Reason For U. S. Anglo-French Units Drive To Fear Russia To Move In Mid-East

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The United States had reason to fear today that the Soviet Union might throw military force into the Middle East. The United Nations, by an overwhelming vote, has condemned the British-French attack on Egypt. And Egypt, on the verge of losing a war, has appealed to the world for help in driving out the invaders. There is no question that the sympathy of much of the world, especially that of Moslem countries and nations that were colonies before World War II, is with the Egyptians. Thus the situation seems made to order for the Russians if they choose to move in. A hint of Russian thinking on the subject came out of Moscow overnight. First, the Soviet Union proposed that the United States join it in throwing the aggressors - i. e., Britain, France and Israel - out of Egypt. Then the Soviet Union directed a warning to Britain and France: Moscow was determined to put an end to the war in Egypt. It was determined, too, to crush aggression through the use of force. For the time being, Moscow's statement indicated the Kremlin wanted to act within the frame work of the United Nations. But the U. N. Security Council last night refused even to consider a resolution backing the proposal for joint action by the United States and the Soviet Union against the invaders of Egypt. This raised the question how long the Soviet Union would be willing to keep its intentions within the U. N. realm. It could, perhaps, provide its own answer to this Egyptian plea, announced in Cairo today: "Egypt appeals for help by volunteers, arms or otherwise to all those who all over the world care still for the dignity of man and the rule of law in international relations." The Soviet Union's expressed determination to "use force to crush the aggressors and reestablish peace in the East" was being taken seriously in London. An authoritative source there said Moscow's notes to Prime Ministers Eden and Mollet are not regarded as a propaganda stunt.

Anglo-French Units Drive Ashore; Egypt Asks Help

LONDON (AP) - British - French ground units poured ashore on a widening Suez beachhead today. They headed south from Port Said in defiance of Soviet demands for an end to hostilities against Egypt. British armored forces went into action below Port Said, the combined headquarters on Cyprus announced, and tank-supported assaults "have gone well." French parachute troops captured the town of Port Fuad, across the canal. Other French forces were reported advancing south on the causeway from Port Said. Egypt cried for volunteers from other nations. Radio Cairo announced Saudi Arabia has sent troops to Jordan's frontier and they were about to cross it in support of Egypt. Other Arab troops, from Iraq and Syria, have been reported massing in Jordan, on Israel's eastern flank, but they have launched no attack. The Cairo newspaper Al Shaab exhorted its readers to slay parachute troopers before they land. "Kill him immediately and take his arms," it said. "The parachute trooper cannot defend himself while he is landing. An raid warnings sounded again in Cairo for the seventh straight day and heavy explosions were reported east and northeast of the canal. The Egyptian National News Agency in a report from a correspondent in Port Said, claimed about 400 civilians were killed fighting the paratroopers who landed in the first assault. The correspondent said the population of the port streamed into the fighting, crying "Long live Egypt" and "Death to the enemy."

No, The Voting Age Has Not Been Lowered

WHAT'S THIS?—The voting age hasn't been lowered. These third grade students are just conducting an election of their own today right along with the grown-ups. These students, members of Miss Mildred Pate's third grade class at Wahl-Coates School, organized the election including a registration period prior to today's voting. They followed the progress of political candidates daily on a large class map. Political observers say the class is virtually split between Stevenson and Eisenhower. Checking off the name in the above photo is Jimmy Hale, 8, (right). Handing the ballot is Charlie Merwin, 8. Receiving her ballot is Lois Mullen, age 9. (See other Photo, Page 10).

Sixty-One Million Americans, Or More, Electing President Today

By JACK BELL Associated Press Staff Writer Sixty-one million or more American voters pick a president today amid signs that the thunder of guns in Egypt and Hungary might be more compelling in their choice than the fading campaign oratory. The signs generally pointed to the re-election of Dwight D. Eisenhower for a second term over his Democratic opponent, Adlai E. Stevenson. Democrats were hoping for a repeat of their 1948 surprise victory. There were some advance signals that the voters might decide on at least two more years of two-party government, with the Democrats retaining control of one or both houses of Congress. Despite fair weather forecasts for most sections of the nation, the total vote was not expected to reach the 61,550,918 record set in 1952 when Eisenhower swept to a 442-89 electoral vote victory over Stevenson. The winner needs 266 electoral votes. The impact of international developments seemed to be overshadowing to some extent the campaign arguments. Republicans contended Eisenhower's attempts to bring peace in Egypt and Hungary initially unsuccessful though they were strengthened his position as one who could keep America from involvement in war. Democrats said events had substantiated Stevenson's charges that Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles had "blundered" and either had kept the American people ignorant of the true state of world affairs or did not know the situation themselves. Both candidates and their running mates, Republican Richard M. Nixon and Democrat Estes Kefauver, made final appeals on nationwide radio-television broadcasts last night. Stevenson raised more directly than he had done previously the matter of Eisenhower's health. The President suffered a heart attack in September 1955 and underwent major abdominal surgery last June. "As distasteful as this matter is," Stevenson said in a speech from Boston, "I must say bluntly that every piece of scientific evidence we have, every lesson of history and experience, indicates that a Republican victory tomorrow would mean that Richard M. Nixon would be president of this country within the next four years. "I say frankly . . . that I recoil at the prospect." Eisenhower's press secretary, James C. Hagerity commented in Washington. "I never thought that I would live to hear any American, particularly a candidate for the highest office in our country, give as the reason for his own election a forecast that the President of the United States would die in office. "I sincerely hope that Mr. Stevenson will have as long and healthy a life ahead of him as will the President of the United States."

Closing Date

Greenville's tobacco market will conduct its final sale for the 1956 season next Tuesday, Nov. 13. That was decided last night by the Executive Committee of the Tobacco Board of Trade. Thus the local market has five more selling days remaining for this season. Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee said next Tuesday "will bring to a close a very successful year for the Greenville Tobacco Market." He noted that sales are now "comparatively light as the end of the season approaches." Whedbee emphasized that sales will be conducted next Monday in spite of the Armed Forces Day holiday.

Troops Offered By 6 Countries

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) - U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold announced today that six countries had offered troops for an international police force to watch over a cease-fire in Egypt. The six are Canada, Colombia, Denmark, Pakistan, Norway and Sweden. In a report to the General Assembly, Hammarskjold added that other countries were considering participation and he believed "it should be possible to meet quickly at least the most basic need for personnel." He estimated this at "a few units of battalion strength." Troops of the five "Big Powers" - members of the Security Council - the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and Nationalist China - are barred from the force.

'Some Persons' Quizzed In Full Scale Fire Probe

"Some persons" have been questioned in connection with a fire which destroyed the old Empire Warehouse last Friday morning. Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs revealed today. The SBI State Fire Marshal's office and National Fire Underwriters are investigating along with local police. The investigation continued through last weekend and was still in progress today. "We have questioned some persons in our investigation of this matter and the investigation is continuing," Chief Gibbs said this morning. The full scale probe was instituted after the third warehouse burned within five weeks locally. The officers are considering the possibility that the fires were deliberately set by a "fire bug".

Pitt Precincts See Heavy Turnout In Morning Hours

A noon check of all Greenville precincts and spot checks of other county polling places indicate a heavy vote in today's election. All of the checked precincts reported a considerable number of votes above the usual number cast in the first five-and-a-half hour of most elections. Every one of them expected at least two-thirds of their registered voters to participate in the election. The big issue, of course, is the Presidential election matching President Dwight D. Eisenhower against Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson. There are, however, local elections and state elections also to be considered but they have not generated the interest that the national campaign has. General consensus is that the Democrats will sweep the county without any trouble. There are only 215 registered Republicans among the county's 21,267 registrants but Eisenhower is expected to pick up some votes from the Democratic ranks. Most election observers questioned in the last few days are of the opinion that the Republican candidate will draw less than 2,203 votes he pulled in the county in 1952. However, some voters are of the opinion that recent changes in world affairs will give him votes which would have otherwise gone to the Democratic ticket. Pitt County had a total vote of 13,974 in the 1952 Presidential election. An increase in the number of registrants is expected to push this year's total beyond that and increase the 1952 Democratic vote of 11,271. Greenville's eight precincts reported at noon that they were all running ahead in the number of votes. The city's larger polling places, at the Old Hospital and the Elm Street Recreation Building were nearing 500 ballots apiece with Elm Street (seventh precinct) reporting a noon vote of 493. The Old Hospital (eighth precinct) had passed out 478 ballots. First precinct (Farmers' Warehouse) reported 114 votes; Second precinct (Court House), 179; Third precinct (Third Street School), 282; Fourth precinct (West End Fire Station), 259; Fifth precinct (Keel's Warehouse), 213; and Sixth precinct (Main Fire Station), 338. Most of the precincts reported more than a third of their eligible voters had cast ballots this morning and all were expecting heavy rushes during lunch hours and in the late afternoon. Farmville reported 598 votes of a possible 1890 and Winterville reported 379 of a possible 1,300. The city and county precincts that were checked reported a total vote of 3,453 at noon. The polls will remain open until 6:30 p.m. Returns will be tabulated in the precincts and telephoned to The Daily Reflector where they will be posted out front. The Reflector's "Election Party" will be held as soon as the polls are closed and will continue until all county returns have been reported. Returns will be posted as soon as they are received in the news room.

Russia Warned Not To Intervene

WASHINGTON (AP) - Russia was confronted today with a White House warning that Soviet military intervention in the Middle East would be opposed by the United States. The situation arising out of Russian threats to use force against Britain and France because of their attacks on Egypt was regarded by top officials as extremely grave. The hope expressed in the highest quarters was that Soviet policy would prove to be less tough than Soviet talk. But officials were sharply aware that Premier Nikolai Bulganin had warned in notes to the Western powers yesterday that events in the Middle East held the danger of setting off a third world war. President Eisenhower's initial response to Soviet moves, including a bid for a joint U.S.-Russian force to act against Britain and France under United Nations auspices, was set forth last night in a White House statement and a letter to Bulganin. The two documents made these major points: 1. The suggestion that a U.S.-Soviet force hit the British and French is "unthinkable." In New York, the U. N. Security Council refused to consider this proposal, made by Bulganin in a letter to Eisenhower yesterday. 2. The introduction of any such forces into the Middle East would violate the United Nations charter and it would be the duty of all United Nations members, including the United States, to oppose any such effort. "No elaboration was given." 3. The "first and most important step" needed now for world peace is for the Soviet Union to withdraw its forces from Hungary in accordance with a request embodied in a U. N. resolution.

