Set Deadline For Demo Rally Sales

Democratic Party leaders in Pitt County today put a September 25 deadline on reservations for the September 28 party rally which will feature an address by House Speaker Sam Rayburn.

Rally Chairman John Clark of Greenville said this morning that response to ticket sales in Eastern North Carolina had been so heavy that sponsors are facing a problem of possibly running out of tickets. Approximately 1200 persons will be able to attend the $15-a-plate dinner which has been designated as fund-raising campaign for the party.

Eleven Buyers On Bethel Mart

BETHEL—Eleven buyers have been assigned to the Bethel Sweet Potato Market which will open sales next Tuesday.

The manager quoted buyers assigned to the market as saying that farmers should handle the potatoes in the same manner they handle eggs. The potatoes should be graded with care, preferably using grading boards in the field to help with sizing baskets and to eliminate scuffed and bruised potatoes.

Spending Appeals Hit $38 Millions In But Five Days

RALEIGH (AP)—In five days of state budget hearings, the Advisory Budget Commission has received requests for increased spending totaling more than 38 million dollars during the next biennium.

The hearings began Sept. 4, were in recess last week and resumed yesterday. They wind up Thursday when the budget requests for operation of the state's public schools are presented.

Requests for increased appropriations totaling some 13 million dollars were outlined to the board yesterday by the State Hospitals Board of Control and the State Board of Higher Education.

To do the job of operating the state's mental hospitals the way "it ought to be done," an increase of $3,400,000 each year of the 1957-59 biennium is needed, the commission was told.

The hospitals board requested $16,773,851 to operate the mental hospitals the first year of the biennium and $16,372,509 the second year.

Rep. John W. Umstead of Chapel Hill, board chairman, said, "We asked for what we thought we needed to do a 100 per cent job. The way it ought to be done. We don't expect to get all this money."

The Board of Higher Education recommended that operating budgets of the 12 state-supported colleges be increased by six million dollars each year of the biennium. In addition, it asked $25,294,348 for permanent improvements at the institutions.

For the first time, the board presented budgets for the various colleges. It pointed out that the increases are aimed chiefly at meeting the problems of increased enrollment and low faculty salaries.

The board asked $25,394,841 for the first year to operate the colleges and $25,357,752 the second year. The commission was told that slightly more than three million of the requested increase would go toward a 10 per cent salary increase. L. P. McLendon of Greensboro, a board member, declared that the pay hikes "should not be across the board."

He said the institutions would be given some leeway in adjusting salary scales.

The board recommended $5,042,783 for the next fiscal year for the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and $4,993,903 the next year, compared with $3,733,387 being spent this fiscal year.

Other requests were as follows: (in each case, the first figure is the request for the first year of the biennium, the second figure the request for the second year and the current appropriation is in parenthesis.)

Division of health affairs at the university: $2,118,277, $2,118,277 ($1,672,664).

The psychiatric center at Chapel Hill: $437,338, $437,388 ($341,934).

North Carolina Memorial Hospital: $1,332,462, $1,332,462 ($886,309).

The university's institute of fisheries: $76,828, $76,828 ($69,828).

North Carolina State College: $4,044,575, $4,055,889 ($3,172,563).

Agricultural experiment station: $1,793,299, $1,793,299 ($1,478,030).

Agricultural extension: $2,512,602, $2,512,602 ($2,052,767).

Woman's College: $2,007,014, $1,981,853 ($1,511,093).

East Carolina College: $1,348,319, $1,348,319 ($998,755).

Eighteen Nations Discuss Plans For Handling Suez

LONDON (AP)—Envoys from 18 nations today began intensive talks on the Western Big Three's latest plans for dealing with Egyptian President Nasser's nationalization of the Suez Canal.

The foreign ministers and ambassadors open formal sessions tomorrow to take up a Big Three proposal for a users' association to handle the passage of their ships through the waterway.

Secretary of State Dulles arrived by plane from Washington after a last-minute conference with President Eisenhower.

The second London Suez conference was assured 10 per cent attendance by Ethiopia's acceptance of the invitation. The 18 nations are those which, at last month's 22-nation London conference, supported the Big Three's plan for international control and operation of the canal.

Nasser, who nationalized the old Suez Canal Co. July 26, rejected the earlier plan and has denounced the proposal for a users' association as a "declaration of war."

As previously outlined, the association would employ veteran Suez pilots to take its own convoys through the canal, collect tolls and from them reimburse Egypt.

Nasser has warned that any move to force a convoy through the channel would mean war, an outcome most of the 18 nations are pledged to avoid.

One suggestion is that a guinea pig convoy should steam up to one entrance to the canal and request permission to pass through. If Nasser refused, the Big Three consider the canal closed.

The United Nations failed to observe the 1956 canal convention's promise of freedom of passage to all nations at all times.

Egypt, meanwhile, sent the Security Council a note asking it to keep a vigilant eye on the Suez situation. The Egyptians demanded an end to what they called pressure from Britain and France.

and accused them of "shocking acts" in violation of the U.N. Charter. Egypt did not, however, ask for formal council action.

Some members of the 18-nation group, led by Sweden, Norway and Denmark, have said they want the matter referred to the U.N. before going ahead with the users' association scheme. Others indicated they favor a boycott of the canal now, sending ships around Africa and putting an economic squeeze on Egypt.

That would also hit most West European countries by raising the cost of the Middle East oil which fuels much of their economy, or forcing them to pay dollars for oil from the United States and Venezuela. Supporters of the economic offensive argued with good reason that not only would the canal revenue Nasser needs badly, but also would trim the income of Arab oil producers and perhaps force them to pressure Nasser into some agreement with the West.

Dulles before leaving Washington modified reports that the United States would lend West Europe up to half a billion dollars to pay for oil purchases from the United States and Venezuela and to help meet the additional cost of the longer voyage around Africa.

Instead, he said the only U.S. financial aid would come via Export-Import Bank loans, and it would be available only to enable dollar-short countries to buy oil from the Americas.

British treasury officials took the view that their government already was committed to repaying dollar debts until the end of the century and did not dare take on any more repayment responsibilities.

Another drawback for the British was that such aid could not be used to pay the additional cost of using the around-Africa route. The higher freight charges and additional demands on already scarce shipping posed a threat of higher prices for goods Britain sells to the Far East and higher costs of British imports from that region.

Dulles reiterated in Washington that the United States is dedicated to solving the Suez issue by peaceful means, and said, "We are not trying to organize any boycott of the canal."

He added, however, that the United States will not accept any infringement on the rights of users of the canal.

Powell Bill Check Arrives; Paving Projects Disclosed

Greenville has received its $68,476.28 Powell Bill check from the N. C. State Highway and Public Works Commission.

The money, the city's share of a state-wide gasoline tax, will be used for street improvements and maintenance.

Paving of several streets with this year's Powell Bill funds was approved by the City Council in May.

In addition, City Manager Leonard Bloxam said, a portion of the money will be used to pay for a white coat on several streets which are beginning to break up.

Bloxam listed the following blocks which will receive resurfacing coats: Cotanche from Eighth to Tenth; Forbes from Eighth to Ninth; Ward from Latham to Vance; Latham from Fifth to Fourth; Conitenea from Fifth to Fourth.

Paving projects which were approved by the Council are: Oak St. between Third and Fourth; Vance St. between Colonial and Third (paving only); E. Fifth St. between Brownlee Drive and Hickory (curb and gutter); Myrtle Ave., Watauga to Skinner (curb and gutter); Elm St., between Third and city limits; Bonner's Lane and Atlantic Ave.

The cost of those projects will be $27,089.48, that amount plus other costs will pay 1 per cent for curb and gutter and the same amount for paving. The remaining amount will come from Powell Bill funds.

There are other streets for which petitions are now on file that will be considered in the near future," Bloxam said. "However, paving work is being held up at this time due to drainage projects scheduled under the proposed bond issue."

The city manager said there are "also several other streets in Greenville which create critical traffic problems due to the narrowness of the streets."

"As soon as paper work can be cleared in these areas, it is hoped that we will be able to go ahead with the widening and paving of these areas," he declared.

Several street improvement jobs have already been carried out with Powell Bill funds, Bloxam pointed out.

One block of Cotanche St. between Second and Third Sts. was recently widened and paved. Radii at the intersections of Elm and Tenth, Elm and 14th, Elm and N. Overlook Drive, and Elm and Tremont have recently been widened to prevent washing, the city manager pointed out.

Bloxam noted that the cost of installing curb and gutter in a portion of Brookgreen is being borne entirely by property owners fronting the street. However, he said the work is being performed under the city contract and the job and engineered and supervised by the city. Thus the job will meet city standards.

Street patching and other street maintenance is also handled with Powell Bill funds, according to the city manager.

An exception to that is street smears of color won art prize.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A newspaper reporter who paints pictures for the fun of it won a blue ribbon at the Tennessee State Fair yesterday with the canvas he used to get rid of excess paint.

Charles Fontenay, a reporter for the Nashville Tennessean, said he used the old piece of dun-colored canvas to wipe off his knife after scraping his palette in the course of painting several more serious efforts.

He added that the resulting riot of colors caught his eye and caused him to smear them more widely. The last smear of all was done accidentally by his topcoat as he picked up the "painting" while some of the thick daubs were still wet.

Scientists Say Moon Rocket Soon Possible

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Navy scientists said today it may have become possible to send a rocket to the moon.

The rocket probably would deliver no more than a "four-pound payload" to the moon, said Kurt R. Stelling, chief of propulsion at the Naval Research Laboratory here, and Richard Foster, a member of the laboratory propulsion staff.

For that reason, they said, the initial payload might consist of nothing but a charge of metallic dust. They said that if it were fired at a new moon and if it landed on the darkened surface, the impact might be witnessed from the earth as a large bright flash.

Stelling and Foster expressed their views in an article prepared for a new magazine, Missiles and Rockets. The article is based on a paper scheduled to be read tomorrow at the International Astronautical Federation Congress in Rome.

They stressed that the opinions expressed were not to be construed as reflecting the views of the Navy Department.

Stelling and Foster said that "when carried aloft to 70,000 feet by a huge four-million-cubic-foot skyhook balloon, a solid-propellant step rocket will be capable of bringing a four-pound payload to the moon."

They noted that small rockets frequently have been carried aloft and launched from balloons, but added that a lunar rocket might require a cluster of smaller balloons for greater stability. The Rocket would be launched straight up, through the balloon or balloons they said.

The Navy scientists proposed a three-stage rocket vehicle which they said would hurl the payload toward the moon. The distance between the moon and the earth varies from 221,463 to 252,710 miles as the moon moves around its orbit.

Special County Polio Clinics End

The Pitt County Health Department ended its series of special polio clinics yesterday when approximately 400 shots were given in Ayden.

In regular clinics Saturday, the Health Department immunized 822 children in Greenville and 334 in Farmville. Last week, Health Department nurses administered 2,603 shots, of which 2,040 were second immunizations.

Dr. Walter C. Humbert, Health Director, also reported a new case of polio which will not be classed as a resident case in Pitt. The victim is a nine-month-old Negro male of Vanceboro. The child was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital where his case was diagnosed and subsequently transferred to Duke Hospital in Durham. The case has been reported to the State Board of Health officials and the Craven County Health Department.

The latest case of polio is of a paralytic nature but Dr. Humbert stated that the paralysis is not severe. The child had not been immunized.

With the special clinic series ended, Dr. Humbert announced that the school clinics would begin next week. Miss Edna Corbett, formerly on the night staff of Pitt Memorial Hospital, has been hired to conduct the school clinics and will spend the remainder of this week in an orientation period.

The schedule for the school clinics has not been set up yet, Dr. Humbert said, but Miss Corbett will announce it probably before the week is out.

Regular clinics scheduled for this week in Greenville, Farmville and Bethel will administer polio shots to children who are not in school. The Greenville clinics will be held at the Health Department on Wednesday and Saturday, the Farmville clinics will be on Thursday and Saturday, and the Bethel clinic will be Saturday.

The Bethel clinic is the regular clinic scheduled for first and third Saturdays of each month.

Slow Pledges

Pitt County Red Cross officials said today additional pledges are necessary if the Bloodmobile quota of 110 pints is to be met tomorrow.

Advanced donations registrations have been slow, thus far, but Mrs. Walter F. Taylor, Executive Secretary of the local chapter, said they should pick up this afternoon and tomorrow morning. Trained Red Cross personnel assigned to the Bloodmobile will accept donations tomorrow from noon until 6 p.m. at the Moose Lodge on the Farmville Highway.

Transportation will be provided for persons desiring it during the time the Bloodmobile is in Greenville, Mrs. Taylor said. A car will pick donors up at either their home or offices if donors will call the Moose Lodge at telephone 3882.

Farmville Mart Has Its Best Day

FARMVILLE—The Farmville Tobacco Market hit its highest average of the year yesterday when $26,992 pounds of leaf sold for an average of $53.12 per hundred pounds.

$390,249 Profit By Utilities In Fiscal Year

Greenville Utilities showed a net profit of $390,249.45 for the fiscal year ending June 30, an audit prepared by Certified Public Accountant John C. Proctor shows.

Total operating revenue for the city-owned utilities during the fiscal year was $2,156,400.64. Added to that was $38,123.44 in miscellaneous revenue. From that amount the audit took $1,598,280.52 in operating expense, $63,494.11 bond interest and $142,500 turnover to the city to arrive at the net profit figure.

Proctor's report showed that the Commission's electric department with $1,127,634.52 was responsible by far for the largest amount of the total operating revenue. The water department brought in $238,165.82 and the gas department's revenue for the year was $180,600.50.

The electric department had expenses of $1,273,362.62 during the year and a profit of $454,271.96. The water department's expenses were $159,189.48 with a profit of $78,976.34. Gas department expenses were $165,728.42 and its profit, $24,871.88.

That made a total of $558,120.12 for the three departments to which was added the miscellaneous revenue figure. Taken from that total was the city turn-over and bond interest.

In his disposition of earnings report, Proctor added $313,065.00 for allowances for depreciation and obsolescence which was included in operating expenses to the profit figure to give a total of $703,315.05 to be accounted for.

He reported that $341,567.53 was spent for electric department improvements, $128,388.55 for water department improvements, $52,192.53 for sewer department, $31,691.48 for gas department, $229.23 for office equipment, $20,838.84 for automotive equipment, and $4,104.81 for communications equipment.

That totalled $579,212.97. Added to that was $32,340.16 which represented a $42,179.53 increase in stock less $9,839.37 decrease in accounts payable to total $611,553.13. To that was added $100,000 for bonds retired, $1,571.56 increase in cash balance. Deducted was $9,809.64 representing the increase in customers' deposits and decrease in accounts receivable and prepaid insurance, giving a total of $703,315.05.

The audit showed that Greenville Utilities had assets of $6,344,512.17. Broken down the assets were: treasurer's balance, City of Greenville, $1,722.32; office fund, $150; accounts receivable, $2,839,285; inventories, plant materials and supplies, $274,556.67; U. S. Government bonds, $125,000. Property and plant equipment listed: electric, $5,801,354.49; water and sewer, $2,668,226.74; gas, $504,636.96; automotive equipment, $124,919.60; office equipment, $28,367.75; communications equipment, $9,889.46.

That totalled $9,138,886 which, less a $3,191,636 reserve for depreciation, gave $5,947,250. The amount combined with other assets totalled $6,344,512.17.

Under liabilities the audit listed: accounts payable, $97,173.48; consumer's deposits, $92,939.40; bonds outstanding, $2,480,000; and surplus, $3,674,349.29 to total $6,344,512.17.

Proctor presented the audit to the commissioners at their regular September meeting.

Cutoff Of School Funds Faces Vote

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Gov. Thomas B. Stanley's fund cutoff bill, the key to his "total resistance" program for preserving segregated schools in Virginia, went to a showdown vote today in the House of Delegates.

