Six Armed N. C. Fugitives Hide In Appalachians

BIG STONE GAP, Va. (AP)—Six tough, armed convicts who pitched their way to freedom, were holed up in a dense Appalachian Mountain area today after eluding a police posse for 11 hours. About 100 officers, aided by bloodhounds and a Virginia state police patrol plane, pressed a manhunt for the fugitives who escaped yesterday from a road gang in western North Carolina. Shortly before daylight, a Southern Railroad train crew reported spotting the men huddling close by the railway tracks which cut up the mountainside. Bloodhounds picked up the trail but lost it after a short while. A state police spokesman at Wytheville division headquarters said the men were armed with at least a shotgun and rifle, and possibly a pistol. The prisoners made their getaway using a pitchfork to overpower a guard and holding up a motorist to obtain the 1951 green sedan which they drove to Big Stone Gap. One of the convicts, Raymond C. Gilley, 30, is from Big Stone. The men fled into the woods after a local policeman spotted the stolen car and gave chase. State police had received a tip that the fugitives might be headed toward this western Virginia area and notified Big Stone Gap Police Chief Barron Lane at his home last night shortly before 11 o'clock. Lane, who lives in nearby Lee County, immediately set out for police headquarters and on the way passed a car which he suspected carried the escapers. When he reached headquarters, Lane rounded up five of his officers and they left in two cars to search the area. On 5th Street, one of the cars spotted the green sedan going in the opposite direction. Officers opened up on the car, pumping three bullets into the side and a shotgun blast into the rear compartment. The fugitives swerved into another street, hastily abandoned the car in front of the Big Stone Gap High School and thence into the woods from the east side of town. A search was immediately organized with police pouring in from Tennessee and outlying areas of Virginia. Prison guards from North Carolina also joined in the manhunt, which was centered in the section of Artesian Well Hollow in Wise County. The searchers thought they had the men surrounded late last night, but during the night they apparently slipped out of the net and took up new positions a bit farther from Big Stone Gap. The state police spokesman said the searchers were hoping to ring the group in once more shortly after daylight when the patrol plane was called in. The men broke away from the road gang after jabbing Prison Guard Fred Honeycutt with a pitchfork. Honeycutt was pricked in the shoulder twice, but wasn't seriously hurt. The prisoners took the guard's weapons and his identification papers, and one of them donned his uniform. Then they held up Leonard Scott, 13, of Yancey County, N.C., took his car and made their flight into this area. They obtained a .22 calibre rifle from Scott's car.

Hurricane Flossy Hits The Louisiana Coast

Adlai Carries Campaign Into South; Affirms Faith In Court

Believes Supreme Court 'Right' In Ruling Against School Segregation

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson carried his presidential campaign into the South today, and at his first stop, reaffirmed his belief the Supreme Court was "right" in ruling against segregation in the nation's public schools. But the Democratic nominee also said he stands squarely on the party platform statement that "we reject all proposals for the use of force to interfere with the orderly determination of these matters by the courts." In an address prepared for delivery in MacArthur Park, Stevenson thus expressed in substance the same views he set forth last month a few days before he won his party's presidential nomination. He said today: "The Supreme Court of the United States has determined unambiguously that the Constitution does not permit segregation in the schools. As you know, for I have made my position clear on this from the start, I believe that decision to be right. "Some of you feel strongly to the contrary. "But what is more important is that we agree that once the Supreme Court has decided this constitutional question, we accept that decision as law-abiding citizens. "Our common goal is the orderly accomplishment of the result decreed by the court. I said long ago, and I stand now squarely on the plain statement, adopted in the Democratic platform, that we reject all proposals for the use of force to interfere with the orderly determination of these matters by the courts." Stevenson set forth his position anew against the background of violence which has occurred in some sections of the South, where efforts have been made to integrate white and Negro school children.

Locksmith Says He Supplied Keys

BOSTON (AP)—Locksmith Jacob Dana has testified in the Brink's trial that he made five keys in the fall of 1949 for Anthony Pino, 49, one of eight men on trial for the $1,219,000 Brink's robbery. Dana testified for the prosecution yesterday that Pino brought the first cylinder to his Dorchester district shop during the latter part of October or early November. He said that Pino subsequently brought four other locks at intervals ranging from "a week or so up to two weeks" for keys to be made at $1 each. The gray-haired locksmith was put on the stand to corroborate the testimony of Joseph J. (Specs) O'Keefe, 48, who had pleaded guilty to the robbery of Jan. 17, 1950, and testified for the state. O'Keefe had told the Superior Court jury that he, the eight defendants and two others who have since died broke into the Brink's headquarters more than twenty times to learn the layout of the place and to remove the locks from five doors to have keys made. O'Keefe said the locks were removed each time shortly after the last of the Brink's employees left about 5 p.m. and that Pino brought them to the locksmith's shop across the town to the Dorchester district and then returned so the locks could be replaced within the hour. Dana, who has been in the locksmith business for 35 years, said he made the keys between 6:15 and 6:30 p.m. each time. He said he agreed to keep his shop open a little later than usual when Pino called because he has known the defendant for more than 20 years. Another witness, John B. Spalding, plant superintendent for American District Telegraph Co., identified two folders containing correspondence and paper relating to Brink's. That concern maintained the Brink's burglar alarm system. O'Keefe had testified during his seven days on the stand that he and at least one of the defendants broke into the ADT office to try to steal the blueprint for the burglar alarm system at Brink's. O'Keefe said they took the Brink's folder to Pino's house to study the papers in it but found nothing of value. He said they broke into the ADT office the following night to return the folder to its proper place. Spalding testified that he had no knowledge the files ever left the office until they were turned over to the FBI this year.

Can Now Phone Europe On Cable

NEW YORK (AP)—The first telephone call to Europe by a direct line was scheduled for today over a new, 42-million-dollar transatlantic cable linking New York and London. Inaugural ceremonies were arranged in New York, London and Ottawa. People have been talking by phone to Europe since 1927, but their voices have been carried by radiotelephone. These circuits are subject to atmospheric interference and possible jamming by alien sources in time of emergency. The new cable system, which took more than two years to build, does away with the possibility of these disturbances and thus has national security aspects. It is the joint project of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., the British Post Office and the Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corp. The new cable can carry 36 voice messages at one time, about three times the traffic that radiotelephone circuits can transmit between this country and abroad. It is the first undersea phone link to span any ocean. The submarine portion of the cable was laid by the British-owned Monarch, at 8,650 tons the largest cable-laying vessel in the world, under supervision of the Long Lines Department of AT&T, the long distance operating unit of the Bell System. The cable itself was designed by scientists and engineers of Bell Telephone Labs. Doctors said the 60-year-old Central American strong man victim of an assassin's bullets, was still partially paralyzed on the left side. He is a patient at the U.S.-operated Gorgas Hospital in the Canal Zone, where he was flown after the Friday night assassination attempt. Surgeons opened a hole in his windpipe to help him breathe when his condition grew worse. An evening medical bulletin said reflexes of the left arm and leg, absent in the morning, had returned and that his breathing was more regular. On today's second invasion of the Midwest Farm Belt, Eisenhower has promised to blueprint an agricultural program, aimed at what he calls "the special problems of the farmers and the special treatment they should receive." Whether this "special treatment" will entail any increase in federal payments to farmers or any major revisions of the administration's agricultural program remained a guarded secret.

Hurricane Subsides Into A Vast Rain Storm; 9 Deaths

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Hurricane Flossy subsided into a vast, drought-breaking rain storm as it moved slowly over southern Georgia today after causing nine deaths and some property damage in its journey across the Gulf of Mexico and the northwest Florida coast. At 8 a.m. the once-dangerous storm was reported centered just west of Albany, in southwest Georgia, with its top winds at 50 miles, short of full gale force and only half of the velocity reached before it moved inland. It continued heading between northeast and east northeast at about 10 m.p.h. Gusty winds of 25 to 35 m.p.h. extended outward 300 to 350 miles north and east of the center and 150 miles to the west. In its overland path from Fort Walton Beach, Fla., to Dothan, Ala., to Albany, the storm apparently did nothing worse in the property damage line than to down some trees and power lines. On the other hand, its accompanying rainfall was breaking the back of drought conditions across southern Alabama and Georgia and northern Florida so that, on balance, Flossy was probably more of a blessing than a disaster in those areas. The potential casualty list of the storm took a sharp drop early today when the Coast Guard reported the motor vessel Carport located near Grand Isle in the Gulf of Mexico. Missing since Sunday, she was disabled but the 15 aboard her were safe. The crowd dispersed, however, after Kasper was released in $2,000 bond pending a Criminal Court hearing today on charges of sedition and inciting a riot. Sheriff Glad Woodward arrested Kasper with an assist from a plain-sized constable who happened to be on hand—as boisterous demonstrators heckled speakers at a Democratic campaign rally. Kasper said he and the demonstrators had assembled to protest the scheduled appearance of Gov. Frank Clement at the rally. Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) delivered the main speech before the 2,000 persons attending. Clement, who has been a target of criticism from segregation forces because of the use of National Guard troops in the Labor Day weekend disturbances here, did not appear. He wired that bad weather prevented his appearance. Constable George Campbell of Oak Ridge, who stands 5 feet 4, said he chased the six-foot Kasper without knowing who he was after seeing him break away from the sheriff. "I caught him and he turned on me and slugged me with his fist about 15 times before the sheriff intervened," Campbell said. "He knocked my glasses off."

Shorter Talks By Demo Leaders At N. C. Rallies

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Democratic party leaders plan to streamline the district rallies this year by having shorter talks by most of the Democratic leaders. State Democratic Chairman John D. Larkins said yesterday there will be one main speech for each rally. Each congressman will make a short talk, while the major speech will be delivered by someone selected by the congressman or the Democratic nominee for Congress. Party leaders will leave here aboard an air-conditioned bus next Tuesday morning for Asheville and the first of 12 district rallies. Gov. Hodges will be the chief speaker at the Charlotte rally Oct. 4. Rep. Harold Cooley, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, will deliver a major farm talk at the Raleigh rally Oct. 18.

Ike Resumes His Farm Belt Drive

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower asks American farmers tonight to go along on what he says may be a long pull toward a goal of higher stable prices for what they produce. Eisenhower takes off today for Peoria, Ill., where he will deliver at the Bradley University field house a half-hour farm speech. It will be carried by CBS radio and television networks at 9:30 p.m. EDT. He will fly back to Washington shortly after the talk. Eisenhower declined to add an Ohio speaking date to his campaign schedule, a midday speaking appearance in Cleveland Monday before he travels on to Lexington, Ky., for his third nationally broadcast address that night. Thus, within the span of a week, he will visit three states where the Democrats are working hard to repeat their victories of 1948. Eisenhower carried Illinois and Ohio by substantial margins in 1952. He lost Kentucky by only 700 votes. On today's second invasion of the Midwest Farm Belt, Eisenhower has promised to blueprint an agricultural program, aimed at what he calls "the special problems of the farmers and the special treatment they should receive."

