Dulles Charting Separate Course On Suez Dispute

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles apparently is charting a course "somewhat independent" from that of Britain and France in the Suez Canal dispute with Egypt.

Reporters later asked the State Department whether Dulles was saying the Suez dispute is really an issue in colonialism and whether he was listing Britain and France among what he termed the "so-called colonial powers."

Collision Demolishes Tractor

COMPLETELY DEMOLISHED—Pictured above is the remains of a new 1956 farm tractor after it was involved in a collision with a car driven by James A. Bland of Greenville.

A 72-year-old Greenville man suffered cuts on the head and leg after the car he was driving collided with a new farm tractor last night on the Patoctus highway about 7 o'clock.

Six Murders And Suicide Ruled In Family Tragedy

CLINTON, N.C. — Domestic difficulties were blamed by officers for a tenant farmer going berserk yesterday and killing his six children and himself.

Mrs. King, 27, was at a brother's house at the time she is under sedatives, suffering from shock plus a beating administered by her husband.

However, later that evening her brother took her back because Mrs. King apparently worried about the children. The coroner surmised the couple continued to argue. He figured that Mrs. King got up early and fixed breakfast for the children and then had her husband drive her back to her brother's.

Tyndall place, Tyndall and Mrs. King went to the sheriff's office to swear out the warrant charging King with beating his wife. Deputies arriving at the King house to serve the warrant discovered the bodies of the children.

Globemaster In Flaming Crash

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Three of five crewmen were unofficially reported dead in the crash of an Air Force C124 Globemaster at the Charleston Air Force Base today.

Some reports indicated the plane may have had engine trouble while making the instrument approach to the north-south runway.

Adlai Striving To Draw Ike Into Personal Debate

By ERNEST B. VACCARO EN ROUTE With Stevenson, Adlai E. Stevenson carried his eastern campaign back into Pennsylvania today with apparently every intention of drawing President Eisenhower further into personal, if long-range debate.

Stevenson's backers pinned their hopes for accelerating what he believes is a growing Democratic trend by getting the GOP opponent to descend further from the high perch that Eisenhower originally set as his standard for the campaign.

The Democratic presidential nominee sought to tag Eisenhower with "political looseness" in recent speeches, and compared Eisenhower's campaigning with a practice he said previously was identified with Vice President Nixon.

Benson strikes back, claiming basic advances. HUNTLEY, Ill. (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson, striking back sharply at critics, said today the Eisenhower administration has taken "more constructive action for the benefit of the family farm than has any previous administration in years."

Set Record On Farmville Mart

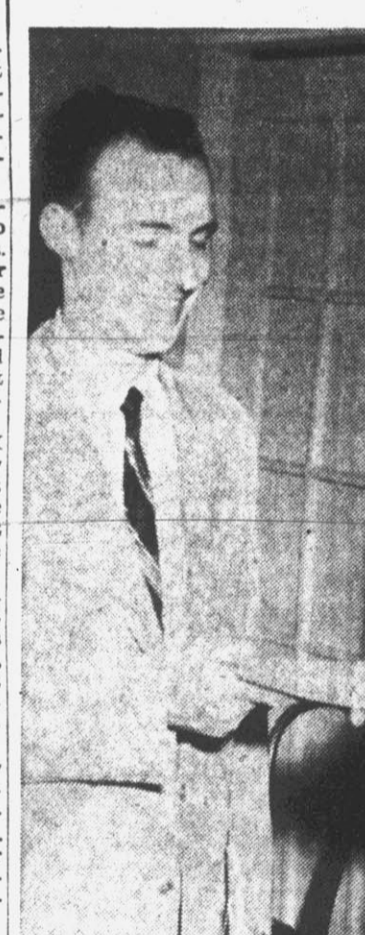

FARMVILLE — Poundage and sales took a dip on the Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday after setting a new season's record Monday.

Sales Supervisor Charles Edwards said today the market moved 74,632 pounds of tobacco for $401,634.74 yesterday for an average of $5.15 per hundred pounds. The total also represented a considerable drop from Monday's record high of 869,534 pounds which sold for $474,485.47, an average of $54.57 per hundred.

Texas Segregationists Continue Picket College

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Texas segregationists last night continued their picketing of an integrated college and others protested the appearance of Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee.

Clement said the pickets "either misunderstand the facts or are against law and order." He said he ordered out the troops to maintain law and order, not to support either segregation or integration.

ca Veterans Committee, claiming membership of about 25,000 veterans, and the Washington chapter of the Americans for Democratic Action denounced the House subcommittee's handling of the public school inquiry.

Welfare Money 'Reward' For Illegitimates Disturbs Hodges

ASHEVILLE (AP)—Gov. Hodges today expressed concern over the problem caused by mothers who have illegitimate children and then collect welfare funds for their support.

Hodges made these remarks in an address prepared for delivery at a meeting of the Southeastern regional conference, American Public Welfare Assn.

In his address, Hodges said the public welfare program is "an expression of the conscience of the state and is a concrete evidence of acceptance of responsibility by government for the poverty-stricken, the physically handicapped, the mentally or emotionally disturbed, the maladjusted, the people who for one reason or another have been unable to share in the forward progress of the state."

"We must address ourselves increasingly to this hard core of people who have not benefited by the prosperity of the last few years," Hodges stated. "It consists of individuals and families which we know become relatively poorer in good times than in bad, because they are particularly vulnerable to any rise in the cost of living."

Community Chest Leaders Speak To Service League

The Greenville Service League held its regular monthly meeting Monday at Elm Street Recreation Center. The president, Mrs. Wesley Harvey, called the meeting to order and the group repeated in unison the Service League Prayer.

Projects chairman Mrs. Edgar Williford presented J. B. Kiltrell Jr. and Ben Rouse who spoke to the group about the Community Chest Drive. They thanked League members for their "splendid support in past drives and asked for continued support on the current one."

Mrs. Williford announced that Mrs. Robert Forney would act as chairman and Mrs. K. W. Harris as co-chairman of Service League workers. Mrs. Williford also obtained workers for the Mental Health Drive.

Finance chairman Mrs. Ed Parkinson announced that the first Bridge Tournament would be held Oct. 11 at the home of Mrs. David Evans. Mrs. Robert Messner is acting as chairman with Mrs. C. C. Hilton, assistant. Members were urged to play and get up as many tables as possible. Tournaments will be held at 9:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. She also announced that Christmas cards and gift wrappings were for sale.

Mrs. Ercell Webb announced

Shower Honors Mrs. I. E. Medlin

ROBERSONVILLE—The living room of Mrs. I. E. Medlin's home on South Broad Street was decorated with scarlet sages when two of her friends, Mrs. Richard Bolton and Mrs. Ben Rawls, gave her a stork shower Friday night from 8 o'clock until 10.

The co-hostesses entertained with games and Miss Carolyn Smith of Wilson, sister of the honoree, won the prize.

A large box covered with crepe paper and filled with many gift-wrapped packages was then presented to Mrs. Medlin.

Cookies, salted peanuts and Coca-Colas were served to the fifteen guests.

Books For Year Discussed At Meet

ROBERSONVILLE—Mrs. Nathan Roberson had her home decorated with pyracantha berries, spider lilies, roses and marigolds Tuesday night when she entertained the Ex Libris Club.

As this was the first meeting since May, the business session was occupied principally with the discussion of the new books for the year.

Mrs. Pitt Roberson, program leader, gave an outline of the lives of Aristotle and Plato.

During the social hour which followed, the hostess served hot coffee with individual coconut pies topped with vanilla ice cream to the twelve members and one guest, Mrs. Walter Roberson.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Everett James on October 8 at the usual hour.

Tournament Planned

Grand Chapter Committee Members Honored By OES

Grand Chapter committee members were honored last night at the regular meeting of Greenville Chapter 149 O.E.S. Mrs. John Carrington, worthy matron, presided assisted by Joseph Palmer, W. P. proteum.

Following the ritualistic opening—the pledge of allegiance to the American flag and the singing of the ode to the flag—introductions were made.

Mrs. Mary Ross presented Mrs. M. W. Maxwell, who is on the registration committee for Grand Chapter, and Mrs. J. B. Jackson, district chairman of the efficiency test also for Grand Chapter.

Mrs. Carrington welcomed each one and thanked them for bringing honor to the local chapter.

Mrs. Martha Forrest presented the honored guests with red carnation corsages from the chapter after which they were seated in the east for the evening.

Mrs. Jackie Kinsaul sang "May The Good Lord Bless and Keep You," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Bruce Strickland. Mrs. Carrington presented gifts to Mrs. Maxwell and Mrs. Jackson. Each thanked the chapter for every courtesy, gift flowers and for the tribute in song.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Jennie Stokes reminded members to renew their subscriptions to the O.E.S. paper. Mrs. Blanche Smith and her committee were thanked for serving the Masonic supper.

Plans were formulated for the Scottish Rite supper, which the O.E.S. will serve on October 17. Mrs. Ethel Allen and Mrs. Martha Forrest are chairman and co-chairman, respectively.

Alfred Kennedy reported on chairs and pedestals to be bought for the chapter.

Mrs. M. W. Maxwell read the by-laws of the chapter.

"Happy Birthday" was sung to Mrs. Lucille McArthur.

Mrs. Jennie Stokes, Annie Stokes, Mildred Kennedy, Nell Moore, Lucille McArthur, Eva Corbett, Ethel Tucker, Joseph Palmer and Alfred Kennedy served as proteums for the evening.

A refreshment hour followed the meeting.

An arrangement of spider lilies, yellow mums and greenery centered the refreshment table.

Mrs. Florence Eaton poured coffee, assisted by Mrs. Grace Hill. Halloween-decorated cakes, candies and nuts were served from the table.

Closet Decor From A Bedspread

By DOROTHY ROE, Associated Press Women's Editor

A PRETTY CLOSET can make the busiest housewife feel elegant. Clothes will last longer, too, if protected by garment bags and dust covers.

A new and practical idea to carry out a decorating scheme in bedroom and closet is to make closet accessories from a bedspread. Just buy two matching bedspreads, and use one to make a garment bag, shoe bag and dust covers. In a bedspread you have a piece of fabric as big as a six-by-nine-foot rug—ample for a complete set of closet accessories. Local sewing experts tell you how to do it.

Make the big garment bag first. It's easier than ever if you follow the no-pin, no-baste method of zipper insertion illustrated on new zipper packages.

Double-hanger frames for garment bags are sold in most five-and-dime stores.

Start by cutting two side pieces 20 inches wide and 54 inches long. Then cut two side boxing strips eight inches wide and 54 inches long. Cut top and bottom pieces eight by 20 inches. Slash the center of one side boxing piece and insert a 36-inch slip-cover zipper, following directions on the package. Using your multi-colored binder attachment on your sewing machine, bind edges together along all 54-inch lengths. Embroider eyelets in top piece large enough to fit over hanger. Stitch top and bottom in place. Bind edges.

To make the shoe bag, cut a piece 36 by 18 inches. Cut two horizontal strips, 40 inches wide and 10 inches deep. Tape the cut edges. Divide stripe into four equal sections and stitch, section by section, to the back panel. Bind all cut edges. Stitch loops to top of the bag.

You will have just enough of your spread left over for two shoulder covers. For each cover cut two pieces eight inches deep and the width of a hanger, plus two inches for seams. Round off top edges to shoulder shape and seam together, right sides facing. Leave a two-and-a-half-inch opening at the top for the hanger. Turn cover right side out and bind bottom edge and top opening.

Other suggestions for closet accessories made from bedspreads are: Hatbox, blanket box covers, cases for sweaters and gloves. You can even line closet and cover shelves with fabric to match your bedroom decor.

Dr. Haar Comments On Fund

Friday and Saturday are Watson Memorial Tag Days in Greenville. The event is being sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club which points out all proceeds will go to the Watson Memorial Fund for underprivileged children of Greenville and Pitt County.

The fund is named in memory of the late Dr. T. M. Watson. Coming to Greenville in 1930, Dr. Watson was the first pediatrician in this section, according to Dr. F. B. Haar who was associated with him from 1935 until his death.

In commenting on the current drive for funds Dr. Haar says, "There were no funds available of this type during the practice of Dr. Watson, so he would call on individuals for help.

"Many, many stories could be told from people who have been helped through this fund, the first of this type to be established. It was set up as a memorial to Dr. Watson in recognition of his wonderful work in helping the needy people get medical care.

"The Watson Memorial Fund is always there to help when nothing else is available," Dr. Haar concludes.

Junior Woman's Club members will be assisted in the drive by the Circle K Club of East Carolina College. They advise, "don't forget to be tagged."

Mrs. James Hostess To Wednesday Club

ROBERSONVILLE—When the Wednesday Afternoon Bridge Club met at the home of Mrs. W. L. (Pate) James on Main Street, spider lilies were used to decorate the living room where two tables were set up for cards.

Coca-Colas and peanuts were enjoyed during the games. After the fourth progression, Mrs. A. F. Barnhill was high scorer and Miss Gladys Bailey received the guest prize.

The hostess served apple pie topped with ice cream to the six members, Mesdames Forrest E. Boone, W. T. Hurst, William W. Taylor Sr., Marie Johnson, A. P. Barnhill, W. L. James, and two guests, Mrs. David Grimes Sr. and Miss Gladys Bailey.

Book Club Has Dinner Meeting

Last evening the Round Table Book Club met at the Woman's Club for a dinner meeting.

The hostesses, Mrs. R. R. Taylor, Mrs. Daniel Taylor and Mrs. J. E. Winslow, greeted the guests at the entrance and invited them to the appointed table where the president of the club, Mrs. Royce Hunsucker, served tomato juice and cheese biscuits.

