Sum Given To Mental Health Campaign

Greene Asks For Joint Health Unit

By JIMMY ELLIS, Reflector Staff Writer. Greene County has made a formal request to become an equal partner in a proposed Pitt-Greene District Health Department. The request was made yesterday at a joint meeting of the Greene County commissioners and Board of Health in Snow Hill. Dr. Walter C. Humbert, Director of the Pitt County Health Department, met with the boards and received the request. Further study of the proposal will be made by committees appointed by the boards of commissioners of the two counties. The Greene commissioners are expected to name a committee of three Monday and the Pitt County group will be asked to do the same thing at its regular monthly meeting. The committees will attempt to formulate a satisfactory merger to present to the boards of commissioners for final action. Greene County never has had a full-time Health Department. The county has been getting contract services from neighboring units but has been without such services since late summer when Wayne County terminated its agreement with Greene officials. Dr. Humbert pointed out that the proposed district department would have offices in Greenville, Farmville and Snow Hill with the Pitt County Health Director as chief executive. He also said the proposal would not result in additional expenditures on the part of Pitt County since Greene County would have to provide funds for the expanded services. The proposal has been approved by the State Board of Health with the provision that the counties can effect a satisfactory merger.

Mental Health Campaign Given Additional $250

In a brief ceremony last night, Exchange Club President Jack Wallace presented Dr. Ray D. Minges, Fund Drive Chairman of the Pitt County Mental Health Association, for the eastern North Carolina counties, a check for $250 to be used exclusively for an "expansion program" for the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic which is located here in Greenville. Upon receiving the check, Minges expressed his appreciation for the large amount of work that the Exchange Club members are doing to promote a cure for America's No. 1 health problem—mental illness. Minges said, "As you know, one out of each 10 of our citizens will at some time experience this difficulty, which means that out of a family of five, there is a 50-50 chance that one member will have mental difficulties. Our hospitals contain more mental patients than polio, heart, cancer and all other types of illnesses combined. The only insurance you can get against this destroyer of minds and lives is an adequate education program for prevention and psychiatric aid for curing mental illness. The only psychiatric help available in Eastern Carolina is the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic, which opens its doors free to all in need of mental aid. Clinics of this type are curing forty per cent of those who would eventually need to go to mental institutions as well as aiding those whose emotional disturbance is not severe enough to require hospitalization," the physician declared. He also expressed gratitude to the civic clubs that have participated in this movement to defeat mental illness.

First Reported Peanut Sale

FIRST LOAD OF PEANUTS—Cecil Long (left) of GE Grain Mill buys what is believed to be the first load of peanuts in this area for this year. The load was purchased from Raymond Rose (right) of near Tarboro. Long described the load as a good grade of peanuts and he said it is the first known load to be purchased in Greenville.

Fail In Effort To Separate Twins

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An operation to separate Siamese twin girls has failed. The UCLA medical center reported that Laura Lee Currier died during the operation yesterday. Nancy Diane died several hours later. The girls, born 12 days ago, were joined from neck to abdomen, the medical center said. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Currier of Simi, Calif., have an 18-month-old daughter.

Rural Store Keeper Beaten And Robbed

A rural store operator was beaten and robbed yesterday afternoon while he was alone in his store-service station on U.S. 64 west of Bethel. Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson identified the man as William E. Lewis, about 31. Being held in connection with the alleged robbery is Lacy Harris, 21-year-old Negro of Tarboro, R. I. The sheriff said Lewis is in serious condition in a Tarboro hospital today. He is believed to have had between $300 and $500 on his person when the robbery occurred. The badly beaten man was discovered by a neighbor who got out at the station after riding home with friends. The neighbor told officers that the door was closed when he arrived and he sat out front for a short while. Later he tried the door and, finding it unlocked, entered the store. Officers quoted the neighbor as saying Lewis was sitting on a bench in a dazed condition.

Britain, France Ignore UN Call; Landings At Suez Scheduled Soon

By JACK SMITH. LONDON (AP)—Britain and France today rejected the U.N. call to halt their attack on Egypt. Their planes hammered at military targets in continued preparations for landing troops to seize the closed Suez Canal. Iraq announced the dispatch of troops into Jordan—raising the possibility of a two-front war for Israel. Syrian forces also were reported rolling into Jordan, whose foreign minister declared there was a "50-50" chance of an immediate attack by Israel. A French military spokesman said the allied ground forces would have as their first task the opening of the Suez Canal. He charged the Egyptians sabotaged the waterway by sinking six ships in it. The Egyptians have asserted that French-British air action blocked the canal. Prime Minister Eden, in rejecting the demand by 64 members of the United Nations for an immediate cease-fire, told Parliament: "There must be a continuation of the action." The French Foreign Ministry similarly said the "police action" must be carried out to halt Israeli-Egyptian hostilities threatening the canal. Denying Laborite charges that Britain defies the United Nations, Eden said Britain wanted a U.N. force to keep the peace in Palestine. Hugh Gaitskell, Labor party leader, accused Eden of gravely damaging the moral authority of the U.N. Eden retorted that if the U.N. would build up an international force "to take practical action to meet a situation which cannot be met by passing resolutions, then I am sure the future of the U.N. will be assured and peace much strengthened." Anthony Head, British defense minister, told Parliament that "so far" there had been no landings on Egyptian soil. British and French warplanes pummeled Egyptian tanks, truck convoys and military installations in the fourth day of an air bombardment apparently aimed at wiping out opposition to a landing of British-French ground forces. Most indications pointed to an early jump-off of the British-French assault on the Suez Canal zone. The threat of Arab-Israeli fighting on Israel's eastern border arose after Israeli forces pushed back some 20,000 Egyptian troops in the Sinai Peninsula on the west. Israel previously has implied she would take action to prevent bolstering of Jordanian forces by other Arab nations. A dispatch from Beirut said the British-controlled Cyprus radio warned all merchant ships to stay away from the eastern Mediterranean and the mouth of the Red Sea "until further notice"—an indication assault craft were headed toward the two ends of the important waterway. A French military spokesman said the combined British and French air forces turned their sights on regrouping Egyptian army units and big military installations on the fourth day of their air bombardment of Egypt. The primary target the first three days was Egyptian airfields. After announcing last night that all was set for the landing, a French military spokesman said today there were "relatively" few French and British troops at the Cyprus staging area when the air assault began Wednesday. He said it required seven days to bring more troops by sea from England and four days from France. However, both countries massed large numbers of troops in the Mediterranean soon after Egypt's President Nasser announced nationalization of the Suez Canal July 26, raising to 18 the number of British Royal Air Force venom jet fighters in a dawn attack over Egypt—the first British-French loss of the air assault, the Cyprus headquarters said. The Syrian radio, substituting for the bombed-out Cairo station, claimed the Egyptians shot down five British bombers today, raising to 18 the number of British and French planes the Egyptians claim to have downed.

Pressed Hungary Pleads For Help

BUDAPEST (AP)—Embattled Hungary sought United Nations help today as Soviet armored forces thrust westward from Budapest in an apparent effort to close off her frontier with Austria. Premier Imre Nagy sent his second appeal in two days to the U. N. urging action on his request the world body guarantee Hungarian independence. The Western powers strove to whip into shape a proposal supporting Hungary's demand for withdrawal of Soviet troops for presentation to a Security Council session this afternoon. Austria border points reported the Hungarian frontier had once more been sealed off. No travelers were allowed to cross from either side. The Russians held dozens of Americans and other foreigners in frontier villages as they tried to return to Vienna from Budapest. Fears of a general Soviet offensive were reported spreading to Poland and throughout the satellite area. In East Germany, Premier Otto Grotewohl declared Soviet troops do not intend to leave that country. He appealed to the population to remain loyal in the face of mushrooming anti-Russian student agitation. Nagy has fired off three protests to the Soviet embassy complaining about troops movements

Residency Training Approved

The Pitt County Health Department has been approved by the American Medical Association for residency training of Public Health officials. Notification of the approval was received today by Dr. Walter C. Humbert, Director. Under the program, the Health Department is certified to give two years' training to physicians who are taking the training for specialization and certification by the American Board of Preventive Medicine. The Pitt Department is only the 35th in the entire country to receive approval for the program from the AMA's Council on Medical Education and Hospitals. There are four other approved departments in North Carolina but only one in Chapel Hill, is active at the present time in residency training. Efforts are being made by the State Board of Health to get a resident here to begin training. Dr. Allen Ryan of Chicago inspected the Health Department in July as a preliminary portion of the application. He spent an entire day working with the department staff, reviewing records and procedures, and examining facilities. Prior to its final approval, the application was approved by a review board in Baltimore, another in Chicago and then forwarded to the Residency Review Committee of the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals. Dr. Arthur N. Springall, secretary of the review committee, notified Dr. Humbert and State Board officials of the final approval.

Comb Ruins Of Warehouse For Cause Of Blaze

Local police, SBI, Fire Underwriters and State Fire Marshal investigators today were in the midst of the tedious job of searching through the smoldering wreckage of the old Empire Warehouse. The building was destroyed by fire early Friday morning. The investigators are searching for evidence which might determine whether the building burned by accident or was set by some "fire bug."

Woman Charged In Knifing Of Man Last Night

The condition of a 29-year-old Negro man was described as "fair" by Pitt Hospital authorities after being stabbed several times in the abdomen last night. Police stated that Hollis Atkinson, 1000 Fleming Street, was stabbed several times after an alleged argument with Victoria Smith, Negro, 36, 1006 Mack Street, last night around 9 o'clock. Atkinson was rushed to the hospital shortly after the fracas by the Rescue Squad. Police described his condition at the time as "serious." The Smith woman was arrested and charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. She is being held without bond in the city jail pending further developments on Atkinson's condition.