Air Force C47 Crash Kills All Persons Aboard

BUENA VISTA, Colo. (AP)—All persons aboard an Air Force C47 were killed yesterday when the twin-engine craft plunged into the sheer northwest edge of 14,172-foot Mt. Yale. A joint Army-Air Force team equipped with mules started an ascent to the 11,500-foot level to return the bodies. Among the victims, who included both civilians and military personnel, was a red-haired Women's Army Corps enlisted woman. The bodies were found by a seven-man team which rode and climbed for five hours to reach the scene. Names of the dead were withheld. The plane was attached to the Continental Air Defense Command at Colorado Springs, Colo. A spokesman there said it left about 9:30 a.m. on a flight to Hamilton Air Force Base, near San Francisco. Watches on the bodies of the victims had stopped at 10:10. Allen Fitzgerald, an employee of the Colorado Reformatory here, flew over the crash scene at midday, and later guided the first rescue team to the site. "It was the most gruesome spectacle I've ever seen," he said. "The impact must have been so great that all their shoes were ripped off. Only one man still had on a shoe. Six of the bodies were still in the wreckage and one of them 'way back in the tail section. We found the others scattered all over. Some of them were so badly burned and torn that it was hard to distinguish if they were bodies at all." The scene is near the top of the Continental Divide, 12 miles west of Buena Vista.

More Polio

A 12-year-old white girl from the Parolus area in Pitt County's 15th polio victim. Dr. Walter C. Humbert, County Health Director, said the girl became ill September 19. Her illness was diagnosed as paralytic polio September 23. She is being treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital. Health Department records show the child had received one Salk shot, on August 4, at a special Health Department clinic.

Segregationist Arrested Again

CLINTON, Tenn. (AP)—Segregationist John Kasper put up a fight last night when he was arrested in nearby Oak Ridge on indictments stemming from mass protests of school integration here four weeks ago. A crowd of his supporters gathered around the Anderson County jail here after he was locked up. Auxiliary police, organized during the Labor Day weekend violence here, were called out as a precaution. The crowd dispersed, however, after Kasper was released in $2,000 bond pending a Criminal Court hearing today on charges of sedition and inciting a riot. Sheriff Glad Woodward arrested Kasper with an assist from a plain-sized constable who happened to be on hand—as boisterous demonstrators heckled speakers at a Democratic campaign rally. Kasper said he and the demonstrators had assembled to protest the scheduled appearance of Gov. Frank Clement at the rally. Sen. Demand Higher Potato Prices

RIVERHEAD, N.Y. (AP)—Some 200 farm wives went to Washington today to carry on their fight for higher potato prices—prices they say are necessary for their husbands to make a living. Top grade potatoes recently have been bringing $1.50 per hundred pounds to farmers here. The women and their husbands say the price ought to be at least $2. The women expected to be joined in the capital by another 400 wives of potato farmers in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. They plan to picket the Department of Agriculture and Secretary of Agriculture Benson. They also expect to see members of the House and Senate Agriculture Committees.

Potato Market Start Delayed

BETHEL—A combination of bad weather and a late crop has delayed the opening of the Bethel Sweet Potato Market. Market Manager Joe Butterworth said this morning the market probably will not go into full operation before next Tuesday. He did say, however, that "a few" baskets of potatoes may come in the latter part of this week. The market was scheduled to open with 11 buyers assigned. Sales were to have opened at 8:30 a.m. and continued until noon when an hour-and-a-half break was scheduled for lunch. Afternoon sales are scheduled to be held from 1:30 until 4:30. The market operates on a four-day week, Tuesday through Friday. Butterworth said the market's opening was delayed two weeks because of an expected late crop. "We certainly didn't expect it to run this late, however," he added. Only one 25-bushel truckload of potatoes was offered for sale this morning. This will be the eighth season the market has operated. It opened in 1949 with capital donated by Bethel businessmen. It is a non-profit operation.

Fifteen Hundred Fire Fighters Continue Effort

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP)—Fifteen hundred fire fighters, including state prisoners, slugged away today at the timber inferno in the San Bernardino Mountains for a fifth day. A five-mile-long horsehoe of flame on the northeast corner of the 10,500-acre burn was the critical sector. Mile-high Lake Arrowhead, play ground for millionaires, movie stars and average citizens, was described by a forestry official as out of danger—unless the winds change. But two other resorts were evacuated as flames moved within a mile and a half of them. Some 200 persons fled the resorts on the advice of forestry officials. The blaze yesterday destroyed a storage building, a workshop, two houses, two house trailers, two trucks and four trailers at a Boy Scout camp three miles east of Lake Arrowhead. The camp had been evacuated over the weekend.

Somoza Improves After Relapse

PANAMA (AP)—Nicaragua's President Anastasio Somoza improved slightly last night after an unexpected relapse. Doctors said the 60-year-old Central American strong man victim of an assassin's bullets, was still partially paralyzed on the left side. He is a patient at the U.S.-operated Gorgas Hospital in the Canal Zone, where he was flown after the Friday night assassination attempt. Surgeons opened a hole in his windpipe to help him breathe when his condition grew worse. Egypt Files Own Request On UN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Egypt has come up with its own call for U.N. Security Council intervention in the Suez Canal dispute. The Egyptian request will be taken up by the council tomorrow along with an earlier British-French demand for action. Cairo's move came late yesterday, a day after Britain and France had asked the council to intervene in the situation created by Egypt's July 23 nationalization of the 103-mile waterway. The 11-nation council's first task will be to decide whether to debate the complaints together or separately, and if separately, in what order. The council is not expected to get down to the issues in the canal dispute before next week.

A preliminary plat was approved last month by the commission. Also to be considered by the commission tonight is a proposed off-street parking ordinance.

Highest Average On Tobacco Mart

Tobacco hit its highest average of the season on the Greenville market yesterday when the per hundred pound average moved to $3.54. Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee reported that 1,621,064 pounds of tobacco were sold for $867,987.36. Whedbee said leaf tobacco is still predominant on the warehouse floors. He said he is expecting "big sales" for the remainder of the week.

Royal Welcome For Liberace In London

LONDON (AP)—Liberace arrived in London today on a special train and got a shrill welcome. "I understand that you've had a rather unpleasant summer—perhaps we will bring a little sunshine to England," the pianist said. "Whereeee!" screamed a crowd at Waterloo Station. "He's lovely," screamed one young girl brandishing a bouquet of artificial roses. "You are wonderful!" Liberace began. He was interrupted by boos from a group of men carrying a sign that read: "We hate Liberace—Charlie Kunz forever." Charlie Kunz is an over-50 British pianist whose jazz has been admired by two or three genera-

Deer Season In Pitt Is Reduced To Two Weeks

By CHESTER WALSH Reflector Staff Writer The North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission has ruled that deer—not hunted in Pitt County for over a decade—may be hunted for only two weeks—October 15 to November 1. The commission is setting up the hunting schedules for 1956-57. Last summer, it held a small group of Pitt County hunters that appeared at the meeting and then ruled that a full open season should prevail. Since mid-August the Wildlife Resources Commission received strong protests from farmers, sportsmen, businessmen and others against an open season in Pitt for hunting deer. Protests stated that deer were not plentiful enough to justify a full hunting season. It was stated here today by Game Protector J. O. Teel and hunters that it has been only during the last two years that there was evidence that deer were beginning to herd and breed to any considerable extent in Pitt County. Much of the deer population of this county is reported to be in the Black Jack and Grimsland area, east-south of Greenville. Farmers and others had reported finding deer trails across dirt roads and evidences of their foraging in the woods. Public opinion appears to be that deer in numbers will again inhabit the area if a closed season on hunting the animals is maintained a few more years. The open season for hunting deer in other counties of the state, with some exceptions, is from October 15 to January 1, with the bag limit one a day, one in possession, and two male deer during the season. Pitt County Game Protector J. O. Teel of Greenville said today that squirrels are plentiful and that numerous new covets of quail have been reported. He also said he and other game protectors have copies of the state hunting regulations to be distributed free upon request to hunters. "Ignorance of hunting laws is no excuse for a violation," Teel said. "There is one special thing the paper can do for the safety of hunters and others in the woods at this time of the year, and that is to warn parents who are giving guns and rifles to small teen-age boys. There have been reports of boys shooting wildly in various parts of the county. Last week we had to arrest two boys, neither of them over 13 years old, for shooting a squirrel on the left of the Forkland highway, two miles from Greenville," Teel said. The game law violators were taken before Juvenile Court Judge D. T. House and the cases ended there. The open season for hunting squirrel begins October 15 and ends January 1.

Sponsor Barnhill Speaks To Credit Women's Club

Club sponsor John T. Barnhill was guest speaker at a meeting of the Greenville Credit Women's Breakfast Club Saturday morning at Olde Towne Inn.

Mr. Barnhill displayed the Sponsor's Trophy, a silver bowl awarded annually on Bosses' Night to the Outstanding Breakfast Clubber of the Year. He commended the club on its excellent record and reputation in the community which he stated was achieved only by the combined results of the activities of each club member.

The speaker stressed the privilege of membership and the duties accompanying this privilege. He asserted the individual club member's regular activities are the important factors to be considered and are not secondary to special activities.

He requested each member to submit a record of their club work for the past year to the sponsors from which they will select the winner of the award for this year. These reports must be in by next Saturday.

Mrs. Frances Cassick gave a brief report on the meeting of the Pitt County TB Association Board of Directors held last Thursday.

Members were invited to attend Bosses' Nights to be held in Winston-Salem on September 25, in Wilson on October 3, and in Rocky Mount on October 10.

President Henrietta Johnson announced that the college would hold another open meeting Thursday night for the purpose of organizing night classes for adults interested in taking special courses. These classes cannot be organized unless enough adults apply for each course and members were urged to attend the meeting if they want to take advantage of this opportunity.

Bosses' Night for the local club will be held October 18 at the Moose Club and committees were appointed for this occasion. Plans will be completed and tickets sold at the next meeting.

Mrs. John Staton was welcomed as a guest.

Since the Sunday School year is beginning, Mrs. Barker gave thoughts on a new beginning and opportunities for the coming year.

The roll was called and the treasurer's report for the past year given. A note of thanks from Janet Morris, the orphan whom the class helps support, was read.

Money was collected for the orphanage and from members who have had birthdays. Mrs. Wilson reported how money was spent for those in need.

The hostesses served nuts, chocolate angel food cake topped with chocolate ripple ice cream.

Freshmen Entertain Parents At Tea

Freshmen women living in residence halls at East Carolina College entertained Sunday afternoon in honor of their parents. Approximately 500 mothers and fathers who visited the campus from many localities in the state were guests at teas in Ragsdale and Cotten halls, dormitories for freshmen women students.

Martha Wilson of Winston-Salem acted as chairman of arrangements in Ragsdale; and Diane Johnson of Asheboro, in Cotten.

The parlors of the two dormitories were decorated attractively for the afternoon entertainments. Ragsdale Hall was colorful with arrangements of Guernsey lilies and other autumn flowers. The East Carolina colors of purple and gold provided the motif for decorations in Cotten Hall.

Storm Coat Leads Many Lives

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor

EVERY GIRL in America, it seems, wants a storm coat this year, if she doesn't already have one.

This versatile knockabout coat has become practically a stormy weather uniform for everyone from college girls to suburban housewives. The favorite color is beige, the favorite style hooded and the favorite silhouette straight and roomy, with no nonsense.

The storm coat is worn when the weather is too threatening for mink, or when the occasion demands the casual look. Lined in alpaca pile, it usually is water-repellent cotton poplin or other close woven fabric on the outside, made to stand the gaff.

The current rage for sports cars has boomed the popularity of the hooded storm coat even further. And the pet style of the season is the coat with a huge convertible collar which can be worn as a hood or in a dozen different ways—for the girl who craves change.

