Ike, Security Council Hold Two-Hour Session To Discuss Middle East

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower met for two hours today with National Security Council and civil chiefs of the armed services in a full-dress review of the Middle East crisis.

The session of the nation's top strategy board opened at the White House at 9 a. m. and broke up just before 11.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty, in announcing the end of the meeting, said he had no statement to make.

The Security Council never divulges its deliberations.

Eisenhower ruled out last night the use of American armed forces in the present situation brought about by the Israeli attack on Egypt and British-French intervention.

But the Security Council — the country's top strategic planning agency — has responsibilities reaching far outside the purely military into coordination of diplomatic and economic action.

Thus his apparent task was to plan how to gear U. S. activities generally to the major pledges made by Eisenhower last night in his special radio-TV report to the nation:

1. To rely first on the United Nations for a solution to "this tormenting problem."

2. To do all within the United States' own power "to localize the fighting and to end the conflict."

One matter certain to come in for major attention at the Security Council session was American strategy in the U. N. General Assembly, called into special session today for an effort to end the fighting.

"In the past," Eisenhower said last night, "the United Nations has proved able to find a way to end bloodshed. We believe it can and will do so again."

He set up no specific plans for this country's individual actions.

Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U. S. ambassador to the United Nations who frequently attends Security Council meetings, stayed in New York City for the Assembly session. Vice President Nixon, who seldom misses a council meeting, was absent.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters yesterday, in response to questions, that the Council session today would be a full-dress review of the Middle East crisis. It got under way, with Eisenhower presiding, shortly after 9 a. m.

Eisenhower said the U. N. General Assembly should be able to bring the "opinion of the world" to bear on the Middle East situation.

He chided Britain, France and Israel but added that all had been provoked by Egyptian actions.

He said he has no plan to call a special session of Congress. But he promised to maintain close contact with congressional leaders.

A few hours before Eisenhower spoke, the State Department banned travel by U. S. citizens into Egypt, Israel, Jordan and Syria except where a trip is determined to be in this country's "best interests."

The department announced also that 1,888 Americans had been evacuated from the same four countries by late yesterday afternoon, and that by its count 4,878 Americans remained. It said the Air Force and units of the 6th Fleet are aiding in the evacuation.

The Maritime Administration, meanwhile, advised all U. S. merchant ships to avoid the Suez Canal area until the Middle East situation is clarified.

Eisenhower described the tangled situation in his speech, and then said: "In the circumstances I have described, there will be no United States involvement in these present hostilities."

Eisenhower declared that the Israeli, British and French decisions to attack Egypt were "taken in error."

Yet to say that the U. S. government considers the British, and Israeli actions wrong, Eisenhower declared, "is in no way to minimize our friendship with these nations — nor our determination to maintain those friendships."

General Assembly Called Into Session

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The U. N. General Assembly was called into emergency session today to decide what to do about military attacks by Britain, France and Israel on Egypt.

The U. N. Security Council voted 7-2 last night to summon the Assembly after Britain and France launched air and naval operations against Egypt with the announced aim of occupying the Suez Canal zone and halting the Israeli-Egyptian fighting.

Less than 24 hours earlier Britain and France had vetoed U. S. and Soviet resolutions in the council for a cease-fire in Egypt and withdrawal of Israeli troops.

Under the resolution introduced by Yugoslavia, the special session of the 76-nation Assembly will consider recommendations to U. N. members for collective measures, including "the use of armed force when necessary."

Less drastic steps could include a condemnation of Britain, France and Israel, a cease-fire call, or a request that U. N. members punish the three with diplomatic and economic measures.

Britain and France voted against the resolution to convene the Assembly, contending it was illegal. Australia and Belgium abstained. The United States and the Soviet Union were among those voting favorable votes, further emphasizing the grave split in the Western alliance.

Rudencio Ortega, chief of Chile's delegation who was slated to preside over the special session, said in a statement to the press that the Assembly's first step will be to give "ample moral support" to the U. S. cease-fire resolution which Britain and France vetoed in the Security Council.

The emergency session is the first ever called under the Assembly's so-called "uniting for peace" resolution of Nov. 3, 1950. The United States got that resolution adopted in the Korean War days to enable the U. N. to act against aggression despite the Soviet veto in the Security Council.

The council call for the session said "a grave situation has been created by action undertaken against Egypt" and the council had been unable to act because of the British and French vetoes.

Expert Speaks To Pitt Council

Robert T. Ellett, Jr., Driver Education Manager of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, spoke to the Pitt County Safety Council this afternoon concerning the county's teen-age drivers.

F. B. Johnson, Jr., Chairman of the Pitt County Safety Council, had earlier forwarded information to Ellett which enabled him to present a tentative plan tailored to the needs here in the county.

The information was the number of teen-agers who are driving age, or will be in the near future, in both the county and city schools.

Ellett used these facts as a basis for his study.

He talked to the gathering about the costs per pupil of In-School Driver Training using as a comparison the experiences of Forsyth County and several other driver training activities throughout the state.

He brought out the fact that the more active support given this program the less the cost will be per pupil.

Ellett works in the Public Relations Department of the Reynolds Company and was hired especially for the purpose of aiding in the establishment of Driver Safety Programs throughout the state.

'Acts Like A Republican'

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Democratic congressional candidate Ben Douglas last night accused his opponent of acting like a Republican, and Republican Rep. Charles R. Jonas defended his voting record in the television debate between the two.

Douglas said the congressional voting record of Jonas, the state's only GOP congressman, is "straight down the line Republican." He charged the incumbent with opposition to TA and the Rural Electrification Administration, with voting against right farm price supports and supporting tax exemptions on corporate dividends while ignoring a tax cut for "the little man."

Jonas denied voting against REA. He also replied to other charges of Douglas' by saying he favored limitation of textile imports from Japan and had conferred with President Eisenhower on the matter shortly before Japan agreed to such limitations.

Jonas also asserted that all of the majority of North Carolina's Democratic congressmen voted as he did on unemployment compensation and public housing. He explained that he though unemployment compensation should be kept under state jurisdiction and public housing be tied to slum clearance plans.

Israeli Soldiers Cross Border Into Egypt

Egyptian forces met the Israelis in the sandy desert wastes and they engaged in fierce fighting. Planes and tanks were engaged in the battle. Cairo Claims Ship Bombed In Canal, Traffic Stopped

LONDON (AP) — British and French planes carried on nonstop attacks on Egyptian airfields today and Cairo announced attacking aircraft sank an Egyptian warship in the Suez Canal, blocking traffic and cutting off oil shipping to Europe.

Cairo said British and French warplanes raided Egyptian troops at crossing points along the canal and in the operation sank the Egyptian warship Akka in Tim-Sah Lake just south of Ismailia, midway point of the canal.

Britain and France launched military operations against President Nasser's regime last night with the declared purpose of protecting the Mideast waterway from fighting swirling between Egyptian and Israeli forces in the Sinai Peninsula.

The Egyptians gave out no official information today on the fighting with Israeli troops. But the Israelis claimed Egyptian troops were in retreat and would soon be cut off in the Sinai Peninsula.

Even before Egypt announced blocking of the canal, shipping was reported turning back from its approaches because of danger from military operations.

Egypt asked other Arab states to block another source for Middle East oil—the pipelines from the main production centers to Mediterranean ports.

The Dozmat was carrying mines with the apparent intention of laying them in the area," said the Admiralty announcement. It added 69 survivors from the Dozmat had been picked up by British ships.

Angry Laborites Ask Censure

LONDON (AP) — The British Labour party today brought down on the handsome head of Sir Anthony Eden the greatest storm of his three decades in politics.

In the House of Commons tonight he faces a motion of censure deploring the government's resort to armed force and requiring his resignation if the motion was approved.

Eden's Conservative party has an over-all majority of 60 votes, making defeat for the government unlikely, but even in the ranks of Eden's own followers there were reported to be misgivings over his handling of the Suez affair.

Writers in some newspapers suggested British public opinion has never been so divided at a time of war since the days of the American Revolution.

The last semblance of a bipartisan foreign policy—backed by both the Conservative government and its Socialist opposition, the Labour party—was wiped off the board.

After an acrid debate in the House of Commons, the Labour party filed its motion of censure reading:

"That this House deplors the action of Her Majesty's government in resorting to armed force against Egypt in clear violation of the United Nations charter, thereby affronting the convictions of a large section of the British people, dividing the Commonwealth, straining the Atlantic Alliance, and gravely damaging the foundations of international order."