Around the table many pleasant greetings were exchanged among members and special guests for the occasion. Mrs. C. E. Oakley from Smithfield was back for this first meeting of the fall. Besides the regular club members other guests included Mrs. Le Roy Taylor, Mrs. I. J. Edwards Jr., Mrs. Carroll Jenkins of Pensacola, Fla., Mrs. W. M. Howard Jr. and Mrs. John G. Fleming of Elm City.

The assembly hall of the club was decorated with colorful berries and fall flowers.

After the guests found their places marked by place cards, Mrs. Hunsucker brought a message of welcome and Mrs. Charles Horne gave the invocation. A chicken dinner followed.

After the meal, program chairman Mrs. Sprull Spain presented Mrs. W. W. Howell, library chairman, who with her committee, Mrs. J. E. Winslow and Mrs. R. B. Lee, gave for the program short reviews of the books to be used by the club during the year.

This program served its purpose well in acquainting the members with the books to be read during the year.

Tied to the place cards with white ribbon were small leather scrolls containing the lists of the books and authors. The favors were prepared by Mrs. W. W. Howell who explained that they might also be used as book marks.

The meeting closed with the distribution of books and expressions of gratitude to the hostesses for a very enjoyable meeting.

Cosmos Club Has Luncheon Meeting

Mrs. Charles Howard, Jr. and Mrs. Ray Minges were hostesses at a luncheon yesterday honoring the Cosmos Book Club.

The first fall meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Howard which was decorated throughout with colorful fall flowers for the occasion.

Following the luncheon, served in the dining room by the hostesses, a business meeting was held by the president, Mrs. Joseph Smith.

Plans for the coming year were discussed and books distributed. The program was then turned over to Mrs. Howard, who took the members on a tour of Greenville Tobacco Company.

Young Moderns

BY VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures

"I have just started housekeeping and I'm shocked that I know nothing about table etiquette" writes an 18-year-old girl who adds that she knows very little about homemaking either. "How," she asks, "may I learn quickly?"

"There are many good books on these subjects but there is no shortcut for young people maturing in the era of lap trays and snack tables to the goodness, wisdom and joy that their parents reaped at the old-fashioned dinner table. Grace-before meals, cleanliness inspection and table manners were basic fare, contributing to the advancement of the next generation. You can't find it in three easy lessons.

Parents are likely to react with booming criticism when a young one does try to cope with a properly served meal forgetting their neglected training, that their young moderns have not had table advantage—pearls of wisdom that drop from a grandpa's lip, the harvest of admonitions from Dad that sculpted out character or even the chatty theories that Mom discussed on the buying, selection and preparation of foods that enlightened daughter's world.

There are many books on setting tables, etiquette and hostinging that will serve daughter well, however, it'll just take her longer to do what should come naturally. It'll take a few meals to break bad table manners as any girl will find out.

Here are some fundamental rules that may help out in the mean time . . .

Use the side of your knife or a small piece of toast if you want to push food on your fork. Never use fingers for that purpose.

Do not pick up chops with the fingers.

Break bread in small pieces before buttering it. Never butter a whole roll or slice of bread at one time.

Do not rest your elbows on the table.

Avoid using your knife and fork noisily, stirring coffee noisily, chewing with the mouth open or talking with the mouth full of food.

Eat cake with a fork.

Remove spoons from cups and glasses before drinking the liquid.

Remove olive pits, bones and seeds from the mouth in an inconspicuous way with the fingers, and place on the side of your plate. Do not spit them into the plate or on to a spoon.

Chicken may be eaten with the fingers, but the hostess is expected to serve fingerbowl so that napkins are not stained in messy fashion.

Gravy may be sopped up from your plate if small pieces of bread are used. Cut them with a knife and spear with a fork for sopping purposes.

Do not reach across the table for a serving dish or anything else.

Eat soup with the spoon going away from you.

Lipstick should not be smeared on linen napkins.

News From Red Oak

"Where On Earth Is God?" was the title of the sermon delivered at Red Oak Christian Church last Sunday by the Minister, the Rev. Clifford Lanman, to an unusually large congregation. Mr. Lanman closed his sermon with this thought, "God is in the Church working through committed lives. There are the eyes through which He views the suffering of the world; there the hands that outward reach to life; the tongue that speaks His message tender; the feet that go His mission to render.

"He is alive and strong as long as He abides in these temples of earth. He is never very far from His creation, but dwells therein, to rise in mighty power at His children's cries for help and strength. And at last we see His visitation in the faith, hope and love of lives that surround us awakened the call; and we know that God is All in All."

Twenty-five Ch-Rhoettes attended the meeting held in the Fellowship Hall last Sunday evening from five until seven o'clock. Gladys Bowen presided over the meeting in the absence of the president, Joan Dell Evans. Mrs. B. L. Tyson has charge of this group and she had charge of the recreation.

The Winchesters, Dentons, Morgans, Joe Joyner Sr.'s, Amos Evan's, J. T. Manning Jr.'s, Pates, Mrs. Leck Manning, Wynn's and Tyson's spend their Sunday night's dinners together.

This was a demonstration of a community at work to make better citizens of tomorrow.

Plans have been completed for what is hoped will be the most successful Harvest Sale and Supper ever held at the Red Oak Community building. The date is Wednesday night, Oct. 24. Friends from neighboring towns and communities are asked to make their plans now to attend and help make this a great success.

This Is No Time For A Passive View

With the hustle and confusion of this, the busiest season of the year in Eastern North Carolina, efforts toward worthwhile goals which have been pushed in other months are sometimes relegated to a back seat for a season.

Certainly that should not be the case with the proposed joint airport for this area.

Now that tobacco is being marketed, employment is at its peak and money is flowing in quantities much more generous than at other times during the year. There may be an inclination on the part of some people to forget about the area airport and the economic boost it would give the eastern section. To shake loose from this passive viewpoint, one need only think back over the lean months when there are no crops to market, no extra jobs on the farms or in tobacco factories, and unemployment rolls are creeping toward the 2,000 mark in Pitt County alone.

Economically there is a big difference in Pitt County between October and March. A joint airport

Adlai Should Look At Platform, Conditions

Before Mr. Stevenson goes off the deep end calling for an end to the military draft and restricting H-bomb tests, he'd better take another look at the world situation and the Democratic platform.

According to the Democratic platform adopted in Chicago the Party takes this stand on adequate defense forces:

"We reject the Republican notion that this country can afford only a second-best defense. We stand for strong defense forces so clearly superior in modern weapons to those of any possible enemy that our armed strength will make an attack upon the free world unthinkable and thus be a major force for world peace."

By limiting H-bomb tests as Stevenson asserts should be done, can the nation achieve a position "clearly superior in modern weapons"? The party is pledged to the position taken in the platform, and Mr. Stevenson as the party's standard bearer is likewise pledged to carry out the aims set forth in the platform.

Frankly we see little compatibility between this plank of the 1956 Democratic platform and Mr. Stevenson's assertion that H-bomb tests should be limited. Is it possible to progress in this field of "modern weapons" without considerable testing?

As for the other part of the statement, the Democratic platform does not clearly pledge itself to a continuation of the draft. It does, however, assert: "The Democratic Party pledges itself to a bold and imaginative program devised to utilize fully the brain power of America's youth including its talent in the scientific and technical fields."

Perhaps in asserting the draft should be ended at the "earliest possible moment consistent with national safety", Mr. Stevenson is laying the groundwork for proposing this "bold and imaginative program." Even so, such a program should, in keeping with the party platform, be outlined in detail and indeed ready to put into effect, before the party's candidate advocates the end of the draft.

There is no substitute for trained manpower and lots of it.

If the Democratic party is to gain a victory in this decisive election year, it must do so on the basis of the party's record and the party's principles which have stood the nation in good stead for the better part of the last quarter century. It must present a united effort to carry out the pledges set forth in the party platform.

Unlike the Republicans, the Democrats this year do not have as their principal candidate a man whose popularity and personal appeal overshadow what may be set forth in the party platform.

Pitt Democrats Gave A Shining Example

Now that the figures are in, there can be no question of the extent of Pitt County's support of the Eastern Carolina Democratic rally held here last week.

Of the gross take of $16,065 paid for tickets to the rally, Pitt County Democrats supplied $8,775 or well over half the total.

As host for the rally which featured an address by Speaker Rayburn, Pitt naturally was expected to outshine other counties in its interest in the political gathering. By buying more than half of the total number of tickets made available in 29 eastern counties, Pitt's Democrats showed clearly their interest not only in the rally, but in providing campaign funds for the party on the national level.

There has been concern at the top party echelon about finances as the current national campaign has gained momentum. According to Democratic party leaders, the Democrats do not have as many sources to which they can turn for large contributions as the Republican party. It can be truthfully said, however, if the feeling among rank and file Democrats in other parts of the country is the same as that in Pitt County, the Democratic party should not have difficulty in getting the funds it needs in relatively small donations from rank and file party members.

which would mean adequate air service to this area will likewise mean more industrial plants and year-round payrolls. These in turn will mean a higher economy for the area in the lean months as well as in the flush months. Together the factors will spell out gradually a better balanced economy for the eastern part of the state and better living for all its people.

The joint airport is a MUST for Eastern North Carolina.

Industrial development as a supplement to the impressive agricultural economy of this area is likewise a MUST if this part of the state is to keep pace with the Piedmont and Mountain regions and close the economic gap which now separates us.

The busy months seem to pass much more quickly than those which are not jammed from dawn to midnight with a frenzy of activity. It is now October. Soon it will be February and the legislature will be in session in Raleigh.

Will an enabling act be ready for legislative action which will give the joint airport group legal status? Will the necessary groundwork have been done to assure passage of the special legislation? Will surveys and studies be far enough advanced to receive attention and financial aid from federal agencies which disburse appropriations earmarked for airport construction?

Another Post For Ex-Congresswoman

By LYNN NISBET

PRATT — Chances are that come next January Miss Jane Pratt will be back on the job serving the people of North Carolina, particularly the eighth congressional district. Rep. Paul Kitchin is said to be considering her for a place on his staff. In that berth she will be very much at home.

Because the Congress was not in session during her tenure and she never had a chance to vote on national legislation, many people do not remember that Jane Pratt was duly elected and sworn in as a member of the Congress, as representative from the eighth district, the only woman ever to serve in Congress from North Carolina.

Prior to her election for a full-term period of the term of the late Rep. W. O. Burgin, she had been Burgin's secretary and in that capacity served the people of the district very efficiently. She might have and but did not seek nomination and election to the full term. Since 1946 she has worked with other government agencies at Washington, not directly related to North Carolina. It is known that she would like to return to congressional work in her own district when Rep. Kitchin goes to Washington next January.

Kitchin is one of four, maybe five, new Democratic congressmen faced with responsibility of selecting congressional office personnel. The doubtful fifth member is Ben Douglas of tenth district, hopeful of unsettling Republican Charles Raper Jones. Douglas has so many snakes to kill between now and November 6 he hasn't given much thought to anything beyond that date.

The other four newly nominated congressmen are about as certain of election as death and taxes, and they are already busy selecting office aides when they go to Washington in January.

CONTINGENCIES — These are to be elected congressmen are making only tentative selections and will withhold announcement of office aides until after the November 6 election. In these selections delicate balance must be maintained between efficiency in Washington and political expediency in the home district.

Despite the fact that both Presidents Truman and Eisenhower extended blanket protection of civil service to thousands of Federal government employees, there is still a lot of patronage available to the party in power. If the Democrats retain control of the Congress, which now seems almost certain, and if they gain control of the White House, which presently is an even bet, Democratic congressmen will be able to place a lot of their friends in government jobs outside their own offices. That will greatly lessen the pressure of necessity for making exactly the right choice of office personnel on the basis of both efficiency and expediency. Political debts can be paid off with appointments to other agencies and departments, leaving the congressman more free to choose his personal staff on basis of ability and experience in Washington circles.

It must be remembered that if the congressman is to do a good job for his constituents he must have aides who know their way around Washington and who are not obnoxious to his constituents at home. Efficiency in Washington and expediency back home are both related to the necessity of the congressman getting re-elected every two years. That is why the new members of the congress are giving so much attention to the composition of their office staffs and to placement of applicants in other government positions.

SPECULATIVE — It is a safe bet that the new congressmen will keep some of the personnel now in the district offices. In order to maintain the Washington contacts. By the same line of reasoning it would appear a good bet that Ralph Scott, newly nominated and sure to be elected in the fifth district, will seek strong contact in Forsyth county. That might call for keeping Joe retaining Hal Thomerson as his secretary.

Alton Lennon, the new representative of the seventh district, is known to be looking to the northern part of the district for his top aide. Names are not at hand but the Lennon secretary is apt to come from Cumberland or Harnett, maybe Robeson.

In addition to Jane Pratt, who has family background in Hoke, Montgomery, Moore and Davidson, new congressman Paul Kitchin is looking to the northern part of the district for his other aides.

Scott, Lennon and Kitchin defeated incumbents in the primary and for obvious reasons want to change the top level in their offices. For equally obvious reasons they might want to retain some of the subordinate personnel.

Basil Whitener in the eleventh district is in different position. Incumbent Woodrow Jones did not run and, for the record, he and his aides were neutral in the primary contest. Whitener can keep or release the whole staff without materially offending anybody. Information is that with the demands of efficiency and economy both in mind, he is looking to Cleveland or Rutherford for his top office man.

Main point is that the new congressmen are "looking around." Final decisions will not be made until after the November election, and when made will involve the major elements of efficiency in Washington and expediency at home.

Other Editors Are Saying... Many Complex Problems

(Kinston Free Press) The study of a proposal to set-up in North Carolina a system of family type courts, sponsored by the Governor's Youth Service Commission here Friday, revealed many complex and inter-related problems which need the attention of all interested citizens in North Carolina.

The series of the hearings now in progress on the family type courts proposal can do little more than explore the potentials and attempt suggestions from interested persons. But this can be highly important to legislators who must wrestle with the problems in the 1957 session of the General Assembly.

