Women's Role In Election Described At Meeting Here

By ANNETTE JACKSON
Reflector Woman's Editor

Mrs. Everett... Yesterday's Speaker

yesterday with an increased awareness of their importance after hearing speaker after speaker reiterate their role in the coming election.

Time after time they were reminded of the advantage they enjoy and urged to get out and work.

Leading the list of pep messages was a telegram from Adia Stevenson, himself, addressed to Mrs. Gordon Maddrey of Ahsokie, chairman of the district. The message read, by Mrs. Maddrey on behalf of the meeting said in part "... it is work of groups like yours that can and will provide the margin of victory."

John C. Clark of Greenville, Pitt County Democratic Executive Chairman, advised the ladies in a few brief remarks, "Go back home and work. Get out the money and then get out the vote."

He suggested that most of the "fifteen dollar people" had already been reached by the party's drive for funds, leaving the "one and two dollar" folks' contributions still to be realized.

Urged To Ring Doorbells
National Democratic Committee-woman Mrs. B. B. Everett of Halifax County urged the group to "Ring Doorbells For The Democrats." She told the female party faithful present there are more eligible women voters than men. "It is our responsibility to get folks registered, get them out and to the polls," she said.

Quoting Stevenson's campaign manager James Finerman, Mrs. Everett said the three requirements of a successful campaign are good issues, good candidates and good organization.

Said the national committee-woman who has already attended six meetings throughout the state similar to the one yesterday, "We've got the issues and we've got the candidates. We've got to show we have good organization."

"Women have a real contribution to make," she continued. "They think about their children and their welfare. They have time to think about these things and it is their responsibility to see that political offices are occupied by honest men with integrity."

To Approaches
"There is a moral and manipulative approach to government," Mrs. Everett asserted. "Men expect women to be interested and concerned with the moral approach and they will listen to us if we have our feet on the ground."

"Let's prove to the men we're on the ball. Ask to see the registration books in your precinct and then see what the job holds for you," she advised.

Shift In Tactics
The luncheon meeting yesterday held at Respass Brothers was one of an epidemic sweeping the state in each congressional district. These Democratic meetings, designed exclusively for women, represent a shift in party tactics.

Until recently women attending political gatherings were known only as Mr. X's wife, according to Mrs. Everett.

Realizing that women have a distinctive value to render in an election year, district chairmen were named and meetings planned. At these meetings women are encouraged to speak out, thus giving them confidence to take their stand on party issues in larger groups.

According to Mrs. Maddrey, purpose of these meetings is to undergird and add impetus to the organized party machinery already existing.

Future Plans Announced
Mrs. Maddrey presided over the meeting.

She announced future plans for the party including a luncheon meet in Ahsokie October 16 to serve the same purpose as this, a fund-raising dinner to be held in Raleigh Oct. 20, and a First Congressional District Rally scheduled for October 25 in Washington.

Special recognition was given to the following present for the occasion: Clark, Gilbert Peele, both excused after brief talks; Mrs. J. B. Spillman, former state party vice chairman; Dr. Kathleen Stokes, advisor for the YDC of East Carolina College, who reported on its activities and plans; Mrs. John Rodman of Washington; Mrs. Elbert Peele of Williamston.

Mrs. Spencer, Chairman
Mrs. Curtis Spencer, vice chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Committee, gave a short address of welcome to the out-of-town guests. Mrs. Spencer served as chairman of arrangements for the luncheon meeting.

Invocation was said by the Rev. Floyd B. Cherry, pastor of Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church. Two large likenesses of Stevenson and Kefauver were placed behind the speakers table. Unlike

'Litter Bug' Project Talked

Grifton—A program on the "Litter Bug" campaign was presented members of The Grifton Garden Club meeting Monday afternoon by Mrs. H. L. Lawton.

It is the plan of the garden club to promote this campaign through the school and other organizations in town. Mrs. Lawton pointed out how little effort it takes to see that drinking cups and other small waste articles are placed in trash cans rather than on the street.

An effort will be made to have the proper receptacles on public places for trash.

Mrs. J. T. Williams and Mrs. Archie Rogers are on the "Litter Bug" committee in behalf of the garden club.

The concluding part of the program was a flower clinic. Arrangements were brought by Mesdames Williams, Rogers, Robert Mewborn and Bill Mahler.

These were discussed and judged according to the basic rules for flower arranging.

Mrs. Clifton Jackson presided at the business hour. Plans for the bulb sale were completed and a discussion held on the community building at the park.

The club voted to support this project.

The meeting took place at the home of Mrs. Williams on Church

Code Of Ethics Explained At Meeting

Highlighting the first 1956 meeting of the Greenville High School chapter of the Future Teachers of America was a program explaining the Code of Ethics of the North Carolina Educational Association.

The Code of Ethics forms the standards which the teachers of North Carolina follow. The code includes such points as the relationship between the teachers and the pupil and the conduct of the teacher in all professional matters.

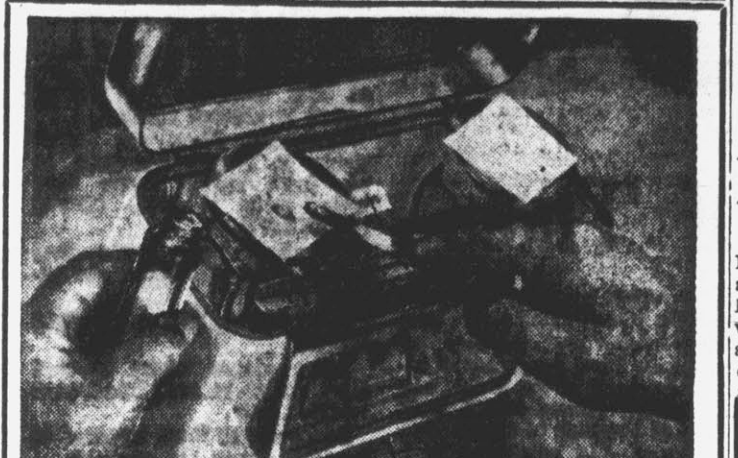

This program proved to be a very interesting and informative one," states Madelyn Coleman, president. "We hope to make this year one of our most successful."

The meeting took place at the home of Margaret Ann Harrell. Refreshments of ham biscuits, cheese sandwiches, donut centers and punch were served.

What part of every prescription weighs nothing at all?

Your pharmacist's scale is so sensitive it will respond to the weight of a hair!

But into every prescription he compounds, your pharmacist puts one ingredient that never moves the scale's needle.

It is the most important thing you buy whenever you have a prescription filled!

It is the professional knowledge and skill of your pharmacist. Without it, no prescription could be properly filled. The physician orders the required drugs in the specific amounts needed, but the compounding of the finished prescription is the sole responsibility of your pharmacist.

Before he could fulfill this responsibility, he devoted years to the study of the highly specialized subjects of his profession. To earn his college degree, for example, he had to acquire a fundamental knowledge of many sciences such as chemistry, physics, biology. He mastered, too, the details of compounding and dispensing drugs, chemicals, and other medicinal agents.