Opposition Leader Hugh Gaitskell pledged the Labour party to fight Eden's Middle East move "by every constitutional means."

Roughly half of Britain's approximately 30 million voters regard themselves as Laborites. The remnants of Britain's once-powerful Liberal party also appeared to back Gaitskell.

George Says Crisis Means NATO Death

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Sen. Walter F. George regards the present shooting war in the Middle East as a "death blow" to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), he told the Augusta Herald today.

"The Israelis started the present trouble because they were encouraged to do so by both England and France," he said. "It may be that Russia's preoccupation with revolt in her satellite nations may have convinced the anti-Communists it was a good time to act."

"France and Britain have virtually withdrawn from NATO by taking a cession against Egypt. NATO was the screen of protection for Western Europe against Communist Russia and the United States has sunk vast sums into it. The situation today presents some of the meanest pictures in world affairs we have had in some time."

The 78-year-old senator, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, stopped in Augusta overnight on his way to his home in Vienna for "10 days rest." He returned with Mrs. George from a two-months tour of Europe just one week ago.

To Serve Warrant In Theft Of Car

Thomas Joseph Ritter, 18, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who is being held by the Wallace police for larceny, will be served a warrant charging him with auto larceny tomorrow, said S. G. Gibbs, Greenville Chief of Police.

Ritter is charged with the theft of a car owned by Robert G. Harrison, an East Carolina student. As the result of further investigation, another warrant charging Ritter with the theft of an auto owned by Mrs. Edith Harrington, 201 Paris Avenue, will be issued.

The warrant to be received by the Wallace Police tomorrow places Ritter under $1000 bond.

Two Named To Share Chemistry Award

By GUSTAV SVENSSON STOCKHOLM (AP) — A Russian and an Englishman won the 1956 Nobel Prize in chemistry jointly today for discovering the rules of conduct when molecules blow up in chain reactions or combine smoothly.

Their work laid the foundation for the development of plastics and was a factor in later atomic research.

The winner of the first Nobel award ever given to a Soviet citizen is Nikolai N. Semynov, bearded 60-year-old Moscow professor of physical chemistry and the organizer of much of Russia's chemical science.

Sharing the $38,633 award is Sir Cyril Hinshelwood, 59, of Oxford University. He and Semynov worked independently, but have been friends and correspondents for some 25 years.

The prize will be presented to them by King Gustaf VI Adolf of Sweden at the colorful Nobel ceremony in Stockholm Dec. 10. The King also will present the prize for literature to Juan Ramon Jimenez, Spanish poet now living in Puerto Rico, and for medicine to Dr. Andre F. Cournaud and Dr. Dickinson W. Richards Jr. of New York's Columbia University and Dr. Werner Forssmann of Bad Kreuznach, West Germany.

The award to Semynov and Hinshelwood came after nearly 30 years of painstaking research into the basic mechanics of molecular behaviour.

What they found over the years, each in his own country, has already proved to be of sweeping importance to science and modern technology, a Nobel committee expert said.

Working largely with gaseous mixtures, the two scientists were able, among other things, to explain fully the process of chemical chain reaction.

This was a fundamental pre-condition of the age of plastics, the Nobel expert added, since plastics are all produced by chemical chain reaction.

The two scientists also had something to do with the advent of the atomic age. The understanding of nuclear chain reactions was based largely on the explanation of its chemical counterpart given years ahead by Sir Cyril and Semynov.

Both scientists devoted years of study to combustion. Their findings fundamentally influenced the design of modern combustion engines.

Russians Apparently Moving Out Of Budapest

BUDAPEST (AP) — For the first time in nine days no gunfire was heard today in the center of Budapest. Foodshops were operating, but other commerce, industry and transport were dead.

The revolution — scarred capital on the Danube was bathed in bright sunshine and many people were out in the streets. But they were out for food, trying to find relatives and to pick up the threads of their lives torn by the anti-Soviet, anti-Communist civil war.

Russian tanks and infantry had apparently been withdrawn from the capital to their bases. But there were reports that the Russians had thrown a cordon about the capital, some 10 miles outside.

Vengeance squads of young revolutionaries still prowled the streets of Budapest and the city's sewers, hunting members of the hated Hungarian Communist secret police.

When they found them and dumped their bodies. When they found them in the streets, they poured gasoline on their bodies and burned them.

Despite repeated pleas of the Communist-dominated government of Premier Imre Nagy, nobody was back at work in the factories. There was no public transport. Nearly everything was still at a standstill.

Resentment mounted in Budapest against the Nagy regime.

Budapest radi 3rd of 4:36, Vienna date.

Budapest radio said Nagy's government had sent Moscow a note demanding that Soviet delegates be named to confer with Hungarian officials on complete withdrawal of Russian troops from the whole country.

Despite this announcement and Nagy's promise of free elections and other reforms, demonstrations grew against his regime. Nagy himself did not take over until after the rebellion started.

"Out with the government of murderers!" shouted a crowd of 2,000 demonstrators in Kossuth Square outside Parliament.

Hungarian troops bolstered by armed civilians were seen camped on the outskirts of Budapest. It was believed they were trying to prevent the escape of prominent Communists and members of the hated Hungarian secret police.

Budapest radio said former Hungarian Communist party chief Erno Geroe and former Premier Andras Hegedus, who were ousted by the revolt against Red control, have left the country. Presumably they fled to the Soviet Union.

Street fighting was reported still going on last night between the victorious rebels and members of the state police near Budapest's southern railroad station. Secret police officials also were hunted down in other parts of the city and their bodies burned in the streets.

At one square a mob of teenagers drenched the bodies of about 40 policemen in gasoline and set them afire.

Prague radio said a move was afoot to make Josef Cardinal Mindszenty Hungarian premier. But there was no confirmation of the report.

Cardinal Mindszenty declined to make a statement now, but said he would hold a news conference Friday.

Later the Rev. Fabian Flynn, director of relief services for the National Catholic Welfare Conference for Austria, journeyed to Budapest and talked to the cardinal. Father Flynn reported that the cardinal's health seemed only fair.

Another Hungarian churchman, the Rt. Rev. Lajos Ordas, was restored to his duties as bishop of the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Bureau Drive To End Nov. 6

The lagging Farm Bureau drive for members will end on Nov. 6, Chairman J. T. Marston announced today.

A dinner meeting will be held at Respass Bros. at 7 o'clock that night to officially bring the drive to a close.

Marston noted that only 1,636 members have been signed up so far during the membership campaign. The quota for this year is 4,500.

"I know we recognize now more than ever that agriculture needs a closely knit farm organization to protect and improve our farming rights," Marston declared.

He urged all workers to complete their quotas before next Tuesday.

"We want to have a Victory Dinner for all workers to celebrate meeting our quota," he said.

Book Fair Opens For Two Weeks

A wide range of children's books will be on display from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. at the Pitt County Board of Education office from today through November 15.

Five hundred and fifty new and recent books will be on display. These books fall into 33 different subject categories that deal with all grades from kindergarten through high school. The display is a cooperative enterprise of 27 publishing houses.

The purpose of this Book Fair is to make available to schools and libraries a thorough, representative collection of junior library books in an organized exhibit form. This will aid the teacher and librarian in making the best selection for her particular need.

Parents and the general public will find this exhibit well worth their time and attention, stated Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, of the Pitt County Board of Education. Mrs. Baker extended a cordial welcome to all interested people to view the exhibit.

Collision Results In $1100 Damage

Property damage to two cars amounting to $1100 was the result of a collision on North Greene Street last night around 8 o'clock.

William T. Boyd, 19, Greenville, Route 6, was charged with failure to yield the right of way by investigating policeman R. E. Joyner.

Harry Lee Meeks, 32, 2110 North Village Drive, told Joyner that the Boyd car pulled out of a driveway and in front of him.

The damage to the left front of Meeks' car was estimated at $600. Damage to the right side of the Boyd vehicle was estimated at $500. No one was injured.

Threatened Dock Strike Staved Off For 15 Days

NEW YORK (AP)—A threatened waterfront strike has been staved off for at least 15 days, according to a rotating for a new contract on the International Longshoremen's Assn. (ILA) and the New York Shipping Assn., the employer group, have agreed to extend the current work contract until midnight Nov. 15.

A one-month extension of the contract expired last midnight and a strike at that hour had threatened. The ILA usually follows a "no contract, no work" policy.

There were fears that a strike in the Port of New York would spread along the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts. The ILA represents 22,000 workers on the New York, Maine, to Brownsville, Tex.

