Soviet Demands Toughen Peace Efforts

LONDON (AP)—Soviet demands that Egypt be restored her pre-invasion territory promptly today toughened the peace-keeping task facing U. N. Secretary Dag Hammarskjöld and the Middle East police force.

Hamarskjöld was left with the staggering job of trying to find some compromise. The secretary general flew to Egypt today from the U. N. troop staging area near Naples for on-the-scene efforts to get the police operation in action.

Nothing about your future plans," the canal only to a U. N. force Hamarskjöld and the U. N. force way until a Suez settlement is reached between Egypt and the West.

Israel still demonstrated every intention of holding on to the Gaza Strip, a narrow piece of land on the Mediterranean former, under Egyptian control. The Israelis seized the strip after their whirlwind push into Egypt's Sinai Peninsula.

French government quickly labeled Bulganin's notes a maneuver to hamper the work of Hammarskjöld and the U. N. police force. A Foreign Ministry spokesman said France believes the Soviet position will incite Egyptian President Nasser to oppose any action of the U. N. to police the Suez.

Nehru Objects To Free Election For Hungary, As Sought In UN

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru said today the U. N. resolution calling for free elections in Hungary would block Soviet withdrawal from that country and might risk a bigger war with greater suffering for the Hungarian people.

Nehru spoke in Parliament on India's position regarding Hungary and the Middle East. India cast the only non-Communist vote against the U. N. resolution calling for free elections in Hungary.

He said the resolution was approved by the general Assembly 48-11 with 16 abstentions. Nehru said the resolution was "improperly worded" and that supervised elections would have reduced Hungary to something less than a sovereign state.

Annual Dispute Over Peiping Begins In UN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The annual dispute over U. N. membership for Red China slowed down the General Assembly session today and Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) made his debut in the world organization with a blast accusing India of drumbeating for the Communists.

During the lengthy debate, Britain's P. M. Cresswell said the time was not ripe for considering the Chinese question. Britain recognizes the Peiping regime, but she has consistently supported U. S. moves to shelve the seating issue.

Earlier the Assembly decided to take up South Africa's racial policies again this year despite a strong hint that such a debate would result in a South African walkout.

Health Dept. Scene Of Meet

The Pitt County Health Department Building was the scene of a meeting of the Sans Souci Book Club Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. H. S. Ragsdale, hostess for the meeting, being very much interested in the work of the department chose the meeting place for the program on "Local Health Needs" in order that club members could learn and better appreciate what this county is accomplishing in improving health conditions.

Dr. John L. Watters, formerly in health work at Chapel Hill, gave a short talk concerning the rapid advance of health work in Pitt County under the supervision of Dr. Walter G. Humbert.

He told of the various clinics held in the building at no cost to the patients and stated that rapid advances are being made and things running smoothly because of the harmony which exists among the very able physicians of this county.

Mrs. J. B. Spillman made a short talk concerning the work of the tuberculosis committee, reporting that county schools had been visited with the x-ray machine and that $1,000 had already come in from Christmas seals.

A short business session followed after which members made a tour of the building.

Refreshments were served buffet style by the hostess and her sister, Mrs. Ward Moore Tripp, from a long table in the lobby, centered with an arrangement of fall flowers.

Candle-Making Is Club Topic

A program on candle-making was presented the Forest Hills Garden Club Wednesday night. Mrs. Lawrence Stroud was guest speaker.

Discussing types of utensils and equipment needed in candle-making, Mrs. Stroud then talked on the mechanics of making candles and possibilities of decorating those purchased from stores.

Mrs. C. O'H. Horne Jr., president, was hostess to the club and presided over the meeting.

She announced appointment of a committee to look into the purchase of entrance signs in Forest Hills. Mrs. Ben Harrison will head this committee.

Appointment was also announced of Mrs. M. T. Simpson to head the Garden Therapy Committee.

Mrs. Elmer Lansche announced the next meeting of the club would be held jointly with the newly formed Elmhurst Garden Club December 4 at 3 p.m.

Mrs. J. B. A. Daughtridge of Rocky Mount will speak on Christmas decorations.

Mrs. Horne served a dessert course to members and special guests which included Mrs. Stroud and Mrs. Percy Upchurch.

Fabrics Shown Pickwick Club

Mrs. Ariane Clark gave an informal discussion on fabrics when the Pickwick Club met at the home of Mrs. J. H. Ward Jr. on Tuesday.

Mrs. Clark had an assortment of three groups of fabrics to show, the "Schumacher Williamsburg Restoration Group," the modern group by "Boris Kroll," and "Cheney, Greeff & Co." Country Squire assortment.

Some of these fabrics had wallpaper and even china to match. The speaker strongly urged members to take the step towards originality: to choose bright bold colors, textures and prints, and to mix periods, woods and materials.

"People," she said, "are prone to be conservative, and as a result homes are too similar and lack the touch of individuality. We fear the censure that may result from being different."

During the social period that followed, the hostess served coconut cake and coffee to the members and guests, Mrs. Lewis Clark and Mrs. W. H. White Jr.

Members voted to contribute to the Mental Health Drive, the Alcoholics Anonymous Building Campaign and the TB Association. Books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Dr. Marshall Guest Speaker For Clio Club

Dr. W. E. Marshall, East Carolina College faculty member, was guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Clio Book Club Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Jake Hadley.

Choosing the Suez Canal situation for his topic, Dr. Marshall gave his audience a clear picture of the background events beginning in July, and leading to the present day crisis. Col. Nasser's rise to power, his desire to make Egypt the leader of the Middle Eastern states, in place of India, culminated in his nationalization of the canal, which brought forth the use of force by England and France, the speaker said.

Dr. Marshall outlined the vital role played by the United Nations in preventing the grave situation from developing into World War III, by conferences of the nations most affected by Nasser's Suez policy. The situation is still a serious one, but there is hope that the problems may be solved peacefully to the satisfaction of all the nations, he said.

Following Dr. Marshall's talk, a business session was presided over by Mrs. Rose Fambrough, club president.

In the recent membership contest of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Mrs. Kenneth Brown was first place winner for securing the largest number of new and reinstated members.

Prizes were also presented to Mrs. Arthur M. Andrews and Mrs. Malcolm C. Williams, second and third place winners, respectively.

The membership contest closed at the regular monthly meeting held last Thursday evening at the Veterans Hospital in Fayetteville. Mrs. Stella Joyce, the auxiliary president and presiding officer, Mrs. C. B. West, Jr., announced that the number of current members exceeded last year's membership and the quota designated by the state department has been met.

Sewing Classes To Begin Monday

You can accurately fit yourself with the new patterns of today if you know your figure variations according to Mrs. Rebecca M. Smith, home economics teacher at Greenville High School.

She points out that persons may learn how to determine these variations and make the necessary alterations at the first sewing class for adults sponsored by the Vocational Home Economics Department of Greenville High School.

There will be five classes each on Monday night starting November 19 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Classes will be under the direction of Mrs. Smith assisted by students in home economics from East Carolina College.

Interested persons may call the high school or 7392 for more information.

Plans were completed for the Greenville Auxiliary to participate in the birthday party to be given at the Veterans Hospital in Fayetteville on November 28 for the patients who have birthdays this month.

The party is sponsored by the auxiliaries in the Second District. The local auxiliary will furnish ten gifts, three homemade cakes and entertainment. Several members indicated that they would be able to attend the party.