And after his formal education, your pharmacist's course of study does not end. For there are constant changes and progress in medicine and pharmacy with which he must keep abreast.

Get better acquainted with your pharmacist. He's a good neighbor, and a good citizen who works for better community health. Reprinted from a copyrighted advertisement published by Parke, Davis & Company, Detroit 32, Michigan.

NC Growth Very Much In Evidence

Cities in Eastern North Carolina have been subjected to an acute case of growing pains for the past 10 years and from construction figures so far this year, it appears the growing pains will not lessen for the next year or so at least.

For Greenville 1956 already has become the second highest year in the city's history so far as new construction is concerned. It is surpassed only by the new construction which took place last year, and there is a possibility 1956 may become the biggest construction year on record before 1956 is over.

During the first nine months of this year new construction for which permits were issued amounted to $2,027,300, or approximately $700,000 short of the total for 1955. Both these years are well above 1950, the previous record year, when construction for which city permits were issued totaled just under two million dollars.

It is particularly significant that construction has been carried out at such a high rate this year in the face of a tightening money market. Most observers readily agree that loans for new construction since the middle of 1956 have been much more difficult to get than during the past year. The tighter money market has naturally had its impact upon new construction. Had it not been for the tighter money market, it is quite possible 1956 would have surpassed 1955 for new construction in Greenville.

From the rate of construction not just this year, but for the past several years, it is apparent that Greenville and other cities of this section are growing. Almost without exception the cities and towns are feeling the impact of more people in a greater area within the corporate limits and a greater burden of providing service to more people and larger areas.

The only way for a community to meet its needs in an era of growth is through long range planning for the various and sundry services and facilities which are and will be needed. Through its recent capital improvements bond issue, Greenville provided for some of these needs which it had not been able to afford out of annual budgets. With continued growth, however, it becomes apparent that the things which were provided for by the bond issue will not meet the needs for long. Indeed, many things which were needed were deleted from the bond issue in an effort to keep the amount at a minimum.

Through its subdivision ordinances, the providing of off-street parking, one-way traffic and a number of recent moves, Greenville has made considerable headway in coping with new problems its growth has brought. It is apparent, however, that long range planning must continue to play a major part in the city's thinking and progress.

Whether sufficient attention is being given to long range planning for the city becomes a matter of daily concern.

C & D Board Covers A Lot Of Territory

By LYNN NISBET

SCOPE — Ralph Hanes, one of the leading industrialists in the state, told a group at Winston-Salem the other night that he was amazed at the scope of activities of the State Department of Conservation and Development.

Occasion was a dinner given for the C&D board by the directors of the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. The audience was made up mainly of Twin City business men. Hanes urged his hearers to read a little book explaining the department's work, so that they might understand better the wide diversity in the operation of State government—at least this one phase of it.

He had often called upon the State agency for information respecting his own business, he said, and always got courteous and efficient response. It just hadn't occurred to him that fishermen and foresters, miners and motel operators were utilizing the same facility.

A few days before the Hanes statement your reporter was riding a Raleigh city bus with a lawyer friend, who wondered why the State wasn't doing something to attract industry and adjust taxes. He was much more surprised that was the Winston-Salem manufacturer to learn that the State is spending about two million dollars a year for conservation and development, including the employment of industrial promotion engineers, promoting tourist travel and other activities which he thought ought to be started.

That raises the question of whether the State has done enough to keep its own taxpayers informed about what it is doing. Governor Hodges has insisted for some months it has not, and that more publicity should be given to efforts and achievements in this field. He does not have the anti-press agent attitude which featured some of the late Governor Umstead's decisions.

POLICY — Since the state advertising program was inaugurated 20 years ago efforts have been directed toward developing new business — manufacturing, processing and travel—rather than bragging about results. The advertising committee of the C&D board reaffirmed this policy, although more attention will be given to the "home market."

Pending report of the special tax study commission and legislative action on it, the committee felt that emphasis should still be on the climatic, geographic and trainable labor advantages, rather than on direct financial aid or tax concessions as inducements for new industry. One additional point to be noted is the fact that North Carolina now has a chief executive who can talk the language of the industrialists, and is recognized as the state's No. 1 salesman.

The indirect approach will be taken on some of these appeals. Officials of companies which have established plants here will be quoted as to their reasons for coming, rather than the State itself stating these reasons. The idea of bringing a group of editors from all over the country to North Carolina for a tour, and showing them at first hand what we have to offer, rather than sending them elaborate brochures, was approved. Details are to be worked out later. The idea was borrowed from the Province of Ontario, Canada, which for some years has conducted annual tours of editors from the United States.

SECTIONAL — The Northwest North Carolina Development Association illustrates the successful approach to agricultural and industrial progress. The story told by Archie Davis, chairman of the board of Wachovia Bank & Trust Company, at the luncheon meeting offered a Challenge to the rest of the state—which Governor Hodges accepted.

JOINT — This is one of several area development organizations already functioning. Others are in the formative stage. One of the largest in Western North Carolina Associated Communities, comprising all the state west of and including Asheville, The Capital Area Development Association was recently chartered embracing the counties of Wake, Harnett, Johnston, Franklin, Warren, Vance and Granville. Plans are nearing completion for a similar organization around Wilmington.

The Northwest group includes Forsyth, Alexander, Alleghany, Ashe, Caldwell, Davie, Stokes, Surry, Watauga, Wilkes and Yadkin. It started three years ago as joint effort among these counties to increase planting of allotted tobacco acreage. That one effort has resulted in recapturing some $2.5 million a year income for farmers.

Opportunities discovered in the original venture led to promotion of egg production to a $200 business this year, with $300,000 as the goal for 1957. Comparable increases have been noted in both beef and dairy cattle, and a cattle buying station has been opened. In addition to agricultural progress the area has local, although not substantial, industries.

Best part of the whole deal, Davis said, is the general spirit of co-operation in all phases of human activity. The accomplishments would have been impossible without all communities working together. Next step is for co-ordination of efforts of the several area groups for statewide development. A man doesn't actually have to be sentenced to suffer. And we have every idea that McKee has suffered far more than the average person realizes. He has the blood of those six young men on his conscience. He has a world of bad publicity which followed. He has the memory of the trial which brought him such notoriety.

It is our feeling that if we, the American people are to see McKee punished so severely, then some of those above him in rank are also guilty. When a system allows a man to do what McKee did, then those who are responsible for the system, in our mind, are just as guilty as the one who actually led the death march.

It is in the finest American tradition that a Marine or anyone else be given a second chance. Private McKee now has his "second chance." It is also his last chance with Marines. If he makes good, then the sentence he has been given will suffice to remind him that after all, he is a lucky young man.

And now if the system is wrong under which Marine recruits are trained, then something should be done to overhaul that system.

Dream Of Tar Heel Oil Wells Just Won't Die

The dream of oil wells which has fascinated men's minds for the better part of a century still lingers in North Carolina and brings forth a gusher of new ventures every couple of years.

Though untold thousands of dollars and countless man hours have been spent in the search for oil in North Carolina without success, the search goes on from the tidelands of the east to the foothills. Hopes of finding the black gold in marketable quantities in this state rises and falls with new data which is compiled.

