Eisenhowers And Nixons All Smiles In Victory

President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon with their wives acknowledge cheers of victory at a big Republican rally in election headquarters at Washington early Wednesday. In leading his party to a smashing victory over Democratic nominee Adlai Stevenson, the 66-year-old President became the first Republican to win a second term since William McKinley in 1900. How The Votes Went For Ike In 41 States

This map shows the distribution of state-by-state returns in the Presidential voting with President Eisenhower carrying 41 states for 457 electoral votes. Democratic nominee Adlai Stevenson carried only seven states—six in the South, plus Missouri—for 74 electoral votes. (AP Wirephoto).

President To Face Increasingly Unfriendly Congress Next Term

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower was confronted today with the prospect of an increasingly unfriendly Congress in the aftermath of his sweeping re-election victory. Although he defeated Adlai E. Stevenson by more than nine million votes, his party took a political defeat when Democrats won margins in both houses of Congress. Neither was there concrete evidence to substantiate Eisenhower's contention that "modern Republicanism" had achieved a victory. On the contrary, it appeared that the personal popularity which gave him 41 states and 457 electoral votes did not sit down to the general run of GOP candidates. Increased antagonism by the new Congress above that displayed by the Democratic 84th to some of Eisenhower's proposals seemed likely to make itself felt primarily on domestic issues. The narrowness of party margins in both Senate and House made it certain that on most issues final decisions, as in the past four years, would be made by two-party coalitions rather than on strict party lines. Eisenhower's own victory surpassed his 1952 triumph over Stevenson in both popular and electoral votes. With some 10,000 precincts not yet tallied, the popular vote was 33,665,121 for Eisenhower to 24,651,172 for Stevenson.

A still undecided Kentucky senatorial race seemed likely to decide the firmness of Democratic control over that body. In the House, the Democrats had elected 229 members, 11 more than the necessary majority, to the Republicans' 200. Democrats were leading in all six undecided races. The present division is 232-203. Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas has attributed Eisenhower's ballot appeal in part to what he said was the fact that "in a moment of peril, the American people voted to back up their President and demonstrate to the world that America is united."

While Democrats generally shared Johnson's avowed willingness to cooperate on international matters, they left little doubt they will question closely many Eisenhower domestic proposals. For the President, the cold, hard indications of a second-day look at the balloting results pointed in these varying directions: Congressional Democrats, assured they could survive a presidential landslide, exhibited new confidence they can draft their own legislative program and pit it successfully against Eisenhower's. These Democrats seemed to have discarded any belief that open opposition to the President might amount to political suicide in future voting. By constitutional amendment, Eisenhower cannot run again even if he wanted to. That political fact seems likely to have an effect in GOP ranks too. Some Republicans owe their elections to a firm clutch on Eisenhower's coattails. But many others, including most of the holdovers in the Senate, did not. The GOP lawmakers like the Democrats, kneel that for practical purposes Eisenhower's influence at the polls ended last Tuesday. They already were speculating on the identity of the man who will head their ticket in 1960. The choice being so wide, the GOP House and Senate members appeared likely to do at the moment of legislative decision what each thought was best for his own individual political future. They might not follow Eisenhower's lead.

Famine Facing Hungary; Rebels Fight On But Ammunition Is Low

VIENNA (AP)—Budapest radio announced today famine threatens revolt-torn Hungary. It begged the country in the name of the Russians' puppet government to struggle back to normal. Rebel radios fell ominously silent. One of the last broadcasts heard here said fighting continued near Budapest "with unchanging violence." From Geneva, the International Red Cross committee asked the Soviet government to negotiate with the Hungarian combatants for an immediate truce in the battle of Budapest to permit evacuation of wounded. Numerous casualties of street fighting at noon yesterday were reported lying where they fell and cast off from medical aid. Within the Hungarian capital, ringed by Soviet tanks in formations that resembled siege lines, Radio Budapest urged all foodstuff workers to return to their jobs at once. So urgent was the situation that the government ordered trucks engaged in transport of provisions to carry big, easily visible signs identifying them as food trucks. Soviet troops will give every possible assistance to keep food supplies moving, the broadcast said. The Soviet military commander ordered the 7 p. m. curfew lifted in the case of food trucks to permit them to operate day and night. The same broadcast indicated a severe shortage of shoes and clothing. It appealed to pawn shops to return all shoes and clothing worth less than 500 forints—about $45 at the official rate—to their owners without payment of premiums and present the pawn shops to the Finance Ministry. The Soviet-installed puppet government of Premier Janos Kadar pleaded for resumption of normal life in Hungary, but admitted the rebellion against Russian domination was not fully crushed. Earlier reports said scattered pockets of insurgents were fighting on against heavy Soviet blows aimed at wiping out the last remnants of Hungary's rebellion. Radio Free Europe's listening post in Munich reported that the rebel radio transmitters were still today. "Our monitors have not been able to pick up any rebel broadcasts since last night," a spokesman said, "and that's very discouraging."

The earlier rebel reports made it clear that time was running out in many desperate, last-ditch stands. One unidentified station in the Pecs region said: "Thursday will be the last day on which we shall be able to resist Russian attacks. Our ammunition and our food supplies are running short. Blood is the only thing we still have to offer." Hungary's new Soviet-imposed government today ordered the resumption of normal life in the country, but also indicated all resistance had not been put down. A Radio Budapest broadcast called for resumption of work and reopening of schools "where peace and security permit it." Political advisers of the new government were dispatched throughout Hungary to work with local authorities. The advisers were to have final authority.

Radio Budapest said the Soviet commander had issued an order demanding the surrender of all arms before 5 p. m. tomorrow. The order promised severe punishment for those who did not comply and no prosecution for those who did. The rebels have ignored previous ultimatums. The Russian commander also warned that "those who under the resumption of work will be severely punished" and appealed to the populace to help in "normalizing life." Moscow radio said the Hungarian situation was becoming "more normal" and claimed Budapest was calm. But it also indicated that resistance had not been completely smashed. Refugees still cross the frontier to seek asylum in Austria. Reports from the Austrian border check point at Nickelsdorf said the Hungarian check point at Hegyeshalom was held by about 50 rebels.

Governor Surprised By Vote

Hodges Says N. C. Democrats Must Build Stronger And Better Party

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges today expressed himself as surprised at the closeness of the presidential vote in North Carolina and said he felt the tense foreign situation changed the national and state presidential vote. Hodges said, "It would have been a different vote" if the election had been held two weeks earlier, "and I'm not saying that for four grapes." The governor was asked at his news conference if he feels the close vote in North Carolina indicated a swing to a two-party system. He answered by pointing to the vote for state officers which he said "seems to be fairly normal." Although Hodges and other Democratic state officials were elected by wide margins, President Eisenhower came close to winning the state's 14 electoral votes. Returns indicate that Democrat Adlai Stevenson carried the state by around 25,000 votes out of more than one million cast. Hodges issued a prepared statement in which he said: "As Democrats, we must be realistic, evaluate our weaknesses and look ahead to building a stronger and better party. To do this we must continue to emphasize the fundamental principles of the Democratic party and must continue to develop the strongest candidates possible at all levels of government." Hodges said he shared the feelings of Stevenson "that we are all Americans and must work together in the face of grave difficulties both international and domestic. It will take the best that America has to offer to meet the challenge of today and the future."

Crowd Pickets Sobolev Party

NEW YORK (AP)—A menacing crowd of 3,000 surged toward the headquarters of the Russian United Nations delegation on Park Avenue last night as the Red elite within downed champagne and vodka toasts to the 39th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution. A force of about 150 police—some of them mounted—barred the shouting pickets from the entrance. Many in the crowd were of Hungarian descent. Numerous students of several colleges joined the demonstration. As guests passed in and out of the Red delegation's headquarters pickets held placards high. Some of them read: "Don't drink champagne mixed with Hungarian blood." "Get out of America, you murderers." "Sobolev stop lying." (The first three letters of the last name of chief U.N. Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev was capitalized.) Sobolev was host at the affair inside. Police finally gave the "move on" order, and within 10 minutes the crowd vanished.

Arab Raiders From Jordan Attack Israeli Installations

TEL AVIV (AP)—Arab raiders from Jordan stabbed across a 30-mile stretch of the Israel border last night in attacks on installations and travelers, the Israeli army said today. The army said the raiders blew up a water pipeline and three empty houses and attempted to sabotage a railway line and bridge. They attacked a number of passing vehicles with rifle fire and grenades. Similar attacks from Egypt were among reasons given by Israel for its blitz assault across the Egyptian border last week. The lightning attack ended with the capture of the Gaza Strip and the entire Sinai Peninsula. No casualties were reported in any of the attacks, which the Israelis believed were made by commandos who escaped from the Gaza Strip and Sinai across Israel to Jordan. The attacks extended from Shaar Hagai, a border town midway between Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, north to three villages in the narrow waist of Israel where the Jordan border is only 10 miles from the Mediterranean. The army said the raiders blew up the water pipeline at Shaar Hagai and threw grenades at

Senate-House Foreign Affairs Committees Will See Change

WASHINGTON (AP)—The new Democratic-controlled Congress convening Jan. 3 will have new chairmen of both Senate and House committees dealing with international affairs. Otherwise President Eisenhower will be working with most of the same committee heads. Some have largely supported his efforts; others have opposed them. Most committee chairmen in the next session again will come from the South. Southerners are in line for 8 of the 15 Senate chairmanships and 12 of the 19 House posts. Veteran Walter George (D-Ga.), dean of the Senate, is leaving that body after 34 years and thus relinquishing his job as head of the Foreign Relations Committee. It will go to 89-year-old Theodore Francis Green (D-R.I.), oldest man ever to serve in the Senate. In the House, Chairman James P. Richards (D-SC) of the Foreign Affairs Committee also is retiring. Rep. Thomas S. Gordon (D-Ill.) is in line to succeed him. The administration received strong support from these Democratic chairmen in the last two years on most foreign affairs questions, and can look for this generally to continue. Also, such chairmen as Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) of the Finance Committee are expected to continue their backing of the President on most issues. Sen. Lister Hill (D-Ala.), chairman of Labor and Public Welfare Committee, can be expected

Ballon Expected To Set Record

RAPID CITY, S. D. (AP)—A big gas balloon carrying two Navy men in a gondola took off from here today in 14 degrees above zero weather. The two expect to soar to a record height of 75,000 feet. Navy officials said they expected the balloon to land at Cambridge, Nev., in about 8 hours and 15 minutes. The balloon flight had been delayed several times because of bad weather.

Cat Finds Family In 200-Mile Walk

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Missy looks just about like any other cat, but one of the nation's foremost parapsychologists plans a special trip here to see her. You see, Missy isn't "just any cat." Her owners say she traveled for over 14 months across 200 miles of mountains, valleys and rivers to a place she had never been to find the family she loved. Dr. J. B. Rhine, head of the Parapsychology Department of Duke University, has notified Mrs. T. Edward Bass that he wants to visit with Missy. "If a cat can follow its family as Missy did," wrote Rhine, "it would be important for us to find out how she did it." The Bass family lived at Lyles, Tenn., about 40 miles north of Nashville until February, 1955. They destroyed their home and belongings and came here to stay with a relative. Missy, five years old then, ran off during the excitement and the Basses left without her. Then one day last April, one of the Bass children, was in the yard of the family's new home here and saw a cat limp around the corner. The Basses insist it was Missy. "In Lyles," said Mrs. Bass yesterday, "every time I made biscuits, Missy would sit up and beg for bits of the dough. The morning Missy came home from the hospital here, I was making biscuits. Missy sat up and begged for pieces of dough and enjoyed it like she always did." The trip to an animal hospital, by the way, was because the cat's paws were raw and bleeding and she had pneumonia. "I don't understand all this business," Mrs. Bass said, "but Missy found us and as far as we're concerned, we wouldn't take a million dollars for her. She loved us and wanted us and it's mutual."

