

Bad Conduct Discharge Of McKeon Lifted By Thomas

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Thomas has decided to allow Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon to stay in the Marines, as a private, so McKeon can "build for himself a useful and honorable career."

McKeon, 31, said after he learned of Thomas' action yesterday "I will try to be the very best private in the Marine Corps."

Thomas ordered cancellation of a bad conduct discharge and cut other penalties ordered for McKeon Aug. 3 after a court-martial had convicted the drill instructor of charges growing out of the drowning of six Marine recruits during a night disciplinary march at Parris Island, S.C., April 8.

After reviewing the case, Thomas said he was convinced McKeon got a "fair trial in every respect." But the Navy secretary wiped out the bad conduct discharge, reduced McKeon's confinement from nine months to three, and set aside a $270 fine, saying "for him I believe that the real punishment will always be the memory of Ribon Creek," where the six young "boots" died.

Thomas said he agreed with the seven-man court that McKeon, a veteran of 11 years in the Marines, had "failed to exercise reasonable care for the safety" of the 74 men in the platoon he led into the tidal creek. McKeon was convicted of negligent homicide and drinking on duty.

The Navy secretary affirmed McKeon's reduction in rank to private, saying this would involve a "much more substantial loss" than the fine.

Although sentenced to three months' confinement, McKeon will have to serve only one month in the Parris Island brig. He was scheduled to start serving it today.

A Navy legal officer said the two months McKeon has spent "in the status of arrest" will be counted as part of the confinement period.

Since his court martial, McKeon has been living, under restrictions, with his wife and three children at their home near the Parris Island base.

In throwing out the bad conduct discharge, the most severe part of the sentence, Thomas said he was giving McKeon the "opportunity to build for himself a useful and honorable career." The secretary added "I hope and believe that he will avail himself on this opportunity."

Reached at his home, McKeon said "I believe it is a very just sentence and a very fair sentence." In New York, Emile Zola Berman, McKeon's attorney, said he feels "this sentence meets the needs of the case."

McKeon, who hails from Worcester, Mass., said he was happy Thomas had revoked the bad conduct discharge because "I'd hate to have to carry that around in my hip pocket for the rest of my life."

Reunited With Stolen Baby

Mrs. Lois Bucher, 21, cuddles her month-old son, Ronald Joseph, after police recovered the child unharmed in a Southwest Side home in Chicago. Police found the baby with Mrs. Gladys Bynum, 24, in a basement apartment she shares with her husband, Charles. Unidentified neighbor children look on.

Eight Convicted Of Big Brinks Robbery

BOSTON (AP)—A Suffolk Superior Court jury early today convicted eight men of taking part in the $1,219,000 Brinks' robbery — the largest cash haul in the nation's history.

They face a maximum of life imprisonment.

The all-male jury deliberated 3 hours and 27 minutes before convicting seven of the eight defendants of armed robbery—meaning they actually participated in the Jan. 17, 1950 looting.

The eighth—Joseph F. McGinnis, 52, termed by the prosecution as the "brains"—was convicted as an accessory before the fact of armed robbery and accessory to breaking and entering, which carry the same penalty.

McGinnis was acquitted of armed robbery and breaking and entering charges by directed verdict before the case went to the jury at 10:33 p.m. last night.

Convicted after the nine-week trial as participants were Anthony Pino, 48; Vincent J. Costa, 41; Michael V. Geagan, 47; Adolph Maffie, 44; Henry Baker, 49; James I. Faherty, 44; and Thomas F. Richardson, 48. All are from greater Boston.

"Of course we are going to appeal," chief defense counsel Paul T. Smith said. "We have 21 days to file that appeal. These have been nine long weeks and we want a few days to get straightened out."

When jury foreman Thomas F. Donahue, 43, read the guilty verdicts, McGinnis' wife collapsed. Faherty's sister buried her head in a handkerchief. A woman relative of another defendant screamed.

Tuesday morning was fixed as the day of sentencing. In his final argument, Dist. Atty. Garrett H. Byrne referred to the defendants as "potential murderers, men who would destroy everything that is decent."

He called Joseph J. (Specs) O'Keefe, the state's star witness who has pleaded guilty to participating in the robbery, a man who "came here without any fears or promises . . . he may be anything you want to call him but he came in here and he didn't have to." Chief defense counsel Paul T.

Smith castigated O'Keefe, who lived in the Roxbury section of Boston, as a "liar . . . a poor orphan of the storm . . . the Roxbury songbird."

When O'Keefe took the stand "there was the greatest dramatic production in the history of trials in the Commonwealth," Smith told the jury.

With the eight convicted O'Keefe's status and future prospects still remained a question mark. He has pleaded guilty to armed robbery in the case but has yet to be arraigned.

During his summation yesterday, District Atty. Byrne said authorities have made "no deal" with O'Keefe.

The all-male jury was selected from a venire of 2,000 talesman, called in groups of 100.

Seventeen court days were needed before the panel of 14 finally was completed Aug. 29.

The prosecution's case was pegged largely on the story of O'Keefe, 48, Boston hoodlum with a record of 70 arrests, who pleaded guilty to the robbery and named the defendants as accomplices in the nation's biggest cash haul.

McKeon Says He'll Try Be 'Best' Pvt

By BEM PRICE

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP)—Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon, 31, greeted his court-martial sentence review with the calm declaration "I'll try to be the very best private in the Marine Corps."

The ex-drill instructor who marked six Marine recruits to their death in a tidal creek here last April 8 enters the Parris Island brig today. His nine-month prison sentence was cut to three months yesterday by Navy Secretary Charles Thomas.

However, the Worcester, Mass., native will only have to serve until Nov. 4 because two months already have elapsed since he was sentenced by general court-martial here.

But the "big load taken off my back," according to McKeon, is the bad conduct discharge which Thomas set aside.

Said McKeon: "I'd hate to have to carry that around in my hip pocket for the rest of my life."

McKeon's sentence, as approved by the Navy secretary, is the prison term and reduction to private. Of this, McKeon said: "I believe it is a very just sentence and a very fair sentence. I believed from the beginning I'd be down to private and I will try to be the very best private in the Marine Corps."

Asked if he thought he would ever get his sergeant stripes back, McKeon replied: "I like to command troops—and I'll never get to command troops again."

The tall, sandy-haired career Marine was shielded from news yesterday for about five hours by two Catholic chaplains who barred reporters from McKeon and his pretty wife, Betty.

One of the chaplains, Lt. Cmdr. Anthony Bielski, accused a newsman of seeking to "crucify this man, a human being." It was McKeon, himself, who broke the deadlock between the chaplains and reporters.

Fire Truck, Auto Collide Friday

A city fire truck was involved in a collision with an automobile at Tenth and Evans Sts. yesterday afternoon.

The truck, operated by Delma Culbreth of 205B E. Tenth St., received about $15 damage.

The car which was operated by Helen Anne Parkinson, 906 E. Tenth St., received an estimated $200 damage.

Police reported that the car operated by Miss Parkinson was pulling from a parking space when the accident occurred. The fire truck was headed north on Evans.

Investigating the accident was P. C. H. Stubbs.

Late yesterday afternoon a truck operated by Mitchell Williams Aclim, Negro, of 436A W. Third St., overturned on N. Greene St. Damage amounted to approximately $75.

Around 5:22 p.m. yesterday vehicles operated by James M. Windham of Greenville, R. 4 and Ames W. Harrell of 1502 Elm St. were involved in a crash on Dickinson Ave. Windham's vehicle received approximately $40 damage. Harrell's vehicle was undamaged.

A truck operated by Lester Brown, Negro, of 1312 Railroad St., struck a parked car owned by Bett Gray of 1205 S. Overlook Dr. during the afternoon. Damage to Gray's vehicle was estimated at $80.

Investigating Patrolman C. H. Stubbs charged Brown with operating a vehicle with no drivers license.

FIRE ALARM

ATHOL, Mass. (AP)—Sleeping Robert W. Cowdry was awakened by the crash of a falling picture in his living room. Investigating, he found the whole wall partition afire. Flames had eaten through the picture cord, triggering the "fire alarm." Damage was held to $250.

Dulles Calls For Just, Peaceful Accord On Suez

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (AP)—

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today urged a just as well as peaceful settlement of the Suez Canal dispute which would deny Egypt any opportunity "to extract tribute" from other countries.

"No nation should be required to live under an economic sword of Damocles," he said in an address on the problems of peace prepared for a special convocation at Williams College.

Dulles came here from New York, where the U.N. Security Council started discussion yesterday of problems arising from Egyptian President Nasser's seizure of the waterway last July 26.

Dulles said the Suez Canal "is in an almost literal sense a life-line" to many nations.

Without spelling out what a settlement should provide, Dulles stressed there should be "no risk of overt or covert discrimination" in any solution against these countries whose ships travel through the waterway.

Referring to Egypt's sudden seizure of it, he said:

"The Egyptian government took this action under conditions which suggested an intention to exercise this control not in the general interest but to control the so-called grandeur of Egypt by being able to exert economic pressures upon other countries and to extract tribute from them."

Dulles termed "natural and proper" what he said was the "strong worldwide sentiment against using force" to block Egypt's move. "But those who are concerned about peace ought to be equally concerned about justice," he added.

Without direct reference to the Suez problem, Dulles said the world lives "under the shadow of war" not only today but perhaps for a long time to come.

Raced 111-MPH For Emergency Hospital Care

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—An infant girl was in critical condition today after being rushed to Johns Sealy Hospital yesterday at speeds of up to 111-miles per hour for an operation on her throat to save her life.

The 4-day-old girl, Darla Swensen, of San Benito, Tex., was driven to the hospital by her grandfather, Ernest Hector.

Police said Hector made the 400-mile trip in 4 hours, 26 minutes. A nurse in the car administered oxygen to the child during the trip.

A hospital spokesman said the child's condition is not rare. The esophagus, joining the mouth with the stomach, and the trachea, or windpipe, are one tube in a state shortly before birth and they later divide. In the condition the girl had the division was imperfect.

More Heartbreak After Kidnaping

CHICAGO (AP)—A woman who padded herself with blankets to appear pregnant, and then stole an infant to make it appear she gave birth, has been charged with kidnapping.

The month-old baby boy was returned unharmed yesterday to his mother, Lois Bucher, 21, 14 hours after being taken by Mrs. Gladys Bynum, 24. The attendant publicity disclosed that the child's father, Tom, had deserted his first wife and their five children.

After photographs appeared in newspapers of the father and mother of the abducted baby, another woman told authorities that Tom Bucher was really her husband, Thomas Paterinos, 31, and that he had deserted her and their five children 22 months ago.

He admitted the accusations and also admitted he had never legally married Mrs. Bucher. He was charged with nonsupport, adultery and child abandonment.

Authorities said Mrs. Bynum, who has been charged with kidnapping Ronald Bucher, started telling neighbors and friends a month ago that she was going to have a baby.

Her husband of five years, Charles, a bus driver, was quoted by police as saying he didn't know whether his wife was pregnant.

Police said Mrs. Bucher Thursday left Mrs. Bynum alone in the Bucher home with her baby. When she returned, Mrs. Bynum and the infant were missing.

Some 400 police canvassed the area yesterday and found Norbert Kowalski, who reported a woman carrying an infant had asked him for a ride to her home. He led police to the Bynum home, about four miles from the Bucher home, and found the infant with Mrs. Bynum.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The first Convair F102s, supersonic jet interceptors capable of firing rockets with atomic warheads, to be stationed on the East Coast will go to the 42nd Squadron at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, Goldsboro, N.C.