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

"At a recent Bible Institute in Nyamapora, an African mother testified to the great changes Christianity had made in her life," reports Mrs. Ellabeth Griffin, Methodist missionary in Southern Rhodesia. "She recalled, with tears, the fact that tribal customs—destroyed her own children, who having been born twins were regarded as evil and disastrous to the well-being of the group. It was with a face uplifted in joy that she praised God for the gift of light to Africa. It is a later son of this very same woman, who as a government health demonstrator is teaching his people new ways of cleanliness and combating superstition with knowledge of disease. The old and the new are ever present. When the temptation comes to us to be impatient and discouraged at the pace with which we progress, we are reminded of so much change which has taken place, so much of good which is replacing evil."

When 10,000,000 American Protestant church women observe "World Community Day" on Friday, November 2, the subject of their discussion will be on the UN Declaration on Human Rights, and its pronouncement to the world that "All human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights." The Day is to be observed under plans made by the United Church Women, an interdenominational organization of Protestant women of the larger churches of the nation, and affiliated with the National Council of Churches. Mrs. J. Birdsall Calkins, of Alexandria, Va., is chairman of the observance for the year 1956. Implementing the Declaration paragraph that "All human beings . . . should act toward one another in the spirit of brotherhood," the women will make practical offerings for the relief of suffering peoples in all parts of the world. Among other things, the World Community Day offerings will provide: seeds and plows for Greek and Austrian refugees; clinics and midwife classes for Palestinian refugees; anti-tuberculosis drugs to battle this disease in India, Pakistan, and Korea; a million vitamin tablets for Kikuyu children in Kenya, Africa—orphans by the Mau Mau terrorists; clothing, drugs and blankets to flood sufferers in Asia and in America.

N. C. Tourist Trade Was Promoted

North Carolina did not get to be a leading tourist state by sitting back and letting the visitors discover the beauties with which nature has endowed the Tar Heel state or the efforts men have made to make these natural resources more attractive.

North Carolina sold itself as a tourist state by hard-hitting advertising and promotion. What's more it's still selling itself to people in other states in a big way, and the efforts are continuing to pay off.

With all the efforts which are being made by individual communities throughout the state to attract new industry, North Carolina today is still spending four dollars to attract tourists for every one dollar it is spending to attract new industry.

A recent survey made by The Curtis Publishing Company shows that North Carolina this year will spend slightly more than half million dollars to attract tourists, vacationers and new industry. A total of $438,405 will be spent promoting tourist business in

It Should Be Our Goal To Immunize Each Child

Now that a new program of inoculating school children against polio has been instituted by the Pitt County Health Department, it will be up to Pitt County parents to determine the success of the program.

Within the past few months youngsters have been taken to special Salk vaccine clinics by the hundreds by anxious parents who realized the need for having their children immunized. Even though a new polio case has not been reported in the county for several weeks, response to the clinics has continued at a high rate.

Frankly, we think parents in Pitt County have overcome the passive view they had toward the Salk vaccine a year ago. Now, in our opinion, they are anxious for their youngsters to receive the full series of shots. In view of the county's experience during the polio epidemic this summer, this is the only wise course. During the school clinics which will be conducted throughout the county, every pupil in the county schools can receive the full series of three shots. All that is required is a statement from the parents saying the child is to be immunized.

With the cooperation of parents, the vast majority of the county's children can be immunized against dreaded polio before next summer when the polio rate normally would reach its peak again. Without the cooperation of parents, the program cannot be a success.

It should be the goal in Pitt County to have every possible child immunized against polio before next summer. Through the school clinics for school-age children, and the special health department clinics for kids below school age and youngsters from school age to 20, this goal can be accomplished. Its accomplishment, however, depends upon the continued cooperation of the adults of the county.

It Seems A Month Is Long Enough For SBI

As a rule the State Bureau of Investigation is prompt and efficient in wrapping up investigations when called in by agencies of the state. In the investigation of alleged payroll padding which brought about the suspension of two Highway Commission employees of the Second Division the "prompt and efficient" rule seems to have gone out the window.

It has been more than a month now since the two employees under the Greenville office of the Highway Commission were suspended and the announcement of an SBI investigation was made. So far, according to Commissioner Maynard Hicks of Snow Hill and Engineer R. Markham of Greenville, the SBI has not made its report on its investigation.

We are well aware the SBI has a great many cases to investigate and also that it has a relatively few men to assign to such requests as that made by the State Highway Commission. Even so, it seems to us that a month should be ample time for the SBI to investigate the highway case at hand and make its report to the Highway Commission officials.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS ACCOUNTABLE

WE often hear the expression "They were expendable." There is an equally important and realistic truth that needs to be expressed at times, and it's this—"We are accountable."

The "we" means you and me. We are—and every one else that has ever lived has been accountable. Here on earth every day of our lives we are accountable to someone, to something. Obviously we are all accountable to laws of nature and nothing we may try to do can get us away from that responsibility. Individuals and nations are accountable to economic laws. Sometimes when they are violated great tidal waves that men call depressions, revolutions sweep over continents.

Morally and spiritually we are accountable also. Especially are we accountable in these spheres. For bodies will pass away, nations will disappear, even the earth itself will someday be destroyed, but the spirits of men go on forever. "Learn here and now, today," thunders the Divine Voice, "and if you will not do so, then get ready to learn somewhere else. For learn we must. The only thing we may learn is that we were wrong, but that at least we must learn."

The Bible expresses it by saying that "shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ. Learn while it is time to learn—for ultimately we must learn, whether we want to or not.

the state and $106,500 will be spent to attract industry.

While these are considerable figures, they do not represent all the money which will be spent this year by North Carolina to attract industry or tourists. The survey included major organizations in the state which spend money for these purposes, but it did not include numerous smaller organizations and individual communities which likewise have annual outlays for promotional purposes.

The ratio of dollars spent for industrial promotion compared with dollars spent for tourist trade shows that North Carolina still has a long way to go before its industrial promotion and development campaign reaches high gear.

In the realm of tourist trade, North Carolina is the envy of many other states who have not exploited their tourist attractions the way the Tar Heel state has. Still, North Carolina has many attractions which could draw additional tourists if these attractions were promoted.

Conversely, North Carolina looks with envy at other states whose industrial development programs have moved ahead faster than ours. Perhaps the secret lies in the fact that North Carolina has and still is emphasizing its tourist attractions and allowing its industrial development program to take a back seat.

Who Will Bear The Big School Burden?

By LYNN NISBET

WHOSE JOB? — John A. Pritchett, finance chairman of the State Board of Education, noted in connection with presentation of the public school budget that his board was not asking for any State money this year for school buildings. He gave two main reasons for the omission. First, all of the $100 million derived from 1949 and 1953 bond issues has not been spent and the remainder will take care of immediate and emergency cases for the next two years. Secondly, he said with a broad grin that in view of the $331,716,246 operating budget proposed, he and his colleagues did not think the General Assembly would appropriate building money even if requested.

He warned, however, that it is the consensus of his board that the State must within the next few years substantially increase aid to counties in providing school buildings.

A few minutes later, in the course of general comment, Governor Hodges observed that local units must assume a larger share of the total school burden, because the State is rapidly approaching the saturation point in its capacity to provide school funds.

The conflict between these two points of view poses two questions, answers are vital for continuance of the public schools.

Has North Carolina developed an educational program that is beyond the financial capacity of the people to continue? Statistical showing that this state ranks far down the list in teacher salaries, per pupil spending for boys and girls, and in number and percentage of high school graduates going on to college, would seem to prove that the program is not too elaborate or fanciful.

The second question, presently of greater concern, is where main responsibility rests for paying the school bills. For a few years at least the Federal government can be counted out. So the immediate problem is equitable distribution of the load between the State and local tax units.

After studying the school financing problem the Board of Education suggests the State should carry an even larger share than now. Looking at the total demands upon State revenue, coupled with equally impressive demands for reduced deficits in some tax schedules, Governor Hodges thinks the local units must take over larger part of the load.

The fact is, despite the oft repeated statement that the State supports the school system, local units all along have borne the major part of the burden, when business is counted in.

TAX LOAD — Figures are not at hand for every county and every year, but the better part of a day spent by your reporter in searching legislative acts and tax levies discloses these pertinent illustrations:

Counting biennial appropriations by the General Assembly for the nine months school year and debt service on school building bonds, about 61 cents of every dollar collected for the State general fund goes to public schools.

The ad valorem tax rate in Wake county outside of Raleigh is $1.05, of which 62 cents is for public schools. For Raleigh township there is an extra 32 cents school tax supplement, making the rate $1.37 of which 94 cent or 68.6 per cent goes for public schools.

Information obtained from the State Board of Education shows that 60 of the 74 city school administrative units have voted special school supplements; four counties including city units have voted extra money, and four counties excluding city units have also voted special school supplements. Then there are 42 districts located in 12 counties which have voted special taxes for maintaining schools above the state minimum level.

HISTORY — Prior to 1901 almost the whole burden for public schools rested on the county. That year under leadership of Charles B. Aycock the General Assembly appropriated the magnificent sum of $100,000. That is a far cry from the almost one million a day proposed for 1959. State aid increased through the years until in 1919 the amount was $3,400,000. The post war depression dropped that to about a million in 1921, and again there was a consistent rise until the 1931 session took the first real forward step in assuming State obligation and appropriated a little over $16 million.

Meantime the State Equalization Board had been set up in 1927 to distribute State funds on more equitable basis, regardless of local tax rates. The equalization board idea proved unworkable with the stupendous sums of $16 to $20 million available, and in 1953 it was succeeded by the State School Commission, to which was transferred all the duties for operating the public schools not required to be performed by the constitutional State Board of Education, composed of the Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor, Treasurer and Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The constitution was amended in 1942 and again in 1944 to set up the present Board of Education, which assumed all the duties of public school management. In 1943 that board had $30 million to spend. Last year it spent $126 million State money for operations, asks $164 million for next year and $168 million for the following term. Besides this operating fund the board has administered $100 million in State aid for buildings since 1949.

Huge as this sum is, as accumulated over the years, the fact is that when full support prior to the 1920's is credited to the counties, and investment in buildings provided out of local bond and tax money, plus the supplies borne the major part of the costs for operation, are all counted the local communities have borne the major part of the total load.

Other Editors Are Saying... Southern Railway Looks Ahead

(Asheville Times)

We have always had a proprietary feeling for the Southern Railway—and for good reason: it's the only railroad we in Asheville have. Therefore through the years, this newspaper has enjoyed a sort of family tie with the Southern and has felt free to praise or cuss or to suffer with it in misfortune and rejoice with it in happier times.

Just now, the Southern is embarking on two projects that show the corporation is very much alive. Both would expand the railroad's interests—in great contrast to many recent railroad moves which have been in the line of retrenchment.

The Southern proposes: 1. To purchase the Atlantic and East Carolina Railroad which would give it a long wished-for route from the mountains to the North Carolina coast. This project isn't entirely new. Previously the Southern asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to acquire both the A&EC and the U. S. Marine Corps Railroad which connects the A&EC at Havelock with Camp Lejeune. The ICC turned this down. Now under the urging of Gov. Hodges, the Southern has asked permission to get the A&EC by itself, the original application. The Atlantic Coast Line, which has interests in the neighborhood, fought the application and the ICC found that the acquisition of the two lines would not be in the public interest.