Mrs. Elvy Forrest reported that 36 bingo prizes have been sent to the Veterans Hospital in Fayetteville. A request from Caswell Training School for two compact and shampoo was approved. Mrs. Stella Joyce gave a report of the new buildings and other improvements at the school. Notes of appreciation have been received from the school for the services rendered by the VFW auxiliaries in the state.

Miss Frances Wahl Speaks At Meeting Of Altrusa Club

At the November meeting of the Greenville branch of the Altrusa International at Erwin Hall Tuesday evening Miss Frances Wahl spoke on the partnership of the home, the school, the church, and the community in helping young people become adjusted to a life which lacks some of the stabilizing forces of a generation ago.

Too often today people living together are not neighbors. "Where once children and adults 'belonged' to the home and the community with their attendant activities, they now more often than not seek belongingness in clubs and societies," Miss Wahl quoted from a recent article.

Time, patience, sympathy and understanding of parents, teachers, church groups, and community leaders are necessary to guide youth to responsible manhood and womanhood, the speaker said.

Mrs. J. B. Spillman, president, gave significant facts concerning the district convention in Charlotte last month and stressed the similarity between the projects of the local group and those of groups in other towns.

The chairman of the finance committee, Mrs. Cecil Bilbro, was in charge of auctioning hats brought by the members. The sale and the modeling contributed to the service fund and to the meritment of the group.

The gifts brought by the members for the girl at Crossmore home the branch is helping will be sent to her soon.

Plans for the next few months were discussed which included receiving new members, having a dinner meeting and giving a benefit bridge and canasta party.

After the discussion the hostesses, Misses Wahl and Turner, served a sweet course.

Needed Bond Issues Need Votes

The fact that Greenville voters approved six bond issues at the polls several months ago is no guarantee the same bond issues will again be approved in the referendum next Tuesday.

There is no reason to believe citizens of the city have changed their attitude toward the much needed capital improvements since the election which was declared invalid by bond attorneys. Yet for citizens of the city who voted in favor of the bond issues a few months ago to rely on their neighbors to carry the issues this time is a sure way to invite defeat for the much needed capital improvements which are at stake in this referendum.

Most of the six separate bond issues carried by comfortable margins in the initial referendum. There were one or two, however, in which the margin of approval was not as comfortable as it might have been.

Notwithstanding the outcome of the previous election, Tuesday's vote and Tuesday's vote alone will determine whether the city will be permitted to issue bonds totaling $275,000 for capital improvements which are vital to Greenville's continued progress.

When the bond issue question was put to the people at the polls a few months ago the response was disappointingly light in spite of the fact that the controversial straw vote on flouridation was taken at the same time. Next Tuesday there will be only the question of approving the six bond issues. The smaller the vote next Tuesday the greater the possibility that the bond issues will be defeated.

Greenville needs all the capital improvements which the six bond issues will provide. Without these improvements the city cannot continue to progress as it should.

The $26,000 bond issue for new fire-fighting equipment will afford the city's fire department new equipment which it should have had years ago, but for which funds have not been available. With its annual appropriations the fire department has not been able to provide itself with the new equipment necessary to afford adequate protection for this growing city.

For the Street Department there is a bond issue of $15,500 earmarked for the purchase of equipment with which to do a considerable part of the drainage projects and street improvement projects likewise covered by the bond issue. The figures set for drainage and street improvement projects in the bond issue have been predicated on the assumption that the Street Department will have this new equipment with which to do the work.

Greenville High School Pupils Stand To Benefit

One of the most encouraging developments we've seen in the public schools of Greenville recently is the formation of a new Parent-Teacher organization at Greenville High School this week.

Like many other public schools, Greenville High has not had the benefit of an active Parent-Teacher organization for several years. This doesn't mean that parents of local high school students haven't been interested in what was going on at the school in recent years. It does mean, however, that the dormant interest has now taken the form of outward expression in the shape of a new Parent-Teacher organization which can be of great help to the students, the school and the parents.

There is need for the active participation of parents in some phases of every school program. To a great degree Greenville High School, like many other high schools, has lacked this quality in recent years. The school hasn't gone to the dogs because parents haven't evidenced greater interest in the school program; but we doubt the school and its students and program have enjoyed many advantages which would have been forthcoming had more parents taken an active interest in what was going on month by month at the school.

The very fact that several hundred parents of high school students gathered Wednesday night for the organizational meeting of a P. T. A. at Greenville High is in itself an indication of the desire of parents to play a larger part in improving the school and its program. It is an indication that the parents as well as teachers and school officials have come to realize the contribution which parents can make to the school program by active participation in a cooperative program.

Regardless of the initiative or ability of school administrators and teachers, they cannot create in public schools a program of a higher calibre than the parents of the students really want. As parents of the students become more closely associated with the school and its program, they likewise become more acutely aware of its shortcomings and its needs. Inevitably there follows a genuine effort on the part of the parents to correct these shortcomings and provide for the needs of the school and its program. The net result is a better school.

The new Parent-Teacher Association at Greenville High School is in a position to make a major contribution to the school and the youngsters who will receive an important part of their education there. We trust the initial enthusiasm will not wane as the organization goes about its task of helping the school cope with its problems.

A $24,000 bond issue is being asked to open First Street as a major traffic artery which is needed if traffic congestion in the business district and other parts of the city is not to become more acute.

For improving the drainage of Green Mill Run, the city's major water shed, $16,000 is being asked. Though a separate bond issue, this is directly tied in with the $131,500 bond issue proposed for storm drainage systems in various sections of the city. Without these systems it is apparent that storms will continue to cause some flooding in sections of the city causing damage to streets and property of citizens of the city.

To insure a recreation program which is adequate to meet the city's needs $62,000 is being asked for purchase of additional land and development of facilities for recreation purposes. Though the city's recreation program has come from nothing to a creditable program in a space of little more than five years, greater demands for expanded recreation facilities are being made as the city grows. Unless facilities are provided through this bond issue the recreation program will continue to lag far behind the city's needs to the detriment of all the citizens of Greenville.

Greenville needs all the improvements which will be provided for by these bond issues. Indeed, the city needs many improvements which are not provided for in this $275,000 bond money. Yet this amount represents the most urgent needs which face Greenville at this time. They are needs which must be coped with now.

The Reflector urges the registered voters in the city to go to the polls Tuesday and vote in favor of all six of the bond issues.

Result Of State's Labor Supply Program

By C.A. UPCHURCH, JR.

RALEIGH — For a number of years, the Employment Security Commission has been making labor supply studies in North Carolina and making reports of these studies to the Federal government. As a result of these studies, the Federal government classifies the various areas in regard to existing labor surpluses.

In areas classified as areas of "substantial" labor surplus, communities are eligible for Federal benefits in plant construction and production contracts. Only recently, the Bureau of Employment Security of the U.S. Department of Labor said Durham, Asheville, Kinston, Rocky Mount, Fayetteville, Mt. Airy, Shreveport, Kings Mountain, and Waynesville were eligible for benefits.

Unemployment in those areas is more than six per cent of the total civilian labor force. Thus, they are eligible to benefit from the Defense Manpower Policy providing procurement preference and rapid amortization.

Plants in these towns may receive priority when government contracts are awarded. This is in line with the policy of channeling the government's buying toward firms located in labor surplus areas.

Industrial development is encouraged by allowing firms a speeded-up tax write-off in new plant construction or expansion of existing facilities.