Some years ago the state offered a rather handsome reward for the first productive oil well brought in in North Carolina. So far as we know the offer still holds and no one has come forth to claim it. Just this week the Board of Conservation and Development approved action of a committee on wild cat oil drilling on state-owned land which calls for leases for drillers.

Perhaps one day one of these thousands of holes which are drilled will flow forth with oil. When it does North Carolina will go wild. Until it does, people of the state will continue to hope and speculate. Dreams of oil wells in the midst of a tobacco patch with a big car parked at the pack house will continue to haunt the mind's eye of Tar Heels just as they have done for decades.

Thirty years ago this week it looked like the dream of oil might have come true in Greenville. The Daily Reflector of October 8, 1926 reported:

"The dream of oil in Eastern North Carolina will no doubt in the near future develop into a reality and oil in commercial quantities will be produced here as the result of investigations that have been going on for the past few weeks at the estate of Mrs. Jack L. Westbrook in this city.

"Specimens of the seepage from flowing wells on the place have been analyzed by the State Department of Agriculture and in a letter to Mrs. Westbrook, State Chemist W. M. Allen stated that mineral oil, having the appearance of crude oil, as it would come from the ground, was found in the samples and that he was very much impressed with the results of the examination."

This Is The Season Of Denial By Campaigners

The home stretch of a major political campaign is always denoted by the increasing heat of politicians' words.

Mutual charges of distortion by the other party from President Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson should not have come as a surprise to the American people. As is the case in such a campaign, each side takes the liberty of interpreting to voters what the other side has said or done. It is nothing new. It has been done in American politics longer than anyone can remember.

The charges of "distortion" indicate that as election day approaches, each political camp is becoming more sensitive about the charges tossed at it by the opposition and the impact such charges may have upon the voters. Thus more time is being spent now in denying charges than previously has been evident in the presidential campaign.

As the race for the wire moves into high gear, each party is attempting to "set the record straight" according to its own interpretation not only of what has been done in past years, but likewise of what has been said in this campaign.

Other Editors Are Saying... The Majority Will Agree

(Washington Daily News)

It is our opinion that 99 percent of the present members of the Marine force will agree that the Secretary of the Navy did right in reducing the sentence of Sgt. Matthew McKee.

It is also our opinion that a great majority of all other Americans will agree with the lesser sentence. We do not seek to minimize the seriousness of what McKee did. We realize that what he did might have been inexcusable. But in a real sense it is a fault of the system as much, if not more, than it is the fault of any one man.

What McKee did had been done before. Had he taken those boys into the swamp and all had returned safely, the public would never have heard of the incident. As it was, he was most unfortunate. And six young Marines lost their lives.

We agree with what the Secretary of the Navy said when he cautioned "the memory of Ribbon Creek will always be with McKee. And Ribbon Creek will ever be stamped indelibly in his memory as a reminder of what happened. It will haunt him the longest day he lives."

McKee will be allowed to remain in the Marines. Previously he had been sentenced to a bad conduct discharge. This gives the young man an opportunity to pick up the pieces of his life and try to rebuild them. He can be a useful Marine. He can never live down what circumstances threw his way. He must find some way to live with these circumstances. By reducing him to the rank of Private, McKee can start all over again. Of course, he has two strikes on him now. But a good Marine is never out with two strikes on him.

There are some who will disagree with what we have said and of course with the reduction of sentence. A man doesn't actually have to be sentenced to suffer. And we have every idea that McKee has suffered far more than the average person realizes. He has the blood of those six young men on his conscience. He has a world of bad publicity which followed. He has the memory of the trial which brought him such notoriety.

It is our feeling that if we, the American people are to see McKee punished so severely, then some of those above him in rank are also guilty. When a system allows a man to do what McKee did, then those who are responsible for the system, in our mind, are just as guilty as the one who actually led the death march.

It is in the finest American tradition that a Marine or anyone else be given a second chance. Private McKee now has his "second chance." It is also his last chance with Marines. If he makes good, then the sentence he has been given will suffice to remind him that after all, he is a lucky young man.

And now if the system is wrong under which Marine recruits are trained, then something should be done to overhaul that system.

Take Your Choice Of Three

Rain, bless its wet little heart has gotten the News Department into a dither.

Sometime ago, a report on a particular rainfall of one inch included the comment, "One inch of rain on an acre of ground is equivalent to 48,000 gallons of water, the records state."

Albert W. Colwell, III, a freshman at East Carolina, took issue with the comment. In a letter to New Editor Don (Little Einstein) Schlenz, Mr. Colwell says, "I believe the calculation of 48,000 gallons is wrong. It is that it is."

He explains his position by saying further, "There are 45,560 square feet in an acre (Editor's Note: Reference works in The Daily Reflector's news room say 43,560 square feet), 144 square inches to the foot, and 231 cubic inches to the gallon. To get the amount of water in gallons for a one-inch stand of water on an acre, you multiply the square footage of the acre by the square inches in a foot and divide the product by the amount of cubic inches in a gallon of water."

Mr. Colwell goes on to work the problem and comes up with an answer of 28,401.04 gallons of water.

Well, that set the whole staff off on a mathematical jag. We consulted dictionaries, Alvin Taylor's fifth grade math book, two carrier boys and the World Almanac.

Our calculations, made unfortunately after the story was printed and Mr. Colwell took us to task, were made on the basis of 43,560 square feet in an acre. We followed Mr. Colwell's formula and came up with an answer of 27,154.28 gallons of water.

The World Almanac solves the problem by means of weight rather than area. The editors divide the number of pounds of water (226.512) by the weight of a U.S.

gallon (8.345 pounds) and came up with 27,143 gallons.

The whole deal depends, of course, on ideal conditions of identical density of the water, uniform (flat) ground and a level depth of one inch of rain.

Anyway, you can take your choice of the three revised answers. Mr. Colwell is apparently in error with his total area figure. There is a chance that our backyard math is erroneous because when you get past three-digit numbers we get lost, unless the numbers are on a paycheck (they never are). The World Almanac simply confuses the issue by working with weights instead of square feet but you can't argue with them.

The problem was an interesting one but everybody eventually came up with one conclusion:

Rain is just like any other water. It'll rust your pipes if you drink it straight all the time.

Notebook On Life

Broadway's Freckled Colleen

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — "Pigs are not open-minded — they're sneaky," said Siobhan McKenna, positively, "and I won't have them on my farm."

"But I love cows. They have such beautiful long eyelashes." The farm that Miss McKenna, the brightest star of the current drama season, spoke of was the one she dreams of owning and retiring to some future day in her native Ireland. After, of course, she achieves another dream—to play Hamlet. So, not Ophelia. Hamlet! And she'll probably get her wish.

Every now and then an actress comes along who can scratch a match in your veins and set your brain and heart aflame, or several weeks young Miss McKenna has been doing just that to audiences in the off-Broadway Phoenix Theater with her electric portrayal of the tomboy saint in Bernard Shaw's "St. Joan."

