties are working hard for the farm vote this year.

Traveling mostly by plane and some by automobile, Stevenson will go after that vote in such states as Kansas, Missouri, Indiana, Wisconsin and Minnesota, in addition to Iowa. He will also dip into the South and some of the border states, visiting Louisiana, Florida, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

His address in Colorado will be at Denver Saturday evening after flying from Iowa. The Wisconsin stop will be in Milwaukee Sept. 28 for a half-hour nationwide television address from a CBS studio that evening.

In 1952 Stevenson lost all but two of the 11 states he will visit Arkansas and Oklahoma—to Eisenhower.

After 12,000 miles of campaigning, he reportedly is delighted by the outlook but is determined to keep on slugging without letup.

He did keep slugging at Eisenhower and his administration in a speech to several thousand persons at an outdoor rally near Fairfax, Va., Saturday night.

It was a bid to woo Virginia, which went for Eisenhower four years ago. Stevenson chose an area where many federal employees live, across the Potomac River from Washington, to cut loose at the administration's loyalty-security program for government workers.

He called the handling of that program "a shameful chapter in American history," and said it is based on a background of "shameless political trickery" going back to the 1952 GOP campaign.

He accused the administration of having conducted "guerrilla warfare" against federal employees and added:

"But soon a congressional investigation disclosed that 90 per cent of the persons the administration claimed to have fired as 'security risks' were never determined to be security risks at all; that others were not even fired but were merely transferred from one agency to another; and that half of those that were fired as security risks were hired by the Eisenhower administration itself."

"And finally the administration admitted, after about three years of devastating harassments, that not a single person was fired for being a Communist."

Podium Wall Of UN Assembly Hall Is Changed

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—One of the most widely pictured features of the U.N. General Assembly hall, the podium wall behind the president's desk, has undergone dramatic change.

The wall formerly was decorated with rows of concave discs which had almost become a U.N. trademark. The new scheme has entirely eliminated the discs and substituted a single, huge U.N. emblem more than 12 feet in diameter. It is a globe rimmed by olive branches, set against a larger disc, all in blue and white.

Engineers say the change was not made entirely because of appearance. Originally the discs were to have been covered with emblems of all member nations. Membership outgrew the number of discs even before emblems could be obtained.

East Carolina Bows 37-2 Before VPI Ground Attack

Lenoir Rhyne Makes Best Loop Showing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Virginia Tech had too many tickets for East Carolina. The Southern Conference club, playing on its home grounds, gave up only a safety to the Pirates. Bobby Wolfenden led the Gobblers attack. If Virginia Tech had an individual star, the most likely would go to halfback Bobby Wolfenden. The 185-pound senior from Wytheville, Va., romped 90 yards with the opening kickoff before he was knocked down from behind on the two and got off a 69-yard touchdown run against East Carolina in the third.

Other Tech touchdowns came on two-yard plunges by Don Divers and Ray England, a four-yard run by Jimmy Lugar, a 12-yard drive by Jay Whitesell and a 25-yard Lugar-to-Grover Jones pass play.

Tech seeks its second victory Saturday when the Gobblers tackle Tulane at New Orleans.

Lenoir Rhyne's Bears, defending North State Conference champions and undefeated last year, still are the team to beat this season. And the powerful Bears are not yet begging for new talent.

Lenoir Rhyne, along with three other North State teams, opened against nonconference foes, but the football season last week the Bears rolled up enough points—67-0 over Newport News Apprentice School—40 surpass the combined scoring efforts of all other four North State teams that played last week.

Western Carolina thumped Carleton-Newman 19-13 to avenge last year's loss; Catawba tied Newberry 7-7; Elon was edged out 13-12 by Jacksonville State of Alabama; and East Carolina lost its second in a row, 37-2 to Virginia Tech.

Bob Miller, Lenoir Rhyne substitute tailback, racked up four touchdowns against Newport News in his debut as a Bear scoring threat. All were runs of 18 yards or less. Walter Cornwall pitched in with a 66-yard touchdown gallop as Lenoir Rhyne amassed 415 yards rushing and 143 passing.

Western Carolina's big gun was Buddy Rector, who returned from service to Catawba football this year. He scored two touchdowns to pace WCTC's 280-yard ground attack. Carson Newman gained 126 yards rushing.

Elon's Christisns outgained Jacksonville State on the ground, 241 yards to 129, but the Alabama team capitalized on a last-quarter Elon fumble to set up the winning score. Bob Staufferberg had one of Elon's touchdowns.