Hungarian Men, Women Fight On Against Big Odds

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) - Hungarian men, women and children threw themselves with renewed fury into heavy fighting against the Russians in stricken Budapest today, informed sources described as about as intense as it was when the anti-Russian, anti-Communist revolt began Oct. 23. That was the revolt which unseated the pro-Moscow government of Premier Andras Hegedus and started Hungary on the road to neutral independence. Informants in this independent Communist capital said extremely heavy firing lasted continuously throughout yesterday and last night, and rose in intensity in the daylight hours, particularly in the Gellert Hills area of Budapest. While there appeared to be no hope for the revolution now, there was a prospect that for some time to come Hungary would be in for a period of bitter guerrilla warfare waged by holdout rebels from strongholds in the interior of the country. In Budapest, women darted into the streets and threw grenades at Soviet tanks, reports from that capital said, and other women sniped at the Russians from the windows of buildings. Even children were seen handling weapons. The situation was described as one of utter confusion and chaos. These reports said there still must be many holdout rebels both inside the capital and the interior of the country. Appeal after appeal was broadcast by Radio Budapest to the rebels to lay down their arms. The new provisional "government of workers and peasants" under Premier Janos Kadar was in control of Radio Pecs and Radio Miskolc, which, along with Budapest radio, were broadcasting the appeals. But the insurgents were on the air again too, from unlocated points in the country, begging the rebels not to surrender their arms, but to keep them hidden for future use against the Russians. Information was scarce here on the situation within the Hungarian army, much of whose stores appeared to have been handed over to rebel forces. From the reports reaching here it seemed the Russians and the Kadar government looked upon a large section of the Hungarian army as unreliable. There is a severe shortage of food, fuel, building materials, drugs and other necessities in Budapest, and the Kadar regime broadcast an appeal to the "loyal," "Socialist - Communist" to send in stores.

County Health Director Asserts Proposed Wing An Opportunity For East

By JIMMY ELLIS Reflector Staff Writer The new wing on the Pitt County Health Department the state legislature is going to be asked to finance is part of "an opportunity to have something far greater in Eastern North Carolina." That's what Dr. Walter C. Humbert told the Pitt County Board of Commissioners yesterday in asking for a resolution of support from them. The proposed wing would be used for the ten-month-old Mental Health Service. The response to the service has been far greater than anticipated and it has been such that we have to think of expansion now," Dr. Humbert said. "This is the first rural mental health unit in the U. S. to operate on a full-time basis and the U. S. Public Health Service is looking for such a place to train people in rural mental health service." The commissioners responded with a resolution to ask the 1957 General Assembly to appropriate $35,000 for a 2,200 square foot mental health wing. If the money is made available, it will be the first time the legislature has stepped in with funds for a "grass roots" mental health service. The General Assembly is being approached for the money now because the rapid expansion of the service has included at least 20 Eastern North Carolina counties. Dr. Humbert said that if the physical facilities are made available the county has every reason to expect support from the federal government for aid in funds and personnel. The Health Director has made two business visits to Washington within the last two weeks and has had an opportunity to talk with U. S. Public Health officials while there. The 1955 North Carolina General Assembly passed legislation endorsing the idea of local mental health units but made no funds available for them. Plans are being made now for units in Elizabeth City and Wilmington but outside of Pitt County the only facilities now available are at Chapel Hill and Durham. The legislature last time appropriated funds for mental hospital care, but not for grass roots care," Dr. Humbert pointed out. "No state funds are being used to operate the Pitt clinic but Pitt is pioneering and the work being done here will help other sections. The work of local units will be invaluable in lightening the load on state hospitals." Vice-Chairman J. Vance Perkins made the motion to endorse the move to seek state funds and the motion was unanimously adopted by the board.

Fair Weather Appears Inspire Big N. C. Vote

RALEIGH (AP) - With the weather generally crisp and sunny, an unusual heavy vote was expected in North Carolina today on the basis of early election reports from several areas. The voting began with a rush in many areas. Reports said long lines had formed at many precincts before the polls opened at 6:30 as citizens sought to cast their ballots prior to going to work. In Raleigh, registrars at several precincts said the voting was the heaviest they have ever seen. One precinct reported 411 persons had voted before 9 o'clock. The weather was sunny and crisp. Charlotte and Mecklenburg County reported voting was very heavy. One precinct had 200 votes in the first hour. Another reported one person had been in line for 45 minutes and still had not reached the voting booth. Long lines were reported at several precincts before the polls opened. The weather there was sunny with a fall nip in the air. At Durham, the voting was reported heavy under clear skies. The polling places were crowded at 6:30 and still doing a brisk business late in the morning. Greensboro reported the voting was orderly and fairly heavy, with best estimates placing the total at about the same or lower than in the 1952 election. The weather was sunny. In addition to the usual ballots, Greensboro residents also voted on three million dollars in bonds for Memorial Auditorium. Winston - Salem reported the early voting in Forsyth was moderate to heavy. The report said there was significant evidence of ticket splitting, notably in the Negro areas. The weather was ideal. Voting is expected to continue heavy throughout the day. The polls will close at 6:30 p.m. and then will begin the big task of counting the ballots. The tiny mountain precinct of Catalochee reported that its eight qualified voters cast their ballots for Adlai Stevenson. Haywood County Elections Board Chairman John R. Carver said all of the eight residents voted straight Democratic tickets. With normal Democratic majorities expected in most races, North Carolina attention focused on the 10th Congressional District, Rep. Charles H. Jones, the state's only Republican in Congress, was challenged there by Democrat Ben E. Douglas. Both sides concluded rousing campaigns with victory claims. Gov. and Mrs. Hodges voted at their hometown precinct of Spray in Leaksville. They were to return to Raleigh this afternoon. Other state officials joined the exodus to home precincts for voting. In an election eve statement, Hodges yesterday urged North Carolinians to come out and "vote for your choice" regardless of conviction. He repeated his intention to vote for Democrat Adlai Stevenson, "the best equipped man in America to be the president of the United States."

Plan Tabulating Election Returns

Election returns will be tabulated at the Reflector office tonight. Precinct-by-precinct returns will be posted in front of the building as they are called in and results of the national voting will be announced over a public address system. Poll holders are urged to call the Reflector - Phone 6166 - as soon as results are available.

Mrs. Winslow Reads Paper On Judaism

Mrs. Hugh Winslow gave a paper on Judaism when Mrs. Howard Waldrop was hostess to the Lector Book Club October 30 at the home of Miss Elizabeth Wilson.

Judaism created a new concept of God, a strict monotheism, meaning one God, the one and only God. Not only Judaism but Christianity and Islam rest on this concept which sets them apart from the world's other major religions. Mrs. Winslow pointed out.

The God of the Jews insists on His uniqueness: "I am what I am." All other beings depend utterly on Him and all good flows from Him. He is a personal God who deals with man at will through justice, anger and love. He is a God of hope; for the world, created by Him, is an ascent at the end of which is the promise and the challenge of the Kingdom of God, she said.

She pointed out that the will is set down in the Torah, the heart of the Jewish religion. Torah means law and teachings and consists of the five books of Moses. Judaism also relies on the other books of Hebrew Scripture.

Trying to preserve the spirit of the Torah, the earlier Rabbis wrote down many laws and teachings and they were put into a book called the Talmud. Jewish ritual is relatively undramatic, its synagogues are without "graven images," the speaker said.

"Its real drama is its history, its greatest image an idea—the idea of the ONE LIVING GOD which seized on the Jewish people and would not let them go.

"It is believed by many Jewish as well as Christian theologians the Jew's mission till the end of history is to bear witness against idolatry. The hope of this mission is that all men may one day learn and none forget that "The Lord Our God, The Lord Is One," she said.

She asserted in Judaism, religion and history are inseparable. Telling of the three groups within the Jewish faith, the Orthodox, Conservative and Reform, she explained that they accept all the ethical, social and moral principles of Judaism but differ in their observance of ceremonial and ritualistic laws.

The hostess served a sweet course with coffee on arrival. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Travis Flanagan, Mrs. Harold Forbes, vice-president, presided. Guests welcomed for the afternoon were Mrs. Carl Wade, Mrs. Bill Wright and Mrs. Roy Honeycutt.

How Much Do You Know About Real Antiques?

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP-Newsfeatures Writer

Sometime in her life a woman is likely to be bitten with the antique bug. She buys a little thing, perhaps a piece of old glass, pewter or a love seat, and bingo—she begins to dislike everything else in her home, particularly her furniture.

That is only the beginning. Even after she has attended a few auctions, visited some antique shops and read some books, she realizes that for all her interest, she is antique-ignorant. She doesn't really know one piece from another.

How do the "experts" gain such knowledge? Some study their subject objectively as others study architecture or engineering. Others trust to luck with the help of books and articles. The best informed may be fooled occasionally.

There are short-cuts to the knowledge for amateurs. Certain details of a piece of furniture may give a cue to its origin. Pre-revolutionary chests and secretaries made in New York, for instance, reflect the Dutch influence—wider proportions than pieces made during the same period in New England.

"New England furniture gained much of its beauty from integrated design and slender proportions," says one of the country's leading antique dealers, Albert Sack, who displayed some interesting museum-like pieces at the recent International Antiques Exhibition and Sale in New York.

Most furniture may even be pinned down to the city it was made in once you get the knack—city furniture is likely to be more pure of styling than that of provincial areas, Sack says. You may tell at a glance whether a chest comes from Boston or Newport just by examining the feet.

"Boston and Salem craftsmen used the swept back claw," declares Sack, "while Newport furniture has an elongated oval claw and sometimes, although seldom open claw feet. The New York claw and ball foot is square."

The knee of a piece is often an indication of its source, also, this expert advises. The legs of a New England chair or table are likely to have a higher curve than those of a corresponding piece made in Philadelphia.

Brass handles and drawer pulls reveal age or period, and carvings may be traced back to individual craftsmen. Other pieces show their own history. Inside some clocks you'll find the name of the maker and directions for setting them, drawn into the wood.

Sometimes there is more proof, such as letters found in old desks and tables. Sack has a dated one written by clock maker Simon Wallard, to a purchaser, explaining why the clock at $53 cost more than the sum agreed upon. It is displayed at the current exhibition valued at $3,500.

Bundy Pledged To Sigma Rho Phi

Break Tradition In Junior-Senior Event

By ANNE HARRIS
Belvoir-Falkland School

On Monday, October 29, the Seniors received a surprise in the form of an invitation to the annual Junior-Senior Banquet and Dance. The surprise lay in the fact that this year's event will break the tradition. Instead of being held in the spring, Christmas holidays will be the occasion. The event was received with mixed reactions. The Juniors hope that the prospects of a festival theme and turkey dinner will cause even the most skeptical of the Seniors to anticipate December 21 with joy.

Ghosts and goblins pervaded the halls of BFFHS on Wednesday night when the Halloween Carnival was held. Among the many games and activities that were enjoyed were the costume contests. The contest was won by Harriette Turner and Randy Eastwood; the ugliest man contest, won by Eugene James; a number of cake walks; and various booths for card throwing, penny-pitching, bingo, and a fortune teller.

