Adlai Says Ike Erred In Rejecting Proposal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Adlai Stevenson said yesterday President Eisenhower erred in rejecting the latest Russian proposal for an agreement on ending nuclear tests.

In another development of the fast-closing presidential campaign the White House said Eisenhower will undergo a top-toe physical examination Saturday, with results to be made public not later than Monday.

Eisenhower said in August he planned a pre-election test of his health and would report promptly to the people if it showed him unfit for a second term.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen Eisenhower's health is "fine" right now.

Meanwhile, debate raged on in the wake of the Russian proposal for an agreement to end nuclear tests — a proposal already wedged firmly into the U.S. political campaign.

Eisenhower denounced the Bulgarian note Sunday as an attempt to meddle in U.S. internal affairs and a violation of usual diplomatic procedures.

Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, said he shared Eisenhower's "resentment at the manner and timing" of the Soviet message, but the American reply was "unfortunate." "The real issue is not Mr. Bulganin's manners or Russian views about American politics," Stevenson said, but what can be done "to save the world from hydrogen disaster."

Stevenson was expected to expand yesterday's statement in a nationwide radio-TV speech from New York tonight.

Time: 8 p.m., EST. The administration has taken the position that a test ban agreement would be worthless without a foolproof mutual inspection system. Democrats have maintained tests could be ended without damaging U.S. security or retarding research.

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) said last night Stevenson "has created a situation by his stand on ending H-bomb testing which has, by his own admission, permitted Soviet Premier Bulganin to 'interfere' in the current American election campaign."

Stevenson's vice presidential running mate, Sen. Estes Kefauver, said in Rock Springs, Wyo., Democrats will take whatever political risk is involved in going along with the Russians or any other atomic power on an end to atomic testing.

Anti-Red Demonstrations Reported In Polish Cities

Rebels Start Fights In French Algeria

ALGIERS (AP)—Angry demonstrators clashed with police in Tunis today and unrest spread elsewhere in North Africa in the wake of the surprise arrest of five top Algerian rebels by the French.

Hope dimmed for a "Peace in Algeria" meeting in Tunis being convened by Sultan Mohammed V of Morocco and Tunisian Premier Habib Bourguiba. The Sultan was considering returning immediately to Rabat.

Several hundred students ran through the streets of Casablanca waving the green flag of the Algerian rebellion and shouting for "free Algeria." Another crowd gathered in front of the French embassy shouting rebel slogans.

Labor leaders called general protest strikes in Tunis and Casablanca. Crowds in Tunis were described as in an ugly mood. Frenchmen were reported fearful of outbreaks of violence directed at them. Tunisian mounted police clashed with the demonstrators as they tried to march on government buildings.

The five captured rebel leaders were held incommunicado in Algiers. French sources said they were questioned throughout the night.

Security measures were stepped up throughout Algeria in expectation of rebel reprisals.

Tunisian Crowds Protest Action

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP)—Crowds aroused over the French arrest of five Algerian rebel leaders, tried to storm government buildings in Tunis today. Union leaders staged a general protest strike.

The demonstrators clashed with mounted police and National Guardsmen called out to protect public buildings and the French embassy here.

Police turned back several thousand screaming demonstrators as they tried to march on government buildings as word of the Algerian arrests spread.

There were no immediate reports of casualties, but the crowd was reported in an ugly mood over the French action.

The French embassy was so heavily guarded it was difficult for employees to enter.

As the strike call went out, steel shutters began to clang down on stores throughout the city. Arab crowds were reported congregating on the outskirts of the city.

The European sections of the city remained calm, but few persons ventured into the streets.

Morocco's Sultan Mohammed V who arrived here only yesterday for the planned "Peace in Algeria talks" with Premier Habib Bourguiba had to make a quick switch to what was virtually a council of war.

Plans for wild celebrating which greeted Mohammed's arrival changed to an atmosphere of sullen waiting for something to happen.

ASC Officials Being Chosen

Pitt County farmers today are choosing the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation farmer-committee for the county's 22 agricultural communities.

The polls will remain open until 6 o'clock tonight and results are expected to be available tomorrow. Farmers will pick three regular committee members and two alternates in each community. The person receiving the highest vote will serve as chairman and as a delegate to the county convention on Thursday when county ASC committees will be chosen.

Horace Godfrey, state ASC administrative officer, said this morning that committee members "render a very important service" in the functioning of price support, acreage allotment and marketing quota, conservation and soil bank programs.

ASC county and community committees will take office Nov. 1.

By COLIN FROST WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Wild anti-Russian demonstrations were reported from three major Polish cities today.

Angry crowds in Wroclaw, the former German city of Breslau, stormed the headquarters of the Polish-Russian Friendship Society and tore down and trampled on Soviet flags.

A Western eyewitness said the crowds yelled, "Rokossovsky to Siberia!" and, "Tell the truth about the Katyn murders!"

Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky, a Soviet Red army hero of World War II, is the Polish defense minister who was ousted Sunday from the United Workers (Communist) party politburo in a purge of Stalinists.

The Katyn Forest was the scene of the machine gunning of 10,000 Polish officers in 1940, before Russia entered the World War. The Russians, who had moved in to occupy eastern Poland, denied Western charges they did the killing.

Similar demonstrations were reported from Stettin and the university city of Krakow. All three towns are near the Polish border with Communist East Germany.

The demonstrations came as Parliament was called into session here amid public celebration of the nation's newly proclaimed independent course. A government shakeup appeared imminent.

The Western witness said the Wroclaw demonstrations started with a meeting in the city's university and an orderly parade through the town.

The meeting acclaimed resolutions supporting the new leadership of the Polish Communist party and demanding more democracy.

Then, with banners and torches the march through town started. Thousands of cheering Poles lined the streets to watch. People poured out of restaurants and homes to join the march. Polish flags were hung from windows.

Crowds Scoop Spilled Gasoline

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP)—A gasoline transport truck overturned near here today and scores of motorists congregated to dip up premium gasoline as it leaked into a roadside ditch.

One man showed up with a truck and four 55-gallon barrels, which he promptly filled.

Firemen stopped by apprehensively, trying to guard against an accidental explosion.

The transport was owned by Southern Oil Transport of High Point and was driven by Ralph Julius Clayton, 38, of Rt. 6, Greensboro. He said he swerved into the ditch at the intersection of N.C. 87 and 100 at Glen Raven to avoid colliding with an automobile.

Clayton suffered a shoulder injury. He was treated at a Burlington hospital and was transferred to a Greensboro hospital.

Company representatives said the truck contained 5,800 gallons of gasoline. They estimated that about one-half of it would run out. The truck overturned about 6:45 a.m., and four hours later some 50 persons were clustered around it scooping up high test.

Kefauver Says Bank Used To Buy Votes

WATERLOO, Iowa (AP)—Sen. Estes Kefauver accused the Eisenhower administration today of using the farm soil bank program for political purposes.

"The soil bank is being cut and trimmed to fit the political needs of the Eisenhower administration," he said in a speech prepared for delivery at a fair grounds farm-labor gathering here.

"Very little of the money is going to states that are considered sure to go Democratic. Not much more of it is going to states that are considered safely Republican. The money is being spent in states where Republicans are in the most serious political trouble — states like Iowa. One fifth of the whole national total that is being spent on the soil bank this year is going into Iowa."

Kefauver hit out at apportioning of federal soil bank funds in a speech prepared for AFL-CIO labor groups and members of the National Farmers Organization.

The soil bank, enacted this year by Congress, authorizes payment of more than a billion dollars to farmers who agree to reduce plantings of surplus crops or place a percentage of the acreage into a soil reserve.

Kefauver backtracked his campaign trail into Iowa today in a new quest of the Corn Belt vote. He visited the Des Moines area Oct. 12 and this time scheduled visits at Waterloo and Mason City.

Chesterfield Loses:

Payton Gets 18 Months

"You've been in my court many times and you've been very lucky. Haven't you, Chesterfield?"

Judge Chester R. Morris, presiding over the October mixed term of Pitt County Superior Court said that to Chesterfield Payton, 41-year-old Negro of Grifton, Route 1, Payton was facing a charge of "assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill." He pled guilty only to "assault with a deadly weapon," which was accepted by Solicitor Robert D. Rouse Jr.

In reply to the judge's question, Payton answered: "Yes, sir, I have been lucky." "You've been a right good lawyer," said Judge Morris "but it looks like we're going to have to part company now."

"Yes, sir, I figured that," said the small Negro man who has closed to a score of convictions dating back more than 20 years. In many of these cases he had defended himself, and reports say he had done a creditable job.

"Guilty," said Judge Morris. "Eighteen months on the roads. He's in your custody, sheriff." The Payton case was not all that happened in yesterday's ses-

Scout Council Elects Officers

New officers for the Pitt district of the East Carolina Council of the Boy Scouts of America were elected at the October meeting held Monday night at Jarvis Memorial Methodist church in Greenville. The officers will serve during 1957.

Erskine Duff, Greenville business and civic leader, was elected to succeed F. D. Duncan as Pitt district chairman. Duncan has held the chairmanship for two years.

Two vice chairmen Wilbur C. Ormond of Ayden and W. R. Hunslett of Bethel, and John Behr, commissioner, were also elected. Behr has been commissioner for the past two years.

Members-at-large were nominated and will be announced later. Ercell S. Webb headed the nominating committee.

Jim Mallory, chairman of Camping and Activity Committee, reported on advance registration for the 1957 Valley Forge Jamboree and announced that the annual Pitt District Scout dinner will be held at the Moose Lodge on November 28.