Eugene Shaw To Leave Tax Post On January 1

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's chief tax collector, Revenue Commissioner Eugene Shaw, is quitting after 7 1/2 years to resume the private practice of law in Greensboro. Shaw, 57, announced yesterday he will return to his old law office when his present term expires Jan. 1. He is the second top appointive official to announce he is stepping out of public life next year, when Gov. Hodges will begin his new administration if elected as expected on Nov. 6. A. H. Graham, state highway chairman who has been at odds with the governor on highway policy, has announced he will step down when his term ends next May 1. Although there had been reports Hodges did not plan to retain Shaw in his $13,200 a year post, the governor went out of his way at Asheville recently to praise his revenue commissioner. Hodges is serving out the unexpired term of the late Gov. Umstead. He is running for election to a full four-year term. Shaw first was named revenue commissioner, by Gov. W. Kerr Scott and reappointed by Gov. Umstead.

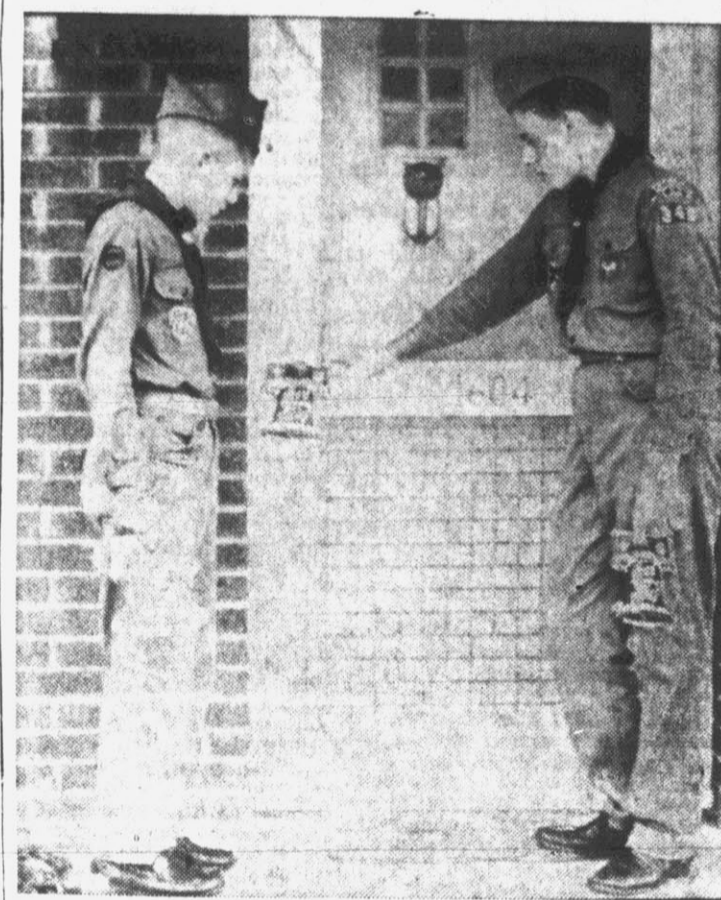

Cold Halts U.S. Base-Building

MIMURDO SOUND, Antarctica (AP)—South polar temperatures of 58 below zero prompted Adm. George Dufek to call a temporary halt today to attempts to set up a U.S. base at the bottom of the world. Yesterday's landing at the pole-enabled man to make the first accurate ground check of the temperature this early in the season. Dufek was the first man to step on the south polar plateau since the ill-fated Scott expedition 44 years ago. The combination of the 10,000 foot altitude and the extreme cold is believed too hard on construction crews at this time," Dufek said.

HE'S STILL WALKING

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—A coupon "good for $10 on any used car on our lot" was printed in an advertisement appearing in the University of Oklahoma student newspaper. A student showed up at the lot the next day with 150 coupons and demanded a $1,500 car free. He still has his coupons and is afoot.

Scouts Work To Get Out Vote

VOTE—Jack Foley, left, 121 North Woodlawn Avenue and Steve Marceran, 1604 Longwood Drive, of Greenville Troop 340 are two of the thousands of Boy Scouts throughout the nation who will be placing Liberty Bells on front doors of homes reminding people to vote. The inscription on the Liberty Bell reads, "Vote as you think but VOTE!" (Reflector Staff Photo).

Dulles Admitted Hospital Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles entered Walter Reed Army Hospital early today and doctors think he is suffering with appendicitis. The State Department's statement in midmorning said the 68-year-old secretary "is resting comfortably" and has been carrying on some of his work by telephone from his hospital bed. Mrs. Dulles and a special assistant from his State Department, William B. Macomber, were with him at the hospital. Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. was in charge at the State Department as acting secretary. The announcement said the diagnosis of appendicitis was a "provisional" decision. It added that "all pertinent studies are not yet concluded." Press officer Lincoln White said word on the possibility of an operation would have to await a final diagnosis. Dulles was stricken in the midst of tense diplomatic maneuvering over two world crises—fighting in the Middle East and Russian intervention in the Hungarian revolt against communism. He returned yesterday from New York City where he called for, and won a United Nations General Assembly vote urging an end to fighting in the Middle East. Doctors were called to Dulles' home in the very early morning after he began suffering stomach pains. He went to the hospital at 7 a.m. the State Department said. Its statement added:

"Dr. A. D. Daughton, the secretary's personal physician, was called to the secretary's home early this morning and Dr. H. Lyons of Washington was called in as a consultant. The secretary is resting comfortably."

No Holiday

Pitt County tax officials forfeited their usual Saturday holiday today as they pushed the investigation of records of the tax collectors office in accordance with action by the County Commissioners. Since last May county offices have been closed on Saturdays, but today was an exception for the tax office. Auditors and tax office employees continued to go over records of Assistant Tax Collector Henry L. Andrews who was suspended late Tuesday afternoon after court proceedings were filed charging Andrews with fraud in withholding from the county "considerable" funds paid through his office. Auditors and tax officials are expected to make a report to the County Commissioners at their regular meeting Monday on alleged shortages in Andrews' office. In a special meeting Wednesday afternoon the Commissioners approved Andrews' suspension and ordered the investigation continued.

Chairman Eli Bloom announced that rehearsals are under way for the Kiwanis Minstrel Show to be given at the college December 4, 5 and 6.

C. E. Blair Elected Kiwanis President

The Greenville Kiwanis Club at its weekly supper meeting last night elected Charles E. Blair president for next year. He will be installed by Lt.-Gov. John T. Barnhill at the first meeting in January. Blair succeeds J. Ed Waldrop as president. J. D. (Dixie) McGlothin is the new vice-president and Bill Corbett, Ed E. Rawl Jr., Charles P. Gaskins and Scrap Proctor are new directors. Holdover directors are D. A. Blue, W. Riley Cox, Robert L. Elks and Raymond W. Lowe. John O. Reynolds is secretary-treasurer. C. R. (Chuck) Kline, special assistant to the plant manager at the Du Pont Company's Kingston plant, guest speaker, discussed "Labor and Management." Prefacing his brief address with some interesting anecdotes, Kline stressed the importance of safety—always! He emphasized human relations and described the importance of individuals. He said the government looks upon people as unions as a mass and declares that we must go back to treating people as individuals. He reminded that "we cannot buy loyalty," deplored the frequent strikes and gave a summary of just how long it will take for strikers, management and the community to regain what they lost during idleness by strike or boycott. The Du Pont representative discussed these problems strictly from the human angle, and he declared peace and goodwill will necessarily follow a better understanding between management and labor. Kiwanian Raymond W. Lowe introduced the speaker.

Small Venom

SYNOPSIS
Casson Duker, a well-to-do amateur detective, is intrigued by Henry Lockyer, a stolid banker, getting drunk before dinner at their club. Casson's curiosity compels him to find out why the normally light-drinking Lockyer is acting in such a manner. Lockyer tells Casson he has been blackmailed by an ordinary looking little man named Bagot who threatened to ruin his reputation. Bagot promises not to bother him again. Lockyer gives Casson a description of the crook but says he will not testify against him if he is arrested.

CHAPTER 3
Automatically Cocker drank some of his whisky. Then he told the story again. Casson remarked to himself on Lockyer's unusual capacity for observing detail. One incident, in particular, intrigued him. The blackmailer had singled out for notice a marble bust in Lockyer's possession.

"There you are," said the banker. "What does that tell you?"
"I don't know. What was his motive?"
Lockyer shrugged.
"Everybody wants money. Some have bills they can't meet, some have bills they want to run up."

"Within limits, I agree. The sort of bills they have to meet will tell you about their characters. Give me a man's bills for a year and I'll tell you what he is like: within limits. You're a banker. You should know that. Read a man's bank statement and sum him up—even his dreams: but only within limits."
"Yes," Lockyer said. He sounded doubtful.

"What bill did he want to pay?" Casson went on. "A mistress?"
"No, Oh, no," said Lockyer quickly.
"A wife, then, who wanted a fur coat, who nagged him to buy a house?"
"No. He isn't married. At any rate not now."
"Again why?"

"I noticed that one of the buttons of his raincoat—and he kept it buttoned up—continually slipped out of its buttonhole. Just as continually he fastened it again but it was an automatic gesture and I'm sure he was unconscious of it. It did that because the button was not properly sewn on, not as a woman would sew it. It was sewn too tight, too close to the material of the coat. I know because I've had to do it myself when I was a young man. Also he had toothpaste in the corner of his mouth. If he had said good-bye to his wife that morning she would have noticed it and told him to wipe it off."