Critics have acclaimed her "The Greatest Joan of the century," and, indeed, who before her ever played Joan in Gaelic in Dublin in English in London... with an Irish accent in Manhattan...

lan... and planned to do it in French in Paris? What is Siobhan (pronounced "Sh-vawn") like ofttaste? Well, she is so busy—almost every day a new Hollywood producer suddenly "discovers" her—that seeing her alone is only slightly less difficult than it would be to arrange a private game of crabgrass billiards with President Eisenhower.

Finally I arranged a luncheon date. It came during a break in a seven-hour rehearsal of an Oct. 15th NBC-TV presentation of Somerset Maugham's "The Letter," in which Miss McKenna portrays a cool-blooded murderer.

Siobhan saves her acting for the floodlights. She showed up wearing a weathered tweed suit and flat-heeled white shoes. She wore no makeup. A cherr-red stocking cap hid the raw-necked GI haircut she had to undergo for her role as Joan.

I noted that she seemed to be 5 feet 5 and 125 pounds of talent held together largely by freckles.

"I'm afraid that no one in the theater except Katie Hepburn has more than I do," she said ruefully. "In Gaelic freckles are called 'little trout,' and Irish girls who have them console themselves by saying that are signs of beauty."

"But as a child I used to try to scrub them off with butter-milk."

Seventy dollars! That is a lot of money to pay for one photograph. Don't get too discouraged about humanity. There is much meanness, dishonesty, corruption, and general depravity everywhere on every continent, in every village—but good heartedness and human kindness and loving unselfish benevolence are also to be seen everywhere. There are kind hearts everywhere. There are multitudes willing to do a good act to anyone in need. The world is full of disinterested goodness if we will busy ourselves to look for it.

St. Paul suggested that if there is anything lovely and of good report we should think on these things. Let us do it for a change. A $70 picture of a handy man and shoe-shiner—that's good stuff.

Examiner Thomas H. Donahue recommended in April, 1955, approval of KIRO's application for a television license, despite uncontradicted evidence that Haas, while U.S. Collector of Customs, pressured Charles Thomson, then KIRO owner, into selling Haas and "friends at Washington" he said he "had to take care of." KIRO stock for only $1 a share, although par value was $10. Haas eventually bought out KIRO.

POINTS IN FCC OFFICIAL RECORD: Although conceding that Haas' action was "ethically and morally indefensible," Donahue favored his application. During this hearing, Donahue denied rival applicants the right to try to prove that, when Haas was editor of the Union Record, the newspaper purchased a pro-Moscow and anti-American policy.

Although the newspaper's files substantiated the charge that it had followed the "Moscow line," Donahue again recommended grant of the franchise to KIRO last July. However, the FCC has taken the matter out of his hands, and ordered a rehearing before the full commission.

The Union Record was originally owned by the Seattle Council of the American Federation of Labor, but Haas acquired it with a partner newspaper because it was generally in default on its payments. It went into receivership and folded in 1928.

Many of the 40 editorials submitted in evidence could have appeared in Pravda or Izvestia, the Kremlin's house organs. One attributed the early German-Russian alliance to the "greed of imperialist Britain and France."

It described the pact as the "longest step toward peace since Armistice day."

EDITORIAL COMMENTS FROM OLD SEATTLE JOURNAL: Another predicted that the Communist would win in China," despite efforts by foreign imperialists to attack the movement. Numerous editorials condemned the Coolidge-Kellogg policy toward Mexico and Nicaragua as "valued imperialism." It said that "There is no Bolshevism so rank as that of the Secretary of State (Kellogg), for, it is the Bolshevism of imperialism." The following statement is typical:

"Every murderous and destructive policy which fear daddened capitalistic governments could invent have been used against Russia."

The Faults & Sins Of Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

A reader named Dorothy Granger writes that I always seem so enthusiastic about business that she wonders whether I am blind to its many faults and chicanes.

No, Dorothy. Because I love business and because I have been an enthusiastic reporter and commentator for so long, I am more conscious than others of its many errors and sins.

At the moment, reading from left to right across the top of my mind, I dislike:

Products described as magic. Whenever I am offered something "magic" I feel as if I am about to saw a woman in half.

Trading stamps. I think they increase prices. People who want to outlaw trading stamps. I believe merchants in a democracy have the right to offer any kinds of deals or premiums—including wild gold Christmas trees—they want.

Door-to-door salesmen. They bother me.

People who want to outlaw door-to-door salesmen.

IRRITATIONS VIA ETHER. Radio stations that boom commercials so loudly that when you turn the dial to comfortable listening, you can't hear the music when it returns.

Television programs that don't disclose the fact that they are on film until it's too late to switch to another channel.

Television films with copyrights in Roman numerals so you can't readily figure they were made in 1934. (That's MCMXXXIV.)

Television commercials that come on before it's time for another drink.

Steak houses that do not have menus.

Farm stands whose produce turns out to be stuff middlemen wouldn't buy.

Prepackaged meat wrapped to conceal excess fat or bone.

Most prepackaged meat anyhow.

COUPONS. They make me feel cheated when I pay the regular price.

OTHER ANNOYANCES. Real estate men who phone and say, "Have you thought of selling your home?" I haven't even thought about paying for it yet.

Corporation executives who strike poses when I interview them. I am not a Fortune photographer.

Corporation executives who act proud of their poundage. It's like being proud of a leaky truck.

Salesmen who say, "First let me show you the advantages," when you ask the price of an article.

TROUBLE WITH ADVERTISEMENTS.

Ads that don't quote prices. Ads that quote prices and add "and up" without saying how far.

Gas stations that display signs with a giant "26" followed by a midget "9." I drive on.

Ads that shout "Guaranteed!" without saying what is guaranteed or for how long.

Ads that say "smoother," "better" or "richer" without saying what the product is smoother, better or richer than. WORST OF ALL.

My most purplish cholera is caused by acquaintances who reach for a lunch or bar check and say, "Let me have it! I'll charge it to my expense account," or "I'll take it off my income tax."

To my conch-like ears they seem to be saying, "You're a sucker if you pay bills like this out of your own pocket. Let me show you how a wise guy does it."

I still feel that in the end I'll pay that tab when I pay higher income taxes because smart fellows cheat on theirs.

Opinions In Brief

BENAVIDES, TEXAS, FACTS: "Unless the nation is to be rocked periodically between paralyzing, nation-wide strikes and wage price inflation, the ability of giant unions to wield an arbitrary monopoly power over entire industries must be curtailed, by changes in the anti-trust statutes or by other means to restore bargaining to the local level."

More On FCC Delay In Licensing KIRO

WASHINGTON Another reason for the Federal Communications Commission's 18-month delay in granting a television license to Radio Station KIRO in Seattle consists of charges that Saul Haas, KIRO president and principal stockholder, pursued a pro-Bolshevik policy as managing editor of the Seattle Union Record in the 1920's, when Washington refused to recognize the Moscow regime.

The Ten Commandments

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 20:1-21.

The Lord sent Moses down from Mount Sinai to talk to the people of Israel to warn them that none of them should break through to the mountain, which was filled with thunders, lightnings, smoke and the sound of a trumpet.

