Friday Is Recommended For Presidency Of UNC

RALEIGH (AP)—Youthful William C. Friday was recommended today for the presidency of the Consolidated University of North Carolina. Friday, 36, has served as acting president since last March.

Board of Trustees which can accept or reject the executive committee action. It is expected to be held at a meeting to be held within the next few weeks. As UNC president, Friday would succeed Gordon Gray who stepped down more than a year ago to become an assistant defense secretary. Friday has served as acting president since last March when Dr. J. Harris Purks resigned as acting president to become the state's director of higher education.

composed of the university at Chapel Hill, North Carolina State College in Raleigh and Woman's College in Greensboro. Friday is a native of Raphine, Va., because his Tar Heel mother happened to be visiting there at the time he was born. He was reared at Dallas, N.C., where his father was a manufacturer of textile machinery. He was educated at Wake Forest College, State College and the University. He first went to Wake Forest then transferred to State where he took a degree in textile engineering. After a four-year stint in the U.S. Navy he enrolled in the law school at Chapel Hill where he took his law degree in 1948.

From then until 1951, Friday filled the relatively obscure post of assistant dean of students at Chapel Hill. In 1951, Gray appointed Friday as his assistant and promoted him to the post of secretary of the university in 1955.

While a student at State, Friday met Ida Willa Howell of Lumberton who was then a student at Meredith College. They were married in 1942 and have two daughters, Frances 4, and Mary, 8 weeks.

Last summer, Gov. Hodges told the university trustees, "We've had an excellent administration of the university lately—not that we haven't had it before. But there comes a point of crisis in university affairs when somebody has to do an outstanding job, with courage and action and decisiveness that we've needed. . . and we've had it from President Friday."

Nobel Prize Awarded Two Americans And A German

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Two Americans and a German were awarded the 1956 Nobel prize in medicine jointly today for evolving a simple method of charting the interior of the human heart.

The winners are Drs. Andre F. Courmand, 61, and Dickinson W. Richards Jr., 60, both of Columbia University in New York; and Werner Forssmann, 52, of Bad Kreuznach, West Germany.

The Caroline Institute of Medicine and Physiology, which makes the awards under the will of the late inventor of dynamite, Alfred Nobel, said in its citation the prize was given in recognition of "the introduction of heart catheterization and discoveries made thereby."

For their contribution to the fight against heart disease, the three scientists will divide Nobel prize money totaling $38,533. The awards will be presented here Dec. 10 along with the literary prize to be announced Oct. 25, and those for physics and chemistry, which will be announced at the end of the month. The three doctors are credited with having opened a new area in cardiology by shedding more light on virtually all heart ailments. The story of the 47th Nobel award in medicine and physiology dates back to a 1929 experiment by Forssmann, then a Berlin urologist, became curious about the functions of the heart.

Forssmann sat down one night behind an X-ray screen and mirror and pushed a urinary catheter—a flexible tubular instrument which is introduced into canals or passages of the body—from the crook of his arm into his heart. Forssmann's colleagues warned him to stop what they regarded as a suicidal exploit. He did so only after repeating the experiment to show it could be done without fatal results.

That was the beginning of what Swedish experts describe as "a flexible technique to obtain true and precise answers to what goes on inside the human heart and circulatory system."

More than a decade later Forssmann's idea was refined by a New York Columbia University team, headed by Dr. Courmand and including Dr. Richards, at New York's Bellevue Hospital. Courmand's experiments were designed to clarify what happened in the hearts and circulatory systems of wounded soldiers.

The Columbia doctors attached precision manometers to catheters they pushed into the heart and further on into the pulmonary artery. The instruments recorded blood pressures and other conditions inside the heart. Summing up the uses of heart catheterization, Nobel experts said it served:

- 1. As a "doctor's fingertip" to discover abnormal communications between the right and left side of the heart or between the pulmonary artery and the aorta.
2. To measure pressure in various parts of the heart and blood vessels.
3. To find out how much blood the failing heart can handle per minute, and the cause.
4. To inject "contrast chemicals" into the heart to visualize the defect on an X-ray screen.

Freight Trains Crash Head-On; Four Men Killed

PINEOLA, Fla. (AP)—Two Atlantic Coast Line freight trains raced down a straightaway stretch into a head-on collision today, killing 4 out of 10 crewmen aboard and injuring 4 others.

Cars immediately behind the two diesel engines piled up and broke into flames after the crash, trapping two of the men inside. Their charred bodies were recovered later.

Cause of the 6 a.m. collision on the ACL's mainline near the Pineola depot was not determined immediately. The dead men were identified as D. T. Martin, engineer from High Springs, Fla.; E. W. Vaughn, fireman from High Springs; J. L. Phillips, brakeman from Lakeland, Fla.; and W. E. Snyder, brakeman from Lakeland.

Martin, Vaughn and Phillips were members of the crew on the southbound freight. Snyder was on the northbound freight.

Three of the injured, all on the northbound freight, were identified as O. J. Bridges, engineer; A. H. Goodyear, conductor; and Robert Tate, flagman. Their home addresses were not available.

"It's a scrambled mess," said John Purcell, an ambulance driver for the Garnet Funeral Home at Brooksville, who took the four injured men to a hospital.

"The engines and the cars just behind them are all tangled up together." Two of the dead men were taken to the Porter Funeral Home at Inverness and the others to the Roberts Funeral Home in Ocala.

Two bodies were removed from the wreck shortly after the collision but the others were not recovered until flames were extinguished in the car in which they were trapped.

Firemen from Bushnell and Brooksville were fighting the blaze.

DRAWER REFLEX SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A burglar used a physician's reflex hammer—the little one he taps your knee with to make your leg bounce—at the office of Dr. Jacob Weing. The thief tapped the desk drawer. It bounced open and he took the $200 inside.

Ready To Sign An End To War

MOSCOW (AP)—A declaration ending the 11-year state of war between the Soviet Union and Japan probably will be signed in the Kremlin tomorrow night.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry announced a Kremlin banquet in honor of Premier Ichiro Hato-yama, who heads Japan's peace negotiating mission, would be held tomorrow night. Foreign Ministry sources said the signing ceremony probably would immediately precede the banquet. Such banquets usually are held at the conclusion of negotiations.

Ichiro Kono, Japanese agriculture minister, scheduled today what may be a last meeting with Communist party leader Nikita Khrushchev to work out final details of the territorial issue which has deadlocked peace negotiations for 16 months.

Japanese sources declined to say whether the Russians had given any ground on Japan's demand for return of the Soviet-occupied Habomai and Shikotan islands north of Japan. It seemed likely any Soviet promise to return these islands would be linked with a Japanese renunciation of all claims to Etorofu and Kuma-shiri in the southern Kuriles.

Labor Slowdown In East Germany

BERLIN (AP)—Labor unrest has erupted into slowdown strikes in three Communist East German cities, a West Berlin newspaper reported today.

The independent paper Der Tag said 2,000 Red police had been rushed from East Berlin to the city of Magdeburg, reported center of the strikes.

Official sources in West Berlin said so far they had not received confirmation of Der Tag's report. But the official Communist trade union paper Tribune admitted two days ago that workers in four big Magdeburg plants had shown "dissatisfaction" with excessive work and poor pay.

The Red organ said the complaints were justified and warned local union officials to take care that in the future "the interests of the workers are not violated."

Der Tag said the slowdowns have spread to sections of factories in two other cities—Erfurt and Karl-Marx-Stadt. "The main reason for the refusal to work," the West Berlin paper said, "lies in the fact that management has raised work quotas without granting suitable wage increases." Almost the same circumstances touched off the bloody East German workers' rebellion of June 17, 1953. This uprising—which began in East Berlin and spread like wildfire to other East German cities—finally was put down with the aid of Soviet tanks and soldiers.

The East German press made no mention today of the strikes. Der Tag noted the Tribune report and claimed unrest was much greater than the Communists admitted.

According to the West Berlin paper, the Magdeburg strike has affected the big electrical plant that is almost exclusively concerned with export orders to the Soviet bloc.

There have been no reports of arrests or violence in Magdeburg or the other two cities. But armed police have cordoned off individual buildings at the Magdeburg electrical plant and are making regular patrols through all sections.

The workers are reporting to work but refuse to use their tools.

Commissioners Asked To Appoint Committee For Development Study

Pitt County Commissioners were asked last night to name a committee to investigate possibilities of a county-wide industrial development program for Pitt.

The action came at a meeting of municipal and Chamber of Commerce officials of seven Pitt County communities. Three members of the Board of Commissioners present at the meeting indicated the County Commissioners would appoint the committee at their November meeting. Last night's meeting was an outgrowth of investigations made by a five-man committee recently appointed by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce to study county and area industrial development organizations in North Carolina and Virginia. Leonard Bloxam, chairman of the industrial committee of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, presided at the meeting. Represented in addition to Greenville were Farmville, Ayden, Winterville, Grifton, Bethel and Grimesland.

Bloxam told the group of 18 people that preliminary investigations of the industrial development organization of Union County had indicated a similar county-wide plan might be suitable for Pitt.

The Union County program is financed through a special county-wide tax levy approved by the voters of that county. W. Jasper Smith, chairman of the Pitt Board of Commissioners, Grifton, Winterville, and W. Williams of Grifton, W. Williams of Winterville, Corey Stokes and William Stroud of Ayden; W. Jasper Smith and J. M. Butterworth of Bethel; Robert G. Little of Grimesland; and Leonard Bloxam, Dan Saled, W. T. Kizer, saying economy. "While we cannot neglect our agriculture," he said, "it is clear that we must make some move to attract industry to boost our economy." In the formal discussion of the proposal, representatives of the various communities voiced approval of a county-wide industrial development effort. The group unanimously adopted a motion asking the County Commissioners to appoint a committee composed of representatives of various sections of the county to study the idea further and make recommendations for formulating such a plan.

Present at the meeting were Charles Edwards Ed Davenport and T. W. Willis of Farmville; W. H. Gower and T. J. Williams of Grifton; Burney Tucker and Vernon Cox of Winterville; Corey Stokes and William Stroud of Ayden; W. Jasper Smith and J. M. Butterworth of Bethel; Robert G. Little of Grimesland; and Leonard Bloxam, Dan Saled, W. T. Kizer, saying economy. "While we cannot neglect our agriculture," he said, "it is clear that we must

Pitt Group Talks Industrialization Program

DISCUSS COUNTY-WIDE INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT—Eighteen representatives of seven Pitt County municipalities gathered last night to discuss possibilities of a county-wide industrial development program for Pitt. Following discussion of the proposal, the group voted unanimously to ask the Pitt County Commissioners to appoint a special committee composed of representatives from throughout the county to investigate the matter and make recommendations to the Board of Commissioners. Among those at the meeting were (left to right) Mayor Charles Edwards of Farmville; Leonard Bloxam, chairman of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce industrial committee; W. Jasper Smith of Bethel, chairman of the County Commissioners; Mayor Corey Stokes of Ayden, Mayor W. H. Gower of Grifton; Mayor Burney Tucker of Winterville, and County Commissioners Robert G. Adlai's Fears Are Eased By Expert

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former medical research chief for the Atomic Energy Commission says nuclear tests have produced only an "insignificant" amount of a substance Adlai Stevenson terms "the most dreadful poison."

The commission made public late yesterday a telegram from Dr. Shields Warren, head of its division of biology and medicine from early AEC days until mid-1952, in which Warren said some statements Stevenson made regarding strontium-90 "should be corrected."

In connection with Stevenson's call for this county to take the lead in working toward an end of hydrogen bomb tests, Dr. Warren said in a telegram to AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss:

"To permit us to fall behind (the Russians) is disastrous; to wait for them to catch up to us is stupid." Dr. Warren, now scientific director of the Cancer Research Institute of New England Deaconess Hospital, dealt primarily with strontium-90, one of the substances found in the fall-out of nuclear weapons.

Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, had said Monday night that continued tests distribute around the world strontium-90 which, he said, "in sufficient concentration, can cause bone cancer and dangerously affect the reproductive processes."

Stevenson said he was not asserting that present levels of radioactivity are dangerous because "scientists do not know exactly how dangerous the threat is." But he said continued tests will increase the threat.

Dr. Warren said that from a genetic standpoint, "radioactive fall-out including strontium-90 has given only small dose to date, as compared with dose from natural occurring and hence unavoidable background radiation."

"If weapons testing continues at present rate for 30 years," he continued, "genetic dose (would be) still insignificant." Dr. Warren said present bone deposits of strontium-90 are at a "minute fraction of permissible level and well below (the) natural background level of radiation."

Fifty Japanese Stragglers Will Sign Surrender

MANILA (AP)—A Filipino mayor, with a police escort, today began a tough trek into the Mindoro Island jungles to seek the surrender of 50 Japanese stragglers from World War II.

Mayor Francisco Pamento of Roxas, on the eastern side of the island, headed the expedition. The Japanese are on a mountain plateau about 13 miles from Roxas. It will take three days for the mayor and his escort to cut their way through the jungle.

The stragglers fled to the hills when American and Filipino forces liberated the Philippines. They have sent messages through that they are willing to surrender if they are given protection.

Their hiding place was disclosed two weeks ago when torrential rains and floods forced Filipino villagers in the area to flee to the mountains.

Over 2.6 Inches Rain Dumped On Greenville

A tropical storm which passed along North Carolina's coast yesterday dumped 2.69 inches of rain on Greenville and set up moderately high winds in Pitt County.

Mrs. Leland Mizelle, weather observer of Greenville, reported that the 2.69 inches of rain fell from 8 a. m. Wednesday until 8 a. m. Thursday.

Rivers and streams apparently held within their banks during the storm, however, Mrs. Mizelle reported that the Tar River stood at 3.82 feet this morning and the water level was falling. Average depth of the river at Greenville is three to five feet.

City Manager Leonard Bloxam reported this morning that Greenville Mill Run, an old trouble spot for the city, did not appear to be reaching flood stage.

"I was looking at it this morning and it doesn't look like it's going to get over any streets or flood too much of the lower areas," Bloxam declared.

"The city had no blocked streets as a result of the storm. The rain came down slow enough so that it didn't give us any problems," Bloxam declared. There were no major breaks in the Utilities power lines during the storm, he reported.

Crop Outlook The heavy rainfall is not expected to cause major damage to crops in general in the county provided there is no more precipitation.

County Agent Sam C. Winchester said this morning that most of the county's peanuts have been dug and placed in stacks.

"The blowing rain could be very damaging to them," Winchester said. "However, if we can get a dry wind to dry up the stacks in a hurry the damage will be held to a minimum."

There is still a small amount of cotton left in the fields and the rains could be very damaging to the cotton crop, he noted.

Corn, a large part of which is still left in the fields, shouldn't be extensively damaged, the farm agent said.

"The wind accompanying the rain was not strong enough to

Attended Eastern N.C. Art Meeting

Art enthusiasts from several towns in this vicinity gathered in Greenville last night to hear Dr. John Richard Craft, director of the Columbia, S. C. Art Museum, speak.

The dinner meeting marked the first of the East Carolina Art Society since its organization last winter.

Speaking on the topic "An Art Museum in Community Life" Dr. Craft explored with his audience some of the meanings of "Art and Museum."

Said he, "Art is a living, breathing thing, not to be put on a pedestal for worship by the tea-drinking society every Thursday afternoon. It is not merely something to hang on museum walls."

In a history of art one finds the history of man and, conversely, the history of man is the history of art. Civilization finds the statues of its ages not in material wealth."

Quoting a classic definition of art, Dr. Craft said "Art is merely the right way of doing things."

He pointed out its practical application in the cut of a gown, the texture of fabrics and design on silverware.

Speaking on the value of an art museum, he said it was unlimited as "a tool in public education."

Describing activities held in the Columbia Museum, Dr. Craft pictured it as a cultural, intellectual and recreational center in the community.

Special events held there last year number 293 and include such things as receptions, lectures, concerts, recitals, classes in art and a puppetry theatre.

The speaker suggested that art society members present that they might profit from a survey of "tools available for spiritual growth" in their respective communities. "An art society such as this," he said, "could well provide the spearhead for a drive to erect community museums."

The guest speaker was introduced by Dr. Robert Lee Humber, president of the North Carolina Art Society and a founding father of the local society.

President W. H. Watson presided over the meeting held at the Greenville Woman's Club.

He extended a welcome to out-of-town guests and new members of the society.

New members introduced last night to be classed as charter members include Mrs. J. T. Humber, Mrs. K. F. Whiteley, Mrs. A. H. Laube, Mrs. E. W. Monroe, Mrs. Walter Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stiel, Mr. and Mrs. Prith Winslow, Mrs. L. C. Skipper, Mrs. John C. Hood and Miss Margo Giddings.

Presented to the art society last night was a collection of paintings, sculpture and books by the Community Arts Center, an organization which the recently incorporated East Carolina Art Society succeeded.

Making the presentation was Mrs. H. S. Ragsdale who pledged the support of the parent organization "to help the society in any way possible."

Two individuals also made gifts to the society. Mrs. J. H. B. Moore presented two books to the society in honor of two late friends, Dr. S. M. Crisp and Ralph M. Garrett.

Also making a gift to the society was Dr. J. D. Allison who contributed an album of prints. A special exhibition of paintings was on display for the meeting. These featured works of North Carolina Artists, some of whom were local.

Some 75 people attended the meeting.

College Students Give Program For Faculty Wives Club Of ECC

Four East Carolina College students gave a musical program when the Faculty Wives Club of East Carolina College held its October meeting in the Mamie E. Jenkins Alumni House at 8:00 p.m. Tuesday.

Mrs. Wendell Smiley presided over a short business meeting during which Mrs. Frank Fuller made the treasurer's report. Year-books were distributed.

After the business meeting the students presented the program. Barbara Harris, a junior from Beaufort, sang "Getting To Know You," from Rogers and Hammerstein's "The King and I." "Moon-Marketing" and "Miranda."

Miss Harris, who played an outstanding part in the college production of "Oklahoma" last spring, was accompanied at the piano by Peggy Griffin from Columbia, N. C.

Stephen Farish from Ayden sang "If I Loved You," from Rogers and Hammerstein's "Carousel," Vincent Youman's "Without a Song" and "Go, Lovely Rose." Mr. Farish, who played the male lead in "Oklahoma," was accompanied by Anna Montgomery from Greenville.

A Halloween motif was carried out in the decorations. A table decoration was contrived by the use of lighted pumpkins, black candies and pyracantha.

Guests were served refreshments of brownies, date bars and orange sherbet float. Mrs. George Pasti, secretary of the club, poured the punch.

After the meeting members attended the open house held by J. W. Julian at the College Cafeteria.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mesdames James Tucker, chairman; Kenneth Cuthbert, assistant chairman; H. F. Brewster, Norman Cameron, E. J. Carter, F. D. Duncan, F. G. Fuller, R. M. Helms, Leo W. Jenkins, Ray Martinez, C. A. Scruggs, J. P. Steelman and Robert K. Stuart.

The marriage of Mrs. Lucy Eberidge to Milton H. White will take place Sunday at 2 p.m. in Eighth Street Christian Church. Friends and relatives are invited.

Mrs. Perkins Gives Paper At Book Meet

"Stockholders In Our State and Communities" was the subject of a paper given by Mrs. Vance Perkins to members of the Inter Se Book Club meeting at the home of Mrs. William Taft Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Perkins stated that the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs is one of the best stockholders in the state.

The North Carolina Federation was formed in 1902 with only seven clubs in attendance.

Today this influential organization has grown until it now has 343 clubs with a membership of 18,068. These clubs have worked for better schools, beautification of towns and highways, support of correctional institutions, interest and peace in international affairs, and constructive legislation, the speaker said.

Through the Sallie Southall Cotton Fund, many scholarships are now given each year.