The vote on passage of the measure came after administration forces late last night won their fight against Delegate Fred Pollard's amendment tacking on a local option provision. This would have given the localities an escape from the threat of losing state school support by turning to an assignment plan.

Pollard's amendment was beaten Saturday night by slightly more than seven hours of debate. Vote on the amendment brought to a close the House's first night session of the extra legislative session, now in its fourth week.

Meanwhile, Senate opponents of the governor's money-withholding proposal worked on a compromise in the local option assignment feature contained in the Pollard amendment, in hopes of overcoming the southside counties' dislike of the proposal. Apparently, the strategy would be to seek to get local option into the administration package in the upper chamber.

Delegate Ruell M. Carneal warned the House during last night's debate that such a plan, whereby a locality could choose assignment by referendum, would be detrimental to the state's interest in at least one county in his district, Charles City. The referendum could be called on petitions of the voters.

Qualified Negro voters in that county outnumber the whites, said Carneal.

Under the compromise plan talked among senators, a referendum could be called only after the local school board has asked for it, ruling out any likelihood of the voters' being able to initiate the election.

The lengthy debate yesterday and last night found supporters of the Stanley program urging the fund cutoff bill's passage without the assignment amendment, in line with the no-compromise stand taken by the governor himself.

Opponents, however, argued the governor's key bill by itself would prevent integration but would hasten it, and would serve to close schools and unfairly penalize localities under court order to desegregate. It would shut off state funds from localities which integrate even one school.

Mild 'Slap' For Socialist Regime

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Swedish voters have given their Socialist government a mild slap on the wrist but continued it in office with a comfortable 25-seat majority in Parliament.

Complete, unofficial returns from yesterday's elections kept the Social Democrats and their Agrarian partners in a commanding position despite an impressive upsurge for the Conservative party.

The results indicated a demand from a significant segment of the public for lower taxes, better housing and action to stem inflation.

The Conservatives, who campaigned on these issues, increased their representation in the Riksdag from 31 seats to 30.

The Social Democrats won 108 seats, two less than they held previously. Their partners in the coalition government, the Agrarians, lost 6 of their 25 seats in the 231-member legislative body.

The Liberals retained their 58 places. The Communist party, which has never counted for much in Sweden, increased its representation from 5 to 6.

Since 1932 the Social Democrats have guided the "Swedish way" program of a state-planned economy and far-reaching social security for its citizens.

The voting was apathetic by Swedish standards. The 3,755,583 persons who went to the polls represented about 78 1/2 per cent of the eligible vote.

Beacon Blacked Out For Birds

NEW YORK — A bright beacon atop the Empire State Building has been blacked out to prevent fatal crackups by southbound birds.

Bird lovers feared the dazzling light would charm thousands of night-flying birds off course and send them crashing into the skyscraper or each other.

The building management announced yesterday that the powerful stationary beam will stay dark until Nov. 1 and the end of the migrating season.

The announcement said the revolving beacons on the building will continue to sweep the Manhattan sky because moving lights "are not considered a hazard to birds."

Tar Heel GOP Plans Caravan

CHARLOTTE — North Carolina Republicans, opening a statewide campaign headquarters here, have announced plans for a caravan which will travel across the state.

The Republican caravan will open its three-week junket in the 1st Congressional District at Manteo Oct. 1. The tour will close in the 12th District at Murphy.

Congressional candidates will tour with the caravan in their own districts.

The Republicans opened their statewide campaign headquarters in the Hotel Charlotte Saturday. Jennings said the GOP executive committee will meet here next Saturday to plan the caravan.

Headquarters have been set up in the hotel by the Mecklenburg County Citizens for Eisenhower and Jonas Committee. The group, not a Republican, is backing the two GOP candidates.

Charles R. Jonas of the 10th District is the state's only Republican congressman.

Spending Appeals Hit $38 Millions In But Five Days

RALEIGH (AP)—In five days of state budget hearings, the Advisory Budget Commission has received requests for increased spending totaling more than $38 million dollars during the next biennium.

The hearings began Sept. 4, were in recess last week and resumed yesterday. They wind up Thursday when the budget requests for operation of the state's public schools are presented.

Requests for increased appropriations totaling some 13 million dollars were outlined to the board yesterday by the State Hospitals Board of Control and the State Board of Higher Education.

To do the job of operating the state's mental hospitals the way "it ought to be done," an increase of $3,400,000 each year of the 1957-59 biennium is needed, the commission was told.

The hospitals board requested $16,773,851 to operate the mental hospitals the first year of the biennium and $16,372,509 the second year.

Rep. John W. Umstead of Chapel Hill, board chairman, said "We asked for what we thought we needed to do a 100 per cent job, the way it ought to be done. We don't expect to get all this money."

The Board of Higher Education recommended that operating budgets of the 12 state-supported colleges be increased by six million dollars each year of the biennium. In addition, it asked $25,294,348 for permanent improvements at the institutions.

For the first time, the board presented budgets for the various colleges. It pointed out that the increases are aimed chiefly at meeting the problems of increased enrollment and low faculty salaries.

The board asked $25,394,841 for the first year to operate the colleges and $25,357,752 the second year. The commission was told that slightly more than three million of the requested increase would go toward a 10 per cent

Eighteen Nations Discuss Plans For Handling Suez

LONDON (AP)—Envoys from 18 nations today began intensive talks on the Western Big Three's latest plans for dealing with Egyptian President Nasser's nationalization of the Suez Canal.

The foreign ministers and ambassadors open formal sessions tomorrow to take up a Big Three proposal for a users' association to handle the passage of their ships through the waterway.

Secretary of State Dulles arrived by plane from Washington after a last-minute conference with President Eisenhower.

The second London Suez conference was assured 100 per cent attendance by Ethiopia's acceptance of the invitation. The 18 nations are those which, at last month's 22-nation London conference, supported the Big Three's plan for international control and operation of the canal.

Nasser, who nationalized the old Suez Canal Co. July 26, rejected the earlier plan and has denounced the proposal for a users' association as a "declaration of war."

As previously outlined, the association would employ veteran Suez pilots to take its own convoys through the canal, collect tolls and from them reimburse Egypt.

Nasser has warned that any move to force a convoy through the channel would mean war, an outcome most of the 18 nations are pledged to avoid.

One suggestion is that a guinea pig convoy should steam up to one entrance to the canal and request permission to pass through. If Nasser refused, the Big Three consider he could be accused in the United Nations of failing to observe the 1888 canal convention's promise of freedom of passage to all nations at all times.

Egypt, meanwhile, sent the Security Council a note asking it to keep a vigilant eye on the Suez situation. The Egyptians demanded an end to what they called pressure from Britain and France, and accused them of "shocking acts" in violation of the U.N. Charter. Egypt did not, however, ask for formal council action.

Some members of the 18-nation group, led by Sweden, Norway and Denmark, have said they want the matter referred to the U.N. before going ahead with the users' association scheme. Others indicated they favor a boycott of the canal now, sending ships around Africa and putting an economic squeeze on Egypt.

That would also hit most West European countries by raising the cost of the Middle East oil which fuels much of their economy, or forcing them to pay dollars for oil from the United States and Venezuela. Supporters of the economic offensive argued in reply that it not only would cut the canal revenues Nasser needs badly, but also would trim the income of Arab oil producers and perhaps force them to pressure Nasser into some agreement with the West.

Dulles before leaving Washington modified reports that the United States would lend West Europe up to half a billion dollars to help meet the additional cost of the longer voyage around Africa. Instead, he said the only U.S. financial aid would come via Export-Import Bank loans, and it would be available only to enable dollar-short countries to buy oil from the Americas.

British treasury officials took the view that their government already was committed to repaying dollar debts until the end of the century and did not dare take on any more repayment responsibilities.

Another drawback for the British was that such aid could not be used to pay the additional cost of using the around-Africa route. The higher freight charges and additional demands on already scarce shipping posed a threat of higher prices for goods Britain sells to the Far East and higher costs of British imports from that region.

Dulles reiterated in Washington that the United States is dedicated to solving the Suez issue by peaceful means, and said, "We are not trying to organize any boycott of the canal."

He added, however, that the United States will not accept any infringement on the rights of users of the canal.

Set Deadline For Demo Rally Sales

Democratic Party leaders in Pitt County today put a September 25 deadline on reservations for the September 28 party rally which will feature a address by House Speaker Sam Rayburn.

Rally Chairman John Clark of Greenville said this morning that response to ticket sales in Eastern North Carolina had been so heavy that sponsors are facing a problem of possibly running out of tickets. Approximately 1200 persons will be able to attend the $15-a-plate dinner which has been designated as fund-raising campaign for the party.

Despite the heavy response, Clark said that tickets are still available. Telephone orders are being accepted by Clark at telephone 2341, Charles Gaskins at telephone 4124, and L.M. Buchanan at Jimmy Brewer at telephone 6186.

Response to the sales has been general throughout Eastern North Carolina, Clark said. Yesterday, he received orders for 20 tickets from Bertie County, 60 tickets from Martin County and 50 tickets from Craven County. Other orders have come from as far away as Kitty Hawk in Dare County.

Clark said that ticket sales will be cut off when they reach the 1200 mark. He added, "A check of the facilities of the Wright Building on the East Carolina campus shows that we can feed 1200. We don't want to sell more tickets than we have places for the dinner although the $15 worth of food. There may be some arrangements for persons who only want to hear Mr. Rayburn's talk but those details have not been worked out completely."

Rayburn's speech has been the big drawing card thus far. His topic has not been announced by local party leaders but the House Speaker has indicated it will be a major campaign address.

A preliminary meeting of newspaper, radio and television representatives who will cover the rally has been scheduled for tonight. Publicity Chairman, David J. Whitchard said today 30 newsmen had been invited to the meeting at the Silo Restaurant to discuss publicity for the rally. Tonight's meeting will be at 8 o'clock and persons attending will represent news facilities throughout the Eastern part of the state.

The rally was first announced August 22 when First District Congressman Herbert C. Bonner completed arrangements with Rayburn to come to Greenville. Tickets for the rally went on sale a week later under direction of C. Bert Peeler of Greenville who said ticket orders began coming in almost immediately.

Powell Bill Check Arrives; Paving Projects Disclosed

Greenville has received its $68,476.28 Powell Bill check from the N. C. State Highway and Public Works Commission.

The money, the city's share of a state-wide gasoline tax, will be used for street improvements and maintenance.

Paving of several streets with this year's Powell Bill funds was approved by the City Council in May.

In addition, City Manager Leonard Bloxam said, a portion of the money will be used to pay for a sealing coat on several streets which are beginning to break up.

Bloxam listed the following blocks which will receive resurfacing coats: Cotanche from Eighth to Tenth; Forbes from Eighth to Tenth; Ward from Latham to Vance; Latham from Fifth to Fourth; Contentnea from Fifth to Fourth.

Paving projects which were approved by the Council are: Oak St. between Third and Fourth; Vance St. between Colonial and Third (paving only); E. Fifth St. between Brownline Drive and Hickory (curb and gutter); Myrtle Ave. Watauga to Skinner (curb and gutter); Elm St. between Third and city limits; Bonner's Lane and Atlantic Ave.

Total cost of those projects will be $27,088.48. Of that amount property owners will pay $1 per linear foot for curb and gutter and the same amount for paving. The remaining amount will come from Powell Bill funds.

There are other streets for which petitions are now on file that will be considered in the near future," Bloxam said. "However, paving work is being held up at this time due to drainage projects scheduled under the proposed bond issue."

The city manager said there are also several other streets in Greenville which create critical traffic problems due to the narrowness of the streets.

As soon as paper work can be cleared in these areas, it is hoped that we will be able to go ahead with the widening and paving of these areas," he declared.

Several street improvement jobs have already been carried out with Powell Bill funds, Bloxam pointed out.

One block of Cotanche St. between Second and Third Sts. was recently widened and paved. Radi at the intersections of Elm and N. Overlook Drive, and Elm and Tremont have recently been widened to prevent washing, the city manager pointed out.

Bloxam noted that the cost of installing curb and gutter in a portion of Brookgreen is being borne entirely by property owners fronting the street. However, he said the work is being performed under the city contract and the job of engineering and supervised by the city. This job will meet city standards.

Street patching and other street maintenance is also handled with Powell Bill funds, according to the city manager.

An exception to that is street

Powell Bill Check Arrives; Paving Projects Disclosed

patching done for the Utilities Commission by the city. Bloxam pointed out that the commission is billed for patching of holes cut in streets by the Utilities Commission.

Another major street project, the opening and paving of First St. will be accomplished with bond issue monies. Powell Bill funds will not be used for that project.

The material will be used for patching streets during the winter months when the asphalt plant is not in operation, Bloxam said that holes cut in streets are now checked at regular intervals and when the dirt fills have settled sufficiently they are patched either with asphalt or with the cold patch material.

Bloxam said that no capital improvement equipment will be purchased with Powell Bill funds this year. Last year a new road grader was purchased from the fund.

Eleven Buyers On Bethel Mart

BETHEL—Eleven buyers have been assigned to the Bethel Sweet Potato Market which will open sales next Tuesday.

Sales on the market will open at 8:30 a.m., market manager Joe Butterworth said today. Morning operations will be suspended at noon and the afternoon selling will run from 1:30 until 4:30. Sales will be held every day during the week except Monday.

Butterworth cautioned farmers who will use the market to use new baskets which must weigh a full 56 pounds at sale time. Grading boards and gloves will be available to assist farmers.

The manager quoted buyers assigned to the market as saying that farmers should handle the potatoes in the same manner they handle eggs. The potatoes should be graded with care, preferably using grading boards in the field to help with sizing baskets and to eliminate scuffed and bruised potatoes. Butterworth added that potatoes sold on the Bethel market are shipped to distant points in competition with potatoes raised in other states.

Special County Polio Clinics End

The Pitt County Health Department ended its series of special polio clinics yesterday when approximately 400 shots were given in Ayden.

In regular clinics Saturday, the Health Department immunized 822 children in Greenville and 334 in Farmville. Last week, Health Department nurses administered 2,603 shots, of which 2,040 were second immunizations.

Dr. Walter C. Humbert, Health Director, also reported new case of polio which will not be classified as a resident case for Pitt. The victim is a nine-month-old Negro male of Vanceboro. The child was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital where his case was diagnosed and subsequently transferred to Duke Hospital in Durham. The case has been reported to State Board of Health officials and the Craven County Health Department.

The latest case of polio is of a paralytic nature but Dr. Humbert stated that the paralysis is not severe. The child had not been immunized.

With the special clinic series ended, Dr. Humbert announced that the school clinics would begin next week. Miss Edna Corbett,

Cutoff Of School Funds Faces Vote

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Gov. Thomas B. Stanley's fund cutoff bill, the key to his "total resistance" program for preserving segregated schools in Virginia, went to a showdown vote today in the House of Delegates.

The vote on passage of the measure came after administration forces late last night won their fight against Delegate Fred Pollard's amendment tacking on a local option provision. This would have given the localities an escape from the threat of losing state school support by turning to an assignment plan.

Pollard's amendment was beaten down 59-39 after slightly more than seven hours of debate. Vote on the amendment brought to a close the House's first night session of the extra legislative session, now in its fourth week.

Meanwhile, Senate opponents of the governor's money-withholding proposal worked on a compromise in the local option assignment feature contained in the Pollard amendment, in hopes of overcoming the southside counties' dislike of the proposal. Apparently, the strategy would be to seek to get local option into the administration package in the upper chamber.

Delegate Ruell M. Carneal warned the House during last night's debate that such a plan, whereby a locality could choose assignment by referendum, would be detrimental to the state's interest in at least one county in his district, Charles City. The referendum could be called on petitions of the voters.

Qualified Negro voters in that county outnumber the whites, said Carneal.