Brig. Gen. Emmett F. Yost, commander of the Continental Air Defense Command's 85th Air Division, Andrews Air Force Base, Md., said the new fighters will arrive at the North Carolina base shortly after Jan. 1.

The next two squadrons to get the delta-wing F102s will be the 48th at Langley Air Force Base, Va., and the 95th at Andrews near Washington.

Col. James F. Kirkendall, chief of the command's plans division, said that the Convair F102 and McDonnell F101 will be able to use rockets with atomic warheads when such weapons are developed.

Such a capability would make interceptor planes defending the United States infinitely more powerful than they are now.

The only squadron of F102s now in operation is at George Air Force Base, near Victorville, Calif.

Wins Big Race On A Shoestring

GEORGETOWN, Ky. (AP)—

Rickey Carroll, 9, won his big race on a shoestring.

The lad advanced to the finals of the annual soap box derby, but part of his car's mechanism broke. Builder Ralph May tied the broken part with his shoestring and Rickey took the 310-foot event with a two foot lead.

Safety Council Committees Are Designated

A partial list of committees was read to members of the Pitt County Safety Council at their second meeting Thursday.

In announcing the committee appointments, Council Chairman Badger Johnson pointed out that the list was not complete and other members would be announced in the near future.

The Council also heard a report on the safety program of College View Cleaners by Guy Langston, the firm's safety director. Langston pointed out that since the program was launched three years ago the firm has made great strides, not only in reducing motor vehicle accidents but improving safety conditions within the plant.

Fire Prevention Week, October 7-13, and said as a part of the program city firemen would inspect businesses and buildings to familiarize themselves in case of fire.

L. M. Buchanan reported on a recent meeting at which the necessity of a driver training program in schools was discussed. He said that Robert T. Ellett, Jr., Driver Education Promoter of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company of Winston-Salem, will be invited to speak to the Council at its November meeting.

Dr. Walter Humbert, Council vice-chairman, urged as many members as possible to attend the fifth annual State Rural Health Conference in Raleigh next Thursday. Humbert will be the Council's official representative at the meeting.

Committee appointments announced by Johnson included:

Finance: Dr. Walter Humbert, L. M. Buchanan, Chief S. G. Gibbs, Larry Brown and Elizabeth Deal.

Program: L. M. Buchanan, Leonard P. Bixham, Charles Whedbee, Dr. Walter Humbert, Captain S. H. Mitchell, Guy Langston and Corey Stokes.

Eisenhower Raps Adlai's Proposal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Adlai Stevenson's repeated proposals to halt or limit U.S. H-bomb tests "can lead only to confusion at home and misunderstanding abroad," President Eisenhower said last night.

In an obvious reply to Stevenson—but without mentioning the Democratic presidential candidate by name—Eisenhower issued a statement expressing regret the nuclear testing program has become a campaign issue.

In the absence of foolproof agreements with other nations, Eisenhower said, resting of atomic weapons "has been—and continues to be—an indispensable part of our defense program."

Stevenson, meanwhile, carried his energetic campaign to Providence, R.I., today and scheduled a series of speeches in Massachusetts.

The former Illinois governor told a cheering Yale University audience last night he expected to win the presidency without the "soft-soap slogans, gimmicks," and other "infernal machines of modern high-pressure politics."

Stevenson told the Yale men Vice President Nixon is campaigning with "threadbare shouts" against socialism. Stevenson said he doesn't think voters will be impressed much more "than they were two years ago by his loud shouts against communism."

Eisenhower reported, was working on another blast at Stevenson—this time a criticism of Stevenson's position on the military draft—for release sometime today.

Stevenson has contended the draft should be ended "at the earliest possible moment consistent with the national safety." Both Eisenhower and Nixon said earlier there is no safe immediate prospect of doing so.

Sen. Estes Kefauver, Stevenson's vice presidential running mate, also hit at Republicans yesterday on another phase of the atomic program. Kefauver charged that Lewis L. Strauss "has been engaged in one long deception" as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

This was Kefauver's answer to a demand by Strauss that Kefauver either support or withdraw recent charges that the United States has fallen behind other nations in the race to develop electricity from atomic fuel.

Sp. ing of the H-bomb F. Jos. als, Eisenhower said this nation "has consistently affirmed and affirmed its readiness—indeed, its strong will—to restrict and control" testing, and use of nuclear weapons.

Survived

CHERRY POINT (AP)—Pfc. David K. Ward was sucked into the air intake of an F3D jet airplane at this Marine Corps Air Station and survived.

Ward, 20-year-old son of Mrs. Virginia Ward of New York City, suffered a compression fracture of a vertebra. He was reported in good condition today at the Naval Hospital at Camp Lejeune.

The airman literally was pulled into the intake by the seat of his breeches. An engineering officer said that had the Marine been pulled in either head or feet first his body probably would have cleared the starter housing unit and been cut to ribbons by engine turbine blades.

Ward was working on the plane Tuesday when he apparently passed too close to the right air intake duct, which generates terrific suction. His doubled-up body shut off the supply of air and the engine died.

Mint's Mistake Makes A Rarity

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Put enough silver for a quarter in the U.S. Mint's 50-cent machine and what have you got? One of the rarest, and most valuable, coins in the world, says coin dealer George Creed.

Creed found the coin in a bag of half-dollars he got from the Philadelphia mint. It has 50-cent piece markings, is smaller than a half-dollar and thinner than a dime. The mint offered the too-little-silver-too-much-machine explanation. Creed said the market value of the coin can be compared with that of a unique British Guiana stamp issued in 1865—about $50,000. He's not selling, though.

THE BLONDE DIED DANCING

by KELLEY ROOS

CHAPTER 15

I hastily withdrew into the closet when I saw Mr. Bell and Miss Webb kissing.

I tried to make myself as comfortable as possible. It looked as though I might be here for some time. It was all right for them. You can live on love. But me, I was without food or water.

"Darling," I heard Leone gasp, "it's so horrible, happening now, now when everything was going to be so perfect for us."

"I know, my dear," Bell cooed. "I know."

"Can't we go through with it anyhow, just what happens? No one need find out."

"But they would find out, my angel. The papers would get hold of it, those infernal columnists."

"What if they did? I wouldn't care."

"But how would it look, Leone, think of appearances. This shabby business about Anita, my school involved. And you and I running off to be married in the middle of it. It would seem so very callous."

"Yes, of course you're right, Oliver. As a matter of fact, I come home with me? Now, I mean, my lovely apartment's there, waiting for us."

"Please," Bell pleaded, "please. Leone, we mustn't risk any gossip. His voice turned playfully, coyly severe. "And I must say your behavior just now during business hours... really, Miss Webb!"

"So sorry, Mr. Bell," Leone was mocking her own efficiency. "We won't let it happen again, will we? Well, just once more. Now, for instance..."

After a long moment and some small murmurs, I heard a click and then the sound of a door opening and closing. I opened my door and shot through the darkened conference room. I got my gloves, hat, coat and purse out of my locker. I had a few things, which might or might not mean anything, to report to Steve.

The elevator was so crowded that when its operator implored his passengers to face the front it was all I could do to obey. Then I wished I hadn't. My nose was practically flattened against the back of a young man's neck. As I pulled back my head and my eyes focused, I eliminated Mr. Bell. Ear-wise, this couldn't be he. Besides, Bell was taller, older. Then I eliminated Bob Spencer. Neck-wise, Bob was frailer, shouldered, too. This young man had an athletic cast to him... and then I had it.

This was the young man whose voice I had first heard in Studio J, next heard making a phony excuse to a policeman for his presence at 11 Rhinebeck Place. This was a young man I wanted to know more about.

It soon developed that this was a young man in a hurry. Almost before I knew it I was chasing after him through the chill December night... up Madison Avenue, down into an Independent Subway Station, onto an E train bound for Long Island. My maneuvering to keep out of his sight proved unnecessary. He was slouched down in his seat. His hat was pushed so far back off his juvenile, clean-cut face that his crew cut was showing. He was scowling at the floor as though he disapproved of it. He was so engrossed in his own troubles that I could have sat on his lap without his noticing it.

We had a nice, long subway ride together.

He almost missed his stop; he came to just in time. I was lucky to get out between the closing doors. We were in Kew Gardens. I wondered, nervously, what in the world we were doing in Kew Gardens.

He walked rapidly through a business district. I stayed across the street from him. In the middle of the last block of stores, before the terrain went purely residential, was a still lighted stationery-tobacco type shop. He disappeared into it, leaving me with my mouth open, gazing for air. I leaned gratefully against a hobby shop window and waited.

Five minutes later he was still in there. The store had no side exits that he might have used. I was sure that he hadn't known I was following him, so he wouldn't have asked to use the store's rear exit to elude me. I decided I had better investigate. I crossed the street, eased up to the glass door and saw immediately that, except for the chubby, youngish woman behind the counter, the store was empty. My man had gone.

I went into the store. There was a phone booth in the corner; there was no one in it. "Yes, miss?" The lady's voice was sweet as sugar. "Can I help you?"

"I saw a young fellow come in here a few minutes ago. I thought I recognized him."

"You mean Jack Walston? He's the last person came in."

"Yes! Jack Walston! I haven't seen him for years."

"Not for years, huh? Where'd you know Jack?"

"We... we went to school together."

"Really?" The lady was so pleased it made me wish Jack and I had gone to school together.

"Grade or high?"

"Grade."

"I thought it must be grade. Because I don't remember you. You see, Jack and I went to high school together. Flushing High. Course he was a few years behind me. He was in my kid sister's class."

"Imagine me seeing Jack again!"

"Yes, after all these years!"

"He was a awful cute kid."

"And still is! Too bad you missed him."

"Where did he go?"

"Out the back way. He just stopped in to pick up the car keys."

"Well, Jack's doing all right! He's got a car now."

"No, he's borrowing my husband's. He's got to go to New Haven tomorrow. Up near New Haven."

"Oh, New Haven."

"That's right. Say, what's your name? You didn't tell me."

I said the first name that was coming into my mind nowadays. "Hester Frost."

"Well, Hester, maybe you could catch Jack... but, no, I guess not. It's only a little ways to the garage."

"He'd be gone by now, you mean."

"Yes. Too bad."

"Yes, what's Jack doing these days?"

"He's a teacher at the Crescent Dancing School."

"Oh, Crescent. I've heard of it."

"It's just temporary."

"And is Jack married?"

"Not yet." She smiled proudly at me. "He's going to marry my kid sister."

"Well, congratulations!"

"Thanks. They been sweethearts since high. They used to be a dance team. Maybe you caught their act someplace. Mostly in clubs around Long Island here. Harris and Walston."

"Harris," I said.

"Dottie Harris. Don't tell me you knew her, too!"

"Dottie Harris," I said. "Dottie Harris."

"She teaches at the Crescent School, too."

"Now I was waiting places. My trip to Kew Gardens had been worth while. At least I knew why Dottie Harris had been able to give me the runaround. It hadn't been a student who I had overheard talking with her in Studio J. Part of what she said had been the truth; she actually had had no lesson at that hour. She had been speaking to a fellow teacher, her fiancé, Jack Walston.

I had also discovered that whatever it was that Jack had wanted in Anita's apartment, Dottie knew about it. And whatever it might be, it concerned in some degree fashion the two of them.

Somebody's Neighbor

He probably doesn't look much like the man next door. He does his arithmetic with the aid of a centuries-old gadget called the abacus, and he writes the results in characters that would be quite undecipherable to you... yet you probably have far more in common with him than you'd ever dream.

Like you, he wants peace. Like you, he wants a good future for his children, and he wants them to have more than he has had. Like you, he has experienced happiness and sorrow, love and disillusionment. Like you, he prays.