"She might have been in bed, or away visiting her children, or blind?" Casson suggested. He badly wanted to pin Lockyer down on this point.
"She might indeed," the other replied. "But I am sure he is unmarried."
"Go back to when he admired the bust."
Lockyer rose to his feet.
"Come and look." He led the way through folding doors into a back room. It was furnished like a sitting-room, and its pale green walls were hung with French engravings. In the window embrasure was a white marble head of a young man. It stood on a column of green marble. Lockyer pointed to it.

"Roman. First century B.C."
"And little Mr. Bagot admired it," Casson admitted. "He admired it greatly. He interrupted his blackmail to go and touch it, to admire it, to show his envy. He knew when it was carved—without your telling him. In the middle of his ten carefully planned minutes of crime he forgot himself so far as to comment on the head of a young Roman. Indeed he betrayed himself!"
"You know him?"
"Oh no. But I think I know what he is like. I think I know why he blackmailed you. I think I know how he can be found. That bust may send him to prison."

Slowly Casson drove home to Mayfair. At 100A Mount Street, he let himself in, and took the lift up to his flat on the third floor. He switched on the lights in the brood library, went over to the window, drew back the curtains, and leaned out. The gardens were locked and deserted. He stared at them, seeing, not trees, but a dozen shadow shapes of the man Bagot. What was the little man like? What was his ambition? That, in particular, he must know. Find a criminal's ambition and you find the criminal.

He turned back into the room. He was sure that he had the key to Bagot's character but he was not yet certain how the key fitted or what the character would be when it was unlocked. First of all, Bagot must become a man of fact and not of theory.

He had a trace of accent—"common" Lockyer had called it. He was neatly, almost primly, dressed—so far as he could be seen despite his raincoat. He would be lower middle class. The odds on that were a near certainty.

He was not a manual worker. His hands were smooth and neatly kept. Lockyer had particularly remarked on that fact. Therefore he would be an office worker, a clerk of some sort. No. That theory would not fit.

Bagot had showed an uncanny knowledge of Lockyer's affairs, of his personality, of his movements. He must have studied his victim closely, have watched him and followed him. In that case he could not be a clerk, bound to rigid office hours. He must have the free time in which to study his quarry. He must be, to some extent, his own master, a small tradesman perhaps. Unless—and this was a grotesque thought—he was a clerk who devoted his annual fortnight's holiday to a single coup of blackmail! It was an amusing thought but not a practical one. Blackmail was a profession, not a hobby.

Casson stubbed out his cigarette and leaned back in his chair. He was pleased. The blurred picture of Bagot was being brought into focus. The unobtrusive little man with the tight raincoat button was being caged in thought.

Casson was inclined to agree with Lockyer's view of the button. Bagot was unmarried. He lived alone and looked after himself. It was indeed an eminently rational supposition since a wife would be dangerous to him in his illegal profession. No—Bagot must be unmarried. Nor was he a suburban Casanova.

Casson hesitated before he pursued his line of reasoning. The keystone of the arch in which he was framing the figure of the blackmailer was the Roman bust. This was the oddity in Lockyer's story and Casson believed it to be the most significant fact of all. It was unusual for small tradesmen to show such an involuntary and passionate interest in Roman sculpture: doubly unusual to show knowledge of the marble art in the century before the birth of Christ. You cannot conceal your personality, however hard you try, and this love of, or aversion for, works of art was in Bagot's nature.

ELM GROVE REVIVAL
The Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Ayden will open a week-long revival series tomorrow at 7:30.
Dr. L. C. Johnson, president of the Free Will Baptist Bible College of Nashville, Tenn., will be the evangelist. The church pastor, the Rev. J. C. Lynn, and members of the church have invited all interested persons to attend the nightly services.

Moving Together Toward a Common Goal

With the fowl of the air it is instinct! God has provided many of His simplest creatures with an innate sense of harmony, and of purpose.

But with man it is an ideal... still far from realization! Nations and individuals have usually sought their own ends, and little less than attack by a common enemy has ever brought them to united action.

Today, the challenge for harmony and brotherhood is stronger than ever. We know now that the very existence of civilization depends upon a peaceful world.

Our greatest hope is the Church, which throughout the ages, has unceasingly taught the need for moving together toward a common goal. And only the Church has pointed the Way toward that goal.

Join forces with the multitudes in every land who seek the highest goals. Worship with them the only Prince of Peace. And, believing with all Christians in the might of Right, work toward our God-promised destiny.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Mrs. Moore Is Clio Speaker

Mrs. Helen White Hayes was hostess to the Clio Book Club at her home on East Fifth Street Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Hayes' home was decorated throughout with a profusion of fall flowers for the occasion.

The club members were greeted upon arrival by Mrs. Hayes and her mother, Mrs. S. T. White.

Mrs. Hayes introduced Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, guest speaker for the afternoon, who gave an illustrated talk with slides on parts of her recent trip around the world by air.

The slides shown included India, Japan, China and Honolulu. With each slide shown she gave a brief history with many side remarks. Her many modes of travel while sightseeing included cars, rickshaws, elephants and walking.

Mrs. Morgan Fambrough, president of the club, then recognized special guests present for the afternoon. These included Mrs. J. S. Jenkins, Mrs. J. T. Cheatham, Mrs. S. T. White, Mrs. Joseph S. Moye, Mrs. J. J. Perkins, Mrs. J. L. Winstead and Mrs. J. H. B. Moore.

The hostess then invited the guests into the dining room where Mrs. Morgan Fambrough, assisted by Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell, served a salad course. The serving table was centered with a silver bowl filled with chrysanthemums.

Greenville Church Women Hear Talk On Human Rights

Herbert Paschal was guest speaker yesterday for the World Community Day service sponsored here by the Greenville Council of Church Women.

The speaker is on the social science faculty of East Carolina College. His subject was "Our Heritage of Human Rights."

Defining human rights as those "... which belong to all human beings—without regard to place, time, color, sex, parentage or environment," Paschal reviewed the struggle of man for his rights throughout the ages, culminating in the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights by the United Nations General Assembly on December 7, 1948.

Pointing out that human rights are not static and that no declaration of them will ever be exhaustive and final, Dr. Paschal noted "... In the long history of mankind there has been advancement, however precarious and slow, in the moral consciousness of man.

"Today in the twentieth century man perceives more clearly, though still very imperfectly, more of the basic human rights of humanity than did his forbears of the 18th Century," he continued.

He noted in the 17th and 18th centuries, declarations of rights reflected the natural law philosophies of Aquinas, Locke and Hobbes.

In the American Declaration of Independence and the Virginia Bill of Rights of 1776 right concepts were largely stated in political terms, he said.

In the 20th Century's declarations of human rights is found a new emphasis on social and economic rights, he noted.

The speaker traced the mechanism through which the Universal Declaration of Human Rights by the UN General Assembly came into being.

He declared their significance lay in the agreement of most of the governments on earth that certain rights belong not to any one nation or group but to every individual as a human being.

The observance yesterday was held at Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church. Throughout the week United Church Women were sponsoring similar services.

Mrs. Bill Sermons, president of the Greenville Council of Church Women presided and led the congregation in a responsive worship service.

Warm clothing which was brought to the service will be sent to India, Pakistan, Korea, the Near East, Japan, Greece, Italy, Germany and Hong Kong.

Some Answers Offered As To Why Women Politicians Scarce

By FRANCES LEWINE
WASHINGTON — If women are scarce in politics it's because they're afraid "to get their feet wet" by running for office, some of the successful women politicians say.

With women casting 52 per cent of the nation's vote, why do most of those high policy-making jobs go to men?

A few experienced women reported their fellow women are highly capable of holding any post, but are lacking in self-confidence, or bound by family obligations or economic security from getting into government on a full 50-50 basis with men.

The women over 40, free of family responsibilities, was eyed as the key to the future political strength of the distaff side.

A suggestion the women's divisions be eliminated from the Democratic and Republican national organizations came from Miss Hazel Palmer of Sedalia, Mo., attractive, blonde lawyer who heads the 170,000-member National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Miss Palmer saw politics as a matter of "teamwork" and predicted:

"The first party in the country that eliminates a setup that separates men and women will be the party to achieve success and secure the real brainwork of its women members."

"Women tend to underestimate their capabilities" in politics, according to Mrs. Genevieve Blatt of Pittsburgh, secretary of internal affairs — the first woman to win a statewide elective office in Pennsylvania. They have to present themselves as candidates for office just as men do, adds Mrs. Blatt, who holds a $15,000-a-year high level job.

The women says there's no denying the existence of male prejudice.

"It's 'an ageless tradition' and getting men to let women have anything to do with political policy-making is 'a very very slow process' in the view of Mrs. Consuelo Northrop Bailey, 57. She is lieutenant governor of Vermont — the only woman holding such a post in the nation. But she says her state would never elect a woman governor.

Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, only woman to serve as assistant secretary of defense, agrees "it's still an old habit with men not to appoint women to high posts in government. It's very hard to orient them to work with women."

It's a "barrier of circumstances — not sex," says Mrs. Katie Louchheim of the Democratic national committee.

"The career girl finds it's too precarious a way to earn a living," she explains, and adds there are comparatively few women who can leave their homes to go to Washington or a state capital to take an appointive job.

Miss Bertha Adkins of the GOP national committee says party strategy may be almost completely masterminded by men now, but the women are "by no means set apart as an inferior group."

The women have at least one outspoken male friend in high political places — Paul Butler, Democratic national chairman, who says he "strongly favors" appointment of more women to key government spots and encourages men in his party to include women in policy making at every level.

"Not enough women make politics a career," Butler says, but when they do "the quality of public service by women is above the general average of public service by men."

Third Strike For United Nations

The future of the United Nations as an international instrument for preserving peace is at stake in the current Middle East conflict.

If efforts to bring about a cease fire in Egypt are successful, the UN will emerge more powerful and with greater authority than ever before in its history. It will be in a position to force upon future aggressors the will of the vast majority of the nations of the world which are determined to preserve peace.