The family-type court, with jurisdiction over the whole family in problems which reflect delinquency and lack of parental care, sounds like an ideal solution. In many cases it may be the only solution. But it is a highly costly one and for every district of five counties the initial costs would run an estimated $20,000 per annum.

There will be a need for many changes in the language of the law to give jurisdiction to the new courts—and when they are established. There will be need for more boarding homes in which to detain youngsters who are to be channeled away from jails and correctional institutions. The need for more case-workers to work with court authorities in making family problem surveys is already pronounced. Some feel that if each juvenile court in the State now were assigned at least one case-worker for such work, the present system would work a great deal better than it does.

The Youth Service Commission will do well to explore the possibility of using present Superior Court machinery for the new courts. One session a month in some counties would suffice; in others one session per quarter might prove adequate. Only the larger cities would require constant sessions of such a tribunal. That might lead to joint support by the State and local governments as the program is given a real test in pilot areas of the State.

The unsolved problems of trained personnel for Welfare Department, the shortage of standardized boarding homes for detention of youths which are not in a wholesome home environment and better cooperation of ministers and school authorities can be tackled without setting up new courts. The people will learn from the current studies that there is much in the way of juvenile court reform that can be done by better public understanding of the problem and by involving support where it is most urgently needed now should lead to some improvement, regardless of what happens to the Youth Service Commission proposals.

No Easy Choice For Cherry

I was certainly saddened by the news that Dick Cherry has had to leave East Carolina College because of his father's illness.

I was not surprised, because Dick and I had discussed the possibilities more than a week ago, but I was still saddened. He and I have been close friends for several years and I value his friendship perhaps as much as any I have.

The choice he made was not an easy one. He knew as well as anyone else the place he had made for himself at the college and recognized the obligation that came with the "name" he had created. He knew, too, that his father's business was suffering, that his family was undergoing an undue strain, and he recognized his obligations in that respect.

The fact that he has withdrawn from the college does not mean that Dick will not return to complete work on his degree. The chances that he will return are rather slim, however, depending, of course, on how quickly Mr. Cherry is able to resume his work.

The seriousness of the situation was reflected in Dick's performances on the football field this year. Coach Jack Boone knew about the problems and readily admits that Dick was "not in shape" to play the kind of football he is capable of playing. Coach Boone deserves some sort of recognition by giving Dick a chance to straighten out the troubles despite Dick's importance to the football team.

Dick will be missed at East Carolina, and not simply by the football team. He has a rare ability to do things as well as he feels and he has a quality ability to pass on his knowledge to other people. He fulfilled his obligations at the school and owes no one an apology.

He certainly does not need to apologize for the choice he has made. He simply recognized a greater obligation and took the necessary steps to assume it.

Diamond Rings For The Boys

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Guess what's new in diamond engagement rings?

The answer: Male fingers! You mean men are actually beginning to wear engagement rings?

"Yes, more every day," said Henry Peterson, the nation's largest diamond ring manufacturer. "But in the case of men we don't call them engagement rings. We call them acceptance rings."

"When a woman becomes engaged, she naturally wants to give her fiancé a present. And there is no earthly reason why she shouldn't buy him a diamond ring, so he, too, can have an everlasting proof of her love and affection."

There is also another advantage in this trend for the bachelor. If his girl throws him over for another guy, he can hock the ring she gave him to court a new flame.

Peterson said that while acceptance rings for men are still only a small part of the booming diamond ring industry, it is growing steadily.

"Matched fourstones — a set of diamond engagement and wedding rings for both the husband and wife — are also becoming popular," he remarked, adding: "particularly in Texas."

Peterson, who is promoting the idea that a diamond ring is a boy's best friend, is a top figure in the glitter field who started from exactly nothing.

"That's what I got when I started to learn the trade at 14—nothing a week," he recalled. "And then the depression hit, and times got really bad."

But hard times were nothing new to him. He had gone to work at 12 to help support his mother, a widow with 7 children.

Twenty-two years ago he launched his own business with $25 borrowed from his sister. He pioneered with a new gimmick—a device that interlocked the wedding ring with the engagement ring—that helped revolutionize the industry. Today his firm—the Feature Lock Diamond Ring Co.—does a multi-million-dollar business annually.

Peterson himself is a millionaire—and an unusual one. Most millionaires preach the virtues of hard work. But Peterson points out its disadvantages.

"I am only 48," he said, "but to get where I have I had to put in as much hard work as a man of 85, and sometimes I feel like 85."

"It is no good to have to work too hard too young. You miss too much along the way. If I hadn't worked so hard, I might not be where I am now. But do I want to be where I am?"

"The fun and pleasure you get as a child build your mind and body best for later life, and do more to broaden your understanding generally. Burdensome responsibilities assumed when you are too young exact a penalty. You

Strength for the Day

UNIVERSE OF LAW

Gilbert Chesterton in one of his writings tells of a man who jumped off a roof. "He did not violate the law of gravity," continues Chesterton, "he demonstrated it."

We often speak of breaking the Ten Commandments. Nobody, as a matter of fact, has ever broken any of the Ten Commandments, but the Ten Commandments have broken many foolish persons who thought that these solemn commandments in no way applied to them. If we invest unwisely, we do not break the laws of economics—we simply demonstrate that such laws exist and the man who tries to live contrary to their demands ends up with plenty of disaster as his portion.

We human beings are all very little people. The sooner we find this out the better we will be, and the happier will be our existence. We are specks in a vast universe. The laws which govern us—the operation of which we cannot escape—are so much bigger than we are that we had best heed these laws. The law of gravitation continues to operate, whether we like it or not. The Ten Commandments are God-given and solemn in import, and we had best heed them; we cannot break them, but they can break us. We live in a universe in which there is no caprice. It is a universe of law.

The moral law is God's way of acting in ethical situations. The spiritual law is God's way of acting with reference to creatures whom He has made in His image and after His likeness.

Reduced Foreign Aid On U. S. Horizon

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Senator Allen J. Ellender Sr. of Louisiana has been severely criticized for describing foreign beneficiaries of American economic aid as "blood-suckers," although he denies having used that precise word. But this powerful member of the Senate Appropriations Committee has returned from a foreign inspection tour as an avowed advocate of ending or curtailing an operation that has cost us more than $50 billion in the postwar period.

Ellender's proposal has received strong support from a surprising quarter in the person of George V. Allen, a career diplomat for 25 years who is now Ambassador to Greece. In a recent address he said:

"I know it will be a shock, but I have seen a lot of cities, and I tell you that they say: 'We'll take your specialists; if we have to, but what we want is your money!'"

SHARPLY These two statements from such significant sources provide fairly good assurance that the next Administration and Congress, regardless of the November 6 outcome, will act to reduce sharply this costly and seemingly ineffective venture. The prospective saving of several billions a year will permit general tax cuts and reductions of the swollen public debt.

Neither President Eisenhower nor Adlai E. Stevenson has brought this issue into the campaign, and it is unlikely that they will introduce it. Neither Ike nor his opponent wants to offend Eastern internationalists and "liberals" to seem to take a McCarthy-Jenner "isolationist" stand or to open themselves to the accusation of backing down in the "cold war" against Russia.

But both have reason to know that it is a question uppermost in the minds of millions of voters and their representatives on Capitol Hill.

NEXT CONGRESS WILL ACT ON BURDEN Both House and Senate have shown their concern and doubt over continued burdens of American taxpayers by appointing critically minded committees to re-examine this problem. Ike himself has taken cognizance of popular and political uneasiness by naming a special board of inquiry, headed by Benjamin F. Fairless, former president of U. S. Steel.

It is almost certain that the next Congress, regardless of its composition, will cut these funds to a nominal amount for providing merely military aid and economic assistance to a few restricted areas. And greater reliance upon atomic weapons will tend to limit actual military help.

DRAIN ON U.S. RESOURCES As is true of so many new domestic and international developments, the Suez Canal crisis is partially responsible for sharpening the general prejudice against this drain on our resources.

Two-Car Selling Campaign

By ELMER ROESSNER

The first time a cave man offered to trade a rabbit for a stone axe, the axsmith probably said, "Sure, but why not take two for two rabbits?"

Selling two instead of one ("loading" is the word in some circles) probably goes back that far. Possibly a second pair of shoes ("Now that you've finally found a pair that fit, you'd better take two!") and a second suit ("When the new shipment comes in the price will be $7 higher!") has flourished for generations.

But now there's an increasing effort to sell two of many durable items. The latest issue of the National Automobile Dealers Association's magazine is largely devoted to showing dealers how to sell second cars to families. One suggestion: "Prowl shopping centers on Fridays to spot women who have to tote their own groceries because Pop is using the family's solitary car."

500,000 SECOND CARS

The N.A.D.A. magazine says there are 500,000 second-car prospects. Furthermore, the number is growing fast. More families are moving to suburbs where a second car is the only alternative to a fairly well hobbled wife. In a short time the oversized crop of war babies will be reaching car-driving and party ages, generating youthful family pressures for second and even third cars.

The Association suggests some 20 ways to promote second car sales. Dealers, it suggests, should not only eye shopping centers on Fridays but should also note whose children reach kindergarten age, note which wives have to share rides to club meetings, get lists of youngsters about to be graduated from high school and contact their families, check cars at computer parking lots to identify wives who are stranded at home, and talk to neighbors of two-car families.

The publication says that 11 per cent of the car-owning families in the East and South own second cars, 15 per cent of those in the Midwest, and 20 per cent of those west of the Rockies.

RADIO SHOED WAY It wasn't many years ago that a family owning a radio receiver larger than a crystal set was a celebrity on the block. But as receiver sales began to approach saturation, radio manufacturers began to push the second-set idea. And today—well, you know how it is. The average family has a console, with or without a record player, an upstairs radio, a playroom radio and one in the car. And there are many families with six, seven and even more sets around the house.

When radio manufacturers edged into television, they remembered that sales lesson and now, long before TV saturation, second and third set pressure is being applied. Once selling second sets was the way of unloading trade-ins; now there are sets designed especially for use in children's rooms and playrooms, for use on the patio or at the beach, and for Dad's desk in the office.

There are campaigns to sell families second refrigerators, or, at least, a freezer. There are neat models for playrooms, or for the cocktail hour at the office. The vacuum cleaner industry is getting into the spirit of second sales with "upstairs" models and small ones for upholstery and cars. Why lug a vac up there? Why dust the chickens by hand? Blow the insecticide in with the tail-end of the vac.

SECOND MOWERS, PATIO FURNITURE Manufacturers of lawnmowers are trying to sell large-size units, powered or hand-pushable, and then smaller ones for edging—and after that attachments for aerating, harrowing and leaf-sweeping.

The furniture industry, once content to sell house and porch furniture, now pushes lawn furniture, patio furniture and playroom sets.

Second homes, at beach or mountainside, have been an increasingly profitable item for real-estate men and the idea of two vacations a year, advanced by travel agents, is getting warm support from union members and other people with money.

About the only fellows not getting into the act are marriage license clerks. Second marriages, which began with World War I, and has lasted to this moment, are now being promoted with the possible inclusion of India, will be dropped from our payroll if they persist in supporting Egypt's defiance of the West. Japan may be asked to stand on her own feet, especially if Tokyo makes a "deal" with Moscow in current peace treaty negotiations. Recent surveys show that our money has been horribly misused in Indo-China, particularly in now hostile Thailand.

Save for Italy, every touring Congressman, as well as the diplomats they have consulted, believes that Western European nations no longer need financial aid. In fact, European and Japanese exports are now damaging many domestic industries.

In short, and thanks partially to Nasser, whose Aswan Dam we refused to finance as a foretaste of a more realistic policy, Uncle Sam discovers belatedly that both his charity and his money have been abused.

Wrestling Has Top British TV Rating

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
NEW YORK (AP) — British commercial television is celebrating its first birthday and to the surprise of everyone, except the chaps down at the pub, wrestling has the top audience rating.

More than 10 million viewers on the tight island tune in each week to the grunts and groans of the British biceps brigade than ever saw Sr. Thomas Beecham shake a stick at a fumble-fingered flutist or heard Grace Fields sing the praises of her famed aspidochelone.

Wrestling, if the current boom continues unabated, bids fair to replace cricket, darts or backgammon as the national pastime, and the day may not be too far distant when British battles will be won on the resin-strewn canvas of Channel 2 rather than the playing fields of Eton and Harrow.

If British wrestling goes the way of its American counterpart, the old Vic Co. and the Abbey players will have to look to their laurels, for showmanship is part and parcel of the success of these barrel-chested behemoths.

First after wrestling comes the ease of the Roller Derby, a co-educational sport, without visible rules and of homicidal intent, that should appeal to the traditional British sense of fair play. Commercialism are neatly worked in

'New Sounds' In Grand Overture

LONDON (AP) — One of Britain's young composers has completed a "grand overture" which features a vacuum cleaner, an electric floor polisher and repeating rifles.

"My overture," said Malcolm Arnold, 35, "is to be part of a concert at Royal Festival Hall on Nov. 13. I admit that some people may call it crazy, but basically it's a serious work."

He got the idea of using vacuum cleaners while writing music for a British film. "The cleaners have a wild woodnote effect."

How about the electric floor polisher that he plans to plant among the violins and violas?

"This supports the vacuum cleaner, adding a rhythmic whoosh to their song."

And the repeating rifle?

"I'm planning to use four riflesmen with the orchestra," he said. "Each will fire four rounds of blanks to establish the key rhythm of the opening movement."

A Chopin nocturne will be played by a quartet of bass tubas.

A highlight will be a symphony based on Haydn.

"The familiar slow movement," said Arnold, "will be produced by musicians blowing down the necks of partly filled hot water bottles, a divine effect."

Intruder Made Clean Getaway

LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP) — This intruder made a clean getaway.