Through the Education, Welfare, Fine Arts and Home Departments, communities and homes have been made finer places in which to live and work, she asserted.

"The North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs have provided fine Christian leadership for the worthwhile movements in the State," she continued.

"The total results of their impact over a period of 54 years cannot be measured. Truly they are conscientious, interested stockholders in our state," she concluded.

Preceding Mrs. Perkins remarks, Mrs. David Evans, president of the Inter Se Club, presided over a business session.

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. Taft invited the members and guests to the dining room where an appointed tea table had been arranged.

The table was covered with an Italian cut work cloth and centered with a unique arrangement of pink sasanqua in an antique epergne.

From one end of the table Mrs. Melvin Hoot served chicken salad. At the other end Mrs. V. C. Fleming Sr. poured coffee. Guests and members served themselves to cheese apples, fruit cake and hot cranberry muffins.

A fall arrangement of fruit and leaves complemented the buffet.

Throughout the house there were arrangements of fall flowers. Guests for the meeting were Mesdames W. M. Howard, Hoover Taft, V. C. Fleming Sr. and C. C. Hughes of Maysville, Ky.

Tenor Sings Irish Songs

Gerald Murphy, Irish tenor and director of the Memorial Baptist Church choir, presented a musical program when Mrs. J. B. Spilman, Mrs. M. L. Wright and Mrs. L. C. Skinner entertained fifty members of the Sans Souci and End of the Century book clubs for lunch at Mrs. Spilman's home Tuesday.

Mr. Murphy, accompanied by Miss Ashlynn Maudin, sang old and familiar Irish songs.

Killarney, a lakeland of Ireland, was described by Mrs. Spilman as a land of poor but satisfied, lazy and happy Irish folk—a land of echoes.

Among the "Echoes of Killarney" were the following nostalgic songs sung by Mr. Murphy: "My Wild Irish Rose," "Mother McCree," "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," "Danny Boy," "How Ireland Got Its Name," "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" and "The Last Rose of Summer."

Autumn fruits, green gourds, golden pumpkins and brown nuts spilled down the center of the dining table.

Other bowls of sasanqua, chrysanthemums and late summer roses were used throughout the house.

Dr. Ward Speaks To Robersonville PTA

ROBERSONVILLE—At the regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association held Thursday night in the Robersonville High School auditorium, a large group attended to hear Dr. Joseph M. Ward speak on "The Health of Our Children."

Clio Club Has Musical Program

A musical program was presented by Mrs. Kenneth Hite and Mrs. Jimmy Lee to Clio Book Club members meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Lee rendered three selections on the piano: "Someone to Watch Over Me" by Gershwin; "We Rise in A Shadow" by Rodgers and "In My Solitude" by Ellington.

Mrs. Hite's vocal selections included a Negro spiritual "Let Us Break Bread Together" and two of the modern numbers, "Desert Song" and "Serenade."

Mrs. Dink James was hostess to the club and two guests, Mrs. Frank Herbert and Mrs. P. K. Andresen.

The James home was decorated throughout with fall flowers for the occasion. Following the program, members enjoyed a social hour at which time the hostess assisted by her sister, Miss Agnes Fullilove, served a salad course with coffee.

Meeting Cancelled

The Junior Woman's Club cancelled its meeting scheduled for last night due to bad weather. According to Mrs. R. D. Harrington Jr., president, the speaker for last night will be engaged for a later date. Next meetings of the club is scheduled for November 7, regular meeting date.

West Orange, N. J.—October 21 will be the 47th birthday of the electric light. Thomas A. Edison is convinced that his profession biases the way to universal peace. "Invention has not led to war," he said. "Invention has produced a reasoning and a questioning age. People are becoming, because of the changes brought about by invention, more intelligent and will not stand for exploitation by kings, emperors and society. There is more reasoning and questioning today than ever before. We are in the process of discarding those things which in the past have been breeders of war and oppression."

Trip Highlights Told At Meeting

Mrs. T. M. Watson was hostess to the Chatham Book Club Tuesday afternoon at her home on Third Street.

Her guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Ackers, Mrs. J. B. Spillman, Herbert Joyner and Gerald Murphy.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Frank Bendall. She turned the meeting over to Mrs. Watson who introduced her guest speaker, Mrs. Spillman. Mrs. Spillman gave interesting highlights of her trip abroad and talked especially of Ireland and her love for it.

She then presented Mr. Joyner who sang several Irish songs. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Ackers, served a salad plate with coffee.

The club voted to give $5.00 to the Pitt County Mental Health Association.

After a short business session the club adjourned to meet with Mrs. W. P. Moore Oct. 30.

Nearly 200 Guests Present At Scottish Rite Masons Banquet

Nearly 200 guests attended the Scottish Rite Masons banquet at the Moose Temple here last night. New Bern Consistory No. 3 sponsored the semi-annual social event.

W. J. Rogers, 32-degree Mason, was master of ceremonies and recognized special guests.

Jesse W. Brown, 18-degree Mason, pronounced the invocation. Leslie H. Garner, 32-degree Mason, delivered the address of welcome.

Miss "Jo" Hoover, talented television pianist, presented a musical program and played "Happy Birthday" as Chopin or Mozart would have played the birthday song.

Miss Linda Whichard, who was the Greenville candidate for the Jaycees "Miss North Carolina" beauty contest last summer, did an interpretive dance, with viola accompaniment.

James W. Brewer of Greenville, grand marshal of the Grand Lodge of North Carolina, 32-degree Scottish Rite Mason and Knight Commander of the Court of Honor, introduced the speaker. In presenting Mr. Eli Bloom, 32-degree Scottish Rite Mason, Mr. Brewer paid tribute to the speaker and said "he is one of the outstanding citizens of Eastern Carolina and noted for his public-spirited activity in community projects."

Mr. Bloom, always interesting, always entertaining, prefaced his interpretation of "Scottish Rite Masonry" with some mirth-provoking anecdotes. He described his experiences when he became a Scottish Rite Mason and eloquently described its tenets and inspirations and ideals.

Among the special guests recognized were Mr. and Mrs. Jake Chadwick of New Bern. Mr. Scott is master of Lodge of Perfection. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott of New Bern. Mr. Scott is president of the Craven County Shrine Club. Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Martin of Bethel. Mr. Martin is district deputy grand master of the Fifth Masonic District. Mr. and Mrs. George W. Smith of Greenville. Mr. Smith is master of the Crown Point Lodge, U.D., A.F. and A.M. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Langston and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Walsh of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Phillips.

Mr. Phillips is master of Greenville Lodge No. 284. Mr. Guy Langston, Mr. Tom Brown and Mr. James Brewer directed a game of bingo and many prizes were awarded.

Mrs. Moore Tells Of Trip

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore gave the program on Tuesday when Mrs. W. J. Rogers entertained members of the Athenium Book Club.

Upon arrival at one o'clock guests were seated at small tables throughout the living rooms where a two course luncheon was served. In these rooms, Mrs. Harrington used fall flowers, dahlias and roses in shades of red. An arrangement of bronze chrysanthemums centered the dining room table.

After this luncheon, guests were entertained by Mrs. Moore, who recently returned from a trip around the world.

Mrs. Moore took the group 36,000 miles around the globe, flying east from the Raleigh-Durham Airport. After briefly visiting the European countries and going on to India and Southeast Asia, members were impressed with the vast difference in modes of living, travel, architecture, food and religion.

As Mrs. Moore pointed out, in general the mode of living in Europe is very similar to this country's customs; whereas in India and Southeast Asia there is a vast difference.

She also pointed out that, although not believing in them, one was bound to be impressed by the different religions and superstitions of these people.

She spoke of the Emerald Buddha as being one of the most beautiful marvels of the world.

On a trip around the world one uses many different means of travel, from planes to elephants, and rickshaw. To prove this, Mrs. Moore showed snapshots of herself riding an elephant.

She also had on display many souvenirs such as silks and brocades, ivory and wood carving. Among these were bunches of grapes made of mixed stones which came out of Red China.

Following the program there was a short business session presided over by Mrs. Lee Hannah in the absence of the president, Mrs. S. M. Crisp.

In addition to members, Mrs. Harrington had as guests Messrs. John Drake, Erskine Duff, Helen White Hawes, Olga Hull and Mrs. Moore.

A 'No' That Bolstered His Stature

Gov. Hodges has allayed the fears of a good many people and at the same time probably has strengthened himself politically by spiking rumors of a move to give the governor power to appoint a number of high state officials who are now elected.

The rumors came to light last week as a result of news stories which said the commission studying reorganization of North Carolina government might ask for a constitutional amendment which would make the six offices which compose the Council of State appointive rather than elective.

By asserting he has no desire for more appointive powers, Gov. Hodges has indicated he is quite content with powers already vested in the office of the governor. He likewise has avoided charges that he was trying to strengthen his own hand as the chief executive of the state by acquiring greater power through appointments.

Gov. Hodges is probably the most popular governor North Carolina has had in several decades, and by virtue of that fact, he is probably at the moment politically more powerful than his predecessors. It must be realized, however, that Gov. Hodges' political strength is of a somewhat different structure from that of other men who have dwelled in the Governor's Mansion. Reports from around the state suggest that while Gov. Hodges enjoys the support of rank and file citizens, there may be some misgivings among the "courthouse crowds or city hall cliques" throughout the state. This is by way of saying that Gov. Hodges has not gone out of his way to consult local political leaders on various matters as has been the practice with some other governors and high officials of the state.

As one veteran political observer has commented,

More Than One Way To Aid Farm Economy

Most people of the tobacco producing regions realize that something must be done to bolster their agricultural income as demand for tobacco each year is reflected in the downward revision of acreage allotments.

Various and sundry partial solutions to the problem have been offered, all of which may help forestall economic plight for tobacco areas. Greater emphasis on industrialization to produce more year-round jobs and furnish work for those forced from the farms is one facet of the program. More attention on new supplemental farm crops is another partial answer to the problem.

Still another partial answer—by no means new—was suggested this week by the magazine "Tobacco," the weekly trade journal of the tobacco industry.

Says "Tobacco" editorially:

"... when it is said today that supply and demand have caused the growers' troubles, actually what is meant is that the controls effected over leaf production in the United States have placed the growers in an immobile position, and just as the minimum leaf prices are fixed by the parity system, so the maximum prices are fixed as long as other producing nations are able to produce tobacco more economically through lower wages in their countries. The answer to the problem seems to lie in the field of research, whereby methods of production can be developed to reduce the costs of production and once again capture a larger share of the total world market for U. S. tobacco."

In the face of rising costs of production and reduced acreage, coupled with what appears to be a ceiling on prices which can be expected from leaf tobacco, growers find themselves squeezed from both sides.

In order to maintain the farm income, a solution must be found.

Through agricultural research in recent years farmers have been able to take advantage of resistant varieties of tobacco and thus to a great extent overcome diseases which otherwise would have wiped out the crop. Through development of better methods of farming greater per acre production has been achieved at an astounding rate. More recently we have seen the real step toward mechanization of the harvesting process on tobacco farms.

These things have lessened the economic impact of the current situation on tobacco farmers. As the annual production of tobacco is further restricted, it is obvious the farmer must increase his margin profit on what he does produce if he is to hold his own. In the face of competition for world markets from other tobacco producing countries, this must be achieved by cost-cutting methods of production developed for the farmer.

Additional funds, either public or private, must be found to increase the research program being carried on for tobacco in North Carolina and other tobacco states are not to suffer economic setbacks through the reduction of income from tobacco.

Gov. Hodges popularity among the people of the state "approaches the adulation accorded Franklin Roosevelt in the middle '30s."

The people of North Carolina have shown a dislike for men who become too powerful in government, or seek to reach beyond what the average citizen believes to be his proper authority. North Carolinians have by their actions in the past shown clearly they want a major voice in their government through the election of a larger number of state officials than is the case in a good many other states.

There is no doubt that voters of the state still want to elect officials who compose the Council of State as well as judges and other office-holders who in other states are appointed.

By spiking rumors of a move to award additional appointive powers to the governor, Luther Hodges has prevented the decrease in his popularity which could have resulted from such an endeavor.

That New Armory Will Mean A Lot To County

For several months there has been no doubt that the Army Reserve Armory would be constructed in Greenville on the site at Pitt-Greenville airport made available for that purpose by the city and county. It is, nevertheless, comforting to see that plans for the new armory are progressing and dates have been set for advertising and taking of bids.

The new armory, while it is a relatively small addition compared with some big industries which have located in other sections, will mean additional economic benefits for the community.

It will develop as a training headquarters for an expanding Army Reserve program in this area. As the units which use the new armory grow, additional permanent personnel will be needed to keep up with the work. As the units expand more young men will participate in the pay which comes for attendance at weekly meetings.

All in all, the new armory will prove another important asset not only to Greenville itself, but likewise to the entire area, of Pitt County which will be served by it.

As The Reflector has previously stated, the city and county governing boards were well justified in making available the property upon which the structure is to be erected. Those who have participated in efforts to bring about the location and erection of the new armory here are to be congratulated on the fruits their efforts are bringing forth.

Hodges' Future Has Great Possibilities

By LYNN NISBET
HODGES — In less than five years the star of Luther Hodges has been catapulted from relative obscurity to the brightest spot in the galaxy of North Carolina political leaders. To greater degree than any other man in more than half a century he has appealed to the imagination and the desire for leadership of the rank and file of Tarheel citizens.

That necessarily involves speculation about his future, and the extent to which his personal political fortunes will affect the prestige of the State. Your reporter has attended the six district rallies held up to now. The territory represented at these meetings embraces about half the area of North Carolina, west and south of a line roughly drawn from Ashe county southeastward to New Hanover. It includes the piedmont, about half the Piedmont and a substantial part of the coastal plains. Aggregate attendance at these rallies was around 5,000 people. It was impossible to talk with more than a hundred or so, but honest effort was made to pick a cross section representative opinion.

The questions were paramount in nearly every interview. They were given prominence in this order: What chance does the Democratic party have to win the election? To what extent will the races be integrated in public schools in North Carolina? What does Luther Hodges have in mind for the future?

The order of the questions is logical under the circumstances and the situations suggested by them are closely inter-related. Democratic victory will mean greater influence for North Carolina and the whole South in national affairs. Results of the election will have considerable bearing on the method by which integration is consummated in the public schools. And if the Democrats gain control of the executive and legislative branches of the Federal government Luther Hodges will be a figure of great national prominence. Mean-time his continuing leadership in the state depends to great degree upon the effective operation of the school plan which he sponsored.

CABINET OR SENATE? — Despite his oft repeated assertion that he is interested only in doing the best job he can as Governor and is not thinking about what he might do after his full term ends in 1961, many observers have predicted he will be a candidate for the United States Senate in 1960 to succeed Sen. Kerr Scott. Lately there have been suggestions he is in line for a cabinet post, probably secretary of commerce, if Stevenson is elected President.

Appointment to the cabinet would necessitate resignation as Governor early in his term, and most of his friends think he will not take that course. They say it is more likely he will continue as Governor and will use his influence with the national administration in behalf of some other North Carolinian for the cabinet. Tom Pearsall for secretary of agriculture or Bob Hanes for commerce.

It is conceded in all quarters that by reason of his early and ardent support of Adlai Stevenson, and his position as chairman of the Southern Governors Conference, he will have entree into the inner councils of the national administration and wield large influence on decisions made there.

SPREAD — Prestige in national councils will depend to some degree upon his maintaining the position of leadership in his own state. On that point some of his friends are becoming concerned about the spread and diversity of his program for North Carolina. His zeal for maintaining segregated schools, for divorcing prison administration from the highway commission, for complete reorganization of the highway commission and other governmental departments and agencies, put him in the path of cross currents of popular opinion. Some who wholeheartedly support him on one or more of these proposals just as vigorously oppose him on others.

HERE TO YONDER — The Democratic caravan bus the other day saved about ten minutes on the scheduled time from Charlotte to Taylorsville, because the new US-21 highway by-passes the town of Taylorsville, Davidson and Mooresville. That is one of hundreds of illustrations that might be cited of how the new locations of primary highways speed the time and shorten the distance between here and yonder for travelers who do not desire to stop at all the towns along the way.

The questions were paramount in nearly every interview. They were given prominence in this order: What chance does the Democratic party have to win the election? To what extent will the races be integrated in public schools in North Carolina? What does Luther Hodges have in mind for the future?

How To Tell Fight's Progress

By JIMMY ELLIS

Homecoming Stirs A Story

True incident from my college days, recalled at Homecoming: An acquaintance of mine was not usually identified as a boozie hound although he did drink occasionally. He rarely got drunk but when he did he got as inebriated as possible without losing consciousness.

One football weekend, he confessed to an urge to get potted and then proceeded to try to drink up all the liquor in the county. By game time he was roaring drunk but still on his feet and eager to get to the football stadium.

He saw very little of what went on during the game but he had a big time helping the cheerleaders arouse the crowd.

Sometime during the game he recognized one of his instructors, a woman, and made his presence known to her. She was quite properly embarrassed but acknowledged his greeting.

On Monday, when the young man found his way to class, he was still suffering from the after effects of the big weekend. The teacher he was so happy to see at the football game soon wore out her welcome by firing questions he couldn't answer.

The thing finally came to a head. The teacher observed, "Well, Mr. Nelson, it appears to me that you could pass this course easily if you'd show the same enthusiasm you displayed at the football game."

The young man raised his weary head, looked her squarely in the eye and replied, "Well, it appears to me that I could indeed pass this course easily if you'd let me come to class in the same condition I was in at the football game."

He passed the course, too.

The coolness of the weather reminds you it's sweeter season again—and girls are still the best advertisement the industry has.

That Little Man who runs our house took in his first parade Saturday. He enjoyed the floats, was a wee bit skeptical of the band music and positively terrified by the ROTC drummers.

He did not cry, however, and showed off his two teeth to everybody who paused to speak.

Notebook On Life

Now It's A Spectator Sport

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Curbstone comments of a Pavement Plato: In 1952 the ordinary voter didn't hesitate to break up a beautiful lifelong friendship over a difference in political opinion.

He was that steamed up. But do you know of anybody who has broken any lifelong friendship as a result of the 1956 campaign? I don't. Nineteen days from now the nation picks its next president. But the general public seems hardly more stirred by this fact than by the news that there are only 57 shopping days left before Christmas.

What has happened? In previous presidential election years politics has always ranked as America's top participant sport, a participant sport being one in which you take part yourself—such as playing gin rummy or making love.

The great spectator sports—those at which you just sit and watch—were baseball, football and basketball. But this year politics seems to outrank them as a spectator sport. No one is playing the game but the professional politicians. The voters are on the sidelines sitting on their hands.

It wasn't that way in 1952. Remember? Everybody was in politics, and politics was in everybody. Husbands were so riled up they were even talking back to their wives.

Democrats were walking into bars offering to "lick any Republican in the place"—and any Republican within earshot was ready to call them.

It was a time when everyone was sure the country needed to be saved, and the only way to save it was to vote the way he did.

The rival candidates weren't simply men. Dwight Eisenhower was another Richard the Lionhearted, leading a new crusade; Adlai Stevenson was a new Woodrow Wilson, reborn more glamorous.

None of the politicians surrounding them were simply human either. All wore halos or had cloven hooves, depending on the voter's view.

And issues? In 1952 everything was an issue—even animal life.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
PREVENTION vs. CURE

Most of the trouble in which humanity finds itself involved is utterly unnecessary. Almost every war in history could have been stopped had it not been that selfishness, ambition, and greed triumphed over good sense. The divorces in our land would be reduced to a trifling number if the people who get divorces were not so determined that they must have their way at everybody's expense, no matter what happens.

We read in the papers about the efforts being made to do something for the juvenile delinquent. That every boy in trouble needs help, no one can deny, but the thing to do above everything else is to get to the normal nondelinquent youngsters with influences and interests that will keep them from becoming delinquents.