The highlight of the program was the selection of three girls as the "Miss Popularity" for their age groups. These lucky winners were Ginger Lewis of the primary grades, Joyce Elks of the elementary grades, and Patricia Allen of the high school.

Despite inclement weather, a large audience was on hand to enjoy the Junior Class presentation of "Rest Assured" on October 26. The comedy was well-performed and enjoyed by all in attendance.

Afterwards the cast and other members of the Junior Class had a party at the home of their class advisor, Mrs. Lou Nelson.

The Seniors had another busy week with a number of class projects and activities, among which were ordering their invitations, taking examinations for scholarships, and selling Christmas cards and candy.

On Sunday afternoon, October 21, Mr. O. H. Forrest and three Student Council delegates, Joyce Jenkins, Jim Pace and Sheila Wooten, left for the 30th Annual Student Council Congress in Wilmington. They arrived at New Hanover High about 4:30. Here at the Student Union they registered and were taken to the homes where they were to stay. Back at the Student Union at 5:30 p.m. they enjoyed a snack of hot dogs, potato chips, peanuts, slaw, and ice cream sandwiches while popular records played continuously over the Public Address system.

After supper, a representative from each delegation had to act out the name of his school. This game was followed by another which helped to get the delegates acquainted. Each girl pulled off one shoe, tossed it in the middle of the room, and then waited to see which boy would claim her shoe and thus claim her for a dancing partner. Double-break and single-break dancing continued until 9:00 p.m.

At 10:00 a.m. the candidates assembled in Brogden Hall where, after a presentation of prelude music by the New Hanover High School Band, the First General Session was called to order by Bill O'Brian, State President. After the invocation, which was given by Dr. W. D. Morris, the NHHS ROTC presented colors. The assembly then rose to the strains of "Star Spangled Banner" after which they gave the pledge to the flag. Addresses of welcome and greetings were given by James Macris, president of NHHS Student Congress; Mayor Dan Cameron; Superintendent of City Schools, Mr. H. M. Roland; Principal of NHHS, Mr. Dale Spencer; and Vice-President of Charlotte NCSCC, Ralph Holthouser. An impressive piano solo was then presented by R. V. Fulk, first piano, and Mrs. Sam Troy Jr., second piano.

NCSCC officers were then recognized by Bill O'Brian. Following this, Nancy Rosenthal, Secretary of NCSCC, called the roll and read the minutes of the 29th Congress. After the announcements the speaker was introduced as Dr. Albert Coates, director of Institute of Government, University of North Carolina, who gave the keynote address. At 12:00, instead of lunching in the cafeteria, the Belvoir delegates chose to eat delicious shrimp on the Ark, a floating restaurant.

After lunch, the General Assembly saw a movie showing some of the activities of the National Convention and then adjourned to classrooms to take part in discussion groups and swap shops. At 3:20 p.m. another general assembly was held in the auditorium. Here campaign speeches were given for the candidates for State offices — President, Vice-President and Secretary. A coke party was held in the Student Union following the adjournment of the assembly.

On Monday evening the delegates enjoyed a delicious banquet at the army. The Sea was the theme for decorations. Colorful fish decorated the walls, tiny shells adorned the candles that burned in the center of each table, and banks of Spanish moss in one corner supported a tall likeness of Neptune, King of the Sea. Music for dancing was provided by the Lee Edwards Band from ECC. An intermission the group was entertained by a thrilling rendition of patriotic songs by the Hanover Singers.

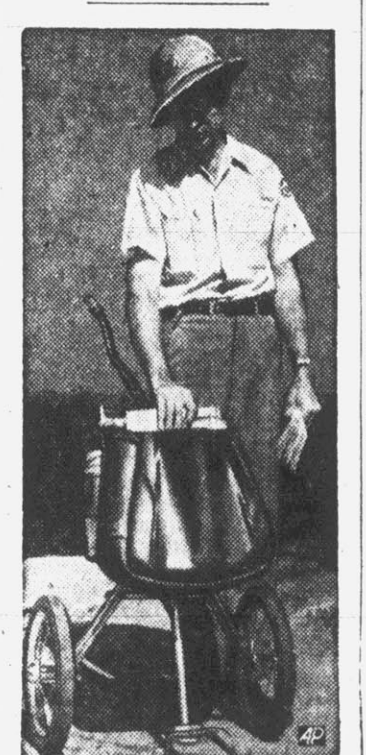

Tuesday morning the last general session was held. A devotional was given by Gwen Hawley, Norman Cone then played an obsequy. Election of officers was next on the agenda. While waiting for the outcome, the delegates heard a summary of the discussion groups and various reports. The new officers then presented to the assembly were President Norman Pike, Vice-President Bob Bilbro, and Secretary Sandra Holderness. The last general assembly was then adjourned. The delegation from Belvoir reached home about 4:30 p.m.

Art Professor Is Promoted In Army Reserves

Dr. Wellington B. Gray, director of the department of art at East Carolina College, has just received notification of his permanent promotion to the rank of major in the Quartermaster Corps of the U. S. Army Reserve. The promotion became effective July 28 of this year. Dr. Gray is attached for training to the Greenville Reserve Armory.

He joined the East Carolina faculty last September as head of the department of art. Examples of his work as an artist are now on display in exhibition by faculty artists being shown in the Joyner Memorial Library on the campus.

He saw active duty in the U. S. Army from 1941 to 1946 and during World War II was in the Pacific Theater of Operations for two years. He has been a member of the U. S. Army Reserve from 1946 to the present.

Demos Generally Confident Of Keeping Congress Rein

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
WASHINGTON — America's voters choose today a Congress to deal with the program recommended during the last two years by Dwight D. Eisenhower or Adlai E. Stevenson as president.

The Democrats now control both the House and Senate. They were outwardly confident they would control the new Congress, which meets Jan. 3. The Republicans, voting in certain Eisenhower would win, seemed optimistic about their chances to capture Congress.

All but three of the 435 House seats but only 35 of the Senate's 96 posts are at stake. Maine elected its three House members, two Republicans and a Democrat, Sept. 10.

Democrats now control the House 232-203 and the Senate 49-47. The Democrats won the 1954 elections and wrested control from the Republicans, who were victors in 1952.

Only four times in the last 27 presidential years has the party that won the presidency failed to win control of Congress. Republicans claim a minimum net gain of 25 House seats and one in the Senate. That would give them control of the House and a tie in the Senate, which would be broken by the vice president. Democrats claim a net gain of at least 13 seats in the House and no Senate losses.

The fight for control of the Senate may be won in 12 states, although 33 states are electing senators. The House struggle centers on about 60 key districts which traditionally shift from one party to another.

Democrats are hopeful of winning Senate seats now occupied by Republicans in California, Colorado, Illinois, Maryland, Ohio and Pennsylvania. Republicans look for gains in Nevada, New York, Oregon, Washington, West Virginia and Kentucky, where two seats are at stake.

In California, Thomas H. Kuchel, incumbent Republican, is opposed by Richard Richards, Democrat. Former Gov. Dan Thornton, Republican, and former Rep. John A. Carroll, Democrat, are fighting for the Colorado seat being given up by Republican Eugene D. Milliken.

Incumbent Republican Everett M. Dirksen is opposed in Illinois by Richard Stengel, Democrat.

In Maryland, John Marshall Butler, incumbent Republican, is opposed by George P. Mahoney, Democrat.

Contestants in Ohio at the incumbent Republican, George H. Bender, and Gov. Frank J. Lausche, Democrat.

Principals in Pennsylvania are James H. Duff, incumbent Republican, and Joseph S. Clark Jr., Democrat.

Clifton Young, Republican House member, is the GOP's enemy in Nevada against Alban Bible, incumbent Democrat.

In New York, Republican Atty. Gen. Jacob K. Javits and Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner Jr. of New York City are seeking the seat being vacated by Democratic Sen. Herbert H. Lehman.

Competing in Oregon are Wayne Morse, incumbent Democrat originally elected to the Senate as a Republican, and Douglas McKay, Republican, former secretary of the interior in Eisenhower's Cabinet.

Washington's opponents are incumbent Warren G. Magnuson, Democrat, and Gov. Arthur B. Langlie, Republican.

In West Virginia it's Gov. William C. Marland, Democrat, and Republican Chapman Reverbom for a two-year term. This is the seat held by the late Harley M. Kilgore, Democrat.

Former Sen. John Sherman Cooper, Republican, is seeking a four-year term in Kentucky against former Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby, Democrat. This is the seat of the late Democratic Sen. Alben W. Barkley.

Battling for Kentucky's six-year term are Earle C. Clements, incumbent Democrat, and Thurston B. Morton, Republican, former representative and assistant secretary of state.

Big Business In Winners' Hands

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK — The men and women you are sending to Washington by your vote today, will be handling a business so big that it makes the giants of big business look like pygmies.

The White House and Congress will control the world's biggest big business — the U.S. government, which as business outshadows even sizable groups of the giant corporations. It has on its payroll more than twice as many persons as these eight companies combined:

American Telephone & Telegraph, General Motors, U.S. Steel, Jersey Standard Oil, A.P.F. Pennsylvania Railroad, Metropolitan Life Insurance, and Consolidated Edison of New York.

Annual revenues collected by Washington are more than twice what these eight corporations pull in together. And the Federal government's total assets are four times the assets reported by the eight as a group.

Washington this year is collecting in tax and other revenues more than 80 billion dollars. The eight companies together had total revenues last year of 36½ billion. The largest in the group was General Motors with 12½ billion.

The eight have total assets of 50½ billion dollars, while Uncle Sam's are estimated at 200 billion. AT&T and Metropolitan Life were the big ones with assets of around 14 billion each.

In its November letter, the National City Bank of New York says that government has grown so big a tax to tax the average person's powers of comprehension and that he "can only wonder, as he tries to satisfy the ravenous appetite of the tax collector, if government has not become so big that orderly control is beyond anyone's powers."

Washington's opponents are incumbent Warren G. Magnuson, Democrat, and Gov. Arthur B. Langlie, Republican.

In West Virginia it's Gov. William C. Marland, Democrat, and Republican Chapman Reverbom for a two-year term. This is the seat held by the late Harley M. Kilgore, Democrat.

Health Is Interdependent Matter

Proposal for creating a district health office to serve both Pitt and Greene Counties appears to us a move by which Pitt County, without penalizing its own people, can render invaluable service in providing better public health service to the citizens of a neighboring county.

Pitt County has one of the outstanding health departments in North Carolina. As such its standards are looked to by other counties not only in this immediate section but throughout the state.

Under the tentative conditions of the district health department for both counties, Pitt would be giving up none of the services it now has in public health. For all practical purposes the Greene County set-up would be a branch office of the Pitt County Health Department and the cost of operating the branch would be defrayed by Greene County.

