Role Of U.N. Police Being Discussed With Egyptians

CAIRO (AP)—U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold pressed negotiations with Egyptian officials today on the role of the new international police force forming in the Suez Canal zone.

Al Gumbhurriya called once more for immediate withdrawal of British, French and Israeli forces. The semi-official paper said: "Where do we stand? What are the functions of the international police force and what is likely to happen in the near future. Cease-fire but no withdrawal of invading forces."

From all indications, Egypt was opposing all but the most limited assignments for the U. N. force. The Egyptians apparently insist the U. N. force should exercise the quick withdrawal of British, French and Israeli troops from conquered Egyptian territory — and then let the Egyptians take over.

Bulgarian Ready To Discuss U.S. 'Open Skies' Aerial Inspection

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union offered today to discuss President Eisenhower's "open skies" inspection plan at a new summit conference on disarmament. The proposed meeting of the Big Four and India would consider Soviet proposals including destruction of all H-bomb and A-bomb stockpiles and an end to nuclear bomb tests.

He said the choice was between East-West agreement "and a new world war more terrible than any we have ever known."

On the nuclear weapons the Soviet Union made this proposal: "To ban H and A-bombs, their production and use, and to destroy all stocks, with an immediate ban on tests."

The West has insisted that strict international control measures must be imposed as a first consideration.

These were the Soviet disarmament proposals—most of them offered before in one way or another to be discussed at a summit conference "in view of the failure of the U.N. Disarmament Commission."

Utilities Sale Money To Be For Sewage Disposal Plant

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor Superintendent Leonard Bloxam last night recommended to the Utilities Commission that funds received for the sale of Greenville Utilities bonds cannot be used for construction of a sewage disposal plant.

"It seems to me that it is good business to invest money where it will earn us one per cent or more above what we would be paying for REA bonds. We would use the accumulated interest and principal towards construction of the sewage disposal plant rather than asking the people to vote $750,000 to $1 million in general obligation bonds for the construction of this project."

Bloxam noted that the city will be eligible under new Federal legislation for a grant of 30 per cent of the total construction cost of the project or a maximum of $250,000.

U.S. Stand On Red Volunteers Well-Received

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Western diplomats today hailed the firm U. S. stand against any intervention of Communist "volunteers" in Egypt as a stabilizing factor that might play a key role in keeping peace in the explosive Middle East.

Several delegates expressed belief the position outlined before the General Assembly last night by acting Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. would deter the Kremlin from taking an all-out "volunteer" step in the Suez Canal area.

'Some Success' VIENNA (AP)—Radio Budapest said today the Hungarian government's campaign to end the nationwide general strike had achieved "considerable success," but "terrorist groups" were keeping workers from their jobs in some places.

The radio gave no indication of the number of workers who returned to their jobs. It said only that a "large part" of the workers had "submitted."

Radio Budapest has been conducting an intensive campaign in support of puppet Premier Janos Kadar's effort to get Hungarian factories and mines functioning again to forestall economic stagnation.

'Lost' Rembrandt Etching Plates Shown By Humber

Seventy-five original copper plates etched by Rembrandt and believed lost for the past quarter century have come to light in the possession of Robert Lee Humber, well-known lawyer in Greenville.

Only a half dozen other original etching plates by Rembrandt are known to exist, all owned in Europe.

became "lost" among the thousands of so engravings from paintings that still remained after Napoleon.

Area Recruiters Meet; Total 222 Years' Duty

Seventeen men who believe in their business met in Greenville yesterday to discuss new methods of convincing other men of the future of the Air Force.

The 17 are Air Force recruiters, representing recruiting stations in 33 Eastern North Carolina counties. Their meeting was a training session designed to increase their proficiency in attracting young men and women into the Air Force.

In brushing up their sales talks, the recruiters—all volunteers for the work—had a personal strong point to throw in: their own careers. Every one of the men has been on active duty for at least eight years and one has been in the business 18 years.

Asks Ships And Men For Crises

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Adm. Arleigh Burke, saying the Middle East crisis may last "for a long time," called today for more men and ships to "back up our forces at sea."

Burke, chief of Naval operations, said the Navy is facing heavier commitments at a time when "our fleets are already operating at maximum effort."

Power Trials Of Atomic Unit Set

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy says it hopes to begin power plant trials of the atomic submarine Seawolf in late December.

Preliminary testing of the nation's second atom-powered submarine was delayed in September by discovery of leaks in the heat transfer system. The Navy said there had been no difficulty with the atomic reactor unit itself.

'Lost' Rembrandt Etching Plates Shown By Humber

When asked why he never revealed this possession before, Humber says simply that he was very busy with other things, and besides there was until now no Rembrandt exhibition here in which he wished to show them.

Plates History These plates history dates back to 1656 when Rembrandt went into bankruptcy—1956 is the 300th anniversary of this unfortunate event.

Years following Basan's death, these plates were gathering dust in another engraver's workshop on one of the Paris Boulevards until a young member of the engraver's family inherited the shop in the early days of this century—and cleaned house!

Deny Reports Of Dissatisfaction

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department has termed "without foundation" reports the Eisenhower administration has been unhappy about the quality of information sent in by American ambassadors in London and Paris just before the British-French attack on Egypt.

CHAPTER 15

Casson sat down on the arm of a chair.

"Bagot blackmailed a man before you," he said quietly, "and that man banked at Gamman's. As a matter of incidental interest he committed suicide." Lockyer's mouth twitched. "Your own affairs," Casson continued, "are known in Gamman's, especially the secret of your welfare project. You have identified the Bagot who blackmailed you, and that same Bagot is a friend of a man who works in your bank."

Lockyer shrugged.

"Bagot is going to blackmail another man some time this week," Casson went on. "I will bet you a pound that the new victim banks at Gamman's."

"You know who this Bagot is?"

"Oh, yes," Casson replied.

Lockyer opened his mouth, shut it again, then asked:

"Who is his friend in your bank?"

"A young man named Macfarlane."

"What?" Casson was surprised by the force of the response. "Say that again."

"Macfarlane. One of the cashiers."

"Jim Macfarlane," Lockyer breathed the words. "It can't be. I won't believe it."

"Why not?"

"He's a fine young fellow. Very promising."

"Well, there it is," Casson said, rising to his feet and putting the photograph of Bagot back into its covering. "I suppose you wouldn't give me Macfarlane's particulars?"

"Certainly not. I'm a banker."

"Your bank will look a bit ashamed if one of its cashiers is cited in court as an accessory to blackmail."

Slowly, carefully, Lockyer sat down.

"Very well," he said at length.

"But you understand that I will in no way be brought publicly into this affair?"

"I understand."

"Right," he rose to his feet.

"Perhaps you would also see if your bank knows anything about a man called John Perry?" Casson suggested.

"Perry? Why? I've never heard of him."

"You've met him."

"Perry? Don't recollect the fellow."

"You know him as Bagot?"

"Oh," Lockyer scrutinized Casson. "Oh," he repeated.

"I have an idea that he may have been connected with the bank," Casson observed. "Mind you, it's a long shot."

"Perry. Very well," Lockyer went straight out of the room and Casson followed him. The banker got into his taxi without another word and was driven off. Casson looked after him, for the first time feeling as sorry for the man as he would feel for any animal caught in a spring trap.

He himself went to Montpelier Square. He would be there by eleven and safely ensconced long before Perry should arrive.

With the key sent him by Nigel Willington, he let himself into the black, wooden shed in the gardens. A taxi came, deposited a passenger and two suitcases, and drove away. A young nurse wheeled out a full and squalling pram. Women went out shopping. Montpelier Square was normal: except for Bagot. There was no Bagot.

Casson grew more and more restless. Surely Bagot would watch his prey until the moment when he chose to pounce? Surely he would watch and watch and watch? Then where was he?

He did not appear at all, and when Casson returned to his flat at six he was in a high temper. Strutt was sitting in the library, reading a book.

"What do you want?" said Casson. "A free drink?"

"Yes. What was Bagot doing at Brighton?"

"What?"

"He spent the day at Brighton."

"How do you know?"

"We put a man on to him at dawn this morning."

"You bulging cheat," said Casson. Strutt chuckled.

"Can't be too sure," he remarked. "The louse nipped off to Brighton this morning. Took a room at a hotel. Spent the day in his room. Had no lunch. Got back to town an hour ago. What did he do? Why did he do it?"

Casson shrugged.

"Sea air."

"Sea air my Aunt Twitch," Strutt snorted and got up out of his chair. "So long, boy. Thought you'd like to know." He went away.

Casson puzzled over the incident but in no way did it make sense.

He resumed his watch in the Square the next morning, this time getting into position at half-past ten, armed with Alice in Wonderland which would keep him amused if his quarry did not appear. He did not dare follow Perry from Bickerstead Street, for if he did so he could not enter the gardens unobserved. He trusted to Strutt's follower to keep Perry in view until the little man changed into Bagot and reached his hunting ground.

The same baby came out in its pram and was wheeled away. A daily woman slammed a basement door, climbed the steps, and went home. At the noise of another door opening, this time from the south side of the Square, he glanced casually through the grimy window of the shed.

He stood rigid, his heart pounding. Perry was coming out of a house: Perry dressed as Bagot: Perry followed by a woman. Coming out of No. 77.

She shut the door and walked beside Perry down the street. Neither said a word. He glanced fondly behind her. On the corner, where the Square joined Montpelier Street, she stopped.

Perry turned to her, and Casson could see his lips moving. She seemed to hesitate, gave another look back, and went on.