Moses obeyed the Lord, and God spoke: "Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or the earth beneath. Thou shalt not bow down to them, nor serve them."

"Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee. Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not covet anything that is thy neighbor's."

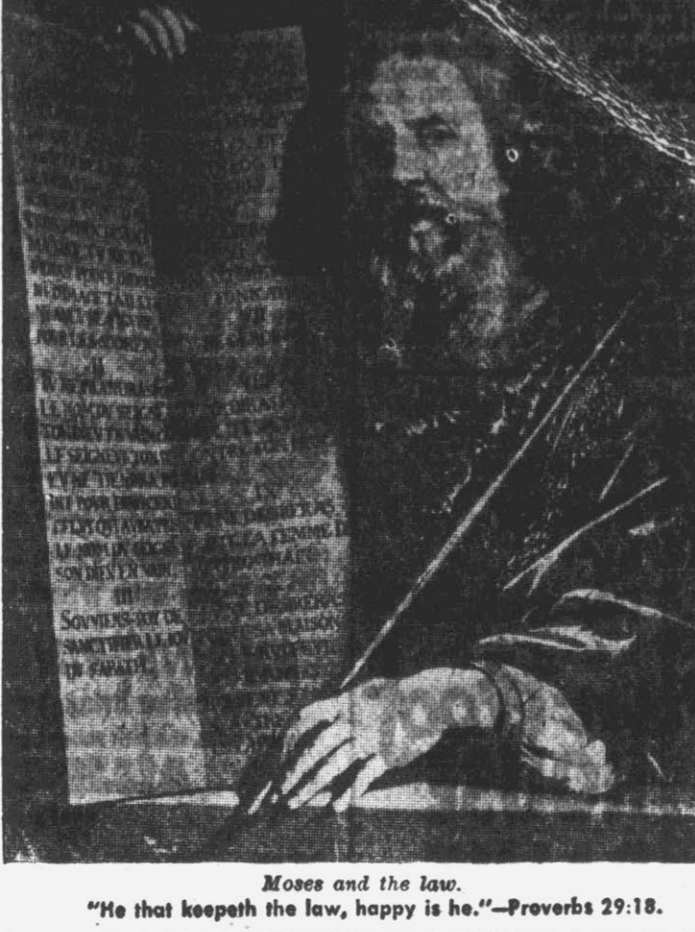

When the people heard the thunders, the trumpet; saw the lightnings, and the smoke on the sacred mountain, they were afraid and removed themselves far off. Moses said: "Fear Not." MEMORY VERSE—Proverbs 29:18.

The Ten Commandments

THE LORD GIVES HIS PEOPLE THE LAWS BY WHICH THEY SHOULD LIVE IN THE LAND HE HAS GIVEN THEM.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL MOUNT SINAI in Arabia, was the place God chose to reveal to Moses and all the people the way they should live in the land He had given them after their escape from bondage in Egypt. Moses and Aaron were the only human beings to be with the Lord in the mountain, which was smoking, with thunder and lightning and the loud sound of a trumpet. The Lord told Moses to go down the mountain to the people to warn them that none must come near the mountain, not even the priests. So Moses went down and cautioned the people to stand far off, and then the Lord spoke to His people, giving them His laws to guide them in living happily in this beautiful country. "And God spake these words, saying, I am the Lord thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. Thou shalt have no other gods before Me. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth: Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them; for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, visiting upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate Me; and showing mercy unto thousands of them that love Me, and keep My commandments. Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain. Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work. But the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God; in it thou shalt do no work. . . . for in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that is in them, and rested on the seventh day; wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it. Honor thy father and thy mother. Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor anything that is thy neighbor's. These were the laws not only for the Jewish people, but for all of us. They are the moral laws to be obeyed universally, a part of our religion which, when we obey them, we may be happy. Disobedience will bring only sorrow, failure and bondage. How can we parents, teachers, and clergymen so drill these herself and has a sister who is a dentist. As a child she wrote and acted out her own plays in a neighbor's barn. She spent three years with the Abbey Theater in Dublin. She has played everything from Lady Macbeth to Charlie in "Charlie's Aunt."

Her Irish flares up when anyone questions her desire to play Hamlet. After all, didn't Sarah Bernhardt?

"And why shouldn't a woman be Hamlet?" she asked. "He is, like Joan, an extraordinary figure. But Hamlet's problem is intellectual, rather than physical, so why should there be any great shock about having a woman play him?"

As Siobhan talked little thought-clouds and laugh crinkles chased each other across her self-serious face, like ripples on a summer pond. She also has a habit, endearing in women, of absent-mindedly picking up small crumbs from the tablecloth and eating them.

She finds the offers of quick Hollywood gold now pouring in on her somewhat disturbing.

"I don't like to plan far ahead. Here you obey time so much, I like to live in the present, and have no desire to know the day and hour I'll pass on."

"Before I do anything else I want to go back to Ireland. I miss my son, Don. He's only eight."

"You know the country people in Ireland are very honest. They tell you straight out what they think. Instead of telling me how nice I look, they'll say, 'Oh, Siobhan, how you've failed!'"

Miss McKenna's green eyes glowed as she talked of her future farm.

"Actresses are so foolish with their money," she said. "They should save it and buy a little farm they can retire to and live comfortably."

"I want a farm of only 40 acres. No swimming pool. No pigs. I've tried hard to like pigs, and I can't. But horses, yes. And cows. And a few fattening bullocks to pay the bills—so that I can gamble a bit on the horses."

In Gaelic Siobhan McKenna's name means "A bright spirit sprung from fire." It fits this Colleen as neatly as do her freckles.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY A

The vital importance of applying the rules for living taught and practiced by Christ Jesus will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Doctrine of Atonement."

Selections to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include the following (37:22-23): "It is possible,—yea, it is the duty and privilege of every child, man, and woman,—to follow in some degree the example of the Master by the demonstration of Truth and Life, of health and holiness."

The Golden Text is from II Corinthians (5:18): "all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation."

GHS Playing Host To Jackets Tonight In Loop Tilt

Gary Mattocks To Direct Bucs Against Catamounts

The Pirates of East Carolina College will play host to Western Carolina this coming Saturday in the annual homecoming tilt on the ECC campus.

Quarterbacking the Bucs will be the pride of the ECC campus, Gary Mattocks. A senior, Gary has become an overnight hero in the Pirate Den after taking over the signal-calling job from All-Conference and Little All-American candidate, Dick Cherry, who was forced to drop out of school due to an illness in his family.

Things looked gloomy at the time for Coach Boone's charges as they had dropped two contests and had been forced to a 7-7 tie with a weak Stetson eleven. Mattocks had guided the Bucs to their lone score against the Florida club.

Last week, the Pirates were not to be denied of victory as Mattocks piloted them to a 19-7 upset over Elon. It was once again the play of Mattocks which stood out.

Gary, a 170 pounder, first started his football career at Southern Pines where he was an All-Conference and All-State fullback for Coach A. C. Dawson's single-wing attack.

After playing freshman ball at Duke University, Mattocks entered service where he first got his taste at the signal-calling post. He played service ball for three years.