Whenever classification reports are made on the State's labor market areas, other communities write letters to the Employment Security Commission wanting to know how they can become classified as areas of substantial labor surplus and thus become eligible for the Federal benefits.

ESC Chairman Henry E. Dendall says the communities must meet certain requirements before they can be classified. Briefly, these requirements are: The area must have a civilian labor force of at least 15,000 workers; there must be at least 8,000 wage and salaried workers; and the community must not be primarily a trade and service center. There must, of course, be evidence of a substantial labor surplus; that is, unemployment in excess of six percent of the total labor force.

The Commission frequently gets letters from areas too small to come under even the smaller labor market classification. A plan has been devised for this group, too, which would include such areas as Edenton, Morehead City, Murphy, and Jacksonville.

These non-classifiable areas can qualify for the same preferential consideration in contract and building benefits as the larger areas.

These smaller areas become eligible for benefits whenever an industry qualified for rapid amortization decides to locate in that area. This is based on the premise that there is no need to qualify for the benefits until some new industry which qualified for the benefits is considering a location in the area — or until some present plant which qualifies plans to expand. The Federal government decides whether a company would qualify for benefits in terms of the goods it is producing or plans to produce.

Under this plan, community leaders in the smaller areas have a selling point in their efforts to attract new industry to the area, or promote expansion of existing facilities.

Currently, classifications are made for the following major labor market areas: Asheville, Charlotte, Winston-Salem, Durham, and Greensboro-High Point.

Opinions In Brief

(Anderson (S.C.) Independent)

Glance at a survey-report from the Population Reference Bureau, Inc., a free-wheeling statistical outfit, which used to worry no end because college graduates didn't seem to have as many babies as folks without diplomas — sheets of stiff paper which attested that they were bachelors. Perhaps that very label has been fateful, making even married "bachelors" wary of having babies lest neighbors talk.

Now, the P. R. Bureau, Inc., happily re-surveys and re-reports that the one-child family "so popular among college graduates a generation ago" has been replaced by a family with three or more average children. Or, maybe, to be polite, let it be said a college-bred family has several children on the average.

Somehow that doesn't properly impute intellectual superiority of ex-campus parents or their increasing offspring, but the idea is there.

Lately, to be sure college graduates (who of course must have white-collar jobs) actually are earning more money — occasionally up to a quarter of what blue-collar craftsmen take home to their far larger broods. Poorer couples usually are richer in children, so the improved wealth factor isn't quite valid as a yardstick.

Yet maybe it does intrude in a way. Maybe college graduates now realize they need lots more children to support them when the white collars be to wilt, and pretty soon even erudite Doctors of Philosophy with a big enough faculty tribe all working can feel reasonably safe from the need, some hungry day, of making meat broth out of their Latin-lettered sheepskins.

Other Editors Are Saying.. Specter In A Child's World

(The Charlotte News) In an age of obscure oracles, nobody knows whether to believe all the would-be Nostradam or not. They say the atomic bombers will come one day and we must prepare. They may be wrong. But we cannot afford to take chances.

So, we prepare. A part of the preparation will be the evacuation of the entire student body of Sharon School in the first of a series of Civil Defense tests. Some 550 children will be involved at Sharon. Their participation was approved yesterday by the County School Board.

Thus, a living, vibrant, enlightened society teaches its children to walk (do not run) to safety. Thus, public education keeps pace with the art of war. Thus, Survival takes its place beside the Three Rs.

It is a bitter truth to contemplate, but necessary. And the naked necessity is the bitterest factor of all. There was a day, now passing, when a fire drill was the only evacuation test youngsters received in school. Fire is still a danger and must command respect. But a larger peril now occupies our thoughts.

In the closely personed appraisal of our leaders, the specter of great fleets of bombers, substantially immune to methods of defense, destroying great cities at will with nuclear weapons, is a specter only. It must be admitted that atomic warfare is not imminent on any large scale. But in this unreasoning age, a nation must even be prepared for specters.

That is a part of the penalty of progress. But even if the bombers do not come — and God grant that they do not — there will be something salvageable in such exercises as mass evacuations of children. It can be argued that these events teach discipline and give the kind of training that is an asset wherever natural disasters strike.

But it is not the perils of harsh nature that worry us so. It is the perils of harsh men. Perhaps the fear can never be banished completely anymore. But it can be calmed and without panic and it can be mitigated by reason. That is why we must have test evacuations.

A One-Way Street Fan, But

If Greenville's one-way streets have a real fan, I guess I'm it. I like the one-way patterns. I like the way they keep traffic moving (except when mall trucks double park in the business district). And I like the idea of having twice as many chances at parking places than you get on a two-way street.

But, those one-way streets are making it more and more difficult to wear a smile in the early morning.

The idea of one-way streets has been put over so effectively that some people evidently believe that every street in town is a one-way thoroughfare. Well, maybe not every street but at least the 300 block of Cotanche Street, which most certainly is not a one-way block.

For instance, in the past week or ten days I have made at least three right-hand turns off Third Street into the 300 block of Cotanche only to find myself standing somebody squarely in the face. There is no choice but to wait for these wrong-lane, left-hand thinkers to get their mess out of the way but that's not so bad.

What is bad is that on all three occasions, the drivers of the other cars (and one of those drivers was a female) have said ugly things, raised some question about my ancestry and forcefully questioned my sanity. My only defense is to say those three drivers were on MY side of the road.

While on the subject, I would like to suggest one-way driving on no-parking requirements for Second Street between Cotanche and Washington streets. Second Street particularly between Cotanche and Evans, is a mighty narrow street and presently is open to two-way traffic and parking on the South side. The parking places are usually filled early in the day and stay that way most of the day. It's a tight squeeze for cars travelling in opposite directions and a minor miracle that some serious accidents have not occurred in the block.

It would be a good idea, I believe, to make at least that block a part of the one-way traffic system.

It would be a good idea, too, for people to realize the 200 block of Cotanche is open both ways. It would certainly do wonders for my early-morning smile.

It's tough enough to get up and go to work without having to endure wrong-side drivers.

Notebook On Life

Chair-Wrecking Helps Andy

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — In the old days of silent movies studios used to hire a violinist to play background music to key up the actors for emotional scenes.

Andy Griffith, a bright new star in the entertainment sky, has found a quicker system. He tears apart chairs.

Andy has just completed his first film, "A Face in the Crowd," produced by Ella Kazan for Warner Brothers. He plays the role of Lonesome Rhodes, a hill-billy vagrant who becomes a television king and then, corrupted by his own success, plots to gain national political power. Griffith, who earlier had gained experience as a night club monopolist and star of the Broadway play, "No Time for Sergeants," found movie work exciting — but also disturbing.

In another medium you work up to an emotional pitch gradually," he said. "But in making a movie you have to be able to turn your emotions on and off like tap water. I found that hard to do."

In a final scene in which his career comes down in ruins the egotistical Lonesome Rhodes goes off his rocker. Andy did the exhausting scene three times, and each time it failed to come off. He couldn't key himself to a maniacal pitch of frenzy.

Then he asked them to bring him in some old chairs.

"I stomped on 'em, kicked 'em and tore 'em apart with my hands until my hands were raw and sore," he recalled.

Then, angry enough to snap at the camera lens, he made the scene a fourth time, and it went off like clockwork.

But Andy says he's glad the picture is done.

"You can't stir up your emotions all day, and then just drop them at night," he said. "Any way I can't. I've given my wife, Barbara, a fit the last three months. But I'm lucky. She understands the problem."