As they turned the corner of the Square, Casson ran for the gate. He let himself out and sprinted down the pavement. Before the corner he slowed and strolled sedately into Montpelier Street.

Perry had just hailed a cruising cab. It squealed to a stop and the pair climbed in. As it turned into the Brompton Road, Casson ran again. There was no taxi on the rank. He ran on into the Brompton Road, signalling taxi after taxi. They were all taken.

He shrugged and gave it up. The other cab was well out of sight. He had no hope of following it. Bagot had pounced and Casson had failed to net him.

From GOD... to MAN

A field of wheat... a human soul!

Gifts from God—upon which man puts the imprint of his own labor, and faith, and wisdom.

The result; a loaf of bread... a Christian.

Life is teamwork with God. Man receives what he cannot create, and fashions what he needs. But between resource and product are vital steps.

Between a field of wheat and a loaf of bread must be the mill and the oven.

Between the new-born soul and the mature Christian must be a Church and a religious home.

True thanksgiving is the sacred resolve to use what God has given to fashion what God desires.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The November meeting of the Jay-C-Ettes was held Wednesday night after a ham supper. The business meeting was opened with the passing out of the Year-books. During the committee reports it was reported that flowers had been sent to three members, also that the Bridge Tournament and Rummage Sale were very successful. The awards committee reported it has drawn up the qualifications for the Jay-C-Ette of the Year Award. The award will be presented in May. Jay-C-Ettes decided to help a needy family at Christmas. A family has already been selected and different people have volunteered to donate clothes, food and toys to be given to the family. New members of the Jay-C-Ettes are Mrs. Max Joyner, Mrs. James Hudson, Mrs. Leland Flanagan and Mrs. Milton Williamson.

Delphian Club Hears Speaker On Decorating

Mrs. Ariane Clark was guest speaker at a meeting of the Delphian Book Club Tuesday. Her talk was on new fabrics and interior decorating. Displaying samples of materials, she discussed the proper places and effective ways to use the different designs. Mrs. Clark asserted people have a tendency to be conservative rather than bold when selecting color schemes. She pointed out in decorating it is not necessary to follow a certain period but that antiques can be mixed with modern furnishings to produce an attractive room. The meeting took place at the home of Mrs. Wesley Johnston which was decorated with fall flowers as colorful as the materials shown by Mrs. Clark. Guest welcomed for the meeting was Mrs. John Drake. Presiding over the meeting was Mrs. John Howard. Mrs. Ford McGowan called the roll and read the minutes. The hostess served a salad course with coffee at the close of the business session.

Miss Cannon, Mr. Phillips Wed

AYDEN—Miss Betty Lou Cannon became the bride of William Franklin Phillips in a ceremony at 8 p. m. Saturday at the home of the bridegroom's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Moore of Farmville.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Cannon and her husband the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie G. Phillips.

Vows were heard by the Rev. LaFon C. Vereen, pastor of the bridegroom, before an improvised altar banked with chrysanthemums, gladioli and bridal greenery. Present were a few close friends and relatives.

The couple was unattended. For her wedding the bride wore a powder blue dress and hat and an orchid corsage.

Following the reception the couple left for a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride adding a black velvet stole to her outfit.

Upon their return they will make their home in the Long Residence on Snow Hill Street, Ayden.

Mrs. Phillips is a graduate of Ayden High School and is employed at Warren's Drug Store in Greenville.

The bridegroom, also an Ayden High School graduate, now works at the Du Pont Plant near Grifton.

Immediately after the ceremony, the bridal couple and close friends and relatives were entertained at a reception. From one end of the bride's table, Mrs. Marvin Baldree Sr., aunt of the bridegroom, served bridal leas while Mrs. M. E. Sutton served bridal cakes.

Mrs. William Franklin Phillips

Mrs. Irma Belle Collins, aunt of the bride, poured punch from a silver punch bowl. The bride's table was covered with a cutwork cloth and centered with an arrangement of gladioli, mums and greenery flanked by lighted tapers.

The King's Daughters Hear Miss Tripp Give Camp Report

Miss Carolyn Tripp, Chautauqua scholarship girl, was guest speaker when the Patient Circle of The King's Daughters met Tuesday night at the Episcopal Parish House.

The president, Mrs. C. A. Bowen, opened the meeting with the Prayer of the Order and then led the devotional.

She read the 121st Psalm and followed with a reading from "The Silver Cross Magazine."

The Thanksgiving theme was emphasized. It was pointed out that one of the reasons for Thanksgiving is to make known God's wonderful deeds and goodness among people everywhere.

Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell introduced to the group Carolyn Tripp, past president of the Hor-tense Moye Junior Circle and now a member of the newly-formed Young Women's Circle, known as the Patient Circle No. 2.

This past summer she was awarded the scholarship to Chautauqua. This scholarship is given annually by the North Carolina Branch of The King's Daughters and Sons to some worthy boy or girl.

Miss Tripp first thanked The King's Daughters for the privilege of representing them at Chautauqua. After telling what the experience had meant to her personally, she gave a running account of the activities in which she and the other boys and girls were engaged during their six weeks there.

In closing she pledged her un-failing loyalty always to the work of the Order.

The president conducted a short business meeting. A plan for Circle achievement, adapted at the State Convention in October, was presented.

Special stress was put on good attendance at regular meetings and to subscriptions to "The Silver Cross Magazine," the official organ of the Order.

The Circle voted to make a donation to the Pitt County Mental Health Association.

The chairman of the Social Service Committee, Mrs. R. C. Henry, gave a comprehensive report of her work for the month.

Mrs. J. B. Smith, corresponding secretary, was asked to send cards to two of The King's Daughters who were sick and unable to attend the meeting.

After an announcement concerning the Christmas meeting to be held December 11, the meeting was adjourned.

Arrangements of bright, golden yellow and white flowers and silver candelabra filled with yellow and white lighted candles were used throughout the rooms in which the guests assembled.

During the game ice cold drinks and salted nuts were served.

Mrs. Ralph Hardee, club member, and Mrs. John Perkins, guest, were each given double decks of cards for high score.

Mrs. Moses Phillips and Mrs. T. G. Worthington were awarded for second high and Mrs. Dalton Gardner was presented consolation prize.

Also remembered with a gift was Mrs. Wesley Harvey of Greenville, out-of-town guest high.

The hostess assisted by Mrs. Jack Quinerly and Mrs. P. R. Taylor served a salad course with hot coffee, followed by assorted cakes.

Out-of-town guest in addition to Mrs. Harvey was Mrs. Frank Longino of Greenville.

He referred to the sacrifice of Mary, Mother of Jesus, and her sorrow as she stood by the cross, and asked the Mothers to look to the Cross and to think of their boys as having made their print-ers contribution.

As a fitting tribute to the Gold Star Mothers, Mrs. W. C. Harris read Kipling's "Recessional" and later gave a special prayer for Gold Star Mothers.

The president announced that the new Legion Home at Raleigh would hold open house about December 1 and Legion Auxiliary members will be welcome. Announcement was also made that the December meeting will be held on December 13 so as not to conflict with Christmas holidays.

Two new members were introduced, Mrs. John Whitehead and Mrs. Kenzie McGlohan, who is also a Gold Star Mother.

Mrs. Barbe, assisted by her co-hostesses and Miss Ann Barbe, served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

The following Gold Star Mothers were present: Mesdames Lester M. Meeks, Kattie Ross, Paul Vincent, Kenzie McGlohan, W. L. Mayo, Roy T. Cox, J. L. Rollins, G. E. Clark, J. B. Spilman and L. W. Cherry.

Mrs. H. A. Hudson was in charge of the program which was dedicated to the Gold Star Mothers, and she was assisted by Mrs. Frank Taylor. Corsages of yellow chrysanthemums were furnished the Gold Star Mothers by Mrs. Minnie J. Honeycutt of Greenville Floral Company.

Mrs. W. C. Harris read the Prayer for Thanksgiving from Peter Marshall's Prayers for Special Occasions. The Rev. Mr. Crawford was introduced by Mrs. Hudson

The hospitality of Greenville people is unexcelled. Our delegates expressed in many ways their appreciation. At the service Sunday morning suitable expressions of appreciation will be given to all those who worked so faithfully and effectively in making the convention program so successful, and support of the church's program. This procedure has met with enthusiastic endorsement in past years. Every member of the church should consider it a sacred privilege to participate in the church's program.

Long Hours For Starting Teacher

By ANNETTE JACKSON Reflector Woman's Editor Beginning teachers put in many more hours than the seven-spent per day in the classroom, according to Mrs. Frances P. Hughes.

A Meredith graduate, Mrs. Hughes began her teaching career this year at Third Street School with her fourth graders as "assistants."

She reports they make very able helpers. And when her time is equipped with one group she finds them carrying on their work in a responsible manner, proud in the knowledge that she is depending "to be fourth graders."

They are being taught responsible citizenship by the pretty young teacher through such means as election of their leaders. She finds that this emphasis on self-government also produces effective disciplinary action when that becomes necessary.

No Paddling Not one who believes in paddling a child, Mrs. Hughes finds her fourth graders fear group disapproval much more than the paddle. On the teacher's part this is a positive thing—rather than correcting one group, she points out the better behaved group or child as an example. And apparently this produces the desired effect for Mrs. Hughes says, "I don't believe I'd have to use the paddle even if I did believe in it."

After School Duties Attending various professional meetings, making lesson plans, visiting parents, grading standard tests given periodically in addition to the regular homework and planning bulletin boards and posters (the children do the work) to make the room attractive—all these give the teacher plenty to keep her busy long after school doors are closed.