On World Wide Communion Sunday, he will be going to Church and, though this may seem a bit odd to you, he will be praying for you. Yes... for you, and for everyone else in the world, friend or enemy.

Why not join him? Why not, on World Wide Communion Sunday, go to your own church and include him... him and everyone else... in your prayers.

Pray for peace, too. Remember, the power of prayer is a wonderful thing... especially when it is given many voices.

PTA City Council Plans For District Meet Here

Representatives from member associations of District No. 10 of the N. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers will convene in Greenville Wednesday morning for their annual meeting.

The local school P.T.A.'s, comprised of Wahl-Coates, West Greenville, Third Street and Elmhurst units, coordinated through the P.T.A. City Council, will be hosts.

The meeting will convene at 10 a.m. with registration beginning at 9:30 a.m. at the Memorial Baptist Church. Following the general meeting, luncheon will be served at the Woman's Club at 1 p.m. There will be no afternoon session.

The City Council met Thursday morning to complete plans, delegate duties and make committee assignments to the several school units.

With Mrs. W. C. Hollowell, president, presiding and Mrs. Kenneth Brown as secretary the following committees were appointed: Registration: Mrs. Amos Evans, president, West Greenville P.T.A. chairman, assisted by her hospitality chairman;

Hospitality: Mrs. Sam Underwood Jr., president Elmhurst P.T.A. chairman, assisted by her hospitality chairman; Decorations: Mrs. Dave Mosier, president Third Street P.T.A. chairman, assisted by her hospitality chairman.

Luncheon: Mrs. Lacy Harrell, president of Wahl-Coates P.T.A. chairman, assisted by her hospitality chairman.

Publicity: Mrs. W. C. Hollowell. The council voiced the hope that many Greenville P.T.A. members will attend the meeting and luncheon and assist in receiving the out-of-town guests.

Reservations for lunch should be made by Tuesday noon through Mrs. Lacy Harrell, dial 4641; Mrs. Amos Evans, dial 5301, or Mrs. Sam Underwood Jr., dial 2325.

The program will start at 7:15 with a fellowship sing, followed by the worship service, discussion groups and recreation. This schedule will be followed on Sunday, Monday and Wednesday nights.

Because of the conflict with the county fair, Tuesday services were scheduled for 7:00 o'clock Tuesday morning when a breakfast will precede the morning service.

Thursday night the activities will terminate with a communion service.

Rev. LaFon Vereen, of Farmville, will lead the recreation. Discussion leaders will be Bill Norwood and Mrs. J. Herbert Waldrop of Greenville.

"We want to make this the most successful Youth Activities Week Jarvis Memorial has ever had. We hope it will really mean something to those who take part," states Judy Ferris, member of the youth council.

Members of other Greenville churches and members of Methodist churches in the area are expected.

Services Tomorrow In New Quarters

NEW MISSION HOME—The Rev. Frank Davenport (left) of Kinston and Henry C. Hagans set up a sign in front of the new quarters of the East Greenville Free Will Baptist Mission. First services in the Mission House will be tomorrow when Sunday School begins at 9:45 and Morning Worship opens at 11 o'clock. The East Greenville F.W.B. Mission was established this summer under the sponsorship of the Mission Board of the Central Conference of the Free Will Baptist Church. (Reflector Staff Photo.)

welcomed back the members. Minutes were read as was a treasurer's report and business transacted.

A discussion of the books selected for the coming year by the book committee was given by Mrs. Sally Mann of Sheppard Memorial Library, who reviewed briefly each book and its author.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. James, served a salad course with coffee.

Rector To Be Installed At St. Paul's Tonight

St. Paul's Episcopal Church on 400 East Fourth Street will have the Office of Institution of Ministers for the Rev. John W. Drake Jr. into the parish at 8:00 p.m. on Saturday evening.

The service will begin with the procession of the choir and acolytes. Evening Prayer will be read followed by the actual Institution of the new rector.

The Right Reverend Thomas H. Wright, D. D. of Wilmington, Bishop of East Carolina, will officiate at the ancient service as recorded in the Book of Common Prayer.

The Bishop will read a Letter of Institution according to the ancient form. F. D. Duncan, Senior Warden of St. Paul's, will make the formal presentation of the keys to the church.

Bishop Wright will present the new rector with a Bible, a Book of Common Prayer and books of the Canons of the General Diocesan Convention. These are called the instruments setting forth the laws of the Church.

Following several prayers by the Bishop, the newly instituted Minister, kneeling at the altar, will present his prayer of supplication for himself. There will be the sermon of Bishop Wright in his address of welcome.

The parish will entertain with a formal reception in the parish house following the service in the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Horne Jr. will greet the guests at the front door. The receiving line will be composed of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Duncan, Bishop and Mrs. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Drake, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harrington and Mr. and Mrs. Charles White.

Receiving in the dining room will be Dr. and Mrs. Dan Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whedbee and Mr. and Mrs. K. G. Harris.

Mrs. Carl Wade will pour punch and Miss Hennie Long the coffee. Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Hunt will say goodbyes.

The reception rooms will be decorated with berries and fall leaves with yellow marigolds and yellow mums.

The regular services of the church will begin with Holy Communion at 7:30 a.m. and Choral Service of Holy Communion at 11:00 a.m. and Evensong at 5:30 p.m. each Sunday.

Social Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Jeter J. Cox will leave tomorrow for Western North Carolina and points north.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Roebuck will travel to Norfolk tomorrow for a first look at their grandson, Harry Lee Plummer, III. The infant's mother is the former Miss Elizabeth Annette Roebuck.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Jennings, 500-A East Eighth Street, are spending the weekend with his parents in Elizabeth City.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Singleton and daughter Linda are leaving this afternoon for a weekend in Richmond, Va. They will visit Mrs. Singleton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. George.

Friends of Mrs. Lillie Bell Ross will regret to learn she is a patient at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Luncheon Reservations Those wishing to make reservations for District 10 P.T.A. luncheon for Oct. 10 at 1:00 to be held at the Woman's Club should call before Tuesday noon Mrs. Sam Underwood Jr., 2325; Mrs. Lacy Harrell, 4641; or Mrs. Amos Evans, 5301.

WMU Speaker Named

Discussion Groups Planned

Parents and adult workers with youth are invited to the discussion groups for them during Youth Activities Week beginning Sunday night at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Mrs. J. H. Waldrop, senior department superintendent, will be the leader for this adult group discussion.

The senior high discussion group will be led by the Rev. Ralph Fleming Jr., pastor of St. James Methodist Church in Newport.

The Rev. Mr. Fleming, who is serving as director of youth work in the New Bern District of the Methodist Church, is a young graduate of Duke Divinity School.

Bill Norwood, a Methodist Youth Fellowship Counselor at St. James here in Greenville, will lead the junior high discussion group.

Each group will meet immediately following the worship services Sunday, Monday and Wednesday nights.

Youth Activities Week, Oct. 7-11, has been planned and is being carried out by the Senior MYF Council of which Nancy Brown is president.

Reasonable Approach By Scheidt

North Carolina needs a "common sense" safety program along the lines of that proposed by Motor Vehicles Commissioner Ed Scheidt for consideration of the 1957 General Assembly.

It is most unlikely that the people of the state will accept all the proposals made by Commissioner Scheidt, but most of them are in fact demanded when the "common sense" approach is taken to North Carolina's highway safety problem.

Commissioner Scheidt has proposed:

1. Increasing the strength of the Highway Patrol by 100 men.
2. A "common sense" motor vehicle inspection law.
3. Addition of unmarked patrol cars to the present black and white fleet.
4. Authority to use chemical tests in driving drunk cases.
5. Making racing on the highways a felony under the law with heavier fines and sentences than now provided.
6. Plugging holes in the financial responsibility law that now allow "irresponsible" drivers to keep their operators licenses until their cases are heard in Superior Court.

With the increased traffic on North Carolina's highways, the construction of new roads and continuous addition of miles of highway to the state's system, more men are obviously needed to do an adequate patrolling job. The request for an additional 100 men for the Highway Patrol does not appear excessive. As it is now the patrol has inadequate personnel to keep the proper vigil on the highways. The inadequacy is being compounded year by year as the number of vehicles increases.

The Reflector has been and still is in favor of permitting the Highway Patrol to use a limited number of unmarked vehicles in its work on the roads. During the period this was allowed prior to contrary action by the 1955 General Assembly, it gave the Patrol an important psychological advantage which we firmly believe reduced speeding and cut down the number of highway accidents and deaths. As the highway safety problem becomes more acute, it becomes more important that the Patrol be given every possible advantage.

Racing on the highways should be a felony. More severe fines and sentences would deter many of those who now transform highways into race tracks for their own amusement—and sometimes their own deaths and deaths of others. We have no patience with such a flagrant disregard for life and property, and we are convinced the vast majority of law abiding people of North Carolina do not either.

Bold Example Set For All Private Enterprise

It is a bold, farsighted step the four major power companies of the Carolinas and Virginia have taken in setting the stage for constructing developmental nuclear-powered generating plants.

It is one which promises rewards for the power companies and untold benefits for the people of the Carolinas and Virginia which the companies serve with electricity. It is a long and costly program these power companies have entered. It may take years for the program to produce atomic-powered electricity on a competitive basis with the steam and hydro-generated electricity they have today.

Without this type endeavor by private enterprise, however, the day when the people of this nation can have the benefits of electricity generated from atomic power would be far removed indeed.

Duke Power Company, Carolina Power and Light Company, Virginia Electric and Power Company and South Carolina Electric and Gas Company are indeed setting a bold example for the electric industry in this part of the country. Spokesmen for the power companies which have formed the Carolinas-Virginia Nuclear Power Associates, Inc. have made it clear that undertakings of the new association will be "developmental not experimental." One or more nuclear powered electric generating plants will be constructed and the electricity produced by such plants will be put on the line.

North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia are developing at a rapid pace. The demands for electricity throughout these states is forcing major power companies into constant major expansion programs. Although major conventional generating plants are now in various stages of planning or construction, it is evident they will not be able to meet the demands of the area for very many years ahead. Efforts of the Carolinas-Virginia Nuclear Power Associates will hasten the day when economical atomic-powered generating plants can be constructed in this area. Arrival of the day when benefits of a new and cheaper source of electricity can be passed on to consumers will likewise be hastened.

In the field of electric power—which is closely tied to industrial development—the endeavor of these four major power companies assures that these three states will not lag behind the rest of the nation in providing in abundance power at competitive prices for new industry.

Formation of the Carolinas-Virginia Nuclear Power Associates is the kind of far-sighted leadership private enterprise should afford to broaden the economic horizons of the areas it serves.

Drunken drivers continue to be a hazard unparalleled on the highways. If chemical tests would lead to justice for more of them, this method of corroborating evidence in such cases certainly should be permitted.

A "common sense" inspection law would likewise help the safety program. The bad taste left by the inspection law of a decade ago still remains, and it is doubtful that Tar Heels are ready to accept even a "common sense" inspection program if presented. We doubt too if the people will be enthusiastic about proposed changes in the financial responsibility law.

As a whole, however, Commissioner Scheidt's proposals have a great deal of merit. They deserve the support of North Carolinians who wish to see the state's highway slaughter stemmed. The manner in which these proposals are received by the General Assembly next year will in a large measure depend upon the support they receive from citizens of the state between now and February.

Women Getting More Attention At Rallies

By LYNN NISBET

WOMEN—There is no doubt that the women got the best deal on the western district Democratic rallies. Governor Hodges made three speeches. Tuesday—to the women of the 12th district, to the regular district rally, and at a tri-county meeting to boost Ben Douglas for Congress at Spruce Pine, in the 10th district. The few people who heard all three say by far the best was the women's meeting speech.

