Dormitory Fire Said 'Arson'

Three Univ. of Idaho Students Killed; Building Felt Fire-proof

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — Three University of Idaho students were killed today when an early morning fire, termed by Fire Chief Carl Smith the work of an arsonist, swept through a dormitory housing 130 men.

Smith said the fire broke out in the main floor lounge of Gault Hall, a $500,000 brick and steel structure which was opened only last fall. Smith said the building was "supposed to be completely fire proof."

Prosecuting Atty. Lloyd G. Martinson started an investigation. Those who died in the blaze were identified by Smith as:

Paul Johnson, Davenport, Wash.; John Knudson, Idaho Falls, Idaho; and Clair Schulberg, Terreton, Idaho. Johnson was a sophomore, the others freshmen.

Smith said two of the victims were trapped in the halls. The third suffocated when he took refuge in a shower room.

Three other students were burned, none seriously.

The blaze, the fourth in a series at the school, was discovered about 2:10 a.m. by a student in neighboring Upham Hall.

Tom McDevitt of Pocatello, Idaho, told Smith:

"An explosion awakened me. I looked out my window and saw flames shooting up to the windows of the lounge in Gault Hall."

The Moscow volunteer fire department with the aid of university students, fought the fire for 45 minutes before bringing it under control.

The fire charred the interiors of the second and third floors of the four-story dormitory.

C. O. Decker, dean of students, called the death of the three students in the blaze "murder."

The first fire in the series broke out a week ago today in the lounge of Willis Sweet, a men's dorm housing 190, at 2:15 a.m. Smith said that fire was "definitely the work of an arsonist."

Last Saturday, the Chrisman Hall lounge was the scene of another fire. The fire was discovered at 6 a.m. Smith said it was the work of an arsonist.

A small blaze broke out last Sunday morning in the garbage chute of Chrisman Hall.

After the lounge fire in Chrisman Hall, student guards were assigned to campus buildings. The guards were on duty this morning but did not see the fire until McDevitt shouted the alarm.

Abandoned Auto Found At Bridge

A 1952 automobile, owned by T. J. Davis of near Farmville, was found early this morning about three miles from Farmville on the old Stantonburg road with the front end straddled over the side of a bridge.

Highway Patrolman Jim Boykin, investigating officer, said the driver had left the scene when he arrived. He said one of the car's front wheels was hanging over the bridge.

The wooden bridge railing on the north side was destroyed by the impact. Estimated damage to the front end of the vehicle amounted to $200. "The investigating is not yet complete," said Boykin.

FARMVILLE—Sales Supervisor Charles Edwards reported the following sales on the Farmville Tobacco Market Thursday: 371,054 pounds for $194,249.10. The average was $52.35.

Chambliss Says About 35,280 Attended Fair

Approximately 35,280 people attended the Pitt County Agricultural Fair here last week, Manager Norman Y. Chambliss reported today.

That included paid admissions and estimates of school children attendance. Legionnaires admitted free and other free admissions.

Chambliss said that 16,620 adults paid to visit the fair last week and 2,612 children paid to enter the fairgrounds.

He estimated that 250 Legionnaires and 100 auxiliary members were admitted free during the week. The fair manager estimated that 1,750 Greenville white school children were admitted free on Tuesday afternoon, 4,000 colored school children on Wednesday afternoon and 4,000 white county students on Friday afternoon.

Approximately 500 teachers were admitted on passes and 300 exhibitors and 150 FFA and 4-H boys were granted free admission.

In addition approximately 2,000 other persons were admitted on passes.

Chambliss reported that 2,771 cars paid to park within the fairgrounds and he estimated that 4,000 cars paid and unpaid parked inside the grounds during the week.

Continued H-Bomb Tests Necessary, Says Strauss

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — The nation's atomic chief said today hydrogen bomb tests must be continued not only to assure new weapons but to provide data needed for civilian survival under enemy attack.

Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission, in a speech prepared for a joint U. S.-Canadian Civil Defense meeting, made no mention of Adlai Stevenson's proposal that this country take the lead in seeking an end to H-bomb tests.

"In order to provide our people with the guidance and instruction which may later save their lives," Strauss said, "the Civil Defense authorities need constant access to new and up-to-date information about the effects of nuclear weapons."

U.S. And Britain Said Disagreeing On Suez Policies

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Britain are reported to have hit a new snag in trying to work out common policies for dealing with Egypt in the Suez Canal dispute.

This one concerns the payment of tolls for ships going through the canal.

However, some diplomatic officials say that at the heart of the current disagreement is the basic issue of how tough a line the Western powers should take toward Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The specific problem of what the newly organized Suez Canal Users' Assn. should do about ship tolls is in active negotiation between Secretary of State Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

Dulles is described as advocating the users' association by ships going through the Suez should then be turned over to Egypt for use of the canal — less, of course, any association expenses for pilot services and the like.

Lloyd is said to have proposed that such tolls be held as blocked funds not to be paid to Egypt until there is a final settlement of the Suez controversy.

Failure to resolve these differences is blamed for the lack of action by the U.S. government so far toward having American ship owners pay canal tolls to the association instead of to Egypt, as they are now doing.

Dulles' proposal in effect would carry over the present American practice of paying money to the users' association by ships going through the Suez Canal to enhance the prestige and authority of the users' association by making it an intermediary.

The British and French are now paying tolls to the Suez Canal Co., which Nasser declared nationalized last July. The company is holding them in a blocked account pending an ultimate settlement with Nasser.

Traffic Toll

RALEIGH (AP) — The Motor Vehicles Department's report of deaths and injuries in highway accidents for the 24 hours ending at 10 a.m. today:

Killed 4
Injured (rural) 18
Killed this year 804
Killed to date last year 861
Injured to Aug. 1, 1956 10,436
Injured to Aug. 1, 1955 9,333

The O. C. Buck Show enjoyed fine business on the midway and for the first time since I have been manager there was definitely not a single complaint by anyone," Chambliss declared. "In other words there was no fleecing on the midway and this the people of Pitt County should be proud of."

He noted that the midway show had more than 400 people with it. They were not included in the attendance totals.

Uniformed policemen from Ayden, Farmville and Greenville patrolled the fences and Chambliss said there were less fence jumpers than ever.

Chambliss noted that 1952 was the best year in attendance during the past eight years.

"We did not quite reach the 1952 attendance mark this year," he noted.

The fair is operated by the American Legion Posts of Farmville, Greenville and Ayden.

The directors of the association will hold a meeting early in December for a full report on the fair's operation. Officers for 1957 will be elected at that time.

Without referring to Stevenson, Strauss said:

"Exposure to radioactivity, as a vague, unproven danger to generations, yet unborn, must be weighed against the more immediate and infinitely greater dangers of defeat and perhaps of obliteration at the hands of an enemy who possesses nuclear weapons of mass destruction and who might have no compunction about using such weapons if he thought we were too weak to defend ourselves and retaliate in kind."

Later, he said:

"Our testing program is not 'poisoning' the atmosphere. Soviet propagandists have been spreading that 'scare' for months, while conveniently neglecting to mention their own secret tests."

Strauss quoted a report of the National Academy of Sciences this year by saying that biological damage from peacetime atomic activities, including weapons tests, "has been essentially negligible" so far, and that radiation exposure from all tests to date and from future tests at the same rate as in the past would be a small fraction of the exposure one receives in daily living.

It means, Strauss said, that testing of atomic weapons, including H-bombs, "at the present rate, may be continued for as far as one can see ahead," he added.

"This is the conclusion reached by our foremost and most reliable scientists."

He mentioned the effects of blast heat and radiation among the data needed, said the Communists, "in sharp contrast to our policy and our practice," provide no such data on their own tests to help other nations protect their populations against nuclear war.

"Thus it becomes apparent," Strauss said, "that the survival of our own people and the civilian populations of the entire free world largely depends, from the civil defense viewpoint, on information which is derived from our own carefully controlled nuclear tests."

Without them, he added, the nation's "defenses would deteriorate, both in terms of civil defense and in the weapons which we need to repel any nuclear aggression."

On the latter point, Strauss said the tests earlier this year at Eniwetok "placed heavy stress on the development of defensive weapons including nuclear warheads for missiles which would be used against enemy attacks by land, sea or air."

He referred also, as he has before, to developments there reducing the amount of radioactive fall-out from the newer weapons.

Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, has said continued tests "may cause the human race unmeasured damage," largely because of what he calls "the most dreadful poison" from radioactive fall-out.

HERRIN, Ill. (AP) — A mother and 3-year-old son and two other children were killed and nine others, including three children, seriously injured yesterday by an explosion at a bottled gas depot.

The blast and a flash fire spread flames over nearly a block, destroying five homes. Witnesses reported four or five separate explosions.

Doctors at Herrin Hospital said some of the injured were not expected to live.

"There are a lot of them we won't be able to do anything for," one doctor said.

Policeman Walter Lowe said six of the victims were in a yard near the depot when the first blast occurred. The flash fire covered them with flames, he said. Others injured were believed to have been in their homes.

The explosion occurred at the depot on the west side of which southern Illinois town from which cooking gas is distributed in small tanks to customers in Herrin and local areas.