Under the compromise plan talked among senators, a referendum could be called only after the local school board has asked for it, ruling out any likelihood of the voters' being able to initiate the election.

The lengthy debate yesterday and last night found supporters of the Stanley program urging the fund cutoff bill's passage without the assignment amendment, in line with the no-compromise stand taken by the governor himself.

Opponents, however, argued the governor's key bill by itself would prevent integration but would hasten it, and would serve to close schools and unfairly penalize localities under court order to desegregate. It would shut off state funds from localities which integrate even one school.

Migrant Worker Severely Hurt In Assault Case

A Florida Negro migrant worker is in serious condition in Pitt Memorial Hospital after apparently being struck with a timber.

The injured man was identified as Henry Fosky, 39.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said Albert Jones, Negro of the Bruce section, is being held in Pitt County Jail on an assault with a deadly weapon charge in connection with the case. Jones is being held without bond pending the outcome of Fosky's condition, the sheriff said.

The alleged assault was said to have taken place near Bruce.

Jones was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Duke Andrews.

Farmville Mart Has Its Best Day

FARMVILLE—The Farmville Tobacco Market hit its highest average of the year yesterday when 826,992 pounds of leaf sold for an average of $53.12 per hundred pounds.

Sales Supervisor Charles Edwards reported the full sale at all warehouses brought farmers a total of $439,335.26. Full sales are also expected on the market today.

Abandon Search For Survivors

BODOE, Norway (AP)—Norwegian rescue officials today abandoned the search for 30 missing crew members of the American freighter Pelagia. Five survivors and two bodies were recovered.

The ship, carrying 10,000 tons of Swedish iron ore from Narvik, Norway, to Baltimore, went down Saturday night in a storm off Bodoe, above the Arctic Circle.

A spokesman for the Bodoe air rescue station said ships in the area would keep a lookout for survivors or bodies but "it is extremely unlikely that there are any survivors alive at this moment."

"We have given up all hope," he added.

$390,249 Profit By Utilities In Fiscal Year

Greenville Utilities showed a net profit of $390,249.45 for the fiscal year ending June 30, an audit prepared by Certified Public Accountant John C. Proctor shows.

Total operating revenue for the city-owned utilities during the fiscal year was $2,156,400.64. Added to that was $38,123.44 in miscellaneous revenue. From that amount the audit took $1,598,280.52 in operating expense, $63,494.11 bond interest and $142,500 turnover to the city to arrive at the net profit figure.

Proctor's report showed that the Commission's electric department with $1,273,632.62 was responsible by far for the largest amount of the total operating revenue. The water department brought in $238,165.82 and the gas department's revenue for the year was $190,600.50.

The electric department had expenses of $1,273,632.62 during the year and a profit of $454,271.90. The water department's expenses were $159,189.48 with a profit of $78,976.34. Gas department expenses were $165,728.42 and its profit, $24,871.88.

That made a total of $558,120.12 for the three departments to which was added the miscellaneous revenue figure. Taken from that total was the city turn-over and bond interest.

In his disposition of earnings report, Proctor added $313,065.00 for allowances for depreciation and obsolescence which was included in operating expenses to the profit figure to give a total of $703,315.05 to be accounted for.

He reported that $341,567.53 was spent for electric department improvements, $128,388.55 for water

Smears Of Color Won Art Prize

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A newspaper reporter who paints pictures for the fun of it won a blue ribbon at the Tennessee State Fair yesterday with the canvas he used to get rid of excess paint.

Charles Fontenay, a reporter for the Nashville Tennessean, said he used the old piece of dull-colored canvas to wipe off his knife after scraping his palette in the course of painting several more serious efforts.

He added that the resulting riot of colors caught his eye and was done accidentally by his topcoat as he picked up the "painting" while some of the thick daubs were still wet.

A general easing of tension was reported today in two western Kentucky mining - farming towns where National Guardsmen stood ready to prevent further anti-integration disorders.

White pupils were expected to return in increasing numbers to the consolidated school at Clay after four Negroes abandoned efforts to attend classes there.

Mrs. James Gordon, Negro mother of two of the children and a leader in the integration attempt, said no further effort would be made to enter the pupils at Clay this year "even if we got an injunction." She explained that "we want to give our white friends time to work this out."

The four Negro children were barred from the combined high and elementary school after a county school board order banning them was read on the school steps. They will attend a Negro school at nearby Providence.

The four had been escorted to school by National Guardsmen, Adj. Gen. J. B. Williams, commander, said the troops would remain at Clay and Sturgis, 11 miles away, indefinitely.

At Sturgis High School, where eight Negroes are enrolled with 275 white pupils, there were signs of a growing boycott on the part of the white pupils. Only 73 were in class yesterday, and W. W. Walker Jr., president of the Union County White Citizens Council, predicted the boycott would increase.

At Washington, Presidential Asst. Howard Pyle said he believed the South's desegregation problem would be solved eventually but it was not up to the White House to manage it. Appearing on a transcribed radio program, he said the Supreme Court "made it very plain the whole issue" is to be handled by local federal courts.

Registration began quietly at the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa, scene of rioting last February when Autherine Lucy Foster enrolled as the first Negro student at the all-white university. She later was expelled for her unproved charges that school authorities conspired in the rioting that drove her from the campus Feb. 6.

No Negro applicants appeared on the campus yesterday. At Montgomery, Gov. James E. Folsom told newsmen that two Negro students expected to enroll apparently had gone to some other school. The Alabama highway patrol had been alerted "as a precautionary measure."

In Atlanta, the Georgia Board of Education voted to withhold state funds for the salary of Mrs. Colleen Marie Wiggins, a Gwinnett County teacher who declined to sign a statement disapproving of racial integration in the schools. The 26-year-old wife of a minister said she would continue to teach "until officially notified I have been fired."

Scientists Say Moon Rocket Soon Possible

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Navy scientists said today it may be possible to send a rocket to the moon.

The rocket probably would deliver no more than a "four-pound payload" to the moon, said Kurt R. Stelling, chief of propulsion at the Naval Research Laboratory here, and Richard Foster, a member of the laboratory propulsion staff.

For that reason, they said, the initial payload might consist of nothing but a charge of metallic dust. They said that if it were fired at a new moon and if it landed on the darkened surface, the impact might be witnessed from the earth as a large bright flash.

Stelling and Foster expressed their views in an article prepared for a new magazine, Missiles and Rockets. The article is based on a paper scheduled to be read tomorrow at the International Astronautical Federation Congress in Rome.

They stressed that the opinions expressed were not to be construed as reflecting the views of the Navy Department.

Stelling and Foster said that "when carried aloft to 70,000 feet by a huge four-million-cubic-foot skyhook balloon, a solid-propellant step rocket will be capable of bringing a four-pound payload to the moon."

They noted that small rockets frequently have been carried aloft and launched from balloons, but added that a lunar rocket might require a cluster of smaller balloons for greater stability. The Rocket would be launched straight up, through the balloon or balloons they said.

The Navy scientists proposed a three-stage rocket vehicle which they said should hurdle the payload toward the moon. The distance between the moon and the earth varies from 221,463 to 252,710 miles as the moon moves around its orbit.

Jay-C-Ettes Hold First Meeting Of Year; Three Leaders Named

At the first meeting of the Jay-C-Ettes for the year, officers were elected to fill vacancies created by members who had moved away during the summer.

Those named were Mrs. Ford McGowan, recording secretary; Mrs. Phil Moore, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Floyd Rowe, new director.

The meeting took place Wednesday night at the Woman's Club. Mrs. W. M. Scales Jr. welcomed the members and two visitors, Mrs. Robert Kirkland and Mrs. Stuart Shinn.

A letter of thanks from Dr. Walter C. Humbert, Pitt Health Director, was read congratulating the Jay-C-Ettes for the work they have done at the Crippled Children's Clinic and for the Crippled Children's Society.

Mrs. Frank Diener gave a report on the child the Jay-C-Ettes sent to the Crippled Children's Camp at Washington, N. C. She also reported purchase of clothing for an additional child to attend during the summer.

An award was discussed which would recognize the outstanding Jay-C-Ette each year. A committee was appointed to set up qualifications for this award.

A yearbook was discussed by the group and a sample was shown to members. It was decided to order the yearbook for all the Jay-C-Ettes and Mrs. C. E. Williams and Mrs. Lyle Gnagey were placed in charge of getting the books printed.

Committee appointments for the year were announced by Mrs. Scales.

It was decided to have a party for the wives of the Jaycees before the next meeting.

Mrs. Bryant On Church Program

Women of the First Presbyterian Church heard Mrs. H. H. Bryant report on the Eleventh Annual Synodical Training School of North Carolina at their monthly meeting last night.

Mrs. Bryant, president of the Women of the Church, attended the training school held in Raleigh as a representative of the church.

Theme of the school was "Facing Life With Christ." The speaker reviewed the program and faculty and spoke specifically on the two classes which she attended on "Christian Stewardship" and "Christian Witnessing."

"The idea of true Christian Stewardship implies that everything belongs to God," she said. "Christ set us free from the law so that we are no longer legally bound to give. Tithing, however, is Scriptural, sanctified — thus setting us free from the love of money and opening our hearts to spiritual blessings—satisfying and promotes sound economy in the church."

On the subject of Christian Witnessing, Mrs. Bryant asserted, "If we really believe He is the way, the truth and the light, we must realize He goes way beyond the small world in which we live. Evangelism is a fulltime job every day in every person's life."

During the business session, circle reports were heard and various announcements made.

Named to serve on the committee for Week of Self-Denial and World

Prayer were Mrs. J. Bryan Brown, chairman; Mrs. Badger Johnson Jr. and Mrs. F. H. Sugg.

A plea was made by Mrs. Fred Webb for housing accommodations for the representatives of fifty-two churches in the Albemarle Presbytery who will meet here October 23-24. Members were asked to contact Mrs. Webb if they have rooms to offer guests.

Announcement was also made that the fruit cake project would begin soon.

Mrs. Mary Bailey Davis was named to serve as General Fund Chairman.

Members were asked to return kitchen utensils and equipment to the church kitchen.

The meeting was closed with the Lord's Prayer.

January Inaugural Plans Get An Early Start In D. C.

WASHINGTON—There will be an inauguration here come January, that's for sure. For the District of Columbia, this has always been a non-partisan affair. So without waiting for election day to see who will be inaugurated, D. C. party heads are already huddling over plans to make the event the biggest and best of all.

Melvin D. Hildreth, Democratic national committee chairman, and George L. Hart Jr., chairman of the Republican Committee for the District, have been asked by the District commissioners to get going.

As in 1953, there will be some 200 required inaugural subcommittees and several thousand workers to set the plans in motion. The festivities will follow the swearing-in ceremony, January 20, which falls on a Sunday.

After the election the inaugural committee will be headed by a supporter of the winning party. Hildreth headed the 1948 inaugural committee. Joseph C. McGarraghay, now a judge of the U. S. District Court here, headed the committee for the Eisenhower inauguration in 1952.

The Eisenhower-Nixon Inaugural Ball committee in 1953 experienced what they called "Operation Headache." Even with the ball running in two sections totaling 14,000 guests they had trouble keeping the invitation list down while keeping friends.

The first Inaugural Ball was held on a spring evening in 1789 in New York. Some historians refuse to recognize this as an Inaugural Ball since it came some weeks after Washington's inauguration.

Shower Honors Recent Bride

Mrs. C. B. Spain, Mrs. L. A. Churchill and Miss Shirley Spain entertained with a miscellaneous shower Friday evening honoring Mrs. Hubert Williamson of Tarboro, who before her recent marriage was the former Miss Barbara Jean Coggin.

The event took place at the Mount Pleasant Community Building. Guests were welcomed by the hostesses and invited into the club house which was decorated with pink gladioli and trailing ivy.

The table was covered with a lace cloth over pink and centered with pink gladioli. Ivy and candles in crystal holders completed the decorations.

A pink and green color scheme was carried out in the refreshments consisting of lime ice, mints, nuts, cookies and potato chips.

Mrs. L. A. Churchill poured. Misses Shirley Spain, Carolyn Harris, Nadine Garris and Gail Stancill assisted in serving the other refreshments.

Mrs. Williamson was presented a corsage of pink gladioli by her hostesses and showered with gifts by the guests.

Several games were enjoyed during the evening.

Blue Jeans Get Coat Mate

By DOROTHY ROE
 Associated Press Women's Editor

There's a new fashion brewing in the back-to-school crowd. It's the blue jean jump coat, and it may turn out to be the most important single item in a high school or college girl's wardrobe.

Local sewing center experts recommend that you make it yourself to wear with jeans to watch football practice, go on hikes or picnics. Sturdy blue denim is lined with warm red flannel. The hood may be worn up as protection against the weather, or turned down to form a wide collar. The big patch pockets make a handbag unnecessary. The toggle fastenings suit the casual mood. A slightly dropped shoulder line makes the coat fit easily over heavy sweaters or jackets.

The coat requires 3 7/8 yards of denim and 2 3/4 yards of the brightest red cotton flannel you can find.

To sew a fabric as heavy as denim, you should use heavy-duty thread. You might want to use contrasting thread—red or white—for decorative rows of stitching around the bottom. Incidentally, the cloth guide for your sewing machine will help keep these rows of stitching even. Use a heavy duty machine needle, size 16. Lighten the machine tension slightly and use a long stitch, about eight to the inch.

To make the corded loops for the fastenings, remember to use the cording foot of your machine so you can stitch close to the cord.

Song composer Al Hoffman doesn't depend on orthodox English for his maily hit tunes titles. Among others, he has written "Hot Diggity," "Bobby Bobby Boo," and "Chi Chi Babba."

JUMP COAT . . . Make it of blue denim lined in washable red flannel for school wear.

Barbecue Plates Sale Named Success As Financial Project

Tobacco buyers and sellers in four local tobacco warehouses were surprised and gratified September 7 to find that the Junior Woman's Club of Greenville had set up convenient tables and was serving barbecue plates during the lunch hour. This was one of the many fund raising projects which members of this club carry on during the year, to enable the club to support its charity and welfare work. Perhaps some of the men who enjoyed the barbecue did not know that the profit from the dinner would be used to aid such worthy causes as Caswell Training School, Children's Home Society, and the Watson Memorial Fund for Underprivileged Children. However, it is certain that many did know this, because the efforts of the Junior Woman's Club are well known and appreciated throughout Greenville. The barbecue dinners were sold in Tripp Brothers' Farmer's Warehouse, Keel's Warehouse, New Carolina Warehouse and Raynor and Harris Warehouse. In all, members sold 100 pounds of barbecue, served with slaw and corn sticks. They reported a profit from the sales of $106. The experience was an educational one to some of the club members, who had never before seen a tobacco sale. Observing the fascination of the tobacco sales and meeting the cordial managers and workers in the warehouses encouraged many to want to repeat this project.

Clean-Up May Be Expensive

Ladies who insist on cleaning out their attics may be throwing away unsuspected fortunes, says Sigmund Rothschild, who knows his antiques. "Never throw away old papers, old bundles of letters, grubby old pictures that used to belong to Grandma or even moldy old books," advises Rothschild. "At least don't throw them away until you have an antique dealer or appraiser look at them. You may have a stamp that's worth more than your mortgage. Or a letter of historical value that will pay for a trip around the world."

Blood Bank Account: In The Red

Pitt County's account in the Blood Bank is, figuratively speaking, deep in the red. Unless the people of the county roll up their sleeves to make deposits meet withdrawals, the overdraft will sooner or later catch up with us and the bank will cut off our flow of the life-giving fluid.

The bloodmobile comes to Greenville again tomorrow. It will be seeking a quota of 110 pints of blood from the people of the city. All of that blood already has been earmarked for local use, and even if the goal is reached it will not make up for the county's overdraft of blood for the past fiscal year.