Pitt would not be penalized from the standpoint of personnel or finances. According to information now available the health department which serves the two counties would be entirely a partnership basis similar to that which the county now operates in conjunction with Greenville and Farmville. The public health standards which are in effect in Pitt County would not be lowered, but rather the public health standards of neighboring Greene County would be raised to Pitt's level.

It is quite obvious that Pitt County cannot consider itself isolated from surrounding counties so far as public health is concerned. The higher the public health standards in neighboring counties, the better off our own county will be from a public health standpoint.

By helping Greene County have a better public health program, Pitt will be affording its own citizens greater protection in the public health field. While many details of the program remain to be worked out, the proposal of a partnership public health operation in the two counties appears to have great merit. The committee appointed to work with Health Director Dr. Walter C. Humbert and Greene County officials in investigation the proposal should give it serious consideration.

On a permanent basis such an arrangement could produce important benefits for both counties just as the partnership ventured between the county and two of its municipalities had done in public health service in recent years.

Work Is Begun On New Trout Hatchery

RALEIGH — The Wildlife Commission reports that work has already begun on a new trout hatchery located near Little Switzerland in McDowell County. This hatchery is unique because it is the first in Tar Heel history to be built from funds raised more or less voluntarily by the trout fishermen who will benefit from its production. Several years ago Tar Heel trout anglers went to the Legislature to ask for a special trout license costing a dollar for residents and two dollars for non-residents. The bill was introduced and passed. Money coming in from the special license is earmarked for trout production, and the Armstrong Creek Hatchery is a result.

Trout fishing in North Carolina is mostly a put and take proposition, and you might call it a luxury sport. The demand for trout far exceeds the capacity of trout streams to produce fish. Hence it is necessary to raise trout artificially and stock them in public waters where the man who buys a license gets a crack at them.

Trout are expensive to raise. It costs money to build and maintain trout hatcheries. Nevertheless, the Wildlife Commission's fish hatchery boys are producing about three times as many pounds of trout per dollar now than they were seven or eight years ago, despite rising costs of labor, feed and other items.

Incidentally, the special trout license is required of everyone who fishes in a designated public mountain trout stream. This includes the fellow who fishes in his county of residence with a cane pole and live bait. The trout license does not apply to reservoirs and other waters that are not specifically designated as trout waters but which offer trout fishing.

Once again wildlife interests in North Carolina, especially The Wildlife Federation, are going to ask the Legislature for a change in the law that would remove the exemption from buying a fishing license for the angler who uses pole and line and live bait to fish.

Similar legislation has been introduced several times before, but has failed. Someone labeled it the "Fishing Worm Bill," and it was killed out of sentimental consideration for "Pore of Mammy" and the "Barefoot Boy." Actually, the barefoot boy doesn't need a license to fish anywhere until he is 16. Mammy probably has a driver's license, and nine times out of ten fishes on her own property or that of her landlord, and would not be required to have a license to fish under present or amended law.

The proposed fishing license legislation would not require Russia on the one hand and the British and French on the other pose a tremendous undertaking for the United Nations if peace is to be restored and preserved. No greater challenge has faced any organization dedicated to preserving peace. The current situation by far is more serious than those which faced the old League of Nations when Mussolini launched his African campaign or Hitler began his territorial expansion.

Soviet Proposal Just Another Cover-Up Move

The Kremlin's call for U. N. police action to stop British and French "aggression" in the Middle East is another case of the pot calling the kettle black.

The Soviet Union would stand up and howl if a proposal is forthcoming—as it should be—that similar steps be taken by the United Nations to stop Soviet aggression in Hungary.

There seems little doubt now that the Kremlin has again outfoxed the West in the international checker game. While all eyes have been on the Middle East and the British-French and Israeli invasion of Egypt, the Soviet Union has sent its war machine rumbling across the Hungarian border to crush the rebellion which up until a few days ago seemed sure to make Hungary a free nation again.

The Hungarian people gave their life's blood in a bid for freedom. It was almost within their grasp too a few days ago. But now the force of Russian military might have been thrown against them. And no move has been made in behalf of the struggling Hungarian people.

It is as much the duty of the United Nations to defend Hungary from a Russian invasion as it is to defend Egypt from the British-French and Israeli invasion. Indeed, if a line must be drawn between the two, it would seem the Hungarian situation is the more urgent. There it is a life and death struggle for the people who are trying to win their freedom. At the moment the swift death of Kremlin brutality has the upper hand.

If the Russian use of force to crush Hungary's bid for freedom goes uncontested by outside forces, it will be only a matter of weeks before the Kremlin will use similar tactics to depose those leaders in Poland who have dared defy their Russian masters.

Russia on the one hand and the British and French on the other pose a tremendous undertaking for the United Nations if peace is to be restored and preserved. No greater challenge has faced any organization dedicated to preserving peace. The current situation by far is more serious than those which faced the old League of Nations when Mussolini launched his African campaign or Hitler began his territorial expansion.

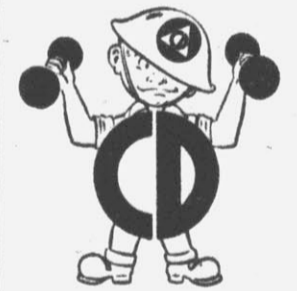

At this juncture in history the UN must succeed in its purpose or run the risk of being relegated to the long list of those noble groups which held so much promise for the human race, but failed because of their inability to withstand the crucial test.

licenses of private pond owners or their invited guests, or persons fishing on their own property. People who fish away from their home county, or who use artificial lures foot the bill for fish management, law enforcement, hatchery (warm water fish) production, fishing access area production, and other benefits of a wildlife conservation program. They feel they have a right to expect other anglers to carry a fair share of the load. The fate of the proposed legislation, in their view, rests on a choice between sentiment and common sense.

With the deer season open in eastern N.C. counties, reports are coming in to the Wildlife people that hunters are seeing about eight or ten doe deer to every buck. This is especially the case in the flatland woods. You can expect another wildlife bill to be introduced in the next Legislature on the subject of doe deer. Present law prohibits the killing of a female deer under any circumstances. Game managers, however and large number of deer hunters would like to see that Wildlife Commission given authority to open the season on doe deer in localities where the herd sex ratio is unbalanced or where an overpopulation of deer is endangering the food supply of the entire herd.

Here again sentiment is against such legislation, but once people realize that no statewide deer season is contemplated, that the casual harvest of surplus doe deer is a tool of wildlife management, and that deer hunting can be actually improved by judicious harvest, there is a good chance that it will pass. Several national magazines recently have carried articles on the subject of the so-called buck law, and many big progressive game states allow the taking of doe deer where and when necessary.

Other Editors Are Saying... Package For State Education

(Goldsboro News-Argus) Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina College, Greenville, is magnificently qualified by training, experience and ability to discuss North Carolina's higher education needs. He is equally well qualified to suggest ways of meeting these problems.

Dr. Messick is a native of Beaufort County. Nine years ago he came back home to become East Carolina president after college administration experience in New Jersey. Under him East Carolina has made spectacular progress. He has aroused the state to realize the possibilities of service to youth at East Carolina. He has awakened this half of the state from a defeatist attitude as regards a state institution for its own youth.

A broad program of expansion and of improvement in courses and buildings has given East Carolina a tremendous increase in students. This year the enrollment is about 3,000. But Dr. Messick has not been so intent on developing East Carolina that he has not been alive to the whole picture in education in North Carolina. He has been a keen and observant student of the situation.

His study has led to conclusions which he presented in a talk to the Northeastern Education Association convention a few days ago. In the talk he offered a six-point package deal for higher education in the state. Wherever men of good citizenship seek to find out and solve education problems, we should listen and help if we can. When we so well qualified as Dr. Messick to propose a package deal does so, we should study it carefully. Here is a summary of Dr. Messick's proposed program:

Things That Happen In Court

Greenville lawyer M.E. Cavendish deserves credit for what he did during the first week of Superior Court.

At the request of Judge Chester R. Morris, he took as his client a Negro man who could not pay him. Had the charge against the man been a degree higher, Judge Morris would have been at liberty to appoint an attorney to defend him but the charge was such that he could only request and Mr. Cavendish responded, free of charge. "I'd like to see what those northern newspapers have to say about a Negro in the South not getting fair treatment," said Judge Morris.

Judge McKeithan's medicine did the trick.

Let's jump now from court to the entertainment world. That is, if you can classify Elvis Presley as entertainment. Seriously, Presley is thrilling so many people and at the same time making gobs and gobs of money. The reason behind this sort of thinking is, I admit, completely selfish. If this idol of so many people, with absolutely no talent, can thrill the multitudes and make money hand over fist, perhaps I also, with absolutely no talent, can someday do the same.

Notebook On Life

Day Of Shame For America

NEW YORK (AP)—Campaign comment by a Pavement Plato: This is a day of shame for America.

An election day always is. For it is then the United States looks its worst to a freedom-hungry world. In Hungary last week hundreds of men flung themselves bareheaded against invading Soviet tanks and died valiantly in a hopeless fight for the right to set up a government of their own choice.

But in democracy's mightiest citadel today only about six of every 10 persons eligible will take the trouble to vote for the government that will rule their lives for the next four years. Some 40 to 50 million other men and women who could vote won't bother to, for one reason or another.

These are the drones of democracy, who accept their political liberty as casually as if it were merely another free sandwich at a banquet. This apathy amazes thoughtful people in dictator-ridden lands who dream of a free vote but know that to achieve it they must first wade a river of their own blood. This apathy puzzles thoughtful people here, too.

In good times or bad times, in peace or war, millions of Americans avoid the ballot box as if it might infect them with some loathsome disease.

In the depression year of 1932 only 52.3 per cent of the eligible population voted. The figure for wartime 1944 was only 55.8.

This seems doubly odd when it is recalled that universal suffrage did not come to the United States as a gift from Heaven, but was won after generations of struggle that cost hundreds

Opinions In Brief

Savannah Morning News The irresponsible charges so freely hurled against American business by labor leaders and opportunistic politicians usually are centered about one key point. That is that business is making big profits at the expense, largely of the laboring man and consumer. Such charges simply do not hold water. One interesting set of statistics sums up the situation for the average business this way:

"The average manufacturing company spends most of the working day (eight hours) paying off the cost of doing business, and only about nineteen minutes are left in which to earn profits."

"Furthermore," is pointed out, "only about half of the nineteen minutes results in dividends for the owners. The rest of the profits are used for reinvestment in the business." Such hardly sounds like the "gray train" story the critics are telling.