Police Chief Roy Cole said Henry Scheffler, 50, operator of the depot, was filling the small tanks from a large tank truck when a leak apparently developed.

"The area was filled with escaping gas," Cole said. "In some manner it was ignited. The flow kept increasing. Then one of the small tanks blew up and that set off the others."

Firemen were at the scene before the blast and fire, having been summoned when a leak reportedly occurred. The flames burned fiercely for about an hour before they were brought under control.

Among the injured was Mrs. Imogene Keller, 29, mother of two of the children killed and two others injured. The dead were Charlotte Jarvis, 11, a daughter by her first husband, and Robert Lee Keller, 9, injured were Charlotte's twin sister Sharon and Susan Jarvis, 7. Mrs. Keller's mother, Mrs. Gladys McGee, also was injured.

Others killed were Mrs. Violet Williams, 33, and her son Fred, 3. Her husband Oscar, 38, and their 7-month-old son Randy were among the injured. Others hospitalized with burns and injuries were Fred Kerley, 62; his wife Elizabeth, 62; and their son Carl, 20.

Scheffler was not hurt but police said he was suffering from shock.

Law Of The Land Being Violated, Opines ACLU

NEW YORK (AP) — Southern states which are changing their constitutions to keep school segregation are "directly violating the law of the land," in the opinion of the American Civil Liberties Union.

The ACLU said, "When the states try to retain their public school systems while changing them to prevent compliance, they are not only doomed to failure in the U.S. Supreme Court and the Constitution now stand, but they are also directly violating the law of the land."

The ACLU listed three legal ways in which states may oppose the Supreme Court's school integration decision.

These are: 1. They may amend their laws or constitutions to eliminate the public school systems entirely; 2. They may persuade the Supreme Court to change its decision; 3. They may repeal the Constitutional amendment on which the court based its decision.

Captain H. E. Wooten and Patrolman C. E. Warren of the Greenville Police Department were the arresting officers and testified. Solicitor El Bloom presented a check of $1,000 and $175 in cash money as evidence.

Each defendant pled not guilty. None took the stand. The confiscated money was turned over to the school fund.

Prison Guard Is Found Wounded

A prison guard was found at the Prison Camp yesterday afternoon with a bullet wound in the chest.

Lewis Buck, who lives in Meadowbrook, is in Pitt Memorial Hospital in serious condition.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson, quoted other guards as saying Buck and the guards were in the guard house at the prison camp. Buck left, they said, and later they heard a shot. The group found Buck lying on the ground outside.

Sheriff Tyson said Buck was shot through the chest with a .38 caliber pistol.

Open Tomorrow

Pitt County registration books will be open again tomorrow to accept registrations for the November election.

County Elections Chairman D. S. Spain has pointed out that new registrations will not be necessary to participate in the election. The books are open now for new residents of the county and persons who have come of age since the registration books were last open.

Books are located in regular polling places in each of the county's precincts.

Spain said that only a few persons registered last Saturday when books were opened for the first time since the summer. They will be open tomorrow from 9 a.m. until sundown and will follow the same hours again next Saturday.

Before the books were opened last Saturday there were approximately 19,500 registered voters in the county.

Chinese Troops Moving Deeper South In Burma

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Chinese Communist troops from Tibet who entered Burma through the nation's northernmost mountain passes today were reported to have moved farther south.

The report to the English-language newspaper Nation said the troops had established one camp only nine days' march from the north Burma center of Putao (Fort Hertz).

The report indicated the Reds were trying to build up a basis for demanding the area — often in dispute — for China. The nation's correspondent at Nongmung, a local administrative center northeast of Putao and only a few miles from the Red troops' reported position, said the invading soldiers were busily taking a census of Tibetan inhabitants of the area.

Three Chinese invasions across the poorly defined northern and eastern borders have been reported — one north of Putao, one into Tibet, one farther south into the Kachin state, and an entrance into the Wa states in which the Reds reportedly occupied about 1,000 square miles of territory.

The Burmese government protested to Peiping, with which it has a friendship treaty. But a government source said Red China's only reply so far has been that the matter would be discussed when Premier U Nu visits Peiping next week.

Hodges Expects Leaf Reduction

RALEIGH (AP) — "All signs point to a need for a very definite reduction in next year's tobacco production," Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina told his news conference yesterday.

He said "one of the most prominent men in the tobacco industry" had told him, "We're going to have to reduce on a poundage basis instead of an acreage basis."

The governor said the tobacco industry "ought not to wait much longer" before getting a group together to "decide certain basic things about tobacco before next year."

He declared, "We ought not to hide our heads in the sand." If farmers have the idea that "all that weighs a lot," while the buyers are not going to buy such types of tobacco, "the farmers should be told about it before hand," he said.

"We know now," added the governor, that the cut in tobacco acreage for this year's crop was not heavy enough.

The governor also suggested that members of the Legislature "find out how badly" their constituents want state services expanded before they come to Raleigh for the 1957 legislative session.

He declared the state's income is so low that the state "can't meet all the needs" but "I think generally speaking that the people are willing to sacrifice more" to get the state services they want.

Principal Gambled, Won; Parents Appear

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Staff Writer
Chico School, an institution with 12 grades and 612 students, gambled and won last week on a chance to revive sagging parental interest in the school.

The gamble involved a departure from the standard and time-honored procedure of issuing report cards to students. Colored teachers, instead, handed them directly to parents—80 per cent of them, at least.

The plan required parents to come to the school on any one of three days last week. It was launched in an effort to give parents an opportunity to see, first hand, just what their children were doing, what the teachers were trying to accomplish, and what could be done to improve school-community relationships.

Principal Fodde Hodges, who introduced the idea and pushed it to a successful conclusion, says the plan was greeted with a great deal of skepticism when it was first presented to faculty members.

The skeptical faculty members were basing their opinions on past experiences. Too often, they said, programs had been planned which required parental cooperation and then flopped when the parents didn't show up. They agreed to give the plan a try, however.

With faculty approval behind him, Hodges began contacting parents. With the large number of parents in the community, he had to resort to the indirect means of form letters, carried home by the students. The results of the first letter campaign were not encouraging.

Too many parents, the children told their teachers, said they couldn't spare the time. They sent questions back to the school about the necessity for such action.

Hodges followed those reports with a second letter. He explained the plan further, pointing out the importance of parents knowing exactly what the school was doing. He scored claims that it was "foolish" and a "waste of time."

The second letter brought more encouraging reports from the parents.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week were set aside for the parents' visits. Members of the Future Teachers of America club were assigned to elementary rooms to conduct the classes so that teachers could be free for individual conferences. The high school teachers arranged their classes so they could leave during any period to talk with parents.

Eighty per cent of the students' parents showed up to pick up the reports and observe classes. Every one of them got a chance to meet his child's teachers and discuss the child's work with the teacher. All of them were shown the building and got explanations of the facilities available.

Many of the parents who were not able to visit the school on either of the three days had the report cards delivered to their homes by the students. The delivered reports all had notes from the teachers, expressing regret that the parents couldn't visit the school but explaining the student's progress in his work.

According to Hodges, the idea turned out to be a huge success. Not a single parent expressed a regret, saying, instead, they appreciated the opportunity to visit the school and to talk to teachers without interruptions which would come under other circumstances.

The faculty also came out of the experience with a whole-hearted approval of it. They got a chance to express their ideas to members of the community, meet their students' parents and discuss the problems they faced with individual students.

The only dissenting comments were from some of the students. Some high school students, particularly, didn't like the idea but all of them accepted the plan, realizing, Hodges said, "that parents are being to find out about the child's accomplishments eventually."

Neither Hodges nor other members of the faculty think the plan would meet with similar success every report period. The principal doesn't plan to use it again until possibly next spring, at the end of the next-to-the-last report period.

"Too frequent use of the idea," Hodges says, "will kill it. We wanted to bring the parents to the school and show them what we do. It was a gamble, but we thought they have enough invested in the school to take a more active interest in it."

"We just gambled and won,"

Adlai Warns Of 'A Vote For Benson'; Ike Raps Charges

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson said today a vote for President Eisenhower is a vote for Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

"Whose friendship for the farmer"—in Stevenson's words—"depends on the proximity of an election."

In similar fashion, Stevenson attacked Vice President Nixon and other close administration associates of Eisenhower in a speech the Democratic presidential candidate prepared for a campaign stop in Lexington, Ky.

As Stevenson turned southward after whistle—stopping through Michigan and Ohio, Eisenhower went after California's 32 electoral votes.

Before leaving the Pacific Northwest, Eisenhower battered some more at Stevenson's proposals that this country take the lead in seeking a way to end H-bomb tests, and that consideration be given to ending the military draft in the "foreseeable future."

Speaking last night in Portland, Ore., Eisenhower told a cheering crowd, and a nationwide TV-radio audience, that:

"I have not promised you—or do I ever intend to—that the way to defend peace or freedom is to abandon simultaneously our military draft and testing of our most advanced military weapons, under the circumstances of today's world."

"For I know—as I believe all Americans know—that, without strength in this world of today, the road to surrender is paved with good intentions."

Eisenhower once again did not mention Stevenson's name as he hit his opponent on the draft and H-bomb test questions, and described as "frivolous" the charge by Stevenson and other Democrats that the GOP administration has been giving away the country's natural resources to private business interests.