Laurinburg Man Survives 12 Days Adrift In Open Atlantic

SOUTHPORT, N.C. (AP)—"Those sharks were awful. They came in waves, bumped their heads against the boat, kept whipping about in the water. When my buddy died I laid down in the bottom of the boat. I didn't want the sharks to see me." "Through cracked lips, 20-year-old Douglas Wilson Sessoms of Laurinburg thus described his 12 days at sea in a 14-foot homemade boat. "I don't remember exactly," said the early haired young tree surgeon when landed here early today by a Coast Guard boat. "Just when J. Eddie Boone died I believe it was on the third day." Sessoms and the 34-year-old Boone, also of Laurinburg, a foreman in a tree surgery group, had set out from Corn Cake Inlet on Oct. 27 on a short fishing excursion. Rough seas washed out their outboard motor and a receding tide pulled them to sea between Ft. Fisher and Bald Head Island, south Carolina Beach. "The first day," Boone was awfully nauseated," Sessoms, speckled with skin sores, recalled. "The next day he began showing signs of delirium. He was out of his head the third day. I think that's the day he died. I slept with my head on his arm two nights. After the odd, got too strong I buried him at sea." Sessoms, his eyes blinking uncontrollably, said he was unable to determine what caused Boone's death. "He was out of his head and spitting up blood," he added. "I got to where I couldn't think about anything but food, and land and drinking water." "But I gave up hope only once. I kept praying to the Lord and my hope came back and I never gave up hope again." "Two ships passed way off but didn't see me." "When that third ship went into sight yesterday, I was too weak to stand up. I'd been without food nine days. I raised up from the bottom of the boat high enough for my head to show, and I waved my arm. They came and got me." The SS Hess Petrel picked up

One Arrest As 100-Gallon Bootleg Still Is Raided

In addition to the 100-gallon, 150-gallon preheating unit, a 50-gallon cooler and a 50-gallon doubler was destroyed by dynamite. Nine hundred gallons of mash was confiscated. The still was located one-half mile east of Pactolus about one-fourth mile off the Pactolus-Washington highway. Crandle, the only operator who came in to the still, was placed under a $500 bond. The four Pitt ABC officers on the raid were Ward, H. B. Liley, Walter Taylor and Jack Russell. Joe Fowler and Jim Sanders of New Bern were the ATU officers.

Clown Catchall Teaches Neatness

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor

THERE'S A TREND afoot toward training children in their own terms. Closets and bathrooms are designed with child-size bars and hooks; hangers feature fairy-tale characters and sometimes even the bed is disguised as a boat or a space ship.

Today's young mothers applaud this trend, since the small fry get the idea that putting clothes away or going to bed is a game. It follows that a child needs his own laundry hamper, such as a catchall clown, made of heavy gauge vinyl fabric with wide-awake features and trimmings of colored plastic tape. In gay colors, it makes a gay decoration for a child's room. Upkeep is a cinch, since it is easily washed with a swipe of a sponge.

Local sewing center experts give you directions for making the clown laundry bag, using your sewing machine. You will need 2-3 yard of 54-inch vinyl fabric in blue and 1-4 yard in yellow; plastic tape in red, black and yellow; cellophane tape and a shirt cardboard.

Draw pattern on brown paper about two feet square. Draw pear-shaped design two feet wide at the base and two feet high. Fold paper lengthwise to find center line. Cut notch at bottom of center line, two inches in from center fold and three and a half inches high, to form legs. Trim bottom of legs so they slant up slightly. Fold blue vinyl and use cellophane tape to secure fabric to pattern. Do not use pins, as they will make holes in the fabric. Cut two body pieces. Lay two body pieces together, right sides facing. Fasten together with cellophane tape instead of basting. Now stitch two pieces together on your sewing machine, using a small needle, a long stitch, light tension and light pressure.

Make a horizontal slit in the clown's tummy (front piece only). Turn bag right side out through this slit. Trim collar with yellow plastic tape. Use wide yellow tape to form hands at sides. A strip of red tape over the fingers will look like sleeves. Feet are cut from yellow vinyl, trimmed with red tape bows and taped to the back of the bag.

To make head, cut a circle eight inches in diameter from a shirt cardboard. Cover with yellow vinyl. To cover smoothly, trace circle on wrong side of vinyl. Cut out, allowing two inches extra all around. Fold over cardboard, cutting away excess fabric, and tape to back of cardboard.

Tape vinyl ears to sides of head and use colored plastic tape for features. To make features, lay plastic tape on waxed paper. Cut out eyes, nose, mouth, strips for hair and circles for cheeks, peel off paper and stick to face.

Cone-shaped hat is cut from blue vinyl. Attach head to front part of body above collar. Sew heavy loop to back part of body for hanging on wall hook.

As the catchall clown gets fatter from laundry, he becomes more appealing, and is at his best just before washday.

CIRCUS LAUNDRY BAG... Easy to make with vinyl fabric and plastic tape to encourage junior neatness.

Looking Over The Shrubs

Mrs. Carson Is Speaker

Mrs. Lela Carson was speaker for the evening at a meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union Monday night.

Having recently returned from the state convention in Charlotte, she presented highlights of the trip and featured speakers' addresses.

Mrs. Carson presented to Mrs. Helene Kirkpatrick, president, an Honor Certificate from the Union, representing a Hold Fast and Fruitful Union.

Mrs. Charles Rumley gave some thoughts taken from the "Union Magazine."

A petition was passed for each member to sign favoring a vote for prohibition. The petition will be sent to the General Assembly.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick presided over the business session during which dues were collected. Meetings have been changed to the first Friday night in each month.

New members welcomed into the Union were Mrs. Edward Ganford and Mrs. Marvin Gardner. Mrs. Brown was a visitor.

Hostess for the meeting was Mrs. J. N. Williams. Her home was decorated for the occasion with colorful flowers. Members and guests were invited into the dining room where dainty refreshments and punch were served by the hostess and her daughter, Elizabeth Ann.

The meeting adjourned with a prayer and the WCTU Benediction. Eighteen members were present.

Ill-Dressed American Can Blame Only Herself

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
If any American woman today is not well dressed, no matter what her budget, it's nobody's fault but her own, says the world's most famous dressmaker.

Mild, balding, conservatively dressed Christian Dior smiled diffidently as he took a few minutes out of his crowded schedule to discuss the state of the nation's fashion in his plush New York salon, this dictator of world fashion said.

"Only in America is it possible for every woman to be smartly dressed in inexpensive readymade clothes. In Europe and other countries the fashionably dressed woman must have her clothes custom-made, and she must be wealthy. Her smart clothes in good taste are available to everybody. I think the women of the United States should erect a monument to New York's Seventh Avenue."

In the ten years since the then unknown Dior of Paris burst the bombshell of the "New Look" upon the world of fashion, this modest and unassuming man has built up a fantastic business empire reaching practically every corner of the earth and influencing the way women look each season all over the world.

When he showed half-a-dozen ankle-length outfits in his last Paris collection, the American garment industry was thrown into a tizzy. Manufacturers went into a frenzied conference with designers about whether or not long dresses were coming back. Some decided to leave it to the customers, and sent out dresses with basted hems. Apprised of the hysteria he started, Dior blinked and remarked:

"But I never meant that street

Eisenhower Free To Run His Show

As the final returns from Tuesday's election trickle in there can be no question that President Eisenhower's landslide victory resulted from the fight between an extremely popular man on one hand and an extremely popular party on the other.

Though his victory was one of the most impressive in presidential elections in this country, President Eisenhower could not carry with him to victory a sufficient number of Republican candidates to gain control of the House and Senate. Results of the election show quite clearly the vast majority of voters liked Ike, but they preferred Democratic Senators and Congressmen to Republicans.

With a Democratic Congress for the next two years—and in all probability all four years of his new administration—there remains the serious question of whether President Eisenhower will be able to effectively carry out the aggressive, progressive administrative program the nation needs.

On the other hand President Eisenhower has made it quite clear that he intends to mold the Republican party into a progressive rather than a reactionary political organization. He has said in so many words that he will not tolerate the moss-back philosophy which has guided the Republican party for scores of years. If he is able to effect these reforms in the Republican party—or if in his administrative program he reflects a more progressive spirit than normally comes from the Republican party—he will find ready assistance from many Democrats in the Congress.

With four years of political experience under his belt, President Eisenhower has acquired a great deal more political savvy than he had when he ventured into the field of national politics. His extreme personal popularity, plus the fact he will not seek another office four years from now, places him in a position much more independent from ultra conservative elements in the Republican party than has been the case in the past four years. This should afford him the greater voice needed in running his own administration.

President Eisenhower now is in a better position to give the nation a more forceful, more progressive administration than it has had under his administration during the past four years. If the administration is to stand the extreme test of these critical times, it must indeed become just that.

Indian Summer Finally Catches Up With Us

Indian Summer has finally caught up with Eastern North Carolina.

It came quietly with its warm days and cool nights. No fanfare, no sharp whistle of wind and no far-off call of South-bound geese. It waited patiently for a premature cold spell to retreat to the highlands and sat out the six days of rain that gave everything about us a dull and listless look.

It slipped in quietly with its mysterious supply of red and yellow tints and tired green leaves and a magic awaker for the winter grass left from last spring. It moved softly through the woodlands by the river, shaking loose a few leaves to remind us that cold weather is merely biding its time.

Indian Summer was a hard thing to recognize at first. The squirrels knew it was here and promptly began to work their ways through the pecan trees. The rabbits, with their funny wrinkled noses working overtime, began to put on extra weight and heavier coats. The birds began to stir a little more often and gradually began to leave for warmer country.

Little boys were probably the first humans to realize its presence, discovering the pleasure in scuffing through fallen leaves. The man who works with the land was next, feeling the cool earth crumble beneath his footsteps and watching the plants in his field slowly wither away.

City folks were the last to realize the subtle changes in nature. All of a sudden, it seemed the smoke from the evening fires began to cling to the tree tops and the ground fog left a heavier coating of dew on automobiles.

Thanksgiving suddenly loomed just around the corner and casual thinking started spanning time to consider Christmas. Fuel supplies had to be measured and the weather-stripping around the doors had to be checked before cool air forced them to be closed in the late afternoon.

Indian Summer has finally caught up with us.

It came quietly . . . and the gentle change is a welcome one.

Don't Put Away Your Voting Pencil Yet

For Greenville voters 1956 has been about the most eventful election year in history. Not from the standpoint of hot campaigns and sharp issues, but from the standpoint of the number of times they have been called to the polls.

Tuesday was the fourth time so far this year that local voters have gone to the polls to cast their ballots. Before the month is over they'll be called to the polls again. After that, those who have voted in all five elections can sit back for a while content that they have discharged their civic duty of expressing their wishes at the ballot box.

In May there was the Democratic primary. Then came the special city referendum on bond issues for capital outlays and the straw vote on fluoridation. Next came the state-wide referendum on the Pearsall Plan. Tuesday it was the general election and on November 20 Greenville voters will have to go back to the polls to voice their opinion again on the city bond issues.

A good many citizens of the city probably feel like they've done enough voting for one year. Some of them may be reluctant to go back to the polls a fifth time, particularly since it is to decide a question most took for granted had already been decided. Nevertheless the forthcoming bond issue vote is of equal if not more importance than any other election held for Greenville citizens this year.

Commitments were made for spending some of the bond issue money before the technicality was discovered which makes necessary a second referendum on this question. If voters don't ratify the bond issues a second time the city will be taking a decided step backward.

So don't put that voting pencil away quite yet. You'll be needing it again two weeks from now.

Moonshiners Feel 'Hurt' By Critics

(Lynn Nisbet is still hospitalized by injuries received in a traffic accident. In his absence, today's guest columnist is Charles J. Parker, State Advertising Director.)

RALIGH—It's a dirty, low-down racket, but the moonshiners still. He wasn't talking politics but bemoaning a rumor abroad in the land that a North Carolina "first" is being adulterated with rubbing alcohol.

As to moonshining being a large and thriving North Carolina industry, he had no comment, but the Alcohol Tax Unit of the U. S. Treasury did give forth in Washington recently with figures indicating that the Tar Heel State leads in that industry, too.

As to cheap rubbing alcohol's boosting the moonshine kick, the man from the still was right—but up to a certain point only. That point ends at any number of places after the liquor leaves the still and before it reaches the human palate.

My investigation of the illicit liquor business, brought on by the yearnings of an ambitious and out-of-state magazine photographer to be escorted to a Great Smoky Mountain moonshine still, led me to a hot scent about something else various moonshiners may be putting into their product besides mountain dew. (No, I didn't find the photographable still out of capacity. The Yankee photographer had to content himself with the standard photo still set up to the rear of a lodge on the Blue Ridge Parkway. Just as many another has.)