The I. L. A. which represents dock workers from Portland, Maine, and New Jersey docks in the Port of New York, and the ship-ping association, which represents 170 shipping and stevedoring firms in this area, have been negotiating for a new contract on and off since Aug. 1.

Federal mediators had pleaded for the new contract extension.

Robert H. Moore, assistant to the director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, called the new extension, which was agreed upon late yesterday.

Moore, who heads the mediation panel aiding in the negotiations, said there is now "every reason to believe there will be an agreement without interruption of work."

The employers have agreed to make any wage increase of increased employer contribution to the pension fund retroactive to Oct. 1.

Waldman and Chopin said negotiations will be resumed no later than next Thursday.

'Miss Lucia' Is Club Speaker

Miss Lucia Hutchinson presented the program when the Delphin Book Club met Tuesday with Mrs. Charles W. Moye.

Miss Hutchinson's theme was "Preparation For Life." She discussed three points, parents' purpose, progressive education and social preparation, necessary for parents to follow in order to prepare their children for life.

Miss Hutchinson added that these goals are sometimes hard to keep sight of when parents have so many other home and civic activities to keep them busy.

The program ended with group discussion.

Upon arrival at Mrs. Moye's home on Cotton Road, members were greeted by the hostess and invited into the living room where the club president, Mrs. John Howard, presided over a short business meeting.

Mrs. Moye then served a dessert course and coffee.

Books exchanged following "Miss Lucia's" talk.

Mrs. J. H. Blount and Mrs. F. L. Blount were luncheon hostesses for the occasion at the J. H. Blount home on Elizabeth Street.

The hostesses greeted members and guests upon arrival. Bouquets of chrysanthemums decorated the hall and living room for the occasion.

In the dining room a buffet luncheon was served from the table laid with a pastel blue tablecloth and centered with an arrangement of pastel chrysanthemums.

Serving at the table were Mrs. M. L. Wright and Mrs. F. J. Forbes. They were assisted by Mrs. Howard Hodges.

30 Years Ago Today

November 1, 1926

Washington—Demand for immediate Federal tax reduction and extension of the period in which the public debt will be retired is anticipated at the December Congress by high treasury officials, as a result of the election. Both movements, already launched by Democratic leaders, are opposed by Secretary of the Treasury.

Washington—The disturbing probability that both major parties will be confronted with determined assaults on the Volstead law in their national conventions in 1928 faced political leaders today as related returns permitted a more comprehensive survey of the wet and dry battles fought in many states Tuesday. The present trend, as revealed in the balloting, is distinctly wet. The wets gleefully acclaim it.

Club Hears Of 'Week At Sea'

Mrs. Robert S. Moye was hostess to the Arles Book Club at her home on Harding St. Tuesday night. A lighted pumpkin placed on the steps greeted the guests upon arrival.

Mrs. Moye's home was decorated with arrangements of chrysanthemums for the occasion.

The president, Mrs. Gretchen Goodwin, presided over a business session, during which several letters were read from various civic organizations requesting aid and support. These requests were discussed and voted upon. A plan for the distribution of last year's books was formulated.

Mrs. J. Howard Moye, who had charge of the program for the evening, gave an account of her "Week at Sea." She related her trip of last May to Cuba and Nassau, and the many pictures and folders which she passed among the club members added greatly to the enjoyment of the program.

Mrs. Moye very vividly told of the activities aboard ship; the sightseeing trip over the city of Havana; the contrast in living conditions in the city; and the shops and clubs catering especially to tourists.

Her description of Nassau and the beauty of the island was particularly interesting.

The hostess assisted by her mother, who is visiting Mrs. Moye and who was a guest for the evening, served a dessert course, after which books were distributed and the meeting adjourned.

Ardelia Harper, Mr. Long Exchange Vows

The Church Parlor of the First Presbyterian Church in Greenville was the scene Sunday at four o'clock for the wedding of Miss Ardelia Harper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe J. Harper of Greenville, and Cecil E. Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew M. Long of Jamesville. The Rev. Leonard W. Topping officiated.

Arrangements of white chrysanthemums and pom poms interspersed with greenery and burning tapers in branched candelabra adorned the parlor.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Hubert Haynes, organist, and Miss Janice Holliday of Raleigh, who sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because."

The bride wore a white chanelly lace ballerna dress designed with sweetheart neckline and matching mitts. Her two-tiered fingertip veil of French illusion was attached to a queen's crown of seed pearls on matching lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white feathered carnations.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Clinton Vick of Greenville, was matron of honor. She wore a powder blue tulle model with matching hat and carried a bouquet of pink feathered carnations. The bridegroom's brother, William Long of Norfolk, was best man.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Harper wore a navy blue suit and black accessories complemented by a white carnation corsage. The mother of the bridegroom was attired in a black model with black accessories and a white carnation corsage.

After the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

The dining table was covered with a white lace cloth over green and centered with an arrangement of white mums and greenery with burning tapers on either side.

Mrs. Walter Smith presided over the punch bowl with Mrs. Mark

Armstrong serving the three-tiered wedding cake, nuts and mints being served buffet style. Others assisting in serving were Misses Janet Powell, Doris Hager, Carolyn Beyer, Christine Harper and Doris Harper.

Guests were greeted by Miss Christine Harper of Richmond, Va. who received the guests at the door and made the introductions to the receiving line, composed of Mr. and Mrs. Joe J. Harper, the bride couple, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew M. Long and Mrs. Clinton Vick.

Miss Lorraine Smith presided at the bride's book.

The bride graduated from Eastern High School, Washington, D. C., and is now a member of the junior class of East Carolina College. Mr. Long graduated from Jamesville High School and is a senior at East Carolina College.

Cake Cutting
After the rehearsal Saturday night, Mrs. Walter Smith entertained the wedding party, families and out-of-town guests at a cake cutting. The dining table was covered with a white linen cloth centered with an arrangement of yellow centered chrysanthemums and white mums. Iced drinks, nuts, mints and party dainties were served.

Following the reception out-of-town guests and members of the immediate families were entertained at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe J. Harper, with buffet barbecue and chicken dinners.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hager, Mr. and Mrs. William Shaeffer, Mrs. Nannie Harper Davis, Miss Carolyn Beyer of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. James P. Tatum of Fayetteville; Miss Doris Harper, Miss Christine Harper of Richmond; and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Howren of Norfolk.

Following the ceremony, the couple left for a short trip to unannounced points.

Five Ways To A Perfect Fit At Five Points

U. S. Must Exert Every Influence

Every ounce of influence the United States can muster in international affairs must be exerted to prevent the Middle East struggle from flaring into World War III.

Rapid developments of the past few days have brought open conflict upon the world, first by the Israelis and Egyptians and now by the British and French. These events have likewise brought a drastic change in the alignment of nations of the world.

The United States, England and France, for the better part of half a century the strongest allies, now find themselves separated by a widening gap in international policy. Though foreign policy differences over the decades have caused difficulties among these three bulwarks of freedom, there has not in years been the open cleavage which exists today.

The United States has declared it will not—and in good conscience it can not—support Britain and France in their intervention in the conflict between Israel and Egypt.

Indeed there is the moot question of whether Israel has used France and Britain as pawns in the Middle East, or whether these two powerful nations have conspired with Israel to set the stage for British and French occupation of the vital Suez Canal zone.

More Work Necessary To Slow Down Traffic

Tar Heel motorists as well as those from out of state apparently have a healthy respect for North Carolina's speed limit.

We can't say for sure whether it's because of efficient work of the Highway Patrol, the state's frightful highway death record or the condition of highways. In any event, the fact that most drivers keep their automobiles below the speed limit probably keeps the state's highway record from being worse than it is.

Interesting comparisons of respect for the speed laws by drivers of various classes of vehicles were brought out by the 15-day speed check conducted by the State Highway Commission.

Commercial buses, for instance, had the highest average rate of speed for any class vehicle with an average speed of 51.6 miles per hour. Of the buses checked, 26 percent were going over 60 miles per hour.

About half the tractor-trailer trucks were exceeding the 45 mile per hour speed limit set for that type vehicle and the same was true of other trucks.

By comparison the average speed of passenger cars was clocked at 49 miles per hour with only 13.2 percent of the cars exceeding the legal limit of 55 miles per hour.