Ayden, Bethel and Farmville were cited by Chairman J. B. Kittrell Jr. of the district Finance committee for work in attaining the goal set for their areas. Bethel has exceeded its quota in the current finance campaign, Kittrell said.

Field Executive Carl Knott closed the meeting with announcement of a number of Scout activities.

No charges were brought in connection with the accident, Jenkins said.

Predicts Adlai To Be Moderate

COLUMBIA (AP)—The chairman of the South Carolina Democratic party maintains that Democratic presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson would take a "moderate" attitude toward the integration issue if elected.

Neville Bennett of Clio reiterated yesterday he has been assured "indirectly" that the South would have "nothing to fear" from Stevenson on the civil rights question.

Bennett had said during a Sept. 24 interview on a Columbia television station (WIS-TV) that "through a very prominent Southern governor at the Democratic national convention I got the assurance I wanted . . . that we had nothing to fear in case Mr. Stevenson were elected."

However, he told the Associated Press yesterday:

"Numerous Southern governors, one of whom was Gov. (Luther) Hodges of North Carolina, interviewed Mr. Stevenson during his campaign for the nomination, and the fact that Gov. Hodges and others supported him obviously means they were satisfied with their conversations."

Told that Stevenson had no comment on his original statement about the candidate's "moderate" views, Bennett replied:

"Well, he wouldn't know anything about it. I received my information from men who simply had talked to him for their own satisfaction."

Lady Of New Manse Finds It A Joy To Keep

By ANNETTE JACKSON
Reflector Woman's Editor
Fixing for the preacher cuts no ice with Mrs. Tom Davis. She's been surrounded with them practically all her life.

She grew up as the daughter of a minister, married one and has a brother who is also now pastor of Wilson's First Presbyterian Church—so when it comes to men of the cloth she should be something of an authority.

She reports she's happily able to accommodate her church guests now in a manner that borders on the elegant—with guarantee of a private bath. This came about as a result of her husband's position as General Secretary of Albemarle Presbytery and her consequent promotion as first lady of the Presbytery's spanking new manse.

Occupy New Manse
The Davis family came to Greenville in February, the Rev. Mr. Davis to take over his duties as co-ordinator of Presbytery work. The new manse which the Presbytery was building on Oak Street not yet completed, the family stopped over in the Presbytery's old manse on the corner of Co-tanche and Tenth.

May 1 came as moving day for them, however, says Mrs. Davis of her new quarters. "This is about the nicest manse I've ever seen."

The shiny new home boasts four rooms and a bath downstairs plus four bedrooms upstairs and two baths. For the Presbytery Secretary's family, including four youngsters, it provides ample room plus a little left over for entertaining out-of-town guests.

Extra Pot On Sunday
Coming from New Orleans where the Rev. Mr. Davis was pastor of Canal Street Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Davis recalls she always put on an extra pot for Sunday lunch.

"We had visitors at church there from all over the world and I made it a point to be ready on Sunday for a guest or guests," she says.

"Once we had a Britisher in our home who was making a study of chemical plants in the U. S. and ours was the only American home in which he visited. We corresponded for a good while after he returned home and received a box of candies from him the first year England was off sugar-rationing."

Another interesting visitor who had was a Mexican doctor who could read and write English but could not understand it. He came to church on Sunday—even so simply because he had been steeped in the tradition that "it was the thing to do."

Mrs. Davis brought him home and arranged to have a Spanish-speaking student on hand to do the translating. Says she, "His sense of humor was delightful and we all enjoyed his visit."

Hospitality Comes North
Now that the Davises' hospitality has been moved North and thanks to the Presbytery—they have a house adequate for entertaining, they're doing so on something like a sizable scale.

Ministers happen to be their most frequent guests—and they are not particular about their individual denominational brands. They had Methodists as guests during their conference, have now opened their home to the Presbyterians who are gathering for their meeting here today and tomorrow and expect to play host to some Christian guests around their conference time.

Of Church Tradition
Mrs. Davis is well-grounded in the work of the church. She talks about it as freely and authoritatively as her husband.

LADY OF THE MANSE—Mrs. Tom Davis, wife of the General Secretary of Albemarle Presbytery, makes a hospitable hostess for the Presbytery's Manse located at 610 Oak Avenue. Completed in May, the Manse provides adequate room for the Davis family plus out-of-town visitors who drop in frequently. The daughter, sister and husband of ministers, Mrs. Davis is quite an authority on making men of the cloth comfortable. (Reflector Photo by Annette Jackson).

Her father was the late R. Murphy Williams Jr., first pastor of the Church of the Covenant of that city. His death last year was mourned by thousands who revered him as one of the leaders in his church and one of the most distinguished ministers of Greensboro.

Mrs. Davis' brother, R. Murphy Williams Jr., is pastor of Wilson's First Presbyterian Church. He is, like his father before him, recognized as one of his city's leaders and a popular minister throughout this area.

With a family background of church service, Mrs. Davis falls easily into her role as wife of the Presbytery's General Secretary.

At the local Presbyterian church, she serves as teacher of the Pioneers and does some of the church's secretarial work. She also headed the General Fund committee of the church women last year.

Her youngsters—Dorothy, 15, Mac, 11, Martha Murphy, 8, and Leslie, 5—occupy a good deal of her time. She laughs that she has three PTA's to attend.

She and the children are members of the First Presbyterian Church here. Her husband, because of the nature of his work, is away from home on most Sundays and frequently gets in late each night, so Mama takes the children to church.

Mrs. Davis was graduated from Woman's College and has done work at Assembly Training School.

Before her marriage she served here she will attend many of the sessions and renew friendships while making many more—and then of course entertain her guests at "their" house.

During the meeting of the Women of Albemarle Presbytery

FAMILY PORTRAIT—The Rev. Thomas M. Davis and his family pose for a family portrait. The Rev. Mr. Davis, General Secretary of Albemarle Presbytery, assumed his duties here February 1. He is a former pastor of Canal Street Presbyterian Church, New Orleans, La.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered by the Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Leonard W. Topping, and the Session of the Church.

Delegates representing 53 Churches in 22 counties will register tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at the Church. President, Mrs. Moore will call the meeting to order at 10 o'clock.

Births
Krier
Born to Mr. and Mrs. Don Krier of Miami, Fla., a son, on October 18. Mrs. Krier is the former Barbara James of Norfolk, Va. and Greenville.

You'll need about three table-spoons of fat in which to brown a four-pound rolled beef pot roast.

Board Meet Opens Session
The initial session of the 58th annual meeting of the Women of the Church of Albemarle Presbytery opened this afternoon with a meeting of the Presbyterial Executive Board at 4 p.m.

The Executive Board will have dinner at the First Presbyterian Church, Greenville, this evening followed by the evening session beginning at 7:45 p.m. at the church.

Mrs. George B. Moore of Tarboro, president, will preside over the evening meeting which will feature Sheldon F. Koesy, professor of Bible, Presbyterian Junior College, Maxton.

During the week she will be the guest of the First Baptist Church of Havelock, of which the Rev. J. M. Flowers is pastor.

These churches along with about 35 others are having a School of Missions which will include mission speakers from overseas, from various homeland fields in the Southern Baptist Convention and from various areas of state missions which will include mission speakers from overseas, and from various areas of state mission work in North Carolina.

The Rev. Guthrie Colvard, Associational Missionary of the Atlantic Association, New Bern, has charge of arranging the School.

You'll need to mix about 1-4 cup of minced parsley with 1/2 cup butter if you're planning to use the mixture as a spread for sandwiches. Fill the sandwiches with cold sliced chicken or ham.

Miss Peggy Griffin of Columbia, N. C., sang two numbers, "Sapphic Ode," by Johannes Brahms and "Ich Grolle Nicht," by Robert Schumann, with Miss Marian Morrison of Laurel Hill, N. C., as accompanist.

Mrs. Bodkin at the piano played "La Cumpassa," by Leucana; "Nocturne," by Greg; and "To the Sea," by McDowell.

With Miss Oma Shindler of Greenville High School Music Department directing, the group sang "Lift Thine Eyes to the Mountain," from Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and "When Love Is Kind," an old English melody.

Estelle Struplin gave some of the history of the author of the "hymn of the month," "When morning Glids the Skies," and played the accompaniment while the group sang the a part of the hymn.

Mrs. Dink James announced that the club will have a dinner meeting at Red Oak Church November 12 when Mrs. Harry J. Shonts of Winston-Salem, president of the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs will be in Greenville.

November 15-December 12 is "Music for the Blind Month," and the club voted to make a contribution for a musical project for the blind.

The president spoke of the Pitt Mental Health Clinic and indicated that the club will cooperate. She suggested that when club members hear a creditable program on radio or television to write the studio a note of praise.

Dr. Stanley M. Walter announced that the opera for the winter season will be "The Secret Marriage."

Mosts and hostesses for the October meeting of the Greenville Music Club were Dr. K. N. Cuthbert and Mrs. Cuthbert, Miss Eva Hodges, Miss Elizabeth Drake and Mrs. H. A. Hendrix.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the program.

The Greenville Music Club joined the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs in 1948. It meets monthly, the membership is steadily increasing and the club's influence is being felt over a wide area. Its first president was Mrs. R. R. Willman, and then Mr. Charles A. White, Mr. George Perry, Mr. J. C. Clifford, Mrs. K. N. Cuthbert and Mrs. Dink James, incumbent, whose administration is outstandingly progressive.