KILLS SHEEP AND CATTLE—It's not that the moonshiners don't want to make good liquor, one who claims he's reformed told me. It's that constant harassment by revenuers; demand for the stuff outrunning supply, and the ever-increasing horde of "experts" among customers that forces them to relax their standards.

These experts probably are responsible for adulterating moonshine with more dangerous than the addition of rubbing alcohol, which takes place in distributive channels—not at the still. At the still, lyne, chlorine bleaches and red-stemmed ivy may be used to improve the bead.

Sheep and cattle have too much sense to imbibe lyne and chlorine, but every eye and then one feasts on red-stemmed ivy and dies.

Now any moonshine liquor "expert" thinks he can tell by shaking in the jar whether the stuff is pure and its approximate proof. If the liquor is clear and a flock of bubbles form when the jar is shaken, he says it's potable. If the bubbles, or beads, hang below the surface and rise only partly above it, he considers the liquor is high proof—maybe up to 120. If, however, the beads float, he sees it as evidence that the booze has already been heavily cut and the proof is 80 or less.

Theory is: the purer the liquor, the better the bead. Maybe so, but the reason moonshiners are adding lyne, chlorine and red-stemmed ivy is to make the beads.

IT'S BIG BUSINESS

You can buy white moonshine at the still for $3 a gallon. Even when retailed by the pint, the price is cheaper most of the time than legal (even the white lighting) pints introduced in ABC stores. That's one reason the industry is getting so big. Another is that moonshine is more available in some prohibition areas than bootlegged legal booze. That keeps demand outrunning supply, and is responsible for the rubbing alcohol story. Wholesalers get together and it looks like cutting. After they've made two gallons or so from the one gallon they got at the still, the retailers get their whack. Even if they use nothing deadlier than water, the product peddled by the boot-leggers is likely to be a very weak imitation of what came out of the still.

Not all those stills are back in mountain coves—not by any means. Rangers got one not long ago so close to the Blue Ridge Parkway—which nearly 5,000,000 people traveled this year—that its odor led them to it. The operators had surmounted another hazard—telltale smoke—by burning coke. They had a boiler so big, made out of oil drums welded together, that it looked like a sawmill. Reason they were so close to traffic was the same any industry seeks—transportation. They had this still rigged so that the liquor ran hot from the still right into a pickup truck backed off a side road!

Even greater accessibility, at accompanying greater jeopardy, is shown by setting up the stills outside the woods and mountains entirely. More and more are being captured in dwelling houses, some in towns, converted to factories for large-scale production and distribution in one unit.

Excursions to Atlanta are increasing after terms of Federal contracts. The United Press story, listing North Carolina as first in moonshining, reveals the ATTU agent made heavy hauls last month—276 stills and 167 moonshiners. This word will have the warden getting spare cells ready in the Atlanta pen, but it won't stop the moonshine industry. It has been thriving ever since the government started taxing the stuff.

Other Editors Are Saying.. Leaf Acreage And Pounding

(Goldsboro News-Argus) In the search for a formula to bring tobacco production in line with consumption, it has developed that reduction in leaf acreage is not a sufficient answer.

We have grown more tobacco per acre every time the acreage has been cut. Now we find ourselves with enough tobacco to supply present demands in full or more than two years if not a pound was raised in that time.

Last year the acreage was cut 12 percent. The poundage reduction, however, was only 7 percent.

Best authorities now say that tobacco must be reduced by 23 to 38 percent for the coming year. Washington must announce quotas by December 1.

We may see a combination of acreage cuts and spacing control limitations help solve our great problem. It is estimated that the 24-inch spacing with 4-foot rows would cut production an average of 10 percent from what we have now.

A side benefit of great importance would result from spacing limitations. It would restore North Carolina blue-cured tobacco to its favorite in the world for cigarettes. We by recent years have grown tobacco so thick to the acre that it has lost much of its distinctive qualities.

than 4 feet apart. This would eliminate the growing practice of more plants per acre to get more pounds regardless of quality. The Bright Leaf Warehouse Association executive committee puts the plan forward. H. D. Godfrey, state administrative officer of the ASC, says it might work.

The plan could be put in simply by changing the regulations of control as authorized by the Department of Agriculture. Such a spacing limitation is estimated to cut 10 percent from the average production of this year.

Even The Afterglow Is Great

From somewhere I'd been put under the impression that the mountains had "passed their peak" of autumnal coloring. Seems there had been an article or column that flatly bemoaned the Appalachians, always glorious in their colors of early fall, had briefly filled the horizon with riotous shades of red, yellow, green, brown, purple and green.

If what I saw last week was only the afterglow, then early October in the mountains is truly one of the Seven Wonders of the World.

My route was highway 421 out of Tennessee and into the northwest corner of Tarheella. The mists and haze of early morning had lifted, and the sun was shining bright and clear a few miles this side of Boone. Slopes were doused with colors . . . confused beyond belief. If it is true that the mountains' fall beauty had passed its peak, I don't think I missed anything. The senses can absorb just so much, and no more.

One other time I'd passed that way, but it was late at night and the scenic value of cliffs, rocks, hairpin turns and steep grades were purely negative. The aftermath of negotiating that mountainous route, I well remember, included sweating palms and a case of "nerves".

But last week, in daylight, it didn't look as bad as originally thought. True, there were some narrow stretches, with a center-line which made it "officially" a two-lane highway; but all in all the ride was enjoyable.

Most of my life has been spent in the "flatlands" of Florida or North Carolina, which probably explains an undue interest in hills and mountains. The urge to get out and climb a hill or mountain has, at times, been very strong. I understand that people who live in the hills are less enthusiastic.

The landmarks of home seemed unusually welcome to the returnee, and entering the city limits keyed even higher the anticipation of homecoming.

Travel is nice. The mountains are eye-filling and the seashore is eye-filling.

But they can't beat home. Home is soul-stirring.

Dictionary Of Charlestinese

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP)—Nothing makes an American feel more like a stranger in his own land than to strike up a conversation with a man from another part of the country—and suddenly realize he can't understand what the guy's saying.

A Texan driving through Brooklyn who stops and asks a native for directions can hardly believe his ears. Surely this must be a different language.

In a way it is. Brooklynese is one of many regional American languages. There are so many, in fact, that some bright publisher ought to come out with a verbal Baedeker that will guide the hapless tourist safely through all the strange accents of his homeland, from Maine French to Pennsylvania.

A step in this direction has just been taken by the Charleston (S.C.) News and Courier. It has just published a "Dictionary of Charlestinese," to help outsiders understand a form of English handed down since 1670 in the venerable port city which is to the old South roughly what mecca is to the Moslems.

Columnist Ashley Cooper, who compiled the dictionary, makes it clear that Charlestinese speak perfect English but many people from other sections do not.

That is why a Yankee visitor is completely lost when he hears a Charlestinese motorist ask,

"Cain I police pack hair? I'd pre-shade it"—and receive the courteous answer, "Course, rah chair."

But it's really simple, and anyone who had lived in Charleston only two generations would have no trouble understanding the exchange. The motorist asked, "Can I please park here. I'd appreciate it." And he was told "Certainly. Right here."

Here—skipping from A toward Z—are a few typical examples of Charlestinese and how they can be translated by the trained ear:

Abode—Wooden plank.

A boot—Approximately.

Balks—A container, such as a match balks.

Beater—Something to spread on bread.

Beckon—Meat from a pig, often eaten with aigs for brake-fuss.

Caller—Part of a shirt that goes around the neck.

Cane chew—Aren't you able to L. e. "Cane chew talk like a good Charlestinese?"

Condit—Impossible to accomplish.

Des Moines—They belong to me. They're mine.

Fan ella—The flavor of white ice cream.

Garner—A man who tends to flower heads.

Granite—"He was granite a pardon by the gov-ner."

Hail—The abode of interjectionists, some dandynecks and other evil spirits.

Harmony—Cooked grits.

Hominy—What number?

Ice cool—The institution of flower heads.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

FAITH CAN BE D'ROYED

A college teacher of religion was talking to his students. "It is not my function," he said, "to tell you what I believe to be the truth as regards religion or to help you in practical religious problems. I am here as a teacher simply to present to you what the thinkers of the centuries have believed and taught and written about religion. You will have to make up your minds as to what you think is false or true. I will give you what they have said against religion as well as what they have said for it. As for your practical problems, take them to a minister. I'm a teacher. I'm here to give you what people have thought about religion and what the religions have claimed for themselves. There's my responsibility ends."

But does it? This teacher had been conveying the impression all through his course that as a matter of fact a person cannot hold strong religious convictions and stay intellectually respectable—and this, quite a few millions of us would rise up and deny.

Teaching like that is readily ruining the faith of a lot of young people of college age today. It is utterly unnecessary, untrue, unethical, unbiblical and downright wretched. Students should hear both sides of the religious argument, but they should hear it presented by someone who himself has some worthwhile convictions.

Why Eden And Mollet Acted On Egypt

By RAY TUCKER WASHINGTON Domestic political considerations combine, with protection of what they regard as their vital foreign interests, to motivate Prime Minister Anthony Eden and Premier Guy Mollet in their armed invasion of Egypt, their affront to the United Nations and their defiance of the United States.

This is the semi-official Washington reaction to charges by London and Paris statesmen, as well as by their leading newspapers, that the Eisenhower-Dulles policies in the Middle East were largely responsible for the three-nation attack on Egypt.

Although conceding that Colonel Gamal Abdel Nasser had furnished provocation, the Administration refuses to regard the dictator's behavior as a justification for armed intervention. Nobody here believes that the Allied statesmen are so callous as to start a war simply for selfish reasons.

Eden and Mollet insist that Nasser's overall program jeopardizes their national interests, and "taken their" response to Truman's "police action" in Korea. Nevertheless, the overseas distraction may relieve political pressure against them at home.

It has forced France to grant independence to Morocco and Tunisia, with Algeria demand the same treatment. It has cost the lives of thousands of British and French soldiers and civilians.

Had the two leaders not teamed up with Israel against Egypt, the British Conservatives and French Socialists, in their respective parliaments, would have insisted upon firmer action. Had Eden and Mollet resisted these nationalistic and chauvinistic clamors, they might have been unseated in a no-confidence vote. They had to take a bold attitude on the foreign front.

EDEN, MOLLET AMAZED AT WORLD REACTION Politicians in all countries, including the United States, have sometimes resorted to an overseas adventure in order to bolster their sagging popularity at home. In this instance, however, the two men acted on several false assumptions, and they are amazed at the indignant reaction throughout the world. They never dreamed, according to diplomatic reports, that the United States and several commonwealth nations, as well as a 64-5 vote in the United Nations, would oppose and inferentially condemn their action.

DIPLOMATS BEWILDERED Eden's attitude bewilders world diplomats. In view of his contrary behavior during the 1956 crisis involving Italy and Ethiopia. When Mussolini was threatening invasion of Haile Selassie's tiny and defenseless kingdom, Eden demanded that the League of Nations impose sanctions against the dictator, depriving him of military supplies.

BRITISH PREMIER'S CHANGED ATTITUDE When Sir Samuel Hoare, then Foreign Secretary, and Pierre Laval of France agreed to partition Ethiopia in favor of Mussolini, Eden resigned in protest from the Cabinet and became a popular hero. He was praised by Winston Churchill, and the ensuing public reaction killed the proposed deal. Eden was then the champion of freedom of small nations from foreign domination and colonialism.

Billions To Spend By Teeners

By ELMER ROESSNER

The Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association has not kidnapped any advertising managers or advertising agency, but it is doing about everything else to get them to listen to results of a survey of the teen-age market.

The research was conducted by Eugene Gilbert & Co. and paid for by the bureau. A total of 4,940 teen-agers or college students. None of those interviewed were told who sponsored the inquiry.

As you may have guessed from the first sentence, newspapers made out very well. Seventy per cent said television was most entertaining, but 54 per cent said newspapers were most practical when compared with each other and radio and magazines. The survey also disclosed that among 12 and 14-year-olds, 53 per cent said television would be hardest to be without, while only 18 per cent so favored newspapers. However, among the 18-18 age group, only 18 per cent said television would be hardest to be without, while 39 per cent answered newspapers.