Mrs. Hughes attributes most of the heavy duty "after" hours to the fact that she is a beginning teacher. At present, however, she estimates she spends an average of two hours per day on the job in addition to her classroom work.

Mrs. Hughes chose teaching because she likes to work with this age group. She finds they have an uncontrollable curiosity to know the WHY'S. And she enjoys being there to help them make their discoveries.

Trip Around World At present the class is on a trip around the world. Geography is a new subject to fourth graders and

BEGINNING TEACHER—Mrs. Frances P. Hughes began her first year of teaching at Third Street School this year. Despite the long hours of work required by teaching, Mrs. Hughes says, "It's very rewarding to see children grow and develop and enjoy learning." (Reflector Staff Photo.)

Agriculture's Long Range Forecast

If you are one who has been going around mumbling about agriculture going to the dogs, cheer up. Overproduction has been generally credited the cause of today's farm problems; and to meet the current crises there have been gradual cutbacks in agricultural output among many lines. But . . .

A recent Wall Street Journal news column says that "to feed 1975's bigger, more prosperous population, federal prophets say the nation will need 33 per cent more livestock and livestock products and 22 per cent more crops. The experts figure farmers will have to produce one-third more cattle, two-fifths more hogs, one-fourth more milk, two-fifths more eggs and chickens."

A Regular Contributor To State And Nation

Hardly a month passes that Robert Lee Humber of Greenville does not give his native community, his state and his nation more reason to be truly proud of him.

A man of many talents and unmatched ability, Dr. Humber has started the world of art with the revelation that he possesses 75 original copper plates etched by Rembrandt which were believed lost for the past 25 years. The etchings which have not been shown publicly since 1930 will be a part of the exhibition at the North Carolina Museum of Art honoring the 350th anniversary of Rembrandt's birth.

True to his feeling of love for his native state, Dr. Humber decided the only appropriate place for these priceless art treasures to be first viewed after 25 years in storage was in the North Carolina Museum of Art which he, more than any other one person, brought from a dream to a reality.

Through his tireless efforts Dr. Humber has helped to create for North Carolina and its people an art museum which has one of the outstanding collections in the nation. Now he has added greater prestige to the museum by designating it for the showing of these Rembrandt etchings which, save for his love of art, might have been lost forever.

The contribution which Dr. Humber has made and continues to make to his native state year by year defies measure in common terms. Suffice it to say that North Carolina has benefited beyond measure through the efforts of this native son who has risen to the heights of an outstanding world citizen and yet has retained the closest of ties with his state and his native community.

Grand For The West, But East Still Waits

Plans for the establishment of a school of nursing in conjunction with Womens College of the University of North Carolina will add in coping with the shortage of nurses which faces the state, but it will do little to ease the critical shortage of nurses in the Eastern section.

Already in the eastern part of the state hospitals, clinics and even whole communities are finding it increasingly difficult to obtain sufficient numbers of trained nurses to fill positions open.

Hospital officials and physicians in this area have made it clear that they feel the only way for the East to have a sufficient number of nurses is for adequate training facilities to be provided in this section. From an economic standpoint many young women of this part of the state who would like to become nurses cannot afford to go to Greensboro, Charlotte, Chapel Hill or other far-away places to receive their training.

Yet, if there were a state supported school of nursing in this section, they could acquire their nurses training at a fraction of the cost which otherwise would be required.

The state has been asked to provide funds to establish a school of nursing in conjunction with East Carolina College. If the East is not to face an increasingly acute shortage of nurses, this new state supported school of nursing must be provided.

Taxation Is Not Only A Problem To The Rich

How many people realize how much taxes they pay in a year?

Well, according to the Citizens Public Expenditure Survey, if you earn $86.54 a week, you work more hours to pay your taxes than for food and clothing combined.

The vast number of hidden, indirect, and so-called "painless" taxes keep the full story from being generally realized.

According to a recent authoritative computation, if you make $67.30 a week, you pay $1,043 a year in taxes. If you make $86.54 a week, you pay $1,425 a year. And if you've got a job paying $7,500 a year, the tax collectors will get $2,637 . . . more than a third.

And they say taxation is a serious problem only to the rich?

This is good news for livestock people, as well as the producers of the other farm products which will be in stronger demand. There is room for Eastern North Carolina to figure in filling those future needs.

The growth of a livestock industry in our section has been often advocated in the past, but the response has been slow in developing. With succeeding years bringing about shrinkage in tobacco and cotton acreages, livestock seems a good alternative. In many areas, meat animals provide farmers with their largest single source of cash income.

Nor should it be forgotten that there is an established market for these animals that operates every business day of the year. Prices vary, naturally, but the market is always there.

It will be 19 years before the anticipated high-plateau of production anticipated by the experts is attained; but with each passing day, the development towards that increased demand is inching forward.

There can be no excuses for missing that "boat"; the experts have told us what lies ahead, nearly 20 years in advance.

Transportation For The Coastal Plain

(Lynn Nisbet, regular contributor of this column, will leave Rex Hospital for his home in Raleigh tomorrow. Mr. Nisbet, badly hurt in an automobile accident three weeks ago, is recovering nicely and expects to be back on the job in about 10 days. Today's guest columnist Eric W. Rodgers, Editor, Scotland Neck Commonwealth.)

RALEIGH — Two of the long-cherished dreams of thousands of Eastern North Carolinians are adequate bridges and highways for the coastal area and adequate airport facilities for the rich alluvial Coastal Plain section which is seeking to diversify its interests by developing and obtaining industry to go along with agriculture. Both of these objectives got serious consideration during this past week at Raleigh. Let's discuss the bridges and highways.

The idea of bridges and highways to and along the Outer Banks, the dream of so many, has been laughed at time and again, but now it appears there may be substantial reason for believing that at least a portion of the cherished idea will be realized. Long years ago the natives of the Outer Banks and those of the nearby Alluvial Plain from which they were separated by Croatan Sound and Alligator River began to think in terms of bridging these two bodies of water so as to accomplish a double purpose—shortening the distance, in terms of time consumed, between the mainland and the Outer Banks and making the Outer Banks area more accessible. It should be recalled that until the present a person leaving the area of Raleigh or Rocky Mount had to go the long way around through Elizabeth City and then south to get to the Nags Head-Manteo area or had to lose time when using the route via ferries across Alligator River and Croatan Sound.

Attempts in the past often met with the answer that the two projects were too expensive and the traffic count would not justify such construction. So the great pleasure areas of the Outer Banks remained isolated and citizens used the two time-consuming routes mentioned, or came up from the South by the equally long route through Swainquarter, Engelhard and Stumpy Point. And even then there was a ferry crossing over Croatan Sound.

The natives were often told that the State no longer was in the business of constructing and operating toll bridges when they suggested such a solution of the matter, and it appeared that they were stymied.

A couple of years ago things began to look up when a survey was ordered of the Croatan Sound project between Mann's Harbor and Roanoke Island. As a result funds were allocated and in a few weeks this bridge will be opened to traffic. It will be named the "William B. Umstead Bridge", honoring the former Governor who showed such interest in and gave impetus to the movement.

This will be step number one in the dream of the folks who banded themselves together under the name of the Southern Albemarle Association, but they still have another goal ahead, a bridge across the Alligator River. Governor Luther H. Hodges took the ball on this project when he authorized a survey of the project a few months ago. This week he conferred with Lewis Coombs of Tyrrell County, who will represent his area again in the General Assembly the next time after an absence of one term.

The legislator told the Governor his folks, and all the folks of the section, wanted the bridge even if it was a toll bridge. The Governor did not see how the funds could be set aside at this time for a non-toll bridge but he did not discourage the idea of a toll bridge, so Representative Coombs went home delighted with the prospect that the bridge may be built and perfectly amenable to the idea of a toll affair. Of course enabling legislation will be needed.

Perhaps the idea of toll bridges may be a departure from the established state policy, but the folks who live in the areas are entirely willing. They believe such bridges eventually will pay for themselves and will encourage traffic to such an extent they will soon be accepted, as free bridges. This has been the history of many toll bridges of the past in North Carolina. Lewis Coombs is delighted with the qualified approval given the plans by Governor Hodges, who has during his time in office evinced a lively interest in the affairs of the Coastal Plain and has showed a real desire to aid in solving the many problems facing that section.

At the same meeting Governor Hodges showed his interest in the southern end of the Outer Bank when he gave the same sort of qualified approval to the plan of constructing a bridge across the Cape Fear River which was brought before him by Representative Addison Hewlett of New Hanover County. folks of the Wilmington area, said Mr. Hewlett, are likewise willing to accept a toll bridge if they cannot get a toll-free structure for they feel that such a bridge will aid greatly in the development of their section. This bridge would cross the Cape Fear River at the lower end of the city, some in the vicinity of the Port Terminal, and would relieve traffic on four major highways, routing it about the city. Representative Hewlett believes such a bridge is needed to end a bottleneck city and he has a large body of public opinion with him.

Other Editors Are Saying.. To The Highest Bidder

(The Lexington Dispatch) Action of officials of the National Collegiate Athletic Association in suspending State College from participation in certain official basketball events for four years may shock some, but need not surprise many. Whether the inducement reported to have been made to entice a freshman school basketball player from Louisiana to the West Raleigh campus are entirely correct may be open to argument. The evil of over-zeal in recruiting is not.