End Bob McKelvey took a short pass deep in his own territory and ran 76 more for Catawba's only touchdown against Newberry, made with four minutes to play. Tackle Dick Cassels tied it up with his kick for the point after.

Appalachian and Western Carolina play at Asheville next weekend in the first intraconference tilt. Other games find Stetson at East Carolina, Newport News Apprentice meeting Elon at Burlington, Lenoir Rhyne.

Bums Overcame Pressure To Lead National Loop

By ED CORRIGAN

Just two weeks ago, the Brooklyn Dodgers appeared to be finished. They had dropped a double-header to the last-place New York Giants, their hitters were floundering and their pitchers were unsteady.

They were 3½ games behind the first-place Milwaukee Braves. The picture couldn't have been blacker.

That was 14 days ago, and to Manager Walt Alton it probably seems like 14 years.

Today, the Brooks are at the top of the heap in the tight National League race. They have a working margin of half-a-game over the Braves, are one game up in the vital lost column, and play most of their remaining games in Ebbets Field.

While the Braves certainly cannot be accused of wilting under pressure, there are these facts to be considered:

1. They have lost 8 of their last 13 games.
2. They are at .500 in their last 10 games.
3. In their last 13 games, their pitchers have turned in only two complete games. Bob Buhl has been knocked out four times in a row and Lew Burdette twice.
4. Normally a placid lot, the Braves have been snapping at the umpires, a sure sign of their high tension.

So it is apparent that their own failure, as much as any streak by the Dodgers, has been hurting them.

Their game with the New York Giants was postponed because of rain yesterday while Brooklyn was whipping the Cincinnati Redlegs 3-2. The defeat was a severe blow to the Redlegs. They now are three games out with only 12 to go. If the Brooks beat them tonight, they can kiss their chances goodbye.

The Braves play the Giants a two-night double-header tonight.

The New York Yankees were frustrated yesterday in their effort to wrap up the American League pennant when they could do no better than a split with Cleveland. The Yanks won the opener 10-3 but dropped the nightcap 4-3.

Both the Indians and the Boston Red Sox, who dropped a pair to the Detroit Tigers 5-4 and 8-4, were eliminated. Only the Chicago White Sox, who took two games from the Washington Senators 7-5 and 7-2, still are in the running. The next game the Yanks win or the White Sox lose will end it.

The double-header between Baltimore and Kansas City wound up in a stalemate. The Orioles won the first 3-2 and the A's the second 10-1.

In other NL games, St. Louis won the first game of a double-header from Pittsburgh 3-2, but the Pirates captured the second 9-3. Chicago and Philadelphia also split, the Cubs grabbing the first 7-4 and the Phillies the afterpiece 4-1.

Sal Maglie held the power-laden Redlegs in check for 8 2-3 innings in the Brooklyn triumph.

With two out in the ninth, Wally Post scratched a single to third. Smokey Burgess followed with a home run. Then, when Ray Jablonski also singled, a hurry call was issued for Don Bessent. Ed Bailey singled as a greeting, but Bessent got Stan Palys on a grounder.

The Brooks collected two of their runs in the second on doubles by Jackie Robinson, Gil Hodges and Duke Snider, then sent what proved to be the winning run home in the fifth when Pee Wee Reese singled and Johnny Klippstein walked. Robinson, Hodges and Charlie Neal in succession.

Tom Sturdivant pitched the Yanks to their first-game victory with an assist from Tommy Byrne. Early Wynn, however, put off the inevitable by beating Casey Stengel's men in the nightcap. Mickey Mantle hit his 49th homer.

In sweeping the Senators, the White Sox pulled back into second place ahead of the Indians. Jack Harshman won the first, driving in four runs and hitting a homer, while Gerry Staley gave up just five hits in the second.

The Tigers helped eliminate the Red Sox mainly through fine relief pitching by Walt Masterson and Jim Bunning. Masterson took over in the eighth of the opener for Billy Hoelt and was given credit for the victory when the Tigers scored three in the ninth. In the nightcap, Bunning was touched for only one hit in 4 1-3 innings of relief.

Art Ditmar tossed a four-hitter in the second game against Baltimore after Ray Moore had won his 12th decision for the Orioles in the opener.

Rip Repulski won the first game for the Cards against Pittsburgh with a homer in the 10th but the Pirates collected 15 hits off four Redbird pitchers in the second game.