BILLIONS TO SPEND

Perhaps even more arresting is the amount of money teensters have to spend these days. If those polled were truly representative, the 16,000,000 boys between 13 and 19 have $9 billion a year to spend and, because of the growth of the population, the 600,000 teensters in 1965 will have at least $14 billion a year.

This money includes allowances, money from after-school jobs, from summer employment, and from full-time employment. Many of the teensters were married and working. In fact, 30 per cent of all first babies are born to mothers still in their teens.

The survey showed that 57 per cent of the boys buy their sports equipment with their own money; 40 per cent buy their own shirts and 38 per cent buy their own slacks. Among girls, 73 per cent buy their own lipstick, 33 per cent buy their own blouses, sweaters and skirts, and 31 per cent buy their own lingerie.

The survey also showed that teen-agers exert great influence when parents buy things for them, with 94 per cent selecting their own shoes, 90 per cent their own fountain pens, 70 per cent their own sports equipment, 55 per cent their own radios, and 38 per cent their own vacations.

MORE BILLIONS

The Bureau did not attempt to estimate the total amount parents spend for their children, nor how much of that total was influenced by teen-agers. Off the record, bureau merchandising experts say the latter figure may be another $9 billion.

Neither did the bureau try to guess the amount of parents' spending for themselves and their homes that is influenced by their children in their teens. It would be a very complicated and expensive project to get any valid estimate. However, anybody who has ever had teens around the house knows that their opinions are often determining factors in the choice of auto purchases, the type of furniture and furnishings selected, and size of the television set, the wallpaper pattern chosen and what the family will have for dinner. Some dictators dictate the type of clothing their mothers buy and not a few have helped widows or divorcees pick out their next husband.

What all this spending influence comes to in billions is conjectural. You make a guess. Nine 17 or 23 billion? Any answer may be right.

Teen-agers influence buying in other ways. The brands single or married persons buy in their 16th through 19th years are likely to be the brands they'll buy on through their 20's. And the brands they buy also may influence the decisions of their older friends and neighbors.

U. S. Urges Speed In Setting Up Middle East 'Police'

Pentagon Also Tells Defenders To Be Prepared

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States was reported urging all possible speed today in replacing British, French and Israeli forces in Egypt with peace-keeping troops under the flag of the United Nations.

The U.N. General Assembly voted last night to create an international emergency force for that purpose, and approved an order to "proceed with the full organization" of it. A dozen nations have offered troops.

Unless the switch can be made and the situation brought under control within a few days, official Washington believes there is grave danger of Soviet intervention with "volunteers" on the side of Egypt. This could prolong and spread the conflict, and increase the risk of a third world war.

President Eisenhower and his advisers don't believe the Soviet Union wants the kind of clash which would involve that country and the United States in a global H-bomb war.

But they see grave danger that limited fighting in the Middle East might set in motion forces that could go beyond the control of any government.

The Pentagon said U.S. armed forces have been cautioned to take "preparatory measures to increase the nation's defense readiness."

A spokesman for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in telling this to newsmen, said he wanted to put emphasis "on the word defense." He added that "we do not want to be caught flat-footed and at the same time we do not want to take any provocative action which would get us involved."

U.S. commanders at home and overseas have been kept advised of the world situation and given "guidance" in putting their forces in a state of readiness.

Some Navy ships, including the giant carrier Forrestal, were ordered to cancel a training maneuver and stay at sea off the East Coast. Similarly, the Strategic Air Command has changed or canceled training operations for the bomber fleet which normally would take planes from bases.

At San Diego, Calif., the Navy said ships based on the West Coast have been alerted to prepare for movement to the Western Pacific.

A Defense Department spokesman said also that there has been some "increasing in the readiness" of the Air Defense Command.

This tightening up of defenses has resulted in some scattered cases of leave cancellation for servicemen, but there has been no broad, over-all cancellation of all military leave.

The United States will take no direct part in the U.N. police action, but has volunteered to provide airlift and other transportation of forces to the area.

Officials here were cheered by a Canadian decision to provide a force of battalion strength. Canada also arranged to send the aircraft carrier Magnificent to serve as a floating base.

Eisenhower sent an urgent message to Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion asking him to abide by the United Nations cease-fire resolution and withdraw Israel's forces from Egypt's Sinai Peninsula.

Earlier in the day Ben-Gurion had announced that Israel was not prepared to let foreign forces take over the territory it held.

Some officials here speculate that if Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser believes he can get Soviet help in time and with sufficient force he will try to frustrate the U.N. plan. But if he fears the danger of too deep an involvement with the Soviets or feels that Egypt's interests would be safeguarded by the U.N., he may choose to cooperate.

ed that at the beginning of the epidemic, approximately $10,000 was in the Pitt Chapter treasury.

"We have already spent over half of that," said Rose, "and by the time we pay all our bills which we have committed ourselves for, we will be broke." Rose spoke of the great importance of the Polio Foundation and the March of Dimes which supports it.

After McGee answered questions from the floor, Rose had this to say concerning the Pitt Chapter: "We still have three patients in the Central Carolina Convalescence Hospital in Greensboro. Each one is costing the local chapter $535.20 a month. The amount which I gave you as being committed includes the payment of the hospital bill for two of these patients through the end of next month. We have no idea how much longer they will have to remain in the hospital and how much special treatment they are going to need when they get home.

"Thus for the first time in the history of the Pitt Chapter we find ourselves facing financial difficulties."

The records indicate that Pitt County victims who had had one or two shots of Salk vaccine suffered only from very light cases of non-paralytic polio. Most of the victims who received no shots at all were the paralytic cases.

After Rose spoke, the 40-odd people in attendance watched two movies. The first was about polio victims and how the polio centers helped to cure them. The theme of the second movie gave examples on the ways and means of raising money for the March of Dimes.

McGee then led a discussion in which representatives exchanged ideas on how money should be raised. The counties represented were Beaufort, Wilson, Greene, Craven, Lenoir, Edgecombe, Pamlico, Nash, Wayne, Pitt and the city of Rocky Mount.

One of several pamphlets distributed to the gathering said, in part: "In 1955—the year in which the Salk polio vaccine was given to the world by March of Dimes research—some 30,000 Americans were stricken with infantile paralysis. It was the eighth consecutive year of the worst polio epidemics of all times.

"Millions of children were protected through vaccine supplied by the March of Dimes. But, among the unprotected, polio still took its terrible toll.

Mayor W. L. Whedbee has proclaimed the Buddy Poppy Day and expressed the hope that everyone will wear a poppy on Saturday.

Mrs. H. L. Vincent has been appointed chairman of the sale. She expressed the hope that every citizen of the city and county will purchase a Buddy Poppy. She said that the number of calls upon the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Auxiliary for assistance is increasing each year. That means more funds are needed to give disabled and needy veterans and their dependents the assistance they need, she said.

She pointed out that most of the veteran's family without immediate income. Aid was given a veteran to enable him to continue his college work and the utility bill paid for another veteran. The Ladies Auxiliary has also remembered the wounded veterans in hospitals.

Polio Foundation representatives from ten Eastern North Carolina counties gathered here last night to discuss way and means for supporting the forthcoming March of Dimes campaign.

Jack McGee, Eastern N. C. District representative for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, spoke to the representatives concerning the National Foundation plans for the future and what they have done in the past with the money contributed through the March of Dimes. He also gave statistics on the Salk Vaccine.

McGee stated that "every person through the age of 35 should be inoculated the required three times," and pointed out that "no child who has received three shots has died from polio."

J. H. Rose, Pitt County Polio Foundation Chairman, who presided over the meeting, stated: "Pitt County has had 16 polio cases this year—on death—and for the first time in the history of our county we have had the paralytic polio." Rose further stat-

Marshall Fields Die In New York Hospital Today

NEW YORK (AP)—Marshall Field III, multimillionaire philanthropist and head of Field Enterprises, died today at New York Hospital. He was 63.

His wife Ruth was at his bedside. Field was taken to the hospital Oct. 21. The following day he underwent brain surgery. Until today he had been described as in fair condition.

Field inherited one of the world's greatest fortunes—in the neighborhood of 160 million dollars—from his merchant grandfather, founder of the Chicago department store bearing his name.

He couldn't jump clear and the car knocked him down, went on a 100 feet and hit a power pole.

Said Gundy to police: "I lay there wondering who that fool driver was. Then it dawned on me, it was my car!" Gundy, who was badly bruised, had parked his car on a hill. The brakes slipped.

During the business session reports were heard from a number of district chairmen including Clarke Stokes of Greenville, extension chairman; James E. Rodgers of Greenville, education chairman; and John Lautares of Greenville, chairman of the committee sponsoring the ECC-Richmond football game on November 17.

Reports on activities of individual clubs in the district were made by club presidents. The group voted to hold the third district meeting of the fiscal year in January in Jacksonville.

Warm Dice Gave Gamblers Away

BALTIMORE (AP)—The cops rang and rang that doorbell of the apartment on Myrtle Avenue in the early morning hours. No answer.

So they battered down the door. No answer. They battered down a vestibule door, but still no answer.

They found 14 persons kibitzing two checker games — apparently so engrossed they hadn't heard all that battering. On looking a little further, officers also found 10 sets of dice — still warm to the touch — behind a table. And some money here and there.

CONTRAST IN CLOTHES—A roadworker stops his drilling on London street long enough to eye model exhibiting a new opera cape decked elegantly with gold-threaded coronets.

Stevenson Begins New Life Of Peace, Privacy

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill. (AP)—For months, Adlai E. Stevenson could hardly utter a word without finding someone at his elbow, ready to write it down and report it.

For months, there was the prospect that he might become president — and the statements were regarded as important news.

No lemons of newsmen and photographers, no tangle of television camera cables awaited him as he returned late yesterday to his farm home near this Chicago suburb.

When the two-time loser in races for the presidency left his downtown Chicago hotel headquarters for the 40-mile trip, one newsmen, two photographers and a newsreel cameraman followed him.

At his farm home later only one newsmen kept vigil.

Lights were aglow as Stevenson entertained a few friends, without interruption.

Stevenson came out of the house in his movements, in the vigor of his voice, it seemed that he had forgotten Tuesday's defeat.

He and his friends drove away from the farm, the Democratic leader at the wheel of his car. The others piled into a limousine and two cars.

He drove fast through the countryside, to the nearby home of Mr. and Mrs. Edison Dick of Lake Forest for a small dinner party.

The defeated candidate plans to remain at his farm home to catch up on an accumulation of correspondence and make plans to return to his Chicago law practice.

His future political activities, as titular head of the Democratic party, will be disclosed in a statement he will make before the end of the week.

His news secretary Clayton Fritchey indicated to newsmen Stevenson might make a series of speeches to help pay off a Democratic party campaign deficit which likely will reach more than a million dollars.

After his defeat in 1952 and with the party more than $800,000 in the red, Stevenson made several speeches at party fund-raising dinners.

Kentucky Race Still In Doubt

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Republican Thruston B. Morton took the inside track today in a thrilling down-to-the-wire finish with Sen. Earle C. Clements, assistant Democratic floor leader, for a key U.S. Senate seat.

Morton's edge appeared enough to hand Clements his first defeat in 36 years of political life.

Returns from 3,800 of 4,057 precincts gave Morton 475,861 votes, Clements 473,218.

The race — last to be decided in Tuesday's voting — was punctuated with statements implying that each side suspected the other of irregularities.

Clements issued a statement saying: "I have been receiving reports from many counties of peculiarities in this election which make it most difficult to forecast what the vote pattern may be in the uncounted precincts."

Louie B. Nunn, Republican state campaign chairman, countered with the statement that: "We are likewise spending our time trying to find out what is going on in some counties."

Morton's struggle took some of the shine off of President Eisenhower's conclusive sweep of the state and the easy win of John Sherman Cooper in the other Senate race.

Eisenhower was far ahead of the ticket with 516,889 votes to 438,718 for Adlai Stevenson. Cooper, Somerset Republican, was 42,733 votes to the good over former Gov. Lawrence Wetherby.

The Democrats retained a 6-2 edge in the House delegation.

ARRESTING DEVELOPMENT—CLESTER, Okla., (AP)—A number of out-of-state motorists were arrested here during the annual state prison rodeo. They were charged with "leaving the city without visiting the world's largest inside-the-walls rodeo"—and given free tickets to the western event.