Eisenhower was scheduled to make a major speech tonight in the Hollywood Bowl at Los Angeles. Arrangements were made to beam the speech over regional radio and TV.

As Stevenson headed for Kentucky, which he won from Eisenhower by only 700 votes in 1952, one of the Democratic nominee's top strategists voiced the opinion that the current battle for the White House has reached a stage where he said the as-yet undecided voters may determine the outcome.

Last night, in a speech to an enthusiastic turnout in Youngstown, Ohio, Stevenson hit at the GOP on the peace question, saying:

"The uneasy position which prevails in the world today which they call 'peace' is based on a balance of terror, which is a dangerous foundation."

Meantime, Nixon rounded out a 14-state swing with scheduled appearances in Wilmington, Del., and Baltimore, Md. After a weekend of rest at his Washington home, the vice president will set out Monday on a tour, via train, through another batch of states.

After daylong stumping by car through southern New England, Nixon delivered an avowedly non-political speech last night at the annual Alfred E. Smith Memorial Dinner in New York. Smith, former New York governor, was the unsuccessful Democratic presidential nominee in 1928.

In that speech, Nixon said the United States will overcome "our present crisis" over racial desegregation in the public schools as he said "we lived through the anti-federal riots of the Know Nothing days and the hooded terror of the Ku Klux Klan."

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, the Democrats' vice-presidential candidate, yesterday finished a vote-hunting expedition through drought-parched southwest Missouri and Kansas. Today, he was due to hop to Las Vegas, Nev., and Salt Lake City.

At Topeka, Kan., Kefauver said that the Eisenhower administration's "performance on the farm question is one of the truly outstanding cases of incredible incompetence and mismanagement."

Farm Agent Notes Campaign Slump

Farm Agent Sam C. Winchester today urged Farm Bureau workers to speed up the campaign for Bureau members.

Winchester pointed out that only 1,179 new members have been signed up by workers so far during the present campaign. This is far short of the goal of 4,500 members for the coming year.

Winchester said many farmers are "manufacturing excuses" for not joining the farm organization this year.

"What will you do about it?" Winchester asked farmers. "Will you let it die and with it let die your chances of making a fair profit on a year's farming operation?"

Winchester pointed out that the Farm Bureau in Pitt County annually co-sponsors the Baby Beef Show and Sale for calves fed by FFA students and 4-H Club members.

It has also co-sponsored the Junior Dairy Cattle Show for young boys and girls.

"The Farm Bureau has also carried out many other programs beneficial to its membership and to promote agriculture in Pitt County," the farm agent declared.

"More than ever agriculture needs a closely knit, strong organization," he said.

Nearing Goal

RALEIGH (AP) — A Presbyterian fund-raising campaign with a 2½-million-dollar goal has passed the two-million mark, Dr. Harold J. Dudley, general secretary of the Presbyterian Synod of North Carolina, announced today.

Funds totaling $2,094,000 have been raised on the Christian higher education campaign being conducted by the synod. Dr. Dudley said. A $100,000 gift from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation of Winston-Salem recently sent the total past two million, he said.

The synod is seeking two million for the consolidated Presbyterian college to be located at Laurinburg, and half a million for student centers by Presbyterian work. The centers are located at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; North Carolina State College, Raleigh; Woman's College, Greensboro; East Carolina College, Greenville; and Duke University, Durham.

School Children Invited To Halloween Parade And Party

Greenville children of school age, including those from the surrounding community, have been invited to participate in a Halloween Parade the evening of October 22 at 7:15.

The event will be sponsored by Modern Woodmen of America, with the assistance of the Junior Director.

Larry R. Stox, general chairman who made the announcement today and extended an invitation to all local children, stated that features to be included in the parade should prove especially attractive to school children.

The parade and party will begin at 7:15 in Woodmen Hall on Broad Street, where costume ribbon awards, souvenirs and refreshments will be distributed.

The chairman also stated that a special feature will be the "Witch Wagon," attended by a number of witches in typical Halloween style, who will award special prizes to five of the costumed paraders who can be found at home thirty minutes after the curfew is sounded ending the celebration.

Souvenirs, refreshments and prizes will be donated by Modern Woodmen of America and the Junior Director.

Mary Lib Sutton called attention to last year's Halloween parade in which approximately 100 children participated and stated that she felt confident that this year's event would draw a still larger crowd of participants.

She urged parents and school authorities to encourage children to take part in the event, stating that "similar affairs here and elsewhere have proved their worth in promoting enjoyable, sensible Halloween celebrations."

Larry R. Stox Sr., local representative of Modern Woodmen of America, said, "Our society is assisting in sponsoring similar costume parades in hundreds of communities in the United States as a part of its program for furthering the general welfare of the youth of the nation, and in conformity with its policy of contributing to local community progress."

At the close of the evening an ice course was served.

Bloxam Speaks To Book Club

Leonard P. Bloxam, Greenville City Manager, gave an informal talk on city government when the Pickwick Club met at the home of Mrs. S. T. White II Tuesday.

Among cities of comparable size, Greenville's police and fire departments rate near the top, he told the group.

The city's Public Works Department is one of the few in the state where there is a garbage collection three times a week.

"The Recreation Department has made excellent progress and under the Utility Department our city gets many added benefits," he declared.

He also stated Greenville had less delinquent taxes on the books than any other city of its size in the state.

After a social period during which Mr. Bloxam answered many questions, the hostess served corn, cake, ice cream and coffee.

Books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Credit Women's Club Observes Annual Bosses' Night Event

The Credit Women's Breakfast Club of Greenville honored bosses and bosses' wives at the Seventh Annual Bosses' Night Dinner last night.

At the event, which took place at the Moose Lodge, new officers were installed for the coming year. President Henrietta Johnson, presiding officer, opened the meeting with the assembly singing "It's A Good Time To Get Acquainted."

Mrs. Emma Lee Schmidt welcomed the guests and Sponsor Lee Folger made response. Invocation was given by Sponsor Robert Greene.

The tables were decorated with arrangements of large wicker cornucopias, filled with flowers, fruits and nuts. Individual miniature cornucopias were used for favors.

Yellow chrysanthemums, candles and programs provided contrasting color. The overflowing cornucopias suggested the theme of the year's work, the flowers representing the beauty of club friendship, and the fruits, the harvest of concerted club effort.

Guests Introduced
President Johnson introduced distinguished guests, state officers and representatives of the Kinston and Wilson Credit Clubs. She recognized all sponsors and their wives with a special welcome and expression of gratitude for their constant support.

Dr. E. R. Browning and Miss

Emma Hooper of East Carolina College were recognized and Miss Hooper was introduced as an honorary member of the club.

Elbert Bennett, vocalist, with Mrs. Howard Bodkin accompanying, provided a musical interlude. President Johnson, following the club's custom of omitting speakers at Bosses' Night, called for reports of committee chairmen to outline highlights of the year's progress in their respective departments.

Reports Given

The membership chairman reported seven new members: Miss Barbara Dail, Jane's Shop; Miss Margaret Purvis, State Bank & Trust Company; Mrs. Jean Porter, Home Builders Supply Company; Mrs. Martha Kate Danford, C. H. Edwards Hardware Company; Mrs. Virginia Brady, Cold Storage, Inc.; Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, Willard & Webb Insurance; and Miss Clara Seago, of Hooker & Buchanan.

She also welcomed back to active membership Mrs. Ruby Lum of H. A. White & Sons and Mrs. Jean Clark of the Jewel Box.

The attendance chairman

Sawyer, Emma Lee Schmidt, Bonnie Singleton, Catherine Walsh, Callie Rue Williams and Louise Wilson.

Mrs. Earline Coghill received a five-year Perfect Attendance Certificate.

The educational chairman presented thirty-one members with Ninth International Credit Educational Study Course certificates. She announced forty members' completion of a Better Reading Course under the instruction of Miss Emma Hooper of East Carolina College.

Club's Activities
Among the club's civic activities were participation in TB program, with two members serving on County Board of Directors; Mental Health program; city, vehicle safety check; Farmer's Day; Newcomers' Party for fifth consecutive year; special active participation in State Joint Traffic Program, which is also all Credit Clubs' State Project; donations to Mental Health; Eye Bank; TB; and collection of clothes and magazines for the Welfare Department.

The club's civic project, a scholarship to a business major for a Pitt County student at East Carolina College, was awarded to Miss Barbara Griffin of Ayden, a sophomore at the college.

Mrs. Sawyer Awarded
Eagerly awaited event of the evening was the presentation of the "Breakfast Clubber of the Year Award" by Sponsor John T. Barnhill to Mrs. Cassie Sawyer.

This award, a handsome silver Paul Revere Bowl, was given to the club in 1955 by Sponsors Bob Greene, Glenn Scott, Wesley Harvey and Walter Harrington.

Each winner's name will be engraved on it with her year. The Sponsors' Trophy Bowl was won last year by Mrs. Henrietta Johnson.

It is to be awarded each year to the member making the most outstanding contribution to Breakfast Club activity and progress on a cooperative basis.

All members are eligible except each current year's club president and district director. The Sponsors judge the reports and select the winner.