2. The Southern and the Seaboard Air Line have proposed to acquire joint control of the Florida East Coast Railway Company—long in bankruptcy and long the object of controversial reorganization plans. Two rivals in the reorganization deal have been Atlantic Coast Line, a stockholder, and St. Joe Paper Company in Jacksonville, major bondholder.

ACL, which its plan, would absorb the properties of FEC. Southern and Seaboard, under a plan sponsored by these two roads and St. Joe, would keep the Florida East Coast as a separately-operated enterprise. Both deals depend on the will of the ICC, an organization born years ago to curb the greed of the railroads in the days when sheep power and ruthlessness ruled, an organization which the railroads now claim is out of date and which has failed to modify its regulations as other carriers posed more and more threats to the railroads' existence.

We wish the Southern (our railroad) well in its efforts and we still reserve the right to cuss it.

Hey, Back Up—

by DON SCHLIENZ

There'll Be Hot Time Tonight

There's always something new under the sun. This time it's a pepper-eating contest.

In New Iberia (Louisiana) today some hardy souls are feeding their faces with hot peppers with an eye to World Championship honors. The New Iberia incendiary display is only a warm-up (if you'll pardon a pun) planned for October 6.

Persepiration will be the order of the day, with six heats (I did it again) before the winner is recognized.

As in all legitimate contests, there's a point system which involves the number of peppers eaten and points deducted for grimacing, undue perspiration, watering eyes, gasping, and lolling.

The human volcanos are expected to feast on such succulent offerings as Anaheim chilis, sizzle their way through Louisiana sports, green tabasco, red cayenne, green torrido and the fiery jalapeno.

After this repast, contestants are given one minute of seething contemplation before deciding whether they would like to quench their thirst with tortillas, beer or black coffee.

Any gourmet who disintegrates through spontaneous combustion is automatically eliminated.

This affair is being billed as a "world" title affair, but I know for sure there are some very hot pepper eaters in south Texas who cannot attend; so the "world" championship angle is just a little bit of stretching for fired-up imaginations.

And there's talk, too, that Mexico should have some sort of representation at a pepper-eating event where a title is at stake. But I will not quibble.

New Iberia represents the hot pepper growing capital of these United States, and consequently has given rise to a breed of asbestos-lined habitants. Whoever wins the crown should not have it disputed by one who requires a quart of water with a bowl of chili.

Tonight, shortly after sundown, I'll suggest keeping an eye on the horizon southwest of Greenville. There should be a sort of a glow over Louisiana-way.

Meet The New Bookkeeper

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — An interesting thing happened to my wife last week.

"Uncle Sam" has asked me and a friend of mine to come in tomorrow and explain our 1952 and 1953 income tax returns," said said.

"That so?" I asked. "Who's the friend?"

"You," said Frances sweetly. "You'll have to go by yourself." I told her, "I'm awfully busy tomorrow. Couldn't possibly go."

"Maybe you'd rather go to Alcatraz," said Frances. I suddenly decided I could make it after all.

Hundreds of thousands of Americans are being called in now to defend their back income tax returns. Word has been spread around that the experience is no worse than a bad cold, and that you aren't really a social success until it happens to you.

Since you might be next, maybe you'd like a little rundown on what to expect.

Warned by the direful tales of friends who had survived the tax man's inquisition, we spent a sleepless night going through desk and dresser drawers looking for old financial records. We found my grade school diploma class of 1924, our marriage diploma class of 1937, a picture of me in my first long pants, and a newspaper clipping predicting Al London would beat F.D.R. hands down.

But all that was left of 1952 and 1953 was a handful of scattered checks. They showed we had spent a lot of money but didn't say what for—except a check for $15 on which Frances had, rather meekly I thought, scribbled: "For Mr. Bigshot's poker lesson."

Red-eyed from lack of sleep we showed up at the local office of the Internal Revenue Service. In a long room sat 75 agents at desks surrounded by taxpayers. No indignant taxpayers. Just loss-looking, red-eyed taxpayers, sleepless for the same reason we were.

We drew a handsome, soft-spoken young agent any mother would be glad to have as a son—that is, if she didn't have to appear before him as a taxpayer. He put us at ease at once.

"Our job isn't to collect more money from you," he said genially. "It's to determine that you have paid the exact tax. We often refund money."

Instead of a winter vacation in Florida I began to dream of a trip to Europe.

That bright vision faded quickly as the agent began checking our returns, item for item, demanding specific proof for each deduction. The canceled checks I handed him feebly turned out to be only circumstantial evidence.

"Not detailed enough," he said crisply. "That's the biggest mistake taxpayers make—failing to keep adequate records."

"Salesmen seem to be the worst, but writers—"

He shook his head. "Can I plead temporary insanity?" I inquired humbly. "No," said the agent, "but from now on you'd better keep a diary and write down your travel and other expenses as you go. And be specific. That's the best tip I can give you."

The agent scribbled and frowned, then frowned and scribbled, finally said, "The amount comes to—" and he named a figure that sounded like the national debt, give or take a few decimal points.

"You owe us?" I asked, at the rope's end of optimism. "No, it's what you still owe, including interest at 6 per cent," he said, holding out a piece of paper. "Of course, you don't have to accept this as final. You have the right to appeal."

I had a brief mental image of myself standing under a spotlight with the nine members of the U. S. Supreme Court staring down at me.

"Gimme the paper," I said. "I'll sign."

Well, Frances and I aren't going to winter in Alcatraz. On the other hand, it doesn't look like we're going to vacation in Florida either, unless we go on the installment plan.

One thing more: Maybe you've heard a lot of guys hollering, "The government isn't going to make a bookkeeper out of me." Take it from me, they are all liars. I don't know how many bookkeepers there were in America last week, but this week there is one more. Me.

Britain To Promote Bond Prize

By ELMER ROESSNER

Does a little fellow ever side up to you and ask if you want to buy a ticket in the Irish Sweepstakes?

One of these days he may edge in to ask if you want to buy a British bond.

"You can win up to $2,800, guv'nor," he may say. "Maybe more, because you get a chance every month. And you can't lose because if you don't cop a prize you can always get your money back."

The British Government is promoting just such a proposition. On November 1, it will put its new Premium Savings Bonds on sale.

Bonds cost one pound ($2.80) each. They will be registered in the name of each holder when bought. No person may hold more than 500.

PRIZES, NOT INTEREST

The government will pay 4 per cent a year on the total invested. Instead of paying it in interest, it will award it in prizes. There will be drawings each month and a winning bond will have chances in future drawings. Thus, a single bond theoretically may win 12 prizes a year. Theoretically, ehum.

For every 250,000 pounds in bonds sold, the government will put up 10,000 pounds a year. For every 10,000 pounds in prize money, there will be one prize of 1,000 pounds, two of 500, four of 250, ten of 100, twenty of 50 and two hundred of 25. Translated into Stars-and-Stripes money, that means for every $700,000 in bonds sold, each year there will be $28,000 in prizes, consisting of one prize of $2,800, two of $1,400, four of $700, ten of $280, twenty of $140 and two hundred of $70.

Bonds must be held six months before becoming eligible for prizes, so the first drawing won't be before June, 1957. Winnings won't be hit by British income taxes; bonds may be cashed at face value at any time.

Under British law, the bonds are not lottery tickets but "registered bonds."

FOR YANK 'INVESTORS'?

It is reported British diplomats have quietly asked the American Attorney General and Postmaster General if floating these bonds here would be regarded as violating American laws.

If the Attorney General and Postmaster General decide these bonds are lottery tickets on this side of the water, their action will be embarrassing and harmful to the British. The British are our friends and, goodness knows, they are having enough other troubles.

But if they decide the bonds are securities and not lottery tickets, can't you see what fun we'll have? Everybody can buy bonds, have chances for small, British-size fortunes, and still get their money back.

In fact, Queen Elizabeth's government is offering gamblers the fairest run for the money they ever had.

In craps, blackjack, roulette and other gambling-joint games—when run honestly—the odds give the house around 6 per cent of the amount risked. In legal parimutuels, the state and track takes are higher, up to around 14 per cent. In the numbers game and in baseball, and football pools and in most big cities, the "bank" and its agents take 40 per cent. In bingo, churches sometimes take up to 60 per cent. But the British government will take no edge, no bite, no breakage. No protection money, either. Of the money risked (the potential interest) 100 per cent goes to those who risk it.

If sanctioned for Americans, these bonds will permit even the poorest to indulge in a bit of risk, dream of a new car, or have something to talk about. They'll make wonderful premiums and a new kind of prize for quiz shows.

On the business side, American dollars invested in these bonds will give the British government added buying power in America. We can increase our own property as we help an ally.

Eisenhower May Try To Set Precedent

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower may try to set a binding and historic precedent in filling the Sherman Minton vacancy on the Supreme Court. He has indicated that he will be guided by the bill introduced at the recent session by Senator George A. Smathers of Florida.

The Florida Senator's measure provides that all future appointments to the Supreme Court must have had at least five years of service on a lower Federal bench, or on the highest court of a state. As of today, a man (or woman) may be named to the highest judicial body without a law degree or legal training. Although Senator Smathers did not refer to the Supreme Court's antidesegregation decision, it was obviously a partial inspiration of his action. He expressed the opinion that the tribunal's performance would have been better in recent years, if his proposed reform had been in effect. Southern lawyers have frequently charged that the controversial opinion was based on social and ideological considerations rather than on judicial or even constitutional grounds. SENATOR SMATHERS' PROPOSAL The Republicans may try to make political capital out of Senator Smathers' suggestion, even though he himself may try to implement it without benefit of compulsory legislation. In view of the South's bitter reaction to the desegregation mandate, and the Smathers effort, GOP orators need only to point out that the Florida member is chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign committee.

Smathers actually gave the Republicans no cause for such a political interpretation, however. He explained that he "as simply trying to improve the caliber of the men who are the nation's ultimate lawgivers. His move won general acclaim on both sides of the Senate aisle. "DIFFICULTIES" OF TODAY "My proposal," he said, "might be compared somewhat to the farm system in baseball. I may compare it with the farm system such as the New York Yankees employ to bring up new players. I dislike to make such a comparison, but it is somewhat apropos. Men appointed to the Supreme Court need previous judicial experience so that they know what their function are, and trained to perform their duties. . . .

"There are some 600 well qualified jurists who are today active in these particular fields. I cannot but think that, if we had been appointing men to the Supreme Court for a long period of time from that category, we would probably not have some of the difficulties we have today. We would probably have a more efficient Supreme Court thus far. . . .

amples on how quickly and effectively the "Roosevelt revolution" has been modified by conservative attitudes and appointments, and without the need of statutory action.

Ike has altered the trend to a great extent by naming "moderates" to the Cabinet, and to the array of independent alphabetical agencies created or stacked by F.D.R. and Truman—the FCC, FTC, SEC, REA, PHA, etc. Now, if he caps his sitting Judges instead of professors (Frankfurter and Douglas), politicians (Black, Reed and Warren) and cronies (Clark and Burton), Eisenhower may begin a new era at Washington. And the New Dealers will mourn, as they recall one of F.D.R.'s famous sayings, to wit: "My Congress will pass my New Deal laws. And my Supreme Court will approve them, embedding them so deep in our social, economic and political system that they cannot be torn out by succeeding reactionary Administrations."

Leisurely Trade By Bookstall Keepers

By DAVID MASON
PARIS (AP) — Here, as they have for centuries, bookstall keepers ply what is probably one of the most peaceful, picturesque and leisurely trades that can be found.