College basketball really first became big business on the State campus because of the building of the great coliseum, here with a capacity of around 13,000. Other coliseums are now open in North Carolina and the average attendance at college basketball games has reached proportions hardly more than dreamed of a decade ago. The upbuilding of basketball at State has spurred other members of the Big Four to place more emphasis on this fine sport.

However, it was evident before the Moreland case at State came to light that the business of recruiting talent was going a bit too far. About two weeks ago it was reported that a freshman star on another campus had been dumped out of college for scholastic deficiency. This boy has been the object of intensive recruiting also. Reports have it that while he was being viewed on a campus for which he had signed an athletic scholarship agreement it was discovered that he and his parents were "guests" for a week at a hotel on the edge of a rival campus, where he remained until he flunked out.

These are just small manifestations of the demand for reform in collegiate athletics that has stirred up discussion on a nationwide scale. A number of big colleges and universities in other sections have been fined heavily and banned from big post-season games because of the exercise of professional methods in inducing boys to become so-called amateur college athletes.

Sports Illustrated, the top week in magazines in its field, has been featuring the "clean-up" campaign which it holds is necessary to save college athletics, particularly football and basketball. The Big Ten universities of the Middle West have had a committee at work to recommend a uniform system of aid to athletes, beyond which none may go without severe penalties. Sports Illustrated has assigned Herman Hickman, who is well known in Lexington as a banquet speaker and former coach at two colleges in North Carolina, to the subject of reform. Hickman reported on the widespread abuses in recruiting by both coaches and players, and has suggested a code he believes would affect a cure for the current evils.

This code also would discourage promising high school athletes and their parents from going on hopping expeditions around the various campuses with a view to getting the "best bargain."

Stringent Safety Proposals

Because he is a surgeon and has seen so often the bloody aftermath of highway accidents, Dr. B. T. Tally of Albemarle has been waging a one-man campaign "to do something about it."

If everybody felt as he obviously does, the highways would be less of a hazard and more of a pleasurable experience.

In 1952 Dr. Tally mailed an outline of his proposals to every Governor and every Department of Highway Safety Division. In 1955 he sent copies to the National Highway Safety Organization and to all the automobile-makers.

Some of his measures sound drastic, some sound expensive. But as Dr. Tally reminds us, death and maiming are drastic, too; and the cost of highway accidents would seem to more than match the expense of preventive action.

Here are some highlights of his proposals, necessarily condensed because of space requirements:

Protective measures—laboratoryproof of alcohol content in the blood of any motorist suspected of "driving under the influence," rather than conviction by personal appraisal. If guilty, 10 years minimum with no parole.

Barbiturate-users should have license revoked for life.

Morphine addicts behind the wheel should get a 10-year minimum sentence.

No driver's license for psychoneurotics.

Every state requires a vehicle check by authorized garages, at least twice a year.

Dr. Tally's preventive measures include:

A driving course at every high school, and a required course for all who do not go to high school.

Improvement of the highway system.

Intensify highway safety council work.

Increase highway patrol, using every device to apprehend offenders.

Frequent reminders of safety measures and public support for severe penalties.

Car-makers should study and apply all safety developments.

Does all this sound drastic? It is.

Literally millions of lives are at stake. Can anyone say that one life is not worthy every possible measure to preserve it?

From Jets To Speedboats

By JACK HEWINS SEATTLE (AP)—When Miroslav Slovak learned that his boss, William Boeing, Jr., was building a racing speedboat and that 10 men had applied for the job of driving it, he mentioned casually that he would like to be No. 11 on the list.

"He didn't say anything at the time," recalls Slovak. "Next time I knew, Mr. Boeing announced in the newspapers that I was to drive Miss Wahoo."

Breaks like that have come often to the young Czech pilot who fled from the Reds, and he'll tell you quietly, sincerely, that "I love this country very much."

Miro excited the world in March of 1953 when he flew a Communist jet fighter plane over the Iron Curtain.

While he was an air cadet the Reds urged him to fly in Korea for the Chinese. Today his closest friend is Gurney (G. C.) Czech, who flew 100 missions in Korea for the United Nations.

"Just think," says Miro, "we might have been shooting at each other! I refused to go. Today I would be glad to fly against those Communists."

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS A SOLEMN SPIRITUAL REQUIREMENT

Many people profess to be scandalized at the suggestion that spiritually a man can be born again. They look askance at people who speak of themselves as reborn or twice-born Christians. Such people appear to them to be a bit on the lunatic fringe.

But why? Anybody who believes in spiritual realities at all believes that man is both a physical and a spiritual being. And certainly the Bible maintains this to be true. Man is made in the image and after the likeness of God. He has a soul, and that soul is definitely related to the spiritual Being who created him. And of course he has a body.

All through nature, birth occurs through the agency of a father. Our spiritual life is not the result of the life our earthly fathers gave us; it is something that is conferred upon us by a heavenly father. As it takes an early father to bring about our birth as physical beings, so it takes a spiritual, heavenly Father to bring about our birth as spiritual beings. Just as the ovum which he inert without the fertilizing agency of the earthly father, so the soul of man would be inert without the giving of life by the spiritual Father through whom everything—physical and spiritual—came into being.

The experience of spiritual rebirth does not always come about the same way for all people, but for everyone who would find his soul and keep it unto eternal blessedness, the impartation of spiritual life into his soul must somehow come about. "Yet must be born again."

Cabinet Changes Are To Be Expected

By RAY TUCKER WASHINGTON

"Do you look for any important Cabinet changes in President Eisenhower's second term?" asks T.G., of Atlanta, Pa., and many other readers voice the same question. Answer: If there are any resignations, as generally happens in a second term, it will be the doing of the members of Ike's official family, not at his request. He is quite satisfied with his entourage, especially as the Stevenson-Kefauver charge that the Cabinet was "loaded" in favor of big business, apparently fell flat.

AN ABSURD RUMOR There was an absurd rumor that the two Dulles brothers—the Secretary of State and Allen, head of the Central Intelligence Agency—might be forced out because they failed to have full information on the Israeli-British-French invasion of Israel. They did not have it because their offices at London, Paris and Tel Aviv deliberately withheld their military plans.

Ill health may force Secretary Dulles to quit, for his burden has been extremely heavy. However, if possible, the "old man" wants to see the current crises through to a peaceful settlement. Likely successors, if he has to leave Washington, are Under Secretary Herbert Hoover, Jr., former Massachusetts Governor Christian A. Herter and ex-Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

No matter who presides at State, Ike fixes foreign policy. His principal purpose now, and Dulles is in complete agreement, is to prevent a shooting war by channeling the possible causes thereof to the United Nations. OTHER POSSIBLE CABINET RESIGNATIONS Defense Secretary Wilson may step out because, like Dulles, of impaired health. His most likely successor appears to be General Alfred M. Gruenther of Nebraska, a brilliant military strategist, head of NATO's ground forces, and one of Ike's favorite bridge-playing opponents. However, General

Gruenther has accepted the presidency of the American Red Cross.

Secretary Ezra Taft Benson is another possible departure, even though the reported revolt against his farm program petered out to a great degree. Save for the loss of Missouri, the Secretary of Agriculture was given a vote of confidence. Two of his "giveaway" predecessors—Charles F. Brannan of Colorado and Claude Wickard of Indiana—were defeated decisively in primary and senatorial election tests, respectively.

Another Cabinet member who may retire is Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey. But he will quit at his own preference rather than because of White House desire. He will stay on, if Ike insists upon it, which is quite probable. With inflationary threats, due to higher earning and buying power, the next four years will need a careful and cautious man at the financial helm.

Obvious Budget Forecast

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here is probably the most obvious forecast ever made here: Defense spending will mount next year.

With Soviet savagery in Hungary and China-Russian menaces in the Middle East, no department or branch of the Armed Services will ask for anything less than enough money for all the newest weapons and all the manpower it might need in an eventuality short of declared war. And no party or bloc in Congress will dare make any large cuts in appropriations.

So there goes your hope of anything more than token cuts in income taxes next year. In fact, through tightening of loopholes, there may be increases. Here are more predictions, based on analyses of developing trends and a sprinkling of advance information:

No new cars at giveaway prices are in sight. Reports from Detroit indicate manufacturers are watching sales of new models closely and plan to limit production to demand. The industry will try to avoid overproduction, such as that which murdered prices and impoverished many dealers this year.

IMPORT PRICES TO RISE

More higher prices are coming. Expected long tie-up of the Suez Canal portends rises in costs of goods shipped to American industries via Port Said. These are the principal commodities that normally come that way: rubber, tin, burlap and jute, hemp, cotton, hides, manganese, carpet wools, copra, vegetable oils, shellac and gums. Consumer products normally coming through the Canal include pepper, spices, Oriental rugs, dates and nuts.

More food will be packed in glass. A new easily-opened closure for glass jars, which may make them more popular, is about to be unveiled.

Pumps will be the vogue in spring. Most manufacturers report heavy orders for pumps with slim heels and slim, tapered toes. Black is the most popular color.

Another eat-pork campaign is coming. The run of hogs is high and packers face the necessity of fresh publicity campaign to sell pork.

Car-makers should study and apply all safety developments.

Does all this sound drastic? It is.

Literally millions of lives are at stake. Can anyone say that one life is not worthy every possible measure to preserve it?

TRENDS IN MERCHANDISING

Main Street may go modern. Max Hess, Allentown, Pa., merchant, has plans for futuristic department stores in 20 cities of from 100,000 to 200,000 population. Many merchants, expecting Hess competition, will try to beat him to modernization.