If efforts at a cease fire in Egypt are unsuccessful, the United Nations may well be cast upon the disastrous tide of inaction which dashed to pieces the promising League of Nations a quarter of a century ago.

Three times now the United Nations has attempted to bring about peace when fighting threatened to engulf the whole world. The first two times it was unsuccessful in securing and maintaining peace at the time it sought that goal.

The UN sought to end the Korean fighting at its beginning, but its efforts proved unsuccessful and a cease fire in Korea came about only after a long and bloody war which cost countless lives. The UN again made a bid to stop fighting between Israel and the Arab nations but when it finally secured what appeared to be a cease fire agreement neither nation would lay down its arms for more than a few days at a time. Now the UN is poised for its third strike. If it fails this time, it may never rise to its potential place as an effective instrument for maintaining peace throughout the world.

The call for a cease fire in the Egyptian conflict has gone out from the UN General Assembly to Britain, France, Egypt and Israel. So far there has been no indication from any of these four nations that they intend to lay down their arms until such time as it suits individual purposes.

Confronted with this condition, the UN, if it is to preserve itself and prevent the now isolated fighting from spreading, must use more than words to persuade the belligerents. Economic sanctions and every other pressure short of war must be brought to bear by members of the United Nations against those engaged in the fighting.

Until such time as member nations in the UN are willing to take concerted action to end the fighting, there is no hope that peace can be achieved, much less preserved.

Hodges' Decision Wise For Himself And State

We can't find fault with Gov. Hodges decision to stick closer to Raleigh for the next few months than he has during the first 10 months of this year. As a matter of fact, we think he owes this consideration to himself and to the people of the state.

During the first 10 months of this year, according to the governor's office, he has traveled 48,500 miles, made 183 speeches and 62 personal appearances. That's a rugged schedule for a man charged with the responsibilities of looking after the important affairs of the state in addition to his travel and speeches.

That's an average of more than 4,800 miles of travel and 18 speeches a month, not to mention the personal appearances. No man can stand that pace for long and still perform the other numerous exacting duties of being governor of a state.

As an election year, 1956 has called for more travel, more speeches and more personal appearances by the governor than in other years. Nevertheless, with the General Assembly meeting in February, there are many important matters which must be attended to in Raleigh before the legislature convenes.

Not only from the standpoint of his own health, but from the standpoint of the affairs of the state, we believe Gov. Hodges' decision to stick closer to home a wise one.

Tuesday, An Important Day For Every Citizen

Besides the question of who will win Tuesday's presidential election there is another question in the minds of a great many people.

How many votes will be cast Tuesday? Will another record vote be cast by people across the nation, or will the total vote represent a small percentage of registered voters than was the case four years ago?

Four years ago more than 13,000 Pitt County voters went to the polls to cast their ballots in the general election. By comparison with the 1948 general election it represented almost a 50 per cent increase in voting. Pitt had one of the best turn-out of registered voters of any county in North Carolina.

This year there are about 20,000 registered voters in Pitt County. At least 15,000 of these will have to go to the polls next Tuesday if Pitt is to have as good a showing percentage-wise as it did four years ago. And there is no reason Pitt should not record its highest total vote in history next Tuesday.

The Reflector urges every registered voter in Pitt County to make a special effort to cast a ballot in Tuesday's election. It is the privilege of every voter to cast a ballot. In addition, it is the civic responsibility of every registered voter to participate directly in the affairs of government by casting their ballots of the men they feel best qualified to hold government offices.

Possibility Of Firebug Must Enter Investigation

Local and state law enforcement and fire officers should leave no ash unturned to determine whether the disastrous series of warehouse fires which have struck Greenville were accidents or the work of a pyromaniac.

Within five weeks three mysterious fires have leveled three large warehouses in Greenville leaving a property loss estimated at more than a million dollars. To compound the tragedy, two lives were lost in the second of the series of fires.

At the moment there is nothing concrete to indicate that any of the fires were anything but accidents. Yet there are certain similarities in the three tragic fires which cannot be ignored.

The three fires have come in rapid succession, all within a five-week period. All involved the same kind of buildings—warehouses—which are known to be particularly vulnerable to fire once one starts in them. All three of the fires were discovered after midnight; the alarm for the third one being received within 10 minutes of the same time of morning that the alarm for the first one was received. The first and second in the series of fires came on Friday nights. The third came on a Thursday night.

For its own protection the city must consider the possibility that the fires were the work of a pyromaniac. If that is the case, every effort must be made to apprehend the firebug before other fires send the property loss soaring higher or claim more lives.

The task before the investigators is a most difficult one. Apparently they have little to go on except the fact there is some similarity in the circumstances of the fires. What else they will be able to find remains to be seen.

For the protection of lives and property in Greenville, however, it is imperative that the most exhaustive investigation possible be conducted.

Solving Big Jobs Requires Thinking

By BEN PARK

Today's guest writer RALEIGH — Solving big problems is a job requiring a lot of hard thinking and cooperation and that's the approach being taken to a problem which is costing Tar Heels $35 million annually. The problem is forest fires.

Obviously anything that takes a 35-million chunk out of the State's economy each year is costing Tar Heels in their per capita income and standard of living. That apparently is the reason for the keen interest of Governor Hodges in seeing that steps are taken to curtail this appalling waste. And that in turn is why the Governor's Conference on Forest Fire Prevention is being scheduled at the N. C. State Fair Arena on November 14.

The program will include exhibits, demonstrations and entertainment. A free barbecue will be served in the middle of the day. Governor Hodges will head a list of speakers selected because of their specific interest in the various phases of forest fire prevention. The complete program had not been announced at this writing but it is said that several well known North Carolinians will participate.

Invitations from Governor Hodges have gone out to more than 6,000 Tar Heels in business, industry, forestry, agriculture and government urging their attendance. The invitation included a reply card and the response suggests that between 2,000 and 3,000 persons will attend.

The value of all forest products in North Carolina totals $750,000,000 annually. This means that forestry, therefore is the State's third industry in money value, ranking behind tobacco and textiles. Lumber, furniture, pulp and paper account for one-third of this total value. Forest product industries employ 78,000 persons in North Carolina, there by ranking second to the textile industry in this economic category. Salaries paid these workers total $243,000,000 annually. The importance of North Carolina's forest industries is further emphasized by the fact that this State leads the Nation in the manufacture of wood furniture and hardwood plywood. Tarheels is also among the leading producers of pulpwood and lumber.

The forest product industries own over 2,500,000 acres of forest land so it is easy to see why the continuing productivity of these woodlands is the continuing factor in the future of the forest industries. That is why fire losses to growing timber make such a terrific impact upon the State's economy — these losses being felt not only in land and plant investments, but in employment, wages and tax income as well.

The State's forest product industries employ 130 foresters each of whom devotes his full time to the problem of reducing forest fire losses. Industry itself spent over one million dollars in forest fire prevention last year. This nearly matched the $1,302,000 spent by federal, state and county governments.

But in view of the $35,000,000 economic loss North Carolina still suffers despite these prevention efforts, it is apparent that more effective means must be brought to play. The November 14 Governor's Conference on Forest Fire Prevention proposes to approach this objective by bringing into the open the frequency with which forest fires are started with criminal intent and by receiving and considering suggestions for a course of unified action.

Governor Hodges has designated November as "Forest Fire Prevention Month" in North Carolina to call attention not only to the Conference but also to help inform Tar Heels of just how vitally the forest fire problem affects their economic well-being.

Business Develops A Conscience

The Charlotte Observer — People who make a habit of bating business are usually many years behind the times. The conditions against which Karl Marx formulated, for example, were those that existed in England in 1850. The Communists still base their propaganda on those conditions, and so they are more than a century behind the times.

To talk about the exploited worker in America is to reveal an ignorance that is hard to understand. Even a housemaid in some cases goes to work in her own automobile. Yef socialist and communist propagandists continue to harp on the exploited worker, and because of their profound ignorance, they actually believe it.

Capitalism in America has undergone a revolution in the last twenty years. Two decades ago it was believed that the only responsibility of business was to make profits and pay dividends to the stockholders. Today, by and large, we have capitalism with a conscience. A large corporation will not put a new plant in a community whose schools, hospitals, recreational facilities, and other civic advantages are not considered good enough for the employees.

Today's corporation executives serve on committees for the improvement of all civic conditions and for betterment in education. Corporations are giving large sums to colleges, hospitals, and orphanages. They are establishing foundations to do all kinds of humanitarian work. By such activities, entirely separate from making profits and paying dividends, American business today is stressing moral values that are far more important than anything that can be shown on a balance sheet. Capitalism with a conscience is the best answer we have to Marxist materialism.

Hallowe'en Proved Too Quiet

As a general rule, writing these little staff columns can be an enjoyable proposition.

However, some of the fun is taken out of the business when it has to be written on the morning of the day it's to be used. Usually, the four of us who do them develop our ideas if we have one a day or two prior to publication date.

The reason for delay with this one is that my creative spirit has been crushed by the lack of Halloween activities in our neighborhood. Gwen and I, with perhaps a fiendish remembrance, had anticipated a wild evening of half-pint goblins and witches who never showed up. We wound up the night nodding through some not-so-inspiring television shows.

Perhaps the little folks realized that pickings would be slim in our neck of the woods. Whatever the reason, not a single one pounded on the door to "trick-or-treat" us. As a matter of fact, we didn't hear even the slightest sound that would suggest that Wednesday night was Hallowe'en.

Gwen and I have presumed that most of the Hallowe'en activities for the young folks were organized to keep them off the streets and out of trouble. The organizers were successful in that respect, but we came out of the whole deal with some questions about the way things went.