The bookstall operators, who set up shop along the tree-lined banks of the Seine, are as independent as Frenchmen come. They open their "business-out-of-a-box" when and if they like. They relax in the shade while their customers browse. And if it rains, they drop across the street for a quiet cup of coffee or an aperitif.

BROWSING is the order of the day in the Parisian bookstalls along the banks of the Seine near the Cathedral of Notre Dame.

"And so," Grandfather read... "they lived happily ever after." "That was a nice story, Grandpa," said Kathy. "Please read us another." "Yes, do!" echoed her brother, Bobby. "One with a happy ending!" Grandfather turned the page and began once more to read aloud. When he finished and the youngsters ran outside to play, he reflected for a moment that real life stories can have happy endings, too. The relationship between Grandfather and our Trust Department is a close one. It began some years ago when he and his attorney first visited us. Today Grandfather's estate is as he wants it, and the responsibility is in capable hands. He has set up a Trust under his Will, with the bank as Trustee, to provide for his wife as long as she lives. And he has arranged for his son to carry on the business. Yes, Grandfather's story will have a happy ending... because he has taken time to plan his family's future with his attorney and our Trust Officer. There is a peace of mind that comes when your estate is planned in the best interests of you and your family. We cordially invite you to visit our Trust Department with your attorney.

Suspected Bank Robber And Part Of Loot Caught

GREENSBORO (AP) — Woodard Peyton Henderson, 48, charged with $8,600 robbery of the Planters Bank of Trenton, Ky., remained in jail here today awaiting removal to Kentucky.

The FBI announced Henderson's arrest here yesterday and said $3,180 of the loot taken from the bank Sept. 20 was recovered, some of the money still in the original bank wrappers.

Henderson, who the FBI said was released conditionally from the federal prison at Atlanta Aug. 13, had vowed he would "kill or be killed before I go back to prison."

But Ray Abbaticchio, special agent in charge of the Charlotte Division FBI office, said Henderson was given no chance to carry out his threat when arrested.

In addition to the money, Abbaticchio said a loaded P38 pistol of the type used in the holdup was found in Henderson's possession.

Henderson was arraigned before U.S. Commissioner L. Herbin Jr. last night. He waived a removal hearing. He failed to meet the $25,000 bond and was being held for Kentucky authorities.

Abbaticchio said Henderson and his brother, Albert, also have been charged with the armed robbery of a grocery store at Hopkinsville, Ky., Sept. 6.

Albert was captured following a gun battle in which a Kentucky highway patrolman and a deputy sheriff were wounded. Woodard escaped, vowing then he would "kill or be killed" before going back to prison.

Henderson was serving a 10-year sentence for robbery of a bank at Orlina, Tenn., Nov. 5, 1949. The FBI agent said $4,333.50 was taken.

Henderson, of Robertson County, Tenn., was arrested on his 48th birthday in a residence on the outskirts of Greensboro.

The commission announced yesterday that on that date the Croatan Sound crossings between Manns Harbor and Roanoke Island will be cut from 30 to 11 round trips daily.

The Alligator River ferry between Sunday Point and East Lake will make nine round trips between 5:45 a.m. and 6 p.m. while the Oregon Inlet Ferry will continue to have 23 departures at half hour intervals from each side.

SBI Completes Lengthy Report Of SHP Probe

RALEIGH (AP) — The SBI has compiled a 123-page report in its investigation of charges against the Highway Patrol's Troop D by a fired patrolman.

SBI Director James W. Powell, who declined to comment on the report, said he may turn it over to Motor Vehicles Commissioner Edward Scheidt today.

Powell said two SBI agents worked for five weeks in compiling the report. They interviewed about 100 persons, most of them patrolmen or former patrolmen.

Scheidt requested the probe following charges made by Patrolman E. A. Calloway.

Scheidt fired Calloway when he failed to back up his charges about the operations of Troop D, which has headquarters in Salisbury, with specific details.

Powell commented the reports contents could "best be evaluated by Mr. Scheidt."

RALEIGH (AP)—Bids were opened on 14 major road projects by the State Highway Commission today.

One of the projects calls for a new bridge over the Catawba River in relocating U.S. 70 and U.S. 64 between Claremont and Statesville.

Another calls for 6.2 miles of paving a second lane of U.S. 70 from James City to Cherry Point.

Low bids on the projects, which involve 78 1/2 miles of road improvements in 12 counties, will be reviewed by the highway commissioners Friday.

Hodges Stresses Tax Changes

GREENSBORO (AP)—North Carolina needs "a more effective tax structure," Gov. Hodges told a group of young bankers yesterday.

"Despite divergent views on what should be done," he declared, "most everyone agrees now that some changes should be made" in the tax structure.

The governor also told the young bankers division of the N. C. Bankers Assn. that the state's 38 million dollar surplus "begins to look smaller and smaller in the light of mounting" budget requests.

Braves Slipped Back Onto Top On Dodger Loss

By ED WILKS The Associated Press Cincinnati's Redlegs, staying alive with a six-game winning streak in the National League race, got one last chance to keep their foot in the pennant door today. All they had to do was beat Milwaukee.

It was no breather either for the Braves, who slipped back into first place by three percentage points when Pittsburgh jolted Brooklyn back to second 6-5 last night.

In fact, none of the contenders can take another loss and look healthy. But while a victory won't guarantee anything for the Redlegs, they'll be dead without it.

After today, the Redlegs have only two games (at Chicago). They are two games behind the Braves and Dodgers in the lost column.

The Brooklyn-Pittsburgh game, the last road game for the Dodgers who hustle back to Ebbets Field for the opener of a two-game set with Philadelphia tonight, was the only contest scheduled in the NL yesterday.

In the American, Baltimore whacked New York's pennant-winning Yankees 5-4, and Chicago out-hammered Detroit 14-11 on a two-game schedule.

Brooklyn held a 900 edge in the pennant chase for awhile last night after mopping up an 8-3 victory that had been placed on the shelf by curfew Sunday with the Brooks at bat in the ninth inning.

A one-two-three job by right-hander Clem Labine made it an official game and nailed Don Newcombe's 26th victory prior to the regularly scheduled game last night, but Clem couldn't make it as a starter in the afterpiece.

The Dodgers gave him a 5-0 lead in the first inning against Bob Friend, but the pesky Pirates bounced back with three in the bottom half of the frame.

Frank Thomas did the big damage for the Bucs, driving in three runs with his 24th homer and three singles—one of which drove home the clincher in the eighth after Gil Hodges had poled his 31st home run in Brooklyn's eighth with a man on to the 5-5.

Reliever Roger Craig was the Brooklyn loser while Friend stuck it out for his 17th victory.

Bill Skowron hit two home runs for a 3-1 Yankee lead, but 18-game winner Johnny Kucks couldn't hold it. Tito Francona's two-run double in the eighth gave it to the Orioles.

Chicago and Detroit swung for 26 hits, seven of them homers. The White Sox, who blew an 11-0 lead, rapped 22 hits, including two home runs by Sherm Lollar and one by Larry Doby. Ray Boone walloped two homers for the Tigers, Charlie Maxwell smacked a grand-slammer and Red Wilson hit one with one aboard.

The 11 home runs for the day gave the major leagues a one-season home run record. The two leagues now have walloped 2,232 for the year, cracking the mark of 2,224 set in 1955.

Virginia Back Sets ACC Mark

GREENSBORO (AP) — A University of Virginia fullback from Abadan, Iran, is the new record holder for single-game rushing in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

He edged Wake Forest's Bill Barnes Saturday.

Barnes picked up another new ACC mark—the most points in a single game.

The Wake Forest fullback, who gained 177 yards in eight carries against William and Mary, scored twice and kicked two extra points for a total of 20 points, two more than the ACC single-game record of 18 shared by six players.

Barnes' 177-yard rushing total also bettered the ACC record of 173 set by Clemmons halfback John Wells last year.

Jim Bakhtiar, however, posted a 21-yard scrimmage rushing total against Virginia Military Institute to claim the title.

Jackson, Baker To Clash In TV Bout

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson and big Bob Baker, bidding for a crack at the heavyweight title, clash tomorrow night in a 12-round nationally televised outdoor bout at Forbes Field.

The man who comes out on top is almost a sure bet for a shot at the winner of the agreed-upon bout still unsigned title fight between Light-heavyweight Champ Archie Moore and young Floy Patterson. Jackson is ranked No. 3 and Baker No. 4.

Jackson, the tireless but erratic 25-year-old New Yorker, won a split decision over Baker in their first meeting Feb. 3 in a 10-rounder at New York. Two officials gave that one to Jackson 5-4-1 and the third voted it a draw.

After beating Baker, Jackson knocked out Johnny Williams in four rounds but then lost to Patterson in an elimination contest June 8 for the right to meet Moore. In his most recent outing, May 9th, Baker soundly whipped Johnny Holman in a 10-rounder at Miami Beach.

Baker's loss to Jackson was his first in 14 bouts. He hadn't drop-

There's More Than Meets The Eye ...

MODERN COACHING—There's more than meets the eye in coaching a modern football team. Shown above is a modern device that today's college coaches find almost a necessity: the walkie-talkie telephone. East Carolina's Earl Smith keeps in contact with a spotter on the other end of the wire, located high over the press box in College Stadium, who calls down suggestions for improving Pirate play. Due to his better position, the spotter can spot enemy weaknesses, call successful plays.

Two More Pirate Gridders Out Of Action By Injuries

Charlie Smith, Dick Monds On Injured Roster

Coach Jack Boone disclosed today that two more Pirates bit the dust in last week's Stetson game, via the injury route.

Charlie Smith, who had worked his way into a starting tackle slot against Stetson, and Dick Monds, a regular guard, joined four other first stringers on the injured roster.

Smith, a 230 pounder, suffered a sprained ankle and Monds came out of the game with a sprained knee. Both boys will be out of action indefinitely and will not see duty against Catawba, here, next Saturday.

The two linemen join a list headed by big Ed Emory and Waverly Chesson, who will not see action in the near future due to injuries. Jerry Brooks, a starting tackle in the opening game, is also on the hurt roster.

Boone said today that "we may be getting Bucky Dennis back for the Catawba game." Dennis, a 225 pound freshman guard, who played outstanding ball in the Pirate opener, suffered a shoulder trouble and has been out of commission for the past three weeks.

Boone continued, "We're planning to do a lot of shifting in our line. We'll have to. Some of our centers, Bubba Mathews and Lynn Barnett, will probably be changed to guards and we've been thinking about making end Joe Guess a guard or tackle."

As things stand now, only one of the four men who started the season as first string guards and tackles, is still in the lineup—and he is only seeing part time duty at tackle. Ray (Bull) Overton, senior tackle, has been sharing his position with freshman Larry Howell and has been working primarily on defense.

Boone said that his backfield was still in good shape, except for Dick Cherry, who has had to see only limited time in drills due to illness in his family, at Washington.

Seek Population Rise For Oyster

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Biologists of the Marine Department are working to build up the population of oyster beds off the Mexican coast.

Yield of the beds had been declining. Among other reasons, officials say, has been fishing in off seasons, which reduced the number of reproducers.

Cat Flew Home, Owner Sailed

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Capt. Frank P. Ringenback Jr.'s cat got home from Turkey before he did. His tour of duty ended, Ringenback paid $49.45 plane fare for his pet because he didn't want the cat to be seasick on an ocean vessel.

The Army wasn't so considerate of the captain. He came back by boat.