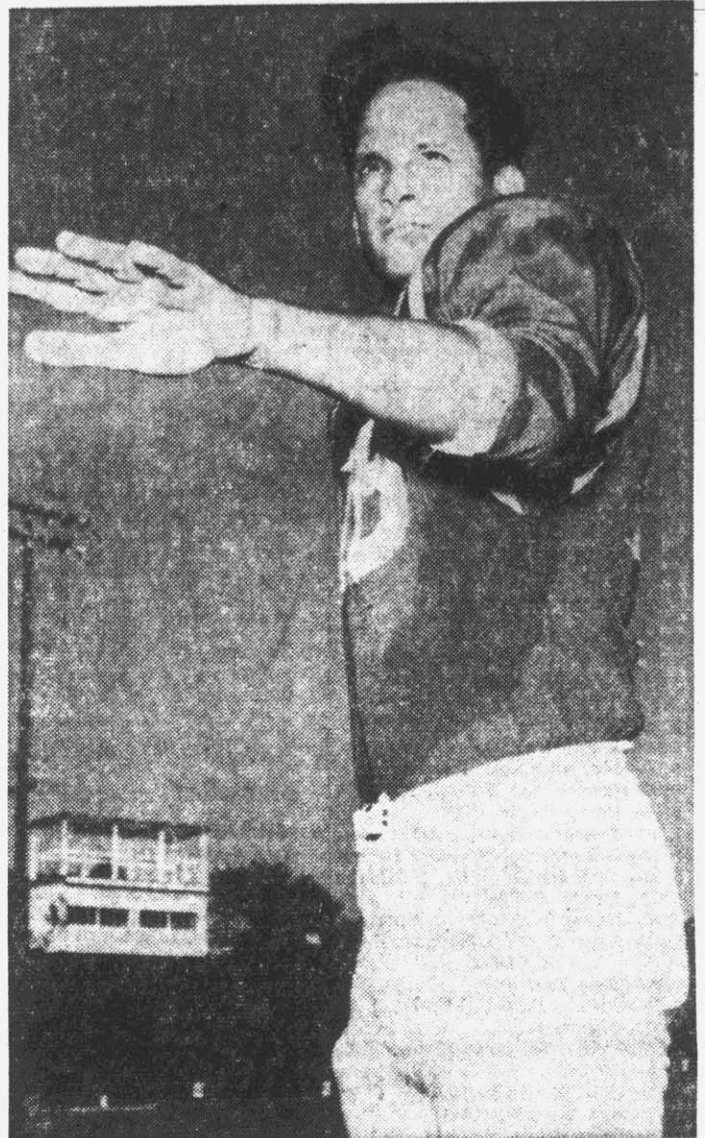

Mattocks divided the quarterback duties his first year at ECC after Cherry sustained a broken ankle. Although proving to be a capable replacement, Gary was unable to guide the Bucs to a successful season as had been expected.

Last fall Gary was the understudy for the famed Cherry, but never received the deserved recognition. It looked as if it would be the same this year, but when Cherry retired from school, Mattocks quickly showed his critics that he was ready to take over where Cherry left off. Coach Boone has plenty of praise for the Southern Pines native. "Gary is a fine quarterback and has done a better job than expected. No more could be asked of him after the past two performances. He is a fine competitor and should easily gather a spot on the All-Conference squad if he continues the fine work. We are lucky to have him," states Boone.

In talking with the talented senior, he is quick to credit what success he has made to the fine backing of the rest of the team. "It has been a great challenge and inspiration taking over the spot left vacant by Cherry and the team has been backing me 100%," states Mattocks. "We have a fine team and should give plenty of trouble before we complete our 1956 schedule," continues Gary. Pirate fans will once again get to see their triple-threat back in action this week when the Bucs meet Western Carolina in the homecoming tilt at College Stadium.

ECC QUARTERBACK—Gary Mattocks, who took over East Carolina quarterback duties last week when Dick Cherry dropped out of school, and paced the Bucs to a 19-7 win over Elon, will be directing the attack against Western Carolina tomorrow night at College Stadium. He is a 170 pound senior from Southern Pines.

New Women's Golf Champ

Mrs. Alec White, Jr. is the Greenville Golf and Country Club's new women's champion.

Mrs. White took the title with a 5 and 3 victory over Mrs. E. W. Larkin, Jr., in the finals of the championship flight. Mrs. Jane Sauve was 1955 champion but was eliminated this year by Mrs. Larkin.

In the first flight, Mrs. Luther Herring defeated Mrs. John Barnhill in one semi-final match and will play the winner of the match between Mrs. Tom Smoot and Mrs. J. T. Cheatham for flight honors.

The second flight saw Mrs. Ray Masten and Mrs. Bob Pawell battle down to a sudden-death playoff—Mrs. Masten winning in an exciting finish.

The third flight honors went to Mrs. Sam Underwood who defeated Mrs. Percy Ashby in a nip-and-tuck match.

The ringer score winners have also been announced by tournament officials at the club. In the 18-hole "A" division, first place went to Mrs. White who carded a 66. Second place was won by Mrs. John Warner with a 68.

In the nine-hole "B" division, Mrs. Dick Bodham won with a 38. Second place was won by Mrs. John Barnhill with a 40.

In Class "C" play, Mrs. Ray Masten won with a 43 and Mrs. Tom Rivers was second with a 45.

Class "D" found Mrs. C. B. Tugwell the winners with a 55. Prizes will be awarded to flight and class champions at a club dinner in November.

Roebuck, Sermons Pace Phant Attack

By BILLY ARNOLD

Elizabeth City's Yellow Jackets, rated a three-touchdown favorite over the Greenville Phantoms tonight at College Stadium, are expected to rely upon a good running offense sparked by All-Conference quarterback candidate Nicky Hilgert.

Mack Roebuck, Greenville's candidate for All-Loop honors at that same position, will be expected to direct the Green doubled-edged assault, featuring passing as well as running.

Against Conference opponents, Elizabeth City has knocked off Roanoke Rapids and has been tripped by Washington, to give them a narrow 1-1 mark. The G-Men, at present, hold a 1-2 league record. They bowed to Washington and Kinston and downed Jacksonville.

Sermons To Lead

The Big Gun in Greenville's running attack is expected to be Billy Sermons, named last season to the All-Conference team. He is averaging about a 9.1 yards-per-carry and is the top breakaway runner in the Phantom camp. Robert Howell and Jimmy Kelly, both fast and shifty, are expected to see plenty of action as ball-carriers, also.

Roebuck, a junior, did some fancy stepping himself last week when Greenville defeated Selma. The 170 pound triple threat reeled off a 32-yard gallop for one of the Phant scores. He will probably do some of the carrying tonight against the Jackets. Roebuck has been most effective thus far this season as a passer and a ball-handler and will undoubtedly resort to the air before tonight's bat-

Key receivers in the Phant lineup are Sermons, Kelly, and ends Edwin Wilkerson and Robert Conway.

Rogerson Is Injured

For the Jackets Nicky Hilgert's biggest running threat is on the injured list and may not compete against the locals tonight. Rogerson, an All-Loop fullback in 1955 who weighs about 185 pounds, suffered a leg injury in last week's Edenton encounter and may be out of commission for the fracas.