Next day at the 11th district rally at Spindale, the Governor had to skip the main dinner and the big meeting to keep a TV date in Charlotte—but he took time out to visit the women's meeting staged by Mrs. Everett and Mrs. Richardson earlier in the afternoon.

Wednesday Governor Hodges made three other speeches. He made a major address before the South-eastern Regional conference of public welfare workers and another shorter talk at a luncheon for welfare officials from eleven states; and he appeared at the Motel Association meeting for some quick punches at the way caterers to travel trade are missing the boat by offering less than first class accommodations and food in many instances. While there were probably more men than women in the welfare and motel audiences, Dr. Ellen Winston was official host to one group and Mrs. Maude Morrow to the other.

Not only did the 12th district women get the best speech of the day, they did a better job of decorating the state in their assembly room. There were two horns of plenty displayed, spilling out fruit and grain. A great big one representing prosperity under Democratic regimes, and a little bit one representing the trickle down idea of the Republicans.

INTERESTED—Sponsors of the 12th district rally gave out advance publicity about preparations for 3,000 guests at the free barbecue dinner. They really expected about half that number. More than 2,500 people were served, and the audience that listened to the speeches was estimated at nearly 2,000.

The 11th district folks guaranteed the caterer a minimum of 600 orders, had a tentative margin of 100 more. Actually more than 800 tickets were taken up—and the guests filled their own plates.

These Western crowds considered with the 1200 who gathered at Greenville for the Sam Rayburn speech—at $15 apiece—leads to the conclusion that Tarheel voters are more interested in government than casual observers had thought.

There was a hotly contested primary campaign for Congress in the 11th district. Some fear had been voiced that feeling might carry over into the November election. The winner of the nomination, Basil Whitener of Gaston, had a spitting contest with him. He got little if any more applause when presented than did the two losers, Ralph Gardner and Hugh Wells both of Cleveland, who were also on hand. There have been intra-party factional scraps in Madison and McDowell counties. All segment of the Democratic voters were represented in the delegations from these counties.

This manifestation of general interest and of party solidarity seems to justify predictions made by many observers that the total vote on November 6 will exceed a million and a half, with at least a million of them marked for the straight Democratic ticket. One old time Democratic party worker said he believed the fact the Republicans are making a more active statewide campaign than in many years will tend to arouse interest—and contribute both to a larger vote than ever before and the biggest Democratic majority for President since 1936.

INCONSISTENCY—The North Carolina Motel Association is taking the lead in protesting plans of the National Park Service to build additional facilities for overnight guests and eating places on the Blue Ridge Parkway. Such facilities would be in direct competition with privately owned places just off the Parkway.

Governor Hodges, Senator Kerr, Governor Hodges, Senator Kerr, Scott and Rep. George Shuford, as well as other speakers at the Asheville meeting of motel and hotel operators pointed to the inconsistency of the proposed program. Motels and hotels are in direct competition for travel trade, but on this point they are together. So it was not as inconsistent as it might appear on the surface that the motel meeting was held in the George Vanderbilt hotel.

A major tenet of the present national administration is to get government out of business and return operation of businesses to private enterprise. The plan to spend millions of dollars for construction of accommodation facilities on the Parkway, in direct competition with the millions of dollars invested in privately owned places along the route, violates this administrative concept, said Congressman Shuford. Senator Scott, who has been often listed as a public power and facility advocate, agreed with Shuford and Governor Hodges, who emphasized importance of private enterprise doing a creditable job in providing services to Parkway travelers.

Prime objective of the motel association is to improve the privately operated places. But they want government out of the business. Hodges, Shuford and Scott warned that government would stay in, and expand its activities along these lines, unless the private operators can meet the demands of travelers for comfortable lodging, good food and courteous treatment of guests.

Other Editors Are Saying... A Key To Better Living

(Henderson Dispatch)

Facts that have been handed the public in previous years are the same this National Newspaper Week, October 1-8—but they cannot be given too much emphasis. Let it never be forgotten that there are those even in free, democratic America who would enslave the public by denying citizens the true facts about their government. Bureaucrats thrive the more, the less they can get by with in allowing knowledge of their activities to step down to the masses of the people.

The slogan for this year's observance of National Newspaper Week is: "Your Newspaper, Freedom's Key to Better Living."

It was Joseph Pulitzer, founder and for many years his death publisher of the old New York World, who said with all truthfulness that "Our republic and its free press will stand or fall together." In different phraseology that means that liberty withers and dies when government is carried on in secrecy, or even in semi-secrecy.

The fight for a free press is not sponsored by the newspapers and other publications for their own benefit. They know as well as any one, and perhaps even better, that the right to know is axiomatic in a democracy. And when that right is denied or abridged, dictatorship is made genuine progress. It has made some advances in America in recent times, and not a of it is a thousand miles from this spot. Almost at arm's length examples of secrecy could be cited. It is an endless struggle for the press, sometimes acknowledged as the guardian of the people's rights, to ferret out actual facts of what is going on in law-making and administrative governmental bodies.

Better living is possible only as citizens acquire and retain control of their government. How such standards have been lowered, or have indeed never risen appreciably, is evident in some places today. Nothing of the sort, in currently serious proportions, has ever been experienced in this America of ours, and that accounts for the complacency toward existing dangers. Therein lies the great peril.

No recent newspaper desires the privileges of a free press for the purpose of abusing that liberty. It would use it for the common good, and must continue to have such protection if genuine service to the public is to be given.

America's newspapers are asking no favors in observing National Newspaper Week. They ask and demand, and hope they will get, the opportunity to keep on measuring up to what is expected of them. They succeed in their own right only in direct ratio to the standards of service they render. In this recurring anniversary there is the renewed pledge to a free people whose future and welfare are as much involved as are those of any publication in the land.

Closed: Due To Competition

Cold blooded competition has taken its toll at the Reflector. Private enterprise, the very foundation of the American way of life, has lost a grand old competitor. In other words another business of long standing has bit the dust.

As you may or may not know, we in the news room of the paper operate a coffee bar. Recently we decided to add donuts to the line. Since they cost us ten cents for three we decided to sell for five cents each.

Well, things went along pretty well for awhile. We'd buy about a dozen donuts daily and sell out before noon. Then one day Larry Willis, foreman of the composing room, tired of paying a nickel each for donuts. He petitioned for a reduction.

"Go buy them somewhere else if you don't want to pay our price," he was told.

"Well all right, I'll start my own donut shop," Larry came back.

He did and he sold donuts three for a dime.

At first the old established firm ignored the competitor—but sales fell off. Seeking to get back in competition we began offering one old left over donut free with every fresh donut purchased. But it was too late! Our business was shot.

So sadly we of the newsroom announce that we are throwing in the towel. We're selling out to the bare walls. Every thing priced to go.

Donuts one day old are selling for four cents; Two day old donuts for three cents; three days old, two cents and four days old one cent. After that we give them to anybody who will haul them off.

Oh well, a man just can't run a business like he did in the old days.

New Planes Boost Jap Morale

By FRED SAITO

KANOYA, JAPAN (AP)—Hundreds of young Japanese left this base 11 years ago flying "kamikaze" planes to plunge headon against American carriers around Okinawa.

This famed Japanese airbase of World War II has shrunk. But strong is the morale of 200 Navy fliers based here to defend Japan from possible Red aggression—this time with all-out cooperation from their former enemy, the United States.

Kanoya, on South Kyushu, 600 air miles southwest of Tokyo, once based seven air wings and 20,000 troops. Now it has only one new Navy air wing with 200 fliers and 2,000 ground personnel.

BIBLE TEACHING ABOUT SEX

What does the Bible teach about sex?

It teaches that sex is part of God's original creation. God established sexual differences in the beginning and created the necessity of men and women for each other in the living of a complete life.

The Bible is very serious in its teachings about sex and very realistic. There is no prudery in the Bible neither is there any shamelessness. Sex is the means by which God continues the physical life of his creatures, and in the case of humans, the means by which He fulfills the life of the human creature, which in the beginning is incomplete and becomes complete and full-orbed only when the two aspects of humanity which complement each other—men and women—come together to form one complete person.

Many people look upon sex irregularly as a very slight sin, and many regard it as no sin at all. The Bible teaches that it is one of the most basic of sins. Paul says that every other sin "is without the body; but he that committeth fornication sinneth against his own body" (1 Cor. 6:18). Then he goes on to say that the body is the temple of the Holy Spirit and that fornication is the violation of this temple. It therefore becomes one of the most basic and devastating of all sin.

Sex used to the glory of God is holy. Sex used to the selfish indulgence of persons is morally ruinous and involves one in serious sin.

Campaign's Affect On Stock Market

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON— "What are the reasons for the sharp decline in the stock market?" asks M.T. of Springfield, Mass. "Are they political, or do they forecast a general decline in business and industry?"

Answer: There are almost as many answers to that query as there are experts on the stock market. Some believe that it is a natural trend, in view of the fact that prices have been on an uninterrupted upward march for four years. Indeed, many business and financial people feel that it may be a healthy reaction, and Administration spokesmen profess to feel no great concern.

EFFECT OF ELECTION RESULTS Based on past experience, it is normal for the market to drop during the early stages of a Presidential campaign, sometimes followed by a sharp rally. Republican orators, naturally, attribute part of the decline to the possibility, although they do not concede it, that President Eisenhower may not be re-elected. Inasmuch as the bigwigs of business, industry and finance are believed to favor Ike, and praise him for the current "economic climate" and "moderation," there may be some basis for this theory. The Democrats, for their part, charge that the drop shows the GOP issue of "prosperity" to be phony.

MARKET LEVEL 100 PER CENT HIGHER THAN THREE YEARS AGO Politics aside, it appears that the political uncertainty, the Suez Canal crisis and the continued threat of inflation combine to account for the market's weakness. Even so, the price level is 100 per cent higher than it was three years ago, and tops 1929's high by about 80 per cent.

"I would appreciate it," writes D.S.B. of Richmond, Wash., "if you would tell me whom Adlai Stevenson worked for and with from 1941 until the time when he was elected Governor of Illinois."

Answer: For most of that period, Stevenson was employed by the United States Government in various offices. As a matter of fact, the Democratic nominee has had greater and more varied experience at Washington than any Presidential candidate of a major party since Herbert Hoover.

Stevenson began as special counsel to the AAA, and it was there that he became acquainted with Alger Hiss. Their relations were official rather than personal, however, although Stevenson testified at the New York trial that, insofar as he knew, Hiss' character was "good."

Skakbar, also a veteran pilot, has a little different background from those of his colleagues. His father, Rear Adm. Shigematsu Sakakibara, was hanged by the United States Government in various offices. Revival In Art Of Bill Collecting

By ELMER ROESSNER

The art of bill collecting, somewhat neglected during the last 15 years, is undergoing a revival in America.

Stores that used to let charge accounts slide 60 and even 90 days now send reminders out on the 31st. The notes are as dulcet as ever but, you might say, they vibrate a bit more. And some telephone gentle reminders on the 46th say instead of the 61st.

And by the 61st day now, the stores are firmer, though still polite. They may suggest you convert your balance into an installment account and pay the installment carrying charges.

Auto finance companies move with more precision. When a payment is late, a little man may come around and suggest refinancing over a longer period—and at a higher rate. And many bank loan departments now slap on penalties almost as soon as a payment becomes delinquent, and if the delinquency is repeated, you may be asked to step over and see Mr. Jones—he's the man with the scowl—behind the mahogany desk.