Gene Baker broke up the opener for the Cubs with a bases-loaded double in the ninth. Jack Sanford got credit for the second-game triumph for the Phillies, although he walked eight and hit one batter in the seven innings he worked.

ACC Opening Features Duke-Gamecock Battle

Atlantic Coast Conference football teams started their last week of preseason practice today, leaving only five days before seven of the eight squads sprint onto the playing field for the opening of the 1956 football campaign.

Saturday's card offers two conference games, mighty Duke against South Carolina and North Carolina against North Carolina State. Maryland plays Syracuse, Clemson takes on Presbyterian, Virginia entertains Virginia Military and Wake Forest plays at William and Mary.

South Carolina's Gamecocks opened their schedule Saturday, taking a 26-13 victory over Wake Forest in a sluggish showing. The Gamecocks, making their first appearance under Head Coach Warren Giese, put over three touchdowns in the second half to overpower little Wofford.

Giese had words of praise for two soph halfbacks, King Dixon, who scored South Carolina's first touchdown, and Alex Hawkins, who scored in the third quarter to break a 7-7 tie and put the Gamecocks ahead for keeps.

Giese's charges will get the acid test when they meet Duke's Blue Devils in a night game at Columbia.

The Dukes are ranked 16th in a national poll of sports writers and broadcasters. Duke never has been defeated in ACC play.

The 1956 Blue Devil offering features a pair of outstanding performers at quarterback, Sonny Jurgensen, who does everything well, and Bob Brodhead, lacking only in experience.

Jurgensen and his understudy piloted Duke's power-laden variety to a 51-0 victory over the freshmen Saturday.

North Carolina will be making its debut under Head Coach Jim Tatum, who left his post at Maryland to return to his alma mater. Just how good the Tatum-coached Tar Heels are is questionable since the loss of quarterback Dave Reed, an injury victim, but the test against the Wolfpack will give an inkling of what Tatum can throw against Oklahoma's national champion Sooners the following Saturday.

North Carolina opened against Oklahoma, rated No. 1 again this season, in 1955 and lost 13-6. The Tar Heels still had enough to get by Earle Edwards' N.C. State squad 25-18 in their next game.

Edwards wasn't pleased with the Wolfpack's showing in its last scrimmage. A white team of first and second stringers edged a squad of third and fourth stringers 20-7, but, said Edwards: "I didn't think the team looked very good. It took us too long to get started. We just weren't sharp."

Bill Franklin scored twice for the whites on short plunges and halfback Dick Christy raced 21-yards for the third counter.

1956 Power Is In The Midwest

By ED WILKS

The Associated Press

The power in college football again lies in the Midwest this season in the minds of the nation's experts, and Oklahoma is the pick of the mightiest of 'em all once more in the pre-season Associated Press poll.

The sports writers and sportscasters who took part in the balloting voted overwhelmingly for Coach Bud Wilkinson's 1955 National Champions to repeat, and jammed no less than four other Midwest perennial — Michigan State, Notre Dame, Ohio State and Michigan — among the Top 10.

Michigan State, a surprise runner-up in the final 1955 poll, again took the No. 2 spot behind the Sooners. Notre Dame was third, Georgia Tech, Ohio State, Maryland, Texas Christian, Michigan, Texas A&M and Pittsburgh followed.

Only the Far West and the Rocky Mountain areas were missing from the Top 10.

Oklahoma, favored on 111 of the 150 votes cast for a 1,427-point total, had a challenge only from Michigan State. The Spartans piled up 1,050 votes, but with only 20 first place ballots built its count with second and third place votes in the counting system which allows 10 points for first, 9 for second, 8 for third, etc.

The Sooners, with 30 straight victories, won't long to put the vote of confidence to a test. They tangle with Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind., Oct. 27.

Michigan State has its best test for national as well as sectional honors Oct. 20 against Notre Dame.

The South has only Georgia Tech and Maryland among the Top 10, but the voters loaded the second 10 with Dixie clubs, ready to make the big jump. Tennessee, Mississippi, Duke and Miami (Fla.) all made the second 10.

McAteer Makes American Debut In NY Tonight

By MURRAY ROSE

The Associated Press

Pat McAteer, British Empire middleweight champion with a fine record, makes his United States debut tonight as a 6-5 underdog to strong, rangy Jerry Luedee of New Haven at New York's St. Nicholas Arena.