Our asylums are full of insane people, yet most people are driven to insanity by circumstances that have no business existing. In the midst of all our handwringing and wailing over alcoholism there are heard a few sensible voices which declare, "The way to avoid alcoholism is never to start drinking."

We are long on cure and short on prevention. The place to stop every evil is right where it begins. Search the Scriptures and you will find this principle being set forth everywhere. Prevention is better than cure.

A recent headline in a local newspaper summed it up perfectly. It read: The Best Way To Cure Poison Ivy Is To Stay Away From It.

Candidates Use Contrasting Conclusions

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — Although neither President Eisenhower nor Adlai E. Stevenson mean to misrepresent the issues on which they collide, there has rarely been a Presidential campaign when the opposing candidates placed such a different interpretation and drew such contrasting conclusions on the national and international problems of the day.

Neither man is being entirely fair to himself or to the voters, making the 1956 contest one of the most confused and confusing in many years. The voters have a right to be bothered, bewildered, and all reports indicate that their minds are in a blurred state. With the election only 19 days away, the number of "undecideds" is unprecedented, although their eventual allegiance may determine the result. AS THE GOP SEES IT The Republicans, for instance, insist that this country's prestige overseas is at a "peak," and that the United States is winning the "competitive coexistence" conflict with Russia. President Eisenhower denies that there are any differences with Britain and France. The fact is that the United States has lost friends everywhere, especially in the strategic Arab nations throughout the Middle East. They are being thrown into Muscovite arms.

Anglo-French officials, members of Parliament and leading newspapers have condemned what they regard as our on-again-off-again policies in recent crises. The Radford plan for reduction of our defense forces has slowed down the rearmament of West Germany and Japan.

IKE GETS NO CREDIT FROM DEMOCRATS But the Democrats refuse to admit that Eisenhower is generally recognized abroad as a man of peace and good will. He has offered again and again to curtail or terminate manufacture and testing of A and H-bombs, but without obtaining Russian agreement to essential procedure—namely, international inspection. He has kept us out of war with China.

If the Suez Canal dispute is resolved without war, and without alienating the Arab-African-Indian bloc forever, it will be because of the restraint urged upon London and Paris by President Eisenhower through Secretary Dulles. In channeling that conflict to the United Nations for solution, they have given needed prestige to that international body.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR HIGH COST OF LIVING? There is the same haziness concerning the responsibility for today's high cost living. Stevenson maintains that prices to consumers were never higher than today, and he blames that on the Administration's fiscal and monetary management of money. But he concedes no credit for the fact that, despite heavy and necessary Federal spending, the dollar has been kept relatively stable during Ike's regime.

Eisenhower contrasts the 3 per cent rise in prices from 1953 to 1956 with what he says was a 50 per cent increase under Truman from 1945 to 1953. But the President's advisers failed to remind him that the inflation was due largely to a huge outpouring of consumer cash after World War II's end, and at a time when goods were in short supply, and also to the Korean War expenditures. ANOTHER OPPOSITION CHARGE The Democrats, in refuting Ike's boast of social and economic gains, charge that he is simply carrying out Roosevelt-Truman reforms, which is true. But they give him no credit for doing so in the face of fierce opposition from GOP conservatives on and off Capitol Hill. Nor do they admit that his administration and execution are more practical and efficient than F.D.R.'s or Truman's. Ike prides himself on strengthening and expanding social and economic benefits. But he forgets to mention that it was the Democrats who raised his 90-cent minimum wage figure to $1, and that it was the opposition who lowered the age requirement at which women and totally disabled persons may collect on their Federal insurance. On their part, the Democrats see no merit in a President bowing graciously to the will of Congress in these matters.

It is, perhaps, too much to expect, but each side should show a little more charity to the other—and to the voters.

Fair Trade Laws Keep Them Busy

By ELMER ROESSNER
There is considerable doubt about what so-called fair-trade laws do for retailers. But there is no doubt what they do for investigators and lawyers. The laws are keeping a large number of them profitably employed just as they have since the first such statute was enacted 25 years ago. In fact, detectives and attorneys seem busier than ever right now.

At the moment a fair-trade case is pending in the United States Supreme Court; hundreds of other cases are bouncing around lesser Federal and state courts. New actions are instituted almost every day, from one end of the country to the other. Fair-trade laws, which permit manufacturers to fix retail prices of trade-marked products, authorize courts to enjoin and punish those who cut fixed prices.

Corporations fixing prices under these laws maintain staffs to gather evidence of price cutting and to bring suits against violators. They also maintain lobbying and propaganda organizations to advance their interests.

Mustangs who cut prices despite laws and, sometimes, court injunctions also maintains staffs of shoppers, sleuths and barristers. They too attempt to influence legislation and public opinion. Money spent by both sides must inevitably be reflected in prices of goods sold. Next time you see a store sign that reads, "Court Battle Over Fair Trade," be sure to read it. You are paying for the fight. FINE POINTS BEFORE HIGH COURT

The action now before the Supreme Court is not, as some businessmen think, a test of the basic principles of fair trade. The court has previously ruled that, when state laws so provide, an agreement between a manufacturer and one retailer to fix a price on a specific product also binds all other retailers—including those who up to this time have taken no part in the conversation.

The present case, brought by Home Utilities Co. against Eastman Kodak, questions the right of the manufacturer to set retail prices when, it is contended, there is no competition because competitors charge the same price. It also questions the right of Eastman to fix prices of kits when some components are not price-fixed when sold separately. The court will hear the case during its current term.

Meanwhile, Electric has won an important fair-trade case in a Federal District Court. GE had obtained an injunction against Masters, Inc., a discount house, in New York state courts, forbidding Masters to cut GE prices. Masters then set up a subsidiary in the District of Columbia, which has no fair-trade law, and sold GE appliances at cut prices by mail to New York customers.

CALLED A GIMMICK Judge Alexander Bicks held this was a gimmick (his word) to avoid the New York injunction and he ordered the subsidiary to cease selling GE products at less than prescribed prices.

This decision does not appear to affect the hundreds of other discount houses selling by mail from Washington or the 15 states now without fair-trade laws. Three of these states have never had such laws and in the 12 others such laws have been held wholly or in part unconstitutional.

The eleventh and twelfth states are Colorado and Utah, where State Supreme Courts have acted in the last 60 days. The Utah court found price fixing in conflict with the state's constitution. The Colorado court ruled out only the "nonsigner clause."

Those who have not signed agreements. Without such a clause, fair-trade laws are almost completely ineffective. It is practically impossible for a manufacturer to get every retailer in a state to sign an agreement, and nonsigners can cut prices.

In most of the states where laws have been ruled invalid, proponents of fair trade are planning to ask legislatures to pass new laws under which prices may be maintained without conflicting with state constitutions.

Estes Raps 'Cost' Of Bank Supports

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver said today "the Eisenhower price support plan for big banking interests" costs the government more in one year than farm price supports cost in 20 years of Democratic administration.

Criss-crossing drought plagued western Missouri and Kansas in a bid for the farm vote, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate whacked away at Eisenhower administration farm policies.

He came here from Springfield, where he was accorded a rousing reception last night by a partisan audience filling all 4,000 seats in the Shrine Auditorium.

It was one of the most impressive demonstrations thus far given Kefauver.

Springfield observers said it was on a par with that tendered Vice President Nixon here three weeks ago. They described it as the biggest Democratic turnout in this normally Republican district in many years.

One reason is the Democrats are waging an all-out fight to capture the 7th Dist. Missouri congressional seat held for the past 24 years by Rep. Dewey Short. Opposing Short is Charles Brown, 35-year-old Springfield businessman.

Springfield is the center of one of the nation's biggest dairy districts. Democrats claim successive droughts have cut milk production sharply and say Republicans have failed to provide substantial aid for dairy farmers.

From Joplin, Kefauver heads for Topeka and Garden City, Kan. In a speech prepared for delivery at a midday rally in Joplin, he asserted:

"As soon as President Eisenhower got into office, he started to force farm prices down and to push interest payments up.

"One result of the price support plan for the big banking interests is that we taxpayers have to pay much higher interest charges on the federal debt.

"The cost of interest to the federal government has increased to $1,200,000,000 a year more than it was in 1952.

"The added cost of interest amounts to more, every year, than farm price supports cost in all 20 years under Democratic administrations."

Kefauver said a 90-day loan now costs 10 times as much as during World War II.

He said the Democratic party is committed to "bring about 100 per cent of parity farm prices" through rigid 90 per cent supports and other price-lifting methods.

In his Springfield talk, Kefauver stressed peace and pleaded for an international agreement to halt hydrogen bomb testing as proposed by his running mate Adlai Stevenson.

He asserted he and Stevenson will not accept President Eisenhower's "truly astonishing efforts to shut off discussion of the horror which faces all mankind."

"We shall continue to speak out with courage and conviction because we know that we speak for all humanity when we call for an end to a macabre military race which can only result in annihilation of half the people on earth," he declared.

"Adlai Stevenson does not want, and I do not want, the threat of atomic war to be a permanent condition of the life of mankind."

Rain Failed To Halt Democrats

WENTWORTH, N.C. (AP) — In spite of rain, more than 1,000 Democrats crowded into the Wentworth School auditorium here last night to hear Sen. Sam J. Ervin of Morganton address a Fifth District rally.

The party was described as "the oldest and best" by the senator as he called on the audience to vote a straight Democratic ticket in November.

Gov. Hodges sent regrets. A busy day at Greensboro, including a speech last night and the rain combined to keep him away.

Sen. Ervin lamented the recurrent occupation of the White House by Adamses.

"First John Adams, then John Quincy Adams," said the senator. "And now we have Sherman Adams."

He warned the rally that Ike's health still is an issue. "You stick with Ike and you're liable to get stuck with Dick before this thing is over."

The 55-year reign of the Democrats in North Carolina was cited by the speaker as "a shining example of party integrity and governmental efficiency."

If a human singer has ego, they should be reminded that a wood thrush can sing four notes at once and a blue jay can sing a major chord.

Bewildered Little Woman Tangled In Political Maze

By JOHN SEIGENTHALER of the Nashville Tennessean

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A bewildered little woman who "never cared for politics" was caught in a hot political crossfire yesterday as her proxy vote became crucial in naming the probable next congressman from Nashville.

"I didn't know anything about politics," she wailed later. "I just wanted to be friends with everybody. Now everybody seems like they are mad at me."

Mrs. Mary A. Baker, a widowed operator with two grown children, said she didn't want to be a member of the Davidson County Democratic Executive Committee in the first place.

She was elected in last August's Democratic primary in which Rep. Percy Priest was renominated to be U.S. representative from Davidson County, which constitutes the 5th Congressional District. Last week Rep. Priest died and it became the duty of Mrs. Baker and her fellow committeemen to name a replacement candidate who would be virtually assured of winning the Nov. 6 general election in this overwhelmingly Democratic county.

The city faction of the local Democratic party, headed by Mayor Ben West, lined up behind City Atty. Raymond Leathers. The county faction lined up behind Dist. Atty. Gen. J. Carlton Loser.

When the roll was called at the deciding committee session, Mrs. Baker was absent.

Mayor West spoke up and said, "I've got her signed resignation right here."

Then Z. T. Osborn, a lawyer leading the floor fight for Loser, rose and announced:

"I have a later statement signed by Mrs. Baker in which she gives me the right to vote for her. And she states that she does not want her resignation considered until after her vote is cast."

The chairman permitted Osborn to cast Mrs. Baker's vote. When the last name was called each candidate had 42 votes and Mrs. Isa Petre Grissim, secretary, cast her deciding vote for Loser.

Just then, into the tumult and tension Mrs. Baker was escorted, lips trembling, and West shouted: "Here is Mrs. Baker. Now let's see how she votes."

But the parliamentarian ruled her proxy vote was final.

"It was just awful," said Mrs. Baker afterward. "I've signed so many papers—resignations, proxies, and I don't really know what any of this is all about. When they put my name in to run for the committee I didn't want it. I went around and begged my friends not to vote for me."

She said Loser called her this week and asked for her vote.

"I told him I would vote for him. . . . Then the mayor called and asked if I would sign a resignation. I did that. Then Mr. Osborn asked me to sign a proxy. I did that too.

"I just thought I'd make them all happy. Now they're all unhappy and so am I."

Closed Circuit TV For Doctors

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—More than 100 Rhode Island physicians and surgeons watched a closed circuit television program last night in which a medical authority described long-term smoking as a major cause of lung cancer.

A reporter with them said the doctors sat in a smoke-filled hotel room with most of the doctors puffing on cigarettes while watching the program.

In the program originating from Boston, Dr. Henry L. Bockus, of the University of Pennsylvania, said the reason for more lung cancer among males is that men have been smoking longer than women.

Harold Arlen, the song writer of "Over the Rainbow," carries music score sheets in his pockets to make song notes like a newspaper reporter carries copy paper.

Not Very Dead

DETROIT (AP)—Charles Adolph Jakowicz, 67, still was "a little shaky" today. He had just been restored to the rolls of the living.

Since Saturday the Wayne County morgue had listed Jakowicz as dead of a heart attack at Detroit's Receiving Hospital. The man who died was carrying a card with the signature of Adolph Jakowicz. It carried Charles Adolph Jakowicz's address, too.

A neighbor contacted by police went through Jakowicz's apartment seeking "survivor" names. Jakowicz returned home from his vending machine assembly job, found his apartment stashed up and called police. He had no idea how the dead man got the card.

Cross-Section Of Oklahoma Shows Big Diversity Of Political Feeling

Editor's Note: This is another article in a series by AP's political reporters surveying sentiment in key states.

By ARTHUR EDSON KINGFISHER, Okla. (AP)—Will A. Struck, who farms 480 acres of wheat land hard hit by drought, leaned on the front fender of a parked car and readily expressed his political sentiments.

"I'm mad," Struck said. So, although he voted for Dwight D. Eisenhower for president in 1952, this time Struck said, he will switch to the Democrats and Adlai E. Stevenson.

"My wheat crop," Struck said, "wasn't worth a damn. Haven't had a good crop since 1952. Between Ike and the dry weather they're going to bust us poor old farmers."

In 1952, Eisenhower carried this normally Democratic state by 51,045 votes to Stevenson's 430,939. The Democrats are betting that the dry prairies and the hill country have enough discontented farmers to move Oklahoma's eight electoral votes over to Stevenson.

Republicans say the farm revolt is overrated. Anyway, they're betting on big majorities in Oklahoma City and Tulsa, where Eisenhower four years ago rolled up a formidable 52,000 - vote advantage.

Walter E. Curry, Republican state chairman, predicts Eisenhower won't do as well as his 87,000-vote margin four years ago. Right now, Curry would be happy to settle for a victory of 25,000 to 50,000 votes.

On the Democratic side, Sen. Mike Monroney figures Stevenson to win by 80,000 votes. He's banking heavily on farmer discontent to infect the small town merchant.

As for the state political reporters, they're so evenly divided that Oklahoma will have to go down as truly doubtful.

With every ballot counting, the farmers seem to be the voter with the loudest complaint. A Saunter around Kingfisher—pop. 3,345—and you get a different idea of the complexities of the farm problem than you had in Washington.

Leon Whitaker, a young man who used to farm here but now works for a drilling company in Buffalo, Okla., was talking with Eldin Baker, an insurance man.

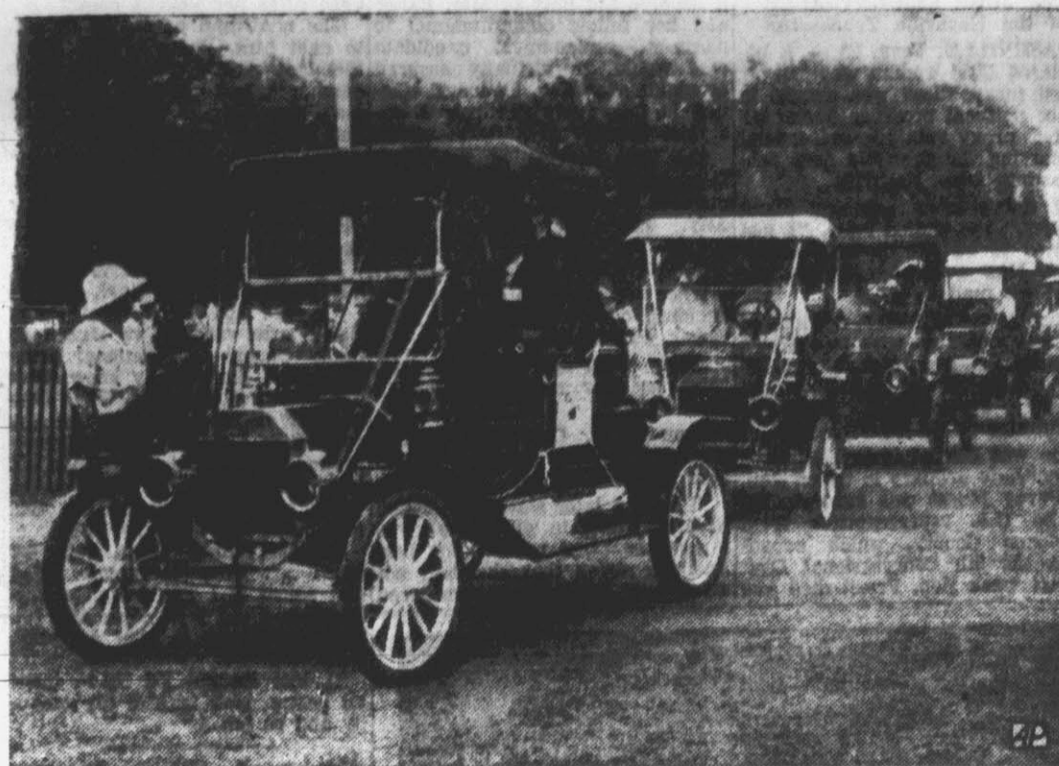

"I tried farming seven years," Whitaker said, "but everything was against me. I had to quit. One farmer can't live on a quarter section of land 160 acres—any more and make a living. I know, I tried."

"Plenty of others have found out the same thing," Baker said. Dry weather plus comparatively poor prices, Baker said, have whittled the population of Kingfisher County from 28,000 to 12,700 since 1948. Many farmers who remain make a living only by driving 44 miles into Oklahoma City to work.

Yet neither blames the administration for the farmers' plight. Both voted for Eisenhower, and will do so again.

This is wheat country. To the south, around El Reno, you run into country that also produces cotton, alfalfa, corn—and other farm products.

Glen Brown, called "Chick" because he runs a hatchery, was saying: "You know, every time a farm is sold around here, it's added on to another farm. The little farmer is moving away, to Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Dallas. It ruins the small businessman like me."

PARADE OF THE PAST—A 1909 Ford leads a cavalcade of ancient vintage automobiles across the green during the Old Car Festival in Greenfield Village at Dearborn, Mich.

Brown is an Eisenhower man, and no matter what the farm situation may be, "I don't see how they're going to get Ike out of there."

But A. G. Guth, who sells farm machinery, reports: "The Democrats who voted for Eisenhower are talking quite a bit about going back."

Wilson Harvey, a Negro who has retired from carpentry, plans to vote for Eisenhower again. He doesn't think times are too good, "but there's just so much a president can do. And old Ike did a pretty good job of stopping that war."

But E. B. Billinger, a retired railroad engineer, gives the green light to Stevenson. "Personally," he said, "I like old Eisenhower, but those men he has around him—"

Further south, in Democratic territory, E. P. Wilkinson tells you he's sure farmers who voted for Eisenhower four years ago won't do so again. Wilkinson, a Democrat, feeds 3,000 hogs at Apache.