Last year Pitt County citizens gave a total of 851 pints of blood to the blood bank. During the same period of time a total of 1,221 pints of blood was drawn from the bank free of charge for use of people in Pitt County. This means of course that other counties which participate in the Red Cross Tidewater Regional Blood Center are having to make up with their own blood donations Pitt County's deficit.

It should be obvious to the people of Greenville and the rest of the county that Pitt cannot remain a member in good standing in the blood program if it does not contribute to the bank as many pints of blood as it draws out each year. Officials who operate the blood bank program in this area have an obligation to all the communities to see that each is treated fairly. Certainly it is not fair for Pitt to consume more blood than it takes from the bank simple because citizens of the county are reluctant to make donations.

The participation of Pitt County in the blood bank program has meant a great deal to the county in recent years. It has meant the difference of life and death for many people who needed transfusions. It has likewise saved the people of the county thousands upon thousands of dollars because blood from the bank has been provided free of charge to any citizen of Pitt County who needed it.

Had the people of Pitt had to pay the going rate of $25 a pint for blood which was received from the bank free of charge during the past fiscal year, that alone would have amounted to almost $30,000 for the blood itself. The fact that any type of blood in any quantity needed is available on a moments notice is a service upon which no monetary value can be placed.

Pitt needs desperately to maintain its membership in the blood bank program. Unless it does, the supply of blood which the county has had will be cut off. The only way the county can maintain its membership is for its citizens to respond to appeals for donations when the bloodmobile makes its visits here.

Wednesday afternoon the bloodmobile will be in Greenville for 110 pints of blood. The situation behooves people of the community to see that the quota is met.

Town And Rural Vote Still Rules The Roost

In this day and time when metropolitan areas are growing larger by the minute and people are leaving the farms in quest of a better livelihood in the city, a lot of people are justly concerned about the political future of folks who make up the small towns and surrounding rural areas.

There is a real fear that the power of government will be concentrated in larger cities as they grow in population, leaving small towns and rural areas without their just voice in representative government.

In North Carolina we of the Coastal Plain are facing the same situation as comparable areas on a national basis are. The balance of population is shifting to the industrial Piedmont. Those areas are crying for a larger portion of the representation in state government at the expense of the eastern section.

The latest issue of The Town Journal allays a good many fears we have had about the power of government being concentrated in large urban areas. In an article entitled "Why Towns Like Yours Will Win the Election" it is pointed out that 92 million of the 165 million Americans still live in and around towns of 25,000 population or less, and that this vote of small town and countryside people still control elections in 42 of the 48 states.

By sheer weight of numbers the people in and around towns of 25,000 or less still control the election of 87 per cent of the membership of the Senate and 63 per cent of the membership of the House of Representatives. What's more, they control, according to Town Journal's survey 5,363 out of the 7,506 state legislators in the 48 states.

In short, these figures point up the fact that the small town and rural people of the United States still pack the bigger voting wallop compared with their cousins in the big, well organized cities.

It must be remembered, however, that sheer weight of numbers does not give the people in small towns and in rural areas the political power unless they go to the polls and vote. The average small town and rural voters is more independent in his thinking and voting than his city counterpart. At the same time he may be less likely to take the trouble to go to the polls because he is not under the same pressure to vote a certain way or just to vote.

Some Facts Behind East-West Rivalry

By LYNN NISBET

DISTRIBUTION—Some weeks ago an easterner was quoted in this column as griping about the East carrying the burden of the Democratic party in North Carolina, while the West got most of the gravy. That grip was resented by several westerners.

For more than a century the east-west rivalry has added zest to Tarheel politics, without any agreed upon dividing line between the mythical sections. Advances in communication by means of highways, airways, telephone, radio and television, have made the old distinctions of little consequence. In North Carolina as in the nation the western frontier has been pushed back and back, so far as economic, political and population measurements are concerned. People now living can remember when Raleigh was the approximate center of population. That point is now fixed in area of High Point.

The geographic center of the state has not varied. It is marked on the big office wall map by a large black-headed pin at Gulf, where US-421 highway between Sanford and Siler City crosses the Lee-Chatham county line. Draw a line through the point direct north-south, or draw the line northeast-southwest in reasonable conformity to the coast and the Great Smoky mountains, and it will be found that about the area of the state is on either side of the line.

That same map has different colored pins denoting the residence of high ranking State officials. Either way the line is drawn six of the twelve Representatives in Congress are on the east and six to the west. Both United States Senators are on the west side, although the direct north-south line runs close to Kerr Scott's Haw River home. Governor Hodges lives west of the line, as does Lieutenant Governor nominee Luther Barnhardt.

Attorney General George Patton lives west of the line, first westerner in a generation to hold that office. Of the seven members of the Council of State only Thad Eure and L. Y. Ballentine live to the east of a straight north-south mark. The diagonal course would put Edwin Gill to the east, with the other four Henry Bridges, Charlie Carroll, Frank Crane and Charlie Gold on the west side.

Four of seven members of the Supreme Court are on the west side, including Chief Justice Wallace Winborne, Associate Jus-

Somehow, Our Timing Is Off

Television athletic events disgust me.

It's not really the games or matches or fights that disgust me. It's actually me that disgusts me. I have yet to see a knockout punch thrown or a Mantle homerun or a long scoring run. That's not 100 per cent true, either, but it's at least 90 per cent true.

I was rooting for Basilio in his fight with Saxton last week. I was determined to keep my eyes on the set until I went blind, if necessary, to see a knockout punch I hoped. I did just that until the fatal round to Saxton. About two seconds before Basilio let him have it with that right hand (I was told later that it was the right hand) I accidentally tipped my glass of beer over. Of course, I bounced out of the chair and ran for the mop, and of course missed the punch that turned Saxton's legs to rubber. If you think Saxton was disgusted with himself for letting that right hand slip through, well you should have talked to me right after it happened. I not only hated myself — I hated everybody.

I'm a Washington Redskins fan. During their football game with the Baltimore Colts Sunday I slipped into the kitchen for a glass of water. When I returned to the living room I was greeted with a "Boy, you sure missed it . . ." I read in yesterday's paper that a Redskins defensive halfback intercepted a pass and galloped 75 yards for a touchdown. Whoever invented water ought to be shot!

It's the big game. The score is tied. My boy Mantle is at bat with the count 3 and 2. The telephone rings. "Let the blankety-blank thing ring." I say to myself. "I've just got to see this next pitch." The phone keeps ringing and the manager calls time out on the field to talk with his pitcher. I run to the phone. I run back as soon as I can. Mantle is just crossing home plate. My first impulse is to grab the shotgun and blow the telephone into a billion pieces, and then use the other barrel on the picture screen for showing the home run while I was gone.

Like I said, this happens 90 per cent of the time. Nine per cent of the time something happens to the TV set. But one per cent of the time I see the knockout blow, or the long run or the home run. It doesn't make me happy, though, because had I been lucky enough to see it, it would have been Saxton that threw the punch, or a Colt defensive halfback that made the long run, or Ted Williams or Al Rosen that hit the home run.

SEPARATION

The word "ecumenical" has come to occupy a place of great importance in modern thought. It means "general" or "world-wide in extent and influence." The ecumenical movement in the church is an attempt to gather Christian believers the world over into a sympathetic union with one another.

Geographically we have one world today as never before in human history. We can take a plane and go to any section of the earth in a comparatively few hours. News flashes from continent to continent with a speed that electricity makes possible. And yet, in this world which is so closely knit together there is an appalling disunity. Probably in no time in human history have nations been so bitterly divided against one another as they are right now. This makes the comfortable, glorious, achieving world in which we live extremely vulnerable. It is not a safe place for any of its inhabitants today.

Communism, of course, is the great dividing force. But even greater than the political and economic factors involved in communism are the differences in religion which exist among the world's population.

There will have to be more unity here before there can be political unity and safety for people of all nations. What people believe separates them more basically than what they do.

considered verdict of 16 other judges. None of these five had enjoyed previous experience as a judge before elevation to the nation's Supreme Judicial body. Chief Justice Warren was the only Republican to side with the majority.

HIGH TRIBUNAL'S SURPRISING RULING It is doubtful if any case involving such important legal and economic problems, as well as private rights, was ever decided in such a dubious manner. For, as against the 16 other jurists' findings, five men held that the company's land, although essential to an immensely valuable power project, should be valued only for its use as a farm and forest, for the crops and the timber that could be raised on the acreage.

Moreover, Twin City stockholders cannot be blamed for believing that the reasons behind the Supreme Court majority holding were political and ideological rather than judicial. The five

Likely Source Of South's Skepticism

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON The South's skepticism over the infallibility of the Supreme Court in the school segregation and other decisions infringing on the reserved powers of the states may derive from that tribunal's reversal of four lower courts' rulings in a land condemnation case affecting the Twin City Power Company of South Carolina.

In this litigation, which involved a Roosevelt-Truman-Ickes-Chapman power project on the Savannah River along the Georgia-South Carolina border, five members of the Supreme Court overturned the verdict of two District Courts, two Circuit Appeals Courts—12 judges in all—and three commissioners assigned to the District Courts to fix the amount of compensation due to the power firm for land seized by the Federal government.

Since four Supreme Court members dissented from the majority opinion, it means that five men were able to frustrate the members of the majority were keen public power enthusiasts before their promotions to the Supreme Court.

JUSTICES' PREVIOUS INTERESTS As Governor of California, Chief Justice Warren frequently appeared before Congressional committees to urge favorable action on Roosevelt-Truman power projects in his state. Justice Black was an original advocate of TVA, and, as a Senator, conducted such a ruthless and vindictive investigation of the private utilities, including the seizure of Western Union telegrams, that he was generally condemned.

As chairman of SEC and a White House crony in early New Deal days, Justice Douglas helped to write laws and frame programs for F.D.R.'s public power expansion. While in the Justice Department, former Attorney General Clark and former Solicitor General Reed prepared briefs and delivered arguments before the Supreme Court for Federal ownership and operation of power facilities.

TWIN CITY CASE The land in judicial controversy was acquired by the Twin City firm as far back as 1901, when discussion of a power development there began. And by 1911 it had bought enough additional land for the project. Under six acts of Congress from 1901 to 1919, Twin City was authorized to build a dam and other power facilities on the site. The plans were approved by the Secretary of War and the Army Engineers, and in 1925 the Federal Power Commission granted a preliminary permit to Twin City.

Under the Truman-Chapman plan to build a vast public power empire, they decided to construct a multi-purpose dam across the Savannah River at this same site, as well as a power plant and reservoir. Twin City's 4,700 acres stood in the very heart of the 70,000 acres required for the Federal undertaking.

Economics Course In Parking

By ELMER ROESSNER

If you have an opportunity to watch the establishment and early operation of a parking lot, you can get a rounded course in economics. You might even become an economist like me.

Here are some of the things you may learn:

Lesson 1. How taxes can destroy real values.

This lesson isn't available unless a good building is torn down to make room for the lot. In New York, a huge hotel was leveled and a big theater is being torn down for parking lots, and in other cities across the country useful buildings have been demolished. High taxes often make it profitable to tear down structures. The hotel may have taken in more money than the parking lot does, but the tax on the land is far less than the tax on the building was and it carries fewer inspection fees and other bites.

THE PRICING PROBLEM

Lesson 2. — How prices are set.

In the early days of most parking lots, prices are changed frequently. The owner is not trying to find the highest price which he can keep his lot full, but the price that returns the maximum profit. A lot two-thirds occupied at a dollar a car will usually be more profitable than a full lot at 60 cents a car.

Lesson 3. — The importance of price flexibility.

Tailoring prices to fit various conditions is important, a fact some businessmen overlook. A $1 fee that fills two-thirds of a lot may seem to be the best price to the operator. But note that if he reduces the price to 60 cents after the morning rush, he may increase his profits further.

In some cases, selling weekly or monthly tickets can increase income even more.

Lesson 4. — Effects of competition.

There is always competition in the parking lot business. If prices are too high, motorists may leave their cars in the street, even at a risk of tickets, parking in friends' yards, or travel by bus. If there is another lot or garage nearby, the competition becomes sharper, and unless the number of potential customers well exceeds the other's prices and services, the operator will have to come to meeting the other's prices and services.

LOCATION AND TURNOVER

Lesson 5. — Importance of location.

The price an operator can get depends greatly on location. The nearer a lot is to a bus terminal, downtown center or other important traffic spot, the larger will gross profits be. Near one big terminal, parking prices go down with the distance: 85 cents in the adjoining lot, 75 cents in the one across the street, 60 cents in one two blocks away, 50 cents in another four blocks away.

Main-street and side-street locations differ, too. Walk around almost any city and notice that side-street lots and garages get lower prices than those on main arteries. If you plan to start any kind of business, always take a traffic count first. (And have the count analyzed; people rushing to jobs or trains seldom make good customers; people shopping are usually the best.)

Lesson 6.—Importance of turnover.

It's an old truism that the amount of a profit is not as important as how often it is taken. This applies to parking lots. Whenever an operator has a chance to sell his space twice, such as to office workers by day and theater-goers by evening, the price scale is usually geared to promote turnover. In some lots you can leave a car from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. for one price, with a penalty charge if it is left longer. Lots and garages in busy shopping areas usually levy hourly charges to speed turnover.

WHY U.S. BUYS BEEF WHEN STEAKS ARE SCARCE

With beef high—you can pay $1.60 a pound for steak in a supermarket, not a night club—the U.S. Department of Agriculture is buying 50,000,000 pounds of boneless beef to take it off the market.

This is not as strange as it sounds. The government is buying "U.S. commercial" or "U.S. utility" grades of beef, hamburger style. This comes from tired old cows or grass-fed cattle.

Other Editors Are Saying... Keep Talking, Governor

(Kinston Free Press)

In his remarks Friday in Asheville before two different audiences, Governor Luther Hodges pointed up two of the most pressing problems before the people of this State in a fashion that was most refreshing to those who have given highways and taxes a great deal of thought in recent months.

Speaking to the Asheville Chamber of Commerce, the Governor told that group that politics in the Highway Department's allocations of road grants is out and that Western Carolina should "quit feeling sorry for itself" and get on with the job of building better highways. This statement followed frequent complaints about Western Carolina not getting its full share of road allocations and the statement made Thursday in which the Governor said the Highway Department was in for "a complete overhauling."

Whether Gov. Hodges was too harsh with Western Carolinians or not, we are not prepared to say, but we do feel that it is timely and encouraging to find the chief executive dedicated to the elimination of highway politics as it has been practiced in the past. The need for new and better roads is far too great to permit political considerations to enter into the allocations to meet those needs.

In his address Friday night Governor Hodges told the annual convention of the National Association of State Budget Officers that North Carolina's tax structure should be revised to meet modern needs. He declared: "We can hope for more tax payers only when our tax structure is attractive and competitive."

The Tax Study Commission set up by the Governor has been doing some detailed work on revision of the tax structure. One of its recommendations to the next General Assembly will be the elimination of the intangibles tax. The income tax on corporations is getting a much-needed review, as well. The big problem facing state governments was pointed up by the Governor when he cited the fact that the centralized Federal Government's talk of taxes since 1933 has risen to 71 per cent of the tax dollar, while the State Government's share has dropped in that period from 21 to 14 per cent.

Talk will not solve the highway, tax structure, prisons department or other pertinent problems facing this commonwealth in the months ahead. It can only point to the more pressing issues so that the people and the members of the Legislature can be kept informed about them ahead of the important 1957 session. But it is refreshing to hear Governor Hodges point out the need to take politics out of highway allocations and to revise the tax structure to attract, rather than offend, potential new taxpayers.

It makes a great deal of sense to us and should point the way to action supported by all the people when the Legislature meets next year.