The 24-year-old, 5-10 Briton has a 42-2 record, including 20 knockouts. He has been training in New York for several weeks and has impressed observers. In Luedee, he will be up against an unranked club fighter who hits hard and takes a punch well. Luedee, 24, has a 21-3-1 record, including 11 kayos.

The 10-rounder will be telecast (DuMont, 9 p.m., EST). This will be a one-shot invasion for McAteer. He has to return to England for a title defense against Lew Lazar in Nottingham, Oct. 8.

Lightweight contenders Kenny Lane, Muskegon, Mich., and Ludwig Lightburn, British Honduras, clash in the Wednesday radio-television (ABC, 9 p.m., EST) 10-rounder at Miami's Biscayne Arena. Lane, 24-year-old southpaw, has won eight straight, six this year, and is the No. 6 contender. Lightburn, a stylish 22-year-old boxer-puncher, is the ninth contender. Lane's record is 43-5, three knockouts, and Lightburn's 41-7, 13 kayos.

Two fast striding featherweight contenders, Miguel Berrios, and Ike Chestnut, both of New York, meet in an interesting radio-TV 10-rounder (NBC 3 p.m., EST) at Detroit's Olympic Friday night. Berrios, 24, 5-2, is ranked sixth, and Chestnut, 25, 5-6, is ranked ninth. Niguel, a Puerto Rican native, has an 18-6 record, including a decision over Flash Elord in his last start. Chestnut, a fine boxer, has a 22-5-3 record. He moved into the rankings by stopping Carmelo Costa.

One of these eight will go to the hospital this year

It is true that, on the average, one out of every eight Americans will go to the hospital this year. It may be because of accident, sudden illness or need for surgery, or it might be a happy occasion like the birth of a baby. In any event the chances are that you or members of your family will need hospitalization several times in the course of your family life.

The cost of illness or injury can be a sudden and staggering blow to the family budget. Not only may there be medical and hospital expenses, but also loss of income. This is why it is well to be prepared for such an emergency . . . to have one of Metropolitan's new Accident and Sickness Policies to help pay for your loss of time from work . . . and, of course, Hospital and Surgical Expense Insurance to help cover the cost of hospital confinement or surgery.

HOSTAGE

by ARCHIE JOSCELYN

CHAPTR 34
"We'll have a look for some other ammunition, now that I have the mailpoxy vaccine," Eklund said to McKinstry as he blew out the light in his quarters. "Maybe two such pieces of luck are too much to hope for—but we'll see."

He led the way, keeping to the shadows, to where Dolf Kinney's big storehouse squatted monstrous on the prairie. Not the store, which was open at regular hours to the public, but to the supply building where only trusted employees were ever allowed to enter.

"You think there's something there that he's holding back?" the captain demanded.
"Nothing like finding out, is there?"

"The man talks sense," McKinstry murmured. "When you're in hot water up to your neck, a little more will scarcely parboil you."
Impulsively he moved across to a window and reached to try it, and turned at the thud of a clubbed gun barrel laid alongside a skull, to see Eklund bending over a fallen guard. The tumbled man still clutched a gun in his own hand.

"He aimed to shoot first and ask questions afterward," Eklund explained. "You'll never make a really good soldier, Bill, until you learn to protect your rear."
"Unless I keep you around, I'll never have the chance to learn," McKinstry agreed, disengaging the revolver from the clutching fingers. Taking the fallen man's belt, he used it to fasten his hands behind his back, then rolled him into a patch of deeper shadow.

Eklund had the window open by then, and they climbed through and closed it behind them. The mingled smells of many kinds of merchandise reached their nostrils, and there were vast supplies stacked everywhere, piled almost to the ceiling, boxes and bales and barrels, with only narrow aisles between them. It was plain that Dolf Kinney had prepared against a long and possibly hard winter.

Not much light filtered in, but with eyes accustomed to the gloom they could make their way around. It wouldn't do to light a lantern.

"I never imagined that he had half so much stuff," McKinstry murmured. "Now what?"
"I don't exactly know," Eklund confessed. "But it should be here somewhere. The thing is to find it."

"Almost anything ought to be here somewhere," McKinstry agreed. "How could it help it? What-ever it is!"

State's Rights Leader Is Aiming At Deadlock

By BILL CRIDER
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—John U. Barr, long-time smoking cigars the other day while his political "baby" raised a great racket in the hotel ballroom six floors below.