Now a shift in scenery, north of Tulsa through Okemah, Talala and into Nowata. Cattle country here, with handsome herds standing around ponds so dry they look like overgrown mud puddles.

Dick Hanigan, who sells home appliances, doesn't plan to change his vote. "I don't see why," he said, "after having a kid in Korea."

He then brought up a subject rarely mentioned in the Southwest: Eisenhower's health. "Personally," Hanigan said, "I think it would have been smarter to put the old man out to pasture."

Even so, he's 100 per cent for Eisenhower. In a women's wear store, Mrs. J. J. Bowden said she doesn't know what she will do on Nov. 6. "You know what's wrong with the Democratic party?" she asked.

"Why don't they get a stronger man? Why did they pick him? And I'm a Democrat, too."

At the feed store Bill Whitford brought up an issue that has been on front pages in Oklahoma recently.

At Wagoner, during a contested primary election between two Democrats, charges were made that absentee ballots were used loosely and that campaign workers were paid in relief checks.

Whitford, a strong pro-Eisenhower man, figures that what many newspapers call "the Wagoner vote scandal" will hurt the Democrats badly. Nor does he think the farmers are leaving Eisenhower. "The farm vote," he said, "will be heavier for Eisenhower than in '52."

Col. L. A. O'Dell—"Colonel" because all auctioneers have that title out this way—thinks some farmers may switch from Eisenhower, but "the Democrats haven't produced any new farm program."

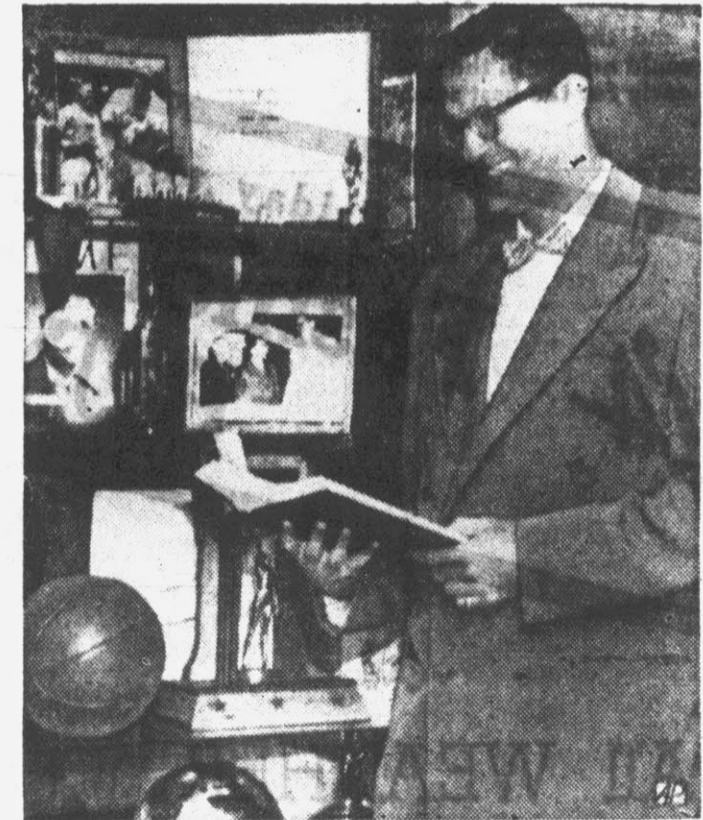

So O'Dell will vote Republican again, as will Clyde West, a Negro who traces his politics back to the Emancipation Proclamation.

"I vote the straight ticket," West said. "I never vote for a Democrat, and I've little use for any colored man that does."

At a filling station James Gatewood said he tends to vote Democratic, but he hasn't made up his mind about Nov. 6.

"A few around here say they don't want Stevenson because he's divorced," Gatewood said. "but I say if we're going to follow that line we are going to cut a lot of people out of office."

EXPENSIVE CALL MEXICO CITY (AP)—Yolanda Campos told police she left her apartment a bare 15 minutes to use the telephone at a nearby grocery and returned to find her radio, clothing and jewelry gone.

ANOTHER HONOR—George Mikan, basketball star-attorney, reads law book in his Minneapolis home after winning Republican nomination for House of Representatives election.

Over $222,000 For Church Fund

Collection of $222,672 to date was reported Tuesday night at the first report meeting of the five soliciting committees working in the Building Fund Campaign now in progress at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. E. Hoover Taft, general chairman of the Building Fund Campaign, spoke confidently of reaching the $250,000 goal originally set for the Campaign and urged the workers gathered last night to complete the job with their eyes on $300,000. The final joint report meeting will be held one week from last night—October 23.

"The Campaign is doing our church a lot of good. People have manifested their great love for Jarvis Memorial with their generous gifts," said Mr. Taft in addressing the workers. He further announced a lunch for all the Campaign workers Sunday noon right after church. At that time he said the chairman of the Memorial Committee and of the Collections Committee would be elected. Importance of the two committees was pointed out.

It Could Be Our Most Lavish Of All Christmases

By SAM DAWSON NEW YORK (AP)—It could be our most lavish as well as our biggest Christmas. Store buyers have been betting on it and upgrading their merchandise purchases.

Fashion and fads have been having one of their biggest years. Merchants report that their quality lines move best.

The trend has been noted all through the consumer retail business. Automobiles are an example. While our car sales as a whole have lagged well behind 1955's record volume, makers of the most expensive cars have flourished. In many instances the highest priced cars have outsold last year's total. And in the cheaper lines it has been the highest priced model with the most extra cost accessories that have moved fastest from the dealer's show-rooms.

Home builders have reported the same trend. The over-all drop in house building this year has been concentrated in the lower priced homes. People have been buying bigger houses and more expensive ones.

Taking a tip from this tendency to buy the higher priced items when they offered the desired higher quality, merchants have stocked up this year with Christmas goods aimed at customers with upgraded incomes, according to the professional buying agencies in New York.

Women's wear sales are always looked upon as a good barometer of economic conditions. This year the dressier items are reported selling in volume. Merchants around the country are reported to have stocked upon the costlier lines—and to be confident of moving them.

The trend, merchants say, has had something to do with the increased total of retail sales this year over last. Higher prices for many goods have been credited with pushing dollar sales volume ahead while unit sales have advanced only slightly, if at all.

But part of the increased dollar volume, merchants report, has been due to upgrading, all along the line, in customers' purchases. One of the outstanding postwar trends has been the increase in personal incomes. Thousands have moved from the lower income bracket to the middle income bracket. In most cases this has led to the buying of more units of goods but to the purchasing of higher quality goods.

Some Arithmetic Can Cut Fertilizer Costs

"A little arithmetic may help to reduce your fertilizer costs," Farm Agent Sam C. Winchester said today.

Pointing out that fertilizer costs are higher than they need be on a large number of farms, Winchester recommended that often Pitt farmers have determined means of soil test what plant nutrients are needed, careful consideration should be given to the analysis, as well as the price, of the fertilizer purchased.

"Fertilizers differ in the kind and amount of plant nutrients they contain," Winchester explained, "and the important point to remember is that the first number of the fertilizer grade is the percent of available nitrogen, the second is the percent of available phosphate, and third is the percent of available potash."

"To get the best buy, you have to determine which fertilizers of the same ratio will give you the most of these plant nutrients per dollar. To do this, you simply add the nutrients in a grade and divide this figure into the price per 100 pounds of fertilizer. For example, the grades 5-10-10 and 10-20-20 both have a ratio of 1:2:2, and total plant nutrients of 25 and 50 respectively. Dividing these figures into the respective prices for these grades will quickly show which is the best buy. Comparison can also be figured on a ton basis."

Winchester said comparative handling and application costs should also be considered. Less handling and storage are required for the more concentrated fertilizers.

Stressing the importance of soil tests as a means of getting the most for your fertilizer dollar, he explained that sometimes these may indicate the need for more lime and fertilizer than a farmer has been using. However, he explained, following the soil-test, recommendations in such cases will increase yields so that there will be considerable increase in net returns on the fertilizer investment.

Made It Easier For Supporters

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP)—Backers of the proposed Buttes Dam, an irrigation project, decided to make it easier for supporters to let their congressmen know of their feelings.

They set up a "Buttes Dam or Bust" headquarters; put in stenographers and offered: "You dictate, we write, you sign, we mail." More than 30 proponents of the dam accepted the offer of free letter writing on the first day.

One Youth Slain During Teen-Age Gang Fight

CHICAGO (AP)—One youth was fatally shot, another was seriously wounded and a third was slashed and beaten in a teen-age gang violence last night in a Southwest Side park.

Police said Fred Kruse, 18, walked into a police station shortly after the brief but violent gang fight and admitted he had fired the shots which killed Warren White, 17, and wounded Edward Melant Jr., 18.

Slashed on the face and beaten was Richard Bukovic, 19, described by police as a member of Kruse's gang. Bukovic, Kruse and four other youths were held by police without charge in connection with the shooting and fighting.

Chief of Detectives Patrick Deely said the shooting occurred after several youths drove to the Cornell Square Park at 51st and Wood streets and approached White, Melant and Gerald Sternal, 17, who were sitting on a park bench. Deely said Sternal told him Kruse warned White not to move and when White advanced, Kruse fired once. Then, he added, when Melant got up, Kruse fired three more shots, two of them striking Melant. White, a high school senior, was shot in the heart and was dead on arrival at a hospital. Melant was shot in the chest and right arm.

Kruse and his companions ran to the two cars they had driven to the park but Bukovic was left behind in the park, Deely said Sternal told him.

A dozen youths, attracted by the nearby candy store, Sternal's account to Deely continued, and they grappled with Bukovic, who was slashed as they struggled. Twenty stitches were required to close Bukovic's wound.

Deely said neither Bukovic nor any of the other youths questioned would give any reason for the attack on the youths. Police, however, attributed the shooting to a dispute among members of rival neighborhood gangs. All of the youths involved are white.

Cites City's Big Distribution Of Farm Chemicals

Greenville distributes two or three times as many agricultural chemicals as any other city in the State," James T. Keel told St. James Methodist Men Tuesday night.

Keel, local chemicals distributor and warehouseman, is primarily about "the amazing strides being made in plant growth control by our government and private researchers."

Reporting on his trip last week to the U. S. Department of Agriculture Experiment Station at P. H. Ravenel, Keel described the new "Gibberellic acid," called a "plant regulator" for peanuts.

Produced by a fungus grown in a liquid culture medium from which the acid is extracted, the new substance greatly stimulates stem and leaf development in most plants tested.

"The time may well come when we can grow 5,000 pounds of peanuts per acre whereas now we grow 3,000 pounds," he declared.

The rapid increase in world population, due to declining death rate, can be matched by the marvelous increases in production soon to be made possible by new chemical regulation of plant development, Keel said. In this field Greenville is already North Carolina's number one center, the speaker added.

Calling for diversification of agriculture in eastern North Carolina, Keel said many farmers from other areas "cannot understand why we do not raise peppers, cester beans" and other money crops to supplement tobacco and cotton crops.

Keel was introduced by Graham S. Quinn, president of the club.

Home Folks Turn Out To Hail Miss America After Month Of Travelling

MANNING, S. C. (AP)—The home state of South Carolina got its first real opportunity today to welcome home Miss America—Marian Ann McKnight.

After more than a month of personal appearances throughout the country, Marian has returned home.

The day, which Manning Mayor Sam Gamble promised would be a "real wagon greasing time," started bright and early with a breakfast. This gave the public an opportunity to officially meet Marian and newsmen a chance to fling questions her way.

The whole town has been decked out in gay-colored garlands and bunting.

A luncheon in Marian's honor was scheduled for noon. Then a parade and welcome in the center of town were set for mid-afternoon.

Speeches are naturally in order. There was to be one by Mayor Gamble and one by Gov. George Bell Timmerman Jr.

A reception is planned for this evening, followed by a Miss America ball.

Marian's return is an extra thrill for her as her widowed mother, Mrs. Annie McKnight, plans to remarry within the next few days.

MANNING, S. C. (AP)—Teen-age Miss America, like many pretty kids of her years, is a disquieting combination of the adult female, confident of her charm, and the "darn nice kid" her Manning neighbors say she is.

Mrs. Lee Van Santon, who lives next door to Marian Ann McKnight here, remembers the nation's girl friend as an obliging kid who used to help get the balky Van Santon power mower started when the grass needed cutting.

Her Manning High classmates recall her as an exuberant cheer leader for the school's athletic teams. They also say she could pack away deviled crabs with the easy dispatch of a 200-pound full-back.

To the members of the Methodist Church she attends, Marian is a competent Sunday School teacher whose uncommon prettiness earned her a place on the cover of "The Methodist Advocate," a church publication.

And to many of Manning's older folks she's that "little McKnight girl who was always such a tomboy."

At the age of six, they recall, Miss America fell out of an apple tree and broke her left arm.

Marian reverted to type recently at the Alabama State Fair in Birmingham where she slipped into a print dress and flat heels to take in the mid-way—just like any carefree youngster of 19.

She amazed a retinue of following admirers by smacking 9 out of 10 targets at the shooting gallery and soon outdistanced a puffing horde of aging newsmen in romp-

Decided the lonely, unhappy dog would enjoy a walk. When they started to put the 40-pound animal back into his cage, he broke his leash as if it were cotton thread and took off for the woods.

The airline advertised for the dog's return via newspapers, radio and television. Hundreds reported sighting him, but no one could get within half a block. At Tokyo's Yokota air base, the smiles disappeared from young Steven's face when he learned his beloved companion was lost.

Last week Mrs. Sweeney flew to Anchorage and began tramping around the places where Jory had been seen. A telephone call sent her hurrying to a vacant block, cordoned off by police to keep strangers from frightening the animal away.

Mrs. Sweeney was 100 yards away when Jory recognized her. She dashed headlong for her. The trip to Japan was uneventful.

"Next time," Mrs. Sweeney told newsmen at the airport, "we'll make certain Jory is on the same plane with us."

Won't Proclaim UN Day In Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Gov. J. Bracken Lee has once again declined to proclaim United Nations Day in Utah, electing instead to set Oct. 23 as United States Day.

But Lee adds in a statement that "I am not the isolationist that some people brand me. I see nothing wrong with a world organization based on fair and equal treatment of all, but I see danger in the charter of the United Nations as now written."

Lee, seeking re-election as an independent after losing his third-term bid in the Republican primary, says the Korean War was a U. N. undertaking but that the United States furnished 90 per cent of the men and 100 per cent of the money to carry on the war.

Predicts Fewer Movie Houses

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The general manager of the second largest theater circuit in the United States predicts a third of the nation's 19,000 movie theaters will be closed within three years.

Most will be of the "small neighborhood variety," Frank H. Rickelson, head of National Theaters Corp., told newsmen.

"We're in a transition period," he said. "There's no doubt that television has had a deadening effect on the movie industry. We're going in for push, big theaters as the keystone to a new building program."

The Maya civilization was begun in Mexico and Central America in 500 B.C.

Schnauser Was AWOL 2 Weeks

TOKYO (AP)—Jory, a whiskered German schnauser who hates cages and distrusts strangers, finally got to Tokyo today after being AWOL two weeks in Alaska. His mistress had to fly back to get him.

Capt. and Mrs. Edwin Sweeney of Santa Fe, N. M., bought Jory the day their only son, Steven, was born 4½ years ago. Sweeney was transferred to a jet fighter base in Japan recently, and the family took an airliner from Seattle three weeks ago. Jory's crate was put on another plane later in the week.

Projects Approved By Pactolus PTA

Money-making projects to help pay the salary of the public school music teacher were given sanction by the Pactolus P.T.A. at its meeting Monday night at Pactolus School. The projects will include a food booth at the Halloween Carnival, a womanless wedding later in the school year and serving Ruritan Club suppers for the remainder of the school year. The projects were accepted after presentation by Noel Lee of the Ways and Means Committee, who also said his committee is willing to sponsor an auction sale at the Halloween Carnival. After acceptance of the projects, Mrs. Noel Lee, Mrs. Charlie Dixon and Mrs. Preston Woolard each agreed to handle arrangements for one Ruritan supper. Mrs. Lee was also named to direct the Carnival food booth. Mrs. Leonard Briley reported the recent membership drive had resulted in 176 memberships for the club. Mrs. Borothy Brown's

Members of the staff include Patricia Morgan, business manager; Irene Cayton, subscription editor; Becky Reel, assistant subscription editor; and typists Joyce Whitchard, Barbara Mills, Robert Hardee and Peggy Taylor. China, silver and crystal patterns were discussed by Greenville jeweler John Lauteres at a recent meeting of the third year Home Economics class. Mr. Lauteres made a short talk and answered questions from the class. Our cheering squad is filling the air with many yells at practice sessions during home room periods. The squad of nine members is headed by Roe Ann Elks, chief, and includes Irene Cayton, Barbara Mills, Janice Hudson, Peggy Arnold, Frances Elks, Jean Davenport, Melissa Whitchard and Jackie Elks. A trip to Williamsburg, Va., was made by seventh and fifth grade members last Friday. Mrs. McCullen and Mrs. Mills, the teachers, accompanied the students on the educational field trip. The first P. T. A. meeting of the year was held last week. Peggy Taylor, a senior, led the devotional. After the business session was completed an open house period was held to enable parents and teachers to talk with each other. Projects have been started for the Science Fair which will take place the first of March. Many students are expected to participate.

New Treatment Reported For Infectious Hepatitis

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE AP Science Reporter NEW YORK (AP)—A new combination treatment promises speedy recovery from infectious hepatitis, a stubborn liver disease, two physicians reported today. Combination of the hormone cortisone and an antibiotic cleared up the jaundice-producing disease within a week or two in 12 patients treated so far. Dr. Max Jacobson and Dr. Charles Ressler of New York City write in the New York State Journal of Medicine. Recovery from hepatitis usually takes many months, with strict bed rest for weeks. While only 12 persons have been treated with the new technique, none have had a relapse. The first was treated five years ago. Infectious hepatitis is caused by a virus, and the disease is apparently increasing, the physicians said. Some 50,000 cases were reported over the nation last year, and many more may not have been reported to health boards. The infected liver enlarges, the patient gets jaundice, becomes weak, usually feels nauseated. Bed rest and high-protein diet have been the main treatment, but recovery is slow.

To this regular treatment, Jacobson and Ressler added a combination of small doses of cortisone and aureomycin or archromycin. The solution is given daily by vein for a week or more. Patients usually feel better in a day or two, and signs of the disease disappear within a week, the doctors said. The average hospital stay for the 12 was reduced to less than two weeks. Just why the combination treatment brings this quick benefit is not too clear, the physicians said. Cortisone apparently reduces inflammation of the liver. The antibiotic may help by combatting secondary infections, or partially sterilizing the gastrointestinal tract to reduce the chemical work the liver must do.

Movie Convinced He Couldn't Win

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—A 21-year-old escaped convict said a movie proved to him crime does not pay. He surrendered to police after he saw a motion picture showing cowboys shooting down cattle rustlers.

Boyle . . .

(Continued from Page 4) Remember Harry Truman's "red herring" and Dick Nixon's dog, "Checkers"? Today all this is changed. There are still patches of strong political feeling across the country, but, on the whole, no stern anger stirs the average voter. Nor any panic fear. Few voters seem to be approaching the polls in the spirit of Paul Revere, alert to save the land. The pros profess to find this decay of partisanship astonishing, particularly since both Eisenhower and Stevenson have taken off the gloves and indulged in more bare-fisted knuckle-busting than they did in 1952. But from the standpoint of any mass reaction, they might almost be fighting in a vacuum. In an effort to find the reason behind the public's apathy, reporters are going to "the grass roots." But the grass roots aren't saying much. They're yawning, too. The truth seems to be that the average voter doesn't really have his dander up against anybody. He is weary of international crises and mostly interested in his own problems. He wants more peace and a bigger hunk of prosperity, but whether he plans to vote for Ike or Adlai he doesn't feel the other candidate is plotting to make him poor or take him into war. So nobody's really belly-ripping mad at anybody. It is highly unlikely that any election loser will have to push a peanut up Pike's Peak with his nose this Nov. 7. Who feels strongly enough on the campaign to risk such a bet? Even the career martini drinkers, who usually will quarrel at the drop of an olive, are feuding more over the musical merits of Elvis Presley than they are over politics. About the only things now that would wake up the electorate would be for President Eisenhower to denounce both golf and motherhood—or for Adlai Stevenson to elope with Princess Margaret Rose of Britain.