Mid-Canada Electronic Defense Line To Soon Join Skywatch Guard

By ELTON C. FAY
AP Military Affairs Reporter
CRANBERRY PORTAGE, Manitoba (AP) — The Mid-Canada Line, a "fence" to flash alarm if invading aircraft trigger its electronic nerve system at any point, is almost ready to join the North American skywatch.

The 2,700-mile row of hundreds of stations — stretching over mountains and through muskeg from Labrador to the border of British Columbia, along the 55th Parallel — will start up on New Year's Day, officials say.

It will be the second of three continent-spanning aircraft warning lines to go into operation. To the south is the Pinetree Line, now operating. Farther north, along the polar rim of the continent, is the still-building Distant Early Warning Line (DEW Line).

The Mid-Canada Line, using its present equipment, will be useful as long as manned bombers are used by the military powers, estimated to be "until the late '60s," Air Vice Marshal C. R. Dunlap, vice chief of the Royal Canadian Air Force, told newsmen in Ottawa as they began a journey along the line.

No one claims that the Mid-Canada Line (MCL) will work against intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBM) fired at fantastic speeds and heights. But continent-to-continent rocket weapons are not expected to be operational for several years. And for some years after their advent, manned bombers will continue in use.

DEW Line will provide a minimum of two hours warning for the closest North American targets (southern Canada and the industrial and defense complexes for a couple of hundred miles south of the U.S.-Canada border). MCL will provide one hour warning and confirm preliminary information from DEW Line. Pinetree will provide information relating to control of interceptor forces of jet fighters. Together, the three lines will allow the United States' Strategic Air Command bombers time to get into the air, away from threatened bases, and headed out on retaliatory strikes; alert interceptor and anti-aircraft forces; give civil populations warning of impending attack.

Air fence gal 2 advance for 8 a.m. EST, Sept. 18. The cost of the Mid-Canada Line is estimated at 170 million dollars, borne entirely by the Canadian government.

Construction is by the Trans-Canada Telephone System, comprised of the seven major telephone companies of Canada.

One of the companies, Bell Telephone Co. of Canada, which like its American counterpart maintains large laboratories, is the management contractor. Bell's Alexander G. Lester directs the huge Mid-Canada Line construction project.

The 170-million-dollar estimate for MCL compares with a construction cost for DEW Line of at least 468 millions.

The electronic equipment of MCL will be "much more economical than the scanning radar on DEW Line and Pinetree," but at the same time "will be the most advanced equipment possible," a spokesman said.

A substantial part of MCL will operate automatically and unattended except for occasional inspection and maintenance visits from adjacent main stations. Intricate tell-tale systems are built in to indicate immediately by bell and red light when any piece of machinery at an unmanned station fails. For the first months of operation, however, Bell company technicians will man all stations to check on equipment.

Later, teams of civilians, with two or three military personnel to supervise, will man each main station of the line.

The intermediate stations will transmit data by several radio channels to the main stations. From those points the warning information will be flashed southward to U.S. and Canadian headquarters, including the Air Defense Command at Colorado Springs.

The presence of an airborne enemy over MCL will be shown only as a variation in a line traced automatically with a pen recording on a roll of graph paper — much like the seismograph which records earthquakes of the meteorological instruments used by weather men. This is the essential difference from the manned radar systems, which track the flight of a plane for considerable distances, giving data on height, direction and speed.

Tobacco Prices Generally Rise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Prices were mostly higher yesterday for flue-cured tobacco on the Eastern North Carolina Belt and generally unchanged on the North Carolina Middle Belt and South Carolina and Border North Carolina markets.

Gains on the Eastern Belt were up to $3 per 100 pounds, the Federal-State Market News Service reported. Some losses occurred. Better quality tobacco sold as high as $70. Volume was heavy. There was an increase in quality of offerings.

Grade averages were steady, with $1 and $2 variations, on the South Carolina and Border North Carolina Belt. Losses outnumbered gains by a small margin. Volume ranged from light to heavy with most offerings containing poor to good leaf, fair lugs and nondescript.

On the Middle Belt normal price fluctuations are reported with some baskets of good orange leaf bringing up to $68 per 100 pounds. Volume was moderate with some markets reporting blocked sales. Quality showed improvement due to a larger percentage of quality offerings.

Another Sought In Blinding Case

NEW YORK (AP) — The FBI and the Manhattan district attorney's staff are conducting a nationwide search for a dressmaker firm executive in the acid blinding of labor columnist Victor Riesel.

The wanted man, Theodore Rij, 43, is described by authorities as a "close associate" of racketeer John (Johnny Dio) Dioguardi, 42, alleged ringleader of six men under indictment with him in the Riesel case.

Officials indicated that Rij may have been one of Dio's bodyguards. U.S. Atty. Paul W. Williams said his men have been seeking Rij since shortly after the blinding acid was thrown into Riesel's face on a street just off Broadway early April 5.

"Rij is believed to have been the driver of an auto which figured in the transportation of one or more men involved in the acid hurling," Williams said.

The FBI said Rij is wanted on a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice through the attack on Riesel.

Rij reportedly has been missing from his usual haunts here since Abraham Telvi, described by authorities as the actual acid thrower, was found shot to death July 28. Authorities said Telvi had upped his money demands for executing the attack on Riesel.

The FBI said Rij recently has been an executive of the Acme Dress Co., Midvale, N.J.

New Evidence In Kidnapping Case

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Police said today they had found new evidence bearing out Mrs. George Latham's story that two women kidnaped her last week, stripped her, beat her and left her for dead beneath a pile of stones on the desert.

Mrs. Victoria Beatrice Winn, 57, and Mrs. Lucille Whisenand, 36, pleaded innocent yesterday when they were arraigned on charges of kidnapping, attempt to commit murder, robbery and burglary.

The maximum penalty under California's kidnaping law is death in the gas chamber.

Chief of Police A. E. Jansen said investigators found five corporate seals, several checks and specimens of Mrs. Latham's handwriting beneath a mattress in a house at Tijuana, Mexico, occupied by a cousin of Mrs. Whisenand.

The chief said the cousin reported Mrs. Whisenand left the articles there last Thursday.

Mrs. Latham had related the corporate seals were taken from her by her kidnapers. She said they forced her to sign several checks.

Mrs. Latham is associated in several businesses with her husband, an investment broker. She is 51.

Mrs. Winn, wife of a district manager of a utility company, formerly ran a building materials firm for the Lathams and was engaged in a court battle with them over its ownership.

Mrs. Whisenand, a divorcee, worked as a clerk for the U.S. Customs Service. Jansen said she had a good employment record but his investigators learned she is in debt and faced eviction from her home.

Mrs. Latham disappeared last Wednesday from her home, where she was alone with a 4-year-old granddaughter.

A motorist found her crouching beside U.S. 80 about 80 miles east of San Diego Friday morning.

She said she escaped from the shallow, rock-piled grave and struggled five miles across the desert Thursday under a beating

sun. Her two sons, both doctors, reported she would be hospitalized at least another week with severe sunburn over most of her body, two broken ribs, cuts, bruises and two black eyes.

KILLED 2 DEER
MANTEO, N. C. (AP) — A deer leaped into the path of Mrs. Roy Basnight's car on a road near here and was killed. As she drove to the game protector's office to report the kill and turn the carcass over to him, another deer sprinted into her path and was killed. W. S. White, game protector, termed the kills accidental. Charges were filed.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plates dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-salt) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

Old Pros Winning For Bums In Pennant Chase

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

Carl Furillo, tagged for a quick swap if a good pitcher had been available in June, is King Carl again in Brooklyn today, spearheading the Dodgers' September drive for the National League pennant.

Game after game it's been one of Brooklyn's old pros (and there's a flock of 'em) getting the job done. But more often than not, it's been Furillo swinging the bust-up bat in the close ones.

He was at it again last night, knocking in two runs with a two-out first-inning single and then wrapping up the Dodgers' fourth straight victory with a 10th-inning home run that beat Cincinnati 5-4 and hoisted the Brooks into a one-game lead.

Milwaukee's second-place Braves, their pitching crumbling a little more every game, split a two-night pair with the New York Giants, winning 4-1 behind old reliable Warren Spahn after suffering their first defeat of the season in the Polo Grounds 7-2.

Those were the only games scheduled in the majors. Furillo's heroics last night were prompted by back-to-back home runs by Ed Bailey and Ray Jablonski with two out in the ninth inning that tied the score at 2-all.

Bailey's 26th home run was a two-run poke, chasing relief ace Clem Labine — making his first start since July 24, 1955 — after he had rolled along with a six-hitter, retiring 15 in a row before Wally Post singled ahead of Bailey's smack. Jabbo's shot, his 15th, was the first off reliever Don Bessent in 53 1-3 innings since June 28.

Carl Erskine, reduced to bullpen status with Labine's promotion, won it in relief as Furillo tagged reliever Brooks Lawrence with the defeat for a 19-10 record.

Duke Snider poled his 39th home run, breaking a tie for the league lead with Cincy rookie Frank Robinson, for a 3-1 edge against Hal Jeffcoat in the third inning.

Southpaw Johnny Antonelli gave the Braves a third straight defeat in the first game, allowing six hits and not walking a man while hitting a two-run homer himself. It wasn't necessary for his 17th victory. The Giants had scored three against starter Gene Conley in the second inning. Willie Mays added his 34th home run for New York, while Bobby Thomson and Johnny Logan homered for Milwaukee.

Spahn, winning his 18th of the season, scattered nine hits and left 13 stranded in the nightcap.

Jack Dittmer hit his first homer and drove in two runs in the nightcap. Billy Brown and Ed Mathews also homered for the Braves.

ECC Loses Two Gridders In VPI Contest

Coach Jack Boone, speaking of his East Carolina team's 37-2 loss Saturday at the hands of a fast VPI eleven, said, "The big thing for us was just our inability to tackle."

"We were in good shape, both physically and mentally, and were up for that game. I think that when Wolfenden carried the opening kick-off back 90 yards against us, the boys were stunned and they just never could come out of it in time."

Boone continued, "VPI had a good, fast charging team and we simply weren't used to it. Their line was strong and Wolfenden was really outstanding for them."

Brooks, Emory Hurt, . . . Two of East Carolina's top starting linemen were injured in the battle at Bluefield, W.Va., and will be absent from the line when the Bucs tackle Stetson this week at College Stadium. Jerry Brooks, 230 tackle and freshman guard Ed Emory, 220, suffered ankle and knee injuries respectively. "Both boys will be out for some time and definitely will not play this week," Boone said.

Emory and Brooks join another freshman guard, Bucky Dennis on the injured roster. Dennis was hurt in the season's opener against Norfolk, suffering a shoulder injury.

"We'll probably shift Dick Monds and Paul Popov into Emory's position and put Charlie Smith in at tackle," the coach said.

Ready For Stetson "We'll be in pretty good shape for Stetson," Boone said.

Last week, Stetson waslobbered 47-6 by Virginia Military Institute. Despite this, Coach McQuillan, of Stetson, boasts a "strong team at guards, ends, quarterback and fullback."

Boone pointed out the play of Algy Faircloth and Waverly Chesson as some of the best work by the Pirates in last week's tilt and is expecting them to lead the defensive play against Stetson.

Offensively, Dick Cherry, Bobby Perry, Bobby Lilley, Jim Henderson, Bobby Maynard and Ralph Zehring will probably be the big guns against Stetson.

Two ACC Teams Hold Closed-Door Practice

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two Atlantic Coast Conference football teams held closed practice sessions yesterday as all teams prepared for games this weekend.

A light morning drill was held at Duke, then a closed heavy afternoon workout. The Blue Devils open their season Saturday night against South Carolina in Columbia.

Senior end Bob Benson was out of practice because of a hip injury suffered in last Saturday's scrimmage.

The South Carolina Gamecocks put emphasis on defensive drill as they returned to the practice field from a 26-13 victory over Wofford last Saturday.

Back in the lineup was second string quarterback Sam Vickers, who missed action in the Wofford game.

The North Carolina Tar Heels whipped through a short practice session which was closed to spectators. The first team was intact after Saturday's scrimmage. The Tar Heels open against North Carolina State at Chapel Hill, Saturday.

Offense came in for concentration at Wake Forest as the Deacons prepared for Saturday's opener with William and Mary at Williamsburg, Va.

The No. 1 and No. 2 units alternated against W&M defenses set up by the freshmen. Tackle Tom Swatzel, 250, injured his neck early in the drill and was taken to Baptist Hospital.

Coach Frank Howard shifted some key men on the Clemson squad as he held dummy drills for the opener with Presbyterian Saturday night.

H. B. Bruorton of Georgetown, and Leon Kalenback of Clarion, Pa., were moved into starting guard slots, replacing Earle Greene and John Grijan.

N.C. State devoted its session to correcting mistakes made in Saturday's scrimmage, which was "disappointing" to Coach Earle Edwards.

After drills on blocking, the squad was put through tackling dummies.

Virginia Coach Ben Martin looked over scouting reports on VMI and indicated Virginia won't be able to match the Keydets in backfield speed.

Virginia began working for its opener with the Keydets at Charlottesville, Saturday with several types of speed drills for both backs and linemen until rain halted the session. One of the most promising young backs at Maryland had been temporarily lost to the Terrapins. Dickie Lewis, quarterback of Martinsburg, W.Va., suffered an ankle injury in Saturday's scrimmage. The injury will keep him out of the Syracuse game this weekend and possibly out of the Wake Forest encounter a week later.

Lanzetta Loves His Football

BOSTON (AP)—Few players love the game of football as much as sophomore guard Bob Lanzetta of Northwestern University.

On the practice field the 185-pound, 23-year-old service veteran looks like all the other candidates.

But for Bob, it is an almost sleepless vigil.

The reason: He works from midnight to 8 a.m. at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Brockton as an aide in the psychiatric division.

Toss in class time from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., football practice sessions and study time and you've run out of hours.

Lanzetta doesn't worry about it, he is too busy fighting for a job. Bob was starting guard for the freshmen last year and he is one of the leading varsity candidates this time around.

"You've got to admire a kid who makes such a sacrifice so that he can go to school and play football too," says his coach, Joe Zabalski.

When does Lanzetta sleep? "Weekends," he says.

Yesterday's Stars

PITCHING: Warren Spahn, Braves, gave up a first inning run, then blanked Giants rest of the way with his nine-hitter, leaving 13 on base, to win 4-1 and end Braves' losing streak at three after Giants won 7-2 in opener of two-night pair.

HITTING: Carl Furillo, Dodgers, drove in two first-inning runs with a single, then broke up 4-4 tie in 10th with 20th home run for 5-4 victory over Redlegs that gave Dodgers one-game lead in National League race.

Indians To Drop Feller And Rosen

CLEVELAND (AP)—General Manager Hank Greenberg has counted third baseman Al Rosen and pitcher Bob Feller out of the Cleveland Indians' plans for next season.

At a luncheon speech yesterday Greenberg said he would offer Feller a nonplaying job with the Tribe before this season ends.

Rosen, Hank declared, might "be better off playing somewhere else" because he has "completely lost his confidence."

"Confidence is an important factor, and I'm afraid Rosen has reached the point where he can't play here any more," Greenberg said.

Rosen, who will be 32 next March and is in his eighth season with Cleveland, is batting only .269 this season, has hit 14 home runs and has driven in 55 runs. That compared with his 1953 peak of a .336 average, 43 homers and 145 RBI — a performance that earned him unanimous selection as the league's most valuable player.

Feller, nearing 38, made his first start in more than four months Saturday and pitched his only complete game this season, losing a seven-hitter to Boston 5-3. He has two other losses to show for 40 additional innings of work, including one start in April and another in May.

Last night Rosen indicated he might retire from baseball.

"I've had a lot of injuries this summer," he said. "My neck and back have bothered me most of the time. Maybe I'm at that age when you become injury prone."

"At any rate, I plan to have a complete physical examination next month. I wanted to do this in as high class a manner as possible, so this whole thing is certainly embarrassing for me. When I make up my mind and arrive at a decision, there won't be any reconsidering."