His baby was the National States Rights Conference, an ambitious effort to snatch the presidency from Republicans and Democrats. Or failing that — to give them the scare of their lives.

"I'm resting," explained Barr somewhat guiltily, lighting the day's 15th cigar. "Had to get off the conference floor; too many hands to shake and everybody wants to talk."

Perhaps you've never heard of Barr, a New Orleans businessman of average height, with a thick shock of iron-gray hair and a generally regarded as "Mr. States Rights."

He's a methodical man with a head for detail, a flair for organizing. He says he will never run for public office and he seldom steps out front. Behind the scenes he labors mightily.

To a great extent, Barr is the man who nursed the "cause" when it faltered, jogged it up new fire after defeat, secured up money to finance the fight and threw in lots of hard cash of his own.

The carefully controlled conference he sized drew 317 delegates from a dozen splinter parties scattered through 25 states.

All of the parties are committed to the doctrine of more powerful individual states and a weaker federal government. All believe racial segregation is a matter for states to handle. All regard the major parties as "Socialist" carbon copies.

"Our strategy is to win enough electoral votes to deadlock the Electoral College," Barr said. In that event the election would be decided in the House of Representatives, where each state would cast one vote.

"It's not such a long shot," he said. "We'll have independent electors pledged to our candidate on a lot of state ballots. They're already on in 15 states."

"We'll have a lot of grass roots support. And we have broadened our base. I wanted to get away from the idea that this is a Southern matter. States rights is no longer a regional question."

Barr is impartial on the question of which major party he expects the campaign to hurt most. "I'll cut both ways," he said.

The thorny problem of racial segregation is expected to help the States Righters. "No doubt about that," said Barr.

Under the States Rights doctrine such matters would be left up to the individual states; no "federal interference."

The man who spends a good part of his time pushing the doctrine was born Jan. 27, 1889, in Lauderdale, Miss., the only son of a Presbyterian minister.

"I have a country school education, worked as a laborer, spent some time as a salesman, moved to New Orleans in 1910 and took a course in accounting," said Barr. "I love to work."

He considered retiring some time back, sold his major enterprise, a rope and twine factory, and sat down for a while. He gave it up after an unsuccessful struggle. He now has new business interests.

"Politics take up as much time as I can give it," he said. "But I still need to make a dollar because I spend it as fast as it comes in. I am not a wealthy man. I'm not poor, but I'm not wealthy."

One place the money goes is into political financing. Barr won't discuss it, but aides estimated he has sunk at least $150,000 into backing his philosophy since 1944.

D. D. Garrett To Assist Mental Health Drive

D. D. Garrett, prominent Greenville Negro civic leader and insurance and real estate agent, has been appointed co-chairman of the Fund Drive of the Pitt County Mental Health Association by Doctor Ray D. Minges, the Fund Drive Chairman.

Garrett will again have charge of the solicitation among the Negro citizens of Pitt and adjacent counties. In accepting this position he recalled the statement of the Hoover Commission that "Mental illness is the greatest single problem in the nation's health picture."

Garrett is a native of Greenville where he attended public school and was graduated from North Carolina College with a Degree in Business Administration.

He is a veteran of World War II having served in the U. S. Navy after which he returned to Greenville to organize the D. D. Garrett Insurance and Real Estate Agency in 1946. At the present time he is Chairman of the Board of Directors of the North Carolina Negro Business League, President of the Greenville Civic League, Trustee of the Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church where he is also a Sunday school teacher and Vice President of the General Sunday School Convention of the same faith.

Boyle ...

"Some parents now worry because their young children prefer dog biscuits to cookies. No reason. They won't hurt a child and have more real food elements than most cookies."

"South Carolina has more dogs, in comparison to the number of people, than any other state. But dogs in California are better fed and live longer."

It seems that Rover, like his master, likes varying flavors in his food. His favorites: Meat, vegetable, cheese, ginger and charcoal. Not even a talking dog has ever been known to murmur, "make mine vanilla."

The dog, like man, often becomes a victim of ailments ranging from tonsillitis and halitosis to hepatitis and a seemingly increasing amount of cancer. Cancer in dogs usually, however, is external. This may be simply because internal cancers in pets are rarely diagnosed.

"People should beware of feeding their dogs candy and the wrong kind of table scraps," said Kendall. "They have a poor tolerance for sugar. Throws 'em right into dermatitis."