Oklahoma In First

The opinions of football prognosticators, like those of ardent alumni, often are influenced sharply by victories and defeats. Thus the first Associated Press football ranking poll shows the regular season began since a couple of rather remarkable changes.

Two highly rated teams, Notre Dame and Maryland, are missing from the first 10 after opening game defeats by Southern Methodist and Syracuse, who gained places in the top group.

Two others, one a winner and one which hasn't yet played its opening game, dropped into the second division as enthusiasm for a couple of winners was reflected, in the ballots of sports writers and broadcasters.

The experts, 150 strong, stuck by their preseason poll prediction by listing Oklahoma's Sooners as the No. 1 team. Oklahoma doesn't open its season until next Saturday, when it plays North Carolina.

The top 10 with first-place votes in parentheses:

1. Oklahoma (91) 1,150
2. Georgia Tech (12) 946
3. Michigan State (9) 914
4. Texas Christian (4) 792
5. SMU (10) 627
6. USC (12) 591
7. Syracuse (4) 469
8. Ohio State 458
9. Mississippi 363
10. Pittsburgh (2) 296

Phants Preparing For Washington

After dropping a stunning 32-13 Northeastern Conference game here, Friday night, to Kingston, Greenville high school is back at the old job of preparing for the next opponent. This time, it happens to be Washington, the top-ranked team in the loop.

At the present time, the G-Men have a 1-1 circuit slate, having posted a win over Jacksonville earlier. In a non-conference affair that opened their season, they were trounced soundly by a visiting AAA Goldsboro team.

Washington, on the other hand, has one win and one tie in conference play thus far. In their opener, against second-ranked New Bern, the Pam-Pack fought to a 0-0 tie in a tight defensive battle.

Last week, the Washington crew crushed Elizabeth City by a 20-6 score, living up to their expected strength.

Roanoke Rapids, at the same time, was being taken care of by New Bern. Therefore, at present, Kingston seems to have the best record in the loop, one win and no losses; New Bern and Washington are second with a win and a tie; Greenville is next with a win and a loss; Elizabeth City and Roanoke Rapids fall into last place with only a loss each.

Pack Has Strength Washington demonstrated their power against Elizabeth City last week, highlighted by the running of big Fritz Tanner and the ball-handling of quarterback Steve Cochran. Bartow Houston, a halfback, was also one of the big guns in the running attack.

Tanner scored twice against the Yellow Jackets and toed the extra points. Houston scored once and turned in a fine exhibition of passing at times. Cochran directed the club well.

In the line, Washington play was sparked by George Kelly, Graham Singleton, Skybo Langley, Carl Jones and Billy Clegg.

Greenville, who was merely outplayed by the hard-charging Grainger high school gridders last week, are expected to undergo more drill in both defensive tackling and offensive ground play this week. Coach Lewis has a possible passing attack at his disposal, with quarterback Mack Roebuck's passing arm and two excellent ends, Edwin Wilkerson and Billy Cox. His running strength is rated potentially one of the best in the conference with Billy Semons, Jimmy Kelly, Robb Wilcox and Robert Howell as backs. His line, which has played well in spots, is capable of good football.

Lewis' job is to whip the Phantoms back into playing shape for the big contest at Washington this week, to put together the potential strength that downed Jacksonville so handily, and make it able to apply in the coming game.

As things stand now, it is generally agreed that the Pam-Pack is a three-touchdown favorite.

"I have to give the Italians the edge in doubles, Sirola and Pietrangeli have beaten Vic Seixas and Ham Richardson in doubles (at Wimbledon) and they look capable of doing it again. They serve hard, return service well, move fast and do a fine job up at the net.

Of course, we have to give Seixas and Richardson the edge over the boys in singles because of their experience, particularly on grass. But we'd better not take the Italians lightly. Sirola and Pietrangeli have strong games and play good tactical tennis. They could win if they get hot and we have the slightest let-down.

Cavriani, the Italian captain, said: "My boys are in the best they've had just enough tennis, not too much — to make them eager."

Till Talbert, the U.S. captain who returned yesterday from the Pacific Southwest Tournament at Los Angeles, said:

"We know we've got a match on our hands, but we're ready for it. Seixas and Richardson are tournament-toughened and the play on the hard courts at Los Angeles puts them in good shape for grass."

ATLANTA (AP) — Eleven Georgia Tech football players suffering with food poisoning are expected to be available for duty against Southern Methodist at Dallas Saturday night.

Dr. Lamont Henry, team physician, said last night the players apparently were made ill by fruit juice they drank while returning to Atlanta from Lexington, Ky., Saturday night. They began to complain of feeling ill Sunday.

Eight were hospitalized at the school infirmary. Three others were restricted to their rooms.

The 11st includes halfback George Volkert, who raced 54 yards for a touchdown in Georgia Tech's 14-6 opening game victory over Kentucky, and Toppo Vann, who also started against Kentucky.

The doctor said all "should bounce back quickly."

Return Of Seized German And Jap Assets Debated

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — A lot of money and a lot of people are involved in the so far unsuccessful effort to return war-seized property in full to the original German and Japanese owners.

This has been tried in one Congress after another. The try will be made again next year.

The Eisenhower administration is opposed to the full return of the seized property. William Rogers, deputy attorney general, said such a plan would "remove the burden of compensating the former German owners from the shoulders of the German taxpayer and place it on the shoulders of the American taxpayer."

Total value of the foreign property — owned by individuals and corporations and seized by this government during the war — is about 550 million dollars. Some of it this government still holds, and

Some it sold.

What it sold — through the Office of Alien Property (OAP) — amounts to around 350 million dollars. Most of this money went to pay off the claims of Americans who suffered in German and Japanese prisoner-of-war camps.

OAP wants to sell off the remaining 200 millions of seized assets. This money could be used to pay off the claims of Americans whose property was destroyed in wartime Germany. They have received no payment yet.

Under a bill sponsored by Sen. Olin Johnston (D-SC), and approved this year by the Senate Judiciary Committee, not only the 350 millions in assets already sold but the 200 millions still to be sold would be paid back to the German and Japanese owners.

Johnston says he is interested in the principle of fair play, the sacredness of private property, and good foreign relations. That's precisely much the explanation given by other members of Congress who have sponsored similar bills.

The full-return sponsors reason this way: West Germany has agreed to pay back over 30 years one billion dollars on the 3½-billion-dollar Marshall Plan loan this country made Germany. The United States has canceled out the rest of the loan.

This billion dollars could be used to pay off on the 550 millions in seized assets, with 450 millions left over. If the seized property wasn't paid for, the Treasury would have the billion dollars plus whatever was left over after paying off American war claims from the 550 millions in seized property.

President Eisenhower favors paying back the original German and Japanese owners for their seized and sold property up to a limit of $10,000. But this would be for individuals only, not for corporations seized.

The government estimates this $10,000-per-person limit would fully cover 90 per cent of the individuals whose property was seized and would cost no more than 60 million dollars.

Biggest plum of all is the General Aniline & Film Corp. — originally part of the German I. G. Farben cartel — which was worth about 35 million dollars when the government seized it.

The government holds 97 per cent of its stock and names the board of directors — Americans — who run it like any other corporation. Under the guidance of this board the property now is worth about 105 millions.

Farben transferred the corporation to a Swiss outfit, E. G. Chemie, before its seizure. Chemie, being Swiss, claims it was a neutral in the war and therefore the American government has no right to its property. It's fighting in court to get it back. The American government argues Chemie is a front for the German owners.

British Starlet Relates Hazards Of Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The hazards of Hollywood are herein related by Valerie French, our latest bundle from Britain.

Valerie is an amiable beauty to whom things just seem to happen. Sometimes nice things, such as being discovered by Columbia Pictures.

Her previous experience had been the stage, with only a few forays at films.

She was tested for the role of Ava Gardner's sister in "Bhowani Junction." Although she lost the role, Columbia saw the test and beckoned. "The next thing I knew I was flying over the North Pole to Hollywood," she said.

"That's when things started happening to her. Like being quartered for five months at the Studio Club, which wasn't her idea of glamorous living.

"It is an arm of the YWCA," she explained. "The girls would troop down to breakfast in robes, all of us looking perfectly frightful. There was a little blackboard that told us we were allowed 30 points for breakfast. An egg was five points, a half grapefruit five, etc."

She finally escaped to her own place in Laurel Canyon, but found living hazardous there. The basement was flooded by an unknown source. Mountain lions prowled in the distance. A brush fire burned nearby. She turned over in a car. And neighbors reported flying saucers nearby — no kidding.

Speaking of flying saucers brings us to her film career. Her last two pictures have been science fiction films. And before that she played an American girl in "Jubal." She is a bit confused as from Britain.

Highest Level Of Flue-Cured Leaf To Be Exported Since Boom In '46

RALEIGH—Some 552 million pounds of flue-cured tobacco were exported from the United States during the 1955-56 marketing year ended June 30, 1956, it has been reported by Tobacco Associates, Inc. in the organization's July-September report.

"This is the highest level of flue-cured leaf to be exported since 1946," the report said, adding "that year about the same amount of tobacco was exported to replenish war-depleted stocks in Western Europe."

"As was true in 1946," the report continued "a large part of last year's increased exports went to build up stocks which are still below prewar levels in most foreign countries."

Exports were up considerably to the United Kingdom, Western Germany, and Belgium-Luxembourg, the report said. Other countries showing increased exports compared to a year earlier included Denmark, Finland, Thailand, Indonesia, Japan, Australia, Egypt, Austria, Spain, and French Indochina.

The report pointed out that "part of these increases" is the result of Public Law 480 shipments to such countries as the U. K., Finland, Thailand, Spain and Japan. "Some 66 million pounds, farm sales weight, or about 11 per cent of last year's export sales, were shipped under the P. L. 480 Program," the report said.

The report said that Korea, as a result of assistance under the program, received the first U. S. leaf since the late 1930's.

Countries purchasing less tobacco than a year earlier included Sweden, Ireland, Portugal, and the Philippines.

The report also pointed out that "though exports have increased, domestic consumption has decreased. Total domestic consumption during the marketing year 1955-56 was about 100 million pounds greater than for last year."

In regard to U. S. stocks, the report had this to say: "Between July 1, 1951, stock of flue-cured tobacco held in the United States have increased 700 million pounds, farm sales weight. This increase has taken place, even though the acreage has been reduced, because total production has exceeded total disappearance by a substantial amount for each of these years. Although disappearance reached an all-time high of 1,281 million pounds for the year ended June 30, 1956, stocks were still higher than a year earlier by 202 million pounds because of the record crop of 1,483 million pounds harvested in 1955."

Even though flue-cured acreage has been reduced, the report said, production has remained high because per acre yields have continued to climb.

"During the past six years, flue-cured acreages have been reduced three times in an effort to avoid an accumulation of excessive supplies. During the period between 1951 and 1956, the acreage planted to flue-cured tobacco has fallen from 1,110 thousand acres in 1951 to 880 thousand in 1956, or a reduction of about 20 per cent.

"Even though the acreage has been reduced, the production has remained high because the average yield per acre has continued to increase," the report explained. "In 1955, both production and yield per acre established new record levels. The 1956 yield per acre will be second only to the 1955 crop if current estimates are realized."

The report also pointed that even though cigarette output has turned upward, leaf use in cigarettes has continued downward.

"Cigarette output in the U. S. reached an all-time high during the 1952-53 marketing year when 47 billion cigarettes were manufactured. During this same year, the amount of flue-cured leaf used domestically in the U. S. also reached an all-time high.