While those figures would indicate that the average automobile driver isn't afflicted with too heavy a foot on the accelerator, they also suggest that more attention should be given to the speeds of trucks and buses. Properly organized enforcement practices by the Highway Patrol could bring the percentage of speed violations by these commercial vehicles more in line with that for passenger cars and thus make the highways safer. At the same time the fact that 13.2 percent of the passenger cars were exceeding the legal speed limit suggests that more emphasis might be placed on bringing down the average speed of these drivers.

North Carolina has done a good job of coping with its speed problem on the highways in recent years, but statistics revealed by the recent survey indicate more work may profitably be done in this direction.

Skipper's Life Work Made Newspapers Better

North Carolina newspapers and the state's newspaper profession suffered the loss of an old and valued friend in the death of Oscar J. (Skipper) Coffin.

Probably more than any other man of his generation, the former dean of the department of journalism at the University has left his imprint upon the men who today gather and edit the news for the daily and weekly newspapers of this state.

For 27 years he stood at the head of the University's department of journalism, puffing his cigar and pounding into the heads of young men and women the do's and don't's of good basic newspapering. Over the years he watched his fledglings take up their tasks on news beats, behind typewriters, and in every other segment of the newspaper business.

There are many newspaper men and women in North Carolina who from time to time recall the sharp rebuffs of the Skipper's caustic criticisms. Basic newspaper principles he laid down in no uncertain terms in the classroom still serve as their guide.

North Carolina's newspapers are better today because of the tireless years the Skipper devoted to training men and women in the profession.

Britain and France have motives for such a move. But so also does Israel have a motive for bringing strong British units back to the canal zone.

Britain and France have wanted to send military units back into the canal zone since Nasser nationalized the vital waterway which was controlled by Britain and France. The sudden invasion of Egypt by Israel's forces afforded the British and French at least a superficial reason for sending forces back into the canal zone.

On the other hand Israel has been quite uncomfortable in its position surrounded by Arab nations since Great Britain withdrew its forces from the Canal Zone some time ago. As long as the British stood guard in the canal zone, Israel was reasonably sure of quick military assistance of a strong power should she be attacked by the Arab nations.

Has this common goal of the British, French and Israelis been the foundation for a carefully calculated conspiracy?

It will take all the strength and influence which can be mustered by not only the United States but other members of the United Nations to stop the Middle East struggle while it is still an isolated military action. Severe economic sanctions must be immediately imposed in an effort to stop the fighting. At the same time every other means of international influence must be brought to bear in order to obtain a cease fire.

Every day is precious. Each day the Middle East conflict continues brings the entire world closer to another global conflagration.

The announced policy of the United States not to intervene with military action is the only wise course to follow. Yet this nation, in its position of world leadership, must not hesitate to take whatever courses short of military action which will help prevent another World War at this critical juncture in the history of mankind.

Paul Kelly Returns To C & D Department

By C.A. UPCURCH, Jr. RALEIGH — Paul Kelly, veteran of North Carolina's long campaign to bring in new industry, will return to the Department of Conservation and Development Jan. 1 after a year's leave of absence.

During his leave, he has been helping the Kinston Chamber of Commerce to organize an industry development program. He also is bringing up to date a comprehensive report, first issued early this year, on the impact of Japanese textile imports on the domestic textile industry.

When Kelly began his leave last Jan. 1 he was head of the Department's Statistical Research Section, to which he probably will return. His revised textile study is being awaited with a great deal of interest, since the domestic textile industry has been hard hit by Japanese imports in recent months. The domestic industry raised such a ruckus that Japan voluntarily disclosed in late September it would indefinitely limit shipment of cotton goods to the U.S. by imposing export quotas.

QUOTA — Full details on the Japanese quota system, which the government must work out with Japanese manufacturers, are not expected until mid-November or later. The U.S. cotton textile industry, meantime, has received new assurances that the Eisenhower administration will continue its efforts to "achieve a more orderly marketing of Japanese cotton textiles in the United States."

This assurance came from Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams, who said "conferences with the Japanese are continuing and real progress has been made." He added that efforts to eliminate injury to the U.S. industry "through excessive quantities or unwarranted concentration have not diminished."

His assurances came after textile leaders pressed the administration for a progress report on the U.S.-Japanese arrangement to set up the quotas. Adams said he could not specify just now to what levels Japanese imports will be held.

SEASHORE — Facilities for vacationing and fishing are being steadily expanded on the Outer Banks in the Bodie Island and Cape Hatteras areas. They are slated to go into general public use next spring, but even now some hardy fishing enthusiasts are camped out at Hatteras Point in tents. Restrooms have been built there.

Bath-houses and picnic facilities have been completed at Conquina Beach, south of Bodie Island. The work is being done by the Federal government as part of the development of the Cape Hatteras Seashore National Park.

Also being put into readiness for Outer Banks visitors next summer is the natural history museum in the old lighthouse-keeper's quarters on Bodie Island between Nags Head and Oregon Inlet. This is a lovely brick building, newly decorated inside and painted outside. In it are photographs of birds and animals native to the region, charts showing how the sea formed the Outer Banks, pictures of native plants, and other interesting items. An observation platform will be built into the nearby marsh so nature-lovers can get a close-up view of birds and animals in their natural habitat.

TREES — Work is being pushed on preparing the State's new tree nursery, spread over 85 acres near Morganton, for planting, probably next spring. It will produce mostly white pine, with some shortleaf and Piedmont loblolly.

Duke Power Co., owner of the land, gave the State a long-term lease. Some of the cost is coming from the Federal government as part of its program to help farmers re-forest land they put into the land-bank.

Two other tree nurseries are operated by the State, one at Clayton and the other at Goldsboro. Last year they produced 49,000,000 seedlings.

GOING UP — The price of Christmas trees is going up, if the annual sale of Roan Mountain trees is a criterion. In the recent auction, at which buyers bid for trees on the stump to be cut later, the number of bidders and the total they bid were the highest ever.

There were 60 bidders from North Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and Georgia, and they bought 16,303 trees for a total of $1,460. That averages 69 cents per tree. Last year, the wholesale buyers purchased 22,260 trees for $9,990, an average of 44 cents. This year, therefore, they paid 25 cents per tree more than in 1955.

The annual auction is conducted by the U.S. Forest Service. Its rangers select and mark the trees to be cut and sold and supervise the auction, which was held this year in the courthouse at Burnsville.

The Roan Mountain trees—mostly balsam fir and red spruce—are in high demand because of their lasting qualities. The wholesalers will distribute them throughout the South after they are cut. Local labor cuts and packs the marked trees.

WILMINGTON — Still on Christmas trees, the lights on the world's largest Christmas tree—at Wilmington—are scheduled to be turned on this year on Dec. 15. It's a 300-year-old water oak in Hilton Park, and it has been decorated and lighted every Christmas season since 1929. As many as 65,000 visitors have seen it in a single Christmas season. The tree is over 75 feet high and has a diametric spread of 110 feet.

Other Editors Are Saying... Cars Get More Care

Anderson (S.C.) Independent of whatever vocation or status, were to be given a thorough physical check-up, somewhat similar result percentages would be disclosed. There probably would be ten per cent who have a faulty heart condition.

Two per cent would have cancer—which should be a shocking revelation in itself. Eleven per cent would have insufficient thyroid gland secretion. About 11 per cent also would have an excess of fatty elements in the blood, a factor in hardening of the arteries.

Yet numerous persons who have their cars gone over often give them more solicitude than they grant to their own bodies—then may wonder why around 30 or 40 they are worn out.

Still On The Fence

A Magazine In The Wrong Hands

National Geographic is a wonderful magazine. It's interesting, informative and just chock full of pictures. A man can get an education by constantly studying the pages of National Geographic. And, as you know, there are quite a few pages to the magazine, which brings us to the subject of today's column.

All three of you readers (I picked up a new one yesterday) know by now that my brother Bill is the father of four-year-old twin boys. Thus I'm an uncle of twins.

The other night the twins, Ronald and Donald, came to our house to spend the evening while the parents took in a movie.

I'm always glad to see the little tykes. There're lively and a constant source of joy and amusement to their old bachelor uncle.

So I sat on the couch and turned the pages for the youngsters as they looked at National Geographic.

Things went well like that but I was tired after a long day at the office and finally I decided to take a nap on the couch.

"That's okay, Uncle Alvin," said one of the boys. "You go ahead and sleep."

Gratefully I lay on the couch as the boys played happily in the floor. Their giggles gradually disappeared as sleep overtook me.

Then it happened. Wap! Something hit me on the ear.

In my leap from the couch I just missed the ceiling by inches. The twins howled with laughter as I came down to earth and there on the floor lay the assault object—the National Geographic magazine.