For instance, we seriously wonder if any of the younger set ever try to put porch furniture on telephone poles these days.

Do gap-toothed little urchins still scrawl their girl friends' names on car windows with soap?

Do little once-a-year witches revel in the delight of putting on outlandish clothes and roaming over the neighborhood after the sun goes down on Hallowe'en?

Do little gangs of little boys still throw cans with rocks in them on front porches one night a year without running the risk of being called juvenile delinquents?

Do those same little gangs still plot and plan and scheme for about two weeks before Hallowe'en what they're going to do when the big night comes?

Do little girls discover for the first time how protective little boys can be when the little girls act afraid and turn to the little boys to shield them from goblins and witches and that mysterious thing called Hallowe'en night?

Did other little folks do the things Gwen and I did when we were younger or were we genuine juvenile delinquents who missed a chance to become real criminals when so many aspects of recreation became so organized?

We were just wondering.

State Fair Arena Stays Busy

By C. A. UPCHURCH JR. RALEIGH — That marvelous structure just west of Raleigh's city limits known as the State Fair Arena has come in for perhaps more than its share of criticism for a number of reasons — politics included. One seemingly reasonable criticism has been that the modernistic arena has not been put to use. Here's the story on that:

The fact is, the Arena is in almost constant use — but most of the events are of the type that seldom make much news. Many are "educational" in character.

But a listing of the events and the size of the crowds they attract would still surprise most of the building's critics. To date 22 different events have been held in the Arena this year.

Some of them you remember; some you didn't read or hear about because they didn't "make news."

Here's the list so far this year — without the biggest event of them all, the State Fair: Holstein dairy cattle sale, Atlantic Coast Conference Indoor Track Games, State Aberdeen-Angus beef cattle sale, another (commercial) Holstein dairy cattle sale, State Hereford bull sale, Boy Scout Exposition, Raleigh Kennel Club dog show, State Holstein Assn. dairy cattle sale,

State College agricultural students' field day, N. C. Guernsey Breeders Assn. dairy cattle sale, Wake County baby beef cattle sale, American Institute of Co-operation picnic, National Poultry Science Assn. picnic, N. C. Institutional Breeding Program (dairy cattle) sale, Westinghouse Corp. picnic, Dixie Humming Birds, annual meeting of Wake Farmers Cooperative, State Shorthorn beef cattle sale, and the N. C. Hereford Breeders' Assn. state beef cattle sale.

A few of these events could easily be classed as "major," as compared to those of interest to few people and attracting small numbers. The ACC Indoor Games, for example, required several weeks of preparation and attracted a good sized crowd.

The Dog Show lasted all day and into the night and attracted some 10,000 persons. The Boy Scout Exposition packed the house several times during the day it was held. But the Dixie Humming Birds, along with other Negro singing groups, drew the largest crowd ever to witness any event in the steel, glass and concrete building — either during the State Fair or at any other time.

To show the variety of types of events it is possible to hold in the Arena, here is a practical list: Rodeos, horse shows, all kinds of livestock sales, conventions, picnics, outings, track meets, (all on the tankard floor.) With the coming of winter the State Fair Arena will also play host to midgeet auto races every Saturday night. Victor Borge,

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

A GOOD NAME There are millions of people today wearing themselves out trying to get ahead in the world. This is commendable up to a certain point and very decidedly not commendable beyond a certain point.

If what we are trying to do is to furnish a good home for our children and opportunities whereby they may equip themselves for life, then most of the effort we put into such a project is praiseworthy indeed. But their families ahead just for the purpose of getting ahead and staying ahead. We usually associate face saving with the oriental, but there is a tremendous amount of it in our own country. It consists in working and pushing and contriving not for things that will make life more worthwhile for ourselves and for our children but for something that will put them and us ahead of others.

Let us be sensible about what we can do for our children and what we can leave them. If we leave them healthy and well educated, that is good. If we leave them filled with the realization that they have been loved, that is better. Quiet faith in things eternal and a good reputation among one's fellows constitute a priceless legacy. A distinguished father some years ago wrote a poem entitled "To My Son," the first two lines of which are: "I have no wealth to leave you and no fame."

This must be your inheritance—my name."

Pollsters Expect Big Shifting Of Voters

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — "Why is it," asks Mrs. T.L. of Miami, Fla., "that the people of so-called suburbia, the women, the low-age group and the colored people are supposed to favor President Eisenhower over Adlai Stevenson? Haven't they voted Democratic in the past?"

Answer: Although there is no proof that these elements of the electorate will vote for Ike over Adlai, that is the general impression which the pollsters and roving reporters have received. If there has been such a shift, it could be of tremendous political importance in future years. Political experts will study the November 6 returns, district by district and yard by yard, to prove or disprove this supposition.

Secondly, as owners instead of renters of a home, they feel the impact of real estate taxes and other charges. They must spend more on gasoline, furniture, garden equipment, etc. With the Democrats' record of spending, both in wartime and peacetime, they naturally prefer the Republicans in local office. It is only a short step for them to vote the same way on state and national levels.

Since most suburban towns and cities are controlled and managed by GOP officeholders, they become dependent upon them for favors and consideration instead of upon the Democratic politicians in the cities. As evidence of this metamorphosis, there is the fact that the so-called "bedroom counties" surrounding New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and Los Angeles, to mention only a few areas, usually land in the Republican column.

WHY MANY WOMEN LIKE IKE The women are supposed to "like Ike" because he is regarded as devoted to world peace, whereas our past three wars have occurred under Democratic Administrations. Specifically, they remember that he brought their sons and husbands back from Korea. It makes no difference that a Republican Administration, especially if headed by Eisenhower, would undoubtedly have taken up arms against the

Industry Steps Up Naming

By ELMER ROESSNER There may be considerable significance in the fact that the auto industry is stepping up emphasis on names of models and lines this season.

You still hear a lot about Mercurys, Buicks, Chryslers, Nashes, Studebakers and the other old friends. But you are hearing considerably more about Fairlanes, Starfires, Plazas, Sedans de Ville, Sunliners, Montereys, Chieftains, Hornets and other swank and imaginative model names.

Manufacturers appear to have achieved a position in which they can minimize the economic shock of radical change-overs in design. Rumors in the industry say that's the reason for the buildup of the new names.

HOW IT MAY WORK In the past, a radical change in design or features of a car required the complete shutdown of old production lines and re-tooling and re-engineering them for the new model. This involved a sharp lay-off and a suspension of income.

Now things can be different. Let's imagine the Gilhooley Company, maker of the popular Gilhooley car. It has plans for a radically different auto for the 1958 market. Instead of stopping production of Gilhooleys next summer and sending assemblers home until re-tooling is complete, it will make just enough changes in the Gilhooley to justify calling it a 1958 model. Meanwhile, it will set up a new production line for the radically new car which, let's say, it will call the Dingbat.

It will advertise both 1958 Gilhooleys and Dingbats. If the Dingbat catches on, the company will gradually shift Gilhooley production over to Dingbats and for 1959 it will ring out the Gilhooley Dingbat.

This will insure the manufacturer against being stuck with an unpopular model. Several times in the past the public has rejected new models, leaving the manufacturer without a market. If the public doesn't like the new Dingbat, or if the car develops a mechanical bug, the company can switch promotion back to the Gilhooleys.

MORE VARIATION, OVERLAPS More intense competition for sales has had two effects on auto marketing this year: 1. Fewer than ever cars are being offered at standard prices. 2. The overlap between lines within companies is greater than ever.

There are so many variations in equipment and accessories that it is impossible to say that any make of auto sells at any given price. One car comes in a choice of three different wheels; from then on the choice of optional equipment and accessories is so great that the price of any single model can be anything within a range of many hundred dollars.

Within each company, the prices of "popular" and "middle bracket" cars overlap; some Fords are more expensive than some Mercurys; some Pontiacs cost more than some Buicks.

These variations give every dealer an opportunity to sell against almost every other car.

Opinions In Brief

ECONOMIC ILLITERATES The odds are overwhelming "that you are an economic illiterate." So writes Sylvia Porter, the well-known financial columnist. The reason for her indictment is this: "You're among the less than 5 per cent of all high school graduates in our land if you had ever even a semester course in economics."

Miss Porter recommends that economics be a required course in every high school and in the first two years of college. We live in a society which is dominated by economic considerations. As workers and consumers we make economic decisions every day of our lives. The failure of the schools in this respect must be remedied.

Kaiser, Hitler and the North Korean Communists. More@99, they have an image of Ike as a "good father and family man."

EISENHOWER'S HOLD ON YOUNGER VOTERS Two reasons appear to animate the youthful voters. They look upon Ike as a war hero, and as the kind of father they would like to have. They also seem to feel that there will be less chance of being forced to fight in another war with him in charge at Washington. Finally, they do not have the bitter memories of the 1929-1935 depression that their parents had.

Chief Justice Earl Warren's part in the anti-segregation decision and Democratic Congressmen's opposition to implementation of that ruling are regarded as the reasons for Ike's pickup with colored voters.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

In addition to being a very important week for many other reasons, this also could be called Civil War Book Week because we have never seen so many books about the War coming out all at the same time.

There are two about the Confederates, "Gray Ghosts and Rebel Raiders," an edition by Ned Bradford, richly illustrated, of the series of articles originally published by the Century Magazine between 1883 and 1887. . . . Reviewer Henry S. Commager suggests the launching of a "Battles and Leaders of World War II," while the generals and strategists are still around to write it. At least they would do better than the crowd who would write "Battles and Leaders of World War III"—that there will be nobody left around to read it. . . .