Greenville Garden Club Hears Mrs. S. R. Mitchell As Speaker

The Greenville Garden Club had its first meeting of the year, a coffee hour, Friday. Members and visitors were greeted at the door by the hostesses and invited to the dining table decorated with a fall arrangement. Petite donuts, rolls and cakes were served with coffee.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, chairman, and members joined with her in reading the Club Collect. Mrs. Moore asked for the treasurer's report and reports from all the committee chairmen were given.

Mrs. Moore talked briefly on the club projects for the year. Horticulture is the heart of garden club work, she said. She thanked members who had brought displays.

The following recommendations brought before the club were approved by the members: to have a clean up campaign, keeping litter off the streets and yards, and to start by teaching those in the family not to throw trash about; to have the Christmas show at the club house since the garden club has been moved to the club house.

Mrs. R. V. Keel thanked those who had furnished pieces of shrub. There were 90 different varieties of shrub for the "Name That Shrub" contest. Mrs. K. W. Cobb and Mrs. J. H. B. Moore tied in the contest for naming the most shrubs correctly.

Mrs. Hicks Corey asked the members for shrubs and bulbs to be given for planting in Green Spring Park. Now is the time for them to be set out, she pointed out. Persons having anything to give are asked to call Mrs. Corey or committee.

Mrs. S. R. Mitchell, director of the 10th district, was the speaker for the meeting. She talked on state and national garden club work. She explained about the club award and how to get points that make it possible.

Mrs. Mitchell told the club the 10th District is very large in area, covering 20 counties and that it has only 22 garden clubs. There are 630 garden clubs in the state. She urged members to promote more interest in garden clubs being formed in areas where there are none. A good garden club member is interested in garden flowers and shrubs, she said.

Purpose of garden clubs is to aid and protect national resources, the speaker said, to study the fine art of gardening and to encourage beauty along the highways. Ground has been broken at the Botanical Garden in St. Louis, to be the new home of the National Council, Mrs. Mitchell noted.

Indians Had Disposable Diapers First

TORONTO (AP)—Nature's throw-away diapers still are used by many Northern Ontario Indian mothers who stick to the economical and practical methods of baby care their forbears have followed for centuries.

Indian mothers use absorbent moss, which they pack around the baby being carried in a "Tikinagun" or moss-bag on its mother's back.

Frank Belmore describes the Indian's answer to a diaper service in "The Tikinagun," an article in the current issue of Sylvia, published by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

The Tikinagun is a basket-like cradle, made mainly of wood, in which the Indian child, padded with moss and firmly laced, spends most of his time until he can walk. He rides strapped to his mother's back or in a canoe or sled. It is taken out at night to sleep.

Tradition and superstition are linked in the making of a Tikinagun, spruce being used for the main board. Pine is taboo because the Indian associates pine branches with the sighing of the wind which would disturb a sleeping child.

The spruce is cut from the south-east side of the tree because of the Indian belief in the influence the rising sun has on life. The child's back will rest against the side of the wood away from the heart of the tree, because to face the center of a tree is a symbol of death. His head will be at the end of the board toward the top of the tree because nothing can grow upside down.

The baby is bound into a U-shaped frame of ash or white birch by a laced-up strip of plaid blanket. Around him is packed the absorbent moss. Rabbit fur keeps his feet warm in winter.

Indian babies suffer no diaper rash, possibly due to the moss having antiseptic qualities. A dusting powder of rotted birch wood is sometimes used to relieve chafing.

When the baby outgrows his Tikinagun at about 10 months, he is transferred to another in a large size. Instead of throwing the old one away, it is used to be the custom to take it into the bush and fasten it to a sturdy tree.

Don't scrape the bottom and sides of a saucepan when you are turning candy out of it.

There Must Be A Starting Point!

Efforts to secure a state supported school of nursing at East Carolina College is in the true sense an area undertaking which must have the active participation of communities which make up the entire eastern area.

Starting from a resolution of the hospital administrators organization of this section of the state, numerous organizations in Greenville and other cities have added their endorsement to the proposal. The people of the area realize that if an adequate number of nurses is to be had in the East, a school of nursing must be established to afford a constant source of graduate nurses.

It is not likely that a school of nursing proposed at East Carolina College can supply the needs of the entire eastern area of the state. As the area continues to grow in population and its medical facilities expand to meet the needs of the individual sections, more nurses will be needed than can be supplied by one school. It is apparent other schools of nursing will have to be established in years to come—perhaps in community colleges which have sprung up.

Yet, there must be a starting point. Unless there is a school of nursing of sufficient size established to supply instructors to schools which are subsequently proposed, the later schools cannot develop. Through a state-supported school of nursing at East Carolina College, this section of the state not only can obtain additional nurses to staff its hospitals and clinics, it can likewise have additional nurses to serve as instructors in community schools of nursing as they develop in the future.

If a state supported school is not provided in the east to train instructors as well as nurses to staff the existing medical facilities, how can this section hope to have sufficient nurses to meet the increasing demand of future years?

As it is now the East has to look to schools of nursing in other parts of the state to secure the nurses it so badly needs. Even now the East is unable to secure sufficient nurses to meet its present needs. How much more difficult it will be to secure sufficient nurses in the future as demands for their services increase not only in this section but elsewhere?

Establishment of a school of nursing in conjunction with East Carolina College would help alleviate the immediate shortage of nurses in this part of the state. Of greater importance, it will afford a nucleus of trained personnel through which other schools of nursing can later be established to meet the greater needs of the section.

The people of this section of the state can ill afford for the 1957 General Assembly to convene without its members being fully aware of the urgent need for a state supported school of nursing in the East.

Local School Units Must Raise Support

By LYNN NISBET
SCHOOL FINANCING—Governor Hodges has suggested that local units must assume a larger share of financial support if the public schools are kept up with demands made upon them. One specific exemption is that counties and cities meet half the cost of increased teacher salaries.

The history of school financing and progress in North Carolina from the $100,000 requested by Governor Aycock to equalize a four months school term, to the $165 million requested for operating a twelve grade nine months uniform system next year, reads almost like a fairy story.

For fill in of this story your reporter talked to Lloyd E. Griffin, executive director of the N.C. Citizens Association, former secretary to the State School Commission, and as a member of the Senate author of the 1933 school machinery act. He was chairman of a special joint committee assigned the task of rewriting the school laws. Serving with him were the late A.D. MacLean of Beaufort, Larry I. Moore of New Bern (father of the present speaker), Robert M. Hanes of Forsyth and John Sprunt Hill of Durham. Main standby in the House was Gregg Cherry of Gaston, later to become Governor.

Prior to 1927 the heavy share of school support rested upon the counties, with a number of special charter tax districts in the larger cities. That year the General Assembly set up the Equalization Board and appropriated $3 million to equalize school opportunities in all the counties. The following session, 1928, increased the fund to $6 million with no material change in method of distribution.

Although the constitution had required a six months term since 1915, many counties were not able to provide it, even with the State equalization aid.

STATE SUPPORT—The 1931 session assumed larger share of the burden on part of the State, appropriated $15 million for the six months term and another million and a half for extended terms to eight months in special districts which matched the State money. A few communities operated nine months, without State participation, beyond 1930 school days. Result was a ragged system of six, eight and nine months in different districts.

The depression was reaching its depth and many counties could not finance their share of the school costs. Some of the larger towns could raise the money, resulting in unequal opportunities for rural children. An amendment to the 1931 act had limited reduction in school appropriations to 10 per cent, while the other government agencies were subject to deeper cuts. That was the time when highway funds were directly "diverted" to general fund purposes. Chairman Sandy Graham got authorization for such transfer repealed during his first tenure in the Cherry administration, but repeated efforts to get the two million dollars restored to highway uses have failed.

Then came the bitter year of 1933. Big and little property owners were unable to pay taxes, county treasurers were depleted and school teachers were carrying around vouchers which they could not cash.

Governor Ehringhaus came from a hospital bed to lead the fight to save the schools. The Griffin committee worked from early January to late April and finally produced the law which had remained essentially unchanged until 1955. The act abolished all special tax and charter districts, leaving the county as the sole recognized school unit. It accepted on part of the State full responsibility for an eight months uniform school term, in lieu of the extended term provision. It substituted the State School Commission for the Equalization Board, and gave the Commission authority to establish special tax districts in communities with 1000 or more school children.

LOCAL TAXES—Under this authority the School Commission established 70 special city administrative units. Since the School Commission was absorbed by the consolidated Board of Education in 1943, the General Assembly has established other special units, making a total at present of 74.

In these units additional taxes may be levied, only when authorized by a vote of the people, to provide extra school advantages. The money may be used for supplementing teacher salaries, reducing pupil loads, adding new courses of study, and other items for improving the schools. This system breaks down the complete uniformity in all schools, but it is not manda-

Other Editors Are Saying ... What Is Considered News?

(Goldboro News-Argus)
What is news, asked the Heartless one?

And putting down his glass he answered:
News is rape, murder, suicide, shootings, maimings, fires, blasts, tragedy, storm, tornado, cyclone, hurricane, blood in the gutter, more teeth scattered around and legs and arms torn off, A-bombs and H-bombs and sinkings and drownings and battles and carnage, abortions, seductions, gory details, divorces, Cain, Judas, Attila, Catherine de Medici, Mussolini, Hitler.

What is news, said the Poet?
Putting down his book, he looked afar off and answered his question.

News is moonlight and starlight and summer dawns and gently breezes, of the essential immortality of man, his courage, his indomitable soul, "for which I think whatever Gods there be," youth walking hand in hand, male and female, the dove's gentle coo, the thrill of an infant—your infant—as he makes the first tentative clutch of your finger, the uplift of a little hand placed confidently in yours.

Wind and sand and surf, flat plains of good earth rolling outward to the horizon, cattle grazing in green fields, a tree lifting its arms to heaven, sleep, and friendship and fellowship and faith.