Kindall gets real cross over owners who think it cute to feed their dogs alcoholic drinks. Booze can turn the mildest Pido into an uproarious cop-biter.

"Dogs tend to act like the people who own them," said Kendall. "If a man who gets aggressive when he takes aboard too much liquor starts sharing his drinks with his dog, the dog too is likely to develop an aggressive personality."

"It is inhuman to teach dissipation to an animal whose only real joy in life lies in loving you."

The McLean House, where the surrender ending the Civil War was signed, has been rebuilt after the Appomattox Courthouse, Va. structure was razed in 1883.

No Partisanship In School Action

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. Brownell says his department will try to see that there is "no partisan aspect" to ending racial segregation in the schools.

He said during a filmed television interview yesterday that "great progress is being made" in integrating the schools. He noted that the Justice Department is now involved in only one such court case — that affecting an appeal from what he called "the courageous action" of the Hoxie, Ark., Board of Education in ordering integration of its schools.

Brownell described as "pretty much of a speculative realm" the possibility that U.S. marshals may have to be used to enforce court orders but told a questioner that so far integration is proceeding "in an orderly way without the necessity of any action by the courts of the type that you suggest."

Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) said during another TV interview that the Supreme Court's order in the school case "set back for many years progress being made" in the South.

"You cannot regulate people's habits and mores and customs and have them changed overnight simply because of a Supreme Court decision," he added.

May Use Draft To Fill Reserves

WASHINGTON — A sharp lag in voluntary enlistments may make it necessary to draft men for military reserve duty, an advisory group reports.

Congress once rejected the draft idea, but the National Security Training Commission said voluntary enlistments during the first year have provided only 40,000 of the 100,000 men sought for the program.

Under it, youths below the 18½-year draft age limit are encouraged to volunteer for six months of active duty training, to be followed by 7½ years in the active reserve. The volunteers become exempt from the 24-month service requirement of regular draftees, who also must continue service in the reserves.

But the commission said that despite "the greatest effort of its type ever put forward in peacetime . . . on behalf of any armed forces program," results of the drive for volunteers fell far short of expectations.

Unless the rate of volunteering can be doubled or tripled soon, the commission said in a report to Congress, "we should fundamentally revise the program and take steps to provide the necessary manpower."

Insists On Paying An Old Tax Debt

JERSEY CITY, N.J. — Pennsylvania man insists on paying this city a $20 personal property tax he incurred here 35 years ago.

Charles H. Lewis of Feesterville Pa., sent the check yesterday to the director of revenue after first asking for a bill three weeks ago.

He said he felt he had a moral obligation to pay the tax on the car he bought here in 1921.

City officials were both pleased and puzzled. It seems the particular tax Lewis wanted to pay went out of existence in 1927 and they don't know to what account they should credit the payment.

Only Britons Staging Rock 'n' Roll Riotings

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP) — A wave of youth riots has been rolling over Britain — to the pulsating beat of rock 'n' roll music from America — but kids across the English Channel so far are not excited.

In Norway teen-agers "are playing rock 'n' roll just like everybody else but they're keeping their shirts on," says an Oslo dispatch. Italy's only reaction is a large-scale sale of records.

Frankfurt reports it's difficult to assess the part rock 'n' roll and other jazz are playing in soldier incidents in West Germany, but many incidents begin in bars where juke boxes regularly blare out American music.

Rock 'n' roll has been banned from the radio in Communist East Germany. However, word has seeped through that East German youth is going for it and picking up everything available from radio stations in the American sector.

Rock 'n' roll seems to be known in Paris only because of the antics in London and elsewhere.

The British antics, accompanying the showing of the American film, "Rock Around the Clock," exploded into a wide headache for the nation's understaffed police force.

Rioting began Aug. 26 in a movie house in London's Shepherd's Bush section when 60 teen-agers lived up and down the aisles to the blaring notes of "See You Later Alligator." When the manager protested the gang picked him up and pitched him into the theater lobby.

Two nights later a rhythm-happy group of Teddy Boys (teen-agers who dress in narrow pants and long coats) pounded up and down the aisles of a Paddington theater and finally one of them slashed the protesting manager with a razor.

Five London movie houses showing the film had to call on the police Sept. 2 when teen-agers got out of hand and smashed seats and slashed the screen. Police and

Zoo's Alligator Loose In Lake

OKLAHOMA CITY — An eight-foot, 250-pound alligator named Alfred has escaped from Oklahoma City's Lincoln Park Zoo reptile house into a nearby lake. He crawled out through an unlocked door.