You'll hear more about "bike paths." Dr. Paul Dudley White, President Eisenhower's physician, urged cities to build courses on which executives could bicycle for their health. The Bicycle Institute is plugging the idea and will back campaigns for bike paths.

Aluminum "tin cans" are coming. With Aluminum supplies scarce and still growing, the industry is seeking new uses and has an eye on canning. Aluminum cans are used for some products in Europe and a few purposes here; with more plentiful supplies, great expansion is possible.

Fewer living-room suites will be promoted by dealers. They are aware of a strong trend to mixing both styles and shapes by modern home furnishings.

OLD PROMOTER REMOANS LIQUOR TAX OUTLOOK

Since almost everybody else has sounded off on the subject, we asked the Old Promoter what he expected next year.

"Higher taxes," he replied. "Especially by states. Wages and salaries are going up and, in addition, they need money for more schools and to match Federal highway funds."

"My guess is many states will jack up the taxes on liquor. That's always popular with the dregs, and they still have lots of votes."

"States," he went on, "piling taxes on top of Federal taxes, may make liquor too expensive for purely social drinking. Then alcoholics will buy it."

"Did you ever realize that alcoholism is the only disease we tax? Wouldn't it be fairer if we also put a tax on tuberculosis, heart disease, cancer and beriberi?"

Poland Is Told Secret Police Drove Victims Insane During Interrogation

By COLIN FROST
WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Victims of Stalinist-era police terror in Poland were driven insane after only seven days of interrogation and others feigned lunacy to escape, an official Communist document discloses.

Leon Wudski, a member of the Central Committee of the Polish Communist party, made the disclosure in a speech to the October meeting of the committee—the session that produced the crisis with Moscow over the demands of Polish Communists for independence from the Kremlin.

The 300,000 copies of the official record of the session were sold out by newstands within an hour after they were published this week.

In his speech Wudski turned bitterly upon Jacob Berman, former overlord of the secret police, who was forced to resign as deputy premier and Politburo member last May because of his "mistakes." He had been considered the No. 1 man of former Premier Boleslaw Bierut, who died last March.

Wudski also assailed Roman Zambrowski, still a member of the Polish Politburo; Hilary Minc, who resigned as vice premier on Oct. 9; and Gen. Franciszek Jozwiak-Witold, whose office of vice premier was abolished Oct. 24. Minc and Jozwiak-Witold were Central Committee members who were accused of ushering in the terror.

"People were being kidnaped in the street and freed after seven days interrogation in a condition unfit for life," Wudski said in describing police methods.

"These people had to be taken to Tworzy asylym. Officers look asylum in Tworzy to evade the U.S. (secret police). They pretended to be mentally deficient."

"Others, decent people filled with fear and panic, escaped abroad solely to evade our system."

Wudski attacked Berman, who told the meeting "horrible things could take place under my nose without my knowing about them."

Said Wudski: "The whole of Warsaw knew people were being murdered."

"The whole town knew of narrow dungeons in which people stood for three weeks in their own excreta, six inches deep."

"The whole town knew that Rozanski (head of the notorious 10th Dept. of U.S.) personally tore off nails from peoples' fingers."

"The whole town knew cold water was poured over people and then they were made to stand in bitter frost."

"The courage to oppose, could at least behave like men."

"Alas, some couldn't. Some didn't want to. Those who did oppose were flung into jail and branded as enemies and traitors."

"But the majority went with the tide of the system."

"They built themselves warm nests between the breasts of Beriaism and sucked until they were drunk with power."

This was a reference to Lavrenty Beria, Communist secret police head, who was executed in the de-Stalinization purge.

N. C. Girl Tells Of Israel Visit, Life Of Tension

WASHINGTON (AP)—A North Carolina girl, just back from a 4-H sponsored trip to Israel, described how war and threat of war have become part of the everyday life of the Israeli family.

"Their every day of life is mobilized," said June Simpson, 22, of Charlotte, N.C.

Miss Simpson, a graduate of Woman's College, University of North Carolina, was one of 62 "ambassadors in blue jeans" who returned this week from five-month visits to foreign countries.

She said there is a feeling of "ever readiness" for war in Israel. All adults keep firearms beside their beds and girls carry guns with them, she added.

Miss Simpson visited a farm settlement where 60 to 70 young people live. They get training both in farming and the military, she said, and at night the settlement is surrounded by lights and guards.

She told of seeing a bullet-riddled farm tractor where a young Israeli farmer was shot down as he returned from work.

Farm families have dug foxholes around their buildings, Miss Simpson said.

Another North Carolinian who returned from abroad was Nelda Leticia Cobb of McLeansville. She visited Luxembourg.

Miss Cobb said she made potato salad every day for three weeks at the farm family she visited. "I couldn't make them enough," she said.

Going To Assist Refugees' Entry

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Walter (D-Pa.) says he's flying to Austria tomorrow to "help cut the red tape" so the first of 5,000 Hungarian refugees can gain quick admission to the United States.

Walter, chairman of the House Immigration Subcommittee, announced yesterday he would go with Immigration Commissioner Joseph M. Swing to aid in "expediting the speedy admission into the United States of a number of Hungarian refugees who fled from the Soviet blood bath."

Pierce Greety, the State Department's deputy refugee relief chief, arranged to fly from New York today on a similar mission to Austria where an estimated 30,000 Hungarians are housed in temporary camps.

President Eisenhower has authorized the admission of 5,000 Hungarians who escaped from their homeland during its short-lived revolt against Russian domination.

She told of seeing a bullet-riddled farm tractor where a young Israeli farmer was shot down as he returned from work.

Farm families have dug foxholes around their buildings, Miss Simpson said.

Another North Carolinian who returned from abroad was Nelda Leticia Cobb of McLeansville. She visited Luxembourg.

Miss Cobb said she made potato salad every day for three weeks at the farm family she visited. "I couldn't make them enough," she said.

Preparations are being made to receive the first of them at the Army's Camp Kilmer, N.J., possibly next week.

The McCarran-Walter Immigration Law contains strict regulations designed to keep out Communists and other undesirable. It requires thorough screening of applicants for immigration visas, a process that normally takes weeks at the least.

However, under emergency provisions of the law, Atty. Gen. Brownell may authorize some refugees, whose immigration eligibility is cloudy, to enter the United States under "parole" pending final determination of their status.

Walter, co-author of the immigration law, said it is conceivable that a few of what he termed "rotten apples" could slip into this country among the Hungarian refugees.

Thus, he said he will recommend "strongly" that questioning and screening of the refugees, after they come to the United States, be done in public.

"Because of the intense hatred these people have for Communists," he said, "someone will identify any among them."

Meanwhile, U.S. officials in Vienna reported that fewer than 1,000 persons have applied so far for the refugee visas.

Points To Need Of Trade School

At the Greenville Kiwanis Club's weekly supper meeting last night, R. G. Carson, Jr., head of industrial engineering at N. C. State College, spoke on "The Need for Technical Trade Schools."

Speaking in Greenville on invitation of City Manager Leonard Bloxam, the industrial specialist called attention to the ever-increasing demand for automotive, plenty jobs at higher pay for mechanical technicians.

Such a school would provide a two-year course for men between the high school and four-year college level. The speaker reminded that the need for such technicians is greater than the supply, and there are plenty jobs at higher pay for mechanics who take the two-year technical course.

He gave some of the history of the State Technical School for training men for holding better jobs and stressed their importance. The State Board of Higher Education favors such a school in the east. Kiwanian A. C. Howard had charge of the program. President Ed Waldrop presided.

Vocational Guidance Chairman Kenneth G. Hite and other Kiwanians are considering the feasibility of sponsoring such a technical school in Greenville to serve the north eastern part of the state.

A delegation of the Chamber of Commerce members were guests of the club. President Waldrop called attention to the coming bond election in Greenville for needed improvements.

Dixie McGeehan won the attendance prize. Berry Bostic had a birthday and donated a dime for each year of his age.

Dr. Cramer To Speak At Meet Of Geographers

Dr. Robert E. Cramer, faculty member of the department of geography at East Carolina College, will appear as speaker on the program to be offered at the Southern Division of the Association of American Geographers. The two-day meeting of the organization will be held in Knoxville, Tenn., November 19-20.

Dr. Cramer's address will deal with "Cartography at a U.S. Defense Agency." He will describe results of his work last summer at the Aeronautical Chart and Information Center at St. Louis, Mo., where he acted as a consultant on cartography. The Center is a U.S. Air Force agency, which will approximately 100 people employed is one of the largest map-making agencies in the world.

His work there had the double purpose of planning how to get back to colleges of the nation some of the new methods and techniques in map construction and how to encourage college students to enter the field of cartography.

In addition to his work as a teacher at East Carolina and other colleges, Dr. Cramer has served as a cartographer with the Air Force Aeronautical Chart Service, aerial photograph interpreter with the U.S. Air Force, and senior research analyst with U. S. Air Force Intelligence.

Deane May Try For Clerkship

ROCKINGHAM, N. C. (AP)—C. B. Deane, defeated in his bid for U. S. House of Representatives, says he may be a candidate for clerk of the House.

Deane said here yesterday he has been asked to be a candidate for the post, filled by the party controlling the House. The Democrats hold the majority in the House and will control its organization.

Deane said he will confer with members of the North Carolina delegation before making a decision.

The 53-year-old legislator served five terms in the House but lost in his bid for renomination to Paul Kitchen of Wadesboro in the Democratic primary.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two House of Representatives employees hired under the patronage of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-NY) have lost their jobs.