Indomitable Moses, gentle Jesus, magnificent Paul, Confucius, Lin Yutang, The Prophet, Bobbie Burns, Robert E. Lee the great general whose soul cried out in pain because he had to make war, Abraham Lincoln, Archibald Platlock, Elton Trueblood, Plato, Aristotle, The Psalms, and the 14th chapter of John's gospel.

What is news, asked the Philosopher?

In words hard to be understood, he answered his own question.

Of man's relation to man, of man's learning what life means, of principles of truth and beauty, of ability to determine one's own place in life, of what makes courage, of what makes weakened souls, of the nature of war and peace, of things to live by, of the comfort of religion, and the great faiths, of the essential goodness of all men, of the eternal and everlasting climb of man from his apelike beginnings to an even higher plane.

What is news, asked the Editor?

Fumbling the copy paper in his hand he answered.

News is all of these things and more. It is a balance one against the other. It is the mirror of life, of the reflection of the little things which man gives himself to, his burnings and his dyings, his comings and his goings, and of his great loneliness and his need always for assurance. Of such is news.—HENRY BELK

Women's Work

by ALVIN TAYLOR

Observed By A Wandering Man

As everybody knows by now, West End Circle has a new look. The Highway Department has come through and widened the thing so that you can hardly see from one side to the other.

It took a lot of figuring to cut those four lanes through the intersection. That's not all, though. The four lanes will be continued down Memorial Drive to the new bridge.

Rumors flew thick and fast concerning the number of bodies found in the wreckage of Dixie Warehouse after the disastrous fire. During the weekend the number on the rumor circuit varied from three to six. As of Monday afternoon, however, the number dead still stood at two.

Notebook On Life

Boyle And Life's Little Mysteries

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Life is full of little mysteries, and did you ever wonder—

Why the American people have never elected a doctor to the White House, or a psychiatrist to the U.S. Senate?

That only one career farmer ever became president, although the one who did made a pretty fair record? His name was George Washington.

Why the two things that give a man the greatest feeling of mortality are having a tooth pulled—and getting a scratch on his new motor car?

What a weather forecaster says to his wife, who goes shopping because he promised a suntan day, after he returns home and finds her still wet and furious because she was caught

Both bodies were located after the fire died down Saturday morning.

Last year the city's traffic lights all got a coat of bright yellow paint in contrast to the dark green which had characterized the traffic lights for years. Within the last few days workmen have been making the rounds quietly painting the traffic lights a dark green once again.

Businessmen in the Dickinson Ave. area are offering bouquets to firemen for preventing the spread of the early Saturday morning fire. The blaze threatened other buildings but firemen skillfully fought the blaze to contain it largely to the warehouse.

They often get cussed for it, but Greenville cops are on the job each Saturday afternoon moving the heavy traffic through main intersections. So if an officer won't let you turn at the intersection you want, don't scowl at him. Remember he knows what he's doing.

It may be that this area is going through the fall without experiencing the full force of a hurricane such as have hit this area for the last two years. Last week we got what was left of one but apparently no damage resulted to crops or property.

Opinions In Brief

PECATONICA, ILL. NEWS: "Honestly, though, don't you sometimes wonder where this great country of yours and mine is headed for? Reintegration seems to be the answer whether we like it or not. The great American spirit which was for so long a shining example to the rest of the world, held in envy and awe, seems to be disappearing under an avalanche of corruption, vice and promises of security from the cradle to the grave."

Elimination of bootleg forms is extremely important, Mr. Taylor told the conference. "A government analyst once said that it takes an average of 11 bootleg forms to create one full-time clerical job," he said.

Leon C. Guest, Jr., Sylvania controller, said studies showed that some office people are "spending so much time in the compilation of information that they run out of time to think."

He warned that if present trends in record-keeping continue, in 15 years from now every company would need one clerk for every four factory workers.

The experts agreed that every firm, large or small, should examine its form-filling and record-keeping procedures and eliminate all unnecessary forms and records.

Almost all agreed that United States Government requirements are an important and costly cause of burdensome record-keeping.

They also agreed that probably nothing can be done about it.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
There are three ways to go through life.

The first way is to lounge through life. A few people have the wealth and leisure which enable them to live this way from the day of their birth, and they are pathetic, unhappy creatures. Others feel that to lounge through life would be utter bliss. Many people of modest means and some who are in poverty lounge through life, and are utterly worthless to themselves and to the world.

The second way to go through life is to lounge through it. There are some who do this in a spirit of violence. Society lays hands on them and puts them under restraint. World conquerors are in this class. So are the humble people everywhere who make quick and often mistaken decisions, who lose their tempers, who cast aside their future in a moment of passion.

The third way to go through life is to love through life: at peace with themselves and with the world, because we are essentially spirits living in a world that is essentially spiritual.

The cross is the sign of Christian faith—the emblem of that One who showed us all how to live the life of love.

Backers Say Adlai Fumbled Peace Issue

WASHINGTON — Adlai E. Stevenson has fumbled the important and emotional issue of world peace and national defense, in the opinion of discouraged "pros" in his own camp. As they feared from his 1952 performance, he has permitted himself to be drawn into a highly technical and academic argument.

President Eisenhower's reliance on A-H weapons is based on the belief that their awful power of destruction will tend to make another global conflict impossible. Even Khrushchev has conceded that such a catastrophe is unthinkable, and Russia's shift to a diplomatic rather than a shooting strategy derives "partially from that consideration."

Stevenson maintains that nuclear research and advance will not suffer through abandonment of actual tests, which he says are polluting the atmosphere, and he has a number of scientists to support this viewpoint.

Stevenson says that laboratory discoveries and improvements on nuclear devices are useless, unless they are submitted and subjected to the challenge of the proving ground. Even a technically perfect rifle or cannon—turn out to be faulty under fire, when made as a model—may turn out to be faulty under fire.

Eisenhower can bring forth his own scientists and military advisers to back his contention. But the conclusive decision is the kind that can be rendered only by an impartial board of experts after exhaustive studies, not at the ballot box. It is doubtful if many voters feel themselves competent to pass—or vote—on this question. It is also doubtful if it will sway many voters.

PENTAGON DISAGREES WITH IKE AND ADLAI Stevenson's companion argument for ending the draft only compounds his difficulty in the light of current happenings, including the Suez Canal dispute. No military authority believes that the United States can maintain the required defense without Selective Service. Here is the dilemma into which Stevenson, and also Eisenhower, according to Pentagon spokesmen, have fallen:

If the H-bomb has outlawed global war, that very fact makes even more necessary the existence of a powerful Army, Navy and Air Force. It requires us to build and to keep ready a "fire brigade" to put out "brush fires" lighted by the Communists, like those in Korea and Indo-China.

Knowing that we will not launch an H-war in a country like Egypt or in any other Middle East, Asian or African country, Moscow has access to a new and cheap pattern of conquest. The Reds can first penetrate an area through economic and political penetration, overthrow or control the government, and then dare us to drive them out by resort to force.

DEFENSE ISSUE "SNAFUED" This is no political or campaign pipe-dream, for it has already happened in Korea and Indo-China, and now in Egypt. We did not dare to use nuclear weapons in those areas. But none of the three great Western Powers had sufficient conventional troops to enforce their diplomatic demands in the Far or Middle East. We do not have them now for use anywhere the Reds choose to move it.

Stevenson, however, is not alone in his shortsightedness and blunders on this front. Almost to a man, the Pentagon bitterly opposes the Administration's program to reduce the ground forces for reliance on aerial and nuclear weapons and pressure.

Both publicly and privately, they have testified against the Radford-Wilson reduction schedules, and they had hoped to obtain support from such former Pentagon officials as Thomas K. Finletter and Senator Stuart Symington, who also happen to be Stevenson advisers.

In short, as far as the 1956 campaign is concerned, the national defense issue has been "snafued."

Business Faces Cost Problem

By ELMER ROESSNER

Business has created a monster which, if it won't devour business itself, may consume much of the profits.

The monster is records. These facts were brought to light at a recent American Management Association conference:

Since 1900, the American office force has increased 2,000 per cent.

In 1900, one employee in 40 worked in the office; in 1930, one in 12, and in 1954, one in 8.

More than 16,000,000 persons are employed today to originate, process or store paper.

Clerical workers now outnumber agricultural workers and equal half the number of production employees.

By 1960, the number of office workers is likely to be 25 per cent greater than the number in 1950.

THE TIDE OF COSTS Other facts facing the conferees were:

In almost all cities, clerical and other office workers are harder to find.

Wages of office workers have been rising no less rapidly than those of other employees.

Costs of printing, paper and storage space have been shooting up.

The obvious conclusion: Unless business can halt the rising costs of making and keeping records and forms, the cost burden will become unmanageable.

Experts from big corporations related their problems and told what they were doing about them.

James N. Flanagan, of the Monsanto offices in St. Louis, disclosed that an inventory showed the company was maintaining 82,880,000 pieces of paper in office file cabinets, or the equivalent of 5,500 pieces per employee, or 20,000 per each clerical worker. This would make a single stack of paper more than 10 miles high. Mr. Flanagan added ruefully, Monsanto waded in and eliminated unnecessary forms and equipment. In four months it saved $250,000.

MODERN BOOTLEGGERS One of the costly drains on companies today are bootleg forms, Kenneth A. Taylor, General Electric procedures expert, told the A.M.A.

The company analyzed its record-keeping and found 900 bootleg forms were in use. These are forms devised by supervisors and others without company approval. In all, 1,500 forms were in use. The number was sharply reduced and large savings resulted.