Beta Club Prepares For Future Activity

By IRENE CAYTON Grimesland School Reporter Ways and means of making money, activity plans and dates of regular meetings were discussed at the first called meeting of the Beta Club last week. Members decided to hold meetings the first Wednesday of each month at the home of one club member. The next club gathering will be November 7 at the home of Barbara Mills, president. Class officers have been elected by the high school's four classes. Patricia Morgan is president of the Senior Class and is serving with Ormand Williams, vice-president; Hazel May, secretary; and Agnes Smith, treasurer.

Junior Class officers are Jimmy Edwards, president; Peggy Warren, vice-president; Robert Bawer, secretary; and Lindy Edwards, treasurer. Myrtle Baker is Sophomore Class president and has Linda Haddock as vice-president, Barbara Mills secretary and Ruth Adams as treasurer. The Freshman Class has elected Sybil Howell president, Linsay Williams vice president, Barbara Rouse secretary and Melissa Whitchard treasurer. In the display case in the library, an exhibition of dog pictures is being displayed. The collection is the hobby of Ray Wilson, a graduate of Grimesland High School.

The Best, And Worst, Of Old Movies Are 'Eaten Up' By TV

By CHARLES MERCER
 NEW YORK (AP)—In this current week 142 old motion pictures are being shown by seven television stations in the New York metropolitan area. Home viewers can watch movies on one or another channel continuously every day from 9 a. m. until 1:30 a. m.

This is typical of TV programming in every section of the country these days.

The release of large numbers of films to television is often discussed from the aspect of the film and TV industries. But what, if anything, has been the effect on the viewer?

For some time we've been questioning and listening and listening to numerous viewers on this subject of old films. One's conclusion perhaps sounds obvious, yet it is worthy of emphasis.

People watch and enjoy films, no matter how old, which were good films at the time of their release. Thus, currently in the New York area, you hear expressions of pleasure at seeing Charles Laughton in "The Private Life of Henry VIII," which was released in 1933, and Lloyd Nolan in "The House on 92nd Street," released in 1945.

On the other hand, no one seems to have sat with such turkeys as Slim Summerville in "I'm from Arkansas" and all the bad ones which inevitably are found in a group of 142 films — or 142 of anything else.

Well, Hollywood and English studios say that the only practicable method of releasing old films to television is by locks or packages. TV stations have to purchase in that form or not at all — and many have decided that showing old films is the only practicable method of filling all the programming hours in a week and obtaining essential advertising revenues.

It is, in short, good and practicable business. But good business can be a far cry from good entertainment. It is a strange situation indeed where a regular TV program of old films can include some of the best and the absolutely worst in the way of home screen entertainment.

Who's going to do anything about it? Not the film studios, because they have a profitable deal whereby their worst products command the same prices as their best. Not the TV stations because with rare exceptions, they are unable to buy selectively picture by picture, but must settle for packages.

Obviously when the business offices either do not know or do not care about is the fact that the public already is doing something about it. For the public is not captive, it is a great variety of selective human beings. One thing business offices should remember: each human being comes equipped with eyes and ears and a wrist ready to turn a dial on a TV set.

Swathmore Professor To Address College English Teachers' Session

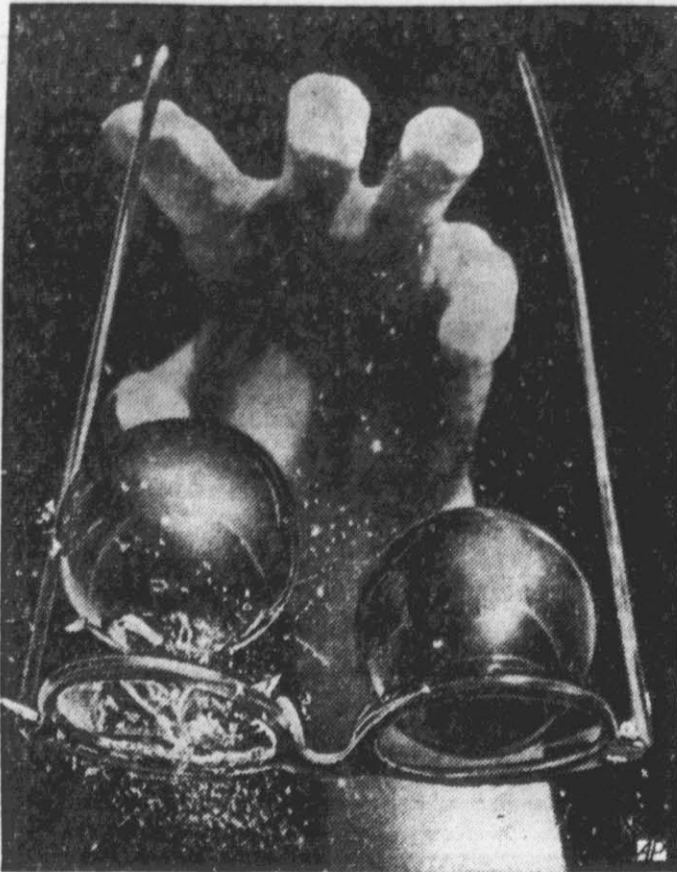

Dr. Bruce Dearing of Swathmore College in Pennsylvania, president of the College English Association, will be principal speaker at a regional conference of the association at East Carolina College Saturday of this week, October 20.

Dr. Dearing will address delegates at a meeting scheduled for 2 p. m. in the Joyner Memorial Library on the campus. His topic will be "Uses and Misuses of Psychology in the Interpretation of Literature."

Members of the College English Association from colleges in North Carolina, Virginia, and West Virginia and a number of guests will attend the conference here. In addition to the afternoon session, events of the day will include a morning meeting at 10:30 in the Joyner Library and a luncheon at 1 p. m. in the college dining hall.

Dr. James Pindexter of the East Carolina department of English, chairman in charge of arrangements for the conference, has announced that the program will focus attention on the teaching of literature in the college. Literature in the freshman and sophomore English courses, advanced courses in literature, and world literature in the English curriculum will be discussed during the morning session by a group of teachers representing colleges included in the region.

Speakers will be Dr. John Hamilton, Appalachian State Teachers College, Boone, N. C.; Dr. Nat Henry, University of Richmond, Va.; Mrs. Dorothy Schlegel, Longwood College, Farmville, Va.; and Dr. Lionel Stevenson, Duke University.

Rough Five Days For This Family

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP)—It's been a rough five days for the Albert M. George family. George paid $33 in police court for speeding. His wife was fined $11 for speeding. A stray dog bit one of their twin sons, Dennis, 7.

The other twin, Donald, and a third son, Raymond, 8, came down with influenza. George tried to light the furnace and it exploded and he suffered burns.

The U. S. Capitol forecourt in Washington, D. C. has been the setting for the inauguration of every president since Andrew Jackson. Architectural changes will change that for the next inauguration.

Falkland Native Plays Key Role In Flying Safety

KEESLER AFB, Biloxi, Miss. — Judging from the news, it looks as if the Air Force is having an awful lot of flying accidents, and many people wonder what the USAF is doing about it. It is doing many things, among which is a worldwide conference of Flying Safety Officers in which a Falkland officer has a key part.

He is Lt. Col. Geo. H. Pittman, 36, son of Mrs. Daisy Pittman of Falkland and the late Mr. Geo. H. Pittman. The colonel, a West Pointer, is the executive of the big conference here which has attracted 175 conferees from many spots around the globe. The five-day parley on flying safety problems will conclude Friday (Oct. 19).

The technicians gathered here are working on known safety problems in ten seminar groups. They will use their field knowledge and experience to make specific recommendations to the Air Force to further reduce the accident rate.

"Jet accidents — justifiably — generate big headlines," Lt. Col. Pittman says, "and that gives us the impression that military flying is a fiasco. We fail to remember, however, that the Air Force has grown greatly, and that its pilots now fly far enough to encircle the earth 250 times a day. These increases inevitably mean more accidents — and each one of them is a news story. So, it looks as if things were going to put in a hurry. Here is the unvarnished truth: The USAF major accident rate hit an all-time low in the first half of 1956 — 15 major accidents per 100,000 flying hours.

The colonel normally is executive for the USAF Directorate of Flight Safety Research. This is a Pentagon-level organization located at Norton AFB, San Bernardino, Calif. He has personally investigated about 30 flying accidents. He is a senior pilot with more than 3,000 flying hours and 19 years service, five of which have been overseas. Col. Pittman flies jets, and in the past has flown more than 90 different models of aircraft. During the war he flew in the Asiatic-Pacific theater.

The Falkland officer now makes his home at 615 N. Sycamore Ave., Rialto, Calif., with his wife, Anne C., daughter Theresa and son Geo. H. III.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW! By FAGALY and SHORTEN

Law Bans Boys In Logging Jobs

RALEIGH—“Logging and sawmill jobs are for men, not boys,” cautions State Labor Commissioner Frank Crane, who administers the Fair Labor Standards Act in North Carolina.

“Mills and logging camps are getting ready to do a man-sized job before rough winter weather set in,” says Crane. “Every lumberman—whether large or small—should begin by remembering that the Fair Labor Standards Act means MEN ONLY for this work.”

The Act sets 18 years as the minimum age for occupations which have been declared hazardous by the Secretary of Labor. All jobs in logging and sawmilling, with a few exceptions, are covered by Hazardous Occupations Order No. 4.

“By observing the 18-year age minimum, the lumberman may be saving the life of a local boy,” Crane points out. “Almost every season some youngster somewhere is killed or seriously injured while working in violation of the hazardous occupations order.”

“The easiest way to avoid intentional violation of the order is to require an age or employment certificate for each young fellow hired,” says Crane. “The certificate, showing that he is old enough for his job, serves as proof of age under the law. These certificates can be obtained from the local County Superintendent of Public Welfare.”

Reminiscent Of A Bygone Era

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)—Willie Jackson, 51, suffered minor back and shoulder injuries in a mishap reminiscent of another era. Police reported a team of horses, pulling a wagon in which Jackson was riding, galloped out of control after being frightened by an automobile. Jackson was thrown from the wagon.

Greenback Candidate Is Quietly Hunting Votes

By JAMES HUTCHESON

EDMONDS, Wash. (AP)—While President Eisenhower drew the fanfare in these parts today, one of his rivals for the presidency kept right on talking from behind a grocery counter about money—lots of it.

Frederick C. Proehl is behind the rural crossroads counter, about 20 miles north of President Eisenhower's hotel suite in Seattle, because it's where he makes his living. He gets out from behind it often enough to make a few speeches for the Greenback party, because “that's been my hobby for 30 years, but I'm really not doing much campaigning outside the neighborhood.”

Like Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson, the 76-year-old country merchant is making his second race for the presidency. Unlike them, he doesn't know how many votes he got last time. He won't predict how many he might get in November. “I'm doing it for the principle.”

Any votes for him will have to be written in. The Greenback party is not on the ballot. Proehl (pronounced Prayle) was nominated by referendum last Decem-

Young Boaters Add 'Twist' To Chicken Game

VALLEY CITY, N.D. (AP)—The reckless game of “chicken” has a new twist.

Members of the newly organized

Sheyenne Boat Club here were informed that youngsters in outboard motorboats are “playing chicken” on the river.

The water version apparently is patterned after the jalopy game of “chicken.”

Diets of boats approach each other at high speeds and the one who gives way is “chicken.”

An added kick is given in some instances, boat club members were informed, by adoption of a form of tilting. A boat passenger stands in the bow pointing an oar at a rival in the other craft and the kids gamble with death at close quarters.

Boat club members passed a resolution condemning such practices, urged all motorboat operators to observe water safety rules at all times and asked law enforcement agencies to crack down on violators.

DATE-CONSCIOUS

WEST POINT, Miss. (AP)—Kate, a 3-year-old hound, astonished owner J. A. Phelps by producing a litter of 17 pups last Nov. 17. She astonished him again with a litter of 13 Oct. 13. Normal litters average 7 or 8. “Thank goodness it wasn't the 30th of the month,” she said.

Camera News

PROBLEM CHILDREN—photographically, that is. These are some of the 20 babies gathered in one studio for one group photo about baby's diet. With 20 mothers to handle the tots and several assistants to direct the mothers, this was a hectic assignment for Arthur Rothstein. It appears in his new book, "Photojournalism."

forceful sometimes by distortion or an accentuation of perspective by using lenses of various focal lengths. One should seek other angles besides the normal or obvious camera view.

Picture variety can be gained by a photographer's control of action. It can be frozen by high shutter speeds or electronic flash to reveal sights not normally seen by the human eye. It can also suggest motion by the skillful use of slow shutter speeds. Multiple exposures on the same negative can create the illusion of movement. Panning the camera with a moving subject also gives the impression of movement because the background is blurred while the subject is sharp.

Selective focusing can be used to add emphasis to important parts of a photo. By shooting with the lens wide open, one spot is sharp and other areas of the picture are hazy and do not compete for attention.

With the use of special films like infra-red, dramatic skies and special photographic effects can be achieved.

With knowledge, experience and a skillful use of all the tools and techniques at his command, a photographer would be more likely to justify the words of President Eisenhower which preface the book.

"The camera reporter makes a major contribution toward greater understanding among the people of all nations."

Students Going To Raleigh Event

More than 100 students from East Carolina will be among the approximately 1,200 students from colleges and universities over the state expected to gather at Tabernacle Baptist Church in Raleigh November 2-4 for the annual convention sponsored by the Student Department of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina. Registration will begin at 3:30 p.m. November 2.

The sessions will end with the Sunday morning service at Meredith College. "Christ the Lord—My Lord" is the theme for the meeting. The main points of the theme will be developed by Dr. J. B. Weather- spoon, professor of preaching, Southern Seminary, Louisville, Ky., and Dr. Olin T. Brinkley, professor of Christian sociology and ethics, Southeastern Seminary, Wake Forest.

Other speakers are Dr. Luther Copeland, professor of missions, Southern Seminary; Dr. William Strickland, professor of New Testament, Southeastern Seminary; Miss Estelle Slater, associate, Southside Student Department, Nashville, Tenn.; the Rev. James Potter, pastor of Tabernacle Church, Raleigh; and Dr. Albert Mieburs, dean, Wingate Junior College, Wingate.

Special features of the program will be a new plan of group Bible study; an original drama entitled "Voices of Tears" presented by the University of North Carolina student group; and the 65 voice State BSU Choir under the direction of Miss Barbara Shaver, Western Carolina College.

Ronnie Crow of North Carolina State College is president of the group and Dr. Bruce E. Whitaker is state secretary.

Deadline for turning in the registration fee at the Baptist Student Center in Greenville is October 20.

A chartered bus and twelve cars are scheduled to leave Greenville to transport the troupe to Raleigh.

By IRVING DESFOR AP Newsfeatures

With a penetrating spotlight on the hectic world of newspaper and magazine photographers, Arthur Rothstein, Technical Director of Photography for Look magazine, makes an important contribution with his new book, "Photojournalism" (published by Ampho- N.Y.)

This is an intelligent survey by an able craftsman in a field he knows well. While it is of particular value to photostudents, it should interest all photographers, amateur and professional. It should appeal, also, to a large segment of the general reading public which has a healthy curiosity about the story behind the pictures they see published.

To start with, what is a photojournalist?

"He is an observer of people and events who reports what is happening in photographs; an interpreter of facts and occurrences who writes with a camera; a skilled communicator whose images are transmitted visually via the printed page," says Rothstein.

The mechanical ability to operate a camera is necessary but can be learned quickly by the average person. Beyond that are the mental and emotional factors, based on education and experience, which determine whether there are greater goals for a photographer than mere snapshots.

Here are the requirements for a photojournalist, according to Rothstein:

A broad education; a social conscience; a sense of adventure and enthusiasm; a constant interest in reading; an understanding of basic photography; an individual style; the skill to report with words as well as pictures; a knowledge of art; the ability to feel emotion yet remain objective; good health, an alert mind and body that react quickly to the unexpected.

The author delves into the history of pictorial reporting and the evolution of today's news photographer. He reports on the preparations which precede assignments, the equipment needed to carry them out and the techniques used to present them in finished form.

The photographer is but one man on a team so the functions of the picture editor, the art director or and the darkroom staff are examined. There are also booby traps to steer clear of, so Rothstein takes up the matter of releases, copyrights and other legal restrictions.

More than 200 news and feature photographs illustrate the book. Among them are Pulitzer prize winners and some of the memorable pictures of dramatic or historic events: the shooting of Mayor Gaynor in 1910, photographed by William Warneke; the sinking of the Vestris in 1928, taken by a crew member, Fred Hanse; the Hindenburg explosion in 1937, by Murray Becker and the Iwo Jima flag raising by Joe Rosenthal.

The last two events are illustrated not only the outstanding photo for which they are noted, but each has two other photos which round out the story and which are rarely seen.

All photographers can gain extra aid by digesting the helpful chapter on the feature photograph and now to make it a creative image. Though it lacks the drama, excitement and pressure of spot news, a photographer has the advantage of exercising control through imaginative use of lighting, composition and equipment.

It requires a thorough study of the subject to select the significant aspect and to decide on the proper technique of photography that will result in a successful feature picture.

Subjects can be made to look dramatic, sunny, somber, or weird through imaginative use of lighting. Sometimes the mood need be just plain realism and is achieved by using fast films and lenses with available light. Often natural effects are created by bouncing the light from a ceiling or wall.

GREENVILLE BACKS—Coach Guy Lewis' Green Phantom backfield will get plenty of workout against the heavy New Bern Bear line this weekend but will have depth enough to keep a fresh four in action. Left to right, these are the backs that have sparked practice in early drills: Woody Smith, Charles Roberts, Robin Willong, Robert Howell, Billy Sermon, Bobby Carol, Mack Roebuck, Charles Ross and Dean Roach. Not pictured is Jimmy Kelly.

Phantoms Rated Underdogs Next

Already rated heavy underdogs to New Bern this weekend, Greenville high school's gridders will embark upon their trip to the Northeastern Conference tilt without a single day of field drill.

Due to the rainy weather and soggy conditions of the Brookgreen practice field, the Phantoms have been unable to drill adequately in contact work.

Coach Guy Lewis, however, has counseled his team throughout the week on defensive and offensive maneuvers during blackboard sessions and in light equipment.

Both Greenville and New Bern will be expected to resort to a double attack in the Northeastern conference tilt, Friday night at New Bern. The Phantoms have displayed a good aerial attack during the past several games, behind the leadership of triple-threat quarterback Mack Roebuck. New Bern's air game will be led by junior quarterback John Hogan.

The Bears, averaging 210 pounds per man in the line, will be expected to depend mostly on brute force running, although they have shown passing ability. Led by gigantic Kenneth Morris at center, the New Bern line has been strong all year in defense and is expected to hamper Greenville's running.

For the Phantoms, Billy Sermons will be called upon to do the heavy work. He has been the phantom work-horse in every one of the locals' contests thus far and has been quite effective in long, break-away runs. Going into last week's contest with Selma, Sermons was averaging 9.1 yards per try.

With him Robert Howell and Jimmy Kelly will probably get their share of running assignments. Howell is the regular right halfback, while Kelly has been working at fullback.