I grabbed both of them—to be sure to get the right one—and whaled the daylight out of them. They just laughed all the harder.

Anyway a word of warning, friends. Don't ever leave a National Geographic and four-year-old twins nearby while you sleep.

Celebrities, when they aren't busy being celebrities, often relax in pursuits that seem childish to the worldly dull. The smarter the celebrity the more likely he is to have this ability to forget his own importance now and then relive the pleasure of acting like a kid.

A few examples: Actor Yul Brynner, star of "The King and I," is sternly impressive when laying down the law of his bevy of Siamese brides. Guess what Yul does in his spare time at home? He spends hours building and operating model railroads.

The portly Aza Khan is known

when are you going to put away all childish pleasures and be deadly serious about everything, your answer should be a fervent, "Never, I hope!"

The trouble with people who always insist on being deadly serious is — they often become seriously dead before their time.

No one could say that statesman Winston Churchill, financier Bernard Baruch, architect Frank Lloyd Wright or Casey Stengel, the leading exponent of world championship baseball, haven't done well in their respective fields. But they are

Most of us who are Christians need to ask ourselves where we would have stood had we listened to the free lance Teacher from Nazareth preaching in Judaea and Galilee 2000 years ago and had listened to the denunciation of him by the Pharisees. I have a sneaking suspicion that many of us would have been on the side of the Pharisees. Could we possibly have believed that this Man with his simple teaching was the intellectual equal of the church leaders of that day? Could we have believed that He and His illiterate associates and the rabble that followed them were God's chosen group for the beginning of a great new movement?

Then it happened. Wap! Something hit me on the ear.

In my leap from the couch I just missed the ceiling by inches. The twins howled with laughter as I came down to earth and there on the floor lay the assault object—the National Geographic magazine.

I grabbed both of them—to be sure to get the right one—and whaled the daylight out of them. They just laughed all the harder.

Anyway a word of warning, friends. Don't ever leave a National Geographic and four-year-old twins nearby while you sleep.

Celebrities, when they aren't busy being celebrities, often relax in pursuits that seem childish to the worldly dull. The smarter the celebrity the more likely he is to have this ability to forget his own importance now and then relive the pleasure of acting like a kid.

A few examples: Actor Yul Brynner, star of "The King and I," is sternly impressive when laying down the law of his bevy of Siamese brides. Guess what Yul does in his spare time at home? He spends hours building and operating model railroads.

when are you going to put away all childish pleasures and be deadly serious about everything, your answer should be a fervent, "Never, I hope!"

The trouble with people who always insist on being deadly serious is — they often become seriously dead before their time.

No one could say that statesman Winston Churchill, financier Bernard Baruch, architect Frank Lloyd Wright or Casey Stengel, the leading exponent of world championship baseball, haven't done well in their respective fields. But they are

Most of us who are Christians need to ask ourselves where we would have stood had we listened to the free lance Teacher from Nazareth preaching in Judaea and Galilee 2000 years ago and had listened to the denunciation of him by the Pharisees. I have a sneaking suspicion that many of us would have been on the side of the Pharisees. Highway Merchants Fighting

By ELMER ROESSNER

The battle between downtown and shopping-center merchants is a classic of retailing history. Meanwhile, a new conflict is shaping up—the fight of highway establishments for part of the trade of both downtown and shopping center stores.

It wasn't many years ago that highway merchandising involved only gas and oil, farm produce, drinks and quick, greasy comestibles. Now look at it. There are furniture, clothing, appliances, housewares, paint, hardware and food stores strung along highways far from towns and cities. There are a few auto agencies out there and, for all we know, a jewelry store or so.

Some, of course, are so located to bid for farm trade. But most of the highway emporiums are seeking — and getting — city shoppers. In some places serious traffic congestion has been caused by strings of such stores.

ADVANTAGES FOR DEALERS

Highway retailers have a number of advantages over city sellers. Outside corporate limits, they escape city taxes, which are often levied on property, receipts AND the right to do business. In many places, such as outside of New York City, city sales taxes do not apply and this attracts penny-conscious customers.

Stores in the sticks also escape many restrictive city ordinances. They can open whenever the owner pleases, doing business on Sundays if desired; they don't have to sweep the sidewalks before 8 a.m., and they don't have to get licenses for close-out sales.

They are freed of the obligation of buying tickets to policemen's, firemen's and sanitation department balls. They avoid the nuisances of countless city inspections.

Rents, at least for land areas, are lower and there are usually inexpensive areas for parking lots to attract customers. Rural shops rarely have to keep non-profit convenience goods, as many city stores do and they are less troubled with curiosity shoppers, customers with petty complaints (who'd drive 30 miles into the country to get a loose screw fixed?) and with shoppers.

Local help is usually cheaper than city workers and there is less trouble with unions.

DISADVANTAGES, TOO

But life is not one long profit-packed dream for the enterpriser along the highway. When he is beyond the protection of city police and firemen, his insurance rates shoot up. While he can buy local services cheaply, when he has to bring a skilled mechanic or expert from the city he pays travel, travel time and often other extras.

He is at the mercy of the weather. A light shower may cut city sales 10 per cent, but it can cut his sales 90 per cent. And he is wholly dependent on the highway. A detour or the opening of a new road can cut off almost all his trade; his life's accumulation may depend on the scratch of a pen at the state capital.

And, at present, he faces another threat. In many states, urban and suburban merchants' organizations are demanding that states place firm controls over out-of-town competitors. They are asking that state-wide Sunday closing laws be passed (which would ruin many roadside enterprises). They want state laws that will make these stores meet the same building, fire and other standards city stores must meet. And they are seeking laws requiring roadside establishments to keep certain distances from the highway. Safety, you know. In many of these proposals, merchants have the support of organized labor.

But legislation rarely is effective in eliminating competition. It looks as if the city-country fight will continue for a long time.

Timing Of Israeli's Thrust More Than A Coincidence

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Israeli thrust into Egypt raises the question: Did the Israelis have a pretty good idea they could get away with it?

There are some things to watch for: how far the United States is willing to go to stop this military move; and whether Britain and France are willing to join the United States in stopping it.

President Eisenhower has built his whole campaign around peace. The Israelis made their attack one week before the U.S. election.

Did they figure Eisenhower would hesitate to plunge the United States into Middle East conflict? The Israeli's timing looks more than coincidental. It's also a time when Russia has its hands full with Eastern European riots.

In 1956 the United States, Britain and France agreed they would act, either inside or outside the United Nations, to stop any aggression in the Middle East. Last night the White House said this country would honor its 1956 pledge.

It also said that today the United States would lay the case before the U.N. But the White House didn't say what this country would do about its pledge if the U.N. did not act, or if Britain or France should balk.

Debate in the U.N. could well last more than a week, or until after next Tuesday's elections.

If the U.N. didn't act and this country decided to move into the Middle East, would Britain and France join in the undertaking?

Both Britain and France were burned up at Secretary of State Dulles for urging caution instead of force after Egypt's President Nasser seized the Suez Canal last July.

Britain had effective control of that canal — with troops stationed there — until 1954. It agreed then to withdraw its troops, but with the provision that it would have the right to reoccupy the canal zone in case the waterway or Egypt was attacked.

If the British now reoccupied the area, they could argue they were merely defending the canal against the Israelis under their 1954 agreement. What would the Israelis do then, fight the British? It seems unlikely.

The Israeli move into Egypt comes at a convenient time for the French, who are plagued by troubles with the Arabs in North Africa.

An Israeli attack on the Arabs anywhere in the Middle East would take some of the heat off the French. Would the French then go along if the United States decided to move into the Middle East?

Bus Driver Yells At Wrong Man

DENVER (AP)—Bus driver Marvin Muck yelled "Aw, shut up" at the driver of a black sedan. Then he learned the driver was Mike Carroll, an investigator for the district attorney.

Carroll flagged the bus to halt, ordered passengers out and told Muck to report at the district attorney's office with his lawyer.

The passengers had to wait for the next bus. Muck said the sedan refused to yield the right-of-way to his bus at a downtown corner. When he blew his horn, the driver yelled at him. That's when Muck yelled back.

Cigars So Good He Kept Them All

DALLAS (AP)—Judge Joe B. Brown lit up a cigar between cases in Dallas County Criminal Court. He leaned back, took a long draw and said: "You know, this is the last of my campaign cigars."

"A fellow gave me five boxes of cigars with my name and campaign slogan on them. They were so good I never gave them out."

Pressure Building Up For Steel Price Rise

NEW YORK (AP)—Pressure is building up again for another rise in the price of steel.