PROFESSIONAL COLLECTORS BUSY

Many collection agencies find business brisker as creditors turn over accounts earlier. As a rule, the sooner an account is turned over to an agency, the better are the chances of collecting. A merchant, however, must weigh the possible loss of a customer when he sics the professional pay-or-else teams on a debtor. Many retailers now seem to feel that "customers we can always get" but that cash is somewhat more difficult.

Collection agencies seem to be returning to some of their pre-war tactics. The authoritative Consumer Credit Letter reports that many collectors admit using deception to lure delinquents into calling them. They defend such tactics on the grounds that a small minority of debtors understand no other language than deception.

The newsletter cites the ease in which a debtor received a post card informing him that a caterer would arrive, per arrangement, on a certain date with food, silverware and extra chairs for 30 guests. The card suggested that if the details were not correct, the recipient should call a certain phone number.

As you have probably already guessed, the number is that of a collection agency.

WHY COLLECTING TOUGHENS

The reason behind long, inconsistent collection procedures is the higher price of money.

Most of the sales finance companies have stepped up their rates in the past 10 days. Some also finance companies have held back fear of hurting sales of new models, but it seems certain that they will eventually push rates up. Increases have been small, ranging from 1/2 to 1/2 a percentage point.

At the same time, banks and other organizations that finance stores' charge and installment sales have been increasing their rates. Some have stiffened their terms by making stores assume responsibility for delinquencies sooner.

These steps, in turn, compel stores to tighten collection procedures and to raise their service charges on installments and revolving credit plans.

Higher interest rates are not the only problems besetting store credit departments. The cost of wages, equipment and almost most everything else except postage has risen. A survey by the National Retail Dry Goods Association shows that 19 per cent of the stores checked are increasing their service charges on revolving credit above the usual 10 per cent per month. Most rises have been to 1 1/2 per cent.

Meanwhile, there has been some talk in Washington about reimposition of consumer credit restrictions. But because such action would throw Christmas sales into a turmoil and torpedo many new car sales, action during the rest of this year would be almost unthinkable.

Poor Curing, Storage Behind Meat Losses

RALEIGH — Tar Heel farmers produce a lot of high quality cured meats, but still lose an estimated 1½ to 4 million dollars each year because of poor curing and storage practices, according to John Christian, State College extension animal husbandry specialist.

The hog industry in North Carolina has grown by leaps and bounds during the last few years and at present there are about 1½ million hogs raised annually in North Carolina. These hogs are valued at about $73 million. Of this number, over one-half million are slaughtered on Tar Heel farms, representing about $24 million, Christian adds.

High quality country hams are always in good demand, says Christian, and although Tar Heel farmers produce a lot of high quality meats, we still lose about 10 per cent of our country cured meats.

Commenting on this phase of Tar Heel agriculture, Christian says there are a few things that farmers need to keep in mind as the meat curing season approaches.

To get started off on the right foot, Christian warns farmers to buy meat type hogs. He says the ideal weight ham is about 20 pounds. These will come from meat type hogs weighing about 225 to 250 pounds. He advises farmers to kill their hogs in the afternoon and allow the carcass to hang overnight before curing. It takes about 16 to 20 hours to chill a 150-pound carcass to 40 degrees F. internal temperature.

He says if there are to be chilled on the farm, check the weather forecast and kill when the weatherman predicts light frost. In curing hams and other types of meat, Christian says one of the most important things to remember is to get a uniform cure. There are three primary methods used in curing meats in North Carolina. They are: shelf cure, pack cure, and wrap cure. He says all three give satisfactory results, but shelf cure gives a more even cure.

Christian points out that a ham should stay in cure about 2 days for every pound of meat. In other words, a 15 pound ham should stay in cure about 30 days. He says it's a good idea to keep cured meats under refrigeration, natural or otherwise, for 20 to 30 days after they are cured.

Hams aged over 12 months have a higher flavor. However, Christian points out there are three reasons why this is not recommended. Hams over one year old tend to get hard, the fat may get rancid, and the ham has to go through two insect seasons.

Christian says for high quality country style hams there are a few things to be noted, such as: chill carcass properly, cut carcass when chilled, put in cure when cut, use the right amount of curing mix, follow curing schedule, cure during November, December, and January, avoid high temperatures while curing, let salt equalize before smoking, do not put hams in air tight bags, age about 6 months, and protect meat against insects and rodents.

If you would like more information on curing hams, go by the local county agent's office and pick up a free copy of State College Extension Circular No. 405. It's titled "CURING HAMS COUNTRY STYLE." This circular is complete with pictures and detailed information on the proper method of curing and storing meats at home.

Austria Braces For Red Visitor

VIENNA (AP) — Austrian government leaders are bracing for a visit this month from one of the Kremlin's shrewdest operators — First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan.

His prospective visit is the result of one of those casual invitations extended in Moscow at banquets or cocktail parties.

An Austrian government delegation was in Moscow 18 months ago to negotiate Soviet agreement to the long-delayed Austrian freedom treaty. They thanked the Russians for their hospitality and casually extended invitations right and left: "Come and visit us some time, too."

Then the Austrians, happily rid of occupation armies at last, forgot about this. But not so the Russians. In September the Soviet ambassador in Vienna called at the chancellery and remarked that Mikoyan was ready to visit Vienna.

Now they are trying to cook up a welcome that will put Mikoyan on the spot.

Officials would like to tell Mikoyan: Look, you Russians were the last to agree to giving us freedom. The Americans gave us millions of dollars worth of food and other aid and are still helping us. But to the Russians we had to pay a ransom to get our freedom and are still paying. How about cutting the bill?

To get their freedom, the Austrians had to sign up to deliver to the Russians 150 million dollars over six years. This was to be in exchange or the return of so-called "German assets" which the Russians had seized here. In addition the Austrians agreed to deliver to Russia one million tons of oil each year for 10 years.

Can Show How To Raise Pigs

JACKSON — Farmers in North Carolina could take a few ideas from Northampton County farmer Julian Edwards, on the way to raise pigs, says Bruce Woodard, assistant county agent.

He says Edward has one of the largest hog farms in the state. He has 50 sows that have raised 460 pigs for an average of a little over 9 pigs per sow. Edwards has a central farrowing house that will take care of more than 40 sows at one time.

Edwards attributes his success to breeding gilts of proper size, age, and condition, proper feeding practices, care of sow and pigs at farrowing time, weaning at proper age, and other good management practices.

Jerry Galvin, approaching his 100th birthday in Estherville, Iowa in August, 1956, boasted that "I'm growing a whole new head of hair."

Good Week For Farmville Mart

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Tobacco Market closed one of the best weeks of its season yesterday, disposing of 3,519,384 pounds of tobacco in five days.

Sales Supervisor Charles Edwards said the week's sales brought farmers a total of $1,838,864.54 from companies operating on the market. The five-day period averaged $52.20 per hundred pounds.

Since the market opened August 23, Farmville warehouses have moved 18,430,272 pounds of tobacco at an average of $52.11 per hundred pounds. The average per hundred pounds through a similar sales date in 1955 was $51.58.

Best day of the week was Monday when an average of $54.57 per hundred pounds was paid for 869,534 pounds. Total sales Monday were $474,485.47.

The market fell off yesterday to an average of $49.75. Warehouses moved 656,466 pounds for $326,611.60, according to Edwards.

Nearly Inch Of Rain Yesterday

During a thunderstorm in the Greenville area yesterday afternoon nearly one inch of rain fell in 30 minutes, flooding low places in the city and the railroad underpass on Dickinson Avenue.

Vehicle traffic was considerably handicapped for a short time and numerous motor vehicles were stranded, it was reported.

One inch of rain on an acre of ground is equivalent to 48,000 gallons of water, the records state.

Ancient Prayers In Tomorrow's Services

"World-Wide Communion" will be observed at the St. James Methodist Church Sunday morning. The eleven o'clock morning worship service will be entirely taken over by the annual observance. No sermon will be preached. The longer "Order of the Administration of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper" in the Methodist Hymnal will be followed rather than the shorter "Alternative Order" usually followed.

The order of service will be virtually identical to that used around the world by the Church of England, the Methodist Church, and the Episcopal Church. Methodist originally came out of the Church of England and its founder, the Rev. John Wesley, took from "The Book of Common Prayer" the service to be used at St. James on Sunday.

Most of the prayers in the service date back far beyond the Reformation. They were merely translated into the languages of the people at that time. In addition to these ancient prayers, always used in Communion at St. James, the special order includes a traditional responsive reading of the Ten Commandments and the Beatitudes. The words of the Prophet Isaiah which Jesus applied to Himself, taken from Isaiah 63, are also read. The congregation joins in the second century "Apostles' Creed" as its affirmation of the historic Christian Faith.

In obedience to Christ's command to His disciples, "This do in remembrance of me," the people will receive the bread and wine, symbols of the broken body and shed blood of the Saviour who gave His life a sacrifice for the sins of the world. In accordance to the custom of the Anglican family of Churches, the congregation at St. James will walk to the front of the Sanctuary and kneel at the altar rail to receive the elements. Minister Malloy Owen will preside at the service.

Workshop Staged Here For High School Editors

Approximately 150 editors of newspapers and yearbooks in high schools of Eastern North Carolina held Friday at East Carolina College an interscholastic workshop. Plans are being made to make the event an annual one.

Plagues for excellence of production and writing were announced during the meeting as being won by Ashokle high school for printed school papers and Bailey high school for mimeographed papers.

Awards for the best year book went to New Bern and the South Edgecombe high schools. The plaques will be presented later in special student assemblies at the winning schools.

The newspaper groups heard talks by David J. Whichard III, managing editor of the "Daily Reflector" of Greenville, N. C., and James W. Butler, alumni secretary and sports news director at East Carolina. They talked on strengthening relations between schools and the press.

Speakers who addressed yearbook editors and their topics were Lee H. Blackwell of Goldsboro, publishers' representative, "Printing of Annuals"; Zeno B. Spence, Jr., commercial artist, also of Goldsboro, "Layout and Art Work"; and Homer Ball, Goldsboro photographer, "News and Portrait Photography."

Arrangements for the workshop were handled by Mr. Butler, who presided and organized the sessions. During the afternoon the editors and advisors attending the workshop held a number of informal "shop talk" meetings.

the Americans as a war criminal in 1946. The Admiral, commander of the Japanese occupation of Wake Island, was accused of mistreatment of American prisoners of war.

Asked how he felt about the war crimes trial, Lt. Sakaibara quietly answered: "Honestly speaking, my mother and I were dazed for six months after my father's death. But now we have no remorse. Let bygones be bygones."

"When I volunteered for the Navy again last year, my mother wholeheartedly supported my decision. She told me:

"You are a son of the Samurai (warrior) family for many generations; you must defend our country. You have lived at least ten years longer than many of your Kamikaze friends."

The 20th Century Club will begin its meetings Sunday at the home of Mr. William Ebron on West Third street at 5:30 p.m. Business of importance will be transacted. William W. Sherrod is reporter.

The Les-Gallennette Social Club will meet Monday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Jean Willoughby on Madison street.

The United Daughters of Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church will meet Sunday at 5 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Emma May on Ford street.

The C. B.'s will meet at the home of Miss Roxie Kilpatrick Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The Bachelor Benedict Club will meet Sunday at 6:30 p.m. with Mr. David Barnhill on Nash St.