Powell, Negro congressman who was re-elected Nov. 6 to a seventh term, jumped party lines to support re-election of President Eisenhower.

Rep. Sheppard (D-Calif.), a member of the House Democratic Patronage Committee which dismissed the two employees, said last night: "The patronage committee is responsible for taking care of democrats."

Board Of N. C. Jaycees Meets

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—A quarterly board meeting of the North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce tomorrow will take final action on a proposal that the group back a search for management and technical personnel for the state's small businesses.

More than 400 delegates and their wives arrived here yesterday for the three-day meeting highlighted by a get-acquainted party. The group made tours of the Winston-Salem district today and attended the Wake Forest-Duke football game.

Edgar J. Gurganus of Williamston, immediate past Jaycee president, said the clubs had been asked to back the project, called Operation Manhunt, by the small industry division of the State Department of Conservation and Development.

The plan calls for the Jaycees to recommend men for jobs supplied by the small industries division.

In addition to a business meeting tomorrow, the group will hear a talk by U.S. Rep. L. H. Fountain of Tarboro.

Surviving are one son, Arthur Jones of Hampton, Va.; one sister, Mrs. Ella C. Jefferson of Greenville; two brothers, George W. Wyndham of Farmville and Atlas B. Wyndham of Petersburg, Va.; and one grandchild. Also surviving are two nieces, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Luther of Greenville and Mrs. N. A. Bullock of Farmville, and one nephew, Thomas B. Murphy of Washington, N. C., who were reared in Mrs. Jones' home.

First Graders In Family Study

CHICOD — Parents of Mrs. Smith's first-grade students at Chicod School were greeted by life-size pictures of the children at the school's "back-to-school" program Thursday night.

The pictures were made by the first graders from wrapping paper and were part of a unit study of family activities. Other portions of the study included discussions of animals and their homes, people and their homes, how family members work together, fathers' occupations and the requirements for successful crop.

Individual booklets with pictures and stories about each member of the family were made and a group book of students' homes was also compiled. Plaster imprints of each student's hands and oil-cloth ash trays were made for parents.

Dismiss 2 Under His Patronage

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two House of Representatives employees hired under the patronage of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-NY) have lost their jobs.

Powell, Negro congressman who was re-elected Nov. 6 to a seventh term, jumped party lines to support re-election of President Eisenhower.

Rep. Sheppard (D-Calif.), a member of the House Democratic Patronage Committee which dismissed the two employees, said last night: "The patronage committee is responsible for taking care of democrats."

'Lost' Rembrandt

mont suddenly came upon Rembrandt originals.

After working over these with a magnifying glass and comparing them with proofs pulled by Rembrandt, he knew they were genuine and published an article to this effect.

His statement was immediately denounced and ridiculed by Andre-Charles Coppier, Paris expert and writer on Rembrandt etchings. Alvin-Beaumont persuaded him to examine the plates; Coppier made chemical analyses of a piece of copper from the back of one plate and found it definitely of 17th century composition. He also found a fingerprint on one plate that also appeared in prints pulled by Rembrandt. He published a retraction to his denunciation.

Queen of Holland
Alvin-Beaumont pulled several sets of impressions from the 80 plates in 1906 and gave one set to the Queen of Holland and one to Clemenceau. Three sets he retained and these are now in North Carolina, as are the notes of gratitude from the Queen and Clemenceau.

The plates were exhibited at the Bibliotheque Nationale and also at the Rembrandt house in Amsterdam where there were so many delays in returning them that Alvin-Beaumont finally got the Dutch Ambassador in Paris to retrieve them. He then put them away into a vault in Paris.

To Be Shown
The copper plates will go on view along with many paintings and drawings by Rembrandt and his school at the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh today through December 31.

The exhibition celebrates in this country the 350th anniversary of Rembrandt's birth, which has been marked by six important exhibitions this year in Europe.

WRONG ROAD
MAGNOLIA, Ark. (AP)—An automobile and a freight train collided head-on here.

The car driver suffered only scratches and bruises. Police charged him with driving while intoxicated.

Cheerleaders, who are present for all games, include Sheila Wooten (chief), Iris Smith, Linda Garris, Betty Lou Nelson, Nellie Ruth

On November 6, the Juniors began what they think is a worthwhile project for the entire school. By way of the International Relief Commission, they plan to send money to Hungary which has recently been re-occupied by Russian troops. The class has encouraged each high school class to participate in the drive and promised to match, dollar-for-dollar, contributions of the other classes.

Some of our F.H.A. members and their guests enjoyed an evening of entertainment last week at the County F.H.A. Rally at Stokes-Pactolus High School. Belvoir-Falkland's entry in the talent show was Dillon Watson, who sang "I'll Never Stop Loving You," accompanied by chapter president Gail Garris at the piano.

After the Talent program, the 200 delegates met in the gym for dancing.

Stewart Claims Movie Business Must Change

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — Does the movie business have a future? James Stewart thinks so, but he adds there'll be some changes made.

Stewart is worth listening to. After all, he's a No. 1 star at the box office. Despite his casual manner, he's a keen student of things cinematic. Probably no actor in the postwar period has earned more from movies than he.

Jimmy was the pioneer of the 50 per cent deal. When his salary got too big for Universal-International, he was offered half of the returns for his services in a picture. Since most of his films attract multimillion-dollar grosses, this proved profitable indeed.

"The picture business has got to change," Jimmy reflected on the "Night Passage" set. "We've got to make movie going more attractive for the average public."

"That means we've got to have more comfortable seats, better air conditioning, more attractive theaters. We've got to make going out to the movie theater a real treat for the family."

The biggest bore, he opined, was going to the movie house and being unable to get in.

"There's nothing that sours a movie goer more," he said. "I

Municipal Gov't Class Hears Greenville Citizens

Students of municipal government at East Carolina College had guest speakers in their class during the past week three citizens of Greenville who discussed with them various aspects of city management and planning.

E. Hoover Taft, Greenville attorney; William Pate, senior sanitarian with the Pitt County Health Department; and Willard T. Kyser, manager of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, spoke before the students taught by Dr. Kathleen Stokes of the college department of social studies.

Taft stressed the need of better and more economical housing in the city. There is, he stated, especially a need in Greenville for more adequate housing for Negroes.

In this connection, he gave students details of the proposed Greenfield Terrace Housing Project, which is designed to provide better living conditions for the city.

Pate's talk on "Sanitary Engineering in the Modern City" dealt with the necessity to a city of proper handling of sewage disposal.

The desirability of bringing new industries to a city and the importance of providing increased economic opportunity to citizens were pointed out by Kyser.

He explained to the class how the Chamber of Commerce develops and promotes plans to sell the community's advantages to industries. "You must believe," he

Local Citizens To Again Vote On Bond Issue

SOUTH GREENVILLE FACILITIES—These toilets are the extent of the buildings for Recreation at South Greenville. Bond issue money would be used to construct an activities building at the park.

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Next Tuesday, Greenville citizens will go to the polls to decide whether they want to approve for a second time a $275,000 bond issue which would provide, street, drainage, recreation and Fire Department improvements.

Voters approved the issue once before on July 10—but a technicality prevented the final approval of the election by the Local Government Commission in Raleigh and city officials were told that the election must be held again to make the bond issue legal.

Thus a new election was set for Nov. 20.

"It is very regrettable we are having to ask the citizens of Greenville to vote a second time in favor of the issuance of $275,000 in bond money for general improvements to the city of Greenville," City Manager Leonard Bloxam said. "However, this was brought about when the local Government Commission agreed to our holding the election but then they would not accept the necessary forms as of the date of this agreement. Instead they used the date on which they were received by their office."

"Your city officials tried for some 60 days or more to overcome this obstacle and although the bond attorneys would have honored the change in the date, the commission could not see fit to accept it."

Bloxam emphasized that the city is asking no new bond issue monies. It is the same bond issue election being held a second time and local voters will be approving for a second time the same amount of money as was involved in the July 10 election if the issue carries.

"In order to meet the needs of this fast growing community and to avoid hindrance to progress, the public is urged to take off a few minutes to go to the polls and vote in favor of these improvements next Tuesday," Bloxam said.

As for the last election voters will receive six ballots when they go to the polls. Each ballot will represent a phase of the total $275,000 bond issue and each can be approved or disapproved separately.

Fire Equipment
On one ballot voters will find $26,000 to be used for additional fire fighting equipment.

Of that amount $17,000 is earmarked for the purchase of a new high pressure trucks at the main fire station and one at the sub-station.

Also in Fire Department funds is a $2,000 item for the purchase of one-and-a-half inch and two-and-half inch hose line for the new truck.

Another $2,000 would be used to purchase more fire hose to replace hose on other trucks which has deteriorated due to age.

Finally there is a $5,000 item to be used for installation of alarm boxes in new sub-divisions and areas of the city which are presently without an alarm system.

A second ballot will provide $24,000 to be used for the construction of a fill between Reade and Summit Sts. First St. would then be extended from Reade St. to Woodlawn Ave. Included in the $24,000 are funds for curb and guttering and paving the street.

"This will give a complete through street from Greene to Woodlawn and in the development of properties in an eastward direction it is planned eventually to have First St. continued to a point in the vicinity of Greenwood Cemetery," Bloxam said of the project.

Another ballot provides $15,500 for the purchase of a crawler type tractor with bulldozer blade, a front end loader and a back hoe for ditching.

If approved the tractor is expected to be of considerable help in the opening of First St.