Issues Frayed By Long Controversy Awaiting New Congress In January

WASHINGTON (AP)—Issues frayed by long controversy await the new 85th Congress.

Domestic problems include federal aid for school construction, civil rights, farm and labor policies, and statehood for Hawaii and Alaska.

Democrats, who wrested control from the Republicans two years ago, again elected majorities to both branches of Congress Tuesday.

But the new Congress, like others in recent years, will be dominated by a Southern Democratic-Republican coalition and can be expected to steer a middle-of-the-road course.

President Eisenhower's influence with the lawmakers may be weakened by knowledge that the constitution bars him from running for re-election even if he wanted to. But an offsetting factor, at the outset at least, may be the size of his own election victory.

Eisenhower already has bid for renewed bipartisan support in the tense international situation by calling top congressional leaders to the White House tomorrow for a briefing on events in Eastern Europe and the Middle East.

Democrats, holding majorities in Senate and House, are in a position to name committee chairmen and to fill other leadership posts in the new Congress that will convene Jan. 3.

With six races still undecided, the Democrats had a 229-200 margin over the Republicans in the House.

The Senate was much closer, with the Democrats leading 49-46 in the decided contests and the Republican candidate leading in the one race still open—in Kentucky.

The Republicans conceivably could get the power to organize the Senate.

This is because Sen.-elect Frank J. Lausche of Ohio, a Democrat noted for independent ways, indicated last June that, if elected, he might vote with the Republicans under certain circumstances in the organization of the Senate.

He has not clarified his present stand, but said yesterday he was "American first and Democrat second."

With the division 49-47, his vote could be crucial since Vice President Nixon could break a 48-48 tie vote and turn the Senate reins over to the Republicans.

Once the legislators settle down to work, they are bound to come to grips again with the issue of federal aid for school construction to help the states overcome the present classroom shortage.

At the last session, federal aid legislation bogged down in a welter of controversy over the Supreme Court's school desegregation decision and the method of apportioning funds.

In the election campaign, Democrats and Republicans blamed each other for defeat of the school bill in the House. Both parties promised to push new legislation in the coming congressional session.

Another source of controversy is an administration bill to provide greater protection for voting privileges and other civil rights and to create a civil rights division in the Justice Department and a presidential commission to investigate civil rights complaints.

The bill passed the House in the last session but was locked tightly in the Senate Judiciary Committee headed by Sen. Eastland (D-Miss.), a foe of civil rights legislation.

Renewed efforts to revise or repeal the Taft-Hartley Labor Relations Act are in prospect, but just how far they will get is questionable.

The Democrats' campaign pledge to restore rigid, high-level farm price supports and to take other steps to bolster sagging farm income failed to have the voter appeal they had hoped, but they may renew the battle in the new Congress.

Another well-worn issue confronting the new Congress will be statehood for the territories of Hawaii and Alaska. The Republicans as well as the Democrats, are now pledged to immediate statehood for both, although the GOP platform declares that in granting statehood to Alaska, adequate provision must be made for defense requirements.

RUSSIA LIKED IKE
RUSSIA, Ohio (AP)—Russia liked Ike — Russia, Ohio, that is. This tiny town in Shelby County gave President Eisenhower 246 votes to 156 for Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson in Tuesday's election. Russia normally is Democratic.

Javits Has The Background For Politics In N. Y.

By ARTHUR W. EVERETT
NEW YORK (AP)—To a Manhattan politician, being born on the lower East Side is the big city equivalent of being born in a log cabin. It typifies the American tradition of a gallant rise from a modest beginning.

Jacob Koppel Javits, 52, New York's new senator-elect, has just such a politically classic background. He defeated Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner Tuesday by 50,000 votes.

Javits, whom everyone calls "Jack," was educated in New York's public schools. He went to Columbia University night school and New York University Law School. He was admitted to law practice in 1927.

During World War II, he was assistant to the chief of operations of the Chemical Warfare Service in the European and Pacific theaters. He came out a lieutenant colonel.

As a Republican with Liberal party backing, he was elected to the first of four terms in Congress in 1946.

In 1951 he reluctantly ran on the GOP ticket for president of the New York City Council and lost. In 1953 he sought coalition backing for mayor but didn't get it.

In 1954, he was the only Republican to win on a statewide ticket. He defeated Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. for attorney general by 176,000 votes.

Before tackling Wagner — another of New York's famous sons of a famous father — Javits cleared himself of rumors that he dealt with Communists when he first ran for Congress.

Wagner, whose father was a noted New Deal Senator, did not question Javits' loyalty throughout the campaign.

Javits is Jewish. Wagner is a Roman Catholic. Yet it was Wagner who strongly espoused the cause of Israel in the closing days of the campaign. Javits stood with the Eisenhower administration's opposition to the Israeli march into Egypt. For that he was booed several times — which he said he found hard to take.

Javits, short and bald, succeeds Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, a Democrat, who in retiring attempted to hand-pick Wagner as his successor.

The new senator, married to an attractive dark-haired woman 20 years his junior, has three children, a son, Joshua, 6, and two daughters, Joy, 8, and Carla, 1.

Dr. Messick To Attend Regional Educators' Meet

President John D. Messick of East Carolina College will attend in New York City Sunday and Monday, November 11 and 12, a regional meeting of educators who are now working on a project in personal and family living sponsored by the American Social Hygiene Association.

Dr. Messick heads the project in the area including North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

The project, begun in 1955 and now being carried out in all parts of the United States, is designed to aid colleges and universities in preparing elementary and high school teachers to help children cope with problems of personal and family living.

The American Social Hygiene Association is financing the project. College presidents and professors, deans of education, and state education officers are participating.

Will Represent ECC At Meeting In Winston-Salem

East Carolina College is represented at a meeting of the North Carolina College Conference meeting in Winston-Salem Thursday and Friday of this week, by Vice President and Dean of Instruction Leo W. Jenkins; Dr. E. R. Browning, director of the department of business education; and Dr. A. D. Frank, director of the department of social studies.

The conference is an organization of administrators and other representatives of colleges and universities in North Carolina. Its purpose is to provide opportunity for discussion of problems common to these institutions and pertinent to higher education in the state.

Dr. Jenkins is a member of the committee on collaboration with the State Department of Public Instruction; Dr. Browning, of the committee on research; and Dr. Frank, of the standards committee.

"All right, recommend something else for my preacher," the woman said. "I'll take this myself."

Here you see a brand-new kind of styling . . . sweeping low in the sports-car tradition . . . yet wondrously roomier on the inside for six full-sized passengers. Here you will find a new Variable Pitch Dynaflow . . . instant Dynaflow . . . so utterly smooth and quickly obedient in its response . . . so flexible in its power delivery to the rear wheels . . . it extends the "drive" range beyond anything you have known before in an automatic transmission. Pacing this new Dynaflow is a completely new 300 horse power V8 engine . . . redesigned from the crankshaft up to bring you the mightiest power in all Buick annals and a record high compression to match. So look to your heart's content at the 1957 Buick . . . then accept our cordial invitation to drive the newest and most thrilling Buick yet.

Mr. M. F. Jolly, Greenville Tobacconist, bought the first Buick ever sold by Folger Buick Company in October 1936. He also bought a 1946 model Buick, the first sold in Greenville following World War II. In the picture above, Mr. Jolly is shown with Mr. Lee Folger, owner of Folger Buick Co., displaying his new 1956 Roadmaster Riviera Sedan with air conditioning. On the right is Mr. Jolly's first Buick, a 1936 model.

Vote Shows U. S. Likes Ike But Prefers Demo Party

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — What the elections proved seems simple enough, although men who make a living analyzing voting habits will come up with plenty of psychological jargon and seeming profundities.

The voters liked President Eisenhower far more than they did Adlai Stevenson, and more than they liked the Republican party. Otherwise they couldn't see much difference between Democrats and Republicans.

The evidence is plain enough: Eisenhower won overwhelmingly, but his Republicans were beaten by the Democrats for control of Congress. The Democrats won by only the tiniest margin, capturing just enough of the 531 seats to take charge.

Nevertheless, the voters have been showing a preference for the Democrats as a party. They elected a Republican Congress with Eisenhower in 1952 but in 1954 and again this year gave the Democrats control.

The Democrats and Republicans — as parties — are almost identical. Both stand for moderate extensions of the New Deal and Fair Deal. Beyond that they don't go.

The Republicans, after years of criticizing many of the social measures of Presidents Roosevelt and Truman, took them over lock, stock and barrel although they don't like to acknowledge it.

Republican adoption of the Roosevelt-Truman programs means they have caught up with the clock. The New and Fair Deal reforms have become part of the basic fabric of American life.

For their part, the Democrats have moved neither left nor right, as a party. They're right in the middle. The Republicans used to scream the Democrats were socializing the country, but the New and Fair Deal reforms were not radical. The proof is their acceptance by such middle-of-the-road Republicans as Eisenhower.

Neither Democrats nor Republicans now are calling for wide reforms, as the Democrats did in depression days. The reason for that is simple enough too: the country is prosperous and is not expecting or demanding startling changes.

Because Democrats and Republicans are both moderate as parties. Both Democrats and Republicans have right and liberal wings, and both have large conservative center groups.

If anyone doubts the similarities between the two parties, all he has to do is read their campaign platforms and analyze the programs proposed by both Eisenhower and Stevenson during the campaign.

This similarity between the parties can be expected to continue until the country undergoes some deep economic change or until the world position deteriorates badly. Then new forces will form within the country, new needs arise.

Advise Stronger Tobacco Control

RALEIGH (AP) — A special State Grange tobacco committee agrees the tobacco production control program needs to be strengthened.

But, it indicated yesterday, it prefers that any necessary change be made within the framework of the present law.

The committee called for the U. S. Department of Agriculture to look into the matter and come up with the answers by next Thursday. That's when a five-state meeting will be held here to discuss the 1957 flue-cured tobacco quota.

The nine-man committee requested that USDA experts determine whether present legislation permits adding poundage, spacing or combined poundage, and spacing controls to the acreage allotments already in effect.

The committee also recommended that the price support schedule by grades be adjusted so as to more nearly reflect market demand.

Asked that USDA's tobacco inspection service recognize the importance of flavor and aroma and take steps to reflect these factors in the grading program as far as possible.

Requested that USDA initiate steps to strengthen the inspection service in this regard.

And asked that the price support schedule be announced at the same time as allotments, and that the announced schedule be followed.

College Officials Gather Today

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP) — More than 300 college officials gathered today for the opening of the annual North Carolina College Conference, one of three educational meetings underway here.

The conference is composed of 32 senior colleges and 10 junior colleges in the state. Those attending included presidents, deans and other officials.

Many of these also were attending the 33rd annual meeting of the North Carolina Assn. of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers which opened yesterday and the North Carolina Conference of Church Related Colleges which opened today.

Roy W. Armstrong, director of admissions at the University of North Carolina, told the registrars yesterday that a new university testing program is aimed at finding outstanding students.

Doubts Evasion Can Be Approved

DURHAM (AP) — Dr. Douglas B. Maggs, professor of constitutional law at Duke University, says in his opinion devices by states to evade the U. S. Supreme Court decisions outlawing segregation will eventually be held invalid by the court.

Maggs told a group of graduate students last night that North Carolina might have been induced to accept the Supreme Court's desegregation decision if the state's political leaders had adopted a different approach.

Maggs said the decisions have

RUNNING AGAINST THE YELLOW JACKETS—When Greenville takes to the field Friday night in their final game of the season against Roanoke Rapids, these three young men will be expected to direct a strong ground attack against the invaders. Mack Roebuck (left), junior quarterback will call signals, run and possibly pass. Robert Howell (center) will run at one of the halfback slots. All-Conference Billy Sermons (right) will run from fullback in both the Phantom straight T and double wing formations. (Reflector Photos by Billy Arnold).

Phantoms Expected To Use Ground Attack In Roanoke Rapids Game

Greenville's Phantoms getting set for their final game of the 1956 season, have been going through a rugged procedure on the practice field this week. Roanoke Rapids, a team with a record identical to that of the G-Men (2-6), is favored by six points in the Friday night North-eastern Conference battle. Coach Guy Lewis has been polishing up the Phantom running offense and defense in a last-ditch effort to better the 2-6 mark in this final week of the campaign.