"No matter how Hank feels, Cleveland is my town. I have a family, friends and a home here, and I plan to stay. Perhaps I'm finished in baseball, but in some other things I'm just getting started here. I'm just sorry this thing had to come up this way."

Feller's reaction to Greenberg's offer of another job was that he would "have a talk with myself" before seeing Greenberg and that he wanted no "manufactured work."

"It would have to be something where I had a job to do," Feller said. "In the fall I plan to go to insurance school at Hartford, Conn. My other decisions may be made before that time."

Little Seeking Job After His Retirement

NEW YORK (AP)—Lou Little of Columbia, one of the few coaches in this area of high pressure football who didn't HAVE to win, indicated today that he was open to job offers after he retires Dec. 6, his 65th birthday.

"But," added the scholarly pilot, who guided Lion football teams since 1930, "I haven't received any yet."

"I don't want to be idle. So I'm almost certain to go into some sort of work. I doubt very much if I'll take another football coaching job. However, let's wait and see."

Little announced his retirement come his 65th birthday yesterday. The Columbia athletic department has a mandatory retirement-at-65 rule.

"It should be no surprise," said Little. "The retirement rule has been effect for seven years. I made the announcement at this time merely because I didn't want anyone to think I was quitting or that something was wrong with me."

"In fact, I don't feel almost 65. I work as hard as ever with the squad and I'm still as fast as ever showing those inexperienced linemen how to pull out of the line on their blocking assignments."

Speculation immediately arose that Paul Governali, one of his prized pupils and now coach at San Diego College, had the inside track on his job. After he was graduated, Governali spent six years as Little's assistant.

While Little pooh-poohed the idea of taking another college coaching job, many of his friends think he'd like to try his luck at a school that plays big-time football to prove he can win when given the material.

Kinston Invading Phantom Territory Friday Night

BILLY SERMONS—Greenville's All-Conference fullback, a 175 pound senior, is expected to turn on the power in Friday night's contest against arch-rival Kinston. Sermons rambled for 250 individual rushing yards last week as the G-Men downed Jacksonville 25-13, scored a touchdown and an extra-point.

McAteer's Gamble Has Paid Off Now

By MURRAY ROSE
NEW YORK (AP)—A $5,600 gamble has paid off today for British Empire Middleweight Champion Pat McAteer and Manager Johnny Campbell.

The handsome, 24-year-old invader scored an impressive and popular unanimous decision over rugged Jerry Luedee in his American debut last night and had assurances of plenty of work when he makes a second trip to the U. S. He won the plaudits of the fans by getting off the deck in the second round to come on and wallop the New Haven six-footer.

"It was well worth the risk," said Campbell after his protégé's solid victory in a telecast 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena. "We tried for 12 months to get the International Boxing Club to bring Pat over here. They weren't interested."

"So I decided I'd be like a salesman and display my goods. We paid our own way over and invested 2,000 pounds ($5,600) all in getting Pat ready. Teddy Brenner (St. Nick's matchmaker) saw Pat in the gym and booked him. Now that Pat's a hit here we know there will be plenty of offers the next time."

He will fly to England Wednesday to sharpen up for a defense of his British and Empire titles against Les Lazar of Nottingham, Oct. 8. If he beats Lazar he expects to fight Charley Humez in Paris in November for the Frenchman's European 160-pound crown. Then he will journey to Johannesburg to meet Jimmy Elliott of South Africa.

For a few moments in the second round last night it looked like Pat was ready to head back for the prelim ranks and had tossed his 2,000 pounds into the ocean.

A right to the jaw dropped Pat to the canvas. But he leaped up at four and coolly listened to Referee Barney Felix toll the mandatory eight count. Seconds later he had Luedee in trouble from a short right to the jaw. He staggered the unranked but never knocked out Luedee at least three more times in the lively scrap.

Felix and Judge Bill Recht each had Pat ahead, 6-3-1. Judge Artie Aidala had the visitor a 6-4 winner. The AP card had McAteer in front, 6-3-1. McAteer weighed 160, Luedee 164 1/2.

A crowd of about 1,605 paid $3-711. With TV money thrown in, each collected about $2,500.

"Still a good investment," said Campbell. "We'll make up the difference the next trip."

Harris May Join Boston Red Sox

BOSTON (AP)—Despite denials by General Manager Joe Cronin, rumors persisted among local newspapermen today that Detroit pilot Bucky Harris will be a member of the Boston Red Sox executive family next season.

The Post, Globe and Record pointed out that Harris is not expected to be with the Tigers in 1957.

RALEIGH—Newcomers to North Carolina State's 1956 football schedule are Maryland, Clemson, Dayton, Penn State, and South Carolina.

Yanks Hoping To Clinch Flag

CHICAGO (AP)—The New York Yankees, with one eye on the National League pennant race, hope to clinch their eighth flag in 10 years tonight when they meet the second-place Chicago White Sox.

Manager Casey Stengel will pit ace left-hander Whitey Ford (18-5) against Chicago with the Sox coming on with their top flinger, southpaw Billy Pierce (20-7). Ford has beaten the Sox five times in six games this season. Pierce has a 2-1 record against the Yanks.

Actually, the Yankees aren't worried about clinching the pennant. They'll do it one way or the other even if the White Sox forestall the act tonight. They lead the Sox by 11 games.

The White Sox are shooting for their highest finish in the American League since 1919, second place. They believe they can't miss since they play nothing but second-division foes after tonight.

New York needs to win only one of its remaining 10 games to clinch the pennant. Actually, the Yanks should be pulling for Milwaukee to cop the National League flag. With a large park, the Braves would insure a larger World Series cut than if the Brooklyn Dodgers or Cincinnati Redlegs won.

G-Men Drilling For Toughest Game Of Season

Having accomplished a big upset last week in the Northeastern Conference, defeating Jacksonville 25-13, the Greenville Phantoms have begun work for an even greater task this coming Friday night.

The Kinston Red Devils, the loop's defending champions and long Greenville's arch rivals, will invade College Stadium for the second conference game for the G-Men and the first for the visitors.

Favored By Seven
Kinston, though trounced by AAA Raleigh 34-0 last weekend, will be favored to win over the Phantoms by at least a touchdown. Coach Frank Mook's boys are inexperienced for the most part, but have been rated the number four team in the conference despite their heavy loss by graduation.

The K-Town team has long been a nemesis to Greenville. Only once, in over a decade of play, has a Green team taken the measure of the Red Devils. Four years ago, behind the fancy running of Bobby Perry (now with East Carolina) the Phants blasted Kinston 31-6.

Coach Guy Lewis emerged from the Jacksonville win without any serious injuries to his team and has been sending his boys through special drill for the coming match. He will probably use his double-edged offense that was so effective against the Cardinals. The passing of junior quarterback Mack Roebuck and the running of All-Conference Billy Sermons, Robin Wilfong, Jimmy Kelly and Robert Howell.

Line Play Counts
One of the most important factors of last week's victory over Jacksonville, was the play of the Phantom forward wall. Coach Lewis will be depending heavily upon the services of Angus Duff, Billy Brown, Roy Martin, Billy Cox, Edwin Wilkerson, Wade Jordan, Barney Barrett, Kelly Barnhill and Arthur Andrews.

The Kinston team that copped the season crown last year boasted one of the best lines in that school's history and will undoubtedly field another top-notch forward wall for Friday's contest. Mook, however, has admitted that most of his starters were lost in graduation.

Washington and New Bern, the first and second ranked teams in the Northeastern loop, battled to a tie last weekend, insuring a tighter race.

Elizabeth City and Roanoke Rapids, chosen to occupy the fifth and sixth slots, were idle in Northeastern play, last week, and have not demonstrated their power as yet.

Greenville, of course, was selected to field the bottom-place team. Their first game ended 21-0, as they were beaten by a highly-regarded Goldsboro AAA squad. Their second, a win over Jacksonville, predicts a possible strength overlooked by the coaches in their pre-season poll.

RALEIGH—North Carolina State plays only two night football games in 1956. The Wolfpack meets Clemson Oct. 6 and Florida State Oct. 13 under the lights. Both games will be played in Riddick Stadium.

Individual Champions In City Bowling

SUMMER CHAMPIONS—Billy Welis, Bill Skinner and Connie Hines, pictured above, were the three individual bowling champions in the Men's Summer League Bowling during the past three months. Wel's average was 169, the top season average. Skinner bowled a 558, tops in the three-game series. Hines hit 224, best in the individual game bracket. These same men will be active in the regular winter series of the city bowling leagues, which get underway this week.

Cautions Congress Trade Balance May Be Upset

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Federal Reserve Board economist cautioned Congress today against permitting what he called high tariff "protectionist interference" to upset the rising level of U.S. foreign trade.

with progressively less reliance on direct controls as a way of maintaining that balance. He said only by "balancing up" international trade accounts through increased world production and exchange can the general standard of living be raised throughout the free nations. He termed this "the goal of all enlightened economic policy."

Disappointed By So Few Taking Evening Classes

Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina College, said last night officials of the college are "disappointed" that so few people in Greenville have taken advantage of the adult education evening classes which have been offered by the college in the past few years.

Speaking before the Greenville Rotary Club, Dr. Messick asserted the college is seeking in every way possible to be of service to the people throughout North Carolina. Through its adult education courses, he added, a service is being offered which people of Greenville are not responding to.

Any course which the college can offer will be available in the adult education curriculum when as many as 10 people want it taught, he said.

Pointing to the rapid growth of East Carolina College in recent years, Dr. Messick declared that the college has been penalized in operational appropriations by the state because of its increased enrollment.

The ECC President pointed out that operational appropriations for the college amount to about three-fifths of the per capita appropriation for the three divisions of the University of North Carolina.

Dr. Messick also pointed to the college's need for more classroom space and dormitory space to take care of its increased enrollment and applications for admittance from students throughout the state.

The St. Lawrence Seaway project is estimated to cost the U.S. and Canada over 900 million dollars.

'Peace Without Surrender' Policy Is Cited By Nixon

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Vice President Nixon said today the Eisenhower administration "deserves a vote of confidence" because it "got the United States out of one war, kept it out of others and offers the best hope for peace without surrender."

Nixon, in the first prepared speech of a 15,000-mile political barnstorming swing, hit hard on the "peace and prosperity" theme on which the Republican campaign is based this year.

The vice president, often accused by Democratic critics of using "unfair" campaign tactics, pledged that he would "set the record straight" whenever "our opponents misrepresent and distort the record and... vilify the President."

Nowhere in prepared excerpts of his remarks did he mention Democratic presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson or Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who is seeking Nixon's job. He referred only to "our opponents" and "our critics."

Replying to Democratic contentions that the peace is precarious and that American prestige in the world is at an all-time low, he said:

"It probably is not surprising that those who defend an administration which refused to admit that the war in Korea was a war might not know the difference between war and peace. But the American people know the difference."

On the prosperity issue, he claimed "there are more jobs at higher wages, with greater take-home pay, for 64,600,000 American wage earners than at any time in history."

Until the Eisenhower administration took office in 1953, he said, the American people for 20 years had "never had real prosperity except in war or as a result of war."

He stressed he did not mean to say that "our national leaders got us into war so that we would have prosperity." But he said it does prove that "the New Deal and Fair Deal planners were never able to find the secret to the problem of creating prosperity during peacetime."

He conceded that some segments of the economy "have not shared as they should in this increasing prosperity," adding:

"I can assure you that this administration is using every resource at our command to speed up the disposal of the huge surpluses of farm products which have been responsible for the delay our farmers have experienced in moving ahead with the rest of the economy."

Appearing in the politically important Midwestern Farm Belt, Nixon said Agriculture Department statistics show that farm prices "are finally on the way up and we intend to keep them on that path."

He appealed for Democratic as well as Republican voter support for Eisenhower's reelection and for GOP control of Congress "so that we can assure four more years of the kind of government which has brought peace and prosperity to the American people and restored honesty, integrity and decency to government."

Press Promotes New Industry

Governor Hodges receives copy of the first of the series of advertisements in support of the State's industrial development program from E. B. Hunter of the Charlotte Observer, Chairman of the North Carolina Press Association Committee. Members of the Association, with circulation of nearly a million and a half, are publishing the advertisements as a public service—without cost to the State. An enlarged copy of one of the advertisements is seen in the background.

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

Twenty-three young women and three young men have completed training at National College for Christian Workers, Kansas City, Mo., for service as mission workers in institutions of the Woman's Division of Christian Service, Methodist Board of Missions, in the United States and its territories. All members of the group are college graduates, most of them having graduated this year. They constitute the sixth such group to serve as special term (two year) missionaries in the home field. This limited service program was started in 1951 and is similar to a foreign service program which sends young lay mission workers abroad for a three year term. The three young men are among the first to train for service in the missionary institutions (schools and homes) of the Woman's Division.

When, on "Hospital Day" in India, His Highness Maharaja Sri Jaya Chamaraja Wadivar Bahadur, Rajpramukh, of Mysore, turned the switch on the new deep X-ray therapy unit, and laid the cornerstone of the cancer ward, Missionary Dr. Ida B. Scudder, head of the radiology department, declared, "We look to the future with great anticipation that we shall be able to treat and cure early cases of cancer. We shall give the best services possible within our facilities of equipment, staff, and finances. Three means are at our disposal: public education concerning cancer; keener appreciation by the medical profession of this problem and more careful examination; and a special cancer prevention clinic to be started here at the earliest possible moment."

Miss Midori Sasaki, a graduate of Hiroshima Jo Gakuin, Methodist college in Japan, is now in the United States to begin her studies as winner of the William Faulkner study grant for one year of graduate study abroad. Hiroshima Jo Gakuin is a college of the Woman's Division of Christian Service of the Methodist Church. Miss Sasaki, who won also a Fulbright travel grant, is attending the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, N. C. An extension of the grant is possible, and it is hoped that Miss Sasaki will be able to study two or three years in North Carolina.

Benjamin Franklin, other than being a diplomat and printer, was also a skillful athlete. He won many contests in wrestling, swimming, boating and running.

Detective Claims Premature Publicity Led To Tot's Death

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP)—The police officer in charge of the Weinberger kidnap case says premature publicity in a New York City newspaper led to the death of the 32-day-old baby, Peter.

Nassau County Detective Chief Stuyvesant Pinnell did not name the newspaper in his statement yesterday. But he said it refused to withhold the story and help maintain secrecy in police efforts to recover the child alive.

Next day to give us a chance to get the baby back unharmed. Telephone company toll records prove the time of our requests. One newspaper, which had been contacted one half hour before its second edition, notified me that despite an urgent plea from its Nassau reporter, it was going ahead anyway and print the full story.

Khrushchev To Visit Yugoslavs

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev will make his second visit to Yugoslavia tomorrow. It is described as a vacation trip, but some political circles here think the Soviet Communist party boss may transact some business too.

The announcement of Khrushchev's impending arrival immediately set off speculation. It was recalled that a "private visit" by Soviet Deputy Premier A. I. Mikoyan last fall led to Russia's extension of large credits to Yugoslavia.

SEATTLE (AP)—Some new findings about the inside of an atomic nucleus, which will take scientists another step forward in their efforts to understand the nature of matter, were reported today to the International Congress on Theoretical Physics.

still inside the nucleus was made by Dr. B. R. Mottelson of the European Nuclear Research Center at Geneva, Switzerland. This center was set up with areactor supplied by the United States after the "atoms for peace" conference there last year.

NEW YORK (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham says, "We are in the fourth great spiritual awakening of America, but this great awakening has left New York City virtually untouched."

AMERICAN STYLE — Two members of touring Fujiwara Opera Company of Japan show their delight as they sample hot dogs and soft drinks before Washington performance.