This comes while the effects of the price boost last summer are still working their way through the production of finished goods you buy in the stores.

Several steel executives are contending that another price hike is in the cards. They insist that last summer's rise of around $3.50 a ton to meet the wage increase that ended the steel strike wasn't enough to make up for still rising costs of materials and services.

And another steel wage hike would come automatically if the cost of living index should rise further. Steel wage rates are now tied to the index. The index rose to a new high in September and many think a further climb is ahead.

Along with their talk of higher prices, the executives are boosting their optimistic predictions of future production rates.

Demand from the construction industry, shipbuilders, oilmen, freight car makers is so high that the steel mills can't meet all of it. Orders are piling up and the mills now predict capacity operations through the first half of next year.

It is against this background — rising costs at the steel mills and high demand that appears likely to hold for months — that top men of Bethlehem, Armco and Inland Steel have come forward in recent days to claim that higher prices are needed.

Many in the industry see U. S. Steel's traditional reluctance to hike prices as the main factor in holding the present line. Unless U. S. Steel moves, pressure for higher prices is likely to be confined to the talking stage.

New Air Force 'Unit' Started Because Child Tried To Walk

By CARL BELL
 PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A new air force "unit" is in operation today because a little boy kept trying to walk.

As a result, Jimmy Mason's many spills no longer raise bumps on his head — and others in his school class are just about the happiest jet "pilots" anywhere.

Polio left Jimmy, 7, crippled in both legs and with partial use of only one arm. It didn't rob him of his spunk.

A few weeks ago Jimmy tugged at his braces and began trying to walk. After several attempts, he managed to take a few steps at a time. But he always wound up by falling.

Jimmy was unable to raise his arms to protect himself, and each fall raised a new bump or marked him with a new cut.

Still, he kept trying.

The other day his school teacher at Samuel Gompers Memorial Clinic, Ted Hollingsworth, decided to equip Jimmy with a football helmet and face guard.

The rig protected Jimmy against head injuries, but, says Hollingsworth, it also "made him feel different" from the seven other crippled children in his class.

Jimmy began wearing the helmet with pride, but another problem popped up. Hollingsworth detected a trace of envy on the part of the other pupils.

The teacher turned to nearby Luke Air Force Base for help and the air force came on the run.

Capt. Hugh M. Matheson of Los Angeles, and fellow officers of Luke's 3500th combat crew training group landed a helicopter on a playground at the clinic.

The airmen brought helmets for the seven other pupils, a collection of model planes and certificates activating the class as the "Jet Pilot Squadron."

Matheson admitted he was "a pushover from the start" of the

Two Men Cited After Accident

A Greenville resident and a Williamston resident received citations yesterday afternoon after being involved in an accident on N. C. 33 about 1 1/2 miles east of Pactolus.

Investigating highway patrolman Delton Perry identified the two as James Simon Whitaker, 22, Williamston, Route 2 and Dennis Irvin Clark, 19, 1311 Cotanche Street. Perry said "both vehicles were traveling east on 33 when Whitaker slowed down to make a right turn. Clark was attempting to pass and looked in his mirror to see if any traffic was behind him. He then hit the right rear of Whitaker's panel truck."

Whitaker was charged with failing to give a turn signal. Clark with attempting to pass at an intersection. Property damage amounted to an estimated $200.

Squires Station To Hold Opening

The Grand Opening of Squires' Gulf Station will be held on Friday and Saturday of this week, it was announced today by W. L. Allen, local distributor of Gulf Oil Products.

The newly constructed station is located at the corner of Dickinson Avenue and Washington Street in Greenville.

During the two day grand opening celebration many prizes will be given away. There will be balloons and lollipops for the children and the grand prize is a portable television set.

Joe Squires, manager of the station, is a native of Pitt County and has been an employee of the Gulf Oil Company for more than 11 years.

Effects Of Phone Strike Telling On Ohio Citizens

By LAMAR FALKNER
 PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—People here talk about the telephone strike, the weather — and the telephone strike.

They aren't sure which affects them more.

"Beautiful day" or "lousy weather" used to be the greeting. Now they pass on the streets, grimly shake their heads and mumble something about "telephones" or the lack of them.

Usually, they are trotting somewhere they wouldn't have trotted 16 days ago. That was when Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. closed its exchanges here and in surrounding Scioto County after the installations were stoned by a 500 persons.

This is the third and longest telephone blackout this Ohio river city has seen during the strike, now in its 109th day. The strike began July 15 when 636 members of the Communications Workers of America walked off their jobs in parts of 24 southern Ohio counties.

Besides Portsmouth, a city of some 40,000, at least six other communities served by the company have gone without telephones during the long and bitter dispute. Portsmouth housewives resort to the old-fashioned gossiping over a backyard fence. Messenger service and parlor chats are back in vogue. Taxi-cab drivers cruise the streets hoping to be flagged rather than snoozing while waiting for telephone calls. Western Union is working like it never did before.

The police, taxi companies and amateur radio operators have set up an emergency broadcast system that is connected with hospitals, law enforcement agencies and fire stations.

Sixty-one extra state highway patrolmen sent here by Gov. Frank J. Lausche also deliver emergency messages either by radio or in their cruisers.

The off-and-on contract negotiations were scheduled to resume Friday in Cleveland. So far, the talks have whittled deadlock issues down from around a score to 16. But concessions from either side appeared unlikely on the company's demands for a no-strike clause, the union's stand for a union shop and the company's holdout to de-unionize certain supervisory employees.

Not Much Fuel Saving Despite Warmer Climate

ASHEVILLE (AP)—You can't count on saving much in fuel bills just because the earth is warming up a couple of degrees a century. But it may help insure your great-grandchildren an adequate food supply.

That was the word from Dr. Helmut E. Landsberg, director of climatology for the U. S. Weather Bureau, who told the annual meeting of the American Meteorological Society yesterday that winters also are getting milder.

Dr. Landsberg said the average temperature in the eastern United States is rising by two or three degrees a century. And the ice masses in the arctic regions are melting away, while the average temperature in that area goes up 10 to 12 degrees each 100 years.

This gradual warmup, Dr. Landsberg added, will mean longer growing seasons in some areas. This could help meet the growing need for food by the growing world populace. On the other hand, he observed, the added warmth could make dry areas more arid than before.

He listed as theories for the warmup changes taking place on the sun; mechanical combustion processes increasing the amount of carbon dioxide in the air, to absorb more heat; fading away of a giant cloud of cosmic dust between the earth and sun; and fewer volcanic eruptions, which create heat-shielding dust clouds in the atmosphere.

WACO, Tex. (AP)—A steady increase in student-owned automobiles is giving Baylor University here some headaches.

This year, there are only 1,022 parking spaces on the campus and 2,000 cars are registered for campus parking.

Dean of Men W. C. Perry said each new parking space costs the university $500. Four new parking areas have been added since last year and three are being constructed.

"This still doesn't keep up with demand."

Lot Of Rain

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Enough rain to cover a quarter of the nation with an inch of water was dumped by Hurricane Flossy in its five-day passage across the Southeast last month. That estimate was made by the Weather Bureau here. The rain weighed 50 billion tons.

"Brandy." They prefer "Brandy Station" which is the historic name of their community. Seems as if the railroad has been dropping the "station" from its listings and the post office followed suit. Now the villagers have unanimously voted for restoration of the full name of Brandy Station and the post office has promised to conform.

Democrats Wage Hot Campaign In GOP Vermont

By CORNELIUS F. HURLEY
MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP)—Two Democrats are waging the hottest campaign in years for governor and U. S. senator in traditionally Republican Vermont.

E. Frank Branon, the Democratic nominee for governor, claims he will get enough votes from the state's minority of Democrats and a group of dissatisfied Republicans to become the first Democratic governor of the state in 102 years.

Branon, a state senator and dairy farmer from the small town of Fairfield, is out to displace Gov. Joseph B. Johnson, who defeated him by a 5,200-vote margin in 1954.

In the other principal contest, Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) is running for his third full term with opposition from Bernard G. O'Shea, the 35-year-old editor of a Swanton weekly newspaper.

Both Republicans and Democratic leaders agree that President Eisenhower again will get the state's three electoral votes.

And they agree also that Branon's campaign is the stronger of the two being waged by the Democrats.

But Gov. Johnson and other Republican leaders say they have no doubt of the outcome. They figure the maximum Democratic strength at 60,000 votes, and they are forecasting a state vote of 150,000 or better.