She has understood all along, ever since their courting days at the University of North Carolina.

Griffith, who retains that charming air of innocent cunning not uncommon in the Tar Heel country, leaned his 6-foot frame against a chair and said:

"Last year I made — let me see — more than $100,000. Now ain't that terrible?"

It seemed so to him when he found out that he'd end up with less than $20,000 of it.

As a hedge against the future he is buying an old house and 50 acres on an island off North Carolina.

"I'm gonna get me some crab nets, too," he said comfortably. "I can always fish for a living. A fellow can always get along somehow."

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

A VOICE John the Baptist stands out as one of the most important men in the whole of sacred history, yet he designated himself in the simplest of all terms. He said, "I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness."

"A voice." That was all he was. But that was a matter of such importance that Christian teachers have been talking about it ever since. He was a witness. He cried out the truth in the stark expanse of the wilderness, alone in the stillness. But not alone for long. Soon they were coming down from the cities in droves to hear him. The high priest sent a committee of prominent men to inquire what this was all about. Even King Herod, the wickedest man in one of history's wickedest ages, trembled when he heard John's name mentioned and sought to hear him.

Some voices remain voices all their days. Some men keep crying out in the wilderness and one pays any attention to them because what they say is not worthy of much attention. But many men keep crying out to the rocks and the trees a message of truth and nothing but the rocks and the trees hear them.

But what of it! Maybe in later years some will remember. The day Christ was buried, everyone said he and his cause had been defeated. But they don't say so now. The day John was beheaded it seemed that his life had been lived in vain. But he had been a voice.

Ike's Political And World-Wide Role

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON President Eisenhower must now face up to two of the most important political questions he has had to decide since he entered the White House. His decision may well prosper or depress the Republican Party's future and shape this country's role in international affairs.

His tremendous re-election sweep is responsible for his present problem. It has made him the absolute boss of the Republican Party, even though he cannot run for re-election. Suggesting that his influence will decline for that reason are regarded as nonsense by practical politicians.

The man who returned the GOP to power after a 20-year exile, who broke the crazy-quilt coalition of noncongenial voting elements which elected F.D.R. four times, has not become a has-been because he has only four more years in the White House. COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF FREE WORLD Equally important and troublesome, he has become the unchallenged and acknowledged commander-in-chief of the free world, and his prestige has grown among neutral nations. As a result of their military and diplomatic fiasco in Egypt, Anthony Eden and Guy Mollet are now begging an immediate audience with him. He dominates the disturbed postwar world as F.D.R. did during the war years.

Ike's remarkable victory, however, is attributed by his closest advisers to the fact that, in his first term and in the campaign he represented himself as a national figure, as a sort of American father, rather than as a Republican. Otherwise, he would not have carried such contrasting states as Maine and Texas, Oregon and Florida.

PARTIAL REASON FOR DEMOCRATS' RETENTION OF CONGRESS This popular image of him, and one which he cherishes, will be erased, if he becomes an intense partisan in his second term. Any such transformation would lead to bitter and frustrating clashes with the Democratic majority in Capitol Hill. It would send the various elements which voted for him scotching back to the Democratic fold.

And yet, if he does not work to build up the GOP, and to associate himself and his accomplishments with the Party, he will leave it as weak as it was when he appeared on the political stage four years ago. To Vice President Nixon, or to any other prospective successor, he would hand over only the shell of an organization. A partial reason for the Democrats' retention of Congressional control is that the voters did not identify Ike with the GOP.

In short, Ike must decide whether to favor himself or his coattailing political friends. EDEN—MOLLET HOPE The same problem protrudes into the foreign field. Britain and France are eager to patch up the shaky

Cost Of Consumer Credit

By ELMER ROESSNER

The relentless rise of consumer credit — it reached a new high of $40,740,000,000 on September 30 and has surely passed $41 billion by now — is causing lawmakers to consider better safeguards for those who sign on dotted lines of installment contracts.

There's a lot to protect. If consumers are paying no more than 1 per cent a month on unpaid balances, their credit is costing them $41,000,000 a month, or almost half a billion dollars a year.

It is probable that carrying costs are much higher. Take a typical auto installment contract calling for 7 per cent in the unpaid balance, which is to be paid off in 12 monthly payments. Because the average balance is just half of the original balance, the time buyer is paying 14 per cent. Penalty charges for late payments can skyrocket the rate. The rates of a well-known small-loan company comes to 24 per cent per year.

YOUNG FAMILIES VICTIMIZED

The rise in the marriage rate and the decrease in the average age of new couples — all in frantic need of autos, appliances, furniture and other lares and penates — has multiplied demand for installment credit. Our schools teach Elizabethan literature and cake making, but few teach the possibly more important subject of buying on time.

Consequently, many truly ignorant couples have entered the installment market. This has attracted rapacious lenders into the credit field. In some cases young couples are paying more for credit than for the goods they buy with it.

This is causing many states to re-examine their laws to determine what protection credit buyers have. Most have discovered that while usury laws prohibit excessive interest on loans, they do not prohibit excessive rates on indirect financing. In most states the gullibility of the buyer is the only limit.

FEW STATES ACT

A half dozen states have enacted laws to protect installment buyers and the matter will come up in many of the legislatures that meet early next year.

Three new laws—the product of a Democratic Administration and a Republican legislature—become effective in New York State January 1. The laws regulate interest rates only on automobiles, but they may be later extended to cover other installment purchases.

Under the law the credit charges on the deferred payments on a new car cannot exceed 7 per cent per year on the total deferred. This makes the maximum effective rate 14 per cent. On used cars less than two years old the credit charges cannot be more than $10 per $100 of the annual deferred, and for older cars it cannot be more than $13 per hundred. That still gives lenders up to 26 per cent, which is nice interest if you can get it.

The laws also specify that contracts be in writing, with the size and type of car specified, and the amount of liability insurance stated. The contract must warn the buyer not to sign if there are blank spaces, and inform him that he is entitled to a copy of the contract.

PENALTIES LIMITED

The laws also hold delinquency charges to $5 or 5 per cent of the delinquency and limit legal fees to 15 per cent of the contract amount. In event of repossession, the seller is limited to reasonable expenses and the buyer is entitled to an itemized statement.

The Superintendent of banks is authorized to subpoena lending company books and to suspend licenses of law violators.

Other states have already expressed interest in the New York program and, if it proves effective, may adopt similar measures. Meanwhile, in New York and elsewhere, it will still be a good idea to read and understand installment contracts before signing.

The Beatitudes

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

In the beginning of Christ's ministry, Jesus healed many as He went from place to place, so His fame spread, and Galilee teaching in the synagogues and the people brought their sick to be healed.

"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted," for Christ will help us to bear our grief.

The Beatitudes

CHRIST TELLS HOW TO BECOME BLESSED IN GOD'S KINGDOM

Scripture—Matthew 4:23-5:20.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. AFTER JESUS' baptism and His temptations, He began His mission, preaching and teaching in Galilee in the synagogues the gospel of the kingdom. He also healed all manner of sickness and diseases among the people.

What we call the Beatitudes was the first long discourse of His early mission. On a hill or mountain near Capernaum, Christ took His seat as Jewish teachers usually did. Multitudes had followed Him, but we are told that He began to talk "when His disciples came unto Him." This word "disciples" seems to mean those closest and nearest to Him.