Junior quarterback Mack Roebuck, who kicks, runs and throws for Coach Lewis, will probably keep to the air during the greater part of Friday's battle, due to the heavy Bear line. The New Bern outfit held Washington's ground attack to a standstill in the first game of the season and has been strong against almost every running team it has faced.

Greenville Ends
Greenville's ends Edwin Wilkerson Robert Conway and Billy Cox, will be called upon frequently in the proposed air attack. Wilkerson is a veteran, has been the top receiver throughout the season and will again be slated to do most of the catching.

In the line, Lewis is expected to use plenty of linemen in an attempt to keep a fresh front wall in the game. Barney Barrett, a 170 pound tackle who has been working as a reserve most of the year, is one of the fellows who is in line for plenty of action. Sam Nixon, a 190 pound tackle, is another.

Wade Jordan will start at center; Roy Martin and Angus Duff will begin at tackle; Kelly Barnhill and Billy Brown will command guard posts.

Today Is "Nashua Day" In Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Today officially was Nashua Day in Lexington as this horse capital prepared to honor racing's top money winner in his farewell public appearance.

The handsome 4-year-old bay's racing career ended last Saturday at Belmont Park when he established an American record for two miles in the Jockey Club Gold Cup. The victory pushed his winnings to $1,288,565.

Now the strong son of Nasrullah, Segula is headed for the stud at Spendthrift Farm, owned by Leslie Combs II. Combs heads the syndicate which bought Nashua for $125,200 nearly a year ago after the death of his owner, William Woodward Jr.

Combs already has plans for breeding him to his mares of the famed Myrtlewood family. "That's what I had in mind when I bought him," said Combs.

Combs, jockey Eddie Arcaro, 82-year-old trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons and others connected with Nashua's racing career were to share his final few minutes before the public.

The schedule called for Nashua to enter the walking ring at Keeneland with some 12,000 fans expected to be on hand. The final walk postward, with Arcaro up, will come next. In the gallop around the mile and a sixteenth oval Arcaro planned a call for speed at the quarter pole, sending Nashua past the finish line blazing.

Presentation of special awards to Nashua and all those connected with his racing career was the final phase of the program.

Robersonville, flying on the coattails of tailback Elton Roberson, will probably be in top physical shape when Nashville invades the Bear territory. With Roberson the big gun in Coach Bob Lee's single wing attack, it seems that the team usually performs as does the 160 pound tailback.

Also strong for the Rams is halfback Cliff Leggett and line-men Everette James and Dalton Lane.

Coastal League Games Set For Ayden, Devils

Ayden, Farmville and Robersonville will each be playing on their own home fields Friday night, and two of the three teams will be playing Coastal Conference engagements.

Ayden, resting atop the loop with a 4-0 league mark, will play host to Contentnea. Coach Stuart Tripp's Tornados have as yet been unbeaten, untied and unscored upon in Coastal action.

Farmville will tackle another circle foe, Vanceboro, on the Red Devils' home grounds. Coach Elbert Moyer's team has a 2-1 record thus far in Coastal play, having won over Robersonville and Contentnea and having dropped one to Ayden.

Coach Bob Lee's Robersonville Rams will play host to Nashville this weekend in a non-conference battle.

For Ayden, the odds will be in their favor to rack up their fifth straight conference victory. A big factor in the way the ratings have it, is the fine Tornado backfield. With quarterback Lindy Dunn calling signals and passing and the running of Tommy Edwards, R. L. Collins and Hal Worthington, the Ayden backfield poses a double problem to opposing defenses.

Also, the big forward wall that has kept four Conference teams scoreless, has played a big part in Ayden's successful year. Stalwarts in the Tornado line have been Horton, Jolly, Lester Stocks, Billy Vandiford, Burt Tripp, Ike Baldree and Melvin Byrd.

Elbert Moyer will be depending heavily upon his backfield again this week, when the Devils tangle with Vanceboro. Last week, Farmville crowned Contentnea, 18-7.

Against Contentnea, quarterback Sonny Mall directed a passing and running attack that rendered the visiting Wildcats almost defenseless. Using Billy Eason and Autry Vandiford's good running advantage, Mall kept shutting off offensive actions in a diversified attack that Coach Moyer has been working on throughout the season. It will probably be used again this week against Vanceboro.

Robersonville, flying on the coattails of tailback Elton Roberson, will probably be in top physical shape when Nashville invades the Bear territory. With Roberson the big gun in Coach Bob Lee's single wing attack, it seems that the team usually performs as does the 160 pound tailback.

Opponents Looking For Notre Dame To Erupt

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Rival football coaches are viewing Notre Dame as they would a volcano which at any moment will erupt.

That's how unused they are to seeing the Irish lose.

Duffy Daugherty, whose unbeaten Michigan State Spartans invade Notre Dame Saturday, sums it up this way:

"Some time before this season is out, Notre Dame is going to become a great team. I just hope it doesn't happen Saturday."

Against MSU, ranked No. 2 nationally and pressing Oklahoma for top recognition, Irish Coach Terry Brennan will field one of the greenest teams in the school's history.

For the first time since the Southern California game of 1952, Notre Dame will appear at a kickoff as an underdog. The Spartans are listed 14 or 15-point favorites.

There is great incentive for an upset in the regionally-televised engagement, for the Irish have bowed to MSU in 4 of their last 5 games.

In Brennan's head coaching debut last year, the Spartans won 21-7. The Irish's only other loss in 10 starts in 1956 was 42-20 to Southern California in the season finale.

The Irish this fall have a 1-2 record, dropping decisions of 19-13 to Southern Methodist and 28-14 to Purdue, and defeating Indiana 20-6. MSU buried Indiana 53-6 last week, to go with victories of 21-7 over Stanford and 9-0 over Michigan.

Not since 1950 has Notre Dame lost as many as four games in one season and the most it has ever dropped since pioneering collegiate football in 1887 was five in 1933.

Unless that "explosion" occurs, this team's record may be as dismal.

After Michigan State comes Oklahoma in a nationally-televised piece of resistance at South Bend. Then follow Navy, Pittsburgh, North Carolina, Iowa and Southern California — all, as is usual, with spirits aroused to knock off the Irish. More teams are "up" when they meet Notre Dame than against any other foe on their schedule.

"We've got the toughest schedule in Notre Dame history, and we're trying to play it with sophomores," says Brennan.

Brennan lost all the regulars from the right side of his line by graduation and opponents have proven they know it by banging 775 yards through the Irish in three games.

Among these, the outstanding conflict appears to be the Duke-Pitt game in Norfolk's Oyster Bowl. This year, as last, the game looms as Pitt's most important engagement. A Pitt victory last year over undefeated Duke proved a turning point of the season.

Depending on his progress the remainder of the week, Sonny Jurgensen, recuperating from a leg injury, may see action in the game. It was Jurgensen who last week sparked the Blue Devils to victory over SMU.

Sophomore Bob Brodhead probably will get the starting quarterback assignment, Coach Bill Murray said yesterday.

The Duke squad held a lengthy defensive scrimmage in cold, driving rain yesterday.

The Maryland Terps went through a two-hour drill without any new hurts or ills reported.

Coach Tommy Mont worked on dummy drills against North Carolina. He kept shutting off offensive actions in a diversified attack that Coach Moyer has been working on throughout the season. It will probably be used again this week against Vanceboro.

Senators Ready To Talk Possible Franchise Shift

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The board of directors of the Washington Senators huddle tomorrow to consider moving their franchise to Los Angeles or San Francisco or Louisville — or possibly not to move it at all.

Those three cities have made offers for the American League franchise, with most of the talk built around the West Coast, particularly Los Angeles.

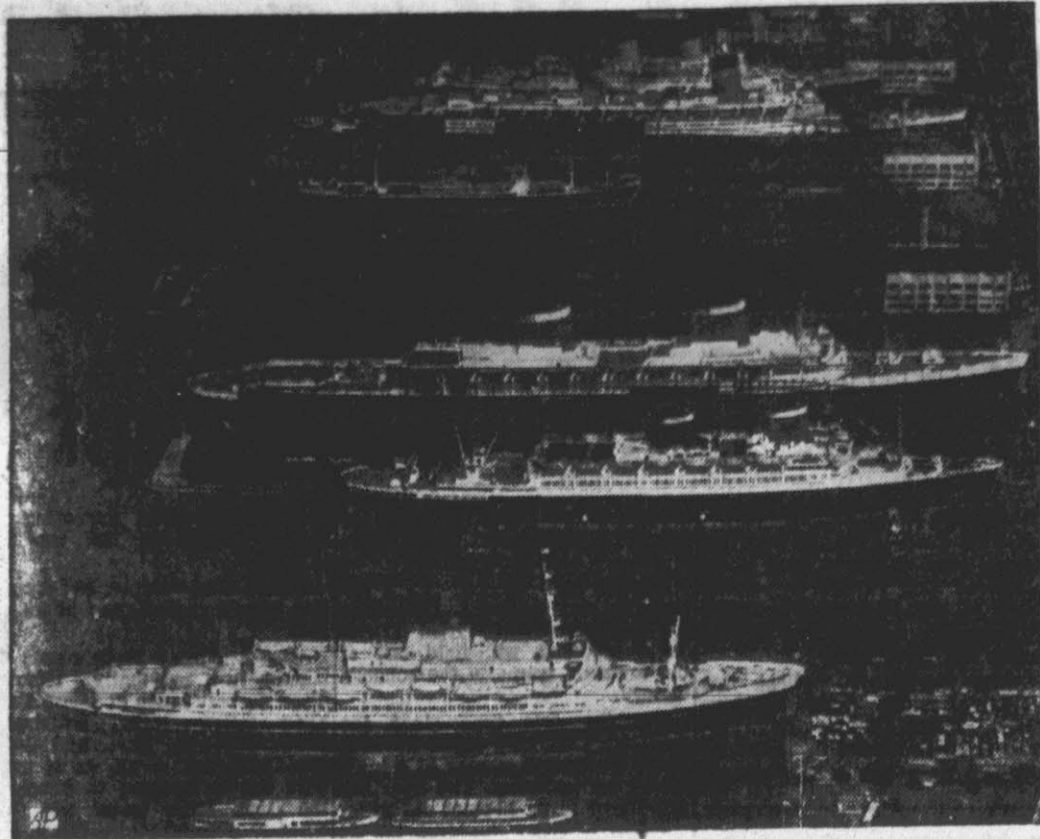

Other American League club officials, however, aren't commenting on how they would vote on a Washington request to move. Cost seems to be the most important consideration.

Senator President Calvin Griffith, apparently seriously considering a shift to Los Angeles, said that city has offered to build a ball park and to provide the money to buy the Pacific Coast League franchise there.

American League President Will Harridge said as far as he's concerned it's still in a "talking stage."

By EDMOND LE BRETON
PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—Vice President Nixon bucked stormy weather today to campaign across southern New England against what he called "Trumanism with a Stevenson label."

Nixon again set a frankly partisan course after a nationally televised appearance last night at Cornell University. This was a decidedly not part of his campaign, but nevertheless he stirred up controversy.

Nixon said they were some of "the very principles President Eisenhower stands for today."

Christmas Tree Sale For Band Benefit Discussed

The Greenville High School Band Boosters Club met Tuesday night to discuss progress of the Christmas tree sale for support of the band.

The sale was actually initiated about two weeks ago when the sale of tickets commenced. Each ticket entitles the holder to $1.50 credit toward the purchase of a tree.

This year's sale consists of five sizes of Canadian Fir trees. Trees 2 to 4 feet in height will sell for $1.50. Trees 4 to 5 feet high, $2; 5 to 7 feet, $2.50; 7 to 8 feet, $3.50; 8 to 10 feet, $4.50.

Wendell W. Smiley, president of the Boosters Club, in a letter to the citizens of Greenville, said: "Bands are expensive to operate and since the school budget does not include funds for band operation other than the piece to meet and the director's salary, a sizeable amount of money must be realized from other sources."

The Club was organized two years ago to help the band in any way possible. In addition to tree sales, bake sales and other activities have been carried out to raise money. Said Smiley: "We feel that citizens of the community are interested in the band and we are asking you to show that interest by joining the Boosters Club."

Ignition Keys Were Identical

"It was a case of mistaken identity," said the police. Early last night a 1950 model car belonging to East Carolina student Perry Pearson was taken from the campus. Shortly thereafter Pearson went to where he parked his car. He reported to the Greenville police that the vehicle was stolen.

Around 10 o'clock last night the car was spotted just off 5th Street by one of the police patrol cars, whose occupants were patrolmen R. E. Joyner and C. H. Stubbs. "This car has been reported stolen," said Stubbs, "you'd better come down to the station with us."

One of the policemen matched the car's ignition keys. They were exactly the same. And indeed he did, but the wrong car. He got into another 1950 car of the same make. "The key fitted the ignition and it even drove like my friend's car," said the student.

Pearson was summoned to the station and in a short while everything was straightened out. The charge was dropped and the bewildered driver wasn't arrested.

Exchange Students On AAUW Program

Raquel Cordeiro from Argentina and Monique Farge from Tunisia, exchange students who are studying at East Carolina College and assisting in the foreign language department, were featured in a question-and-answer program at the meeting of the American Association of University Women Monday night.

The visiting students were introduced by Mrs. George Perry, of the foreign language faculty. Of especial interest to the group were the discussions of the interest of students in Argentina in political matters and the relations between Arab and French students in Tunisia.

In answer to the question whether segregation of races exists in Tunisia, Miss Farge said that there is a general division of French and Arab students into separate schools now, since the setting up of an independent Tunisia. Before that, she explained, such separation in the schools was not in evidence. In all the schools, she said, French is used as the main language, but Arabic is taught as a foreign language.

Accompanying the student guests was Mrs. James Fleming Jr., chairman of the organization's committee on hospitality to foreign students.

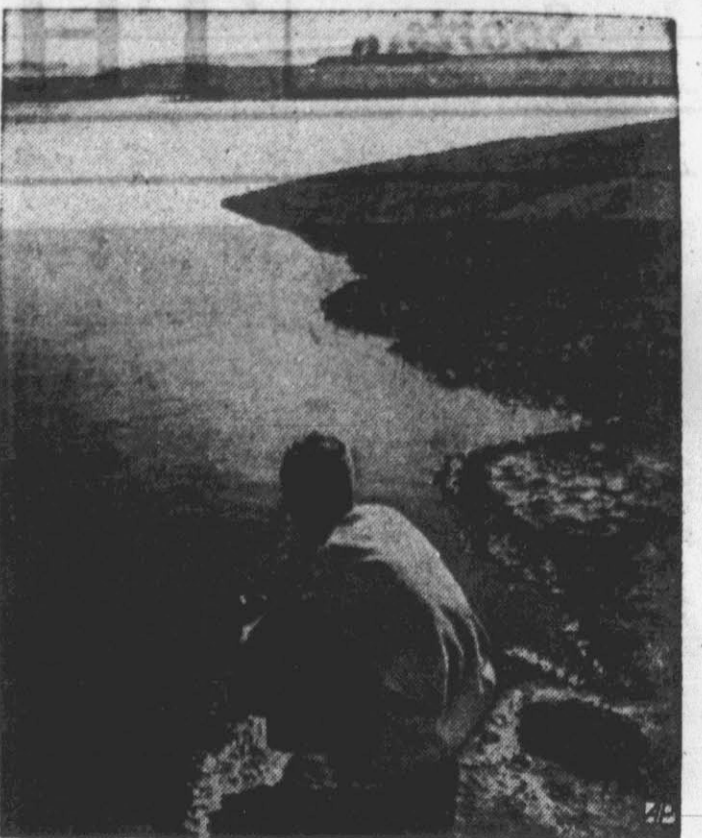

New members and guests welcomed by the president, Mrs. Hugh Patterson, who presided at the business hour following the program, were Mrs. Oulia C. DeBter, Mrs. S. A. Sewall, and Mrs. Judson White.

Miss Lela Brown Stancill was chairman of the hostess group, which included Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, Mrs. Chester Walsh, Mrs. Margaret Gresham, and Mrs. J. F. Steelman.

The November meeting date for the AAUW has been moved forward so that the meeting will fall on November 5, the first Monday of the month instead of the regular date.

Realtors Hear Report On Meet Of N.C. Boards

At a supper meeting of the Pitt County Board of Realtors Tuesday night President Jack Wallace made a report of the recent convention of the North Carolina Association of Real Estate Boards in Asheville.

The board went on record to continue the requirement of a written examination on real estate and real estate practices as one of the prerequisites for membership. The board is planning an advertising campaign to acquaint the public with the professional services available through local realtor boards and the use of the term "realtor," which is a trademark.

L. M. Buchanan led a discussion on ethics. Members of the board are Jack Wallace, Les Turnage, J. B. Smith, Sam Nelson, J. W. Joyner, J. F.

Brown, L. M. Buchanan, Frank Dail, Elbert Bennett, John Grier and James W. Brewer.

'Iron Jaw'

George Aaron Case, a 42-year-old Negro of Greenville, Route 2, put in a claim today for having the "World's Toughest Jaw."

Case filed the claim on the strength of an incident yesterday afternoon. His "iron" jaw stopped a mighty lethal punch in the rain on Dickinson Avenue. The punch came in the form of an automobile which, incidentally, got the worst end of the encounter.

Police officer C. H. Stubbs, who investigated the accident with patrolman R. E. Joyner, tells this story: "Case did not see the oncoming car and ran into the side of it. His chin hit the window on the driver's side."

After the collision it was found that the window was shattered and bent—$40 worth. Case's jaw was only slightly bruised — no charge.

Business Poor, Found Out Why

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Business was poor for Lincoln police attempting to nab speeders on Vine St. Investigation disclosed why.

The police radar device was located at 40th and Vine.

At 42nd and Vine, someone had posted a sign, "Radar Ahead."

Visiting Badger Was No Kitten

PAYETTE, Idaho (AP)—Mrs. George Whorton of Payette found what she thought was a kitten in her downstairs bedroom. She called for her husband.

The animal intruder turned out to be a badger. Whorton spent a half hour chasing it with a broom, finally sent it scampering up the alley. The Whortons still don't know how it got into the house.

New Light On Nervous System By Microscope

ST. LOUIS, (AP)—The powerful electron microscope has thrown new light on construction of the nervous system — knowledge that could eventually help solve the mystery of multiple sclerosis and similar diseases.

The discovery concerns a substance known as myelin, found in the protective coating around nerves in the brain and spinal cord. Myelin is attacked and destroyed by degenerative diseases of the nervous system.

Dr. Sarah A. Luse, assistant professor of pathology at the Washington University Medical School, reporting on a two-year study, said it revealed myelin in the central nervous system actually is formed by and is a part of the nerve-protecting cells.

Until recent years myelin was regarded as inert matter of unknown origin deposited around the nerves.

Dr. Edward W. Dempsey, head of the anatomy department at the school and a member of the research review panel of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, explained the significance of Dr. Luse's findings.

"The information on the origin and nature of myelin is a first-rate scientific discovery, not necessarily because of its relation to any disease, but because of the light it throws on the way the nervous system is constructed," Dr. Dempsey said.

"Every piece of information adds one more clue which finally could be used in unraveling the entire progress of multiple sclerosis and similar diseases of the central nervous system."

Some 60 scientists attended a conference here, sponsored by the multiple sclerosis society, at which Dr. Luse presented electron microscope pictures. Magnified up to 100,000 times, they showed how myelin is formed. Her studies were on animal tissue.

The Multiple Sclerosis Society called her discovery the most important advance in the fight against the disease in 125 years.

Digs A Reckless Driving Charge

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Police booked Billard Edward Tubbs, 25, for reckless driving-by digging.

Officers R. T. Standridge said the unusual citation came after he cited Mrs. Tubbs for speeding.