Hornung May Be Shifted Around

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Paul Hornung, Notre Dame's star quarterback, might not be at his favorite position Saturday when the Irish meet Pitt but "he'll play somewhere." Coach Terry Brennan last night spiked reports that Hornung would make only a token appearance against the Panthers because of an injured thumb.

Ayden To Meet Wendell In Class 'A' Playoff Tilt

By BILLY ARNOLD AYDEN — Ayden's undefeated, untied and unscored-upon Coastal Conference Champion gridders are putting the final touches on their offense and defense today, in preparation for the district Class A playoff against Wendell, Friday night.

he hadn't been around." Baker has broken away for eight running touchdowns and has passed for six or seven more. Five of his scoring jaunts were over 70 yards and three came on kickoff returns. On defense, a 20 pound tackle, Marshall Raper, is expected to be the Wendell leader. He switches to fullback on offense. Reports have it that Raper is injured, however, and may see only limited action at Farmville.

Injuries Piling Up In Southern Football Camps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Southern Conference football teams currently are having more than their share of injuries.

Nearly every club has one or more injured players. Three teams yesterday lost players for the remainder of the season. Virginia Military Institute, preparing for Saturday's big test with league-leading West Virginia at Morgantown, W. Va., lost the services of tackle Bobby Dale, a 205-pound sophomore, because of a dislocated elbow.

ACC Scorers To Have A Field Day

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Two pairs of high-speed halfbacks could turn the North Carolina State-South Carolina Atlantic Coast Conference football game into a wide open scoring spree Saturday.

Leading the South Carolina ground game are two sophomore halfbacks, King Dixon and Alex Hawkins, who between them have gained 998 yards on total offense in the Gamecocks' seven games and scored 56 of the team's 93 yards.

with Coach Tommy Mont afraid of more injuries. The Terps, winners of only one game this season, have used a different starting backfield in each of their seven games.

Pass defense came in for attention at Duke which faces a strong Navy team Saturday in the Blue Devils' final home game. Navy says its team came of age last week in drubbing Notre Dame while Duke says the same thing of the Blue Devils' 7-0 loss to powerful Georgia Tech last Saturday.

Wake Forest was warned yesterday that it will face a club of strong runners in VPI Saturday. Coach Paul Amen, who praised the Gobblers' hard running backs, worked on defenses before stressing passing in offensive drills.

Whites Defeat Golds By 12-6

Tuesday afternoon, the Whites battled to a 2-6 victory over the Golds in a midweek football contest. The Whites scored early in the first quarter on a one-yard plunge by Alan McArthur. It came after a 40-yard march.

The Whites scored again in the third period on a pass from McArthur to Leo Starling. In the fourth quarter, the Golds began a march to their only touchdown. A pass from Kroghle Andresen to Billy James carried for 15 yards and a first down. Andresen scored on a one-yard plunge.

PRO BASEKTBALL (NBA) THURSDAY'S GAMES No games scheduled. WEDNESDAY'S RESULTS Rochester 81, Philadelphia 80. St. Louis 107, New York 101. FRIDAY'S SCHEDULE Rochester at Philadelphia

Ground Battle

Ayden's Tornados are expected to launch a ground attack and stick to it throughout the game. Most of their scores have been made on a strong running attack that features Tommy Edwards, Lindy Dunn, R. L. Collins and Hal Worthington. Not a team to be typed however, Ayden is capable of an air game, with Dunn doing the throwing honors.

With an offensive and defensive strength that could not be touched in the Class A circles of this area, the Tornados roared through a five-game Coastal league schedule, this season, downing five teams. The A-Men racked up a total of 2 points while holding their opponents to 0. On an overall angle, they posted an impressive slate, losing only to Tarboro and Williamson.

Tennessee-Tech Tilt To Feature Runners

By MERCER BAILEY ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Tech and Tennessee, two of the nation's finest teams, will play a game of football showdown Saturday. The visiting Vols have a pair of aces to throw against Tech's fullhouse backfield.

The stakes are high. The coach who holds the winning hand will pull in a pot containing huge dividends in national prestige, possession of first place in the Southeastern Conference title race, and an almost certain bowl bid. And remain unbeaten.

The coaches, Bobby Dodd of Tech's second-ranked Yellow Jackets and Bowden Wyatt of Tennessee's third-ranked Vols, learned their football under the old master, Gen. Bob Neyland. Both are expected to emphasize punting, quick kicks and defensive measures.

Both teams have such great scoring potential that a couple of bounces of the ball early in the game could turn it into a wide-open offensive show. Tennessee's devastating single wing attack is built around its tailbacks — All American prospect Johnny Majors and his fine understudy, Al Carter. Together they have averaged 157 yards a game, passing and running, netting 5.7 yards per play and scoring 66 points.

Fullback Ken Owen is Tech's top yardage man with 284 yards, all on the ground. But the Jackets boast seven backs with more than 150 yards to their credit. Injuries, however, could keep some of them on the bench.

"We probably won't know until Saturday whether Dickie Mattison and Stan Flowers will be able to play," Dodd said. Mattison, who scored the only touchdown of the Duke game, injured a knee against the Blue Devils. Flowers, a big boy with lots of speed, is nursing an ankle which kept him on the sidelines last week.

Statistically, the Vols own a slight edge on offense but Tech holds the upper hand on defensive tactics. Tech has allowed its six opponents only 27 points this season.

The Keydets also may have to play Saturday's game without guard and Co-Captain Carl Lebourdais, who remained in the training room with an ankle injury. Otherwise, the VMI squad was in good shape for the West Virginians.

William and Mary's Indians, who journey to Army Saturday, will have to get along the remainder of the campaign without substitute quarterback Bob Thomas, who has a chipped vertebra. Four others may not play against Army, including fullback Brown Oliver, quarterback Tom Secules and ends Walt Brodie and Ed Brusko. Star halfback Charlie Sidwell likely will see only limited action.

Fullback Don Comer of Davidson, like Dale and Thomas, is lost for the final games. Davidson Coach Bill Doie hasn't decided who will fill Comer's shoes Saturday night when the Wildcats go to Wofford.

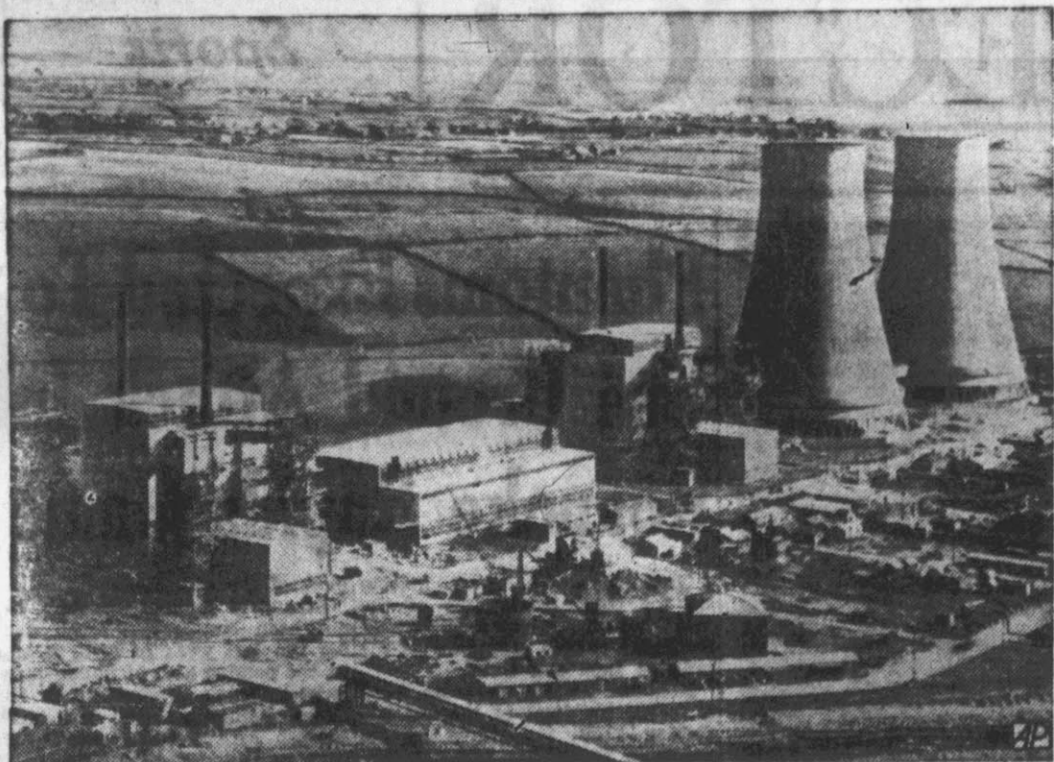

Virginia Tech's Bobby Wolfenden, the Gobblers' No. 1 halfback, isn't expected to do more than the kicking chores Saturday against Wake Forest at Blacksburg, a.

Tech scrimmaged hard yesterday for the second straight day. Richmond Coach Ed Merrick figures his Spiders must score five times if they beat George Washington Friday night in Washington.

Talk On Canada For Historical Society

By TABITHA M. DEVISCONTI
Dr. Kathleen E. Stokes, teacher of history and government at East Carolina College, was guest speaker at the dinner meeting of the Pitt County Historical Society last Thursday night.

Program Chairman Miss Jesse Rountree Moyer presented the speaker.
Dr. Stokes subject was "Our Relations With Canada." She said the French settled in Canada in 1604. The church followed the flag into the new France. The Indian Alliance had a marked influence upon Canadian history and contributed directly to the eventual loss of French Canada to the English.

The Seven Years' War (1756-63) was fought with greater severity than any of the three previous wars and was a supreme disaster to the French interests on the American continent. The treaty that closed the war brought the French in Canada under the government of their traditional enemies. For years the belief was held in England that the expected flood of Englishmen in Canada would soon make the whole population British, but this hope was not realized.

The great mass of French people insisted that the old mode of life should not be disturbed and in 1774 the British Parliament passed the Quebec Act which gave the formal recognition to the old French civil laws and to the Roman Catholic freedom of worship. This explains why the province of Quebec to this day remains largely New France, with more than one-half of the people speaking French.

Dr. Stokes reviewed the horrible massacres in the New England States, in the struggles of Great Britain and France for supremacy for maritime and colonial powers; the War of Napoleon; War of 1812;

Reciprocity Act; the Civil War and Reconstruction Days for the South. She stated that Secretary of State Seward, said in 1867, he knew all the 36 states would soon be within the magic circle of the American Union.

Dr. Stokes said in concluding, the United States and Canada have remained friends and so good neighbors that in case of an attack Canada would warn us and from her we could secure needed war materials.

Judge C. V. Cannon, president presided. Kinchen W. Cobb asked the blessing and Tabitha M. Devisconti suggested that the group go on tours of historical interest and name some old homes and churches in Pitt County. Mrs. Chester Walsh recommended that the society meet with other Historical societies.

Miss Jesse R. Moyer, membership chairman, gave plans for an important objective at the present time and told of her search for the grave this summer, at Fort Macon of John Charles Rountree Brown, the first soldier killed in North Carolina during the Civil War. She thinks his grave has been covered by sand or brush, and hopes to locate it, so it can be marked.

J. L. Jackson moved that all members locate pictures of homes, churches and other historic buildings. This was seconded by Mrs. J.H.B. Moore, Davis McWhorter, and Mrs. J. L. Fleming, Mrs. C. R. Townsend, Mrs. Laurie Ellis, Mrs. J. Paul Davenport, and Mrs. Kinchen Cobb were appointed by the president to this committee.

A picture of the first school house where Mrs. Polly Smith taught was exhibited.

Dr. Paul Murray told the recent North Carolina History written by Hugh T. Lefler and suggested that the volumes would be wonderful gifts to libraries—city or College.

J. I. Jackson said as soon as he gets his historical material assembled he will turn it over for publication to the society.
Mrs. Kinchen W. Cobb, of Greenville, and Miss Lotte E. Ellis, of Winterville were welcomed as new members.

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — John Bauer was showing passengers how another one of his passengers had been injured earlier in his elevator.
Bauer stuck his foot between the doors. But the demonstration went further than he had intended.
The doors closed on his foot and the elevator started upward. Before it could be stopped, Bauer's foot had been scraped against the wall of the elevator shaft — just like his passenger's had been.