Why Small Business Is Big Factor

By ELMER ROESSNER

There are approximately 4,000,000 principal owners of small businesses in the United States. With wives, relatives who put up some of the capital, minority partners, grown children, loyal secretaries and others, their influence perhaps 12,000,000 votes.

That's about equal to the number of voting farmers. Nevertheless, the small businessmen's vote has become an important political factor. That's why politicians (and statesmen) have been paying so much heed to business problems in the last three months. But the question remains: Will anybody give a hoot about small business tomorrow?

PROBLEMS ARE MANIFOLD There's no doubt small businesses have many un-small problems. It was changed—and it seems true—that higher interest rates and growing scarcity of money have hit smaller firms harder than big corporations.

It had been charged also that small firms have obtained a meager share of government contracts, a point not quite so sharp. Only 8 per cent of the small firms are engaged in manufacturing and many of them are equipped to make nothing more than dingbats.

Small business lacks research. There's a wealth of government data free for asking, but it's free to everyone else and a small firm with a government formula is not in position to compete with a big company that had spent millions on the same problem. Small businesses often lack capital to install automatic processes, or the sales volume needed to make them profitable.

LACKS EMPLOYEE LURE Small business — and this point was not exploited during the campaign — possibly because nothing can be done about it — lacks power to attract skilled employees. Even is a small firm offered double an expected salary, an engineering grad would likely prefer a position with a giant company that could promise advancement, international recognition, membership in an exclusive golf club and, above all, security. My secretary is now writing me a reminder to do a column some day on how the drive for security may eventually wipe out all small business.

Several small business helps have been suggested during the campaign. Leaders of both parties in lower brackets of corporate earnings—a plan of doubtful value since many small businesses are not incorporated and that many of those that are are little or no corporate profits. Furthermore, such action would benefit large corporations as well as small.

Several politicians have urged the lending of more government funds to small firms and, at the same time, the Small Business Administration has been lending cash at a lively rate.

There also have been demands for more government contracts for small business. Commerce Secretary Weeks and Small Business Administrator Barnes recently signed an agreement to reserve certain government purchases for small companies. This was a fantastic bit of mumbo-jumbo. Mr. Barnes could have phoned Mr. Weeks and said, "Sincere? This is Wendell. You Jolly well know this is an election year, so how about giving more government contracts to little fellows?"

It would have worked just as well. QUICKER CHARGE-OFFS It also has been proposed that small businesses be allowed to charge off depreciation faster, so they may have more ready cash to put back into the enterprise. That seems sensible, since rapid depreciation merely postpones income taxes, it does not avoid them, and the government never loses a cent.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS DON'T PUSH TOO HARD We speak sometimes about giving young people their head, meaning letting them have their way.

Some of this is good and some is bad. Until a young person comes to actual maturity, he is helped by being under some discipline. This naturally increases as the years advance, but the parent who believes that teenage boys and girls are able to take care of themselves without any parental guidance is just whistling in the dark. Young people today are quite mature, but they are not that mature.

But it is a good thing to let young people have their way in the choosing of a life work. The calling they want to choose may not please you and may go entirely contrary to certain plans you have for them. But remember that it is their life not yours which is under consideration. You can advise, and indeed should, but any parent who does more than that is not following the dictates of wisdom. History is full of accounts of children who made conspicuous successes after having chosen careers which brought grief and disappointment to their parents.

Exhaust every means of helping your children find out what they are suited to do and what they really want to do. Then, when they decide, support them in their decision. But nothing can more devastatingly ruin a young person's life than that dictation about life work which leads one to choose reluctantly a life work he does not fancy.

Folly and tyrannical combined, SUEZ CANAL LIMITED TO 38,000-TON VESSELS Without extensive widening and deepening, Colonel Gamal Abdel Nasser's private waterway will soon become inadequate for the steadily increasing flow of oil. Under present and foreseeable conditions, there is no prospect of completing these improvements, or of two-tracking the Canal in order to handle future trade needs. Only ships up to 8,000 tons can now use the Canal.

Even more serious than these physical difficulties are the political and diplomatic hazards, as today's developments warn. The Israeli attack on Egypt, as well as the alarming breakup of Western solidarity on this issue, persuades Washington that the Suez Canal must be eliminated or minimized as a permanent source of international friction and possible war.

TIME FOR DECISION SHORT The Like colonialism and imperialism, which even Russia now finds to be a perilous policy, of Turkey and Iraq. Both routes would be bypassed by Suez more or less permanently.

Secret Weapon Of 'Dollar Diplomacy'

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has a secret weapon on his desk which can render the Suez Canal obsolete and remove the historic waterway as a cause of perennial military and diplomatic conflict for all time. Although he hesitates to brandish it at this moment of unprecedented disagreement among the Western Allies, the aggressive and anti-American policy pursued by Britain and France in the Israeli-Arab crisis may force him to do so. Indeed, regardless of the current dangers to peace in the Middle East, the West's always precarious control and reliance on the Suez Canal as a transportation short-cut may necessitate stern and dramatic action at Washington.

The program consists of the prospective construction of several hundred supertankers that could haul Middle East oil to Europe and the United States around the Cape of Good Hope, and through the Indian and Pacific Oceans to Pacific Coast ports. In addition, new and larger pipelines would be laid through the friendly countries of Turkey and Iraq. Both routes would be bypassed by Suez more or less permanently. ## Seniors At Grifton Elect 'Superlatives'

By BARBARA TAYLOR
Grifton High School

The Senior Class has been busy this week electing superlatives which are as follows: Most Dependable — Ardath Vandiford; Roy Garris; Most Likely to Succeed — Patsy Burney; Wayne Ervin; Best-Looking — Faye McCotter; Pete Adams; Most Versatile — Peggy Eatman; Wayne Ervin; Most Athletic — Jimmy McGlawn; Ardath Vandiford; Wittiest — Walter Craft; Peggy Parker; Biggest Pest — J. C. Adams; Peggy Eatman; Quietest — Olive Hoell; Billy Reeves; Most Court-ous — Faye McCotter; Roy Garris; Best Dressed — Adalide Reeves; Billy Gardner; Most Popular — Wayne Ervin; Pat Burney; Friendliest — Janice Manning; Floyd Smith; Most Talented — Jo Ann Hardison; Roy Garris; Most Outstanding — Joyce Dudley; Tommy Bogey; Best Sport — Roy Garris; Betty Lou Jolly; Most Dignified — Adalide Reeves; Billy Reeves; Most Studious — Joyce Dudley; Bill Reeves; Biggest Flirt — Janice Manning; Pete Adams; Cutest — Jeanette Lewis; Tommy Bogey. Elected as mascots of the graduating class are Brenda Smith and Mike Ervin. The class also decided to graduate in white caps and gowns.

The Junior Class are busy putting the finishing touches on their Junior Play, "Papa Says No!", which will be presented Thursday night, November 8, at 8 o'clock. Admission is 25c and 50c.

A hot political battle is shaping up in high school. The Civics Class is sponsoring an amateur election for President and Vice President of the United States. Assembly was held Friday with members of the class giving campaign speeches for either the Republican or Democratic Party. Posters have been erected throughout the halls and class rooms reminding everyone to register November 5 if they want to vote. It is hoped through this that the students will gain experience and also understand our country's democratic way of electing its leaders.

The student body met Friday and elected officers for the newly organized Teen-Age Club. The following were chosen to serve: president — Wayne Ervin; vice president — Patsy Burney; secretary — Floyd Smith; treasurer — Tommy Bogey; reported — Janice Manning. Dances will be held on Saturday nights for the youth of the community.

Mr. Bill Hunter, of the Hunter Publishing Company, met with the annual staff Friday and assisted them in laying out a pattern for this year's edition of The Griftonian. The staff includes editor — Patsy Burney, co-editor — Barbara Taylor, senior editor — Wayne Ervin, sports editor — Peggy Parker, Jimmy McGlawn, class representatives — Barbara Lane, Dotty Groot, and Wilma Patrick. Their advisor is Mrs. John Bunch. The yearbook this year is bigger and better than ever.

The two basketball teams of Grifton will travel to Hookerton Friday, November 9, to play their first game of the season. It is hoped that this season will be a very successful one for the Bulldogs.

A Junior Garden Club is being organized under the direction of Mrs. Lawton and Mrs. Eunice Casey. A number of girls met with the advisors Friday to set up regulations for the club.

Women from every community in Pitt County will gather at the Woman's Club this week to assemble and prepare for the Post Office and annual Christmas Seal letters sent out by the Tuberculosis Association.

The Newcomers Club sponsors the mail project each year, assisted by the Business and Professional Women. November 15 is the date set for the seals to be mailed.

Ayden Man Held For Car Theft

AYDEN—Local police arrested Alfonso Wilkes, Negro, of 117 Barwick St. for car theft Saturday night.

He was alleged to have taken a car belonging to Joel Wingate. Wilkes was charged with larceny, driving drunk, no operators license and tampering with a motor vehicle.

Assisting in the arrest was Patrolman Bill Whitehurst.

Pupils Conduct Mock Election

By CHARLOTTE DONAT
Farmville High School

In order to learn history in the making, the history department of Farmville High School set up a mock presidential campaign and election.

Last Wednesday prepared speeches were made by Joe Flake, Anne Frances Allen, Caroline Harris and Garry Bergeron. Speakers gave the background and political qualifications of the Democratic and Republican candidates.

Debates concerned with the Republican and Democratic parties were presented by George Cannon and Horace Corbett for the Democrats; Paul Cox and James H. Bundy for the Republicans. Farm programs, foreign policy, strained peace, school aids, and labor were some of the subjects discussed.

The speakers illustrated their arguments with amusing stories to carry their points. When the students of Farmville High School go to the polls today to vote, they will be certain of their choice and will not be voting in the dark!

Reached A Point Of Giving Up

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—L. E. Schmidt, 69, was running through a hard rain to catch a bus. His glasses fell off. He caught them before they hit the sidewalk but slipped and cut his knee.

He also missed the bus. Back home, he went into the bathroom to bandage the cut. He slipped again and cut his arm on a hair tonic bottle.

At that point he gave up and went to a hospital.

Women To Ready Seal Letters

Women from every community in Pitt County will gather at the Woman's Club this week to assemble and prepare for the Post Office and annual Christmas Seal letters sent out by the Tuberculosis Association.

The Newcomers Club sponsors the mail project each year, assisted by the Business and Professional Women. November 15 is the date set for the seals to be mailed.

Delivered Goods To Wrong Party

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—Asked to move a pushcart load of files to Room 214 of the Maltese building for use by the Wyoming State Republican central committee, a Cheyenne hotel busboy got mixed up.

He took the files to Room 214 of the Mynds building—just across the street. That room is occupied by a former Laramie county Democratic chairman.

Ten States Will Be Closely Eyed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Ten of the states that supported Dwight D. Eisenhower and one that backed Adlai E. Stevenson by slim margins in 1952 will be watched closely when the votes are counted tonight.