Hilgert will be working with a light-but-tough 165 pound line tonight. Most of the linemen are inexperienced, but are "hustlers" according to Elizabeth City information.

Greenville's forward wall, averaging about 175 pounds, will feature Wade Jordan at center, Kelly Barnhill and Billy Brown at guards, Roy Martin and Angus Duff at tackles and Ed Wilkerson and Robert Conway at ends. Also expected to see duty will be Billy Cox, Barney Barrett, Ken Whitchard, Sam Nixon and Willis Stancil.

Patched-Up

Though no injuries will keep Greenville players from participation tonight, several of the boys are sporting heavy bandages and other assorted protection for injuries that are in the healing stage.

Jordan will have a heavily-banded jaw; Martin is expected to have a special face guard to cover a long gash in his forehead, suffered this week in drills; Edwin Wilkerson is to also wear a special face guard for nose injuries suffered in an earlier contest.

Tonight's battle begins at 8:00.

Clemson Halfback May Turn Contest Into A Running Duel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Clemson's Joel Wells is the late starter Tiger fans claim he is, the husky halfback should just about reach his stride tomorrow when Clemson invades Wake Forest.

And if he does hit his stride, the game could turn out to be a running duel between him and Wake Forest fullback Bill Barnes.

Wells led the Atlantic Coast Conference last year with a total of 782 yards. During Clemson's first three games of the 1955 season, Wells had picked up only 161 yards. For the same number of games this season Wells is eight yards ahead of last year and picking up steam, averaging 4.3 yards per carry.

Both teams stressed offense in yesterday's practice, an indication as to what may come tomorrow. Wake Forest Coach Paul Amen saw his team held to but 54 yards rushing last week in its 7-6 loss to Virginia with Barnes held in check most of the way.

Maryland, usually the pride of the ACC, opens the weekend of football tonight facing Miami in the Orange Bowl. Miami is undefeated in three straight games while Maryland has dropped two of three, the only victory coming over Wake Forest 6-0.

Despite the defeats, Maryland presents a big, solid club. If Coach Tommy Mont can get his backfield into gear tonight, his problems may be solved.

South Carolina, which faces Virginia at Richmond tomorrow, worked on fundamentals while the Cavaliers stressed play timing and offensive and defensive tactics.

The other three members of the ACC, Duke, North Carolina State and North Carolina, face outside foes tomorrow.

Duke probably faces the toughest task in meeting SMU at Durham. The Blue Devils got bad news yesterday when Coach Bill Murray said ace quarterback Sonny Jurgensen likely will see no action against SMU. Jurgensen has been sidelined with a hurt leg. Murray said sophomores Bob Brodhead and Pryor Miller will alternate at quarterback. Both have looked good in Duke's first three games.

North Carolina State, which plays host to Florida State tomorrow night, had no contact work during its practice which saw the emphasis placed on passing.

Georgia invades North Carolina in what should be one of the most evenly matched games of the day. The Tar Heels will be looking for their first victory of the year. They tapered off yesterday and Coach Jim Tatum said all except sophomore center Ronnie Koes will be ready to play.

Invite Joining In 'Homecoming'

The Eppes High School student body and faculty has extended an invitation to Greenville citizens to participate in Eppes' Homecoming Next Friday.

In a joint statement by Athletic Committee chairman J. W. Grimes and Student Body President Jimmy Jones, the school announced that it is "busily engaged in mapping out plans for a line of floats constructed to represent our theme for this year—'Forward March Business and organizations in Greenville have been asked to be represented with floats in the parade.'

Experts Predict Calhoun Will Be Winner Tonight

CLEVELAND (AP)—Both Rory Calhoun and John L. Sullivan, who fight in a middleweight 10-rounder at the arena here tonight, hope to get Joey Giardello as next opponent. And the experts hereabouts say Calhoun will be one whose hope is still alive tomorrow.

But the experts were wrong in placing their bets two weeks ago when Giardello whipped Bobby Boyd and sent his stock as a middleweight contender way up.

Giardello, who hasn't been committed to meet tonight's winner, will be on hand to watch Sullivan, veteran from England, swap punches with the 22-year-old Calhoun, an Atlanta minister's son now fighting out of White Plains, N.Y.

NBC will broadcast and telecast at 9 p. m. EST.

Currently rated No. 6 contender, Calhoun had a string of 23 victories, including 12 knockouts, when Spider Webb won a split decision from him last August.

THE BLONDE DIED DANCING

by KELLEY ROOS

CHAPTER 20
Anita: There's one team you've already made, darling . . . (a pause) There . . . that's nicer, isn't it?

I shouted, "What's going on here? What happened? What's nicer?"

"She put a pillow behind my back."

"I'll murder her . . . That's already been done."

"Quiet!"

But the tape had run out. I watched the machine automatically click to a stop. I turned back to my husband. I pined him with my eyes. He cringed back into the love seat.

"Steve," I said, "I'm not going to ask you what happened."

"Nothing happened! I left!"

"No," I said calmly, "I won't ask you. Although Anita was thoroughly unscrupulous, immoral . . . amoral, really, she was obviously fascinating, irresistible. So I don't blame you, Steve . . ."

"Listen!" he shouted. "Anita twisted her ankle dancing with me. It was my fault. I took her home, helped her up the stairs."

I held up my hand. "May I continue? Thank you. And in all fairness to Anita, I don't blame her. Although you have a certain inherent weakness in your character, you have a certain animal attractiveness and a rather sneaky charm that appeals to a certain class of women . . ."

"Connie, listen . . ."

"So Anita probably saw that she might combine some genuine pleasure with her business. In this case rather small business . . . due to your lack of courage in asking your boss for a raise. However, there is one thing I must know, if we are to hope that we can ever again be relatively happy."

Steve: (Bantering) Gee, I hope I make the team!

Would you have paid Anita any blackmail, however insignificant?

"She didn't have anything to blackmail me with!"

I held up my hand. "I withdraw that question. I see that an honest answer to it would incriminate you. But, Steve you must make me one promise."

"Yes!" he groaned.

"In the future, as you get into situations like this from time to time, promise me that you won't pay blackmail. Come to me, confess everything . . . and we'll save a great deal of money. Now if you please, the next tape."

The next of Anita's guest recording artists was a man in his cups. He was squiffed, blotto, highly intoxicated.

Anita: Come on, Stubby, let's talk . . . let's have a nice little talk.

Stubby: Don't wanna talk, don't wanna have a nice little talk. Just wanna go to sleep.

Anita: Remember what you were saying at dinner, Stubby? About how you . . .

Stubby: Dinner? We have dinner? Where'd we have dinner?

Anita: At Margiotti's, you remember.

Stubby: That's right, Margiotti's. I got reservations at Margiotti's. Hardest place in town to get reservations . . . But I got them, didn't I? Even tonight, I got them.

Anita: You were telling me about Walter. You hated Walter, didn't you, Stubby?

Stubby: Who says so? Who says I hated Walter?