Then "He opened His mouth and taught them, saying: 'Blessed are the poor in spirit; for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.' We are inclined to think of a person who is 'poor in spirit' as one that has so poor an opinion of himself that he hardly dares to 'call his soul his own,' in the slang of the day. Christ did not mean a person of that type, however, but one who was humble in spirit no matter if he were rich or poor in this world's goods. He would be like to Jesus Himself. Who, rich, was poor for our sakes.

"Blessed are they that mourn; for they shall be comforted." "Blessed indeed are those who have griefs that affect them deeply but who have faith in Christ and bear their affliction bravely, knowing that He will help them, and trying to help others instead of allowing their sorrow to make them selfish and self-centered.

"Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth." In the New Testament meekness does not mean spiritlessness, but the actions of a person who keeps his emotions under control; is not easily provoked; whose attitude toward others is one of gentleness, forbearance and love. A person who takes disaster with quiet acceptance as Jesus did.

"Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness; for they shall be filled." MEMORY VERSE people can help the world to become the kind that God can bless.

"Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness; for they shall be filled."—Matthew 5:6.

"Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you. . . Rejoice and be exceedingly glad, for so persecuted they the prophets who were before you." Persecution, as we well know in a world that has suffered so much from this evil, is terrible to bear, but Jesus taught that when we are so tortured we should be glad for we shall attain blessedness if we suffer when we suffer in a righteous cause.

This lesson is one of the most beautiful and helpful in all the year's studies. We older people can repeat these Beatitudes by heart, and the pupils in the classes (young and older) can be greatly helped by the lessons of life which they teach.

Jesus said that "ye are the salt of the earth," salt is necessary to all animals for life and health. If we see that we are vigorous and strive earnestly in our lives to keep so, not allowing our attitudes to become as "salt that has lost its savor" and become useless, we too may be blessed in God's sight.

Late Weekday Classes Planned To Open At ECC
East Carolina College will offer during the winter quarter, beginning Monday, Nov. 26, a program of 40 courses scheduled in the late afternoon, at night or on Saturday morning. Vice President and Dean of Instruction Leo W. Jenkins has announced.

The program, described by Dr. Jenkins as "very ambitious," is designed to provide, for those who for other reasons are unable to attend classes during the day, opportunity to begin or to continue their education in college.

For several years East Carolina has offered each quarter a number of late afternoon and Saturday classes for those wishing to attend college while they are employed. Increase in the number of these classes and addition of night classes will better opportunities to make use of the educational advantages offered at the college and will provide courses of interest to a larger number of people, Dr. Jenkins stated.

Late afternoon, night, and Saturday courses will be taught each quarter in the future, according to plans. The student participating in the program will thus be able to take sufficient work to complete requirements for a degree, Dr. Jenkins said.

Courses to be offered during the winter quarter this term include work on all levels of instruction from beginning classes for freshmen to those for graduate students. Thirteen departments of instruction will participate in the program.

Those who wish to take late afternoon, night, or Saturday classes may register now at the Registrar's Office or on Monday, Nov. 26, the designated time for enrollment in winter-quarter classes. A special registration period for students taking night classes has been set for Tuesday, Nov. 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the Administration building. Registration before the beginning of the quarter will prove advantageous to the student, according to Dr. Orval L. Phillips, registrar.

TURKEY IN FOIL

Prepare turkey for roasting... defrosting thoroughly if frozen. Stuff in traditional manner, if desired... or for speedier preparation, stuffing may be baked in separate foil lined baking dish during last hour. Truss, placing wings flat against sides.

To Wrap: Place bird on sheet of 18" Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap (or two sheets standard Reynolds Wrap, joined with a firm double fold)... brush with melted shortening... pad drumsticks and wing tips with small folded pieces of foil so they won't puncture outer wrap. Bring foil up over turkey overlapping 3 to 4 inches on breast. Press down smoothly over legs and neck. Bring underneath foil over top foil letting it extend up 3 to 4 inches to hold juices.

To Roast: Place in shallow roasting pan in hot oven (450° F.) and roast according to chart below. Add 20 to 30 minutes additional roasting time for heavy stuffed turkeys over 10 pounds. Fold back Reynolds Wrap during last 20 minutes to test doneness and permit skin to become crisp brown. Gravy: Pour juices into saucepan, skim off excess fat... add broth prepared from giblets... thicken with mixture of flour and water, season to taste and add kitchen bouquet, chopped giblets, if desired.

She Embezzled Husband's Firm

OZARK IKE

CLARK TOWNSHIP, N. J. (AP)—A 35-year-old bride has admitted embezzling $140,000 from her husband's electronics firm over a three-year period.

A plea of innocent was entered in court to the charge, however. Mrs. Conrad Miller, married for only two weeks, was in Union County Jail without bail today after her tearful arraignment last night before Magistrate Edward E. Reider.

Detective Arthur Mishkin arrested her in nearby Metuchen at the home she had purchased while working as office manager for the Fugle-Miller Laboratories, Inc., here.

He said Mrs. Miller, the former Virginia Cook, admitted spending $40,000 to $50,000 of the missing money to buy that home and an undetermined sum to help her family.

Too Much Show By Cheerleaders

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Mrs. Mabel Booker, cheerleader squad director at Wheatley High, said six girls have been released from the squad.

She said the action followed complaints from football spectators.

"I guess they put on too much of a show," she said.

Wrestler Sues For Those Names

DALLAS (AP)—Promoter Ed McLemore denied in court that he billed a wrestler as "mean, villainous, hard-hearted, merciless, cruel, cheating, sneaky, unsportsmanlike and cowardly."

J. W. Whitaker is suing McLemore for $54,600 on grounds the billing so enraged a spectator against the wrestler that the spectator threw a bottle.

Whitaker claimed his skull was fractured.

Trip To Washington For Farmville Class

By BETTY SUE DAIL, Farmville School Reporter
Excitement over the Seniors' recent trip to Washington, D. C., is still running high.

We left Farmville early November 3, traveling via Skyline Drive and Luray Caverns in Western Virginia. We arrived in Washington late that evening and checked into reserved rooms at the Hotel Harrington.

On our first day in the city a Sunday, we set out for the Smithsonian Institute where we were awed by the aircraft and delighted by the dresses worn by wives of the nation's Presidents. After leaving the Smithsonian we went to the National Gallery of Art but before going in, Hilda Owens taught our Sunday School lesson on the Gallery steps.

Later in the day we visited the Washington Monument (where we had a choice of either climbing 898 steps or riding the elevator), the National Cathedral and the Franciscan Monastery. Many of the students enjoyed the Cinerama movie Sunday night.

On Monday, first stop was the Bureau of Printing and Engraving where we watched the process of printing money. After that came visits to the Capitol, the Library of Congress and the Supreme Court Building. After lunch we visited the home of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The White House, Robert E. Lee's home, the Jefferson Memorial, and the Lincoln Memorial were visited Tuesday. While at Arlington Cemetery we saw a funeral carried out in complete military fashion before leaving for Mount Vernon, the home of George Washington and last stop before leaving for home.

Our sponsors, Mr. Bundy, Mrs. Herbert Hart and Mrs. Tommy Holloman made the trip interesting and enjoyable. It will be one we won't forget.

Twelve students made the Honor Roll for making all A's during the first report period. Marian Pickett was the only Senior to make the list and George Cannon was the only Junior. Four sophomores, Gladys Beaman, Nancy Moore, Gary Burgeron and Richard Dunn were included and the list was completed by six freshmen, Elbert Mayo, Earl Tyson, Rod Williams, Shirley Ellis, Ann Palmer Hodges and Nancy Caroline Lewis.