The Branon and O'Shea campaigns have given Vermont a real election campaign for the first time in history.

Banners and placards are in every city and major town, and there have been political rallies in towns where a statewide candidate never even campaigned before.

The issues are purely local in the contest for governor.

The Aiken-O'Shea contest touches more on the national issues, principally on the farm program.

O'Shea has come out for the Democratic plan for rigid farm price supports. Aiken says adoption of that program would be a disservice to Vermont's farmers.

Aiken says the farmers now are receiving 108 per cent of parity for their blended milk, with no limit on production. The Democrats' rigid support plan, he said, would bring production controls.

Escapee Caught After Six Hours

A Greenville Prison Camp convict enjoyed only about six hours freedom yesterday after escaping from a road gang about four miles east of Grifton.

Captain Paul Crawford identified the escapee as Cecil Beugness, 22, of Winston-Salem. Crawford said he was seen by the guards as he ran into the bushes. A search immediately began. Approximately six hours later around seven he was apprehended near Maple Cypress.

Beugness was convicted in April 1955 in Forsyth County on two charges of breaking and entering. He was given from three to five years on each charge. The sentences are to run consecutively.

Small Venom

By WILLIAM MOLE
Illustrated by King Fawcett

CHAPTER I
Casson wondered why the banker was getting drunk.

Henry Lockyer never permitted himself to become intoxicated by anything, especially in his Club. He was a reserved man; dry and unemotional, impeccably neat, precise, punctilious. All this admirably fitted a Director of Gamman's Bank, one of the last and most highly regarded private banks in the City of London.

It was because of this that Casson now speculated the dining room of the Club was half-empty. Beneath the two massive chandeliers which lit the long room, in this severely pillared, gold-and-blue atmosphere, anguish was seething inside a stolid banker.

"Evening, Mr. Duker," said George, the head waiter. Casson's full name was Alistair Casson Duker.

"I will have smoked trout," Casson said, glancing at the menu. "Then the calf's liver a la française." Casson was famous among clubs for his good food. "Ask Daniel to step along, would you, George? I want a bottle of wine."

Daniel, the wine steward, was the oldest of the Club servants, a short, gray-haired man with a head like an eagle and a prodigious memory.

"I'll have a bottle of Moselle, Daniel," said Casson.

He returned to the pleasant itch of his curiosity about the banker. Lockyer always drank one glass of dry sherry before dinner and two glasses of claret with his dinner, sometimes less, never more. This evening Lockyer had drunk two double dry Martinis in fifteen minutes and was now starting upon his second large whisky.

Casson leaned back in his chair, sipped his wine, and let his curiosity increase. This itch to explore had accompanied him through life, and he indulged it wherever possible. Before going to a university it had led him to become a dishwasher in a cafe on the Avenue Kleber in Paris, and as an undergraduate he had joined an ornithologist's expedition to find the nesting colonies of the flamingo in the swamps of the Guadaluquivir. After the war, when he was demobilized from the Airborne Division, the itch had found a new excitement. He had been staying in Bath when rumor had come to him of an outbreak of mania in a village a few miles outside the city.

He had gone there for one night and had stayed a month. Those four weeks gave him a fascinating view of the margins of crime. He had begun to touch the somber border region where desire, intensified by fear, becomes contempt of legality.

He had excoriated himself of this particular nightmare by embodying it, suitably disguised, as an article on the persistence of pagan theophany. His Witch of Bath had been published in a London quarterly journal and had had its brief day of sensation. It had closed the case but it had not cured the itch. Casson searched for human oddities as another type of collector might seek after faked Rubens.

While he watched Lockyer, the itch told him that he had found another oddity.

Women drink because men drink or because they themselves are in physical pain; sometimes because they have lost a lover, more usually because they have lost their looks. They never drink when they are happy. Men drink for both reasons: to swell happiness or to dull misery. Lockyer was not happy; but why was he miserable?

He was a bachelor. Had he at last proposed and been refused? Had he become unbearably lonely, as bachelors sometimes do? Or had he—a far more intriguing speculation—had he committed some crime against his business ethics? There was an extensive range of possible disaster open to a banker.

Lockyer had put down his knife and fork and, with his head in his hands, he called:

"Daniel! Come here. Bring me some more whisky. Bring me two more . . ." His voice tailed off.

With satisfaction Casson finished his liver a la française, paid his bill, and went out into the Oval Room, settling into an armchair with a glass of Armagnac.

He was swilling the brandy round in his glass when Daniel came through from the dining room. Casson lifted a finger, and the old man came over to him.

home with Mr. Lockyer. Can you find his address? I've forgotten it. He's—er—not too well."

Broom found it in his card-index of members. Launceston Street, W. 8. Casson went back upstairs. "I'm going home," he remarked. "I'll give you a lift."

Lockyer nodded and lurched toward the door of the Oval Room. At the head of the curving, double staircase down to the hall of the Club, Casson gave him a helping arm. Angriest Lockyer threw it off but almost fell down the stairs. He made no further motion of protest as Casson helped him down, collected his bowler hat and umbrella, and steered him out into St. James' Street.

He said nothing while Casson drove him home, and Casson did not wish to interrupt his silence. His mind was busy with the problem of how to unlash Henry Lockyer's skeleton cupboard. The rattle of bones had raised his sense of curiosity to an insupportable pitch.

Casson discovers Lockyer's terrible secret tomorrow in Chapter 2 of "Small Venom."

Chain Reaction Brings Doctor
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Police, responding to a report that a child was choking, found 6-year-old Richard Johnson tugging on a chain protruding from his mouth.

Richard, they learned, had been trying to swallow the chain when a link became hooked around his lower tonsil.

The boy was hustled to a hospital, where a physician reached into his throat and untangled the chain. Richard was taken home, tonsil and all.

Two-Way System For Town's Girls
WAVERLY, Iowa (AP)—An Air Force radar site near Waverly has proved to be a boon for marriageable girls in this section.

In the first year of an alarm squadron's assignment there, 44 men were married to girls in the area. That was in 1952. Since then, an average of 12 airmen per year have married Waverly area girls.

Farm Prices Sag For Fourth Time
WASHINGTON (AP)—A week before the election, the Agriculture Department has reported another drop in farm prices—the fourth in as many months.

The department said average farm product prices went down nearly 1 per cent between mid-September and mid-October.

In the Democratic-Republican battle for the farm vote, this new development could be significant.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson, in a statement put out by the department, termed the price decline "slight." He said it was a movement normal in the fall when heavy marketings are in progress.

He also said farm income for the full year should average 4 per cent above last year because of larger production in 1956.

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler, on the other hand, said the price decrease "reveals the Eisenhower-Benson farm program for what it is—a failure."

Coming after three consecutive months of price decreases, the October decline left farm price levels 2.18 per cent above a year ago and 5.4 per cent above last December. However, prices were about 27 per cent under the record peak of February 1951, during the Korean War.

In its report, the department attributed the October drop largely to declines in the prices of meat animals, corn, poultry, eggs and cotton. Increases were reported for dairy products, some vegetables, cottonseed and wheat.

British railroads have some freight cars with glass sides to study how cargo shifts in transit. They are called "fishbowl wagons."

Nearly All 1957 Model Cars To Carry Higher Price Tags

By DAVID J. WILKIE
DETROIT — With one exception all the regular 1957 model automobiles will be on the market within the next two weeks; with two exceptions all will carry higher price tags.

Still to put a 1957 model into production is Packard division of Studebaker-Packard Corp. It halted 1956 model output last June shortly before management of the corporation was taken over by Curtis-Wright (aircraft) Corp.

Studebaker-Packard has said a new Packard car will go into production in November or December and the car introduced publicly some time in January. The only 1957 model passenger cars which did not get a price hike were American Motors' Nash and Hudson models.

Going contrary to industry trends American Motors lowered prices on the larger Nash and Hudson models by $236 to $378. At the same time prices for American Motors' Rambler line were advanced slightly more than five per cent. The Rambler line accounts for a major share of American Motors' retail car deliveries. For the first time Hudson and Nash prices are the same. Both divisions have dropped their six cylinder models. American Motors indicated that at least part of the price cut on the larger cars was made possible by the fact the corporation now is building its own eight-cylinder engines. Elsewhere in the industry prices have been advanced in varying amounts ranging from nominal sums in the lowest price brackets to as much as $644 in the top level area.

The so-called "suggested" factory list prices obviously have some significance. However, they do not actually disclose exactly how much more the motorist will pay for his new car in 1957.