Elimination of bootleg forms is extremely important, Mr. Taylor told the conference. "A government analyst once said that it takes an average of 11 bootleg forms to create one full-time clerical job," he said.

Leon C. Guest, Jr., Sylvania controller, said studies showed that some office people are "spending so much time in the compilation of information that they run out of time to think."

He warned that if present trends in record-keeping continue, in 15 years from now every company would need one clerk for every four factory workers.

The experts agreed that every firm, large or small, should examine its form-filling and record-keeping procedures and eliminate all unnecessary forms and records.

Almost all agreed that United States Government requirements are an important and costly cause of burdensome record-keeping.

They also agreed that probably nothing can be done about it.

Presidential Campaign Developing Into 'Sunny Jim', 'Gloomy Gus' Race

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — This presidential campaign — as happens every four years — looks like a contest between Sunny Jim and Gloomy Gus.

President Eisenhower, head of the party which has been running things and must stand on its record, thinks things are pretty dandy and getting better.

Adlai Stevenson, head of the outers who want in, sees dark spots all around.

Time may show the most important question of the campaign — foreign policy and how to improve it — was not really much of a campaign issue.

Stevenson said early in the campaign it should be debated. And he's discussed it far more than Eisenhower.

The President has dwelt on foreign policy at length only twice: at the Republican convention in August and in his opening campaign speech Sept. 19.

Stevenson has accused the Eisenhower administration of lacking new ideas in foreign policy. Basically, he's right. Eisenhower is following the Truman-Acheson foreign policy: military alliances and foreign aid.

Whether that's right or wrong, now that the Russians have shifted their tactics, remains to be seen. But when it comes to new programs, Stevenson so far hasn't been very productive either.

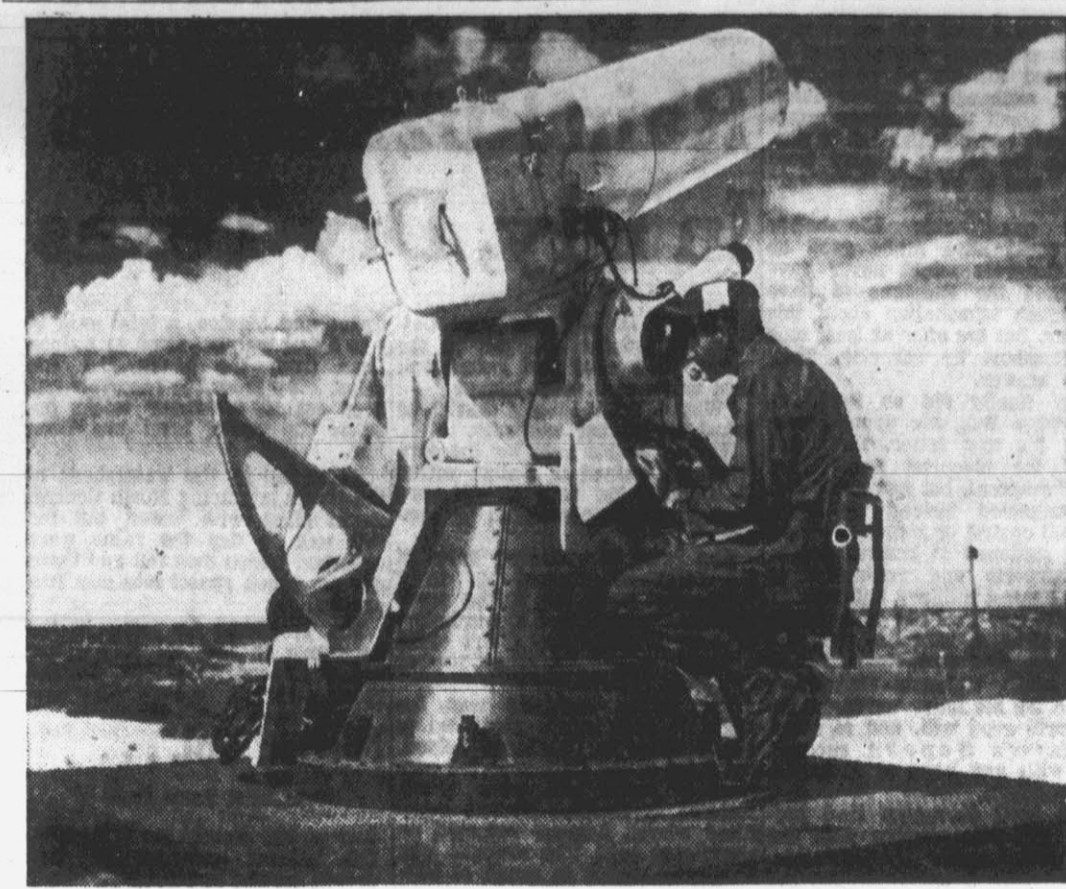

When you cut through all Stevenson has said, the difference he seems to see between himself and Eisenhower on foreign policy is not so much a difference in programs, or the lack of them, but in attitude.

He suggests the Eisenhower administration has alienated other peoples by bluster, and he says he would show them respect as individuals to win them over.

Both men agree disarmament — when it can be worked out with safeguards — is a key to peace. Both agree this country is in a contest with Russia for the hearts and minds of men and that they must be helped with American aid.

Both use almost identical words in saying other peoples must be respected. Eisenhower: "We respect fully the right of all peoples, able and ready to govern themselves." Stevenson: "A decent respect for the opinions of others is still a basic requirement of a good foreign policy."

Both men mention identical objectives. Eisenhower: "There are three imperatives of peace . . . moral . . . economic . . . military." Stevenson: ". . . military . . . economic . . . moral."

Flower Growers Have Rare Menu

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Rosebuds, chrysanthemums, carnations and sunflower seeds were on the luncheon menu yesterday of the 11th annual American Horticultural Congress.

Some 150 delegates, meeting at Kellogg Center, found a rosebud fruit cup at their luncheon plates. It consisted of a conventional fruit cup with a tiny rosebud in the center.

Did they eat it? "Sure," said Mrs. Evelyn Drake director of the center's food service.

"A lot of people who work around flowers make a habit of eating them," she said.

Also on the menu: Petal muffins made with the usual ingredients, but including chrysanthemum petals. Orange blossom honey topped the muffins. Whipped-cream carnations for dessert, made with chopped carnation petals.

Turkey divan — Turkey breasts on top of asparagus with a side dish of tomatoes topped with chrysanthemum bud dressing. Celery hearts and an autumn fruit salad spread on autumn leaves and sprinkled with yew berries.

The chrysanthemum muffins were especially good," commented Mrs. Drake. "Very spicy."

Clinton Greet Democrat Rally

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — The Democratic bandwagon rolled into Clinton today for a rally staged by the party faithful of the 3rd Congressional District.

Top state officials and party leaders were scheduled to take part in the affair this afternoon in the Sampson County Courthouse.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. was billed as the principal speaker. Rep. Graham Barden of New Bern, the district congressman, introduced Ervin and also spoke briefly. A dinner was to follow the rally.

Several of the party leaders were due to move over to Fayetteville tonight for a Cumberland County fund-raising dinner arranged by State Rep. Wilson Yarborough. Ervin and Mrs. John T. Richardson of Raleigh, state Democratic vice chairman, planned to attend the Fayetteville affair.

Two other district rallies are set this week. Gov. Hodges will be the main speaker tomorrow afternoon at a Tarboro rally for 2nd District Democrats. Sen. W. Kerr Scott will speak in Washington, N.C., Thursday at the 1st District rally.

Forecast End To Bulganin Letters

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON—Soviet Premier Bulganin stuck his nose into an American election campaign and this may mean the end to a lengthy correspondence which wasn't getting anywhere.

Besides, the Russian had developed a habit of breathing down Adlai Stevenson's neck. Twice he followed up Stevenson's suggestions on ending H-bomb tests by making similar proposals himself.

Bulganin has written President Eisenhower seven letters on disarmament since they first met at Geneva in July 1955. Eisenhower has answered five times. They could never agree.

Meanwhile, their representatives in the United Nations, on a special commission to work out disarmament plans, couldn't agree, either.

This is the American position: gradual disarmament with conventional weapons, later production of nuclear weapons would end. But there would have to be iron-clad controls and inspections from the beginning to be sure there'd be no cheating.

The Russians have put their main emphasis on a ban on nuclear weapons. They have rejected all Western proposals for controls.

The Russians and Red Chinese far outnumber the United States in manpower. It would be to their advantage to get this country right off to agree on banning nuclear weapons in war. Those nuclear weapons for the United States offset Russian and Chinese manpower.

This is what happened with

Eisenhower and Bulganin: At Geneva Eisenhower stole the show with a good will offer: as a first step toward disarmament he suggested the United States and Russia exchange complete information about their military establishments and permit each to photograph the other's country from end to end to be sure there were no military buildups.

It's questionable Eisenhower ever could have made good on this. Congress might never have permitted the Russians to have that much information about this country. But the offer at least took the Russians by surprise. They didn't answer.

They finally did on Sept. 19, 1955, when Bulganin wrote Eisenhower his first letter. He didn't reject the blueprint and "open skies" proposal, but just about did. He suggested instead an international control or inspection team to be stationed at central points, like airports and railheads, to check against military buildups.

Eisenhower replied: This might be all right, if Bulganin accepted his plans. And so it went. Letter after letter—Bulganin may have been doing his letter writing more for world good will, and to offset Eisenhower's Geneva success, than with any hope or intention of agreement.