The alligator was seen on the bank of the muddy lake once but efforts to nab him only frightened him back into the water.

Bob Jemi, curator of reptiles, who claims there isn't much danger from the alligator, hopes to shoot an arrow into Alfred's tail to serve as a marker above the murky water.

Chicken Cooked In Mouse Poison

PITTSBURGH — That chicken John Giancola fried as a present to his mother on her 89th birthday tasted pretty good to them . . . until Giancola's wife came home from work. She discovered Giancola had fried the chicken in grease into which she had mixed mouse poison. Giancola, 54, and his mother were rushed to hospital and given antidotes. Both responded quickly and were discharged.

(This is a limited contest—see rule #9)

Each beautiful stole is marmink (mink-dyed marmoset)—prime quality pelts imported from Outer Mongolia. These stoles cannot be compared with genuine mink (which would cost at least $1500 in this size) but they are a serviceable fur which any woman of modest means would be glad to own and wear.

SIMPLY FOLLOW THESE EASY RULES

- Write a 2-line rhyming jingle about any one of these four brands: LIGHT WHITE—METROPOLITAN—AMERICA'S BEST—MICHIGAN QUEEN something like, "Light White is for the best, I like it better than the rest."
- Print your entry clearly on a plain piece of paper. Fancy or decorated entries count nothing extra.
- Be sure to include your name and address.
- Each time you send in your jingle, attach one trademark picture (for facsimile) from any size pack of one of the above flour brands. (No other brands count in this contest.)
- There are 10 separate weekly contests. Enter each week, if you wish. At the end of each week, after winner is selected, all entries received that week are destroyed. Entries received during each week will be judged for that week's contest only.
- Mail your entry to: STOLE CONTEST, P. O. Box 1280, Roanoke, Va.
- Entries and ideas become the property of Roanoke City Mills. None will be returned, nor can we enter into correspondence with any entrant. Winners agree to permit us to use their names and addresses in our advertising.
- Entries will be judged on originality, uniqueness, and suitability, by an outside advertising staff. Decision of judges is final.
- This is a limited contest, open only to residents of Virginia, North and South Carolina, and West Virginia. Employees of Roanoke City Mills, or any of our wholesale distributors for members of these families may not enter.
- Each beautiful stole is marmink (mink-dyed marmoset)—prime quality pelts imported from Outer Mongolia. These stoles cannot be compared with genuine mink (which would cost at least $1500 in this size), but they are a serviceable fur which any woman would be glad to own and wear.

Stepped On Gas, Car Stood Still

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Carmine Mercurio got into his car yesterday stepped on the gas and didn't move an inch.

He got out and soon discovered the trouble. No wheels. They had been stolen. The auto was resting on its axles on four milk boxes.

Americans will consume some eight billion frankfurters this year. Linked up, the hot dogs would reach 600,000 miles, more than the distance to the moon and back.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — The stock market put on an irregular performance today with a few specialties standing out in the early afternoon.

The market was higher in the early stages but turned mixed near midday. Chemicals were down, rails were up a shade and most other major divisions were irregular.

Pivotal issues generally moved within a point a share in either direction. A few favored stocks managed gains of 2 to 3 points.

Trading was estimated at around 2,250,000 shares for the day, compared with Friday's 2,100,000 shares. Today's early advance was a carryover from the higher market Friday when rail road issues registered good gains.

In the chemicals, American Cyanamid, Union Carbide and Du Pont dipped more than a point. Texas Co. and Gulf Oil Bethlehem, were off between 1 and 2. Gulf had opened up 1/4.

Ahead a point or so were Caterpillar, Goodrich, Chance Vought, International Paper and Hiram Walker.

Penn Dixie and Lone Star Cement were up around 2 following reports that home building contract awards were higher than a year ago. Food Fair rose about 3 for a time.

Rails were unchanged to fractionally higher, faring better than much of the market but well under their Friday performance.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at $182.16, with industrials off 40 cents, rails up 40 cents and utilities up 10 cents. The average advanced $1 on Friday.