Rev. P. H. Mumford, pastor of York Memorial A. M. E. Zion Church, announces that Sunday School will be Homecoming Day, Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. and morning worship at 11 o'clock by the pastor. He will speak on "A Joyful Return To The Holy Temple." Music will be by the four choirs of the church. Words of welcome will be brought by Prof. A. E. McNeil and others. A special effort will be made for Conference Assessments. At 3 p.m. Rev. C. C. Pierce will bring the message with music by his Georgetown Circuit choir. The 7:30 p.m. service will bring to a close this event. The public is cordially invited.

governmental agencies — from township to state and federal government — and reminded that Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin and Peron in South America assumed the roles of dictators and destroyed the free press. Whichard said "Freedom of the press doesn't mean that a newspaper may run roughshod over people. It means that the paper shall truthfully and correctly state the facts for the benefit of all." He said a person may disagree with an editor and may have space on the same page to answer in discussion of public issues.

The publisher said that during the Reflector's 70 years of public service it always tried to point the way of progress and better living. "Its building and equipment, while not the largest, is one of the best equipped newspaper plants in the southeastern states and it is home-owned."

"The Reflector is your paper — the people's paper — and it is in our hands for pointing the way to a better government and better living and assembling the quarter of a million dollars each year to keep it going," Whichard said in concluding.

Judge Dink James introduced the speaker, Chester Walsh had charge of the program, and Vice-President Charles E. Blair presided.

Next Friday night the annual "ladies' night" banquet will be held at the Moose Temple. Dr. Howard Gradis is chairman of arrangements.

Kiwanians Charles P. Gaskins and John O. Reynolds were hosts at supper at Nelson Hopkins Tavern on the Tar to the club officers and directors Thursday night.

The Greenville club will be well represented at the annual Carolinas Kiwanis District Convention to be held in Charleston, S.C., Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Guests Friday night were J. D. Wilson and two Circle K members, Eddie Dennis and Frank Moore. Secretary John O. Reynolds announced that Mrs. Ellen Carroll, supervisor of elementary education in city schools, has requested the use of discarded musical instruments to be used at Brookgreen School. Persons willing to lend instruments should call Dr. Reynolds.

Cuban Entertainers On Sunday Program

The Vivacious Senoritas, from Havana, Cuba, will appear in concert at Eppes High School Auditorium Sunday night at 8 o'clock. The singers are being sponsored in Greenville by Pitt Lodge No. 234, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, for the benefit of the New Building Fund. Golden Rod Temple No. 368, women's auxiliary, is jointly sponsoring the concert.

Following is the program: Music by Eppes High School Choir; Scripture reading by Rev. T. T. Shivers; prayer by Rev. S. W. Crooms; music by the choir; greetings by Prof. J. W. Moore. James M. Goode will present the Vivacious Senoritas. Exalted Ruler Leroy Barnes will present Du Nimmo. Songs and dances by the Cuban entertainers will conclude the concert. Tickets are now on sale. The public is invited.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF CONSERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT

This is another in the series of advertisements published by this newspaper, a member of the North Carolina Press Association, as a public service in the interest of the State's industrial development program.

NORTH CAROLINA has everything that many industries need for successful operation.

"Vast potentials remain virtually untapped," says Governor Hodges, "I believe our future is practically unlimited if we accept the opportunities before us."

New and expanding industry is the answer to North Carolina's greatest economic problem—which is lower per capita income than 42 other states.

Strides forward have already been made in establishing profitable new industries, large and small, in the State. Many communities are already feeling direct benefits of their payrolls. But the greatest task lies ahead. Success depends upon the understanding and efforts of all North Carolinians.

The Dept. of Conservation & Development in Raleigh will send its booklet on Community Organization for Industrial Development free upon request.

Little Merchant Brings It To You

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Today marks the end of National Newspaper Week.

This is the one week in the year when the nation's papers attempt to take the public behind the scenes to point out all the complex actions which go into the making up of a newspaper.

The Daily Reflector, as other papers of the nation, is the result of the work of dozens of persons each day. From its news rooms and advertising department copy flows into the composing room. And from there page mats go to the stereotyping room and finally curved plates are bolted to the big press which daily turns out nearly 7,000 copies of the paper for the people of Pitt County.

There is one final person linking the Reflector with its subscribers. This person is seldom in the newspaper's building for any great length of time. Without him, however, more than half of the Reflector's subscribers would never see their daily paper.

He is the carrier boy, the "Little Merchant" who daily delivers the paper from door-to-door in Greenville and other towns within the county.

The title "Little Merchant" is apt for Reflector carriers. That is just what they are. They purchase their papers from the circulation department and in turn sell to thousands of subscribers.

Typical of the newspaper's carrier boys is Ronnie Williams who is featured on this page as he makes his daily rounds.

Ronnie is 12 years old and he has been carrying the Reflector approximately six weeks. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Williams of 1202 E. Second St.

PREPARING TO DELIVER PAPERS—Most carriers roll a portion of their papers and bind them with rubber bands in order to throw them on porches a good distance from the street.

Brooklyn Clobbers Yanks By 13-8 To Take Lead, 2-0

Bums Overcome Yank 6-0 Lead To Cop Contest

By JOE REICHER

NEW YORK (AP) — Shocked by their worst mauling in a quarter of a century of World Series competition, the pitching-poor New York Yankees bled their blood today on the left arm of their mound ace, Whitey Ford, and the right about turn to their own park, spacious Yankee Stadium.

Brooklyn's devastating 13-8 slaughter of a Series record of seven Yankee pitchers marked the first time since 1923 that any team has swept the first two games from the mighty Yankees. Twenty-four years ago, the Yankees lost the first two Series games to the New York Giants . . . and went on to lose the next two.

Should right-handed R. Craig, manager Walter Alston's pitching nominee for the third game carry on the Dodgers' streak, it is highly possible another four-game sweep will engulf the Yankees. For Sal Maglie, the Cinderella Man, may have his 39-year-old arm all oiled up Sunday.

Ford appears to be Casey Stengel's last hope. The little lefty, who was battered by the Brooks in the Series opener but who defeated the Dodgers twice last year—both times in Yankee Stadium—must win to get the Yankees back in the running. Stengel knows this better than anyone. That's why he decided to pitch his No. 1 man despite only a two-day rest.

"No use holding Ford back any longer," Casey muttered in the quiet of the losers' clubhouse after they had suffered their worst humiliation in any fall Classic.

"He should be ready. He didn't pitch much in the first game and he got that day of rain."

Whitey, 19-6 for the regular season, lasted three innings Wednesday, allowing six hits and five runs, including two home runs.

This was Craig's second Series assignment. He started the fifth game in 1955 and was credited with the victory although he lasted only six innings. His season record was 12-11.

A banner crowd of some 64,000 was expected to attend the first game in the American League club's park. The Yankees predicted a fair and sunny afternoon with the temperature about 65 degrees at starting time of 1 p. m. EDT.

Brooklyn's two convincing triumphs have caused the price-makers to make a quick switch in the odds. The Dodgers are now 13 to 5 favorite to win the Series. The Yankees had opened an 8 to 5 choice. For today's game, the Yankees ruled a 7 to 5 choice.

An Ebbebs Field throng of 36,217 saw something happen in a series game that never had happened before. The Yankees blew an early 6-0 lead after kayaking 27-game winning Don Newcombe, Brooklyn's biggest winner since Dazzy Vance rolled up 28 victories in 1924. Not since the 1929 Philadelphia Athletics came from behind an 8-0 deficit to defeat the Chicago Cubs 10-9 did any club dissipate such a huge lead.

The seemingly beaten Brooks, led by Pee Wee Reese, Duke Snider and Gil Hodges, not only stormed back with a six-run tying outburst in the second, but continued to hammer away with a run in the third and two more in each of the fourth, fifth and eighth innings to roll up the biggest run total ever perpetrated on the Yankees in Series history.

Hodges, whose three-run homer proved the difference in the first game, batted in four more with a pair of doubles and a single to raise his run total to seven, two under Lou Gehrig's 1928 record. Snider crashed a three-run homer in the detonating six-run frame, increasing his Series homer total to 10. That deadlocked Gehrig for runner-up honors, second only to Babe Ruth's 15. Reese's two-run single was a key blow in the big inning, set up partially by Joe Collins' boot of Sandy Amoros' grounder. All six runs in the inning became unearned because of the first baseman's miscue.

None of the seven Yankee pitchers were spared as the Dodgers cracked 13 hits to the Yankees. Don Larsen, the starter, permitted only one hit but walked four and failed to last through the second inning.

Newcombe, who became involved in a scuffle with a fan outside the park after the game, was rocked for six runs and six hits in less than two innings. Don Bessent, third Dodger pitcher—enabling the two teams to tie a record for most pitchers used—limited the Yankees to six hits and two runs in seven fine relief innings to win the game.

Alston said he would make a lineup change when Thursday's game was rained out.

"All last year," he said, "and at times this year, when we got a postponement the team couldn't seem to hit the following day. I kept thinking about that all night but there was nothing wrong with their hitting today and maybe this time the day off really helped. Anyway, we looked out best today because our hitting was at its peak. That's the only thing we lacked all year. We had the pitching and the team seldom beat itself in the field."

Alston took a deep breath, arose from his mahogany chair and knocked on wood.

The U. S. Post Office Department purchased 2,000 bicycles for postmen use in the next fiscal year.

Green Wave Tops Ayden By 13-7; Farmville Loses

By BILLY ARNOLD

Ayden, which raced through four Coastal Conference wins in early season play without being beaten, tied or scored-upon, was upset last night by a tough Williamston crew and a wet, soggy field, 13-7. It was a non-conference affair.

Robersonville, the defending Coastal Champs, dumped Farmville by a strange 13-8 score in the other big loop battle of the weekend.

Coach Stuart Tripp's Tornadoes ran head-on into what he predicted right as "the toughest team we'll meet this season." Williamston combined a fast charging defensive line and a good passing attack (even in the rain) to ultimately win out over the hosts.

Williamston First

The visiting Williamston crew scored first on a short, shoddy 30-yard drive. An alert Williamston lineman recovered an Ayden fumble on the Tornado 30 yard line and a drive that consisted of several short passes and off-end plays netted them a first down on the one-foot line. On three consecutive plays, the Ayden forward wall led by Burt Tripp, Ike Baldree and Melvin Byrd, held or no gain. Then, on the final play, a Williams-halback plunged the distance for the score. At halftime, the visitors were ahead 6-0.

Ayden came back in the third quarter to take the lead. Lester Stocks, an end, intercepted a Williamston pass and weaved his way to a touchdown that covered 50 yards. The extra point was made and the Tornadoes held a slim 7-6 lead.

In the final quarter of play, the Williamston quarterback rifled a pass to an end and a flag went down on the play. Ayden defensive backs, according to Coach Tripp, stopped at the sign of the flag and did not touch the pass receiver, who galloped for some 49 yards to paydirt.

The flag and penalty was against Ayden for offside. It was rejected, of course, by the Williamston team, and the score counted. The game ended with Williamston capturing the victory, 13-7.

Tripp Talks

Coach Tripp called the Williamston outfit "a good, strong ball club," but felt that the wet conditions and his team's only sloppy tackling were even more important factors of the loss.

"We played good ball from tackle to tackle," he commented, "but our defensive backs hurt us with sloppiness tackling. Also, we're used to throwing the ball quite a lot and running the outside, and the soggy field ruined that for us. I say this without taking a thing away from Williamston. They have a fine club."

Robersonville Wins

Robersonville's Rams defeated Farmville 13-8 last night at Robersonville under the same muddy conditions. In the first quarter and again in the third periods, the Rams scored and held the visitors to a single touchdown and a safety to rack up their third conference victory of the year.

Scoring in the opening period, Ram tailback Elton Roberson passed to Wingback Clifton Leggett for 30 yards and a touchdown. Again, in the third, it was Leggett on a reverse run that covered 25 yards for the score.