Officers Installed

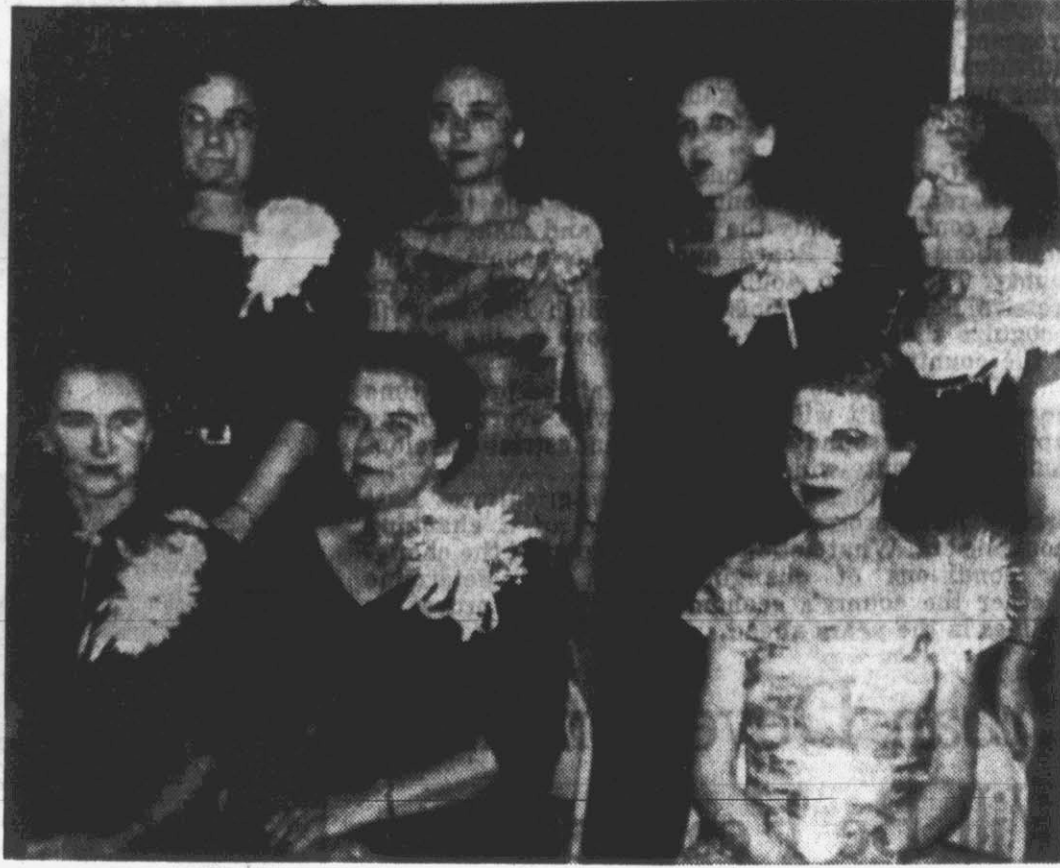

Past President Earline Coghill performed the installation of the new officers for 1956-57. President is Mrs. Callie Rue Williams; first vice-president, Mrs. Cassie Sawyer; second vice-president, Mrs. Emma Lee Schmidt; recording secretary, Mrs. Lullah MacGregor; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Earline Coghill; treasurer, Mrs. Louise Wilson; and parliamentarian, Mrs. Margaret Boykin.

Directors are Mrs. Hilda Jones, Mrs. Bett Gray, Mrs. Catherine Walsh and Mrs. Mildred Hardee. Sponsors for the year are Messrs. Lee Folger, George Lautares, L. M. Buchanan, Julian J. White Jr. and Dan Saled.

Mrs. Dorothy Copeland is Eastern District Director and Mrs. Cora Powell, advisor.

President Johnson presented the new president, Mrs. Williams, with the gavel, symbol of her authority. President Williams accepted the responsibility of her office and presented the Past President's Pin to retiring President Johnson, a gift from the membership as a token of the affection, esteem and gratitude for her year of leadership.

Promising Program For The Future

A county-wide industrial development program for Pitt, supported by the county tax funds, is one of the most promising proposals yet voiced for boosting Pitt County's economic future.

While the proposal represents a new trend of thought in the county, the method of financing a long range industrial program for the county is not new in North Carolina. The outstanding example of such a plan in North Carolina is in Union County where a county-wide program, supported by tax funds, has attracted many new industries, provided more jobs for the people, more property for the county to tax and in general has raised the income of the county and its people.

The proposal for using county tax funds to support a program to bolster the economy of the county is by no means unprecedented.

Recognizing that agriculture forms the basis of the economy here, the county for years has put considerable tax dollars into the farm extension service program which has provided agricultural specialists—farm agents and home agents—to help farmers of the county pull themselves up by their own bootstraps.

The agricultural progress of Pitt for more than two decades has evidenced the wisdom of that decision. Whereas the agricultural extension program was viewed with some misgivings in the desperate days of the depression, no one now would consider seriously a proposal to do away with the farm extension program in the county.

Is it not sound now for the county to launch in the interest of industrial development a program similar to that for agriculture which began in the early '30s?

Most people realize that every section of Pitt County will profit from industrial development in any section of the county. The county forms a natural basis for establishing a far reaching industrial development program for the various sections of Pitt individually and collectively. The entire county would participate in financing the program and the entire county will benefit from every new industry which was attracted to or established in the county.

Through a special tax levy, such a county-wide program can be financed without hardship on any individual or any section. The program in return will bring more plants, more taxable property for the county, more jobs and more income for the people of the county.

The County Commissioners have been asked to appoint a representative committee of people throughout the county to study the proposal and make recommendations to the Board and to the people of the county. There is no doubt in our mind that the progressive Board of Commissioners which Pitt has will recognize the importance of this move to the people of the county.

We are likewise confident that at the proper time the people of Pitt will come forth with overwhelming support for a sound program of industrial development on a county-wide basis.

Pitt and other counties of the agricultural East already have crossed the threshold of a changing economic era. What action Pitt takes to meet the changing conditions of changing times will determine whether the county's economic situation improves or declines in the years ahead.

Urban Development Will Be Featured

By LYNN NISBET
CITIES AND TOWNS — The general theme of Urban Development will feature the convention of the League of Municipalities in Asheville Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Discussions will be based on the concept the industrial development is municipal business. Particular emphasis will be given the probable impact of industrial development upon municipal services.

Nationally known experts in discussions on how such basis serves the several fields will lead to discussions as streets, sewage, water, police and fire protection can be maintained in rapidly growing communities. Back of all these discussions looms the vital factor of financing—tax rates and bond issues.

The keynote address Sunday afternoon will be delivered by Brandon Hodges, former State treasurer and presently chairman of the tax study commission. He is expected to discuss in general terms the problems of municipal financing as related to the overall State policy. No specific recommendations are anticipated, either from the committee chairman or by action of the League, pending final report of the tax study group.

The executive committee of the League met with Governor Hodges Tuesday afternoon for informal discussion of problems. A similar conference was held with county commissioners some weeks ago. The idea is to coordinate activities of the several levels of government in an overall development program for North Carolina.

Municipal officials have complained for years that they have been discriminated against by the State in licensing tax fields and residents of incorporated towns being required to pay double taxes in county and city levels.

AIRPORTS — The location and utilization of airports is rapidly becoming almost as much a problem in North Carolina as the location of highways. In some respects the problem is more acute, because there is less historic precedent.

Travel of persons and transportation of goods over land and water date back to pre-historic times. Travel through the air is just a little more than half a century old.

Nobody knows when the first man discovered that he could haul more on a sled than he could carry on his back, or when his grandson found he could haul a lot more by putting wheels on the sled.

Nor does anybody know when the first man discovered that he could float downstream on a log easier than he could walk along the bank.

The centuries-long evolution of land based traffic from the sled to the modern automobile and railroad train is difficult to trace. It is even harder to follow progress from the floating log, through the push-pole and the oar to the sail and steam ships. And thence to internal combustion engines and electric power for both land and water conveyance.

Aviation is little more than half a century old. Millions of people now living were alive before the first airplane flew at Kill Devil Hills in North Carolina on that windy December day in 1903.

While revolutionary advancement has been made in land and water travel within the past few decades, the basic principles have not changed. The phenomenal developments have come in aircraft, and they have come so fast that there are no experience precedents to guide them.

LONG DISTANCE — Land and water traffic has been and still is both local and long distance. Air traffic until now has been essentially long distance. Drawing upon centuries of experience the management of land and water companies are making distinction between local and far reaching activities. They are operating with local short haul feeders into central depots for channeling into long haul cargoes.

Lacking that experience, advocates of air transport insist upon long-haul depots for convenience of local customers. Witness current demands and protests of such established airports as Bluefield at Wilmington, Raleigh-Durham, Greensboro-High Douglas at Charlotte, Winston-Salem, and Asheville-Hendersonville for complete full-time schedules for long distance flights. Between these big (?) airports are dozens of communities insisting upon regular long-distance light schedules.

This brings into focus the efforts of middle-western communities to establish an airport, with full-fledged flight schedules, somewhere in the area comprised in the counties of Edgecombe, Nash, Wilson, Wayne, Greene, Lenoir, Craven, Beaufort and Pitt. The State Department of Conservation and Development is committed to support of the idea of a mid-eastern major airport in this area.