William Pepper reported to police recently that his family returned home from a movie to find the bathtub full of water. Wet towels littered the floor. Pepper's razor had been used and his shaving brush was damp.

But, he said, nothing else in the house appeared to have been touched.

Farmer Won His College Sweater

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A Mountain Home, Tenn., farmer who completed a University of Wisconsin mail order course, dropped a note to university officials.

"I just completed your correspondence course in livestock farming and would now like my varsity sweater. I wear size 36."

He was referred to a university area sports shop.

Four From Pitt Enrolled In UNC Schools Of Medicine, Dentistry

Four Pitt County men have been enrolled in the schools of medicine and dentistry at the University of North Carolina.

William W. Sutton and John Lindsey Winstead, Jr., both of Greenville, and William Riley Bullock, Jr. of Bethel are enrolled in the School of Medicine and Oscar H. Brown of Greenville is a student in the School of Dentistry.

Sutton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John David Sutton of 1001 Johnston Street and is now in his second year of the course. He is scheduled to graduate in June 1959. He is a graduate of Greenville High School and received his pre-med training at East Carolina.

Winstead also graduated from Greenville High School and did his pre-med work at Duke University. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Winstead of 302 Greene Street and is now in his third year of medical school.

Bullock, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Bullock Sr. of Bethel, graduated from Bethel High School and the University of North Carolina and is in his third year at the School of Medicine. He will graduate in June 1958.

Brown is the son of Mrs. Nanette H. Brown of 805 East Third Street and did pre-dental work at East Carolina. He is a second-year student in the four-year School of Dentistry.

Nationalization Moves Worrying U.S. Investors

NEW YORK (AP) — Does it pay one nation to seize the property of another? Some seem to think so, but the question is whether they can run it themselves. Also whether they'll scare off further outside financial aid.

Seizure of the Suez Canal is the latest example of the nationalization that has been gaining strength in various areas. Users of the canal are meeting in London to decide how they can get along under Egyptian nationalization of the property. Meanwhile foreign ministers of Egypt, Russia, Britain and France are heading for New York to debate before the United Nations Security Council.

But on the purely business and investment front the debate is largely one of dollars and cents. Americans have huge sums invested abroad—more than 19 billion dollars worth of property and securities. The underdeveloped countries are crying for more while every now and then some nationalizes foreign-held and foreign-developed properties.

"No one knows when, where or how the next blow will fall," says the First National City Bank of New York in its October letter out today.

"Nationalization of foreign assets, repudiation of debt and anti-foreign discriminations in various shapes and forms afford poor inducement for outside people to risk their tax money or their private savings in areas that do not recognize a code of fair conduct in international financial relations. Who wants to throw good money after bad?"

On the question of whether nations really profit by seizing the property of others, the bank notes that "in general, the record shows—where nationalization has been tried—not more, but less, production has resulted." It cites two examples: the seizure of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. wells and the great Abadan refinery by Mosaddegh in 1951 in Iran, and the nationalization of the tin mines by Bolivia in 1952.

The next nationalization step most feared by American business at the moment involves the oil fields in the Arabian lands. But American business can take comfort from an Associated Press dispatch from Iraq saying that so far the Arabians give no sign of following Nasser's example.

Forty-One Cats Held 'Grounds'

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Forty-one cats are grounds for divorce, Superior Judge Burnett Wolfson ruled in granting John C. Cameron a decree yesterday.

Cameron said his wife, Catharine, held the felines in higher esteem than she did him. The couple separated a year ago. He charged cruelty in his complaint.

Young Mother Is Bandit Failure

CLEVELAND (AP) — A young mother failed in a pitiful attempt at a bank robbery yesterday, and police were puzzled at her motive.

They arrested Mrs. Maybelle Millard, 25, mother of four children, and wife of a 30-year-old veteran who lost both legs in France during World War II.

She is accused of trying to rob a shopping center branch of the Cleveland Trust Co. with a note that "in general, the record shows—where nationalization has been tried—not more, but less, production has resulted." It cites two examples: the seizure of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. wells and the great Abadan refinery by Mosaddegh in 1951 in Iran, and the nationalization of the tin mines by Bolivia in 1952.

Her husband, Richard, 30, draws a disability pension and is employed as a finisher by an optical firm. He said his wife had been under doctor's care for a year.

The bank teller, 30-year-old Mrs. Florence M. Rees, said the woman shoved three rolls of pennies at her and a piece of children's drawing paper on which was crudely lettered:

"Don't say anything. Give me your money. I have a buddy at the door with a gun on you."

Mrs. Rees opened a drawer, pressed the alarm button and gave the woman a dollar bill and two quarters in exchange for the pennies. The woman picked up $1.25 and left.

Mrs. Millard was taken to county jail. FBI District Chief H. O. Hawkins said attempted bank robbery charges would be filed.

If you are planning to collect soil samples for crops to be planted next year, you may want to look ahead and spread your sampling job over a period of two to four years.

S.C. Winchester, County Agent of Pitt County, says that lime and fertility levels of soils do not change rapidly unless high rates are applied, and one soil test can be used as a guide for liming and fertilizing for more than one year. Using lime and fertilizer according to soil and crop needs will help to make production more economical.

The type of soil and the cropping system followed will influence the frequency of sampling a field. Sandy soils may need to be limed more frequently than clay soils, and soils should be sampled before lime is applied. Soils planted in row-crop rotations may need adjustments in fertilization practices more frequently than those used for sod crops. Soils should be tested as a guide for making those adjustments.

Winchester says that it is a good idea to have a definite plan for taking soil samples and keeping records of results. A farm map or sketch is essential for recording field numbers used in sampling. A permanent map is very helpful, as it permits the same field and sample number to be used year after year, making it easier to compare soil-test results and follow changes in the lime and fertility status of your soils.

The County Agent says his office will be glad to assist farmers in

Up A Tree With Bird Feathers

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Pat Murphy, Oklahoma City park director, is up a tree with a ticklish bird problem—feathers.

Literally hundreds of thousands of pesky starlings live in the trees in Civic Center here and during the molting season feathers drop like snow.

The citizens are unhappy, and Murphy can't find a way to keep the well-kept lawns from being covered solid with feathers. As soon as one layer is cleaned up, another falls.

Stolen Savings Bond Recovered

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A Nashville man got to cash a $25 government savings bond right on schedule although it was stolen and missing for nine years.

It, and the wallet in which it was stolen, was found in the pocket of a youth arrested on traffic charges on the exact day the bond matured.

Rainy Week Failed Dampen AHS Spirit

JEANNETTE WORTHINGTON Ayden High School Even though last week was a rainy, dreary, damp week as far as the weather was concerned, the spirit of the students at Ayden High has been brought and shining. I heard someone say the other day, "It will take more than damp weather to dampen the spirit of the students here at AHS."

Tuesday night, four carloads of N.P.L. members motored to Greenville High School for the first N.P.L. Forum of the school year. Mr. R. B. Starling, the advisor of the Greenville Chapter, and Miss Mary Ann Bryant, vice president, extended to the students from Ayden, Grainger High in Kingston, Washington High and Greenville High a warm and hearty welcome. Refreshments of party sandwiches, cookies, potato chips and soft drinks were served at the conclusion of the meeting. The following students of Ayden High reported an interesting and enjoyable forum, and are looking forward to such a meeting at AHS in October: Bob Gagnon, Barbara Gagnon, Carol Lynn Cavleer, Patti McCay, Sandy McLawhorn, Carl Nobles, Kaye Woodard, Betty Lou Williams, George Stancil, Tommy Manning, Herb Little, Brian Little, Frank Merritt, Buddy Ross, Wilbur Ormond, Henrietta Taylor, Annette Willoughby, Peggy Wood, Mary Helen Johnson, Jo Ann Edwards, Jeannette Worthington, Brownie Harrington, Carol McLawhorn and Edith Faye Hardee. Mrs. Wilbur Worthington accompanied the group.

Betty Craft, a popular member of the Senior Class, was chosen Citizen of the Month by the Citizenship Committee and the Student Council. This coveted honor was announced at the regular chapel period on Wednesday. Betty is president of the Tri-Hi-Y, treasurer of the Beta Club, chief cheerleader, a member of the Future Homemakers of America, and the high school chorus. Betty says, "My hobbies are playing the piano and collecting religious articles for my record book. Potatoes, Italian spaghetti, and crabs are my favorite foods." She is a member of the Ayden First Baptist Church and is active in all phases of its work. She says that she especially enjoys singing in the church choir and participating in youth activities. A pretty and petite blonde, Betty is very ambitious. "I want to be a primary school teacher in the United States or in the mission field, and as most girls do, I also dream of a wonderful Christian family of my own," she says.

Mr. S. F. Peterson, Agriculture teacher at AHS, spoke to us at the weekly chapel period on the subject "Protection of Private and Public Property."

The Tri-Hi-Y held its regular meeting September 19, in the Ayden High School library. The meeting was called to order by the president, Betty Craft. Annette Dail had charge of the devotional. The minutes were read and corrected. Roll call and collection of dues was next in the procedure, after which reports of the various committees were given. It was decided that the Tri-Hi-Y would hold two meetings each month and the meetings were scheduled for the second Thursday and the fourth Wednesday nights of each month. The club discussed plans for the Interstate Tri-Hi-Y meeting to be held at Kenansville in the near future. At the regular meeting of the Student Council, plans were made for the annual Homecoming at AHS. The Tornadoes will play Centennial on that date, October 19. A parade in the afternoon will feature the Ayden-Winterville High School Band, many brightly colored floats, the Homecoming Queen and her Court, and the members of the football squad. The following organizations will be responsible for the various activities connected with the Homecoming Game and Parade: Future Homemakers of America, crowning of the Queen; National Forensic League, transportation of the Sponsors; football players and cheerleaders, decoration of football field; Tri-Hi-Y, decorations on front campus; Future Business Leaders of America, programs and advertising; and Beta Club, Homecoming Dance after game.

The Ayden Chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America met in the high school auditorium Thursday night at 7:30. Nelson Thomas, president, presided. After the devotion, led by Jessie Hardee, routine business was completed. The following new members were initiated: Liddie Anderson, Viola Gaskins, Carole McLawhorn, Jessie McLawhorn, Ruth Cavanaugh, Nancy Wingate, Irene Stancil, Kenneth Greene, Evelyn Jones, Joyce Stancil, Barbara Harris, Mary Allen, Edna Cannon, Frances Dorman, Myrtle Willis, Anne York, Henrietta Taylor, Benny Rutledge, Jeannette Worthington, Libby Thomas, Francine Cannon, Jessie Hardee and Jeanette Harris. Tommy Manning, Libby Thomas and Jessie Hardee delighted the club members with their entertainment. Delicious refreshments of salted nuts, potato chips, cookies and soft drinks were served. The officers of the Future Business Leaders of America for 1956-57 are: president, Nelson Thomas; first vice-president, Jessie McLawhorn; second vice-president, Tommy Manning; secretary, Nancy Wingate; treasurer, James Willis; reporter, Edward Green; and advisor, Mrs. Paul Clark.

The largest enrollment in the history of Ayden's school system—752—was announced last week by Principal E. F. Johnson. With the announcement also came the information that another teacher has been added to the grammar school staff. Mrs. Rosalyn Forbes Williamson, University of North Carolina graduate and formerly with the Roanoke Rapids school system for three years, has assumed duties as teacher of the third and fourth grade combination class. A happy group of Ayden teenagers danced in the Community Building after the football game with Farmville Friday night. The Tornadoes have won every game so far this season, and have not been scored against. The Ayden-Winterville Band, under the direction of Mr. Boyd Elliott, gave a good performance before the game and during halftime. Featured among the majorettes was little, three-year-old Nancy Elliott who was dressed identically as the regular majorettes and marched with the band. Good, snappy band music helps to create enthusiasm at the football games at grand old Ayden High. Henrietta Taylor, Bonnie Rutledge and Anne York attended the Ice Capades in Raleigh on Monday night. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Taylor. Millie Tripp, a student at Duke University, spent the weekend with her father, Mr. Levi Tripp. Melvin and Milton Worthington returned to their school work at Columbia Bible College in South Carolina after spending the weekend with their parents at Peaceful Acres.

Credit Service To More Farm Families Discussed At Meet

How the credit needs of a larger number of farm families can be served by the Farmers Home Administration under recently enacted legislation was discussed at a meeting of agency officials held recently at New Bern.

The new law provides broader authority to assist family-type farmers with loans to improve and operate their farms. It also authorizes, as a part of the rural development program, loans for operating and developing farms where the farmer has part-time employment off the farm. Included in the broader authority are loans for refinancing existing debts, and an increase in the maximum amount that can be advanced for operating loans.

All of the present loan services of the Farmers Home Administration which include loans for the operation, development and purchase of family-type farms, farm housing, soil and water conservation, and loans to meet emergency credit needs will continue to be available.

Taking part in the meeting held here were Horace J. Isehower, State Director of the Farmers Home Administration; Ralph Turner, Herman Riggle, and J. O. Buchanan, State Specialists.

County office employees of the Farmers Home Administration in 20 counties received the new instructions and are now ready to process loans within these broader authorities.

The loans to refinance existing debts will be available until June 30, 1959 to owners of farms no larger than family-size. These loans will help farmers who have adequate real estate security and who are otherwise in a sound position but who are unable to meet their present credit obligations and need credit on more favorable terms and conditions than in currently available from other lenders.

When debts are refinanced by the FHA the payments will be scheduled according to the ability of the borrower to repay. In the past, the agency has only refinanced existing debts when the refinancing was incidental to the making of a real estate loan for purchase or improvement of family-type farms. There is a limit of $50,000.000 a year on the amount of this type of credit that can be extended on an insured basis.

Insured loans are made by the FHA from funds provided by private lenders. The loans will bear 3 1/2 percent interest plus a one percent insurance charge.