The officer said that 10 minutes later Tubbs came by and spun his wheels so that gravel flew over a 20 to 25 foot area pelting Standridge.

Most Famous Mexican Symbol

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico's most famous symbol is probably the Aztec calendar, seen on every peso bill, most pottery and billboards, scarves, as a trademark for many firms and as a backdrop to most Mexican events.

The centuries-old calendar weighs 25 tons, is on display at the National Museum.

FAST TRAIN

SHAW, England (AP)—Police had to drive the conductor of a holiday-special train to the next station so he could take over his duties again. It left him behind when it pulled out too quickly.

Lengthy Docket Heard In County Recorders Court

James T. Baker of Route 1, Grimesland, appeared before Judge Dink James in Tuesday's session of Pitt County Recorder's Court charged with five different counts of selling and distributing motor vehicles without a license.

He was convicted on all the charges and given 30 day suspended sentences to run concurrently and fined $100. Baker gave notice of appeal to Superior Court. Judge James placed him under $300 bond.

Arthur Lee Mills, Negro, 26, Grifton, convicted of possession of non-tax-paid whiskey, received a 6-month suspended sentence upon payment of $200, costs deducted.

He was also instructed by Judge James not to violate any liquor laws for 2 years. Mills appealed to Superior Court and was placed under a $500 bond.

Jack D. Harris, 24, Greenville, Route 5, drunk driving, driving after license had been suspended and resisting arrest, 6 months suspended upon payment of $200 and costs and instructed not to operate a vehicle on the highways for 3 years or thereafter until obtaining proper driver's license.

George Allen Rowe, 17, Blounts Creek, speeding, $25 and costs and surrender license for 6 months.

Heber Clevon Sutton, 25, Portsmouth, Virginia, public drunkenness, $10 and costs.

Redmond Clark, Negro, breaking and entering and assault on female, prayer for judgment continued upon payment of costs.

The following were paid $25 and costs: Van Clemons Battle, Negro, 23, Aurora no chauffeur's license; Jimmie Roger Smith, Negro, 17, Greenville, Route 5, no operator's license; Johnnie Speller, Negro, 44, Grimesland, Route 1, no operator's license.

The following cases were continued: Neal F. Raydell, 19, 920 Evans Street, no operator's license and improper registration; James Francis Collins, 22, Marine, Cherry Point, speeding and no operator's license; Lester Johnson, Negro, 31, Greenville, Route 3, no operator's license; Willie Cecil Teel, Negro, 22, Robersonville, Route 2, no operator's license.

Andrew Manning, Negro, 45, Greenville, Route 5, possession of non-tax-paid whiskey and Earl Smith, Negro, 30, Bethel Road, assault, not guilty.

Three new electric power plants on the Ohio River burn annually about 4 million tons of coal delivered by barge.

Accidents Cause 1,439 Deaths

RALEIGH — One out of every 13 deaths in North Carolina thus far in 1956 has been due to an accident, it was revealed today in figures released by the Accident Prevention Section of the North Carolina State Board of Health.

Covering the first seven months of the year, official figures from the State Health Department showed that all types of accidents caused 1,439 deaths as compared with 1,394 deaths during the corresponding period of 1955.

Dr. Charles Cameron, Jr., accident epidemiologist of the Board of Health indicated that between January and August, 1956, motor vehicle accidents claimed 674 lives in the Tarheel state while 765 persons lost their lives in accidents in the home, on the farm, or in recreational or occupational activities.

"While there has been an increase of some 45 accidental deaths in 1956 over the previous year," Dr. Cameron said, "when compared with the population growth in North Carolina, the accident experience of the population has not increased."

The health physician was quick to point out, however, that while the situation is not worse in 1956 neither has there been any great improvement in the control of accidents which rank as the third major cause of death in the Tarheel state.

Greece has a population of about 8 million people.

NOTICE OF A SPECIAL TERM OF CRIMINAL COURT

Pursuant to an order from the Chief Justice of Supreme Court of North Carolina and in accordance with Chapter 7, Section 7-80 of the General Statutes of North Carolina, notice is hereby given of a special term of Superior Court in Pitt County for trial of criminal cases. The said term will begin Monday, the 5th day of November, 1956, and continue one week or until the business is disposed of. Mrs. Blair C. White Chevrolet Co. To Formally Open New Home

White Chevrolet Company, a part of the business life of Greenville since March 1932, will formally open its new home on the Ayden highway tomorrow.

The firm will open its spacious new quarters to the public from 7:30 a.m. until 8 p.m. and will present favors and refreshments to visitors throughout the day. The celebration will coincide with first local showing of 1957 model Chevrolets.

A prize list including household appliances and other awards will also be presented to visitors who register during the day. Prizes include a Kiddie Corvette, a portable television set, a deep fat fryer, an electric toaster, a steam iron, a radio and other awards. Drawings will be held tomorrow evening and winners are not required to be present at the drawing to claim their prizes.

The new building is only the second one to be occupied by White Chevrolet Company in its nearly 25 years of operation. Old quarters of the firm were in the 200 block of East Fifth Street.

In issuing the invitation to the open house, Manager Walter Harrington said, "We regard our new quarters as being a part of our continuing program to give more and better service to the people of Greenville and Pitt County. We are proud of the building because White Chevrolet Company and its employees feel that it will enable us to expand the facilities which were cramped or curtailed in our old quarters."

The new building is of modern design throughout and contains the most up-to-date features in sales and service departments.

The firm employs 29 persons, including Manager Harrington and Sales Manager Julian J. White, Jr., son of the firm's founder.

Voices Concern On Difficulties

GREENSBORO (AP)—Gov. Luther Hodges voiced concern here last night over increasing difficulties of tobacco farmers in a speech at the dedication of the state's newest industrial plant, P. Lorillard & Co.

His address climaxed "P. Lorillard Day," here, set aside for the celebration of the dedication of the 13-million dollar cigarette plant, described as the world's most modern.

Hodges said he frowns on "give-away programs" to attract new industry, but he assured the visiting officials that the state is taking "a sensible approach" toward revamping its tax structure for the benefit of new industry.

With the completion of the mammoth plant, Lorillard joined many other outstanding tobacco companies in strengthening North Carolina's hold on the position of "tobacco center of the world," the governor said.

Other speakers at the dinner included Sen. W. Kerr Scott, Rep. Carl Durham, Mayor J. Archie Cannon Jr., Orton A. Boren, president of the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce and Joseph Koidny of New York, director of the National Assn. of Tobacco Distributors.

Made Good On Hospital Entry

ST. LOUIS, (AP)—George White wasn't feeling well. So the 53-year-old man had himself admitted to a hospital for a checkup. Doctors made tests and the next day released him.

A few minutes after his release they were examining White all over again. For, after leaving the hospital, he walked across the street and was struck by a car.

Friend Of Man Finds A Friend

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP)—A little dog came to a point beside the wheel of an automobile at a drive-in restaurant here. The man in the car got out and found that dog was eating a dollar bill.

Finders keepers, the man decided. He ordered a dollar's worth of hamburgers, left them for the dog, and drove away to the furious wail of a tail.

SPEEDY PAYS
NOGALLES, ARIZ. (AP)—"What's your name?" asked Officer Louis Rosas of a speeding motorist. "Speedy," replied the driver. Ysoreo Speedy of Tucson, paid a $25 fine in police court — for speeding.

Eisenhower Pledges Work For School Building Goal

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—President Eisenhower pledged today to work for a school building program geared to "this atomic age." He did so after accusing Adlai Stevenson of telling the American people "political fables" in the campaign.

In a speech prepared for delivery at a Citizens for Eisenhower rally at the College of Puget Sound, the President said he would not go into reasons why there was no action on his five-year school program at the last session of the Democratic-controlled 84th Congress. But he promised:

"I shall again call upon the Congress to act at the beginning of the next session. I shall support this request with all the force at my command."

The House last July 5 killed a bill that would have authorized $1,600,000,000 in federal aid to the states for school construction. It did so after adopting an amendment that would have denied money to areas which did not comply with the Supreme Court's decision outlawing segregation of Negro and white pupils.

Eisenhower called it essential that America's youth be prepared "to be skilled and accomplished citizens—able to grasp the great levers, turn the giant wheels, of this new atomic age as nature finally surrenders to men so many of its colossal secrets."

The President, in the third day of a West Coast vote-seeking tour, spoke here after spending the night in suburban Tacoma.

It was in an address last night in nearby Seattle that he charged that Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, has been telling the voters "political fables" instead of dealing with "the world of reality."

Wildly cheered by his audience there, Eisenhower blasted harder than ever at his opponent. He stood by his policy of avoiding mention of Stevenson by name, but there was no doubt about the target.

The President referred to his rival at one point as "the opposition candidate," one of his most direct allusions since the start of the campaign.

Defending the record of his own administration on many fronts after saying American workers are "more prosperous and secure than ever in history," he accused the Democrats of resorting to what he termed devices of "the half truth... the hit and run statement... the big straddle... the rubber yardstick."

After the Seattle speech to an overflow audience in the 6,500-seat Civic Auditorium there, the President and Mrs. Eisenhower motored to nearby Tacoma and spent the night at the home of his brother Edgar. Outside the Seattle hall an additional crowd of about 3,500 in adjacent Memorial Stadium heard Eisenhower over a public address system.

Eisenhower was introduced by Republican Gov. Arthur B. Langlie, who has a hard fight on his hands in running for the U. S. Senate against Democratic Sen. Warren Magnuson. The President put in a strong plug for Langlie, terming him "my good friend... of great personal integrity."

The beaming President, speaking over a statewide television and radio network, had difficulty quieting his Seattle audience so he could start his speech. He received a tremendous ovation and smiled broadly as the crowd chanted "We want Ike."

"I want you too," he said. "Your welcome reminds me how well I've been feeling for quite some time now."

The chief executive arranged to speak at a Citizens for Eisenhower rally here in Tacoma at midday at the College of Puget Sound. Then he was scheduled to fly on to Oregon for a major nationwide address tonight from Portland's Civic Auditorium.

Time 10:30 p.m. EST.

A major Eisenhower objective in campaigning in Oregon is to lend a hand to his former secretary of the interior Douglas McKay in his tough battle for a Senate seat against the Democratic incumbent Wayne Morse.

In his Seattle speech, Eisenhower made no mention of Stevenson's proposal that an effort be made to end H-bomb testing. But at one point the chief executive departed from his test to say his administration is all for using nuclear energy constructively for peaceful purposes. He added in reference to stopping H-bomb tests:

"But we absolutely refuse to do it until others do it with us. We are going to stay strong."

He said "in these days of political frenzy" the Democrats are not telling a story of what he termed a generally prosperous and happy America.

"We hear, instead, the angry hum of a locust swarm of partisan orators," he said. "They are singing a strange and sad song about a feeble and fretful America."

"Only a few weeks ago too they wrote a dark and mournful document—the platform of the opposition. When that document was published, one of our great independent newspapers summed it up concisely: one might have thought its authors inhabited some land just lately swept by famine and pestilence."

"I wonder if the cry of the political opposition is not simply this: things in America are rapidly going from bad — to good."

In swatting at Stevenson and other Democrats, Eisenhower said their campaigning is full of "oddities and curiosities — political fables and tall of a political wonderland."

In accusing the Democrats of using "a rubber yardstick," Eisenhower alluded to former President Truman's contention, during the Democratic National Convention, that Stevenson was a "defeatist" who couldn't win in November without a lot of help.

"When Republican spokesmen candidly differ among themselves — we are told — they prove their party lacks true leadership," the President said.

"When opposition (Democratic) leaders aspiring to the highest office in the land denounce one another as unfit and unqualified for the presidency — it is all good, clean, boyish fun."

In this Pacific Northwest where the Eisenhower power development and other natural resources policies are an important issue in the campaign, Eisenhower replied to Stevenson charges that they are "giveaway" policies — that the administration is handing over resources to private business.

"No," said Eisenhower, "there has been no giveaway. We have not dismantled the great dams of the Northwest. We are building still more dams — for all the people."

As for "hit and run" statements Eisenhower said Stevenson came up with a "stunning example" in charging that the present administration loaned "vast sums of money which were later used to build up the personal fortune of an exiled Latin American dictator."

Stevenson said in a Florida campaign speech last month that such loans benefited Juan Peron, now deposed as Argentine dictator. Referring to the opposition, the President said:

"They made only one mistake: they were peering into the barrel of their own gun when they pulled the trigger. For it was their administration that had made these loans."

"They have fled from the scene on that issue — in headlong silence."

As for "the big straddle," the President had this to say of the Democrats:

"They bravely denounce inflation in the cities—and they go to the countryside with their extravagant promises of loose credit that makes for inflation."

"They promise a stout national defense and a bold role in world affairs—and they urge us to stop planning our military draft."

That was a reference to Stevenson's demand that thought be given to ending the draft "in the foreseeable future."

Hero Of Korean War Is Given Stiff Sentence

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (AP)—A Marine Medal of Honor winner who held blazing hot machine guns to fight off a Red Chinese attack has been convicted by special court-martial here. Sgt. Alvin Lee McLaughlin was sentenced to three months hard labor, reduction to private and a $120 fine.

The unpublicized court-martial was held on this sprawling recruit training center yesterday. McLaughlin pleaded guilty to drunkenness and unauthorized absence and was found guilty of disrespect to a superior officer and to a superior noncommissioned officer.

The 28-year-old native of Leeds, Ala., was court-martialed for an episode last March at Rome, Ga., where he was stationed with a Marine reserve outfit.

Rome police said McLaughlin was arrested after going to the home of his commanding officer, Maj. Henry A. Checklout, and threatening the officer with an automatic shotgun. He was reported to have been drinking whisky at the time.

After the incident, Marine spokesmen said McLaughlin was sent to the Charleston Naval Hospital at Charleston, S. C., for observation.

Details of the court-martial were not released by Marine officials.

The sergeant received the nation's highest award for bravery from President Eisenhower Aug. 17, 1953. He was decorated for his defense of an outpost in Korea on the night of Sept. 4-5, 1952.

The citations said that McLaughlin — then a private first class — killed an estimated 150 Chinese Communists and wounded another 50.

Although wounded, he alternately fired two machine guns—holding one at the hip until the weapon became too hot to handle and then switching to the other.

Decide To Push School Program

DAVIDSON, N. C. (AP)—More than 300 delegates at a District 3 PTA conference here yesterday decided to give more push to a general school improvement program when the General Assembly meets next year.

Mrs. John Crawford of Raleigh, in one of the major talks, said "cut-rate schooling is a bad investment. We know that when children get cut-rate schooling we all are losers — in potential services, in lowered living standards, in increased delinquency and crime, in tax costs of patching social damage that is sure to come when children and their schools are neglected."

Other speakers said the program to be put before committees of the Legislature includes higher teacher salaries, a reduction of teacher load, more and improved buildings, adequate operating funds, promotion of safety education, strengthening family and community life through improved juvenile and family guidance, better mental health and recreation facilities, improving race relations and building better home life.

Kidnaped Baby's Mother Leaves Hospital Today

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP)—The 33-year-old mother of slain infant Cynthia Ruotolo plans to leave the state mental institution today.

Mrs. Eleanor Ruotolo entered the Connecticut State Hospital voluntarily Oct. 4 after asking doctors for help with her "emotional problems."

Her 6-week-old daughter was taken from her carriage left in the foyer of a department store in Hamden Sept. 1. Five days later her body, stuffed in a plastic bag and weighted down with a rock, was found in a lake about a mile from the store.

State's Atty. Abraham S. Allman, heading the investigation into the infant's death, said he was told last night by Mrs. Ruotolo's husband Stephen, 33, that his wife had requested release from the hospital and would go home today.

Ruotolo declined to talk to newsmen.

When his wife entered the hospital, a hospital spokesman said she would be given a series of physical, psychological and psychiatric examinations.

Adlai Urges Ousting 'Single Interest Government'

By JACK BELL.
WITH STEVENSON IN OHIO.
Adlai E. Stevenson attacked the Eisenhower administration today as a "single interest government" he said must be ousted by "election of the Democratic party."

The Democratic presidential nominee thus wrapped up a new attack on President Eisenhower in the same package with his own obvious shift in campaign tactics toward a party—rather than a personal—appeal for votes.

Stevenson said in a speech prepared for a late afternoon rally in Akron, Ohio, Eisenhower has a "Cadillac Cabinet" that "fears nothing as much as change." He added that the people "will carry forward again when the present Cabinet is back in General Motors next January."

"If Mr. Eisenhower didn't want his administration called a big business single interest government, why did he ever join the Republican party?" Stevenson demanded.

This fresh attack on what he called the "creeping complacency" of the Republicans fitted in deeply with Stevenson's new tactics—which developed in a whistle-stop swing through Michigan yesterday—to submerge his own presidential aspirations under a strong appeal for Democratic party votes that might carry him on the coattails of well-liked local candidates to victory in doubtful states.

Significantly, Stevenson told an audience which did not fill a 6,200-seat auditorium in Flint, Mich., last night.

"I submit to you that the times call for the election of the Democratic party."

Earlier he had told a small train-side audience in Saginaw

Mich., that perhaps no president in history had enjoyed the popularity he said Eisenhower had held in four years.

With a trace of exasperation in his voice, he said, "Certainly, no administration in history has enjoyed such immunity from criticism as Eisenhower's."

Then, in the manner of former President Harry S. Truman's now traditional Democratic "give 'em hell" tactics of 1948, Stevenson cut loose in Flint with a slashing attack on Vice President Nixon and former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Dewey drew about 1,500 more persons in the same hall the previous night with an attack on Stevenson's proposal to move toward the ending of hydrogen bomb tests.

Stevenson dismissed Dewey with the observation that "disrespect, epithet and abuse from him are no surprise."

The estimate on the Dewey and Stevenson crowds was made by Paul Rewey, superintendent of the hall.

Stevenson prefaced his onslaught against Nixon with the observation that any president might be "prevented by higher will from serving his full term." Then he said Nixon's political "trademark is slander."

He depicted the vice president as a "man of many masks," asking: "Who can say they have seen his real face?"

He accused Nixon of upsetting American relations with India. He said the vice president had been "rash and inexperienced" in saying two years ago that the United States might have to send troops into Indochina. In that connection, he said:

"We cannot have in high places men who talk out of both sides of their mouth, who talk loosely and irresponsibly in foreign countries, men who talk too much when they would do better to keep their mouths shut and their eyes and ears open."

Stevenson's attack came at the close of what no one in the candidate's entourage would admit was a disappointing day of campaigning through the usually Republican farm areas of Michigan in the quest for the state's 20 electoral votes.

In sunny, warm weather, the railroad station crowds generally were smaller than the Democrats seemed to have expected. Listeners did not seem to be highly responsive.

They tittered rather than guffawed at Stevenson's quips. They listened in outwardly listless silence to his discussion of Republican "hard money" policies.

Everywhere, Stevenson laid great stress on voting the Democratic ticket. He praised Gov. G. Mennen Williams lavishly, Democratic leaders said that unless Williams wins a fifth term by a 150,000-vote margin they fear Stevenson will not make the grade against Eisenhower in Michigan.

Ayden Minister Leaving Church

AYDEN — The Rev. C. M. Fogleman, pastor of the Ayden and Macedonia Methodist Churches, left this week for Wichita, Kansas where he will become pastor of the University Methodist Church.

He will be replaced in Ayden by the Rev. R. H. Eason of Columbia.

Rev. Fogleman has served as pastor of the Ayden and Macedonia Methodist Churches for the past four years. He is a native of Burlington. In accepting the appointment to the Wichita church Rev. Fogleman transferred from the North Carolina Conference to the Kansas Conference.

He attended Kansas Wesleyan College and held student pastorates there before attending Duke Divinity School.