The project looks good on a paper, not so good when all the factors of ground transportation to and from the airport, telephone communications from the various communities to be served, and the possible air traffic load are considered. Operation of big air liners is expensive business. These go only where experience records show probably passengers per load sufficient to pay their way.

Fact is, highways are located mostly on the same basis of demonstrated need for service, although government can afford to spend money for non-profit service, although government can afford to spend money for non-profit service to the citizenry, where private enterprise cannot take such chance.

Other Editors Are Saying... The Cock Crows At Dawn

(Goldsboro News-Argus)
There is something interesting if sad about the story from Oklahoma City of the neighbors wrangling over a rooster crowing at dawn.

The owner was haled into court on a charge of maintaining a nuisance. The plaintiff said that her sleep was broken and she suffered frustration and nervous tension because the old red rooster woke her at the break of day every day with a claret call.

Between the two women, the one who complains is more to be pitied. The world is too much with her. Actually it is not the cry of the rooster that bothers her. Her reaction to the call is only a symptom of hypertension and nervous fatigue.

Else the dawn call of the rooster would be a thing of loveliness to her. Some of my most nostalgic memories are connected with boyhood in a small town. Everyone kept chickens. Came the dawn daily and one old rooster far down on some distant horizon would raise a cry that said "all is well"; and it would be picked up and resound far across the town and then as if a happy echo the call would go forth, circling the town as if by a timeless tent. It was so natural, so true, so comforting to hear the roosters call there in the breaking dawn.

That old feeling came back some months ago. We were guests in a tight little motel on the outskirts of Williamston. While the world was still covered by Stygian darkness, an old rooster, sure of his position, raised a happy cry. It was repeated with varying authority and voice from all points of the compass. In a twinkling I was transported back to boyhood.

For Goldsboro has become such a city that no longer does anyone anywhere, even on the edges of the place, keep chickens. But back to the Oklahoma women who were rowing over the crowing cock. The judge ruled that the nerves of city-minded people should be protected. The old rooster must be quieted. He ordered the owner to cause the rooster to take a perch of nights close to the roof of the hen house. Then when he seeks to stretch his neck to do so, and not having this room he will not crow. So the judge decreed, harking back to his country rearing.

Courts, however, are not permitted to order cruel or unusual punishments. Crowding a rooster into a close perch so he could not stretch his neck and cry his call of nature would be cruel and unusual. How could you, judge?

About A Man With A Badge

This is a true story about a lawman.

It happened in our city court just the other day and is well worth the telling, especially for those people who think — and there are some — that men who carry the authority of law think they're little tin gods and will arrest you at the drop of a hat, or even a straight pin. I'll grant you that there are law officers who DO think they're little tin gods, but for every one there are thousands that do not. This is a story of one of the thousands.

H.B. Lilley is a Pitt County ABC officer, and one of the finest, so say his fellow officers. He's one of the five officers employed by the county who sits in the rain and cold for hours on end observing a whiskey still and then moves in for the kill when the time is ripe. He destroys the still, confiscates the "hooch" and then testifies against the bootlegger in court.

The other night Lilley received a tip that a convicted bootlegger, a Negro woman, was hiding "white lightning" under her house. He responded promptly to the tip and it paid off. He found a half-gallon jar about one-fourth full exactly where the informant told him it would be. He charged the woman with "possession of non-tax-paid whiskey" and told her to appear before Judge Charles Whedbee's City Court at the next session.

She appeared. Lilley took the stand to testify — not against her, but for her. Because Lilley has a long and unblemished police record and because of his general working knowledge of the law and his particular knowledge in this case, he told Judge Whedbee this: "I recommend that you enter a verdict of 'Not Guilty.'"

Knowing the defendant and the circumstances surrounding this case, I firmly believe that she was framed. The whiskey was planted under her house. Why, I do not know. I know she has a record, but in this case, if your Honor please, she is not guilty."

Judge Whedbee turned to the defendant and said: "We should be thankful that we have such law officers as Mr. Lilley. I realize it and I hope you do." He then turned to Lilley and said: "The Court wants to commend you for the action you've taken in this case. Well done!"

"Mr. Clerk," said the Judge, "enter a verdict of 'Not Guilty.'"

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

Some months ago a party of clergymen from this country visited Russia. The official interpreters assigned to the group were atheists and proud of it.

On the last day of the visit as they were riding to the airport, one of the interpreters said to the leader of the American clergymen: "I am an atheist, but I think I must read the Bible. I pride myself on being educated. This interpreting assignment is my first contact with religion and, furthermore, I have been listening to you Americans as you talked among yourselves. I have concluded that to be educated, I must know the Bible."

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here is a profile of the typical American business executive:

He is just over 45 years of age and earns between $20,000 and $30,000 a year. He's a college graduate but wishes he had more education than he has. He has worked for his present company for 16 years and during that time has held four jobs. He puts in 12 1/2 hours a week overtime. He regards his ability to work with other people as his greatest asset. He says his chief satisfaction from his job is working with other people.

This picture is derived from a survey of 214 top and middle management executives by the American Management Association. About three-fifths of the executives hold positions ranging from heads of major departments to president. The others are heads of secondary divisions and departments.

Lydia Strong, reporting on the survey in the association's "Management Review," says that two of the executives earn more than $100,000 a year and 19 less than $10,000, with the greatest number in the $20,000 - $30,000 bracket.

AGE AND TIME FACTORS

While the level of the position held is the determining factor in earnings, both age of the executive and his length of service also seem to have a bearing. The median earnings of those under 4 are $10,000 to $15,000 a year; for those over 60 they are $40,000 to $60,000. Those earning less than $10,000 a year have been with their firm an average of 14 years while those earning more than $50,000 average 32 years of continuous service.

More than half of the executives questioned started their careers in engineering or technical fields, sales or accounting, in that order of frequency. However, those that studied law have the highest average earnings as a group.

Three out of five are still working for the company that gave them their first executive job.

EDUCATIONAL BACKGROUNDS

Three of four respondents are college graduates, one out of four has done graduate work. However, there are more college men among the younger executives. Four of five under 40 are grads; only two of five over 60 have degrees.

Curiously, more than a third of the men who got no farther than high school earn more than $40,000 a year, while a tenth of the college graduates are in that bracket. This is probably because a college education was not considered important to business careers when many of the older executives were starting their upward climb.

Of the college men, those who studied liberal arts have been more successful, both as to income and status, than the specialists, but Miss Strong notes, "It may be that related factors, such as family finances and social standing, are partly responsible." Some of the top executives, it seems, are presidents because they own the business!

CONCERNED WITH PEOPLE

The survey shows that the more an executive is paid, the longer his vacation and the longer his working day. Men earning more than $50,000 a year put in an average of 18 1/2 hours a week overtime; the average for all respondents was 12 1/2 hours a week.

Although questions were asked directly about human relations, responses to other queries disclosed that such relations play an important part in management. The ability to work with people was most frequently mentioned as the quality most needed by an executive, even above honesty and fairness; in dealings with people lie the greatest rewards — and headaches — executives frequently said; and the humanities and human relations were often given as the subjects the executives wish they had learned more about in school.

The Barb That Hurts Eisenhower Most

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The Stevenson accusation which wounds President Eisenhower deeply and personally is the suggestion that Ike is not the real boss of his official household in the aggressive and sometimes arrogant manner of Roosevelt and Truman. Ike resents the opposition's effort to depict him as "weak and indecisive."

Indeed, were it not that it would provoke hard feelings within the Cabinet and distress certain of its members, Ike could reveal many occasions when he quietly overruled many of his advisers, including such eminent associates as Secretary John Foster Dulles and George M. Humphrey, a personal friend and a frequent Presidential host at the Treasury Secretary's Georgia plantation.

PRESIDENT'S UNDERSTANDING LEADERSHIP Ike's unstinted kind of leadership is exemplified most vividly in his handling of two "difficult" men — the late General George Patton and Harold E. Stassen, the irrepressible disarmament adviser and co-ordinator.

When demands arose that Patton be court-martialed or bundled to an innocuous assignment in this country for striking a soldier, Ike resisted them because of Patton's genius as a tank cavalryman. But he forced the fiery Patton to apologize.

A Truman would have fired Stassen when he presumed to oppose Vice President Nixon's nomination in the face of clear evidence of Ike's preference. But the President believes that every man is entitled to his opinions, and tolerated Harold's clumsy and futile effort.

IKE'S MILITARY STAND Nor should it be forgotten that Eisenhower stood against former Prime Minister Churchill when he demanded an invasion of Europe through the Balkans instead of Normandy. Previously, Ike had rejected Stalin's persistent requests that Ike's Allied Army launch the second front as early as 1943.

The President's refusal to intervene with American troops in Indo-China ran against the advice of the Pentagon, a powerful State Department faction, Vice President Nixon and the Government of France. In the same crisis, Ike repudiated Secretary Dulles' announced policy of "massive retaliation."

SIDED WITH FEDERAL RESERVE AGAINST HUMPHREY In the dispute over imposing credit restrictions in a re-election year, Ike sided with the Federal Reserve against Secretary Humphrey, who feared their political and economic effects. Ike also displaced the great banking, financial and industrial interests which, so Stevenson insists, he favored over the "little people."