Between them they have 167 electoral votes. In only two of the states, Florida and Virginia, was the winning margin more than 10 per cent of the total vote. Eisenhower won Florida's 10 electoral votes by 99,000 and Virginia's 12 by 80,000.

Eisenhower's victory margin was less than 10 per cent in the other 8 states: Missouri, 13 votes, 30,000; Oklahoma, 8 votes, 37,000; Pennsylvania, 32 votes, 270,000; Rhode Island, 4 votes, 8,000; Illinois, 27 votes, 443,000; Massachusetts, 16 votes, 109,000; Tennessee, 11 votes, 2,000; Texas, 24 votes, 134,000.

He lost Kentucky's 10 votes by 700.

Sooners Retain Top Spot Despite Colorado Scare

Voters Still Staying With Tech, Tennessee

By JACK HAND
The Associated Press

The first complete election returns of the day show Oklahoma a clear winner in the Associated Press weekly football poll with 172 districts reporting in the seventh vote of the season by sports writers and sportscasters.

Although they had a bad scare in the first half, trailing Colorado 19-6 at the time, the Sooners came back to win their 36th straight 27-19. They lost most of their first-place support but still rated No. 1 on 116 of 172 ballots, almost four times as many as runner-up Georgia Tech.

On the basis of points, 10 for first, 9 for second, etc., Oklahoma had 1,554 to Georgia Tech's 1,453. Tech had 30 firsts, Tennessee, with 1,252 points and 11 first, and Michigan State, with 1,102 and 7 firsts, followed.

Michigan State regained lost prestige by whipping Wisconsin 33-0. The Texas Aggies beat Arkansas 27-0 to hold fifth place.

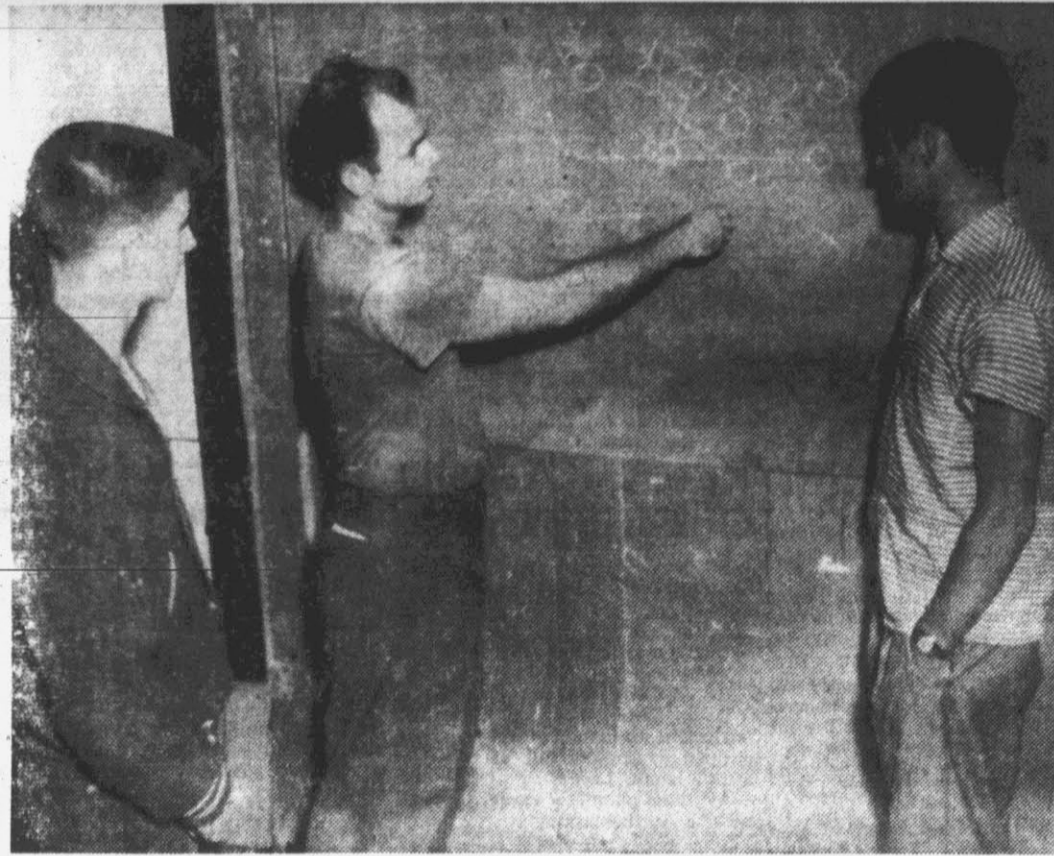

Minnesota moved up to sixth on its 9-6 edge over Pittsburgh, which fell from 11th to a tie for 20th. Despite a 6-2 victory over Northwestern, Ohio State fell a peg to seventh and Miami (Fla.) edged up a notch by topping Florida State 20-7.

Syracuse powered its way into ninth place by downing Penn State 13-9 and Michigan advanced to 10th by shading previously unbeaten Iowa 17-14.

The top teams, with first-place votes in parentheses:

1. Oklahoma (116)	1,554
2. Georgia Tech (30)	1,453
3. Tennessee (11)	1,252
4. Michigan State (7)	1,102
5. Texas A&M (1)	872
6. Minnesota (1)	680
7. Ohio State (1)	572
8. Miami (Fla.) (1)	453
9. Syracuse (1)	225
10. Michigan (1)	190
11. Clemson	158
12. Navy (3)	127

Guy Martin Is A Quarterback Who Never Stops

HAMILTON, N.Y. — When Colgate football coaches say Guy Martin is thinking all the time, they're scarcely exaggerating.

Spectators who saw his great performance Saturday in that dizzy 55-46 loss to Army agreed he is a smart quarterback — one who calls signals with precision and imagination — as well as a rubber-armed passer who seldom misses his mark.

They said the same thing about him at Princeton three weeks ago after Martin turned in another great performance in a losing cause.

He came to that game right after taking a rigorous oral examination for a Rhodes scholarship. During the game he completed 10 of 15 passes for 95 yards and one touchdown, handing off for two others, kicking two of three extra points and saving one Tiger score by pulling down Tom Morris when he was almost free.

There was no exam before the Army game — and not too much Army pass defense — so here are the results: Martin pitched 36 passes and completed 24 for 259 yards. Two passes went for touchdowns and four others were set up by his bull's-eye tosses. He scored one himself, kicked four extra points and, as usual, directed the entire attack.

Apart from the figures, that's the kind of thing Martin has been doing ever since he was in high school in Milwaukee. At Shorewood High, he was captain of the baseball, football and basketball teams, stood second in a class of 201 and was president of the student body.

Borsted Was A Flop Kicker In High School

By JIM KLOBUCHAR
MINNEAPOLIS — By his own admission, Minnesota's Dick Borstad was an inglorious flop as a high school kicker.

Yet three years ago he gave up in exasperation following five straight extra point misses in one game as a schoolboy, the junior fullback is hitting 1,000 in one of the toughest assignments of them all — winning football games with last quarter field goals.

Borstad has done it twice, under conditions of weird coincidence that would look better in fiction than in the football record books. Two weeks ago he kicked the first field goal of his life, a 12-yarder that beat Illinois, 16-13, with two minutes and 49 seconds to go.

Last Saturday against Pittsburgh he was waved in by Coach Murray Warmath with 2:34 remaining. The angle was bad and the ball was soggy. But Borstad kicked it through from 23 yards and Minnesota stayed unbeaten.

In both cases he fought the effects of a hip injury as well as the smothering pressure.

No one told Borstad to take up placement kicking. Maybe no one had the bravery to do it after the youngster's one-game fiasco at Detroit Lakes, Minn., High School, where he was a touchdown terror but something less than that as a kicker.

Borstad's line smashing, topping the Big Ten's fullbacks in yards per carry at nearly five a try last year, was one of the few consolations in a losing Minnesota season. During the summer he took up placement kicking while serving as a boys camp counselor simply "because I thought it might help the team."

Tom Heinsohn, former Holy Cross All-American basketball player, is with the Boston Celtics this season.

A Clemson Win Over Maryland Would Cop Bid

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It has been a long time since the Clemson Tigers defeated a University of Maryland football team. But it has been a long time too, since the Tigers held an undefeated conference record.

A win by the Tigers Saturday over the Terps virtually assures Clemson of playing in the Orange Bowl New Year's Day.

Next week, the Tigers will get a first-hand look at the Orange Bowl when they play Miami.

Yesterday the Tigers first two teams worked in sweat clothes and ran only a dummy scrimmage.

The only other conference game the Tigers have will be against Virginia, while the Terps face South Carolina and North Carolina State.

First-string left tackle Jim Horn, who suffered a knee injury in Wake Forest's 13-0 win over N. C. State underwent surgery yesterday and will be lost to the Deacons for the rest of the season.

The Deacons worked in sweat clothes as they began preparations for Saturday's game at Blacksburg with Virginia Tech.

Frank Thompson, a sophomore, was named to replace Horn.

The usual brief Monday exercises were held at Virginia as the Cavaliers viewed films of the 6-2 loss to Vanderbilt.

Coach Ben Martin said North Carolina improves every week and will face Virginia fresh from a good showing against powerful Tennessee.

North Carolina State, smarting from its fifth defeat of the season at the hands of Wake Forest, began regrouping forces for a homecoming clash with South Carolina.

Coach Erle Edwards said the Wolfpack is in good physical shape.

Despite South Carolina's win over Furman, Coach Warren Giese was not too happy with the Gamecocks' performance and put the squad through a stiff workout.

"We'll have to play better ball if we hope to beat N.C. State," said the coach.

The Duke Blue Devils meet Navy Saturday and Coach Bill Murray said flatly: "I don't think we have faced a better team than we will play Saturday."