Sees Third-Rate Writing Offered
KENT, Ohio (AP) — Teen-age reading interest is low because writers for this audience are producing third-rate material, says the executive director of the Library Club of America.
Frank G. Jennings told a Kent State University workshop on English and reading instruction that both teen-age fiction and classroom texts were at fault.
"Writers for teen-agers neither respect their intelligence nor recognize that they are on the verge of adulthood," Jennings asserted.

Basketball Time At Hand Over County

By ANNETTE HUDSON
Stokes-Factious Reporter

We are about to approach that fascinating time again, Ball Season! Our players played their first game of the season Friday night, November 2, with Jamesville. The girls lost much to our sorrow, but the boys won.

ANNETTE

Most of the first year typing students are having a hard time getting their budgets typed and handed in by the end of the week.

Mrs. Adams and her first grade have a nice time in the mornings watching "Romper Room" on television.

All group pictures and senior superlatives were made Friday, November 2. The pictures were taken in familiar surroundings in and around the school.

Nannette Whitehurst and Lois Ann Briley attended the State F. T. A. Convention at Chapel Hill on Saturday, November 3. The main purpose of this convention was to elect officers for the coming year. Mrs. Elsie Lewis, Senior Advisor, attended this meeting with the two girls.

See you next week.

Fish 'Delousing Trait' Related

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — A marine biologist says his undersea observation suggests that big fish may have regular "delousing stations" — points to which they come to have little fish and shrimp eat the parasites clinging to them.

Conrad Limbaugh of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography made the observations skin diving with oxygen equipment. He said he got so he could recognize individual fish returning to be cleaned. "The big fish go into a sort of stupor," he said. "Then the cleaners work them over. I have even seen little fish go into the open mouths and gills of the big fish in the process."

Too Honest For Driving Mother

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A Lincoln other had cause recently to wish she had reared a less frank and forthright son.

The mother was explaining to police the circumstances of an auto accident in which she was involved when her 12-year-old boy piped up:

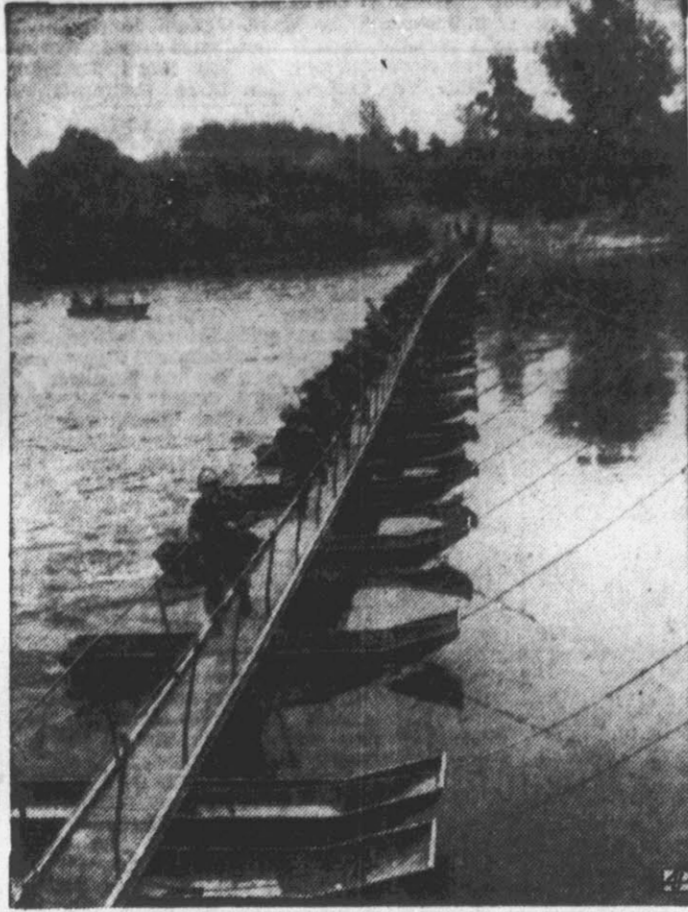

"It was really your fault, Mom. He (the other driver) was coming real slow."

The mother drew a ticket for failing to yield the right-of-way.

TANTRUM TROUBLES

WINNIPEG (AP)—If your wife gets your goat, don't kick the furniture, advises a local husband. He kicked at a glass door of a cupboard during a dispute with his wife, and then was taken to a hospital to have a sliver of glass removed from his foot.

British railways will book trains "for ladies only" to accommodate women's clubs on group outings.

ON THE MOVE — Engineer trainees of new West German Army run across pontoon bridge thrown across Danube River near Ingolstadt, Bavaria. Bridge was erected in 12 minutes.

Child-Beater Lost Out In High Court Appeal

RALEIGH (AP) — A Kinston man sentenced to 8 to 10 years in prison for beating his three-year-old step-daughter lost out in his appeal to the State Supreme Court yesterday.

But the child's mother, who had been given a 5-8 year sentence, won a new trial.

The high court found no error in the appeal of William D. Cauley, sentenced in Lenoir Superior Court last August. His wife, Dorothy Heath Cauley, was granted a new trial on a technical error.

In the couple's trial, a neighbor testified she heard little Dorothy Diane Heath being whipped almost constantly between 10:00 p. m. and 6:00 a. m. last June 27.

The witness said the child cried. Cauley cursed, "I ought to cut your G— D— head off," and Mrs. Cauley was "cursing and laughing."

Cauley was charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. His wife was charged with aiding and abetting.

There were two dissents in the case. Associate Justices William H. Bobbitt and Carlisle Higgins held both the defendants should get new trials. They contended that intent to injure is not the same as intent to kill.

Following the night beating, the child was taken to a hospital in a critical condition where doctors said they were told the little girl had fallen from a moving automobile.

One doctor, W. E. Kietzer, said, "I have never seen anything like it."

He said the injuries could not have resulted from falling from a car. He said the girl had "bruises from the top of her scalp to the bottom of her feet."

The eyeballs had hemorrhaged in the white of the eye; the connection between the upper lip and the gum was broken.

Newest Buick Yet

You know all that talk you've been hearing about the 1957 new car models being really new?

Well, in the case of the 1957 Buicks it's true — gospel true.

We mean these 1957 Buicks are new in the precise and literal sense. We mean new from the ground up, and from gleaming grille to sassy taillights.

We mean new lowness, new styling, new bodies, new windshields, new controls, new safety-padded instrument panels, new safety steering wheels, new seating, new fabrics, new colors.

We mean new front end, new rear end, new frame, new braking, new steering, new handling, new riding, new roadability — a whole new chassis of greater solidity and safety.

We mean V8 engines new from the crankshaft up — engines that deliver an all-time high in horsepower and compression from their 364-cubic-inch displacement.

And we mean, most of all, an advanced new Variable Pitch Dynaflow* — so instant in the starting range — so utterly smooth and so totally full-range in "Drive" — that your need for "Low" is practically eliminated.

So come take in these low-silhouette, these boldly beautiful, these instantly obedient Buicks for 1957.

Then you'll see why you can't blame us for being so fired up about it all — and how catching this excitement can be.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflow is the only Dynaflow Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century — optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

If there's such a thing as love at first sight, the appearance of a house should have a lot to do with its value. It might be wise, whether you are building or remodeling, to make your house look sturdy. Lots of people are sensible enough to take exterior appearances seriously.

Various building materials add a look of solidity to a house and happily they also add a certain amount of insulation, permanence and ease of maintenance. One of the most popularly used is Western red cedar in the form of shingles and shakes.

'Painless' Way Of Living It Up Now Accepted

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Living it up painlessly is the goal today of an increasing number of Americans. First Uncle Sam gave a helping hand. Now it's the banks, although mostly with reluctance.

For some time living it up has been an American habit — meaning living up the current and expected income by budgeting it carefully and prearranging it on the installment plan. For most this means determining over just how many different weekly or monthly payments the paycheck will stretch. For the cautious it also means leaving a few dollars leeway for emergencies.

Painless dentistry has entered this way of life increasingly of late. This consists in essence of making the payments as nearly unnoticed as possible — by having them extracted either from the paycheck itself or by prearranged bank payments without troubling the debtor.

Uncle Sam gave the movement its first big boost when he had employers deduct income tax and Social Security payments from paychecks. As one result, many persons know only vaguely what percentage of their income goes for taxes.

Many other deductions can be made. You can arrange similarly for payment of union dues, contributions to pension programs and purchase of savings bonds or of stock in the company where you work.

You never get your hands on the total amount you're told your employer is paying you — or, to put in the terms in which management sees it, on the amount it costs the company to have you around.

Accustomed to this, many Americans began budgeting to see just how many payments the remaining income would cover. Their standard of living is now determined not so much by what the wage earner makes but by how much he dares to owe.

This policy is popular because for many families it has worked well. It is popular with manufacturers because it is the way that the most goods with high price tags can be sold. And this is a way of life that is widely credited with bringing American industrialism to its present high state of prosperity.

The one painful thing has been the relentless arrival of the periodic payment time. The remedy now catching on is to arrange with the company you owe and with your bank for regular and automatic prepayment. This pre-authorized check plan has been tried for paying such regularly recurring items as insurance premiums and utility bills.

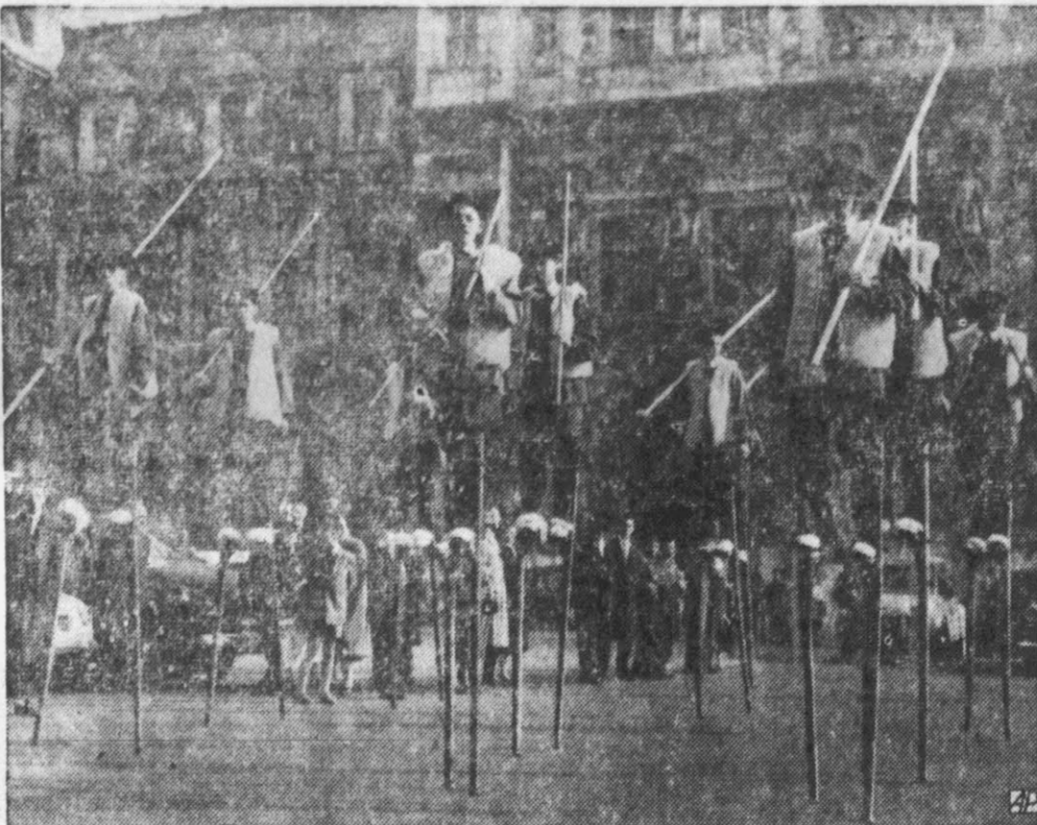

Jets Speed Up Supply System

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Uncle Sam's Air Force has streamlined its supply requisition system to keep pace with the jet age.

Requisitions from overseas bases to domestic supply depots can now be processed in minutes, compared to 15 days, when the mails were used.

The speedup comes from the installation of a central transceiver station here which is a communications hub linking the Air Force's foreign and home bases and depots via radio and telephone circuits.