Last April Stevenson first proposed that this country take the lead toward ending H-bomb tests. He was only a candidate for the Democratic nomination then. Bulganin didn't follow Stevenson at that time with a similar proposal.

But on Sept. 5, 1956—when he was the Democratic candidate—

Stevenson repeated his proposal on the H-bomb. Six days later, Sept. 11, Bulganin wrote another letter to Eisenhower.

He proposed ending "tests of atomic and hydrogen weapons." This went further than Stevenson, who had called only for an end to H-bomb tests, not to all atomic weapon testing.

As the campaign wore on Stevenson made his H-bomb suggestion a main campaign issue. And on Oct. 17 Bulganin wrote Eisenhower another letter, again suggesting the big powers end atomic weapons tests.

He also said he understood this was now an issue in the election campaign. Eisenhower replied quickly. Yesterday he told Bulganin in effect to mind his own business.

Before Bulganin's letter arrived Eisenhower had already said the H-bomb tests couldn't be stopped—without foolproof guarantees that Russia wouldn't continue hers—because it would give Russia an advantage.

Rain Puzzles Kids In Dry, Dry Texas

DALLAS (AP)—Little Mike Oatman, 14 months old, ran to the window last week and looked out, then unloosed a great uproar.

"What's that? What's that?" he asked his mother excitedly.

He was seeing rain for the first time. It's rained in Dallas within 14 months, but rain is still rare enough to cause children to wonder.

The rains in scattered parts of the Southwest ranged up to 7 inches last week. But in the words of Texas Agriculture Commissioner John White, "they didn't make a real dent" in the 10-year drought.

The Texas moisture was too slight to help much. Scattered to heavy rains in Oklahoma helped, but most of the state reported supplies of water still were short. Rainfall in Eastern Kansas benefited wheat. Arizona reported no significant rain. The drought was becoming severe in much of Missouri.

Even had the rains been general and heavy, agricultural experts say, they alone would not have erased the scars of 10 years of general drought. The drought was broken only by a wet season in 1949.

To restore subsoil moisture, say the experts, rains must be frequent and heavy.

The Texas rains, which caused floods around Del Rio on the Mexican border, appeared the heaviest of any in the Southwest.

Where moisture fell, it raised the level of stock water ponds. On the Rio Grande, which divides

Texas and Mexico, a total gain of 4 to 5 feet was expected at Falcon Dam on the heavy Del Rio rains. Flow from the reservoir has been cut off for many weeks because the water level has been low.

Rains fell in the watersheds of the rivers supplying North Central Texas cities with water, but the soil was so dry the rains were absorbed where they fell and there are not much runoff into city reservoirs.

The prospects for rains in the Southwest in the fall and winter are not good, Weather Bureau records show.

tory on any district nor is it possible without approval of the people at the ballot box.

Statutory requirement that local units match State money to meet a State salary scale would make a tax levy necessary without an election. And unless the General Assembly should require in every county a State supervised revaluation of property, the same inequities might develop that plagued the schools 25 years ago.

Those favoring the plan point out that control goes with money. The converse is that those who exercise control should be willing to provide financing. The last General Assembly turned back to the counties a large part of the control over the schools. The fact is, as has been noted in this column several times before, from 50 per cent to 75 per cent of the local ad valorem taxes paid by North Carolinians goes for public schools—capital investment, debt service, supplemental salaries and services. The saturation point in taxes, especially in towns and cities, seems as near in local units as in the state at large.

At Least One Opera Crew Wants Small Audiences

By W.G. ROGERS
NEW YORK (AP)—At last there is an opera company that wants a smaller audience!

NBC Opera, with TV viewers numbering in the millions, gave a performance of the "Marriage of Figaro" South Bend, Ind., to about 1,300 persons.

That the company's first tour, eight weeks long, consisting of 54 performances in 47 cities as near as Newark, N.J., and as distant as Richmond, Va., New Orleans, and other centers in Mississippi, Iowa, Kansas, Illinois and Michigan.

Traveling by bus and truck, this is a tour in the flesh, with no telecasts involved, of about 100 singers, musicians and other staff members. NBC and RCA are in on it together, but it is particularly the project of NBC president Robert W. Sarnoff.

"For seven years I have seen this opera grow on our TV screens, and I have a personal affection for it," Sarnoff said.

"It is a perfect example of TV public-service programming. Without belaboring the word cultural, it helps persuade people of cultural values. It reaches people of cultural values. It reaches people who never before had a chance to see 'live' opera locally.

"A lot of good things, opera among them, are said to have no mass appeal. That is only an assumption, because there were no mass appeal. That is only an assumption, because there were no mass contacts to prove it. Now we find there is a mass appeal not suspected before."

There was a possibility that, for lack of top-flight names, the tour would be hard to book. But in fact the company's agents did the job in the remarkably short time of two weeks. Most of the tour cities have enjoyed NBC-TV opera before. And though to be sure the actual halls will seat small audiences, NBC expects the local activity will result in much larger audiences for the telecasts.

"This tour," Sarnoff said, "will stimulate interest in these programs and in the 'live' performances. Instead of the two operas offered this year, we might have four next; instead of eight weeks, the tour may be extended."

Among the singers for "Marriage" and "Madam Butterfly" will be Frances Bible, Adelaide Bishop, Walter Cassel, Phyllis Curtin, Edith Evans, Ruth Kobart, David Lloyd, Elaine Malbin, Gail Manners, and Frances Yeend. Some of them are with the Metropolitan Opera, some with New York City Opera.

Samuel Chotzinoff, the producer, and Peter Herman Adler, music and artistic director, have been associated with some or all of the company's past productions. They started off with Kurt Weill's "Down in the Valley." Among the traditional numbers were "The Barber of Seville," "Rosenkavalier," "Pelleas and Melisande" and "Salome."

Even more warmly welcomed by the critics were world premieres such as Menotti's "Amahl and the Night-Visitors," Martin's "The Marriage" and Dello Joio's "The Trial at Rouen," and works rarely seen in the regular repertoires such as Britten's "Billy Budd," Giannini's "The Taming of the Shrew" and Puccini's "Grifinkel."

The cross-country performances are, as usual, being done in English. Two Broadway designers, William and Jean Eckart, tackled the special problem of sets.

American Girl Facing Israeli Prison Bravely

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—Mary Frances Hagan, the slender American girl convicted by Israel of spying, feels she is "cut off from the world" in prison—but her attorney says she is facing the harsh prison life bravely.

Max Kritzman, Tel Aviv attorney who defended her, described her life at the Ramle women's prison 15 miles from here. Miss Hagan, 29, is allowed only one visit a month from a relative or a close friend, but Kritzman is permitted to see her frequently.

She shares a cell with a 45-year-old red-haired Israeli woman awaiting trial on a charge of attempted murder for putting poison in a pudding at a collective farm.

Miss Hagan feels cut off, Kritzman said, because she speaks no Hebrew and the other inmates do not speak English.

She was tried in secret by a Jerusalem court and convicted Oct. 11 of spying on Israel for Syria. She was sentenced to a one year term.

Prison authorities said she has begun to study Hebrew and spends a lot of time sewing and reading.

"She is really brave," Kritzman said.

He said he informed her Friday that he had applied to Israel President Izhak ben-Zvi for a pardon, but that he was not too optimistic about the chances for a quick release.

"She was disappointed when I told her," Kritzman said.

Kritzman said he based his plea to the President on the contention that she was arrested before she could do any damage and that, even if she had not been caught, the information she had was "of very little value to anybody."

"Everything she had marked down was information of common knowledge and so simple that it is known to every tourist in Israel," Kritzman said.

Miss Hagan, whose family lives in Huntington, W. Va., is allowed to send two letters a month.

Michigan State Captures First Place In Rankings

Spartans Use 47-14 Win Over Irish To Advance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Football experts, reversing their previous opinions, today picked unbeat Michigan State over equally unbeaten Oklahoma as the nation's No. 1 football team.

It was the first time this season that Oklahoma's Sooners had finished anywhere but first in the weekly Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

The 47-14 trouncing Michigan State handed Notre Dame last Saturday seems to have swung the balance. Oklahoma racked up its fourth, and record breaking, victory at the expense of Kansas 34-12.

That was the 34th in a row for the Sooners, who don't often face opposition quite as tough as Michigan State's.

Georgia Tech, whose standing in the poll has been improving steadily as its victories pile up, retained third place by a comfortable margin. After those three, the order was jumbled by upsets, but all the teams rated in the first 10 a week ago managed to stay in there as two losers tied for 10th place.

Michigan State drew 96 of 156 first-place votes this week and Oklahoma only 44.

In the point scoring on the usual basis of 10 for each first place vote, 9 for second, etc., the totals came out: Michigan State 1,459.

Oklahoma 1,356 and Georgia Tech 1,182.

Tennessee moved from seventh into fourth place after beating Alabama 24-0. Michigan and Southern California also advanced three notches, to fifth and sixth. Texas A&M, a 7-6 winner over Texas Christian, advanced from the second 10 into seventh place. Then came Baylor, idle last week, end, and upset losers Ohio State, Mississippi and TCU, all of which fell in the ratings.

The top 10 teams with first-place votes in parentheses:

1. Michigan State (96) 1,459
2. Oklahoma (44) 1,356

6. USC (2) 664
7. Texas A&M (1) 461
8. Baylor 293
9. Ohio State 210
10. Mississippi 183

Single Wing At Michigan Shows Balanced Team

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Kick around the football terms "one-man gang" and "one-two punch" all you want, but don't kick 'em toward Michigan!

Coach Bennie Oosterbaan, whose Wolverines' only loss was to powerful Michigan State, has dotted his club's old-fashioned single wing attack with a host of runners and passers of near-equal ability.