The amount of each operating loan made by the Farmers Home Administration is based on the needs of the applicant and his ability to pay. In addition there is a ceiling on the total indebtedness of each operating loan borrower.

In the past the maximum amount that a borrower could be indebted has been set at $10,000. Normally the credit needs of borrowers can be met within such a ceiling. However, under the new law when a borrower needs additional credit because of the type of farming operation which he proposes to carry out, loans may be made up to a total debt ceiling of $20,000.

No more than 10 percent of the annual appropriation for operating loans can be used to make loans which would cause a borrower's indebtedness to exceed $10,000.

The operating loans are used for the purchase of equipment, livestock, fertilizer, seed and other farm and home operating expenses needed to carry out efficient farming operations on family-type farms. The interest rate remains at 5 percent. For the fiscal year 1957, $165,000,000 plus a contingency fund of $15,000,000 to be used if necessary, has been appropriated for operating loans.

The increase in the maximum limits of these loans will enable the agency to serve farmers and ranchers in areas where heavy investments in machinery, livestock and farm operating expenses are necessary.

Operating loans are repayable over periods up to 7 years. Under the former law no new credit could be extended to borrowers who have been continuously indebted for 7 years. The new law increases from 7 to 10 years the period during which additional credit can be extended in hardship cases when the inability of the borrower to repay his indebtedness within 7 years is due to causes beyond his control.

Loans will also be available for operating and developing less than family-type farms, if the applicants are established bona fide farmers who have historically resided on farms and depended on farm income for their livelihood, and who are conducting substantial farming operations and spending a major portion of their time farming. Such operators must have dependable sources of outside income. The primary objective of these loans is to help farmers who live in areas designated for the Rural Development Program, who are unable to obtain enough land resources to develop full-time farms.

The interest rates and terms on these loans for operating and developing less than family-type farms will vary depending upon the purpose for which the loan is obtained. Loans for operating expenses will be repayable over periods up to 7 years at 5 percent interest. Loans for real estate development will bear charges of 4 1/2 percent and will be repayable over periods up to 40 years.

These loans will only be made when the applicant's income from his farm and other sources appears adequate to enable him to meet living and operating expenses and to repay his debts.

The new act also extends until June 30, 1959, the authority for special emergency loans, and increases from $15,000,000 to $65,000,000 the total amount that can be advanced for these loans. Special emergency loans are made in areas designated by the Secretary of Agriculture to enable farmers to maintain their operations when they are unable for a temporary period to obtain needed credit from other sources. At present no areas have been designated in this State for special emergency loans.

All of the new loans, like the loans already available from the Farmers Home Administration, will be made only to applicants who are unable to obtain adequate credit from other sources. With most types of loans supervision in the development and carrying out of balanced systems of farming will be provided.

A Lot Of Iowans Like Ike, But Farm Income Off, Dissatisfaction Rises

By OVID A. MARTIN

DES MOINES — The presidential campaign in Iowa — heart of the politically important corn-belt — is shaping up largely as a contest between the personal popularity of President Eisenhower and a dislike for his farm policies.

A lot of farmers say they "like" the President but are dissatisfied with his farm program. This apparent paradox complicates the outlook for this traditionally Republican state.

Iowa is one of the few farm states in which farm income is down this year.

Supporters of Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, concede that Eisenhower is popular throughout the state but question the extent to which this will be reflected at the ballot box.

Republican leaders agree there is strong dissatisfaction among farmers but say there is not enough to give the state to Stevenson.

How will this issue of Eisenhower popularity versus dislike of his farm programs be resolved on election day?

Seeking an answer to this question, this reporter found that a majority of more than 100 persons interviewed — farmers, business and professional men, newspapermen and political leaders — said they believed Eisenhower would win if the election were held now.

But some insisted that changed conditions — such as a sizable decline in hog and cattle prices before election time — might turn the state to Stevenson.

Eisenhower won Iowa by a majority of 357,000 out of 1,259,000 votes in 1952. GOP State Chairman Don Pierson, while conceding the President will lose votes this year, predicted a victory margin of at least 100,000 votes.

But Jake More, the Democratic state chairman, said he sees great similarity between this campaign and the one in 1948 when Iowa went for Harry S. Truman in his surprise victory over Thomas E. Dewey. Then, as now, there was dissatisfaction over Republican farm policies.

More and other Democratic workers say Stevenson is gaining new supporters every day.

The Eisenhower popularity was forcefully demonstrated by the warm welcome given him by an estimated 350,000 persons during a two-day visit he made to the state last month to speak before the National Field Days at Newton.

Stevenson, who followed a day later and was in the state less than a day, was greeted by a smaller turnout.

Last year's low hog prices coupled with crop losses from drought have put many farmers in a resentful mood. Many of those interviewed spoke harshly of Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

Hervy E. Hazen, chairman during the Truman administration of the Agriculture Department's state Production and Marketing Administration Committee, said many farmers are convinced the Republicans have "kissed off" the farm vote in the interest of gooding votes of consumers, who outnumber producers nearly 8 to 1.

Robert Butler, a young farmer of near Newton who said he voted for Eisenhower four years ago, was typical of a number who shared Hazen's view. He said he intended to vote for Stevenson this time.

Farmer complaints were found to be most numerous among the younger farmers and those with small production units, as well as tenants.

Why, then, if there is less support for Eisenhower among farmers than four years ago, is the President apparently ahead at this time?

There are a number of reasons. Farmers make up a minority of the voters, even in the farm state of Iowa. So far, observers say, there has not been a switch of farmers strong enough to overcome Eisenhower's expected margins in Iowa urban areas.

Democratic leaders are hopeful there will be a considerable switch to Stevenson by businessmen who depend largely on farm trade.

Few businessmen would allow themselves to be quoted, but many of them — with a few exceptions — said they did not believe farmers to be as bad off as they picture themselves.

The official of a state manufacturing association said one should remember that Iowa farmers "cry louder and quicker than any other farmers in the country."

But Howard Anderson, a supply salesman covering eight central Iowa counties, said "many of the dealers I do business with say they are going to vote Democratic for the first time."

A big question mark is the vote of organized labor. While Democrats are counting upon labor votes, they are faced with the attitude expressed by a Des Moines electrical worker.

"I'm not mad at anybody," he said. "I'm getting the best wages I ever got. I may vote and I may not."

Camera News

BIRD BUDDIES—Torrey Jackson, when 16, took an injured young screech owl under his wing and nursed him back to health.

BIRD BATH—The patient makes a good home subject for Torrey's camera.

his old 2 1/4 X 3 1/4 Voigtlander plate camera and showed me how to focus sharply on the ground glass. I shot that stuffed hawk from all angles and got my first successful close-up bird pictures."

It's easy to see how young Jackson would get the urge to picture live birds after a few sessions with stuffed birds. But it isn't a case of knocking on any old nest and arranging a portrait session with Mr. and Mrs. Bird.

Natural bird photography is the end result of a great deal of hiking, scrambling and climbing; a knowledge of bird habits; lugging and setting up of photo equipment in uncomfortable places; manipulation of same, usually from a distance, and patience, patience and yet more patience.

Torrey's father, an engineer, solved the equipment problem with do-it-yourself ingenuity. Between them, they rigged up the old Voigtlander on a portable fruit case stand, and with coffee cans, elastic bands for springs, a snap-clothespin to trip the shutter release, batteries and a long wire they had an electric remote tripper outfit.

The same camera was used as an enlarger. The light source was a 100 watt bulb in a tin can. The combination was hung from the ceiling. The paper base was placed on the floor or on one or more boxes according to the size print desired.

With this equipment, and by the time he was 15, pictures by Torrey Jackson had gained considerable recognition. He was asked to speak at various club meetings and lecture fees enabled him to graduate to a Speed Graphic outfit with telephoto lenses and an electronic flash operated by remote control.

His reputation came in handy on more than one occasion, he recalled. "I'd often get up at 3 or 4 a.m. in order to be out on the road somewhere scouting for birds' nests or activities by day-break. I'd study hedges, trees and back yards with intense interest and sometimes I'd climb trees to get a better view."

"What I didn't realize was that some people were observing me. They'd call the police and complain that a Peeping Tom was in the neighborhood!"

"One time, I spotted a scarlet tanager's nest about 40 feet up and made preparations to set up a platform in a nearby tree to take pictures. We got a plant up there and had ropes hanging down to haul up the photo gear. Suddenly a police car came roaring down the road and braked to a sudden stop beneath me."

"Son, what are you doing up there?" the officer hollered.

"Taking bird pictures," I answered.

"Oh . . . then it's only you, Jackson," he shouted back. "We got a report that someone was trying to commit suicide!"

"Such suicidal activities have accompanied young Jackson on all the pilgrimages he makes at every opportunity to picture wild birds in their native habitats. It is still a family adventure and this year's trek found the family spending their vacation in northern Utah at the Bear River Migratory Refuge."

Torrey, now at Chauncy Hall Prep School, has his sights set on Massachusetts Institute of Technology. There he will major in electrical engineering under Dr. Harold Edgerton, well-known pioneer in electronic flash photography. He hopes to do research in techniques, methods and developments for better wild life photography. Adaptation of automatic sequence cameras operated by remote control is one specific idea he has in mind.

Little Excitement Through Suez Canal

By LYNN HEINZERLING
SUEZ, Egypt (AP)—Sailing through the Suez Canal is about as exhilarating as a ride on a New York subway.

For long stretches the view from a ship, except for the narrow strip of water ahead and behind, is just sand.

The canal, conceived and built by a Frenchman who is still honored here—Ferdinand de Lesseps—is roughly between 240 and 300 feet from bank to bank except where it passes through Lake Tim-sah at Ismailia and farther south through the Bitter Lakes, one of the saltiest bodies of water in the world.

The main channel, marked by buoys, is 180 to 240 feet wide. This doesn't give a big ship much room for maneuver. And the tankers which are the main customers are getting bigger and bigger.

This correspondent went with a convoy of nine ships, formed in Port Said harbor. Each ship had a weary Egyptian pilot on the bridge. Most of them had piloted ships up from Suez in an earlier convoy. They had slept about four hours between convoys.

Between Port Said harbor and the canal, ships are permitted a maximum speed of eight knots so they can reach their proper position behind the ship ahead. After that, the top speed in the canal is 7 1/2 knots.

For some distance outside Port Said, the canal passes through the shallow waters of Lake Menzalah. Then for miles there is nothing but desert.

About 12 miles north of Ismailia a cutoff provides two separate channels so northbound and southbound convoys can pass.

The main channel is 42 feet deep and big ships sometimes have only four feet of water under their hulls.

The convoy passed a half dozen dredges at work in the canal. For every 600 supertankers which pass a given spot, it is estimated the mud and sand bottom of the canal rises two feet due to the general stirring up it gets.

Other problems arise in the final 15-mile stretch of the canal. The Red Sea tides alter the currents in the canal every six hours.

At the end of the run the tankers keep on through the Red Sea, making for the oil ports of the Middle East.

Soviet Radio Doing Its Best To Stir Up Arabs

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY
AP Foreign News Analyst

Moscow radio in Arabic language broadcasts is doing its utmost to whip up anti-Israeli and anti-Western hysteria among Arabs.

Its attacks on Israel tend to be little less bitter than those of the Cairo radio and press. In their intensity they recall Soviet attacks on Israel in January 1953 just before Stalin's death, when Kremlin anti-Semitism was at its peak and the Soviet government broke off relations with Israel.

The Kremlin's Arabic broadcasts today are telling the Arab world:

The Western powers are shipping heavy armaments to Israel in increasing quantities; are training Israeli military personnel on a big scale; and are encouraging Israel to attack her Arab neighbors.

Said a broadcast from Radio Moscow in Arabic on Sept. 21, quoting from an article in the government newspaper Izvestia: "Recently the Western countries have been sending increasing quantities of arms to Israel. The Israeli army has received increasing quantities of medium and heavy tanks, as well as a number of self-propelled guns, anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns, jet airplanes, destroyers, patrol boats, gunboats, radar equipment and other military supplies."

The same broadcast said: "About 1,000 Israeli officers, including pilots, tank commanders and artillery officers are now receiving training in the NATO countries."

"A number of Western newspapers," the Kremlin broadcast continued, "are encouraging military hysteria in Israel and trying to push Israel into committing an aggression against the Arab states. . . . The atmosphere of tensified in Israel . . ."

Moscow radio has been labeling Israeli raids against Jordan as "provocative acts" while saying nothing about the Arab killing of Israeli citizens.

All-Steel School Tried By Gary

GARY, Ind. (AP)—This steel city is using its major product to build a school that officials say is less expensive, faster to erect and can be bought on a down payment plan.

They say it could be an answer to the national problem of bulging classrooms.

Midwest educators are watching closely the building of the six-room, one-story Hosford Park grade school. Its steel construction, builders say, makes it fire-proof and nearly eliminates maintenance.

Calumet Township School District, after a lengthy legal tangle, obtained permission from the state to make a down payment of $15,000. The remainder of the $200,000 cost will be paid next year from the township's accumulated building fund.

The school was designed by Structo Schools Corp. of Boston in collaboration with the United States Steel Corp., which has huge plants in Gary.

Harold DeVault, township trustee, says construction of two schools earlier this year had exhausted the township's school building funds. The two schools—10 and 12 rooms—were built of brick at a total cost of about $450,000.

The new school is about the size of the 10-room school and in addition to its six class rooms has an office, activity room, teachers room, boiler room, two rest rooms and several storage rooms.

It cost around $50,000 less than the 10-room brick building, DeVault says, and is expected to be completed by Nov. 1—five months after construction started on a part-time basis.

"We are absolutely overloaded with students beyond the capacity of our buildings," DeVault explained.

"It would have taken us a year and a half to accumulate the money needed to pay for the school outright. Like the rest of the nation, we need more school rooms today—not five years from now."