Farmville's tally came on a 60-yard drive. They collected their safety when Roberson intercepted a Farmville pass in his own end zone and was tackled there.

Coach Bob Lee stated today that his Ram line held good when Farmville came within scoring distance, but "was pretty weak the rest of the time. They ran through us pretty well. We just seemed to have the jump on them and were able to outscore them."

Duke-Vol Among Major Games Played This Week

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dave Reed, a slender, 165-pound Shamokin, Pa., youngster, may get his chance today to solve the biggest problems Jim Tatum ever had as a football coach—a sparkplug for his North Carolina Tar Heels.

Reed, says Tatum, probably will play at least a portion of the Tar Heels' game today with South Carolina's up-and-coming Gamecocks at Columbia. Only 10 days ago, Tatum had despaired of being able to use Reed at all this season.

The 6-foot junior, who sparked in spring practice, was injured severely on the second day of fall practice. Since then, the Tar Heels have rocked along without an offensive spark, losing their first two games to North Carolina State and Oklahoma. Tatum has said all along Reed was his golden boy.

The North Carolina-South Carolina clash heads up a full slate of action for Atlantic Coast Conference members.

Tennessee and Duke renew a long-time rivalry at Durham, with the Vols favored, especially with Blue Devil ace signal caller Sonny Jurgensen, a doubtful starter because of injuries. Soph Bob Brodhead will replace him.

Wake Forest's surprising Deacons meet Virginia at Charlottesville in a loop battle that will feature two top-notch fullbacks, Wake Forest's Bill Barnes and Jim Bakhtiar of Virginia. Barnes has rolled up 338 yards rushing in two games, Bakhtiar 233 yards.

North Carolina State, walloped 34-7 by Virginia Tech at Norfolk last Saturday, plays its first game of the season before the home folks at Raleigh, with conference member Clemson as the opponent. The Tigers are favored on the basis of a win over Presbyterian and a 20-0 draw with Florida last week.

Maryland takes on tough Baylor at College Park in the other game involving a loop team.

Tatum's quarterback problem has been apparent since the season opened. Always blessed with top-notch signal callers at Maryland and Oklahoma, Sunny Jim had watched Reed perform in spring drills and promptly told all and sundry that the Pennsylvania youngster was as good a prospect as he ever had at the vital quarterback spot.

After Reed's injury, Tatum moaned: "This is the worst thing that ever happened to me in football practice. We thought this would be a happy season. Now we'll have to revise all our plans."

Tatum revised them, moved Curtis Hathaway, a soph., into the No. 1 spot under center. That the revision hasn't worked well is evident in the fact that the Tar Heels have scored only 6 points in their two games.

Tatum continued to look longingly toward the crippled Reed and pressed the doctors for some indication that they could bring him around for use this season. Last week, the doctors took the cast off Reed's leg and the youngster went back to the practice field.

Now, says Tatum, Reed is ready to go, maybe not at full speed, but at least he'll be available. And, Tatum, insists, with Reed at quarterback, the Tar Heels have a first team with a potential about as high as you'll find on any team.

Phantoms-Selma Tonight

The Greenville high school-Selma contest, scheduled for last night at College Stadium, which was postponed due to heavy rain conditions, will be played at the stadium tonight.

Officials announced this morning that instead of the usual procedure of playing off such postponed games at the end of the season, the non-conference battle will take place at 8:00 on the College Field.

The Green Phantoms are favored over the Class A visitors by one touchdown tonight. Expected to be the starters, are the following for Greenville: Mack Roebuck, Billy Sermons, Robin Wilfong and Robert Howell in the backfield; Billy Cox, Edwin Wilkerson, Angus Duff, Roy Martin, Kelly Barnhill, Billy Brown and Wade Jordan in the line.

Women Golfers In Finals Of Local Tourney

The final rounds of the Championship flight of the Women's Golf and Country Club have been reached.

In the top bracket, Mrs. Alex White Jr. will battle Mrs. E. W. Larkin Jr. Mrs. White defeated Mrs. Larry James 4 and 2. Mrs. Larkin and Mrs. Henry Coleman were all even at the end of 18 holes and had to go into a "sudden death" playoff. Mrs. Larkin won out on the second hole.

In the first flight, Mrs. Luther Herring and Mrs. John Barnhill were rained out on the 14th hole and will finish their match Saturday. The winner will tangle with either Mrs. T. A. Smoot or Mrs. Ray Whorton.

Remaining in the second flight are Mrs. Ray Masten and Mrs. Tori Rivers.

In the third flight finals Mrs. Sam Underwood topped Mrs. Percy Ashby.

All semi-final matches are scheduled to be played on or before Sunday, October 7, and the finals will be played the following week.

Micros Racing Here Tonight

In the Greenville Midget Micro race competition tonight, Dr. M. W. Aldridge will be seeking his fourth straight win four weeks. Aldridge has topped three consecutive wins on the local track and has taken the past four first place prizes on the Kinston race track.

The races will get underway at 8:00 tonight at the Greenville Fairgrounds.

A field of about 20 cars is expected to race tonight. There will be two 10-lap heats and one 15-lap consolation before the regular 40-lap main event.

Johnny Pollard, of Greenville, still holds a lead in the points department, with a total of 27. Ben Blanton is second with 21. Aldridge is fast advancing.

On Thursday night of the Pitt County Fair, the Micros will race from 8:30 to 9:30 in a regularly scheduled race. Then, on Saturday night, the biggest night in Greenville racing history is being planned. A host of some 30 racers is expected to be on hand for the big event.

East Carolina Meets Elon Christians At Burlington

Three conference battles, each of them carrying championship possibilities, feature action tonight in the full-scale North State conference football weekend. And East Carolina will be in the thick of it.

The two current leaders of the early season, Elon and Catawba, both boasting one win and no defeat, meet clubs tonight which have already been beaten. Lenoir Rhyne, unbeaten in 13 games, after posting three non-conference victories this fall, will tangle with its first North State foe.

East Carolina will meet Elon at Burlington, Catawba will tackle Western Carolina and Lenoir Rhyne will face Appalachian. The only other conference team playing will be Guilford at Hampden-Sydney.

Elon opened its North State season with an impressive win over Appalachian 19-7, while Catawba took ECC 23-13 last week. These two early outcomes put both teams on top in the loop and gave them the favorite roles in tonight's contests.

Though the Christians are a three-touchdown favorite to cop the East Carolina game Coach Jack Boone's boys may be a surprise. Boone has praised Gary Mattocks, who took over the spot left vacant by Dick Cherry, and will also have several of his injured players back in the lineup.

In the series of 10 games played between the two clubs, Elon has won seven, but East Carolina has topped three of the last four wins, including last year's 13-0 victory. Only once has either of the outfits gone scoreless against the other.

Lou Blacchi, of Catawba, is expected to pace the Indians against a strong Western Carolina club. Catawba has several injured players who may be either slowed up or out of action completely, thus giving the contest a more wide-open air.

"Prompt and Courteous Delivery Service"

AUCTION SALE OF FARM LAND

Pursuant to an order signed and entered on September 6, 1956 by Honorable D. T. House, Jr., Clerk of the Superior Court of Pitt County, in that certain special proceeding pending in said Superior Court and entitled, "J. Lyman Harris and wife, Reva Harris; J. S. Harris, Jr. and wife, Venetia S. Harris, et al., Ex Parte," the undersigned Commissioner will on expose to public sale to the highest bidder for cash the following described real estate:

Friday, October 19, 1956, At 11 A. M. At The Home Place Of The Late J. Sam Harris, Sr. In Pactolus Township

FIRST TRACT: That certain tract of land located on the north side of Tar River, formerly in Greenville Township, adjoining the lands of the late Stanley Moore, J. R. Barnhill, and the other lands of H. C. Harris and others and beginning on the south side of Cannon Swamp at an agreed line, M. S. Moore's corner, and running with said Moore's line North 17 deg. East, 85 poles; thence North 28 deg. East, with said Moore's line, 106 poles to a sweet gum in a pond; thence with said Moore's line North 5 deg. West, 85 poles to an oak stump; thence North 42 deg. 30 min. East, 14 poles to a bay stump; thence North 78 deg. East, 20 poles to a stake; thence South 151 3-4 poles to a post oak; thence South 4 deg. West, 65 poles; thence South 16 deg. 30 min. West to the agreed line; thence with said agreed line a northwest course to the beginning, containing 83 acres, more or less. For further information see Book T-6 at page 285; Z-8 at page 156; and S-8 at page 534 of the Pitt County Registry.

SECOND TRACT: Beginning at a stake on the county road and running with the road in a westerly direction to James Samuel Harris' line; thence in a southerly direction to J. E. Winslow's line and with said Winslow's line to W. R. Harris's and wife, Sallie Harris', and said Winslow's corner; thence northerly, a straight line, to the county road at the beginning and containing 30 acres, more or less, and being the same piece of land willed to Joseph Fenner Harris by his father, H. C. Harris, and being the same tract conveyed to James Samuel Harris by Joseph Fenner Harris, et al., by deed recorded in Book Q-11 at page 44 of the Pitt County Registry.

Excepting, however, the H. C. Harris graveyard of one acre, more or less, together with a permanent right of way or drive and walk to and from said graveyard from the road as conveyed by J. S. Harris to H. B. Harris, et al., in the deed recorded in Book U-24 at page 424 of the Pitt County Registry.

The above described land will first be offered for sale in three separate parcels, viz: (1) that part of said lands consisting of woodland which lies south of the Cannon Swamp Canal, containing 25 acres, more or less; (2) that part of the Joseph Fenner Harris tract which lies north of the Cannon Swamp Canal and containing 25 acres, more or less; and (3) that part of the J. Sam Harris, Sr. home place which lies north of the Cannon Swamp Canal and on both sides of the road. Then the three parcels sold separately will be offered as a whole.

Tobacco allotment for 1956, 8.37 acres; peanut allotment, 6.1 acres; cotton allotment, 5.2 acres; corn allotment, 14 acres.

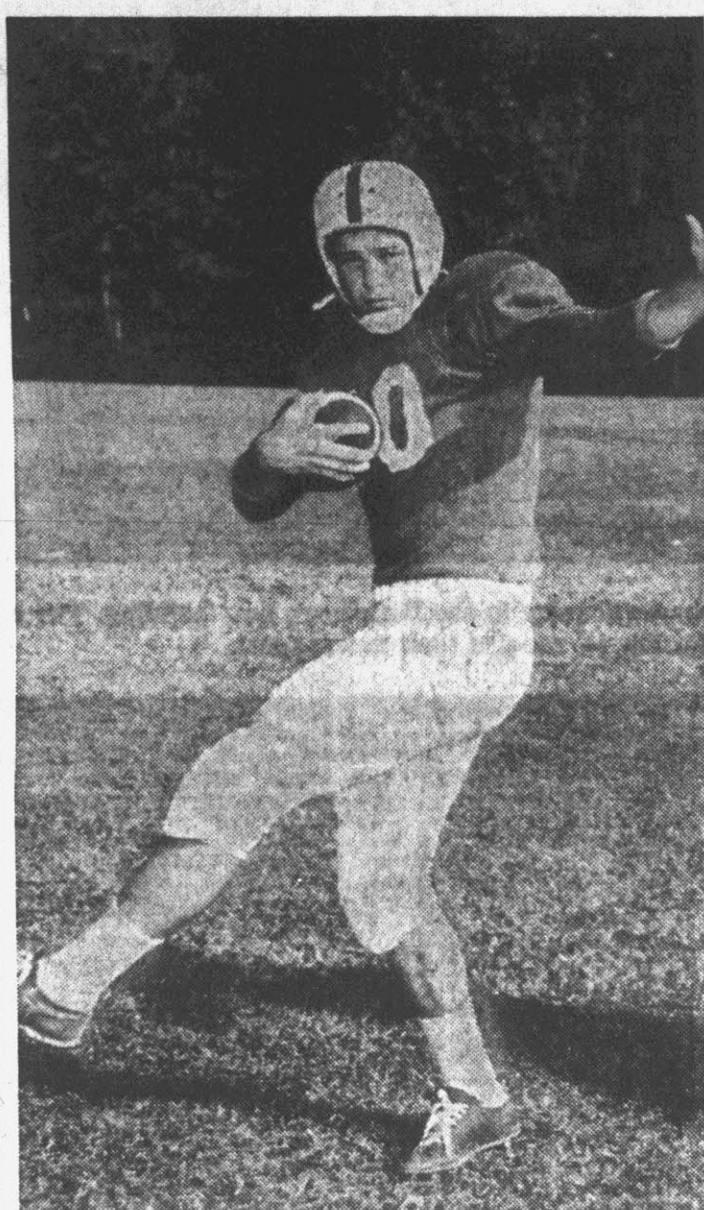

BUILDINGS: One 8-room residence, one 5-room residence, both with electricity; one 2-room tenant house; 2 tobacco barns; corn crib; 3 small pack barns; barn and stables.