"During the two years immediately following, there was a substantial drop in both output and consumption of cigarettes in the United States, and an even greater drop in the amount of tobacco used in the manufacture of cigarettes. During the year ended June 30, 1956, cigarette output turned upward but the use of manufactured leaf continued downward. The causes of this decline in the rate of leaf consumption are (1) the technological developments which have taken place in cigarette manufacturing, and (2) the increased consumer demand for filter tips.

"Based on the best information available, it is estimated that during the marketing year just ended, somewhere around 20 million pounds of U. S. flue-cured leaf was replaced by 'processed' or 'reconditioned' tobacco. This new type of 'manufactured' leaf is reportedly made from trimmings, stems, and other kinds of leaf waste, which, until recently, has not been used in the manufacture of cigarettes.

"Also responsible for some of the reduced rates of leaf use is the sharp increase in the output of filter tip cigarettes. Because the diameter of most filter tips is slightly smaller than the 'regular' and because the 'tobacco part' of some of the filter tips is shorter than regulars, considerably less leaf is used in their manufacture. This pattern of using a reduced amount of leaf to manufacture a given quantity of cigarettes includes the use of both Burley and flue-cured tobacco, the report concluded.

Schulberg, Kazan Prepare Movie About TV Industry

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)—No first-rate movie about the world of television has yet been released. Neither has a first-rate novel been published about life behind the home screen.

So when a writer of excellent movies and novels spends a long time strolling quietly through the maze of the big new industry, something is bound to happen. One has and it will.

The writer is Budd Schulberg, author of "What Makes Sammy Run?" and "The Disenchanted," the writer of that excellent film, "On the Waterfront." As a result of his bemused strolling on the TV front, he and Ella Kazan are making a movie in New York called "A Face in the Crowd." To be released next spring, it will star Andy Griffith and Patricia Neal.

"A Face in the Crowd" is based on a short story by Schulberg entitled "The Arkansas Traveler" concerning an entertainer from Arkansas who rose to fame and plunged to spiritual destruction in radio. In his movie script Schulberg has transferred the medium to TV.

"The character of the man, called Lonesome Rhodes, is that of one who is happy until he moves into the false environment of television," Schulberg said the other day.

Home Weather Forecasts Score

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—Charles A. Gianetta not only talks about the weather. He does something about it.

The 20-year-old Dunmore, Pa., resident likes his weather forecasts reasonably accurate and faster than he could otherwise obtain them. So he built his own meteorological station in his home.

He now values his weather predicting equipment at more than $1,000 and scores of neighbors and friends depend on him almost exclusively.

His fondest memory is his prediction of a raging snowstorm that hit the Dunmore-Scranton area last May 7.

"When I made that one," he said, "most people just wouldn't believe it."

A short time later, everyone was more than willing to take his word for it.

A new "inner car" gives you a NEW KIND of FORD for 1957! Coming October 3rd

On Wednesday, October 3rd, Ford Dealers throughout the United States will unveil a new kind of automobile!

Cars are involved in every American's life. News of a new kind of car is the biggest kind of news to millions of Americans.

The Big New Kind of Ford is that kind of news . . . a car totally new in design from crest to trunk lock.

This completely new automotive package will sell at the traditionally low Ford prices.

This makes possible a new high standard of such honest-to-goodness value that it actually increases the purchasing power of your automobile dollar.

When you see it, other cars will look out of date, because . . .

This is Where Tomorrow Starts . . . with a Big New Kind of Ford!

The New Kind of Ford is the fullest, most eloquent expression of Ford's special personality—the youthful grace, the whip-lash action, the reputation for durability known wherever there's a road.

To all this we have added true elegance—a kind of elegance never before seen in the low-price field.

Elegance is more than skin-deep. Modern design goes far deeper than chrome trim.

To make a car truly elegant, you have to start deep-down inside.

The New Inner Ford

The Inner Ford—the car you cannot see—is a very remarkable structure. Its frame is actually a cradle. Side members extend almost the full body width.

The driveshaft has been lowered to connect with the differential, virtually at its lowest point. This is one of several factors that makes practical the lowering of over all height by as much as 4 inches.

The side rails, extended almost full body width, serve not only as supporting members but as concealed side humpans of immense strength.

The New Ford Body

The new Ford body is a triumph of engineering in steel—steel cushioned for luxury, steel insulated against sound, steel joined to steel for tremendous strength, steel designed to give you greater safety.

The doors close with the solid finality of a bank vault. Even the door-lock button has been moved up front—easier for you to reach, but out of the children's reach.

The new body is mounted on twenty live-rubber mounts to keep your ride silent, solid and secure.

All these features were engineered to give you a solid new kind of comfort.

The New Ford Ride

The way a car rides is more than the way it moves—it starts with the way it sits.

The New Kind of Ford sits six people as no other low-priced car has ever sat them—six elbows wide in each seat, with deep space around each one of six knees. And above all that space, there's hat room to spare for all six passengers.

With that setting basis, the engineers then designed the new rock solid velvet-road ride

The 1957 Ford rides low, solid, with a firm, deep road-holding feel. Yet it's a light-hearted, flight-hearted ride—this car is responsive, nimble, agile, with a proud easy movement through traffic and away to the head of the turnpike.

The New Ford Choice

Ford offers not only one, but two sizes of cars . . . each on its own extended wheelbase . . . each with its own body shell . . . each with its own styling.

First, the two Fairlane Series on a 118-inch wheelbase. The Fairlane 500's come in 5 body types, a four-door sedan, a two-door sedan, a two- and four-door Victoria with no center pillars, and a convertible coupe. The same body types (except for the convertible) are available in the Fairlane Series.

Both Fairlane Series introduce an innovation through the use of special window ornamentation and narrow center pillars. Both the four-door and the two-door sedans have true hardtop styling.

Second, two Custom Series mounted on the 116-inch wheelbase chassis. In the Custom 300 Series, a four-door and a two-door sedan are distinguished from the Custom models by more luxurious interiors and elaborate trim. The Custom Series includes a Business Sedan.

The Custom 300 and Custom models are lower, heavier, and livelier than any cars selling in Ford's price range today.

Beyond all these, you also have your choice of five Station Wagons—the famous glamour cruisers that are the champions in this field!

The New Ford Look

That low, low cradle-span frame means a low, low car. The Fairlane 500 is only four feet eight inches from road to roof! The Custom is just over four feet nine!

The New Ford is not only low—but long. Ford gives you more than 17 feet of elegant length in the Fairlane Series, a shank less in the Custom. And all that length and lowness is shaped in a design that is wonderfully, radically new in American automobiles!

Its personality is glittering, sophisticated. It's a nice kind of fun just to look at it.

It's high-priced in every way except price.

The New Ford Performance

If you're a bug on horsepower and like it big, the new Silver Anniversary V-8's are for you. You can have up to 245 wonderful Thunderbird horsepower in any Ford model. There's a moderate—and really moderate—extra charge for this engine of 312 cubic inches with its 4-barrel carburetor. It's the honey of them all.

For "Six" lovers, we've got a beauty, too—the 144 hp Mileage Maker Six. Whether you choose Six or V-8, the going is great!

Here is where your own tomorrow starts

It starts at the nearest Ford Dealer's showroom!

The cars will be there on Wednesday, October 3.

They will be standing still on the floor—but they will seem to be moving, for they have a quicksilver kind of beauty that just doesn't stand still.

Every line has a "machined rightness" to it, the sharp clear-cut stamp of beauty wrapped around power.

These are the best Fords of our lives.

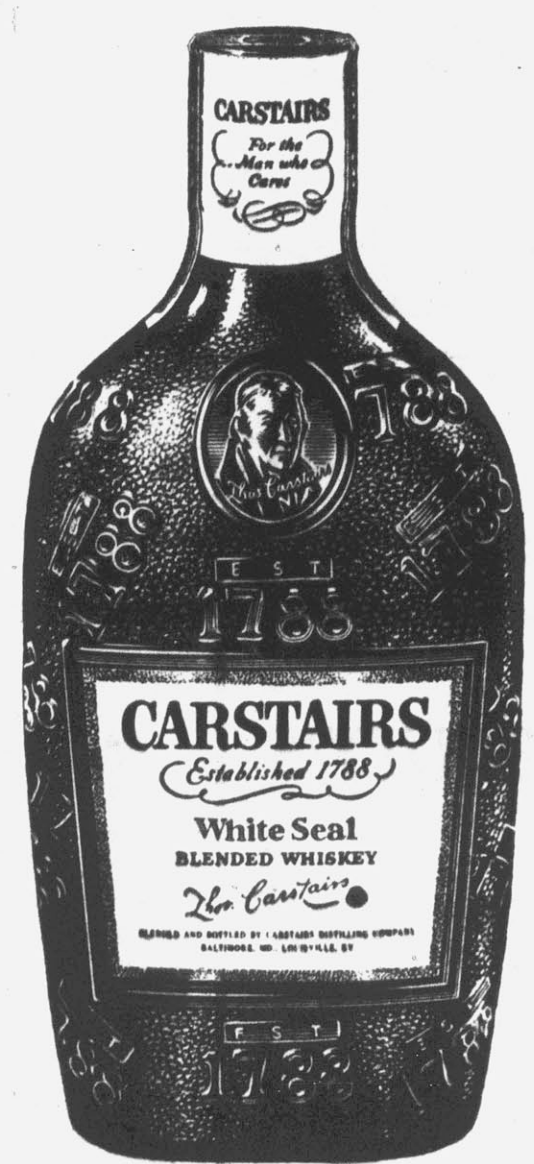

They are the first symbols out of Detroit of the new automotive age that is beginning for you.

1957 came early this year.

This is where tomorrow starts—at your Ford Dealer's.

This is when your tomorrow starts—October 3rd.

THE BLONDE DIED DANCING

by KELLEY ROOS

SYNOPSIS
Connie Barton's husband of almost five happy years has made her suspicious lately by his Wednesday night absences: his alibis going out these evenings have worn thin. So Connie concludes Steve must be having blonde trouble. She resolves to fight fire with fire. She has her jet hair dyed the blondest blonde and seeks to allure him into staying home. But Steve laughs at her new hair-do and goes out again. Furious, Connie follows him to an office building where she spies him in a private room dancing with a beautiful blonde. Connie realizes he has been taking dancing lessons—as a pleasant surprise for her. She keeps an eye on the door, and after Steve leaves Connie enters the room unnoticed to have an encouraging word for his blonde teacher. Waltz music is still playing—and the teacher is sprawled on the floor—shot dead. In her hand is a paper silhouette of herself with a needle through it. Connie looks in vain for another. She grabs the silhouette and the appointment book at the unattended reception desk and heads for home. When the newspapers appear with the story of the murder, they reveal that the Waltzer who had the 7 p.m. appointment with the dancing teacher is being sought by the police.