Rev. Eason is minister of the Methodist Church at Columbia. He was recently released from active duty as a chaplain in the U.S. Navy. He was appointed to Ayden by the bishop at a special meeting at the N. C. Methodist Cabinet in Raleigh.

Rev. Eason will be in Ayden Sunday.

'Ace' Of WW II Says He's Dying

PAWTUCKET, R. I. (AP)—John T. Godfrey, 34, credited with shooting down 37 German aircraft during World War II, says he is suffering from an ailment which may kill him in a year or two.

He told the Pawtucket Times by telephone from his home in South Freeport, Maine, that doctors advised him he has amyotrophic lateral sclerosis.

Godfrey also said last night that the ailment is similar to muscular dystrophy, which damages the motor pathways and cells of the central nervous system.

He said a doctor told him he has "one to two years left."

Godfrey is married and is the father of two sons, aged 10 and 8. "I'm not discouraged," he said. "I guess the Lord was pretty kind to give me those extra 14 years to live. When I recall all the close ones (in World War II) I feel pretty grateful and lucky for the extension."

Godfrey received numerous military decorations for his heroism.

THE BLONDE DIED DANCING

by KELLEY ROOS

Mr. Apel was an affable man. He didn't disapprove of my coffee. In fact, he looked mostly at me while he talked to Steve, telling him all he knew about Frank Stubbs.

He didn't know a great deal about him. Stubbs kept coming around for the next two or three weeks after his partner's death. But he certainly hadn't tended much to business. He spent most of his time across the street in that bar there. His partner's death seemed to have upset him badly. Before that he had been a nice enough fellow, not especially friendly, but pleasant. The two men seemed to have had a going concern up there until a few months before the accident. The boys had fallen behind in their rent then. When Mr. Apel came to think of it, the two partners stopped seeming to be happy together. Business must have been really bad at the end there, Mr. Apel decided.

Steve wondered if Mr. Stubbs had left any forwarding address. He hadn't.

We thanked Mr. Apel and wished him luck. Steve suggested that we have a drink or two across the street at the Ferry Bar. The place was heavily masculine, catering apparently to the dockworkers in the neighborhood. There was a free lunch counter, but its doubtful delicacies hadn't been disturbed for quite a while, the crackers not even dusted.

The long bar was gleaming, though, and the three sets of gay, shining beer taps made me wish I liked beer. Steve had a beer and I had burbon and water. There were just a few men at the bar, silent, strong men.

It wasn't until our second drink that Steve got our bartender talking to us about Frank Stubbs. His beginning was a little discouraging, but then he warmed up to the subject at hand. He knew Frank Stubbs . . . Stubby, all right, all right. Stubby owed the bar some money.

"So anything," the bartender said, "I can tell you that'll help you locate that lug, I'll tell you." Steve said, "You didn't like the guy?"

"At first I did. He used to come in here at least once a day. Sometimes with his partner, sometimes not. He never asked for credit then, never got drunk, all in all a good customer."

"That," Steve said, "was when the toy business was good?"

"Well, the partners seemed to be doing good. I don't know about that toy business."

"You mean it was just a front?"

"Well, now, I'm not one to go around pointing my finger at folks. They probably done some legitimate business in the toy and novelty line. But I think, from little things I heard, that they had something else going. Don't ask me what?"

Steve thought about that a moment. He said, "The docks? The pier rackets?"

The bartender didn't deny this. I said, "You mean the union rackets, Steve?"

"I was thinking more along the line of their being fences for some of all that loot stolen off the docks."

The bartender didn't deny that, either. Steve said to him, "I'm right, right?"

"Well, now . . . sometimes in this neighborhood it don't pay to be too right."

"I know what you mean. Was it after his partner's death that Stubbs changed? And you stopped liking him?"

"It happened slow. He spent more and more time here, less and less in his office. He had this lady friend that used to join him along about five, six o'clock. They got to closing up the place together. She'd try to get him to go easy on the stuff, but she usually ended up blind herself."

"What was her name?"

"Harriet was all I knew her by."

"She wasn't his wife?"

"I never got that impression."

"Did they live together?"

"I couldn't say that, either I never did know where either of them lived. But this Harriet was crazy about him. I could see that. She was kind of a sad thing. All the time it was . . . Yes, Stubby, dear . . . yes, dear, yes . . . To her Stubby was the brains of the world, a guy who couldn't go wrong."

"Was he nice to her?"

"Well, I never seen him do her any physical damage."

"When did they stop coming in here?"

"Six, seven weeks ago. It finally got so we had to close the door on them. It wasn't only his drinking. He'd try to borrow money from anybody, everybody, strangers even. Not just drinking money . . . fifty, a hundred, two hundred. People just laughed at him. Our customers don't have that kind of dough. Finally, he got to be such a nuisance we told him to stay away."

Another bartender, tying a clean apron on himself, had come into earshot. He said, "Who you talkin' about, Len?"

"That Stubby guy. Remember him, George?"

"Remember him? Can I forget him? He owes me thirty dollars."

"Len said, 'This fellow is looking for Stubby.'"

"Yes," Steve said. "Do you know where he lives now?"

George shook his head. "And a good thing for him I don't. I been around to see that friend of his, Harriet Kroll, a couple times. But she knows he owes me, so she won't say where he is."

"Where does she live?"

"862 West Twenty-fifth. At least she did three weeks ago. I haven't been around there since. I gave up on the money."

"If I get a line on Stubbs from her, I'll let you know."

"Do that," George said. "And listen, you play it smart. Tell Harriet that you owe Stubby money that you want to pay."

"I'll try that," Steve said. "And thanks to both of you."

862 West Twenty-fifth Street was a rooming house. Its exterior was shabby and beat-up, but there was a hit on somebody's pride about the place. The windows were clean; they had curtains. The tile floor of the vestibule bore signs of scrubbing.

There were no mail boxes or bells in the vestibule. Its inner door was unlocked. The hall beyond was dark and narrow. A feeble lamp on the wall table at the foot of the staircase was the only light.

"Yes?" a voice said.

"Are you the landlady?" Steve asked.

"Yes," she said.

She was a big, strong-looking landlady. There was intelligence hovering behind her flushed face.

I had the feeling that she had called a lot of cops in her day.

Steve said, "Is Miss Kroll in? Miss Harriet Kroll?"

The landlady snorted and said, "No."

"Have you any idea where she is?"

"Where she always is. In some bar someplace, her and that friend of hers, getting drunk."

"That friend of hers," Steve said. "A Mr. Frank Stubbs?"

"A Mrs. Clara Ziegler," the landlady said acidly. "They have a room here."

"When might they be back?"

"When there's nobody left to buy them a drink, no sooner."

"Do you think," Steve asked, "they might be drinking in the neighborhood?"

"If there's anybody in the neighborhood that'll still buy them a drink."

"Well," Steve said, "come. Connie; we'll look around."

"I'm throwing you to the wolves!" Steve tells Connie, in tomorrow's installment of "The Blonde Died Dancing."

THE '57 CARS ARE HERE!

Ready to meet the needs of their more powerful engines is

NEW GOLDEN ESSO EXTRA

In a survey among users of competitive brands who tested this new power fuel in their own high-compression cars... 80% noticed an immediate improvement in performance!

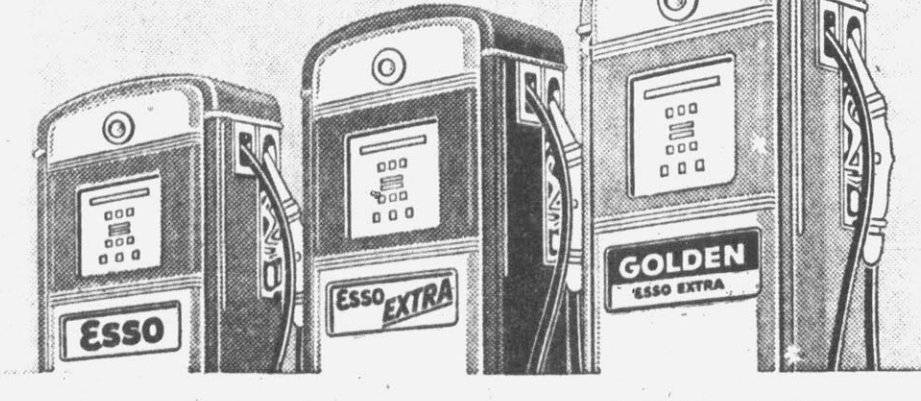

No fuel available in this area could get top power from the new, higher-compression engines until Esso Research developed GOLDEN ESSO EXTRA. The third brilliant gasoline at the Esso Sign is the first gasoline actually designed to get full power, top mileage and all-round performance from today's most advanced engines. When owners of high-compression cars tested this new power fuel, they praised such important characteristics as better mileage, quicker starting, more power, faster acceleration, and greater engine smoothness. Now, with '57 engines going to even higher compressions, the need for this new power fuel will be greater than ever!

Drive in today and try a tankful of new GOLDEN ESSO EXTRA . . . It's in a class by itself!

ESSO STANDARD OIL COMPANY

THIS WEEK, TRY GOLDEN ESSO EXTRA, THE WORLD'S FINEST GASOLINE!

ESSO DEALERS OFFER THREE GASOLINES. YOU CHOOSE THE FUEL YOU NEED WITHOUT PAYING A PENNY FOR QUALITY YOU CAN'T USE!

- 1. REGULAR-PRICED!
Millions of cars deliver satisfactory performance with regular-priced gasoline. Esso is the largest seller among all brands in the entire area served by Esso Dealers. If you get satisfactory performance with Esso, it's not necessary to use a more expensive fuel.
- 2. SUPER PREMIUM!
Many cars require premium gasoline for their more powerful engines. Super premium Esso EXTRA is made especially for these cars. If you get full power with Super premium Esso EXTRA, (with D-FROST*, the anti-stalling additive), there's no need to pay for a higher-priced gasoline.
- 3. IN A CLASS BY ITSELF!
For newer cars with higher-compression engines, Esso Research developed GOLDEN ESSO EXTRA. It is the first gasoline designed to get top power and top performance from today's and tomorrow's engines. It costs more to make . . . does more for your car. It also contains D-FROST*.

First, last and always . . . your best buy for Happy Motoring!

THE BATTLE IS ON AGAIN

DWIGHT DAVID EISENHOWER: "We pray that our concern shall be for all people regardless of station, race or calling."

Four years ago, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Adlai E. Stevenson clashed in the quadrennial American struggle for the nation's highest office. Eisenhower, at that time, was wholly untested, politically. Stevenson had engaged in only one election campaign, the one that put him in the governor's office in Illinois. The presidential battle was long and hard-fought.

Today, the same men are confronting each other again.

Each has certain advantages this time that he did not have in 1952. Each has some disadvantages.

Behind Eisenhower today is the enormous prestige of the presidency. But he cannot bring the same rugged health to the campaign that he had before.

Stevenson now is much better known, nationally, than he was in 1952. He is far more experienced. He has been working with his organization longer. But, against these advantages, must be set the fact that, this time, he is going up against the President of the United States — and a highly popular president, as well.

From necessity — the President's physical condition — the Republican campaign strategy will be different. Less travelling this time, more television. The Democrats may counter with more "whistle-stopping" and back-platform talks than usual — as a contrast to their rivals.

The candidates' life-stories-in-pictures are presented here.

ADLAI STEVENSON: "There can be no real freedom without economic justice, social justice and equality of opportunity."

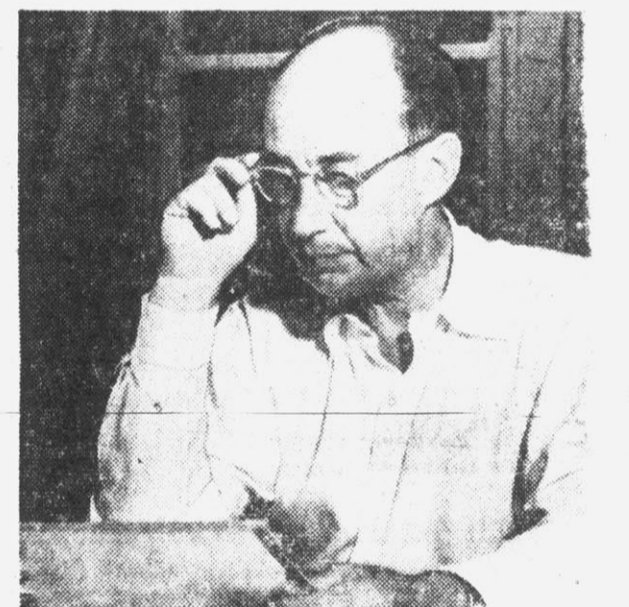

"Full victory," says Gen. Eisenhower to paratroopers before invasion of France in June, 1944.

As proxy of Columbia University, Ike jauntily walks up steps of campus library in June, 1948.

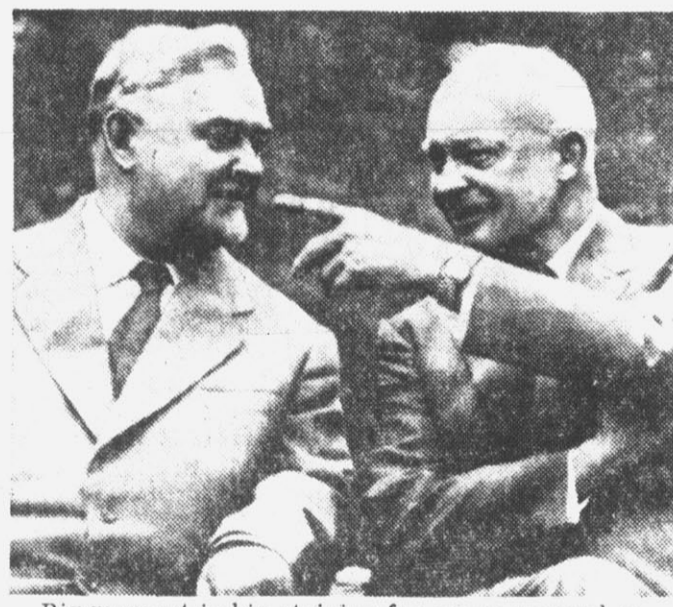

As governor, Stevenson leaves his desk in Springfield, Ill., to pass on merits of sheep at farm show.

Shy coat and tie, Gov. Stevenson works away in executive office at Springfield.

The '52 GOP convention ends on a happy note. It's Ike for President, Nixon for Vice President.

Big moment in his striving for peace came when Ike goes to Geneva Conference in '55 and sits down with Soviet leaders, like Bulganin, above.

It was Stevenson and Sparkman at the Democratic convention in '52. They acknowledge the delegates' cheers.

Adlai dons navy immersion suit and helmet for flight during visit to Korea in '53. He went on globe-circling tour after Ike won out in race for presidency.

Nation was shocked when Ike suffered two serious illnesses. Ike, with wife, appears at Walter Reed hospital window after his abdominal operation last June.

Golfing and fishing are Ike's favorite sports. He signs cards for cadets before teeing off in June, '55.

A livelier Stevenson appeared on political scene in '56. He cheerily dunks coffee during bitter spring primary fight in California.

Adlai goes in for sports like tennis, deep-sea fishing, horseback riding and hunting.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — The stock market was mixed early this afternoon as turnover settled back to about the slowest of the week. Key issues fluctuated from fractions to around a point or so.

The market was irregular from the start. A low tendency then began to develop but it halted and was replaced by a slight groundswell to the upside.

Most divisions showed a scattering of plus and minus signs. Leading aircrafts and coppers, however, showed a firm tone.

Some selected issues moved more widely. The market showed little response to various third quarter reports of better earnings.

Anacosta and Phelps Dodge gained around a point while Kennecott was firm as coppers recovered from recent losses on news of lower copper prices.

United Aircraft was up better than a point while Boeing and Douglas Aircraft gained fractions.

No Quotas Are Alloted To Rebel Draft Boards

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Three Alabama counties where draft boards rebelled over the Fred Gray case have been given no draft quotas for next month. Every other county must send one or more into the armed forces.

In announcing a November quota of 375 for Alabama, State Selective Service Director James E. Jones did not assign quotas for Barbour, Autauga or Bullock counties.

Last month's draft call for Bullock County was canceled after the Bullock board announced it would call up no more draft-eligible registrants until Gray, a Montgomery Negro attorney, is drafted.

Shortly after National Director Lewis B. Hershey ordered an indefinite delay in the scheduled induction of Gray, active in Montgomery's long Negro bus boycott, three members of Gray's local board resigned.

All three members of the Barbour County board also resigned along with the county's appeal agent, Circuit Judge George C. Wallace, in protest against Hershey's action.

Shortly afterward the Autauga County board joined Bullock in announcing it would call up no more youths for induction into the armed forces until the Negro attorney's case was settled.

The Autauga board and two others demanded a congressional investigation of national Selective Service because of Hershey's intervention in the Gray case.

Gray, whose classification as a part-time minister was changed, was ordered up for induction Sept. 17 after being given a 30-day delay on instructions from Hershey's office. When the local board refused to reopen the case at Hershey's request, the director ordered the induction postponed indefinitely.

Okinawa Bases Again Menaced

FT. BUCKNER, Okinawa — U.S. bases on Okinawa, hard hit by two major typhoons last month, braced themselves tonight for another.

Typhoon Jean's central winds were 385 miles southeast of the island and headed on a course which would send the storm sweeping directly across Okinawa.

The storm was traveling slowly, 10 miles an hour, but generating more destructive power. Earlier today Jean's central winds were clocked by U.S. Air Force weather planes at 115 miles an hour.

Present course and speed would slam the full force of the typhoon into Okinawa Saturday morning. Fringe winds of 60 to 75 miles per hour could hit by Friday midnight.

Typhoon Emma, which struck Okinawa Sept. 9, did nine million dollars worth of damage to U.S. Army, Navy and Air Force installations on Okinawa and an estimated 12 to 13 million to civilian property and crops.

Harriet, two weeks later, caused an estimated 1 to 1 1/2 million dollars damage to military property and about two million to civilian property and crops.

Tax Collections Run About 'Par'

Pitt County citizens, although paying more, are satisfying their tax obligations at about the same speed they did last year. County Tax Supervisor Harold Allred said today.

"On a percentage basis, collections are running neck-and-neck with last year's collections," Allred said. "However, increased tax bills have put us about roughly $50,000 ahead of last year in actual money collections."

The collection increase includes about $23,000 in pre-payments and $36,000 in office collections. As of August 31, when the tax office made its last report, 1956 collections had amounted to $444,607.54. According to Allred, that's about 36.5 per cent of the total tax levy.

The rush period for payments is almost over, Allred said, and his office has had very few complaints about tax bills thus far. The increase in the total levy was brought about by a re-evaluation of property in 1955 and a five-cent increase in the tax rate this year.

Arrest Woman On Theft Count

Police detectives A. T. Rogerson and R. W. Harris arrested Ethel Mae Boyd, Negro, 28, 501 Arthur Street, last night on charges of larceny of property valued at $90.

Mrs. Ed James, 1306 South Washington Street, reported to police that the Boyd woman took a dress, watch, groceries and money from her. Only the dress was recovered.

The Negro woman was arrested at her home last night and charged with larceny. She was placed in jail under a $200 bond and will appear in City Court tomorrow morning.

Perhaps A Dozen Deer Killed In County So Far

"Approximately 12 deer have been killed so far" in the county, said game fish protector Joe Teel. Most of the deer killed have been 10-point buck and have been shot between here and Washington. A few 2-point buck, which looked big for their age, have been shot.

"So far the hunters have been orderly and have displayed good sportsmanship," said Teel.

The Wildlife Commission has sent extra game protectors to Pitt County from the western part of the state as a precautionary measure against illegal killing of deer. The penalty for killing a doe is a $100 fine or 60 days in jail.