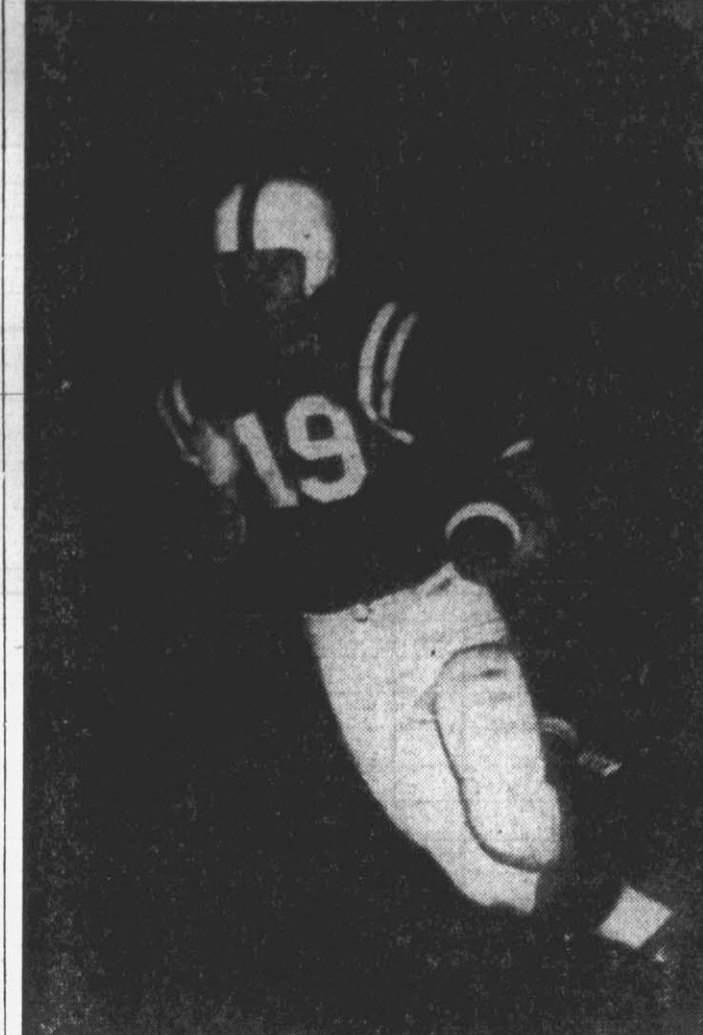

He added: "I think this Duke team is capable of winning from anybody."

He dismissed the loss to Georgia Tech with "to lose a game like that is a bitter pill."

The North Carolina Tar Heels began preparation for Saturday's game with Virginia on a muddy field. The team concentrated on offensive plays against Cavalier defenses in a two-hour drill, most of which was secret.

West Virginia-VMI Contest May Decide Championship

He Starred Against Bears

TOMMY NASH—A freshman import from Monroe, this 165 pound halfback, a former high school All-America, was East Carolina's most outstanding runner against Lenoir Rhyne Saturday. He scored once and set up the Bucs' second tally. East Carolina lost 57-12.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

West Virginia meets Virginia Military Institute Saturday in a Southern Conference football feature and one person who isn't looking forward to the occasion with much glee is VMI Coach John McKenna.

West Virginia needs this one to advance within a final step of its fourth conference championship in a row. After VMI Coach Art (Pappy) Lewis's Mountaineers need only defeat Furman to clinch the title and another perfect league record.

"Pappy has just got too many horses for us," says McKenna. "We'd sure like to win, but how can anybody expect us to?"

One factor helping VMI's prospects will be the likely absence of West Virginia's first-string quarterback, Mickey Trimarki, from the Mountaineer lineup. Trimarki was hurt early in WVU's 14-0 victory over George Washington last week and probably won't start against VMI.

West Virginia took yesterday off as a reward for beating George Washington, but a rugged practice is in store for today.

Furman's Hurricane, meantime, labored on pass offense, pass defense and play timing yesterday in preparation for Florida State, described by scouts as "one of the toughest teams," on the Furman schedule. A bruised knee kept halfback Jim Jennings on the sidelines.

Davidson stressed defense, setting pass and ground defense patterns in a light workout. Coach Bill Dole disclosed that halfback Don Comer will be lost for the rest of the season with a broken leg suffered last Saturday.

William and Mary held a long workout, preparing for powerful Army, with end Walt Brodie, end Ed Brusko and quarterback Tom Secules on the injured list.

Virginia Tech drilled lightly with injured end Grover Jones and tackle Tom Dalzell taking part. Tech meets Wake Forest this week.

Reds Recede From Games

HONG KONG (AP)—Communist China announced today it had withdrawn its team from the Olympic Games.

The decision brought to three the number of nations having pulled out of the games, scheduled to begin in Melbourne Nov. 22. Egypt and Iraq withdrew earlier. Israel, originally intending to send a 20-member squad, announced today it would send instead a skeleton team of three.

In addition, three nations — the Netherlands, Switzerland and Norway — are contemplating withdrawal in protest of Russian action in Hungary.

Only yesterday, Otto Mayer, chancellor of the International Olympic Committee, issued a plea from his headquarters in Lausanne that the games "must take place" whatever the world situation.

The Chinese Nationalists' team, accepted as a separate entry for competition by the IOC, has been in Melbourne for several days.

Peiping radio, heard here, said it is refusing to attend the games "because the International Olympic Committee persists in recognizing the Olympics committees of two Chinas and allows Taiwan (Formosa) to send a team to the games."

It added there was a possibility the Reds would participate if Formosa is disqualified.

Olympic Torch Crosses Equator For First Time

SINGAPORE — The Olympic torch, symbol of peace in a smoldering world, crossed the equator today for the first time in history.

A Qantas Empire Airways plane carried the torch into the southern hemisphere 30 minutes after it left Singapore.

The torch, which has circulated in the northern hemisphere since the beginning of the ancient Greek Olympic Games in 776 B.C., will be carried into Melbourne to open the 1956 Olympics Nov. 22.

The historic torch, which is being carried in two miner's lamps, is cradled in a baby's cot. It will arrive in Darwin tonight.

A Royal Australian Air Force Canberra jet will take the torch to Cairns. Runners will carry it the remaining 2,732 miles to Melbourne.

Evening Peal Is Winning Horse

MELBOURNE, Australia — Evening Peal, the best mare on the Australian race tracks, won the Melbourne Cup, Australia's biggest horse race, at Flemington track today.

All Australia stopped work to listen to the broadcast of the big two-mile handicap in which most Australians have some sort of financial interest.

Evening Peal, starting 15-1 in the betting, won by half a neck from New Zealand favorite, Red Craze, at 7-4, with 12-1 chance Caranna half a head away third.

The time of 3 minutes, 19-2 seconds equalled the Australian record.

Don Larsen, who pitched a perfect game for the Yankees in the World Series, allowed three home runs in Washington in the season's opener there last spring. He won the game.

Halfback Tackled By A Collie Dog

BALTIMORE — A collie dog "tackled" halfback Fred Colly yesterday and prevented a touchdown in a high school junior varsity football game.

Colly caught a pass from Mount St. Joseph's quarterback, Joe Phoebus on the Lovola 29-yard line in the second quarter and set the ball for the goal line and an apparent sure six points.

Suddenly Colly (the boy) was upended 13 yards from the goal when a collie (the dog) ran between his legs. The referee ruled the ball dead.

Mr. St. Joseph's did not score and lost the ball on downs, but managed to hang on for a 7-6 victory.

Gaye Stewart is the first former National Hockey League player to referee in the league since King Clancy.

SYNOPSIS
Casson Duker, a well-to-do amateur detective, is intrigued by Henry Lockyer, a stolid banker, getting drunk before dinner, at their club. Casson's curiosity compels him to find out why the normally light-drinker Lockyer is acting in such a manner. Lockyer tells Casson he has been blackmailed by an ordinary looking little man named Bagot who threatened to ruin his reputation. Bagot promises not to bother him again. Lockyer tells Casson he will not testify against Bagot if he is arrested. One thing distinguished the insignificant Bagot: He possessed an antique piece of Roman sculpture in Lockyer's house. Casson thinks this interest may trap him. Casson goes to his friend George Strutt, a police superintendent, for help. Strutt becomes interested in the case. Later, Casson meets another friend, Nigel Willingham, an antique dealer, and asks him to check his sales records of Roman sculpture and possible leads.

CHAPTER 5
Strutt arrived late, sweating from his walk in the warm evening. Without a word Casson handed him a tall glass of iced lager. Strutt drank most of it in one breath.

"Hopeless," he grunted. "Completely hopeless. Both your descriptions were impossible, as you knew they would be. So the boys tried your line about curiosities."

"Antiques?"

Strutt nodded impatiently and continued:

"They were interested. But they drew a blank."

"And where do we go from there?" Casson inquired.

"Hemel Hempstead," said Strutt. Casson smiled at him. Strutt loved keeping a trump card up his sleeve.

"Delightful. Why?"

Strutt pointed at his empty glass. Casson refilled it.

"Two years ago," he said, "a fellow called Greenhaugh committed suicide. Drove his car into a canal up Hemel Hempstead way."

"Was he alone?"

"Yes."

"Then how did you know he committed suicide?"

"A chap in the brick-works nearby saw the car. It stopped; the man inside threw away a cigarette. It started again, heading for the canal, engine roaring. It went straight through a fence and straight into the canal."

"He was the junior partner of a small export firm in Mayfair," Strutt continued. "Been going ten years, quite prosperous, and had not reached saturation point. A wife and three kids in Dunstable, no debts, no vices, no reason to croak himself."

"Fortunately his bank statement arrived the day after he had done himself. His wife let us see it. The last entry was the day before. It was for six hundred pounds paid to 'Self.' Quite a sum to draw in one go."

"I went along to the bank, a branch of Lloyd's in Mayfair. The manager wouldn't tell me much anyway. The Bank Act, very proper, you know," Strutt snorted.

"All the cashier could say was that Greenhaugh had come into the bank at half-past ten, said he wanted six hundred pounds in one-pound notes for an urgent business deal, collected the money, and gone out."

"We checked with his firm in Charles Street. They knew nothing of any business deal. There was no money in his desk. None in his safe. He had an appointment for lunch that day in the Mayfair Hotel. He hadn't cancelled it. All his secretary could tell us was that a man had called to see him, and stayed in his room for quarter of an hour, and that they had gone out together. The visitor carried a brown paper shopping bag such as you buy for sixpence at Harrod's, gave his name as Martin, and was so ordinary as to be hard to describe."

"It looked like blackmail. But how? His wife knew nothing. I didn't expect she would. I got her to lend me all his files of personal accounts and I spent a week-end going through them. He was one of those meticulous and tidy men. He kept every thing but without method. By the time I had finished sorting papers, I could have kicked him into the canal myself."

Casson chuckled.

"I worked out his income and his expenditure," Strutt went on. "Every year he saved a bit and bought a few shares. The only thing I didn't understand was the size of his personal expense account. It was between five hundred and fifty and six hundred and fifty a year. Twelve pounds a week. Quite a lot; especially as he also had an expense account with his firm."

"So you looked for his mistress?"

"Who's telling this story, blast you? There wasn't one. Not a trace. I went through his papers at the office. Then I found her. Six years back in a bank statement. Henrietta Kavenagh Martin. I found two cheques, fifteen guineas each, one seven days after the other, paid into a bank at Hatfield. Then a regular payment of twenty pounds a month on a banker's order."

"She was a foreign girl. I reckoned the two payments of fifteen guineas were for a hospital or a doctor, and we traced her that way."