The system has been so successful that Michigan boasts no stars, says the veteran Wolverine coach. "We don't have outstanding personnel," he insists. "We have a fine group of boys who do a number of things fairly well. They work hard as a unit, and because of their versatility, we have been fortunate enough to keep the opponents' defenses pretty loose."

To illustrate what the Michigan coach is talking about, four runners — fullback John Herrstein and halfbacks Terry Barry, Jim Pace and Bob Pateck — have carried the ball on 152 of Michigan's 212 running plays.

Barr has carried 35 times and leads the ground gainers with a 6.2 average. Pace has a 3.6 average for 44 carries. The sophomores, Herrstein and Pateck, have carried 73 times between them. Herrstein has a 4.5 average in 53 tries and Pateck has a 4.1 average in 20 attempts.

The Wolverine passing game is just as evenly split up. Although Michigan lacks what Oosterbaan calls a "good, consistent passer," no fewer than 11 players have tried their hand at it in the four games played so far.

Chicod Seeking Games For Boys, Girls, Jayvees

Chicod basketball coach Leroy Pittman announced yesterday that his boys and girls teams have four open dates. Anyone wishing to play Chicod on November 13, 30, December 7, or January 1, should contact either Pittman or Mr. Fodie Hodges at 6460, Chicod.

Also, Coach Pittman stated that his Junior Varsity team is open for any games to be played on separate nights from the varsity contests.

Academy Team Untried-Ha!

DENVER (AP) — "Untried, untested and untested" is Coach Buck Shaw's report on his Air Force Academy team that's devastated four opponents in its first season of varsity football.

The Falcon's team of freshmen and sophomores has scored at least seven touchdowns in each victory over teams from smaller four-year colleges in the West.

But Shaw, veteran college and pro coach, sees room for improvement.

"They've been making an awful lot of mistakes," he said. "Those errors are not in the scoring record. Here's the academy record: 46-0 over San Diego University, 45-14 over Colorado College, 43-13 over Western (Colorado) State, 49-6 over Colorado Mines."

Shaw may be right when he says the Falcons are "untried." Their four victories have a combined record of 7 won and 14 lost this season.

But those clubs are made up mostly of junior and senior players.

Col. Robert V. Whitlow, academy athletic director, has blueprinted steadily increasing competition for the Falcons. Next season they tackle five teams from the Skyline, a major conference of the large state universities in the Rockies. The academy's opponents will include Wyoming, Utah, Denver, Colorado A&M and New Mexico.

In 1958 — the senior year for the academy's first class — the Falcons hit the top row with games against Stanford, Tulane, Iowa, Colorado and five Skyline Conference teams.

Their first interservice academy game will be with Army in 1959. Navy may be scheduled the same year but at least no later than 1960.

Weill Is After Heavy Title For Big Sol McTier

By MURRAY ROSE
NEW YORK (AP) — Piloting a fighter to the world's heavyweight title is the dream of every fight manager. Al Weill did it with Rocky Marciano and now that the Rock of Brockton has retired, the veteran manager hopes to strike it rich again with Solomon McTier.

You can't blame Al for dreaming but that's like hoping to find a diamond as big as the Kohinoor in your back yard.

McTier, a muscular, six-foot, 200-pound Negro from Montgomery, Ala., scored his second knock-out in as many pro starts last night when he stowed away LeRoy Spivey, 183½, Brooklyn, in 1:33 of the last round of a preliminary four-rounder on the Frankie Ryff-Frankie Ippolito card at St. Nicholas Arena. A powerful right hand to the chops did the trick.

When Weill puffed up the ring steps for a four-round preliminary fight, you got an idea of the regard he holds for McTier. He hasn't given any preliminary that honor in many years.

ACC Sees Family Fights This Week

Three strictly family games promise as many exciting football contests in the Atlantic Coast Conference this week.

Leading in interest perhaps, is the traditional State Fair Big Thursday game at Columbia between South Carolina and Clemson.

Then, there's the Duke - North Carolina State game and another Wake Forest game against State even if he isn't able to start.

Clemson Coach Frank Howard said he may start backback Char- Wake Forest players who saw ac- tion in last week's 14-14 tie with Florida State, but Coach Paul Amen promised plenty of work before the game with the Tar Heels at Chapel Hill.

Additional time will have to be devoted to the new offensive formations North Carolina used with success against Maryland. Coach Amen said, The Tar Heels unveiled spread and unbalanced line formations in its first victory of the season.

Coach Jim Tatum's pepped-up Tar Heels whipped through loosening up drills and held secret work on offense and defense.

Coach Ben Martin warned his 20-0 win over Dayton.

Other players loosened up with probably as good as any team the Cavaliers will face this season.

The Duke Blue Devils held their usual Monday night practice, reviewing mistakes made in the 27-14 loss to Pitt last week. The big question is the condition of star quarterback Sonny Jurgensen's injured leg.

Jurgensen has seen but limited duty since he was hurt against Virginia three weeks ago. Coach Bill Murray hopes Jurgensen may see action against State even if he isn't able to start.

A short workout was held for Clemson Coach Frank Howard said he may start backback Char- Wake Forest players who saw ac- tion in last week's 14-14 tie with Florida State, but Coach Paul Amen promised plenty of work before the game with the Tar Heels at Chapel Hill.

THE BLONDE DIED DANCING

CHAPTER 29

Bob sat down in the empty conference room and immediately proceeded to put me at my ease. He soothed me with a small dull anecdote about a teaching experience he had recently had. Then he leaned back, crossed his legs, folded his hands over his vest and said, "Now, Hester, what can I do for you?"

"Well, Bob . . ."

"Be glad to help you, only too glad. Have any of the students been annoying you?"

"No, it isn't that . . ."

"No, you can be frank with me Hester. The pass as I often say, is the occupational hazard of the female dancing teacher. And, I might add," he added, chuckling, "also of the male upon occasion."

"No, Bob, I want to help you."

"Help me?" He was amazed, rocked with disbelief. "You want to help me? How?"

"Bob, this is rather delicate, but I feel if you and I aren't friends already . . . well, we're destined to be. That seems obvious."

"Hester, what is it?"

"Well, I've heard gossip, and if it should get to the police . . ."

"Gossip about me, Hester?"

"May I be frank?"

"Yes, please!"

"Just how much did Anita Farrell mean to you, Bob?"

"Anita?"

"Yes. Is it true that you were so crazy about her that when she threw you over you couldn't take it?"

"Where did you hear this, Hester?"

"It's only gossip. But I'm afraid if the police heard it they'll think you might have . . . well, killed Anita because you couldn't live without her."

"Hester!" Bob said sharply. "I'm only trying to help you."

that anybody need have anything to fear from the police except my husband.

I was discouraged. My feet hurt.

The next morning Steve and I went through the motions of having breakfast, but our hearts weren't in it. When we had awakened we had wished each other a happy fifth wedding anniversary, but our hearts hadn't been in that, either. We were just killing time, waiting for two besotted ladies down on West Twenty-fifth Street to sleep it off.

Then, unexpectedly, we had company to help us kill the time. We did our insincere best to make Detective Lieutenant Bolling welcome. We offered him our most comfortable chair, some coffee, some toast and coffee. We made it clear that we were delighted that the man who was directing the search for the Waltzer had come to see us, of all people. But Bolling was in no mood to accept our hospitality. This morning he was all business; you couldn't see the grindstone for his nose.

"Barton," he said briskly, looking the Waltzer straight in the eye. "I'm going to wrap up this case this afternoon."

"What time this afternoon?" the Waltzer asked.

"You're not joking. Four o'clock this afternoon. I'll know then who the Waltzer is. I want you to be at the Crescent School at four."

"Me? Why me?"

"I'm throwing a little party. I've invited all of Anita Farrell's pupils. I've invited Wendell Kipp and the two bartenders from the Feather Club . . ."

"And they'll pick out the Waltzer from Anita Farrell's pupils for you," the Waltzer said unenthusiastically. "A great idea."

"I'd have done it sooner," Bolling said, "except that I was sure we'd pick up Ralph Tolley. But we haven't found him yet."

"Good old Ralph Tolley! So nice of him to stay out of sight. It had been quite a while since I had ever thought of that sterling pupil of Anita's whose lesson time Steve had borrowed, but I made up for it now. I thought of Ralph Tolley not only with gratitude, but with affection."

"Maybe the reason we haven't found him," Bolling was saying, "is because he's the Waltzer and he's hiding out. Or maybe, if he isn't the Waltzer, it's because he's dead."

"Dead?" Steve and I said.

"Murdered. By the Waltzer."

"Murdered?" we said. "By the Waltzer?"

Bolling nodded. He took the chart of Anita Farrell's teaching schedule out of his pocket. He showed it to us. "See this? I've got every lesson hour accounted for except the hour of the murder, seven on Wednesday. Now, if Tolley is the Waltzer, that's his time. But if he isn't the Waltzer, the Waltzer took Tolley's time. Understand?"

Steve and I understood. It wasn't especially brilliant of us since taking Ralph Tolley's lesson time was exactly what Steve had done. Bolling, however, was pleased with our quickness. He continued, admiring his own logic, despite its morbid turn.

"So it's to the Waltzer's advantage to keep Tolley out of our way. Maybe he did a complete job and killed him. However, we'll know more this afternoon. If Kipp and the bartenders don't identify the Waltzer among Miss Farrell's pupils, we'll know for certain that this Tolley is guilty."

"So," I said, "this afternoon will wrap up the case."

"One way," Steve said, "or another."