Inside the atomic core, said Dr. Mottelson and Dr. Weisskopf, protons and neutrons apparently are held together by clouds of other particles called mesons. Mesons are highly energetic particles of matter and energy which are observed outside the nucleus during atomic explosions.

Dr. Graham made the statement last night before 1,200 persons at a dinner at the Hotel Commodore sponsored by the Billy Graham Crusade Committee.

Dr. Graham said 58 per cent of New Yorkers have no church affiliation and he has found many ministers "discouraged" because of small turnouts in church.

HOSTAGE

by ARCHIE JOSELYN

CHAPTER 35
McKinstry stared, startled and momentarily speechless, as Blake's eyes rapped at them from the doorway of Kinney's storehouse. Then as Stockett moved to carry out his orders, the captain found his voice.

"I've heard of returnin' good for evil, Major," he drawled. "But seems like you've kind of got the whole deal in reverse."

"What do you mean?" Blake snapped. "I find you with a man whom you helped to escape in open defiance of my orders, the two of you unlawfully breaking and entering—"

"I'm in hearty agreement with you all the way, Major, as to the facts," McKinstry interrupted. "But have a look at what we've found! All the ammunition and supplies that you've been worrying about for weeks, and which was said never to have arrived! All stacked here as neat as you please, and judgin' by the cobwebs on some of the boxes, they've been here for quite a spell. Have a look for yourself!"

Major Blake stared. Then, with a sudden exclamation, he entered and had his look, McKinstry showing him about with an exaggerated politeness.

"It was Mr. Edlund's idea," McKinstry added. "And this is a case where events clamor above words."

Harlow Blake's icy calm did not desert him, though it was plain that he was thinking hard. Few men enjoy being told, however indirectly, that they have been duped with the troopers as witnesses, the story would be common property for everyone under his command before the next day was out.

"You appear to have made a valuable discovery, however unorthodox your procedure," he granted. "Which does not in any way mitigate the seriousness of your offense. You will both be held for court-martial—"

They had moved back outside the warehouse, and now there a second unlooked-for interruption. This one appeared equally surprising to the major.

"Harlow Blake, are you a man or a machine?" Helen demanded, and came quickly down off her horse. "I just heard what Bill and Erd found for you, and that's the thanks you give them! You ought to be ashamed of yourself! I'm ashamed of you!"

"Helen!" Asperity crackled in Blake's voice. "What are you doing here—at this hour? I told you to go to bed."

"For one thing, I'm here to tell you that the man you're trying to arrest is the man who is going to be your brother-in-law." Helen retorted promptly. "Bill practically proposed to me this evening, and with him having come to his senses at last, do you think I'm going to have him locked up now?"

Eklund, observing the startled look on Blake's face, hid a grin. Events were coming fast, and the major's clam was buckling under these assaults. But there was still another for him to weather. A voice lifted in song from somewhere close at hand, a mildly bawdy song known to the horse cavalry, sung considerably off-key but making up in volume what it lacked in harmony. Then Script Nyman lurched into sight, clutching one of the bottles of whiskey Kinney had given him. It had been a long while since he'd gone on a drunk, and he was making this a good one.

"Shut that fool up!" Blake exclaimed furiously. "There's enough to distract a man without having to listen to an inebriated sot!"

"Intibreated sot, is it?" Nyman had overheard, and now, with a truculence which he would never have dreamed of when sober, he pushed forward, impatiently shaking off a trooper who sought to detain him. Planting himself square-footed, he stared owlishly at Blake.

"Sure I'm drunk, if that's what you mean," he went on, giving no time for an answer. "But why'm I drunk? I'll tell you. Because Dolf Kinney wanted me drunk. And why'd Dolf Kinney want me drunk? So's I'd forge that letter 'bout the doctor for you, Major! Thash why!"

It didn't take long to get the story. Blake questioned him shrewdly, listening with rising anger as the details unfolded. But he could be magnificent on occasion, and he demonstrated it now in making amends.

"My apologies, gentlemen," he said. "To you, too, Mr. Nyman, for my remark, which I see was ill-timed. And to you, Helen. It seems that I've been hoodwinked properly. I'm sorry for what has occurred. Mr. Eklund, and I only hope that you'll forget it. You seem to have grasped what was going on far better than I. So before taking any further action, in regard to the Indians, I would appreciate any suggestions that you may have to give."

"In regard to these stores of ammunition, sir, it seemed likely that they would be here," Eklund explained. "My guess—and it's still only a guess—is that Kinney has been stirring the Indians up to a point where he hopes to use them to wipe out the settlers around the country. While that was happening, you would be helpless for lack of ammunition. But when they had been disposed of, and it suited his purpose, he could say that it had finally arrived, and let you deal with the Indians."

Blake frowned. "That is logical to a degree," he conceded. "But why should he double-cross everybody? What possible motive could he have for any of it?"

"Profit," Eklund said promptly. "He figures to get hold of several ranches, and a lot of other property, once the owners are disposed of, and no one to make a claim to the contrary. Any claims or settlements would probably be left in his hands, in any case. Once the Indians had been properly and the scare abated, new settlers would drift in, which is what he wants. But by then he'd own a lot of valuable property."

"It still sounds incredible," Blake grumbled. "But in view of what has happened, you may be right. It's a fantastic idea. But what is to be done? You know that he has gone to the Indian camp. I suppose, if he is really giving orders to the Indians, that Miss Hull will be freed without other difficulty."

"I doubt that," Eklund contradicted and gave his reasons, as he had done to McKinstry. "There's sure to be a showdown between him and Oates, and whatever happens, the Indians are apt to turn ugly. My hope is that I can avert that, for it's the only chance to save Narcissa and avert a war. With your permission, I'll head do. My suggestion would be that you take charge of these supplies of ammunition, and follow me with the army. Its presence may be a deciding factor in any argument

Party Time Is Picture Time
Most of us wouldn't dream of getting ready for an outing without making sure to take along at least one camera. But did you ever think that the parties, dances, and just plain get-togethers that you'll be attending this busy Fall season are just as much "naturals" for picture taking?

Next time you're party-bound, take along your camera and a flashholder, and take some pictures. You—and everybody else—will have more fun because you did.

A few tips, though. Don't try to get too many people in one picture. Two pictures are nearly always better than one. Be sure your subjects are looking at something or doing something so that there's a natural center of interest. If you use flash, have every member of the group roughly the same distance from the flash so that the lighting will be even.

Any festive occasion seems to beg for color film . . . and the new Kodacolor is a snapshotter's delight. You can use it by daylight or flash, without filters or special flashbulbs . . . one color film for everything.

We have what you need to take memorable snapshots at your parties and get-togethers. Come in and see us about it.

Car Demolished, Driver Survives

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Paul White, 24, really made an impression when he won for a spin the other day on U.S. 119. He sideswiped two cars, knocked down two utility poles, left a wreckage of power lines along the highway, tore down sixty feet of fence and nine steel posts, and finally hit a third utility pole which demolished his car.

White walked away with a slightly puffed lip.

Class Play Chosen For October Event

By ANNE HARRIS
Belvoir-Falkland Reporter

The Junior Class has selected "Rest Assured" as its class play, to be presented in October. Try-outs have started for parts.

The Juniors also sponsored a "Fall Hop" Saturday night in the Falkland Community Center as one of its fund-raising projects of the year. A large crowd attended the dance which lasted from 8 o'clock until 11:30 p.m.

"Peaches, cheese, boys, and smile" were all familiar words encouraged by a representative of Delmar Studios last week when individual pictures were made. The pictures will be used for the school yearbook and for school records.

A modern comedy musical program including banjo medleys, the harmonica, hot slide whistle, and sound imitations was presented by the Southeast School Assemblies of Greensboro on Thursday, September 13.

The summer months weren't all wasted, nor did they man all work for some of our students. Shelba Wooten, a junior, spent much of her time in creative work and turned out the following poem:

"Dark Interlude"
A promise was mad: emphatically,
In silence to myself alone;
A vow that my heart would not awaken
To the old thrills it had known.
The old aches were beginning to fade
My broken heart had begun to heal
I could not go back to tears and sorrow
But neither could I tell my heart

QUALITY EASTERN OIL COMPANY AND SHELL OIL COMPANY

ANNOUNCE A NEW GRADE OF GASOLINE

THE SUCCESSOR TO SHELL PREMIUM

Super Shell with TCP

*It is the most powerful gasoline
the most powerful cars can use*

An entirely new grade of gasoline
The Shell Oil Company now introduces an entirely new grade of gasoline, Super Shell with TCP*. This gasoline will not only meet the critical power needs of the highest compression '56 automobiles, it will satisfy the still more powerful cars expected for '57.

At the same time, cars which have used premium grade gasolines will perform better than ever on Super Shell with TCP.

Super Shell with TCP is higher than high test, even more powerful than Shell Premium Gasoline which it replaces.

It is, in fact, the most powerful gasoline the most powerful cars can use.

Super Shell has a built-in "power pack"
Here's how this is possible. Shell is America's largest maker of gasoline for commercial aviation. Aviation gasoline contains special power ingredients known as aromatics, such as benzene, xylene, toluene. They pack more energy into a gallon of gasoline than anything else you can use. A high concentration of these aromatics gives Super Shell its built-in "power pack."

What can Super Shell do for you?

First, it can give your car all of the power it was built to deliver. This means, for many motorists, more power than they have ever before experienced.

The power you get will be smoother, quieter power, for Super Shell gives anti-knock protection over your entire speed range—from low throttle to full throttle.

Furthermore, Super Shell can give you more miles per gallon—greater operating economy.

TCP unleashes the full power of high octane
Today's powerful engines build up harmful engine deposits within a few thousand miles of driving. These deposits can cause a substantial loss of power.

That is why Super Shell contains TCP . . . to neutralize harmful deposits and unleash the full power of high octane. It enables a car to deliver and keep on delivering its full power.

For a new gasoline—a new pump

When you drive into your local Shell station, you'll find Super Shell with TCP in a new white pump. Super Shell is the most powerful gasoline the most powerful cars can use!

Stevenson Believes Truman Making Political 'Hay' In His Campaigning

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson says he has no doubt former President Truman—an ardent exponent of "give 'em hell" campaigning—is making political hay for him.

But Stevenson, who won the Democratic presidential nomination despite Truman's contention he was a "defeatist," is refusing to go along with Truman's statement that Alger Hiss was not a Communist spy.

Stevenson also balks at the term "legal racketeers" which Truman leveled at the Eisenhower administration, but does say he and the former President see eye to eye in condemning a situation he believes Truman had in mind in using the term.

"No one could feel more strongly than I do about the giveaways of our natural resources by this (Eisenhower) administration, to which, as I understand it, President Truman was referring, and not to the personal honesty or integrity of President Eisenhower," Stevenson told a news conference yesterday.

A reporter asked whether Truman's campaign speeches this year on behalf of the Democratic ticket have helped or hurt Stevenson's candidacy. Stevenson replied:

"Well, I have no doubt that they have helped the Democratic ticket. My impression is that the President (Truman) is a help, not a hindrance."

In Kansas City, Truman declined comment on Stevenson's remarks.

Stevenson said he has no doubt Truman will have far more requests to speak during the campaign "than he can possibly accommodate." And he said the Democratic National Committee will see to it that Truman "is used where and when it will serve the party's best interests."

In his comment on Alger Hiss, which amounted to backing politically away from Truman on that matter, Stevenson said that in prodding him on Hiss such Republican leaders as Vice President Nixon and GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall are "back on the same low road they traveled" during the 1954 congressional campaign.

Stevenson called on Eisenhower to say whether he approves "this sort of campaigning." There was no White House comment.

Hiss, a former State Department employe, served almost four years in federal prison after being convicted of perjury in denying he ever passed government secrets to a Soviet spy ring.

Truman replied "No" when asked in Milwaukee Sept. 3 whether he considered Hiss a Communist spy.

Nixon and Hall, among others, later challenged Stevenson to repudiate that Truman statement.

Asked whether he subscribed to the Truman view, Stevenson recalled he declared regarding Hiss during the 1952 campaign: "As I have repeatedly said, I have never doubted the verdict of the jury which convicted him."

Nothing has happened since then to change my views. Now, if what I said four years ago places me in disagreement with what President Truman says now, that is where the record must lie, must rest."

It was Stevenson's first formal news conference since he was nominated. He came, with apologies for being almost an hour late, to a crowded ballroom of the Park Sheraton Hotel with two prepared statements in anticipation of questions which were asked of him.

The first was on the Suez crisis—Did he regard the administration's handling of it as a fair campaign issue?

In his statement, Stevenson characterized the Suez situation as "dangerous," but said he did not want to "add to the difficulties" of Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles by discussing it now beyond saying, "We all hope, regardless of domestic politics, that a peaceful solution can be found."

But he did say, "It is no secret that I don't think much of the recent conduct of our foreign affairs," and "no secret that I think the administration has shown an alarming lack of understanding" of surging forces in Africa and Asia.

The other statement Stevenson brought along he read when asked to elaborate on his Sept. 5 statement saying he believed it was "the national will . . . that the draft be ended at the earliest possible moment, consistent with national safety."

Stevenson noted that Eisenhower and Nixon have taken exception to his statement, made at the same time, that "we can now anticipate the possibility—hopefully but responsibly—that within the foreseeable future we need without the draft."

Eisenhower has said he didn't know about the foreseeable future.

but that he sees no chance of ending the draft "in the immediate future."

Stevenson said he had not proposed an end in the immediate future, but that he does favor "a re-examination of our military policy in the light of recent extraordinary changes in our military technology."

Inter-American Meet Stresses Atomic Program

By BEN F. MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP)—An inter-American conference appeared determined today to make the Western Hemisphere one of the world's great laboratories for peaceful use of atomic energy.

Proposals by the United States, Argentina and Ecuador that atomic energy be made to serve man, rather than destroy him, were introduced at a meeting yesterday of representatives of the 21 American republics.

Argentina and Ecuador suggested creation of an inter-American institute for peaceful uses of atomic energy. The United States announced it already has started a three-way program.

Dr. Milton Eisenhower, the President's brother, who is U.S. delegate to the conference, outlined the American plan, saying: "The world has not yet reached high noon in the atomic age, but is only at the beginning of the dawn of a marvelous new era."

He said the United States has set up two schools, one near Chicago and another at Oak Ridge, Tenn., to train students in nuclear sciences.

He reported further that a program was begun last month at the University of Puerto Rico to establish atomic training and instruction in the Spanish language. He said Latin-American students are enrolled at the two U.S. schools, and that the Puerto Rican project too would be open to Latin Americans.

He announced also a new plan, already under way, to make the Inter-American Institute of Agricultural Sciences at Turrialba, Costa Rica, an experimental laboratory and training ground in peaceful uses of atomic energy.

A third project, he said, is a symposium planned for early next year at Brookhaven National Laboratory, Long Island, N.Y., on exchange of information and ideas on the subject by scientists of the 21 American republics. No date for the meeting was announced.

Something Every Young Housewife Should Know About Her Husband . . .

With dishes to wash and beds to make, and babies to care for and cakes to bake, your job is BIG as his. Time and step-saving convenience belong in the "workshop" of young housewives as much as they belong in the office of their husbands.

Take telephones, for instance. Chances are, he has one within easy reach of his desk. Now consider the hours YOU spend in the kitchen. Do YOU have a telephone there? Or how about in the bedroom for security and convenience when your husband's away at night?

You have phone calls to make and phone calls to take. Just like your husband. Consider having convenient extensions installed in easy-to-reach places throughout your home. They cost less than five cents a day. Reach, (like your husband does) Don't run. When the telephone rings. Make your "office" as convenient as his.