We've just received a little pamphlet called "One Hundred Outstanding Books about North Carolina," a compilation by Richard Waiser and Hugh Lefter, English and History professors at State College and U.N.C., respectively. Put out by the U.N.C. Press, it's a handy list to have at hand for those who might want to get hold of any kind of book about North Carolina, since it tells you a little about each one, where it's available, and the price. If you're interested in getting hold of this collection of titles, let your Columnist know or write direct to the U.N.C. Press in Chapel Hill. . . . Also just arrived is the newest catalogue of Penguin Books, which marks the 21st birthday of this extraordinary series, ranging from Puffin Story Books for children three years old and up to a new edition of Shakespeare. . . .

The Local Scene

We hope you got to see "State of the Union," the college production which closed Friday night of this week at McGinnis Auditorium. Starring Jeffrey Lynn, a real live professional, the performance was, to this Columnist's taste, a noble effort and a fine evening's entertainment, particularly because of the wonderful acting of Barbara Harrell and Margaret Starnes, both girls from Raleigh, in the two leading female roles, and Bill Dixon and Bob Tyndall as the masculine support. Actually, there wasn't a single weak spot in the entire cast, and we want to felicitate Dr. Joe Withey for his accomplishment in handling a play that was as hard to direct and stage as any we know. . . .

And don't forget to mark November 12 and 13 on your Drama Calendar. These are the nights when "My Sister Eileen" will cart on the boards of the McGinnis Auditorium stage, and the show will be a good one—we'll give our personal guarantee because we've been watching the rehearsals. The

Youth Groups Top Week's Religious News

NEW YORK. (AP)—Youth figured significantly in this week's religious news: National Catholic Youth Organization Week got under way. Two young Americans prepared for a 12-nation tour to study youth's role in the church. And Methodist leaders were told that the "relatively young" Protestant denominations are leading the fight against use of alcoholic beverages.

Today's Review
Dr. Floyd Overly of the E.C.C. English Department contributes the following comments on a brand new sea yarn. . . .

THE CALENDAR EPIC, by James Kubeck, G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York, September, 1956, 318 pp.

Here is another novel about the war at sea, this time dealing with the merchant marine. The action takes place on the West Coast and in the Pacific during World War II. Readers of the sea stories of that titanic struggle will not be very deeply impressed after having read "Mister Roberts," "The Cruel Sea," "The Calm Muthy," and "Iron Bottom Bay." Devoted to Forester's Hornblower, of Conrad's Marlow, of London's Wolf Larson, of Kipling's courageous captains, and even of Heyerdahl's crazy raft-craft Kon-Tiki or Kirkpatrick's immortal Glencannon will scarcely find enough salt in this story to season a poached egg.

Perhaps it is unfair to a fledgling author (this is a first novel) to jump on his work with heavy sea boots, but there has been so much written about the sea, and especially about sea warfare, which is really great literature, that the new book suffers in comparison.

Annually The Calendar Epic is not a bad book; its agents are sometimes portrayed with a keen precision which reveals their characters in a quick flash; there are scenes of the comic and the grotesque (such as the incident of the floating beer cans) which evoke tender tears of laughter, and, at times, pity. However, when the "heavy" scenes occur—when the lovers start to wrestle, or the guns begin to boom, or, in short, whenever there is any kind of a scene involving serious emotion, the whole show goes flat. Mr. Kubeck's people simply do not come to life.

We might, though, for all this derogatory comment, call this good "escape" literature; if the reader wants to be taken vicariously on a long and dangerous voyage, if he wants to taste the ardent and drooling lips of an eager lover, or to immolate himself in an holocaust of burning oil, then here is his Christmas bun. But it really isn't a very good book.

By Floyd Overly

also will be represented. Leading the team is the Rev. Dr. Bengt-Thure Molander, Geneva, Switzerland, who heads the World Council's Youth Department.

About the "young" Protestant denominations, the Rev. Mr. Caradine R. Hooton, Washington, D.C., general secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, said in Hill Falls, Pa.:

"One cannot escape the fact that denominations whose philosophies have been formulated within the last 300 to 400 years are unanimously of the conviction that total abstinence is the wiser and more nearly Christian way for moderns."

He went on to tell the opening session of a four-day school of alcohol studies for the denomination's Northeastern jurisdiction:

"Only those denominations whose theological interpretations and ethical principles were established in the first three or four centuries still hold to the idea of moderation as a solution to the problems of drinking. It is of great significance that even within these older churches there are definite movements for total abstinence."

Hit On New TV Screen Is Playhouse 90 On CBS

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD. (AP)—The hit of the new TV season is Playhouse 90, a daring innovation in programing guided by able, youngish Martin Manulis.

No new show on this coast has aroused such critical applause. To CBS' satisfaction, the Thursday night drama series has thus far attracted splendid ratings.

"I was surprised we have done so well," said Manulis. "Usually it takes several weeks for a new show to build a rating."

All of the shows so far have been worthy of notice. But the real triumph was the second one, "Requiem for a Heavyweight" with Jack Palance. Manulis terms it "one of the all-time great shows on TV," and some critics have agreed.

The success of Playhouse 90 can be laid to the producer's choice of top-flight material and his ability to round up excellent casts.

Vandals Destroy Gastonia Relic

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—Halloween vandals have done what 30 year's service and 1,300,000 miles could not do to "Old Ironsides." They are sending it to the junkyard.

When retired from service in ceremonies five years ago, "Old Ironsides" was reported to be the last electric streetcar between Richmond and Atlanta. Gastonia mounted the car on a pedestal and gave it a place of honor in front of the city recreation building on U.S. 29.

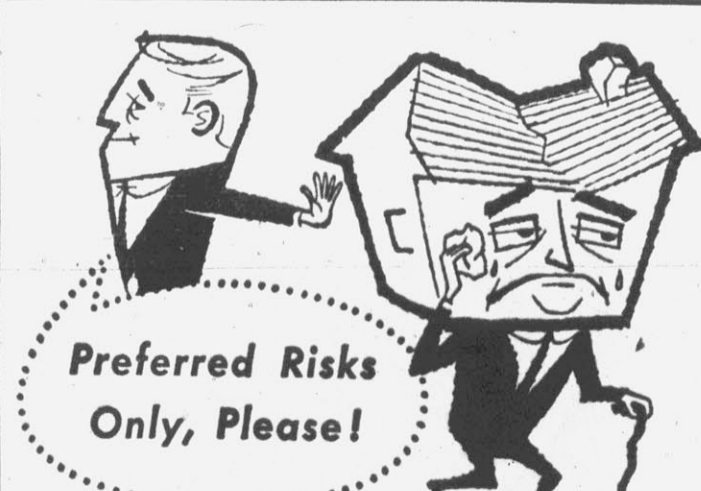

Police reported today that vandals broke into "Old Ironsides" Wednesday night. They tore down the picket fence around the streetcar, broke out windows, tore out seats and dented the sides.

Officers said it would cost too much to repair the streetcar so "Old Ironsides" will go to the scrap heap.

Secret Police's Torture House Found By Rebels

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—A mysterious house on a wooded hill in Buda was opened today by rebel partisans. They said they found it equipped with a "torture chamber" operated by the secret police.

It is located on what is called "Freedom Hill." Often neighbors had seen closed automobiles driving to the villa and disappearing into the garage.

Today it was discovered that a door from the garage led directly to three cells. One was plain, evidently for detaining captives; the second was equipped with a powerful electric light beamed on a chair apparently for interrogation; and the third was padded and soundproof.

The nationalist rebels said it was believed the villa was used for the brainwashing of important political prisoners such as Josef Cardinal Mindszenty. It is only a five-minute walk from the group of plush former residences of Matyas Rakosi, Ernoe Geroe and other leading members of the Red regime.

The whole park-like area was fenced off and patrolled by secret police.

Within the area was a big guest house with comfortably furnished suites and bathrooms for visiting Communist dignitaries. Several of the villas had swimming pools and were furnished with radio, television, thick carpets, and all the costly things the Hungarian people rarely enjoyed.

Concealed under a summer house was a huge underground bunker, connected by underground passages to several of the Red chiefs' homes for escape in case of trouble. It was equipped with shortwave receivers and transmitters.

All the houses are intact except that of Rakosi which was wrecked by a mob.

Thirteen wounded Hungarian rebels some of whom reported they had stormed a Communist torture chamber in Budapest, arrived in Austria today and were placed in Vienna hospitals.

The Moose Tells Its Story, Nationally And Locally

Moose Members Lend Helping Hand To Greenville Community Projects

By NEIL KING, Reflector Staff Writer. The Greenville Moose Lodge, like other fraternal and civic organizations, lend a helping hand to their community. E. T. Clark, one of the 800 plus members throughout Greenville and Pitt County, is the chairman of the latest Moose "helping hand" project. It is known as the Moose Clothing Bank. Old, outgrown and discarded clothes were given to the Bank by the people of the county to be used by other county cousins who are less fortunate. "At present, we have enough clothing to equip between 15 and 18 average families," said Clark. The local Loyal Order of Moose has many other projects, and have aided others in different ways. This year they have donated a machical lung to the Rescue Squad, sponsored the March of Dimes for the county, supported the Mental Health Clinic, sponsored a Little League baseball team and donated a canoe, completely equipped, to the Explorer Scouts, to mention a few. Their plans for the future include sponsoring the Christmas Seal drive, the March of Dimes again, and a Christmas Party for the less fortunate children of the county. They again just mention a few of their "helping hand" projects. But not only do they help others, they look out after their own kind, too. To illustrate this fact, here's the story of Mooseheart, supplied by Herb Mahumed, Director of the News Service at Mooseheart, Illinois. "Mooseheart, the most unique community of its kind in the United States and one of the outstanding Fraternal projects of America is owned and maintained by the Loyal Order of Moose. This unusual community occupying 1144 acres of fertile prairie is a city unto itself located 33 miles west of Chicago. It is known all over the world as the Child City. It has its own homes, schools, church, fire department, hospital, bank, post office, stores, farm and stadium. "Mooseheart was founded upon the educational concept that: "Every child is entitled to at least a High School education and instruction in a trade." This concept of education is accepted by Mooseheart's purpose is to provide a home and school for the dependent children of deceased members of the Order. Whenever possible, the mother is admitted to Mooseheart along with her children. Its resident Chaplains, a 52-year-old physician, minister to the religious requirements of the children, each in the faith which prevailed in their former homes. "Scholastics at Mooseheart are conducted along the same principles as the normal city school system. Its high school is fully accredited. Every child at Mooseheart receives vocational training, that he or she may be qualified to earn a livelihood from the day of graduation. "From the time they are tiny tots in the 'Baby Village' until their graduation from high school, Mooseheart youngsters receive the advantage of the finest medical care, complete to a modern fully equipped hospital and dental department. Since its founding, Mooseheart has uninterruptedly maintained the highest health record of any institution of its kind. "Since its founding, nearly 5,000 children have attended Mooseheart, and their record of achievement after going out in the world 'on their own' bespeaks the excellent training they received.