"We'll know," Bolling said, "who is the Waltzer. You be there, Barton, at four."

"You bet," Steve said.

"So long," Bolling said.

"So long," Steve said.

"Gruesome, isn't it?" I said.

Bolling turned back from the door.

"Gruesome, Mrs. Barton?"

"You like Steve. I can tell you do."

"I admit it," Bolling said. "Charming fellow, Barton."

Deadline for Steve is only six hours away. Can he beat it? Continue the next exciting installment here tomorrow.

Stayed At Home, Draft Board Calls Almost Got Killed 30 For Oct. 30

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Whitney C. Hansen didn't join in Utah's deer hunting over the weekend because he thought it might not be safe.

While working in his driveway, a bullet ricocheted off his garage rain gutter, burned a streak across his back above the belt and imbedded itself in the ground. Moments later a second bullet slammed into the side of his house.

The bullets apparently came from the mountains northeast of the city, not far from his home.

The local Draft Board will send 15 persons to Raleigh for pre-induction examinations and 15 for induction October 30.

An induction call for 10 will be sent to Raleigh November 23 and a pre-induction call for 10 is to be sent on November 28.

Smaller Winter Market For Home Heating Units

NEW YORK (AP)—With a smaller market for home heater units this year, competition between the various kinds of fuel grows keener today. So does the race between hot water, hot air and various radiation devices.

Fuel oil and natural gas are fighting harder for first place. Coal is trying for a comeback. Electricity is making an all-out effort to capture more of the heating market.

For the householder the outlook—given normal winter weather—is for adequate supplies in most sections, but with fuel oil prices a little higher and coal prices tending that way because of wage gain of 10 per cent over a year ago. Hot water heating lost favor shortly after World War II, but the council says it's coming back now, thanks to new radiators or convectors that both heat and cool.

The race between the fuel types gets closer. Oilmen say they should sell about 10 per cent more fuel oil this year than last—a rate of gain that has been fairly steady since the war.

The American Gas Assn. claims that 22 million American families are warmed by gas in their homes and apartments. A little more than half of these use gas space heaters, floor or wall furnaces.

The National Electrical Manufacturers Assn. reports gains in electrical heater sales. For one thing, it says that 112 rural electrification cooperatives now serve 12,074 electrically heated farm homes.

The Bituminous Coal Institute, plugging hard for a comeback, is using its 12 regional offices to demonstrate "modern, labor-free automatic burning equipment."

Bushman Achieved Serenity In Life

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)—Meet Francis X. Bushman, 73, once the idol of millions of women, twice a multimillionaire, thrice renowned as one of the world's great actors. Bushman has survived the vicissitudes of great success and sudden failure to achieve serenity.

Tonight on The Big Surprise (NBC-TV) the man who once made six million dollars in five years as a movie actor starts a climb that could lead him to $100,000.

"Whatever I win," he says, tapping his bride of two months on the hand, "we'll use it around the house out there in Pacific Palisades, California. It's a lovely place. You can sit there forever and look out over the Pacific . . ."

The category of his questions? Love poetry.

"It's appropriate," said Bushman with a wry smile. "After all, didn't I once have the reputation of being one of the world's great lovers? Furthermore, I like poetry and read a lot of it. When you're lonely, you read poetry. And I was very lonely after I retired. I read poetry and walked the beach and watched the Pacific . . . Now a neighbor told me about a widow woman who lived nearby

"That was I," said Mrs. Bushman.

"So I went to pay a call on her," continued her husband, "hoping to cheer some poor soul in her declining years. And what did I find?" He smiled at his bride.

"You found that my television set was bigger than yours," she said.

"And I found," he said, "that I could spout some poetry at you and you could finish the quotation."

In 1918, Bushman recalled, his first wife divorced him—and the resultant publicity dashed the affections of millions of women. His public did not know he was married—let alone that he had five children.

"They stoned me off the pedestal and then they threw mud at me. I had had 18 secretaries answering my fan mail from women. . . . Well after the news broke I suddenly had no mail. And the next I knew I was broke."

But he went on to earn another fortune as an actor—and lost it all again in the crash of 1929.

Exchange Club To Hear Nyaradi

Dr. Nicholas Nyaradi, the only man to beat the Russians out of anything—some 130 million dollars—and a former Minister of Finance of Hungary, will be the guest speaker at the next meeting of the Pitt County Executives Club at East Carolina College Saturday at 7 p.m.

Nyaradi spent seven months in Moscow, in conference with Stalin's henchmen over a reparations claim the Soviet levied on Hungary. Day after day, Nyaradi argued against the Soviet ministers, including Molotov; finally the claim was reduced to approximately one-fourth its original amount.

The Minister of Finance naturally became very unpopular with the Russians. A price of death has been placed on his head, and that of his wife's too, in absentia.

In this country the doctor continues to fight the Russian encroachment of communism. He has authored articles revealing the Russian plans, for the Saturday Evening Post "Fortune," "Liberty" and other leading magazines. He is the author of the book, "My Ringside Seat in Moscow."

He comes here from Peoria, Illinois, where at Bradley University he holds the chair of Doctor of Law and Political Science.

Sinatra To Take Chance On First Film Biography

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Frank Sinatra, to whom nothing seems impossible, is taking a crack at his first film biography—that of comedian Joe E. Lewis. The film's title will be "The Joker Is Wild."

No attempt is being made for a physical resemblance to Lewis, but Sinatra said he will ape the comic's singing and joke delivery style.

"I do a couple of numbers in the early part of Joe's career," Sinatra explained. "They'll be done straight, but with the delivery of the 1929-30 era when every singer was making with the arms like Jolson. Also, I sing the songs a little higher than I usually do."

"Later in the picture, I'll do some of Joe's parody songs, and I'll have a gravelly effect on the high notes, the way Joe does when he can't reach them. I'll also do some standup comedy routines, and I've done a pile of research on those."

Sinatra's next picture is "Pal Joey." He said it is all ready to go. "They had some trouble with the script, but that is all fixed now," he explained. "They didn't know whether to keep Joey a heel after the Rita Character brushes him off or to give him some redeeming qualities.

"They decided to give him a chance, and I think that'll be all right. Not enough people have seen the play to object to that."

Sinatra just did a TV show with Dinah Shore and they drew plaudits for their songolale. He revealed he rehearsed for the show a mere day and a half.

His stipend for the show was reported at $40,000. Despite this lull, he says he'll do no more TV if he can help it. "That TV's a man-killer," he said.

Unitarians Hear Talk On Suez

Dr. W. E. Marshall, of the East Carolina faculty, spoke on "The Suez Canal and the U. N." at the Sunday night's meeting of the Greenville Unitarian Fellowship.

Charles Stoussat, of the East Carolina student body, will lead an informal discussion on "Liberal and Orthodox Faiths" at the next meeting which will be held at 8:00 p.m. Sunday at the College "Y" Hut.

Harry Billica, president of the Greenville Unitarian Fellowship, cordially invites anyone interested to attend their meetings.

Malaria fever has been brought well under medicinal control, but there are still about 250 million people in the world who are made invalids each year by this fever.

Country Dwellers Live Longer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A scientist says country dwellers live five years longer, on the average, than their smog-breathing city cousins.

Dr. Linus Pauling, Nobel prize-winning chemist of the California Institute of Technology, said "People who live in smog-free cities will live perhaps that much longer than those who dwell in the smog."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Leading rails declined and the stock market was slightly lower in quiet trading early this afternoon.

Key stocks fell from fractions to around a point or more. There was a good scattering of gainers. Steels steadied after giving up some ground earlier.

The rails, with some exceptions, were off moderately on profit-taking after this group's fairly vigorous rise of last week.

The market continued to be a sluggish one as the approaching presidential election continued as the dominant factor in the minds of investors. The political shake-up in Poland was still, apparently, being taken in stride although a cautious outlook prevailed in respect to this.

Most leading coppers continued to yield ground following the latest price cut in the red metal by custom smelters.

Among the carriers, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio and Illinois Central lost fractions while Atlantic Coast Line gave up around a point. Norfolk & Western added about a point on news of its higher dividend.

Kennecott Copper and Phelps Dodge dropped fractionally.

Alcoa and Aluminum Ltd. each lost well over a point.

U.S. Steel, Republic Steel and Bethlehem were firm, and Youngstown picked up around a point.

General Motors eased. Chrysler and Ford were steady.

Glenn L. Martin was off about

Healthy Life Is Theme Of Chicod PTA Meeting

A panel of four speakers discusses phases of "Building Foundations with Healthy and Useful Lives" at the Chicod P. T. A. meeting Thursday evening.

Miss Madeline Haddock, student and bus driver, told parents what a child is expected to do to insure his safety as he rides the school bus. Mrs. Anne Hodges, home economics teacher, discussed the necessity of good nutrition in a child's life. She stressed the importance of a good lunch for children required to sit in a classroom most of the day.

The luncheon program was discussed by Mrs. Clyde Stanley, dietitian, showing how the luncheon meets the needs of a child's basic requirements. Linwood Kilpatrick, sanitarian with the Pitt County Health Department, showed movies pertaining to safety on the way to school and safety in the home.

Plans were announced for the November P. T. A. program which will be a "parents back to school night" with parents meeting in the regular classes of their child at which time teachers will explain the aims of the course for the year, what the child can expect to gain from the course and what is expected of the child.

Plans were also made for the annual Halloween carnival and P. T. A. supper at the school.

The program of the weekend meeting presented to those in attendance opportunities both in this country and abroad for young women who wish to prepare themselves for Christian service. Leaders of the Women's Division, missionaries, and other leaders in Methodist activities directed the conference.