CHAPTER 5
Steve shook his head, signifying it was empty of an explanation. "The hell with the silhouette," he said. "How was she killed? She wasn't done in by a death ray. She wasn't poisoned through the mail. She wasn't bitten by a snake that crawled out of the woodwork. According to you and the newspaper, she was shot to death."
"At close range. Even I could see that."
"So she was shot by someone in the room with her."

played by the New York City Police. He was a lieutenant in homicide. He was alone, he explained to Steve, because his partner was busy elsewhere. It seemed there had been a murder this evening at the Crescent School of Dancing and a rather curious aspect of the case made it advisable for the team of Bolling and Hankins to split up temporarily.
"Now he was speaking to me," Mrs. Barton. "I remember you being a brunette."
"Those were the days," I said wistfully.
"You make a fine blonde, Mrs. Barton. I don't recall ever seeing a blonder blonde."
"This man I have does good work. He's very sincere. Won't you sit down, Lieutenant?"
"In a minute."
He went to our phone and called his precinct station. He was anxious to have his partner, Hankins, and another colleague named Lewine know that he was at the Barton's. When they called at eleven to report, they were to call here. It was now a little after ten-thirty. This was going to be a long, nervous half hour for me and the Waltzer.
The Lieutenant moved into the love seat nearest him. He said, "What's come over the Barton family? The missus a blonde all of a sudden, the mister taking dancing lessons?"
"We were in a rut," Steve said. "I wish you still were." Bolling said, "Barton, don't you know better than to take lessons from a teacher who's going to get herself murdered?"
"How," I asked, "did you know that? I mean . . . we read in the paper that the register had been stolen."
"Yeah, the killer stole the register all right. But the bookkeeping department had all the students' names. And we boiled the list down to Anita Farrell's pupils by having the other teachers eliminate theirs."
Steve said, "You've been busy, haven't you?"
"We got right to work."
He scooped a sheet of paper from his pocket, spread it out on the coffee table. It was Anita Farrell's teaching schedule. It was blocked off into neat squares. The vertical columns were labeled Monday through Saturday. The horizontal columns were marked with the hours from 2 p.m. through Anita's final lesson from 9 till 10 p.m. A half dozen of the blocks were already filled in with student's names. At one side of the schedule were three other names.
"You see," Bolling said, "we're getting tough with each of Miss Farrell's students. We find out what time he took his lesson. Now the killer is certainly going to lie about his time. He isn't going to admit he took the seven o'clock lesson tonight, Wednesday. He's going to say his lesson was at some other time. Therefore, we will get two guys both claiming the same time. One of them is the murderer. It won't be hard to figure out which is."
"This," I said, "is going to be an easy case to solve, isn't it?"
"You sound a little disappointed, Mrs. Barton."
Steve said quickly, "What are these names on the side here?"
"Tolley, Grant, Culligan. They were out when I tried to reach them. I'll get them in the morning. Now, Barton, tell me. Where shall I put your name? When did you take your . . ."
"Sure he had," Bolling said. He was looking at me as though I was a dumb blonde. "He's paid for nine lessons already. How come you didn't know that, Mrs. Barton?"
"Easily. I didn't even know Steve was taking dancing lessons."
"I was learning to dance to surprise her," Steve said.
"If you learned to dance you'd surprise me, too," Bolling said. "Now Barton, what time . . ."
"How about a glass of beer?" Steve said. "Cool, sparkling beer."
"Sure, I'll have a beer."
Steve hurried into the kitchen. Bolling looked at his watch. He said, "Hankins and Lewine should be calling soon. They're out checking the lesson times of Miss Farrell's other students. With any luck we might clear this up by morning. Thank God the killer was

How to Take Action Pictures
Probably you didn't know that you can get good fast-action pictures with the simplest kind of camera by using a few easy-to-accomplish tricks.

In the first place, action can often be "stopped," or seemingly stopped, by catching the subject at the exact peak of action when, for a split second, it is standing still. A pole vaulter at the top of his rise, before he starts to fall, is a good example. Another is a diver at the very instant he reaches the top of his leap from the springboard and before he starts down, or again, a fish at the peak of his leap out of the water. All of these subjects are practically standing still in space for a single brief instant. The secret is learning to be ready for that instant, and it's easy when you know what to look for.

Another trick is to follow the action with your camera so that the camera gives the effect of being motionless in relation to the moving subject.

We'd like to show you some first-class action shots taken with simple cameras and give you some more tips on how it's done. Stop in any time.

High-compression engines in today's automobiles were designed to deliver power undreamed of just a few short years ago.

Yet, many of these engines are not delivering all the power their owners paid for, even on premium-grade gasolines.

To meet this critical need for a new higher grade of gasoline, the Shell Oil Company now introduces the most powerful gasoline the most powerful cars can use—Super Shell. It's the successor to Shell Premium Gasoline.

Higher than any of today's "highest" gasolines, Super Shell enables today's motorists to enjoy more power than they ever thought possible from their automobiles.

At the same time, this added power will be smoother and quieter—for Super Shell gives anti-knock protection at full throttle over the entire speed range.

Super Shell gives this improved performance because it has a high concentration of aromatics, such as benzene, xylene, toluene, the power ingredients of aviation gasoline. This gives Super Shell a built-in "power pack."

For this very reason, Super Shell is "tailor-made" for the still more powerful '57 automobiles.

And Super Shell also contains TCP*, the additive that neutralizes power-stealing engine deposits. That's how Super Shell unleashes the full power of high octane . . . and keeps a car delivering its full power.

You'll see the new white Super Shell pump at your Shell Dealer's. That's where you get the most powerful gasoline the most powerful cars can use!

*Shell's Trademark for this unique gasoline additive developed by Shell Research. Patent applied for.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — A slow and hesitant stock market dipped early this afternoon.

The leaders were off from fractions to around 2 points or so. Some gains of about a point were converted into losses of the same amount.

The market was still depressed and sluggish, brokers said, by the continuing uncertainties over the Suez Canal, tight money and domestic politics.

A further element of restraint was introduced by the rise of the U.S. Treasury's short-term borrowing costs to another 23-year-high.

The market was narrowly mixed at the opening, showed a slight upward tendency as steels, motors, aircrafts and oils drew interest, then fell off gently.

Kaiser Aluminum was down around 2 as reports of the industry's eight-month production of primary aluminum showed a sharp reduction from last year because of August strikes.

Bucyrus-Erie dipped around 2 as it filed a registration statement of a new stock offering.

Bethlehem Steel was down around 2 points. Youngstown and U.S. Steel lost around a point each.

Motor issues eased fractionally. Royal Dutch lost around a point. Gulf, Texaco and Sinclair fractions.

New York Central, Southern Pacific and Illinois Central took fractional losses.

Du Pont, Shell, Kennecott, Anaconda and Goodyear declined around a point or more.

Smaller losses were taken by Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Douglas and United Aircraft.

International Paper dropped around 2 points. American Can, Union Carbide and International Harvester dropped fractions.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 10 cents to $178.30, with the industrials down 10 cents, the rails up 50 cents and the utilities unchanged.

RALEIGH — (NCDA) — North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers about steady, farm price 18 to 19, mostly 18. f.o.b. plant price 19 1/2 to 19 3/4; Raleigh eggs steady, A large 48; Asheville eggs steady, A large 50.

Junior Tobacco Show And Sale Set This Week

Pitt County's Fifth Annual Junior Tobacco Show and Sale will be held at New Carolina Warehouse No. 1 Thursday and Friday.

The show will be held Thursday and the sale of the tobacco entered in the show will begin Friday morning at 8:30.

Eleven 4-H and FFA youth are entering their tobacco projects in this year's show and sale. The event is sponsored by the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Assistant County Agent Sam Weeks said the tobacco will be sold Saturday under fluorescent lights to give the same lighting effect as daylight through a north window.

Special fluorescent lights are to be set up in the warehouse for the sale. The tobacco will be placed on a train of dollies which will be pulled by a small tractor to carry the tobacco under the fluorescent lights to be viewed by the buyers.

After the sale the tobacco will be placed on the warehouse floor under normal lighting to give buyers and others a chance to compare the two sources of light.

Boys entering tobacco in the show will be trying for eight cash prizes which are being offered.

First prize will be $50, second $40, third $30, fourth $25, fifth $20, sixth $15, seventh $10 and eighth $5.

The farm youth who are entering the show and sale planted from one-half to one acre of tobacco for the event. A committee will judge the entries. They will take the following into account: proper sorting, general appearance, freedom from thread and other foreign matter, proper case, freedom from damage, hands tied the size of 50 cents piece. Also to be considered will be acre value based on yield and price per pound paid the previous year on a government grade basis; if recommended practices were followed; and the record book of the project.

"The purpose of this Show and Sale is to encourage young farmers to produce tobacco of high quality, to improve handling, sorting and displaying an attractive product through the adoption of recommended practices in all phases of production and marketing," Weeks said of the event.

One Of Congregation Is Ordained Sunday Night

ROBERSONVILLE — Sunday night the First Christian Church had a capacity congregation when Mr. William Fred Taylor, one of its members, was ordained to the Christian ministry.

Participating in the service were the pastor, Mr. Wilbur T. Wallace; Mr. Ross J. Allen, executive secretary of the North Carolina Christian Missionary Society, Wilson; Mr. C. Abram Roberson, chairman of the First Christian Church of Robersonville; Mr. Russell Johnson, chairman of the Church Board of the First Christian Church, Belhaven; Mr. F. M. Van-Nortwick and Mr. Sherwood L. Roberson.

The choir, under direction of Mrs. Irving Smith, provided special music for the ordination.

Mr. Taylor, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Taylor, was born in Robersonville in 1934. He graduated from East Carolina College in 1955. He has worked at radio station WJAM, Williamston, and at television station WNCT, in Greenville.

He has occupied the pulpit in Robersonville on numerous occasions. He served an ad interim pastorate of several months at First Christian Church in Belhaven. He has accepted a call to that church and began his ministry there September 1. He will move into the new parsonage in the near future.

Mr. Taylor is the first minister to go out from the Robersonville church which is 81 years old.

A reception was given by the Women's Christian Fellowship in the Fellowship Hall following the ordination service.

Pleasure Boat Hearings Slated

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. — Rep. Herbert C. Bonner, chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, said today the committee will resume public hearings on pleasure boating here Oct. 3.

Other East Coast hearings will be held in New York City Oct. 9-10 and in Boston Oct. 18.

The hearings, he said, are a continuation of a nationwide study into the necessity or desirability of additional federal legislation to keep pleasure boating safe.

The committee has held hearings in Washington, Detroit, Chicago, Tacoma, Seattle, San Francisco, San Pedro and San Diego. It has heard testimony from nearly 200 witnesses about problems arising from the tremendous recent growth in the number of small pleasure craft.

Such a study was requested last May by the National Assn. of Engineers and Boat Manufacturers and the Outboard Boating Club of America.

Bonner said that although his committee cannot go everywhere and hear everyone interested, he intends to visit cities in various centers of pleasure boat activity throughout the country. This, he said, will afford convenient places where pleasure boat users, state and other government officials, yacht clubs and other boating organizations may be heard.

Influenza And Laryngitis Slow Nixon Campaign

SALT LAKE CITY — A hoarse-voiced Richard M. Nixon carried his campaign to the Democratic Southwest today after a parting blast at Adlai Stevenson.

But influenza and laryngitis which slowed down the vice president here last night forced him to cancel a scheduled speech set for Oklahoma City this afternoon. Instead he will make only a brief appearance in Oklahoma City. However, he will deliver a scheduled speech in Houston tonight.

Dr. Malcolm Todd of Long Beach, Calif., said this morning before the Nixon party boarded a plane that Nixon was running a slight temperature but was feeling better than he was last night.

The doctor said at a news conference that he advised Nixon not to speak in Salt Lake City last night, but the vice president insisted on going through with his commitment.

"If he were a private patient, I would order him to bed for one or two days, but Mr. Nixon is insistent on carrying out his job," Dr. Todd said.