The tractor will be used for rough grading of new streets, loading of rough and heavy materials for construction and maintenance, the covering of the garbage dump fill and the installation of storm drainage facilities to eliminate expensive hand labor, according to Bloxam.

"I feel that this piece of equipment will be worth a lot to the town in allowing us to do storm drainage work, ditching and other work when required without waiting for a piece of rental equipment to do the work for us," the city manager said.

FIRST STREET—A fill will carry First St. over this ravine under bond issue plans. First St. now ends at Reade. If the project is carried out it will be continued from its present terminus to Woodlawn Ave.

Greene Mill Run
Another phase of the bond issue would provide $16,000 for cleaning and re-working Greene Mill Run.

Of that amount some $13,000 would be used for removing obstructions and restricted conditions in the stream, increasing capacity of culverts and bridges and the clearing of the necessary right-of-way to facilitate the accomplishing of the work.

All that work will be done below the New Bern highway. An additional $3,000 would be spent for work above the New Bern Highway.

"This will give adequate stream flow to this run and will take care of the majority of flood conditions," Bloxam said.

On still another ballot will be the largest amount to be approved or disapproved by the voters on Tuesday. It is a $187,000 item to provide drainage for the city.

The funds would pay for storm drainage under existing streets in certain areas of the city.

Included are the following areas: Skinner, Watagua and Manhattan north to Old Statonsburg Road; an area from Norfolk-Southern Railroad southeast to Greene Mill Run (mostly open ditch); Old Statonsburg Road north to Fifth from Tyson to Memorial Drive; Meadowbrook section covering portions of E. Gum Road and Church St.; from a point back of Askew's Grocery on Fifth St. to the Tar River; Park Drive in the vicinity of Woodlawn and Jarvis; E. Third from Hickory to Beech; S. Clarke from 13th to 14th.

On another ballot will be $62,000 to be used for improvements in the city's recreation facilities.

The Recreation Commission is asking $2,500 for drainage within Elm St. Park. They are also asking $20,000 for an activity building at South Greenville Park and $5,000 for a shop and storage building to be constructed at Guy Smith Stadium.

Other items requested include: Playground equipment at $1,000; Greenville, $1,000; playground equipment at Guy Smith Stadium, $1,000; playground equipment at Meadowbrook, $1,000; playground equipment at Third St., $1,000; lights on tennis courts at Elm St., $4,000; playground shelter and toilet facilities at Hillside, $2,500.

Playground shelter and toilet facilities at Woodlawn, $2,500; playground shelter and toilet facilities at Riverside, $2,500; toilet facilities at Greene Springs, $1,500; purchase and develop playground block in Colonial Heights, $7,500; purchase and develop playground block in East Englewood, $7,500; supplemental funds, $2,500.

NEW TRUCK—A portion of the bond issue monies to be voted on Tuesday will be used to purchase a high pressure fire truck identical to the one shown above. The new truck will be placed in the main fire station.

DITCH TO BE ELIMINATED—Public Works Superintendent Beatty and City Manager Bloxam look over a ditch which will be eliminated under the storm drainage portion of the proposed bond issue. Some $187,000 would be spent on storm drainage if approved.

GREENE MILL RUN—City Manager Leonard Bloxam and Superintendent of Public Works Ken Beatty look over Greene Mill Run. The stream will be cleaned out and improved if funds are approved by the voters on Tuesday.

New Senator Herman Talmadge Seen As 'More Streamlined' Than His Dad

By HUGH SCHUTTE
ATLANTA, Nov. 17 (AP)—Deep in the heart of Georgia's "wool hat" country, folks like to think that young "Hummer" Talmadge is the spitting image of "Old Gene," right down to the jawful of tobacco and the big brass spittoon at his feet.

And Herman Eugene Talmadge, Georgia's newest U.S. senator and the only son of her late long-time governor, likes to oblige the comparison by affecting the red galuses, bushy forelock and long black cigars that have become a Talmadge trade-mark in Southern politics.

But Georgians have come to realize and accept that while the mold may be the same—rough hewn, trigger-tongued, independent—the newer model Talmadge is shinier, more streamlined, geared for power and action.

Where "Old Gene" was irascible, rooey, unbending and carried a grudge to his dying day, young Herman is calm, deliberate, pliable and apt to forget a grudge if it can mean more votes in a doubtful district.

And where the father boasted of "never carrying a county where the sire coars ran," the son is proud of his support in the big cities and his new-found influence with the younger generation of Georgia voters.

The Talmadge firm is still doing business at the same old stand of white supremacy, but the selling methods have changed since the father passed on and the son inherited the business.

Like his father, young Gene, twice elected governor of Georgia, states unequivocally that in Georgia Negroes and whites will never attend school together in his lifetime, but his approach is constitutional rather than contemptuous. He regards the U.S. Supreme Court segregation decision of 1954 as an infringement on the sovereign right of Georgia to run her own school system.

A square-jawed, hard worker, young Talmadge already has achieved two goals that eluded his father. He has won a seat in the U.S. Senate and he has replaced Sen. Walter George, "Old Gene" tried both and lost by an overwhelming margin.

George, 78, dropped out of the race before Talmadge could avenge his father's defeat, giving the heavily favored challenger clear sailing to Capitol Hill.

Talmadge quickly showed, in interviews after his election, that he had no intention of following the precepts of his internationalist-minded predecessor in the field of foreign affairs. George, long a leader in shaping the nation's foreign policy, was a staunch Senate advocate of increased foreign aid, the Marshall Plan and other forms of mutual assistance among nations.

Born Aug. 9, 1913, Talmadge was educated in Georgia public schools and attended the University of Georgia, where he received his law degree in 1936. The next year he married Kathryn Williams, a professional model he met while both were students at the university. Talmadge ended in divorce three years later.

In 1941 Talmadge went into the Navy as an ensign. After World War II service in the South Pacific he was discharged in 1945 as a lieutenant commander. On a three-day pass in 1941 he married another Georgia coed, Lella Elizabeth (Betty) Shingler.

Washington's Northeastern Conference champions moved into the Eastern Class AA football finals last night by shutting out Henderson's North Central Conference champs, 13-0.

An estimated 4,600 fans were in East Carolina College stadium for the contest which sent Washington into the Eastern finals against Rockingham. The Rockets defeated Clinton, 13-7, last night for the Southeastern regional title.

The Pam-Pack, which included a 48-6 win over Greenville in a season of nine wins and one tie, cashed in on a pair of unusual plays to beat the Bulldogs. The scoring plays weren't exactly "breaks," however, because Washington had to work for both scores.

Fumble, Fumble
With 3:40 gone in the first quarter, Henderson's All-State quarterback candidate Al Taylor went over the right side of his line on a keep play from the Henderson 25. Just after he moved across the line of scrimmage he and the ball were separated and the ball shot upfield.

Washington All-State halfback candidate Fritz Tanner chased the ball down, picked it up on the Henderson 48 and checked out for the end zone. He got a nice block at the 40, side-stepped a pair of Henderson players at the 30 and then got slammed on a hard tackle at the five. Tanner lost the ball almost as soon as he was tackled and it shot beneath the arms of one Henderson player into the end zone. Washington end Carl Jones won the race for the ball and the touchdown. Skybo Langley kicked the point.

That seven-point margin held through the first half but Washington beefed it up very early in the third quarter.

In the second half, an attempted on-sides kick by the Bulldogs was recovered by Washington's Graham Singleton on the Washington 47. On the first play from that point Tanner picked up 12 yards to the Henderson 41 for a first down.

Good Catch
On the next play, quarterback Wade Marsieder passed to end Billy Gilgo who fought off two Henderson defenders, made a phenomenal catch of the pass and then scored easily. On the pass play, Gilgo and Tanner went downfield together and ran into the Henderson halfbacks. In an effort to prevent the completion the halfbacks jammed Gilgo and Tanner and pass interference was called by two officials covering the play. Despite the interference, however, Gilgo made the catch and passed away for the other ten yards. Langley's extra point attempt was ruined by a bad pass center.

Henderson made only one serious threat, driving to Washington's 17 before their attack stalled and lost eight yards to give the Pam-Pack the ball on the Washington 25. Other than that, the Bulldogs could get only as far as the Washington 31 and while they out-gained the Pam-Pack they did most of their playing near the middle of the field.

Threat Stopped
Washington made one serious threat to score, in the second quarter, but a clipping penalty nullified a 22-yard run by Tanner to the Henderson 4. The Pam-Pack got into serious trouble on two other occasions when Ray Wynn punted out on the Washington two and dead on the Washington four, but in both cases the Pack was able to run the ball out of the danger zone so that Jimmy Silverthorne could kick out.

Graham Singleton, Washington 232-pound left tackle, owned nearly all the defensive honors in the game. Near the end of the contest Henderson was running almost solely to the left, apparently in an effort to get away from Singleton but the big man was making tackles all over the field. He got some effective assistance on defense from the entire Washington line, particularly tackle Tony Ambrose and center Durwood Dixon.

Henderson's Richard Faulkner, Alva Terrell, and Lawrence Kearson were the Bulldogs' best defensive players. Kearson was especially impressive as a defensive halfback.

In the much bally-hoed personal duel between Tanner and Taylor, the Washington halfback got the best end of the deal. Tanner carried 16 times for a net gain of 59 yards (3.9 per carry) while Taylor carried 17 times for a net of 48 yards (2.8 per carry). Even at that, Taylor, got a lot of assistance in his rushing total on the play which resulted in Washington's first score. He got credit for

Carolina Seeking First Win Over ND

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Second and third place standings in the Atlantic Coast Conference could be juggled on the outcome of two league games today generally only the salvaging of some respectability rode with the seven teams in action.