The car buyer has not paid full list price — excepting in the case of a limited number of relatively low production models — for several years. Whether he will pay it willingly during the year ahead may depend to some extent upon the intensity of the competitive battle.

Certainly the new car buyer will not stop bargaining for a price discount or a high trade-in allowance. Of course, even in the best kind of competition at the retail level, the new car buyer does not get both a price cut and an exorbitant trade-in allowance. It undoubtedly is true, as the industry's sales chiefs say, that the 1957 model cars represent more dollar value than any the industry has brought out heretofore. They cite engineering and styling refinements included as standard equipment that obviously account for a substantial part of the higher price tags. At the same time, some of the industry's spokesmen have said flatly that higher production costs have contributed mainly to the price advances. Both these viewpoints can be supported. Certainly the new cars have greater eye-appeal than their predecessors. They also have engineering improvements over the 1956 cars.

As far as higher production costs are concerned the advance in steel prices and the higher cost of retooling for 1957 model production put manufacturing costs at probably the highest level in industry history.

Elvis Haircuts Are Real Gone

ROME, Mich. (AP)—The Elvis Presley look is gone, real gone, from Romeo Community High School.

Fifty-two male students who lately sported the long sideburns and ducktail haircut affected by the rock 'n' roll singer agreed to appear in class today with trimmed hair and clean shaven faces.

They had no choice. Any shaggy holdouts face quick expulsion. School Supt. T. C. Filippula assured the shave-and-haircut edict after teachers complained about the unshorn appearance of some of their pupils and the "defiant" attitude it fostered.

"They had sideburns and long hair that you would think any man would be ashamed of," Filippula said. "And blue jeans sliding off their hips."

Two Romeo barbers, learning of the ruling, offered a free trim for any of the 52 Presley types who could not afford to pay.

One More Exit To Complete Plan

SAINT JOHN, N. B. (AP)—Civil Defense Director E. M. Slader says an evacuation plan for this city of 60,000 cannot be adequate until there is at least one more exit.

Two bridges, at the eastern and western end of the city, provide the only evacuation routes at present.

ECC Methodist Students To Present Church Drama

Methodist students at East Carolina College will present three performances of "The Brother," religious drama, next week in Greenville and Kinston churches.

Sponsored by the Wesley Players, the play is scheduled for Sunday and Monday, November 4-5, at 7:30 p.m. at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church here, and for Wednesday, November 7, at 7 p.m. at the Queen Street Methodist Church in Kinston. The Kinston performance will be included on the program of the Methodist Youth Fellowship there.

"The Brother," three-act drama by Dorothy Clarke Wilson, deals with the ideas and attitudes of James and Mary, brother and mother of Jesus, toward His ministry. The leading roles will be played by W. Joseph Stell III of Hookerton.

James Daughney of Kinston is director of the religious drama, and Letty DeLoatch of Conway is technical director. Scenery, built by members of the Wesley Players, was designed by Daughney, Swell, and Miss DeLoatch. Other members of the cast are Ted M. Lee of Cassatt, S. C., Barbara Davenport of Creswell, Shelby Waters of Grifton, Sue Heath of Kinston, Ralph Shumaker of Greer, S. C., and Daughney.

The play is the first major production for the school year by the Alpha Zeta Chapter of the Wesley Players, organization of East Carolina students. The three performances will be open to the public.

Plane Suffered Violent Rocking

EDWARDS, Calif. (AP)—A camera mounted in the cockpit of the Bell X2 rocket plane shows that Capt. Milburn G. Apt received a violent buffeting before he was killed in the crash of the experimental plane.

er pushing the X2 to a record speed of 2,200 m.p.h. The film shows Apt reaching for the handle to detach the cockpit capsule from the rest of the plane. He was unable to eject himself from the cockpit, however, and it smashed to earth with him inside. An Air Force report of the Sept. 27 crash here said Apt was apparently dazed or injured in the banging around he received in the cockpit and was unable to complete the ejection procedure. Brig. Gen. J. Stanley Holtener, commander of the Air Research and Development Command's flight test center at Edwards Air Force Base, said speed was not the cause of the accident. "The turn may have caused the craft to pitch and roll violently," he said. Old-fashioned burnt sugar cake takes to a chocolate frosting.

Wellman's New Film Is Labor Of Love

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Director William Wellman is reliving his youth in films these days, and it's literally a labor of love. He's not even getting paid for it. The veteran movie maker is producing, directing and cowriting "Lafayette Escadrille" at Warner Brothers. It's a true-life story of that famed flying team of World War I.

gold palm leaves, and he wrote about his experiences in a post-war book, "Go Get 'Em." The picture "Lafayette Escadrille" is taken from life, he declared.

How did he finally get a deal for "Lafayette Escadrille"? "By telling Jack Warner that I would produce, direct and write it for nothing," he replied. "It's the same deal I made with Harry Cohn for 'Gallant Journey.' I got absolutely nothing for that one. "Well, I did get something, after all. A shirt I stole from Glenn Ford while we were making the picture."

Wellman was a pursuit pilot in World War I until he was shot down and invalidated home with a broken back. His exploits won him the Croix de Guerre with four

Beaten To Death By Beet Machine

FLIER, Idaho (AP)—Walter Nelson, 59, was beaten to death in a beet cleaning machine at the Amalgamated Sugar Co. yesterday. His wife, who had brought him his lunch, witnessed the accident. Sheriff James H. Benham said Nelson was inside the machine cleaning it and apparently did not hear a shouted warning it was to be turned on.

Tar Heel Border Moved 66 Feet

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—The North Carolina border was extended into South Carolina 66 feet without fanfare after a survey team discovered an old error in private property lines. Politely the variation was called to the attention of both Tar Heel and Palmetto state officials and the error rectified, including the replacing of border markers on Highway 107.

Two New Plants Boost Production

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Two new cement plants are expected to boost Mexico's output by 200,000 tons during 1957, to a total annual production of 2,300,000 tons. The total production in 1948 was 500,000. The nation's rapid growth has been a constant challenge to production.

Chicod Mothers Organize Group

The gradmothers of the Chicod School met recently at the school to organize as a steering committee for the school. They elected Mrs. Kathryn Edwards and Mrs. Maxine Wiggins as chairman and secretary, respectively.

P. H. Hodges, principal, met with the group and explained the purpose of organizing the group. He also discussed with them the many problems that the school must face to meet today's challenges. Hodges suggested projects that the group could work toward for the school.

Two gradmothers from each homeroom in the school make up the group. They have chosen the following as their first projects: clothing drive, books for the library, magazine drive, work on Halloween Carnival and supper, get out the vote, and have everyone sign a petition for a bond issue. These projects are to be completed by the end of November.

The group plans to meet once each month with committee reports and plans for other projects which will benefit the school program.

House Damaged By Morning Fire

Fire did considerable damage to the front room of a two-room apartment at 808 Willow St. around 9:30 this morning.

The apartment was occupied by Van B. Stokes.

Living room furniture in the dwelling was destroyed by fire and there was other smoke and fire damage within the room.

Stokes said he had been preparing to paint the room and had moved some furniture. While he was outside mixing paint the fire broke out, he said.

Firemen pulled the burning furniture from the room and extinguished the blaze in approximately 15 minutes.

Stokes said damage to both the furnishings and the dwelling is insured.

Tax Reports ...

ust 2, 1956 and July 6, 1956, and a report by F. L. Owens for October 25, 1955.

Discrepancies in copies of the receipt figures of the field men (listed first) and those indicated on Andrews' receipts were as follows:

August 2, 1956: $17.98-$17.20; $14.35-$14.20; $4.25-$4.20; $6.73-$6.70; $18.40-$16.40.

October 25, 1955: $3.07-$3.05; $4.28-$4.26; $3.27-$3.25; $5.95-$5.93; $6.07-$6.04; $9.38-$9.37; $5.29-$5.24; $18.46-$18.45.

July 6, 1955: $30.32-$30.00; $10.70-$10.50; $6.25-$6.20; $10.70-$10.75; $6.79-$6.70; $27.99-$27.40; $12.45-$12.40.

A total of the discrepancies on these reports, exclusive of partial payments reported, indicate a $4.54 error in Andrews' favor.

Auditors today were continuing their audit and making preparations for a thorough check of daily reports turned over to Andrews by field men of the tax office. Those in charge of the audit indicated they intend to check each individual report for each day, but did not indicate how long a period of time this particular phase of the investigation would cover.

They also indicated that other phases of the tax records were also being checked in the investigation.