"This Martin girl had been ill. She was quite a decent kid, really, but she was Greenhaugh's mistress. Anyway, he had come to see the girl about an hour before he died. She said he was almost incoherent and kept asking her if she had been followed around by a strange man. Matter of fact she had been. In the end the stranger man had picked her up in a tea-shop but she'd given him the brush. When he heard that, Greenhaugh — as she picturesquely put it — swore an oath, said he'd look after her as well as he could. An hour later he drove into the canal."

"What did the man look like?"

"His description would fit that of the Martin girl called on Greenhaugh at his office. He wore heavy spectacles. He wore a brown suit. He wore a raincoat and a green hat."

"Or it would fit Bagot?"

"Or it would fit Bagot."

"Isn't it strange that both the blackmail and the girl should be called Martin?"

"Isn't it if it was blackmail?"

"But why did you pick the Greenhaugh case out of the records?"

"The boys have always reckoned it to be a blackmail case. I had them pick out all the unsolved ones. This seemed to fit."

"Why six hundred pounds?" Casson asked.

"Why not?"

"And Greenhaugh's own credit was sufficient to meet it?" Casson persisted.

"Yes. It overdraw him a bit because he'd had a lot of bills the month before. But his credit would stretch that far: just that far."

"So Bagot got into Greenhaugh's office by using the name Martin, by suggesting somehow that he came from the girl in Hatfield," Casson murmured, trying to picture the scene. "He blackmailed him. He took him down to his bank — the same technique as with Lockyer. He probably told him that he wouldn't blackmail twice. Greenhaugh wouldn't believe him. So he drives slap into a canal."

"Listen," Strutt said grimly. "I don't give a hang for Greenhaugh and I care even less for Lockyer. I want to get the crawling runt who blackmailed them. See?"

"I see. Shall I find him for you?"

Strutt sighed. "I wish you would. Even if I did find him I couldn't prosecute him. One of his victims is dead the other won't give evidence. You find him and I'll turn the heat on when you've found him. Now, where's that book you promised me?"

Tomorrow: The trap is baited. Casson goes to an auction sale, but not to bid.

PICTURE TALK

By CHARLES BISSETTE

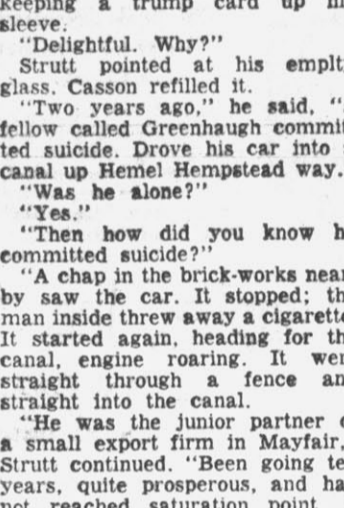

The Greatest of Ease

The other day a man came in and asked for several rolls of black-and-white film. I suggested that he buy some color film also. He said he'd heard color shots were hard to get. I told him that wasn't so at all. Color pictures are as easy to take as black-and-white. He agreed to try it.

He learned right away that it is easy to take color snapshots. And when he saw his finished pictures — well, I'd made a friend for life. But Kodacolor snapshots — grand as they are — are far from the whole story. Thanks to modern cameras and today's new, fast Kodak Films, there's a whole wonderful world of color pictures — and all of it, as easy to enjoy as ordinary black-and-white snaps. There are color movies, color slides, and those most realistic of all pictures, stereo color slides. It's impossible to describe the breathtaking beauty of three-dimensional pictures in full color. You simply have to see for yourself. With a Kodak Stereo Camera you can get fine results as easily as taking ordinary snapshots. And you'd be surprised at the low price of this camera.

You don't have to take our word for any of this. Come in any time and see for yourself.

Who says dream cars never come true?

Dynamite from Detroit

Coming! America's first production dream car — it will influence the shape of cars for years to come.

The old Detroit rule was to introduce new features gradually, to make little changes each year. Sometimes a new grille, an engine improvement, or new colors and trim.

We broke that rule. In fact, we broke all the rules. This is dynamite!

For you are not the only one who has dreamed of a totally modern car, a car that has everything you find at automobile shows, in illustrations, and in custom-built experimental cars.

Detroit has had that dream, too. And that's why the 1957 Mercury is the car that has honestly excited the most car-jaded, the most sophisticated of Detroit's automotive experts.

When you see the new 1957 Mercury, you'll see America's first full-production dream car — a car that will influence the shape of cars for years to come.

You'll see a dream car you can own and drive — a car that has far more than startling years-ahead beauty.

THE BIG M for '57 boasts dream-car features never before found outside a designer's dream-book: a Keyboard Control that makes ordinary push-button driving old-fashioned; an exclusive Floating Ride with a revolutionary new cushioning action you have to feel to believe. There are Mercury "firsts" everywhere you look. A Power-Booster Engine Fan in the Montclair series that saves horsepower other cars waste. And many more Mercury exclusives.

You'll see THE BIG M — the new Mercury for 1957 — soon. You'll see it. You'll drive it. The first dream car that can be yours. The dynamite is on its way from Detroit to your dealer's — now!

All Eight Votes For Stevenson

CATALOCHEE, N.C.—The eight qualified voters of this tiny mountain precinct cast their ballots for Adlai Stevenson today.

Superintendent Of Nat'l Parks Addresses Club

Rotarian Paul Franke of Cedar City, Iowa, superintendent of Bryce and Zion Canyon National Parks, addressed the Greenville Rotary club last night discussing the country's national parks and showing color slides of many of them.

The speaker pointed out that during the past year 55 million people visited the 176 national parks and monuments in this country and during the coming year the number of visitors is expected to reach 56 million. He pointed to the need for more national parks, particularly in the eastern section of the nation, to take care of the growing population.

Franke traced briefly the development of the National Park Service which is now a part of the Department of Interior. He singled out several points of particular historical and scenic interest during his talk.

Airport Groups 'Warn' Against Rivalry Error

RALEIGH (NCA)—A firm warning against the mistake of working against each other was voiced yesterday to two Eastern North Carolina groups seeking airport facilities.

The Mid-East Carolina Airport Authority and a Rocky Mount airport committee appeared before the commerce and industry committee of the State Board of Conservation and Development. Each asked the committee's help in order to obtain funds from the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

Herbert G. Spencer of Atlanta, regional CAA engineer, said "relative merits" of proposals submitted by the two groups will be considered at a regional CAA meeting in Fort Worth, Tex., on Nov. 19.

Robert M. Hanes of Winston-Salem, commerce and industry chairman, and committee member Amos R. Kearns of High Point urged the groups "not to make the same kind of mistake" which they said Winston-Salem, Greensboro and High Point made some years ago.

"If we had combined our joint efforts 20 years ago, and worked together for the common good, we would today be the turntable of North Carolina," said Kearns.

The Mid-East Authority was created to push plans for an area airport to serve Wilson, Goldsboro, Kinston, Greenville, Farmville and about 14 smaller communities.

Speaking for neighboring Rocky Mount, W. B. Harrison said the Mid-East proposal will not be adequate for that area. He said Rocky Mount already has in hand sufficient funds to match requested CAA appropriations. The Rocky Mount airport would serve Nash, Edgecombe and Halifax counties.

Included in the Rocky Mount delegation were J. L. Horne Jr., Rocky Mount publisher; Tarboro Mayor H. G. Nicholson, and others.

W. W. Speight of Greenville, Mid-East authority chairman, argued that the CAA will not provide funds for two projects so close together. He said governing boards of a number of communi-

City Recreation Group To Push For Bond Votes

The ten members of the Recreation Commission of Greenville met last night and laid the foundation for getting out the votes November 20th in the city bond election.

Each member was assigned a certain area of the city or a certain number of civic clubs and organizations to contact. Those contacted will be asked to urge the people to go to the polls on the 20th and vote. Should the bond issue be voted in, $62,000 of the total amount will be allocated to the Recreation Commission.

Further business included an "approval to work out an agreement with National Guard officials for use of the Armory for the upcoming Industrial Basketball League," said Gordon Goodman, head of the Recreation Department. It is tentatively planned that games would be played two nights each week with four teams making up the league.

Turkey Shoots To Be Staged By Bethel Lions

The Lions Club of Bethel will sponsor a Turkey Shoot starting Thursday night and ending the day before Thanksgiving.

The matches will be held Thursday and Friday nights of this week and next week and Saturday afternoon of next week. On November 19, 20 and 21 another series of matches will be held. Starting time for all shoots will be 7:30 p.m. except for the Saturday match which will begin at 2:30.

The Lions Club will furnish the shells, and a rifle if needed, to each of the 12 contestants participating in each match. The winner will receive a 10 to 12 pound turkey. The last match of the day will be a Free-For-All in which contestant may use any shell he so desires.

The shoots will be held behind the High School in Bethel.

Truman Seethes Over Situation

LIBERTY, Mo.—Former President Harry S. Truman says he is "so steamed up" about the present status of U.S. foreign policy "I can hardly talk—it's just simply outrageous."

Addressing more than 1,500 jammed in Memorial Hall for a Democratic rally last night, he said:

"This situation in the Middle East could have been stopped when the Russians announced they were going to ship arms to Egypt. All the President would have had to do was say, 'You can't do it.'"

"It would have worked because we and our friends controlled the Mediterranean.

"Where are we now?" he asked. "We are falling out with the best two friends this country ever had—Britain and France."

Hurricane Greta Lashes Atlantic

MIAMI, Fla.—Hurricane Greta changed little during the night and was a menace only to shipping as it continued to move northeast far out in the Atlantic today.

Greta's winds were estimated at slightly over 100 m.p.h. over a small area near the center.

At 5 a.m. (EST) Greta was centered near Latitude 30.0 north, Longitude 54.8 west or about 600 miles east southeast of Bermuda and 1,400 miles east southeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

Movement during the next 12 hours was expected to continue toward the northeast at nearly 25 m.p.h. with some increase in forward speed and a little more northerly movement thereafter.

Friffay Brings Counter-Charges

Two Greenville Negroes brought charges against each other after a knife and bottle fight yesterday afternoon.

John Parker, 17, 105 West 1st Street, told police that Frank Moye, 602-B Pamlico Avenue, had cut him on the left arm with a knife at the Casino Grill. He signed a warrant charging Moye with assault with a deadly weapon inflicting dangerous and serious wounds.

This morning, a warrant was served on Parker, signed by Moye, charging him with assault with a bottle.

Both men are scheduled to appear in City Court this Friday.

of thousands of lives. The barriers of property, age, color and sex fell slowly.

"The remark is often made, 'The guy who doesn't bother to vote would be the first to fight if someone threatened to take away his right to vote.'"

But that is nonsense. The only men who can be counted on to defend a right are those who exercise that right. The man who has nothing to say doesn't fight for free speech.