Anita: You said so. You told me how Walter used to bother you, how you hated him for it. But he doesn't bother you anymore, does he?

Stubby: Good old Walter . . . he won't bother anybody anymore.

Anita: That's right. That was a good thing you did, Stubby.

Stubby: No . . . no, that's never a good thing.

Anita: You mean you didn't kill Walter?

Stubby: Whoever said I did, who said it?

Anita: You did, Stubby, at Marglotti's.

Stubby: No, I wouldn't say a thing like that.

Anita: You practically said it, Stubby. You were with him the night he died, you said it wasn't an accident.

Stubby: Don't remember. Don't wanna talk about it. Just wanna go to sleep.

Anita: Sit up, Stubby! Come on, sit up!

Stubby: Stubby's tired . . . very, very tired.

Anita: Listen, Stubby, let's you and me have a drink. That'll wake you up. There's some lovely Scotch in the kitchen.

Stubby: Too late for another drink.

Anita: We'll make it a night-cap, shall we?

Stubby: Too late for a night-cap . . . must be morning. What time is it? Can't see my watch . . . What time is it?

Anita: It's no even twelve-thirty . . . the evening's young yet.

Stubby: Not for Stubby, it's not young. That's cause I'm drunk.

Anita: No, you're not.

Stubby: Sure I am. Very, very drunk. Tonight's the night to get drunk. Everybody should get drunk tonight. Why aren't you drunk? It's your duty.

Anita: Stubby, wake up! Please, Stubby.

Stubby: Tired, so tired.

Anita: Here, Stubby, this'll make you feel better, this'll wake you up.

Stubby: Don't like Scotch . . . I'm a Bourbon baby.

Anita: Here's to us, Stubby . . . bottom's up. There, now you can talk to me, can't you? Walter didn't fall out that window, did he?

Stubby: Who cares about Walter?

Anita: You did the world a favor, think of it that way.

Stubby: Sure, that's me . . . I do the world favors. But did the world ever do anything for me? Since I was a little kid at my mother's knee? Nah. You can have the world. It's off my list.

Anita: You should get a medal for giving Walter that little push.

Stubby: What good's a medal? Or do you mean a gold medal?

Anita: That took a lot of courage.

Stubby: Yeah, that's what I got, huh? Courage . . . that's a polite word, not like guts. Tell me it again, baby.

Anita: You've got all the courage there is, Stubby. Did you kill Walter?

Stubby: Somebody had to kill him. Should a guy like that live?

Anita: How did you manage it,

If you're saving for opportunity. . .

...where you save does make a difference

Going into business for yourself often depends on having the money available when opportunity knocks. That's why it pays to save . . . now! And, when you put your savings into an Insured Savings and Loan Association . . . it pays even more. You get important advantages . . . excellent returns from your money as one advantage. Efficient, forward-looking service from men who know how to make your dollars work harder for you is another. And, of course, your money is safe because in Insured Associations your savings are protected by sound management and substantial reserves. They are insured up to $10,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation—an agency of the U.S. Government. These are the reasons why Americans are putting more of their savings account dollars into Insured Savings and Loan Associations than anywhere else! Visit your nearby Insured Association tomorrow . . . and make sure you'll be ready when opportunity comes your way.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — The stock market nudged upward in light, semiholiday trading early this afternoon.

Improvements ranging from fractions to around a point were posted for leading stocks. There were a few small declines.

Banks were closed because of the Columbus Day observance and many traders and brokers were off for a long weekend.

There was nothing in the way of outstanding news to push the market either way.

Prices were mixed at the start. After the opening flurry the turn-over slackened greatly and irregularity continued.

A gradual rise took place on increased volume thereafter. Leading steels, which had been slightly lower, showed a good front of plus signs. Gains spread to most divisions. Oils and rubber stocks, however, shaded off and pivotal rails were mixed.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel and Youngstown made fractional gains. Sharon Steel advanced more than a point.

Chrysler and Ford were up fractionally. General Motors was steady.

Gulf Oil and Royal Dutch inched downward. Goodrich took a fractional loss.

Among leading rails there were fractional gains for New York Central, Santa Fe, Southern Railway and Chesapeake & Ohio. Pennsylvania Railroad, Southern Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio showed a slight lean to the downside.

Adding to its 4-point surge of yesterday, American Hawaiian Steamship ran up around 7 more points.

Caterpillar and U.S. Gypsum were up around a point each.

Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Air Reduction, General Electric, United Airlines and Johns-Manville made small gains. Du Pont dropped a major fraction. American Telephone was steady. International Nickel and Allied Chemical shaded off.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 20 cents to $179.20 with the industrials up 10 cents, the rails unchanged and the utilities up 20 cents.

RALEIGH — (NCDA) — Hog markets today were steady to 25 lower. Tops of 15.75 to 16.75 at Rocky Mount; 16.00 to 16.50 at Tarboro, Enfield, Bethel; 15.75 to 16.25 at New Bern, Benson, Kingston; 16.00 at Fayetteville, Clinton, Lumberton, Wingate, Shalott, Tabor City, Castle Hayne, Mount Olive, Micro, Elizabethtown; 15.75 at Rich Square, Siler City, Mount Gilead, Farmville, Nahant, Newton Grove, Clarkton, Whiteville, Dunn, Bailey, Blackmont's Crossroads, Kenly and Smithfield.

RALEIGH — (NCEA) — North Carolina fryers and broilers steady today, farm price 16 to 17, mostly 17; f.o.b. plant 18%. Raleigh eggs steady, A large 48; Asheville eggs steady, A large 45 to 47.

Mrs. E. R. Carraway, chapter president, conducted the meeting which drew a large attendance and at which time Mrs. Lillie Rouse Carr was elected second vice president and program chairman and Miss Mary Thomas Smith was named publicity chairman.

Miss Christine Johnston, first vice president and membership chairman, announced plans for the membership drive from October 15 to November 10, and noted growing interest in alumni affairs locally.

Mistrial Ruled In Bigamy Case

CONCORD, N. C. — Judge L. Richardson Preyer today declared the second mistrial in the trial of LeRoy Wright, charged with marrying two Negro women without divorce. Wright allegedly took a white woman as his third wife.

Judge Preyer declared the mistrial after the jury declared itself hopelessly deadlocked 11-1 more than 24 hours after it started deliberating.

The holdout against conviction asked permission to explain his reasons. Judge Preyer said such explanations were not necessary since the workings of a jury are secret.

American Woman Sentenced As Spy For Syria

JERUSALEM (AP)—An American woman sentenced to a year in jail as a spy for Syria was transferred today to the women's prison in Ramleh, on Israel's coastal plain.

Mary Frances Hagan, 29, whose family lives in Huntington, W. Va., was found guilty on two counts on charges she spied for Syria with which Israel officially is at war. She pleaded innocent to the charges.

Officials in Washington indicated the United States would appeal to the Israeli government for executive clemency. Miss Hagan's attorney indicated she might not appeal the sentences because the higher court had the power to increase them.

Two sentences were imposed on the slim, brown-eyed defendant—three months and one year—to be served concurrently. She could have been sentenced to a total of 28 years in prison.