RALEIGH — (NCDA) — Hog prices mostly 25 higher. Tops of 15.50 to 16.75 at Rocky Mount, 16.00 to 16.50 at Benson, 15.75 to 16.25 at Tarboro, Enfield and Bethel; 15.50 to 16.00 at Kinston and New Bern; 16.25 at Hillsboro; 16.00 at Rich Square, Fayetteville, Clinton, Lumberton, Mount Olive, Elizabethtown, Castle Hayne and Goldsboro; 15.75 at Smithfield, Mount Gilead, Siler City, Dunn, Newton Grove, Bailey, Whiteville, Kenly, Clarkton, Blackman's Crossroads, Wingate; 15.00 at Farmville, Beulaville and Nahunta.

Boy Admits To Stealing 2 Cars

A 14-year-old Greenville boy has been turned over to the juvenile authorities after he admitted stealing two cars and was suspected of stealing a third.

He was released in his parents' custody shortly after being apprehended on the streets of Greenville driving a stolen vehicle belonging to Thomas E. Harris, 303 Harding Street, Greenville. Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs said that "evidently the boy stole the cars just to go on joy rides. He would take a car and then return it to the same place shortly afterwards."

Tar Heel GOP Plans Caravan

CHARLOTTE — North Carolina Republicans, opening a statewide campaign headquarters here, have announced plans for a caravan which will travel across the state.

The Republican caravan will open its three-week junket in the 1st Congressional District at Manteo Oct. 1. The tour will close in the 12th District at Murphy.

Ray Jennings of Taylorsville, state GOP chairman, said Kyles Hayes of North Wilkesboro, Republican candidate for governor, and Joel Johnson of Four Oaks, candidate for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Sam Ervin Jr., will make the tour. Congressional candidates will tour with the caravan in their own districts.

The Republicans opened their statewide campaign headquarters in the Hotel Charlotte Saturday. Jennings said the GOP executive committee will meet here next Saturday to plan the caravan.

Headquarters have been set up in the hotel by the Mecklenburg County Citizens for Eisenhower and Jonas Committee. The group, not republican, is backing the two GOP candidates.

Charles R. Jonas of the 10th District is the state's only Republican congressman.

Durham County Demo Chairman Refuses Resign

DURHAM — The chairman of the Durham County Democratic Executive Committee, under federal indictment for alleged wire-tapping activities, has refused a petition by members of the committee asking for his resignation.

J. Leslie Atkins Jr. made no formal reply to the petition, signed by 12 of 33 committee members, but said during the weekend he would reject it.

Atkins, a member of the Durham Housing Authority, was indicted by a federal grand jury last month on charges of planning a wire tap on the telephone of a resident of a Durham housing project. His case, which involves charges against two other men, may be called in district court this month.

Mild 'Slap' For Socialist Regime

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Sweden's voters have given their Socialist government a mild slap on the wrist but continued it in office with a comfortable 25-seat majority in Parliament.

Complete, unofficial returns from yesterday's elections kept the Social Democrats and their Agrarian partners in a commanding position despite an impressive upsurge for the Conservative party.

The results indicated a demand from a significant segment of the public for lower taxes, better housing and action to stem inflation.

The Conservatives, who campaigned on these issues, increased their representation in the Riksdag from 31 seats to 34.

The Social Democrats won 106 seats, two less than they held previously. Their partners in the coalition government, the Agrarians, lost 6 of their 25 seats in the 231-member legislative body.

The Liberals retained their 58 places. The Communist party, which has never counted for much in Sweden, increased its representation from 5 to 6.

Since 1932 the Social Democrats have guided the "Swedish way" program of a state-planned economy and far-reaching social security for its citizens.

The voting was apathetic by Swedish standards. The 3,755,583 persons who went to the polls represented about 78 1/2 per cent of the eligible vote.

Beacon Blacked Out For Birds

NEW YORK — A bright beacon atop the Empire State Building has been blacked out to prevent fatal crackups by southbound birds.

Bird lovers feared the dazzling light would charm thousands of night-flying birds off course and send them crashing into the skyscraper or each other.

The building management announced yesterday that the powerful stationary beam will stay dark until Nov. 1 and the end of the migrating season.

The announcement said the revolving beacons on the building will continue to sweep the Manhattan sky because moving lights "are not considered a hazard to birds."

DIFFICULT NAME Miami, Fla. (AP) — Pity the poor clerk who has to announce a case which is now on the docket of U.S. District Court, Willy H. Watkins, injured aboard a Norwegian ship, is asking $50,000 from the ship's owner, a corporation named Dampskibsselskabet Laly.

REPLACEMENT Police Chief S. G. Gibbs today announced Mrs. Alverta Corbett will temporarily replace Eleanor Hagan on the force.