Sixteen students made A's on at least half of their courses and nothing less than B's on the remainder of the courses to gain places on the Principal's List. The following students made the list:

Seniors: Wade Mills, Dean Allen, Ruby Flora, Mavis Hardee, Hilda Owens and Zarelda Walton.
Juniors: James Henry Bundy, Paul Cox, Curtis Matthews and Wanda Bell.
Sophomores: Sylvia Cobb and Jackie Nolen.
Freshmen: Bobby Joyner, Howard Moya, Lillian Dilda and Joyce Anne Smith.

Students interested in writing for the school paper have held their organizational meeting with Mrs. J. B. Joyner and selected Marian Pickett as editor-in-chief. Other staff members are: assistant editor, Patay Roberts; spotlight editor, Carolyn Harris; alumni editor, Dean Allen; exchange editor, Lurse Worthington; class editor, Mavis Hardee; chief typist, Geraldine Little; photographer, Cecil Modlin; copy editors, Jean Owens and Mavis Eason; sports editor, Gordon Lee; managing editor, James Henry Bundy; news editor, Hilda Owens; and feature editors, Beth Baker and Eleanor Newton.

Journalism Club officers have also been elected with Hilda Owens being named president. Other officers are vice-president, Jean Owens; secretary, Dean Allen; treasurer, Cecil Modlin; and reporter, Effie Bagley. The club edits the paper, "News 'n' Views."

Senior superlatives have been selected by the annual staff and will be featured in the year-book.

The selections include the following: Most Likely to Succeed, Marian Pickett and David Braxton; Best-All-Around, Dean Allen and Wade Mills; Most Popular, Mavis Eason and Johnny Dilda; Best Looking, Peggy Joyner; Friendliest, Carolyn Harris and Cecil Modlin; Wittiest, Hilda Owens and H. C. Kinsaul; Most Talented, Zarelda Walton and Robert Kilbrew; Cutest, Janie Clark and Tommy Wainwright; and Most Studious, Mavis Hardee and Jan Gardener.

In an effort to acquaint students with their institutions, representatives of 20 colleges in North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia discussed the advantages of their colleges with students last Monday. The meeting was sponsored by the Key and Keyette clubs under the general direction of Wade Mills.

Pupils visited with representatives of their three top college choices for periods of 30 minutes each. If all questions were not answered during the regular meetings the students were permitted to attend an additional 15-minute meeting with the college representatives after the regular meetings were concluded.

Ayden Seniors Begin Rehearse Class Play

By JEANNETTE WORTHINGTON, Ayden School Reporter
The Senior Class at Ayden High has begun practicing their play "Love Begins at Sixty-Five."

Pete Lowell, played by Lindy Dunn, and Angus MacDonald, played by Horton Jolly, owners of the Sleeping Beauty Hotel; Esther Lowell, a favorite niece, played by Henrietta Taylor; Wayne Odell, a young policeman and a victim of love, played by Herb Little; Judith Allen, an attractive reporter, also a victim, played by Sandra Basden; Ronald Carlston, a young doctor who is too busy for love, played by Ikey Baldrée;

Fawn Rollins, a pretty nurse who "kinda likes" the doctor, played by Bonnie Rutledge; Fannie, the hired girl who is not immune, played by Brownie Harrington; Abbie Riley, a neighbor woman, played by Ann Long; Lester Hawkins, a beautiful sultor of Fannie's, played by Ronnie Tripp; and Joanne and Dotty, two "blind" dates, played by Jeannette Worthington and Annette Wolloughby work together to prove that love may begin at any age and surmount any obstacles.

The play will be presented November 30, at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium.

At the regular meeting of the Senior Class last week, plans were begun for graduation. The class voted to have a speaker for both the Baccalaureate Sermon on Sunday night and for the graduation exercises on Monday night. Sandra Basden, Brownie Harrington, Ronnie Tripp, and Ikey Baldrée were chosen to work with the Annual Staff in writing the history, prophecy, and last will and testament of the class of '57.

Frances Dorman, Werts Mae Stancil, Carolyn Turnage, Jeannette Worthington and Faye Highsmith.

Mrs. Wilbur Worthington and Mrs. Carter, and Joe Dunn, Kay Dunn, Roy Salmon, Carl Nobles, Mack Tripp, and Billy Cuthrell accompanied the group.

Thanksgiving is really in the air at Ayden High School. The singing of Thanksgiving songs, posters, and attractive bulletin boards are proof of this fact.

Friday is the end of the second marking period. Tests, tests, tests in every class this week! With play practice, chorus practice, ball practice, to say nothing of home work, the students at AHS are really busy!

Ann Long, president of the Senior Class, presented the certificates awarded by the Curtis Circulation Co. for outstanding selling ability, and as a reward for achievement in practical sales work to Henrietta Taylor, Burt Tripp, Betty Lou Williams, Herb Little, Virginia N. Y. Times is an interesting article all by itself, and the first paragraph is so good that we think it's worth quoting:

"The most meaningful story in the South today is not one of Federal-state conflict over the integration of the region's public schools. Rather it is a related drama of rapid economic evolution and the accompanying population shifts, which in our time may improve the common lot and reduce the ratio of Southern Negroes to Southern whites as to eliminate the pressure of numbers and narrow the cultural gaps that together principally prompt the South to last-ditch resistance."

Wife Too Good, So He Hated Her
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Publicist Peggy Lloyd, 30, daughter of former actor Harold Lloyd, has won a divorce on testimony that her husband "suggested a breakup two weeks after our marriage."

Actress Robert Patten, she said, left her Aug. 20 in Seattle after five months. Mrs. Betty Plant, a friend of the publicist, testified at the trial yesterday.

"Three weeks after they were married he told me he hated her—that she was such a good wife he couldn't stand it."

TO REPLACE SOAP?
LOS ANGELES (AP)—A detergent bar may soon replace the old-fashioned cake of soap, says Richard R. Deupree, chairman of the board of Procter & Gamble Co. It "makes lovely lather," he said, and leaves no ring in the bathtub.

The use of board foot as a unit of measure—a foot long, a foot wide and an inch thick—is common only in North America.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG
Those of you who didn't get to see "My Sister Eileen" this week—and too many of you didn't—missed one of the best shows to be presented in these parts in years, at least in This Column's opinion. There's nothing like real live actors on a real live stage, and that's what you had the opportunity of seeing in "My Sister Eileen"—and with really good actors doing the work, and a wonderful director telling them how to do it.

Our orchids to the Greenville Little Theatre crowd who put it on, and to the local Jaycees for giving the show financial backing—when two organizations like that get together, something is bound to happen, and it did. We just hope they'll be putting on more performances as good as "Eileen"—and that more of you Greenvilleans get out to see them. . . . With a director like Bob Forney around, and actors available like Lucia Hutchinson, Lois Garren, Louis L'Abate, Kip West, Violet Simmons, Claude Taylor, Gay Granger, Faye Leggett, Miriam Vetter, Dr. M. W. "Henry" Aldridge, Elizabeth Savage, Beatrice Chaucery and all the rest who were in the cast, the city has an opportunity to see really excellent play acting—which is something you can say about very, very few cities of Greenville's size, you lucky, lucky people. . . .