Structo Corp. says its down payment plan, as initiated in Gary, is expected to attract school districts with comparatively little cash on hand.

BOY SET FIRES
GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP)—The mystery of three recent fires which caused $9,000 damages here cleared when a 14-year-old youth told police he set them.

Asked why, he replied: "I like to watch fires and see firemen work."

"Rallies are necessary for color and window dressing. But for real, down to earth campaigning, for winning converts to the Democratic Party, you can't beat tea parties."

State Democratic chairman Frank Rao said the party will hold more than 500 tea parties in Providence alone before the Nov. 6 elections.

"Your Paint and Wallpaper Headquarters"

By IRVING DESFOR AP Newscasters

In these troublesome times when the word "teenager" is too often associated with the word "delinquent," it is a reassuring experience to meet 19-year-old Torrey Jackson of Marblehead, Mass.

Here's a lad who combined an early start in photography with an early interest in nature. The result has been outstanding bird pictures which have been exhibited in international salons, won awards in national photo contests, developed a sideline career as a lecturer and have currently brought him the 1956 Graflex Press Fellowshipship.

The fellowship consists of an all-expenses-paid stay in New York City while working with staff photographers of the New York Daily News on regular newspaper assignments. It's an exciting adventure for a youngster and must give keen satisfaction to Torrey's parents who started him on the nature trail before he was 8 years old.

"I developed a special interest in birds about then," young Jackson recalls. "I built and sold bird houses and feeders to buy my first box-type camera . . . then Dad showed me how to develop and print the film myself."

"My first lesson in practical photography came when I was about 12. A friend had loaned me a stuffed hawk and I decided to take pictures of it. My first shots were eight feet away with the box camera. The photos were sharp but the bird was so tiny! So on my next try, I got up close, about two feet away. Now the image was big . . . but too blurred."

"Dad solved that problem for me," Torrey says. "He loaned me

Maglie To Face Ford In Opening World Series Tilt

Yanks Are 3-2 Favorites To Capture Title

By JOE REICHLER
 BROOKLYN — Either out of force of habit or because of their past winning ways New York ruled a solid 3 to 2 favorite to defeat Brooklyn in the 1956 World Series but was only a 6 to 5 choice to win today as the Yankees' Whitey Ford and the Dodgers' Sal Maglie squared off in the opener at Ebbets Field.

A crowd of about 34,000 jammed the ancient Flatbush ball park with Dwight D. Eisenhower, the first president to attend a World Series game in 20 years, scheduled to throw out the first ball.

Cool, clear weather was forecast, with predicted early morning showers supposed to end before the scheduled starting time of 1 p.m. EDT. Fans not fortunate enough to obtain tickets, had a choice of watching it on television (NBC) or listening on network radio (Mutual).

Maglie against Ford is a strange contrast and not only because 39-year-old Sal is righthanded and 28-year-old Ford throws left. Maglie, oldest pitcher ever to open a World Series game although he has started two. Ford has won three, two over the Dodgers. In his only series start at Ebbets Field, he lasted only one inning.

Maglie, the elder, was working with only three days rest. Ford had not pitched since he failed in his bid for victory No. 20 last Wednesday.

Yankee Manager Casey Stengel's explanation for nominating Ford in a park considered a southpaw's graveyard, was simple.

"Ford is my best pitcher," he said. "I can't afford to hold him out until the third game."

Dodger Manager Walter Alton's reason for going with Maglie was equally as simple.

"Sal has been the club's best pitcher over the past two months," he said. "He's won our clutch games and there is no one I'd like better to pitch such an important game as this one."

Alton's only concern has been whether Maglie's ancient arm could stand the strain. Maglie dispelled his manager's doubts yesterday when he assured him:

"The arm is all right. I'll be ready to go tomorrow."

With due respect to the proven ability of Maglie and Ford, this does not figure to be a pitching series. In fact, it looks very much like the hitters, led by the Yankees' Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra and Hank Bauer and the Dodgers' Duke Snider, Jackie Robinson and Carl Furillo, will take charge.

The world championship may very well go to the team with the stoutest relief pitching. That's one department where the Dodgers hold the edge over the Yankees. The American League champs, who whipped the Dodgers five straight times in World Series competition until they were beaten last year, don't have anyone to match bullpen aces Clem Laune and Don Bessent.

Alton did not consider the exhausting pennant race a disadvantage.

"I'm counting on the momentum to carry us through," he said.

Stengel's only comment was: "I expect to win every game I play, but I don't see how anyone can win this in four straight."

Both teams were at full strength but three Yankees and one Dodger were not at their physical peak. Mickey Mantle, who missed most of the '55 series, is still bothered a bit by a groin injury; second baseman Billy Martin is an aching back and 40-year-old Enos Slaughter, who will patrol left field, has a bad toe. The diagnosis of Roy Campanella's perennially aching right thumb is: "Not in good shape but it has been worse."

The lineups that won the pennants will remain intact for at least the first game.

Alton, who first had intended to bench southpaw-hitting Sandy Amoros against left-handed pitching, switch Johnny Gilliam to left and play rookie Charlie Neal at second base, changed his mind yesterday.

"I thought it over," explained Alton, "and decided to stick with Amoros because he's hot. When Sandy is hot, he can hit anyone."

The manager, however, dropped Amoros from fifth spot in the batting order to eighth, keeping Duke Snider, his only other left-handed hitter, in the third slot, and elevating Gil Hodges and Carl Furillo to fifth and sixth. Jackie Robinson continued in the cleanup spot.

Stengel planned no change in his batting order which had Berra leading off, Mantle batting third and Berra fourth.

The managers already were looking ahead to the second game also at Ebbets Field. Don Larsen is expected to go for the Yankees against Brooklyn's Don Newcombe.

Injury Jinx In Carolina Camp Before SC Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Coach Jim Tatum stepped up preparations for Saturday's game between his North Carolina Tar Heels and the South Carolina Gamecocks yesterday as an injury jinx hovered over the team.

Wally Vale, moved to right halfback yesterday, suffered a twisted ankle and tackle John Bilch suffered a shoulder injury, in heavy contact against freshmen, Buddy Sasser, complaining of dizziness, also retired to the bench early.

"Out for the season is captain, George Stavnitski, injured in the Oklahoma game last week.

Despite successive losses to N. C. State and Oklahoma, Sunny Jim still has "great faith" in his team.

South Carolina coaches were impressed favorably in yesterday's practice with the linebacking of Charley Johnson and Lawton Rogers. Coach Warren Giese also singled out end Buddy Nidderer's "sensational" pass catching.

The passing game was the object of a long session at Wake Forest with quarterbacks Charlie Carpenter and Pete Barham both looking good as the Deacs prepared for Virginia Saturday.

The Clemson Tigers got down to rough work for Saturday night's game against North Carolina State with the first and second teams getting a workout in defensive scrimmaging.

Coach Frank Howard scheduled more work on offense this week.

A highlight at the University of Virginia was live tackling by the backs as coaches worked on correcting some of the mistakes made in last week's game with Duke.

Other squad members concentrated on hard hitting blocks by linemen, lighter forms of passing and defense against passes as the Cavaliers prepared for Saturday's homecoming game with Wake Forest.

Coach Tommy Mont of Maryland moved Fred Hamilton from fullback to right halfback as a replacement for Jack Healy, not expected to see action in Saturday's game against Baylor.

Healy has a sprained ankle but in spite of the injury he caught the touchdown pass in Maryland's win over Wake Forest and played 58 minutes last week.

"I just couldn't afford to take him out," said Mont, but because of his playing on the sprain Healy's ability to play Saturday is "very doubtful."

The only cheering note for Duke's Blue Devils was the return to practice of halfback Skitch Rudy as they prepared for this week's game with Tennessee.

The starting right halfback has been absent from heavy drills since the South Carolina game, when he was hurt. Five veterans took it easy because of injuries. They included Sonny Jurgensen and Jack Harrison.

Says Presidents 'Ruining' Sport

PHILADELPHIA — George Preston Marshall, owner of the Preston Redskins, says that Ivy League schools are writing the obituary of the sport they created—college football.

His recommendation for pumping new life into the game is to fire 90 per cent of the college presidents.

The outspoken Redskins owner told the Philadelphia Football Writers Assn. yesterday:

"The trouble with college presidents is that most of them wanted to play football, but couldn't make the team. Now they're taking it out on the athletes with all their ludicrous rules."

"Why such great institutions as Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth, Harvard and Pennsylvania are taking it upon themselves to destroy the game they created, I don't know."

"And that's what they're doing, making a sound, solid effort to destroy the game."

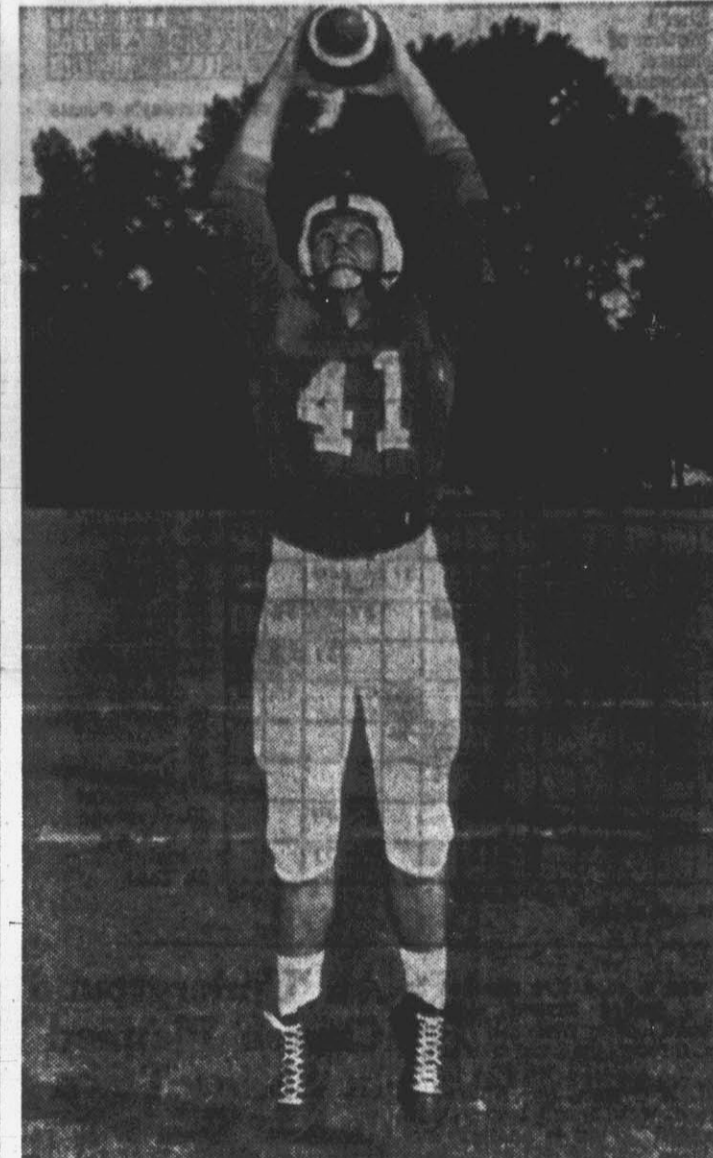

"What's wrong with giving a boy a scholarship to play football? Is it any different from giving a scholarship to a kid who stars on a debating team?"

Big Boys From Monroe Spark ECC Forward Wall

LARRY HOWELL—"Horse", a gigantic 6-5, 265 pound freshman is from Monroe also. The big boy was one of the most sought after gridirers in the South during his high school play and has rapidly fought his way into a first unit position with the Pirates. He has played both offensive and defensive ball for the Bucs but has been particularly impressive with his ferocious tackling.

BILL HELMS—In his fourth season with the Buccaneers, rugged Billy Helms is a defensive and offensive stalwart for East Carolina. He stands 6-2 and weighs a hefty 195 pounds. He has several seasons of service ball beneath his belt and has been playing good ball for his team this year. A 60-minute man, Helms is seldom off the field when there is any action.

Cherry's Absence Ranks Pirates Heavy Underdogs

By BILLY ARNOLD
 With the loss of Little All-American Dick Cherry at quarterback slot, East Carolina's chances of stopping rugged Elon this weekend have dropped considerably.

While it is true that senior Gary Matcovka showed fine form against Catawba last week in Cherry's shoes, and it's also true that Cherry didn't even dress for the contest, nevertheless, the Washington triple threat remained a sort of "insurance" for the Bucs as long as he was on the team.

With the announcement that he has dropped out of school, also goes the psychological edge that he and his big right arm were there when the Pirates needed him.

Odds on the ECC-Elon contest have the Fighting Christian favored by at least three touchdowns since Cherry's departure. Another factor entering into the ratings are the large number of Pirate injuries and the fact that ECC has yet to win its first game this season.

Tennessee Rated To Defeat Duke

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
 NEW YORK — While studying these predicted winners of this weekend's football games, just remember that the forecaster is the same chap who picked Cincinnati to win the National League pennant.

Last week's lack of upsets lifted the season's total to 66 of 81 for .815.

This week's winners:
 Oklahoma over Kansas State; By as much as the Sooners want make it.
 Michigan State over Michigan; It will be close but the belief is the Spartans will take it, perhaps by only a point.
 Ohio State over Stanford; Hopalong Cassidy is gone but the Ohio Statesters supposedly are stronger than ever.
 Mississippi over Houston; Mississippi has 24 of last year's Cotton Bowl champions.
 Texas Christian over Arkansas; Jim Swink carries the Texas Horned Frogs to victory in full view of a nationwide TV audience.
 Tennessee over Duke; Johnny Majors is rated the best running back in Dixie. He plays for Tennessee.
 Southern California over Wisconsin; The Trojans give the Pacific Coast Conference a rare triumph over the Big Ten.
 Pittsburgh over California; Joe Walton, Pitt end, one of the country's best.
 Army over Penn State. Each team will rely on sophomores. The Cadets will have to do without Gene Mikelonis, speedy halfback.
 South Carolina over North Carolina; The South Carolina line makes the Gamecocks the favorites.
 Baylor over Maryland; By the narrowest of margins.
 UCLA over Oregon; Oregon had to hustle last week to beat Idaho by a single touchdown.
 Skipping over the others:
 EAST: Navy over Cornell, Colgate over Holy Cross, Dartmouth

Elon Has Depth
 Perhaps the biggest factor of all is the power of the 1956 Elon outfit. Coach Sid Varney's troopers have a host of some 21 returning lettermen to boost the depth of their squad and several outstanding newcomers.