In fact, Harlow H. Curtice, head of General Motors, charged that "tight money" was responsible for the summer decline in automobile sales. The building industry attributed a slowdown in housing construction to the same cause.

Ike bucked Secretary Humphrey again on the question of foreign economic aid. The thrifty steel merchant thought that a bigger break should be given the taxpayers, a smart re-election stroke, by cutting this appropriation, but Eisenhower took an opposite stand. In Humphrey's corner, too, were Under-Secretary of State Herbert Hoover, Jr., his distinguished father and GOP conservatives on Capitol Hill.

EISENHOWER LETS ALL KNOW HE'S THE CHIEF Ike went counter to Ezra Taft Benson when he insisted on higher farm price supports than the Secretary of Agriculture thought necessary. He stopped Sinclair Weeks from interfering with Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell, now a White House favorite, and with the Civil Aeronautics Board, thereby antagonizing great industrial and commercial airline interests favored by the Secretary of Commerce.

These are a few reasons why Ike reverts, somewhat indignantly, that "Nobody else is running the store at Washington!"

HEAR, O ISRAEL

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Deuteronomy 6.

On the plains of Moab, after the Red Sea river crossing, Moses warns his people to be true to their God who had brought them out of bondage to take possession of the Promised Land.

The Israelites were instructed to teach the Lord's laws to their children; to talk of them in their homes, when they walked, when they laid down to sleep and when they rose in the morning.

Moses also warned his people not to forget God when they prospered in the Promised Land. They must remember to worship the Lord their God only, and not bow down before heathen idols.

In time to come, if a son asked his father about these laws and statutes, he should be told the story of their flight from Egypt, by the Lord's help.

MEMORY VERSE—Deut. 6:6-7a.

HEAR, O ISRAEL

MOSES WARNS HIS PEOPLE TO BE TRUE TO THEIR GOD AND OBEY HIS LAWS

Scripture—Deuteronomy 6.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

LAST WEEK'S LESSON was on the Ten Commandments, which gave the Jewish people the laws of moral living, which today are equally important for us all to observe, no matter to what faith we belong. Today's lesson takes us to the Plains of Moab, where, after their triumphant crossing of the Red sea, by God's "mighty hand," Moses instructs his people in keeping of these laws.

"Hear, therefore, O Israel, and observe to do it; that it may be well with thee, and that ye may increase mightily, as the Lord God of thy fathers hath promised thee in the land that floweth with milk and honey."

"Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord: And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might."

These words should be in their hearts always, Moses admonishes. They were commanded to commandments of the Lord your God, and His testimonies, and His statutes, which He hath commanded thee.

"And thou shalt do right and good in the sight of the Lord; that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest go in and possess the good land which the Lord swore unto thy fathers."

If they obeyed the Lord the Hebrews were promised long life, prosperity and power in this land to which they were drawing near. We who try to keep God's commandments may not always be prosperous in a financial sense, but we will feel rich and happy in our hearts, which is a point to be made when teaching this lesson.

When the son of the family asks his father, "What mean the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which the Lord our God hath commanded you?" then the father should tell the son of their cruel bondage in Egypt, and the way in which the Lord teach them diligently to their children; they should talk of them in their homes, and while they walked, when they laid down to rest, and when they rose next morning.

MEMORY VERSE

"And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart, and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children."—Deuteronomy 6: 6-7a.

The home, we will all agree, is the place where the law of the Lord and His statutes are best taught, and the example is set. The home is where we all spend the greater part of our daily lives. A home where there is harmony, love, understanding and obedience to the moral and spiritual laws, will have a tremendous influence on the whole family and later shape their pattern of life.

When the Hebrews grew prosperous in the land promised them, Moses warned them not to forget the Lord, their God, and not to bow down to worship man-made idols. This form of worship seems to have been a constant temptation to the ancient Hebrew people.

"Ye shall diligently keep the commandments of the Lord your God, which I command thee, that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest increase mightily, as the Lord God of thy fathers hath promised thee in the land that floweth with milk and honey."

"showed signs and wonders, great and sore, upon Egypt, upon Pharaoh, and upon all his household, before our eyes."

"And He brought us out from thence, that He might bring us in, to give us the land which He swore unto our fathers."

Ingratitude is one of the meanest of faults. After all Jehovah did for the Hebrew people, one would suppose they would always be so full of gratitude toward Him that never would they forget Him and allow themselves to worship other than He.

Even in our world in which we read of the atom bomb, wars or possible wars, crime, etc., the sun continues to rise and set in glory, the stars shine, the flowers bloom, trees and vines bear fruit and gardens produce foods for our tables. We (most of us) have relatives and friends who love us—not all, alas!—and so many blessings that surely we should thank God for them and strive diligently to obey His laws.

Women Never Interested Him

BOSTON (U)—Charles W. Thierly, who will be 106 years old on Oct. 25, says his good health could be attributed to his lack of interest in women.

The white whiskered bachelor said women are just as beautiful today as they were in the last century, but he added: "I never paid much attention to them. Marriage is not for me."

Universalists Of N. C. Hold 51st Convention

The Universalist Convention of North Carolina, Inc., closed its fifty-first annual convention Sunday at the Ned Hill Universalist Church with a sermon by the Rev. Norman Sparbell who used as his subject "Are We Christians?"

"If Jesus were here today," Mr. Sparbell said "He would probably retell the story of the Good Samaritan and say with added weight of emphasis 'Go thou and do like wise'. He would probably add that a religious movement should be based upon a way of life and if the churches of the world are to unite they might well unite on a purpose."

"Jesus was never a Christian. He was a Jewish prophet upon whose life and work Christianity was partly founded. Universalists believe with Jesus that God is spirit and that truth never binds men's minds but sets them free. We believe that 'by their fruits ye shall know them," the speaker said. Special feature of the convention was the presentation of a citation for service award to John S. Williams who has served on the board of trustees in the various offices continuously during the past fifty years.

During the Saturday session Mrs. Margaret O. Sutton, retiring president, stated "A man's faith is what he lives by, not what he says" while the new president proclaimed "Love is the doctrine of this church."

In the occasional sermon Dr. F. B. Bishop, state superintendent of the Universalists Churches, told his congregation "A church is not made strong by a pot of gold at the end of a rainbow but by the love, faith, courage and enthusiasm in the hearts of the men and the women who aspire to our cause."

Officers for the next convention to be held in Winston are: Horace Ward of Rose Hill, president; Mrs. Margaret O. Sutton of Mount Olive, 1st vice president; C. C. Tart of Clinton, 2nd vice president; Robert Rouse of Kinston, 3rd vice president; Mrs. Clara Wilkins of Rose Hill, secretary; Mr. J. R. Miller of Rocky Mount, treasurer; John E. Williams of Fayetteville, Mrs. L. M. Nash of Kinston, and Cleo Outlaw of Seven Springs, trustees.

Dr. A. D. Bell of Rocky Mount, Mrs. H. A. McCullen of Clinton, and Mrs. Clara Wilkins of Rose Hill, are on the fellowship committee.

Antarctic Crash Kills Navy Fliers

WASHINGTON (U)—A Navy plane carrying advance units of this year's South Polar expedition crashed on the antarctic ice shelf yesterday, killing three men and injuring five others, three critically.

The Navy here said six other planes landed safely after the 2,250-mile flight from New Zealand to McMurdo Sound.

All were carrying advance units of scientific expedition to the antarctic area for work in connection with the International Geophysical Year, in which many nations are sharing their scientific discoveries.

Additional flights from New Zealand were halted temporarily by a white-out blizzard, one of the antarctic's worst features.

The Navy listed the dead as Lt. David M. Carey, the plane's pilot, of White Plains, N.Y.; Aviation Machinist Mate J.C. Marion O. Marze, Waxham, N.C.; and Aviation Electronic Technician Charles S. Miller, Providence, R.I.

Two of the men critically injured in the crash had been aboard a Navy patrol bomber which crash-landed in Venezuela last February while heading for emergency rescue work in the antarctic.

They are Marine Capt. Rayburn A. Hudman of Saunderson, R.I., and Marine Sgt. Robert C. Spann of Eggertsville, N.Y. They and six others were rescued from the Venezuelan jungle clearing by helicopter.

The Reflector offers its apologies to Mr. Case and others for any embarrassment the error might have caused.

GHS Invades New Bern Stadium Tonite

Bears Rated To Drop Locals By 4 Touchdowns

New Bern's Bears, rated a four touchdown favorite in tonight's Northeastern Conference tilt, will play host to Greenville in the New Bern Stadium.

Coach Sam Arbes, starting his first season as head mentor of the Bears, has opened up with a tremendous team and one that is in the thick of the loop title race. Boasting a 210 pound line and a backfield that is fast as well as big, the Big Red have fought their way into a tie with Washington for the conference lead. They have posted a 3-0-1 record in loop play, downing Elizabeth City, Roanoke Rapids and Jacksonville, and tying Washington 0-0. They have yet to be defeated in Northeastern circles.