King Cotton
For a book about the South that doesn't concentrate on the Civil War—for a change—we recommend "The Life and Times of King Cotton," by David Cohn, an account of the effects of textile manufacturing and cotton raising on the South and on other parts of the world. . . . Holding Carter's review of it in this week's N. Y. Times is an interesting article all by itself, and the first paragraph is so good that we think it's worth quoting:

"The most meaningful story in the South today is not one of Federal-state conflict over the integration of the region's public schools. Rather it is a related drama of rapid economic evolution and the accompanying population shifts, which in our time may improve the common lot and reduce the ratio of Southern Negroes to Southern whites as to eliminate the pressure of numbers and narrow the cultural gaps that together principally prompt the South to last-ditch resistance."

Poetry
Marianne Moore, a lady from Brooklyn who now, in her sunset years, is considered one of our foremost American poets, has just come out with a new collection, called "Like a Bulwark." Not many people buy books with just poetry in them, but we think Miss Moore's poetry is fine—and understandable, too, if you'll just take time to read it. . . . In Chicago, this coming Sunday will be known as Poetry Day, which is a celebration staged to gain support for a magazine called "Poetry," a little-read but highly reputable periodical devoted to publishing the work of contemporary poets. Helping in Chicago will be North Carolina's adopted citizen, Carl Sandburg. And in a lighter mood, "Write Me a Poem, Baby" is a recently published collection of the effusions—poetic—of children in their most uninhibited state. Here's a sample, by a genius aged 11, entitled, we guess, "Spring":

Spring is here, and

Bringing good cheer
Robins chirp,
Frogs burp. . . .
Today's Review
Below we give you the comments on one of a recent spate of books about the Civil War, contributed by Dr. Floyd Overly of the E.O.C. English Department. . . .

GRAY GHOSTS AND REBEL RAIDERS, By Virgil Carrington Jones, New York, Henry Holt and Company, 1956, 430 pp.
Southrons, rejoice! The Confederacy once more has won the Civil War! If there is any doubt to the contrary, this book will certainly dispel it. Here is a chance to read a carefully detailed, scholarly account (complete with thorough documentation, and even pictures) of the bold and dashing raiders who had Grant Whipped even after the fall of Richmond and the surrender at Appomattox. In substance, Mr. Jones' study is an account of the exploits of the "irregular" Confederate cavalry bands who, from the very outset of hostilities in the spring of 1861, until the bitter end four years later, kept up a relentless harassment behind the Federal lines. The author's purpose is to show that although these fighters have, in formal military history, been trivially dismissed as "guerrillas" or "marauders" or "bandits," they did, in fact, with smooth and savage efficiency so hamstring and hamper Northern operations that the struggle for Southern independence was prolonged indefinitely.

Claims Mailman Upsets Her Dog
DALLAS (AP)—Postal authorities said a Dallas woman complained the substitute mail carrier on her route was upsetting her dog.

"The regular carrier gets along with the dog," she explained angrily, "but every time the substitute makes the route it upsets my dog."

"Where is the dog now?" a postal authority asked her.

"Oh, he's under the mimosa tree in my yard," she replied.

"And where's the mail carrier?"

"He's up in the tree. It's upsetting my dog and making him bark."

Postal authorities disclosed no names.

Thanksgiving Is Early For Indians
BARSTOW, Calif. (AP)—Thanksgiving came early in an Indian village near here. A freight lines truck, loaded with delicacies, failed to beat a Santa Fe freight train at the Daggett Crossing. Rail traffic while the goodies were removed from the tracks. The Indians hurried away with some of the loot.

The three engines of the train were damaged as well as splashed with chocolate syrup. The van was destroyed. There were no injuries.

The walrus is generally peaceable except when molested or engaged in mating contests.

Some of the things he listed for which we should be thankful besides the accomplishments of 1956 are: "Health and happiness, a home thankful for hope, joy, Christian living and other blessings of the year."

Art Exhibition To Open Monday At East Carolina

Prints, lithographs, and etchings by well-known American artists will be shown at East Carolina College in an exhibition beginning Monday, November 19, and continuing until Wednesday, December 19. Dr. Wellington B. Gray, director of the department of art has announced.

Niagara Falls in Kansas?

A 6,000-DEGREE flame, slicing through hard steel to repair a harvester in a Kansas wheat field, echoes the roar of its faraway birthplace—the tumbling waters of mighty Niagara Falls.

Before the waters rush on toward the sea, their tremendous energy is captured in the form of electricity by Niagara's power plants. Part of this vast power is put to work nearby in the huge electric furnaces of Union Carbide.

In the blazing white heat of the electric-arc furnace, a mixture of coke and limestone is converted into calcium carbide. When water is added to this grayish, rock-like substance, the powerful gas called acetylene is generated.

Acetylene is the fuel for one of the hottest flames available to man. Teamed with oxygen, it forms the oxy-acetylene flame which is used in metalworking everywhere—from cutting and welding huge steel plates to repairing equipment for the farm, factory or home. The people of Union Carbide also pioneered the extensive use of acetylene for making basic chemicals. These versatile materials are starting points in the manufacture of new lifesaving drugs, colorful plastics, textile fibers . . . and countless other products important to our everyday living.

CHAPTER 14

Casson gave Strutt the written case-history. Strutt read it through twice, saying nothing. He reached for the photographs and studied them.

"Good," he commented. "But not proof."

"I get that tomorrow morning," Strutt took a swig of lager and looked at him. "On that photograph—Casson pointed at the one of Perry emerging from his house as Bagot—I pencilled in heavier spectacles. I showed it to my housekeeper, who watched him with me yesterday in Montpelier Square. She identified it at once. I'm having it faked up and six copies made. I shall take one early tomorrow and show it to Lockyer. If he identifies it we have proof. Perry will be Bagot."

"Lockyer won't play," Strutt objected.

"He will."

"Why? He's frightened."

"Gamman's Bank. Let me see the report on Greenhaugh." Casson leafed over the papers. He skimmed down the page and then pointed. "See? I thought it would be Greenhaugh's principal Bank—London was Gamman's. That's where his main account was kept. He only had an arrangement with the Lloyd's branch in Mayfair because it was near his office. Lockyer of course banks at Gamman's. Macfarlane works in Gamman's. Lockyer will have to help because it looks as if one of his staff is giving information to a blackmailer. I'm sure that's how Perry got his background stuff—and he knew exactly how much to tap them for."

"Macfarlane's the stooge?"

"It looks like it."

"Good," he said. "I'd like copies of your faked-up picture of Perry. I'll send one down to the Yard and one to the Hatfield police for Miss Martin to identify. You'll let me know about Lockyer?"

"As soon as I've seen him, I'll ring you."

"Right. Now: how do we catch Perry?"

"Let's have a look at the people who live in Montpelier Square." Strutt produced the list. After a minute Casson threw it back at him.

"Useless. Lawyers, doctors, civil servants, stockbrokers. All respectable. Each one a potential victim. None outstandingly suited. So we can't warn the victim and set a trap in his house."

"We could pick up Perry as he makes the touch and try to frighten him."

"No good. He wouldn't squeak. Nor would the victim. You know that."

"Blast them!"

"We must go on watching him. Let's hope he gives some indication of the victim. Then we might try a trap. The victim wouldn't object to that."

"Shall I put our boys on to watching him?"

"No," said Casson quickly. "It's bad enough with me. There's no room for another. He'd smell trouble."

"Yes," Strutt replied grudgingly. "All right."

Casson left at midnight and went back to Chiswick.

"Extraordinary," said Adeline, after he had gone. "Why does he do it?"