"Today, Mooseheart represents an investment of more than ten million dollars, is a city of 110 fireproof buildings of modern concrete, including a central heat and power plant, a modern high school building, several large industrial trade shops, a beautiful church, many fine attractive residences, a stadium, gymnasium, hospital, and a modern farm plant. "A spirit of cooperation and helpfulness characterizes Mooseheart, with each of the 700 children knowing his niche in the scheme of things and filling it cheerfully to the best of his ability. The members of the Lodges of the Loyal Order of Moose, whose cooperative effort and support make it possible, can have a feeling of honest pride in their Child City—MOOSEHEART. "The Greenville Lodge was instituted November 24, 1950. Its membership, which has grown steadily since that time, built their own lodge consisting of a large auditorium, a TV room, ladies lounge, small lounge, recreation room, and storage rooms. This lodge is only one of hundreds has been placed on youth activities throughout the United States. It is in providing broad and wholesome educational world as axiomatic. "Mooseheart's purpose is to provide a home and school for the dependent children of deceased members of the Order. Whenever possible, the mother is admitted to Mooseheart along with her children. Its resident Chaplains, a 52-year-old physician, minister to the religious requirements of the children, each in the faith which prevailed in their former homes. "Scholastics at Mooseheart are conducted along the same principles as the normal city school system. Its high school is fully accredited. Every child at Mooseheart receives vocational training, that he or she may be qualified to earn a livelihood from the day of graduation. "From the time they are tiny tots in the 'Baby Village' until their graduation from high school, Mooseheart youngsters receive the advantage of the finest medical care, complete to a modern fully equipped hospital and dental department. Since its founding, Mooseheart has uninterruptedly maintained the highest health record of any institution of its kind. "Since its founding, nearly 5,000 children have attended Mooseheart, and their record of achievement after going out in the world 'on their own' bespeaks the excellent training they received. "As the Moose celebrate their 50th anniversary they become conscious of the fact that they now have seniority, but they do not intend to get along in the future merely upon this seniority. Today the Moose fraternity enjoys a membership of over one and one-quarter million men and women. These men and women are cognizant of the fact that the world will expect more accomplishments be evolved Order. This latter group had reintroduced into fraternalism the long-absent spirit of play and growth. There is not much point in growing older unless they can grow better as they go along. Each anniversary will be a milestone along their highway of growth, progress he had seen of the new. It was his idea in organizing the Moose to create a fraternity which would its anniversaries, and it is in this combine the features he liked best confidence from the past to undertake even more difficult and inspired and member lodges in the adjoining state of Illinois and Indiana. —Herb Mahumed.

WILSON — Greenville high school went down to defeat gloriously here last night 34-13, before a highly-touted but sluggish Wilson Cyclones that finally pulled away from the visitors in the third quarter on sheer manpower and breaks.

Though the oft-defeated Phantoms were expected to be led to the slaughter Wilson had their hands full during the first half of the contest, as Greenville displayed a quality that had not been seen all season: determination.

Fresh from a victory over Wilmington, the Cyclones had become the Cinderella team of the AAA Eastern Conference and were heavy favorites. Coach Guy Lewis' G-Men took the Wilson team's head out of the clouds in a hurry with unexpected vicious tackles, a new double-wing-back attack, and the passing arm of Mack Roebuck.

Wilson Scores First

Wilson opened the game in typical powerful fashion, scoring the first time they got the ball. They kicked off to the Phants, took over on downs and marched 74 yards to the touchdown, picking up six first downs in the process. Ted Perry went from the one and Tommy Fitzgerald booted the extra point.

Before Greenville could recover from the first score, the Cyclones tallied again. A Sermons quick kick on his own 30-yard line was blocked and recovered by Wilson on the Phant. In six plays, Wilson banged over again and Fitzgerald added another point.

Green Fights Back

Greenville came back in a burst of fire in the late minutes of the first half. Greenie Billy Sermons was forced to punt with only a minute and a half left in the period. Robert Howell and Edwin Wilkerson smeared Wilson punt receiver Glenn Bass on the Wilson 48, causing a fumble. Greenville recovered. Three Mack Roebuck, Edwin Wilkerson passes picked up 28 yards and runs by Sermons and Howell pushed to within five yards of the goal. Roebuck passed to Wilkerson for four yards and the score on the final play of the half. Arthur Andrews added the point and it was 14-7 at the half.

A sensational play by Roebuck in the early minutes of the third quarter put Greenville back in the game. Wilson pushed to the Phantom five yard line and quarterback Vince Thomas aimed a pass to a Cyclone end in the end zone. Roebuck intercepted behind the goal and galloped 101 yards, the length of the field, for a second Green score. Seven Greenville blockers materialized quickly to lead the way for the spunky quarterback. Andrews' conversion was blocked. It was 14-13.

Cox Pulls Away

On the resulting kickoff, Cyclone Glenn Bass took the ball on his own 18 and went 82 yards for a touchdown. Fitzgerald converted to make it 21-13.

Moments later, Wilson punted from their own 22 after being held by the G-Men. Billy Sermons fumbled the ball on his own 45. It bounced to the 35 and Cyclone lineman Benton McMillan recovered and went the distance for a fourth Wilson touchdown. Fitzgerald converted and it was 28-13.

The final Blue touchdown came when another Sermons punt was blocked on the Greenville 13. The ball rolled into the end zone and Eddie Gold, Wilson guard, pounced on it for the touchdown. Fitzgerald missed and it ended 34-13.

The Phantoms made one last bid for a tally. Roebuck passed to Wilkerson for 20 yards, to Billy Cox for 21, and again to Wilkerson for 21, which set them up on the Wilson seven yard line. Three desperate passes failed at that point, however, and the game ended there.

Phants "Best Game"

Despite the score, Coach Guy Lewis called the game "the best I've ever seen them play. They did a good job out there."

The Green line played well against the bigger AAA forward wall. Outstanding were Angus Duff, Kenny Whichard, Arthur Andrews, Barney Barrett, Wade Jordan, Wilkerson, Cox, Albert Crawford, Robert Conway and Kelly Barthill. Billy Brown and Roy Martin showed up well in the center of the line. In the defensive backfield, Sermons, Charlie Smith, John Ed Arnold and Robert Howell, along with Charles Roberts, played hard ball. Roebuck was outstanding on both offense and defense.

Next week, Greenville winds up the season by hosting Roanoke Rapids.

SERMONS CORNERED—Billy Sermons is cornered by Wilson's Jack Tillery (60) and an unidentified mate in last night's game. On the ground in front of the play is Phantom Halfback Charlie Smith.

COX IS TACKLED—Green end Billy Cox, after taking a pass from quarterback Mack Roebuck, zoomed down the sidelines for seven yards before being tackled by an unidentified Cyclone man, above.

HOWELL SCAMPERS—Robert Howell scampers for the sidelines in the second quarter of last night's tilt. Howell helped set up Greenville's first touchdown and played fine defensive ball.

West Virginia Putting Victory String On Line

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

West Virginia's string of 18 straight Southern Conference football victories—longest in conference history—went on the line today in a game that very probably will produce the league's 1956 champion.

Since the gaudy victory skein began in 1952, only four teams—South Carolina (now in the Atlantic Coast Conference), Virginia Tech, William and Mary and George Washington—have come within a single touchdown of breaking it. And of these, only George Washington has come close two times.

Hoping the third time would be the charm, George Washington was ready to try again today on the West Virginia field at Morgantown.

During the course of its winning streak inside the conference—a streak that has given the Mountaineers the last three circuit titles—West Virginia has taken the measure of GW four times. The scores were 24-0 in 1952, 27-6 in '53, and 13-7 in both 1954 and 1955. In each of the last two years, heavily favored West Virginia clubs have had to come from behind late in the action to win as expected.

The West Virginia-George Washington collision highlighted a busy seven-game Saturday card for Southern Conference teams.

The cofeature sent Virginia Tech after its seventh victory against undefeated Clemson of the Atlantic Coast Conference. Tech went into action ranked 15th in the nation, Clemson 13th.

Richmond's Spiders (1-3 in the conference) went to Davidson (1-1) and William and Mary (0-3) and VMI (1-1) met at Lynchburg in games that count in the league standings.

Furman (1-4 over-all) entertained powerful South Carolina. The Citadel (2-3-1) was host to Presbyterian and Washington and Lee (0-4) was at Wabash, Ind., in the other games.

Nation's Major Clubs Can't Afford Mistake

By ED CORRIGAN
The Associated Press

The one-mistake and you're-out season started today in college football. Most of the major conference races across the country entered the stage where the leaders can't afford one slip.