PLYMOUTH BAY WATER TO ENGLAND.—William S. Brewster, member of Board of Governors of "PLYMOUTH PLANTATION," Plymouth, Mass., where the ship Mayflower II will be permanently moored after arrival from England in May, 1957, gets an assist from seven-year-old Thelma Lois Trask in filling 17th century bottle with bay water at Plymouth. Brewster, of Plymouth, a direct descendant of Elder Brewster of Mayflower's 1620 trip, will fly to England with the water to be used in launching ceremonies for the newly constructed Mayflower II at Brixham, Devon, Sept. 22. ### N. C. Heart Association Holds Asheville Meeting

ROCKY MOUNT — The annual meeting of the North Carolina Heart Association was held in Asheville on September 15th and 16th.

Dr. Robert W. Wilkins, professor at Boston University School of Medicine and vice-president of the American Heart Association spoke on "New Hope for Hearts through Research."

He brought out the fact that Finland has the highest heart disease rate, followed by the United States and the Scandinavian countries. Indications are that countries enjoying a diet of rich foods, long on fats and low on vegetables are chief disease areas. "Long range research projects to relate diet to climate, temperature and other factors are needed to give concrete knowledge," said Dr. Wilkins.

Dr. Wilkins also brought out the fact that Finland has requested and has been given the right to use our Heart Symbol and all help necessary to aid Finland in establishing a Heart Association in her fight against Heart Disease.

Dr. John G. Smith, of Rocky Mount introduced guest-speaker Brigadier General Philip P. Ardery of the Kentucky Heart Association. General Ardery gave the North Carolina Association Kentucky's experience in developing certain projects, one of which was setting up an artery bank. This is very similar to the blood bank but involves preserving arteries to replace diseased arteries in heart patients.

Before adjournment a new slate of officers was installed. Dr. K.D.

Treasure Ship Is Missing Again

DEL MAR, Calif. (AP) — Four navy underwater photographers tried to find the wrecked bulk in 60 feet of coastal water which Melvin Scott, Del Mar Skin diver, said he encountered.

Scott, who came up with a gold ring, believes he may have discovered a sunken treasure vessel of Spanish exploration days.

Others say it may have been an old ferry boat, with mock cannon, sunk in the area in 1933 during the filming of the movie "Captain Blood." They also recall that a baroque scow once went down in the area.

The navy divers? They found nothing.

Necessary Delay

Spec O'Keefe Relates Death Pact Made By Brinks Bandits

BOSTON (AP) — Joseph J. Brewster, admittedly one of the robbers of the $1,219,000 Brink's money, testified that a jeopardizing misstep by any member of the gang was punishable by death.

He told a Superior Court jury yesterday that the alleged robbers agreed at a meeting that there was to be no display of wealth — that no one was to buy a house and no one was to buy a Cadillac and said it was agreed that any one who jeopardized the others should be killed.

He said it was Henry Baker, 50, who brought up the death pact at a meeting a few days before the Jan. 17, 1950, robbery.

O'Keefe said the last time all 11 men gathered together before the robbery was "a couple of days before Christmas" in 1949.

Recruit's Mom Says Aura Of Fear Over Base

NORWALK, Ohio (AP)—The mother of a Marine recruit, who claims he was hit in the stomach by a corporal for failing to say "sir," said today the Marines at Parris Island are "living under a fear — a nervous fear."

The South Carolina training station is where six Marine recruits drowned in a marsh during a night march this summer.

Mrs. R. L. Hamisfar, mother of six children and wife of World War I Army veteran, said she had been at other camps but had never seen such "fear" as evidenced at Parris Island.

She claims her 20-year-old son, Donald, was hit by a corporal for not saying "sir" to the noncommissioned officer during a mop and bucket demonstration.

Hamisfar underwent an emergency hernia operation. The Marine Corps, which is investigating the whole incident, said the recruit had a congenital hernia and it did not know whether any blow aggravated it.

Mrs. Hamisfar said Donald "wanted out of there" — the Marines — but did not know whether he would formally apply for such a release. She said she was not planning to ask for any release and that such a step was up to him.

"I wonder what kind of care and treatment he'll get," she told a reporter. "He overheard an officer say they'll get him when he gets out. But with all this talk, I'm sure that will change."

"Marines on the Island are afraid to talk, afraid to tell you anything. However, the treatment at the hospital is quite good."

At that meeting, O'Keefe said, the men tried on the Halloween masks they would wear during the robbery and they fingered the re-luctants they would carry.

It was agreed, the witness continued, that the money taken from Brink's would be dropped at Maffie's home, and that McGinnis would dispose of all the equipment used.

O'Keefe said it was agreed he would lead the way, carrying five keys a locksmith made in advance.

Consolation For Those Locked In

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Anyone who gets locked into the big vault in the state treasurer's office will have some consolation: It now has a breathing tube to guard against suffocation.

Treasurer Sanford A. Brown ordered the tube installed in the airtight vault after learning a person inside could live only 20 minutes if the door slammed shut. It took workmen three days to batter and drill through the four-foot vault wall to install the small tube.

Written Lesson For Boy-Speeder

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (AP) — Juvenile Judge Donald F. Black revoked the license of a 17-year-old charged with speeding at 60 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. zone.

Then he ordered the youth to compute the distance an automobile travels in one second at various speeds from 25 to 60 mph, and also write in longhand all rules and regulations in the West Virginia Manual of Highway Safety.

New railway freight cars today cost about $8,000 each.

Parking Lot Is Opened For Use

The city's parking lot located on the old swimming pool property on E. Fifth St. is now open for use by motorists. City Manager Leonard Bloxam said today.

The parking area, which until recently was a free dirt lot, has been paved and parking meters have been placed on the property.

Those using the lot may receive one hour's parking for five cents or all day parking for 25 cents.

Bloxam said mercury vapor lamps are to be installed to light the area. In addition a change making device has been ordered for the lot and a sign designating the lot is to be hung on the Fifth St. side.

It is the second paved and metered lot to be operated by the city. A similar lot has been in operation at Fifth and Washington Sts. The city also has a small dirt lot at Second and Evans Sts. Also in operation is a dirt parking area at Pitt and Dickinson Ave. That lot was leased for a six months period on a trial basis.

No Problem With His Footwork

OKLAHOMA CITY, (AP) — An 81-year-old elevator operator in Oklahoma City, says he doesn't mind standing on his up and down trips.

"I've never had a bit of trouble with my feet," he says.

"If my head was as good as my feet, I'd be a multi-millionaire."

Hubcaps Return To Police Dept.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Two automobile hubcaps were received in the mail by police with an unsigned note which said in part:

"If you can't get the hubcaps back to the owner auction them off and give the money to the poor." The sender paid 36 cents postage to mail the package to police.

CALL HIM WALTER
CHICAGO (AP)—A janitor named Walter suffered three broken ribs when he fell off a chair in the kitchen of his South Side home. He was taken to a hospital but because of pain was unable to give police his last name. Police went to his home and copied it off the mail box. It is Anorzyciewicz.

HOSPITAL CHECKUP
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Pianist Oscar Levant, 49, is in Mount Sinai Hospital for what his physician says is a rest and physical checkup. "No specific diagnosis has been made," the doctor reported.

'Honor System' Almost Worked

MARSHALL, Tex. (AP)—An "honor system" trial almost worked at a local ice plant but not quite.

There had been no lock on the plant's ice box for almost a year. A sign said "Serve yourself," and customers were expected to leave payment in a convenient cigar box.

Plant manager Locke M. Stuart sadly announced recently that the trial was over. He said that although about 75 per cent of the buyers left payment, more than 3,000 pounds of ice valued at about $30 slowly "melted away."

A few customers went out of their way to be honest, however. One elderly man without change left a $1 bill, then picked up his change the next day by describing how the bill was folded.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK—The stock market went into another decline today, with losses ranging to about 3 points a share in the early afternoon.

Chemicals and steels were the weakest divisions and aircrafts fared little better. Motors and autos were off fractions.

Trading was at about the same pace as yesterday when 1,940,000 shares changed hands.

Once again there was little selling pressure, with stocks drifting lower largely from lack of buying interest. The Suez Canal picture appeared to be relatively quiet, pending the next round of talks in London.

In the steels, Bethlehem and Youngstown were down around 2 points, U. S. Steel and Republic around a point. In the chemicals, Union Carbide slipped about 3. Allied Chemical around 2, with other issues losing fractions to a point.

Boeing, Douglas and United Aircraft all were down a point or so. North American was up a fraction after receiving an 86-million-dollar Navy contract for research on supersonic carrier planes.

Owens-Illinois dropped around 3/4.

Chain Belt was ahead 1 1/2 for a time after directors declared an extra dividend of $1.25 a share. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off $1 at $180.60, with the industrials off $2, rails off 70 cents and utilities unchanged. Yesterday the average dipped 50 cents, the seventh decline in eight sessions.

Address Pitt Realtors' Board

The first meeting in a series of five was held here yesterday concerning the Governor's Traffic Safety Council.

Department of Motor Vehicles and State Highway Patrol Commissioner Edward Scheidt addressed the Speakers' Bureau. The Bureau is composed of representatives from in and around Greenville, Kinston, Gatesville, and Marine enlisted personnel and officers from Toastmasters Clubs at Cherry Point and Camp Lejeune.

The purpose of the yesterday's meeting and the meetings to be held in Fayetteville, Durham, Salisbury, and Asheville this week, is to organize public speakers on a statewide basis so that they may speak to civic clubs, schools or other gatherings concerning the Governor's Traffic Safety Council.

Commissioner Scheidt, Chairman of the Safety Council, told the gathering of public speakers that he thought they would be interested in what the Council has to offer. And if so, to study the material concerning highway safety. The Commissioner said that all highway safety material and information would be furnished to the Speakers' Bureau by his department.

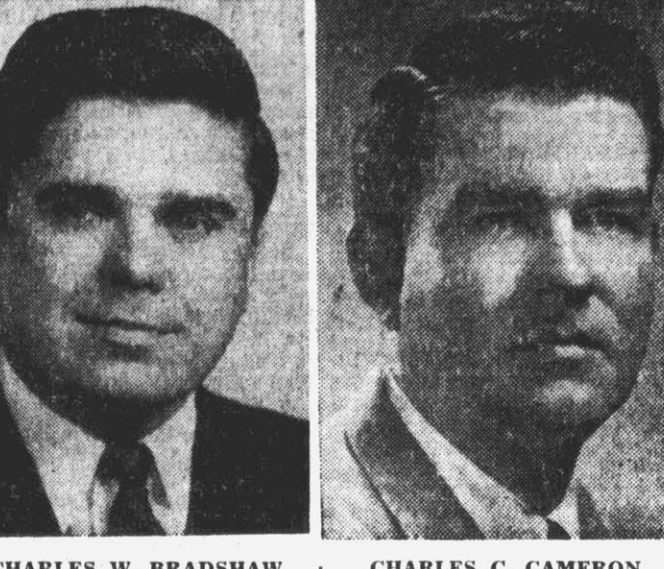

Colonel James R. Smith, Commanding Officer of the State Highway Patrol and Major Charles A. Speed, Director of the Safety Division, accompanied Commissioner Scheidt on his visit to Troop A Headquarters and they will be with the Commissioner when he speaks at the other four cities this week. Both Colonel Smith and Major Speed spoke briefly on the literature that would be furnished the Speakers' Bureau and on statistical information regarding highway safety practices.

At the conclusion of her training in Chapel Hill she will be certified as a Senior Public Health Nurse and will return to the Pitt County Health Department.

Patrolmen Find Fire, Prevent Heavy Damage

Two policemen on routine patrol last night discovered a fire at 509 Albemarle Ave. and prevented heavy damage.

Policemen Lt. Tommy Gladson and Ptl. Jasper Lee Mills were patrolling in a police patrol car when they spotted the fire in the bedroom of the dwelling.

The officers broke in the front door of the house and managed to throw a burning mattress through a window before serious damage to the dwelling resulted. Firemen who were called to the scene quickly extinguished the flaming mattress.

The dwelling is occupied by Wiley Vines, Negro, and his daughter. The call to the blaze came at 12:35 a.m.

Earlier in the evening firemen were called to GE Grain Mill on N. Greene St. where some corn shucks caught fire in the drying plant. That call came at 7:55 p.m.

A 46-year-old vacuum cleaner was recently discovered in an attic in Tonawanda, N.Y. It didn't work by electricity. The turning wheels on the cleaner, which looks like a baby carriage, started belts to suck up dirt from the rug.

Increased Funds For Community Colleges Sought

RALEIGH—Increased state aid was recommended yesterday for three community colleges in the state, but objections were raised to a requirement that the colleges match state funds for permanent improvements.

The State Board of Higher Education recommended to the Advisory Budget Commission that the state appropriate a total of $1,200,000 for the next biennium to aid community colleges at Charlotte, Asheville and Wilmington.

Representatives from the three communities objected to the stipulation that matching funds be provided for permanent improvements. The board proposed that the state set up $825,000 for permanent improvements.

The board also proposed grants-in-aid totaling $202,500 each year to help operate the colleges. Asheville-Biltmore would get $45,000 each year, Charlotte College, including Carver College, $90,000, and Wilmington College, including the Williston unit, $67,500.

Permanent improvement requests were: Asheville, $112,500 toward the cost of a $225,000 science building, and $87,500 toward a $175,000 general purpose building; Charlotte, $425,000 toward an $850,000 classroom and administration building; Wilmington, $187,500 toward a $375,000 classroom and office building, and $12,500 toward the $25,000 cost of renovating the present building.

Dr. G. L. Bushey, president of Asheville-Biltmore College, said he felt the permanent improvement funds should be on a non-matching basis.

Rep. Addison Hewlett of New Hanover and Stowe Moody, president of the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce, objected to the matching requirement.

The 1955 Legislature appropriated $39,630 for each year of the present biennium to help the community colleges.

Plan For Family Court Endorsed

RALEIGH—The 1957 Legislature will be asked to approve a system of family court, state-administered and operated on a district basis, to replace the present juvenile court system.

The recommendation will be made by the governor's Youth Service Commission, headed by Nat S. Crews of Winston-Salem.

The commission feels, Crews said here yesterday, that a system of family courts would best serve the legal-social problems of families and children. The immediate creation of such a court, he added, is desirable and sound.

In a preliminary report to Gov. Hodges early this summer, the commission said the present juvenile court system is "weak and outmoded."

Crews announced that the National Probation and Paroles Assn. of Austin, Tex., is making a survey in North Carolina of juvenile court cases and conditions. The report, which is expected to be completed in January, will show the cost of the system and where the courts and regional detention homes should be located.

Crews pointed out that the new court system would have jurisdiction of all types of cases including family troubles and children. He added the system would, to a large degree, substitute diagnosis and therapy for the philosophy of guilt and punishment.

Two Dangerous Convicts Escape

RALEIGH—Two long-term convicts described as "very dangerous" escaped yesterday from the Raleigh State Hospital where they were undergoing treatment, the Prisons Department reported today.

Prisons Records Director J. D. Wilson identified the two as Cecil Lovedahl, 30, sentenced in Jackson County in 1946 to life as an accessory to first-degree murder; and John Cottle, 30, sentenced in Gaston in 1951 to concurrent terms of 20 to 30 years for kidnaping and armed robbery.

Wilson said the two got away by climbing a fence during their recreation period.

"We'd like very much to get hold of these boys before they get in more trouble," said Wilson. "Both are considered very dangerous."

Wilson said both men had bad prison records, that Lovedahl had escaped three times previously from the prison system and made three other escape attempts. He said Cottle had escaped once previously and made three other attempts.

Wilson said Lovedahl has a "very prominent, crooked nose" and has a knife scar on his right cheek. He was dressed in grey cotton pants and white shirt when he escaped. He is 5 feet 9 tall, weighs about 160, has grey eyes, brown hair and a ruddy complexion.

Cottle was wearing checked trousers and a sport shirt, Wilson said. He has blue eyes, brown hair and a fair complexion. He is 6 feet 1 tall, weighs about 174 pounds and has a large mole in the center of his chin.