About 98 per cent of all Air Force supply requisitions both from overseas and within the United States eventually will be handled here by 20 transceivers and 40 employees who man the sta-

Thorough Job Done By Radio Coverage

NEW YORK (AP)—The events of the past 10 days will not be forgotten quickly in the course of world affairs. The medium of television has covered them adequately, but without distinction. Radio has done a more thorough job.

Some television executives, questioned as to whether they view their medium as primarily one of entertainment, have replied that its function is both to entertain and to inform. They believe that TV has been fulfilling its function of informing the public during these recent days.

That it was not first pointed out by Jack Gould, the television critic of the New York Times, who hit the major networks hard because they did not give thorough coverage to early sessions of the United Nations Security Council on the Suez crisis.

The view of the networks was expressed by John Daly, vice president in charge of news and public affairs for ABC, who said that the debate, in fairness to both sides, would have had to be carried in its entirety or not at all. He cited the uncertainty of council session scheduling, the stultifying effect of triple translation, and the involved parliamentary character of the debate itself, as elements which—in effect—made for poor, or at least undramatic, TV programming.

Since last week the TV networks, especially NBC and CBS, have intensified their U.N. coverage. But they have not approached the U.N. coverage accomplished by radio.

The reason for this is obvious. Network television is sponsored; to cut off scheduled sponsored programs means big financial sacrifices. Network radio is sponsor-poor; to switch to the U.N. headquarters is free, heaven-sent programming.

The situation is a classical example of the perpetual struggle between idealism and pragmatism in television programming. The idealists attack and the pragmatists give a little.

Music Insures Contented Birds

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — Glenn and Jerome Byron, who are raising 10,000 turkeys on a ranch near here, found a way to keep the excitable birds contented. They have placed loudspeakers around the ranch and pipe in soothing music.

When there's a storm brewing, or a wolf howl upset the birds, one of the Byrons steps to the microphone and quietly talks the turkeys into relaxing.

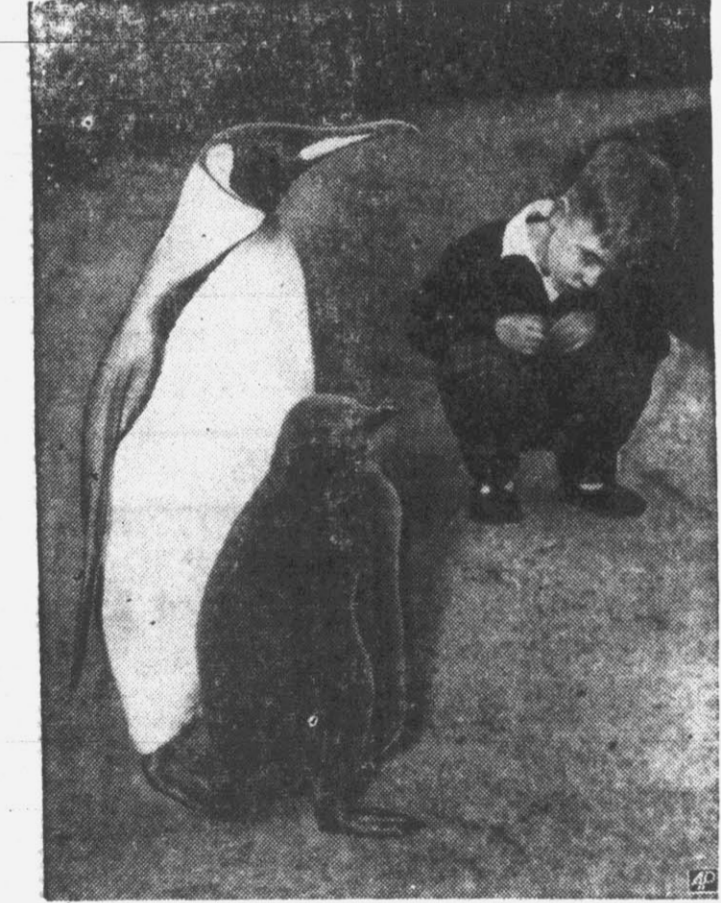

It used to be considered redundant to say "hand-split shakes," because all shakes were hand-split. But you can get shakes today that are machine processed. These have neatly sluted surfaces, even edges producing straight lines and imperceptible joints, and when laid double-coursed they cast attractive shadow lines.

The advantage of double coursing is that you can use shingles of a low grade for the under course because they are completely covered. Either hand-split or machine made shakes of red cedar can be used without any stain or paint, because this wood is famous for its durability. The natural oil in this wood makes it highly resistant to decay and so it needs no further protection. The Western Pine Assn., which embraces red cedar forests, says you can let this wood weather "to a slight driftwood gray with a silvery sheen," but we'd suggest a close check on the missus if you want to dodge a paint job.

Painting or staining cedar shakes, however, is very simple because the wood is so free of pitch. A specialist in shakes and shingles — Robert E. Blank of River Edge, N.J. — was discussing this aspect the other day. As head of the National Building Materials Co., Blank said he is making it a practice to ship all shingles and shakes already primed.

"So many people want to paint shingles," he said, "that 90 per cent of all shingles used today are primed. This speeds a good paint job and builders have fewer complaints from their buyers."

Personally, Blank is a handsplitter. "The trend in modern

Ready To Launch Giant Missile

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The builder of the Air Force's Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile said today locations in southern California and Florida were being made ready for initial launching tests. Convair Division of General Dynamics Corp. said a facility here, where the missile's rocket engines will be given short trials, is expected to go into operation in the immediate future. The engines and other units will be given further tests at Edwards Air Force Base in the Mojave Desert before the initial launching from Patrick Air Force Base, Fla. From there, the missile will be fired at a target far in the South Pacific. It is designed for flight across oceans and continents. It could carry a nuclear or other bomb against an enemy. Convair said that it was also combining "research and development leading toward space travel" with the Atlas project. This will be centered at the 40-million-dollar Convair-Astronautics production plant, now under construction in San Diego.

Says Fire Loss Due To Election

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—William Beudikof is blaming the $100,000 fire which destroyed his grand vi.w house in the Mt. Hamilton Range on the election. Beudikof told sheriff's deputies he believed angered seekers for a drink started the fire. Required to close his tavern during polling hours, Beudikof decided against reopening Tuesday night. He said he heard a car drive up just before the fire was discovered at 2 a.m. In Costa Rica voting is compulsory for men under 70. Legally woman have the right to vote but it is not compulsory.

Principals Advised To Stress Math And English In Schools

GREENSBORO (AP)—North Carolina school principals were told here yesterday that classroom work should emphasize English and mathematics. Dr. Jasper L. Memory Jr., professor of education at Wake Forest College, spoke for Gov. Luther Hodges who could not attend. Dr. Memory outlined a five-point program for schools at the opening of the annual convention of North Carolina school principals. The convention continued today with Dr. John Navarra of East Carolina College, addressing elementary school principals. Dr. Mark Depp, pastor of the Centenary Methodist Church, Winston-Salem, spoke during the general session. Dr. Memory's five-point program included: 1, that principals be paid 12 months during the year with a proportionate increase in salary; 2, that principals be supplied with adequate clerical assistance; 3, that more specific and definite provisions be made for the gifted child; 4, that emphasis be placed on English and math; and 5, that vocational education be encouraged and expanded. Dr. Memory said many gifted children are "never getting a workout and, while waiting for others to catch up, are setting up habits of laziness that lead to mental stagnation." He said English should be stressed "because if a student becomes proficient in English, he can learn history, the social studies, and foreign languages. If he masters mathematics, he can learn the sciences." Dr. Glenn O. Blough, associated professor of education at the University of Maryland, urged more science education in the lower grades.

Public Hearing For Ordinance

City fathers will hold a public hearing on a proposed off-street parking ordinance when they meet tonight at 8 o'clock in City Hall.

The ordinance would set up regulations which would require new businesses constructed in area zoned commercial in the future to provide for a certain amount of off-street parking space.

City fathers will hear a request from the local National Guard units for land at the airport to be used as a motor pool and drill field for the two units.

Also coming up is a request that one-way traffic be continued on Fourth St. from the point where it presently terminates at Reade St. to Summit St.

Other items on the agenda for tonight include: zoning of a portion of Bancroft Ave., recommendations concerning the sale of cemetery lots, a taxi franchise request, set-back lines on Boyd Ave. and designation of official depositories for city funds.

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP) — Election officials today began a recount of ballots cast in the tight gubernatorial race in which Democratic Gov. Dennis J. Roberts leads Republican Christopher Del Sesto by 190 votes.

Roberts polled 190,227 and Del Sesto 190,037. For a while Del Sesto was accorded a 267-vote lead until the unofficial tabulation was revised.

Even after the recount, the gubernatorial election is expected to be undecided until 11,000 absentee ballots are counted.

Soviet Officers Stay In Poland

BERLIN (AP) — A "number" of Russian officers will retain command positions with Poland's army, the Communist East German news agency ADN reported today.

ADN's Warsaw dispatch quoted an announcement by Zolnierz Wolnosci, official organ of the Polish Defense Ministry as saying: "A number of Soviet commanders will remain at their posts because at the present moment all branches of the Polish army do not have enough highly qualified experts and troop leaders."

"We want this help," the paper added, "because they are our closest friends."

'Silent Senator' Going Back To Washington

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Carl Hayden, Arizona's 79-year-old "silent senator," is going back to Washington as dean of Congress. He hasn't said anything about this new honor. No one expects he will.

With the retirement of Sen. Walter George of Georgia, the Senate's senior legislator, Hayden becomes the oldest lawmaker on "The Hill" in point of service. He outranks House Speaker Sam Rayburn by two years, having started as a freshman representative in 1912, the year Arizona became a state.

Just a few days ago Hayden was honored by a feed dealers' association for his efforts to help Arizona cattlemen get drought relief. He was introduced by a prominent state politician and eulogized at length. Hayden got up and said: "I learned a long time ago that when you've got th... votes, you don't have to talk."

Then he sat down.

Back in Washington, Hayden's seniority has won him an exacting task as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee. He almost always pleads the press of business to avoid going to parties and rarely makes a speech.

"When I came to Congress an old hand told me that I could play for the headlines and be a show horse, or I could buckle down and be a work horse," Hayden explained.

Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass) once told a GOP banquet in Phoenix: "A man who served on my side of the aisle told me that I should never smile when I'm near Carl Hayden, because Carl is sure to pick the gold right out of my teeth. He gets what he wants and he works for it!"

Hayden's record — eight times elected to the House and six to the Senate for a total of 44 years in Washington — amazes many a legislator fighting the shifting cross-currents of politics.

Tuesday he rolled up 160,882 votes, beating his Republican opponent Ross Jones by 60,000. At the same time, President Eisenhower polled 164,694 votes for a 58.00-vote majority over Adlai Stevenson.

North Koreans Report Downing ROK Fighter

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea tonight admitted shooting down a South Korean F51 Mustang fighter plane, Radio Pyongyang said the South Korean craft violated North Korea's territory.

South Korea announced yesterday two of its F51s had been attacked and said one plane was missing. The second returned with 20 bullet holes, South Korea said.

The South Koreans claimed two North Korean MIG15 fighters attacked the two Mustangs over the Yellow Sea, which separates Korea from the Chinese mainland.

The North Korean broadcast said the two South Korean planes launched the attack and the North Korean planes fought back, shooting down one.

It was the first encounter between South and North Korean planes since the Korean armistice.

Again Honored By Air Defense

BETHEL — The Air Defense Command again today recognized services performed by two Bethel citizens.

George J. Abeyounis, Post Supervisor of the local Ground Observer Corps, was recipient of a Meritorious Service Award for the completion of 1750 hours of service as a volunteer of the GOC.

Herman Daniels also received the award for the completion of 500 hours of service. These two along with Mrs. Archie Coburn have attempted to cover as many hours of Skywatch as possible until the new post approved by the city can be erected, at which time the citizens of Bethel will again be called upon to maintain Skywatch to the degree possible.

In August of this year both men received like awards for participation in GOC. Present location of the post is at the Aheyounis Sh... in Bethel where Mr. Aheyounis operates the post during working hours. Present plans indicate the new post will be constructed near the edge of the high school athletic area in Bethel.