Straight T Attack

Both Greenville and the host club will be operating from the straight T formation and will depend upon good running. Coach Guy Lewis' G-Men will be expected to use the throwing arm of Junior quarterback Mack Roebuck quite a bit, however, if the Phantom attack fails through.

Leading the locals on the ground will be All-Conference halfback Billy Sermons, a 170 pound power runner. He has paced the team in running throughout the year and is currently running at a 9.1 yards per carry clip.

Sermons, Jimmy Kelly, Robert Howell and Robin Wilfong are all expected to assume pass-receiving duties as well as backfield roles against the Bears. Ends Ed Wilkerson, Robert Conway and Billy Cox figure to see plenty of action in the receiving department also.

New Bern, with their big line, is expected to run on brute force, as they have against their previous opponents. Johnny Hogan, quarterback, will direct the attack and is a possible passing threat.

The contest is scheduled to begin at 8:00 tonight.

Gil Turner Goes Before Cameras As 3-1 Underdog

NEW YORK (P)—Crowd-pleasing Gil Turner, who has made almost as many television appearances as Rin Tin Tin, fights in front of the cameras again tonight as a 3-1 underdog against streaking Joey Giambra.

This could be the last video shot in a long time for the 26-year-old Turner unless he finds his way back on the winning path. The muscular Philadelphia dropped his last three fights and his fighting has plummeted.

Gil has had some 30 TV shots and usually pleased the fans with his windmill attack. Lately the 133-pounder has shown a tendency to tire about the eighth round. The onetime welterweight and middleweight contender may be nearing the end of the trail although his 50-13-1 record is a good one.

Giambra, a handsome, dark-haired, 25-year-old boxer-outrigger, has won four straight in a drive to get back with the middleweight elite and earn a shot at the title.

Once the No. 3 contender, the tall Buffalo left hooker has moved into the No. 10 spot on the strength of his victorious over Al Andrews, Johnny Sullivan (twice), and Rocky Castellani this year. His record is 45-4-1, including 24 kayos.

NBC will broadcast and telecast at 9 p.m., EST.

Morris Harvey Slight Favorite Over ECC Club

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

When Morris Harvey invades College Stadium tomorrow night for an inter-sectional contest with the East Carolina Pirates, they will be slight favorites to top the locals.

Having lost only two early-season games, the MH crew are rated one of the small college powers in the East and boast a strong close T ground attack. Most observers rank the visitors from West Virginia one touchdown better than the Buccaneers.

Greenville Boys
Two Greenville boys will be in starting berths for the battle in the Pirate backfield. Junior Bobby Perry and Sophomore James Speight, both former standouts at Greenville high school, will handle first unit halfback slots. Both boys earned All-Star honors as high school gridirers and were noted as fast, slippery runners.

A major shift in the backfield, indicates that Coach Jack Boone will be aiming for a break-away running attack to match the Morris Harvey assault. He stated this

Micro Races To Be Host To The Scouts Sunday

The Cub Scouts of Greenville's white and colored cub packs will be the guests of the Pitt County Mental Health Association and the Greenville Micro Midget Racing Club Sunday afternoon at 2:00 for this week's four racing events which will total 80 laps. The cubs will be receiving recognition for having reached their pack quotas in this year's recruiting roundup.

These races ending in a 40 lap main event are being sponsored by the Mental Health Association as part of their annual fund drive. The proceeds will go to operate the Pitt County Mental clinic which is the only full time psychiatric clinic in Eastern Carolina.

Many prominent Pitt County business firms are offering gate prizes for this event. These prizes amount to approximately $200. They are as follows: United Glass and Top Works ($35 toward auto seat covers or glass), Wagner-Waldrop (free wash and grease job), Hotel Service Station (free oil change), Farrow Body Works (free auto front end alignment and wheel balance), Carl Adams Garage (complete auto radiator cleaning), Leggett's Texaco Service (auto wash and grease), Central Service Station (10 gallons high test gas), Cox Armature Works ($5 in trade), Greenville Micro Midget Club (10 cash), Kloc Distributors (10 gallons hi-test gas), Pollard's Slaughter House (10 lbs. pork chops), Bright Leaf Motors (auto motor tune-up), Olde Towne Inn (2 steak dinners), Bates Texaco Station, Grifton (10 gallons gas), Scott Motor Sales (tire recap), George Pugh Shell Station (auto wash and grease), Heath's Restaurant (4 barbecue dinners), Avery Gulf Service (auto wash and grease), Dave & Nick Garage (motor tune-up).

morning that either "George Slaughter or Bobby Gay will work at fullback in the place of Bob Maynard." Both Slaughter and Gay are, like Perry and Speight, fast and shifty runners, but the main objective in their use, according to Boone, will be "to give us a little more punting power."

Boone said that ECC punting has been weak and both Slaughter and Gay can kick well.

Gary Matlocks, the newly-discovered Buc sparkplug at quarterback, will again handle signal-calling duties, and is expected to direct a strict running game from the close T formation. Although an excellent passer, Matlocks will call a ground game for the most part, according to Boone.

Brooks, Emory Back
Starting for the first time since the VPI encounter, will be first unit linemen Edward Emory and Jerry Brooks. Both boys received bad knee injuries in the Tech game and have been on the injured list throughout most of the year. Brooks, a 230 pound senior, will be back at his regular left tackle post. Emory, a freshman import from South Carolina, who weighs 210, will work as a guard.

Two boys, Bill Helms and Charlie Hoover, who were injured last week against Western Carolina, will definitely be out. Boone remarked today. Helms is an end and Hoover a guard. Another key end, Ruell Edwards, a freshman from Georgia, suffered a hip injury in practice this week and is also expected to sit out tomorrow's tilt. Waverly Chesson, a center, is still out, also with a leg trouble.

Handling the end slot left open by Edwards and Helms, will probably be either Tommy Waggoner or Tommy Jones along with Ray Pennington. The tackles will be Larry Howell and Brooks. Bucky Dennis may or may not see action as a tackle. He was injured in the WCC fracas. Guards will be Emory and Dick Monds. Jim Faircloth will run at center.

Coach Boone's boys will be out to improve their present 2-3 record. A victory tomorrow night would even things up and give the Bucs a .500 ball club.

Game time is set for 8:00.

Ferguson Leads US Fighters To Olympic Finals

By ROBERT I. MYERS
SAN FRANCISCO (P)—Classy Vince Ferguson of New York, winner of 52 straight fights, goes after two more tonight as he leads the United States' finest amateur boxers into the final phase of their Olympic trials.

Ferguson, 18-year-old NCAA light middleweight champ from Wisconsin, was one of five collegiate titlists to advance to the semifinals of the three-day Olympics slugfest. A sixth NCAA representative, Choklen Markowa, Michigan State bantamweight from Hawaii, goes into the final against Dave Abeyta of Idaho State, a Western regional winner. Vince uncorked a dazzling array of crosses and counterpunches to stop Air Force champion Dave Smith of Seattle in the third round. Ferguson floored the rangy Smith with a right cross on the jaw and hit him twice more in the stomach. Then the bout was halted.

The original field of 105 was trimmed to 30 for 10 semifinal and 10 final fights to select the United States boxers for the Olympic Games at Melbourne, Australia, next month.

Middleweight Paul Wright of Flint, Mich., interservice and AAU winner, punched out a three-round victory over Ed Hawkins, a fellow Air Force boxer, last night.

Eppes Meets Dillard Here

Eppes High School plays host to with the visiting team favored by Dillard, of Goldsboro, tonight at two touchdowns.

Guy Smith Stadium, in the Bulldog Homecoming game of the year, Coach Percy Daniels' locals will go into the AAA Conference tilt.

Mont To Get Chance

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (P)—It's week are anxious to beat him. Tommy Mont's turn tomorrow to make Jim Tatum feel like a father being shown up by his sons.

Mont is the third former assistant coach of Tatum's to send a football team against him this season. Into the bargain, Mont is taking to Chapel Hill, N.C., the Maryland squad that Tatum left to coach North Carolina.

It will be Dad's Day fittingly enough. The first two of his former aides to meet the master this season have helped make life miserable for Tatum. Warren Giese, his right-hand at Maryland, went to South Carolina and coached it to a 14-0 victory over North Carolina. Bud Wilkinson at Oklahoma did it to the tune of 36-0.

Asked what the feeling was over the prospect of opposing Tatum, Mont said:

"The Maryland players this with several key players injured and shuffled offensive and defensive squads. This is one of the factors in the underdog role for the Bulldogs. Another point in favor of the Dillard team, is the fact that they have lost only one game throughout the season, a 14-13 battle to powerful Kinston.

Leading the Homecoming assault against Dillard, will be freshman Eppes quarterback Virgil Lynch, a shifty runner and fine ball-handler. He will call play signals and direct the well-advanced Eppes ground attack and do whatever passing the locals may attempt.

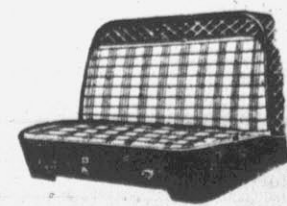

Missing for the lineup tonight, will be a star halfback, Joe Baker, who will be out for two weeks with a bad muscle injury. Baker has been the top breakaway runner of the season for Eppes, and Daniels has said that his loss "hurt us quite a bit." Joe Tyson, center, another standout during the past few games, will also be out of action, due to an ankle injury.