Even some of the top independents have arrived at a point where their hopes for a post-season bowl invitation are riding on every block.

The big exception, as usual, is Oklahoma. The Sooners, No. 1 in last week's Associated Press poll, had a date with Colorado at Boulder. The Buffs have high hopes of finishing second to the Sooners in the Big Seven and thus play in the Orange Bowl New Year's Day. Oklahoma isn't eligible.

In the Pacific Coast Conference and Big Ten, where the leaders are fighting for Rose Bowl spots, there could be uprisings.

Stanford, which escaped the wrath of the PCC overlord who penalized a handful of teams for overzealous favors to football players, is riding along in first place, but will be challenged by UCLA.

Iowa, the surprise leader of the Big Ten, is the underdog against Michigan, a club which has seen its title hopes all but smashed.

With the championship of the East hanging in the balance and—more important—a probable bid to the Cotton Bowl going to the winner, Penn State and Syracuse, two more top independents, clash at Syracuse.

Georgia Tech, rated No. 2 right behind Oklahoma, faces Duke, which has been having a sub-par year. Tennessee, No. 3 and Tech's most feared rival for the Southeastern Conference title, should experience no difficulties with Miami kept its record clean last night, defeating Florida State, 20-7 with third-string quarterback Joe Pivell scoring two touchdowns. Boston College held off a late Villanova rush to wrap up a 7-6 decision in the other major game of the night.

Other leading games today: East—Army-Colgate, Boston University-Holy Cross, Harvard-Penn., Maryland-Kentucky, Navy-

Rosi KO's Brown In Eighth Round

WASHINGTON (AP)—Paolo Rosi of the Bronx has demonstrated once again that his right fist packs some of the fireworks his family produces over in Italy.

The balding 28-year-old immigrant splintered Henry (Toothpick) Brown in the eighth round of a nationally televised bout last night. The explosion earned him consideration for a place among the ranking lightweights.

The 23-year-old Philadelphia Toothpick hadn't lost a fight since 1934 until he got in the way of Rosi's gloves. In two previous appearances this year he scored first-round knockouts. Rosi, however, was a different proposition.

After belting his man with long lefts to the head and rights to the body in the earlier sessions, Rosi floored Brown twice for nine counts in the eighth with hard rights to the jaw. Referee Harry Volkman called it quits after Brown struggled to his feet for the second time with 48 seconds left in the round.

Tackle Dismissed From Grid Team

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Tackle Proverb Jacobs was suspended indefinitely from the University of California football team last night on the eve of the Bears' Pacific Coast Conference game with Oregon. Coach Pappy Waldorf reported.

The 245-pound junior, starting right tackle in four of Cal's six games, was dropped for "disciplinary reasons," said Waldorf. Jacobs explained he struck fullback Jim Cherry during a scrimmage Thursday.

The blow up occurred, Jacobs said, after Cherry, playing defensive linebacker, ran through his position to break up an offensive play. Jacobs said the next time Cherry tried it, he hit him three times with his fists.

Three stitches were required to close cuts in Cherry's mouth. Jacobs is a transfer from Modesto Junior College.

Lions Seeking Victory No. 5

By JOE REICHLER

The Detroit Lions, only undefeated team in the National Football League, put their five-game winning streak on the line Sunday against the San Francisco Forty Niners as the professional circuit concludes the first half of the 1956 season.

Four other games are listed. The Chicago Bears face the Los Angeles Rams in the Coliseum, the Cleveland Browns move to Milwaukee to play Green Bay, the New York Giants travel to Pittsburgh to meet the Steelers and the Chicago Cardinals take on the Philadelphia Eagles at Comiskey Park.

The 49ers figure to put up stiffer opposition against the Lions than their record of one victory in five games would seem to indicate. It took a fourth period field goal by Bobby Layne to give the Lions a 20-17 triumph in their first meeting with San Francisco earlier this season in Detroit.

The Bears, trailing the Lions by one game in the Western Conference, will be after their fifth straight victory and their fourth in a row against the Rams. Since losing to Baltimore in the opening game, the Bears have beaten everybody in sight by convincing margins.

The results of the Cardinals-Eagles and Steelers-Giants clashes may settle the first place battle in the Eastern Conference. The Cards, beaten for the first time this season last week when they lost to Washington 17-14, are tied with the Giants at four victories and one defeat apiece.

The Eagles will be seeking revenge for the 20-6 defeat they suffered at the hands of the Cardinals in Philadelphia several weeks ago. They are tied with Pittsburgh for third place, who were out of first place with two victories and three defeats.

Bears Rated To Top ECC Tonite

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lenoir Rhyne's powerful Bears, already the pick to wind up with North State Conference laurels, begin the home stretch in the drive for the title at Hickory tonight against East Carolina.

The game highlights a conference card that has Guilford against Appalachian at Boone; and Catawba going against Wofford at Spartanburg, S.C.; Elon at Newberry and Western Carolina at Emory and Henry, in non-conference games.

The Bears are the nation's top scoring unbeaten and untied team. Coach Clarence Stasovich's single-wing powerhouse has won 14 in a row and hasn't been beaten in 18 games spread over two seasons.

The Bear attack has accounted for 268 points in seven games, or an average of more than 38 points per game. Combining a rugged ground game with expert passing, the team has ground out 2,757 yards, of which 2,044 have been on the ground.

Two Bear backfield men, tailback Walt Cornwell and fullback Harold Bullard are candidates for Little All America honors.

In East Carolina, however, the Bears will face the biggest line in the conference. It averages 204.3 pounds per man, some 10 pounds heavier than Lenoir Rhyne's.

Appalachian will go after its third conference win in its game with Guilford, which is still seeking its first victory.

Elon, which meets Newberry, and Catawba going against Wofford, play two of the South's strongest small college teams. Western Carolina catches Emory and Henry on the rebound from last week's thrashing by Lenoir Rhyne, the first defeat of the year for the Virginians.

Feeling Of Shock In Eastern Europe Over Occurrences In Middle East

Streets Get Sealer Coat

Approximately five blocks of city streets are in the process of getting an additional one-inch coat of asphalt to seal cracks against ice and frost this winter. Here a paving machine puts a sealer coat on one of the streets. (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor).

Editor's Note—William L. Ryan, Associated Press foreign news analyst, is starting a swing through Eastern Europe. Here is his first dispatch.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

BELGRADE, Yugoslav (AP) — A feeling of profound shock pervades this part of the world at the events in the Middle East.

The feeling among diplomatic circles in Tito's capital is that Britain and France have handed the Soviet Union a gift of incalculable value.

The events in the Mideast so overshadow the developments in Poland and Hungary that world opinion has been effectively diverted and the Russians, in the opinion of many here, will have time and opportunity to wriggle off an uncomfortable hook.

Some go so far as to speculate that British and French action in the Middle East may have the effect eventually of defeating the whole revolution in Hungary and whatever chances it had of spreading elsewhere throughout the satellite world.

For a brief period of a week during which Soviet troops, tanks and heavy weapons moved against popular revolution inside Hungary the Western world could with justice point to the Soviet Union as a nakedly colonial regime.

The Soviet Union can now return the compliment to Britain and France and may drag in the United States as well, no matter what the American position in the U.N.

Already there have been pointed references in the Eastern European and Moscow press to the fact the United States in advance of the Israeli move against Egypt ordered its citizens home from the area.

The implication is therefore being drawn in Eastern Europe that the United States must have been aware in advance of things to come.

As soon as the Israel attack was launched the immediate speculation in Belgrade was that this was a maneuver to present Britain an opportunity to move back into the canal zone under an agreement permitting return of British forces if the Suez Canal was threatened by aggression.

From President Tito down, Yugoslavs have condemned the British and French as guilty of outright aggression against Egypt and have made it plain they consider transparent colonialism.

Middle East action erupted just when the Kremlin was in the throes of an ideological crisis which threatened to split its collective leadership. Moscow all but openly admitted it was willing to accept Titoism as fact, in Hungary and Poland at least.

The sensational play in Belgrade to Moscow's announcement that the Soviet Union would negotiate on withdrawal of both troops and its army of experts and advisers indicated the Yugoslav Communist party sensed a decisive victory over Moscow in favor of independent national communism.

Nevertheless, the Middle East crisis presents a threat to world peace, and in such circumstances Moscow can drag its feet on giving in to the Hungarians on grounds of Soviet national security.

There is little doubt here that the British - French action in the Middle East has pushed the Arab world much closer to the Soviet Union.

In the end, while the British and French might succeed temporarily in occupying the Suez Canal zone, events of the past few days may prove to be the beginning of the end of all Western influence in the strategic Middle East, whose oil is the life blood for Western Europe.

Uses Gum Wad To Steal Money

DETROIT (AP) — A 16-year-old boy was accused today of sticking a wad of chewing gum on the end of a stick and fliching 10 $50 bills from a bank drawer through the barred window of the teller's cage. Raymond L. Siebert of Detroit, a Negro, stood mute when arraigned before Federal Judge Ralph M. Freeman yesterday on a charge of violating the Federal Juvenile Act. George E. Woods, chief assistant U. S. attorney, quoted the youth as saying, "I just can't resist it when I see money laying around." Woods said Siebert tricked the woman teller into leaving the cage by asking her to check on a 50-cent service charge levied against his account. The teller remembered the boy's unexplained disappearance when she discovered the shortage at the end of the day. An FBI agent said the loot was found at the boy's home.

Both Did Duty As They Saw It

OROPINO, Idaho (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. William Philpot both did their duty as they saw it. Philpot, Orofino chief of police, issued a citation charging his wife with failure to yield the right of way after the car she was driving collided with another. Then Mrs. Philpot, as correspondent for the Lewiston Tribune, sat down and wrote a news item about the event.