Second-place Duke, 2-1 in the conference, faced Wake Forest at Winston-Salem and Maryland invaded third-place South Carolina, 2-2, in the ACC games. Only a Duke loss coupled with a South Carolina victory would change the standings.

North Carolina traveled to South Bend, Ind., to face Notre Dame. North Carolina State was at Penn State and Virginia met Navy at Baltimore. The three ACC teams were decided underdogs against the outside foes.

Clemson opened the weekend of play last night, losing a 21-0 decision to Miami in the Orange Bowl. Quarterback Sam Scarnechia scored twice for the Hurricane while fullback Don Bosseler cracked over the third.

It was Clemson's first loss of the season, although the Tigers had suffered two ties. It was Miami's seventh straight victory without a defeat.

In seven meetings North Carolina never has beaten the Irish but today's game appeared the best chance for a Tar Heel victory. Notre Dame's sophomore-studded team went into the game with five straight defeats, the longest losing streak in Irish football history. North Carolina has fared little better, winning only two of eight with one tie. The best Tar Heel effort came in a 34-6 romp over Maryland.

Ed Sutton, big, swift halfback, has developed into the Tar Heels' scoring punch. He scored three times in leading North Carolina over Virginia 21-7 last week and is second in the ACC scoring race with seven touchdowns.

Paul Hornung, Irish quarterback, is the stabilizer in the Notre Dame backfield.

North Carolina State expected to have its hands full with strong Penn State, a well-balanced team with an impressive 5-2 record including wins over Ohio State and West Virginia.

The Wolfpack, 3-5 over-all, dropped South Carolina last week 14-7 and boasts two top notch runners in Dick Christy and Dick Hunter.

With last week's 7-7 tie still smarting them, Navy was expected to be out for blood against Virginia, the ACC's bottom team. The tough Middies, who have won 5, lost 1 and tied 1, had a bone crushing line and bevy of backs to throw against the Virginians who hoped to counter with the strong running of fullback Jim Bakhtiar and a better than average passing game.

Duke, despite some injuries to front line players, was a heavy favorite to drop Wake Forest and hold second place in the ACC a 23-yard gain on the play before Tanner recovered the fumble and ran it back.

Next week's Eastern finals between Rockingham and Washington is expected to be played in Fayetteville although a formal announcement has not been made. Fayetteville is closest to a midpoint between the two towns.

Scoring summary:
Washington 7 0 6 0-13
Washington scoring: Touchdowns, Jones (fumble recovery in end zone) and Gilgo (41, pass-run); extra point: Langley (placement).

Edenton Defeats Ayden 21-14 In Class A Playoff

EDENTON—Ayden bowed out of the battle for the State Class A championship last night, losing to Edenton 21-14 before a crowd of some 2,500 fans, here.

The once-defeated Edenton crew scored in the second and third periods. Tornadoes scores came in the third and final periods.

Edenton will now clash with Wallace-Rose Hill for the Eastern North Carolina title at a site not yet determined.

Quarterback Johnny Kramer and halfback Jerry Downum were the big wheels in the Edenton machine. After a scoreless first quarter, Kramer intercepted a Lindy Dunn pass on the Ayden 35 yard line, setting up the first Edenton tally. On the following play from that point, Kramer pitched a pass to end Henry Overton who bulled his way for the touchdown. Kramer also booted the extra point, his first of three last night.

7-0 At Half
With only a slim 7-0 lead at half-time, Edenton came back fired-up, to score quickly in the third period. The touchdown came on a 70-yard march. The shifty Downum, leading All-Eastern candidate, slipped away for a long 35 yards to record the longest single run of the series. Fullback Bruce White cracked through from the one yard line to climax the drive.

Ayden roared back fast after the second Edenton score. Halfback Hal Worthington broke away for a 45-yard gallop before being pulled down from behind on the Edenton 15. From there, R. L. Collins zoomed through the line for the touchdown. A pass from Dunn to Leslie Stocks added the extra point.

Sparked by Ayden's score, Edenton punch right back for another touchdown, with Downum scoring. Kramer pitched 12 yards to Billy Finch for the extra point.

A fumble on the Edenton 49 which was recovered by Ayden started the visitors on their final drive to the goal. Dunn passed to Horton Jolly from the three for the TD and the same combination clicked for the extra point.

It was Edenton's ninth victory against only one defeat.

standings. Most observers contend Duke is much better than its 3-4 record.

The first loss, 7-0 to South Carolina, came on the opening game. Pittsburgh, Tennessee and Georgia Tech won the others from the Blue Devils in close, well-played scraps.

The undermanned Wake Forest squad features the running of one of the nation's top fullbacks, Bill Barnes, whose efforts with a losing team have been outstanding. The Deacons entered the game losers in three games, winners in two, and tied in three.

South Carolina, third in the conference, needed a victory over Maryland to stan in contention for second place. The Gamecocks met an improving Maryland team which has been hampered by injuries and sickness.

ECC-Richmond Top Game In NS Circles Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

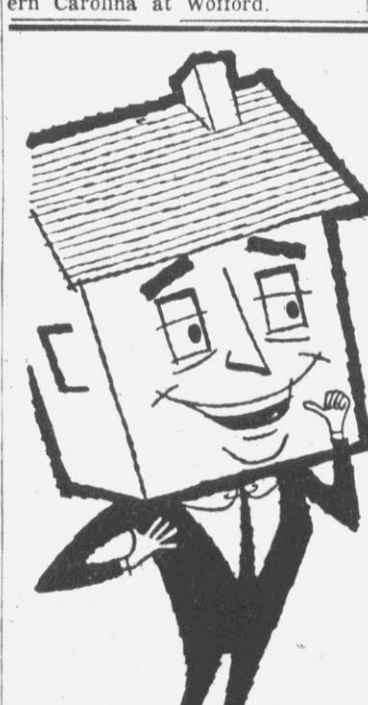

East Carolina set its sights for an upset victory over Richmond of the Southern Conference today in the only day contest of four North State Conference games.

The Pirates went into their final game of the season a decided underdog. They have won two of eight games, tied one and lost the rest. Richmond boasts a strong ground game and experience against stronger foes.

Tonight, Elon, battling for a possible second-place tie in the conference, clashes with Guilford at Burlington.

Front - running Lenoir Rhyne plays host to second-place Catawba in their annual Thanksgiving Day classic. Should Lenoir Rhyne drop Catawba and Elon win tonight, the Christians would finish in a tie for second with the Indians. A loss for Elon would leave them in a third-place tie with Appalachian, regardless of the outcome of the Lenoir Rhyne-Catawba contest.

The other games tonight find Appalachian at Tampa and Western Carolina at Wofford.

Farm Girl, 13, Prepares To Attack World Track Marks

By BOB GALLIMORE

ELMDALE, Kan. (AP) — A slim, 13-year-old Kansas farm girl who "runs scared" is aiming at any and all women's track and field records.

Ann Roniger, a versatile burnette of 5 feet 6 and 120 pounds, has already broken one Junior Olympic record and tied two others. In a practice running broad jump she cleared 16 feet 8 inches. Dr. John Davis Jr. of Topeka, Kan., track committeeman, says this would have won the title at every national women's AAU meet except one in the last 20 years.

Ann will be 14 on Feb. 14, 1957 and then will be eligible to compete in regular AAU women's events as well as Junior Olympic competition. She can continue in the latter class through her 17th year.

"There is absolutely no limit to her potential," says Dr. Davis, who discovered her by accident and has become her coach and adviser. "Her natural ability and stamina are phenomenal. If she works hard and continues to develop, she has a very good chance to be the first Kansas girl ever to make an Olympic track team."

Ann first entered track competition in 1951, shortly after her family moved here from Manhattan, Kan., where her father, Pascal Roniger, worked for the state board of health.

She quickly proved herself a faster runner than her friends at the Elmdale grade school. In 1952 she entered county-wide competition and began an impressive collection of blue ribbons.

She came to Dr. Davis' attention when her parents met him by chance on a bus going to a University of Kansas football game last fall. He arranged for her first big test last May — at the Kansas Junior Olympic meet in Lawrence.

In that meet she set a new Junior Olympic standing broad jump record of 8 feet 6 inches. She also anchored a Topeka girls' relay team that ran the 220 in 26.5 seconds, easily breaking the existing Junior Olympic mark of 27.1.

In subsequent Junior Olympic meets in Boulder, Colo., and Houston, Tex., she tied the records for the 50 and 65-yard dashes in 6.4 and 9.3 seconds, and broke her own standing broad jump mark with a leap of 8 feet 6 3/4 inches.

Since then she's been in training for next year, when Dr. Davis will take her to the National AAU women's meet. He feels she is ready for general competition in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, and in high jump and hurdle events. These are not open to her in Junior Olympic competition. She's cleared 4 feet 10 inches in practice high jumps with apparently little effort, and Dr. Davis says she is developing a smooth hurdle form.

FUTURE TRACK STAR—Ann Roniger, 13-year-old farm girl from Elmdale, Kansas, practices broad jumping on her father's farm. Ann also sprints, high jumps and hurdles.

Official's Test

Director of Greenville Recreation Gordon Goodman announced yesterday that the state-wide basketball official examination will be offered tomorrow afternoon at the ECC College Gymnasium for all officials who wish to be active during the coming season in this area.

The test will be given at 2:30, Sunday. Goodman said that the test is a state requirement and must be taken before an official is legally accepted in North Carolina.