Back in the lineup after some time, due to injury, will be Joe Jenkins. He will assume one of the halfback slots. William Teel, a regular lineman, has been shifted to end, to take up some of the slack in the line, due to the absence of Jenkins' power in the middle. He will work mostly on defense. The contest will be a conference affair and is a "must" game for the locals. Their loop record at the present time stands at 1-3. Game time is 8:00.

THE BLONDE DIED DANCING

by KELLEY ROOS

CHAPTER 26

Steve and I were walking toward Ninth Avenue when, prompted by the time of day, an unpleasant thought stopped me in my tracks. I told Steve about it about my session at the studio with Wendell Kipp, his threat to expose my masquerade as Hester Frost, dancing teacher.

Steve said, "You really think he'd go to Bell about you, Connie?"

"I don't know. But if he did, Mr. Bell would tell Mr. Bolling . . . and when Mr. Bolling caught up to me . . . I'd rather not think about that."

"It could be embarrassing." "Only embarrassing? Don't comfort me. It would tip off Bolling that you were the Waltzer, that's all. I'd better keep my date with Kipp."

"I don't like his attitude toward women."

"Steve, it's only a cocktail date. I'll be safe. You know the Wellington bar . . . it's so respectable, dull even."

"Gee, kid! I hope you won't be bored!"

"Now, don't be . . . Steve, I might be able to find out something about Kipp. And maybe about Anita and Stubbs."

"I'm going to find out about Stubbs. From Harriet."

"You're going to stay around here?"

"I'll research the bars for Harriet and Mrs. Zeigler. If I don't find them, I'll wait outside their rooming house for them."

"Listen, after my date with Kipp."

"Let's call it an appointment with Kipp."

"I have to go back to the school. I've got to teach tonight to keep Mr. Bell off my neck."

"All right. If I'm not home, I'll still be here."

"See you at home or here. Steve . . . control yourself now. Don't come down to the Wellington. If Kipp sees you again . . ."

"I'll control myself. And listen, you drink ginger ale! Don't let Kipp get you loaded. You just make sure you can remember everything tomorrow morning."

"Gee, kid! I hope you won't

God, what murder can make a man do! I'm throwing you to the wolves!"

"Just one: Do I look all right?"

"Damn it! You want to look all right!"

"No, but . . . do I?"

"You look too good! Don't try so hard! Look, Connie, if that guy so much as lays a finger on you . . ."

"He won't. I've learned a thing or two lately. You punch him in the stomach, being careful to avoid his belt buckle."

"What?"

"So long, darling. Don't worry."

"I was quite a bit late for my date. It was almost five-thirty when I got to Washington Square and the Wellington. It was a se-date old apartment hotel. It's cocktail lounge had white linen on the tables, and a headwater. He met me at the doorway."

"I said, 'I'm meeting Mr. Wendell Kipp here.'"

"You're Miss Frost?"

"Why, yes."

"I have a message for you from Mr. Kipp."

"Oh," I said hopefully, "he can't make it."

"Well, he's had to change his plans. He wants you to join him in his apartment. It's 12C. The elevator's in the rear of the lobby."

"Oh . . . thank you."

"I stood irresolutely in the lobby for a moment. Then I stopped being silly. After all, I was a big girl, I could take care of myself. Then, too, I shouldn't be so selfish. I was doing this for my husband."

"I got into the elevator."

Wendell Kipp opened the door of apartment 12C. I was slightly taken aback by him. He wasn't at all the hideous ogre that my fears had twisted him into. Actually, he was quite attractive. His eyes . . . there was a softness about them that was warming. And the flattery in his welcoming smile was rather charming.

"Come in, Hester," he said, and I noticed for the first time how deep and pleasantly masculine his voice was. "So nice to see you, come in."

"Well, now that I'm here, I might as well."

He closed the door after me.

He didn't lock it and put the key in his pocket. But then it wasn't that kind of a door.

"May I take your coat and things?"

"Well, my coat."

He helped me off with it. He didn't breathe down the back of my neck. He led me out of the foyer into a large living room. There was a fire burning in the white fireplace. It was a cozy fire, but there were no burning candles. The room was brightly lighted with electricity. There was no exotic incense. The room smelled faintly of Bab-O.

He was saying, "Sorry to change our plans, but I'm afraid I mustn't leave the apartment."

"Have you been a bad little boy?"

He laughed delightedly, and for the first time I realized that Wendell had a gaiety about him, a sense of humor. I could feel myself relaxing.

"No," he said, "I've been an angel. It's my wife . . . oh, no, don't be alarmed. She isn't here. She flew to Florida this morning for the week end and I'm expecting a call from her. I thought I'd better be here. Won't you sit down?"

"In a moment . . . what a lovely room!"

"Thank you. What would you like to drink?"

"Ginger ale."

"Ginger . . . ale? Are you serious? I thought people just used ginger ale to baste baked hams."

I laughed delightedly . . . and for the first time I realized that Wendell had a wit all his own. I sat down on a large, lush sofa. It was so very comfortable, heavenly, lovely. I relaxed some more.

"We'll have old fashioned Scotch old fashioned."

"Nice," I said.

But I surreptitiously watched him mix the drinks. He didn't put any drops of anything in mine that he didn't put in his. It was a delicious cocktail. One sip and I knew I wanted another one.

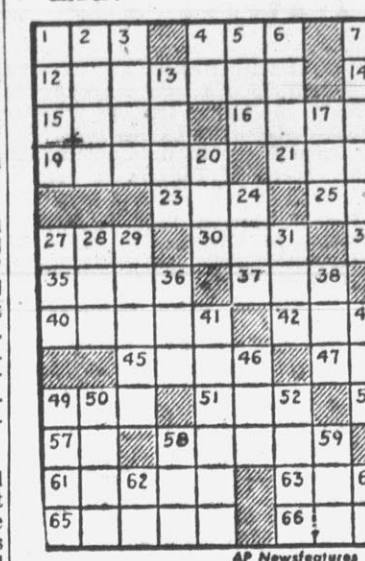

"Some music?" Wendell indicated a stunning record player-radio-television set. "I have all of Gershwin."

"Oh, yes!" I said. "Play all of Gershwin."

For a moment then the two of us, without feeling the nervous compulsion of strangers to talk to each other, just sat together listening to Gershwin, sipping our drinks. Wendell smiled at me, a surprisingly shy, disarming smile.

"Harry?" he asked.

"Mmmmm," I said.

"Is that lamp too bright for you?"

"A little," I said.

Thoughtfully, he snapped it off, and the fire in the new softness of the room's light seemed to extend its comfort toward us, enfold us.

"Well, yes."

"Wendell!" I said, truly amazed. Each moment I was unearthing another facet of this fascinating man's character. He was artistic, and he was modest. "Wendell,

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralls and steels were actively traded as the stock market moved higher early this afternoon.

Pivotal stocks gained fractions to a point in the briskest turnover this week although volume still remained below par for the year.

The market was slightly higher from the start. It improved as trading interest became livelier.

There were heavy transactions in Bethlehem Steel, New York Central and Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton, all well on the upside.

Although steel company earnings were off from a year ago due to the strike, the industry outlook was for a strong recovery in the fourth quarter and investors reflected this feeling. Interest was spurred in the rails as their carloadings this year continued to beat the 1955 totals.

Bethlehem Steel, New York Central and Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton were all up around a point or so. Youngstown Sheet & Tube was up well over a point as its dividend record surpassed last year. Republic Steel gained fractionally.

Among other rails, Atlantic Coast Line was up about a point

Service Station Manager Rocked By Elvis Presley

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A service station manager sported a beautiful black eye today, souvenir of a brisk fist fight with Elvis (The Pelvis) Presley, the teen-agers' rock 'n' roll idol.

The fistfight flared yesterday when station manager Ed Hopper became irate because a crowd drawn by Presley and his $10,000 car was blocking business at the gas pumps.

Presley, 21, Hopper, 42, and a late comer to the fight, station attendant Aubrey Brown, 21, were free in $2 bonds, all charged with assault and battery and disorderly conduct.

Asst. Police Chief Bruns McCarrall said officers already on the scene broke up the fight and reported that Hopper was trying to unlimber a small pocket knife at the time.

Three Cars In Traffic Mishap This Morning

Property damage amounted to $375 in a three-car collision this morning on Boyd Avenue.

All three cars were going in the same direction on the avenue. Jessie Williams, Negro, 33, 207 Cadillac Avenue, told police that he didn't realize the car in front of him, driven by A. L. Teel, Negro, 18, 714 Vanderbilt Avenue, was slowing down and he hit it.

Lt. J. W. Piver and Patrolman John Kerr, investigating police officers, in their wreck complaint, stated after Teel was struck he tried to turn out of the way of the car in front of him but couldn't make it. His car hit the left rear fender of the car in front, driven by KBC officer H. B. Lilley. Lilley said he was just before making a right-hand turn onto Myrtle Avenue.

Teel's car was damaged front and back. Damage was estimated at $250. Damage to Williams' vehicle was estimated at $100. Lilley's car was the least damaged—$25. There were no personal injuries. The investigation is incomplete.