The successful bidder at said sale will be required, then and there, to make a deposit with the Commissioner equivalent to 10% of his bid as a good faith deposit, the balance of the purchase price to be paid upon delivery of the deed.

The above described property will be offered for sale subject to confirmation by the Court.

This The 18th Day Of September, 1956

Special Reasons For Keeping An Eye On How Pennsylvania Voters React

By RELMAN MORIN

CLEARFIELD, Pa. — For a special set of reasons, Pennsylvania is a state to watch as the race for the presidency picks up speed.

It has 32 electoral votes — a quota equalled by California and exceeded only by New York's 45. Since it is President Eisenhower's adopted state, both parties attach special prestige values to carrying it.

Every major campaign argument touches somebody in Pennsylvania. It battles with big and small business. In the mining districts, some people are not working. And there is a patchwork of handsome farms — many of them "family farms."

Although Eisenhower appears to be leading Adlai Stevenson, most observers say it is still anybody's race.

Two years ago, for the second time since the Civil War, Democrats elected a governor—George M. Leader—and they have whittled down the GOP registration margin.

In 1952, Eisenhower carried Pennsylvania by 269,000 votes, or 53 per cent of the total of about 4,580,000.

He lost Philadelphia by 160,000, and Allegheny County, embracing Pittsburgh, by 14,000.

It was the areas in between, the small towns and farming communities, that gave Pennsylvania to Eisenhower.

Let's look at a heartland area. Clearfield County lies near the center of the state. It has some small towns, some industry, coal mines — some of which are idle — and many farms.

Neither party can be sure of Clearfield. Registration figures show the Democrats with 16,845 to the Republicans' 16,113. It went Democratic in a senatorial race in 1950, to Eisenhower in 1952, then Democratic again in the governor's election of 1954.

You discover that many people in different economic categories, and without regard to party affiliation, like Ike.

For example, J. Bruce Meyer is a coal operator, an employer of miners, and a registered Democrat. "But I voted for Ike in '52 and I'm going to vote for him again," he says.

A few miles outside the city of Clearfield is a brick plant. You question 17 men there, foremen, pipefitters, skilled firemen, bricklayers.

Of 14 who voted for Eisenhower four years ago, 12 said they will again. "He has done a good job," said Roy Schattner.

One of the other two is undecided. The other, Burton Knepp, said he was switching to Stevenson. "I thought it was time for a change," he said, "but I don't like the change we got."

Few people seemed concerned about Eisenhower's heart attack or operation. Typical comments: "He's in better shape than Stevenson, I figure." "If he thinks he can run, that's good enough for me."

Democrats, wooing the small businessmen, argue they are suffering under the policies of the present administration. Newspaper advertising is usually an accurate barometer of business health and in the Clearfield Progress, this city's daily paper, advertising volume is ahead of 1955.

E. G. Iddings, operating a garage and service station, said his business is better than last year. He will vote for Eisenhower again, he said, "because he has done a good job, and times are good."

N. Robert Blair went into business for himself last April. Yes, he had to borrow money. No, he had no trouble getting the loan. Things are going well for him, he said, and he has not heard of any small businessmen in trouble.

He is an Eisenhower supporter. But Morris Silverblatt, an attorney, reported that "small businessmen are complaining. I don't think things are bad, but expenses are going up and profits are being cut." He thinks the Democrats will carry the county, but that Eisenhower will carry the state.

What about the farmers?

Here you run into some contradictions. Some said their income this year is below last year, another said it was up, another said "it's about the same."

None, however, said he was switching parties as a result. A part-time farmer, John Shifter, said his income is up but that he is a registered Democrat "and I'm voting Democratic."

J. Harold McFadden, a farmer and a GOP official, said, "there is no question that the squeeze is on the farmer." He predicted, nevertheless, that most of those in the county would vote for Eisenhower.

Another part-time farmer, Earl Bacheller, raises poultry and he voiced this view: "Around here, people don't run to the government for help. When our prices go down, we just don't raise so many chickens." He said his income is down.

In the mining communities, where unemployment is greatest, the expressions were almost unanimously in favor of Stevenson and the whole Democratic ticket. Men spoke sourly of "ghost towns" nearby, and said the federal government had done nothing to meet the problems of the coal industry. When they would talk at all, they left no doubt about their feelings.

Republican Sen. James H. Duff is in a hot race with Democrat Joseph S. Clark.

Duff, 73, was governor before he went to the Senate in 1950. Clark, 55, was elected mayor of Philadelphia in 1951.

Beatification Of Pope On Sunday

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Innocent XI, a humble man who dared stand against powerful Louis XIV of France, will be beatified Sunday at St. Peter's Basilica.

Center of the glittering ceremony will be the silver-naked body of the 17th century Pope. Pope Pius XII has given the pontifical robes to clothe the body of Innocent XI, and the papal ring that has been placed on his silver-covered hand. The crystal coffin will be exposed at the culminating moment of the ceremony when the papal brief is read proclaiming Innocent one of the blessed of the Roman Catholic Church.

Pope Pius, from his Castel Gandolfo summer residence, will speak exalting Innocent's virtues. Later in the day, Pius will come to St. Peter's to lead in the first act of veneration of the newly beatified pontiff.

A solemn pontifical Mass will be celebrated by Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, French-born dean of the Cardinals. At one time French authorities opposed Innocent's election to the papacy; later they opposed his beatification.

Innocent XI, born Benedetto Odescalchi May 16, 1611, at Como, northern Italy, was noted for his humility and modest way of life. In that period Catholic kings held broad powers in administrative matters of the church. Antagonism between Innocent XI and King Louis XIV reached a peak when the king's aides insisted on using the French embassy in Rome as a hideout for criminals and other persons evading the authority of the Pope as ruler of the Papal States.

One of Innocent's first acts as Pope was to reduce expenses. Within a few years he had eliminated the Vatican's long-standing deficit.

He was 78 years old when he died Aug. 12, 1689. The process for beatification began in 1714. French authorities were hostile. Now, 267 years after Innocent's death, the process has been completed.

Science Strives Adapt Coal To Atom Challenge

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The drive to make atomic-powered electric plants as cheap to operate as those powered by coal is running up against a new challenge today.

Scientists are trying just as hard to make coal-powered plants more efficient and less costly—and thus stretching out the cost gap between the conventional generator and the nuclear one of the future.

Some corporations are developing split personalities in tackling the problem. They are spending millions in an effort to build a less costly atomic power plant. At the same time they are driving to make coal fired power plants more efficient.

Atomic electricity competitive with coal will be realized in other lands before it is in the United States where most areas are rich in cheap conventional fuels. The British hope to get atomic power as cheap as power from coal within five years. The goal in the United States is now 10 years.

Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, says that thanks to the present research drive in nuclear science, "a major breakthrough, putting us at or near the goal, could come with some suddenness."

And Willis Gale, chairman of Commonwealth Edison of Chicago, says this nation must strive to hold its lead in technological development rather than strain to attain fixed goals of kilowatt capacity by stepped up building of atomic plants of current design.

Edison Electric Institute has a group of six utility executives alerted to keep abreast of the progress in making nuclear power plants competitive.

Westinghouse Electric is an example of a company playing both sides of the power street. It is building an atomic power plant at Shippingport, Pa., to be operated by Duquesne Light & Power, starting next year, with initial output of 60,000 kilowatts. It's also working with Pennsylvania Power & Light and Yankee Atomic Electric Co. on other atomic projects. Altogether it's putting 30 million dollars into its atomic program.

But at south Philadelphia Westinghouse engineers are working hard in a steam laboratory to get higher temperatures and pressures in the big steam turbine-generator units that produce electricity—and thus get power more cheaply.

In time, of course, the atomic branch of the electric business will catch up with steam turbine development. The constantly upgraded coal plants, meantime, are giving the atom quite a race.

Leaf Harvester 'Here To Stay'

SMITHFIELD — R. D. Mahler, Route 1, Newton Grove, is sold on the value of a tobacco harvester. Johnston County Agent C. W. Tarlton, says Mahler has plenty of labor to operate the harvester, with the exception of one primer. Mahler says it cost him $1,000 to house 12 acres of tobacco in 1954. Last year his acreage was reduced to 11 and he spent only $100 for labor and used the harvester. As far as he is concerned, the harvester is here to stay.

Warrant Charges Armed Robbery

Police arrested Theodore Wilson, Negro, of 115 E. First St., Friday on a warrant charging him with armed robbery. The warrant was signed by George Wilson, also Negro. Making the arrest were Officers C. E. Whitman and K. E. Warren.

Three Arrested For Hog Theft

Deputy sheriffs and Winterville police Thursday night arrested three Negro men and charged them with the theft of a hog from the Robert Beddard farm near Winterville. Placed under arrest were Jimmy Ray Carmon, Joe Lewis Harris and Alex Waller Jr., all of Winterville. They are accused of stealing a 175-pound hog from Beddard's farm.

Eve Arden Bids Adieu To Miss Brooks Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—With a mixture of joy and regret, Eve Arden says farewell to her Miss Brooks. "After four successful seasons, 'Our Miss Brooks' has faded from the Friday night program. She is coming back on re-runs of the show. But she won't remain idle."

"I grew rather fond of Miss Brooks," she reflected. "After all, she has been very good to me." Eve will be able to keep her ranch in chickens for a long time since she'll be collecting on the re-runs of the show. But she won't remain idle.

"I'm still under exclusive contract to CBS," she said. "I have three months to come up with the pilot film for a new series. It's largely a matter of finding the right writers and then the right casting."

Helicopter Help In Pecan Harvest

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—A helicopter and a harvester will be used in a tree-shaking, pecan-picking experiment. The helicopter will blow the nuts from the trees, then the harvester will move along the ground and suck up the pecans.

That's the idea. Whether it will work will be determined Wednesday.

Lewis Scott, a Savannah crop duster, will pilot the whirlybird. Arthur O. Sandison of Albany, manager of a pecan processing company, will supervise ground operations at an orchard south of Albany.

If the two machines do what they're supposed to do, the experiment may bring about a considerable reduction in pecan harvesting time.

Knows Better, But Keeps Nags

APACHE, Okla. (AP)—Nelson McCay has been farming in the Apache community for more than 50 years, and he's still using horse power.

"Tractors are cheaper per acre I know," he admits. "But I'd still rather use horses. And I'll bet down deep in their hearts all other farmers would too."