Leading the list of top Elon performers are quarterback Richard Bradham and halfback Kerry Richards. Richards was one of the North State's leading ground gainers last season and has been having a banner campaign this year.

The Christian line, big and fast, will be sparked by guards Chuck

Smith, Dennis Back?
 Bucky Dennis, ECC guard who was injured in the season opener, was back last week against Catawba and is expected to hold down a tackle slot against Elon, though he is not completely in base condition. Charlie Smith, injured in the Stetson contest two weeks ago, is also reported as a probable returnee to the line.

Still out of action will be Jerry Brooks, Waverly Chesson and Ed Emory, all first stringers.

Bill Helms and Ray Pennington will man the end slots and Larry Howell, Dennis and Bull Overton are expected to be the tackles. Guards will probably be Paul Poop, Ken Burgess and Charlie Hooper. Algy Faircloth will handle center duties.

Kluszewski Might Never Play Again

NEW YORK — Slugger Ted Kluszewski, archetype of the Cincinnati Redlegs' "musclemen" this year, says he may be washed up as a player unless he recovers from a hip muscle injury.

The 240-pound first baseman said yesterday he is "in constant pain" with a torn muscle that has pressed against the sciatic nerve.

"I am not concerned about it now," he said, "but if by next spring I feel the way I am now, I don't see how I can continue to play."

Klu is here for a meeting of major league player representatives. He said he will not stay for the world series, but will return to Cincinnati for a "long, complete rest."

The 32-year-old first sacker said that specialists at Cincinnati and Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore told him that the damaged muscle would mend with rest.

The trouble first cropped up in spring training this year when he complained of a pulled muscle after fielding a ground ball.

Early in the season manager Birdie Tebbets benched the heavily muscled athlete for the first time since Kluszewski became a Cincinnati regular in 1948.

A big flareup of the hip injury came in a game with Brooklyn Sept. 17.

He made only one appearance after that, striking out last Saturday as a pinch-hitter against Chicago's Cubs.

Although the muscle pained him somewhat during the season, he belted 35 home runs, brought in 102 runs and batted .302.

GHS Preparing For Coming Selma Battle

Coach Guy Lewis, still picking up the pieces after his team's 48-6 loss to Washington last week, is working feverishly to put Greenville gridders into an effective unit to combat Class A Selma, this Friday night.

The non-Northeastern Conference battle will take place at College stadium.

In practice sessions this week (they've been rough ones), Lewis has had All-Conference Billy Sermons working at one half-back, Robert Howell at the other, and Jimmy Kelly at fullback. Mack Roebuck who has commanded the team from quarterback slot throughout the season, is still doing the directing and passing.

In the front wall, the outstanding boys in drill have been Wade Jordan, Edwin Wilkerson, Angus Duff and Barney Barrett. Others sparking line play have been Kelly Barnhill, Roy Martin, Billy Brown, Billy Cox and Sam Nixon.

According to reports, all is well after the tremendous lopsided 48-6 contest, in the injury department. No hantoms were hurt, other than the usual rash of bruises and bumps.

Lewis has been concentrating heavily this week on passing and defense. Mack Roebuck also his receivers, Edwin Wilkerson, Billy Cox and Robert Conway have spent plenty of time working on an aerial attack to throw against the visitors from Selma. Also, the backfield has been getting its share of receiving duties.

Selma is reported to have a fast, small outfit this season, with plenty of spunk and fight.

Edwards Expects Trouble From Clemson Backs

By REESE HART
 RALEIGH — North Carolina State College's Coach Earle Edwards, seeking to improve his defenses, uses such words as "outstanding" and "real good" in describing the backs Clemson will throw against State here Saturday night.

Edwards realizes full well that the Wolfpack defense must be considerably stronger than it was against Virginia Tech if State expects to win. Virginia Tech rattled State's defenses for 431 yards rushing in its 35-6 victory Saturday.

"If we play against Clemson like we did last week it'll be terrible," Edwards commented. "I think we're a lot better off than that game indicates. We shouldn't be that far off."

Once-led Clemson is the only unbeaten Atlantic Coast Conference team at this early stage of the season.

Edwards said of Clemson: "I think they're pretty well fixed. Joel Wells is outstanding. Charlie Bussey is real good, and they have two tremendous tackles. They also have two ends that rate highly."

Edwards hopes his team will be "up" for the Clemson match, which opens State's home schedule and is expected to draw a crowd of 20,000. "It's up to the boys themselves to be up," he added.

Pat Peppier, State assistant coach, scouted Clemson in its 20-20 tie with Florida and says the Clemson backfield is "terrific."

Bussey, 162-pound quarterback of Henderson, N.C., is one of the main springs in the split-T attack. Wells, 195-pound senior of Columbia, and Jim Coleman give the Tigers a fine pair of halfbacks. Wells is one of the best backs in the conference. At fullback is Bob Spooner of Ogdensburg, N.Y.

The Tigers have two husky tackles in Bill Hudson, 6-5, 235, of North Charleston, S.C., and Dick Marazza, 6-4, 220, of Greensburg, Pa.

State, which upset North Carolina 26-6 in its opening game, will pin its hopes on a light but fast backfield led by halfbacks Dick Christy and Dick Hunter and quarterback Tom Katich.

Christy and Hunter, clever operators, could do very little against Virginia Tech's big line. Edwards thought his backs ran hard against Virginia Tech, "but we didn't stay with our blocks and we weren't able to sustain any offense. We're going to have to work hard for the Clemson game."

The I. O. C. executive commission and some additional I.O.C. members, is expected to take a final decision of the pledge at least as for the Melbourne games, opening on Nov. 22, are concerned.

The famed Bow bells of London's church of St. Mary-le-Bow, historic since the time of William the Conqueror, will soon be replaced. They were destroyed by Nazi bombs in World War 2.

The executive commission of the International Olympic Committee, convened by I.O.C. President Avery Brundage, may decide to suspend the amateur-intention phrase in the new pledge until after the Melbourne games, and so meet the widespread criticism of the pledge for the time being.

Brundage himself, anxious to preserve the amateur status of Olympic athletes, was one of the main supporters of the new pledge. It was not certain how he and the nine other senior Olympic officials would feel about suspending the pledge, but some I.O.C. sources said privately it was difficult to see what other course was open.

The pledge, under Article 34 of the new rules, requires each Olympic athlete to sign this declaration printed on the official entry form:

"I, the undersigned, declare on my honor that I am and intend to remain an amateur and fulfill the conditions stipulated by the Olympic rules."

The words "and intend to remain" were introduced for the first time by the new rules published in July.

Sports organizations in the United States, Europe and Australia have protested vigorously. Brundage, before leaving the United States for the Lausanne meeting, said "some amplification and explanation" of the wording would be necessary.

Brundage is due to arrive here from London tonight, together with the Marquess of Exeter, I.O.C. vice-president.

Women's Golf In Semi-Finals

The semi-final rounds of the Women's Championship tournament at the Greenville Golf and Country Club have been reached.

In the championship flight Mrs. Alex White Jr. will play Mrs. Larry James, and Mrs. Henry Coleman will meet Mrs. E. W. Larkin Jr.

As arrangements have it now, Mrs. Luther Herring will battle the winner of the Barnhill-Long match, Mrs. T. A. Smoot will play the winner of the match between Mrs. J. T. Cheatham and Mrs. Ray Whorton.

Second flight action saw Mrs. Ray Masten defeat Mrs. Bob Powell on the second hole of a sudden death play. Mrs. Tom Rivers will now meet Mrs. Howard Hodges Jr.

Remaining in the third flight are Mrs. Lee Hannah, Mrs. Graham Flanagan, Mrs. Sara Underwood, Mrs. Hollie Van Dyke, and Mrs. Percy Ashby.

All semi-final matches are scheduled to be played on or before Sunday, October 7 and the finals will be played next week.

Prizes will be awarded by the Club President, Dave Mosier, Saturday night, October 13.

THE BLONDE DIED DANCING

by KELLEY ROOS

From the Daily, Monday and Tuesday, Copyright © 1956 by Kelley Roos. All Rights Reserved.

SYNOPSIS
Connie Barton's suspicions were aroused by her husband's clumsy excuses for his regular Wednesday night absences. She trailed Steve to a private dance studio and then realized he was taking dance lessons as a pleasant surprise for her. Keeping herself unnoticed, Connie watched the door of the studio as Steve left, and went in for a private word with his teacher. She found the instructor, Anita Farrell, sprawled on the floor—shot dead. In the corpse's hand was a paper silhouette of herself. Confused, Connie's first thought was to cover up for Steve. She grabbed the silhouette and the appointment book at the unattended reception desk outside and went home to confront Steve. She had to believe his assertions of his innocence.

Police promptly got the names of all Miss Farrell's pupils and began checking to identify the 7 p.m. Wednesday waltzer. When Lieut. Bolling asked Steve his lesson time, Steve said 3 o'clock Saturday. From the stolen appointment book Steve took the lesson time of a Ralph Tolley whom Bolling hasn't contacted—yet.

Using the name Hester Frost, and with a plan in mind to save Steve, Connie got Miss Farrell's teaching job. Connie noticed a ventilator in the ceiling of Studio K—the murder room—and set about exploring the possibility of the gunshot having come from there. While up on a catwalk over the false ceiling, she heard from the studio next to hers a man and a girl arguing whether he should chance going to "Rhinebeck Place." That is where the late Miss Farrell lived, at No. 11. Connie phoned Steve and told him to meet her there. When she arrived she saw a young man hurry to Miss Farrell's apartment. A police guard scared him away, but not before Connie recognized his voice to be the one she overheard in the dance studio.

Steve sends a cabbie to pick up Connie; she speeds to the Feather Club, where Steve is watching a man he has trailed from Rhinebeck Place. They plan for Connie to meet him.

CHAPTER 12
In a moment a gallant tenor voice was cooing at me. "May I join you?"
"Languidly, I said, "Must you?"
"It's absolutely necessary." His teeth under his ghost mustache were gleaming at me. "Not only necessary, but inevitable."
He established himself on the stool next to mine. I looked toward the door for Steve and found that he was at the end of the bar. He was accepting a beer from the bartender.

The man said, "Expecting someone?"
"Who, for instance?"
"Your husband?"
"He's in Milwaukee."
"Isn't that nice of him?"
I smiled at the man. "He's a darling. Sometimes he doesn't come home for weeks and weeks." I had the next bit of information ready: I was becoming adept at this sort of thing. "My name's Gloria."
"Hello, Gloria. Mine's Wendell Kipp."
"Hello, Wendell. Tell me about yourself."
Wendell was delighted by my interest. To show me how pleased he was he leaned his shoulder closer to mine. I glanced at Steve in the mirror. He was scrolling into his beer.

"I'm in real estate," he said.
"Well, you must show me some apartments some time."

Wendell put his near hand over my left hand. Steve suddenly moved two stools closer to us. Wendell's voice purred in my ear.
"There's an apartment I'd like to show you right now, tonight."
"Whose?" I purred coyly.
"Mine."
"It doesn't sound safe for a girl."
"It's perfectly safe. My wife's away this week."
"Milwaukee?"
He laughed, delighted: again. His knee was against mine. Steve had moved three stools closer by this time.
Wendell turned serious, plaintive. "It's a real pleasure meeting a girl like you, Gloria," he said. "Thelma is such a bore."
"Thelma? Your wife?"
"Yes, we don't get along."
"Doesn't she understand you?"
"She's so unsympathetic. Absolutely no sense of humor. We don't have fun. The life on Wendell's face was in Technicolor. Cinema-scope. Cinerama. Todd-AO: it engulfed me. "We could have fun, baby, you and I. . . couldn't we? Couldn't we, though? Hmm, baby?"

An Underground Church Planned in Shrine Town

It was a good five minutes before I pulled myself together. I stopped looking aimlessly in doorways, through the front windows of bars, for Steve. I tried to be rational. If I were the Waltzer on the lam, what would I do . . . No, I decided to put it another way. If I were my husband and I knew that my wife would be worried to death about me, where, under those circumstances, would I go? Home.

It was probably as simple as that. I would give Steve thirty minutes to get home, then I would phone him there. I sat down on a bench in the little park off Sheridan Square. I lit a cigarette and calmed myself down. Then I realized I should not be sitting on this bench in the little park off Sheridan Square.

It was twenty minutes to seven. At seven I had a lesson to teach at the Crescent School of Dancing. I mustn't attract attention to myself by missing a lesson on my first day's work. I took a cab uptown.

Connie gets the low-down on Anita Farrell in Chapter 13 of "The Blonde Died Dancing" here tomorrow.

Poultry meat consumption in the U.S. increased from 17 pounds in 1940 to 29 pounds in 1956.

Community Has Plans For Youth
DODSON — The people in the Mountain Park community of Surry County are very much concerned about the future of their youth. For this reason they have decided to do something about it—build a community recreational area on a lot owned by the Mountain Park Baptist Church.