"Do what, love?"

"Hunt criminals."

"He likes it," replied her husband. "So do I."

Adeline smiled and collected the teacups.

"Poor Casson," she said. "Once he gets into a thing like that, it sort of eats him. You know. He gets all tied up inside and angry. Strutt kissed her. "Now it's bed for you, my love. Off you go," he said.

Casson was up early the next morning and away to Mount Street, leaving a note for Mrs. Gunn to explain his unusual departure. At Mount Street he had breakfast and waited for the finished photographs to arrive.

They were delivered at ten minutes past nine. Casson ripped open the envelope and laughed. Neveill had done his work well. Bagot stood there to the life.

He sealed two of the portraits in an envelope, addressed it to Strutt, and left it at the West End Central Police Station. He arrived in Launceston Street at a quarter to ten, in time, he reckoned, to catch Henry Lockyer before he went to the city. He was shown into the sitting-room.

Lockyer was standing by the fireplace, and looked hostile. Casson slid the photograph from its covering and laid it on the table.

"Who's that?" he asked. Lockyer stared at him coldly, hesitated, walked over to the table. For five or six seconds he looked at the photograph, then walked back to the fireplace.

"It could be him," he said in an unemotional voice.

"Who?" Casson persisted.

"Bagot. And now that you have got your answer, I fear that I must leave. I am going to the city. Can I offer you a lift?"

He walked over to a side-table and took a cigarette from a highly-polished wooden box. His face was turned halfway from Casson as he lit it but Casson could see the steady fingers which held the match.

"I am sorry," said Casson, "but I am afraid I cannot go yet."

Lockyer threw the scarcely-smoked cigarette in the fireplace and rounded on him.

"I have told you that I do not desire to proceed further in this affair," he said, and there was an inflexion of desperate anger in his tone. "I wish you to respect my confidences. I regard the whole matter as closed."

"I am forced to tell you," said Casson, "that you cannot consider it as closed."

"It's nothing to do with you. It is my affair. I prefer to forget it."

"You can't. Your bank is involved."

Lockyer stared at him.

"Gamman's?" he asked harshly. "How?"

"Bagot gets his information from your bank."

Lockyer was silent. In the end he turned away.

"I don't believe it," he said. "I'm pretty sure I'm right."

Casson was beginning, when Lock-

Series Of Parties Followed Grid Game

By MARTHA JANE PIERCE

Greenville High School

After the Greenville Phantoms victory last Friday night, JoAnne Parks and a group of girls went to JoAnne's house to pop popcorn and to enjoy other refreshments. The girls who went were Iona Jones, Jane Bass, Joyce Sutton, Mary Ann Bryant, Ann Marshall, Allen, Jean Ann Waters, Anne Parkinson, and Martha Pierce.

Twelve girls gathered at Clara Faye Crawford's house Friday night for a slumber party that was highlighted by "ring around the roses" in the wee hours of the morning. Those present were Jo-linda Brewer, Joanne Eagles, Laverne Eatmon, Nancy Berryman, Ruth Jordan, Anne Evans, Carolyn Briley, Faye Hardee, Pat Morton, Linda Morton, and Clara Faye Crawford.

Last Friday night when the football game and the late show were over, eight girls went to Sara Smiley's house for a slumber-less pajama party. The girls had gab sessions and early morning snacks until around 5:30 when they finally gave up and went to sleep. Skunk Dies, But Memory Lingers

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maldonado heard something move in the bedroom. They called Maldonado's brother Manuel. After inspecting a portable closet, Manuel said: "It must be a badger. Badgers bite. We'll have to kill it." The brothers pressed against the closet door to squeeze the animal to death. But the badger turned out to be a skunk. The skunk died. But the memory lingered on.

Rebecca Highsmith surprised Nelson Dudley last Saturday night on his eighteenth birthday with a party. Her guests included Gene Davenport, Barney Barrett, Kathryn Ratcliffe, George Clark, Martha Pierce, Louis May, Joyce Sutton, and Bobby Carroll.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — Steels continued to pace a moderate stock market advance early this afternoon.

Gains of fractions, a point were made by leading stocks in fairly active trading.

Some of the better gains made as the session started, however, were reduced in later dealings. Some stocks converted advances into declines.

The performance generally duplicated the better tone shown in the London stock market where there was a rallying tendency due to the improved international outlook.

In New York, brokers said the bullish trend was dented by the normal preweekend desire of traders to lighten commitments which might suffer because of unforeseen news developments in the next couple of days.

Steels, more actively traded than other divisions, resumed their recent advance on predictions of good business and reports of forthcoming price increases.

Republic and U. S. Steel were all ahead fractions, some of the prices below their best of the session. Youngstown rose more than a point. Lukens Steel renewed its sprint, adding around 7 to its previous run-up of 2 1/2 points this week.

Sugars, stimulated by the warlike atmosphere which has prevailed, also drew trading interest. Vertientes - Camaguey Sugar, which has been the most active stock for two straight days, added about a point.

General Motors, Chrysler and Studebaker - Packard were firm. Rails were narrowly mixed.

American Telephone, up fractionally at the start, was off about a point. The market was digesting a company statement that it would have record construction outlays and that the Bell System will need a lot more money next year.

Coppers gained. There were more gains than losses among leading aircrafts and oils.

The Associated Press average of 80 stocks at noon was up 30 cents to $178.20 with the industrials up 70 cents, the rails up 10 cents and the utilities up 10 cents.

Farmer Group Charges 'Stall' On Relief Funds

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. — A group of farmers from 17 eastern North Carolina counties say that regional Civil Defense officials and Army engineers are "deliberately stalling" on applications for hurricane relief funds.

The complaint was voted at a meeting here Wednesday night. The group voted to request Gov. Hodges and Tar Heel congressional members to intervene in their behalf.

Nov. 23 has been set as the deadline on applications for stream drainage and other rehabilitation projects needed as the result of hurricane damage last year.

Last spring Congress appropriated $5,386,000 for such relief work, but only $1,606,000 worth of projects has been approved to date, it was said.

A. C. Edwards of Hookerton, who presided, told the group, "It looks like they're trying to keep from spending this money."

J. H. Rose Is Speaker For Wahl-Coates PTA

J. H. Rose, superintendent of the Greenville schools, spoke before the Wahl-Coates Parent-Teachers Association at the regular meeting Wednesday afternoon in McGinnis Auditorium.

He stated the way to build and strengthen the American way of life is with the right kind of people developed through closer cooperation between parents and teachers. In working together there are certain things one must do, he said. Parents must be quiet, demanding and inflexible; there must be an absence of criticism of teacher or parent in the child's presence; both parents and teacher should know the capacities or limitations of the child.

Rose presented a challenge to both parents and teachers when he presented the questions "What would you do as a parent if there were no schools and you had all the teaching to do?" and "What would you do as a teacher if all children were orphans and you had all the guiding to do?"

In closing, he stated, "If we could combine these efforts then we would have the perfect situation. Education is hard work and demanding and requires the time and effort of the child, the parent and the teacher."

After speaking with routine business reports were given by committee chairmen. Mrs. Percy Cox, ways and means chairman, thanked members for cooperation which helped make the Halloween Carnival a success.

Mrs. L. W. Herring, membership chairman, reported a total of 547 members had joined the PTA. Cash prizes for 100% membership were awarded to Mrs. Savage's third grade, Miss Pate's third grade and Mrs. Everett's eighth grade.