Assistant County Agent Charles Earnest says, "This is an excellent site for the recreational area, and has plenty of shade trees already on the lot." He explains, the people of the community plan to build a recreational building, thin the shade trees, establish a grass lawn, build a picnic area, and provide for outdoor and indoor games.

rock 'n' roll, comics and pulp magazines among American exports his country could do without. He told Johannesburg's American Luncheon Club: "In the past you also sent us the abomination of the jukebox. When I was minister for economic affairs, I put it on the prohibited list of imports. I sincerely hope my successor keeps it there, even if it means contravention of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — The stock market staged its second straight advance today with substantial gains scored in nearly all divisions.

Many pivotal stocks were ahead a point or two in early afternoon and a few did even better with gains up to 4 points recorded.

A good deal of the activity was centered in the steels. Bethlehem moved up 1 1/2 and U.S. Steel 1. Lukens Steel gained 5 on favorable dividend news but its advance was subsequently pared to 3 1/2.

Chrysler led a strong motors division with a one-point rise, while Goodrich paced the rubbers with an advance of 1 1/2.

Gulf Oil was a feature among the oils, up 4. Alcoa added 2 1/2 and International Paper 2 3/4.

Trading was at a pace of around 2,400,000 shares for the day, the same as yesterday.

At noon the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up $1.10 at $175.80.

Several reasons are being advanced on Wall Street today for the stock market's sudden show of strength. The favorite is among brokers right now is that the market has been influenced by "technical considerations." Hopes are being expressed that the long decline which started two months ago may have just about hit bottom, and that a rising trend may be in the works.

The first faint sign of a recovery movement were evident a few minutes before the close on Monday, just after the list had been hammered down for its worst loss in four months.

Yesterday the rally was on in earnest. With the Associated Press 60-stock average up $2.50 at $174.70, the market scored its biggest one-day rise since late in May.

States Righters Plan Nat'l Rally

WASHINGTON — Backers of an independent States Rights ticket in the coming election today announced formation of a national committee and plans for a "States Rights-tax reform rally" in Richmond, Va.

States Rights candidate for president is T. Coleman Andrews of Richmond, a former Internal Revenue commissioner under President Eisenhower. His running mate is former Republican Rep. Thomas H. Werdel of Bakersfield, Calif.—Andrews formerly listed himself as a Democrat.

The Andrews-Werdel ticket is supported by a number of independent political groups. The avowed aim of the movement is to try to throw the election into the House of Representatives and ultimately to win election of a "conservative" to the presidency.

Selection of 39 business, educational and professional figures from a national committee for the Andrews-Werdel campaign was announced by Clarence E. Manion and John U. Barr, the group's co-chairman.

Manion, of South Bend, Ind., is former dean of the Notre Dame Law School, Barr, of New Orleans is an industrialist.

They announced that at the rally in Richmond on Oct. 15 "candidates Andrews and Werdel will be notified of action taken in a number of states to draft them as acceptance speeches."

Manion and Barr also said a national headquarters of the Andrews-Werdel committee will be opened this week in Richmond.

They said a Washington headquarters already is functioning.

Manion and Barr said 14 states, 8 of them in the South, "have up to this time qualified independent presidential electors for president in their official ballots, and additional states may yet qualify electors." He did not list the 14.

Hearing Friday For Micro Chief

MICRO, N.C. — Police Chief Paul Medlin of Micro faces a preliminary hearing Friday on charges of attempting to rape a farm wife and assaulting her husband with a pistol.

Johnston County Sheriff Alvin Naron said Medlin, 39, was accused of threatening to kill Wilbert Radford if Mrs. Radford refused Medlin's advances. The Radfords live in Beulah Township.

Medlin is under $2,500 bond pending a hearing Friday before Magistrate E. C. Jones of Smithfield. Micro is about six miles northeast of Smithfield.

Dep. Naron quoted Radford, a tenant farmer, as saying Medlin "forced" Mrs. Radford in the Radford home while threatening and holding Radford at pistol point.

Naron also quoted Radford as saying he and Medlin had been drinking but were not drunk. The deputy said Mrs. Radford told him Medlin made her go outside and get into his car, but she managed to get away from him before he had gone far with his advances.

Naron said the police chief admitted being with Radford last Wednesday, the day of the alleged assault, but denied he threatened Radford or made improper advances toward the woman.

Officers said Medlin already is under a suspended sentence for assault on a 78-year-old woman, public drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

Large Number Of ECC Grads Now Teaching

East Carolina College assisted 501 graduates of the college in finding positions during the period of September 1, 1950-August 31, 1951, according to a report just released by Dr. J. L. Oppelt, director of the Bureau of Student Teaching and Placement.

Of those reporting their employment to the Bureau, 468, or approximately 94%, accepted positions in elementary or secondary schools or in colleges.

Among those choosing careers in education, 195 became teachers in kindergarten or the elementary grades. Of these, 108 are now teaching in grades one through eight, and one in kindergarten.

East Carolina graduates who during the period covered by the report indicated employment in secondary schools numbered 257. Three are serving as school principals, one as a superintendent's aide, two as school librarians, and three as supervisors of instruction.

Others in this group are teaching in various areas of instruction, including industrial arts, health and physical education, home economics, foreign languages, English, vocational agriculture, the social studies, science, mathematics, business education, art, and music.

Sixteen of those included in Dr. Oppelt's summary are now located in colleges. Thirteen hold positions in the fields of Air Force ROTC, business education, economics, English, or home economics.

The three others are employed as librarian director of men's housing, or dean of women.

Thirty-three of the graduates entered fields other than teaching. Positions include a wide variety of occupations, among them those of bank teller, cartographer, farmer, insurance adjuster, journalist, radio announcer, scout executive, public librarian, Federal revenue agent, sanitarian, and draftsman.

Many Cases Heard Here In Police Court Monday

By CHESTER WALSH

McCoy Joyner, Greenville Route 1, was convicted and sentenced on three counts in Monday's Police Court; and probable cause found on two other charges which will be sent up for hearing by the grand jury.

Joyner received six months on the roads for assaulting a police officer; 30 days (consecutive), sentence suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted as well as paying all medical and damage bills on a count of disorderly conduct; Another 30 days (consecutive), on a second charge of disorderly conduct, suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted, and payment of medical bills.

Charges which will be heard by the grand jury consist of two assaults with a deadly weapon (knife) with intent to kill.

Other cases heard Monday:

John H. Williams, Negro, paid court costs. The judgment provides that he shall not operate a truck of this type or "for hire" vehicle without a chauffeur's license. Williams also paid court costs for speeding and he is not to violate any motor vehicle law for six months.

Leaman Meeks, Negro, Route 4, paid $6.75 for having improper equipment.

McBourne D. Lewis, 1612 Oaklawn street, paid $6.75 for failure to stop at a traffic sign.

Johnnie Williams Jr., Route 2, careless and reckless driving, 30 days, suspended on payment of $50, costs deducted, and he is not to operate a motor vehicle for 60 days.

Speeding: Gus Pettaway, Negro, Route 6, $10; Samuel E. Greene, Negro, 30 days suspended on payment of $50 costs deducted. Kenneth F. Courchaine, Chelmsford, Mass., costs.

Drunk: Clarence Pridgen, address unknown, $15; Warrick King, Negro, Winterville, called and he failed to answer. Instant capias issued. Edmund Phillips, Negro, Winterville, $10; Sonny B. Teel, city, $10; Charley Vines, Negro, 30 days or $10; Charley Landen, Village Grove, city, $10; J. L. Dixon, 122 Evans street, $10; a possession of non-tax paid whiskey was combined with this case. Otto Joyner, Negro, Route 1, 30 days or $10; John Dupree, Negro, 610 Pitt street, 30 days or $10.

William Cobb, Negro, 605 Williams street driving drunk, six months, suspended on payment of $150 and costs. He is not to operate a motor vehicle for two years. The court recommended that his driver's license be revoked for two years. For not having an operator's license, the court gave Cobb 30 days (concurrent), suspended on payment of costs and he is not to drive without a license.

Disorderly conduct: Jesse Williams, Route 5, 30 days, suspended on payment of $20, costs deducted. The judgment provides that he shall not visit any business place or residence of North Evans street or East Second street for six months. Willie D. Rodgers, Negro, Grimesland, paid costs and is to behave for six months. James A. King, Negro, 1209-B Greene street, 90 days, suspended on payment of $50, costs deducted and he is not to violate any law for two years. The shotgun was ordered confiscated and sold.

Affray: John J. Parker, Negro, 105 West First street, and James E. Jenkins, Negro, 128 North Colanthe street, the court taxed each with court costs and they are to behave for six months. L. W. Rogers, Negro, 506-B McKinley avenue, Negro, and Robert L. Walker, Negro, 108 West Moore street, each paid court costs.

James Banks, Negro, Allen's Alley, assaulting Lillie Mae Edison, Negro, with a bottle, 30 days, suspended on payment of costs, and he is not to harm his victim.

David L. Teel, Negro, 901 Legion street, larceny of $25, six months, suspended on payment of $25 to Wilton Cox. The judgment also provides that he is not to violate any law for two years and he was placed on probation two years.

Robert L. Williams, Negro, 408-B 15th street, 30 days suspended on payment of costs and he is not to visit the house of Annie Lee Harper, Negro, for 12 months.

Theodore Wilson, Negro, 110 E. First street, no operator's license, paid costs and he is not to drive without a license.

Rotarians Hear Publisher Speak

D. J. Whichard Jr., president and publisher of The Daily Reflector, addressed the Greenville Rotary Club at its meeting Monday night in conjunction with national newspaper week.

Termining the newspaper "freedom's key to better living" Whichard pointed out that in this country the concepts of a free press and a free society developed together. "Through the freedom of the press to report the news, people are kept informed about their activities of government from the national to the local level. In the light of this free flow of information they are able to make their free choices for better government."

The speaker asserted that in totalitarian countries people are allowed to know only what officials want them to know because the press is controlled by government. Once the press of a nation becomes enslaved, he said, the enslavement of the people by the government follows quickly.

"It is not the responsibilities of newspapers alone to preserve this freedom of the press," Whichard declared. "It is the key to our other freedoms it must be guarded not only by those whose job it is to disseminate the news, but also by the people throughout the nation who look to newspapers for this information. In a very real sense every newspaper belongs to the people of the community and area which it serves."

Through its news, features editorials and advertisements, Whichard said, the newspaper contributes to the health, happiness and welfare of the people of the community it serves.

the one being held tonight. The reason for this parent training is that the Cub Scout program is a "home centered" program. The different projects Cub Scouts do to earn awards and recognition are done in or around the home. The mother or father signs the Cub's advancement book upon completion of a project."

In charge of the meeting Wednesday night will be Charles Gaskins, Organization and Extension Chairman for Pitt District Scouting. Assisting Gaskins will be Dr. Keith Holmes, Leadership Training Chairman, and Carl Knott.

A twenty minute movie on Cub Scouting will be shown and displays of Cubbing literature will be in the charge of Frank Steinback, Scout Commissioner.

Seeking Charter For Scout Troop

The Boy Scout Troop Committee of St. Paul's Episcopal Church has filed an application with the local Scout Council for a charter for the troop of Scouts which it is sponsoring, according to an announcement made by Chairman Carl Wade.

Led by Scoutmaster Dale Gidley and Assistant Scoutmaster Roger Mann, the troop began activities two weeks ago with the following charter members: Tom Duncan, Bill Wade, Allen Van Dyke, Chris Heller, John Nixon, Dallas Clark, Phillip Savage, Jimmy Newman and James Poindexter. Since that time the number has increased to seventeen.

Members of the Troop Committee, in addition to Chairman Wade, are Robert Hunt, James Poindexter, Percy Ashby, Charles Whedbee, Charles Bissett and Mac Simpson. Erskine Duff is Institutional Representative.

Methodist Men's Club Hears Dr. Franzoni

Church people were asked to help the Mental Health Clinic by referring persons needing the clinic and by helping to remove, by education of the public, the stigma now associated in many people's minds with those who attend the clinic when Dr. Joseph Franzoni, Director of the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic, spoke to the dinner meeting of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Men's Club last night at the church in Fellowship Hall.

Dr. Franzoni also told the churchmen that there has been 1,421 visits to the clinic by 222 persons seeking treatment from twenty-one counties in East Carolina.

He further told them that those needing treatment had been referred by the Welfare Department, preachers, lawyers, some private citizens and many just came themselves. The largest percentage of patients have come from Pitt County — 153.

"Comfort, aid, and counseling can be done by many people in the church as well as the preachers," he explained. Then he went on to say that many people just wanted an attentive listener but that many preachers were getting training in counseling so that they were able to tell those who needed further treatment. The psychiatrist pointed out the growing interest among the ministry in the United States in getting training in counseling.

Quick treatment brings about rapid recovery and the average citizen must learn to adjust to the accepting back into normal relations persons who have suffered a complete break-down and recovered, he urged.

Dr. Franzoni announced that he would soon start a workshop for ministers in the area who wish training in counseling. He said he

Dislike Of Wife Seems Constant

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Robert McGee, 47, of Columbus apparently doesn't like his wife very well.

In 1951, McGee was convicted on a charge of assaulting to kill his wife and was sentenced to Ohio Penitentiary. He served five years before being paroled last March. Yesterday McGee was convicted in common pleas court of arson in a July fire at his wife's home. He was sentenced to one to seven years in the penitentiary.

Commented assistant prosecutor Fred W. Newsom: "At least he's persistent."

Training In Cub Program Slated

A Training Program on Cub Scouting will be held tonight at 7:30 at the St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

The Cub Scout Program is the younger boy program of the Boy Scouts of America. A boy can become a Cub at age 8 and remain in during the time he is 9 and 10. When he becomes 11 years of age he is graduated from Cub Scouting into a Boy Scout Troop, if he wishes to remain a Scout.

Said Carl Knott, Pitt District Scout Executive: "In order for an 8, 9 or 10-year-old boy to become a Cub Scout, his parents (at least one) must attend a session like
